Bartle loses battle to save leg

Cass City resident Dennis Bartle, who was involved in a power takeoff accident Nov. 2, lost his right leg Friday morning at the University of Michigan Medical Center, where surgeons amputated the limb about 5 inches below the knee.

Doctors at the medical center in Ann Arbor are hoping to save Bartle's knee, but additional surgery may be required, according to Bartle's wife, Rita.

"There is still a 40 percent chance that more tissue will die off, and an above-knee amputation may be unavoidable," she said. "But the doctors feel that (because) Dennis is a young, strong, healthy man, the tissue will stay alive and the knee will be saved."

Bartle, 32, was working at the Scenic Golf Course in Pigeon on the morning of the accident. He was working near a power takeoff attached to a diesel tractor when his pant leg became entangled in the machinery at approximately 11:30 a.m.

He was taken to a medical facility in Pigeon and then transferred by helicopter to Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Bartle indicated Monday that her husband may be allowed to come home in about 2 weeks, but that he won't return to work for at least 6 months.

"Dennis is doing very well and has a very positive attitude about his recovery, which I believe is half the battle," she said. "We're just praying everything works out and the knee will be saved. We would like to thank (those) who have been there to help us out at this very difficult time."

Persons who wish to write to Bartle may send letters to 6728 Houghton St. Apt. 1, Cass City, where the couple lives with their 6-year-old son, Tom, or to the hospital. The University of Michigan Medical Center is located at 1405 E. Ann St., Ann Arbor, 48109. Letters should be addressed to Dennis Bartle, SA-Room 403.

Corn crop yields up

Exceptional weather aids harvest

The corn harvest is moving full speed ahead in Tuscola County, according to Cooperative Extension Director Bill Bortel.

"It rained 25 days beginning Sept. 10 and since Oct. 6 the last 30 days we've had really exceptional weather," Bortel said. "It's been a blessing on our side and that's allowed us to get this far. If we could have good weather until Nov. 22, we'll be in pretty fair shape getting crops out."

The only thing that could slow the harvest now would be snow. It won't make the deer hunters happy but we can live without snow until December, Bortel said.

Even if the ground freezes, corn can be harvested. Corn harvesting is about 20 percent done and soybean harvesting is about 40 percent done. Soybean quality isn't as good as it could be, Bortel said.

Only 50 to 60 percent of normal fall wheat was planted. Wheat should get planted by Nov. 1 or 2 in order to get it started growing before winter.

Bortel said sugar beets in Tuscola County were 90 percent harvested. The Sebewaing plant has more to do from the northern part of the county, but the Caro plant is just about cleaned up.

Chaff from the corn being dried at Berger & Company in Cass City floated in the air and lined the sidewalk cracks in red in front of Veronica's Restaurant last week as area farmers brought in their harvested corn.

"The corn looks good," said Don Root of Berger & Company as he and Dennis Wright unloaded the truckloads of corn. "We dry the corn and the soybeans we ship to Saginaw to dry. They're about full of everything there and piling corn on the ground."

Mike Walsh of Cumber Road in Ubly brought in his son Dave's corn to the elevator. He and Root watched as the truckload of corn slid from the raised truck bed and clattered onto the elevator's grate.

Walsh said they expected to get all of his son's corn off the 170 acres planted. The younger Walsh planted 800 acres of navy beans, soybeans, oats, wheat, hay and corn altogether.

"They were all good but the navy beans," Mike Walsh said. "We couldn't get too many in. We picked about 50 percent with the clippers and couldn't get two-thirds of them."

The Walshes put winter wheat in late and only put a little in because they didn't know if it would come up or not.

As he signed the weight slip at the elevator, Walsh commented that crops were good but prices were terrible.

The corn harvest is little better than 1/3 done, according to Dick Shaw at Berger & Company. The corn yields are up and the quality is decent. Corn was $1.31 a bushel last Friday compared to $3 a bushel a couple years ago, Shaw said.

Soybean yields are down a little bit, Shaw said. They were at $4.65 a bushel Friday. All the prices were terrible except navy beans, which were going for $35/cwt. at Berger & Company. Unfortunately, the quality and yield of navy beans were "terrible" too, according to Shaw.

"Beans were from a 5 pound pick to 80 pound pick--all over the board," Shaw said. "Those at 80 pound pick were worthless.

"Soybeans and navies were wetter than normal," Shaw continued. "Normal soybeans by this time of year are down to where they're not dried at all. Everything taken in so far has had to be dried."

Corn has had a 21 to 30 percent moisture level, about right for corn normally. Navy beans were at 22 to 24 percent moisture and are considered dry at 18 percent. Soybeans are dry at 13 percent and are coming in at 15 to 18 percent, Shaw said.

In Sanilac County the corn harvest is progressing very well, according to acting Cooperative Extension Director Roberta Weber.

"The moisture level is running somewhere in the high 20's," Weber said. "We're just below a 30 percent harvest to date and hopefully the harvest will be completed by December. I think we're going to get at least 90 percent of the original crop."

Weber said the dry bean harvest is 75 percent complete although at least 25 percent of the crop will be abandoned. Sanilac County produces 30,000 acres of dry beans annually.

"Probably we'll end up with a 75 percent dollar loss in dry beans because of a decrease in quality," Weber predicted.

Soybeans had some mold problems in Sanilac County. Soybeans cover 42,000 acres annually and about 25 percent of the harvest has been completed.

"We may be looking at 25 percent losses but we're just guessing," Weber said. "Some fields have a lot of rot and some are just fine."

Huron County will suffer an estimated $35 million in crop losses this year, according to Cooperative Extension Agent Jim LeCureux.

The corn harvest is 25 percent complete in Huron County, LeCureux said.

Huron County plants 140,000 acres of corn annually. The quality is a little below average but overall there is very little loss of corn, according to LeCureux.

Two-thirds of the dry bean crop was lost and bean quality was way below average. Huron County usually has an annual yield of 15 bags per acre but projected yield after the flood is 13 bags per acre. Only a

Banner deer season on tap in area

Area deer hunters may not get a good dusting of packing snow for the firearm deer season opener set for Nov. 15, but the hunting forecast is good as local deer herds are reportedly plentiful and in good condition.

"I expect a good deer kill," Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologist Bud Jarvis said. "It's a fairly large deer herd for farm country (and) it's been steadily increasing, not greatly, over the past 15 years. It's certainly equal to last year."

Jarvis had no specific deer herd or expected kill figures, but he noted that 3,000 to 4,000 bucks were taken in the tri-county area last year out of an estimated 18,000 to 20,000 bucks. A similar kill is expected this year, he said, adding that Tuscola County's deer population totals 6,000 to 8,000 animals.

The existence of a growing deer population is supported by car/deer accidents over the past 5 years, with the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reporting "loads" of such mishaps this year. Tuscola had 248 car/deer accidents in 1982, 278 in 1983, 312 in 1984 and 472 in 1985. Also last year, Huron County reported 438 car/deer mishaps, while Sanilac County had 525.

Hunters: The Chronicle will publish the picture of the first deer brought to the office and any others that are trophy animals. All hunters are urged to report if they get their deer for publishing in our "Buck Luck" column.

"This month is traditionally the highest accident month we have," Jarvis explained. He added that 10 years ago, deer/car accidents averaged 100 to 150 per year in each of the area counties. Another indication of growing deer numbers, Jarvis said, is complaints from area farmers. "We've had more crop damage (although) last year was probably worse than this year."

Jarvis indicated that hunters this year may face obstacles in terms of finding deer. "One thing that is going to affect hunting is the extremely wet fall we've had."

While deer normally are forced from cornfields into woodlots during harvesting, makihg them more vulnerable to hunters, harvest of many cornfields has been

Bargainers back in court

School walks away from fact finder

Despite mediation, despite fact finding, despite court rulings, the chances for a strike at Cass City Public School at the end of the current semester are as great or greater than it was when the teachers went back to work this fall.

The Cass City School District administration and school board walked away from fact finding conducted by Walter Nussbaum, saying that he had his mind made up before hearing testimony from the district.

Nussbaum presented a proposal for settlement after hearing only Board Member Louis Horner testify about wages currently paid in the area by industry. The fact finding started Friday afternoon and continued Saturday until about 10 a.m. when the school board voted to "not participate" in any more fact finding.

According to Al Luce, the school's professional negotiator, the proposal suggested by Nussbaum would increase the school's wage salary by over 60 percent at the end of 3 years.

Geraldine Tibbits, who has been a part of the union's bargaining team, said that the Tri-County Bargaining Association was willing to accept the proposal as a basis for further negotiation, but would request language change and other additions before accepting.

Nussbaum's proposal for settlement was: FIRST YEAR-6 1/2% wage increase plus reducing the number of steps required to reach the top of the scale from 13 years to 11 years. SECOND YEAR-6% wage increase plus additional pay for teachers that have 18 credits above a bachelor's degree. About 40 teachers would qualify. THIRD YEAR-6% plus increase for teachers with a master's degree plus 15 credits. Only 2 or 3 teachers would be affected.

The school administration estimates that these proposals would cost the district between 9 and 10 percent a year and when compounded cost over 60 percent over the 3 years.

In addition members of the staff moving from teaching to administration would lose seniority rights. It would be illegal for a person to split time between teaching and administration under the proposal. That would affect the principals at Evergreen and Deford schools as well as the assistant high school principal.

After the fact finder was told of the board's withdrawal, he announced that briefs should be filed by Nov. 17 and reviewed by Nov. 27. The fact finder's report will be issued Dec. 2.

The fact finding will be concluded with or without board participation, Nussbaum said.

The fact finding report is not binding on either the school or the union.

BACK IN COURT

School district and union representatives were back in Tuscola County Circuit Court Monday before Judge Patrick Joslyn after fact finding broke down. The group met in the judge's chambers for about 45 minutes then spent the day at the courthouse before being called back by Joslyn.

About the only issue in the negotiations that both sides agreed on during the day was that nothing was accomplished.

Cass City Schools are now operating under a consent agreement pushed through by Joslyn to end an 11-day strike at the beginning of the school year. The agreement assured school until the end of the current semester. If the teachers plan to strike then they must give 10 days' notice.

When the teachers were on strike the administration advertised for substitutes and received over 50 applications and Supt. Donald Crouse announced at that time that there were teachers with the proper certification for all courses except foreign language and math.

Glaspie vows accessibility to area voters

Democrat attorney Kim D. Glaspie is gearing up to follow through with a promise made during his pre-November election campaign--to help inject as much responsible fiscal management as possible into county government.

With 2 votes to spare, the political newcomer made Tuscola County history last week with a 921-918 victory over 4-term incumbent Republican Royce Russell in District 2. The district, which covers Elmwood, Elkland, Novesta and Kingston townships, previously had never been represented by a Democrat.

The surprise election result followed a statewide trend of strong Democratic support, even in traditional Republican strongholds.

Another local tradition--a Republican - controlled Board of Commissioners--remains intact at 4-3. But Glaspie's victory in northern Tuscola County could mean trouble for Republicans in the next election. County Clerk Elsie Hicks says the 4 northernmost districts traditionally have been held by Republicans, while a majority of the 3 remaining seats generally have been held by Democrats.

"I'm a newcomer to the board, so the first thing I've got to do is get a handle on everything," Glaspie said. "I'm going to give my input on the issues that arise, and go from there."

Sound financial management, particularly in consideration of expected financial woes for the county, will be of primary importance, the 31-year-old father of 3 continued. "I think that's still got to be the priority of the board--to take what we're doing and run it more efficiently."

"I think another focus has to be that people know I'm accessible--if they have a question that they can feel comfortable in approaching me."

Glaspie, 4728 Schweigler Rd., won a place on the November ballot as a write-in candidate in the August Primary.

Russell, meanwhile, had a mixed reaction to the election results. Was he surprised? "Yes and no. I've seen this happen before when there is a big landslide," the veteran commissioner remarked.

Russell says he firmly believes the governor's history-making victory made a difference in local races in terms of the so-called coattail effect.

"I guess my biggest disappointment was my home township of Elmwood. I only led by 5 votes, which was a surprise to me," he said. "I figured that Elmwood would be a much different spread."

Russell, whose 8-year tenure on the board ends Dec. 31, said he's happy with his performance. Projects

First appearance for soloist

Schrader to open Bach Festival

The eighth annual Village Bach Festival will open with an organ recital by David Schrader at Caro's Presbyterian Church at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 25.

Schrader will open with "Ball del granduco" by J.P. Sweelinck, a Dutch composer.

"This will be a particularly festive opening for the Festival," said chairperson and founder, Holly Althaver. "The piece is particularly suited to Mr. Schrader's expressive and highly communicative style."

Schrader will also perform works by C. Franck in addition to J.S. Bach.

Schrader is organist at Chicago's Church of the Ascension and also serves as organist and harpsichordist for Chicago's highly acclaimed 60-member chamber ensemble, Music of the Baroque.

He frequently solos with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. He has performed in the recording of Haydn's "Creation" with Sir George Solti conducting. He also played with Igor Kipnis and the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra under Karl Munchinger in recordings of Bach's multiple concerti.

Following Mr. Schrader's Caro recital, the Festival moves to Cass City's First Presbyterian Church and continues throughout Thanksgiving weekend featuring a broad range of works by Bach and his contemporaries, Handel and Telemann. Works by W.A. Mozart and Igor Stravinsky will also be featured, moving the Festival's repertoire into the classical and modern eras in addition to the baroque.

For information, call Holly Althaver at (517)872-3465. For tickets or reservations, call the Festival box office at (517)872-2844 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Meg's Peg

When the kids come home

By Melva Guinther

Dear Miss Manners,

When our unmarried son and daughter come home for a visit and bring a friend of the opposite sex, how should we divide up our 3 bedrooms and decide who sleeps on the sofa and the improvised bed in the den?

By preference or house rules, no 2 of these young adults may occupy the same sleeping quarters.

Do the bedrooms belong to our children's guests because they're "company?"

On the premise that chivalry is not dead, would the ladies be entitled to the private rooms?

Should they be assigned on a first-come basis, or determined by the length of the respective visits? Or would it be best to draw straws?

******

This may not seem like a big deal to someone with 6 kids, but when our 2 come home with 2 friends, it triples the normal occupancy of the household.

How does one diplomatically divvy up 3 bedrooms?

Coming from large families, it was standard procedure to sleep double and triple in our childhood. If you had company and could crowd no more into the beds, some slept on the floor.

But times change. Nobody shares rooms, let alone beds now.

On those rare occasions when everyone's home at the same time at our house, we could also use an additional refrigerator.

One drinks whole milk, one skim milk, and another 2%. A fourth person invariably develops an unusual craving for chocolate milk. Juice and pop preferences are equally individual.

We always over-shop and over-cook, in an effort to assure the kids' favorite foods. A roast beef dinner with mashed potatoes and gravy has to be served, because nobody living alone in an apartment cooks a roast.

A visit home wouldn't be complete without Dad's broiled steak and fried potatoes, seasoned and slightly burned, in his inimitable style.

Bologna, for the famous ground bologna sandwich, which cannot be duplicated anywhere in the world, is a necessity, along with all the strictly Michigan products: Koegel's lunch meat, Kociba ice cream, Vernor's, and locally grown apples.

The frozen turkey for the premature Thanksgiving dinner has to thaw. Afterwards, there are leftovers: stuffing, gravy, sweet and dill pickles, black and green olives and the cranberry jelly nobody really likes. It's just tradition.

The bathroom situation is a story in itself.

It's a bit chaotic. Scheduling showers can be a problem; the house becomes perpetually cluttered, and we love it. It's a cozy, comfortable sort of clutter.

It feels like home.

Store owners should pay for meters

A penny may not buy much these days, but on the streets of Cass City, it will buy about 14 minutes of parking time.

The copper colored parking meters which have lined local downtown streets since 1966 have been the object of controversy over and over again. Many retailers have said the devices are a nuisance and deter business, while others point to a regular source of income, some $3,500 annually, which covers about half of a lease the village has on a little more than 3 downtown parking lots.

Your neighbor, Jean Bliss, is in favor of a recent request by the Chamber of Commerce to cover the meters for the month of December. She said she isn't in favor, however, of the chamber using its funds to reimburse the village for an estimated $500 in lost revenue.

"I think the store owners should pay for it," Bliss remarked. "There's a lot more (shopping) in December than what there usually is, and the dimes, pennies and nickels add up."

"I'm lucky. I don't have to drive," Bliss continued. "I can just walk up town and go to the stores."

Bliss, who says she does all her shopping in Cass City, noted that a suggestion that the chamber assess store owners for the number of meters in front of their business is the most equitable solution.

The Village Council is expected to act on the chamber's request late this month. Regardless of the outcome, Bliss says, covering the meters won't make up for the loss suffered by area farmers due to recent heavy rains and flooding. "The farmers are going to be hurting. It's hurting everyone's pockets," She said.

Bliss, a native of Cass City, lives with her husband of 10 years, Raymond (Lefty), at 4481 Maple St.

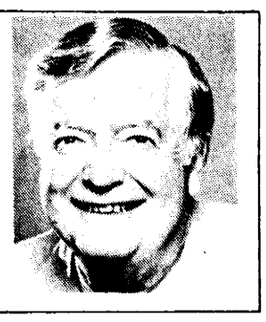
"If It Fitz..."

Light romance



By Jim Fitzgerald

At 2 o'clock in the morning, after being in bed for several hours, my wife still couldn't get to sleep. She said it was my fault because I didn't clip a certain photo out of the Detroit News.

I told her "Jane Seymour's Guide to Romantic Living" didn't advise men to clip newspapers for the women in their relationships. And, being in a snappish mood, I couldn't help adding: "However, I've been sniffing a lot of unromantic light bulbs lately."

Jane Seymour is an actor who, having been divorced twice and married thrice by her 30th birthday, is obviously qualified to write a book advising people how to put romance in their relationships. She said women should spray perfume on their light bulbs.

It should be noted that I believe my marriage qualifies as a relationship. I used to think a relationship was the handshake arrangement I had with my cousin, Jack, as opposed to what I had with my wife, which was more of a sleeping arrangement. But today I watch Phil Donahue, so I know a relationship is a sleeping arrangement as opposed to what I had with my cousin Jack, which was an unconscious desire to get more out of a handshake than could be reasonably expected from only four fingers and one thumb.

However, I think the grandfather's clause should apply to marriages entered into years ago, before relationships replaced weddings in the hearts of newspaper editors who must find something to print between Ann Landers' column and the weight loss clinic advertisements, so they assign defenseless reporters to interview actors who write books as opposed to authors who go to movies.

The grandfather's clause protects the natural life of something born before the invention of its replacement. That's why all Pony Express ponies weren't shot after the invention of the zip code. Also, that's why bulb sniffers risk being shot for bulb snatching.

Grandfathers can remember when electric energy companies advertised their product by publicly chastising anyone who snatched a bulb from one lamp to put in another lamp whose bulb had burned out. The idea was that both lamps should be lit, thus using more electricity and making Edison stockholders richer.

That was back in the days when power companies handed out free bulbs, before our government protected consumers from evil monopolies by decreeing that bulbs must be sold in supermarkets, thereby making it possible to arrest bulb snatchers for shoplifting.

Anyway, Jane Seymour said a romantic woman sprays light bulbs with her favorite perfume so the heat will make the bedroom smell sexy for the man in her relationship. So naturally I sniffed out my wife's romantic quotient. If she is perfuming our light bulbs, her favorite fragrance is essence of roasted glass.

Which is something I wouldn't have complained about if she hadn't griped about not being able to sleep because I no longer loved her enough to do what she always depends upon me to do because I read the newspapers first. I didn't remove a picture of a 17-foot-long, 150-pound Burmese python from the Detroit News.

My wife is so afraid of snakes she can't even look at pictures of them without going into a nervous, sleepless tizzy. We own the only copy of the American Heritage dictionary with tape over all pictures of snakes. I'm not kidding you.

It did no good to point out that I wasn't entirely without romance — I clipped a photo of the same python when it appeared on the front page of the Free Press. But it was buried inside section B of the News. Is it my fault News editors don't know front-page news when they see it wrapped around some fool's neck?

She said that was no excuse. That's when I hinted that, according to Jane Seymour, unscented light bulbs would do more damage than snake pictures to our relationship. And she told me to go shake hands with cousin Jack.

THE REV. CHARLES EMMERT recently began his duties as the new pastor at the Novesta Church of Christ. He's pictured above with his wife, Amy, and the couple's children, Craig, 4, and Alison, 10 months.

Novesta Church of Christ

Emmert is new pastor

The Novesta Church of Christ recently announced its first service Nov. 2 with new pastor Charles Emmert.

Emmert, 31, comes from Livonia, where he served as an associate pastor for the past 11 years. Originally from Bangor, Emmert graduated from Bangor High School in 1973 before attending Great Lakes Bible College in Lansing. He graduated from college in 1977.

Emmert, who along with his wife, Amy, are in the process of buying a house in Cass City, says his first impression of Cass City has been a good one. "We really love the town; it really feels good to be in a town like this compared to the big city," he said, adding that Livonia has a population of some 110,000 persons. "We're looking forward to our ministry."

The couple has 2 children, Craig, 4, and Alison, 10 months.

Rawson Library readies for Battle of the Books

The 6th annual Battle of the Books for children in grades 3-6 officially gets underway Nov. 17, with book lists and registration forms being available at the libraries through Dec. 19.

Sponsored by the Rawson Memorial Library and the Cass City Elementary and Intermediate libraries, the event is a competition designed to encourage more reading by 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th graders, Rawson Memorial Library spokesman Barbara Hutchinson said.

The single-elimination tournament, which is set to begin March 2, pits up to 16 5-member teams against one another in each of 2 divisions--one for 3rd and 4th grades and one for 5th and 6th grades. Teams test their knowledge of 25 books against other teams and receive points for each correct answer. "Even kids that don't read well can take part in this because it's a team effort," Hutchinson said.

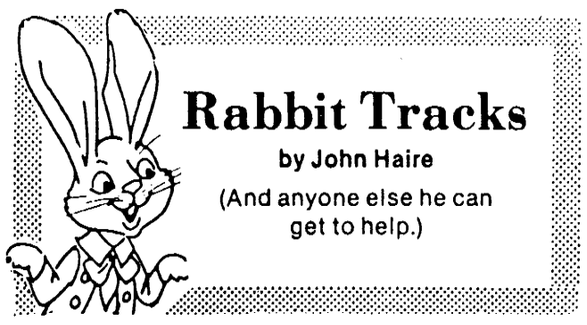
The librarian, who remarked that there are 8-10 new books this year in each division, added that the 25 books may be read by each competitor or split up by members of a team. A majority of the books used in the event are novels, she said, but there is a large variety of topics. "We try to have a balanced list--some that are serious and others that are just fun."

Hutchinson outlined the procedure for forming a team, saying that each group must have a team manager and a name. The manager acts as a contact person for the team and the library, arranges transportation and helps with scoring and time keeping for the battles.

"Students should make every effort to form a team on their own," she said, adding, "If they. . .cannot find a team, they should take their permission slip to the librarian (and) attempts will be made to assign them to a team."

Ribbons will be awarded to both first and 2nd-place teams in each division, while the teams who are eliminated will be given an opportunity to compete in an "honors" round for runner-up positions. All participants will be given certificates and are invited to a special victory celebration March 28.

Hutchinson noted that time schedules will be distributed in the near future, while questions on forming a team and volunteering can be answered by calling the library at 872-2856.



Guy Tonti, brother of Cass City's Don Tonti, is scheduled sometime this week to be part of the "Jeopardy" tournament of champions show. We don't know which night. We are not going to tell you how he made out, but don't miss a single program or you will miss seeing him.

It must have been someone else's car. We saw a new, bright bumper sticker on a car in the metro Detroit area which read: "Say yes to seat belts."

The driver of the car wasn't wearing his.

If all the volunteers raising funds for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation did as well as the Cass City group spearheaded by Mary Rabideau, the foundation would be swimming in cash.

It was a shock, but I recovered. Rod Hildebrant, head honcho at Allen Health Care, called to compliment us on a brochure we printed for his concern.

That just about never happens. Rod says that he calls when he's unhappy, so it's only fair that he calls when he's pleased.

There have been several persons tell me that they thought about writing for publication about one of their favorite restaurants, but just haven't done it.

If that's you, too, do it now. Right now, ya' hear?

Restaurant report.

The Jordan Inn is an unlikely place for gourmet dining. It's a large, old frame house in East Jordan, which is located on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix. There aren't any neon lights to guide you in and you have to watch for it or go right by.

Don't go unless you have at least 2 hours and $25 (or more) to spend. The Inn features French food and if you are a steak and potatoes person, stay away.

If not, you'll probably enjoy the food.

Unless you understand French, be prepared to ask what the menu is all about.

A couple of weeks ago the second hole in one in history was made at the 212-yard fourth hole at Rolling Hills Golf Course. It was posted by Fred Spaetzel, 76, of Minden City using a driver. What's more, on the next hole, the short par 3, Spaetzel missed by 3 inches scoring his second ace in a row.

Spaetzel scored while playing with the senior citizens. The first ace was scored by Jerry Toner, Cass City, when he was a high school student.

The folks at Purdy, MO, take me back to my high school days. It's almost as if they live in a time warp. In the 1940's it wasn't unusual to have families frown on dancing as sinful.

There were several friends who couldn't attend dances because their families didn't figure it was right or moral.

We didn't think much of it in those days, except to feel sorry for the kids who were deprived of the fun and excitement that the dances produced.

It was their right to stay home just as it was our right to attend. The folks at Purdy go a step farther. They not only keep their kids away. They fix it so that there are no dances at all sponsored by the school.

Now one of the kids that are being deprived has gone to court challenging the right of the board to deny the students a school sponsored dance.

What the court case revolves around is the separation of church and state. Three of the 6 board members attend a church that supports the ban. Dances are held at a community center a block away or at a neighboring school 40 miles away.

The county prosecutor has agreed to handle the case for the American Civil Liberties Union and the ACLU feels that it is a court case that can be won. There is an attempt to settle out of court.

The question of the separation of church and state is an important issue, of course. If I were a taxpayer in Purdy, I'd feel outraged that my money would be spent to settle this question.

Dancing is a socially accepted recreation. You don't have to do it just like you don't have to play baseball or attend a weekly prayer meeting. Certainly it's okay to try to influence me to play baseball or attend the prayer meeting.

It's not all right to try to force me to do it because it's right for you.

We tend to agree with the student who is bringing the court case when he says that all of the students want dancing whether they admit it or not. We know that way back in the '40's the kids that were kept home would have been dancing in a minute if they had been allowed to. Regardless of what changes the years have brought, human nature hasn't changed much.

The folks at Purdy can keep their children from school dancing, but if they aren't dancing, the vast majority will be doing something else with their free time.

There are worse things for kids to do than attend a school dance.

Owen-Gage adopts new student travel policy

A new policy spelling out liability, conduct and medical emergency release procedures relating to student travel under the authority of the Owen-Gage School District was approved Monday night by the Board of Education.

The board also fielded questions on student travel by a handful of persons who attended the regular meeting.

High school principal Robert Andrews presented and outlined the policy, which he said is aimed at students traveling to participate in various athletic events. The policy covers any student taking part in any extracurricular activity whether it be a sports event, debate or field trip, he added.

"The point is, we don't have anything in the school that deals with this," Andrews told the board.

Referring to a "recent problem," the principal said that a consistent set of guidelines is needed to ward off potential liability suits. "Today, people are suing left and right. I think it's necessary to establish rules that apply to all--that's where we've been getting into trouble."

The policy includes a dress code and covers all school-sponsored travel regardless of destination or the vehicle type used, Andrews explained, adding that many of the rules and regulations are already listed in the Student Handbook.

Aside from rules, the policy has student release and athletic medical report forms which parents will be asked to fill out and sign to facilitate emergency medical treatment.

In a related matter, Darlene Dorsch told the board that football players on a recent trip to North Huron were not allowed to stop at a fast-food restaurant which was about 1/2 mile out of the way on the trip home. The players didn't get home until 11:30 p.m., she said.

"Why can't the coaches stop? I don't like my kids coming home to eat that late," she remarked. "It's not right."

Andrews commented that liability is an issue in making such a stop and that hopefully the new policy will guide the board in deciding whether to allow food stops. "If you go out of the route of travel, the bus won't be covered by (liability) insurance," he added. "It's a matter of legality."

One person in the audience asked why bus departure times for athletic events aren't consistent from game to game, while another questioned the district's practice of dropping off football players at Owendale High School, rather than also making a stop in Gagetown.

The board indicated it will investigate questions raised at the meeting in conjunction with the new student conduct policy.

Voters reject senior millage; senior programs fate unknown

The fate of Tuscola County senior programs remains to be decided since voters rejected the senior millage proposal last Tuesday.

The defeated proposal would have let the Board of Commissioners authorize which service provider receives the senior millage money. The current millage stipulates the Thumb Area Commission on Aging (TACA) receive the millage money although it no longer provides services. The Human Development Commission (HDC) was chosen to provide senior services by the Region VII Area Agency on Aging in August.

The millage proposal asked for the same amount of money (.2 of a mill for 3 years) as the current millage but changed who would direct the money.

County Commissioner Chris Taylor (District 4) saw two options after the millage defeat.

"If we can reorganize TACA, our options are to hold a special election in 1987 or to cut the amount of millage money we use to get the federal match and make it last one more year," Taylor said.

Tuscola County collects $131,000 per year from its current senior millage and uses $19,000 as a match for Federal funding. County Controller Michael Hoagland pointed out for each dollar contributed locally, the Federal government contributes $9.

Taylor's suggestion of cutting the amount of millage money used during 1986 in order to stretch the millage another year could cause hardships for some senior programs. If TACA is reorganized to funnel money, the board may decide not to channel the entire $131,000 to HDC, the current service provider.

The commissioners could decide to allocate only enough money to capitalize on the federal money, Hoagland said.

"They (commissioners) can probably put in just the match money, but if they do, they cannot continue to have the level of services provided now," said Mary Ann Vandemark, HDC director. "I cannot manufacture $100,000. There would be a strong reduction of services."

Vandemark said all meal sites were established before Oct. 1 (when HDC began providing services) and some meal sites are rented in excess of the amount government regulations allow. In the past, the senior millage covered the excess. The Mayville meal site, where HDC prepares food for all the meal sites and delivered meals, is one such site.

"Their monthly charge for rent is $1300 and I have $300 budgeted for their rent," Vandemark said. "Right now, we're operating on the assumption that the millage passed.

"We're talking about hardships at one center--Mayville, other programs and many, many delivered meals in a year's time," Vandemark continued. "To stretch the millage beyond 2 years would be very, very difficult."

Nov. 12 the board will question if TACA can be reorganized. Rather than being the total service provider, a reorganized TACA would turn the millage money back to the Tuscola County Commissioners so they could distribute the money to the chosen service provider. The board asked its legal advisors their opinion of a reorganized TACA, Hoagland said.

The big thing we have to look into is whether or not we can get the millage spread for 1986, Taylor said.

When asked why the proposal didn't succeed, Taylor said he didn't know if it was because of the problems of the organization that had it (the money) or because of a fear of the organization that's getting it.

"It could have been the problems with TACA or apprehension of HDC or all the people of the county who have been hit with money problems," Taylor said. "Or it wasn't totally understood. I'm not sure everybody was comfortable with what in the world it was."

Horse drags 13-year-old boy to his death in Vassar

A 13-year-old Saginaw boy was killed Saturday at the Vassar Fairgrounds when the horse he was training bolted and dragged him.

Jessie R. Rogers, 13, of 2026 Hazelwood, Saginaw, was with a family friend, Frank Krnkovich of South Haven. Rogers tied the lead strap of the horse around his waist and was dragged a considerable distance when the horse bolted. There were people at the scene who chased after the horse, according to the Vassar Police Department.

The boy was taken to Caro Community Hospital by the Vassar Ambulance Service.

AROUND THE FARM

Test soil now

By Bill Bortel

"Economics of input costs will be extremely important in 1987 and you cannot afford to use fertilizer which will not produce an economic response," states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director. "We have yield checked several fields this fall where phosphorous was severely cut back from the farmer's normal application, and we have not seen a yield decrease. This would be an excellent time to soil test so you will know what fertilizer can be economically applied for the coming year," states Bortel.

The key to accurate soil fertility tests is sending uniform soil samples to the laboratory. "Collecting uniform soil samples is easier if producers develop a soil fertility map," states Bortel.

"Construct a fertility map by drawing boundary lines that group together areas with similar fertility levels. To determine the boundaries, take enough soil samples to provide an accurate picture of fertility levels on the farm property. These areas should not necessarily coincide with the boundaries established by crop fields," cautions Bortel.

After making a map, you can use it in following years to choose where to take soil samples to best represent the various fertility levels on the farm. This also minimizes the number of samples sent to the lab for testing and the time spent sampling.

For all purposes, each soil sample should consist of 20 cores, thoroughly mixed, to provide a representative sample of that area. Once you've determined a field is uniform, you need to take only one sample for about every 15 to 20 acres for accurate test results. If a field or area of the land is quite variable, you may need to take up to 3 representative samples per field or area.

Soil tests can help producers develop better soil fertility management programs, but samples must be uniform and representative for soil testing to be an effective management tool.

"The Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service office (362 Green Street in Caro) will send your samples to the Michigan State University Soils Testing Laboratory," states Bortel.

Mail carrier Root retires after 29 years

For 29 years Richard Root delivered mail to city route 2 in Cass City, yet his own home doesn't even have a mailbox.

"I never put one up because I always pick it (the mail) up at the office," Root explained. "Why let it sit in the mailbox all day?"

The town has changed in quite a few ways since Root started at the Post Office.

"There used to be more stores downtown," he said. "The residential area has developed quite a bit, especially on my route. Many more homes have been built."

Root's route covered the north side of town. When he first started, it took him 2.5 to 3 hours to complete it. Now, the 12 mile route takes about 6 hours to finish.

Downtown used to have more stores and offices at the tops of the drug stores. Many of today's stores, Kritzman's, Georgine's, Schneeberger's, Ben Franklin's and the Chemical Bank take up space where two stores used to be. Even the Post Office used to be located downtown. It used to be by Mac and Scotty's Drug Store, he said.

The increase in residential housing is probably due to bigger companies like Walbro and General Cable, Root thought.

Root said he never worked inside and wouldn't want to. He started working at the Sunoco station while a high school sophomore and worked there for 7 years before joining the post office in 1957.

Root likes the spring and summer weather. The best things about his job were being outdoors and the people, he said.

"The people are really great," Root said. "I really am going to miss them. I worked with a great bunch of fellas, too. I don't think I could have asked for a better group to work with."

Root paused when asked about dogs.

"You get to know them," he said with a hint of a smile. "Some dogs are quite nasty. You learn where those dogs are and you walk by those places."

Walking 12 miles a day for 29 years hasn't seemed to phase the slim-hipped Root. Nobody can tell me a thing about these winters, he quipped.

Mail carriers don't have the edge on the number of miles walked in a day, he claimed.

"You'd be surprised who walks farther than a mailman," Root challenged. "A waitress walks more than a mailman. It was in a Detroit Free Press survey a few years ago. I can't remember how many miles they walked."

Root's love of the outdoors is evident by his large manicured lawn and long stretch of garden behind his home. He likes to garden and raise flowers and plans to work around his house for the time being.

From a window overlooking the back yard, way beyond the withered, droopy-headed sunflowers in his garden, Root points to a two-story stone house and graying barn where he was born and raised. His grandfather, Asa Jerome Root, settled on the land where Root lives and his father, Jerome, farmed the land. The farm has been in the family since 1887. Root's mother, Margaret, lives in the stone house now.

He and his wife, Glennola, have two children, Michael and Louann. They also have 3 grandchildren.

Even with his love of warm weather, Root said he doesn't plan to move to Florida. It's too crowded there, he said.

"I wouldn't mind going to work again, but I haven't given it much thought right now," he said. "My wife and I might even get to go fishing now."

When female elephants fight, it is said, they usually try to bite off each other's tail.

Note: Huron County had the highest voter turnout among the tri-county area -- 10,435, or 47 percent of Huron's 22,257 registered voters cast ballots, while 13,797 (nearly 43 percent) of Tuscola's 32,124 voters took part in the election and 11,309 (nearly 43 percent) of Sanilac's 26,365 voters cast ballots. All 3 counties chose Blanchard over Lucas as well as rejecting all 3 statewide proposals.

Two township proposals sink

Increased voter favor heartens twp. officials

Although Novesta and Wisner township voters defeated their road millages, township officials were encouraged by the increased favor voters showed toward the millages.

Voters defeated Novesta Township's road preparation proposal. The proposal would have levied 1.5 mills for 3 years and brought in $22,000 per year.

"We'll have to do our regular upkeep that we always do," Clerk Nursie Kloc said. "If there's enough money next year, we'll use it."

Kloc didn't think the proposal would run again, at least not soon. She said she wouldn't know until next year's budget was presented in March how much money would be devoted to road work.

"This millage was to get extra money to permanently improve our roads so we could do away with re-graveling and resurfacing every other year," Supervisor Bill O'Dell said. "That's like pouring money down a rat hole."

Nine miles of township roads were blacktopped last summer. They then become the county's responsibility to repair, he said.

Although the millage proposal was defeated, O'Dell said every time the proposal gets put on the ballot more people vote in favor of it.

"We understand our people are paying all the taxes they can," O'Dell said. "A lot of people would have voted for it if economic conditions had been better."

Although Wisner Township voters defeated its road improvement proposal, 115 to 88, Township Supervisor James McFarland said he was pleased with the support shown for the proposal.

"This is a whole lot better than when it was turned down 5 to 1 in September 1985," McFarland said. "People show more interest as the roads deteriorate a little bit more. This is the only way they can be improved."

McFarland said as far as road improvements were concerned, the outlook doesn't look good. Wisner Township lost its Federal revenue sharing money which used to be spent on roads and also lost $2 million in State Equalized Valuation in the agriculture classification.

"We're going to have to make quite a few cuts in our 1987-88 fiscal year budget starting in April," McFarland predicted. "It doesn't look like we'll be able to do any road improvements. We'll do as much road maintenance as we can."

McFarland said the Department of Natural Resources may let brine water be used for dust control on roads, which would be a plus for Wisner Township.

"It would be $3500 in dust control we wouldn't have to spend," he said. "In Wisner Township there are several oil wells and brine wells that can supply the brine water."

Only Columbia Township passed its proposal asking for 1.5 mills for 3 years for road construction, repair and maintenance.

HEALTH TIPS

High blood pressure: the silent killer

Winter in Michigan - it's just around the corner. What an incentive for those of us with a natural adversity to work, to head for the nearest chair with a bag of chips and our favorite refreshment.

You may find this scenario relaxing, but if you have high blood pressure, your heart is hardly relaxing!

In fact, high blood pressure makes your heart work harder because the pressure in the arteries is increased. Blood pressure s the force of blood against the walls of the arteries created as the heart pumps blood and rests between beats.

High blood pressure is a silent killer and will afflict some 2.2 million Michigan residents in 1986, according to a recent projection made by the American Heart Association (AHA). Nationally, the same study estimates some 57.7 million Americans suffer from high blood pressure - nearly 20 million more people than previously estimated.

High Blood pressure contributes to the likelihood of stroke, heart attack, congestive heart failure, kidney damage and arteriosclerosis, the process by which arteries become narrow and less elastic.

High blood pressure isn't strictly an adult health problem either. Perhaps not thought of as a childhood disease on the order of chicken-pox or mumps, high blood pressure does effect approximately 5 percent of U.S. children.

"More than ever, we want parents to realize that healthy habits should begin early in life because these habits can affect adult well-being," said Dr. Andrew Hauser, chairman of the community programs and education council of AHA of Michigan. "Certain factors such as obesity and lack of exercise can lead to high blood pressure for children and it can remain high into adolescence and adulthood," says Dr. Hauser.

Researchers studying high blood pressure report that a tendency toward having it may be hereditary. In many cases children have primary high blood pressure meaning what causes it is unknown.

In some cases, high blood pressure can be caused by other diseases such as heart or kidney disease. This "secondary" high blood pressure usually returns to normal when the disease is successfully treated. In other cases, some medicines can cause high blood pressure, but, when discontinued, the blood pressure most often returns to normal.

Drugs such as alcohol, amphetamines and diet pills and street drugs can also raise blood pressure.

As with adults who have high blood pressure, children who reduce their salt intake, exercise regularly and take their medication regularly, should lead normal lives.

"Certain factors such as obesity and lack of exercise can lead to high blood pressure in children or adults," said Dr. Hauser." "Anyone with high blood pressure can benefit from avoiding processed foods which tend to be high in sodium."

For adults or adolescents, smoking, particularly in combination with other risk factors, can increase the severity of high blood pressure and lead to coronary disease.

The American Heart Association recommends that annual blood pressure checks become a part of regular health care programs for children as well as adults. Children with a family history of high blood pressure who are overweight and who have consistently high readings are the ones who may have a life-long problem with high blood pressure.

To obtain more information on high blood pressure and other cardiovascular health topics, call the American Heart Association of Michigan (313) 557-9500 or your local AHA affiliate, or write: American Heart Association of Michigan, 16310 W. 12 Mile Road, P.O. Box 160, Lathrup Village, MI 48076.

Pigs are no joke

The next time you make jokes about pigs, remember, they have been around 36 million years, and according to Ranger Rick magazine, they are very useful animals. Not only can their meat be eaten and made into bacon but pig skin is used for footballs, saddles, jackets and to treat people with severe burns. Chemicals produced from pigs are used to treat humans who suffer from diabetes, and pig heart valves are used to replace human heart valves.

Child sustains injuries in auto, sandpile collision

The Michigan State Police reported that Kenneth R. Harris, 30, of Greenland Road, Cass City, was northbound on Cemetery Road north of Shabbona Road Sunday and failed to heed the detour and road closed signs.

Despite the signs, barricades and adjacent construction equipment, Harris continued north and struck a large sand pile which prevented him from plunging into a large hole. Harris said he was traveling 55 miles per hour.

Casey J. Harris, 3, sustained minor injuries and was taken for treatment by his family.

Brenda Anne Graf, 24, of 50 S. Miller, Sebewaing, was westbound on M-81 Nov. 5 when she saw a car driven by Audley L. Walstead, 40, of 2933 E. Caro Road, Cass City, and another vehicle stopped on the side of the road.

A vehicle ahead of Graf passed by the two stopped vehicles and when Graf drove by them, Walstead pulled out and struck Graf's vehicle.

STING GETS HIS MAN

A Millington man was sniffed out of a cornfield by the Michigan State Police's tracking dog, "Sting," after a high speed chase last Thursday.

A State Police Trooper clocked Calvin J. Cooper in excess of 80 miles per hour on E. Waterman Road. Cooper was using both lanes of the roadway and passed 2 farm tractors with beet equipment. As he approached the intersection of Waterman Road and Cottrell Road, Cooper stopped his vehicle in the middle of the roadway and waited until the trooper got out and reached his bumper before he sped away.

Cooper was again chased until he stopped just before Garner Road, jumped out and ran into a cornfield. Dog handler Brian Newcomb and "Sting," a blond German shepherd, were called to the scene to track Cooper. They found him lying in the ditch next to the cornfield on the north side of Utter Road.

A Michigan State Police report stated that Cooper said the dog sure did his job tracking him all the way across the cornfield. Cooper said he made several circles, then went to the edge of the corn and lay down.

Cooper, 28, of 5468 Swaffer Road, was arrested for fleeing and eluding a police officer.

VanWagoner land certified as centennial farm

There have been 3 homes and a total of 4 generations since William VanWagoner first settled an 80-acre stretch of land about 3 miles southeast of Kingston on March 1, 1886.

Now, 100 years later, portions of the original house still sit on a small hill which overlooks White Creek Road to the west and acres of farm land to the east. The homestead, which has the traditional large barn and windmill as well as a small resident dog and cat population, is speckled with a contrast of modern agriculture equipment and older, rusting farm implements.

The land, now owned by VanWagoner's daughter-in-law, Ada M. (Beach) VanWagoner, has been certified by Secretary of State Richard H. Austin as a centennial farm.

Extensive research on the family background has been conducted by the family as evidenced by a thick book they own listing names, marriages, births, deaths and bits and pieces of the past.

The family history has been traced to Holland, where William VanWagoner's parents lived until they immigrated to Canada and then Oakwood, Mich., where William was born May 3, 1863. He later moved to the Thumb and purchased the 80 acres in 1886. After one year, he married Canadian Anna McKenzie. The couple lived in a small 2-level wood house just east of the home now lived in. A second home was later built in the same vicinity.

Following Anna's death July 6, 1926, VanWagoner married Mae C. Cowdin March 12, 1927. Two months later, a stove fire destroyed their house.

VanWagoner and his wife later moved to Oakwood, but a son by VanWagoner's first marriage, Glen F. VanWagoner, stayed. The elder VanWagoner died Oct. 13, 1941 in Pontiac.

Glen VanWagoner married Ada M. Beach Jan. 10, 1935. The couple, both Kingston residents, raised their only child in a cramped building which today serves as a garage. The original house was used for storage--grain upstairs and animals downstairs. Glen VanWagoner, who built the existing 3-story, 4-bedroom white farm house, died Nov. 10, 1976 in Marlette.

VanWagoner's daughter, Helen A. VanWagoner, was born Feb. 11, 1938. She married Donald Gould June 6, 1959, and had one child, a daughter. Helen later died July 30, 1978.

The daughter, Glenna (Gould) Ford, married Bruce Ford Aug. 14, 1982. The couple and their daughters, Jennifer, 3 1/2, and Melissa, 1 1/2, live with Ada VanWagoner in the existing farm house. Like their earlier relatives, the family still farms. Several acres of rented land are used to raise corn, soy beans, navy beans, hay, wheat and oats.

The VanWagoner property is one of 11 farms recently certified as centennial farms. Included on the list is a farm in nearby Sanilac County owned by the family of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Caswell since Dec. 23, 1879.

More than 5,400 Michigan farms have been certified as centennial farms--10 or more acres of farm land owned by the same family for at least 100 years--since the program was inaugurated in 1948. All such farm owners receive centennial certificates from the Bureau of History in the Michigan Department of State. Markers for the farms are provided by Detroit Edison and Consumers Power Company.

New books at the library

ONE MORE TIME by Carol Burnett (non-fiction). Actress/comedienne Burnett's childhood was not that funny. Both of her parents were alcoholics who eventually died from the effects of that disease. She spent her earliest years in San Antonio with her eccentric but loving grandmother, Nanny, who was always sure she was on the verge of dying, much to Carol's distress. Burnett vividly re-creates the squalid, one-room apartment on Hollywood Boulevard that she later shared with her mother and grandmother. She also describes the strength and love she received from a family that an outsider might have considered lowlifes. Burnett has stayed on top because her work is both funny and touching.

SHATTERED SILK by Barbara Michaels (fiction). After Karen Nevin's husband leaves her, she morosely moves from Iowa to Georgetown, D.C., where she hopes to find an auspicious future. The past dominates her thoughts, however, for Karen realizes that she was a servile, meek wife who neglected her needs while catering to her spouse. Working in a vintage clothing shop begins to energize Karen, as does an unexpected encounter with her former beau, Congressman Mark Brinckley. Assisted by Mark's disarmingly friendly sister, Cheryl, Karen begins making plans to open her own shop, and she eagerly scavenges through the antique clothing of Washington's dowagers to find suitable merchandise. The collections of these venerable ladies yield wonderful garb, yet sinister events dilute Karen and Cheryl's enthusiasm. Without apparent cause, someone is stalking Karen, a situation that affects her as powerfully as her renewed ardor for Mark.

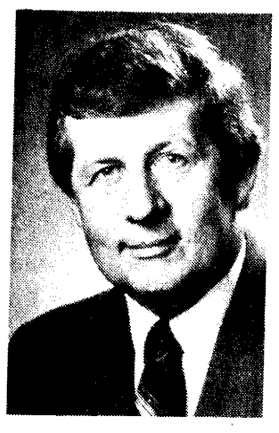
PERFUME: THE STORY OF A MURDERER by Patrick Suskind (fiction). The story takes place in mid-eighteenth-century Paris where a strange child has just been born to a fish seller, a child with no odor of his own. With no scent either to mask or proclaim his humanity, Jean-Baptiste is destined for a hard and adventurous life. Abandoned first by his mother, he is rejected because other people perceive his difference even if they can't enunciate his oddity in so many words. For a while the young man seems to have found his niche as an apprentice of genius to a famed perfumer, but the story takes on a darker twist as his newly realized talents arouse a fetishistic persuasion that will be his downfall.

Voters send Allen back to Lansing

It's back to work in Lansing for Caro Republican Dick Allen following a surprising Nov. 4 general election in which Republicans sustained losses throughout the state.

And back to work means concentration on 3 major issues, according to the 48-year-old legislator, who has been on the state House of Representatives Appropriations Committee since 1984. He will serve a third 2-year term in the House's 77th District.

Solving the crisis involving Medicaid funding, which has been extended through Nov. 15, is one such issue, he said. "Another is to continue working on tighter reforms on the liability issue. And, of course, what we're going to do. . .for the farmers who were devastated" by flooding in September and October, Allen explained.



Dick Allen

In retrospect of last week's election, Allen said he believes a lack of Republican voter turnout across the state resulted in the loss of 7 Republican seats in the House. Democrats held a majority of the House prior to the election, 57-53.

"It's clear to me in analyzing the results that. . .Republicans did not get out and vote, and Democrats did," Allen said.

Allen's Democratic challenger, Dick Erla of Cass City, said he's pleased with the outcome of the election across Michigan despite his unsuccessful bid. "I lost, but I don't feel bad about it--we put up a good fight," Erla remarked.

Erla received about the same amount of support in Huron and Tuscola counties, but Allen's popularity proved too much as he won by 5,220 votes. In all, Allen picked up 12,573 votes to Erla's 7,353 votes. Tuscola County voters gave Allen 6,619 votes versus Erla's 3,900, while Erla received 3,453 votes in Huron County compared to Allen's 5,954 votes.

"I guess (Allen) has done a good job even though I think I could have done a better job under a Democratic administration. We're still good buddies and I wish him good luck," Erla, 62, continued.

Asked if he's considering another bid in 2 years for the 77th District seat, Erla said he wasn't ready to make such a decision. "I don't really know. I'll be 64 and still in my prime."

Off farm working?

by Betty Pattullo
Extension Home Economist

Faced with unfavorable economic and weather conditions, some Tuscola County farmers and farm family members have begun to consider the previously unthinkable - off farm employment.

Those who have decided to seek employment elsewhere can be helped to enter the job market through a job placement program for displaced farmers called Farmer's Job Club.

Betty Pattullo, Employment and Training Specialist with Michigan State University and Tuscola County Cooperative Extension, states that Thumb Farmer's Job Club here in Tuscola County has proven very successful. Out of the initial 10 members, seven have been placed in jobs.

Farmer's Job Club teaches farmers how to interview, fill out applications and gives them a positive approach to job search. Job Club also provides farmers assistance in preparation of their resumes.

Michigan State University has hired Kay Petiprin as a Program Assistant for the Displaced Farmer's Program. Kay will primarily be working with Farmer's Job Club.

For more information about the Displaced Farmer program and Farmer's Job Club, contact Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service at 517-673-5999, ext. 228 or visit our new location at 362 Green Street, Caro.

Deadly enemy

What is man's most deadly enemy in the wildlife world? The lion? - no. The polar bear? - no. According to National Wildlife magazine, mosquitoes may be man's deadliest foe. They deploy parasites that cause malaria and kill one million people a year in Africa alone. They are also responsible for high death rates in India, Pakistan, Asia, Central America and the Caribbean islands.

MIKE AND NELVA WALD displayed the "Yard of Ale" mug Mike brought back from Germany. Mike said care had to be taken during drinking, because if the air bubbles hit the bottom, the beer drinker would get a face full of beer.

Wald's Bed and Breakfast radiates with hospitality

by Meg Carpenter

The pulsating heat of the hearth's fire, the warmth of the wine, even the sparkle of the French crystal can't match the glow of Nelva and Mike Wald's hospitality.

Fortunately, the Walds host their own Bed and Breakfast at 5215 Cedar Run Road in Gagetown. A cozy night in front of the fireplace can be spent with the Walds. and their son, Sam.

Wald Manor Bed and Breakfast opened last October after Mike retired from 22 years in the Air Force. Mike was stationed in Germany for four years and in England for six years.

When Mike's mother told them bed and breakfasts were becoming popular in the U.S., the Walds were receptive to opening one. The chance to buy Mike's great-grandfather's centennial farm on Cedar Run Road cemented the idea.

"I wish I had more rooms (because) I get so many phone calls," Nelva said, gesturing to the second floor where the two guest rooms are.

A tour through the Wald's home explains why so many guests would like to stay. Eleven years in Europe have flavored the Walds' taste in decorating.

A magnificent oak bar from Belgium takes up one corner and half the wall of the living room. Bottles of German wine rest in a rack above the bar while delicate French crystal wine goblets are displayed in glass cabinets.

Next to the bar sits a fireplace flanked by brass urns. Candlesticks rest on the mantle and an inviting bear rug lies before the hearth.

A glass of Zellig Schwartz, a snapping orange fire and the Walds' company make for an evening of attentive conversation and comfort.

The Walds saw many Bed and Breakfasts in England and their ideas about hosting one come from experience.

Nelva said Bed and Breakfasts in the U.S. are much more elaborate than those of Europe. In England they are very basic, the homes are modest.

"They are very homey," she explained. "They're places where people need to make a little extra money. A lot of older people on fixed incomes have Bed and Breakfasts. We enjoyed ourselves there. You go in the front room, have coffee and watch the 'telly.' They serve tea and biscuits."

During a visit to the Passion Play in Oberammergau, Germany, the Walds stayed at a Bed and Breakfast. Only there they call them pensions, Mike said.

One of Wald Manor's guest bedrooms has a large king-size bed and the other, two twin beds. A private bath for guests and a sitting room with a television and telephone add to guests' comfort.

The Walds collected many of the paintings and ceramic animals adorning their walls while traveling in Europe. Hummel figurines line the inside of a Black Forest grandfather clock. An English lace tablecloth and napkins enhance the dining room table. A llardoyes from Spain gives her blessing from behind the glass doors of the dining room hutch. Even Fred, the gray and black striped cat, came from Germany.

"I saw and I bought," Nelva said as she pointed out a simple drawing of the Madonna and Child in a bedroom that features an inlaid wood bed from England. "We've been to so many places we get excited just talking about them."

Nelva's spoon collection, from all the countries and places she's been, lines the top of the sunny, blue breakfast nook. The Walds just finished laying new carpet and linoleum and putting brick wall covering in the kitchen. Except for this minor remodeling, the Walds have simply added their good taste and lovely furnishings to the house.

"As far as putting money into it (the Bed and Breakfast), we haven't spent any money," Mike said. "It's just the way it was built. There's not a space wasted in this house. Upstairs there's a walk-in cedar closet."

It costs $20 per night for one person, $25 for a couple. Children are $4 extra. Nelva serves a continental breakfast of juice, toast, coffee and cereal. Guests must furnish their own meals after breakfast.

Weddings and family reunions provide a source of people who need a place to stay in Gagetown.

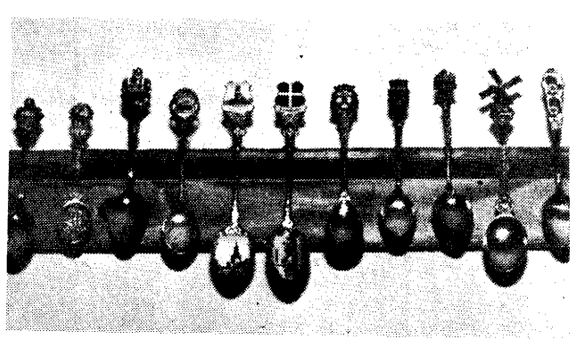
"Especially in the summer we don't have enough room," Nelva said. "I've had letters from Ohio and different places asking about rates. I've had a lot of people around here come and stay the night just to try a Bed and Breakfast."

"It's a novelty around here," Mike added.

When asked about living overseas, Mike looked around his well furnished home and sighed. "Europe is nice, but it's good to be back."

An antique oval portrait of Mike's great-grandfather, George Wald, hangs above the fireplace. He looks like he's grinning at Nelva and Mike. They agree.

THE WALD Manor Bed and Breakfast at 5215 Cedar Run Road in Gagetown features an elegant dining room table with an English lace tablecloth and napkins. In the background, a Spanish "llardoyes" watches over the table.



NELVA'S SPOON collection stretches across 2 walls of her kitchen at The Walds' Bed and Breakfast. Nelva collected spoons from the countries she visited while living in Europe. European treasures dot the Wald residence.

Daggetts were the first lumbermen

THEN. In the 1700's the Thumb Peninsula became well known to fur trappers. Beaver, otter, mink, marten, raccoon, muskrat, elk, moose, deer, bear, wolf, fox and lynx were plentiful, and fur agents at Sebewaing and on the Cass River were able to transport the furs by boat to Saginaw and Detroit.

Boatmen used various points of land along the shore as markers, and named them. White Rock was one of those markers, and was described by a boat captain as "an enormous detached mass of transition limestone standing in the lake, about a half mile from the shore...an object which attracted the early notice of the Indians...and continues to be one of the places at which offerings are made."

The first white settler in Huron County was Edward Petit. Born in Port Huron in 1813, he spent his boyhood hunting and fishing with the Indians. In 1829 he established a trading post near the mouth of Che-Bey-on-onk creek, now called Shebeon Creek. Five years later, Captain Aaron Peer and James Duffy docked their boat at Grindstone City and in 1834 began the first Grindstone Quarry.

U.S. Government surveyors, along with Governor Lewis Cass, thought the Thumb Peninsula could never be of any importance and was not worth the expense of surveying. However, in 1834 a surveyor for the U.S. Government wrote that..."with the utmost exertion the Pack-man and Cook moved with the horses but six miles in three days...through dense forest."

The first lumbermen in the county were John and Alanson Daggett, who came to the Thumb Peninsula in the spring of 1837. History would later prove that it was the beginning of the end for the trappers and hunters -- and the start of a new era, that of lumbering. Some of the best of Michigan pine was in the Thumb area, white pine trees 125 to 175 feet tall, with trunks two to five feet in diameter. There was also an abundance of oak, hemlock, maple, cedar, beech and many other varieties of trees.

The Daggetts put up a water-powered sawmill at Rock Falls. A Mr. Luce came the next year and set up a sawmill at the mouth of the Willow Creek, later to be called Huron City. Ten years later, in 1849, John Hopson was the first man to drive a wagon into Sand Beach (Harbor Beach). He, too, built a sawmill which was steam-powered. Later lumber giants were Thomas Snell, Francis Crawford, E. & J. Erskine, Ludington, Ayres, Learned, Wiswall, Hubbard, Stafford, Hicks, Fuller. By 1854 there were 61 sawmills in the Saginaw Valley.

The number of feet of top quality lumber sawed in Huron County exceeded 80 million feet in 1873. The shingle mill at Verona Mills, operated by Puddock and Co., made 35,000 shingles per day. One huge tree sawed at Verona Mills in 1876 yielded planks 16 feet long, 5 feet wide, 4 inches thick. Without knots or flaws of any kind, the planks won 1st prize at the U.S. Centennial held at Philadelphia in 1876.

Wherever the white man settled, sooner or later a missionary followed. Thus, the first Indian Mission in the area was built by Missionary J.J. Auch on the banks of Shebeon Creek in 1845.

Those were some of the "firsts" in Huron County history. The day was fast approaching when the county would be an established fact. What year did Huron become a county? How many townships are there in the county? How did each receive its name? When did YOUR town incorporate?

If you find some interesting answers connected with the above questions, please send them to me. Or perhaps you have an interesting story to tell about your town's oldest building, oldest home or oldest resident.

NOW. That was THEN, when Michigan had just achieved statehood. What is being done NOW for our state's sesquicentennial year of 1987 -- right here in Huron County?

Debbie Oglenski, chairman of the Youth Committee, announced that they are working on guidelines for a calendar contest, for anyone in grades kindergarten through third. Kindergarten and first grade children may submit black and white drawings depicting some form of recreation that can be enjoyed in Huron County.

Grades two and three will be invited to submit a poem, family activity, or event, or point of interest that could be enjoyed in the county.

Details on how children can become involved with the contest will soon be mailed to Huron County schools or by contacting Shirley Edwards at the Huron Intermediate School District.

As adults grow older, less energy is needed to keep the body functioning.

Cass City tops Imlay City squad

Cass City moved up a notch in the Thumb B Association standings Tuesday, Nov. 4, with a narrow victory over host Imlay City Spartans, 42-39.

The Hawks won it by coming back strong in the final period after a lousy third period let the Spartans recover from a 24-16 half time deficit and go ahead by 3 points, 33-30, going into the final 8 minutes.

After that it was a dogfight to the wire with the lead changing hands frequently. The Hawks showed their character by scoring the decisive buckets in the final minutes of the game. Trailing by 2 points, Lisa Hirn tied the game and Shannon McIntosh put the Hawks ahead to stay with another basket. Her free throw a moment later put the game safely away in the win column.

Coach Daryl Iwankovitsch credited the team's defense for the win. "It was our team defense that did the job," he said. The coach also said that Darlene Monroe had a good night for Cass City. She led the team with 16 rebounds that enabled the Hawks to post a 47-39 advantage on the boards, which Iwankovitsch said was one of the keys to the win. In addition the lanky center was 6 of 13 from the floor and 2 of 4 from the charity stripe.

For a while it looked like the Hawks would win in a breeze. After a nip and tuck first period, Cass City rolled to a 15-8 margin in the second quarter and a 25-16 half-time lead.

But Cass City went stone cold and the Spartans bounced back with some good shooting from the field and the foul line to overcome the lead and go in front at the end of three quarters to set the stage for the last quarter excitement and the Cass City win.

JV GAME

In the preliminary game, Cass City staged a rally in the final period but fell just short, losing 43-42. The Hawks trailed by as much as 10 points in the third quarter before coming roaring back to trail by one just before the final buzzer. The rally was paced by Sue Papp with 19 points.

OWEN-GAGE SOPHOMORE Andrea Mandich showed some fine ball handling skills in the first quarter against Akron-Fairgrove's Jen Streeter.

Fouls, turnovers plague O-G cagers in 2 losses

When you play the top teams in the North Central Thumb D League, you can't afford to fall behind early and you can't afford not to play your best. If you do, you lose, and that's what happened to the Owen-Gage basketball team against league leading Peck and second place Akron-Fairgrove.

A-F took command early on the Bulldogs' home court with a 24-6 first period advantage and then coasted to a 72-51 win Tuesday, Nov. 4.

Coach Dean Roller said that you can't get behind, 10-0, throw the ball away and get in foul trouble and expect to win.

The Bulldogs were unable to stop Carol Childs, who poured in 25 points in a little over 3 quarters, including 8 in the first period when A-F roared to its first quarter, 24-6, lead.

For all practical purposes the game was decided at the intermission, as the visitors stretched the lead to 44-22.

A-F kept up the pressure in the third quarter and capitalized on O-G mistakes to score 22 points and post an insurmountable 66-32 lead.

Owen-Gage rallied in the last quarter to close the gap with a 17-6 margin against the A-F bench players.

The Bulldogs were led by Andrea Mandich with 18 points and Cindy Enderle with 16 points. Besides Childs, Jen Foster was in double figures for A-F with 10 points.

PECK GAME

Peck used a rock ribbed defense in the first quarter to roar into an 18-point lead and were never behind in the Thursday, Nov. 6, contest. The score was 59-31.

After the dismal start, the Bulldogs played well and moved to within 13 points in the third quarter. But that was as close as they were to get as Peck applied the pressure to pull away and clinch the victory.

Enderle was the only player in double figures for Owen-Gage with 11, while Char Durand, 16 points, and Colleen Bradley, 15 points, led Peck.

JV GAMES

The Bulldogs also bowed in the junior varsity games. Peck won 33-25 and Akron Fairgrove prevailed 53-23.

Drinking/driving nets one arrest in Cass City

A 22-year-old Cass City man was lodged in the Tuscola County jail Saturday morning after being arrested for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Rodney L. Wakefield was arrested at approximately 3:25 a.m. after being stopped on Main Street near Woodland Avenue for speeding. According to the police report, he had been drinking and failed sobriety tests. Wakefield also was ticketed for having an open intoxicant in the 1959 For he was driving.

County EDC urged to consider area economic development plan

Joseph Taylor, a senior analyst with the Michigan Venture Capital Fund, encouraged the Tuscola County Economic Development Corporation board of directors to start preparing an economic development plan, during a meeting held in Caro Wednesday, Nov. 5.

Taylor, the former director of the Muskegon County Economic Development Commission, described the plan as probably the greatest task to be undertaken by any EDC. He said many segments of the community need to be represented in such a plan.

"When you think about the time and effort involved in putting together an economic development plan, it sounds like a lot, but it isn't. I would say in any community, given the right input from citizens, business and industry, it could be done in a year or less," Taylor said.

In addition to the importance of having an economic development plan, Taylor gave the board a few pointers on the best way to market a community.

"I have found the best people to take part in marketing are your businesspeople who are already here. They are the ones who are always going somewhere, and are probably the most effective communication tool you will find anywhere. Given the right attitude, they will hear things through their contacts, and start making calls that could lead to a plant expansion," he added.

Following Taylor's presentation, EDC Board Chairman, Bert Althaver urged members to keep in mind what they would like to see included for the county's long-range planning. EDC Director James McLoskey was also asked to obtain copies of economic development plans from other counties in Michigan.

Elsewhere at the meeting, the board was given update on recovery efforts in Vassar's downtown area from the September flood, and the members discussed new ways to distribute a promotional brochure for the county.

The next meeting of the Tuscola County EDC board is scheduled for Dec. 3 at 7:00 p.m. couple thousand acres of soybeans were planted and LeCureux had little information on them.

Sugar beets were 60-70 percent harvested. LeCureux estimated a 20 percent loss on the 22,000 acres of beets. Each acre usually yields 19-20 tons of beets. Beet quality and sugar content were down.

Tuscola County Cooperative Home Extension agent Betty Pattullo said 140 farmers from Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron counties have joined the Displaced Farmers Program. Pattullo said the program's purpose is for farmers to help farmers.

For non-certified employees

O-G debates lifting wage freeze

New recommendations on salaries for non-certified Owen-Gage School District employees will be made following discussion at a board of education meeting Monday night.

Drafting job descriptions and granting possible raises to some employees were urged by the board, which appointed school Supt. Harley Kirby and board members Jack Brinkman and William Kretzschmer to an ad hoc committee on 1986 non-certified employee contracts.

The board, during an Aug. 11 meeting, passed a resolution freezing salaries of non-certified employees. But Brinkman indicated Monday that the freeze should be lifted and salaries reconsidered.

"They deserve a raise just like the teachers--I firmly believe that." Brinkman added that many of the district's teachers don't live or vote in the district, while a majority of non-certified employees do. "We're denying our own people a raise. What's going to happen next year? Are we going to deny them again?"

Board President Ronald Good noted that the board didn't have additional millage when it made the decision to freeze salaries. He said that job descriptions are needed in order to determine salary levels.

Kretzschmer agreed, adding, "There's too much variation in pay."

Benefits also will have to be considered, the board indicated. "Some of the guys are getting more than others, and they don't deserve it," Brinkman remarked.

Non-certified employee contracts cover cooks, maintenance people, secretaries, bus drivers, custodians and aides, Kirby said.

IN OTHER BUSINESS

In other business at the 2 1/2-hour regular meeting, the board passed a resolution to levy an additional 3.9489 mills for school operations.

The proposal, made possible by voter approval Oct. 20 of an additional 6 mills, was made at a Truth in Taxation hearing Oct. 29. Kirby explained that the hearing and board resolution are required because the district's operating millage for 1986--31.50 mills or $1.408 million--exceed by $176,542 the amount of increase from 1985 to 1986 allowed by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The district's operating millage in 1985 totaled 25.3064 mills, or $1.208 million, based on a state equalized valuation of $47.736 million. The 1986 rate allowed without a Truth in Taxation hearing would be 27.5511 mills, or $1.231 million, based on the 1986 SEV of $44.706 million.

The board met in a 50-minute executive session with Mr. and Mrs. Rick Joles and an attorney to discuss what Kirby called a "parental concern."

Four persons were hired as coaches on the recommendation of high school Principal Robert Andrews. They are John Osterland, assistant junior varsity basketball coach; Judy Porter, junior/senior high school volleyball coach; Bob McPhail, junior high school basketball coach, and Julie Enderle, cheerleading advisor.

The district's teacher contract was renewed by the board for 1986-87, which marks the 4th year of the 4-year pact, Kirby said.

Pauline Reehl was recommended for appointment as the district's representative to the County Parent Advisory Committee for special education.

The board approved a low bid of $5,348.50 from Dean Ellicott of Gagetown for placement of siding to the district-owned superintendent's house in Owendale. Leroy Stapleton, also of Gagetown, submitted a bid of $5,382.29.

Elementary school principal William Britt reported that an 82 percent to 95 percent turnout of parents was recorded for recent parent/teacher conferences.

Andrews, in his monthly report, announced that 2 coordinators from Bay Medical in Bay City will present drug abuse programs to high school and junior high students beginning Dec. 1.

An experiment involving offering items such as cookies, brownies and pizza in the high school cafeteria, in addition to regular meals, has begun, he said. Andrews added that increased revenue for the troubled lunch program is being seen already.

The board approved a bid of $201.50 for an International Cub LoBoy mower. A bid of $511 was accepted for the machine last month, but the bidder withdrew his offer, Kirby said. The $201 bid was the second highest received when the mower was put out on bids.

such as millage approval in August for the Medical Care Facility in Caro, the recent purchase of a building to house the County Cooperative Extension Office and improvements to the County Building, are concrete examples, he added.

"I guess I'm satisfied. There are things you wish you could have done, (but) you look at the dollars you have to spend and you spend them where. . .most of the people are going to benefit," Russell said. "I felt I played the game the way it's supposed to be played."

Joining Glaspie on the new board will be new District 1 Republican Commissioner Terry L. Houthoofd, 35, who beat out Democrat George B. Ellesin, 80, 1,122 votes to 775. The remaining 5 incumbent commissioners all ran unopposed and were re-elected.

In all, 1,897 persons, or 43 percent of eligible District 1 voters, made it to the polls Nov. 4, while 1,839 persons, or 44 percent of eligible District 2 voters, cast ballots.

Good deer season expected by DNR

delayed. "Some of the land deer frequent may still be flooded," Jarvis continued. "In that respect, the hunting may be a little more difficult this year."

Changes in this year's firearm deer hunting season include persons being allowed to hunt with hand guns (.35 caliber and larger), and a provision in state law allowing lower peninsula hunters to purchase 2 deer licenses, Jarvis said. He noted that all hunters this year are required to possess a valid "kill tag" while hunting. No hunting is allowed on privately-owned lands in Huron and Sanilac counties on Sundays, and only shotguns, muzzleloading rifles and handguns are allowed in Region 3, which includes the entire Thumb area.

SAFETY

Both the DNR and Michigan United Conservation Clubs are stressing safety among the estimated 725,000 hunters--more than 3 times the population of Grand Rapids--expected to take part in the state opener Saturday.

Following basic safety precautions, some of which are required by law, can reduce the risk of tragedy, according to DNR Law Enforcement Division officer Everet Robinson, who said that mishaps aren't uncommon in the Thumb. "We usually experience some gunshot wounds in this area almost yearly."

Statewide, a total of 36 persons have been killed and 170 injured in firearm-related accidents during Michigan deer hunting seasons over the past 5 years. Last year, 6 persons were killed and 32 were injured.

Hunters should be aware of state laws on hunter safety courses and wearing "hunter orange," which are designed to minimize hunting accidents. The hunter safety course law requires all persons aged 12 to 17 to take and pass a course on hunting. In addition, persons hunting with handguns in Region 3, including the Thumb, must carry a hunter safety certificate while hunting if they were born on or after Jan. 1, 1960.

The hunter orange law, enacted in 1977, states that all hunters "must wear a hat, cap, vest, jacket, rain gear or other outerwear of highly visible color."

Robinson stated that hunters should treat every weapon as if it were loaded, be sure of a target before firing and avoid pointing a gun at anything you don't intend to shoot. "Anyone who rushes a shot (risks) a chance that the gun will go off," the 22-year DNR veteran said. "And be sure of your firing field--what's behind the target and what's in front of it."

Jarvis agreed, adding, "So many times hunters will stop hunting and leave their guns loaded. When you're climbing fences or stopping to rest, unload your firearm so an accident doesn't happen."

Renaissance music featured

Show set for grade pupils

The Village Bach Festival, along with the Young Audiences of Michigan program, will present A Reasonable Facsimile to Willis Campbell Elementary school children Friday.

A Reasonable Facsimile will present four shows throughout the day. Students from Deford and the Evergreen School will be bused in for the performances.

Anne and Rob Burns, a husband and wife duo from Rochester, compose A Reasonable Facsimile. They sing and play songs of the Renaissance (14th to 17th centuries) with reproductions of period instruments.

They use recorders, a crumhorn, flutes, pipes, whistles, shawms, lutes, a cittern, a mandola, early percussion and a viola da damba. Their music selections are ballads and songs of the common people traditionally performed by street musicians.

Longtime performers of early music, the Burns have performed at the Michigan Renaissance Festival, the Ann Arbor Medieval Festival, library concert series and school and university locations. Both Anne and Rob Burns have Bachelor of Arts degrees in music from Oakland University.

In addition to their work as A Reasonable Facsimile, they also perform with the Continuous Treble Baroque Ensemble and Good Company.

The Young Audiences of Michigan program was developed with the help of the Michigan Council for the Arts, corporations and foundations. The Michigan Chapter of Young Audiences is one of 38 chapters nationwide which brings the performing arts to students in the school environment.

The performers are all artists who live and work in Michigan. The artists perform, talk about their art and answer questions.

Area kids invited to write Santa

Area children who would like to get their Christmas present list to Santa Claus, and receive a reply, need only pick up a crayon and start writing.

A 1970 Kingston High School graduate, now stationed at Eielson's Weather Station in North Pole, Alaska, is involved in the 11th Weather Squadron's Santa's Mailbag Program. And he says he'd like to have area children on this year's list.

Air Force Capt. Edward J. Bilicki has volunteered for the program, which is in its 31st consecutive year. The program works like this: children write to Santa in care of the weather station. Parents should include a personalized reply to their children and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. For those who request it, Santa will send a pre-printed letter. The return envelope will include a North Pole postmark.

Last year, the unit responded to more than 18,000 letters

Letters should be received at the base no later than Dec. 5 to ensure a reply by Christmas, so parents are urged to mail early.

Letters should be mailed to Santa's Mailbag, Detachment 2, 11th Weather Squadron, Eielson AFB, AK 99702-5000.

Agricultural task force is established

Governor James Blanchard signed an executive order on Oct. 10, establishing a task force on "The Revitalization of Agriculture through Research and Education."

According to Robert E. Smith, senior legislative counsel for the Michigan Farm Bureau, the task force will be made up of farmers, agribusiness representatives, vocational agriculture personnel and educational leaders.

The 36 member task force is charged with presenting a series of recommendations to the governor on integrating research and education in the schools' curricula and on revitalizing the development of scientific and professional expertise in the field of agriculture.

"They are expected to develop a plan that will restore agricultural education in the entire K-12 school system," Smith said. "The governor's action not only carries out one of the recommendations from last year's Governor's Conference on Agriculture, it is also in line with Farm Bureau policy. Our Farm Bureau Women's Committee has been active for the past several years in bringing agriculture into the classroom."

Smith said the need for scientific and professional expertise in agriculture and the food industries is critical.

"This issue is recognized throughout the country, but Michigan is one the first states to take action to solve the problem," he said.

Governor Blanchard is expected to announce appointments to the task force soon.

NOTICE TO GENERAL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF MICHIGAN CUSTOMERS

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY TO SUBMIT COMMENTS

On October 7, 1986, General Telephone Company of Michigan (General) filed an application with the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) for authority to detariff the installation and maintenance of simple and complex inside wire.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) on January 30, 1986, in its Second Report and Order in CC Docket 79-105, directed the detariffing of the installation of simple inside wire and the maintenance of both simple and complex inside wire by or before January 1, 1987. The FCC further directed all local exchange carriers (LECs) to relinquish ownership of all inside wiring once full capital recovery is reached.

General's current Tariff MPSC No. 1 reflects a premise repair charge for single-line (simple) station wire of $.50 per central office line, per month or a time and material option, if the customer desires. The premise repair charge for multi-line (complex) cable is on a time and materials basis only.

General represents that it will continue to provide these services of installing and maintaining simple and complex wire at approximately these same rates but on a detariffed basis.

General proposes to continue to amortize its Embedded Station Connection-Inside Wiring in accordance with the MPSC's Order in Case No. U-7025 until September 30, 1991; at that date, the investment in this Account 232 will be fully amortized and General will relinquish ownership to its customers. General proposes, however, that at the effective detariffing date of January 1, 1987 customers may assume ownership for practical purposes to take advantage of competitive options for the installation and maintenance of simple and complex inside wire from General and/or other vendors and contractors.

The matter has been docketed by the MPSC as Case No. U-8595, and you may comment on this by sending a letter to the MPSC expressing your concerns and ideas. A member of the MPSC Staff will then contact you to discuss the various alternatives available to you to pursue this matter. Send your comments to the Michigan Public Service Commission at 6545 Mercantile Way, Lansing, Michigan 48910, and reference Case No. U-8595 — General Telephone Company. Your comments must be received by the MPSC before November 28, 1986.

Sanilac County voters crack down on drugs

Creation of a special drug enforcement unit in Sanilac County, made possible by approval of a special millage request on the Nov. 4 election ballot, could take place sooner than expected.

The request, .5 of a mill for 3 years, was the only county-wide proposal among 3 on the ballot approved by voters last week. Voters also reelected all 3 incumbent Republicans being challenged for county board of commissioner seats.

The drug unit proposal, approved by a vote of 6,058-4,231, is expected to raise some $250,000. Although specific plans for the money haven't been released yet, County Sheriff John Osborn says the program will include the hiring of additional officers to investigate illegal drug cases, and education programs in county schools.

"The money can not be levied for another year," Osborn explained. "However, I am anticipating some action on the county's part to get some money to get the program underway shortly after the first of the year."

The program will be administered through the sheriff's department by an ad hoc board composed of several county officials, including the sheriff and county prosecutor.

While voters on Nov. 4 apparently supported drug abuse information and enforcement, they were less enthusiastic on funding requests for the county medical care facility and for a new county jail wing.

Proposal E, a request for .4 of a mill for 5 years for operation, maintenance and equipment replacement at the medical care facility, failed by a 2,399-vote margin.

Proposal F, a request to levy 1.4 mills for 5 years, fell by a 4,801-vote margin. The money would have covered the estimated $3.54 million cost of constructing a 54-bed corrections wing to house inmates at the county jail, remodeling of the jail's first floor for law enforcement offices and removal of second-floor cells for future development. The levy also would have included a $1 million "cushion."

Voters produced no upsets in 3 races for seats on the county board. In the race closest to Cass City, District 5 Commissioner Eugene Foote had little trouble beating Democrat challenger Vernon R. Burnison, 1,112-658. District 5 covers the upper portion of Forester Township and Marion, Greenleaf, Evergreen, Lamotte, Argyle, Austin, Minden and Delaware townships.

In other races, incumbent Republican Les Kraft won his bid for a 5th 2-year term in district 3 over Democrat challenger Irene E. Stoliker, 1,308-695. In district 4, Della Wright received a 3rd term over Democrat challenger Ann Goryl, 1,468-885.

Running without opposition were Republicans District 1 Commissioner Edward Jarosz and District 2 Commissioner Howard Beals Jr.

Huron County chooses 2 new commissioners

Huron County voters elected two new county commissioners and passed 3 of 7 township proposals.

Warren J. Krohn (R) defeated Jack Jensen (D) 1146 to 1082 for District 6 commissioner. In District 2, R. Dale Wertz (R) was elected commissioner over Vernon L. Kretzschmer (D), 876 to 627.

Chandler Township passed a millage to levy 1 mill for 2 years for road work, 110 to 35. Supervisor William J. Dufty said the millage would bring in $23,000. Roads between section 1 and 2, 3 and 4 and one mile between Oliver Township would be worked on.

Fair Haven Township agreed, 195 to 148, to fund 2.5 mills for 4 years for law enforcement. Supervisor Melvin Kuhl said the millage would bring in $36,000 per year but he wasn't sure if part-time or full time help would be hired. One full time officer patrols the township now.

Sigel Township voters passed a Detroit Edison franchise renewal 107 to 66.

In Lincoln Township, voters rejected a road improvement proposal asking 2 mills for 3 years, 114 no votes to 83 yes votes.

Likewise, a Sherman Township proposal for roads was rejected 132 to 106. The proposal asked for 2 mills for 3 years.

Port Austin voters said no to two proposals. A police protection millage asking .5 mills for 2 years was defeated 284 to 163, while a road millage asking .5 mills for 2 years was squashed 284 to 161.

Rains may have helped Tuscola County voters pass bridge millage

The September rains may have helped Tuscola County voters pass the 5 year, .5 mill bridge and road millage last Tuesday, 6269 to 4985.

"I'm sure that it passed in the wake of the recent disaster," Commissioner Chris Taylor (District 4) said.

Road Commission Clerk Jim Miklovic said a program will be set up in January to determine which bridges will be worked on next year. There are 70 road bridges that need work.

"This is a 5 year millage and our goal is to work on all of them in the five year period," Miklovic said. "It's difficult to say which ones, it depends on the State Equalized Valuation. Of course, property value has been dropping."

In 1986 the county collected $265,000 from the current bridge millage and Miklovic expects the county to collect $250,000 next year because of the lower property values.

Village President Lou LaPonsie said he expects Cass City's share of the millage to go up a little from the $11,830 received last year.

Because the village has no bridges, Cass City spends the money on streets, but LaPonsie wasn't sure which streets would be worked on next summer.

"We'd like to curb and gutter streets," LaPonsie said. "We're looking at a couple of streets, but we haven't made a firm decision. I hate to say which streets are being considered because if we change between now and next spring some people are going to be wondering why their streets aren't being done."

Last year Maple Street, Sherman Street and the alley north of Main Street between Oak Street and Seeger Street were resurfaced.

Unemployment rates climbed in Tuscola and Sanilac Counties

Unemployment rates in Tuscola and Sanilac counties climbed modestly in September as did a majority of Michigan's 12 major labor market areas due to seasonal unemployment.

Huron County, meanwhile, experienced an unemployment rate drop of 2.5 percent to 8.9 percent, the county's lowest rate this year.

According to Michigan Employment Security Commission figures, Tuscola County's unemployment rate for September was up by .3 of a percent to 10.6 percent. The rate is based on 21,500 persons in the labor force, down from 22,025 in August; 19,225 employed persons, down from 19,775 the previous month, and 2,275 unemployed persons, the same as in August.

In Sanilac County, the unemployment rate was up by .5 of a percent to 8.4 percent. The number of unemployed persons in September was the same as in August at 1,550, while the number of employed persons in September was down by 1,475 at 16,800. The total labor force was 18,350 persons, down by 1,500 persons in August.

Unlike Tuscola and Sanilac, Huron County showed a decrease in the number of unemployed persons--a drop of 550 persons to 1,400. There were 14,450 employed persons in September, down from 15,100 in August, and the total labor force decreased by 1,200 persons to 15,850.

According to MESC Director Richard Simmons Jr., the statewide jobless rate increased in September by .4 of a percent to 8.3 percent, with the number of persons without jobs growing by 12,000 to 359,000.

Seasonal job declines in the retail trade and service industries caused employment to drop in nearly all of the labor market areas, Simmons said, with most areas reporting declines in labor forces as summer workers left jobs. He added that government-sponsored summer employment programs ended during the month.

Simmons pointed out that the August to September changes in the area labor markets generally followed their seasonal patterns with most areas showing some job losses at the end of the summer. The long-term trend remains favorable, however, as unemployment rates in nearly all 12 areas were down significantly from levels a year ago, he said.

Elkland Twp. reviews zoning manual

The Elkland Township board reviewed a copy of the Elkland Township zoning ordinance manual at its Nov. 10 meeting.

A. Howard Kundinger of A. Howard Kundinger and Associates brought the draft of the manual and explained changes in zoning laws made by the State. A final draft of the manual will be sent next month for the board to review and adopt.

The manual maps Elkland Township into agricultural, industrial, business, residential and forestry and conservation zones.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

NEW WAYS TO MAKE PROFITS.

That's the heading of a mass of figures in a table in The Economist, one of the really fine news magazines. Naturally I'm intrigued. A new way to make a buck is always fascinating.

The table is titled: "Rates of return on investments in emerging markets." That's the current term for second and third world countries.

The returns are figured on taking $100 (for simplicity) and investing it in a basket of active stocks in each country at the start of each year, from 1976 to 1985.

At the end of the year total return is calculated - dividends plus or minus changes in value of the stocks. The result is shown as a percentage of the original investment.

For example, the batch of Greek stocks in 1985 showed a total return of 25%. Enticing, until you back up a few years and see what would have happened to your yearly investment, starting in 1980:

Year	Gain %	Loss	$100 becomes
1980		-9.9	91.1
1981		-27.8	72.2
1982	28.6		128.6
1983		45.3	54.7
1984		-11.3	88.7
1985	25.0		125.0

After 6 years - $560.3
Average return - (-6.6%)

A more realistic way to analyze the results would be to take an original investment and let it ride. People don't usually cash in an investment at the end of the year -- they let it continue. They hope it will grow.

Here's what would have happened to your batch of Greek stocks that you put $100 in, Jan. 1, 1980, and let it stay.

Year-end	Original $100 Becomes:
1980	91.
1981	66.
1982	84.
1983	46.
1984	41.
1985	51.

(Rounded to even dollars)

Now let's take a country from each of 4 other continents, invest $100 Jan. 1, 1980 and let it ride until Dec. 31, 1985:

'80	86	142	118	150
'81	45	176	75	85
'82	30	165	16	58
'83	47	179	39	44
'84	37	174	47	47
'85	34	350	69	137

So you come out ahead in India and Zimbabwe (ex-Rhodesia). Zimbabwe, though, where your $100 let ride for six years became $137 is no big deal. That's a little over 4% compounded.

In the other 3 countries on other continents you would have been money out after 6 years.

Play the whole field -- Greece, Argentina, India, Mexico and Zimbabwe -- with $100 each starting Jan. 1, 1980, and you'd have $641 at the end of 1985. You started with $500, so you've had a $141 gain -- about 5% compounded. Again, no big deal, for half of those years had very high interest rates.

And taxes in each of those countries are not considered. Even if you got credit against your U.S.A. income tax, all the income would have been taxable here each year.

"New ways to make profits" -- that's what The Economist says. This countryboy from Lapeer, Mich., likes the old ways better.

This fellow from the boonies would have taken the $500 that The Economist spread among the 5 countries and plunked it into zero coupon tax-free bonds. In fact, I was doing just that in 1980. Assuming an 8% rate the $500 would have become $800 by the end of 1985. And it would have been tax-free. Well over twice as much return as from the so-called emerging countries.

And I slept better during those years, too.

Walsh was honored along with other students at a special recognition ceremony at the college. Each student was announced by the respective center deans and greeted by institute president Dr. Matthew Schure, who presented each recipient with a certificate of academic achievement.

Walsh, now living in Albertson, N.Y., is the daughter of Gloria and, former Cass City librarian, Frank Walsh.

Cancer Society's annual smokeout set for Nov. 20

The American Cancer Society's 10th annual Great American Smokeout is set for Nov. 20, and area hospitals are offering free kits to help smokers kick the habit for the one-day celebration.

Several hospitals, including Hills and Dales General, are offering the free "adoption kits," which are composed of materials designed to help a nonsmoker aid a smoker in quitting. The kits include educational information, buttons, matches without tips and "adoption papers," Judith M. Clevey, president of the Hospital Council of East Central Michigan, said.

"It's a light-hearted attempt to get nonsmokers to take responsibility for smokers for one day--to hold their hand for a day," she added.

Participation in last year's smokeout topped all previous records with an estimated 23 million Americans--more than 4 out of 10 smokers--trying to kick the habit for a day. Despite the success, however, 54 million Americans still smoke and 320,000 people will die this year because of it, according to the society.

Additional information on the Great American Smokeout and similar programs is available by contacting the Tuscola unit of the American Cancer Society at 872-2121.
