THE CASS CITY BANK.

C. W. McPHAIL, O. K. JANES,
Proprietor. Cashier.

I have recently purchased and put into my Fire Proof Vault A MODERN BURG-LAR PROOF SAFE. I now claim to have the BEST "Lock-up" in this section of the country.

This safe has every modern improvement; size 26 inches square and 30 inches high; weight 4,100 lbs.; cost $1,000.

I take this method of inviting my customers, friends and the general public to call and inspect this safe. We have the best of facilities for taking care of valuables of any kind, weighing less than 4 lbs. Will receive and receipt for them and deliver them when called for. This is a new feature of our business. We also desire to call attention to the fact that you can send money to any foreign country from this bank. We can loan you money on land, providing you have ample security. We are willing to advance 1/2 of the cash value of farming lands, and to those that can get along with this amount, we solicit your business. We have some special advantages to offer you on this class of loans.

A liberal rate of interest paid on time deposits.

C. W. McPHAIL,
Banker.

Caught On The Fly.

New firm!
New methods!
The fair boometh.
Beautiful weather.
John Marshall is in Toronto this week.
Orson Hendrick sets up the cigars—it is a boy.
C. W. McPhail and family spent Sunday in Caro.
Work on the fair buildings is progressing rapidly.
Hand in your items, they will be gratefully received.
Mrs. Chas. Hill returned from Saginaw last Monday.
H. C. Wales was in Caseville Tuesday on business.
T. P. Zander, of Caro, called on this office on Tuesday.
Wm. A. Hart, of Caro, was in town on Monday of this week.
The Detroit "Deestriet" Fair comes to a conclusion to day.
J. D. Brooker was in Caro last week Thursday, on business.
Mark Truesdale, of Caro, was in the village one day last week.
T. C. Quinn and family, of Caro, were in the city on Saturday last.
B. Predmore and W. Weydeneyer were in Gageton last Sunday.
Andrew Walmsley and Alf. Wallace were in Caro last Tuesday.
The familiar sounds of the school bell are again heard in the land.
Dr. J. Etherinton is erecting a new barn on his premises, east of the depot.
John Leonard's mammoth straw stack has about supplied the village with straw.
F. C. Lee has rented his farm, 3 miles south of the village, for the term of 3 years.
Mrs. R. E. Gamble visited friends and relatives near Caro the fore part of the week.
We learn that one of Levi Mnutz's horses was quite severely hurt in a runaway on his farm last Saturday.

David Tyo has purchased a fine looking driving horse from a Brookfield farmer.

Henry Robinson, of this place, fruit tree agent has been canvassing Caseville and vicinity for the past month.

Miss Kate and Hannah McDougall arrived home from their visit at Pt. Edward last Saturday.

Quite a large number from here attended the grove meeting held near Bethel church last Sunday.

The Democrats will hold a convention at Grand Rapids on Sept. 10th, and nominate men for their state ticket.

Wm. Vinegar and wife, of Jackson, are visiting friends and relatives in the village this week.

Scott Brotherton is having the exterior of his house repainted. Cross Bros. are doing the act.

A farmers' county Alliance will be organized at this place Sep. 11th, by Luther Ripley, state organizer.

Miss Kate McClinton arrived home from Toronto Monday noon, where she has been visiting for some time.

Mrs. John Kelland, of Flushing, arrived in town last Saturday night and will visit friends in town and vicinity.

Mrs. J. E. Thatcher left last week for Detroit to join her husband who is now in the insurance business at that place.

Wm. Webster will have an auction sale of farm stock, at his farm in Novesta, September 19th, at one o'clock p. m.

It is rumored that Duncan Love intends removing to Parkhill, Ont., and engaging in the blacksmithing business there.

Rev. J. W. McGregor, of Milan, will conduct the services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning and evening.

Samuel Bigelow is now behind the counters in Fritz Brothers' drug store, learning the art of compounding drugs.

Correspondents will please notify us before they are entirely out of stationery, and we will forward them a fresh supply.

Prof. T. A. Conlon arrived from Traverse city last Saturday noon, and has resumed his duties as principal of our high school.

The interior of the school house west of here was thoroughly renovated with paper, paint and kalsomine, by Cross Brothers, last week.

L. A. Dewitt returned Saturday from Pa., where he has been visiting friends and relatives, and attending the reunion of his regiment.

Bert Raymond, formerly an employer in the Orion Review office, arrived in town Wednesday noon, and is now a typo in this office.

Old Mrs. Soles, who lives in the southwest part of the town and was some time ago arrested by Jns. Outwater for slander, is now declared insane.

Street commissioner Higgins is working on main street this week, drawing gravel and filling up holes near hitching posts where horses have stood.

The ENTERPRISE office will soon be moved to the rooms over the Exchange bank, which are being fitted up especially for this and J. D. Brooker's law office.

We are in receipt of complimentary tickets for the state fair to be held at Lansing from September 8th to 12th. We have to much work on hand to be able to attend.

Fruit is very plentiful in this vicinity this season, long blackberries especially. One person sold several bushels in this place one day last week for two and three cents per quart.

Frank Sailer departed on the afternoon train Tuesday for Dallas, Texas. He intends commencing the publication of a hotel journal at that place. We wish him full measure of success.

Henry Stiff will have an auction sale of farm stock and household furniture, at his farm one half mile west of Austin Town hall, on Thursday, September 11th, at 10 o'clock in the fore noon.

Dr. Trusecott has purchased the small house and lot just south of J. Matrean's grocery store on Segar street, from J. L. Hitchcock, and intends converting it into an office to be occupied by himself.

George McBride, son of Robert McBride, dislocated his arm at the elbow while jumping over a ditch last Thursday. He was brought to town and the dislocation was reduced by Dr. McLean.

The Saginaw bay mining company has $100,000 with which to dig coal at Sebewaing. John C. Liken is president of the new company, and the tests show 6,000,000 tons underlying its lands.

Dr. D. P. Deming is attending the reunion of his regiment, 10th Michigan Infantry, at Flushing this week. If there is an ex-soldier that enjoys meeting his old comrades of the war the Dr. is one of them.

Mesdames H. S. and E. K. Wickware, and Miss Lilly Wickware were in Detroit Wednesday purchasing their fall stock of millinery.

Jas. E. Kelly left on Monday to again resume his studies in the State Normal at Ypsilanti. Jas. is a student of the highest rank and an earnest believer in the old saying that merit wins.

About thirty-five from this place went on the excursion to Detroit Wednesday and viewed the sights at the exposition. According to all reports the attractions were greater this year than last.

George Toland, Son of late R. S. Toland, was in town Monday and Tuesday of this week, having been called here on account of the death of his father. George has been stopping at East Tawas for some time.

The farmers of Huron county seem to think it profitable to raise sheep, as a flock from near Oxford, Oakland county, was driven through town last Sunday, being headed for a farm north of Bad Axe. The flock numbered 451.

Dr. D. P. Deming and Henry Butler had a free for all go-as-you-please pedestrian contest a week ago last Friday evening. They covered the entire distance (8 miles) from Deford here in—well in a certain time.

He who never changed any of his opinions, never corrected any of his mistakes, and he who was never wise enough to find out any mistakes in himself, will not be charitable enough to excuse what he reckons mistakes in others.

The race track at this place creates considerable excitement among horse-owners. About every man that has a horse that can go a mile in 4 minutes can be found at the track in the evening, having a contest with his neighbor.

The facilities of this office will be somewhat increased, as soon as we move to our new quarters, by the addition of the job printing outfit owned by the junior member of this firm. Persons entrusting their orders for job printing with us, will be well satisfied with the work.

A correct report of Cass City's excellent market will be given in the ENTERPRISE each week, and this feature alone, to our former subscribers, will be well worth the subscription price. They will be revised every Thursday morning of each week and can be relied upon as being correct.

Henry S. Wickware has made a planer for the Cass City Fair Ground and Driving Park Association. Persons thinking that the track is not smooth enough for their horses to travel upon, can very easily smoothen it by hitching their team on the planer and drawing it upon the track for a short time.

The part of the holding of a farmer or land owner which pays best for cultivation, is the small estate within the ring-fence of his skill. Let him begin with the tillage of his brain and it will be well with his grain, roots, herbage and forage, cattle and sheep—they shall thrive, he shall thrive.

Jas. Armstrong has the job of painting and papering the dwelling house owned by C. W. McPhail, east of J. D. Brooker's residence. Mr. Armstrong informs us that when he has it completed it will be quite an attractive building. When completed it will be occupied by Dr. I. A. Fritz and family.

As will be seen by an article in our Caro correspondence elsewhere, Wall J. Gamble passed a very creditable examination at Caro this week, and is now a full fledged attorney and counselor at law. We extend to him our congratulations, and predict for him a most successful career as an attorney.

A basket picnic will be held in Finkler's grove, two miles west of Grant Center, on Sept. 10th, under the auspices of the Farmers Alliance. Speakers from different parts of the state are expected to be present, and a good time is anticipated. We are requested to extend an invitation to all to attend.

The carload of fruit shipped by K. S. Work last week Thursday was smashed up on the Michigan Central railroad at Oxford, last Friday. The engine that his car was attached to, started out before its time, and in endeavoring to switch off to let an approaching train pass, Mr. Work's being the rear car, it was struck and completely demolished. The M. C. company will undoubtedly settle satisfactory for the damages done.

The Cass City Fair Ground and Driving Park Association made its annual report to the secretary of the state and county clerk August 27, showing that the full number of shares of stock (being 120) had been sold. The association is now taking steps to increase its number of shares to 200, thereby making its capital stock $5,000. This we think is a step taken in the right direction, as it does not decrease the value of a share but only gives the association more means to improve its ground and buildings.

A great many think that it is absolutely necessary to go before the county clerk in order to obtain a marriage license, but it is unnecessary. All you have to do if you wish to obtain a license is to go before any person authorized to administer oaths and make the affidavit required by law, forward the same to the county clerk with the legal fee, and he will send you the desired license. Persons who are about to obtain a marriage license should bear this in mind, and thereby save themselves a trip to the county-seat.

The new law allows the killing of wild ducks, wild geese and other wild water-fowls or snipe, from September 1 to January 1. The season, then, for such game, opened last Monday. It provides against the killing of quail until November 1, 1894. This protection is said to be carrying the desired effect of allowing a rapid increase of the species and where the law is rigidly enforced a remarkable tameness of the birds is becoming prominent. By the time 1894 rolls around quail on toast will be too common for a place among luxuries.

There is strong talk of forming a local company to build a railroad from Bay City to the Sebewaing coal mines. A practical test of the Sebewaing coal was made by the Michigan Central R. R. company, and it was found to be at least ten per cent better for steam purposes, than that they now use from Hocking Valley coal mines. The distance from Bay City to Sebewaing is but little over twenty-five miles over a very level country, and the cost of constructing a road would be comparatively small. A road will undoubtedly be built soon.

The Patrons met in convention at Sanilac Center Tuesday and after considerable controversy, nominated the following ticket: Sheriff, M. B. Cody, of Marlette; clerk, Donald McDonald, of Marion; register, James McLaughlin, of Custer; prosecuting attorney, E. C. Babcock, of Sanilac Centre; circuit court commissioners, M. N. Mugan, of Port Sanilac, and Wilford Macklem, of Crosswell; surveyor, Thos. Walker, of Marlette; representative 1st district, Lafayette Schell, of Lexington; representative 2d district, Alex. Little, of Forester. The convention favored Hon. J. R. Whiting for Congress.

"My daughter keeps my farm accounts, sir; and she is as systematic and particular as ever my son was, who kept them before he left home. I tell you it does girls (and he might have added boys also) good to give them some responsibility, and set them to watching things about the farm and household. They learn, I find, economy by it, and soon discover that their old father is not, necessarily, a crabbled old curmudgeon because he doesn't loosen his purse-string whenever they see something they happen to fancy, for they discover the real reason why the purse should not be opened." So said a progressive farmer, a kind, appreciative and proud father, and a big-hearted man on general principles.

The time is now drawing near for the first annual fair of the Tuscola, Huron & Sanilac District Agricultural Fair Association. Every farmer should be up and doing to excel in the exhibits of his farm products. A fair is not a place of amusement alone, but is an institution that farmers should attend, exchange thoughts with his neighbors and competitors and learn what his brother is doing and what he has been producing on his farm with the most success and profit; and, if there is any particular branch of farming exhibited that he has not engaged in which he believes profitable, he should look the subject over carefully and investigate to his own satisfaction. We have always noticed that it is the successful farmer that attends his local fair, exhibits his produce and carries home with him the premium.

Sad Drowning at Caseville.
On Saturday morning last Amiel, seven year old son of Fredrick Lorenze, was drowned in the river, near the dam, at Caseville, while playing on a raft with two other playmates. The water was about nine feet deep where he fell in. His playmates ran and told his mother who, upon arriving at the scene, plunged into the water after her child, and was only saved from drowning by the help of a young lady, who bravely grasped her hand as she came to the surface the second time.

The funeral was held at the M. E. church at Caseville last Sunday afternoon, the German Methodist minister of Berne officiating. A large number of people showed their respect and sympathy by their attendance at the funeral.

Alliance Meeting.
Luther Ripley, state organizer for the Farmers' Alliance, will deliver a lecture at this place on the evening of September 11th.

Death of Register of Deeds, R. S. Toland.

It is with regret that we record the death of R. S. Toland, who died at the residence of J. B. McGilvary in this place on Saturday, Aug. 30th, at 4 p. m.

Mr. Toland has for a number of years past been afflicted with throat and lung disease, and has been during the past summer in a very feeble condition. About three weeks ago he and Mrs. Toland left their home in Caro and went to Algonac, Mich., in the hopes of regaining his former health, having for some four months past been given up by a number of physicians. He and Mrs. Toland stopped at Algonac until Thursday, Aug. 28, but no relief came.

The time was drawing near for a change in the proprietorship of the ENTERPRISE, Mr. Toland being owner, and as he was in a very critical condition he was anxious to have the matter arranged as soon as possible. Here reached this place Thursday noon accompanied by his wife, and began arranging matters as fast as possible, although his health would not permit him to do much. The sale and transfer was completed just a few hours before he expired.

The news of his death will cause regret among his many friends and especially in the ranks of the republican party, as he was a life long republican and one of the most earnest workers for that party Tuscola county ever had.

He was for five years previous to his election as Register of Deeds in November, 1888, the editor and publisher of this paper, and during the time he managed it, he commanded respect as a citizen among us, and we do not hesitate in saying that Mr. Toland when in possession of his health was the ablest editor that ever controlled the editorial reins of this paper, and it is sad for us as editors and publishers to record in its columns his death. During Mr. Toland's career as an editor he published the Caro Citizen, Vassar Times, Bay City Tribune and Unionville Sun. He was 42 years of age, a member of the G. A. R. Post of this place and present register of Deeds for Tuscola county.

The funeral took place at the Presbyterian church in this place, Rev. Scoonhoven, of Caro, officiating. A large number of friends and acquaintances from Caro and other places were in attendance at the funeral. The services were conducted under the charge of the G. A. R. Post and the remains were interred in the Caro cemetery.

The deceased leaves a widow and five children to mourn his loss, besides a large circle of warm friends.

Farmer Cleadman Insane!

He Attempted to Kill Himself With an Ax Last Sunday on His Farm near Berne.

Mr. Cleadman, a farmer living north of Berne, has for the past three months been showing signs of insanity to such an extent that he has attracted considerable attention in that locality. Last Sunday morning at six o'clock he verified the fact of his insanity. He ground up his axe and said he was going to chop wood. His family thought nothing of this and therefore made no effort to get the axe from him. As soon as he got the axe sufficiently sharp he started for the woods taking the axe in both of his hands and bringing the bit down on his head as hard as he could. The family saw him and tried to catch him and take the ax from him, but this they were unable to do until he had cut his head and face horribly. Dr. Jno. Doyne was summoned and dressed the wounds. The Dr. pronounced them serious but not fatal. Mr. Cleadman had bled profusely from the veins he had opened, and was very weak when captured. He will be taken to the asylum when able to be removed. Mr. Cleadman is 45 years of age, has a wife and several children.

Frank Tucker's Metropolitans.

Frank Tucker's Metropolitans are with us this week. "Miss Multon," a most pleasing and meritorious drama of the emotional class was presented Tuesday evening. Each actor and actress seemed peculiarly adapted for the part they took, and the small audience present were more than pleased with their efforts. Bessie's Burglar and the ever popular comedy, Uncle Joshua Whitcomb formed the double attraction of the second evening, and both were very creditably rendered. So far they have not received as full a house as they deserve, but should Frank Tucker's Metropolitans come to our city again there is no question but what they will be greeted with a large audience. We go to press too early to give an account of last night's play, but feel confident that those who attend will be well satisfied. Come again, Frank Tucker.

WAVERLAND.

A Tale of Our Coming Landlords.

BY SARAH MARIE BRIGHAM.

Copyrighted, 1886.

"To Dublin. In my hurry to leave Waverland I forgot to take the money from the funds I had in my possession, so I only had enough in my purse to take me there. When I left the train in that great city I was bewildered for a time. As I was walking along the street a little girl came running up to me and taking my hand said, 'come see my mamma, she is so still.' The child was a ragged, half starved little girl. She led me to an old hotel. There on a bed made of leaves and straw lay a woman, dead! I went into a house near by, and asked the woman who came to the door if she knew anything about the dead woman. She told me that the dead woman was a widow. She had tried to get work but failed, and she had probably starved to death. The child had a pinched and shriveled look, but no doubt the mother had denied herself to save the child. The priest was sent for. I washed the poor woman's face and combed her hair. When the priest came he seemed surprised to see a stranger there. He asked who I was that I should take such an interest in this poor woman's death. I told him I was a stranger in Dublin but the child had led me to her mother. I also told him I was without money or friends, and would like to get a place somewhere as governess. He asked me to go with him to his sister's house until I could find some other home. I found his sister a kind, gentle woman of considerable culture and good common sense. Her whole aim and object in life was to be of use to her brother, who was her hero.

"They lived very plainly. Miss O'Hone said her brother would not allow himself any luxuries when there were so many that must suffer. I took food of the simplest kind, but I was made welcome to share it with them. The little room that Father O'Hone used for his library was emptied of its books and made into a sleeping room for me. His books were piled on a box in one corner of the living room. This faithful woman never tired of telling how her brother would go through rain and mud in summer or winter if he could be of service to some poor suffering creature. Nothing could happen among his people but that he was called on to bear a part of their burdens. He was their pastor, doctor, lawyer and friend all in one. Father O'Hone was a large, powerful looking man. He had a pleasant face; was well educated; had a good share of common sense and a large heart full of sympathy. While I was staying with Miss O'Hone she tried earnestly to find me a position. I had about decided to advertise, when one day, Bishop Welch gave a public address. Miss O'Hone and I went to hear him. He told the people that the time for religious controversy had passed. Now they must unite and act in unison and Christian workers should lead them to victory. It was at that public meeting while I was standing on the walk that a closed carriage stopped near me. Lady Irving opened the door and called my name. I went to her surprised beyond measure at seeing her there, while she was equally surprised to see me. I sat with her in her carriage for a while giving her as much of my history as I deemed necessary. Then she offered me three hundred pounds a year to be her traveling companion. I can never forget the pleasure of that hour. Here was food and clothing and a chance to see the great world that I had so longed to see. Lady Irving handed me a gold coin to pay the kind hearted people who had so generously given me a home for nearly a month. When I went to bid Miss O'Hone good-bye I slipped the money into her hand. She smiled her thanks and with a hearty 'God bless you' bade me good-bye.

"I bless the kind Father for watching over my little friend," I said, with fervent heart. "What would you have done but for Lady Irving's timely visit?" "I do not know, but some way would have been provided. My father taught me to do the best I could and trust the rest to God."

"Did you ever think of Waverland and feel sorry that you left?" "I often thought of that place but was not sorry for leaving. Though I was nearly tempted to advertise and sign my own name, thinking if you wished to find me you would in that way be able to do so."

"I thought you might do that, and from the time you left Waverland until I found you in Denver, I never picked up a paper without looking through the list of advertisements. But I never found the name I longed to see."

"I had had a very happy time with Lady Irving. She has proved to be all that I anticipated on the first evening of our acquaintance."

"But did you still hope to see me again? Or give any thought to the lonely old home that you had deserted?"

"Yes, I thought of you, and Waverland very often, but I always tried to crush the thought you were engaged to Annie Wren!"

"Annie! What made you think that?" "Because you were fond of her, and then your mother said you were to marry her."

"And did you think that I could ever forget my little sunbeam who had filled my heart with warmth and gladness?" "Did not know?"

"But you did know, or you would never have fled from Waverland. You know the wicked deceiver when no one punishes. That one act made me sure that you loved me. And the knowledge of that love gave me courage to struggle out of the despair I felt when I first found that you had gone."

"When you came into the parlor at Denver my heart answered that question almost unconsciously, and it was a hard task to teach myself composure. I kept saying over to myself your mother's words. He is to marry Annie."

"But he is not to marry Annie! never! never! as I told my mother on that evening. But darling, when will you become my bride and bring joy and happiness to the old home at Waverland?"

"Not yet, Love, not yet," she said.

"But Stella dear, why need we wait! You have no one to ask, I have no one to care, we have none in all the world to please but each other."

"She only shook her head and remained firm. As we were returning to the hotel we could hear Melvorne pleading earnestly with Lady Irving to set their wedding day. But that lady was as obstinate as Stella had been.

Melvorne came to my room that evening with a gloomy face. It gave vent to his disappointment by saying:

evening myself! Do you think they have made some arrangement to make us wait?" I asked.

"I don't know, but we seem fated. We must wait the will and pleasure of our self-willed angels," he said, as he bade me goodnight with returning cheerfulness.

CHAPTER XX.—THE MYSTERY REVEALED. The morning found our party ready for new sights and scenes.

"What have you on the programme for to-day, Lollard?" asked Melvorne. "The famous springs, six in number, are among the first objects," he answered. "Either to-day or to-morrow I want our party to visit my ranch and see my fine herd of cattle. The ladies have never seen a cowboy yet," said Melvorne, in good spirits at prospect of a change.

We started out to visit the far famed boiling springs first. Crossing a little rustic bridge we came to the Manitow spring. Stella was first to reach it, as she was first in everything, even in my thoughts. Reaching down for a cup of the sparkling water, she raised it high above her head.

She raised a cup of water high above her head.

As she did so her hat fell to the ground and down came the coil of wavy ringlets. She blushed as her hair fell round her shoulders, but said in a comical tone:

"May the God of the medicine man send health, wealth and long life to our little party."

"Amen," we shouted, laughing at her comic attitude. How fairly like she looked in her dress of woodland gray, surrounded by those silken locks made golden by the sunlight.

Before we had time for thought, Melvorne had grasped her hand and was saying:

"Stella Everett, was your father's name Charles Edward?"

"Yes sir," said Stella, amazed at his words and manner.

"Then you are my cousin," he exclaimed. "Now I can explain the charm your manner has always had for me. Friends, congratulate me on the happy discovery."

Then came warm congratulations. Lady Irving was the first, and woman-like, she threw her arms round Stella in a few glowing words. Then Mrs. Lollard greeted Stella in a most sisterly fashion. Mrs. Lollard took her hand, saying:

"I am glad to know that such good fortune has come to my little friend." As for myself I hardly knew what to say. But the glad look that met my glance made my heart beat a double quick as I clasped her hand in mine.

"But," said Stella, as soon as the congratulations were over, "how did you make this happy discovery, for such it is to me, Cousin Melvorne?"

"My mother died when I was but a child," said Melvorne with emotion. "But I remember one morning as I went to her room she was standing as you are now, with her hair falling about her shoulders, while the sunlight was streaming on it, turning it to finest gold. I cried out in childish joy, 'O mamma, your hair is all aglow!' Just now your face, your form, and, above all, these golden locks have brought my mother to my mind."

"But that does not explain it all. My mother's maiden name was Everett. She had one brother who married against his father's wishes. The old gentleman, who was imperiously proud and self-willed, disinherited his son on that account. At his death he left all his wealth to my mother," said Melvorne, still watching Stella, who by the aid of a few hair pins, was making the untidy tresses into a closely twisted coil.

"Cousin Stella," said Melvorne, with a lingering tone, as if to catch the melody of the new words, "have you never heard that your father was an English nobleman?"

"Yes, my old nurse told me that she was, one day when I was helping her with the housework," Stella replied.

"But did your father never tell you of it?" he asked.

"I think not. But I remember once, not many years ago, my father came to me, and putting one hand on either side of my face said, 'You look so much like her' and, with a deep sigh left the room. When I asked the nurse if he meant my mother, she said no, it was of his sister he was thinking."

"I think you must look very much like my mother. That made the charm your society had for me. I have often tried to analyze it," said Melvorne thoughtfully.

While the duke and Stella had been talking I had taken from my note book a little white envelope; the time had now come to understand its meaning.

"Melvorne was your mother's home at Ravens Park, England?" I asked.

"I have something here," I said opening the note that held my translation of the cryptogram, and handing it to Melvorne. As I handed it to him Stella caught sight of the card and exclaimed:

"O, my lost treasure!" reaching her hand out for it. "Where did you find it, Loyd? I looked everywhere for it when I left Waverland, but could not find it."

I explained how I happened to find it and how I came to learn its meaning. Stella stood like one in a trance. Then with tears of joy she thanked me for revealing its contents.

"I have spent hours in trying to read that little hidden message. That and the fifty pounds I told you of I found in an envelope addressed to me and on a little note inside were these words: 'A father's will to his darling child,'" said Stella.

"This is indeed a revelation," said Melvorne. "We need no further testimony than this translated message from the departed. I am Charles Edward Everett, Son of Edward Everett, Earl of York, from Ravens Park, England," read the duke with emotion.

"How strange that this message should have remained hidden until now," said Lady Irving.

"It was like my father, to provide in some unexpected way for my learning of his birth and rank," said Stella, holding the precious cryptogram as though it could take wings and fly. "How strange it seems to know that I have one relative in all this world of people," she continued, going to the duke and offering her hand. "You are my very own cousin. My father's words have proven it!"

"You are not sorry, are you, little cousin?" asked Melvorne, seeing the tears glistening in her eyes.

"O, no, cousin James, but glad to be glad!"

"Well, now, I have something else to do besides visiting boiling springs," he said, turning to me. "And I want you aid, so all follow me." And Melvorne led the way back to the hotel, keeping Stella by his side.

At the hotel he paused a moment, then started down the street, still keeping Stella's hand upon his arm.

At a place where a lawyer's sign swung to and fro in the summer's breeze Melvorne paused, and opening the door, asked us to enter. The room was large and fitted up in the most approved style for an office. It was a sort of combination law office and real estate business room.

After entering, Melvorne asked if Lawyer Jones was present.

"Yes, sir," answered a gentleman, "that is my name. What can I do for you?" he asked, making at once bow to the ladies.

"I wish some important papers made out and sent to England," said Melvorne in a business way.

Then followed the tedious legal process of a transfer of property. Melvorne had decided to divide his grandfather's estate as it would have been divided had Stella's father received his rightful share. At first Stella objected to receiving it but the duke was determined.

While the lawyer was busy with Melvorne's papers, a man entered and asked if Mr. Sharp was in. A gentleman from the other desk answered to the same, saying:

"What can I do for you, sir?"

"Have you money to loan?" asked the stranger.

"Yes sir, that is my business," answered Mr. Sharp.

"I want to borrow a thousand dollars on that property," said the man, handing a document to Mr. Sharp as he spoke.

Mr. Sharp, a keen, shrewd business man took the paper and after reading it over carefully, said:

"I know the property your deed describes, and can loan you the money secured by a mortgage on that land."

"What per cent must I give, sir?" asked the man.

"Ten per cent for five years time," said Mr. Sharp.

"What is the commission?"

"Only six per cent."

"I must have it or lose my place," said the man with a sigh.

"As soon as Jones is at liberty we will make out the papers," said Mr. Sharp, with a most complacent smile as though his ready fingers had already secured the commission, while in the near future a vision revealed a foreclosure on the mortgage and the land within his own grasp.

I thought, here is a veritable shyluck ready to take not one pound only, but many, if we could count the toil and worry and weary heart aches! I remembered the story the old man told me back in Illinois who had passed through such an ordeal as this, and the final result was to see his home go into the hands of a foreign land monopolist, whose capital is said to be developing (?) the country! O yes! developing (?) Ireland!

While I had been busy thinking, the papers had been completed, and I was roused from my reverie by hearing Melvorne say: "New Miss Everett, you are hereby entitled to all the rank and privileges of an Earl's daughter."

CHAPERONS BY THE DAY.

How the Innocent Country Cousin May Be Looked After in New York.

There is a market for almost every thing in New York, says the Sun, and the latest article advertised for sale is chaperons. They are not exactly for sale—rather to rent or to hire—and they can be obtained for a few hours shopping or for a trip around the world.

Within sight of the Grand Central Depot is a large sign reading "Chaperon Bureau," and here the country visitor can find a well-bred, intelligent and well-looking woman to escort her through the city and tell her where to go and where not to go.

The idea is not a new one, and chaperons who are ladies of refinement, if not of wealth, can be found in almost all of large continental cities, especially in London, where the bureau of chaperons is enormously successful. The head of the new enterprise is a bright, self-reliant young woman, who impresses one as knowing more of business and business methods than many of her sex are supposed to know. She says the new departure has been very successful. The students from Yassau College are some of its best patrons, and one contract alone calls on them to supply guides and chaperons to a party of 500 men and women who are coming from the South some time in June to visit the local branch of the society of which they are members.

"There are a great many women of middle age in the city," said she, "who are not able to support themselves by any of the callings open to women, but who know the city thoroughly and who can take care of themselves and any one in their charge. There are also a great many single women who come to New York and who are fearful of going around alone, and who would waste a great deal of time if they tried it independently—which could be saved if we had some one to direct them."

"We bring these two classes of people together. We also supply men who are linguists and who know the city's show places, who can take care of foreigners unacquainted with the language." She also said that young men with presentable appearance need not apply for positions as escorts, as it was against such young men that the chaperons were intended to serve as an insurmountable barrier.

What Men Like in Women. There is a certain something, which, for want of a better name, is called womanliness, and it is that which makes woman attractive to men. A great many virtues go to make up this one great possession, and they are what men like in women.

Men like in the first place, amiability in a woman.

They like a pleasant appearance.

They like the doing of little things that are pleasant to them.

They like the courtesy of the first side.

They like women whose lives and faces are always full of the sunshine of a contented mind and a cheerful disposition.

They like an ability to talk well and a knowledge of the virtues of science.

They like a motherliness big enough to understand the wants of the older, as well as the younger boys.

They like a disposition to speak good, rather than evil of every human being.

They like sympathy—which means a willing ear for the tale of sorrow or gladness.

They like knowledge of how to dress well, which, bye-the-by, doesn't mean conspicuously. Men are most attracted by good material, plain draperies and quiet colors; not by showy colors or designs.

They like intelligence, but they prefer that the heart should be stronger than the brain.

They like a companion—a woman who has sufficient knowledge of the world and its ways to talk well with them, who is interested in their lives and their plans and in their hopes, who knows how to give a cheering word, or to listen quietly and by a tender look express the grief which the heart is feeling.

They may sometimes say that children are a bore and a nuisance, but a man shrinks from a woman who openly declares her dislike of them. A man expects the maternal instinct in a woman and is disappointed if he does not find it.

They like women to be affectionate—there never was a man yet, no matter how stern, no matter how cold, no matter how repulsive as far as his own feelings were concerned, who did not like a loving squeeze of the hand, or a tender kiss from the woman nearest to him.

These are some of the things that men like in women.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Mrs. Langtry's Business Ability. But by far the ablest woman we have ever seen in America is Mrs. Lily Langtry. She is the only woman who has ever succeeded in making every man she dealt with feel his comparative weakness. They all admit that—all her managers, her leading men, her agents in her speculations. On Pine street, among the real-estate men, she is looked upon as the ablest speculator, considering her means, who ever gambled in New York real estate. Time and again she has carried off bargains that made the shrewdest men—even the managers of the Astor estate—bite their nails. Then, see the money she has made by a profession for which she has no talent, and in which she rose by force of will. See how she has husbanded her beauty, working like a sailor with out-of-door exercise, and all the other self-denying means that preserve a woman's beauty. I don't like Mrs. Langtry—I'm too old-fashioned and conservative—but I can give you the names of the shrewdest men who write plays, or manage theatres, or speculate, that they may confirm the assertion that she is the ablest woman New York has ever known.—Hatter.

She—"Charlie, dear, what do you suppose causes so many divorces?" Charlie (who has just been accepted)—"I haven't studied the question carefully, but I should say it was wholly due to the prevalence of marriage." She—"Then suppose we simply stay engaged." Boston Beacon.

QUAY'S FLORIDA ADVENTURES.

Nearly Bitten by a Rattlesnake and Sung to Sleep by a Mermaid.

The Senator had some thrilling adventures during his sojourn in Florida. About a month ago, after catching six tarpon, he left his son, Dick, who had shot seven deer, in charge of Mrs. Quay and the two younger daughters, and started in a steam yacht, the Corinne, in a cruise around the peninsula, from the mouth of Indian River to the west coast. His companions were Capt. Ben Sooy of Atlantic City, Col. Shepard of Chicago, and Col. Hersh, a retired Florida planter. Their course lay south along the east coast, around the southern end of the peninsula, and northward along the west coast. During the voyage the Corinne was storm-bound for several days in the New River, a stream which for several miles runs parallel to the sea and so close to it that only a narrow strip of sand separates the salt water from the river.

One day the Senator, followed by his three companions, was walking over this sandy ground, along a path half overgrown with vegetation. Col. Quay stepped carelessly over what he supposed was a palmetto root. Ben Sooy, who was scarcely three feet behind, saw the palmetto root suddenly rise in air, open a cavernous mouth, and dart out a long red tongue between two ugly fangs. He and his companions yelled with all their might, and the Senator turned about to see a rattlesnake six feet and six inches long about to spring. The warning came in time, and the rattlesnake was speedily killed with clubs. The dried skin, shrunken and shriveled as it is, looks hideously formidable as it rests upon a stand in the Senator's library.

The Senator had also an adventure with a mermaid. With the same companions he one afternoon rowed some distance up a beautiful stream, apparently an outlet from the Everglades into an arm of the sea. As dusk grew on the boat started to return to the steam yacht in the bay. As it glided down the stream the voyagers were suddenly arrested by a weird, unearthly sound, which at first seemed to be like the noise made by a steamer blowing off steam far out at sea. At least that is the way it sounded to Senator Quay, but Sailor Ben Sooy thought it sounded like the droning of a bee. The sound grew more distinct as the boat advanced, until at one spot it seemed to all four voyagers like the mingling of an eolian harp with the notes of a distant organ.

The deep tones of the imaginary organ seemed to blend in perfect harmony with the breathing of a breeze upon a taut string. The sound could be heard only in one spot. Those in the boat thought it must be a fish, but if it was a fish persistent prodding of the water with oars and with the anchor failed to drive it away. The story of the strange sound was told to the crew of the yacht, and they unanimously pronounced it a ghost. Late that night the mysterious sound was heard on the yacht. It filled all the air and pulsed throughout the cabin and fore-cabin. The Captain and crew, thoroughly terrified, hauled up the anchor and steamed away from the place as fast as they could. A scientist connected with the Smithsonian Institution afterward told Senator Quay that the sound was caused by a very rare species of fish.—Philadelphia Press.

Bismarck and Grant. I must say that in olden times our wandering citizens who visited Berlin met with a very kind reception at the hands of the Chancellor. This was especially the case when Gen. Grant came to visit the German capital. Prince Bismarck called upon him in the most friendly and informal style, amazing the American party not a little by his boldness and freedom of some of his remarks. For instance, he was asked if his son, Count Herbert, was married.

"Oh no!" answered the Prince; "he is too busy making love to the wives of other men to think of selecting one for himself." The history of the divorce of the Princess Elizabeth von Carolath Bentheim, which followed only a few years later, gave point and confirmation to this remark. The valets of Prince Bismarck were much amazed the next day when a plain, sturdy gentleman, sheltered beneath an umbrella from the pouring rain, without equipage and without attendants, came to call upon their master, and they learned that this informal visitor was no other than our famous ex-President.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

To Bridge the Bosphorus. There need be no more Leander-like or Byronic swimming across the Bosphorus if the project contemplated by a French engineering company be taken seriously and carried to completion. This plan comprises, nothing less than the construction of a colossal bridge, 800 meters, or 872 yards, long, over the historic and picturesque channel that flows between the shores of Europe and Asia, connecting the Sea of Marmora with the Euxine. The project has been talked of any time these twenty years, but it was not considered that the bridge would be useful enough to justify the enormous expense which it would entail. The points already designated for the construction were Roumel-Hissar and Anatoli-Hissar, and it is considered that if now constructed it would act as a link in the local railway system, eventually paying for itself in a satisfactory manner. The French engineers who are thinking of undertaking the construction of the bridge would make it with one arch only.—London Telegraph.

State Dinners at the White House. There are four services at all state dinners at the white house. The dishes, in their order, are served on silver platters by waiters, the guests helping themselves. The chief waiter serves the president first and then proceeds toward the right and the second waiter toward the left. The same course is observed on the opposite side of the table, beginning with the presiding lady. No one is ever served twice.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1890.

SALUTATORY.

Having purchased the entire outfit used in the publication of the Cass City Enterprise from R. S. Toland of Caro, and assumed entire control thereof, we hereby make our bow as proprietors, editors and publishers of this paper.

We recognize the fact that a paper to meet the approbation and win the permanent support of the people generally, must be fair, honest and impartial in all its dealings, and we will endeavor to live up to these principles in every respect. Our aim will always be to please and interest our readers without in any way interfering with the rights or injuring the feelings of any individual or class of individuals, and in this we anticipate and ask the hearty co-operation of all our correspondents and subscribers.

We will be pleased at any time to grant a reasonable amount of space to citizens wishing to discuss affairs pertaining to the welfare and advancement of our village and other villages and localities represented by the ENTERPRISE. As items of public interest may sometimes escape our notice, we earnestly solicit the co-operation of our friends in the collection of news of local events, and we hope that no one will be diffident about informing us at any time of any item of personal or public interest that may come under their observation.

No efforts will be spared on our part to enlarge the already extensive subscription list of the ENTERPRISE, and by so doing increase its value as an advertising medium, so that merchants and others favoring us with their advertisements will be sure to get value received for their money.

We trust that the excellent corps of correspondents now contributing interesting news letters each week will so continue, as no country paper is complete unless the various localities in its vicinity are represented in its columns.

In assuming control of the editorial reins of the ENTERPRISE, we trust that all interested in the welfare of a local newspaper in this vicinity will act in harmony with us.

Your Respectfully, JAMES D. BROOKER, MACK M. WICKWARE.

VARIOUS TOPICS.

The Presidents of the Central American republics are perfectly willing to agree to terms of peace; provided, that every thing is conceded to themselves.

The total count of the population of the State of Idaho, as announced by the Census Bureau, is 84,228. In 1880 the population was 32,610. This is an increase of 51,618.

The new cruiser Philadelphia seems to be swifter even than the other flyers which have been added to this branch of the navy in the past two or three years. In some respects, at least, the United States will soon be able to dub herself mistress of the seas.

Commenting on the effects of the American silver bill the London Times warns the silver interests to be in readiness to meet the real though perhaps distant danger of a plethora of silver in America finding a vent outside and forcing itself on the market at a reduced price.

It is a sad commentary on the brutality of the European military institution that in time of profound peace German troops must be put on a forced march, under a broiling sun, and kept at it until nearly half a hundred were prostrated by sunstroke, several cases of which proved fatal.

The New York Sun says the happy effects which are already apparent from the new silver law show that the advance in silver is directly in favor of the agricultural interests of this country, and predicts that it will put $100,000,000 more in the pockets of American farmers, through the advantage given to American exports.

Ex-CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM L. SCOTT, of Pennsylvania, owns what is probably the largest truck farm in the world. It comprises fifteen hundred acres, five hundred of which are under thorough cultivation, and is located in Northampton County, Va., within a night's run of New York City. There's more than a Congressman's salary in it.

The steno-telegraphic system was tried for the first time in the Chamber of Deputies at Paris, France, recently. It is the invention of M. Cassagna, a civil engineer. The instrument makes possible the transmission of short or long-hand reports of speeches any distance, as they come from the desk of the writer, at a much greater speed than has ever before been contemplated.

It would appear that in spite of prison reform associations and conventions, penitentiary officials still rack their brains to invent tortures to inflict upon the defenseless creatures for the time being subject to their fiendish caprice. The stories now current of the brutalities perpetrated on the luckless convicts who happen to violate some of the rules of the Colorado penitentiary at Canyon City might well go side by side with those of the Spanish inquisition, so devilish in their conception and execution are they.

ASKED what is the cause of poverty in this country, the late John Boyle O'Reilly said: "The masses are poor, ignorant and disorganized, not knowing the rights of mankind on the earth, and never knowing that the world belongs to its living population; because a small class in every country has taken possession of property and government, and makes laws for its own safety and the security of its plunder; educating the masses, generation after generation, into the belief that this condition is the natural order and the law of God."

The statistical report of the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that 704,743 men are employed by the railroads of this country, and that therefore about 3,000,000 people live upon wages paid by the railroads. It further shows that our roads are operated with only 450 men to the 100 miles of road, while in England 1,748 men are required for that many miles of line. This disparity may be partially due to the heavier business per mile in the more densely populated country, but it is more largely due to the greater efficiency of American labor.

CHILL, too, is threatened with a revolution. The Chilians have been called the Yankees of South America. They have been regarded as the most level-headed of all the Spanish Americans, and their history in the past twenty or thirty years has shown that this estimate is practically correct. There has been a deadlock between the President of the republic and Congress for several weeks past, however, on important matters of fiscal legislation, which has demoralized the public service to a large extent, which promises to stop the wheels of government, and which seriously threatens a violent domestic upheaval.

HON. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, speaking to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers at New Haven, Conn., on May 25, 1889, on the relations of railroad officials to their employes, said: "The president of the company has his duty to perform to the stockholders of the road, but it is not, as many suppose, his only duty. While he must see to it that a proper economy is maintained and an earning power developed, he must see that the public at all times get the best possible service, and that the men in the employ of the company are treated well. It is his duty to march out and take by the throat and throttle any man who, in his brief authority, treads on the toes of some one of the men under him. The railroad goes on forever, and the men in its employ realize the security of their employment, and it gives to them an independence which is their right."

PROBATE ORDER.—State of Michigan, County of Tuscola, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office in the village of Caro, on the sixteenth day of August, the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

In the matter of the estate of Daniel A. Holmes, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Lucy M. Holmes, widow of said deceased, praying that a certain instrument now on file in this court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to probate, and that administration of said estate be granted to herself, or some other suitable person. Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the fifteenth day of September, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the probate office, in the village of Caro, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Cass City Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

FORECLOSURE SALE.—Notice is hereby given that a mortgage dated the fourteenth day of July, 1888, was executed by Bertha A. Kelley to William J. Cooper and recorded in the register of deeds office in Tuscola county, and state of Michigan, in Liber 64 of Mortgages on page 399, on the fourth day of August, 1888. That default has been made in the condition of said mortgage and the payment of principal and interest due thereon and that notice of this notice the sum of sixty-one dollars and seventy seven cents, that under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises at public vendue to the highest bidder, on Monday, the twenty-seventh day of October, 1890, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the front door of the court house in the village of Caro, in said Tuscola county, and that said premises are described in certain pieces or parcels of land situate and being in the township of Akron, in the county of Tuscola and state of Michigan, known and described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the north west corner of section eight, town thirteen, east seventy (70) rods, thence south fifty-six and one-half (56 1/2) rods, thence east seventy (70) rods, thence north fifty-six and one-half (56 1/2) rods to the place of beginning, and containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less, and will be sold as aforesaid to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, with no interest that may accrue thereon after this date and the costs of foreclosure.

Dated August 1st, 1890. T. C. QUINN, WILLIAM J. COOPER, Mortgagee, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Up to Sept. 1st K. S. Work and his brother have purchased between four and five hundred bushels of plums, besides a large quantity has been purchased by the merchants of Cass City, which goes to show that this section is adapted to fruit growing, especially the raising of plums. I do therefore recommend that farmers and all others interested in the cultivation of plums to prepare their ground this fall, and allow me to supply you with a good grade of trees for next spring's planting. Buyers are now here paying good prices for Fall apples and contracting for Winter fruit, which all goes to prove that, as fruit growing of all kinds increases in this section, a really market at home will be the result. Again I desire to say to the public that I am fully prepared to furnish any and all kinds of nursery stock at very reasonable rates; special bargains to those desiring large orders. As I have had your liberal patronage for the past four years, I desire to extend to you my hearty thanks and hope for a continuation of the same. Very truly yours, HENRY W. ROBINSON.

"Ayer's Pills have been used in my family for over thirty years. We find them an excellent medicine in fevers, eruptive diseases, and all bilious troubles, and seldom call a physician. They are almost the only pill used in our neighborhood."—Redmon C. Comly, Row Landing P. O., W. Feliciana Parish, La.

"I have been in this country eight years, and during all this time, neither I, nor any member of my family have used any other kind of medicine than Ayer's Pills, but these we always keep at hand, and I should not know how to get along without them."—A. W. Soderberg, Lowell, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Cathartic Pills as a Family Medicine for 25 years, and they have always given the utmost satisfaction."—James A. Thornton, Bloomington, Ind.

"Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me of severe headache, from which I was long a sufferer."—Emma Keyes, Hubbardstown, Mass.

ANNOUNCEMENT

It is with extreme gratification that we announce the opening of Spring and Summer stock of Boots and Shoes. The buyer's task is no easy one, and it is a great relief when the goods are carefully selected, and his calmer and more critical judgement approves his purchase and warrants his original faith in their value of cheapness. Such a feeling as we make this announcement. Our stock is as complete as possible to make it, and we are confident that our customers will appreciate the careful selections we have made. Every effort has been made to include in our varied assortments, only Reliable Goods, but from the best manufacturers. Our effort in this direction has been thoroughly successful. No better values or finer goods can be had for the money. We shall be glad to welcome any and all and show goods and quote prices, satisfied in the conscious excellence and cheapness of our goods. Hoping to see you sent our compliments and our card.

EMPIRE. EMPIRE.

DRILL

For years our trade has been on seeders. We are now pleased to see change is being called for, and the prospects are we will be called upon to furnish several car loads of Grain and Fertilizer Drills for the Fall Sowing.

We have been looking for a first-class Machine and pleased to find to our many customers and agents that we have selected the "OLD LIABLE EMPIRE". Established in 1854 in Shortsville, N. Y.

The Essential Principle of a Grain Drill lies in its Feeding Device and from the fact that so few give it the proper amount of consideration, it is almost always overlooked or passed by with the remark that "any drill will sow well enough." The EMPIRE has a Scientific Principle which is a wonder in itself: Feeding out in an equal time with the same combination of gears the Same Quantity of Wheat and Oats.

The EMPIRE is the only machine embodying the principle and has No Equal in the World, and if our 20 years experience has gained us any knowledge or placed us in a position to be competent judges we are ready to rest our reputation and guarantee on the EMPIRE as LEADER and will guarantee all purchases satisfactorily. Call on us or our Agents and examine the Machine. The Terms are Liberal and easy Payments. Write for Catalogues at once.

CORRESPONDENCE

Old Time first covers our heads with hair. Afterward quietly moves them bare. First cuts our teeth with a mighty fuss; Anon takes care that our teeth "cut" us. First manufactures us nimble legs, And then converts them to "stiff old pegs." Coming to earth with smiles and tears, Pleasure beguiled a few brief years, Harassed thereafter by Care and Doubt, Fighting for much that we might do without, Hoping and trusting for bliss to come— So, in amazement, we reach the tomb.—Ex.

CASEVILLE.

H. W. Robinson, of Cass City, was in town over Sunday.

A number of our citizens have taken in the exposition at Detroit.

The pleasure season at Oak Bluff is about ended, parties camping out here having all returned home.

Prof. Dickson, who is to succeed Prof. Bailey in the management of our school began his work on Tuesday.

Fruit buyers are now purchasing plums and apples around through the county, and paying good prices.

Francis Hora broke his leg near the ankle by falling from a load of grain that was on the barn floor, last week. Dr. Johnson set the limb and he is now doing as well as could be expected.

ELLINGTON.

Pleasant weather.

Nice time for seeding.

Farmers are doing their utmost to beat in seeding.

The approaches of the White Creek bridge are now completed.

The annual meeting of school district No. 1 passed off quietly.

Andrew J. Turner was elected assessor of school district No. 1, for three years.

Nine months school was voted to be held in district No. 1, for the ensuing year.

September has come in pleasant and the weather is growing warmer. It is hoped that frost will hold off for awhile.

A. W. Adams went to Detroit last week to spend a short time visiting with his mother and four brothers who live there. He is expected to return this week.

We are on tip toe expecting to see the announcement of the new proprietors of the ENTERPRISE in this week's issue in their assuming control of that valuable paper, and hope they will be able to push it to the front and make it a first class paper in every respect; one that will do battle for the right. May its subscription be doubled and become a full fledged farmer's, mechanic's and everybody's paper. So mote it be.

It is with deep regret that we heard of the death of Robert S. Toland, the former editor and proprietor of the ENTERPRISE. We have known him for a number of years, having first become acquainted with him as the editor and proprietor of the Caro Citizen, and we followed along with him until he started the Vassar Times and we kept him company until he left that office and went to Bay City. When he came to Cass City we again fell in with him and continued until he was elected Register of Deeds, since then until sickness called him from the office we knew him but to esteem him as a citizen and a friend. But he has gone from this world of trouble, pain, sorrow and affliction that bourn from whence no traveler returns. Let him rest; peace to his ashes.

CARO.

Judge Beach arrived on the late train Monday night and opened court on Tuesday.

Attorney Butler, of Cass City, was in town Monday. Mr. Butler was here in the interest of the Industrial party.

A large number of our citizens were absent from town on Friday attending the funeral of Register of Deeds, Robert S. Toland, which occurred at Cass City.

Daniel Dixon, of Unionville, spent Sunday in Caro. He has been engaged by the school board at Caseville to fill the position of principle in the Caseville high school.

Our annual school meeting was held on Tuesday night and resulted in the election of the following named persons, as trustees: Jno. F. Seelye, Wm. N. West and Chas. Montague. $9,000 was voted to be raised for school purposes.

On Tuesday Walt J. Gamble of Cass City passed an examination before the circuit court touching his legal learning and ability, and his qualifications to be admitted as a full fledged attorney and counselor at law and solicitor in chancery. After a lengthy and sitting examination he was admitted by the unanimous vote of the committee that had been appointed by the court to act upon his application. Mr. Gamble is a promising young man and will be an honor to the legal fraternity. He now contemplates going to Ann Arbor and take the senior year in the law department at the State University.

OWENDALE AND CREEL.

Farmers here are complaining of too dry weather for seeding.

Dwight Freeman, of Canbora, was in this burg on Monday.

Wm. Burress of Creel visited Caro on Monday, on business.

Mr. Quinn, of Caseville, is the guest of Seward Cooley at present.

Special Meeting of K. O. T. M. Tent, No. 211, Tuesday evening.

Rev. A. Ross, of East Dayton, made a flying call here on Tuesday.

Miss Helen Coulter visited friends in Caro on Saturday and Sunday.

Quite a number from here took in the picnic at Gagetown last week, and all report a good time.

Mrs. Cooley, of Caro, is visiting her daughter Mrs. George M. Cross. The old lady is looking quite frail from the frosts of many winters.

Our base ball team came out victorious on Saturday last, the score stood 37 to 16, in favor of the home team. C. S. Graves furnished the supper for the boys in a very satisfactory manner. The boys will play a return on Saturday Sept., 13th.

School Notes.

Visitors are always welcome.

Mr. Johnson still acts in the capacity of janitor, and he always attend to his duties well.

Miss Kate McClinton did not arrive home from her visit at Toronto until Monday noon. Miss Lilly Wickware conducted her department Monday forenoon.

Miss McArthur, the primary teacher, is interesting her pupils very much by introducing Kindergarten work, which is a new feature in the schools here, and which pleases the children very much.

The pupils appreciate fully the advantages of having library books, dictionaries and encyclopedias to use, and will add many volumes to their library during the year.

The Cass City schools are better prepared to accommodate non-resident pupils now than at any time before, as the seating capacity of the high school has been increased; a chemical and physical apparatus has been added; dictionaries, encyclopedias and library books have been purchased and placed in the school, so that the pupils can consult them at any time and thus get a better knowledge of the subject. Come and see for yourself.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. R. S. Toland desires us to extend her heartfelt thanks to all those who so kindly assisted during the illness and death of her husband. To Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McGilvary, especially, she will ever be grateful.

Prohibition Caucus.

Notice is hereby given that a caucus of the prohibitionists of the township of Elkland will be held at Cass City, Sept. 8th, 1890, for the purpose of electing seven delegates to attend the prohibition convention at Caro, Sept. 11th, 1890.

By ORDER COMMITTEE.

Prohibition County Convention.

A convention for Tuscola county, to nominate two Representatives for the State Legislature and the candidates for the county offices, also to elect delegates to the congressional and state senatorial conventions, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention, will be held at Caro, Sept. 11th, 1890, at 10 o'clock a. m. All those who endorse the platform adopted by the Prohibition party on July 30th, 1890, are invited to unite in electing delegates to this convention. Each township is entitled to seven delegates. Delegates will be received from townships unorganized, to the extent entitled, as the convention may instruct. Order county committee,

SILAS A. LANE, Chairman.

DENTISTRY.

I desire to say to the people of Cass City and vicinity that in connection with my eight years' experience in dentistry I have just completed two practitioners courses in Chicago schools of dentistry; one with Drs. Haskell & Stout and one at Chicago college of Dental Surgery, both of which I have certificates to show, and invite you to give me a call when in need of dental work. My prices are reasonable and work guaranteed satisfactory.

I would say here that Dr. Haskell is known as one of the best Prosthetic dentists in the world, with about 40 years of experience.

Let European countries keep their defective and criminal classes. It is quite enough for us to assimilate and civilize the people they send us who are in other respects undesirable in their raw-material state.

FASHION has decreed that mourning paper shall hereafter bear a band of black across the corner of the sheet only. The relatives of dead millionaires who do not wish to be hypocritical will welcome the innovation.

BEWARE of the man who tells you of his wife's faults. Beware of the woman who announces to you that life is without flavor, and that if she had only known you before she did John, well—then, of course, it would have been different.

NOTHING is more silly than the pleasure some people take in "spealing their minds." A man of this make will say a rude thing, for the mere pleasure of saying it, when an opposite behavior, full as innocent, might have preserved his friend, or made his fortune.

"SHOULD every dog of every breed in America be killed to-morrow," says a St. Louis statistician, "the real loss to the country would not be $100. On the contrary, the gain would be at least $30,000,000 per year. Nations famed for their thrift and economy do not take to dogs."

NOTHING astonishes the French people more than to hear that the driver of a vehicle in America must exercise the least care for the safety of a pedestrian. In France the man who gets run over can be smartly fined, and they hold that this is the only way to make people careful.

TARGET-SHOOTING contests in the Turkish army have developed the fact that not one soldier in twenty could hit a man at twenty paces. A target as big as a barn door placed thirty rods away was missed twenty-nine times where it was hit once. The Turk looks well in red trousers, however.

NEW ORLEANS brokers have $10 gold pieces frozen into cakes of artificial ice and then brought around to the exchange by a boy. The cakes are placed in the sun, and the last gold piece to melt out takes all the others. It's not quite as exciting as a horse race, but it beats penny-ante way into the back woods.

A QUEBEC reporter offered any fortune taller in that city $50 if she or he would tell him one single circumstance in his past life, and though nine of them tried it, every one had to admit that the stars didn't work right and nothing could be done. What could have been done was not done—to jail the whole lot as swindlers.

Dr. OLANUS, a distinguished German physician, who was for many years a vegetarian, has returned to the use of meat as food, alleging that under an exclusive vegetable diet his arteries had begun to degenerate. Arteries are mighty good allies of the gentleman who hankers for the flesh-pots. No one can dispute their testimony.

The proper education of every man is the wisest that he can attain; the more he knows the more useful is he to himself and to those around him. Education to be true and complete must fit a man or a nation for a complete life. The education that gives knowledge that is of no use for the activities and duties of existence is useless.

"THERE are just as many heroes and heroines now as in any age before," says a Cleveland paper, "but the opportunities for exhibiting acts of heroism are somewhat scarcer." That's entirely correct, unless a young lady wants to pick up the broom and give her old mother a rest, or a young man dares face a crowd with his pants bagging at the knees.

COLLIS P. HUNTINGTON, who is many times a millionaire, is said to have made the statement that if he were a young man with $10,000 or $100,000 he would go to Africa and make millions in the rubber trade. A man with $100,000 can make money in a thousand and one ways. If Mr. Huntington can inform the young man without a penny how to make a moderate fortune it will be worth while speaking out.

AUSTRALIA appears to be leading the world in all kinds of reform. The last one is a method of simplifying the transfer of real estate. In general terms it consists in collecting and canceling all the regular deeds and incumbrances on a piece of property and issuing a guaranteed certificate of ownership, which practically represents the land. This simple instrument can be passed from one to another the same as a bank note. The certificate describes the land and sets forth the title to it. If the title is recorded, one is issued the

Too Much Talk. It is strange how people in general delight in the music of their own tongues. In society a good listener is becoming an absolute character. Everybody has something to say and only but a few listen. During a morning call at a friend's house recently, we saw one of these inveterate talkers, and she began to tell us how "Tom's wife" did her housekeeping. We took a mental short-hand synopsis of the language, and give it here, nearly verbatim. "Tom's wife is awful set! Oh, she is so awful set! You never saw anything like it! These Morgans all are. Old Grandpa Morgan had such a will! Oh, my! It was like—like—well, like anything! Why, when he was dying—yes, dying, and I had it from one of the family—he wouldn't let Robert's oldest daughter—May her name was—come into the room because she married one of the Elroys—he hated the Elroys, Grandpa Morgan did! And Tom's wife is just so! Oh, no, I don't mean to say anything against brother Tom's wife! Not at all! I never talk about anybody! Anybody that knows me would say that I never talk about folks—especially my own folks. But Tom's wife is so peculiar. Now she never uses up any cold food. I always do. I put my odds and ends of bread and cake into puddings, but she never does. Now, I cut over things for my children; but dear me! Tom's wife would never dream of doing that! Well, well! some women can throw out with a spoon faster than a man can throw into the house with a shovel! Oh, she wasn't brought up right! There is so much in bringing up. My poor dear mother used to say that early teaching made us just what we are and I believe it. Poor dear mother was such a disciplinarian! Oh, wonderful! I have heard her friends say to her so many times, 'Oh, Mrs. Jones, it does beat everything the way those children of yours do behave! They are just like little ladies and gentlemen!'

"Well, now, Tom's wife has spoiled her babies. There was little Charley. He had the measles and hooping-cough last winter, and the doctor was there twenty-one times. I set it down. And poor Tom working on a salary, and his insurance assessments to pay, and they do cost so much that sometimes I think it is cheaper to die without being insured! Oh, yes, I suppose measles may be dangerous, and hooping-cough is awful trying, but Tom's wife would have the doctor if anybody in her family sneezed! Folks are so different! And she never wears her dresses so that they come to making over! She gives them away. Well, some folks can afford to do that, perhaps! But I cannot! And she keeps a girl all the time! And that girl wastes so much! The coal goes dreadfully! Such fires, and the doors open to let the heat out! And soap! Well, you wouldn't believe me if I should tell you the amount of soap that is used in that family! Three pounds a week, if there's an ounce! And Tom's wife always has the sick headache when she wants to get rid of doing anything! Now I don't have any faith in sick headache. I never have it. I haven't any time for it. If I don't feel well in the morning I flax round and work it off! But some folks don't think of that! Now, there was Miss Rawlins. She that married Piper, the lawyer. Why, I have seen that woman give up and go to bed because she had the toothache! She lay abed a week, the time Sam Jones' barn was burned—let's see, was it April, or May? Five years ago this spring—no, let me think. It was six years ago the tenth of April, and they liked never to have got their cow out alive—and all the hay was burned, and a sleigh, and a wagon, and lots of tubs—and that woman lay abed a week just because she had a boil on her neck; and—Oh, my here, come old Aunt Susy Pickering, and now a person won't be able to get a word in edgeways!"

And at this stage of the proceedings we stopped taking notes. Poe's an dHood's Ideals. She is well now—in her sepulcher there by the sea. And he—how is it with him? Is he well? Perhaps in one sense he is better off—aye, vastly better off—than many men whom the world calls prosperous, and envies. He has his Annabel Lee; he loved her, and was loved by her; married her, and lived with her for long and happy years—long years that their happiness made, nevertheless, all too short. The past is always secure. He has had his day; has had his time of flourish. Nothing can alter that. He has still his Annabel Lee. Better, far better, to remember her than to mingle in the living society of most others. Her memory will keep his soul pure, and sustain him above the commonplaces of life.

Which is the better for a man, in the higher sense of the word—to have yearned for his Fair Inez and never found her, and gone through all his life hoping for her coming, and hoping in vain; or to have found his Annabel Lee, and loved her, and been loved by her, and married her, and lost her; or to have never dreamed of a Fair Inez, nor found and lost an Annabel Lee?

I am not sure about the answer to the first and second questions; I am quite sure about the answer, so far as my own feeling goes, to the third, I would rather, ever so much rather, have dreamed of Fair Inez, and yearned for her, and never found her—of course, I never should have found her and it would not have been any good to me even if I had—or have found my Annabel Lee and lost her, than have gone through the world without the passion and the pain. But as to the first and second questions, I am not so sure. It is better to seek the unattainable ideal, to have the eternal longing eternally unsatisfied, or to have the ideal found, realized, and lost, and then the long and lonely lament? I am not able to give an answer. Ask me something easier.—Justin McCarthy in Scribner.

How He Secured a Wife. Chicago Tribune. Some years ago a certain lawyer, now well-known, was walking down one of the fashionable streets. He came to a tiny fruitstand over which two pretty children had control. It was a conceit of the little ones, in indulgence by their well-to-do parents. The Judge—he was then a young lawyer—had a vein of humor in him. He stopped at the stand, picked up the fruit, ate it, and walked off without paying for it. Of course this aroused the ire of the little ones, and they began screaming and crying. A young lady came out of a mansion. She was the sister of the little ones who had been playing storehouse. They pointed out the man who had stolen their goods and eaten thereof. The young lady was indignant and overtook the young man at the corner—he was not running away, but only making believe. The young lady in a quiet but firm manner informed the young man that he hadn't done anything funny. Seeing that his act had created more disturbance than he had intended, he apologized, paid double the amount of the value of the fruit, and walked on. Inside of 15 months he became the husband of the charming woman who had given him a lecture on the street for taking her sisters' fruit.

How a Charge of Shot Travels. Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. While standing within a few yards of the gun's muzzle at the time of the discharge, a person would be amazingly astonished were he only able to see the shot as they whizzing by. Experiments in instantaneous photography have proved to us that the shot not only spread out, comet-like, as they fly, but they string out one behind the other to a much greater distance than they spread. Thus, with a cylinder gun, when the first shot of a charge reaches a target that is 40 yards away, the last shot is lagging along 10 yards behind. Even with the choke-bore gun some of the shot will lag behind eight yards in 40. This accounts for the dew swath that is mown in a flock of ducks on which a charge of shot falls just right. About 5 per cent. only of the charge of shot arrive simultaneously at a target, but the balance of the first half of the charge is so close behind that a bird's muscles are not quick enough to get out of the way, although those who have watched sitting birds when shot at have often seen them start as if to fly when the leading shot whistled by them, only to drop dead as they were overtaken by the leaden hail.

Wealth in the United States. Recent estimates fix the wealth of the people of the United States at the present time at not far from $60,000,000,000, against $43,000,000,000 in 1880. That is an average of nearly $970 per head, as compared with $360 at the time of the last decennial census. The New York Bulletin thinks this estimate errs on the side of safety. The insurance record indicates a greater increase.

The addition of new buildings, with the new farms and improved lands and the new railroads, mines and manufacturing establishments, must have exceeded $18,000,000,000, if the estimate of the Census Bureau for ten years ago was correct. The railroad property alone has increased about $5,000,000,000. The new farms may, perhaps, be counted at half as much more, and the increase in the value of old farms by the vast extension of railroad facilities must be considerable, in spite of cheap crops. The value of other real estate has also been much enhanced, particularly in the villages of the West and South.

A Paradise For Mothers-in-Law. It is a custom among the Apaches for a man not to marry again until his wife has been dead a year and a half, though bad men, we are told would marry before that time. Their domestic arrangements are very peculiar, with a little background of poetic instinct that shows through all the hard, practical facts of the case the same old human nature that has gradually evolved the love which is stronger than death. To begin with, when a man marries he is supposed to belong no longer to himself, but to his wife's parents. He is not permitted to speak much in their presence, and dares not look upon his mother-in-law's face, shielding his eyes from it as from the sun. The gift they have bestowed upon him in their daughter is supposed to be so valuable that he not only pays for it liberally at the outset, but any service they may ask of him he is obliged to render as long as their child remains his wife. When she dies he cannot marry again without their consent.—Lend a Hand.

WITCHES IN THE SOUTH. Dire Have Believed to Have Been Caused by Them Among the 'Coon Dogs. In Wayne county, N. C., of which Goldsboro is the county seat, many of the inhabitants believe in witchcraft as firmly as they ever believed in States rights, and are as willing to sacrifice their lives on the altar of their superstition as they were to die on the plea of a mistaken patriotism. The Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, and other Southern States abound in so-called "witch doctors," who will cure your ails and kill the witch that is troubling you. Some of these doctors actually believe in the personal existence of witches and in their supernatural power, but many of them are frauds who make a living by imposing on the credulity of their neighbors. The negro race is naturally superstitious, but the poor white "crackers" are also ignorant, and for believing in spooks, spirits, hobgoblins, and other natural phenomena they can give the colored man cards, spades, and aces, and then beat him. The cracker is worse than the colored man because he fondly imagines that he is so much shrewder, and so he does not use what brains he has, nor does he try to learn anything. He has thousands of signs, omens, cures, and beliefs that are a continual source of annoyance to him, and perpetually keep him in a state of dread. The simplest incident is one of sinister and occult meaning to him, and he is ever in a tremor lest ill luck and misfortune overtake him. The evil influences manifest themselves in various ways, and each one seems worse than the other. His gun occasionally hangs fire and refuses to "go off" properly, and at times is so badly deranged that it cannot be discharged at all. At other times his favorite coon dog is bewitched by some evil-minded and envious person, and when the woe of the cracker is something painful to witness. If his gun were not bewitched, why could he not kill a squirrel with it? And why should his dog refuse to hunt coons, when to hunt coons was his business? These are questions that he can answer only by assuming that a witch has been influencing him and his property. He employs a witch doctor, to whom he pours out his tale of woe and yields up his hard earned cash. The doctor cares little for the woe, but the cash is grateful and exhilarating. The doctor is sanguine, and declares that he has a method of killing that is strictly original, copyrighted, and warranted to be effectual. In one case that I came across the doctor learned that an old woman living several miles away was the suspected party, and he commenced a campaign against her. He told the victim to go to her house some night and stretch a white cotton string around the building, and tie the ends together with a "weaver's knot." Then he was to walk around the house seven times each way, recite a given sentence in front of each door while making mysterious marks on it, and the cure would be completed. The directions were followed, and I am happy to say were effectual, as the next lunar resulted in the death of three coons. Another time a small powder was given, which must be swallowed by the witch without her knowing it. The old lady was invited to dinner, the powder placed in her cup of coffee, and the cure was as complete as could be desired.—Philadelphia Times.

The Best Havana Cigar. The leaf of the Vuelta Abajo district is much more valuable than the leaf of the Partido district, and by experts and connoisseurs the former is without possibility of dispute conceded the palm for flavor and aroma; yet fully 70 per cent of the cigars imported into the United States are made of Partido tobacco, and the national taste is undoubtedly for it. This is the more curious, as in buying cigars at retail it simply means that the bulk of our smokers pay the same price for the second grade of Havana tobacco as they would if they bought the first grade, the price of Partido cigars in Cuba being only a little more than half that charged for the same sized cigar from a Vuelta factory. The fine Vuelta cigars have a much larger sale in Europe than they have in the United States, and some of the special sizes sent to Russia command a price of $1,000 per thousand in Havana. These, if shipped to this country, would retail at the fabulous price of $2.25 or $2.50 for each cigar. Among the curious points not generally known regarding the Vuelta leaf is the peculiar fact that it is the only tobacco in the world, so far as I know, of which a cigar can be lit allowed to go out, remain out for several hours, and then be relit with no perceptible loss of fragrance or added rankness of flavor. It has been repeatedly asserted that this is the case with any fine cigar, but this is an error neither Partido, Remedios, Yara, Manilla, nor our domestic leaf can be lit a second time without suffering a decrease of quality and an obnoxious increase of flavor, which, to say the least of it, is not pleasant. The reason for this is to be found in the composition of the leaf, as a rule, and the Partido a brighter, glossier leaf and more elastic, these qualities making it more attractive to the eye, and being due to an increased proportion of gummy matter and juice.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Hindoo Trick! Kellar the magician, saw a trick at Calcutta which, he confesses baffled him. He was in a long, vacant room with four friends, and they were allowed to examine it thoroughly. There were four fakirs present. The party took seats on a bench midway of the room. The fakirs lighted a censor, from which exuded a sickly, sweetish smoke, filling the entire room. The fakirs then began a wild, whirling dance, all the while chanting and beating tom-toms, when suddenly the dancers appeared to increase in number until a full dozen were dancing and whirling about. These then decreased until but one dancer remained, an old man with flowing beard. What became of the other dancers Kellar can not tell, though he tried, by another search of the room to discover the secret.

Detroit Business University. The elegant new Gothic six-story building on Willow Ave., near Woodward Ave., is one of the most attractive and beautiful of the modern structures in Detroit, and well worth a visit by any one while in the city. It was designed and constructed especially to accommodate the large and increasing patronage of the society of Detroit Business University which now numbers over 1,000 annually, the result of over forty years of earnest and faithful work and thorough and practical methods of instruction. The interior is also elegantly fitted up with all modern improvements of Study Hall's Class and Dressing Rooms, ventilation and elevator for students' use. Those unable to visit this institution should send for illustrated catalogue containing photograph of this fine building, and a description of their unequalled course of Business Training. Address, Detroit Business University, 11 to 19 Willow Ave., Detroit, Mich.

ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA. It is now in our power to offer you the best bargain in the history of the book trade. Every person who has investigated the subject knows that the best—the one which has had the most limited sale by reason of its price.—The Encyclopedia Britannica, Ninth Edition. We have a limited number of sets to offer to the purchaser of the first volume at the nominal price of $1.50 per volume. (English edition costs $8 per vol.) The set is thoroughly well-bound in half-morocco, one of the most durable bindings we have ever sold—printed on good paper, in good type, and without abridgment or abbreviation. Contains all the illustrations, maps, plates, indexes and sub-indexes of the latest edition, and is the best American reprint having all the MARSHALL REFERENCES and contents of 1890. To enable you to become fully satisfied that this set is all we represent, we offer the first volume at the nominal price of sixty (60) cents, and this without any contract on your part to purchase the remaining volumes, which will be supplied in due order at the most favorable price offered. To secure it, the order must be given now. Express only required. Marshall Bros., booksellers 112 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

St. Peter (at the gate)—"Well, who are you?" Applicant—"I'm Dr. of Boston." "St. Peter—"Sorry we can't admit you, but there is absolutely nothing for you to do. You see, we are immortal."—Harvard Lampoon.

AN EXCEPTIONAL BANK.—There are many attractive banks in Detroit with which one's dealings may have proved thoroughly satisfactory, but the position occupied by the Wayne County Savings Bank and Safe Deposit Company is so eminently respectable, its records so long and honorable, that it invites and commands respect. Its officers are men of acknowledged superiority in State and financial affairs, its capital is ample for all its transactions and its building one of the finest structures in the city.

WHERE'S THE HAMMER? Nearly every family is supplied with a few tools for doing odd jobs about the house, but it is seldom that the tool wanted is at hand when needed. The well-known house of Chas. A. Swelinger & Co. show at the Exposition a full line of tool chests, both for mechanics' and house use, ranging in price from $5 to $200. Chests of all sizes and descriptions. Last year this firm made a general display of great variety, but their line is so extensive that it is impossible to do anything like justice to it in the limited space afforded; and they have concluded this year to show this one line only in its completeness. At their store, Nos. 96 to 110 Bates street, corner of Congress, will be found a great exposition of Hardware, Tools and Machinery; and they will gladly welcome any and their name is legion who are interested in the latest and most improved goods.

ABOUT SHOES. There is no article of apparel in which it is more easy for manufacturers to practice deception than in shoes. It sometimes puzzles experts to tell the quality or grade of leather when it is made in shoes. The bright "Dongola" kid that is now so popular can be bought at prices varying from 10 to 40 cents per square foot. The cheaper grades are tanned from tania kid, which is no better than shoeleather; then come; Patna stock, which will make a soft-felling leather of good lustre, but which will not stand service. The best grades are tanned from Curacao and Brazil skins, and they can be relied on for durability. In purchasing footwear, it is wise to select a shoe with a record, one that is warranted to give proper service. It is good policy to pay 25 or 50c per pair extra and know that no risk is being taken. What is more out of place than an ungainly, ill-fitting shoe on the foot of a well-dressed lady or gentleman? Then, again, there is an art in making a shoe properly so as to have it fit well and give a graceful appearance to the foot of the wearer. This requires great care and experience, and is gained only after years of experimenting; so it is well to know, when purchasing, that the shoe is made by an experienced manufacturer and that you are not the subject of an experiment.

THE MORAL OF ALL THIS is, wear the shoes of a well-established factory, where the product is guaranteed to give proper service. The firm of Hingree & Smith have been making warranted shoes for the past quarter of a century, and have a standing order of $1,000,000 for any quality, superior leather found in any shoe manufactory. Their product includes kid, goats, moccasins, boys and children's goods, and their long experience and great reputation is a guarantee that their shoes will prove good investments for the wearers. They are now making over 3,000 pairs daily, and this is the amount of goods produced by all other factories in the state combined.

John and wife arrived last Thursday England, where they have been past three months re- viewing the ... their birth. Mr. Murphy left ... pool thirty-six years ago the 16th day of last June and on this trip he landed in Liverpool the 16th day of June, a strange coincidence. Although it had been a long time since he saw his native land, he informed us that it still looked familiar. He also visited Ireland and Edenburg, Scotland, and the celebrated Holywood Palace. Mr. Murphy says while in Ed- enburg he saw a great many things that ed him very much, but the one inter- racted his attention was that most a- the furniture taken from the room of Mary, Queen of Scots.

He says that there has been a ... past summer a marked difference between the weather in England and this country, and that during the whole time he was there he did not see the sun to exceed three times in any one week. He says that he did not bring back any o Great Britton's property with him ex- cept two English lads, who are twin bro- thers, 16 years of age and orphans. They desired to become residents of America and Mr. Murphy concluded to bring them along. They are not relat- ves of his. He says he now intends to complete his vacation visiting the Detroit ex- position, after which he will resume work on his farm.

A Present to our Subscribers.

It is with pleasure that we announce to our many patrons that we have made arrangements with that wide-awake illustrated farm magazine, the American Farmer, published at Fort Wayne, Ind., and read by nearly 200,000 farmers, by which that great publication will be mailed direct, free, to the address of any of our subscribers who will come in and pay up all arrears on subscription and one year in advance from date, and to any new subscriber who will pay one year in advance. This is a grand opportunity to obtain a first-class farm journal free. The American Farmer is a large 16-page journal, of national circulation, which ranks among the leading agricultural papers. It treats the question of economy in agriculture and the rights and privileges of that vast body of citizens—American Farmers—whose industry is the basis of all material and national prosperity. Its highest purpose is the elevation and ennobling of Agriculture through the higher and broader education of men and women engaged in its pursuits. The regular subscription price of the American Farmer is $1.00 per year. It costs you nothing. From any one number idens can be obtained that will be worth thrice the sub- scription price to you or members of your household, yet you get it free. Call and see sample copy.
