Prentice Perfect Eye-Muscle Test.

THIS is the only system for testing eye muscles that detects and develops Hidden Eye Strain. The relative power of the eye muscles to overcome or accommodate for various degrees of prism can never be relied on. In 100 times the shortest will accommodate for relatively less instead of more degrees of prism than the normal average. The most popular method of testing for muscular irregularity has been the following: To test the superior and inferior muscles, horizontal double vision, or diplopia, is made by holding before one eye a prism of sufficient power base to the nose. If the two apparent images are on a perfect horizontal level, no deviation in the muscles is apparent. To test the internal and external muscles, vertical double vision (diplopia) is created by holding before one eye about a five degree prism base up or down, and if one image is exactly vertically above the other, no deviating tendency is found in the external and internal muscles. Now the fact is that latent or hidden muscular defects of the most aggravating type will be entirely undiscovered by any of the above tests, for the following reason, there is a strong physiological tendency to horizontalize, and a strong physiological tendency to verticalize, these physiological dispositions are so strong that they will conceal many degrees of deviating tendency. The Prentice method temporarily destroys both of these physiological tendencies and will detect the most important irregularities in 90 per cent of the cases where the above and all old methods entirely fail.

For Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Hay Fever, Headache, Debility, Rheumatism, Neuralgia.

AND ALL CHRONIC AND NERVOUS DISORDERS.

It has been in use for more than twenty years; thousands of patients have been treated and over one thousand physicians have used it and recommend it—a very significant fact.
It is agreeable. There is no nauseous taste, no after-taste, no sickening smell.
"Compound Oxygen—Its Mode of Action and Results," is the title of a book of 200 pages, published by Drs. Starkey and Paalen, which gives to all inquirers full information as to this remarkable curative agent, and a record of surprising cures in a wide range of chronic cases—many of them after being abandoned to die by other physicians. Will be mailed free to any address on application.

She leaves three children grown to manhood and womanhood. Mrs. Allison was a widow, and was beloved by all who know her.
New Troy, Barrien county, possesses some very level-headed young men. They have figured it out that any young lady who can successfully handle school urelains will make a capital mistress of a home, and so three of the teachers who have been at the head of the school have been married. The school board, in despair, is advertising for a male teacher.—[Detroit Journal.]

The members of the G. A. R., their wives, daughters and others partook of an excellent supper, prepared by the ladies of the Women's Relief Corps, in the Deming building Wednesday night. The band enlivened the occasion by their presence. An installation of officers of the G. A. R., took place in their lodge rooms immediately after the supper.

Superintendent T. A. Brushens and his crew of men of the Wrought Iron Steel Range Company, take their departure this week for other fields. This move is made, we understand, because they have disposed of their stock of ranges and the territory been narrowed down in this part of the state by other divisions of men to the north and west of here, which rendered it necessary for this division to seek new fields. Their conduct during six weeks stay here has, as far as we know, been that of gentlemen. We are informed that another division will move here shortly and finish the canvass of this locality. Supt. Brushens has hired space in the EXTRANEUSE for next week, wherein will be published portions of the speeches made by the Mayor of St. Louis and the Governor of Mo., at the annual banquet of this company recently held at St. Louis.

The review of reviews for January contains the portraits of some fifty or sixty of the notabilities of the day. General Johnston and Governor Nicholls of Louisiana, Secretary Foster, Assistant Secretary Wharton, the late Dom Pedro, Fonseca of Brazil, Mr. Jackson the new Irish secretary, Mr. Redmond the Parulite leader, Mr. Flavin of Cork, Archbishop Walsh of Dublin, Prince George of Wales, five governors of Australian states, the late Lord Lytton, the late Rev. Oscar McCulloch, the late William B. Florence, Governor Alvin P. Hovey, Senator Plumb, Hon. S. B. Elkins, Mr. Gillam of Judge, the Czar and Czarina of Russia, with various other Russian portraits; Mr. Elbridge Gerry or New York, Mr. Benjamin Vaughn of London, Mark Twain, Frederick Harrison, Thomas Nelson Page, the late Mr. Velhaug the distinguished German editor, and Lord Roseberry, the rising liberal statesman of England are among the people whose faces are presented in this number.

The "Keystone" a jeweler's and Optician's journal published in Philadelphia has the following to say of our jeweler and optician, J. F. Hendrick: "J. F. Hendrick, of Cass City, Mich., recently purchased a Johnston trial set. He has mastered the science of optics most thoroughly, and has done a paying business in that line. Mr. Hendrick says he has sold more gold spectacles since operating the trial set in the past four months, than all of his previous business career put together. He tells of a young minister who came to have a pair of old, cheap, spherical spectacles repaired. He upbraided him for using snob glasses, and finally induced him to be fitted properly. The correction was a cylinder of high power. Four months after, the young divine made the statement that the glasses had secured him a better circuit, with a third more salary, and has made him anew physically. Go on Mr. Hendrick in the good work of relieving some of the aches and burdens of your fellow-men."

Myron Faucher is again in the high school.
Our book-keeping class numbers about thirty.
More attention to tardiness parents, and see to it that your children are in school every day, also.
We expect to have a class recite before school in the morning, in the near future, February 22nd.
A change of program in the lyceum Friday night.
Some good biographies are being given in our U. S. History class.
Miss Livingston entered the high school Monday.
Supplementary reading has been ordered for the second and third grades.
Students think it a little hard when they have to go home for an excuse but remember, students, that when you are absent or tardy you are to present your excuse the next time you enter school.
Those present at the lyceum last Friday night found it a little cold. We extend a cordial invitation to all to attend and will see that the room is sufficiently warmed hereafter.
Mr. A. A. McKenzie has the thanks of teachers and pupils for his kindness in running the snow plow to the school building. It seems as if there should be some arrangement made whereby the walks would be kept cleared.

We are in receipt of a copy of The Exposition Graphic, a new quarterly issued by the Graphic Company of Chicago, devoted to the World's Columbian Exposition. Portraits of the principal officers of the commission and local directory, scenes of the work of construction in progress at Jackson Park, magnificent views of all the great buildings of the exposition, engravings showing the principal buildings of Chicago and the other leading cities of the Union, fine full page portraits of President Harrison and Secretary Blaine, engraved by Lautenschlager, and an imposing triplepage-bird's-eye view of the Exposition grounds and buildings from designs by the Bureau of Construction, are some of the more prominent features of this truly ambitious work. If the succeeding issues shall correspond in excellence with the initial number, The Exposition Graphic will become one of the recognized features of the great international event. It is now on sale at all the principal newsstands of the country at 50 cents a copy.

THE "SINGING SANDS."

My sister, when you read to me
Your song of "Singing Sands," Of tender voices, said to be Heard on some far-off strand,

AN EGYPTIAN INCIDENT.

Forward on the deck, face downward or curled up in all sorts of odd positions, lie the crew, a motley collection of Arabs, Nubians and Osmanlis. There is nothing stirring. The mark of the desert is on all around. Even the sun, now nearly on a level with the Nubian mountains and the ugly, ill-conditioned steeds of the camel corps moved forward with ungainly step. The wells of Aboo Klein are within sight and Sir Herbert Stewart, who marched nine days ago with 1,500 picked men across the desert to reach the Nile and thence to press on to Khartoum, feels that his mission will be successful and that Gordon will be speedily relieved.

So does Capt. Jack MacPherson of the Egyptian army, attached for the present to the camelry, as he sails along on one of the ships of the desert.
He looks forward to the rocky defile by which the route lies, and sees fluttering above a lodge an Arab banner.
For an instant he looks at it through his field glass and then rides in haste back along the ranks. A word in Sir Herbert's ear. The troops are halted and a zereba is in process of formation when with beating of war drums and discordant yells that remain unanswered—for the throats of the men are too parched and thirsty to hurrah
—a great body of Arabs starts from the underwood around the entrance to the defile, and headed by many standard-bearers, rushes in upon the British square.

With the utmost coolness (for he has been through many such scenes) Capt.
MacPherson, after the first rush, picks up the rifle of a dead soldier, unclasp-ing his cartridge belt and plugs away steadily at the night-shirt brigade, as the soldiers have nicknamed the Arabs from their long white robes.

Of all the oncoming hundreds he sees only two men—one the standard-bearer and beside him a young fellow, wonderfully light of skin for an Arab,
and with a cap on his head instead of the usual tangled head-dress of greased hair worn by the dervishes.

Needing as the Arabs come within fifty yards of the square he takes celiberate aim. A flash, and at the same instant the standard-bearer falls prone to the earth. The fair-faced Arab seizes the banner and rushes to the front. Another shot and he, too, falls.
In a voice that rings above the din of the battle MacPherson gives the order to fire, and the Arabs, met by a volley at such a range, stagger, and through the smoke are seen to fall back a few paces. Instantly MacPherson rushes out from the square, and before his comrades or the enemy have time to interfere he is again in the midst of his comrades, trembling and pale, but bearing in his arms the young Arab,
who still grasps the banner he plucked from the dead leader's hand.

The Arabs mightily thinned in that last brush, fall away. The fight is over and the men, crowded round Mc-Pherson, who is bathing the wounded Arab's thigh where his bullet entered, ask what it all means.

Roberts, who is under the impression that the banner was the prize coveted by MacPherson and that his care for the Arab is an after-thought, remarks that the game was hardly worth the candle. But MacPherson, looking up for a moment, says, pointing to the wounded Arab:

"My brother."
Instantly the men, most of whom have heard the story of the colonel's beratement, crowd around the stretcher.
Sure enough the resemblance cannot be disputed.

"See," says MacPherson becoming less constrained as the intense strain of the last few minutes is relaxed, "I can trace on the back of his right hand the outlines of an anchor. I remember when he put it on he was a very small cub. His hand looked as if it was poisoned and he came to me and got me to scrape most of the ink out again. That's why the mark is so faint. Roberts, send a man out there to bring in the big fellow I shot. That was Aboo, and I think you will find a bullet in his head."

The last words are spoken faintly and MacPherson falls back into the arms of a soldier. Where he stood there is a pool of blood and on examination it is found that he, too, has been wounded in the thigh.

They were an odd-looking pair, the brothers, as they walked together in the garden of the army hospital at Cairo. It was fortunate that Jack knew Arabic, for his long-lost brother had to learn English over again, having heard never a word of his mother tongue from the night when Aboo, after gagging him, tumbled him into the boat lying astern of the dahabeah until his brother's bullet brought him back to civilization. Of his wanderings he could tell little except that his captor and he had been wayfarers for years in the Soudan and along the desert highways until the insurrection broke out when he was pressed into the Mahdi's service, Aboo being a volunteer. After a while, he told his brother, he became rather fond of fighting.

"Impm!" said the colonel, as his elder son translated these remarks,
"there is some of the MacPherson in him yet, then." He nodded paternally toward Bob, and then, turning to Jack, said tenderly: "God bless you, my boy, for bringing back my Benjamin even with a bullet!"—To-

Nothing Like Leather.
This at least is said to be the opinion of the porcupine, which regards a good square meal of leather as a true luxury. It will destroy a set of harness in a night, and should a fisherman be so thoughtless as to leave his water-soaked boots out of doors to dry, he may think himself fortunate if they are not chewed to pieces by the sharp teeth of the porcupine.
Once a blacksmith's shop was entered during the night by one of these animals, and next morning he found that the creature had eaten up half the bellows. Though that seems to be an uncommonly hearty meal, the porcupine had sense enough not to endanger its quill-covered skin by lingering too long over the feast so unwittingly supplied by the village blacksmith.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Winter Night,

Found in a Snow-Drift.

CHAPTER VIII. CONTINUED.

Dorothy saw only the love-light in his eyes, the smile of welcome on his lips, as he knelt down and put his arms about her,
saying:

"Oh, my beautiful love, how I have longed for you! Darling, are you better? You are white as the snowdrifts under your chin, and your lips look too pale to give me a caress. I will kiss them red again."

"Put your arms about my neck, dear; you need comfort too, for my heart is torn with anxiety, for, Dora darling, I cannot find little Ally."

"Ah, but you will, darling! I shall soon be strong and well again, and we will go out in the world to look for her together; my woman's wit shall help you, and we will wander the wild world over till we find our little treasure. Take comfort, dear heart, she will be well cared for and kindly treated, for she is so sweet and lovable no one could harm her."

"Do you know who stole her, darling?"
"No; who was it? She was very wicked, the woman who tore her from me that horrible night. Oh, Pierce, what did she do you such a cruel wrong—why did she steal her from me?"

"When you are well enough to hear my history, dear, you will understand and pity me. Now you must think of nothing but getting well."

"No one has discovered you, dear, that is good tidings! You could not bear worry now, my poor pale snowdrift."

The dusk came upon them as they sat in the bright firelight, chatting happily.
Pierce held Dorothy's hand, and he looked into her face, listening to her voice in a lull of spirits very pleasant after the rushing life he had led of late.

The next day was dull and stormy, and after luncheon Dorothy was taken very tenderly into the cosy sitting-room that led from the hall.

Mrs. Steel had gone home to see her youngsters, so the lovers were alone, and,
love-like, said many sweet things to each other.

Pierce put off the unhappy recital of his history.

"I will wait till she has had time to rest and recover herself," he thought as he looked down lovingly upon the little recumbent figure on the pretty crimson satin couch.

The starry eyes looked up fondly at him,
the little hands clasped over his arm, were white as the snow-flakes that fell noiselessly outside.

All inside was warm and cosy, and outside was chill and dull.

Pierce, after propping Dorothy up with pillows, bent over her and kissed her fair face, saying:

"How nice it is to be alone together, Dora, darling! I am afraid lovers are very selfish, they want to shut all the world out from even the sight of their happiness. You feel stronger to-day, don't you? I can see just a faint rose-glow on your cheek like the first flush of dawn in the sky. Confound it, who is that?"

This last remark was called forth by a loud impatient knocking at the hall door.

From the sitting-room they could see a carriage covered with snow, two steaming horses and a coachman in a fur cape.

"I will be back directly, dear. Try to get a doze."

Pierce paused on the threshold, the keen air flew past him from the open door, fanning Dorothy's cheek, and making the fire-flames leap and dance.

A well-known voice made the blood curdle
in Dorothy's veins, a smooth clear voice
saying:

"I am Horace Middleton, Mr. Penfold, and I have come to reclaim something which you have of mine."

own base heart; you insult yourself more than you do me. Your ward was driven from home by your own sin; your own conscience is the best accuser; I see by your coward's eyes you know I speak the truth.
If you are sensible you will go away in silence, and leave your ward where she is."

"I am not quite an idiot, Mr. Penfold.
You are a young man, and may like to play the part of a Don Juan. I must protect my ward from such unfair influence. Where is she? I insist upon seeing her. She has given me trouble enough, I must assert my authority. You know of course that she is under age?"

"I know that if she were of age you would not rule a moment at Castle Gover. You cannot see her; she has been very ill, and is in no fit state to see anyone. She gave me a message, which was that she will not enter Castle Gover while you are there."

"Her health is only a paltry excuse; she must and shall return if I have to take her away by force."

"You would have to lift her over my dead body if you carried her away by force."

"Sir, I have no time to bandy words with you. Let me see my ward at once. I have authority, and evidently must exert it."

"I tell you she is ill—totally unfit to be bothered by you. She is not a child, and she stays here at her own desire."

"I have only your bare word for that."

The door opened slowly and Dorothy ever-seen before. She toyed with the jeweled cross at her neck with the hand that was adorned by her father's masonic ring.

The two men looked at her as though she was a being from another world.

Pierce said entreatingly:
"For God's sake, go to your room, Dorothy, and leave me to deal with this man alone!"

"I will go, Pierce, when I have told him that I stay here of my own free will. You saved me from being frozen to death; my life, my love, are yours. I am your promised wife, by that dear bond I beg you to protect me from that man's misbegotten power.
He has tried to make me a slave to my sex, he has betrayed every tie of truth, and friendship."

"To save myself from worse than death I left my home to wander away I knew not whither, until you found me, half-dead in the snow-drift, when he made me desperate by the wicked wrong he would have wrought had I been a weaker woman."

Dorothy looked hardly earthly, as she stood like an accusing angel before the man her dead mother had counted as a king among his fellows, and his bold eyes drooped beneath the scornful fire of hers. His voice was hoarse as he hissed:

"You must come home with me; that man has a wife already."

"It is false! Oh, Pierce, my darling, tell him it is false," she cried in agonised accents as she sank upon her knees before him.

Pierce took her hand kindly, and, assisting her to rise, said:

"My dearest, I had a wife, but the law has freed me from her for ever, or I should not have dared to sue for this dear hand. Stand up, my love, and keep a brave heart, no one shall harm you."

"But yourself, I suppose, sir. Don't listen to him, Dorothy, he is telling an untruth. I saw his wife but a few days ago."

"You saw my wife, as you choose to call her—you saw Alison Lee? For the love of mercy tell me quickly, had she my little child with her? Where is she?"

Horace Middleton laughed unpleasantly, while Dorothy bent forward, her lips apart, her hands clasped, as though to add to the father's entreaty.

"I know nothing of the child. The mother is a fine woman, with plenty of spirit in her. She told me where to find my trunk ward. Come, Dorothy, be quick and sensible; the carriage is outside, put on your cloak and come. I have no time to spare."

"I will not come—wild horses should not drag me back to the awful fate you wish to doom me to."

"You would rather stay as this man's mistress, since you cannot be his wife. But I will not allow you to drag that name upon me, and to give honor into the dust. Come, I say; if you will not I shall carry you."

"Lay not a finger on her, if you value your life, and beg her pardon on your knees for the insult you have offered her before me. Down, I say, or I will force you, you cowardly liar!"

injurious to her health, I should have compelled Miss Gower to accompany me; as it is I shall send for her in the course of a few days, and if she still refuses to come, I must find means to ensure my authority being respected. Young girls cannot be allowed to leave home and position, and forfeit the eir good names just for a whim; such caprices are insufferable."

With a great show of dignity Horace Middleton went away, while Dr. Steel and Pierce looked at each other and smiled.

CHAPTER XI.
"YOU had better come to me at once, dear," said Mrs. Steel when she heard of the scene there had been in her absence.

Dorothy lay, white and weary, on her couch. Pierce had been bathing her forehead with some sweet essence that made the room smell like a flower-garden.

The scene had upset her, and following it came Pierce's entreaty for an early marriage.

He had told her his history in a few words.
While at Oxford he fell in love with a girl who was at a small boarding-school, and, led away by boyish ardor, married her, disregarding the fact that she was but a beautiful gipsy, whom her ambitious parents wished to make a fine lady.

She behaved pretty well the first year,
then a boy was born, whom she simply worshipped. He died in a childish illness, and instead of being chastened by grief, she seemed to be made desperate.

She sought excitement far and near, visited her own people, and to Pierce's annoyance, spent most of her time with them when they brought their circus to Cardiff.

One member of the company was a handsome athlete, a man of splendid physique and the brain of a brute.

Alison was cautioned against encouraging his attentions, but she disregarded all advice, and her foolish parents indulged her in this as in every other whim.

It ended in her husband hearing of the flirtation, and forbidding her to hold any intercourse with her father or any member of his company.

After this, Pierce met his wife and her lover in the Sophia Gardens, and horsewhipped the handsome athlete and ordered his wife home, where there was an awful scene, which was followed by many days of estrangement and misery.

When the circus went away, Mrs. Penfold was missing.

She had cast aside her fetters, and flown away free to the roving life she loved.

She left her baby behind without regret.
Her father, a fierce-tempered old fellow, fancied his girl had been badly used by her husband, so he protected her from the wronged man's just anger, and excused her sin.

He would have pardoned anything for the pleasure of keeping his handsome girl with
him.

This, of course, is a bare outline of much domestic misery that Dorothy understood and sympathized with in all the tenderness of her heart.

"Then came the history of divorce."

"You remember my coming home on New Year's Eve, dearest, full of happy relief?
Well, that day saw the last of all trouble connected with that dark page in my history. I was free."

"I had settled with my lawyers about the alimony it was my wish to make her, so that she should have no excuse for sin. I wanted to wash my hands of all connected with her, and begin afresh with the new year, new aims, new hopes."

"Now, knowing all, can you love me and be happy as my wife?"

"I can love you all my life, dearest, but do you think it can be right to marry a man whose wife is still alive? That is not living together in holy wedlock as long as both shall live. Can anyone, in sight of God, be justified in taking another woman till his wife is dead?"

"Why, certainly, if she takes another man.
Pray, my pet, do not let any foolish scruple of fancied honor come between us.
Is your little head more sure in judgment than the laws of our land? Justice has pronounced me free to wed afresh, and I am sure God did not intend a woman's sin should keep a man lonely all his life. Man was not made to live alone. Think how empty my life is, sweetheart, and make it replete with joy. Say you will be my wife soon, as you promised. Think of little Ally, and your wish to help me find her. Surely I am not to wander away alone. I should be so miserable. Speak to Mrs. Steel, she is a good, pure woman; she will tell you her opinion, and I am sure she will be on my side."

Dorothy promised to do so, and heard quite a motherly homily from the sensible little soul, who, as Pierce had surmised, was all on his side.

Three Little Words.
With the three little words, "why," "how"
and "what," it is quite possible for some blockhead to puzzle a philosopher. "Why" does the magnetic needle point always to the north?
"How was the universe made?" "What is light?" Here are three questions that any fool may ask, yet that all the wisdom in the world can not answer.
There are hundreds of other queries as simple and as likely to suggest themselves to the inquisitive, to which science can make no satisfactory reply.

Deafness Can't be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever;
nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case

WHERE THE FARMERS MAKE MONEY.

Farming on poor land or in localities where drought, hailstorms or other climatic disturbances are prevalent does not pay. A good year does not compensate for the several bad ones to which it is neighbor. It has now been clearly demonstrated that for wheat, oats, barley, and live stock the successful farmers are those who have gone north and west. Their wheat yields is heavier, their cattle of larger size and better condition than any raised by their southern friends. Not only is this so in the United States, but our Canadian cousins find themselves with unexpected wealth in their new provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, Assinboia and Saskatchewan. Their crop of 1891 has surpassed the figures given even by the boomsters. Manitoba is sought out by the eastern Canadians as the Israelites sought for the promised land, but with more expedition and a better spirit, and they are spreading into and taking possession of the equally fertile prairies and park lands of the territories beyond, which, with great enterprise, they have gridironed with railways. The New York Sun, in an article on the Canadian provinces west of the Red River, said that people from those parts smiled at the stunted grain in the more eastern districts of the continent. Said the Sun: "Men who have seen many seasons of Minnesota wheat-raising said in Manitoba last week that they had never looked upon such wheat-fields before," and the St. Paul Journal speaks of that country as "The future granary of the world, which, with beckoning fingers, invites the home-hungry people of the congested east to its hospitable and rich domain."

had acted as manager of a similar enterprise for Colonel Carroll, on Poplar island, in the Chesapeake bay.

The Slaughter of Deer.

Game Warden Taylor arrived in Denver recently from the lower country, where he has been kept busy driving the Indians out of that section. Mr. Taylor reports that the Utes have been playing havoc with the game, slaughtering wherever they could. He states that from the Iron Springs divide to Yellow creek it is impossible to travel a hundred yards without finding the bodies of deer lying around, and in most cases nothing but the hides and brains have been taken, the brains being used by the Indians in the process of tanning. On Blue mountain and in the Lily park sections the rotting carcasses can be seen, while on Snake river they are so thick as to absolutely poison the air. Warden Taylor estimates that since the deer began to travel down the Utes have killed between five and six thousand of them, and what makes matters worse, the major portion of them are does and fawns, the bucks always remaining in the upper country till later in the season. If this continues the deer will become extinct with the buffalo.

Refined Luxury.

Ladies, it is said, have long worn diamond buckles on their garters. Now the refinement of luxury is carried a step further, and precious stones are lavished on linen underwear. Monograms set with small diamonds are prepared, to which tiny rivets are attached, and these may be placed on any garment, and even on a pocket handkerchief. It is usual to provide for this costly innovation by having the monogram also embroidered on the material, little eyelet holes for the rivets being worked in the design so that the diamond letters have a firm base. Small flowers are made in the same way for ladies who prefer an emblem to a monogram.

While it may be necessary to the comfort of some to know that their underclothing is studded with valuable jewels, there are those, and it may be said with safety that they are in the majority, who prefer to wear their jewelry over their clothing. There are still others who are glad of the clothing.

A Cruel Bondage.

There are more bondages than the bondage of sin. Take the conformist, the person who is afraid to make a single step in life without reference to a manual of correct behavior; the person who is always tormenting himself with the question: "What will people say?" No old African slave in dread of the lash, writes "Amber," in the Chicago Herald, was ever under crueler bondage than he. What do you suppose it will matter to you or to me, a dozen years from now, what people said about this or that we did that was off the regulation cut? Gossip is the honey that stings the hives of human bees, but it is ephemeral stuff—it doesn't last over one season.

LADIES who want white hair should go to and live awhile in New Mexico or Colorado. According to a recent letter from that region a residence in either will bleach the hair, and many a black-haired man who has gone out there to settle comes back in three or four years with a poll as white as snow. Some say it is the altitude, though what an altitude of five thousand or six thousand feet has to do with a man's hair is a mystery. A more reasonable explanation is the alkali. The alkali dust gets in the hair, and must be washed out with the alkali water, and the hair is thus speedily bleached.

The "nerve tonic" fad has had a multitude of disciples during the past summer. There are, says the New York Tribune, large numbers of otherwise sensible people who drink a quart or so a week of some concoction which is warranted to "tone up" the nerves in a more or less magical way, and who will solemnly assure you that the said concoction has saved them from imbecility. And yet these so-called "nerve tonics" are simply water or syrup, colored and flavored with some cheap and harmless substance. They have about as much effect on the nerves as they would have on a broken arm.

DOLLAR worship is pretty generally regarded as a sin in America, but even those who frown most darkly on the greed for gold are nothing loth to join in the scramble when the coin is flying about. Charles Dickens chuckled at what is often termed our national sin, yet while here in this country it was noticed that the dollar that rolled in this direction was stopped with alacrity, and it is said that some hundreds of thousands of them departed with him when he went back home to merry England.

The city of New York is said to have quite a number of Armenians among its people. They are, as a rule, small traders and merchants, and have the name of being even keener and shrewder traders than the Jews. One of the Rothschilds once said of this people: "Shut up all the Jews with all the Armenians in an exchange, and in less than a day all the Jews' wealth will have passed into Armenian hands."

WOMEN have not monopolized quite all the vanity that escaped with the other ills from Pandora's casket. A gut-edged darling in New York city keeps a private tailor to whom he pays a large salary to cut out suits of clothes from the dandy's own designs, which he studies out and produces in water-colors.

The Extension of the M. C. R'y.

From the Caro Democrat: The projectors of the Sebawaing coal mines, who have been putting money into the enterprise for the past two years with but little or no return for the "scrip" thus invested, are about to fully realize the expectations of their fondest dreams. The first coal taken from the coal fields through the shaft of the Sebawaing coal company and tested on the M. C. and P. M. R'y., was not of an extra quality and did not prove entirely satisfactory. It contained considerable quantities of sulphur and seemed to melt and clog the grates of furnaces when used for a quick fire. After expending thousands of dollars on this shaft, the Sebawaing Coal Company found that they were at the highest point of the vein of coal and in working the mine found this made it necessary to change the shaft and a place was selected at a lower point nearly a half-mile south and west of the old shaft. Here a new shaft has been placed, and coal of a superior quality secured. Both the Saginaw Bay and the Sebawaing coal companies are now mining a quality of coal equal, if not better, for steaming qualities than the Hocking Valley product. Recent trials at Bay City have demonstrated the fact that the present out-put of coal is fully fifty percent better than first mined. This new condition of affairs is not only encouraging to the owners of the mines, who have been so persistent in their endeavor to place the mine on paying basis, but the different railroads are already looking up some route to reach the coal fields. A route has been surveyed from Bay City to Sebawaing, and will unquestionably be built the coming spring either by the F. & P. M. R'y. Co., or a local company. The Michigan Central has had this matter under consideration for some time, and will build a branch to the coal field in the early spring. A prominent citizen of this place who is 'in' with the officials of the M. C. R'y. informs us that another test of the Sebawaing coal will be made and if satisfactory, arrangements will at once be made for the extension of the Caro Branch to the coal fields. The road will be built on a direct line to the coal fields and will pass through Columbia, and not via of Unionville, as has been rumored.

Merit wins. We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell so well as that has given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. For sale by Fritz Bros.' Druggists.

Physicians Outdone. My wife has been suffering with female trouble of the severest kind for over three years. I have paid twenty-five dollars during the last three months, and she had no relief. She had doctored continually with the best of physicians. I bought three bottles each of Dullman's Great Female Uterine Tonic and Dullman's Great German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure, and can say that she is entirely cured. W. H. BROWLEY, sworn to before me on this 23rd day of June, 1890. JOHN C. DELLMAN, Flint Mich. Notary Public, Genesee Co., $1 a bottle. For sale by Fritz Bros.'

A Safe Investment. Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy from our advertised list a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, New Life Pills, or Electric Bitters, and bring relief in every case. When used for any affection of Throat, Lung or Chest, such as Consumption, Inflammation of Lung, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping Cough, etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. Trial bottle free at Fritz Bros.' Druggists.

Don't Get Imposed Upon. Is a good motto to follow in buying a medicine as well as in every thing else. The best test of satisfaction is given and by the name, remarkable results has accomplished Dullman's Great German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure has proven itself unequalled for building up and cleansing your system and for all diseases arising from impure blood. Do not experiment with cheap imitations. It is safe and reliable. If you are told it is so, or be sure you get Dullman's. All druggists keep it. $1 a bottle. For sale by Fritz Bros.'

Consumption Cured. An old physician, first from practice, having had success in his hands in an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, through the Eastern States. It is safe and reliable. If you are told it is so, or be sure you get Dullman's. All druggists keep it. $1 a bottle. For sale by Fritz Bros.'

Cook's Cotton Root Compound. A recent discovery by an old physician, successfully used for many years. It is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Details of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for Cook's Cotton Root Compound, take no substitute, or enclose $1 and 5 cents in postage in letter, and we will send sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 cts. Address: BOND & CO. COMPANY, No. 3, Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich. Sold in Cass City by Fritz Bros. A. W. A Matter of Honor.

Trump—Here's twenty-five cents. I want to pay it to you for that free lunch, and then you throw in five glasses of beer. See?

Bar-Tender—Twenty-five cents will buy the beer. The lunch is free, you know.

"I don't want 'er that way. I want to pay a quarter for the lunch and get the beer free. See?"

"It's all one either way. What difference does it make?"

"It's a matter of personal honor, sir. I promised the old lady not to give me the quarter that I'd spend it for something to eat. See?"—N. Y. Weekly.

A Domestic Scene.

Wife—Harry, will you bring me up some disinfectant this evening when you come home?

Husband (with unquestioned obedience)—How much, dear?

Wife—About a car-load, Harry. I want to disinfect those cigars you are smoking lately.—Detroit Free Press.

At the Amateur Performance. Miss Hawkins—I have enjoyed your play very much, Mr. Scribbler.

The Amateur Author—Thank you, Miss Hawkins. Praise from you is worth striving for.

Miss Hawkins—Oh! not at all, Mr. Scribbler. My judgment is invariably bad.—Harper's Bazar.

Procreation.

"Did yer father lick yer, Jimmie?"

"Yep."

"Did yer put the jography in yer pants?"

"Yep."

"Then what yer cryin' fur?"

"Ah—h—h—I didn't have time to get me pants on.—Boo-lal!"—Puck.

Sugar is Cheap.

"These jokes about grocers putting sand in sugar make me weary," observed Mr. Peck as he weighed out ten pounds.

"The truth hurts, does it?"

"There's no truth in it. Sand's too expensive to waste in that kind of style."—Judge.

Something Omitted.

Mrs. Tomdick (grumbling)—Mrs. Ho-

Not Afraid of the Comparison.

"I never saw anything equal to Ethel's conceit; she actually thinks she is a great deal prettier than I am!"

"She didn't tell you so, did she?"

"Yes; that is, she asked me to be her bridesmaid."—Life.

Council Proceedings.

COMMON COUNCIL ROOMS.

Cass City, Mich., Jan. 15, 1892.

Regular meeting called to order by the President, W. I. Frost.

Present—Trustees Landon, Marr, Brotherton and Bigelow.

Absent—Striffler and Stevenson.

The following bills were read and referred to committee on claims and accounts.

Wm. Meredith labor on crosswalks..... $3.75

Wm. Beatty carrying for engine..... 4.00

Scott Brotherton, laying plank..... 24

Wm. Jeffrey, salary as auditor..... 12.50

Frank Beir, 14 day labor on street..... 1.87

The above bills were recommended by committee on claims and accounts.

Trustee Landon moved that they be allowed as recommended and orders drawn on treasurer for same. Carried.

Trustee Marr moved that the bid of Homer Frost to build fire in engine house at $1.00 per week be accepted. Carried.

Trustee Marr moved that the clerk be instructed to purchase a return tax book. Carried.

Trustee Landon moved that the clerk be instructed to buy 5 cords of green and 5 cords of dry wood. Carried.

On motion council adjourned.

W. I. Frost, President.

O. K. JAMES, Clerk.

He Didn't Negotiate.

"What do you mean by coming around here now?" said the woman to the tramp who appeared at the kitchen door. "You haven't half finished that pile of wood I gave you to split."

"I know it, ma'am," was the reply; "but I came to see if you wouldn't cash these few chips in advance."—Judge.

Spoons.

Harry—I suppose you know that Jessie was born with a silver spoon in her mouth?

Jack—Yes; and I suspect that isn't the worst of it.

Harry—What do you suspect?

Jack—That it was an ice cream spoon.—Puck.

Effect and Cause.

Mrs. Trotter—Oh, Henry, do throw away that cigar. It is something awful. (After a pause.) Do you know that Mrs. Barlow saves money for her husband by buying his cigars?

Trotter (grimly)—I thought as much—this is a cigar that Barlow gave me.—Life.

SOCIETY, my friend, is a wall of very strong masonry, as it now stands; it may be sapped in the course of a thousand years, but stormed in a day no!

WHAT becomes of all the pennies? It seems to be with them very much as it is with pins—nobody knows where or how they disappear.

Out of the supreme miracle by which the outcasts of the earth had the truth proclaimed to them are coming other miracles too great for any man's comprehension.

The three great lumber states are now eating up their forests at a rate which will soon kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

THERE is no country on earth that excels the United States in exalting the dignity of labor.

The statistics of crime in England, Wales and the United States reveal a difference damaging to us, and suggest that the government—the state—should give better attention to this matter.

ONE may get an idea of the number of pennies lost from the history of the old half cents of fifty and sixty years ago. Where are they now?

UNFORTUNATELY when the law shall have done all that it can in restraining the use of dynamite, the danger will still be great, so far as the murderous crank is concerned.

THE PRIDE OF THE NEW AMERICAN NAVY.

Something About a War-Ship That Will Defend the Honor of the American People—A Triumph of Mechanical Skill.

The big armored cruiser, New York, which was launched recently at the Camp ship-yard in Philadelphia, is the most powerful in the navy of the United States.

The new vessel has been designed and constructed with the view of engaging with the most powerful vessels of her type abroad.

IN LA BELLE FRANCE.

SOME OF THE PICTURES WHICH BELIE THE ADJECTIVE.

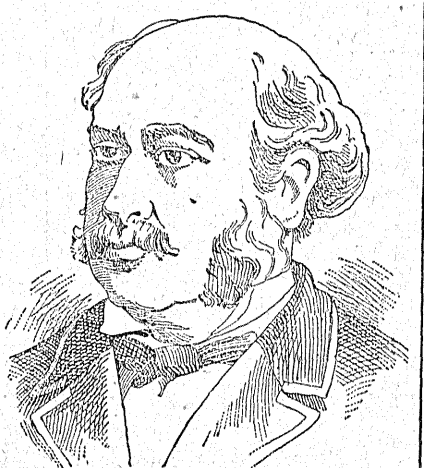

Jules Simon's Great Work of Liberating Women and Girls From the Chains of a Slavery Worse Than Death.

This law will probably soon be promulgated and will, as with one giant stroke, deliver out of worse than Egyptian bondage thousands upon thousands of poor, uneducated, toiling, brutalized women and girls who at present hardly dare to consider their souls their own.

Years ago Mr. Simon tried to show the nation the social perils involved in the degradation of women to beasts of burden; in the employment in the mines of girls who wore men's clothes and did men's work.

After the great tempests of the war and the commune had passed he took up the work again. As a Senator he has been able to do much. Yet the Republic has been strangely backward about undertaking real industrial reformation.

Protecting the bodies he is saving the souls of the poor women and girls of the back country. Their helplessly enslaved condition—they sometimes toiled sixteen and even eighteen hours daily—has made them hopeless.

exact that they should only work a certain number of hours per day. This would muzzle the capitalists, who were all against M. Simon; and it would make it impossible for hard-hearted and ignorant parents to ruin the lives of their offspring.

Year after year passed and the law could not be passed. Strikes occurred in which the women and girls fought so ferociously against soldiery and constables that the public turned away from them in disgust, and said: "They are not human."

But M. Simon said: "They are human and they have souls to be saved." And he went at the work of saving them.

Jules Simon has been within the last thirty years a renowned orator on whose words the public hung as if he were a god; a chief of the Republican party when the Second Empire was victorious, in its dying throes, and when it was extremely dangerous to be a Republican; an earnest free trader in a land where protection is considered as the eleventh commandment; Minister of Fine Arts, which means a magnificent salary and the right to live in a palace—yet he has never moved from this simple domicile!

M. Simon is not tall, but was robust in middle life, and even now is sinewy and strong, although a little bent. He is 77; he was born before Waterloo, and has been famous for almost half a century.

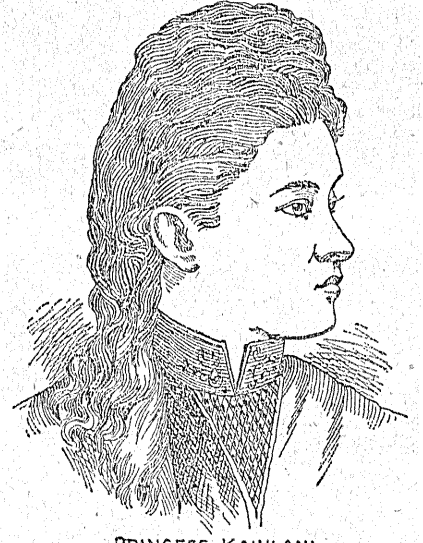

M. Simon is not tall, but was robust in middle life, and even now is sinewy and strong, although a little bent.

He is just about to see the dream of his greatest ambition realized by the working of the restricting labor law which he got through the Senate.

A Difference of Opinion. Sir Edwin Arnold says of the late Earl Lytton: "The Earl was a brilliant, showy sort of a public man, but I do not think there was any great depth to his knowledge of statesmanship."

NAPOLEON'S CHAIR.

A Relic of the Meeting Between the Emperor and Bismarck. Among the many curious and historical mementoes with which the Bismarck-Museum of Schoenhausen is replete, none attracts more attention than the chair of Donchery, occupied by Napoleon III, during the negotiations between Prince Bismarck and himself after the famous battle of Sedan.

Having been called to the throne of France by the same people who forced him to abdicate and established the republic immediately after his capitulation, the step from one of the proudest thrones of Europe to the exceedingly plain and commonplace chair of straw seems scarcely less pathetic than his great ancestor's isolation at St. Helena, after reveling in the gaieties of the merriest city of the universe.

As seen from the cut the chair is an ordinary straw-covered affair, rather worse for wear and of an old-fashioned type.

It is encased in a wooden box and accompanied by a documentary tablet stating that Baldoun Schwarz of Cologne bought the chair and donated it afterwards to the Bismarck-museum.

IN HELL'S HALF ACRE.

THE CELESTIAL QUARTERS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

An Inside View of a Chinese Theatre and How It Is Run—Talking in an Opium Den, Where the Heathen Thrives.

During my engagement in San Francisco I visited Chinatown, says an actress in the Kansas City Times. My guides were a white man who speaks Chinese and a Mongolian who speaks English.

It begins on Monday at 7 p. m., and plays till midnight each night until the following Monday. The play I saw was the trial of a woman who was accused of having more than one husband. She was convicted and sentenced to have her head cut off, when a character which corresponds to the chambermaid of the British drama, espoused her cause, declaring that the wife was innocent, and to prove it she engaged in single-hand combat with the judge, the executioner and several of the guards, killing each in turn and at midnight exactly marched away with the accused.

Some of the costumes are very expensive and beautiful in accord with Chinese view of beauty. Women do not act. Men play the female characters. Back of the stage is the wardrobe man. He dresses all the actors and takes charge of the costumes.

The Chinese have no privacy no sense of shame or modesty. They wash, dress and undress in full view of each other. In one of these hovels I found a little girl—probably 4 years old. She was undergoing the barbarous cruelty and torture which is inflicted on all female Chinese children—stunting the growth of the feet.

Chinese women do not work. The men work early and late, and women do nothing. There may be respectable Chinese women in China, but I was told there are but few, if any, in San Francisco. A Chinese woman looks as though she had been drawn out of a tub of fat, all slick and slimy and greasy.

Experts are predicting that the books of to-day will fall to pieces before the middle of the next century. The paper in the books that have survived two or three centuries was made by hand of honest rags and without the use of strong chemicals, while the ink was made of nut galls. To-day much of the paper for books is made, at least in part, of wood pulp, treated with powerful acids, while the ink is a compound of various substances naturally at war with the flimsy paper upon which it is laid.

The word "Catholic" was first used in the Apostle's Creed when it says: "And one holy, catholic, apostolic church." Its next use was by Ignatius, who is said to have been an apostle of St. John. Ignatius succeeded Evedius as Bishop of Antioch and suffered martyrdom in the year 107 A. D. He used the word in this sentence: "Wherever Jesus Christ is, there is the catholic church." St. Augustine, A. D. 400, says: "The very name of catholic holds me in the church." The world is from kata, in or through, and olous the whole.

The World's Steam Engines. It is said that four-fifths of the steam engines of the world have been constructed within the last twenty-five years. The total horse power is estimated at 49,000,000, of which the United States has 7,500,000, Great Britain 7,000,000, Germany 4,500,000, France 3,000,000 and Austria 1,500,000.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Perfectly Well!
WILLIAMS, Dubuque Co., Ia., Sept. 1892.
Miss K. Finlayson writes: "My mother and sister used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic for neuralgia. They are both perfectly well now and never tired taking the tonic."
TERRACON, Ohio, Oct. 21, 1892.
Since taking the first spoonful of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, the latter part of last May, I have not had any symptoms of fits, and I firmly believe that I am cured. I can now thank you enough for your kindness to me. It is a wonderful medicine. MISS LYDIA GRANT.
CASS, Mich., Oct. 9, 1890.
My wife at times became so much nervous so that she could not be kept in bed, and all medical treatment proved without effect. Since she used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic she has had no spells and is a healthier person. I can now consider myself under obligation to express my gratitude to you. CHRIST SCHEENMAN.
A Valuable Book on Nervous Diseases sent free to any address. This remedy has been prepared by the Reverend Pastor Koenig, of Fort Wayne, Ind., since 1856, and is now prepared under his direction by the

"The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world."

The hand that rocks the cradle has also quite often a hand in buying the household necessities and luxuries. The head of the house cannot attend to these matters and leaves them to the really superior judgement of his "fran." She shops around and generally knows very quickly where she prefers to buy her Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, Etc. And if we may be pardoned the egotism we may say that the larger number of housewives in Cass City have found their way to the store of

ELENGTON

Mrs. Daniel Turner is on the sick list this week.

There is no doubt but that there will be corn to husk next spring.

William Feeler has moved his family from near Watrousville to his brother's house in Ellington.

Rev. J. Bacon returned from near Port Huron last week Friday. He expects Mrs. Bacon and children soon.

Mrs. N. A. Perry has gone on a visit to relatives and friends near Fenton, Genesee County. She will remain there visiting indefinitely.

Mr. and Mrs. V. N. Mallory, of Montrose, Genesee County, came out here last week to spend a few days visiting with relatives and friends. They returned home this week.

A severe and fatal accident befell David Berse, an old gentleman living a half mile north of the Sutton church, on Friday evening of last week. He had been to see his son Amos during the day returning home near night. He went out to do his chores at the barn and in going around one of his horses he was fatally kicked over his heart breaking three of his ribs, and falling down was found senseless and remained so until he breathed his last Saturday night. He leaves an aged widow and several children to mourn his untimely death. He was 71 years of age.

KARR'S CORNERS.

Beautiful weather, and beautiful snow. We hope you'll remain For we do love you so.

John Lundigan and sister have returned home.

George Gray is getting out timber for a drive barn.

Pat Landrigan is getting out timber for a barn to put hay and oats into.

We hear that William Muntz has sold out. We are sorry to see you go William.

Duncan and Zach Battel cut, split and piled a cord of wood in 33 minutes one day last week.

John Mice's house caught fire last week but luckily for John he noticed it before it had spread very much and he has only to put on a few new singlets.

Last week while John Karr was butchering, his little boy, Stanley, got too near the fire and his clothes caught fire and burned him quite badly before they could extinguish the flames.

The Elkland Lyceum meets to night, (Monday.) Now that it is frozen up and the roads are good we trust the few who have energy and determination enough to aid in a work of this kind, will take a front seat and go ahead. If the weather and roads hold good we will entertain you every Monday night. JAS. A. MUMFORD Secretary.

CARRIAGE.

There is only one fault to be found with our snow and that is there is hard by enough.

Meeting of the Gagetown reading circle is every Wednesday. Number of members, twenty five.

Toehy & Hensy have put their office in some repair by furnishing their guests with desk, counter and register.

Mrs. Lemo was taken sick shortly after her return from Owendale and the people fear it is the fever for she is now very low.

The Car Bros. have been improving this snow by hunting foxes, which has proved a very favorable time, getting from one to two nearly every day.

Mr. Eliphlet Robertson and Miss Emma Nickelson were united in wedlock Saturday evening at the K. O. T. M. installation, and entertained a large crowd.

James T. Parly, of the firm of Parly & Son, bankers, was threatened with a fever which totally disabled him for work and telegraphed his father of Caro to relieve him. He was better on Thursday.

James Kilburn's residence, Sec. 4, Elkland, took fire Jan. 4th and as the saying is, "luck is better than much wife," and so it proved for there was no wind and the fire was subdued but not until much damage was done.

It is thought and believed that James Bingham and wife are too much taken up with the enjoyment of Southern climate to return North again very soon, not until spring at least, for the children have not heard from them for three weeks. They were then at St. Peterburg, Va.
