Caught On The Fly.
 The man at the bar stood up. For the base ball season was ripe, and he sought the ball the pitcher sent in, and he hit it a terrible swipe.
 And the ball went whizzing down. The field from that fearful whack. And it bowed its way through the shortstop's hands.
 And it knocked him flat on his back.
 And the crowd went up a howl.
 And the players set up a shout.
 And the pretty girl on the grand stand asked "Does that put the umpire out?"

Dr. Hall, of New York, and is now on file with the committee on opening ceremonies at the World's Fair.

The first thing the new office boy learns is to lie steadily and carefully. His development is carefully watched. If he becomes a general indiscriminate liar he is apt to be a real estate broker; if a systematic liar, a lawyer; if a cautious, careful liar, an editor; if a bountiful, bragging egotistical liar, an actor; if a conscientious, critical liar, a doctor, but this is almost a profitless speculation, for the chances are the office boy will go to ruin anyway.—[Evening News.]
 Vassar Pioneer: A farmer from down in the south part of the county, drove into town on Monday with a monster load of hay, and hauling directly in front of Harrison's drug store, unhitched his team, reversed them on either side of the wagon tongue, and proceeded to make himself comfortable, while waiting for a bidder on his product. It took the smoothest language that Marshal Burgess could command to convince him it wasn't just the proper caper to halt with a load of hay and feed in the middle of the thoroughfare in the most prominent corner of town. He finally saw the point, and moved on to a more suitable position.

THE NOMINATION RACES
 As Viewed by the Enterprise From the Independent Grand Stand.
 The Kite Shaped Track in Excellent Condition, Racers Ditto. Weather Favorable and Enthusiasm at High Water Mark.

Some time ago one of the county papers gave a synopsis of the county political races as they appeared from the Republican grand stand, but since that time material changes have been made in the entries. The fore part of the week the ENTERPRISE managed to secure a seat in the Independent grand stand and is able to give the starting of the various races as viewed from that standpoint.
 The first race called after the ENTERPRISE reporter had found a seat in the crowded stand, was the
PEOPLE'S PARTY SENATORIAL RACE.
 There appeared facing the starters "Doc," a long-winded stepper from Cass City, who has been in training for a number of years past, "Leach," of Ellington, who carefully surveyed the track with his experienced eyes, and "York," the unchangeable. These three were in the pink of condition. Pools sold in favor of Doc, as the race was long and good wind was necessary. Leach drew the pole, York second and Doc third. The word was given and off they started. At the quarter pole Doc, who is a peculiar racer, kicked his Democratic driver off, flew past the other two and secured the pole. At the half he was a long ways in the lead, Leach second, with York on the run in order to save his distance. The next race called was the
REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL RACE.
 At the tap of the bell appeared at the wire, "Randy McKay," and "Ogilvie," of the shore. This race not being very well fitted did not create much excitement, but may prove a very interesting race ere it is finished. Ogilvie was given the pole on account of having lost the race in '90. This was a hard race to start as the starters were very unmanageable, McKay being very hard bitten, it was necessary to do a great deal of pulling and his driver was severely scored by the Judges. At the word, "go" McKay began to show his racing horse qualities, and at the quarter was several open lengths in the lead, and still gaining. The next race on the program was the
DEMOCRATIC SENATORIAL RACE.
 No entries in this race having been made, the sports who had assembled invested their funds in the People's Party pool box, and the race was declared off. The next race called was the
PEOPLE'S PARTY LEGISLATIVE RACE.
 The entries made were Ale, from Cass City, England, of Almer, and Patterson Boy, of New Era. This was also a very hard race to start, as Grant, the driver of Patterson Boy, insisted upon having the pole. The difficulty was finally settled by the starters giving Ale the pole, England, second, and Patterson Boy, third. This proved a very close race to the first quarter, when the driver of Ale gave him his head, and at the half he was several rods in the lead with England second and Patterson Boy off his feet, with his driver freely plying the binder.

REPUBLICAN LEGISLATIVE RACE.
 In this race were entered Henry Sherman, and Parker Billy, of Caro, and Jumbo, from Fremont. At the appearance of the three on the track, Jumbo was ruled off on account of being a pacer, as only square trotters were eligible to this race. Parker Billy drew the pole, and a fair start was had. Parker Billy trotted a 2:8 gate to the quarter, but his wind failed, and Sherman took the pole, easily beating him to the half. Bets went 6 to 4 in favor of Sherman.
DEMOCRATIC LEGISLATIVE RACE.
 There was only one entry in this race Corcoran, of Caro, who appeared and gave an exhibition half, without boots. He made the entire half in 1:2 1/2, and in the third quarter was lost to our view in a cloud of dust.
THE PEOPLE'S PROBATE JUDGE RACE. was a wild affair. The entries were made up mostly of green horses—Lazelle, of Ellington, Cleaver, of Elmer, Tower and Baldwin, of Vassar, and Ben Butler, Cass City. Ben was given the pole, Cleaver, second, Baldwin, third, Tower, fourth, and Lazelle, fifth. The word went sent them off at a terrific speed. They made the circuit in a given time, all coming under the wire together. The contestants, owing to lack of fitting, were unable to go another mile in order to decide the heat, and the judges cast lots for decision, which resulted in favor of Ben. The REPUBLICAN PROBATE JUDGE RACE.
 came next. Three entries—Van Tassel, and Wheat, of Caro, Dawson, of Water-town. After some parleying, pole position was given to Dawson, Van second and Wheat third. The driver of Wheat demanded that the distance flag be hoisted, and requested the judges to make no record of his time, as he expected to lower his former record materially. The usual signal sent them off in good shape, Dawson leading Van, and Wheat trailing. At the quarter Dawson opens a wide gap on the other two, holding same position to half. In the third quarter Van moves rapidly up on Dawson, Wheat falling behind. Dawson holds his own down the stretch, and passes under the wire an easy winner with Wheat behind the flag. The DEMOCRATIC PROBATE JUDGE RACE.

 having no entries was declared off until entries could be secured.
PEOPLE'S PARTY SHERIFF RACE was called promptly at 1 p. m. There appeared under the wire that well known racer, Duclon. There being but one entry in this race and one in the Democratic sheriff race, it was thought best to allow the Democratic flyer to enter, and in accordance the war horse, G. S., of Cass City, was driven under the wire. Duclon being very excitable, was in a foam and any amount of sponge was used upon him before the start. At last the start was made and the pair went off like a team, until nearing the quarter pole, when G. S. easily moved away, and was by great odds the choice of the spectators. At the half pools were selling 3 to 7 in favor of G. S. with Duclon eating dust. There was also only one entry in the REPUBLICAN SHERIFF RACE.
 and that was Charles T., of Caro. His driver, Pioneer Jim, insisted that the stake was his, by virtue of the Republican trotting rules. Judge Rawles conceded this to be the rule, and Chas. T. was sent to the stable. The PEOPLE'S PARTY CLERK RACE.
 came next. P. of I. Smith, and Patent Right Peterhans, were the contestants. The latter drew the pole and the signal was given. P. R. led to the half at a breakneck pace, Smith having soured on his driver, considerable bad was necessary. At the last turn, Smith became unmanageable and made a break for the barn. From all appearances money will be awarded to P. R. P. The REPUBLICAN CLERK RACE. was next announced and there came trotting down the course Wm. N. There being but one entry it was disposed of same as the Republican Sheriff race. The DEMOCRATIC CLERK RACE.
 was next called and Vassar not yet having had any of the plunder, sent one trotter Vanum, under the wire. No other entries having been made, he was permitted to go against the watch and set the mark at 2:5, thereby lowering the exhibition record made by the Caro trotter, Corcoran, in the forenoon. Then followed the PEOPLE'S PARTY REGISTER OF DEEDS RACE which was won by that standard performer, Hinkley, who turned his mile so easily that the Democratic Register of Deeds race was declared off, and the stakes equally divided. The REPUBLICAN REGISTER OF DEEDS RACE
 was called at four o'clock. Entries were as follows: Wickware, Cass City, Smith, Davis, and Horner, of Caro. Wickware drew the pole, Smith, second, Davis, third, Horner fourth. They were sent for a score, a fair start was had, and away they sped. At the eighth post an effort was made to pocket the Cass City nag, but without avail, he having been into the race in '90, was onto their jockeying, and with an extra spurt flew to the front and cleared himself completely at the half. At third quarter he was in a fair way to win the race, and Horner the banner.
PEOPLE'S PARTY AND DEMOCRATIC PROSE- CUTTING ATTORNEY RACE
 was combined as there was only one entry in each. Gamble and Quinn, of Caro. Gamble was given the pole and they were sent for a score, and came down like a pair under the wire. The word was given and Gamble made one of his high jumps, and Quinn made the first quarter. Gamble got his feet and caught Quinn at the half. Both show race horse qualities and good training. They are selling equally in the pool box.
REPUBLICAN PROSE CUTTING ATTORNEY RACE
 Three entries were made in this race. There were West, of Caro, Ransford, of Almer, and Brooker, of Cass City. West drew the pole, Brooker, second, Ransford third. They were sent for a score, given the word and got away in good shape. At the quarter Brooker was in the lead, West, second, with Ransford a close third. At the half they were all off their feet. Excitement ensued and considerable jockeying was done, all running under the wire at the finish. After deliberation by the judges their entrance money was declared forfeited and they were sent off the track for more training. Owing to dark and threatening clouds that were gathering in the direction of Minneapolis, the other less important races were indefinitely postponed.

 was called at four o'clock. Entries were as follows: Wickware, Cass City, Smith, Davis, and Horner, of Caro. Wickware drew the pole, Smith, second, Davis, third, Horner fourth. They were sent for a score, a fair start was had, and away they sped. At the eighth post an effort was made to pocket the Cass City nag, but without avail, he having been into the race in '90, was onto their jockeying, and with an extra spurt flew to the front and cleared himself completely at the half. At third quarter he was in a fair way to win the race, and Horner the banner.
 was combined as there was only one entry in each. Gamble and Quinn, of Caro. Gamble was given the pole and they were sent for a score, and came down like a pair under the wire. The word was given and Gamble made one of his high jumps, and Quinn made the first quarter. Gamble got his feet and caught Quinn at the half. Both show race horse qualities and good training. They are selling equally in the pool box.
REPUBLICAN PROSE CUTTING ATTORNEY RACE
 Three entries were made in this race. There were West, of Caro, Ransford, of Almer, and Brooker, of Cass City. West drew the pole, Brooker, second, Ransford third. They were sent for a score, given the word and got away in good shape. At the quarter Brooker was in the lead, West, second, with Ransford a close third. At the half they were all off their feet. Excitement ensued and considerable jockeying was done, all running under the wire at the finish. After deliberation by the judges their entrance money was declared forfeited and they were sent off the track for more training. Owing to dark and threatening clouds that were gathering in the direction of Minneapolis, the other less important races were indefinitely postponed.

THE NOMINATION RACES
 As Viewed by the Enterprise From the Independent Grand Stand.
 The Kite Shaped Track in Excellent Condition, Racers Ditto. Weather Favorable and Enthusiasm at High Water Mark.

Some time ago one of the county papers gave a synopsis of the county political races as they appeared from the Republican grand stand, but since that time material changes have been made in the entries. The fore part of the week the ENTERPRISE managed to secure a seat in the Independent grand stand and is able to give the starting of the various races as viewed from that standpoint.
 The first race called after the ENTERPRISE reporter had found a seat in the crowded stand, was the
PEOPLE'S PARTY SENATORIAL RACE.
 There appeared facing the starters "Doc," a long-winded stepper from Cass City, who has been in training for a number of years past, "Leach," of Ellington, who carefully surveyed the track with his experienced eyes, and "York," the unchangeable. These three were in the pink of condition. Pools sold in favor of Doc, as the race was long and good wind was necessary. Leach drew the pole, York second and Doc third. The word was given and off they started. At the quarter pole Doc, who is a peculiar racer, kicked his Democratic driver off, flew past the other two and secured the pole. At the half he was a long ways in the lead, Leach second, with York on the run in order to save his distance. The next race called was the
REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL RACE.
 At the tap of the bell appeared at the wire, "Randy McKay," and "Ogilvie," of the shore. This race not being very well fitted did not create much excitement, but may prove a very interesting race ere it is finished. Ogilvie was given the pole on account of having lost the race in '90. This was a hard race to start as the starters were very unmanageable, McKay being very hard bitten, it was necessary to do a great deal of pulling and his driver was severely scored by the Judges. At the word, "go" McKay began to show his racing horse qualities, and at the quarter was several open lengths in the lead, and still gaining. The next race on the program was the
DEMOCRATIC SENATORIAL RACE.
 No entries in this race having been made, the sports who had assembled invested their funds in the People's Party pool box, and the race was declared off. The next race called was the
PEOPLE'S PARTY LEGISLATIVE RACE.
 The entries made were Ale, from Cass City, England, of Almer, and Patterson Boy, of New Era. This was also a very hard race to start, as Grant, the driver of Patterson Boy, insisted upon having the pole. The difficulty was finally settled by the starters giving Ale the pole, England, second, and Patterson Boy, third. This proved a very close race to the first quarter, when the driver of Ale gave him his head, and at the half he was several rods in the lead with England second and Patterson Boy off his feet, with his driver freely plying the binder.

THE farming capacity of the United States is not one-half developed. That is by the standard of fertilization and cultivation of England and Belgium this country could double its wheat crop without adding a single acre to its wheat area.

THE common verdict of coroner's juries "death from heart failure," is the simplest possible way of acknowledging ignorance. It is a verdict that may safely be given in any death, for all are due to stoppage of the heart. The old formula "death from causes unknown to the jury," is more honest, and has a definite meaning. It is therefore to be preferred.

THE productive capabilities of every acre of wheat and corn under cultivation at present could doubtless be considerably increased by better farming, more thorough and painstaking farming, by farming more scientifically, and by an abandonment of certain slipshod methods which Western farmers, because of the ease with which land may be cultivated and the prolific character of the yield, very naturally fall into.

THE law of harmony between work and rest, when fully obeyed, not only maintains strength but develops it. All intelligent people know that fact, but many fail to think of it in such a way as to be governed by it. To exercise the muscles of the arms until they are tired and then thoroughly rest them, and again to exercise them and rest, makes them grow stronger and bigger. So with the brain—it becomes stronger under well-regulated exercise and rest.

POVERTY means different things to different people. With some it means going hungry, and without proper clothing or fire; with others it means seeing grand operas from the back rows of the first balcony, rather than from the orchestra, or from the orchestra rather than in a box, and being conveyed thereto by street cars rather than by private carriage; and by employing a modiste in their own city rather than to order costumes from Worth. Ideas differ.

OVER the triple doorways of an Italian cathedral there are three inscriptions spanning the splendid arches. Over one is carved a beautiful wreath of roses, and underneath the legend, "All that ceases is but for a moment." Over the other is sculptured a cross, and there are the words, "All that troubles is but for a moment." But underneath the great central entrance in the main aisle is the inscription, "That only is important which is eternal."

THE proper education of children is admittedly one of great concern. The state has provided public schools. The church authorities, zealous for the formation of the young mind in the direction of church dogma, have, with the very best intentions, provided parochial schools. Every parent who has natural ambition is desirous that his children shall be properly educated, and few there are who do not wish that the child should enjoy advantages that were not possible for themselves.

ENGLAND is not in any special need of more anarchists. Although the Anglo-Saxon characteristic is to offer refuge on its soil to all political exiles, the one class which Anglo-Saxon freedom does not ravenously hanker after is that composed of the explosive genry who are prone to the blowing up of their own domiciles. It is getting to be too much of a hardship for Anglo-Saxon traditions to be taxed for the harboring of political incendiaries with a penchant for plotting even against the laws which protect them; and since England already has all the dynamites she wants she may be very near reaching the point where she will pass them on to the United States.

IS THE art of oratory declining in our country? It seems to be apparent to us that whether it is or not, examples of eminence in oratory are much less frequent than they used to be. Is there one great orator now in congress? We should not know where to point to him in either house. Of eminent pulpiter orators, how many have we? And at the bar, what lawyer stands out to attract the public by his eloquence, either in his profession or out of it? We have able and effective advocates and clever and interesting speakers. Some of them have reputations for saying bright and witty things. In the specialty of dinner table speaking we come nearer to holding our own. This is an art which is more cultivated at present than ever before. Perhaps. But it does not attain to the highest flights of eloquence, nor does it apparently aim to reach that point.

TABERNACLE PULPIT.

TALMAGE ON THE ART OF FORGETTING.

To Remember Is Well, but the Power to Forget Is the Greatest Gift to the Human Race—"Their Sins and Their Iniquities Will I Remember No More."

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 5, 1892.—The enormous audience which thronged the Tabernacle this morning had fresh evidence of Dr. Talmage's originality. The value of a retentive memory every one knew by experience and had heart extolled from their school days up, but they learned from Dr. Talmage's sermon that the art of forgetting is worth cultivating, and that there is the highest possible example for its exercise. His text was Heb. 8:12: "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

The national flower of the Egyptians is the heliotrope, of the Assyrians is the water lily, of the Hindoos is the marigold, of the Chinese is the chrysanthemum. We have no national flower, but there is hardly any flower more suggestive to many of us than the "forget-me-not." We like to be remembered, and one of our misfortunes is that there are so many things we cannot remember. Mnemonics, or the art of assisting memory, is an important art. It was first suggested by Simonides of Cos five hundred years before Christ. Persons who had but little power to recall events, or put facts and names and dates in proper procession, have, through this art, had their memory reinforced to an almost incredible extent. A good memory is an invaluable possession. By all means, cultivate it. I had an aged friend, who detained all night at a miserably empty depot in waiting for a railroad train in the snow banks, entertained a group of some ten or fifteen clergymen, likewise detained on their way home from a meeting of Presbytery, by, first, with a piece of chalk, drawing out on the black and sooty walls of the depot, the characters of Walter Scott's "Marmion," and then reciting from memory the whole of that poem of some eighty pages in fine print. My old friend through great age lost his memory, and when I asked him if the story of the railroad depot was true, he said: "I do not remember now, but it was just like me." "Let me see," said he to me, "have I ever seen you before?" "Yes," I said, "you were my guest last night and I was with you an hour ago." What an awful contrast in that man between the greatest memory I ever knew and no memory at all.

But right along with this art of recollection, which I cannot too highly eulogize, is one quite as important and yet I never heard it applauded. I mean the art of forgetting. There is a splendid faculty in that direction that we all need to cultivate. We might, through that process, be ten times happier and more useful than we now are. We have been told that forgetfulness is a weakness and ought to be avoided by all possible means. So far from a weakness, my text ascribes it to God. It is the very top of Omnipotence that God is able to obliterate a part of his own memory. If we repent of sin and rightly seek the divine forgiveness, the record of the misbehavior is not only crossed off the books, but God actually lets it pass out of memory. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more." To remember no more is to forget, and you cannot make anything else out of it. God's power of forgetting is so great that if two men appeal to him, and the one man, after a life all right, gets the sins of his heart pardoned, and the other man, after a life of abomination, gets pardoned, God remembers no more against one than against the other. The entire past of both the moralist, with his imperfections, and the profligate, with his debaucheries, is as much obliterated in the one case as in the other. Forgotten, forever and forever. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

Many years ago a family, consisting of the husband and wife and little girl of two years, lived far out in a cabin on a Western prairie. The husband took a few cattle to market. Before he started his little child asked him to buy for her a doll, and he promised. He could, after the sale of the cattle, purchase household necessities, and certainly would not forget the doll he had promised. In the village to which he went he sold the cattle and obtained the groceries for his household and the doll for his little darling. He started home along the dismal road at nightfall. As he went along on horseback, a thunderstorm broke, and in the most lonely part of the road and in the heaviest part of the storm, he heard a child cry. Robbers had been known to do some bad work along that road, and it was known that this herdsmen had money with him, the price of the cattle sold. The herdsmen first thought it was a stranger to have him halt and be despoiled of his treasures, but the child's cry became more keen and rending, and so he dismounted and felt around in the darkness and all in vain, until he thought of a hollow that he remembered near the road where the child might be, and for that he started, and, sure enough, found a little one fagged out and drenched of the storm and almost dead. He wrapped it up as well as he could and mounted his horse and resumed his journey home. Coming in sight of his cabin, he saw it all lighted up, and supposed his wife had kindled all these lights so as to guide her husband through the darkness. But, no. The house was full of excitement and the neighbors were gathered and stood around the wife of the house, who was insensible as from some great calamity. On inquiry the returned husband found that the little child of that cabin was gone. She had wandered out to meet her father and get the present he had promised, and the child was lost. Then the father unrolled from the blanket the child he had found in the fields, and, lo! it was his own child, and the lost one of the prairie home, and the cabin quaked with the shout over the lost one found. How suggestive of the fact that once we were lost in the open fields, or among the mountain crags, God's wandering children, and he found us, dying in the tempest, and wrapped us in the mantle of his love and fetched us home, gladness and congratulation bidding us welcome. The fact is that the world does not know God, or they would all flock to him. Through their own blindness, or the fault of some rough preaching that has got abroad in the centuries, many men and women have an idea that God is a tyrant, and oppressor, an autocrat, a Nana Sahib, an Omnipotent Herod Antipat. It is a libel against the Almighty; it is a slander against the heavens; it is a defamation of the infinities. I counted in my bible 304 times the word "mercy," single or compounded with other words. I counted in my bible 473 times the word "love," single or compounded with other words. Then, I got tired counting. Perhaps you might count more, being better at figures. But the Hebrew and the Greek and the English languages have been taxed till they cannot pay any more tribute to the love and mercy and kindness and grace and charity and tenderness and friendship and benevolence and sympathy and bounteousness and fatherliness and motherliness and patience and pardon of our God. There are certain names so magnetic that their pronunciation thrills all who hear it. Such is the name of the Italian soldier and liberator, Garibaldi. Marching with his troops, he met a shepherd who was in great distress because he had lost a lamb. Garibaldi said to his troops: "Let us help this poor shepherd find his lamb." And so, with lanterns and torches, they explored the mountains, but he did not find the lamb, and after an unsuccessful search late at night they went to their encampment. The next morning Garibaldi was found asleep far on into the day, and they wakened him for some purpose and found that he had not given up the search when the soldiers did, but had kept on still further into the night and had found it, and he pulled down the blankets from his couch and there lay the lamb, which Garibaldi ordered immediately taken to his owner. So the commander of the hosts of heaven turned aside from his glorious and victorious march through the centuries of heaven, and said: "I will go and recover that lost world, and that race of whom Adam was the progenitor, and let all who will accompany me." And through the night they came, but I do not see that the angelic escort came any further than the clouds, but their most illustrious leader came all the way down, and by the time his errand is done our little world, our wandering and lost world, our world sleazy with the light, will be found in the bosom of the Great Shepherd, and, then, all heaven will take up the cantata and sing, "The lost sheep found." So I set open the wide gate of my text, inviting you all to come into the mercy and pardon of God; yea, still further, into the ruins of the place where once was kept the knowledge of your iniquities. The place has been torn down and the records destroyed, and you will find the ruins more dilapidated and broken and prostrate than the ruins of Melrose or Kenilworth, for from these last ruins you can pick up some fragment of a sculptured stone or you can see the curve of some broken arch, but after your repentance and your forgiveness, you cannot find in all the memory of God a fragment of all your pardoned sins so large as a needle's point. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more." And none of that will surprise you if you will climb to the top of a bluff back of Jerusalem (it took us only five or ten minutes to climb it), and see what went on when the plateau of limestone was shaken by a paroxysm that set the rocks, which had been upright astant, and on the trembling crosspieces of the split lumber hung the quivering form of him whose life was thrust out by metallic points of cruelty that sickened the noonday sun till it fainted and fell back on the black lounge of the Judean midnight.

Six different kinds of sounds were heard on that night which was interjected into the daylight of Christ's assassination; the neighing of the war-horses, for some of the soldiers were in the saddle, was one sound; the bang of the hammers was a second sound; the jeer of malignants was a third sound; the weeping of friends and coadjutors was a fourth sound; the plash of blood on the rocks was a fifth sound; the groan of the expiring Lord was a sixth sound. And they all compounded into one sadness. Over a place in Russia where wolves were pursuing a load of travelers, and to save them a servant sprang from the sled into the mouths of the wild beasts, and was devoured, and thereby the other lives were saved, are inscribed the words, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend." Many a surgeon in our own time has in tracheotomy with his own lips drawn from the windpipe of a diphtheritic patient that which cured the patient and slew the surgeon, and all have honored the self-sacrifice. But all other scenes of sacrifice pale before the illustrious martyr of all time and all eternity. After that agonizing spectacle in behalf of our fallen race nothing about the sin-forgetting God is too stupendous for my faith, and I accept the promise, and will you not all accept it? "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

AN OLD PAPER MILL.

IT OVERLOOKS OLD HEMPSTEAD HARBOR.

And Was Once Visited by the Father of Our Country—A Few Notes From the Diary of George Washington—Picture of the Mill.

George Washington's visit to Long Island in the spring of 1790 appears to be a matter of special interest to the paper making industry. Herewith is given a sketch of Hendrick Onderdonk's Paper Mill, where Washington, with his own hands, made a sheet of paper, which was, for a long time, retained by Onderdonk and his descendants, and may be in existence to this day. Washington's journey was from Brooklyn, as far East as Brookhaven, along the south side of Long Island, thence across the Setonuket, returning Westward by way of the many villages along the north shore. In his diary he makes the entry, on April 24: "Past Mosquito Grove, and breakfasted at a Mr. Onderdonk's at the head of a little bay; were kindly received and well entertained. This gentleman works a grist mill and two paper mills. The two last he seems to work with a spirit and profit." The bay mentioned is Hempstead Harbor. The house at which he was entertained is still preserved as an interesting feature of what is now the village of Roslyn. It is at the head of the bay of Harbor river, and in the midst of the most picturesque and beautiful scenery at Long Island.

Only a small hamlet was there when Washington visited the place. The natural scenery has undergone little changes since then. From the lawn of the old mansion, Washington may have overlooked the bay, known then, as now, as Hempstead Harbor, extending six miles northward to Long Island Sound.

In a southeasterly direction, in the near distance, is Hempstead Harbor hill, 384 feet high, the highest point of land on the island. Mill ponds, supplied by abundant springs, at the foot of the wood bluffs, which rise on either side of the bay in all their picturesque beauty, then, as they do today. The old mansion honored by the presence of Washington still stands in excellent repair. It is owned and occupied by Dr. J. H. Bogart, who, writing recently of this bit of Washingtonia, said:

THE WASHINGTON MILL. "The main portion of the present paper mill was built about one hundred years ago, but the west wing was built previously. The whole building, as it now stands, shows the effects of weather and age. The other mill was older. It was probably the one in which Washington made the sheet of paper. That it was running as a paper mill at least seventeen years before the visit of Washington is made probable by the following advertisement in a New York paper, Oct. 11, 1773. It is as follows:

"The printer of this paper, in conjunction with two of his friends, Henry Remsen and Hendrick Onderdonk, have lately erected a paper mill at Hempstead Harbor, at very great expense, the existence of which entirely depends on a supply of rags, which are too often thrown in the fire or swept out of doors and are now much wanted. "He, therefore, most humbly entreats the assistance of the good people of this province, and city in particular, to assist him in this undertaking, which will be a saving of some hundreds per annum to the colony, which has constantly been sent out of it for paper of all sorts for the past forty years, the manufacturing of which has but very lately originated here. The highest price will be given for rags by the public's servant, Hugh Grainger."

HOW DAUDET WORKS. He Copies Each Character in His Novels from Life. The new volume of Edward de Goncourt's "Journal" is full of Daudet and of Daudet's family. Those who admire Daudet's novels will find much in it that will interest them.

"I am entirely subjective," says Daudet one day. "I can invent nothing. I have already put all my family in my books. I cannot go any more to the South."

It is quite true that Daudet is not a creator, he takes all his types from life; he has used in his books Gambetta, Moray and a number of others; everybody knows in Paris who the Nabab was, and can put the names on all the characters of his novels. Experiments on Tobacco. Dr. V. Tassinari of the hygiene department connected with the University of Rome has been making numerous experiments to prove that the use of tobacco carries with it an immunity from many of the contagious diseases. He maintains that the smoke of tobacco either entirely destroys, or in any case retards, the development of the bacillus of cholera, of anthrax and of pneumonia.

SLANDERING COLUMBUS.

It Don't Appear to Please the American People.

The violent onslaught made by Mr. Justin Winsor, the learned librarian of Harvard, upon the fair fame of Mr. Christopher Columbus, discoverer, is meeting with disfavor. Since then the saying attributed by Alexander Dumas to M. d'Artaignan, that angry foes make steadfast friends for the subject of their attacks, has been justified. Defenders by the dozen have arisen to champion the cause of Columbus, and to demonstrate that Mr. Winsor has been guilty of almost as serious a mistake as he would have committed in ascending a pulpit and declaring the government of one of our great cities to be conducted by dishonest, untrustworthy men.

Even had Columbus no personal friends among the living—and what great man of the past has not?—it is only natural that he should find many to espouse his cause. We Americans find so many good reasons for believing ourselves to be a great nation that we are ready to accord a share of our greatness to whosoever had part in the building of America. And it is obvious that we should not be what we are to-day had not Columbus, or some one else, found and settled our continent.

"LED HIM ASTRAY." Bachelor Rhinehardt Wants Freedom From an Unwelcome Wife. W. W. Rhinehardt, a rich and well-respected citizen of Wichita, Kan., who was supposed to be a bachelor, surprised the community the other day by filing a petition for divorce from Della Rhinehardt, whom he characterizes as a common adventress, whose maiden name was Cooper, and who met him some ten years ago at Pawnee, that State.

The petition avers that Della and her friend made the plaintiff drunk one night with whisky, and that while he was mentally imbecile and physically prostrated they carried him before a magistrate, and, without his knowledge, married him to the fair Della. Rhinehardt further alleges that on regarding his right mind and discovering what had occurred, he left his wife and has never seen her since. He doesn't know where she is now, nor whether she is alive, but having other matrimonial aspirations he wanted to be fully free from her.

HE DID NOT SIT DOWN. Meissonier Was Too Small to Sit in the King's Chair. A prominent Parisian painter was recently talking of Meissonier and an audience that he had with the King of Belgium. Meissonier showed deep emotion at finding himself in the presence of a sovereign, and on playing the part thought fit to let fall his hat and his cane.

The King took him quite aback by saying to the two artists, "Gentlemen, pray be seated." The other painter did so. When Meissonier had recovered from his astonishment, he was going to sit also, but seeing that the chair was more suited to one of the King's tall stature than to one of his own dwarfish size, he laid his hand on his heart, and in an emotional voice exclaimed: "Sire, I am a religious Royalist, and your Majesty will, I hope, let me observe my cult by standing in your presence."

Leopold replied. "All I ask is for you to make yourself at home. If you prefer standing, I do not object." After they had conversed, the King dismissed the painters, saying that he really could not keep M. Meissonier standing longer. The irascible little man went away in high dudgeon. He never forgave the other painter for witnessing the scene, he not having entirely concealed his feelings about it.

THE PATERNITY VENDER. A Curious Parisian Profession Not Needed in America. For a curious profession, and one little known, commend us to the Parisian Vender of Paternity. He appears to be an individual who takes upon himself the risk of severe punishment if detected in the carrying out of his business, which is to stand in lieu of the father to young men who wish to marry, and cannot get the sanction of their parents.

The Vender of Paternity here steps in, and goes through all the formalities at the mayor's office. No such thing would be necessary in America, but in France to marry at the age of 40, without consent of parents, if they are still living, is considered disgraceful. Cleaning House Fronts. The sand blast is being used quite extensively in England for cleaning the exterior of buildings. The front is covered with staging and the blast is applied by a system of pipes and nozzles carried by the workmen. The stream of fine sand will remove any desired thickness from the surface of the stone and the work can be done with great rapidity.

"August Flower"

"For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said my stomach was worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food. On the recommendation of a friend I procured a bottle of August Flower. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained strength and flesh rapidly. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has cured me." Jas. E. Dederick, Saugerties, N. Y.

TELEPATHY.
 Last night we met, where others meet,
 To part as others part;
 And greeted but as others greet,
 Who greet not heart to heart.

We talked of other things, and then
 To other folk passed by;
 You turned and sat with other men,
 With other women I.

And yet a word of things unsaid
 Meantwhile between us passed.
 Your cheek my phantom kiss flushed red,
 And you looked up at last.

And then your glance met mine midway
 Across the chattering crowd;
 And all that heart to heart can say
 Was in that glance avowed.
 —Owen Meredith.

DONA AMATA.
 It was so hot that even the dogs did not lift their heads to bark at the approaching horsemen; they lay with swollen tongues hanging over their teeth, occasionally quivering in feeble protest at the pervading battalions of fleas which shorten the life of the California dog. The adobe soil cracked anew under the pitiless sun, the whitewash on the outer walls of the big adobe house arose in blisters. The undulating line of brown hills which encircled the Rancho del Fuego were dim under the materialized heat; the creek was dry; the little brown huts of the rancheria in the willows were silent as tombs; even the Indians were taking their siesta.

The visitor urged his tired and reeking horse to what speed it was still capable of anxious to get under shelter himself. As he reached the corral he roused a vaquero, sleeping beneath a tree, and bade him follow and take charge of his steed. At the long corridor of the house he dismounted, and leaving the horse to await the pressure of the vaquero, entered hastily and without the ceremony of knocking into the coolness of the interior. Between these thick adobe walls the climate was that of a northern country. He threw himself upon a sofa to rest and await the awakening of the family from the siesta. He had taken his uncomfortable journey in the hot daytime rather than in the blackness of the night, for there would be no moon for two weeks and his business was urgent. But here was a New England man and the California summer was more than he could stand without protest. It sent him to sleep. As he slept he snored, and in a few moments some one might have been moving lightly on the bare floor, behind the thin door set midway in a wall some three feet thick.

The door opened and a girl entered and stood gazing with an expression of unmistakable repugnance at the sleeper. She was a beauty of the type so often seen in California before and in the early days of the American occupation; dense black hair that hung braided to the hem of her white gown, eyes large, black, with a light in them that suggested an unaccountable rapidity of changes, delicate features, a full red mouth and white skin, a figure lithe, graceful, voluptuous; about the whole an indefinable atmosphere of hope and sparkle and capacity for happiness.

She looked unhappy but happy, however, as she gazed at the strong shrewd features of the sleeping visitor. Her gaze may have been magnetic, for he suddenly opened his eyes, then rose hastily and greeted her with manners as good as though less profuse than those of the caballeros who had adored her since she had longed for him.

"Do not think me rude," he said. "I did not wish to disturb any one, and I am afraid the heat overcame me and I fell asleep."
 "I am glad you sleep," she said with graceful but unsmiling hospitality. "No one should be awake when it is so hot. Sit down, No?"
 She took one of the ugly horse-hair chairs he another facing her, and for a moment they gazed silently at each other, both somewhat defiantly.

"It is no proper I all you alone like this," she said finally. "But I have reason, so I do it. And," scornfully, "my father no care so much, I suppose, because is you. Now, I tell you what I want. I beg you, I go on my knees, as you like it, to no come here any more and ask my father as you can marry me. I no love you at all. Never I can love you. I love—always I have love—Antonio Rivera. He no have the moneys now; the Americanos take all, but my father letting us marry as you no coming and spoil all. Ay, señor! Go! Go! No make me so sorry!" She leaned forward and clasped her hands, the tears splashing; she was a charming picture.

The American regarded the floor for a moment, let his eyes dwell on her once more, then shook his head. "No," he said. "You are the only woman I ever wanted, dear Dona Amata, and I cannot give you up. I have the less scruple, because I know that you will be far happier with me than with your idle, shiftless Spanish lover."
 But he was not allowed to proceed. Dona Amata sprang to her feet and beat her little clinched hands together.
 "No say one word by him!" she cried, her voice choked with wrath, her eyes flashing. "No say one word. You think not man have the right to living si he no can make the moneys? Before the Americanos coming we have plenty moneys and live happy; but now you take all. You are very—how you call him?—smart. You lend my father the moneys and make him sign the paper to give you the ranchos si he no can pay. We never sign the paper, one for the other. Always when we lend the moneys we trust, and always we are pay. But you have the heart like the stone. And because it have been bad year, and the cattle die, and my father no can pay, you make me pay. You have fine chance and you tell him, 'Give me your daughter, never mind si she hate me or not never mind si she break the heart or not, give her to me and I give to you your land.' Oh, you are bad man."

He had risen and listened to her outburst unmoved. When she paused for breath he replied, "My dear Dona Amata, I at least am aiming to benefit some one besides myself. You say that I am a bad man. What will you think of yourself when you see your father beggar, living on charity in an Indian's hut? I say nothing of the fact that your delicate hands will probably have to cook his beans. Now, be reasonable."
 "Oh, I hate you," cried the girl with another burst of grief, "and I no want marry old man."
 "Old man! Why, my dear senorita, I am only forty." He looked at her amusedly; he was certainly not old enough to be sensitive.
 "But it is very old to us," sobbed the girl. "I only am eighteen and Antonio no is more than twenty-two. When our mens are forty they are very stout and have the complexion like coffee, so I no can think is young. You," spitefully, "no are stout because you work all the time make the moneys."

At this juncture another door opened and an old man entered the room. A black silk handkerchief was knotted about his head, he wore short clothes of green cloth decorated with large silver buttons. He was very stout and even his features seemed to have relaxed under the enervating influence of the California life of that period. His black eyes were a trifle bleared, his indefinite features were a somewhat testy expression as he glanced from his daughter to her suitor.

"Don James Cunningham, I am glad to see you," he said slowly. "What is the matter? I tell her to marry you and she do it," and he brought his cane down sharply on the bare floor.
 "I no do it!" cried Amata, roused to filial rebellion for the first time in her life. "I no marry him; I marry Antonio. Ay, Antonio Antonio!" and she flung herself upon the sofa, went into violent sobbing.

"She tell you she no marry," asked the old man of Cunningham. "She certainly does not seem to prove me a but you know the verity of woman, Don Pedro, assure you once more I shall the best of husbands—and sons."
 Don Pedro placed his stick up chair. He hobbled over to his factory daughter and raising her his arms, bore her to her own and laid her on the bed. He went out and returned with a hat and nails, with which he fastened window within six inches of the floor.
 "Now," he said, in Spanish, "thou wilt stay and have nothing to but bread and water until thou mar- est Don James Cunningham, thou think that I will be left sit in the road that thou mayest marry a man who sleeps in a hammock all and gambles all night? Thou art a silly child to refuse to marry a who could make thee like a queen. But I have spoken."

He returned to the sala, locking door behind him, followed by the shrieks of his daughter, misericoordia! Ay, infeliz de mi! señor! Santa Maria! Santo! Ay! Ay! Ay! Ay! Ay!
 "Now you stay here, no? for few 'till all is settle, then can marry have to be through."

Cunningham spent the next few listening to his prospective father-in-law's reminiscences of bull and horse racing, religious process climbing the greased pole, cat the greased pig by the tail as if the balls that lasted a month, all distractions of Arcadian Calif whose sun was forever set. The yemen of the house secretly sympath with their sister but approved of father's course in view of prospect plenty. One of the vast ranches had been sold several years before at an absurdly low figure to an American order that the eldest son of the house since dead could gratify his political ambition. Another had gone American taxes. Still another had been "squatted" upon, and although the law had promised the Californ redress, it was tardy of fulfillment; the squatters were tilling the soil and making it yield in an astonishing manner. The two remaining ranches left were mortgaged to the American Cunningham, and when he had them back they would willingly him manage them, having the great respect for his hard American sense.

Meanwhile, Amata sobbed a starved. Her lover serenaded her first midnight, but went to Los Angeles the next day and forgot to turn for several. For three days spiritied Californian girl was obdurate her delicate, luxurious stoma began to cry out for the dainties which it was accustomed. As it pangs grew sharper she became positively terrified, never having physical suffering before, and knowing what awful end it portended. She begged pitifully for carne conaj at least for just one enchilada, a so itary dulce, but her father was equal obdurate, and she had no mother to plead for her. She was also horrified to observe that she was growing less pretty. Her cheeks were hollow her eyes had great black stains beneath them and stared pathetically from her colorless face. "God of my soul!" she thought, "I shall be an old hag at twenty."

On the fifth day she succumbed. A week later she was married. The next day Mr Cunningham foreclosed the mortgages.—San Francisco Examiner.

QUEER LOSING PLACES.

Aggravating Franks That Trinkets Have Played Upon Their Owners.

All the rings in a country house had been cleaned and laid out in the sun on a bright July day. They had been laid on the bank, as has been the habit of some jewel lovers ever since "Lothair" was informed that sunlight was the elixir for pearls; and the precious freight had been carried inside, when one—a half-hoop diamond ring—was found to be missing. Lamentation prevailed, but to cut a long story short, it was pulled up the following day on the roof of a nasturtium, over a bed of which the bearer of the jewel tray had passed. There having been a season of draught, the roof was half in and half out of the loose, dusty soil, but a foot—presumably that of the tray bearer—had actually pressed it beneath and out of sight.

A nursery maid, however, thinking the sprawling annuals looked untidy, began pulling them up next day, and there was the lost valuable! Do not believe it! I should not have done so on hearsay myself, but still I say, as do all others who saw it, it was so.

The frill around a woman's skirt will catch and hold fast a precious morsel in a manner almost incomprehensible. A diamond ring (again a diamond ring—the spoolies is bewitched) had flown off the finger of a lady player at lawn tennis.

Up and down that velvet lawn all through the long summer afternoon did patient searchers pace, and finally a poor pussy cat, who had been licking its paws in the vicinity, came under suspicion. Pussy was observed to be going through various and horrible contortions. It arched its back, stretched its neck, gulped and, in short, behaved exactly as if an emetic had been recently administered.

Every moment it was expected that evidence of guilt would be produced, and I must say I never would have supposed the sight of a sick cat would produce such a profound sensation as it did on that memorable occasion.

"She tell you she no marry," asked the old man of Cunningham. "She certainly does not seem to prove me a but you know the verity of woman, Don Pedro, assure you once more I shall the best of husbands—and sons."
 Don Pedro placed his stick up chair. He hobbled over to his factory daughter and raising her his arms, bore her to her own and laid her on the bed. He went out and returned with a hat and nails, with which he fastened window within six inches of the floor.

SWAMP-ROOT TO THE FRONT.
 ANOTHER LIFE SAVED—SUFFERED AGONIES FOR YEARS.
 Given Up to Die—Restored to Health by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

The above is a good likeness of Mr. Geo. C. Cradick, engraved from a photo, taken a short time ago and sent to Dr. Kilmer & Co., with his letter and package of SWAMP-ROOT, which was DISSOLVED and expelled AFTER USING A FEW BOTTLES OF SWAMP-ROOT. The following is Mr. Cradick's unsolicited account of his distressing and painful case.

GOSPORT, IND., Jan. 18, 1892.
 Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.— I do not know how to express my heart-felt thanks to you for the benefit I have received from using your Swamp-Root Kidney, Liver and Bladder Cure. I am now 63 years old, and have suffered almost death for about three years. I had given up to die, but as I profess to be a Christian man and a great believer in the prayer of the righteous, I prayed that God would send something that would prolong my life, and I feel thankful to Him and you for the means that was sent. May God spare your life many years yet, that you may hear the great good that your medicine is doing. On the 20th of August 1891, Mr. Frank Lawson, your druggist at Spencer, persuaded me to take a bottle on trial. I have taken a few bottles and it has brought out of my bladder lime or gravel which I have saved in quantity for analysis of a goose egg, and I now feel like a new man. May God bless you and your medicine. I remain your humble servant,
 GEORGE C. CRADICK,
 Box 273.

DEAR DOCTORS—I feel great pleasure in answering your letter, which I received to-day. You say "you would like to publish my testimonial in your Guide to Health for awhile." I have no objections at all, for I want to do all in my power for afflicted humanity. I send by this mail a lot of the gravel (about one-half of what I saved) that the Swamp-Root dissolved and expelled.
 Two years ago last September I was taken with pain almost all over me, my head and back, my legs and feet became cold, would get sick at my stomach and vomit often, suffering a great deal from chills, and at times these were so severe that I thought I would freeze to death. My system was all run down and I felt bad all over. The condition of my urine was not so bad through the day, but during the night, at times, I had to get up every hour, and often every half hour. I suffered terribly from burning and scalding sensations. I would urinate sometimes a gallon a night, then it seemed my kidneys and back would kill me. I had been troubled with constipation for many years, but since using your Swamp-Root have been better than for a long time. The medicine has helped my appetite wonderfully, and it seems as though I could not eat enough.
 I live about six miles in the country from Gosport. I was born and raised here and have been a member of the M. E. Church for forty-two years.
 Pardon me for writing so much, for I feel that I would never get through praising your great remedy for Kidney, Liver and Bladder troubles. Your true friend, Geo. C. CRADICK.
 Those who try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root have generally first employed the family physician, or used all the prescriptions within reach without benefit. As a last resort, when their case has become chronic, the symptoms complicated, and their constitution run down, then they take this remedy, and it is just such cases and cures as the one above that have made Swamp-Root famous and given it a world-wide reputation. JOHN H. WOOLBURY'S PARLORS

DESCRIPTION OF THE WONDERS PERFORMED BY

The Leading Dermatologist of America
His-Shedding Ears and Noses Perfected Daily—Facial Expressions, Hard Lines and Wrinkles Softened by Electrolysis—Marks Disappear from the Touch of His Magic Hand.

Physicians throughout the country are gradually beginning to give more and more attention to the subject of dermatology. At few years ago it was a very popular belief that a birthmark could be by no possible means eradicated from the skin. We have only to go back a very short time to recall dramas in which the villain was tracked from town to town and eventually handed over to outraged justice through a scar or birthmark which revealed his identity. A drama built on such a foundation would meet with well-merited ridicule to-day. The villain would not be such a fool as to permit a facial disfigurement to advertise his personality.

He would make short work of it by having it removed, and his changed appearance would then prove his impalpable disguise. In ten days a person afflicted with a mortifying birthmark, with pimples or red nose, could have any one of these disfigurements completely removed.

Prof. Woodbury revolutionized the science. He advanced the extreme radical opinion that birthmarks or moles should be treated by penetration; that they could be reduced to such a state that they would take on a scab, and that when the scab fell the birthmark, or whatever the disfigurement might be, would necessarily disappear. This was a sweeping declaration, and old forms and practices were shattered by it. Yet it was a true solution of the riddle. He uses no scalpel, nothing hurtful than a harmless lotion, which changes the birthmark into an ordinary scab. Many of the most eminent society people of the metropolis, who had been for years debarred from public life through a disfigurement of the face, testify every day to the success of the Professor's methods. There is no physician in this country who has not some time or other attempted to remove a facial blemish, but where is there one who can show you a record of such un- interrupted success in so doing as Prof. Woodbury? He does not keep a record of all the epistles he receives testimonial of his skill as a dermatologist. There is one letter, however, from a prominent New Jersey banker, which is worthy of especial consideration, since it shows the deep interest of the writer in the physician who cured him. The banker, after reciting, like hundreds of others, nothing he has not had cured of several very ugly marks on his face, suggests that the Professor write a book on Dermatology. He says he could not do a better thing for humanity, His volume would arouse public interest in the great science, and those who have for years believed that they must live all their life with a crimson birthmark on their face would take courage and no doubt eventually be relieved of their blemishes. The banker is not, however, aware that Prof. Woodbury has already written a very instructive treatise of 145 pages on the subject, and which any one may obtain by remitting 10 cents to his address, Prof. Woodbury's fame has now become so well established that he is busy with his patients day in and day out and can give no further time to literary work. He is the President of the Dermatological Institute, No. 125 West Forty-second street, New York City, which is the largest establishment of the kind in the world.

Baron Fava, minister from Italy to the United States, announces very gracefully that he is glad to get back to his old post at Washington. Certainly the country is glad to have him back, for a more courteous and capable diplomat seldom visits America. And both Italy and the United States are to be congratulated on the peaceful termination by arbitration of an affair which a few generations earlier in history would certainly have resulted in a war. The world does move.

When the buildings of the World's fair at Chicago are finished they will look like a collection of splendid, many colored marble palaces, finished in the best style and in many varieties of architectural art. The miracle that makes them thus dazzling is summed up in the one word "staff." What is staff? It is a plaster preparation which, being put upon the outside of wooden buildings, makes them not only fireproof, but gives them a look as if they were made of marble. Staff can be colored in any tint, can be wrought into any shape. It was first used on a large scale for some of the Paris exposition structures, but even that scale will be surpassed at Chicago.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ORDER OF HEARING.—
State of Michigan, County of Tuscola, ss.
At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the probate office, in the village of Caro, on the 4th day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two. Present, James M. Van Tassel, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of John Calley, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Martha Borden, daughter of said deceased, praying that administration be made on the estate of said deceased, and that administration of the same be granted to Charles Calley or some other suitable person. Thereupon it is ordered, that on Tuesday, the 5th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be held at the Probate office, in the village of Caro, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Cass City Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ORDER OF HEARING.—
State of Michigan, County of Tuscola, ss.
At a session of the probate court for said county, held at the probate office, in the village of Caro, on the twenty-first day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two. Present, James M. Van Tassel, Judge of Probate.
In the matter of the estate of Milo Warner, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Mary E. Farrar praying this Court to adjudicate and determine who are or were at the time of his death the legal heirs of said deceased and entitled by the laws of this State to inherit his real estate. Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the 29th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be held in the probate office, in the village of Caro and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas, default has been made in the payment of money secured by a mortgage dated the first day of January, A. D. 1890, executed by John E. Turner, a single man, of the township of Novesta, Tuscola County, Michigan, to Edward C. Turner, of Flint, Michigan, who said mortgage was recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Tuscola, in file 53 of mortgages, on page 108, at eleven o'clock a. m. of said day; and whereas said mortgage contains a proviso and agreement between the parties thereto, that should any default be made in the payment of the interest or any part thereof, or any installment of principal or any part thereof, on any day whereon the same is made payable as therein expressed, or any part thereof, or assessed against the land described in said mortgage; and should the same remain unpaid and in arrears for the space of thirty days, then and from thenceforth—that is to say after the lapse of the said thirty days—so much of the principal sum of three hundred and twenty-five dollars as remains unpaid, with all arrears of interest and taxes thereon, shall at the option of the mortgagee, his executor, administrator or assigns, become due and payable in full. Default having been made in the payment of the interest and taxes secured by said mortgage and more than thirty days having elapsed since said interest and taxes were due and payable, and the mortgagee hereby electing that the whole sum of principal, interest and money paid by him for taxes, are now due; that the whole amount now claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage is three hundred and fifty-six dollars and seventy-six cents, principal, interest and taxes, and the further sum of fifteen dollars lawful attorney fee, and the legal costs of foreclosure; and no suit or process at law or in equity having been instituted to secure the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale in said mortgage contained has become operative. Therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the said power of sale and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises thereon, to be held at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the court house in the village of Caro in the county of Tuscola, (the meeting place where the circuit court for the county of Tuscola is held) on the Twenty-sixth day of August, A. D. 1892, at ten o'clock in the afternoon of said day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land located in the township of Novesta, county of Tuscola, State of Michigan and more particularly described as the northwest quarter of the south west quarter of section eleven (11) township thirteen (13) north range eleven (11) east, containing forty acres of land according to government survey.
Dated May 23, A. D. 1892.

ORDER OF HEARING.—
State of Michigan, County of Tuscola, ss.
At a session of the Probate Court for said county, held at the Probate office, in the village of Caro on the thirtieth day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two. Present, James M. Van Tassel, Judge of Probate.
In the matter of the estate of Margaret Hand, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Bernard Hand, son of said deceased, praying that a certain instrument now on file in this Court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to probate, and that administration of said estate may be granted to H. McLean or to some other suitable person. Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the thirtieth day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be held at the Probate Office, in the village of Caro and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Cass City Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

JAMES M. VANTASSEL,

THE WOODLAND

G. A. STEVENSON'S.

THE Woodland Pattern of Royal Semi-Porcelain Ware is made by Johnson Bros., of England, and is the finest and most durable thing ever conceived by the ingenuity of man. The pencil work being under the glazen, it will last as long as the dishes. Another beauty in this ware it will not crack when put in hot water. I receive this ware direct from the potteries of England, enabling me to sell in any quantity, from a tea cup to a complete set of 112 pieces. Should you break a piece, can match it for years to come. My price is as low as can be bought this side of New York for the same goods.

Yours,

Miss Canfield, of St. Clair county, sister of Mrs. George Martin, is the guest of the latter.

Dr. Bates, of Kingston, was called last Saturday to see Mrs. George Martin, of Sec. 35, Novesta.

The late storms have made some mighty sober faces. Yet we can't say we are a "dry town."

On Saturday night last we were seated in the arm chair after a hard days labor, taking a whiff out of the old endy, when a "sound of revelry by night" broke harsh upon the ear. Going out into the darkness and climbing upon a stump we discovered that the sounds proceeded from the antiquated city of Novesta. We have since learned that it was the war dance of kids, all because that fat Sam W heaton had taken unto him a wife from among the daughters of men.

George O. Rourke is as good a boy as ever bent his elbow at a counter, but betimes he is a trifle eccentric. He had occasion to purchase some provender this spring for his blooded equines, so the thought struck him that boiled material from the meadows of old Macomb, where he spent his happy boyhood days, would be just the stuff. On its arrival at this point freight added $6 per ton to the cost; but he is consoled with the thought that he is feeding a high toned article.

Some time since an article appeared in the ENTERPRISE from the pen of one of Cass City's gifted writers, setting forth the supposed rights of women. We would not dispute the fact that the lady's argument is ingenious and apparently logical, but in everything a proper foundation is the all important factor, and if we reason from a wrong basis we will as surely arrive at a wrong conclusion. To our mind the Bible must be warped too much for a healthy solution in order to make it appear that male and female were intended for the same life work; and where the great book is silent on the subject nature has set the "eternal boundry stones" which no power under Heaven can roll away. That men and women have each their own sphere of labor is demonstrated in the child before the mind has been influenced by the forms and ceremonies of the world. When the boy mind begins to develop he calls for a top, knife, whip, and as he further develops he calls for a gun, or axe to fell the giants of the forest. When the girl mind begins to develop she calls for a doll, flowers, and as she further develops she plays keeping house, etc., her childish pursuits being the very opposite of her brother. Two children of the opposite sex may have only father or mother for sole companion, and yet from in-born forces they will each turn to their sphere in life work. Every woman has a high calling before her which she cannot faithfully fill if she deals in politics and kindred isms. "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." Is not this a proverb? The women that have benefited their country have been the true mothers who were queens, but queens only of their homes. The society lady who leaves the training of her child to a nurse who has no interest in its welfare is of no value to the world. Most of our great and good men have been born in the straw-thatched cottages of Europe and the log houses of America; they have been reared by the feet of mothers whose hands were at the same time busy with the needle or the spinning wheel. The young mind was there and then molded—the foundation laid that determined the future life of the child. A noted Catholic Priest once said: "Give us the training of the children for the first seven years of their lives and we have no fear of the world shattering their religious faith." Now is not the true mother the companion of her child up 'til that period in life?—Entering into its joys and sorrows, rejoicing in its pleasures and soothing its troubles. Such in our opinion is woman's sphere. We would have them abreast with the times, well knowing the past history of the world and results of the deeds of men, that they might impart it to the offspring and draw a proper lesson therefrom. Then will it come to pass, as we read, "Her husband is known in the gates when he sitteth among the elders of the land. She looketh well to ways of her household and eateth not the bread of idleness. Her children rise up and called her blessed; her husband also he praiseth her."

MICHIGAN NEWS.

A PRESQUE ISLE LAD SUICIDES FOR A STRANGE REASON.

Said His Mother Did Not Like Him and He Could Not Live at Home--A Wind Storm Does Damage at Grand Rapids and Other Places.

Wm. Diets of the town of Belknap, Presque Isle county, was found lying by the roadside in a dying condition about seven miles from Rogers City. A .44-calibre Winchester rifle and a large clasp-knife were lying beside him.

He intimated that he would not have made the attempt on his life if he had known he would suffer so much pain. He died about noon. The young man was about 23 years of age, unmarried, and lived with his mother and his brother, five years of age, and was their only support.

THEY MEET AGAIN.

The Pioneers of Michigan Gather at Lansing to Talk of Early Times.

The 15th annual meeting of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society was held in the senate chamber at Lansing with President John H. Forster in the chair. One governor and three ex-governors were present in the persons of Edwin B. Winnans, Alpheus Felch, of Ann Arbor, Austin Blair, of Jackson, and Josiah W. Hegeler, of Flint.

MARRIED TWO MONTHS.

A Young Bride Becomes Tired of Wedded Bliss and Suicides.

Mrs. A. Freeman, age 14, living with her husband about two miles south of Vassar, attempted to commit suicide. She used a small Colt revolver and aimed at her heart, but the ball struck a rib and glanced downward, inflicting a wound from which the attending physicians say she cannot recover.

Two Drowned in Cass River. Robt. Wilson and his 7-year-old son, J. Mackie and a stranger, attempted to cross the old Cass river ford, two-and-a-half miles north of Vassar in a lumber wagon.

Nothing to Live For--A Sad Suicide. Louis Cunningham, a colored man, of Ypsilanti, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a scythe while he was mowing grass. He died in a short time.

A Horrible Suicide. Mrs. Belle Talbot, of Battle Creek, a patient at the Michigan Insane Asylum at Kalamazoo, committed suicide by cutting her throat with a fragment of a looking glass.

Went Fishing on Sunday. While fishing at Murphy's Lake Martin Harris fell out of a boat and was drowned. The body was recovered in about an hour.

SCORES ARE DEAD.

CLOUDBURST ON OIL CREEK DESTROYS SEVERAL TOWNS.

Oil City and Titusville, Pa., the Principal Sufferers--Oil Tanks Burst and the River Becomes a Sea of Flame--Many Burned to Death.

The famous Oil Creek region of Pennsylvania is in mourning and the tears of hundreds of widows, childless parents and orphans flow mingled with the accursed stream, says a special from Titusville, Pa.

For over a month this portion of the state has been deluged with rain and the downpour has devastated crops throughout this region. The small streams have been raging torrents and Oil Creek has for weeks been full to the banks. On Sunday a cloudburst pushed the streams beyond their boundaries and a huge sea of water came rolling down Oil Creek sweeping everything before it.

The flood came so quickly that the people had not time to reach a place of safety. The water soon swept a number of oil tanks down the stream and in some way not known they were ignited. In less time than it takes to tell the story the flames spread to the surrounding buildings and before they could be subdued five blocks had been burned.

Oil Creek overflowed its banks from the west end above the water and gas works to the city line below, and for hours assumed the proportions of an almost resistless flood, reaching almost up to the line of Spring street. The city is almost without fuel, street electric light, the waterworks and gas, all are surrounded by water and ruined.

The scene presented by the rushing waters surging through the lower part of the city, as witnessed by thousands of citizens, was one of utter desolation. When morning broke hundreds of anxious people looked out of the windows or stood on the roofs of houses waiting for a helping hand and ready for their fate.

300 DEAD AT OIL CITY. The Flood and Flames Rush Upon the Place With a Demon's Roar. The cloudburst near the source of Oil Creek made that stream a rushing, roaring torrent of oil and relentless. The creek runs through Oil City and fully 1,000 people were standing on the bridge watching the muddy waters.

It was soon noticed that a green scum covered the surface of the stream and the smell of gas and oil filled the air. Several persons were discussing the danger should the oil catch fire. Hardly were the words uttered when about 200 yards up the stream a mass of flames was seen to shoot heavenward.

"Run," yelled a hundred voices, and the people turned like stampeded cattle and started for the hills. Hardly had they started when a terrific explosion rent the air and the entire creek and for hundreds of feet on each side seemed one seething mass of flame and smoke.

The panic stricken crowd shrieked madly in their efforts to escape. Women and children were trampled under foot. About half a mile from the post-office, northward from here, on the Western New York & Pennsylvania railroad, a tank filled with gasoline was standing on a siding.

Some young men passing noticed that the tank was leaking and knowing its explosive nature and seeing a shifting engine approach, ran to the side of the hill where they turned, and looking down as the engine passed, witnessed a fearful sight. A mass of flames shot 100 feet into the air and the earth seemed to shake with an awful tremor.

The engineer and fireman were seen jumping from the cab and it is supposed they were burned to death or killed by the force of the explosion. In an instant the flames swept madly over the entire upper part of the city, which is flooded by the oily waters of the creek. And men, women and children, who were moving from their houses, were caught by the deadly flames, and if not burned to death outright were drowned in the raging flood.

Another iron and wooden bridge went down five minutes after the first started, the huge iron structure being broken and swept away like so much kindling wood. From this bridge southward for a quarter of a mile the entire town is destroyed. The fire department made heroic efforts to stop the flames, and risking their lives every instant, as it was not known at what moment more of the immense oil tanks above here might burst and send their burning contents down upon them.

Almost a hundred bodies have been recovered and it is feared as many more are dead, many of whom will never be found.

The New York chamber of commerce has declared itself in favor of an international agreement to fix the gold and silver ratio.

A HORROR OF HORRORS.

More Figures and Particulars From the Oil Region Disaster.

Pittsburgh Special: Fire and floods together have caused the worst calamity ever known in the oil region of northwestern Pennsylvania. Hundreds of people have been drowned or burned to death. Property worth millions has been laid in waste.

Washington special: Not one of the 200 callers who shook hands with President Harrison on the 4th at the regular public reception could tell that an event which would influence his entire future prospects had just taken place, yet not 15 minutes before the President appeared, the resignation of Secretary of State Blaine was announced.

BLAINE RESIGNS.

SECRETARY OF STATE LEAVES HARRISON'S CABINET.

The Resignation Accepted by the President--The Effect Upon the Presidential Possibilities--Chairman Clarkson Confident of Blaine's Nomination.

Washington special: Not one of the 200 callers who shook hands with President Harrison on the 4th at the regular public reception could tell that an event which would influence his entire future prospects had just taken place, yet not 15 minutes before the President appeared, the resignation of Secretary of State Blaine was announced.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

his chief cabinet officer had been placed in his hands. Under the circumstances few men could entirely control their feelings, yet the President was as cool as ever, and his manner did not show that anything unusual had occurred.

The following is the correspondence which passed between the President and Mr. Blaine:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, June 4, 1892. To the President:

I respectfully beg leave to submit my resignation of the office of secretary of state of the United States, to which I was appointed by you on the 5th of March, 1892.

The condition of public business in the department justifies me in requesting that my resignation may be accepted immediately.

I have the honor to be, Very respectfully, your obedient servant, JAMES G. BLAINE.

Mr. Harrison's Reply. EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, June 4, 1892. To the Secretary of State:

Your letter of this date, tendering your resignation of the office of secretary of state of the United States has been received.

The terms in which you state your desire are such as to leave me no choice but to accept of your wishes at once. Your resignation is therefore accepted.

Very respectfully yours, BENJAMIN HARRISON. To Hon. James G. Blaine: WASHINGTON NEWS.

BROUGHT THEM TO TIME. Secretary Blaine and General J. W. Foster, representing the United States and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, Honorable George Foster, Canadian minister of finance, and Honorable McK. Bowler, minister of customs, representing Great Britain and incidentally the dominion government, had a conference at the state department in regard to the trade relations between the United States and Canada.

The matter was brought to the attention of the British minister several times and it was finally intimated that the President was considering the propriety of sending a special message to Congress on the subject. It is said, therefore, that the Canadian ministers have brought about the present conference with a view of reaching an agreement that will obviate any desire on the part of the government to resort to retaliatory measures.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL. The friends of the river and harbor bill are becoming somewhat anxious as to its ultimate fate. At present it stands upon the calendar with the senate amendments pending. Should it again, as according to the rules it must do--run the gauntlet of the committee of the whole, the time of its final passage would be wholly problematical, as every amendment would be subject to further amendment and its enemies could take advantage of the present depleted condition of the house to postpone its passage indefinitely.

Confronted with this condition, the advocates of the measure have decided to ask the house to suspend the rules on Monday next, in order to non-concur in the senate amendments and to agree to a conference. As this motion will require a two-thirds vote, the committee on rivers and harbors are using every means to make sure that every friend of the bill shall be present upon that day.

MRS. HARRISON STILL VERY ILL. Mrs. Harrison's physician says that her recovery was retarded somewhat by the prevailing hot weather and that she is not improving as rapidly as was anticipated. He added that, while she is still suffering from nervous prostration, there is really nothing alarming in her condition.

Pioneer Woman Reporter Dead. Miss Middle Morgan, the well-known cattle market reporter of the New York Times, died in Jersey City. She was a prominent figure in metropolitan newspaper circles and was a pioneer woman reporter in the United States.

Bought Back Their Mines. For a consideration of $3,000,000 Ferdinand and William Schlessinger, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, have concluded the purchase from William Vanderbilt, of New York, and M. A. Hanna, of Cleveland, of the Chapin iron mine, near Iron Mountain, Mich., and the Menominee Transit Line, which includes six steamers engaged in the ore trade between Escanaba and Lake Erie ports. The Schlessingers were forced to dispose of the Chapin mine and the other properties to the Messrs. Vanderbilt and Hanna last year because of the stringency of the money market and are now obliged to pay a big bonus to get them back.

STRIKING MINERS FIGHT.

Attack the Captain and Superintendent who Fire on the Strikers.

The trammers, 100 in number, went on a strike at the Osceola mine at Calumet. The cause was a tyrannical foreman whom they wanted discharged, and a demand for six days' pay, for five shifts at night. The latter demand has been granted, but the latter is under advisement by the company.

At the Osceola mine last night the striking trammers Austrians and Poles, attempted to prevent the miners from going underground. Superintendent Daniels gave the strikers two minutes to leave the grounds or he would turn the hose on them. The strikers not going water was turned on. The strikers retaliated by throwing missiles at the captain. Captain Edwards then drew a revolver and fired at the strikers at short range. He then tried to reach the mine office, but it was surrounded by the mob. Captain Edwards again began firing, and Nick Verbanting and Anton Lachea were seriously but not fatally wounded. Superintendents Daniels and Watson retreated to the engine house, while Captain Edwards fled for his life. The wounded men were taken to the hospital and the mob kept the mine officials in the engine house nearly two hours.

AT BAY VIEW.

Forty-Five Instructors With Prof. Richard Ely at the Head.

The announcement a few weeks ago that Prof. Ely had been called to the head of the Bay View summer university, which is to open July 12, has directed attention to that place. Its exceptional high grade the past few years has been such that a recent article in the Review of Reviews ranks Bay View as the second, if not the first in the country. This year particularly it is developing to the highest standard. The University Review, a new Bay View publication just out with full announcements, gives a faculty of 45 instructors. The recent accessions are: Miss Martha L. Mann, who will teach botany, is a Wesleyan graduate, after which she studied sciences in the famous Switzerland university of Zurich. On her return home Colorado college tried her as instructor and was so well pleased that she was promptly offered a full professorship. Dr. Geo. S. Thomas, the Latin instructor graduated from the university of Virginia, then spent five years at the best German universities, taking Ph. D. in Latin at Leipzig. He then taught for some time in Fulane university, from whence he was called to the university of South Dakota.

Winks Will Not Count. Mayor Bement, City Attorney Hammon and Marshal Sanford of Lansing, held a protracted conference with all the liquor dealers of the city. The city attorney explained in detail the provisions of the liquor law and some time was spent in discussing them. Mayor Bement appealed to the dealers for their cooperation in enforcing the law and promised them that the violators thereof would be promptly prosecuted. As a result of the conference those dealers who will comply with the law will also aid the authorities in bringing illegal dispensers and violators to justice. Special attention will be given druggists who are susceptible to winks.

THE MARKETS.

Table with market prices for various goods like CATTLE, HOGS, SHEEP, LAMBS, WHEAT, etc.

NEW YORK, June 6.

Weekly Review of Trade. NEW YORK, June 6.--R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review: The tone of commercial reports from various parts of the country indicate that business has to some extent improved. Collections throughout the country are better, and excepting the bursting of a speculative corner in Chicago there has been no especial excitement of any kind in business. The fictitious price established for corn at Chicago lasted just long enough to bring into that market enough of the actual grain to buy the speculators, and the corner broke with great losses, not merely to the operators, but also to the brokers. Wheat has declined half a cent, the western receipts being unusually large, though the exports from the eastern ports have also been quite large. Oats are a shade lower, pork products unchanged, and oil a little lower. The stock of cotton in the country continues far beyond the record of years, and there is every reason to believe that even a great reduction in the yield will scarcely reduce the aggregate supply for the year below the quantity usually required for consumption. The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 207. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 224.

A June Snow-Storm.

Dispatches received say that a great snow-storm has been raging west of the Missouri River in South Dakota. At Deadwood snow fell freely for ten hours and lay on the ground to the depth of ten inches. Traffic is almost suspended and the temperature has fallen below the freezing point. Nothing of the sort has ever before occurred in June in the northwest in the history of the signal service.

The West Bay City board of education decided not to engage any new women as teachers during the next year.

RESCUE.

Temperature 87° in the shade on Monday. The elevation was so sudden, that it became dizzy and fell below 60° before sunset.

The late rains have had a bad effect on farmers putting in their late crops. Hardly any one has got their corn and potatoes planted.

We are informed that Charles Munroe, of Bad Axe, has taken the contract to build the M. E. Church, one and a half miles east of Rescue.

A young gentleman made his appearance in the family of David Foreman last week with the intention of remaining about 20 years. Cigars, Dave.

WICKWARE.

Are we going to have dry weather? Ed. Flint is getting ground ready for about 25 acres of beans.

The sawmill on Chas. Sackett's place is running in full blast.

Dibble and Ronson have a well 50 feet deep for Robert Oliver.

Mrs. W. Woydemeyer visited at Cass City Sunday and Monday.

John Hudson & Co. have finished Chas. Sackett's stone wall for his barn.

There was a large attendance at the People's Party Convention last week, there being over 100 delegates.

Miss Minnie Marshall returned home from Detroit last week where she has been working for the past few months.

S. Ostrander is preparing for a nice road fence. He set out about 1000 cedar and tamarack trees along the fence.

Ed. Cookingham and A. Wickware were in Sanilac Centre, June 2nd, attending the People's party Convention.

Boys That Are Not Wanted.

The pert boy who aims at being "smart," who has opinions more fixed than his seniors and loves to air them.

The impertinent boy, who mistakes impudence for self-possession, and takes rudeness for courage.

The "don't care" boy, who thinks that any kind of dress, manner and work is "good enough."

The "bye and bye" boy, who puts off till to-morrow what should be done today.

The "stylish boy," who takes to showy ties, flash watch chains and finger rings.

The "cigarette boy," who spends his money on what pollutes his breath, and will undermine his health.

The boy who hankers for pool rooms and billiard tables. He is in danger of graduating as a gambler or a thief.

The boy who sips beer and wine. He will soon go on to whisky, and glibbed eyes, and unsteady step, and probably a drunkard's grave.

The boy who breaks the Sabbath and his mother's commands. He is likely to end by breaking his mother's heart.

The boy who is dishonest in small things. He will soon be dishonest in large things, if he gets a chance.

Boys, look over the list.—If there is anything in you, like anything in it, put it away. Till you do, you will only be wanted to stay away.—[Forester.

NOTICE TO RESIDENTS.

The residents of Cass City are requested to remove from the alleys and from around their barns, all sources of filth, such as decayed vegetables and slops from the house, all manures, especially from the hog pen, and from the horse stable as well, if it has been thrown in a low place where water may collect and cause it to become a source of filth and injury to the public health. I would advise (for the prevention of contagious disease and for the public health and safety) that all the above nuisances be removed from the back yards and alleys and that water closets and other out-houses that may be a source of filth, be thoroughly cleaned out and disinfected. This should be done frequently during the hot summer.

P. L. FRITZ, Health Officer.

 Beneath the elm trees' arching shade,
 As gayly as the lovers arrayed,
 A little maid was straying,
 A boy, outside this paradise,
 Looked in with longing, hungry eyes,
 As if to join her playing.

At length she saw his earnest gaze,
 While springing down the grassy ways,
 "Poor boy, so sad and lonely,
 Take this," she whispered, low and meek,
 With lips close pressed against his cheek,
 "For I have kisses only."

Years passed away. The child of eight
 Became a maiden tall, sedate,
 With lovers in a plenty.
 Again she in the garden stood:
 Beside her, in a happy mood,
 Lingered a youth of twenty.

"Dear May," he said, with solemn face,
 "I trust myself to your kind grace,
 And humbly crave your pardon.
 I must return without delay
 A gift that you bestowed one day
 On me in this same garden.

"I've treasured it for many years,
 My ray of hope 'mid doubts and fears;
 I hope you never missed it."
 She turned her face in mute surprise
 To his; the rogue with smiling eyes
 Brought down and kissed it.

YOU WANT

A Spring Suit. You want one of unquestionable style or you don't. The don'ts are the ones we're after—after those who know what's newest and will take none other. They're the majority. Every store has some new things of course, else they'd lose confidence and custom, but we plume ourselves on being better than other stores—this spring especially. That's because there is no doubts as to what's new or what's old. Everything is Fresh, New and Stylish. Every store is reaching for the lion's share of the trade; every store gets what it deserves. We get the most because we deserve it. But this spring we deserve more than the most. Everybody should know that the best place to buy is where they keep Good Clothing and sell it cheap enough. You know what you can buy Overcoats for elsewhere, and yet you come here. What does it all mean? What else but that we're selling better Coats than the average at lower Prices than the average. We are likely to have all we can do after last weeks rush. See the Suits we are selling at $10, $12 and $15, and then compare. Its easy to decide then which is best.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive yet have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks.
Electric Bitters is the great alternative and Tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches, boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at Fritz Bros.' Drugstore, 50c. per bottle.

THE DETROIT EXPOSITION.

Many New and Interesting Features
This Year.

The Detroit International Fair and Exposition Association has appointed Mr. F. E.
Solham, of Pontiac, manager, and, guided by the past three years' experience, has decided upon changes and additional attractions, which will make this year's exposition (August 23 to September 2), not only superior to any previously held in Detroit, but superior in many respects to any yet held in the country.
One of the improvements which, as such as any other, is calculated to popularize this institution is a vast amphitheater, the arena of which is one-fifth of a mile in circumference and seating 40,000.

At one side of the bandstand, in the arena, cattle will be judged, on the opposite side draft horses, and in the outer circle saddle and harness horses. The Detroit Exposition has in previous years brought together the finest displays of stock ever seen in this country. There is every indication that this year's exhibition in that line will exceed any that have preceded it. With the method proposed for judging animals, the stock exhibits will be brought before thousands of people who have heretofore paid little attention to this important branch of the country's wealth. Instead, at stated hours daily, there will be a series of special attractions, such as the Roman Hippodrome, closed races with four horses driven abreast, midget chariot races, mule races over hurdles, athletic contests, illustration classes, increased with popular and classic music by the best bands in a great number of other attractions. The general admission to the grounds will also admit to the amphitheater, where, comfortably seated, all visitors can enjoy these varied attractions.

The races on the grounds will be not only a pleasant entertainment but an educational institution.
As one means to this end, the association will invite to the grounds in this country and Canada to address the people on subjects appropriate to each of the ten days. The main building will be utilized for speakers, and seats provided so that listeners can be seated within hearing of the speaker's voice.

The ground floor of the main building will be devoted exclusively to the exhibition of manufacturing in active operation. In previous exhibitions, this idea has been carried out to a limited extent and the crowds which gathered about these exhibits and varied attractions conducted furnished evidence of the intense interest which attaches to such exhibitions. This year will be greatly enlarged, so that visitors will have abundant opportunity to see the most complete and comprehensive display ufacturing in active operation.

Try Dullman's Great German 25 cent
Cough Cure at Fritz Bros.'

Pronounced Hopeless Yet Saved.
From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E.
Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my Lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption.
Four doctors gave me up saying,
I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colic. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman. Trial bottle free at Fritz Bros.' Drugstore, regular size 50 cts. and $1.00.

DRUNKENNESS, or LIQUOR HABIT
Cured at Home in Ten Days by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never fails. The system once impregnated with the specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. Cures guaranteed. 48 page book of particulars. Address the Great Western Co., 185 Race Street Cincinnati, Ohio.

Canboro school out on last Tuesday. Miss Emery gave good satisfaction.

One night last week a party was given at John Loum's by the young folks. All enjoyed themselves.

Mrs. A. Frasier was up in Oliver last Saturday and Sunday visiting her parents and returned home Monday.

Katy Evans has a fuchsia about a foot high and four small branches which has thirty buds, good many of them in full bloom.

Jacob Hartsell is making some decided improvements in building posts and wire fence and the posts have 2 x 4 scantling spiced on top.

James Pryke from near Cass City was up to C. B. Doty's lumber camp in Oliver, on Tuesday last, after a load of fencing boards for C. D. Striffler, of Cass City.

Some one has been kicking against the free delivery wagons, of Rescue. Gentleman, don't be envious because there is some one in Rescue to compete with Cass City. Canboro does not come into this ring.

ELLINGTON.

How is this for June.
Henry B. Dunn is painting his house this summer.

Walter Geron has the handsomest piece of peas to be seen.

W. J. Campbell, of Cass City, was in Ellington Thursday.

Wheat, oats and barley bid fair for a heavy crop at present.

A few days more and a large amount of wheat will be heading out.

Children's Day was observed in the Ellington M. E. Church Sunday.

Miss Eva Hutchinson, of Caro, was home at her parents over Sunday.

Master Norman Hunt, of Caro, was visiting friends in Ellington over Sunday.

A large number of Ellington citizens were in Caro on business last Saturday.

Miss Ida E. Clay was home from Caro visiting over Sunday, returning Monday.

H. A. Bailey & Son have been sawing shingles at their mill for about a week now.

Wm. A. Bailey returned from his trip to Saginaw, Bay City, and Bay Shore, Sunday night.

William A. Bailey and Alajah Gray took a trip to Saginaw on business this week Thursday.

Sheep shearing is going on and in a few days more that business will be finished for this season.

Slade Lazello has had another piece of post and rail fence built over, which finishes for the present.

A case of scarlet fever was reported by Dr. Hanson, of Caro, at Sylvester Montague's last Saturday.

Andrew Caspell was in Cass City Wednesday and Thursday working some upon his lots improving them.

John Dietz has purchased McMillen's woven wire fencing enough to put up a nice fence along the front yard.

H. A. Bailey, who had his hand badly cut in his mill while using the wrench some time ago, is improving, but not able to use it yet.

J. A. White has had built over this spring between 360 and 40 hundred rods of post and rail fence upon his farm making it look better.

J. H. Moshier was engaged several days last week using his sprayer spraying the neighbor's fruit trees to protect them from injury.

J. H. Moshier is making a drain along the roadside, which he will cover along in front of his house and try to get some of the water out of the way.

J. H. Moshier and some others contemplated taking a trip to Saginaw Bay, Friday, to try their luck fishing. Success to them in their sport.

Floyd Turner has returned home from Valparaiso, Ind., after spending the fall, winter and spring at school in that place. He is well satisfied with the time he has spent there.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Botsford, of Sanilac county, who have been visiting with their daughters, Mrs. J. W. Ostrander and Mrs. J. A. White for some weeks, returned home Thursday.

Slade Lazello and Walter Geron each have a nice field of corn—the earliest and the best; also each have a handsome piece of wheat. There are also many other good pieces of wheat in Ellington.

DEFORD.

Some corn planted this past week.
B. Gemmill has moved out of town.

The dance, which was to take place at Mr. Allen's on the evening of June 3rd, was postponed on account of rain until last Friday, June 9th. It was a grand affair.

George Martin lost his brood mare last Saturday. She was taken suddenly ill and died in about two hours. He is trying the experiment of raising a three-weeks-old colt on cows milk and sugar.

The Caro Democrat gives an account of Crosby's sail from Cass City to Caro. The island that he discovered above Caro, inhabited by Laliputions, will no doubt stir all lovers of adventure to the very depths of their souls.

J. R. Lewis had a bee on the 27th. His new lot was brushed and would be lodged if the ox teams had come. J. R. is a prominent member of the church and we were surprised to see but one brother lending a helping hand. We have learned to pay more attention to what a man really is than what he professes to be.

It has been demonstrated that ten hours hard labor out of twenty-four, is enough, and if we do any more we do it at the cost of health. Now if I work a hired man for fifteen hours a day, knowing this fact, am I honest? Which is the greater wrong, to steal a man's money or rob him of his health? If we should drop a man through these long days from sunrise 'till dark and then ask God to bless our work, make up your mind we have stole a drummer's cheek somewhere and cashed it over again.

The news from Well's township for the past six months has recorded from two to four marriages each week. Determined to find the cause of so much taunting we hooked old "Yaller" to the gig last week and circumnavigated the noted district. When fairly across the boundary line the reason was plain. "What are you going to put in there?" "Buckwheat." "What did you raise here last year?" "Buckwheat." "What will you raise in the next field?" "Buckwheat." Such were the answers to our inquiries. Buckwheat, the greatest heat producing food in the world. It warms the blood and calls for harmonious sociality. Had the plant have grown in the garden, the poetic thought could near been expressed, "In Eden's first law there was no evolution."

The days of natural gas are numbered. The supply was greatest two years ago, and though new discoveries have been made since, some even of these have failed within that time.

THEY of Jerusalem abide with us ever—they who, having eyes, yet see not; they who, having understanding, do not comprehend the fact and truths before them.

The worst of calm philosophy is, that it reduces life to a dead level. If we are not hurt, neither are we pleased; if we do not weep, we do not smile; and many would rather choose the two tropical extremes than take temperate and the middle course.

It is claimed that a bullet from a new small calibre rifle will pass completely through a tree and kill the man who has concealed himself behind it, and will also shoot six men standing one behind another, so that it behooves the army desiring to win to begin shooting first and shoot pretty straight.

Boston is privileged to wear about its neck the phylactery of culture that shall ward off all the hated evils of intellectual immaturity, but so protected from the contagion of material and unesthetic minds it should the more courageously and charitably go forth into the world to discover if perchance the Perian graces have not found somewhere else a spot to rest them and a people to bless in some measure.

CANADA acts on the customary English idea that all the advantages are and should be on her side, and other people be made to contribute to her prosperity and greatness. She sticks to her tolls on American vessels passing through the Welland and Caughnawaga canals, forgetful of the fact that if we put similar tolls on Canadian vessels passing through the Sault Ste. Marie and St. Clair Flats, which have cost the United States a great deal more money than she has expended on her canals, her vessel-owners would find themselves in a bad way for profits.

THERE is a marked demand from all sections of the country for better roads. An observant writer attributes this in no small measure to the extending use of that ingenious vehicle, the bicycle. If the supposition be correct civilization will owe much to the inventor of the phenomenon that stands upright when it would naturally fall over.

THERE are other interests in this world quite as valuable as those that are measured by dollars and cents, and if we will only turn to the consideration of these interests it may perhaps reconcile us to the cost of the European exodus. Art and literature and learning, wider experience of men and countries and governments, closer contact with varied civilizations and with the results of centuries of the world's best endeavor—these are some of the commodities which the transatlantic contingent gets in return for its money.

TABERNACLE PULPIT.

TALMAGE PREACHES ON THE NEW RECRUITS

Who Have Put on the Armor in his Fold-Farewell Sermon Before his Departure for the Land of the Nihilist and Czars.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 12, 1892.—Dr. Talmage preface his sermon this morning with a statement to the effect that he would sail on Wednesday next for Europe and might be able to be present at the distribution in the famine-stricken districts of Russia of the Christian Herald relief cargo, consisting of 3,000,000 pounds of flour and other supplies which goes out this week on the steamship Leo, chartered for the purpose.

There is in this text a great rattle of shields, and helmets, and swords. Soldiers are getting ready for battle. We have had recently in this church new enlistments and I shall address myself to those in this and other churches who are putting on the armor of God, and who may feel themselves to be as yet only raw recruits.

It is claimed that a bullet from a new small calibre rifle will pass completely through a tree and kill the man who has concealed himself behind it, and will also shoot six men standing one behind another, so that it behooves the army desiring to win to begin shooting first and shoot pretty straight. The beauties of arbitration are also brought to the front by the gun in a way not to be easily overlooked.

My first word of counsel is, hold before your soul a very high model. Do not say, "I wish I could pray like that man, or speak like this man, or have the consecration of this one." Say: "Here is the Lord Jesus Christ, a perfect pattern. By that I mean, with God's grace, to shape all my life." In other words you will never be any more a Christian than you strive to be.

When the war-vessel of Christ's Church comes into glory bringing its crew and its passengers, it will not come in like a North River yacht, beautifully painted and adorned, swinging into the boathouse after a pleasure excursion. Oh, no. It will be like a vessel coming with a heavy cargo from China or India, the marks of the wave and the hurricane upon it—sails rent, riggings spliced, pumps all working to keep her afloat, bulwarks knocked away.

Yet They Perform Many Feats that Are Difficult in the Extreme—Bending Backward the Most Difficult of All Feats.

You can't bend bones, but you can stretch cartilages. That is where a great many people who go to see a contortionist twist and bend himself out of all semblance to the human form divine are misled. The human snake, the living corkscrew, the man with the rubber bones,

Of all contorting, back bending or turning backward and twisting the body out of shape is the most difficult. Forward bending is comparatively easy, because the backbone is constructed so as to bend forward naturally.

Forward bending is done with the performer standing on his feet or with a portion of his body lying on the floor. To be a good backward bender a man must also be a good hand balancer, because the best and most difficult work is done by bending while the weight of the body rests on the hands.

Teeth balancing. But even that, which as you readily see is quite difficult, requires no bending of the arms or legs, although these members seem to be twisted out of all shape.

The most difficult thing to do that I know of is what I call my teeth balancing act. It is the only one which causes me any inconvenience afterward, and that is so slight and momentary as to be hardly worth noticing.

A strong iron rod is fastened upon a pedestal, which must stand firmly on its legs. The least tremble might result in throwing me over and breaking my neck. The termination of the rod is bent to an angle of about thirty degrees, and the end is covered with leather, so as to be comparatively soft for my teeth.

I stand on the pedestal and bend backward over the rod until my hands touch the pedestal behind me. That is, I simply "bend the crab." Then I grip the leather-covered end with my teeth and gradually lower my body by bending my knees until the small of my back rests upon the crown of my head.

THE ERIE CANAL.

Some Facts Which Go to Prove its Great Value to the Country.

Although, on account of the practice of vessels going "up" light, only about 30,299,000 tons of freight were transported during the season of 1890, they were carried an average distance of five hundred and sixty-six miles; so that, multiplying the tons carried by the distance in miles, we have more than seventeen thousand million ton-miles, or a freight distribution equal to almost one-fourth of the ton-mileage of all our railroads.

As the government has appropriated not quite $30,000,000 for the improvement of the great lakes, their harbors, and the rivers that run into them, the people of this country received through the cheapened distribution made possible by this expenditure, in the single year of 1890, four and a half times the total cost of the improvements; or, to state the advantages of this improved water-way in another way, the cost of lake freights was six and one-half per cent of the value of the goods transported; whereas if they had been transported at the average charge for railroad freight, the cost would have been fully forty-six per cent of their value.

ROME ON THE DECLINE.

Decay of Most of the Princely Families of the Old Empire.

The great Roman Princely families are ruined. Prince Sciarra is almost a bankrupt. He secretly sold his pictures against his will. Louis, Prince di Borghese, lives in the country, his whole fortune, which is inalienable, consisting of 12,000, when formerly the income of the Borghese family was 1,000, a day.

The fortunes of the bourgeoisie are also diminishing. Seven hundred Roman families sold their horses and carriages in 1891; 600 did the same thing in the preceding year.

Besides, property in Rome is losing its value. Numerous old houses, because they have no tenants, can no longer pay their taxes, and especially is this true of the new quarter.

"LAUGH A LITTLE BIT."

Here's a motto, just your fit:
Laugh a little bit.
When you think you're trouble-hit,
Laugh a little bit.

"ON THE BAY."

Leading her pretty bay a few hundred feet from the road, then to a little hillcock, Edna Grant flung one arm carelessly around her horse's neck and gazed slowly about. She drew in deep breaths of the crisp morning air, and noted with a keen, silent sort of pleasure, the signs of approaching spring.

Edna was a gay, spirited girl, but at times, in solitude, her love of nature threw a glow of sombre enthusiasm over her face instead of the usual levity.

Edna closed her eyes, pressed her hand over them and leaned in a subdued attitude with her face on her horse's neck.

"Life—Death! Life—Death! Such is the burden of human breath, came in the deep bass of a manly voice, so near that she started violently and opened her eyes.

"Why can I never be alone for an instant but that you must come to annoy me?" she exclaimed.

"I wish you would follow his example then," said she, spitefully. "I could not lie," he retorted; "I am not built that way!

"That only adds another to the list of sweet names that, out of the fullness of your amiability, you have bestowed on me. 'Wicked wizard,' that is not so bad—'W. W.' it reminds me of an inscription on an old tombstone—

"Here lies W. W., Who will nevermore trouble you, trouble you."

"I wish you would follow his example then," said she, spitefully. "I could not lie," he retorted; "I am not built that way!

her. "I think I love Alphonso and he wildly adores me. Just think of those lovely, luminous eyes of his and that darling curly mustache. He is really irresistible."

"Yet, my sweet child, you are worthy of the love of the best man living, but I am somewhat of a physiognomist, and I do not feel the enthusiastic confidence in your cavalier that I could admire. You are known, dear, as my heiress, and I fear that Alphonso is attracted by the golden bait."

"You are cruel, unjust, unkind," sobbed the girl; "he worships me. I am sure no mercenary thought ever entered his head. You ought to hear the beautiful, poetical way he talks to me."

"Put him to the test, Edna, and if he proves true, then I will be the first to interest myself in his advancement."

"How shall I do it?" questioned the girl. "I will follow your advice, but for my own part I will not wrong him by the shadow of a doubt."

"No—I think not," said he, pretending to hesitate, but the quick gleam of interest that leaped to his eyes belied his tone.

"I am rejoiced to hear you take it so lightly," returned her aunt tenderly. "I think your vanity rather than your heart is hurt."

"I will do it just to satisfy you," answered Edna indifferently, "though I have as little faith in him as in his medicine."

"So it happened, during the doctor's next visit, after some of the usual wordy warfare that Edna repeated her little formula and added that she would like to be independent, and meant to look about her for something to do. Could he help her to find a position?"

"I might take a place as lady's maid, a child's governess, or possibly that of companion."

"What would be necessary?" asked Edna, in a voice fairly trembling with suppressed mirth and a little anger.

"In the first place, the person I refer to is subject to various moods. Could you play gay, solemn or plaintive music to charm the different humors?"

strength, is that you love him a little."

He held out his hand to her with a look of love so intense and passionate that Edna almost staggered before it, and her heart thrilled strangely in response.

"The man stood patient and motionless. Minute after minute passed, till at last Edna moved. Advancing, she placed both hands in his, and, with a tender smile illuminating her face, whispered: 'Take me.'"

OUR SOUTHERN NEIGHBORS.

Civilization, Development and Culture Compare Well With Ours. The South American systems of education have been framed upon the plan of ours, and in several of them even more radical measures have been adopted to increase the intelligence of the people.

In this way the difference between the civil and the natural year will not amount to a day in 5,000 years. This is called the Gregorian Calendar, and is in use in all civilized lands, with the exception of Russia, Greece, Roumania, and the minor countries belonging to the Greek confession, where they adhere to the old style.

THE EFFECT OF CLOTHES.

It Is Much Better Than the Effect of No Clothes. Two men were watching a parade of uniformed men from the window of a hotel.

"I understand that vaccination is going out of practice and is not so popular as it was."

REMNAN STAND RARITIES.

It is a fact that the production of Ceylon tea has increased from 100,000 pounds in 1875 to 68,000,000 pounds in 1891.

A superstition of this kind is current. Anyone that has an empty purse should be careful that the moon does not shine in it, or else that purse will not have anything in it as long as the moon doth last.

Smelts are so abundant in the waters at Castle Rock, Ore., that a fisherman standing on the shore with a scoop net is able to dip out in a few minutes more than he can carry away.

She Tried Them. Mrs. Young Husband: "Dear, you will have to give me $10 extra this week." Mr. Young Husband: "Why, Clara! Did I not give you the necessary amount $18? That is $8 a day."

THE YEAR.

How the Present Calendar Was Arranged and Adopted. Originally the Romans are said to have had a year of ten months but in the time of their kings they adopted a lunar year of 355 days divided into twelve months, with an extra month occasionally inserted.

Cesar also gave to the months the number of days which they still have. For a long time this style of reckoning prevailed among Christian nations, and remained undisturbed until the renewed accumulation of the remaining error of 11 minutes or so had amounted in 1582 years after the birth of Christ, to 10 complete days.

To remedy the trouble, Pope Gregory XII. ordained that ten days should be deducted from the year 1582, by calling what would have been reckoned the 5th of October the 15th of October, 1582; and in order that the displacement might not recur, it was further ordained that every hundredth year (1800, 1900, 2100, etc.) should not be counted a leap year, excepting every fourth hundredth, beginning with 2000.

This is the only change that has been made since the days of the illustrious Julius Caesar.

A Point in Euchre.

"I met two nice gentlemen on the car yesterday," said Miss Esmeralda Longoofin to Dudley Canesucker.

A Serious Fault.

"What a little delicious vase. It is very old, isn't it?" "No, madam, it was made recently."

Sett Takes.

"I understand that vaccination is going out of practice and is not so popular as it was."

WHY A SUBSCRIBER OF THIS PAPER COULD NOT PAY HER SUBSCRIPTION.

WHITE HALL, ILL., May 2, 1892. DEAR SIR:—I am sorry that I have not been able to keep my subscription paid up on my paper, the AKRON CITY TIMES, more promptly than I have in the last year.

"How does it happen that the Rev. Worldly performs the marriage ceremony for so many old maids?" "Oh, he always asks them in an audible tone if they are of age, and they all like him."

The emperor and empress of Russia, we are told, not merely superintending, but they direct the education of their children. It is not many years ago that the young grand dukes were punished by being deprived of their pudding after dinner for any slight mistake; and if ever they lost a pencil they were taken to task for such an act of negligence.

A piece of evidence some time back in a Quebec breach-of-promise case was a cuff with an offer of marriage written on it. One night, while the defendant was holding the plaintiff's hand and whispering fervid words, he popped the question on the smooth linen at her wrist. She was sentimental or shrewd enough to keep the article out of the wash.

FUN AND FOLLY.

When a man is rapped in slumber it's generally apt to wake him up. Somehow it is awfully hard to believe that a hero can be made of the man next door.

"I hear that Jiggins has a new phonograph." "Yes, I don't wonder at it. No man could do the amount of talking he does and keep it up without help."

"First Physician—"Did old Coupon's case yield to your treatment?" "Second Physician—"It did. I treated it for six months, and it yielded something like a hundred guineas."

"Ambitious Mamma—"Edith, I noticed last night that Mr. De Rich paid you considerable attention. I hope you showed him a proper amount of civility." "Ingenuous Debutante—"Oh, yes, mamma, I did! I'm sure he knows he can have me for the asking."

ABOUT THE SIZE OF IT.

A ton of gold is worth $600,000. A Bank of England note measures five inches by eight inches. A Georgia shoemaker has made for the use of a customer a pair of shoes with soles fourteen inches long and five and one-half inches wide.

An old restaurant bill, printed in Richmond in January, 1864, gives the following war-time prices in Confederate money: Soup, $1.50; chicken, $3.50; roast beef, $3; ham and eggs, $3; raw oysters, $2; coffee, $2; bread and butter, $1.50; a bottle of champagne, $50; a drink of rye whisky, $2; a bottle of ale, $12, and a cigar, $2.

The above picture contains four faces, the man and his three daughters. Anyone can find the man's face, but it is not so easy to distinguish the faces of the three young ladies.

The proprietors of FORD'S PRIZE PILLS will give an elegant Gold Watch to the first person who can make out the three daughters' faces; to the second will be given a pair of genuine Diamond Ear-Rings; to the third a handsome Silk Dress Pattern, 16 yards in any color; to the fourth a Gold Silver Watch, and many other prizes in order of merit.

The world is never interested in a man who talks about his wrongs, or a woman who talks about her rights.

In Germany the law makes servants give a month's notice before leaving. The mistress must give similar notice before a discharge.

He: "Don't you think women ought to have the right to propose?" She: "And give the men the right of refusing? No, indeed! The ideal!"
