Springfield, Mo. April 2, 1893. Messrs Lippman Bros. Sayona, Ga. Gentlemen:—

I commenced taking P. P. P. (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium) last fall for Erysipelas. My face was completely covered with the disease, and I took a short course of P. P. P., and it soon disappeared. This spring I became very much debilitated and again took another course, and I am now in good condition. I consider P. P. P., one of the best blood preparations on the market, and for those who are needing a general tonic for building up the system improving the appetite I consider it has no equal. Will say, any one who is appointed in its results, and I therefore cheerfully recommend it.

Many towns throughout Michigan have suffered by the high winds on Tuesday. At Holly the opera house was unroofed and many smaller buildings damaged. Cass City escaped.

We are pleased to announce that Prof. C. F. Ruttinger has accepted the proposition of the school board, and will accordingly act in the capacity of principal of our schools for the next year, at least.

By the time this week's issue is in the hands of our readers, the ENTERPRISE will be "all torn up" as it were. We are moving to our new quarters in the Deming block, and to facilitate matters go to press one day earlier than usual.

In figuring up expenses at Chicago, it is found that they will somewhat exceed a daily average of $80,000 for the 133 days from May 1 to Nov. 1. This will require 160,000 daily admissions, which is about four times the average up to date.

The P. O. & N. gravel train has been making improvements on the road between this place and Owendale for the past two weeks. The crew, which is under the foremanship of Wm. Griegware, has been boarding at different places in town.

Our readers will kindly overlook all shortcomings in the ENTERPRISE this week. We are moving and receiving our new machinery, type, etc., and "all hands" are rushed. We hope to be in good shape for business within two weeks.

Chas. Legg, who left his home at Kingston last January and entered the employ of the M. C. Ry. as brakeman, was run over and killed while coupling cars at Grayling last week Thursday. His funeral and burial occurred at Kingston on Sunday.

Attorney Brooker will occupy the present sanctum of the ENTERPRISE over the Exchange Bank, besides his present quarters. The two rooms will be connected by a double arched doorway, and they will make a decidedly pleasant, as well as commodious, law office.

A big "hald-headed" piano swindle is being worked in various parts of Michigan these days. It is always safe to trade with a duly accredited agent of some well known house, and always dangerous to sign a paper for an unknown man, representing an unknown house.

An old rickety fence around a residence spoils the appearance of it, no matter how much money or time you spend in painting the building and beautifying the grounds. The old thing down. It's like a man dressing in his best suit of clothes and letting his boots go without blacking.

For a long time Amos Hill, of Unionville, has shown symptoms of insanity and lately they have assumed a horrid phase, and his relatives regard him so dangerous that on Wednesday he was brought to Caro and lodged in the county jail. He will probably be taken to the Pontiac asylum.—Advertiser.

A small blaze was discovered in the dry hemlock wood in the grist mill yard last Saturday, and was extinguished before much headway was gained. This is the way the big Saginaw fire started. If Cass City should have a million and a half fire, it would be several years before she could fully recover. We cannot be too careful.

ADVERTISED LETTERS—The following is a list of advertised letters remaining in the postoffice at Cass City, Mich., for the week ending May 20, 1893: Lewis Watterworth, Miss Abnett Mattoon and Miss Lexie McClellan, [?]. When calling for any of the above please say it is advertised;

"How is it with you?" asked a Western editor of a subscriber who was dying in arrears for the paper. "All looks bright before me," gasped the subscriber. "I thought so," remarked the man of the quill, "in about ten minutes you'll see her obituary," and he returned to his office and coolly wrote, "gone where overcoats are not needed," across another name on his subscription list.

A law suit was recently held before a certain Justice in this county, not a thousand miles from Caro. An ex-soldier appeared as a witness, and the following conversation took place: "Hold up your right arm," said the Justice. "Can't do it." "Why not?" "Got shot in that arm." "Then hold up your left." "Can't do that neither—got shot in 'tother one too." "Then hold up your leg. No man can be sworn in this court without holding something up."

Master Glenn Marr has a narrow escape from a horrible death on Friday afternoon. The little fellow had been playing in the yard, and in some manner fell head first down a hole in the ground about four feet deep, which had been dug for a post. It was impossible for him to extricate himself, and owing to the fact that his head and face was partially buried in the loose dirt at the bottom of the hole, he could make but little noise. However, his older brother, Orrin, who was in search of him, was attracted to the spot by faint sounds, and effected his rescue. Had Master Glenn been forced to remain in this position much longer, he would have undoubtedly smothered to death. He cannot be induced to go within five rods of a post hole now.

The justice court jag bill which has passed the Senate provides that when frequenters of booze bazaars indulge in thirst eradicators until they become drunk, the justice of the peace before whom they are brought to answer to this offense may require recognition in the sum of $100 that they will take the gold cure treatment for intoxication at some regular incorporated institution and continue such treatment at least three months. Furthermore, the person is to refrain from drinking for at least ninety days. If he fulfills the conditions of the bond, he is to be acquitted and discharged; if he fails to appear in sixty days and report progress, the bond is forfeited and his surety pays over the $100 for his experience in uprisings fallen humanity. It is shown that he has not kept the conditions of the recognition, then a trial is to proceed just as if jag cures had not been in existence.

The absolute necessity of having our streets sprinkled is again very apparent, especially to our business men. Only the other evening, at the close of a windy storm, one of our most prominent business men remarked that he believed his goods had been damaged ten dollar's worth by the dust which blew down Main street in perfect clouds during the day. The old method of sprinkling the streets is considered impractical and inadequate. The plan considered most feasible by many who have given the subject consideration, is the placing of a large tank at some of our mills, or some other place where power can be employed in pumping the water into the tank, and the providing of a modern sprinkler. This expense, it is thought, should be borne by the village, and the cost of man and team by the business firms along the streets that are sprinkled, in proportion to the amount they are benefited thereby. We hope that this matter will be considered by our village legislators at an early date. We are confident that our business men will do their part.

Editor ENTERPRISE:—

Sir: In your issue of the 19th of May, the Owendale items, refer to the case of a child at John Chisholm's, where his three children died, that they were great carelessness on the part of health officer. Now as the old saying is, "The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof," the fact that the disease did not spread where there were four houses within a few rods of the infected township, but to six children, as you shows for itself that the case was well handled. I would like to know where your Owendale reporter got his information. There was no fault found on my part by the physician in attendance or by any member of the board of health.

MALCOLM McDONALD, Health Officer.

Proprietors P. P. P.

It becomes my duty to add my testimony to what you have published in your issue of May 19th, 1893, in your issue of P. P. P. (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium) Some years ago I bruised my ankle on my saddlestirrup, from a little scratch the place began to enlarge until it was as large as the palm of my hand, discharging pus and exposing part of the bone. I called to see several different kinds without any permanent relief. I resolved to try P. P. P., which I did. After using one bottle the result was such I continued until the sixth bottle was used when my rubber supporter was not further required as the sore was completely healed and the swelling entirely gone. I therefore derive pleasure in saying to the public generally that it is my belief from actual experience that the use of P. P. P. if properly persisted in will cure any case of impure blood or blood poisoning.

Respectfully,
Prof. B. F. Hickory, Postmaster.

I, the undersigned know Prof. Hickory at the time he commenced to take P. P. P. for his sore leg, and I did not think a cure possible. I noticed its progress from the start, and must say the remarkable cure P. P. P. brought about was something marvelous.

It will be some time before the real estate boom goes out of business for want of material to work upon. A Gorman professor estimates that 1,700,000 square miles of the earth's surface are unoccupied.

HERE is an argument in favor of learning something. The number of prisoners locked up in fourteen of the Western and Middle states is 110,538, and of this vast number of offenders but one-sixth know how to read.

PADEWEWSKI sailed for home with 180,000 American dollars in his pockets. He would have to mail a piano about 500 years in Europe to obtain that much money, and it never will be a surprise to him to learn that the gold-brick man flourishes in the United States.

A New York woman willed $500 for the sustenance, education and happiness of four cats dear to her heart. Comment upon her judgment as to the felines is hampered by the fact that she is dead now. But she certainly shows excellent judgment in the latter respect.

A PECULIAR weekly recently made the following statement: "To be born of water is to come into knowledge of divine scientifics, through the application of which the new immortal body is structured." It is not too much to say that this thought would never have occurred to the average mind, and possibly had it occurred, would never have been recognized as a thought.

The spelling reform has struck France where it is as much needed as among English-speaking people. Hyphens are to be abolished in such compounds as "cau-de-voie," and apostrophes in such words as "entr'aides." The French claim they will spell foreign words as foreigners pronounce them, so that "break" will hereafter be spelled "b'rece," and "spoon," "s'pline."

The brother of the empress of Germany, Prince Ernst Guenther, who has promised to treat the people of Chicago with his gracious presence this summer, is said to be able to give the record of the prodigal son many points to spare. The Kaiser recently paid Prince Ernst Guenther's debts of honor, amounting to $125,000, and then banished him from his favorite Berlin haunts to Silesia, where he is to remain a prisoner until he starts for America. The Kaiser also deprived him of his position in the army. It is said the brother-in-law has been "mutton" for every one of his boon companions.

ALL the landed interests of Great Britain are bound to be arrayed against the evicted tenants bill. It provides that when arbitration fails, the land commissioner who is to be appointed shall fix reasonable terms on which the delinquent tenant may purchase the holding and liquidate the arrears of rent. This means that the passage and enforcement of the measure will result in cutting up the vast estates of the landlords into small independent holdings and seriously curtail the power and influence of the present land proprietors. But it means, on the other hand, the greater advancement and contentment of the actual producer and increased prosperity of the country at large.

It ought to become the obligation of every orchestral leader, holding a public place, at least in this country to make the national air an indispensable part of every formal public program. It should be heard in every theater, either at the close of a performance or, still better, between acts. Objection to playing it at the close is that many persons are obliged to hurry away to take trains and they will be put in the humiliating role of seeming to disrespect it. "The Star Spangled Banner" should be heard as often as possible; it should be cheered on every occasion. When played ceremoniously the people should rise to cheer it and should remain standing until it be finished.

The library of Americana collected at a supposed cost of $30,000 by George Brinley, of Hartford, who died in 1877, has finally been closed out at auction, netting $127,800. Among the rare specimens in this library 129 numbers of the Hartford Courant published between 1765 and 1788. They sold for $70. The first chart of Boston said to have cost Mr. Brinley $7.50 sold for $810 and Yale college bought six annual volumes of the New London Gazette paying $78 each for them. The place to sell Americana is in the East. Mr. Brinley's library would scarcely have brought the first cost in the West, where, alas, there is too much tendency to measure the contents of a library case with a foot-rule.

The distressing computation is made that the human system contains 10,000,000 nerves. What is the use of letting the nervous man know that he is really about ten times worse off than he thought? There will be no living with him if he finds out the real gravity of his condition.

ONE astonishing truth has recently escaped from privacy. It is that there are offices within the gift of Uncle Sam that are not in demand. This is probably because their existence is not generally known.

POLITICAL ECONOMY LESSON.

The City of Philadelphia and the People's Rights.

When you have your big town, some one must own the land and the houses. If a few own them, the many will not like it. They ought not to like it. In a city where everything is right, every family will own something. This will not come about unless the laws are right. The laws are not good unless bread is cheap, unless men have skill in their work, and are of saving habits, and unless land is cheap, the city plan good, and wrong-doers are locked up at once. But all these things will not bring about the right city, in which most people own something, unless the laws make it easy for a man who works with his hands to buy the house he lives in. If a man owns that, he will care more about looking after his home than about making a row because somebody else is richer than he is.

This row is what the older people call the "social question," says St. Nicholas. Now, a man who owns the house he lives in does not want to make a row. He is too busy taking care of his house. You cannot make a rioter out of that man. He is a "capitalist." He will never be a turbulent striker. He is, in the best sense of the word, independent. Riches are worth what they give. The best things that they can give are comfort and security. The man who owns the house he lives in has these. In Philadelphia any industrious, saving man can own his house before he dies; and more such men own houses than do not. Philadelphia is the only city in the world in which this is true. This is the biggest and best thing which can be said of any city.

The law in Philadelphia has made this easy, in the first place, by separating the owning of the ground on which the house is built and the owning of the house which stands on the ground. This is done by what are called fixed "ground-rents." A ground-rent is paid for the use of the ground independent of the house which stands on it. In Philadelphia, a ground-rent once fixed by the man who first sells use of the land cannot be changed and lasts forever. A ground-rent does not grow if the ground gets to be worth more; it stays the same. If the ground and house get to be worth more, the man who owns the ground-rent does not benefit by this, but the man who owns the house; Practically, when a house is bought under this plan, only the house is bought—the land is paid for by a fixed yearly sum which cannot be added to.

The law did this. This is one step. The next must be a desire to save money, and ability to use it after it is saved. This is done in Philadelphia by savings-banks, which depositors themselves manage, in order to get together the money for each to pay for a house. When you and 10,000 other persons put your pennies in a savings-bank, they make many dollars. These dollars are taken by those in charge of the savings-bank and lent to men who pay interest. This interest is finally paid to you, less the cost of taking care of the money.

Slept Fifty-seven Years. Irving's "Rip Van Winkle" is believed to have its foundation in the wonderful story which Pliny relates concerning the extraordinary experience of a shepherd named Epimenides. The scene is laid in Crete; the time summer, and Epimenides a boy of some 15 years. During the very warmest part of the day he found that some of the sheep were missing, and at about the same time heard prolonged beatings from the almost inaccessible portions of a neighboring mountain. He grasped his crook and started off in the direction of the sounds. The path was a very difficult one to travel over, the day hot, so that long before he reached the stray sheep he was so overcome with fatigue that he lay down in a dry place in a cool cavern to sleep. He slept, so Pliny gravely informs us, 57 years. At last, when he had finally managed to shake off the terrible lethargy that had held him spellbound for more than half a century, he returned to the herd only to find a brother younger than himself a tottering, gray-haired grandfather. That "ill-wind" proverb is very appropriate in this case, for we find that Epimenides' enforced slumbers had endowed him with marvellous powers. He became a great epic poet and Gnostic philosopher, and even defied death itself for nearly three centuries, not dying until he had celebrated his 285th birthday.—St. Louis Republic.

She Hopeful.
There's a young man in Detroit who persists in paying attention to a girl who would very much prefer that he would not liquidate in the aforesaid manner.

"Ah," he said to her the other morning, meeting her on the street, "I was at the theater last night and saw you at a distance."
"Yes," she answered sweetly, "I hope I shall see you often that way."

A Declaration.
"Pop," said Willie, one Fourth of July morning, "is it a noble thing to be independent?"
"Yes, my son. It is the only tolerable state to be in."
"Then you and mom can go to thunder. I'm runnin' me to-day."

Heavens.
Shyest of nature's brood,
Retreating to the wood,
Just at its edge a refuge have ye found;
Like partridge chicks in flight,
Keeping yourself from sight
Under the dry leaves covering the ground.

Ye would not shrink so much
From our fond sight and touch
If only our heart's feelings could be known;
We wait with watching eyes
To mark your mild surprise
That, coming early, ye come not alone.

The blood red yesterday
Came flying home this way.
He piped his very sweet song to you;
In fullest faith and love
We are now here to prove
That bluebird's prophecy shall turn out true.

We push the leaves away,
And there in silken gray
Has nature tenderly wrapped up your form;

Open for us your eyes,
Look to the April skies,
Blue as in summer after heavy storms.

Within the opening lid
A thought of blue is hid,
A memory of heavens watched long ago;
A dream ye fondly kept
Of all that long night ye slept
Beneath the downy coverlets of snow.

Bernhardt Preparing for Another Tour.
Sarah Bernhardt is soon to start around the world a second time on a six months' tour, playing in the South American cities. She gave a soiree in her Parisian studio recently, which is fitted up with Turkish couches, skins of wild beasts for carpets, rare stuffs and curios, and tall palms growing out of rare vases, which a Russian adventurer had brought from Persia, where a pair of young lynxes and a vicious little wolf puppy, always showing its white fangs, roam about, not exactly to the comfort of the guests. Sarah wore on this occasion classic draperies of white foulard silk, and with her increased flesh and glowing color, was, according to the Parisian judgment, altogether a different type from the delicate woman she was on the evening on which Victor Hugo dropped, by way of a tear, a diamond into her hand.

The Law and the Ladies.
Mrs. Leonard Weber, who has been the founder and the leading spirit in establishing the Woman's Legal Education Society in connection with New York University, is a firm believer in the study of law for women, even if it is never employed save in the administration of the affairs of the household. If one questions her as to whether she thinks women could manage their clients she smiles brightly and answers, with the slight accent that betrays her Hungarian nativity, "They manage their husbands." Mrs. Weber is a delicate woman, quite an invalid much of the time, but she accomplishes a great amount of philanthropic work, and is keenly interested in the progress of women. She is a small woman, with turned brown tints in the dark hair and a bright, attractive face of pronounced foreign type.

The Gossip Corner.
Mrs. Hicks Lord, whose fortune runs into the millions, has the details of every piece of property at her fingers' ends.

There are twenty-one legs firm practicing in this country in which husband and wife are professional partners.

Mrs. Robert G. Ingersoll receives almost as many letters as her husband, and most of the letters inclose religious tracts.

Mme. Bernhardt has recently appeared before an official in Vienna, whose business was to judge, on moral grounds, of the appropriateness of her stage costumes.

Miss Eureka Kernochan, who recently inherited a fortune of half a million, is quite pretty, and has a host of admirers; but she is more devoted to charitable works than to society.

Death of a Noted Spanish Author.
The literary world of Spain is in mourning for the death of one of its most distinguished representatives, Donna Concepcion Arenal, who died a few weeks ago was for many years the editor of La Espana Moderna, a literary-scientific journal of wide circulation. This lady was one of the very few women writers upon sociological, legal and scientific topics. Her deep and thorough knowledge of these rather masculine subjects was gained under difficulties, as the opportunities for such study on the part of a woman are unfortunately still rare in the country of the Alhambra. Her principal work, "The Prison Guard," enjoys a wide popularity not only in Spain, but in other countries into whose languages the book has been translated.

Philanthropic Work of English Women.
Baroness Burdett-Coutts has been preparing during the past year a report on the philanthropic work of British women for the World's Fair. The reports for the benevolent work originated and carried on by British women form five large volumes, which will, at close of the exposition, be presented to the free library, and from the reports have been classified, and from them has been compiled in a single printed volume a more comprehensive record of charitable endeavor than has hitherto been presented. Princess Christian, Florence Nightingale, Lady Victoria Larbone, and Hon. Maud Stanley are contributors to the work.

Angel Food Charlotte Russe.
A lot of angel food, filled with Charlotte Russe, is a new dessert that is much liked. The loaf of cake must be baked in a deep round pan, and just before it is needed cut a layer from the top, take out the center of the under part without breaking the wall, and fill in the space with the Charlotte Russe. Put the top on the cake, cover with a soft frosting, and scatter over it powdered macaroons or candied violets. A housewife whose cakes are always a success tells me that she always uses granulated sugar for such close-grained cake as pound cake. Granulated sugar requires more vigorous beating than powdered.

Glaced Sweet Potatoes.
For twelve people use nine sweet potatoes of good size, four tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonful of sugar and one tablespoonful of water. Boil the potatoes fifty minutes, then take them from the fire and pare them. Cut them in halves, lengthwise. Season them generously with salt. Place them, flat side down, in a dripping pan. Put the sugar and water in a soup plate and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Now add the butter and stir over heat until this is melted. Baste the potatoes with this liquid and place the pan in a hot oven for twenty minutes. The potatoes should be brown and glossy when they come from the oven.

Boston's Home for Working Women.
Since the opening in 1876 of the Temporary Home for Working Women, 433 Shawmut Avenue, Boston, 3,300 women have received its benefits. One-half of the running expenses is paid by those relieved, who are encouraged to do for themselves instead of becoming objects of charity. The home gives respectable women who are able to work the chance to do so, with shelter and food until they can obtain work and with these accommodations every one pays by labor in the laundry or sewing room. Within the year 281 women have been received. The home is out of debt but money is still needed to carry on the work.

Little Miss Thackeray on Dickens.
It is well known that Thackeray had the highest admiration for many of Dickens' novels. He often expressed his opinion on the point in the strongest terms. Mrs. Ritchie, his daughter, tells a story showing how this opinion was shared by other members of his family. She was sitting in a room in her father's house at Kensington talking to her father, the late Lord Tennyson being also of the company. All on a sudden her youngest sister looked up from a book in which she was deeply interested and asked in a soft, childish voice, "Papa, why do you not write books like 'Nicholas Nickleby'?"

Feminine Notes.
Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's serial, "The One I Knew Best of All," now running in Scribner's Magazine, will be reissued in book form immediately on its completion.

The Golden Rose will this year be conferred upon Abbess-Archduchess Margaret of Austria, niece of the Emperor. The abbess who is to be honored with this crown of virtue is only twenty-three.

Miss Martha D. Woodward of Williamsport, Pa., late professor of art in the Woman's College of Baltimore, now of Paris, has the honor of having one of her portraits placed in the salon of 1893. She will devote another year to the study of art under Bouguereau.

At an engagement dinner given on the last day of bachelorhood to twenty-four bachelors each guest found at his plate a miniature lady. Each fair maid was different in feature, form and style of dress, but all were dainty and pretty enough to be treated as souvenirs and suggestive of possibilities.

Women who rejoice in William Black's northern sea romances will be interested to learn that the novelist has taken the mansion house of Dunollie at Oban for the summer, near an old ivy-wreathed ruin, to every nook and cranny of which some story or legend is attached, so we may expect more "Princesses of Thule" or "Maid of Killena" to materialize within the year.

Mrs. A. Howard Hinkle, who has been appointed State Regent for Ohio of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is a great-granddaughter of Rufus Landon, a sailor at the battle of Ticouderoga, and also a descendant of Holden Davis, the surgeon general of the port of Boston in revolutionary times. Mrs. Hinkle once declined the office which she has now accepted.

A Swiss Centenarian Dwarf.
When the centenarians in Switzerland were counted during the recent census, attention was drawn to an ancient native of the Canton Wallis, whose age and year of birth it was impossible to ascertain. The only facts known about him are that he has lived for over eighty years in the village of Nonstone, and that, as far as the oldest among the village fathers remember, he looked exactly as he does now when they were young, some sixty years ago. Beside being a stone-cold centenarian, Theodulf Ecoffier has also the distinction of being a dwarf, his height reaching little more than a yard. His intellect, though it never was particularly brilliant, is still clear enough for him to remember all kinds of incidents which happened in the year 1798, when the French invaded his canton. Ecoffier is supposed to be about 110 years old.

The Cat and the Bible.
It seems strange that no mention of the cat occurs in the Bible or in any Assyrian record. Even in India, Prof. Max-Muller is quoted as saying that it was but recently known as a domestic animal. Its Sanscrit name is Marjara, from a root, meaning to clean, from the creature's habit of licking itself at its toilet. The cat's mousing habits were well known to the Romans, and even to the Etruscans, as shown by antique gems and even wall paintings.

No Tobacco for Minors.
The Legislative Assembly of Quebec has just adopted a piece of rather unusual legislation for the restriction of the use of tobacco among minors. The sale of tobacco is absolutely forbidden to persons under 18 years of age, while boys under 15 years found using tobacco are to be punished by fine or imprisonment.

AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

PEN PICTURES OF SOME OF THE NOTABLE EXHIBITS.

The Wolverine State Making an Attempt to Eclipse Her Sisters—Lot's Wife Done in Salt—Michigan Expects Much.

THE MICHIGAN exhibit at the World's Fair is among the most interesting. The State building, a picture of which accompanies this article, was erected at a cost of $50,000. In addition to the building Michigan will have a logging camp on exhibition, displaying the workings of one of the chief industries of the Wolverine State. The State building is 104x144 feet in ground dimensions, and three stories high, with a tower containing two stories more. It is surrounded on three sides by an elevated piazza twelve feet wide, and fronts to the north and west. The first floor contains the offices, men's reception and club rooms, a ladies' parlor, reading and reclining rooms, toilet and check rooms; also a barber shop, cigar and news stand, a post-office, a bureau of information, where every Michigan visitor is expected to register, giving both his home and Chicago addresses. The general reception room is being finished and will be furnished by Saginaw County at an expense of $4,000, and Muskegon County is doing the same thing with the club-room, spending $3,000. The ladies' parlor and reading-room have been decorated and furnished by the leading society women of Grand Rapids at a cost of $6,000. The main corridor, 50 feet long and 40 feet wide, has a large fireplace at one side, around which is placed a $1,000 mantel furnished by the Widdicombe Mantel Company of Grand Rapids. There will also be fireplaces in the ladies' parlor and the Saginaw and Muskegon rooms. The floors of the corridor and hallways are made of Michigan tile, all the wood used in the building came from Michigan, and most of the construction work was done by Michigan workmen. The interior finish of the first and second stories is in Michigan red oak.

When passing up the broad stairway leading to the second floor the visitor will be confronted at a half-way landing by an elegant marble bust of Gen. Cass. On the second floor will be a newspaper exhibit in a large room fitted and furnished with chairs, tables, and other conveniences for the comfort and convenience of newspaper people. The exhibit will contain the last copy of every paper in the State printed prior to May 1, as well as subsequent copies of every paper giving an account of the opening of the fair. On this floor is also a large assembly-room furnished with a pipe organ by Farand & Volty of Detroit. Here will be held the meetings, social gatherings, and banquets; and there is also a room for State exhibits, 40x70, in which the university at Ann Arbor is making a natural history display, and where exhibits from the various State institutions will be made in glass cases. A prospective map of the State, 12x14 feet in size and costing $25,000 is featured in the show.

The third floor will be devoted to sleeping rooms. The tower carries an illuminated clock having a six-foot dial.

In the Mineral Department Mines Building a Michigan exhibit will be displayed in a pavilion made of stone, iron ore, copper, crystallized salt, silver, gold, granite, marble, verde antique, and other specimens of mineral taken from the quarries and mines of Michigan. One of the unique attractions inside this pavilion will be a biblical representation of Lot's wife turned to a pillar of salt. There will also be a specimen of copper ore as it comes out of the mine, 98 per cent pure and weighing 10,000 pounds. The cost of this pavilion is estimated at $20,000. It will stand in the center of the building opposite Germany and England, and was constructed under the supervision of Peter White, member of the board for Marquette, and Jay A. Hubbell of Houghton.

In the Agricultural Building Michigan has erected another fine booth on 2,000 square feet of space, in the center of which stands a Corinthian temple surrounded by a shield with the coat of arms of the State. The booth is filled with the choicest collection of grains, grasses, and other products of the farm of the Wolverine State. In this collection the State Agricultural College is represented by a fine display. Vice-President E. H. Belding is in charge of this part of the show.

At the Centennial Michigan captured the medal for the best show of fruit, but the exhibit made there will be nothing in comparison with the one that will be made at Jackson Park this year. The State will have in Horticultural Hall a large and varied display of winter apples, pears, canned fruits, jams, and jellies that are being kept in cold storage. There will also be a show of wax models of every variety of fruits, berries, and vegetables raised in the State. During the summer months additional space will be devoted to exhibitions of all kinds of new fruit, each specimen in its season. Arrangements have been made to bring the shipments by boat across the lake and have them arrive fresh every morning. This no other State can do. As a result Michigan expects to tempt the mouths of visitors with the most luscious berries, cherries, peaches, pears, plums, and apples that ever grew.

In forestry the exhibit contains seventy-six varieties of wood and the different uses to which they may be put, and there are specimens in the rough as well as in the various stages of manufacture. A fine pavilion has been erected for this exhibit in the Forestry Building.

In addition the State has an outdoor space just south of Machinery Hall and near the sawmill, where has been constructed a genuine logging camp seventy feet long and twenty feet wide. It has been the exact reproduction of the camps Michigan lumbermen live in, and the daily bill of fare, corn-bread, pork, and beans, strong black coffee, etc., is the same as they have in the woods. Besides the camp there is in the show the largest load of logs ever put on sleigh and drawn by a single span of horses. It contains 36,000 feet of lumber, weighs 145 tons, and was drawn a quarter of a mile down grade by a pair of horses whose combined weight is 4,000 pounds. It required nine flat cars to bring these logs to Chicago. They were cut and sent by Nester Bros. of Barago, on the Sturgeon River. It was necessary to have eight car loads for the camp. There was a sleigh load of logs half the size of this one at the Centennial.

It attracted a great deal of attention.

This one is expected to create a sensation. Near the camp will be a log tram of five cars and all about the place specimens of the tools used by lumbermen from the opening of the first camp in Michigan down to the present time.

A Claimant of an Immense Fortune.
The Bessarabian News publishes the following extraordinary story of an immense fortune shortly to be claimed from the Bank of England. According to the circumstantial statement, the widow of a rich English Jew, Ovsly Levi, deposited her capital in the year 1803. This capital, with its interest, now amounts to 600,000,000 roubles, or £60,000,000. The News says that numerous claimants have from time to time appeared, but only one, an American lady, Miss Humeric, succeeded lately in proving her title to this circumstantial statement, the remainder going to a Russian subject, Anna Finkelstein, nee Levi, the wife of a jeweler at Ismail, at the mouth of the Danube. According to the News she has only to produce certificates of the birth of her father and his uncle, through whom she is the direct heiress. These certificates are stated to be easily procurable from Furtli, in Bavaria. The fortunate Anna Finkelstein is of middle age and childless.

A Novel Match.
Two well-known Paris fencers—MM. Rose and Chevillard—have arranged a novel kind of match. The champions will run a race of 100 kilometers—sixty-two miles—on bicycles, after which both fencers will jump from their machines and see whether their ride has impaired the cunning of their wrists. Foils will be handed to the two athletes immediately after the velocipede race has been run, and a fencing match commenced.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coates, aged 98 years, of New Rochelle, N. Y., was struck and instantly killed by a train lately. She had been in the habit of walking the tracks and had been repeatedly warned of the danger of so doing, but always laughingly replied that the train had not been built that could kill her.

The interest awakened by the discovery of superficial deposits of phosphates in Florida a few years ago has been quickened by the annual report of the state chemist, who claims that there are, in addition to these vast and rich deposits, inexhaustible supplies of pebble phosphate underlying certain portions of the state at a depth which will demand different methods of mining from those now in vogue.

A fashion paper remarks that "three bands of diamonds worn close about the throat with a large, false buckle of rubies, emeralds or sapphires, is an ornament now much in vogue for evening wear." This is a valuable hint to anyone looking about for a trifle for his best girl.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured
With LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quick medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

CASS CITY ENTERPRISE.

FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1893.

DEFORD.

The 16th and 17th of May will be remembered in this locality as dark and gloomy days. Not only the face of nature was cheerless but sadness rested on the hearts of the people. Death, that dark power that stalks o'er earth to its remotest ends, had fallen upon us and claimed two of our number as its own.

A. D. McArthur ceased from toil and sorrow on the 14th and was buried on the 16th; Sela Slack passed away on the 15th, and was laid to rest on the 17th; both in Novesta cemetery. The former had passed his prime, and the latter was in the strength of manhood, which calls to mind—

"Leaves have their time to fall, And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath And stars to set,—but all, Though hast to pass for thine own, Oh! Death."

Both settled here years ago to make a home for themselves and family—a refuge in old age. They could not penetrate the veil of the future. They knew not that the call would come before old age became a burden. Their work in the inmate state is done and well done. They have but changed conditions from one of toil to one of rest. We dare not question the great laws that compel all men to meet on one common level. We sorrow when separated from our loved ones, but it is not the thought of parting that makes grief so poignant, but the thought that we will not meet again. Could we believe without a waver of faith that all would be reunited, sorrow would lose its bitter sting. In all ages among the learned and unlearned, the question has been asked, "Shall we meet again?" The hope of immortality showed forth in the words of the young Grecian in that beautiful drama of Ion. When about to yield up his young life his Clemantha asks, "Shall we meet again?" He replies, "I have asked that dreadful question of the hills that look eternal, of the clear streams that flow forever, of the stars among whose fields of azure my raised spirits have walked in glory. All were dumb, but upon thy living face I feel there is something in the love that mantles through its beauty that cannot wholly perish. We shall meet again, Clemantha!"

H. VonPetten, of Caro, was a visitor in this part Sunday.

We notice some of the farmers have sheared their sheep.

The Maccabee goat had another victim Saturday evening. Still the good work goes on.

Mat Parker lost his horse last week. It was only sick a short time. He has bought a colt of Wm. Walters.

Some of our people are talking strongly of going to the World's Fair, but we have not heard of any one starting yet.

The slight improvement in the weather of last week was taken advantage of by the farmers so that nearly all of the seeding is done and they are getting ready to plant corn.

Our prayer meetings have been discontinued for the present owing to a slight discord in the singing. "Practice makes perfect." Perhaps with practice we may be able to do better in the course of time.

Mothers and Daughters. Over twelve years I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of three of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse, until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullman's Great German Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, can say I am in better health than I have been for twenty years and am now sixty years old but feel as young as thirty. $1 a bottle. June 2, 1890. Mrs. THOS. TANDY, Flint, Mich. For sale at Fritz's drug store.

It is an error to suppose that drunkenness, Morphine and Tobacco habit cannot be cured. The Double Chloride of Gold is known to be a positive antidote for these habits, or rather diseases, and the wonderful cures effected through its agency have given the remedy a national reputation. Until recently, the "Gold Treatment" was only given at expensive sanitariums, but at the present time it can be had at any first-class druggist. Hill's Chloride of Gold Tablets are guaranteed to cure any cases of Drunkenness, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, and no effort whatever is required from the person taking them. The use of tobacco, Liquor or the Drug is permitted until such times as they are voluntarily given up. These Tablets may also be given without the knowledge of the patient, and a permanent cure is sure to follow their use. The price of the tablets—$1.00—certainly places them within the reach of all. If your druggist does not keep them write for full particulars to the Ohio Chemical Co., Lima, Ohio.

Chancery Order. STATE OF MICHIGAN, Twenty-fourth Judicial Circuit, in Chancery. Jesse Wright, Complainant, vs. James Wright, Defendant.

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the county of Tuscola in chancery, at Caro, on the sixth day of May, A. D. 1893.

In this case it appearing from affidavit on file, that the whereabouts of the defendant, James Wright, is unknown and that it is not known what county or state the said defendant resides in, on motion of J. D. Brooker, complainant's solicitor, it is ordered that the said defendant, James Wright, cause his appearance to be entered herein, within five months from the date of this order, and in case of his appearance that he cause his answer to the complainant's bill of complaint to be filed, and a copy thereof to be served on said complainant's solicitor, within twenty days after service on him of a copy of said bill and a notice of this order; and that in default thereof, said bill be taken as confessed by the said non-resident defendant.

And it is further ordered, that within twenty days from the date of this order, the complainant cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said non-resident defendant at least twenty days before the time above prescribed for his appearance. WATSON BEACH, Circuit Judge, 5-12-6.

RIO REY, the Hambletonian Stallion.

Will stand for a limited number of mares at his own stable, 5 miles east of Cass City, the entire season of 1893. He is a dark bay with white spot in forehead, 16 hands high, weighs 945 pounds, bred by L. M. Charlton, Cleveland, Ohio. (on his Fair View stock farm), foaled May 3, 1890. Registered in Vol. 10 of the American Trotting Register at New York, on the 26th day of March A. D. 1891, where his pedigree can be traced in the following form:

Genealogical chart for RIO REY. Rio Rey (Record 2:20) is the sire of several other stallions including Belmont, Woodbine, and others. The chart shows the lineage of the stallion through various owners and breeders.

He is a veritable Hambletonian. He is certainly in the purple, silted, and done up in tissue at that. He is very growthy and will be allowed to develop before being worked for speed. Shall allow him to serve a few select mares this season. His sire is comparatively a young horse so that his produce have not made their debut as yet, but that he will be a noted sire no one doubts. Hambletonian blood must and will tell. On his dam's side he is scarcely less fashionably bred, being by Hermes, record 2:27, (also the sire of several in 2:30 or better and strongly bred in the Hambletonian line). This mare, Miss Hermes, is a trotter; has shown her ability on trial. It is only by a careful study of the above pedigree that the remarkable blood lines come to the surface. He has four blood lines of Rysdyk's Hambletonian (proprietor of the great Hambletonian family, sire of Dexter 2:17, and 40 others in 2:30 or better, also the sire of 108 sires with 645 performers in 2:30 or better). He has two blood lines of Harrold (sire of Maud S 2:08, and 33 others in 2:30 or better); also one blood line of Alex Abdallah (sire of Goldsmith Maid 2:14, and 5 others in 2:30 or better, also sire of 13 sires that have got 95 in 2:30 list).

TERMS.—To insure a mare in foal, $10, payable on the 1st of February, 1894. Season, $8, payable on the 1st of August, 1893. Single services, $6, payable at time of service. All accidents at risk of owners of mares.

For further particulars enquire at my premises, 5 miles east of Cass City, or address JOHN A. CHARLTON, Cass City, Mich. 5-8

TO CLARIBEL.

I wonder if your eyes are blue.
Your hair the same bright hue
As when up a that summer day,
You went from me away.

THE WHITE WITCH.

The shepherd loved the princess—that was the beginning of the trouble, for, of course, it was a very wrong, and impossible, and a together unsuitable thing for the shepherd to do.

But there came a day—a May day
—when the princess went out at sunrise to gather dew for a charm to keep her always beautiful.

She had long yellow hair, pale like ripe corn, her eyes were as blue as corn flowers, her lips 'ust the shape for speaking kindly, her hands were like little white birds to hold, and when she passed the may-tree opened all its buds to look at her.

The shepherd, lying behind a furze bush, saw her kneel down and lay her white hands on the green grass to gather the chill, sweet dew, smelling of the morning and the wild thyme.

She turned her eyes on him, and the love in his lit a rose-light in her cheeks.

"Who are you?" she asked in a low voice; and if he had been able to say he was a prince, one does not know what her answer would have been.

"I am the king's shepherd."
"Ah, I," she cried, "am the king's daughter!"

But he thought always of her, so that when, one market day, the heralds went through the town proclaiming that a tournament was to be held in honor of the princess, and that the bravest knight might hope to win her, he came, wearing a rusty suit of armor he had borrowed from a friend and riding an old horse that was his uncle, the inn-keeper, lent to him to try his fortune with many others.

And he looked so handsome and so valiant that no one even noticed the old horse and the shabby armor, and every girl in the assembled crowd wished in her heart that he might win the princess. Nor did any know him to be the shepherd. But the princess knew.

Then, one by one, all the knights who had come to the tournament were overthrown by the shepherd, for love made him brave and strong beyond the wont of man.

But when he rode beneath the gallery where the princess sat, she turned her eyes away as she gave him her hand to kiss, and the wreath, the prize of the tourney.

"He is only your shepherd," she said to her father, and the king was very much annoyed.

Indeed, it became so tiresome to have a handsome shepherd in love, always hanging about the palace, that the princess said to her tutor:

"How can I get rid of this young man without hurting his feelings?"
"Tell him you have made a vow never to marry any man whose eyes are not green," suggested the tutor.

"What a capital idea!" cried the princess, clapping her hands. "He can't be hurt at that, can he?"

The tutor's eyes were green; but the princess had never noticed that,
because she never looked at him.

So next day she sent for the shepherd. He came gladly, for, whatever she had to say, he would, at least,
hear her voice and look into her eyes.

The princess was sitting in her garden, which has a high wall around it, and trees and flowers, and in the middle a marble basin where the goldfishes live. The princess and her maidens were feeding the gold-fishes when the shepherd came in.

"How do you do?" said the princess,
turning red and speaking very fast.
"Do you know I'm very sorry, and I hope you won't mind very much, but I really can't marry any one unless they have green eyes."

"What color are mine?" asked the shepherd. "I have never noticed!"— but his heart ached, for he knew well enough that they were not green.

"They are blue," said the princess, jumping up and looking at them.
"They are blue like mine." She looked at them a long time without speaking. Then she said: "They are blue—a very nice blue, you know."
She put her hands on his shoulders and looked again—a longer look still.

"No—they're not green," she said, and she sighed. "Good-bye. I hope we shall always be friends. I shall always feel to you like a sister. Goodbye!"—and she went on feeding the goldfishes.

"Good-bye," said the shepherd;
"will you give me nothing before I go?"

She held out her hand, and he kissed it.
"This is the second time," he said;
"the third time my eyes will be green!"

The princess looked after him till he had passed out of the garden.
Then she looked at the hand he had kissed. Then she sighed again; and when the tutor came to ask her to read classic poetry with him she said she had a headache.

After that she used to spend most of her time in the garden, and when her father pressed her to choose a husband from among her many suitors, she answered that she thought marriage was a rather serious thing, and, perhaps, it would be better for her to stay at home and feed the goldfishes a little longer. The next morning, she said, carelessly, to her maidens, as they combed out her golden hair:

"I suppose nothing more has been heard of that shepherd?"
"No, your royal highness. Nothing at all."

And the next day she said musing-ly, as the golden comb went through her hair:

"I wonder what has become of that shepherd?"
"I wonder, indeed, your royal highness," said the maidens.

The third morning as they braided her tresses, she spoke again:
"I suppose that shepherd has not come back?"

"No," they said, "he has not come back."
The princess sighed, and was silent; but she put the same question the next morning, and the next, and every morning, and there was never any other answer.

But the shepherd fared forth into the world. Somewhere, he knew, must be that which would turn blue eyes to green. He asked every one he met; most laughed at him for a madman, and those who understood and were sorry for him could not help him. And so he fared on for the half of a year, and his eyes grew bluer than ever with unshed tears.

He had left far behind the mountain country where his princess dwelt, and had come to a land of elms and meadows, green lanes, dim woods, and blossoming may-trees. Walking through this land one golden May morning, just a year after his first sight of his princess, he passed into a wood, where everything was alive with springs greenest green. The moss was green under foot; the chestnuts, and oaks, and hazels were green overhead.

All through his long, weary quest of the charm that should win him his princess, his faith in his finding of it had never faltered. He loved her so much, and love, he knew, works miracles. Now, looking on the green leaves and the green moss, he said:

"Oh, wood! Have you no color to spare for me? Just a ray—enough to color a lover's eyes!"

And, as he spoke, he was aware of a White Lady, who lay on the moss under the shade of a hawthorn-bush.
He paused to put his eternal question:

"Can you tell me how to make blue eyes green?" and stood there ready to go on when he had heard the accustomed "No"; but, instead, the White Lady rose and came toward him, saying "Yes."

As she came near him, he saw that her hair was red, like the gold of sunset. Her arms were long and white. He had never seen any mouth like hers.

She was gowned in white, about her was a girdle of may-blossoms; she wore a wreath of may-blossoms on her hair, and her eyes were green as the sea is green, and they shone like young lime leaves when the sun kisses them after rain.

"I can help you," she said.
"And will you?"
"Yes; but the price is a heavy one."

"I will not," answered the shepherd, "shrink from any price, how heavy soever it may be."

"Think well," said the White Lady;
"the bargain once struck may not be undone."

"You would not," cried the shepherd in sudden fear, "you would not —you will not kill the love in my heart?"

"I will leave love in your heart."
"You will not make my princess turn from me when I am come to her again?"

"Your princess shall not turn from you when you are come to her
again."

"Then," cried the shepherd, "I will pay the price."

The White Lady took him by the hands and drew him under the green hawthorn boughs, he wondering, yet glad at heart because he should now at last, win his princess.

"You do not repeat?"
"No!"
"Think yet again. It is not yet too late."

"I have only one thought—quick!
say the spell!"

She laid her white arms around his neck as he stood under the may-tree.
"Already," she said, "your eyes grow green."

She kissed him thrice—upon the brow, upon the eyes and upon the lips.
"Now go!" she said, "go to your princess—who loves you."
He threw up his hands and fell at her feet.
"But I do not want the princess any more!" he cried. "There is no princess, there is only you. Kiss me again! Kiss me again!"

The White Lady leaned against the tree and laughed.
And far away in her palace the princess was saying for the hundred and eighty-third time as the golden comb went through her hair:

"I suppose the shepherd has not
come back?"

And for the hundred and eighty-
third time her maidens answered:
"No; and we do not think, your royal highness, that he will ever come back any more."—Argonaut.

A MIEVEAL MURDER.

The Prime Minister of a Native Indian State Slain.

The story of the murder of the prime minister of the native state of Ulwar, in Northwestern India, reads more like a tale from the criminal annals of some medieval Italian principality than a record of the present day. The minister was murdered while out riding by a gang of assasssins. The inquiry ordered by the Indian government has resulted not only in the conviction of one of the principal military officers of the Ulwar state, but in a declaration by the court that the murder was executed by order of the late maharajah of Ulwar.

It appears that this personage, desiring for sundry reasons to have the minister "removed," confided the task to the officer commanding the imperial service troops—that is, the force which the Ulwar state undertakes to send into the field should the Indian government call for its services. This worthy got together a gang of men, including some of his own soldiers, waylaid the minister, and, while some of the party patrolled the road, others—as one of them who turned queen's evidence expressed it—"used their swords."

They pleaded in defense that they were obliged to carry out the orders of the maharajah in committing the act. The court held that such orders had been given, but decided that they constituted no defense, and sentenced two of the party to death and others to various terms of penal servitude. Adequately to appreciate this affair, it should be remembered that Ulwar is no wild hill state on the outer confines of India, but an ancient principality in the heart of the country, within a short distance of Delhi. The late maharajah had received an English education, and Ulwar is in many respects accounted an excellently administered state.

A Scottish Beggar in the Olden Time.

This man, who flourished in the west of Scotland, was known under the familiar cognomen of Cabbage Charlie. He was a mendicant on a wholesale plan of operation. Not contented with his own simple exor-tations, he kept a numerous band of beggars in pay, who went abroad as his servants throughout the country, and who, coming back to the appointed rendezvous at the end of the week, gave up all the proceeds of their industry to him, and received a certain allowance, previously agreed upon, amounting to from ten to fifteen shillings per week. By a talent that might not have disgraced more colobrated names, he contrived to organize and reduce to a perfect system what would appear almost impracticable considering the habits of those with whom he had to deal. He even found means of detecting the smallest dishonesty on the part of his men, and he acquired such a strange influence over them that they durst make no remonstrance against the severity of his rules nor complain of the penalties and taxes to which he sometimes subjected them.

An Opossum's Mide.

One of the opossums at the Central menagerie, New York, was found dead in his cage the other morning.
His tail made a circle around his neck and was caught between the wire meshes of the cage. To Keeper McGuinness, who found the animal hanging like a little fur ball, it was a clear case of suicide. The opossums were in a cage near that of the wildcats, and one of these animals was found lying dead upon the floor of its den. The cat had died during the night in an unaccountable manner. It was thought that it had choked to death while attempting to swallow a bone. Director Smith is quite certain that the opossum committed suicide, for its tail had first been coiled about its neck and then thrust between the wire meshes and caught by the weight of the body.
The bodies will be stuffed and placed on exhibition in the museum of natural history.

Germany Has a New Invention.

A new method has been invented in Germany of covering tissues of cotton yarn with a flexible and brilliant deposit of tin. A clear paste of commercial zinc-powder and white of eggs is made and spread on the tissues with a brush, where it coagulates after being dried. The tissue is then placed in a bath of perchloride of tin. This metal is precipitated on the zinc and the article, after rinsing and drying, is calcandered, which operation imparts brilliancy to the layer of tin.

THE FIRST USE OF GAS.

The Honor of Its Introduction Belongs to William Murdoch.

Great was the amazement of all Europe when, at about the close of the last century, William Murdoch discovered that gas could be used for illuminating purposes. So little was the invention understood by those who had not seen it in use that even the great and wise men (?) of the British parliament laughed at the idea. "How can there be a light without a wick?" said one member of that august body with a wink and a knowing nod. Even the great Sir Humphrey Davy ridiculed the idea of lighting towns and cities with gas.
He one day asked Murdoch: "Do you mean to use the dome of St. Paul's for your gas meter?" Sir Walter Scott also made merry of the gas idea and of the coming attempt to "illuminate London with smoke from a tar factory." When the house of commons was finally lighted with the new illuminant the architect and custodian of the building, who imagined that the gas ran as fire through the pipes, insisted that they be removed several inches from the wall to prevent the building from taking fire!
Several distinguished members were also observed carefully touching the pipes with their gloved fingers and then smelling of them to see if they could detect the odor of burnt leather.

The first shop in London lighted by gas was one of which a Mr. Ackerman, a German, was the proprietor. This shop was on the Strand, and the date was 1813. One of the ladies of rank who often visited the Ackerman shop was so delighted with the brilliance of a gas jet on one of the counters that she requested the proprietor to let her take it home for the evening, promising to return it safe and sound on the morrow.

Although many lay claim to the honor of being the first to introduce gas for practical purposes, all the glory there is in it should be accorded to Murdoch, who was, no doubt, the original discoverer of the art.

IN THIBET.

Journeys of Explorers in That Little-Known Country.

Captain Bower, the Thibetan explorer, has arrived in London with a mass of valuable information concerning that little-known country, which he has collected primarily for the benefit of the Indian government.

In the course of fifteen months of travel across the wildest part of the country he learned many curious and interesting facts about the inhabitants. His journey was made during 1891 and 1892, and his route was almost due west to east, starting from Leh or Ladak and crossing the track of some other explorers who had traversed the country from north to south. He crossed, among others, the route followed by M. Bonvalot, the French explorer, and his companion, Prince Henry of Orleans, but, like all other travelers in recent times, he found it impossible to enter Lhasa. His nearest point was about 150 miles from the holy city. The priests are practically supreme in the country, but nowhere did he meet with hostile treatment from the natives. The Sikkim war has had a wholesome effect, and the Englishman traveling in Thibet is now in no danger. Some idea of the difficulties and hardships of the journey may be gathered from the fact that much of the road was from fifteen to eighteen thousand feet above the level of the sea, and that for weeks together he and his companions did not meet a single human being.

Had a Volcano in His Arms.

Courage like that sometimes accredited to the red man was witnessed at Shamokin, Pa., the other day. Irvin Derk, Charles Shannon and Clarence Fredericks broke into Weldy's powder mill one night and secured a large amount of dynamite.
Next morning the boys found it frozen. Derk stacked 100 pieces as large as a candle around a stove to thaw. The lads went skating, and later Mrs. Derk discovered the explosive, partially melted. She summoned her husband, who, after wrapping clothes around his feet and fitting gloves upon his hands, bravely crept up to the sputtering dynamite.
Piece by piece he laid it in the clothes basket, expecting every moment that he and the house would be blown to pieces. When he emerged with the explosives he was cheered by the by-standers.—Philadelphia Record.

Artillery Practice on Board Ship.

During a cruise of the ships of our white fleet the guns are fired with full charges once a month. But it costs hundreds of dollars to do this,
and for purposes of drill between times a block is fitted into the barrel of each gun. This block is perforated with a bore not much larger than a rifle barrel, and to fire a blank cartridge through that only costs a cent. At the same time all the mechanism of the gun has to be used as in firing heavy charges, so that the sailors get the benefit of the practice.

A Large and Elderly Frog.

A dead bullfrog owned by a resident of New Haven, Conn., is claimed to be one of the oldest and largest frogs in this part of the world. The animal is known to be at least 14 years o'd, and measures eighteen inches from head to foot, twelve inches across the back and weighs four pounds.

Be on your Guard.
If some grocers urge another baking powder upon you in place of the "Royal,"
it is because of the greater profit upon it.
This of itself is evidence of the superiority of the "Royal." To give greater profit the other must be a lower cost powder, and to cost less it must be made with cheaper and inferior materials, and thus, though selling for the same, give less value to the consumer.
To insure the finest cake, the most wholesome food, be sure that no substitute for Royal Baking Powder is accepted by you.
Nothing can be substituted for
the Royal Baking Powder
and give as good results.

A QUESTION OF VALUES.

"Kisses are cheap," said Bob Malee, flushing a wicked glance at me, "Cheap I call, when a girl so fair stoops to be kissed by John St. Clair."

Ne'er a word do I deign to reply. As I watch the sunset fade and die, And in the shadows that fall about Much of life's sweetness seems shut out.

He kissed me, yes, ere he went away; 'Twas a memory, he said, he could keep for aye: And Bob don't know. Ah, what man could Guess one-half that a woman would?

A year later, with softened tread, Bob comes in and says, "He's dead!" "St. Clair? I ask, and now there lies A wondering question in Bob's blue eyes.

"I thought—you know—Bess, is it true That the fellow was really nothing to you?" I raise my eyes; they are stern and cold; Bob's are not—they're ablaze and bold.

"My darling! Mine! Ah, at this late day— For I know why he went away." "But my kisses are cheap—I remember, you see."

"They are more than untold wealth—to me."

A Costly Bible.

The most expensive illustrated book yet made is said to be a Bible now owned by Theodore Irwin of Oswego. It is valued at $10,000, for Mr. Irwin paid that sum for the work. The original was in seven volumes, 16mo., and by the addition of drawings and engravings it was enlarged to 60 volumes, each 16 by 24 inches, which occupy 17 feet of space on the shelves. This remarkable book contains 3,000 pen and pencil drawings, etchings, engravings, lithographs, oil and water color paintings and mezzotints. Among the illustrations are parts of the "Great Bible of Cranmer," printed in 1533; parts of the "Bishop's Bible," printed in 1568; parts of the "Nuremberg Bible," the first illustrated Bible published, printed in 1476, and of "Luther's Version" and the "Breches Bible." The extender has brought together not only all that could be found of the best and rarest efforts at illustrating the text of the Bible, but also the art of modern painters and engravings, making it the most complete and valuable copy of the Bible in existence.—Washington Star.

Fashions in Glass.

Very few years ago nothing would please but glass blown to the utmost thinness, either plain or engraved with ornamental designs, but now we have returned to the heavy faceted decanters and goblets, which we were brought up to despise. Which is the stricter taste? Undoubtedly that which we have just discarded for the special quality of glass, which can be rivaled in no other material, is its transparency and capacity for being blown into exceeding lightness. When cut into facets, the former quality is impaired, the latter is not displayed, and the object depends for beauty on its brilliancy, in which it competes at a disadvantage with rock crystal. The virtue of an art consists not less in bringing out the highest quality of material than in revealing the mind of the artist.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Boiling Down a Speech.

An old newspaper man in Washington tells this story of Mr. Blaine:

"My first experience with Mr. Blaine was when, as correspondent for a western paper, I endeavored to get him to withdraw from the official reporters of the house a speech which he had made, in order that I might make an abstract of it."

"How much of this do you want to use?" Mr. Blaine asked.

"I replied that I thought I would send about half of it."

"Then I will make an abstract myself," said he, "reducing it one-half. I do not doubt your skill, but I want this speech boiled down by its friends."—New York World.

The Ways of Elephants.

A big elephant which was employed to drag away the carcass of a dead bullock and had allowed the burden to be attached by ropes without observing what it was happened to look around and instantly bolted, its fright increasing every moment as the unknown object jumped and bumped at its heels. After running some miles, like a dog with a tin can tied to its tail, the elephant stopped and allowed itself to be turned around and drew the bullock back again without protest.—London Spectator.

What Makes a Beautiful Woman.
Elkhart, Ind., July 1st, 1891. Dullman's Great German Medicine Co: My daughter has been afflicted with Female trouble for over six years and I have paid out over $750 in vain trying to find relief for her. A lady friend advised me to secure a bottle of Dullman's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and has been completely cured of it. We gave it a fair trial and the result were wonderful. We cannot recommend it too highly to all ladies who are afflicted. Benjamin Grainger. For sale at Fritz's drugstore.

Read Carefully.
Messrs. Dullman Bro.—Gentlemen: For over 4 years I have been afflicted with an eruption of the skin, which became very troublesome and I could get no relief. I was also troubled very badly with constipation, which nothing I tried gave any permanent relief until I took Dullman's Great German, Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Remedy and since taken I have been entirely cured. For a tonic, blood purifier and general health restorer I can heartily recommend it. $1 a bottle. Mrs. Wm. Copland, Flint, Mich. For sale at Fritz's drugstore.

A late prominent patent medicine manufacturer once gave his opinion that we couldn't make Brant's Balsam a great seller, because we gave such large bottles for the money, there wouldn't be the large profits made by other manufacturers with which to advertise the goods. He hadn't learned that quality and quantity are advertising always fully appreciated, as proven by the rapid growth of sale of Brant's Balsam, the leading seller everywhere. Large bottles, small doses, quick effect. 25 and 50 cent sizes at Fritz's Drug Store.

The Things We Prize Most

are not the gewgaws and gimcracks we gather about us. Every life, of course, has its sacred tinselled treasures, but in this practical work-a-day world man is prone to value most those things which serve him best. Not much sentiment in this, perhaps, but some sense all the same.

The McCormick Machine of Steel takes first rank the world over. Hundreds of thousands of grain growers call it the best harvester and binder that ever went into a grain field, and they prize it accordingly. It isn't sentiment with them—it's just plain, old-fashioned common sense. They like it best because it serves them best.

It costs more money than some harvesters, but that's because it's more valuable. Its advantages more than offset the added cost.

The "Machine of Steel" is built to harvest the grain crop of the world, and to do it better than any other machine.

Perhaps you may care to know more about this harvester. Our catalogue will interest you.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.
Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVE in the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I lost flesh and was greatly troubled with sleeplessness. Your Nerve was highly recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved. I have gained twenty pounds. All this occurred after learned and well known physicians had failed. My wife is taking the Nerve with the best of results. LOUIS D. VANDEVERE.
