To Subscribers.

As 1893 is drawing to a close we desire to balance our books as nearly as possible. There are several hundred dollars due us on subscription account which we must have. The settling of subscription accounts are too often delayed on account of being considered "small matters." A thousand or so of such "small matters" are of considerable importance to the publishers, and should not be neglected. We trust those in arrears will respond promptly.

Respectfully,
WICKWARE & McDOWELL.

Caught On The Fly.

Christmas is coming. This is winter with a big "W." A. A. McKenzie transacted business in Saginaw on Wednesday.

Mrs. L. M. Moore, of Caseville, was in the city on Saturday last.

Mrs. Chas. Chubb is visiting with friends at Wallaceburg, Ont.

Watch out for holiday announcements.

Messrs. Bush and West, of Caro, attended the dancing party given by the Cass City young ladies on Thanksgiving night.

Rev. and Mrs. Gerrit Huyser have been attending the revival meetings in Detroit this week.

Two more ordinances, which were adopted by the council on Tuesday evening, are published on the last page of this issue.

J. H. Striffler recently had a large hog and three sheep stolen from his barn yard. Jake says he has hopes of saving the yard.

Buyers of holiday goods should make their purchases early, so as to have a complete stock to select from and avoid the usual rush a few days before Christmas.

The festival given by the Ladies' Daylight Reading Club on Thanksgiving night at the residence of Mrs. J. D. Brooker, is spoken of as a very pleasant affair.

Miss Lena Holbrook, who has been staying with her aunt, Mrs. Amos Martin, the past summer, left last week Wednesday for her home in Brentwood, California.

Messrs. Hitchcock, Edwards and Knapp, and Misses Clarke, Hitchcock and Donovan attended a ball given by the young people of Caro on Tuesday evening, and report a splendid time.

E. H. Pinney has made another investment in Cass City real property, by the purchasing of the house and lot of Jeff. Fordyce, west of M. Sheridan's. The property is presently occupied by J. S. McArthur.

A heavy snow storm set in on Wednesday of last week, and prevailed until evening. Several supplementary storms have occurred since then and we now have about six inches of snow and passably good sleighing.

Attorney J. D. Brooker has been attending to legal business at the circuit court, at Caro, this week. To-day the case of Ida A. Crogran, vs. Maggie and Michael Sheridan and John Marshall, in which Mr. Brooker is attorney for plaintiff, is being tried, Dr. D. P. Deming, Rev. S. M. Gilchriese, J. A. McDougall, J. B. McGilvary, A. Wallace and others from this vicinity are in attendance as witnesses for plaintiff and defendants.

A. A. P. McDowell has moved into the "green house" on Third street, east.

Elliott Metcalf was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. Y. Kenyon, in Ellington, last week.

H. S. Wickware has found it necessary to employ additional hand in his blacksmith shop. Thomas Henderson has been engaged.

John Landrigan has returned from Detroit where he has been receiving medical treatment. He feels somewhat improved in health.

Owing to his illness, the trial of Jacob Schenck, which was to have taken place in the circuit court at Caro this week, has been put over until the February term of court.

Simon Botsford, of Owosso, was called here the early part of the week by the illness of his aged parents, who reside in Ellington. On his arrival he found them somewhat improved.

The calendar for this (December) term of the circuit court is the largest one for several years. The calendar comprises ten criminal cases, fourteen issues of fact, three issues of law, three of imparlance, and seventeen chancery cases.

Those who have asked permission to liquidate their subscription in wood, should not forget that this is the season of the year when good use can be made of that commodity, and it is expected that they will make good their promises at an early date.

N. F. McClintock narrowly escaped figuring in a runaway while driving the fore part of the week, by one side of the hills of his cutter becoming detached. The horse was pulled around to the side of the cutter at the expense of the hills, but a runaway was averted.

President Cleveland's message to the Fifty-third Congress, and the Wilson tariff bill are published in full in the ENTERPRISE this week. They occupy no little space, but we think affairs national, just at present, are of considerable interest to the majority of our readers.

A Charlotte man has a new method of destroying rats which is entirely original and he thinks of having a patent issued on it. He mixes two parts of flour and one of calceine. The rat eats this, the composition hardens, the rat dies with its tombstone in its stomach, and there you are.

"I believe printers' ink works most too good for your benefit," remarked M. C. Tanner as he entered our office last Saturday. "That little ad. I put in your paper last week," he continued, "brought me three buyers for my timber by Monday noon. I had been trying a long time before advertising to find a buyer, but was unable to. I expect to find several more would-be purchasers at my home when I return." Moral—If you have got something to sell, let the people know it.

Wednesday afternoon, John McBerney, living 2½ miles northeast of town, received a dispatch from Payne's Station, near Saginaw, announcing that his son, Alexander was in a very critical condition and that his recovery was very doubtful. Accordingly, Mr. and Mrs. McBerney left on the first train for that place. LATER—We are reliably informed that Mr. McBerney died shortly after the arrival of his father and mother. We have not learned the cause of his sudden death.

Miss Carrie Hitchcock and the Misses Kit and Jessie Clark, seconded by other young ladies of this place, gave a dancing party on Thanksgiving night in the portion of the Hitchcock block formerly occupied by 2 Macks 2. About fifteen of the young men were invited. The ladies bore the entire expense of the party, which, by the way, was a highly enjoyable affair, and doubtless would have called for the gentlemen with hawks, had not snow prevented. The young ladies have done much better than the "boys" have ever done, and the very pleasant hint should not go unrecognized.

Perhaps the largest damage suit of the season is that commenced by the Flint, Pere & Marquette Railroad Company against the A. W. Wright Lumber Company, of Saginaw. The plaintiff claims that the defendants agreed to ship 300,000,000 feet of lumber and logs over their road at a stipulated price, providing the plaintiff would extend their road into certain townships. The plaintiff avers to have performed his part of the contract at a big expense, and that the defendants have not fulfilled their agreement. The defendants claim that the contract has been null and void for a number of years. The suit is brought for $100,000 damages, and promises to be hotly contested.

Hugh Walters visited friends in Brookfield on Sunday.

Miss Matie Higgins spent Thanksgiving Day with her parents at Bad Axe.

Miss Kate Crawford, of Oxford, is here to spend the winter with her sister, Mrs. Henry Deming.

Mrs. W. I. Frost, who is visiting at Armada, was taken ill, and Mr. Frost left for that place on Wednesday.

T. H. Fritz, proprietor of central drugstore, is to the front as usual with a complete line of useful and beautiful holiday goods. See his large announcement elsewhere.

M. C. Beach will not occupy the Lutz building as a feed store as first intended. He will hold forth in the small house on West street, near the foundry—formerly occupied by John McLellan.

Storing apples in barrels lined with newspapers is an experiment made by a western farmer, says an exchange. He recently opened barrels and found in those unlined more or less of the fruit was decayed, while those in paper were sound and in fine condition.

The damage suit which has been instituted by Mrs. Jane Gage, through her attorney, J. D. Brooker, against the P. O. & N. Ry., and which was to be tried at this term of the circuit court, has been put over until the February term, owing to the illness of the plaintiff.

Cards of thanks are not acceptable matter for this paper, unless paid for at the usual rates. We deem them unnecessary and uncalled for. No friend or neighbor expects to be publicly thanked for doing a bounden duty in caring for the sick or the dead. Let the old time custom become obsolete, for, like resolutions, they become stereotyped and in a certain sense meaningless.

We were in error last week in stating that the case of C. W. McPhail vs. Geo. Aplin was tried in Justice Brooker's court. The facts are that it was tried in Justice Landon's court and judgment was rendered by a jury in favor of Mr. McPhail. Mr. Aplin deeming himself aggrieved appealed to the circuit court. J. D. Brooker appeared for plaintiff and Wm. N. West for defendant. The ENTERPRISE gained its information for the item published last week from the circuit court returns as published in the Caro Advertiser, but which, it seems, was erroneous.

"The happiest man in the land to-day is the successful farmer," says an exchange. "This statement is so often repeated that it must be very nearly true. He sits contentedly under his own vine and fig tree, undisturbed by the maddening noise of the city. Banks fail, railroads go into the hands of receivers, booming towns collapse and all business stagnates, but the wise farmer can snap his finger at such things. He is a monarch of all he surveys on his broad acres, and the honesty of his boys and the purity of his girls are guarded against temptation and in them he is giving the country its best manhood and its best wisdom. The farmer is to be envied and if he is not contented with his lot he is lacking in wisdom."

THE POLITICAL FOOTBALL.—The popular reaction can but affect seriously the deliberations of Congress. The hard times have been attributed in large part to uncertainty about the tariff; and many workingmen, who in 1890 and again in 1892 voted against "McKinleyism," are now suspecting that it was those very votes that precipitated the panic, stopped the factories and threw them out of employment. So they are ready to try the experiment of voting the other way. The moral of it all is that the tariff should not be the football of party politics. Once adopted, a tariff measure ought by general consent to remain on the statute books for a period of years. The business of the country can survive any policy from the highest protection to absolute free trade, if only it can have some assurance of a consistent maintenance of the policy when once declared. It would be well if business men would agree to drop their controversial theories on the subject of tariffs, and do everything in their power to induce Congress to deal with the question on its practical merits. The present Congress will be greatly tempted to pass a political rather than a business tariff bill. At the end of the session the members of the house must go home and face the Congressional campaign of 1894; and the tariff bids fair for a year to come to be more than unfavorable for the country.—From "The Progress of the World" in the December Review of Reviews.

Nathaniel Brown, of Chicago, arrived here on Wednesday for a week's visit at his uncle's, Robert Brown.

La Grippe is making himself felt in the southern part of Michigan at present. All should do their part to keep him from again visiting this section of the country.

Mrs. C. W. McPhail and little son, Leland, and Mrs. J. P. Howe and daughter, Florence, left on Wednesday for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will spend the winter. Mr. McPhail and Mr. Howe accompanied them as far as Detroit.

P. Buckingham, of Caseville, sent us down as "sample copies," three mammoth potatoes, of the "Duke of Wellington" variety. Their largeness can be judged from the fact that it would take only about ten like the samples sent to make a peck. Mr. Buckingham is one of Huron county's most successful potato culturists. His potato patch the past season covered thirty acres of ground.

A Happy Wedding.

A very pleasant event occurred at the home of Mrs. E. K. Wickware on Wednesday evening, November 29, being the marriage of her eldest daughter, Lilly C., an accomplished and highly esteemed young lady, to John A. McDougall, of the firm of McDougall & Co., clothiers, ex-village president, member of the Democratic county committee, and a popular and successful young business man.

The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock by Rev. S. M. Gilchriese, in the presence only of Postmaster Seed and wife, sister and brother-in-law of the groom.—Mrs. S. M. Gilchriese, and the bride's mother, brother and sisters.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, and after congratulations and best wishes had been given, the company partook of a tasteful repast, and spent the remainder of the evening in pleasant conversation. Beautiful flowers with their brightness and fragrance gave cheerfulness to the surroundings. The usual "wedding trip" was quite sensibly dispensed with, and Mr. and Mrs. McDougall are "at home" to their friends at the Tennant House.

The hill leading up to the school house is now in good condition; and the pupils make good use of it by riding down hill. As a result, sore limbs, stiff necks, and black eyes are numerous.

The High School Literary Club has a literary exercise every Friday afternoon. Visitors are welcome.

The teacher would be pleased to see more visitors daily, and hope the patrons will feel that their greatest interest should be in their children at school.

A Big Hunt.

George Freeman and John Gable and wives helped to devote the regular Thanksgiving turkey with Mr. and Mrs. John Korth. After dinner they, that is the aforesaid George Freeman, John Gable and Korth, started out for a hunt, and returned after dark loaded down with game, having succeeded by the help of 3 dogs, in killing one little woodcock. But, each one claims that their shot was the one that killed the bird.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Last Saturday evening Deputy Sheriff Striffler returned from Detroit with A. J. Wilson, alias A. J. Wilmore, in custody on suspicion of being the burglar, or one of the burglars, who broke into the store of 2 Macks 2, in this place, on the night of November 16. Deputy Striffler was warranted in arresting him from the fact that he had previously been arrested by members of the Detroit police force, and, among other miscellaneous articles of merchandise found in his room, was clothing which answered to the description of that stolen from the above store. Deputy Striffler had acquainted the Detroit chief of police with the particulars of the burglary at this place—giving a description of the missing clothing, etc.—and was accordingly notified by telegram of Wilson's arrest and the consequential revelations. On Wilson's arrival here he was taken before Justice Landon. He went, pathetically, into detail, as to how he knew nothing of law, that this was his first time in court and that he would like to see an attorney, etc., and asked that his examination be postponed as long as possible. Per his request, Justice Landon deferred his examination two weeks, and not being able to furnish bail, he is now stopping with Sheriff Jarvis at Caro.

Whether sufficient evidence can be brought against Wilson to convict him of the charge on which he is now under arrest, is quite uncertain. Circumstances, however appear to indicate his guilt—Messrs 2 Macks identifying the clothing found in his possession, and several parties recognizing him as a man whom they had seen in Cass City on the day preceding the burglary. Friday's Detroit Evening News gives the following account of Wilson's arrest:

"Yesterday afternoon Officers McBride and McDermott heard a man was trying to sell some silverware on Jefferson avenue near the central depot. They dogged his movements for a time and at 7 p. m., arrested him. He said he was rooming over Hagan's saloon, 177 Woodbridge street west, and there the three went. In his trunk they found a napkin ring, a revolver, silver knives and forks, and a new overcoat in addition to the one he wore. They went went through the coat in the trunk and found a black cotton mask, a billy filled with shot, a brown hat and several new handkerchiefs still bearing the price mark. He was taken to the Woodbridge street station, where he gave his name as A. J. Wilson. A number of letters addressed to A. J. Wilmore, care of the general delivery, were found on him. One was from a young woman in Minden City. It began: 'My darling, my own precious one.' It was a gushing epistle, and assured Wilmore that his loved one thought more of him than of any other person on earth or in purgatory. Wilmore is 29 years old, 6 ft. one quarter inch tall, fair complexion, weighs 170, light hair and mustache, and has a slight stoop."

LATER—Deputy Striffler inform us that a handkerchief found in the clothing recovered from Wilson, bears the private cost mark of the 2 Macks. The examination will be held at the Town Hall in this place on December 16.

The State Home for the Feeble-Minded to be Located at Lapeer—Double Tragedy at Grand Rapids—Aid for the U. P. Miners.—Briefs.

The commission to select a site for a state home for the feeble minded met at Lansing after having viewed a number of places. The commission is composed of Gov. Rich; L. A. Sherman, of Port Huron; Hon. Cyrus G. Lane, of Coldwater, and Hon. J. C. Sharp, of Jackson. Delegates were present at the meeting from Alma, Greenville, Hudson, Lapeer and Saginaw. The latter's claims were strongly urged, it being contended to be an institution without a single state institution, but it was thought by members of the commission that the water supply was not of the right quality, which was an insurmountable objection. Nearly the entire afternoon was consumed in listening to the arguments.

A ballot was finally taken to determine the views of the commission. Ex-Gov. Luce voted for Greenville, Sharp for Saginaw and Sherman for Lapeer. On the second ballot Mr. Luce voted with Sherman in favor of Lapeer, but Sharp stood by Saginaw. The latter, however, when the odds were against him, consented to the Lapeer site being selected and the fact that the stream of water flowing through the city should be found to be sufficient to accommodate the sewage of the institution, and there the matter stands. If the stream is too small or if there is liable to be an injunction served restraining the state from using the stream for sewage, the home will doubtless go to Greenville.

Lapeer gives the state 160 acres of land, upon which there is a fine grove of 15 acres, and an opening on 502 acres until 1899, at a price not to exceed $500 an acre. It furthermore agrees to put in water mains and supply the home with water for five years free of charge.

Aid for Starving Miners. The call issued by Gov. Rich asking the people of Michigan to contribute to the starving people of the upper peninsula has had the desired effect. Carload after carload of food and clothing has been pouring in and Detroit citizens have raised over $3,000 in cash. But this fact should not deter the more fortunate people from continuing to send aid as what has already been given and pledged will only relieve for the time being and a long winter is scarcely begun. With this thought in view Gen. Alger heads Detroit's list with a cash gift of $500 every month and several others follow with pledges of $100, or $50, or as they can afford. Michigan has never yet sent a relief train to the starving people of the north and suffering and will not begin now.

That the generosity of the citizens of the state is appreciated is witnessed by the adoption of resolutions adopted at a mass meeting at Beaufort which returned the hearty thanks of the citizens of that community for the prompt aid rendered them.

M. A. C. Boys to Make Butter. A six weeks course in practical dairy husbandry will be given at the Michigan Agricultural college at Lansing, beginning January 3, 1894. The course is by Prof. C. D. Smith, who has had a large experience in the dairy, will be intensely practical and useful alike to the dairyman and farmer. During the course the chief aim will be to give the student practical experience in making and testing butter as it is done in large buttermaking concerns. Persons over 16 years of age will be admitted to the course. Applications for admission will be recorded in order of receipt by the secretary, the first 35 constituting a class. The requisitions of space and equipments will forbid the reception of a larger number. The total expenses while attending the course will not exceed $25.

Murdered His Wife, Then Shot Himself. Myron H. King, aged 38, a mason of Grand Rapids, shot and killed his wife Cora, and then killed himself. The couple had had domestic broils for years. Recently Mrs. King left her husband and returned to the house for some purpose, but at first would not go in. King appeared at the door and was seen by the neighbors trying to coax, cajol or compel her to go in. At last she ventured near the door, and he was seen to take hold of her, and they went in together. In a few minutes several pistol shots were heard within. A neighbor broke into the house and found both dead. King had shot his wife several times in the head, killing her instantly, and then shot himself through the brain. They leave a crippled son, about 3 years of age.

Pevabie Miners' Sad Blow. The timbering on the third level of the Pevabie mine, at Iron Mountain, was discovered on fire, and immediately the entire force of 300 miners working were ordered out of the mine. All drafts have been closed tight in an attempt to smother the flames. This is the only mine there that has been worked steadily, having shipped about 2,000 tons of ore this season. Unless the fire is soon extinguished it will be a hard blow to the miners, and will leave the city without further industry.

Captain Clinton Spencer, chief of the department of state at Lansing and one of the best known veterans in Michigan, suffered a stroke of apoplexy and is dead. His wife, Mary C. Spencer, is state librarian. The eight-months-old child of Mrs. Joseph Luchinski died in a peculiar manner at West Bay City. The mother supports herself selling milk and left the child in charge of an aunt. The little one was using a nursing bottle when the rubber nipple came off and lodged in its throat, choking it to death.

Robbers stole about 100 chickens from the henery of H. Holcomb, a farmer living near Grand Haven, but in their hurry to get away lost a pocket-book containing $75.

Van Buren whisky sellers have decided to openly violate the local option law by opening their bars. They expect the supreme court to declare the law unconstitutional.

An English capitalist has submitted a proposition to put in a deep water channel between Grand Haven and Grand Rapids and charge toll to pay him for his investment.

The saw mill of the Hardwood Lumber Co., near Menominee, was destroyed by fire. The loss is $27,000, the insurance $10,000. The mill had not been running for several weeks.

Jacob Yost, the young man whose foot was crushed in a hay press at Newport, has since died from the shock and loss of blood. He was 29 years of age, single, and highly esteemed.

O. W. Smith, of Charlevoix, has filed a patent on an invention for petrifying human bodies. It is claimed that a body, if not excessively decayed can, by the process, be made to look as natural as life for all time to come.

The Chocoyale bridge on the South Shore road, near Marquette, was found burning, and a train was narrowly saved from destruction. There is little doubt that the bridge was set afire for some devilish purpose.

Nearly all of the $5,000 which is to be subscribed for the purpose of developing the putative gas oil and coal at Romulus has been raised. The syndicate recently formed has secured options on 700 acres from the Romulus land syndicate.

A new railroad that Jere Boynton is prospecting for will start from Battle Creek, and touching the settlements of Bedford, Bantford, Hickory Corners, Prairieville and Orangeville, will reach Grand Rapids. Most of the right of way has already been secured.

T. W. Whitney, a St. Louis attorney, is a great horseman. He keeps the animals by the score for recreation and profit as a side issue from his law business, and now he is building a half-mile kite-track mainly for his own use, and intends to make it the fastest in the state.

The Girard block, next to the Commercial Hotel at Jackson, was destroyed by fire. The block had been an eyesore and disease-breeding hole that had bothered the health department for the past two or three years. It was owned by Russo Brothers, Italians, and occupied by Nicolò Le Seno as a fruit store and residence.

A FEARFUL RECORD.

Loss of Life and Property on the Great Lakes During the Season Just Closed.

In navigating the great lakes in the season just closed, 123 lives were lost and 53 boats with an aggregate tonnage of 24,258 and valued at $1,040,400, passed out of existence. Partial losses by stranding, collisions and fire, bring the grand total of losses on boats to $2,112,588. The shallow waters of Lake Erie claimed nearly half of the loss of life, while by reason of the Philadelphia-Albany disaster, Lake Huron is second. Tabulated by lakes the loss of life was: Lake Erie, 59; Lake Huron, 33; Lake Superior, 19; Lake Michigan, 12; Lake Ontario, 4; Detroit river, 5; total, 123. The aggregate value of the cargoes on the lost boats is $371,851, all covered by insurance. Of all the immense crowds carried on lake steamers during the World's Fair year, but one passenger was lost—James M. Cutler, the Chicago real estate dealer, who fell off the steamer City of Toledo near Jackson Park. Three passengers, however, committed suicide by jumping overboard.

Statistics from previous years are lacking in many important details, but as nearly as can be gathered for the past seven seasons the loss of life and property on the great lakes has been: In 1886 lives lost, 133; boats, 57; value, $956,000. In 1887 lives lost, 204; boats, 73; value, $792,000. In 1888 lives lost, 16; boats, 48; value, $439,000. In 1889 lives lost, 20; boats, 15; value, $340,000. In 1891 57 lives were lost. In 1892 lives lost, 99; boats, —; value, $1,014,250. In 1893 lives lost, 123; boats, 53; value, $1,040,400.

The great storm of October 14 finds no equal in all the records of the lake marine in its destructiveness. Not counting cargoes, except on boats which were totally lost, the property destroyed during that storm amounted to $184,327, and 52 lives were lost.

Next in severity was the big gale of April 18, when eight lives and property valued at $250,000 were lost.

Colorado to Issue Her Own Silver Coins. Denver, Col., special: Gov. Waite, it is stated here, has in hand a convention of miners which is to pass resolutions urging a special session of the legislature to protect the silver mining industries. Gov. Waite has been in correspondence with President Diaz of the republic of Mexico and has, so the state cabinet avers, arranged for the issue of a hybrid silver coin upon which will appear the Mexican mark as well as the Colorado coat of arms. This coin is to be made in the Mexican mints of Colorado silver, the Mexican government retaining the seigniorage as its profit. Gov. Waite desires that the state can purchase the bullion, and issue certificates which may be used as a medium of exchange until the return of hybrids with which the certificates may be redeemed.

Washington dispatches giving uncredited interviews with treasury officials say that the scheme might work, but there are obstacles in getting the people—banks especially—to accept money without the U. S. government back of it.

Bad Wreck on the Lehigh. A freight train on the Lehigh valley railroad became separated on a down grade entering White Haven, Pa. The engine derailed, and the train, which was stopping the rear half fell to a flagman and a brakeman. The former had to leave his post and was hard at work when an engine dashed into the rear at the rate of 35 miles an hour. The engine ploughed its way through the caboose and four of the cars ahead, landing in the principal street of the town, which runs parallel with the railroad. The stove in the caboose set fire to the wreck, and the flames consumed the remaining four houses along the street. A livery stable, a grocery and a hotel were destroyed with a loss of $25,000. The Lehigh's loss is $75,000.

The bagman and brakeman disappeared and it was feared that they were buried in the wreck and burned to death, but their bodies were not found.

A Late Steamer Goes Ashore. The steamer F. W. Wheeler, coal laden from Buffalo to Chicago, went ashore three miles east of Michigan City at 2 a. m. At first the life-saving crew went to her, but the captain decided to anchor and sent for the tug to tow the vessel. The tug was lying easy on sandy bottom and in no danger, but the wind shifted and blew a gale. The crew of the Wheeler signalled for the life-saving crew to take them off. The tug was washed clear over the boat. The life-saving crew launched their boat off the ice banks which lined the shore, and made two trips landing them all in safety.

The Wheeler was loaded with 2,100 tons of coal. She was commanded by Captain George N. Trotter and owned by David Whitney, Jr., of Detroit.

Foster's Finances. The creditors' committee having charge of the affairs Foster & Co., visited ex-Secretary Foster at Fostoria, O., in reference to the plan of settlement first decided upon—the acceptance of 50 per cent in full of all claims—and to them the ex-secretary stated that he thought a settlement could be made on that basis, at least he was confident that he could raise the necessary funds. Mr. Foster stated today that he would be ready to meet the committee, and would be prepared to make a favorable proposition to them. If this step is taken it will result in the withdrawal of the suits recently filed and stop all litigation.

George Armstrong, colored, was hanged at Taylorsville, Ky., for the murder of a little colored girl. The fall did not break his neck, and he hung for 25 minutes before the body was cut down.

John R. Yocum, aged 75, a pioneer of Chelsea, died at Jackson on Thanksgiving Day while visiting his sons. He settled in Chelsea on Thanksgiving Day in 1836, was married on Thanksgiving Day and his wife died last Thanksgiving Day.

The movement started last spring at Augusta, Me., to raise the money for a monument to be erected to the memory of the late James G. Blaine has proved a lamentable failure. It was thought at the time that $10,000 or $20,000 could be easily raised, but the treasurer of the Blaine Memorial association reports that only $115 has been paid in.

TO KILL THE EMPEROR.

Infernal Machines Sent to Emperor William and Chancellor Caprivi.

Cable from Berlin: An attempt has been made on the life of Emperor Caprivi. A box was sent him accompanied by a letter saying it contained a sample of a wonderful radish seed. The box was opened by those who received it, and found to contain a hammer which was kept down by bands of india rubber. The hammer was so arranged that if the box should have been opened in the ordinary way it would strike the cap of a nitro-glycerine cartridge.

It has also been learned that Emperor William received an infernal machine from Ostens similar to the one which was sent Chancellor von Caprivi. The infernal machine sent to the emperor was accompanied by a letter. Both letter and machine were delivered at the office at the emperor's civil cabinet, where some of the employes became suspicious of the contents of the box, accidentally discovered its real nature, and soon managed to render it harmless.

From the postmark it was judged that both machines and letters came from Orleans, France, and the police of that place are in active communication with the authorities of Berlin. Chancellor von Caprivi's machine, when opened, proved to be similar to the one exploded at Spandau last summer.

Several Deaths Follow Pay Day. Following pay day at nine of the largest mines on the Norfolk & Western road in West Virginia, four murders and three suicides, which resulted fatally, have occurred. At Burke, a Negro was shot by Hungarians; A. S. Waldron was fatally stabbed; Jack Abbott in a quarrel over a store bill, a Negro left Keystone carrying a keg of whiskey and a revolver, and his body was found in the woods with two bullet holes in the head; in a fight at Kimball Hiram Day, white, and Jim Burns, colored, shot each other to death. At Travis station the body of Halda Mitchell, a respectable white woman, was found in the woods. Deering, a French barber, has been arrested and charged with the murder.

Vice-President Stevenson's Miners Strike. Fifty employes of the McLean County Coal company at Bloomington, Ill., struck on account of a proposed reduction. On account of this strike the whole force of miners were obliged to quit work because it was impossible to move coal. The men were getting $2 and the boys $1.25. Vice-President Stevenson is president of the company and the strikers decided to appeal to him, but were unable to obtain an audience. The manager of the coal company says the reduction was absolutely necessary on account of hard times and recent fire losses.

The Vatican Wants an Italian Republic. Rome cables: In the highest and most reserved circles it is well known that the present dream of the vatican is the establishment of a federal Italian republic. The idea is the only explanation of the extraordinary language latterly adopted by the vatican in speaking of the mission of France and Russia, with relation to the papacy.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

New York, December 4.—R. G. Dun's weekly review says: It cannot be said that business during the past week has grown better or worse than during the week immediately preceding. The volume of trade has been small, increasing, and yet not as much as was expected. What is slightly stronger, western receipts being considerably smaller than in recent weeks, though exports are also remarkably small. Corn is unchanged in price, with heavy western receipts and large exports. Fat and hog products are practically unchanged, as well as oil. Cotton is a shade lower. At present the iron industry shows no sign of recovery. The question of whether the working force employed is larger than it was a week ago is undecided. The manufacturer enjoys a decided improvement because the market is in absolute need of more goods. A new line of country is pa in of with its surplus products loans amounting by the railroads to $200,000,000 were voted in Europe to avert great disasters last summer. Hence it is that the country is suffering from a lack of attention with its total cash reser down to $20,000,000 and its available gold only $20,000,000. Failures during the last week numbered only 27, against 236 for the same week last year, and in Canada 48, against 33 last year.

A big fire broke out in Shields' restaurant in Oil City, Pa., at 4:30 a. m. The wind was blowing a gale and before the flames could be controlled an entire block consisting of a dozen frame buildings, were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

The horrible and deplorable feature of the fire is the loss of human life. Mrs. Shields and three of her children perished in the flames. She was seen on the sidewalk with her babe in her arms shortly after the alarm was sounded. It is supposed she missed the other children and rushed back into the building to find them and was overcome by the smoke.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Gentlemen—"I was under the care of different physicians for nearly two years, tried every doctor in our town; continued to suffer and decline until I was a physical wreck. Every one felt sad; myself, gave up, as an operation seemed to us all certain death. I shall never forget how timely the good news of your SWAMP-ROOT reached me. I sent for it by this same mail, and it was delivered to me in time to use it. I used it for a few days, and it cured me. I am feeling as well today as I did. I kept right on using SWAMP-ROOT, and it saved my life. If any one doubts my statement I will furnish proof." MARYVILLE, OHIO. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

ASTORY OF BLOOD.

BY M. E. BRADDOCK. CHAPTER IV.—CONTINUED.

The ceremony was to be at ten. They were a quartet of an hour too soon; and Philip Durand, who loved the grand old pile with the artist's ardent love of fine artistic work, walked in the shadowy aisles with his painter friend, and expatiated upon the beauties of the building, while Rose watched by his side, proud of her lover's learning and enthusiasm.

Kathleen and Gaston waited nearer the altar, the girl kneeling with bent head and hunched face, deep in prayer; the lover sitting near, dreamily watching the graceful figure in soft gray drapery, touched with glintings of colored light from the old-stained windows.

There were no other weddings at that particular hour of that particular morning. These two couples and their friends had the mighty fane all to themselves. As the clock struck ten the organ began to peal, and the priests came slowly towards the altar in their rich vestments...

All was over in less than half an hour, and Kathleen and her sister went back into the sunshine, out of the gray shadows, the magical lights from the stained glass, the glory of gold, and splendor of chromatic color.

"Is that all?" asked Kathleen, looking up at her lover-husband. "An I really and truly your wife?" "Really and truly; and you would have been just as truly my wife if we had never gone further than the marie."

"No, no, Gaston; for then Heaven would have no part in our marriage." "My sweetest, I am content that you should be content. Women love old-world fancies."

There was a wand of marriages in front of the church. Philip Durand halted two of them, and the wedding-party got in. The two bridegrooms had planned the day between them. They were to breakfast at the restaurant in the Place de la Bourse, chosen for the sake of its winter-garden, which gave an air of prettiness to the sordid fact of dinner.

And just now, too, in this time of anxiety and ferment, the Bourse was the central point of Paris, where one could always hear the latest news. Just now Paris lay on a tip-toe, as it were, palpitating, thrilling with the expectation of great victories—Ansterlitz, a Jena; the news might be flashed along the wires at any moment of the day or night.

The bridegroom drove across the river, past the Louvre, into the Rue de Rivoli. What meant this new life and movement in the streets—men running to and fro, women standing in little groups, laughing, crying, hats waving in the air—the wild excitement of a race-course?

"One would think our happiness had driven all the world out of their wits," said Gaston, with his arm round his wife's slim waist.

There was only Madame Schubert with them in the carriage. She had insisted on taking the back seat, and sat smiling benignly on the happy lovers.

The carriage stopped at the round and shouted to them as he rattled his horse over the broad pavement in front of the Theatre Francaise. The pavement before the cafes was crowded with the usual loungers, smoking, talking, drinking; only the talk and the laughter was louder than the rattle of the wheels.

"A victory!" shouted the driver, looking round at his fare, and cracking his whip ferociously; "a great victory! MacMahon has made mincemeat of those Prussian dogs."

"A victory, and on our wedding-day!" exclaimed Kathleen joyously; and then the sweet sensitive face clouded suddenly, and she said, "There can be no victory without soldiers slain. Many hearts of wives and mothers will be mourning to-day amidst all this joyousness. O Gaston, how thankful ought to be that you were past the age for service!"

"True, dearest, I am better off here than with the Moblots; but if the National Guard were called out I should have to shoulder my musket."

"But not to leave Paris," said Kathleen, nestling closer to him; "and there can be no fighting in Paris!"

"Heaven forbid! No, love; one or two victories, yes; but Paris will give us whatever she can. What can a herd of Hunns and Vandals do against the fine flowers of our army, the heroes of Magenta and Solferino, the greybeards of Alma and Solferino?"

The driver drove along the Rue Vivienne. The narrow street was all in commotion; people at the shop-doors, people at the upper windows; a babel of voices, a shrill uproar of laughter and exclamation. But in the Place de la Bourse, and on the boulevard beyond, the excitement culminated. It was the day of the Derby, which had just been won—the stir and tumult of Doncaster at the crowning moment of the Lezer; and yet a deeper and stronger fever, for this had the awfulness of life and death.

"Victory, yes; but what? Which of the armies is it—MacMahon's or Bazaine's? Or was it the two armies which had crushed the Prussian forces between them—which had met and joined, like two living walls, dead, invincible, squeezing out the life of the enemy?"

Every one was asking questions, every one answering, stating, counter-stating, denying; but in this tumult of statement and counter-statement there was a difficulty in arriving at any positive fact, except the one all-inspiring fact that there had been a tremendous victory on the French side. Flags were flying at all the windows—flags produced as if by enchantment; and here came an open carriage slowly through the mob—the carriage of a famous opera-singer. In an instant it was stopped, surrounded by that surging sea of humanity; and the Diva stood up in her carriage at the entrance—yes, almost the command—the public, to sing the "Marseillaise."

AND FRO TO TAKE AN ORDER FROM THE NEW-COMERS.

Every one was asking questions, every one answering, stating, counter-stating, denying; but in this tumult of statement and counter-statement there was a difficulty in arriving at any positive fact, except the one all-inspiring fact that there had been a tremendous victory on the French side.

Durand and Mortemar contrived, by strenuous exertions, to secure a bottle of champagne and another of boeuroux, a poulet gras and a Chateaubriand, some fruit, cheese, salads and the wedding-party breakfasted merrily amidst the din, squeezed together in their corner, stilling hot under a burning glass roof, and in the dreamy atmosphere. But who would not be happy on a wedding-day, and in the hour of victory? They sat at the little table for more than an hour, nearly half of which time had been wasted in waiting; and when they went out again it seemed to Durand's keen eyes as if a change had come over the spirit of the crowd outside. There were no more than a few faces of business men looking even perplexed and troubled; voices less loud; no more hats thrown into the air, no more laughter.

The rest of the bridal-party were too much absorbed in each other to note this change in the public temper. The carriages were waiting to take them to the Buttes Chaumont, where the banquet was to be held that afternoon. They were to go back to a dinner, which Madame Schubert and Rose had planned between them, in Madame Schubert's apartment, which was spacious and splendid in the eyes of the dwellers in the Rue de la Cour.

Durand and Mortemar had wished to give a dinner at the Hotel de Ville, but the women had their faces against such extravagance. Rose argued that it was a sin to squander money on eating and drinking. She had had that at such places as a noxious way for a single dish, a franc for a pear or a peach; yet, when peaches were to be had for three or four sous at the street-corners, so Maman Schubert and Rose had held grave consultations, and had gone to the market together on the Rue de la Bastille, the daube a la Provencale was simmering slowly on the little charcoal stove in la Schubert's tiny kitchen.

The little dinner in the Rue de la Cour was a great success. The feast was held in Madame Schubert's apartment, and the kindly matron presided at the banquet. Never was there a merrier meal; voices all mingling now and then in a joyous tumult of speech—voices low and sweet, deep and resonant, and ripples of happy laughter; a frequent clinking of glasses, and a babbling and a caressing. Gaston's friend the journalist turned out a wit of the first water; and the grey-bearded grave artist proved wonderfully good company; he was loaded with quietude, and a six-hundreded revolver, and before his audience had done laughing at one story he had begun another, still funnier, and then another, funnier again, a perpetual-crescendo of mirth.

Just as a crowning feature, with the delicate and a six-hundreded revolver, whose cork exploded with the force of a cannon. "Listen there!" cried the journalist. "How that thunders! It is the true voice of war."

And at this a burst of gaiety. It is such a dramatic and a stirring, when one's own country is winning. "Just one little glass more, my patriotic friend," said Gaston, filling his fellow-scribbler's glass, "so fete our arms!"

For the champagne, Gaston slipped out quietly, with just a whispered explanation upon his face. He had to go round to the newspaper office, in the Rue St. Andre des Arts, to arrange about his descriptive article for Sunday, or, in point of fact, to write his paper on the spot.

It was at a Harlow political dinner. The guests had just taken their seats at the tables. The colored waiters, repellant in full dress, were bustling about with itching palms. A jolly party sat down at one of the tables. The leader took his seat at the head of the table and beckoned to one of the waiters. As the expectant darkey leaped over him the club man took slowly from his pocket a wallet, and from that a new, crisp $2 bill. With the greatest deliberation he folded it through the center, while the waiter's eyes began to roll. Laying the green-back on the table, he pressed his knife along the crease and calmly tore the bill in two, to the horror of the waiter and to the surprise of his own party. One-half of the bill he tucked into his vest pocket. The other half he handed to the waiter remarking laconically: "The rest after dinner—perhaps."

There wasn't another table in the room that got the service that that table got, and the waiter was finally rewarded with the other half of the bill.—Saturday Evening Post.

What is probably the fastest piece of engineering work in fitting out a vessel with machinery was performed at a shipbuilding works at West Hartlepool, England. The vessel was launched at 4.30 P. M. June 24, and in twenty-four hours the engines, which were of 500 indicated horse-power, boiler, funnel, and all connections and fittings were in place. In two and a half days from the time she left the stocks the vessel steamed back to her berth, having been thoroughly tested in the meantime. This is an illustration of the advance that modern machinery and organization have made in recent years in marine engineering.—Phila. Record.

Run, shuttle, run! The war has claimed my son; My daughter's love has wrecked her life; The palsy smitten my good wife; Run, shuttle, run!

Stay, shuttle, stay! My breast heaves to-day; The wind is cold; roid rides the panes; No ember burns; the darkness gains; Stay, shuttle, stay!

—"Carmen Sylva," Queen of Roumania.

One reason why some people are not so wicked as others, is because they haven't had so good a chance.

NO TIME FOR SPORT.

The German Schoolboy Studies Harder Than Those of Other Countries. Year after year the German gymnasia, high schools and universities send out into the world, there to look for a living, multitudes of overwrought youths, teeming with instruction which has unfitted them for bread-earning by the practice of any purely mechanical craft or petty trade and has imbued them with many of the tastes and sympathies that can only be productive of happiness, or even enjoyment, to those who are enabled to take their stand and maintain it in one of the upper social spheres.

These youths, says the London Telegraph, have been "put through the mill" with a severity of which the British public school boy and university "man" have not an even approximate notion. Nothing is less like the school life of England than that of Germany. In the first place it is entirely devoid of the element of play. Games, such as those which constitute an important feature of our educational curriculum and are specifically associated in character, are unknown to the boys who attend German gymnasia and Realschulen. All these establishments are in the nature of day schools. They do not take in boarders, no leisure moment of the scholar's life is spent within their precincts, consequently no playgrounds are attached to them, and they are exclusively utilized for study. There is no such thing as cricket or football, rowing or paper-chasing at a German school, nor were those or any other open-air sports tolerated by the management of an educational institution, nor would there be any time for indulgence in them.

It may be said of the average German school boy that during the seven years or so which he passes in working his way up to "sexta" or "prima" his labors never cease save during meal times and sleeping hours, and are only lightened to a certain extent by his annual summer vacation, which, however, is abundantly fraught with tasks calling for careful fulfillment ere he returns to the regular routine of school life. This routine begins at 8 a. m. and lasts with an interval for necessary refreshment, until a late hour of the afternoon. Should the "gymnasist" happen to reside at any considerable distance from his school he is compelled to rise at 6 or a little after in order to dress, get his breakfast, cast a glance at his lesson books and exercises, and reach the gymnasium in time to avert an imposition for unpunctuality. When he returns home at the end of school hours he carries with him a quantity of work, the adequate preparation of which for submission to his teachers next morning will occupy him until 10 p. m. if he be a quick student, and probably until midnight if he be a slow one. For healthful recreation—nay, for absolute rest—he has not had five minutes at his disposal throughout the working day. Week in, week out, excepting on Sundays, with him it is toil and drudge, toil and drudge.

It's a Little Way They Have. "A pair of nippers and half a dozen eighteen-inch gas-burner tubes," was the order given by a jaunty young woman who visited a hardware store the other day. "That lady," said the proprietor after her departure, "is an actress, and is just going on the road. All theatrical people while traveling carry nippers and tips with them. The managers of hotels in small towns try to save gas by putting bits of cotton in the bedroom burners, thus impeding the flow. The minute an actor strikes a light and detects this he pulls out his nippers and tips. Off comes the 'faked' burner and on goes one that lets the full head of gas come through. Before leaving he arranges things as he found them and goes merrily along to get the better of the next economical landlord on his route."

Photographs of the Negroes. A New York photographer has solved the difficult problem of taking successful photographs of colored people. The difficulty with the ordinary negro photograph is that the high lights on the cheek bones and the nose do not show for their true value, but are so much too high that deep points of the face seem almost white. The successful experimenter managed to tone down these lights by the application of a powder to the face of the sitter. He conceals the nature of the material and the method of application.

His Explanation. "Yes," said the important young man to the young lady whom he had just met, "I have been from pole to pole."

"Why, Mr. Brickets," said the hostess, "I didn't know you were over out of the United States."

"Oh—er—ahem, you see I came here on the electric cars. I referred to the trolley poles."—Washington Star.

Collecting Taxes in Saxony. The government of Saxony has adopted a novel method to secure the payment of taxes. The names of persons who did not pay their taxes last year are printed and hung up in all the restaurants and saloons. The proprietors dare not serve those mentioned on the lists with food or drink, under penalty of losing their license.

A Great Success. Briggs—Do you always call on Miss Trilling in the same suit? Briggs—Yes, I want to show her father I am economical.

Briggs—I guess you have succeeded. He told me the other day you were the meanest man he ever saw.

It is estimated that the total production of coffee in the world is about 600,000 to 650,000 tons, of which Brazil alone produces between 340,000 and 380,000 tons, and Java 60,000 to 60,000.

So recently as two centuries ago sugar was known only as a costly luxury and a medicine. In 1700 Great Britain's consumption was only 10,000 tons, in 1800 it had risen to 150,000 tons, and in 1885 it was nearly 1,100,000.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Leek school district in Kingston gave a dinner on Thanksgiving at the residence of Eli Leek. About 75 were present. Mr. Leek and family received them all in a jovial manner and the proceeds went to help a poor and unfortunate household, whose chief supporter has lost his sight.

It is Thanksgiving evening and the children have made inquiries of this time-honored day. Their interrogations prompt new thoughts in our mind. We can see how the ancients, delivered from their enemies or in the flush of victory over their opponents, could give heart-felt thanks to the higher power. But, the New Englanders, who originated the Annual Thanksgiving strikes us as an extremely pious people. It was not always years of plenty but sometimes autumns of starvations, and methinks the man who believes in special providences and who has labored hard the summer through to find only the "wolf at the door," or the mother that looks upon the babe at her breast wasting away for want of nourishment, while heartless famine mocks, and can return thanks to the power they believe gives or withholds all things, must be fitted by nature for their peculiar faith and no influence on earth could make them materialists. Like the Irish peasant, nothing can win or wean them from their inborn belief. It becomes a part of their very nature, and praises are ever rising from their lips as if it flows by instinct without reason taking any active part.

Elevators in New York.
New York contains 7,500 elevators at present, including those in private houses and others where the traffic is comparatively small. If you assume, however, merely to dazzle the fancy, that 5,000 of these are in busy buildings, then you find that the elevators of New York could carry up and down per day 5,000 times, 18,000 people, or not far from the entire population of the United States. Agrin, by a beautiful law of averages, you find that 20 miles is a fair daily run for a New York elevator.—Boston Globe.

If the hair has been made to grow a natural color of these pills do not grip, are perfectly safe to take, and remove all tendency to liver and bowel complaints.

Cartier Harrison's Grain District.
When the late Carter Harrison was in congress, a granger member once took him to task for speaking on a bill affecting agricultural interests, telling him that he should leave it to the representatives of the farmers, upon which Harrison retorted, "I am from a district only three miles long and two miles wide, but in it we raise more grain than do many states combined. It is raised by elevators."—New York Post.

Aphorisms.

"Fate" is the name that the fool gives to consequences.

All things are said to come to him who waits, but he often gets the dyspepsia in the meantime and so has no appetite for them when they arrive.

In giving thanks, at this "Thanksgiving" because we are alive, let us not forget to give other people a reason for being glad we are alive, also.

"Famous" and "infamous" are often so nearly synonymous that the one who is to bestow the laurel wreath feels that she would like to be like Justice—with her eyes bandaged.

Ambition often shoots wide of the mark, while industry hits the bull's eye nine times out of ten.
