One thought, in memory's storehouse lies to-day... To mark the scenes of war, when blue and gray...

Cardinal Richelieu.

Founded on the Play of "Richelieu," by Lord Lytton.

Adrien let the fine steel almost reach his breast, but bowing himself, it was going by in a semi-circle...

Baradas saw the eyes peering into his with the gleaming of a wild cat which at last springs on the hunter...

"Swords drawn—before the very palace! Have all the laws died with Richelieu?" faltered an old majordomo...

When the cardinal turned to reconfront the ruler whose tutor into greatness he had solely been, he met a gloomy face...

"Yes! it requires a mountain to crush this terrible serpent!" retorted Richelieu. "I have not yet, like St. Francis, welcomed Sister Death..."

"Be firm, my liege! Having assumed the scepter, wield it! Remember it is a sword, though wrapped with velvet..."

"I know him," murmured Louis, with slightly averted eyes. "The villain Mauprat! A rebel these many years! His father a Huguenot! He took your town of Pavilux with a horde of free-lances gathered together of all the ponceards and returned galley slaves of my own village...

"And of high treason you are a judge," returned the cardinal, who had listened so long with growing impatience...

"At your peril intervene anew! This is too much," returned the king, to the exultation of Gaston and the knot of nobles...

"I feel the fire spreading among the ashes," murmured he, between his coughs. "But I never do aught without reflection, and Adrien's hot-headed intervention was no play on my board..."

"I am not for a Richelieu to go out of the serpent's den showing that the poison has soaked to his heart. Ah! old mountain," mused he...

"I still live?" "No, but such artifices—" "Not mine; look elsewhere for artifices," retorted the prime minister, glancing at the king's upholders...

"We have punished them already," Baradas hastened to say, irritated at being left out of the dialogue. "One Huguenot, the captain of your reverend guard's defenders, was heard boasting of the good guidance to France of your immense capacity..."

"No!" interrupted Richelieu, with lofty disdain and a withering look which caused the cabinet Cæsar to blanch so that his beauty-spotted black satin seemed deep holes in his face...

"Not a man behind the king drew a breath, while the latter paused for a reply. Even Baradas' ready tongue failed him at the frowning of the old man, who, quite single handed, defied them all..."

"Well, can't you see he's smoking a cigar?"

loathed by charity, might ask for justice! Not with the fawning tone and the crawling meanness of some whom I see around you—these counts and princes, ready to kneel for favors—

"Lord cardinal, one by one you have severed from me the bonds of human love," faltered the monarch, afraid to know more as he caught a glimpse of Gaston's countenance convulsed with a timorous tremor...

"Sweet heaven, grant an old man patience!" said Richelieu. "I am reproached for bloodthirstiness—I, a churchman, too—in a realm where malice jays to act vigorously in no dread of the thunder of heaven..."

"When he lifted up his voice, never in youth had it worn a sweeter, fuller tone, and the first word spell-bound the host and his familiars rudely making for the door..."

"I am not for a Richelieu to go out of the serpent's den showing that the poison has soaked to his heart. Ah! old mountain," mused he, as he proudly went through the room where all turned away from the solitary figure which no change of attire disfigured...

"I still live?" "No, but such artifices—" "Not mine; look elsewhere for artifices," retorted the prime minister, glancing at the king's upholders...

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

TALES THAT ARE TRUE AND TALES NOT SO TRUE.

The Travelling Calf.—The Story of a Young Patriot Who Won Undying Fame and the Admiration of All Americans—Where Beans Come From.

The Travelling Calf. It was a festive little calf. That left his home behind. And went a-travelling to improve His somewhat bovine mind.

He walked into his master's home, And took a glance about; But not a thing did he see there That he could quite make out.

And when he felt his appetite Beginning for to grow, He tried to eat the food that on The patterned wall did show.

But finding that this diet was A disappointment sore, He tried to taste the carpet greens Upon the parlor floor.

But these he found were quite as vain; And so it came to pass He saw 'twas better far for him To go again to grass.

And leave to other creatures, quite A disappointment sore, The task of travelling to improve A somewhat bovine mind.

A Young Hero. In City Hall park, New York city, stands the bronze statue of a young man, the story of whose brief life thrills all patriotic hearts.

The statue represents him pinioned, awaiting the gallows, as he uttered his last words.

American unite in admiration of his noble character, pride in his self-forgetful heroism, and grief over his untimely death. Every boy and girl in America should know by heart the life of Captain Nathan Hale.

In the darkest hour of our country's struggle for liberty, this self-devoted hero—inspired by fervid patriotism and eager to render service to his country—laid down his young life, a sacrifice to the cause of American liberty.

The days and weeks that followed that memorable Fourth of July in 1776 were dark indeed for the struggling colonists. Determined to crush with one effort the insurrection in her American colonies, Great Britain sent that summer a larger force than any which had before landed upon our shores.

East Broadway, not far above what is now Franklin square.

A crowd had gathered, many of whom afterward bore witness to the noble bearing of the young hero and to the barbarity with which he was treated by the provost marshal.

As Hale was about to ascend the fatal scaffold, he stood a moment looking upon the detachment of British soldiers, and the crowd standing about; and the words that came from his loyal young heart in that supreme moment will never die: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

It is not known in what spot his body was laid, but the bones of the young patriot crumbled to dust in the heart of the great metropolis of the republic he helped to found.

So long as love of country is cherished, and devotion to the cause of liberty is remembered, so long will the name of Nathan Hale shine with pure and undimmed luster.—St. Nicholas.

Where Beans Come From. "Children know more than we elders think they do, and they also know less than we suppose they do," said a teacher of a primary grade the other day.

"Where, I asked, 'do we get the beans we eat?'" "The answer came, 'At the grocer's.'"

"But where does the grocer get them?" "One bright little girl answered: 'He gets them from God. God brings them to him in the night and we get them from the grocer in the morning.'"

"Then I asked how many of them had ever been outside of Chicago, and only a few answered in the affirmative. "They were all bright children, well developed mentally, but 'the country was a world outside of their knowledge. Sad, isn't it?'"—Inter Ocean.

What He Liked as a Boy. It is said that as men grow old they fancy what they knew and loved, as boys is better than what can be had at the present day. The following story is told of the director of a large corporation:

One morning he happened to come across the dinner pail of the office boy. His curiosity led him to take off the cover.

A slice of home-made bread, two doughnuts and a piece of apple pie tempted the millionaire's appetite. He became a boy again and the dinner pail seemed to be the one he carried sixty years ago.

Just then the office boy came in and surprised the old man eating the pie—he had finished the bread and doughnuts. "That's my dinner you're eating!" said the boy.

Lewis Schiller, of Allentown, Pa., is the father of twenty children, seventeen of whom are living. A little girl was punished for doing wrong, when she said: "Oh, those commandments do break awfully easy!"

You can always tell the novice in love-making when he asks for "just one kiss." As though such a thing ever existed! Grace—You asked me to marry you. Can you not read your answer in my face? Ned, cruelly—Yes; it is very plain.

Girls who contemplate purchasing a bicycle would do well to harden their muscles in advance by running their mother's sewing machine or rocking the baby. When you see a young man and woman walking down the street, leaning on each other like a pair of badly-matched oxen, it is a pretty good sign that they are bent on consolidation.

Experiments in pigeon-flying recently made on the Italian torpedo boat Aquila show that the average rate of flight was almost exactly a mile a minute. Lightning played a curious "freak" at Waterloo, Me., last week. Etta Bealle was struck and instantly killed, while a child, whom she was holding in her lap, was uninjured.

John Hudlum, janitor of the Chicago board of trade building, was born a slave, and died the other day worth $30,000, most of it made by carefully gathering and selling to feed stores the waste grain left on the floors. A sailor, who is said to have worked his way from his home in Brighton, below Melbourne, Australia, all the way to Disco Greenland, for the purpose of giving another fellow "a good drubbing," has arrived home after an absence of two years.

Dr. Cook, who is to go to the Arctic on a trip that combines business with pleasure, says that the cold of New York is more trying to him than the cold of a Greenland winter. The latter is dry, sharp, with the moisture frozen out of the air, but winter in New York, he says, is wet and raw and penetrating.

Hall's Catarrh Cure Is taken internally. Price, 75c. Boreocarbide, a new material recently prepared in the electric furnace by the French chemist, Henri Moissan, is a compound of borax and carbon, and is excessively hard, cutting diamonds without difficulty.

To Cleanse the System Effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood impure or sluggish, or when the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, to dispel headaches, colds or fevers use Syrup of Figs. Nothing can make us richer than does not make us more thankful. Worship is slain when we go to the altar to demand pay for our work.

There are too many people who only listen to the sermon for their neighbors when they go to church. Cure for Croup.—Use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil according to directions. It is the best remedy for all sudden attacks of colds, pain and inflammation, and injuries.

William Cameron met his death in a peculiar manner at Chattanooga, Tenn., lately. While "making up" for an entertainment he used some powder on his face. In some way the powder got up his nostrils and into his lungs, resulting in his death.

DOANS KIDNEY PILLS BACKACHE. Perhaps you don't know that BACKACHE and LAME BACK come from disorder of the KIDNEYS. We give you two points; ninety per cent. of Backache is due to improper working of the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are sure cure for all Kidney Complaints. This assertion can be backed by strongest testimony.

Proprietor.

OUR MOTTO:
PERSEVERANCE, PROGRESS AND PATRIOTISM.

Good-Bye.

By a sale of our one-half interest in the ENTERPRISE, A. A. P. McDowell assumed entire business and editorial control on Wednesday last.

The information conveyed in the above lines will no doubt be surprising news to our readers, but as this is a world of constant surprises, we feel that we are but doing our mite toward continuing this state of affairs.

During the three years of our sole proprietorship and one year as junior proprietor, we have undergone many trying and very many pleasant experiences, and it is not without a pang at the parting that we pen our valedictory. Our four years' experience as editor and publisher of this paper has proven a splendid school for us, and we have learned many lessons and learned them well. The "school" has also been one of financial profit, and it is not because of a lacking in this particular that we quit it, but that we may satisfy a long-cherished desire by engaging in other studies.

The ENTERPRISE has never been on a better paying basis than at present. We have reason to believe that we have been at least fairly successful in our newspaper efforts, but we are loath to draw this conclusion entirely from the many high compliments paid us from time to time by kind friends.

Mr. McDowell, who is now sole proprietor, has been sufficiently recommended by us in these columns in the past, and all that we will say in this connection is that we believe that the ENTERPRISE under his control will maintain, if not exceed, the standard which it has attained, and that he is deserving of the same liberal patronage that has been accorded the paper in the past.

In conclusion we extend our sincere thanks to the citizens of Cass City and vicinity for the many kindnesses shown and favors bestowed during our business career in this place, and assure all that, as we enter into a new vocation, we will carry with us most pleasant recollections of our business dealings and social intercourse with them.

Again we say good-bye, and remain as ever,

Very Truly,
MACK M. WICKWARE.

That professorship of journalism has started up again—this time in the University of Pennsylvania. It is said to be in charge of a practical newspaper man, who, if he is really a practical newspaper man, must smile to hear himself called "Professor" Joseph F. Johnston. A school of journalism that is worth anything, if there could be such a thing, would train its pupils to have a working knowledge of as many modern languages as possible. Next it would give them a thorough knowledge of civil government in all the countries. Next it would make them take a living interest in all the great social and economic questions. Then it would bid them read a good newspaper all through every day and remember the contents and never to use in writing two words where one would do. Then it would dismiss them with its blessing and a parting injunction to "boil it down."

Maryland-Delaware Ship Canal.

A contributor to The Engineering and Mining Journal has been looking into the matter of the proposed ship canal across the Maryland-Delaware peninsula. He finds that such a canal would shorten the distance to Baltimore around up Chesapeake bay by 85 hours. The idea is for European ships to cut direct across the famous "east shore" instead of sailing down to the mouth of the Chesapeake, entering between Capes Charles and Henry and then steaming up the bay to Baltimore. Baltimore's foreign commerce is increasing rapidly, and she wants to get her oysters across to Europe as quickly as ships from other ports can take their freight.

We learn from The Engineering and Mining Journal that no less than seven routes have already been surveyed across the peninsula. The most available appears to be that either by way of the Choptank river or Sassafras river. The cost of the canal as estimated will be by the different routes from $3,500,000 up to $41,500,000. The length of the canal will be from 106 to 149 miles, according to the route chosen. The engineering problems to be solved are not difficult. The Baltimore city council is profoundly interested in this proposition to bring Baltimore 140 miles nearer to the Atlantic ocean. It has authorized a commission to endeavor to secure the co-operation of congress in the scheme.

Undoubtedly the canal will be built within the next 25 years if the strikers and anarchists do not blow this country up before that time. But the promoters of the enterprise must count well the cost before undertaking the work. The Manchester ship canal in England, to which they point as evidence of what can be done here, is a greater elephant on the hands of Manchester than was expected. The canal's deficit at the end of 1894 promises to be $700,000. Unless its expenses can be cut down or its revenues increased, it will largely increase the taxes of the citizens of Manchester next year. For dredging it alone $250,000 a year is required.

A Foreign Education.

As usual, the autumn will see a migration of thousands of American students to the universities and finishing schools of Europe. These young persons are at that callow age when the heart is as yet untouched by sympathy with the suffering, the mind not yet fully permeated with that grand Jeffersonian sentiment that all men are created equal. The young men go mostly to Germany, practically a military despotism. An iron system of caste exists there to a greater degree than anywhere else this side the orient. The individual of so-called noble birth regards himself as really a higher order of being than the merchant or mechanic. The person who does his cooking is a menial beneath the blooded hunting hound that he fondles. These aristocratic ideas are the first that the American student in Germany usually imbibes. Along with them he imbibes a free and easy notion that old fashioned morality is a mere thing of conventionality. The finished and fair landscape in the old countries likewise contrasts very unfavorably with the bad roads, yawning clay cuts and weedy surfaces of his own land.

By the time he is ready to return he is as unfit for a citizen of a free republic, where there are yet vast quantities of work to be done, as a human being can be. His love of country is dead, and he sneers at his own mother and all women. At least this is the result so often that a foreign education is the last thing the average American boy wants. We have now schools in the United States good enough for anybody.

If you want to gain sympathy for a cause you don't like and enmity for yourself, begin and persecute and abuse its adherents and do violence to them. Circulate lies about them; apply the worst and the hardest language you know to them; sneer at them and deride them; discriminate against them in all matters of amity and commerce and do physical harm to them. Then all the world will go over to them and their cause. Such is the law.

An untrifling Britisher makes the declaration that men are cleaner than women and takes his stand on it. He writes to the Pall Mall Budget that at a free bathing establishment in a West End parish seven times as many men as women come to wash themselves, although equal accommodations are provided for both sexes. Then he asks triumphantly, "Why do not women bathe more?"

About this time of year look out for lottery swindles that offer you a certain large sum of money for a small fee. They are frauds, every one.

All single men and women wish they were married, and many married men and women wish they were single.

If everybody helped somebody, then a few people would not have to help anybody.

In matters of opinion never forget that another's opinion is just as good as your own.

If anarchists must murder somebody, why do they kill the best people?

THE STATE NEWS.

DOINGS AND HAPPENINGS IN MICHIGAN.

Hon. Chauncey Wisner, of Saginaw, Died Suddenly—New Style Coat Adopted for State Troops.—An Almost Complete Report of the Population of Michigan

Burrows and Aitken Re-Nomnated. The Republican congressional conventional of the Third district comprising Branch, Calhoun, Eaton, Kalamazoo and Hillsdale counties was held at Albion. Resolutions were adopted complimentary to the Republican party and its platform, endorsing Gov. Rich and Representative Burrows, and expressing regret at the death of Senator Stockbridge. William A. Foote, of Kalamazoo, renominated Julius Caesar Burrows, of Kalamazoo, as representative in congress. The nomination was carried by a rising vote.

New Style Coat for State Troops. The state military board has adopted a regulation for a new coat for the members of the M. N. G. A partial description follows: The coat to be a dark blue cloth or serge, single-breasted; standing collar, fastened with hook and eye; coat to close with a flap containing five concealed black buttons and button holes; the skirt is extended from one-third to two-thirds the distance from the hip joint to the bend of the knee, according to height of wearer; to be cut to fit the figure easily, back in a single piece with curved side seams; a vertical opening in each side at the hip; the sword-belt to be worn underneath the coat, the sword-hook emerging through the opening in the left side; the shoulder strap to be worn; the insignia of the corps, a number of the regiment on each side of the collar.

WISNER DEAD. He was an ex-member of the State Legislature.

Hon. Chauncey W. Wisner, the well-known ex-member of the legislature from Saginaw, died at his home on the Bridgeport road, southeast of Saginaw. The cause of his death was a complication of diseases.

Michigan, 2,339,374. The first count of the population schedule of the state census of 1894 has been completed. It is believed to be complete for all territory in the state, except the township of Irving, in Barry county; Newton, in Mackinac county; St. Charles, in Saginaw county, and the Island of Isle Royale, from none of which have the census returns been received. The totals given are supposed to be substantially correct, but are, of course, subject to correction. The population of the state June 1, 1894, was 2,339,374, as compared with 2,093,889 June 1, 1890, and 1,853,658 June 1, 1884. The increase in four years has been 145, or 6.9 per cent, and in the ten years since 1884, 385,716, or 20.81 per cent. Of the total increase since 1890 (145,485), 131,959 is in the city of Detroit, and 19,156 in the city of Grand Rapids.

Ironwood Strikers Submit. At a meeting of the Miners' union held at Ironwood the strike was declared off. About one thousand men have been working for the past week and a rush of union and non-union men for places would have been made whether the union had declared the strike off or not. The military companies have left. It is now six weeks since the strike was instituted, and the men go back under practically the same conditions as before. Owing to the lateness of the season not more than half the strikers will be able to get work, and the companies refuse to discharge the men working.

An Awful Suicide. Sarah Rickels, an unmarried woman 40 years of age, attempted to kill herself by cutting her throat. The physicians saved her life, but she was still determined to die, so she went into the woodshed and emptied a kerosene lamp on her head, thoroughly saturating her clothes. She then set fire to herself, and when her brother, attracted by her screams, discovered her, she was a blazing pillar of fire. Her brother rolled her on the ground, extinguishing the flames, but she died five hours later.

The British steamer Monkseater arrived at New York from Alexandria, Egypt, with a full cargo of Egyptian sugar. The transportation of sugar has assumed gigantic proportions, it being brought to New York from almost all quarters of the globe in anticipation of its being subject to duty by the provisions of the Wilson bill.

Killed by a Folding Bed. Jerry Gallop, aged 55, had his neck broken at Lansing by the closing of a folding bed. He parted company with his wife and family a year ago, leaving his farm near Meridian, and taking rooms in the city. A young woman lived with him but she made up her mind to go home. Jerry got mad and angrily pulled down a folding bed, with the above fatal results. He was a well known politician of Greenback fame.

Work on a street railway in Alpena will be begun by Chicago business men who have been given a franchise.

The citizens of Niles are agitated over the discovery of iron ore on the farm of Nicholas Elch, two miles south of that city. Specimens of the ore have been examined by an expert and pronounced good. Steps are being taken to investigate thoroughly, the supposed vein.

Charles Forrest, a young barber, was arrested at Cedar Springs for burglary at Carey, O., and Howard City, Mich. The crime was committed last summer, and he with another prisoner, was confined in jail at the latter place, but burned their way out and escaped, although they were handcuffed together.

Charles Miller, an old man claiming his home as being in Detroit, was found dead in a ditch near Capac. A pint bottle was found near his side, which had evidently held whisky. It is thought that the man emptied the flask after which he became tired and rolled over on his face, and was smothered by the soft soil.

Supt. A. B. Atwater and Asst. Supt. McIntyre have been preparing a black list at Battle Creek of all the men discharged by the C. & G. T. for active participation in the recent strike. It is supposed that none of the men shall ever be employed again on any American road.

A large stone was thrown through a Michigan Central car window as the train passed St. Charles, Saginaw county. C. C. Latta, an Indiana traveling man, was struck on the side of the head and knocked unconscious. The train was stopped and a search made for the coward who threw the stone, but without success.

Information of Interest Regarding the Trouble.

A Sketch of the Army, Navy, Officers and Advantages of China, Japan and Korea—The Origin of the Present Trouble and its Probable Outcome.

The kingdom of Korea is not quite twice as large as the state of New York. Its population is estimated at 8,600,000. It is a peninsula stretching out from the continent of Asia in a southeasterly direction, between Japan and China proper, with the Yellow sea on one side and the sea of Japan on the other. The average width is 135 miles, and the whole length is about 600 miles. The native name for the country is Tsyosien, or Chosen. The Chinese call it Kao Lee. The Japanese know it as Korai, from which comes the English name. The climate is cold, and in the summer rain is frequent.

The first meeting which resembled a fight between the powers occurred when the Japanese fired on and sunk the steamship Kou Shung, belonging to Hugh Mathieson & Co., of London, which had been chartered by the Chinese government to convey troops to Korea. A Japanese cruiser sighted the Kou Shung and signalled the transport to put back. The transport continued steaming ahead until the cruiser fired a shot across her bows. No attention being paid to this the Japanese opened fire in earnest, put a number of shot into her, and the transport eventually sank with all hands. The number of people drowned is not known, but it is believed that there must have been about 1,000 Chinese soldiers on board.

At Seoul a conflict took place between the Japanese and some Chinese and Korean soldiers, the Japanese being victorious. Shortly afterward the Japanese made a prisoner of the king of Korea.

TOWNS DESTROYED.

Furious Forest Fires Burn Wisconsin Villages.

Weeks of Dry, Hot Weather Without Rain Make the Conditions Favorable for a Fearful Conflagration—Many Hundreds of People Homeless and in Sad Want.

Dispatches from several Wisconsin cities tell of awful devastation from forest fires in various portions of the state. Owing to railroad bridges and telegraph wires being destroyed there is little communication with the burned districts and particulars are very scarce. From Ashland the following is sent out:

Forest fires are producing great suffering and loss throughout this vicinity, and railroad companies have never before experienced such damage from fires. On the Wisconsin Central it is impossible to move trains. Phillips, the headquarters of John B. Davis' lumber company, a manufacturing town of 2,000 people, is totally destroyed by fire. A dispatch from Fifield, a small station a few miles from Phillips, says that 500 women and children from Phillips are in the woods there without shelter. They sent a request for food and supplies, as the supply at Fifield is very short. A relief train was started but was obliged to return, as bridges are totally destroyed along the route. Communication with Fifield is now shut off and it is feared that that town is also on fire. Along the Omaha line the fires are raging with terrible fierceness. Shores Crossing, a little village eight miles west of Ashland, is being threatened. The railroad bridges near there were destroyed and a fast Omaha freight and 10 loaded cars were entirely burned. Both the engineer and firemen were injured and the brakemen are missing.

Mason, a small town south on the Omaha line, caught fire. The White River Lumber company's mill with 40,000,000 feet of lumber in the yards at Mason is entirely destroyed. A report was received the entire town was threatened. The Omaha bridge across the White River at Mason is burned. Railroad officials say the loss at Mason is fully a million dollars.

Homeowners in the outlying districts are all fleeing into the nearest towns, leaving their homes to the fury of the flames. The fire department is carefully guarding the outside limits of Ashland, and the city is not in any immediate danger. The fire at Phillips destroyed thirty-nine buildings out of seven hundred stand amid smoke and ashes on the scene of what was the flourishing city of Phillips, the county seat of Taylor county and one of the wealthiest and most prosperous of all the towns in the timber regions of Wisconsin. Three thousand people are homeless except those who have been offered shelter in the neighboring towns.

Worse than all that, 15 people are known to have lost their lives. All the dead were drowned in Elk Lake while trying to escape from the fire, except an unknown man whose body was found in the ruins of the house of W. W. Sackett, editor of the Phillips Times. The property loss cannot at this time be accurately estimated, but it will reach at least $1,250,000. The immense plant of the John R. Davis lumber company is a total loss, amounting to between $500,000 and $600,000. On this property there is an insurance of about four-fifths of the value of the plant.

Briefly summarized the fires in that locality have burned as follows: The city of Phillips is entirely wiped out, the city of Mason is practically destroyed, with the White River Lumber company and 30,000,000 feet of lumber; headquarters of the Ashland Lumber company, near Shores Crossing, is entirely wiped out; and near there the Omaha, consisting of 16 cars and the locomotive were all burned, having broken through the bridge near Ashland Junction; the camps of the Thompson Lumber company were burned at White River; two bridges on the Wisconsin Central road, both on the main line south of Ashland. These are the losses specifically. Besides the above the damage to timber and logs scattered through the woods to individual landowners is estimated at $1,000,000. It is estimated that the total property, to cut cord wood, etc., will swell the general damage to appalling figures.

An Austrian Arch Duke Killed. Arch Duke William III, son of the late Arch Duke Charles and a second cousin of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, met with an accident that resulted in his death. He was riding at Weikersdorf, near Baden, when his horse shied, being frightened by a passing electric car. The arch duke was thrown out of the saddle and in falling his head struck a stone. One of his feet became entangled in a stirrup and the horse running, he was dragged some distance before the animal was stopped.

Three Men Killed by a Boiler Explosion. One of a nest of six boilers at Lehigh Valley at six o'clock, exploded instantly killing one man and severely injuring three others, two of whom have since died. The cause of the explosion is a mystery, the boilers having been inspected the day before. At the time of the explosion the men were engaged in making repairs to the pipe connections and placing the fire under the boilers. The building was wrecked and two other boilers were displaced.

Three Children Suffocated in a Cistern. Raymond, 9; Leroy, 7, and Freddie, 4, the children of James W. Ganton, a locomotive engineer at Hartford, Conn., who had been missing three days, when they went to bathe in the Connecticut river, were found dead in the cistern of a freight carboose standing on a close track near the round house, not 400 feet from their home. The carboose was newly painted and the children went in to play. It is supposed they closed the door and could not open it and soon suffocated in the stifling hot air of the narrow enclosure.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

SENATE—18th day.—The conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriations was agreed to by Mr. Aldrich presenting a resolution directing the attorney-general to transmit to the Senate full copies of all correspondence with the railroad commission.

SENATE—18th day.—Senator Vitas, of Wisconsin, who was secretary of the Interior and later postmaster-general during President Cleveland's first administration, replied at great length to Senator Gorman's attack upon the incident.

SENATE—18th day.—After a week of speeches the Senate agreed to the further conference on the tariff bill asked by the House of Representatives. The conference report came from Mr. Washburn's motion that the Senate reconvene on that portion of the sugar amendment which has not yet been reported. Mr. Harris, sustained the point of order and read the message from the President, immediately appealed from and a motion was made to lay the matter on the table. Both motions were rejected.

SENATE—18th day.—The Senate rested from the excitement of the week. House—The House held a session, but no message was presented to transact a good deal of business of a private character. The only thing of importance on the day's program was the discussion without action of a bill to amend the revised statutes in connection with the amendments in dealing with violations of the copyright law, as it applies to plays and operas.

SENATE—18th day.—The Senate was an aspect of peace and security in striking contrast to the excitement of the previous week. Vice-President Stephen was present, and he presided as usual. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Allen to provide for the issue of $30,000,000 of bonds, to be distributed by the several states "for the relief of the unemployed."

A FACE ON THE STONE.

A MURDERER'S PORTRAIT OVER HIS VICTIM'S GRAVE.

The Mystery of a Crime That May Be Cleared Up Through a Supernatural Agency—A Case to Interest the Society for Psychic Research.

From the little prairie town of Wislita, Iowa, there comes a story of a Peck-like gruesomeness about a gravestone that is creditably said to show on its face the dimly traced features of a murderer, the assassin of the old couple whose remains lie buried underneath.

It is more than likely that this most remarkable psychologic mystery will be investigated by those past masters in the scientific pursuit of ghosts and other death mysteries, the Society of Psychic Research.

The gravestone, with the human features mystically written across its face, marks the spot where lie in an old German couple, named Schultz, who were murdered in their own home in the middle of the night.

The murder created a great sensation on account of its fearful details. There was nothing to indicate in any way who had committed it, but the neighbors suspected that the murderer might have been W. S. Florence, a hired hand who had been in the Schultzes' employ until a short time before.

He was found and taken back to Cherokee county. The grand jury examined him. He promptly pleaded not guilty, and has not been heard of since.

About the same time that the grand jury was engaged in the investigation of this case, the relatives of the old couple had a plain marble headstone placed over their grave. The grave was in a little country burying ground on the side of a hill, within sight of the house in which the murder had been committed.

The first person to tell the story was an old woman, who had also been the first to suspect Florence of the murder. It was received with incredulity, and even those whose curiosity lead them to go and look at the stone declared that the picture had no existence except in the imagination of the old woman.

From time to time the old woman declared that the features of Florence were growing more plain. At last she convinced some of her friends that they, too, could see the features of a man on the stone.

They inspected it, and the most unprejudiced were compelled to admit that they could see the features of a man. A marble dealer was taken to see it. He declared that the features were being developed as a result of exposure to atmospheric influences of the rust and veins in the stone.

This prediction has now been verified. The picture on the slab has become distinct to even the most casual observer, and to-day there is not a person who knew Florence that does not declare that the features show a startling resemblance to his.

The Stern Lecture He Administered to a Young Cuiprit.

The county courts of Virginia some years ago were composed of justices of the peace who had never studied law. At one time, says the Companion, five honest farmers convened as examining court to determine whether a mere boy, who was accused of "petty larceny," should be sent on to the circuit court for trial.

It was finally decided that he should receive only a severe lecture, to be administered by the oldest member of the court. The farmer selected to administer the rebuke rose, looked at the culprit severely through his spectacles, and began his lecture, "Young man," said he, "this is awful, this is right-down awful, and I want to warn you—I want to say—"

The Country Overrun With Them, as Proved by the Census of 1890.

Marrying and giving in marriage is purely a personal matter in this happy land of independence. Perhaps more than in any other country in the world it is a matter of sentiment; and so may it be until the end of time is the aspiration of all true lovers and happy wedded folks.

The first thing which catches the attention in the tabulations of the census taken on this subject is the vast number of young bachelors. At the age of 24 years only twenty men out of 200 are married, and even up to thirty years nearly one-half still remain single.

Exact comparison is, of course, impossible, owing to the absence of figures for previous years, but it is safe to say that this habit of bachelorhood has increased and that the tendencies of modern conditions of life are toward its further growth.
