If half the study and energy that have been devoted to the development of American railroads be applied to the development of the country highways, there will be a wonderful transformation in the matter before the end of this century.—[New York Sun.

We are credibly informed that negotiations are still in progress for the opening of the so-called lead mines. Prospector Conrad was called to Detroit at the time of the Journal explosion, three of his relatives having lost their lives in the disaster. Upon his return, recently, to Caro, he found his boarding house quarantined for typhoid fever. Thus he was prevented from putting in an appearance at the appointed time. He now desires to sink two more shafts before closing the deal which in all probability he will be allowed to do.

A reader of the News not long since asked us if we ever stopped to consider the demoralizing aspect of agricultural fairs in general. He said that a short time previous he had attended a fair and noticed young boys gambling for various articles and the manipulator of the scheme was actively engaged in inducing the children to pay their nickles for a lot of worthless prizes. Every sensible man knows that the fakirs who swarm to country fairs are in the business not to lose, but to win, and their schemes are arranged accordingly. Fair managers should knock out all petty gambling schemes gotten up to entrap the young.—[Lexington News.

The Review of Reviews for December, in its "Progress of the World" department, plunges as usual into the discussion of important current topics.

The assembling of the Fifty-fourth Congress, at home, and the disturbed condition of Turkey and some of the European powers at this moment present questions which call for extended comment this month. The editor also devotes several paragraphs to the boundary dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela, and the results of the recent elections in the various States are reviewed and summarized.

But this department of the Review is by no means confined in its range to political or governmental affairs; it "covers" such subjects as the foundation of the Luther League of America, the doings of Schlatter, the so-called "Healer," in Denver, noteworthy events in the educational world (Mr. Rockefeller's latest gift to the University of Chicago, the inauguration of a new president at Colgate University, etc.), and biographical notes on important men and women who have died during the month (Eugene Field, Signor Bonghi and others).

Resolutions.

K. O. T. M. Tent, Cass City.

WHEREAS,—It has pleased the Supreme Commander of the Universe, whose call must at all times be obeyed, to call from our ranks Bro. Sir Knight, J. H. McLean. And while we shall sadly miss him from our circle, it becomes us to bow submissively to the will of our Great Commander.

And while extending our heartfelt sympathy to the widow and relatives of our departed brother, we feel that we can safely recommend them to the Great Commander in whom he put his trust.

And be it further resolved that this resolution be placed on the records of the tent and published in the Cass City ENTERPRISE and a copy sent to Mrs. J. H. McLean.

On the 16th of Oct., 1838, he was united in marriage to Mary Munson who died the 2nd of Jan., of this year. He resided in his native and adjoining townships till 1868 when he moved west to the township of Alboro, where he remained till the spring of 1890, when he came to the place where he died. He was converted in early manhood. He served the Baptist Church for a number of years as deacon and also Sabbath school superintendent. In 1858 he withdrew from them and joined the United Brethren with whom he acted as local preacher till old age and its many infirmities prevented. The Revival Meetings.

ENCOURAGING success has attended the revival meetings at the Methodist Episcopal Church from the commencement of the services. The Christian people are receiving much benefit. A number have taken a decided stand in religious work for the first time. Mr. MacLachlan's inspiring singing is a great attraction, while the preaching is with the demonstration of the Spirit. Under his efficient leadership interest is increasing from night to night. Large congregations are in attendance each evening. The Sabbath services were of a most inspiring character. A dense crowd filled all available space at the evening service. The sermon was an able presentation of one of the fundamental Gospel truths—the doctrine of the new birth. A very impressive after-meeting followed. These services continue each evening except Saturday. The large chorus choir is lending material aid in the work. An abbreviated ten-cent edition of the Pentecostal Hymns is used and the book being so cheap many are being purchased for future use. The pastor and officials are happy to welcome the ministers and members of their sister churches when convenient to them to be present. A very special invitation is, however, extended to all persons not connected with any church.

VOLUME XV.

With this issue the ENTERPRISE is launched upon the fifteenth year of its existence, and we are thankful to be able to say, under more favorable circumstances than it has ever known.

During its lifetime it has passed through many ownerships, and that also of persons more capable than the present editor, but we shall endeavor in the coming year, as we have in the past year, to make the ENTERPRISE a paper for the people, giving as much local, county and district news as it is possible to gather from week to week.

In accomplishing this end our excellent corps of correspondents can and will assist us very materially. We aim to exclude all advertisements of an objectionable character that are not fit to be read in the family circle, so that parents need not fear to let their children read the ENTERPRISE.

As previously announced, we adopt the cash-in-advance system Feb. 1st, 1896, believing it to be the best for all concerned. We trust that all subscribers whose subscriptions expire before that time will be prompt in making their renewals as we cannot, after that date, continue sending a paper to anyone if not paid for.

Hoping for your hearty co-operation in the future as in the past, I am
Your humble servant,
A. A. P. McDOWELL.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN.

The chrysanthemum fad is said to be dying out. Some football players do their hardest kicking after the game is over.

Enlisting for Cuba is quite busy in Spain. A quicker way of raising troops is seen in the insurgents' adoption of dynamite.

There need be no fear about "dis-membering Turkey" and "dividing it up." There is no chance to make things worse.

Unless Actor Anson makes a little more noise on the coaching lines he will be in imminent danger of dropping out of public mind.

Peter Maher, pugilist, is the only war cloud that is threatening the peace of the world. He declares that he is ready to fight anybody.

An ex-congressman advertised to lecture in Savannah, Ga. One ticket was sold. The identity of the purchaser has been considerably kept in the dark.

Now that the football hair crop will be harvested the mysterious hair cutting fad which is running amuck in Chicago will doubtless be driven out of business.

The Kentucky papa who took his gun to the train and captured his eloping daughter may inspire other papas to similar feats. It begins to look a little dark for Cupid.

It is to be feared that Corbett intends to continue as champion pugilist after all. It is true he has given away the belt, but there is no evidence that he has sold his type-writer.

The calm unexcited with which Chicago sits back and waits for the national conventions to come to her, signifies that so far as convention cities are concerned she thinks there are no others.

Some of the New York papers are calling for fresh men on the police force. It is possible to find anyone fresher than these same papers have represented Roosevelt as being they have been libeling him.

Mike Schingowitz left Hankinson, N. D., last week in search of a wife. At Neenah, Wis., he met, wooed and wed Miss Sadie Thornton, all in one day. In a few months he will probably be sorry he spent so much time in getting married.

St. Louis, it seems, also visited Atlanta, and nobody mentioned it. The St. Louis Star-Savings accounts for it as follows: "While the New York and Chicago delegations were paraded about as a sort of side-show, the St. Louis party was taken right in, in a sort of one-of-the-family way, which showed more clearly than words that they were not considered strangers."

George Harris, the old negro upon whose career Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe founded her character of "Uncle Tom," is in destitute circumstances near Lexington, Ky. For some time his daily income and expenditure has been within the compass of a 5-cent piece. Yet a dozen cheap actors doing "Uncle Tom" about the country are making plenty of money.

Mrs. Nellie Louise Durant Johnson, who designed dresses for Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, now Duchess of Marlborough, and for the Gousses and many other persons of wealth and fashion, was arrested last week on the charge of causing the numerous fires that have occurred in the flat building in which she lives. The police found kerosene soaked bags in her apartments and claim to have a clear case against her.

The story from Texas about a horse that has a back seven feet long recalls one of the alleged witticisms in Joe Miller's "Jest Book." It is the one about the equine which was taken out for a ride, and at a calling place in the country was turned over to the care of the "ostler," with a request to put the horse in the stable. That individual reported half an hour later that he had put one end of the animal in the stable, and left the other end out in the yard.

Edison believes that the problem of navigating the air cannot be accomplished by using either balloons or aeroplanes. He says: "I would construct actual ships of the air—yachts, schooners and brigantines—which would tack and jibe and sail before the wind. My idea is that the lifting power for these air ships should be gas stored in the sails. In other words, you apply the balloon principle in such way that the gas bag, instead of being an impediment, as at present, would be the actual means of propulsion. I would construct gas bags shaped like the sails of a yacht."

In his annual report President Andrews of Brown university says: "For those in perfect health and trained to it, football is safer than either rowing, yachting, gunning or running hounds. Rowing appears to be many times as fatal. So is baseball. Even tennis is worse."

A wife sold for $10, and a boy bringing but fourteen bundles of corn stalks, tends to create the impression that the human market in Michigan is greatly depressed. An ordinary English duke brought $7,000,000 in New York.

IN TWO PENINSULAS.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE PENINSULAR STATE.

Tug Pearl B. Campbell Foundered in Lake Superior and Seven Lives were Lost—Another Outbreak at Jackson Prison.

The tug Pearl B. Campbell, while going from Marquette to Duluth, foundered in Lake Superior off Huron Island, and all on board, seven men, were lost. They were: Capt. McGillivray, master of Campbell, Duluth; John E. Lloyd, mate of Campbell, Duluth; George McCort, first engineer, Cheboygan; Fred England, second engineer, Duluth; two men, names unknown; cook, name unknown.

The Campbell was in company with the tugs Corona and Castle, and the three had formed a wrecking expedition to release the schooner Moot-night and H. A. Kent, ashore at Marquette. All three boats belonged to the Inman Tug line of Duluth. The attempt to release the schooners was given up and the tugs started for Duluth. They made good progress until they were in the vicinity of Huron Island, when they were struck by a furious northeast storm, accompanied by blinding snow. The sea increased with great rapidity and the weather became freezing cold, the thermometer going down almost to the zero mark. Soon the Castle and Corona heard signals of distress, but could not go to their companions' rescue and in a little while the signals died away.

The Castle and Corona, so heavily loaded that they bore little resemblance to tugs, managed after a hard fight to make Huron bay, where they stayed until the storm subsided. The Campbell was valued at $5,000.

Report of the State Game Warden. State Game Warden Oborn in his report for November, which includes the open season for deer, says the new law has been a great saving of game, but has not enriched the state in any great extent in fees. Non-resident hunters have apparently kept away. The game warden of Wisconsin says that the new Michigan law has had the effect of flooding Wisconsin with Ohio and Indiana hunters who formerly camped in Michigan. The total number of deer reported for the month was 89, of which 65 were for violations of the game laws and 24 for violations of the fish laws. The total amount of fines assessed against offenders was $1,814, while the cost amounted to $155. The total number of convictions was 45 and 30 cases are still pending. It is evident from the returns received from the county clerks, that they do not intend to pay the state its share of the fees collected. It is apparent that thousands of 50-cent licenses were issued, but very few fees have been turned in. It is thought that these county clerks will stand to deliver the state's share or forfeit suit.

Michigan Federation of Labor. The annual convention of the Michigan State Federation of Labor was held at Saginaw and was lively and full of interest. Among the resolutions adopted were the following: Favorable government ownership of the telegraph; favoring the referendum and direct legislation; asking the legislature to pass a law for the purpose of submitting the vote to the people; urging an eight-hour day; for plumping inspectors; to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor; for the appointment of lecturers by the federation; re-indorsing the boycott of the Grand Rapids School Furniture Co.; indorsing all trades' labels; approving the action of the Grand Rapids union in opposing the Grand Rapids Sunday closing law; indorsing the boycott on the United States Baking Co.

A resolution favoring independent political action was adopted. Officers for the following year were elected as follows: President, L. E. Tossy, Detroit; first vice-president, W. J. Hardy, of Saginaw; second vice, John Daane, of Muskegon; third vice, Jesse Radford, of Bay City; secretary, William Greer, of Grand Rapids.

Another Outbreak at Jackson Prison. Convict Boot, one of the four held for trial on the charge of murderously assaulting Deputy Warden A. C. Northrup in the riot at Jackson prison two weeks ago, broke from his cell and attempted to liberate his pals when the night shift of guards was taking place. Keeper Mellencamp came upon him and a fight between the most desperate and powerful convict and plucky keeper in the prison ensued. Mellencamp was seriously injured, but other keepers came to his assistance. Boot was put back in his cell and hung up by the hands. Boot had sprung his cell lock with a piece of his iron bedstead, and was thus able to swing the door, as the bolt locking the tier of cells was not in effect. A guard has now been placed over the four desperate men.

MINOR MICHIGAN NEWS. Marcellus has a lady undertaker. Ionia's W. C. T. U. denounced football as brutal and revolting. Jay Cole was hit on the head and killed by a falling limb, near Lawrence. The lime kilns at Bellevue, closed up for two or three years, have started up again. John Dunston, miner, was killed by falling rock at Lake Angeline mine, Ishpeming. Pontiac couldn't raise a $5,000 bonus, so she may lose the proposed Kelly potato digger factory. Levi Johnson, a prominent young farmer near Cadillac, was instantly killed by a falling tree. H. K. and W. K. Firth and C. H. Shafter, of Muskegon, have formed a stock company for the manufacture of bicycles. George Throop, aged 15, of Carleton, was out hunting on Sunday and shot his right hand off while climbing over a fence. Archie Preston, of Port Huron, fell from a moving train on the Wabash road near Montpelier, O., and was instantly killed. Mrs. J. Willard Rabbit of Ypsilanti is starting a movement for the election of a statue of ex-Gov. Alpheus Felch of Ann Arbor.

Albert Larriere, aged 17, a Detroit newsboy has been appointed as page in the house of representatives of the Fifty-fourth congress.

Jacob Van Ry, who shot his wife and then himself, at Ottawa Beech last summer, has at last succumbed to his injuries. His wife recovered.

Typoid fever is almost epidemic at Buchanan. The 7-year-old son of Henry Hays has died of this disease, and his mother is dangerously ill.

Green, Ring & Co's mill, of Saginaw, which has been idle for two seasons, is to be stocked for three years and will begin operations next spring. Three of the prisoners who escaped from the Coldwater jail, Alma Bedford, Louis Ferguson and Earl Broughton, have been captured at Angola, Ind.

Representatives of the leading sewing machine manufacturers met at Cleveland and formed a combine under the name of the American Machine Co.

A conference of the general cabinets of the Epworth League and the Christian Endeavor society will be held in Detroit soon to effect a closer unity of work.

Deputy Warden Northrop, victim of the riot at Jackson prison, is rapidly improving. He is black and blue all over, and is nursing a broken shoulder blade.

While reloading his gun Fred Bacon, a young farmer, living near Munnith, accidentally shot off his right hand. Blood poisoning set in, causing his death.

Mrs. Kate Fowler, of Reading, was given a verdict in the circuit court at Hillsdale of $10,000 against her father-in-law, Col. F. Fowler, of Reading, for slander.

Lynden Tyler, a youth of Sturgis, who was arrested for holding up a preacher, got three months in jail, a fine of $50 and was disfranchised for five years.

The Powers Renew Their Demands for Permission to Pass the Dardanelles With Extra Guardships—Said Pasha Flees From the Sultan's Wrath.

London: The Times has a dispatch from Constantinople which says that the embassies have received instructions from their respective governments that the guardships question must be pushed home, and that it is impossible for the powers to retire from the position which they have assumed.

This indicates that the powers have decided that extra guardships must pass through the Dardanelles and the sultan has been asked for the last time for the firmans. A time limit was given for a reply and the alternative was that the passage would be forced. When Great Britain threatened to take this course if the firmans were not granted, the sultan appealed personally to the governments of Russia, Austria, Germany and France, begging them not to press their demands, but met with no success. The Russian government replied that it would sound the cabinets of France, Germany and Austria, and that it would receive nothing but unfavorable replies, of which he informed the Turkish ambassador. Thus, apparently, the sultan was shown that he no longer has a backer in Europe.

TAKEN FROM THE ENEMY.

BY HENRY NEWBOLT.

The colonel was here again in a difficulty which he had not foreseen.

"My dear Estcourt," he said, confidentially, to Dick, "if I were you I shouldn't enlighten her as to the identity of this Johnstone with the hero of your story."

"Why?" asked Dick, in astonishment.

"Well, you may think as absurdly cautious, but it is only for your own sake I am. You know how anxious I am for your success with Camilla."

Dick grew hot with mingled embarrassment and gratitude.

"This man," the colonel continued, "once tried—as I think you yourself told us—to capture the Emperor by a desperate stratagem; my sister-in-law has had a particular horror of him ever since she heard this, for she thinks he must have been actuated by motives of personal malice—you know how her enthusiasm runs away with her. If she is not told, she probably will not think of connecting this man with that incident merely because of the name. In any case, if she is to learn of the identity, let it be through me, and not through you, from whom she might think the information in bad taste."

"I don't quite see it," said Dick, "but no doubt you're right. I'd rather bite my tongue out than hurt her feelings, and I'm very grateful to you for the hint."

Rain now began to fall heavily and they were obliged to go below. The wind rose in gusty starts, sail after sail was reefed, and by the middle of the afternoon the brig was scudding along before the gale with her masts almost bare. She was at all times unsteady, but she showed no signs of alarm at nearly half again her ordinary rate, and for six whole days she never relaxed her speed.

In spite of the rain and the spray, which from time to time swept over her, Dick and Camilla spent a good part of every day on deck, keenly sympathizing with each other in delight at the swift, exhilarating motion of the vessel and the unchanging restlessness and grandeur of the waves over which she passed so lightly.

Of the rest of the company on board they took but little heed. The mate never came their way. The captain was reported still unable to stir outside his cabin, where Dick, at one or two more ineffectual requests for admittance, was quite content to leave him. The colonel had struck up a considerable intimacy with Johnstone, whom he pronounced to be not nearly such a ruffian as he looked. When the ship's motion was not too violent he went out of inspection with the new captain, and was even found one morning alone in the hold, examining the cargo with incomprehensible energy and interest.

"I can't think," said Estcourt, laughing, "what on earth you can find to amuse you in the sight of all these casks and cases."

"It is the thought of what they contain that fascinates me," replied the colonel, who was in a humorous mood.

"What?" cried Dick, "stores and fittings fascinate you? That's a dry taste!"

"Ah," said M. de Montaut, "but I have the poet's voice of the Island of the mermaids themselves to the results they may effect. These packings, cases, you say, are but necessities for the refitting of your ship. I see more than that. From the parts I reconstitute the whole in my mind, rising from these fragments, an entire vessel, with a fate of her own, and fraught with many destinies. Nay, who knows," he added, with mock sententiousness, "but the ship that lies hidden in this despoiled cargo of horrors may change the course of history!"

Dick laughed again. "My dear colonel," he said, "you see a good deal more than I do; I find it uncomfortably dark down here."

"What are they?"

"Between you and the light," replied the colonel, taking up the lantern. "Come, let's go upstairs again."

He led the way back to the middle deck. The night of the 12th of the look beyond the wind fell to steady breeze, and on the following morning they saw the sun again at last, standing over a headland that lay on the larboard quarter.

The colonel appeared at breakfast with a look that was indeed horrid. From him, explained the position of the Speedwell to Camilla.

"Here," he said, putting his finger up on the map, "is the stretch of coast along which the wind and the Guinea current have been hurrying us so fast. Here is Cape Palmas, which we have just passed, and now we shall see no more of the shores of Africa. You see we have been carried a little too far to the east already, and Ascension lies right below us in mid-ocean there."

"And how far is it?" asked Camilla.

"Twelve or thirteen hundred miles," said the colonel, who was also looking on with interest.

"Hardly so much as that; I wish it were," said Dick. "But I am afraid eight or nine days from the outside will take us there."

"And from there," asked Camilla, still poring over the chart, "how far is it to St. Helena?"

"I can't say exactly. To the Cape it is about two thousand five hundred miles, but that is the straight course, by which you go some way outside of St. Helena, and don't even pass near enough to see the famous pigeons."

"Oh, they're only a kind of pigeon peculiar to that island; but they're rather well known for their beauty and because they're found nowhere else. They often come circling around a ship at an immense distance from the land, and the sailors catch them to take home to their friends; but they mostly die before the voyage is over."

"Have you ever seen them?" asked the colonel. "What are they like?"

"They're small gray birds, very graceful and light on the wing, with bright pink legs and a curious band of white under the eye."

"No," replied Camilla, "didn't you hear Captain Estcourt say that they are peculiar to St. Helena?"

"But surely they must have made their way across at some time or other; the two islands are not so very far apart."

"It is curious," said Dick, "but I assure you that there are none to be found anywhere else. If I saw one of them, I should know for a certainty that it was off St. Helena, though a moment before I had been thinking myself in the Pacific or the North Sea."

He rolled up the chart and returned to his cabin, and went off with it to his own cabin and did not appear for some time.

Dick and Camilla went on deck, and enjoyed the sun and blue sky after so many dark days.

"Do you know," she said, "that I did not always enjoy that perpetual rush of wind and rain? And if I hadn't seen that you were quite cheerful about it, I should have really been quite alarmed at times."

Dick smiled. "It was more timid than I thought. I was by no means as cheerful as I looked."

"Then there was danger?" she asked.

"There was a lee shore, and there were nights in which we could see nothing."

"Then how could the ship be steered?"

"She couldn't; she drove before the wind, which happily was in the right direction; all the steersman could do was to stand to his helm and be always ready for a sudden danger."

"Then it was really one man who saved us all?"

"Oh, no," he answered, "that's too much to say: let's hope he would have saved us if he had had the chance."

"How can you speak so lightly of him?" she asked, "and surely you are a hero, and I shall thank him myself!"

Dick was silent, and looked away.

Johnstone was passing near, and Camilla called to him.

"What is your steersman's name?" she asked, as he approached.

"Dick had made some hasty excuse, and was gone in a moment."

"We've been taking the wheel in turns of late," said Johnstone; "but on the worst nights Captain Estcourt wouldn't let me touch the wheel."

She nodded and turned away. Johnstone passed on with an approving shake of the head.

"My word!" he muttered, "he would be a fool to stick at scruples now; he'll be glad to take the wheel for a while."

As for Camilla, this episode brought to a decisive end the struggles which had been going on at intervals in her mind since she came on board the Speedwell.

She was convinced, and glad to be so, that she had no intention of hiding herself again from him; she was evidently anticipating a meeting in the near future, though under what circumstances she had no means of guessing. To his great surprise the next day put upon them any sign of the Island of Ascension coming in sight. He supposed that the brig had not been kept straight to her course, and in his heart thanked Johnstone for the bad navigation which had given him another day's happiness.

TRIO OF TRICKSTERS.

GAMES WITH WHICH THEY DECEIVE THE UNWARY.

The Man Who Made a Stake on Alum—The Farmers Purchased Plenty of Soap—The Greatest of All Swindlers Is the Philanthropic Educator.

HREE reports come to us from different parts of the country, of the operations of swindlers whose aim is to get something for nothing. One appeared in a good-sized country town, brought some powdered alum at a price guaranteed to prevent the explosion of kerosene lamps, and thus disposed of a goodly quantity more of his powdered alum. But as his arduous labors necessitated a change of climate for the benefit of his own health, he silently took his departure without leaving behind his future address, and is probably still doing his level best to decrease the stock of powdered alum in the country.

Philanthropist No. 2, remembering the adage that cleanliness is next to godliness, engaged in the praiseworthy effort to sell soap. Making his headquarters at the county seat, he engaged a team to take himself and his oleaginous wares into the country to sell soap. For $5 he offered a box containing 10 cakes of soap, and each customer was to receive a prize from a long list of marble clocks, lace curtains, etc. But, for advertising purposes, it was desired to exhibit these articles at the county fair soon to be held, after which they were to be delivered to the fortunate customers. The soap was delivered on the spot, and, of course, the bagatelle of a price collected. The fair came and went, but the soap dealer and his magnificent collection of prizes differed in that, while they went, they didn't come; at least, no one has seen any of them. But the buyers have several hundred dollars worth of soap among them! Yes, and that soap is probably worth less than the boxes in which it is packed.

No. 3 had an itching to educate the people—and he did, some of them. Coming to a good-sized village, he proclaimed abroad his desire to found there a great business college, which should be a means of great education to the attendants thereof, and bring much fame to that village. Would-be students were to receive a membership with all accruing rights and privileges, for a certain specified number of dollars paid in hand. A goodly number availed themselves of this "opportunity of a lifetime." Unfortunately, the plans of this college founder were unconsciously interfered with by the appearance of an unfeeling minion of the law from another town where this great educator had founded a similar college—and collected the small membership fees—and had forgotten to leave an explanation of his absence. He had, also, incidentally forgotten to pay his board bill. Fortunately—for him—he didn't personally meet this minion of the law, hence was able to leave for some other town where he might found another college—and collect more fees—such importance to the matter of a man leaving town between two days. Thus may virtue be its own reward—Rural New Yorker.

BLOOMERS WILL NOT LAST.

So Says an Inventor of a Bicycle Costume.

"Bloomers may, perhaps, be worn by a certain class of women cyclists, but they will not prevail," says Mrs. Alice Nash, a well-known wheelwoman of Minneapolis, according to an exchange.

"I have for the most part unguinely in appearance," continued Mrs. Nash, "and for that reason, as well as for the question of their strict propriety, they will not come into universal use. The ideal costume is that which combines the convenience of the bloomer with the modesty of the skirt, and this, I think, will be the future aim of dress reformers." Mrs. Nash has put her ideas into practice and has contrived a costume which combines bloomers and skirt. Several Minneapolis women have adopted it and wear it not only for bicycling, but also for skating and other outdoor sports. The costume consists of a short skirt, to the hem of which beneath is attached a short pair of bloomers extending just below the knee. The attachment of the bloomers to the skirt prevents the latter from blowing up, and the combination affords perfect freedom of limb. Leggings are worn over the stockings. The costume is put on like an ordinary pair of men's trousers, is made of tweed or similar strong material, and is fashioned with side pockets. Waists and jackets of the prevailing styles may be worn and the same of the hat. That worn by Mrs. Nash has the shape of a fried egg, but is very neat and dainty withal.

One. Wifey—Do you think there is a man that could conscientiously say to his wife: "You are the only woman I ever loved?"

Hubby—Only one that I can think of. Wifey—Who? You, dearest!

Hubby—Oh, no; Adam.—Louisville Truth.

Some say that the hypophosphites alone are sufficient to prevent and cure consumption, if taken in time. Without doubt they exert great good in the beginning stages; they improve the appetite, promote digestion and tone up the nervous system. But they lack the peculiar medicinal properties, and the fat, found in cod-liver oil. The hypophosphites are valuable and the cod-liver oil is valuable.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with hypophosphites, contains both of these in the most desirable form. The oil is thoroughly emulsified; that is, partly digested. Sensitive stomachs can bear an emulsion when the raw oil cannot be retained. As the hypophosphites, the medicinal agents in the oil, and the fat itself are each good, why not have the benefit of all? This combination has stood the test of twenty years and has never been equalled.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been endorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites. Insist on Scott's Emulsion with trade-mark of man and fish. Put up in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes. The small size may be enough to cure your cough or help your baby.

Will take in exchange for presents the single standard of this country. But prefer free and unlimited coined Silver (Parity 16 to 1) because it is the money of the poor.

National Bank Bills will do, but if you have not got either bring your Butter, Eggs, Pumpkin Seed or any produce that I can handle.

P. S.—Last year I sold nearly one thousand pounds candy. This year I want to sell over that amount if price and quality will do it.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS

Edited by ALBERT SHAW.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS, as its name implies, gives in readable form the best that appears in the other great magazines all over the world, generally on the same date that they are published. With the recent extraordinary increase of worthy periodicals, these careful reviews, summaries, and quotations, giving the gist of periodical literature, are alone worth the subscription price.

Aside from these departments, the editorial and contributed features of the REVIEW OF REVIEWS are themselves equal in extent to a magazine. The Editor's "Progress of the World" is an invaluable chronicle of the happenings of the thirty days just past, with pictures on every page of the men and women who have made the history of the month.

The Literary World says: "We are deeply impressed from month to month with the value of the 'Review of Reviews,' which is a sort of Eiffel Tower for the survey of the whole field of periodical literature. And yet it has a mind and voice of its own, and speaks out with decision and sense on all public topics of the hour. It is a singular combination of the monthly magazine and the daily newspaper. It is daily in its freshness; it is monthly in its method. It is the world under a field glass."

Pine Root for Consumption.

Attica, Mich., Dec 26, 1893.

T. F. Holden, Inlay City, Mich.

Dear Sir—My wife has been sick for five months. Some say she had consumption. Whatever it was, she had a bad cough and before she took the Pine Root Cough Syrup she would spit about a pint of nasty matter stuff in twenty-four hours; but since she took the Pine Root Cough Syrup I find her cough to be very much better and she does not expectorate one tenth as much as she did in one hour before taking your Cough Syrup. I can heartily recommend it to any one in need of a cough medicine. Yours respectfully, Thomas Liott.

A baby alarm, or means for signaling the crying of an infant which has been left asleep in a distant room, is one of the recent boons offered by science. A sensitive microphone, connected to a battery and to the primary of an induction coil, is placed near the child's cot. The secondary of the coil is connected by two wires to a small electro-magnet at the place where the alarm is to be given, and on the crying of the child the microphone sets up an undulatory current in this circuit causing the electro-magnet to deflect a delicate steel balance and close an electric bell circuit.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough Remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Doctor King's New Discovery. E. F. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor's remedy at any price. Regulated Hogs.

A saloon keeper who had a very large garden attached to his residence was much annoyed on account of the constant depredations therein of a number of hogs belonging to a Prohibitionist who lived near by. One day he came to his neighbor with an angry scowl upon his face and said:—"See here, sir, those pigs of yours are in my garden again, destroying everything, and I want to give you warning, that I'm going to shoot the whole outfit of 'em if you—"

"But, my good sir," cried the Prohibitionist, "this is very unneighborly on your part. My hogs may be in your garden, but I assure you, sir, they cannot do any harm. I've got 'em all thoroughly regulated. Give yourself no anxiety, I pray you." "What do you mean? I tell you they are rooting up everything!" roared the saloon man madder than ever. "It can't be possible, my good sir," calmly replied the Prohibitionist. "Come tell I show you." Together they went to the garden, and there the owner of the hogs pointed out that each of the animals had been branded with the municipal coat of arms. "But what's that got to do with it?" demanded the other. "Does that prevent 'em from destroying my fruit and flowers?" "Well," replied the hog owner, "it ought to, at least as much as the municipal license you hold prevents your saloon from destroying my boys!"

Moral—License as a means of restraint is one of those things no fellow can understand.—[The Templar.]

More liquor revenue means more drinking; more drunkards reeling and blaspheming homeward to beat and batter their helpless wives and children; more idiots to fill our asylums; more criminals to crowd our jails; more suffering humanity for our hospital wards; more suicides rushing unbidden to eternity; and more drink-engendered deaths to fill untimely graves. There is something more than revenue involved in the liquor creation. Men who are "drunk and incapable" will not see this. If there is such a thing as being sober and incapable.—[Daily Advance.]

The foes of the saloon must unite against its friends. The issue must be fairly joined. The saloon has long carried the black flag. Henceforth the Church and her allies in this particular warfare must carry it too. The battle must be desperately fought, and the field of battle must be the field of politics. The opposition must enter that field just as did the opposition to the extension of slavery, and it must remain therein until Prohibition, like freedom, shall become an accepted doctrine against which no party shall dare to speak.—[Bishop Fitzgerald.]

A Holland Case. The people of New Holland, O., have been wonderfully surprised recently by the almost wonderful cure of a daughter of Mr. John Oranold, who for a long time has been afflicted with fits, or epileptic convulsions. The affliction seemed more dreadful because of the natural brightness of the child. Doctors and other medicines failed to effect any lasting benefit and cure seemed hopeless until a bottle of Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer was providently handed to Mr. Oranold and from the use of it and only two full bottles of the Remedy, the girl has been completely cured of the affliction which threatened to blight her life. Fortunately there are but few cases of epileptic fits, but we venture to say that they who read this will feel like new beings after a thorough use of Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer; it is a nerve food, restores nervous vigor and muscle.

If yours is a case of shattered nerves, frequent headache, perhaps nervously cross, troubled with sleeplessness, a tired feeling in the morning, debilitated, all worn out feeling, promptly use the great remedy, for it will cure you, and also ward off the most serious sickness or breaking down which your symptoms indicate. It is warranted sure to relieve and cure nerve troubles as represented. For sale by T. H. Fritz, druggist.

For Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure. For sale by T. H. Fritz, druggist.

Some persons talk incessantly. They never think of pause. But speaking of the dentist, he works other people's jaws!

For Hoarseness. Benj. Ingerson, of Hutton Ind., says he had not spoken above a whisper for a month, and one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar restored his voice. It is used very largely by speakers and singers. For sale by T. H. Fritz, druggist.

A. A. MCKENZIE, The Pioneer Undertaker.

The calamity that has befallen our village in the form of Typhoid Fever has warned me to be forearmed. I have therefore secured Metal Caskets of the most modern invention. They can be shipped to any part of the world without any danger to the public in the worst form of contagious disease. They are so constructed that they can be placed in an ordinary casket and deceased can be viewed at any time while in transit with a guarantee that there is no danger of the disease being communicated. They can be seen at my rooms any time and will gladly explain the modern improvements over others.
