The following letters remain unclaimed at the P. O. at Cass City, Mich., for the week ending June 22, 1901: John Case, Miss Mary Livingston, Miss E. D. Wice. When calling for the above please mention advertised.

H. S. Wickware, postmaster.

L. H. Huffman, of Cedar Run, cheered our sanatorium with his smile on Saturday. We are always glad to see him, but this time he made us doubly glad by presenting us with a sample box of strawberries. They were of the Crescent Seedling variety, polished with the Wilson Albany, and were certainly fine.

The storm which passed over this section on Tuesday touched Cass City very lightly, and although we missed the rain which we needed, we also escaped the damage by lightning, which was considerable in other localities. It reported that the Deford church lost its spire and was damaged some besides.

The funeral of Mrs. G. Ahr, which was held on Friday afternoon was very largely attended, and one most noticeable feature was the abundance of flowers which she had always been very fond of. Rev. L. Brumm and F. Klump conducted the services and Rev. A. Torbet made a few appropriate remarks.

The funeral services of John J. Parker were held on Sunday. The Foresters conducted the service at the house and the sermon was delivered in the M. E. Church here by Rev. F. Klump, of the Evangelical Church. The interment took place at the Elkland cemetery and the Orangemen had charge of the service there.

Mrs. Catharine Gill died last Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ed. Peutit, north of town. She was born in Scotland in 1827, but came here from Ontario twenty-two years ago. Her husband, John Gill, died two years ago in Brookfield township. Funeral services were held on Monday at the M. P. Church, Gagetown, Rev. A. Torbet, of this place, officiating.

A complete announcement for the Fourth of July celebration at this place appears on the fifth page, including the full program of sports, etc. Look it over carefully, compare it with other programs and there is not the slightest question but that you will decide to spend the Glorious Fourth at Cass City and enjoy yourself. Come one, come all, and bring the baby.

The promotional exercises of the Grammar Department were held at the M. E. Church last Thursday afternoon, and were largely attended and the pupils conducted themselves with great credit. Miss Nellie M. Westland has had charge of this department of our schools for the past two years and has been most successful. The class which takes a step forward this year is composed of the following: Owen Spencer, Will Seegar, Merle Gale, Madeline Auten, Roy McKenzie, Mabel Nair, Pearl Cornellan, Lillie McColl, Mabel Robinson, Mabel Resch, Clara Lenzner, Bertha Maier, Nora Jones, George Burg, Glenn Eno, Dora Wallace, Jennie Miller, Irene Tindale, Belle Bonesteel, Emma Mueck. The program was a very pleasing one.

Dr. and Mrs. M. M. Wickware left Monday afternoon for Saratoga, N. Y., where the doctor has had a desirable position offered him in one of the large sanitariums of that exceedingly popular resort. They will spend a couple of days at the Pan-American exposition before proceeding. If all proves satisfactory they will not return, but the doctor will enter at once upon his new duties. Their departure from our midst is regretted by a very large number of our people, but all are pleased that the doctor has such bright prospects before him and wish him every success. He has proved himself an able physician and worthy of all confidence and we trust the future may be even brighter for him than the past has been.

Peter Clark, of Popple, did business here on Saturday. He drove to town with a two-seated democrat and was accompanied by two ladies and a little girl. When near Bethel Church they overtook a farmer's wagon, in which were two men. As the democrat was driving rather slow, Clark turned out to pass, but upon getting opposite the other rig, the other fellows put on the whip. That frightened Clark's horses and they struck out lively. For a few moments it seemed impossible for our serious accident. Clark's rig ran on two wheels for several rods, and he succeeded almost miraculously in keeping clear of the other rig and stopping the horses. The offenders are well known, and it is very fortunate for them that no one could not be prevented from driving on the public highway.

S. S. RALLY.

The Cass City Band and a number of our citizens besides attended the fourth annual rally of the Northwest Sanitarium S. S. Association, held in Walker's Grove, near Argyle, on Wednesday. The day was a beautiful one, though warm, and the crowd which gathered was very large. Everyone seemed in a contented frame of mind and glad of the chance to take a day's outing with the children. The band was on hand in good time and escorted the different schools from the village to the grounds, pleasing every one with the music rendered, although organized so short a time and despite the fact that two of the players were unable to be present. The county president, A. C. Graham, presided in his usual apt manner and kept the large crowd interested in the entire proceedings. It is probable that there were about 2,500 in attendance. Seating had been provided for a large number and a platform erected, south and east of the former site, and splendidly shaded, where addresses were given by Revs. Seelhoff, Smith, Moody, Terhune, Criddle and others, a special choir lead in singing old time favorite hymns, and the township superintendent gave interesting reports of the work. Great has been the change on the district since one of the first schools was organized on the Greenman property just north of Wickware, some thirty-five years ago, when some of the aged workers present at the rally, were barefoot pupils. The grove where the rally was held is a beautiful one and Mr. Walker, the proprietor, takes pleasure in improving it for the comfort of the visitors. A good well provided plenty of water for both man and beast, lunch baskets were abundant and heavily laden (in the morning), and there were refreshment stands as well, so that no one went hungry or thirsty very long. The day was very pleasantly spent notwithstanding the extreme heat and the fourth rally will not soon be forgotten by those who were present.

Gagetown.

Hot! Hotter! Hottest! is the by word in town.

Fred Hemmerick was in Bad Axe on business last week.

Dr. Lyman, of Bad Axe, was a caller in town Friday last.

Dr. Dell and M. Conley were Caro callers Saturday last.

E. C. Leipprandt and wife, of Pigeon, visited J. L. Purdy's last week.

Mrs. John Hoperoff and family, of Bay City, are visiting at Geo. Hoperoff's.

Mrs. J. L. Purdy and Mrs. Jas. Dando visited with the latter's parents near Rescoe Wednesday last.

Naaman Karr has again become proprietor of the Gagetown livery, having repurchased the same last Friday.

Mrs. M. Sheridan and Mrs. Geo. Stevenson, of Cass City, attended commencement exercises of St. Agatha's school Tuesday evening.

Thos. Cosgrove, living north of town, raised a large barn last Tuesday. When completed it will be one of the finest barns in Grant township.

There will be an experience social held at the G. A. R. Hall on Friday evening, June 28th, for the benefit of Rev. J. H. Holmes. Everybody invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Young received the sad news of the death of Mrs. Young's mother at Lapeer. They left Tuesday on the afternoon train to attend the funeral.

Rev. Fr. Sharpe, of Pontiac, Fr. Hinnigan, of Sand Beach, and Fr. Hewlett, of Pinnebog, visited with Rev. Crowley the past week and attended the commencement exercises of St. Agatha's school, at Echo Hall last Tuesday evening.

A most excellent program was rendered at the commencement exercises of St. Agatha's school last Tuesday evening. The sisters of the school deserve great credit for preparing and rendering such a splendid program. The gold medals given for best scholarship were awarded to Miss Nellie Hennessey and William Hennessey. The graduates were the Misses Minnie and Nellie Hennessey and Miss Maud Quinn.

The Shelby Herald makes a good suggestion about the subject of improving the highways. It says that if the stones which are now lying in the roads of that county, breaking wheels, wearing out horses and jolting the life out of people, were picked up and crushed and then put back on the roads again, they would make all that could be desired in the way of a good highway.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN

The Russian empire is possibly the greatest contributor to the world's supply of fur. Russian and Siberian hunters destroy annually 3,000,000 ermines, 16,000,000 marmots and 25,000,000 squirrels.

Among the features of Japan's military system is the fact that on the army pay rolls are 2,000 tailors, 1,000 shoemakers, 10,000 grooms, and 1,500 attendants, says the Washington Times. The medical staff is one of the most complete in either Europe or Asia. All officers holding only temporary commissioned rank are included in the list of petty officers.

Investments in horse-flesh are proverbially uncertain, but a city board of health found an ample return for the fifteen dollars expended in the purchase of a horse. The animal was used in producing antitoxin, and yielded many thousand vials, valued at thousands of dollars. Having done his work and been turned out to grass, he now enjoys a well-deserved rest.

It is said that the Bank of France has an invisible studio in a gallery behind the cashiers, so that at a given signal from one of them any suspected customer can instantly have his photograph taken without his knowledge. The camera has also become very useful in the detection of frauds, a word or figure that to the eye seemed completely erased being clearly reproduced in photographs of the document that had been tampered with.

Daughters of the Confederacy throughout the country are interested in a movement which has been started to buy the old home of Gen. Stonewall Jackson at Lexington, Va. The matter has been under consideration by a local chapter of the daughters at Lexington, and Mrs. Jackson. She wishes to dispose of the property as she cannot afford to keep it, and the daughters are considering the advisability of buying it and turning it to hospital purposes.

T. J. See of the Naval Observatory has announced the results of new measurements of Saturn and its rings, which differ somewhat from older determinations. He makes the exterior diameter of the rings about 173,226 miles, the equatorial diameter of Saturn 74,990 miles, and the polar diameter 67,395, the difference between the two diameters being 7,595, miles almost equal to the entire diameter of the earth. Mr. See's measures make the diameter of Titan, the largest of Saturn's moons, 2,092 miles. It had previously been estimated as high as 3,500 miles.

At a recent woman's meeting where parliamentary points were getting tangled and feelings embittered, Mrs. William Tod Helmuth begged that the ladies heed the rules of the Pilgrims: "Touch no state matters; pick no quarrels; reveal no secrets; maintain no ill opinions; make no comparisons; lay no wagers." These maxims have since been known in that circle as "Fanny's recipe for club elections." Oddly enough, King Edward recently discovered an old black letter manuscript bearing the same rules, which he has caused to be framed and posted in Windsor Castle. They may be recommended to persons who are not habitués of clubs or castles.

The summer camp for schoolboys is a recognized institution in certain parts of the country. All its advantages may be seen in a new application of the camp idea which has just been made by members of the Intercollegiate Young Men's Christian Association. In this second summer of their enterprise sixty boys preparing for college are to gather at a spot on the New England coast where the best facilities for all land and water sports abound. Besides the boys there will be fifteen "leaders," young men still in college or just out of it, who have been identified with the more serious aspects of college life, as well as with athletics. Indeed, a fair proportion of them can wear a "varsity" initial on their sweaters.

According to scientific investigations, directed from Washington, which have been going on for several months, there are about 275 reported cases of leprosy in the United States. It is thought probable that the real number may be nearer 1,000. For various reasons physicians who have cases of this disease, in many instances either fail or refuse to report them. But the number reported is sufficiently large to occasion some alarm. Seventy-four of the known cases are in New Orleans, chiefly among the Italian population. There are 23 in Minnesota, mostly among the Scandinavians in the rural settlements. There are 15 cases in North Dakota, and two in South Dakota, among the same people. Chicago has five cases and New York six.

Attention has recently been called by scientists to the disappearance of the chamois from the French Alps. These graceful animals, in spite of the fact that they conceal their homes and places of refuge in the most inaccessible spots, at heights varying from 2,600 feet to 11,500 feet, are mercilessly hunted and shot down, so that there is danger of their complete extinction. In Italy there is a large reserve on which the chamois are protected, and the formation of a similar reserve in France is advocated.

HON. PINGREE'S REMAINS

Will Arrive Home Between July 2 and July 4.

THE SON NOW SERIOUSLY ILL

Already the Matter of Erecting a Suitable Memorial to the Illustrious Deceased in Detroit is Being Agitated—All People Will Unite in Doing Honor.

Detroit in Mourning.
Ex-Gov. Pingree's remains will be brought to New York on the steamer Koenigen Luise, leaving Southampton on the 23d inst. The body will probably reach Detroit on July 4.

The devotion of H. S. Pingree, Jr., to his stricken father has been arduous and untiring. He took a little rest on the night of the 18th, it being the first time he had taken off his clothes or slept in nearly a week. His quiet dignity through the trying time was remarkable, and many of the sterling traits of the distinguished ex-governor were shown in the manly bearing and fortitude of the distressed son.

The death of ex-Gov. Hazen S. Pingree was received with the most profound sorrow by all the citizenship of Detroit, regardless alike of class and politics. It is doubtful if the death of any man was ever received by such universal expressions of regret in Detroit. His most bitter political enemies could be heard on the street, in the hotels and in the business houses deploring his untimely end, expressing their appreciation of the worth of the man and paying tribute to his works. The man, his character and the incidents of his career have been the sole theme of conversation in all public places ever since the announcement of his death. The whole populace of Detroit is in mourning. Already the matter of an heroic statue, or some other public memorial of the illustrious citizen is being talked of. All the people will unite in doing honor to his memory. The funeral will probably be the largest ever held in the state.

A cablegram from London, dated the 19th, says that H. S. Pingree, Jr., is seriously ill, having broken down completely. The message was from his physician.

The Governor's Proclamation.
To the People of the State of Michigan:
The Hon. Hazen S. Pingree, former Governor of Michigan, is dead, having departed this life in London, England, Tuesday, June 18, 1901, at the hour of 11:35 p. m. His death removes from our midst the second war governor of the state, a man descended from patriotic ancestry, and who had himself served his country in its hour of need on the field of battle, and in southern prisons. His energy and ceaseless activity won for him a world-wide reputation. He was endowed with a determination and tenacity of purpose which characterized his entire career, whether as a soldier, a shoemaker at the bench, a successful business man, the mayor of the metropolis of the state, or as chief executive of this great commonwealth. Compled with this was a rugged honesty of purpose, which won for him the confidence of the people.

Dying in a foreign land, away from his home, the sympathy of the entire people will be extended in generous measure to his family, in whose midst he was always a kind husband and an indulgent father.

As a mark of respect, it is hereby ordered that the flags on the capitol and other state buildings be displayed at half-mast until after the burial, that the capitol be appropriately draped, and that on the day of the funeral, all the state departments be closed. All officers of the state and all citizens who can do so, are requested to attend upon the obsequies.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed.

Done at the city of Lansing, this nineteenth day of June, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and twenty-sixth.

By the Governor: A. T. BLISS.
F. M. WARNER, Secy. of State.

500 Citizens on Committee.
Five hundred citizens representative of all walks of life have been appointed to aid in preparing for the reception and honoring the remains of ex-Gov. Hazen S. Pingree. The committee includes the president and secretary of all the labor unions, all city and county officials, representatives from all wards, on nomination of the aldermen, and sterling business men. Mrs. Pingree, Frank C. Pingree and Miss Hazel Pingree arrived home from New York on the morning of the 21st. The wishes of Mrs. Pingree as to the funeral will be followed implicitly by the committee.

There were 734 students in the great senior graduating class of 1901 at the U. of M.

The village tax of Lake Odessa raised this year will be 100 cents less than last year. A big celebration will be held on July 4.

If the rules of the organization are lived up to, the Bachelors' club, of Benton Harbor, will shortly be richer by $1,000. One member has deserted by taking to himself a wife, and another one is about to do so, and under the laws of the club each is bound to pay a fine of $500.

MINOR MICHIGAN MATTERS.

Interlochen was visited by a $55,000 fire on the 16th.

The berry yield in the vicinity of Watervliet will be very light this season.

Sunday, June 16, was a "dry" day at Houghton, for the first time in more than 10 years.

Imlay City will have an old-time Fourth of July celebration, with all sorts of games and sports.

Before snow flies Crosswell will have another hotel, the contract for its construction having been let.

Constantine is trying to land a furniture factory which will give employment to some 25 or 30 men.

Jud W. King, of Belding, is the owner of a calf with two bodies, two heads, seven legs and eight feet.

Striking machinists at the F. & P. M. shops, at Muskegon, to the number of 14, have gone back to work.

The striking machinists at the F. & P. M. shops in Saginaw returned to work on the 17th. No information is obtainable as to the terms of settlement.

The progressive element at North Branch has at last gotten the better of the old-fogy crowd, and the village will have electric lights before many moons.

The special election held at Norway to settle the question of bonding the city for $25,000 for electric lights resulted in a victory for those who favor the lights.

The machinists' strike in Saginaw valley was settled on the night of the 20th. Although the men did not get all they contended for, they are jubilant over the outcome.

Osage merchants are firm believers in the power of music to draw crowds, and have subscribed liberally to a fund to pay for two band concerts in the village each week during the summer.

The annual reunion of the Grand River Valley Encampment Association of Soldiers, Sailors, Marines, Sons of Veterans and Women's Relief Corps will be held at Grand Haven from July 1 to 6, inclusive.

The K. O. T. M. Tent of River Rouge is to celebrate the Fourth of July in old-time fashion. They have rented a private garden, and will charge an admittance to those wishing to see and hear the eagle scream.

A terrific electrical storm, accompanied by a gale with rain, swept over Allegan county from the west on the 14th. Reports from the surrounding country show that considerable damage was done to vegetation and fruit. Many barns were struck by lightning, and the reports say three people were killed by lightning.

The Wayne county society of Modern Woodmen will hold its annual reunion and picnic at Tashmoo park on August 3. Special trains will carry the members to Detroit, where the steamer Tashmoo has been chartered to convey the crowd to the park. It is expected that at least 400 members and their families will participate in the affair.

Considerable interest has been awakened at Reed City by the announcement that an oil prospector who has been in the vicinity for the past two years is now ready for business. Some of the leading capitalists and business men are taking stock in his enterprise. It is claimed that his find of oil has been analyzed and found good, and that active work on a well will soon begin.

149 PER CENT IN COMMERCE.

The Total Amount Imported into the Islands for 10 Months of Last Year Was $20,143,152, Against $16,664,568 for the Preceding Year.

Our Trade with the Philippines.
An increase of 21 per cent in imports and 149 per cent in Philippine commerce is shown in a comparative statement made public on the 17th by the division of insular affairs, war department, setting forth the trade returns for the first 10 months of 1900, as compared with the same period for the preceding year. The total value of merchandise imported into the Philippines from January to November of 1900 was $20,143,152, against $16,664,568 for the same period of 1899. The value of the exports from the Philippines during the 1000 period is set down at $19,372,830, against $12,975,605 in 1899. The greater part of the imports came from Europe and Asiatic countries, although this trade with the U. S. showed an increase of $521,367, or 43 per cent. Exports to the U. S. however, showed a falling off of $975,627.

Young Bride Succeeded.
Because the man she married tried to force her to live a vicious life, Mrs. Edith Smith, a bride of 12 days, committed suicide in Evanston, Ill., by shooting herself through the heart on the 16th. Mrs. Smith, who was 18 years old, and whose maiden name was Moore, was married on June 4 to Ami Smith, of Chicago. A week later she deserted her husband and returned to Evanston. Smarting under the shame and disgrace she said she had experienced, she locked herself in her room and was found lying dead on the bed with the revolver gripped in her hand.

Twelve Dead, Many Injured.
Twelve people were killed and a number were injured as the result of a fire following an explosion among a quantity of fireworks in the store of A. A. Rittenburg, at Paterson, N. J., on the 21st. Several persons are missing and are thought to have perished. The store was on the ground floor of a tenement building. The cause of the explosion is not known. The property loss will not exceed $35,000.

Dead Tramp Had $450.
Beside an old man, dressed like a tramp, who was killed by a freight train on the New York Central near Adams Center, N. Y., on the 18th was found a bed ticking sack containing $450 in gold. In a purse was about $150, also in gold. All the coins were of old dates and had apparently been hoarded. The body was badly mutilated, the features being completely destroyed.

TRANSVAAL WAR ITEMS.
The 17th inst. being the anniversary of the beginning of the siege of Tien Tsin, the ladies decorated the graves of the soldiers of all nationalities.

Replying to questions in the British house of commons on the 17th, Mr. Brodrick, the war secretary, said there were 40,329 persons in the "concentration camps" of the Transvaal and Orange River colony. The deaths in these camps for the month of May numbered 98 men and women and 318 children. The announcement of the mortality was received with groans from the Irish members and cries of "scandalous."

Lord Kitchener has cabled from Pretoria, under date of June 16, as follows: "Near Welmarusd, 20 miles south of Middleburg, 250 Victorian mounted rifles from Gen. Beaton's column were surprised in camp at Steenkopfontein by a superior force of Boers on the 12th. The enemy crept up to within short range and poured a deadly fire into the camp, killing 2 officers and 16 men and wounding 4 officers and 38 men of whom 28 were slightly wounded. Only 2 officers and 50 men escaped to Gen. Beaton's camp. The remainder were taken prisoners and released. Two pompoms were captured by the enemy."

Several persons were prostrated from the heat in Chicago on the 12th, two of whom may die.

CUBA AND PHILIPPINE NEWS.

The island of Panay is being ravaged by rinderpest; so great is the havoc caused by the disease that the natives are hauling carts to Iloilo, Col. Bonanos, five officers and 41 men have surrendered at Lipa, Bantanga province.

According to Gen. Emilio Nunez, civil governor of the province of Havana, the Cubans are well-pleased with the existing state of affairs. He says that the acceptance of the Platt amendment has greatly improved the situation.

Civil government will be established in the Philippine islands on July 4. Judge Wm. H. Taft will be designated as the head of the Philippine commission which is to be continued. The order creating him civil governor will be issued by the President through the secretary of war.

The recent battle with the insurgents at Lipa, in which Lieutenant Springer was killed and Capt. Wilhelm and Lieutenant Lee were mortally wounded, was begun by the Americans. The disproportionate number of officers hit is said to be chargeable to the fact that there were several deserters from the American army with the rebels.

American experts are preparing to report to the President a plan for the permanent military or naval or military and naval occupation of the island of Cuba. Later on, it is alleged, the practical effects of the Platt law will be made clear to the Cubans. It is expected at Washington that the Cubans will not accept the apparently harsh conditions with happy minds. There are two views in the cabinet as to the extent of the permanent military and naval occupation of Cuban ports and harbors. Secretary Root and his group favors the extreme view of taking the five principal harbors and the present fortifications.

The Philippine mail on the 17th brought to the war department at Washington the records in 11 cases wherein Filipinos were tried by military commissions on charges including murder, rape, kidnapping, assault and battery, burglary and violations of the rules of war. The leaders select their victim, capture and carry him away in the night to a secret rendezvous on a sandy beach where a grove has been prepared. Here, in the presence of the assembled band, helpless men and women from time to time have been stabbed to death and tossed into the graves. Ten members of the band, including two of the chiefs, were tried before a military commission and eight of them sentenced to be hanged.

Seven deaths from heat were reported at Chicago on the 13th.

HERE'S A MYSTERY.

THE BODY OF THE MAN COULD NOT BE FOUND.

Train Plunged Into a Ghost and the Uncanny Obstacle Was Never Seen or Heard of Again—An Old Engineer's Story.

(Washington Letter.)
George H. Martin of Milwaukee, an old-time railroad man now in the service of the Interstate Commerce Commission, tells the following story of his first trip in Idaho, made in the fall of 1887:

"The Mecca for railroad men at that time was Pocatello, Ida., and there I obtained employment on the Oregon Short line as a freight fireman. On my first trip out I went to the roundhouse after the engine, and as we came out of the house a black cat ran across the track. The engineer was superstitious, like lots of other railroad men, and he immediately climbed out of the cab, went to the superintendent and asked to be excused from taking the trip.

"We were delayed about an hour in securing another engineer to make the trip. We got started at last, and I was particularly alert, as it was my first trip, and I wished to make a good record. We were approaching what is known in that country as Dead Man's gulch, when looking ahead I saw a man standing on the track about 200 feet ahead. I reached for the rope and rang the bell on the engine for the purpose of giving him warning, but he did not appear to hear it. I then called to the engineer:

"Bill, sound your whistle. There's a man on the track who appears to be either deaf or drunk."

"The engineer tooted his whistle, but still the man stuck to his post in the middle of the track. The engineer shut off steam, but we did not come to a stop until we had passed the spot where he stood. The engineer turned to me and said:

"Didn't he get off on your side?"
"No," I replied. "If he didn't get off on your side he's up on the train."

"Then we started out to search for the remains, the engineer with his torch and I with my lantern. We examined the engine and found no marks to indicate that we had struck the man. We walked down the sides of the train and met the conductor and rear brakeman coming forward to see what was the matter. We told them we had struck a man, and then the entire crew began the search, but found nothing.

"We finally concluded that he had been knocked off the track into a swift-running mountain stream that ran alongside. At the next telegraph station north of that point the conductor and engineer reported to the superintendent that we had killed a man in Dead Man's gulch and could not find the remains; that we believed he had been knocked into the water and carried away.

"The superintendent the next morning issued instructions to the section men to patrol the stream and search for the body, and the search was kept up for five or six days, but nothing ever came of it.

"Finally the entire train crew was called before the superintendent and interrogated, when it was discovered that only the engineer and myself had seen the man struck by the engine. Then the search was dropped and the subject was discussed by the railway employes as an incident in their lives.

"Two weeks later a prospector came into Pocatello and reported that he had found a skeleton in the mountains near the point where we had seen the man on the track.

"It was then learned that when the road was being built a grader employed in Dead Man's gulch had disappeared, and was supposed to have been murdered; but as his body was never found nothing was done about it. The incident I have related gave rise to the story that the man whom we saw on the track was the ghost of the murdered grader. What do I think about it? It certainly was very strange. I saw the man standing on the track as plainly as I see you, and I saw the engine pass over the spot where he stood, but there were no marks on the engine to show that it had struck a body, nor was there any jar to the machinery such as one might expect under the circumstances. Further than this I am not expressing an opinion."

A Traveling Man confided to us the otherday that he used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in his family and needed no other remedy, as it seemed to keep the entire family so perfectly free from Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache and Stomach Troubles. Sold at A. Bond's, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

You may as well expect to run a steam engine without water as to find an active, energetic man with a torpid liver and you may know that his liver is torpid when he does not relish his food or feels dull and languid after eating, often has headache and sometimes dizziness. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will restore his liver to its normal functions, renew his vitality, improve his digestion and make him feel like a new man. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at Bond's Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Deford.

Rose Valentine has returned from Wilmet.

Mrs. Theron Spencer is much improved in health.

L. Retherford and B. Sharp are completing their barns ready for the hay crop.

The widow of James Harrington will have a bee to-day (Monday) to plant beans.

The writer was in Shabbona Thursday night to hear the debate. We will say no more about it at present.

Deford has two blacksmith shops again. Ren Gage, formerly of Novesta, has set up the new establishment.

There is more music to the square foot in our burg on Saturday nights than any town of its size in the state.

The fellows that traveled through here the past spring selling the Singer Sewing Machine are reporting that they sold machines where it was not. John McCracken did not buy of them. He purchased from John Loyall, of Cass City, whom he believes to be an honest sinner. The Singer Machine men consider to be too sweet to be wholesome.

Geo. Martin and wife, Chas. Campfield and wife and Mrs. Balmer, all of Novesta, are spending this week at Avoca, St. Clair county, attending the wedding of Miss Eva Campfield, a sister of Mrs. G. Martin who is to be bound for better or worse to a Roy Edmison, of Avoca, until life does them part. The ceremony will take place June 26th at the home of the bride's father.

Down on the town line between Kingston and Novesta there is a family of four—Father, mother and two sons. They have some new land and the "old gal" clears the soil taking land in the rough as fast as the father and two sons plow it. One youth drives the team the other holds the plow while the sire keeps the plow counter free of snags and the "old gal" does the clearing all alone. They live close to the "confederate cross roads" and are known as the happy family.

Saves Two From Death. "Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by T. H. Fritz, Cass City, F. A. Francis, Kingston. Trial bottles free.

Stonysville, Mo., May 5, 1900. (Gentlemen)—I have been troubled with Indigestion and Constipation for the last two years, and have tried every remedy known, but had never received any relief until I was handed a trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin through our druggist, J. W. Watson, which gave me immediate relief, and I afterward bought a fifty cent bottle, which I can truthfully say has given me more relief than anything I have ever tried.—R. B. Hurd, A. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Foley's Honey and Tar heals lungs and stops the cough.

CUT OUT THE RYE IN WHEAT FIELDS

FARMERS SHOULD DO SO FOR THEIR OWN PROTECTION.

The growing of rye in the vicinity of wheat fields has caused no end of trouble in the general markets and among millers and discriminating flour buyers. Wheat mixed with rye is not wanted, and hence it is always docked in price, the financial loss falling most heavily upon the grain grower.

The name Michigan throughout the country has become synonymous with purity. Everybody in this state, including the grain grower, should take a great pride in the present condition, and should do all in his power to help maintain such a reputation.

Rye in the wheat deteriorates the variety by hybridizing, thereby producing a mongrel grain that is nowhere in the flour markets.

You cannot do a more profitable piece of work, Mr. Grain Grower, for yourself and for the reputation of Michigan wheat than to go carefully over the wheat fields and cut the rye out perfectly clean. Cut it out!

Wilmot.

W. Penfold came home Monday.

W. Clark has moved his family to Caro.

Mr. Hallock is some better the last few days.

Mrs. J. Legg who has been very ill is on the gain.

Mrs. A. Brown and John Hartt's baby have been on the sick list.

The bell for the church has come and the chimney has been repaired.

Frank Hartt is having his house raised and is putting a stone wall and cellar under it.

A large crowd attended the school picnic here last Friday and every body seemed to enjoy themselves. A nice program had been prepared and the band furnished music. Everybody was treated to ice cream.

Henry Downey got struck with a falling timber at Mapley's raising on Friday last. He escaped with a bruised shoulder and a cut lip. Dr. Bates took two stitches in the lip. It was thought by those who witnessed the accident that he had a narrow escape from being terribly hurt.

Deekerville is so busy working to make a success of her newly-organized agricultural society, which is to hold a fair this fall, that she won't have time to celebrate the nation's birthday next week.

Rescue.

Road work is the order of the day.

Mrs. John Ashmore, wife of the postmaster at this place, is quite sick.

Martin McKenzie has a crew of drillers at work drilling a well on his farm.

John Atkinson will take possession of his new home during the present week.

Mrs. Dan O'Rourke is slightly improved at last accounts. Dr. Morris is in attendance.

We are rapidly approaching the good times we had under the Cleveland administration. At present eggs are valued at nine cents while wool is soaring sky high at 10 to 12 cents a pound. Our Republican friends no doubt enjoy their medicine. Yet look at the prices at present for tea, sugar and everything else we buy. Eight years ago we were told it was political causes now it is over production. A man has a clear conscience who went shy of the G. O. P. last fall.

John Brown has the new barn of Matthew Vallance about finished, making three barns and a house for him so far this season. The barn is a large one and stands on a stone wall eight feet high. The raising was a day to be remembered. All the men, women and children were there—over two hundred and fifty people. The invitation was, Come everybody, and to judge from the size of the crowd, they all came. With the exception of a few slight accidents to a couple of the men, everything went smooth and fine making a piece of work that is a credit to the builder.

Before our mutual friend, the Beau-ley scribe, scores the base ball game played at Owendale he should commence with the facts. Our boys went over and played the first and part of the second innings. The score was one to nothing in favor of Owendale, some of the boys got into a quarrel and the game was not finished. Sooner than go no with the game they gave it to the boys from Rescue. At no time was any of the boys under the influence of Owendale or any other whiskey and the quarrel was not worthy of any mention. It is a good plan in this world to take Old David Crockett's advice; "Be sure you are right then go ahead." While we do not blame our friend from Beauley, he has no doubt been misinformed and wrote what he did in perfect good faith.

To reduce one's weight, cut off one meal a day, breakfast preferably. Take a cup of clear coffee, sipping it slowly. Live largely on lean meat. Take plenty of exercise. Avoid sugars and starchy foods.—July Ladies' Home Journal.

How it is Done.

The first object in life with the American people is to "get rich," the second, how to retain good health. The first can be obtained by energy, honesty, and saving, the second, (good health) by using Green's August Flower. Should you be a despondent sufferer from any of the effects of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Appendicitis, Indigestion, etc., such as Sick Headache, Palpitation of the Heart, Sour Stomach, Habitual Costiveness, Dizziness of the Head, Nervous Prostration, Low Spirits, etc., you need not suffer another day. Two doses of the well-known August Flower will relieve you at once. Go to Fritz's Drug Store, Cass City; or Francis' Drug Store, Kingston, and get a sample bottle free. Regular size 75 cts. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

Ira D. Reckard, Duncombe, Ia., writes: "My little boy scalded his leg from the knee to the ankle. I used Banner Salve immediately and in three weeks time it was almost entirely healed. I want to recommend it to every family and advise them to keep Banner Salve on hand as it is a sure remedy for scalds or any sores." T. H. Fritz, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Mugridge, of Sanilac Center, who claimed the body of a woman found in the river near Ecorse as that of their daughter, Myrtle, were nearly overwhelmed when informed by detectives Saturday afternoon, as announced in The Journal's sporting extra, that their daughter had been found alive and well in Mt. Clemens.

Its elements are exactly the same as the natural digestive fluids and it simply can't help but do you good. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Quick Relief for Asthma.

Miss Maude Dickens, Parsons, Kans., writes: "I suffered eight years with asthma in its worst form. I had several attacks during the last year and was not expected to live through them. I began using Foley's Honey and Tar and it has never failed to give immediate relief. T. H. Fritz, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Shabbona.

Last week's correspondence.

Miss Cora Rogers was a very welcome visitor in town last week.

The Latter Day Saints have commenced work on their church.

W. F. Ehlers is raising his new building on the corner of Main and Church Street.

Mrs. Geo. B. Gotham and Miss Grace Gotham attended the Macabee picnic at Pontiac on the 11th.

Misses Maude Milton and Nellie Jones attended the teacher's examination at Crosswell this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Parrott have returned from an extended visit with friends in different parts of the state.

A little son arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phillips on the 26th of May; also a little daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Louts June 6th.

The regular quarterly convention of the Evergreen township Sunday School Association was held at the McHugh M. E. Church, Thursday afternoon and evening, June 13th. A very interesting and profitable program was rendered particularly a helpful address by Rev. A. Torbet, of Cass City, on "How to interest young in Sunday school" and a very able and interesting paper by Mrs. Morgan, of Cass City, on "The Bible; the source of spiritual power." We regret exceedingly that more did not hear those two spiritual workers for Christ.

Didn't Marry for Money.

"A few months ago, food which I ate for breakfast would not remain on my stomach for half an hour. I used one bottle of your Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and can now eat my breakfast and other meals with a relish and my food is thoroughly digested. Nothing equals Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for stomach troubles. H. S. Pitts, Arlington, Tex. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. A. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

East Neosta.

David McKim now rides in a brand new buggy.

Nelson Brown, West Superior, Wis., is visiting his parents here.

Miss Emma Brown left on Wednesday for Newberry, U. P., where she will remain as an attendant in the asylum.

A severe storm passed over here on Tuesday, Robert Brown's grainery was struck by lightning, Mrs. R. Brown and Mrs. Williams felt the effects of the shock. Walter Lewis a boy working in a near by cornfield when the crash came says the horse stumbled to the ground, he also felt the effects, and a rooster that had sought shelter under the granary was killed. A heavy down pour of rain which followed was welcomed by the people.

Seven Years In Bed.

"Will wonders ever cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but "Three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes, "and in three months I felt like a new person." George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale at Bond's Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

DYSPEPTICIDE
The greatest aid to DIGESTION.

General Washington wanted a man. It was in September, 1776, at the City of New York, a few days after the battle of Long Island. The swift and deep East River flowed between the two hostile armies, and General Washington had as yet no system established for getting information of the enemy's movements and intentions. He never needed such information so much as at that crisis.

What would General Howe do next? If he crossed at Hell Gate, the American army, too small in numbers, and defeated the week before, might be caught on Manhattan Island as in a trap, and the issue of the contest might be made to depend upon a single battle; for in such circumstances defeat would involve the capture of the whole army. And yet General Washington was compelled to confess:

"We cannot learn, nor have we been able to possess, the least information of fate."

Therefore he wanted a man. He wanted an intelligent man, cool-headed, skillful, brave, to cross the East River to Long Island, enter the enemy's camp and get information as to his strength and intentions. He went to Colonel Knowlton, commanding a remarkably efficient regiment from Connecticut, and requested him to ascertain if this man so sorely needed could be found in his command. Colonel Knowlton called his officers together, stated the wishes of General Washington, and, without urging the enterprise upon any individual, left the matter to their reflections. Captain Nathan Hale, a brilliant youth of 21, recently graduated from Yale college, was one of those who reflected upon the subject. He soon reached a conclusion. He was of the younger soldiers of the patriot army. He had been educated for the ministry, and his motive in adopting for a time the profession of arms was purely patriotic. This we know from the familiar records of his life at the time when the call to arms was first heard. In addition to his other gifts and graces, he was handsome, vigorous and athletic, all in an extraordinary degree. If he had lived in our day he might have pulled the stroke oar at New London or pitched for the college nine.

The officers were conversing in a group. No one had as yet spoken the decisive word. Colonel Knowlton appealed to a French sergeant, an old soldier of former wars, and asked him to volunteer.

"No, no," said he. "I am ready to fight the British at any place and time, but I do not feel willing to go among them to be hung up like a dog."

Captain Hale joined the group of officers. He said to Colonel Knowlton:

"I will undertake it."

Some of his best friends remonstrated. One of them, afterwards the famous Gen. William Hull, then a captain in Washington's army, has recorded Hale's reply to his own attempt to dissuade him.

"I think," said Hale, "I owe to my country the accomplishment of an object so important. I am fully sensible of the consequences of discovery and capture in such a situation. But for a year I have been attached to the army, and have not rendered any material service, while receiving a compensation for which I make no return. I wish to be useful, and every kind of service necessary for the public good becomes honorable by being necessary."

He spoke, as General Hull remembered, with earnestness and decision, as one who had considered the matter long, and had made up his mind.

Having received his instructions, he traveled fifty miles along the Sound as far as Norwalk, in Connecticut. One who saw him there made a very wise remark upon him, to the effect that he was "too good looking" to go as a spy. He could not deceive. "Some scrubby fellow ought to have gone." At Norwalk he assumed the disguise of a Dutch schoolmaster, putting on a suit of plain brown clothes and a round, broad-brimmed hat. He had no difficulty in crossing the Sound, since he bore an order from General Washington which placed at his disposal all the vessels belonging to Congress. For several days everything appears to have gone well with him, and there is reason to believe that he passed through the entire British army without detection or even exciting suspicion.

Finding the British had crossed to New York, he followed them. He made his way back to Long Island, and nearly reached the point opposite Norwalk where he had originally landed. Rendered, perhaps, too bold by success, he went into a well-known and popular tavern, entered into conversation with the guests and, made himself very agreeable. The tradition is that he made himself too agreeable. A man present, suspecting or knowing that he was not the character he had assumed, quietly left the room, communicated his suspicions to the captain of a British ship anchored near, who dispatched a boat's crew to capture and bring on board the agreeable stranger. His true character was immediately revealed. Drawings of some of the British works, with notes in Latin, were found hidden in the soles of his shoes. Nor did he attempt to deceive his captors, and the English captain, lamenting, as he said, that "so fine a fellow had fallen into his power," sent him to New York in one of his boats, and with him the fatal proofs that he was a spy.

September 21st was the day on which he reached New York—the day of the great fire which laid one-third of the little city in ashes. From the time of his departure from General Washington's camp to that of his return to New York was about fourteen days. He was taken to General Howe's headquarters at the Beekman mansion, on the East river, near the corner of the present Fifty-first street and First avenue. It is a strange coincidence that the house to which he was brought to be tried as a spy was the very one from which Major Andre departed when he went to West Point. Tradition says that Captain Hale was examined in a greenhouse which then stood in the garden of the Beekman mansion.

Short was his trial, for he avowed at once his true character. The British general signed an order to his provost-marshal directing him to receive into his custody the prisoner convicted as a spy.

The door swung open and Mingo, the Washoe, glided forth and away in the twilight, into the sage brush; and a rabbit would have made a greater rustle.

The stillness of midnight, a seeming attribute of masses of shadows that crouched from the waning moon, behind the rocks, the brush, and every salient thing, was timidly broken. The creek in the hinges of the mine cabin door sounded weirdly clear—a wall, an omen, thought the Indian girl. An awesome darkness filled the silent shed. Susie, on her knees, went creeping, feeling with her hands for the edge of the shaft. There she clutched the windlass post, and leaned her breast against it.

"Frank," she cooed, in a low, sweet tone that wavered with the effort made to keep it cheerful, "Frank, my sunshine—Frank."

No sound save that a piece of rock, somewhere down along the pick-scattered walls of the shaft, loosened and fell, down and down, striking the sides with diminishing sounds, till a ghostly echo announced its bottom rest. Then deeper silence.

"Dear one, are you there?" she called again; but the sound of her voice, rebounding on herself, made her frightened and awed.

Pressing her heart against the post again, to still its audible thumping, she sat a moment in dread. Suddenly, then, strengthened by the thought that he might be there, wounded, perhaps, and needing her sadly, down in the gloom of the yawning mine, she groped her way to the ladder. Moaning of instinct, there in the darkness, she slowly descended, down and down in the mocking, echoing tomb.

In the utter blackness her hands discovered his face, and she cried aloud, till the shaft was full of anguish.

A boneless mass, inert and futed to the jagged surface of the loaded bucket of ore, into which he had fallen, she found. His head hung limply athwart the bucket's edge; the eyes, which her fingers sought, were closed.

Beside him, kneeling, she sank, to moan and crouch, combing the dark, curling hair with her fingers, kissing the face—and seeing nothing. She fancied that a beat, slight and feeble, lived in his breast. Calling his name, she coaxed and wooed, and then, despairing, stood up and prayed for help.

"God, if the Indians, too, have souls," she said, "give my aching soul to him—let him live! Give me something, Great Eternal Spirit—something of hope!"

With an esoteric summoning of a marvelous strength, she lifted the drooping form; the arms and head fell listlessly across her shoulders. Then to the ladder! And with all the power of arms and limbs, thwed by desperation against the giant task, she started totting up and up, like one who shouldered up a crushing weight, to gain the air and freedom. Her palms were burning, her knees shook and trembled, her breath came in gasping lung clutches painful to bear; the darkness swam thickly about—she was stifling, smothered, congested with blood, yet she forced her way aloft.

The sun went down, the daylight waned. Exhaustion told the man below to cease and go to his cabin. Having loaded the bucket he labored slowly up the vertical climb on the ladder. The Indian glided nearer to the edge. He could hear every step on the rungs of the ladder, could ever detect the sound of the roughened hands grasping the wood. Leaning far over, he saw the candle, fastened on the miner's hat. Nearer, nearer it slowly came, flickering, throwing goblin shadows against the somber walls, contending faintly against the encompassing gloom.

The shaft was now alive with hollow echoes of the labors of the man. On came the light. It was 10 feet away—it was five feet—two. The head and the light emerged above the yawning chasm.

With a movement swift, strong, snake-like, Mingo thrust out his powerful hand. It came across the miner's eyes and nose; then the head was wrenched quickly, violently backward. The hands, surprised, tried to cling; but failed. They loosened, waved wildly, clutched at the air, and then, with the body and head, were overtopped. Headlong, twisting, turning, the man was hurled to the swallowing abyss. The light on the hat gave forth the sound of a flame in the wind and was gone—plucked off by the rushing darkness! A shriek issued forth from the mouth of the tomb.

"Susie! little Susie!" was the cry. Sounds of a striking—a bounding back and forth, dully, against the jagged sides—a crash at the bottom—and silence deeper than stillness ensued.

The door swung open and Mingo, the Washoe, glided forth and away in the twilight, into the sage brush; and a rabbit would have made a greater rustle.

The stillness of midnight, a seeming attribute of masses of shadows that crouched from the waning moon, behind the rocks, the brush, and every salient thing, was timidly broken. The creek in the hinges of the mine cabin door sounded weirdly clear—a wall, an omen, thought the Indian girl. An awesome darkness filled the silent shed. Susie, on her knees, went creeping, feeling with her hands for the edge of the shaft. There she clutched the windlass post, and leaned her breast against it.

"Frank," she cooed, in a low, sweet tone that wavered with the effort made to keep it cheerful, "Frank, my sunshine—Frank."

No sound save that a piece of rock, somewhere down along the pick-scattered walls of the shaft, loosened and fell, down and down, striking the sides with diminishing sounds, till a ghostly echo announced its bottom rest. Then deeper silence.

"Dear one, are you there?" she called again; but the sound of her voice, rebounding on herself, made her frightened and awed.

Pressing her heart against the post again, to still its audible thumping, she sat a moment in dread. Suddenly, then, strengthened by the thought that he might be there, wounded, perhaps, and needing her sadly, down in the gloom of the yawning mine, she groped her way to the ladder. Moaning of instinct, there in the darkness, she slowly descended, down and down in the mocking, echoing tomb.

In the utter blackness her hands discovered his face, and she cried aloud, till the shaft was full of anguish.

A boneless mass, inert and futed to the jagged surface of the loaded bucket of ore, into which he had fallen, she found. His head hung limply athwart the bucket's edge; the eyes, which her fingers sought, were closed.

ing still the smile on the dead man's lips, striving, yearning to warm the cold, white features.

The small, broad miner, passing the cabin when noon was high, delayed for a second. "Letter for Henley," he stolidly announced; but tossing it in, he beheld the girl, beheld the miner, and fled the hill to spread the news of the sight he had seen, and to fetch away the coroner.

CHAPTER III.

In the sage brush wigwam the summer waned to autumn with dreary stillness. Grey already, the stretch of brush, relieved alone by the willow fringe of the wandering creek, was cheerless, dreary and oppressive to the girl. She sat alone, while the chilling wind was wantonly ripping the leaves from the branches, her head drooped low in hopeless despair.

A shadow, thrown by the setting sun, betrayed a presence. Dumbly she raised her eyes to look.

"Ugh," said a tall, grunting Washoe buck.

"Mahala, do you wait for Mingo?" said the man. "Johnny Shag is bigger chief. Mingo shall never come."

She looked in silence on the ashes of the wood burned the day before.

"Mahala," he added, "one, two moons Jonny Shag, come to take you the trail to my wigwam. Why not any talk? Too long, you sabbee? Mahala waits for Mingo. Better look out Mahala; Jonny Shag is warrior. To-day you better talk."

"One moon, let me think," she wearily answered. "Let me wait one moon."

"One moon, yet Jonny Shag will wait. Many things come before the moon again." He glided away, and again her head sank wearily down.

Mingo, the Washoe, stealthily returning to Chloride hill, kept cautious ears and eyes awide, to learn the result of the murder at the mine. Susie, he rightly conjectured, would have guessed the truth. He avoided the wilkip, but remained in the town. Patience with many an Indian is a virtue.

On a crisp, cool day, while Mingo talked with a group of bucks on a corner, Shag, on a pony and armed with a rifle, rode up behind. Raising his gun, he deliberately shot Mingo through the body, and escaped to the hills.

The thoroughly astounded camp officials promptly gave pursuit, but all in vain. Friends and relations of the dead man assisting, the country was scoured, skillfully, cunningly. Canyons, valleys, the shoulders of the mountains, were traversed and searched, but nothing availed. Shag enjoyed every advantage.

Three Indian trappers, mounted, came at length to where the fugitive was lying in ambush. One of these escaped with his life and rode like a demon to tell of the two, lying grisly and stark, struck in the back by the bullets of Shag, their faces now twisted in the sun.

A stooping, stricken Washoe, the old Red Wolf, whose boys they were that had died in the sand, departed in silence, alone, on the path of war. The feud was his. In the night he found the man he sought, found him asleep—left him asleep—his knife standing in the breast of Shag the warrior.

The year grew old; its days, like the hours of waking of an old and passing man, were dim and short, its night's long sleeps, that made it none the stronger.

And yet there came a day that was like an echo of what had been before the year began to age. Susie, wan but wistful of face, went from the hopeless wigwam and hurried away up the moaning creek. She went to a cove of alder trees, entered and was lost to view.

An hour later she slowly emerged and in her arms she carried a child, a little boy in the fairest hair and the bluest of eyes. She seated herself in the sunlight and shivered as she rested the infant and cooed it softly with Indian words. She was faint and weary, but strangely happy. Her baby resembled its father, young as it was. Her heart went leaping to it—embraced it—owned it! Her pain, her suffering, everything was forgotten.

All the afternoon she sat by the stream nursing her baby, cuddling it closely, warming it ever in her throbbing breast. As the twilight approached, the air was the balm of the Indian summer.

Rising, she placed her baby in the rustling grass; deftly she beat the subtle willows down—masses of willow and throwing the grass, leaves and twigs over all, made a roof to catch the frost. Into this with her child she crept, nestling it gently as before.

Night came down. Quite late the babe awoke and feebly cried. She smothered it and sang, in her sad-sweet voice, a lullaby:

I hear the crickets sing in the long grasses; Many camp-fires of the braves shine in the sky— They shine again in the little river; The wind is small and gentle when it plays in your hair.

Lie in my heart as the pebbles lie in the little river; As the crickets lie in the long grasses; Shine in my heart as the camp-fires shine in the sky; Sleep, little Fawn, till the sun comes over the mountain.

The little Fawn slept, but never to wake till a greater sun should top the mountains of darkness, misery and despair.

Singing and cooing, Susie weaved in the darkness—unconscious of the flight—with the birds, toward the summer of the new little soul. At midnight, bending forward to kiss the downy cheek, she was startled at its coldness. Hurriedly feeling the wet soft hands, the pulseless feet, the tiny body, she sounded the utmost depths of agony.

She rushed from the shelter, the cold little body in her arms. By the light of the stars, the "fires of the braves," she saw the touch of the grim visitor. Then on the air of night arose a pained song out of a heart rudely broken. She sank unconscious to the earth. Away off hillward a gaunt coyote howled an answer back, dismal, long, forlorn.

The sun glided the path to the heavens, and rose in purple mists of majesty; the beam-fingers played in the night-dark hair of the mother, and touched with gold the hair of the child.

Dreaming the present far out of vision, dreaming the past into present again, the wan mother smiled and nodded in her sleep. Awakening, she shivered; a sigh that had rested was also aroused. Yet peace and patience were come in her heart.

Kneeling, she yearningly extended her hands to the shimmering sun. "O God, O Great Eternal Spirit," she said, "they told me of the Christ who died—who died for sins—for souls in trouble! But oh, my God, He never knew of Indian souls—and so, Great Spirit, let Susie die for all the sins—the love—the happiness!"

Still with her look to the mighty sun, still with a murmur of passionate appeal on her quivering lips, she took up her baby, pressed it in eagerness close to her bosom, and glided ahead, to a pool of the stream, sobbing and sobbing, and was curtailed from sight of the crystal waters.

When the body of the slender young Indian woman, clinging to a fair-haired baby, was found, a few wives and mothers said it was "pitiful," and other persons said she was "only an Injun."

(The End.)

Two Kinds of Independence.

We have all met the girl with the independent air, who is apt to show a rebellious spirit when she knows go her own way. Not infrequently she is well educated and comes from a refined home, says a writer in the Weekly Bonquet. But this fact does not make her manner the less offensive. It is a good thing to have self confidence and courage for these qualities are essential to success. But independence is a trait that is contrary to agreeableness and robs its possessor of that sweet amiability which is born from the virtue, obedience. Every law of God, and every law of nature, is dependent on another law for support. The girl who thinks she can get along without cultivating the graces of gentleness, courtesy and kindness to others, is making a sad mistake, and will be anything but a success. Who knows how to obey will rule equally well. Whether in the business or social world, the girl, or woman who influences things for the best is the one whose bright disposition deems independence out of place where progress is desired.

Home-Made Gondollers.

How many citizens of Buffalo who have watched the imported gondollers on the exposition canals realize that we have developed a race of gondollers of our own right here in Buffalo? The dirty old skiffs down in the harbor are not so pleasing to the eye as the smart Venetian gondolas at the fair. The grimy ferry boys who propel them don't look so foreign or so picturesque as their fellow-craftsmen from abroad. But when it comes to skill in handling a boat with a single stern oar, dodging around between steamers and tugs, through narrow passages and over the swells made by the big ships, the Buffalo boys have no need to fear comparison.

It would be an interesting and popular exhibition if the Pan-American authorities some day would take three or four of the best of the ferry boys from Buffalo harbor up to the exposition grounds, put them on the canals in their old skiffs and match them in a contest of speed and skill against the imported gondollers. I'd bet my money on the Buffalo boys.—Buffalo Express.

Study of the Moon.

It has been observed that on account of the absence of an atmosphere on the moon, and the consequent lack of gradation in shadows, the eye of the observer is seriously misled in judging the actual relief of objects forming the lunar landscapes. Prof. Prinz of Brussels has recently developed a method of avoiding this difficulty, and of seeing the details of the moon's natural proportions. Taking advantage of the fact that as the moon travels around the earth the eccentricity of its orbit produces the effect of a slow libration, or balancing to and fro, which causes its face to be inclined now a little one way and now a little the other way, Prof. Prinz makes two photographs of the lunar object to be studied, at opposite points in the libration, and then combines them in a stereoscope, whereupon the object stands forth in full relief. This principle has hitherto been applied only to photographs of the moon as a whole and not to particular craters or regions.

CANADA'S NEW CURRENCY.

Dominion's New $4 Bill a Masterpiece of Engraver's Skill.

The new $4 bill issued by the Dominion of Canada promises to become popular, for artistically it is a masterpiece of the engraver's skill. On its face it bears a flattering picture of the lock on the canal at Sault Ste. Marie, an engineering work purely American. This vignette is regarded as a delicate compliment to the United States. A Canadian paper, commenting on the circumstances, asks: "Who would travel by the Canadian canal after the Canadian government gave such a certificate as to the superiority of the American lock? It is true, our own canal is a grand work, one of the wonders of engineering science, but the government fancied the one on the other side of theriver more. As these $4 notes pass from hand to hand the wistful gaze of those who part with them will rest on the American lock—the gateway through which the government would direct their travels. Since they came into office the Canadian ministers have tried to forget their old disparaging language about our canals, and have lately spoken very favorably of these. But money talks. A picture of our Sault canal or of some other great Canadian work or scene should occupy the place given up to the American canal. This foreign canal lock depicted on our $4 bill is a humiliation to us. That picture is a record of blundering or something worse that will never be forgotten. Specimens of these $4 bills will be preserved wherever there is a collection of monetary curiosities. The people of Sault Ste. Marie are deeply offended at the government for its selection of the American canal as the object most worthy of depiction."

Ambrose McKay's Case.

Rockbridge, Mo., June 24th.—The neighborhood and particularly the members of Rockbridge Lodge, No. 435, A. F. & A. M., are feeling very much pleased over the recovery of Mr. Ambrose McKay, a prominent citizen and an honored member of the Masonic Fraternity.

Mr. McKay had been suffering for years with Diabetes and Rheumatism, which recently threatened to end his days. His limbs were so filled with pain that he could not sleep. He was very bad.

Just then, someone suggested a new remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills—which has been much advertised recently, as a cure for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble.

After Mr. McKay had used a few doses he commenced to improve. His pain all left him, and he is almost as well as ever. He says Dodd's Kidney Pills are worth more than they cost. They are certainly getting a great reputation in Missouri, and many very startling cures are being reported.

Fatal Duel Near Berlin.

Hans Wagner, a member of the staff of the Berlin Tageblatt, was mortally wounded in a duel with swords by an anti-Semite political agitator. The quarrel arose over a political dispute on the occasion of the unveiling of the statue to Prince Bismarck last Sunday.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about 1/4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c and 25c.

The HONEST LIAR

Here's to the man who lies to us, who's careless of the truth, who slaps us on the back and says, "Gee! how you hold your youth!" Who shrinks not at the future when he has a lie to tell. But, when you're sick and tired and blue, declares, "You're looking well!"

Here's to the man who tells us lies when solemn truth would hurt, who says: "I'll back you through and through, if it should take my shirt."

Who, when you're "off" and cannot write just as you think you should, will tune you up for better things, with, "That's what I call good!"

Or, when you paint a picture that is wrong in every part, will make you think that's great by saying, "Now, that's art!" He lies—but's in charity, if lying ever was. So, here's his health, for, though he lies, he's honest when he does. —Josh Wink, in the Baltimore American.

The Fire Edition.

By VICTOR A. HERMANN.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) All was excitement in the reportorial room. Outside, on either side of the Times iron building, a dozen structures were crumbling in the mighty grasp of the fire warrior. It was the worst conflagration since the memorable south-side blaze. At any moment those at the night desk might have to throw down their pencils and rush down to the smoke choked thoroughfare.

Ezra Spense, the city editor, came out of his little office just as the walls of White's cracker factory tumbled in with a muffled roar.

"Whew! Getting pretty close, boys, but I guess we can stand it."

"Old Spense" was on friendly terms with everyone, from the "devil" to the associate editor.

Then the old man walked over to the window. The vast columns of smoke and the reddened sky made an exaggerated spectacle; one could have sworn the whole city was doomed. Only a blazing mass of ruins marked the spot where the 10-story cracker factory had towered a few hours before.

As the city editor looked a thin thread of red flame wound itself up toward the drying room of the furniture house. A few moments later the inflammable interior was a seething furnace. A lone fireman stood on the roof, his nozzle pouring a continuous stream through the skylight. At times he appeared to be enveloped in a sea of flame, only to emerge like some invincible fire god.

"Whew! That's grit clear through. Where's Scott? Covering insurance? All right; send Fairbanks."

Fairbanks threw down his clipping shears and came forward.

"Do you see that fireman on the roof? Well, not one man in a hundred would stay up there a minute. You are pretty fair at this sort of work; run off a little incident. We'll need all the space available for the next few days, but it'll come in good on Sunday."

Fairbanks was already making entries in his book, but the next instant a mixture of charred wood and water rattled the glass so menacingly that the two moved away.

A pronounced odor of burning varnish penetrated the building and started them all coughing.

"There's money in that varnish," said the city editor, thoughtfully. Then the opaque door of his little office was closed behind him.

And the men on the desk continued to wield their heavy pencils. Two objects were foremost in their minds; to get down all possible, or desert the building—the latter only when ordered.

The Old Man Grasped the Lever.

The only idle man in the big room was Winters. He stood drying his feet by the radiator, and frowning at the smiling piece of Italian statuary that embellished the spare desk. An unsuccessful journey in a leaky boat will ruffle even a newspaper man.

Presently old Spense's head appeared in the doorway.

"You men on the desk! Chop the foreign news in half; don't let a line of exchange matter in. We must have two more columns for the fire."

And the door again banged.

The heat of the blaze was becoming oppressive. Winters removed his coat. Then some of the others began to fumble with their co-ars. The crack of a blistered pane brought the city editor out.

"Hotter and hotter, boys. Well, it's lucky this building is iron."

But he began to feel a little nervous in spite of himself. Showers of burning wood began to fall around the windows, while the roaring increased until it drowned even the dull throb of the engines.

A fireman stuck his head in the door.

"The chief says you'd better come down—it's risky."

"Did the chief say we must desert the building?"

"Well, not exactly those words, but he did say it was dangerous to stay up here another minute."

"Well, tell the chief when he orders

"That Is For the City Editor."

us to leave the building we'll obey. The Times hasn't dropped an issue since the day it started, and I hardly think it will do so now."

The fireman walked away and the city editor stopped at the speaking tube.

"Hello! Who is the pressroom?"

"All of us," came the response.

"Well, is everything all right? We want to run off the edition within two hours?"

"Everything running, sir; but it's terribly hot down here."

"Same up here, Jim; but I think they'll have it under control in an hour."

But one hour and then another passed and still the fire raged. The fire ladders had almost deserted the burning district, turning their efforts to the property that lay in the path of the blaze. The big reportorial room was also deserted. Not a pane had weathered the hot blasts that licked the sashes. Sparks swept through the jagged glass and ignited a heap of exchanges that lay on the spare desk. Dense smoke filled the room and hallway.

The pressroom was a hive of activity. A score of men busied around the iron monster whose roar would drown even the noise outside. The city editor superintended the work from a mailing table. And the red liquid in the little thermometer on the wall crawled past 110.

The last cylinder was in its place. Jim grasped the lever, but his hand relaxed and the poor fellow dropped to the floor.

"It's the heat," cried old Spense, springing down to the floor, "up to the air with him!"

Then it was the old man's hand that grasped the lever.

The great mass of wheels began to revolve; slowly at first, then increasing until the noise was deafening. A bank of moist papers began to collect at one end. The mighty press was speaking. One—two—three—five—ten floor; still the old man held the lever open.

"Ten thousand copies," the city editor chuckled, "ten thousand copies."

The men stared at him in admiration. Suddenly, without warning, the wall near the big dynamo began to crumble.

"My God! Run for your life—the wall's coming in!" they cried, scrambling up the iron stairway. But the city editor did not hear their warning; his eyes were riveted on the busy wheels.

We've never skipped an issue. Ten thousand copies; ten thousand!"

At daybreak the fire was under control. Its path had been checked by the sluggish river on one side, and a long stretch of boulevard on the other. It was now that the exhausted fire ladders took turns in devouring the sandwiches and steaming coffee that the nearby hotels sent down. The first light in the east brought thousands of spectators stumbling over the debris-strewn thoroughfare. A silhouette against the clear morning sky was the less monument to the fire fiend. It was the only structure standing within a block.

"Times Extra! All about the big fire, cries of the newboys went ringing over the smoking ruins. A man came out of the Times office with a long streamer of black crape. He began entwining it among the artistic work over the door.

"Why, who is that for?" inquired a reporter from the Star.

"That," and the man spoke with a tremor, "that is for the city editor."

NEW WOMAN IN WASHINGTON.

Wife of Sidkey Bey from Turkey Popular at Capital.

The ladies of the Turkish legation have not heretofore, taken any part in the social life of the capital. Mma. Ferrouh, wife of the recently recalled Turkish minister was an orthodox Mahometan woman, and received only a few women, wives of diplomats, and no men at all. She drove out once in a while veiled to the eyes, and shrouded in a long silken coat. Her only companion was her younger sister, who, by special permission of the sultan, accompanied her to this country. Neither woman would have been allowed to leave Turkey if they had any idea of adopting American customs. Ferrouh Bey's successor, Sheikh Bey, is reputed to be a widower. At all events he is unencumbered with womankind. The second secretary, Sidky Bey, has a wife, however, and a charming one, who promises to become extremely popular in the diplomatic set. She is an Armenian, and consequently a kind of Christian. She is tall and finely formed, with a mass of jet black hair and fine dark eyes. Mme. Sidky, as she is called, was educated in the Soutari college in Constantinople, and is a highly accomplished woman, speaking five languages and conversing extremely well in all of them. Her English is altogether perfect. Mme. Sidky is also a fine singer, her voice having been carefully cultivated in Italy, where she lived for several years. Mme. Sidky is delighted with the freedom of American society, and takes a naive delight in each new custom with which she becomes familiar. Her latest fad is the bicycle, and as she is probably the first woman of her nationality who has ever mounted a wheel, her daily appearance in the park is watched for with considerable interest. She is a graceful rider, and wears most distracting bicycling gowns.—Chicago Tribune.

A You'ful Authoress.

When a writer barely twenty years of age produces a book of sufficient merit to attract so conservative a publishing firm as the Harpers it is not too fulsome credit to say she has achieved a distinct success. This distinction has been earned by Miss Margaret Horton Potter with her third novel, "The House of DeMailey." Miss Potter is the daughter of O. W. Potter, the Chicago millionaire, and was born in Chicago in 1881. Her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Potter Daniels, has also published two successful books. Miss Potter has acquired most of her education through travel and reading. Miss Potter's last trip abroad included a considerable stay in a remote village in Sicily, there she secured much of the material woven into her last novel, the scenes of which are laid in the court of Louis XV. Miss Potter's first book was called "A Social Lion" and her second "Unanonized."

Business in South Africa.

Consul General Stowe of Cape Town predicts a business revival in South Africa after the close of the Boer war and advises American exporters to be on the lookout for their share of the new trade. He argues that the losses of the war must be replaced and that these losses cover almost everything men buy and sell, from farm implements at a household necessities to mining machinery and railway supplies. To corroborate his argument he cites the fact that American manufacturers of mining machinery have already received orders aggregating $5,000,000.

Mr. Stowe's rosy predictions should be accepted with some reservations. As regards one class of imports his view is correct, while as regards another class he probably is in error. It is true that the need for goods and commodities of all kinds will be widespread and urgent, but the cash with which to buy them will be lacking in many cases. The Boers are fighting desperately and have become impoverished. They will be sorely in need of clothes, food, implements, and all the necessities of life, but they are now too poor to do any large amount of buying for some years to come, that is unless they wipe out British authority. Then they can raise all the money they will need.

Mascagni to Tour United States

Pietro Mascagni, the celebrated Italian composer, who is coming to America for a concert season of eight weeks, has written several operas, but only one of these has taken its place beside the great compositions of the nineteenth century. This is "Cavalleria Rusticana." Mascagni, like Verdi, was born in the humblest of circumstances. His father was a baker of Leghorn, and in that city the future

PIETRO MASCAGNI. composer first looked upon day on December 7, 1863. He played on the piano that the musicians of the town sent him as a child to the conservatory at Milan. There he fought with his masters and turned his back upon them. Then he traveled with a cheap opera company and wrote the merest nothings in music. In 1888 a Milanese manager offered a prize for an opera. Mascagni wrote "Cavalleria" and sent it in. The jury at once awarded him the prize and his fortune and reputation were made at one stroke. In 1896 he became the director of the conservatory at Pesaro.

Settled All Accounts.

At a stag party recently given in Kansas City, a pretty and politic custom was introduced. There were just forty guests, and every one had a wife at home. Each on his departure (about 2 o'clock in the morning) received a handsome basket of sweets to take to his waiting partner and family. The outside box was of satin-wood, costing $8, and made a pleasant memento of the occasion. It is safe to say there were no curtain lectures in forty homes that night.

NEW WOMAN IN WASHINGTON.

Wife of Sidkey Bey from Turkey Popular at Capital.

The ladies of the Turkish legation have not heretofore, taken any part in the social life of the capital. Mma. Ferrouh, wife of the recently recalled Turkish minister was an orthodox Mahometan woman, and received only a few women, wives of diplomats, and no men at all. She drove out once in a while veiled to the eyes, and shrouded in a long silken coat. Her only companion was her younger sister, who, by special permission of the sultan, accompanied her to this country. Neither woman would have been allowed to leave Turkey if they had any idea of adopting American customs. Ferrouh Bey's successor, Sheikh Bey, is reputed to be a widower. At all events he is unencumbered with womankind. The second secretary, Sidky Bey, has a wife, however, and a charming one, who promises to become extremely popular in the diplomatic set. She is an Armenian, and consequently a kind of Christian. She is tall and finely formed, with a mass of jet black hair and fine dark eyes. Mme. Sidky, as she is called, was educated in the Soutari college in Constantinople, and is a highly accomplished woman, speaking five languages and conversing extremely well in all of them. Her English is altogether perfect. Mme. Sidky is also a fine singer, her voice having been carefully cultivated in Italy, where she lived for several years. Mme. Sidky is delighted with the freedom of American society, and takes a naive delight in each new custom with which she becomes familiar. Her latest fad is the bicycle, and as she is probably the first woman of her nationality who has ever mounted a wheel, her daily appearance in the park is watched for with considerable interest. She is a graceful rider, and wears most distracting bicycling gowns.—Chicago Tribune.

Lord Roberts as Hunter.

Lord Roberts is a fearless rider and usually well in at the death in a fox hunt, but his eminence as a hunting man depends on his splendid eye for country and his unrivaled knowledge of horseflesh and not on mere dexterity. Lord Roberts has had his share of "croppers," but, thanks to his light, steel-built frame, he has never come to any serious harm in the hunting field.

WINTER BILE

Causes bilious head-ache, back-ache and all kinds of body aches. Spring is here and you want to get this bile poison out of your system, easily, naturally and gently. CASCARETS are just what you want; they never grip or gripe, but will work gently while you sleep. Some people think the more violent the gripping the better the cure. Be careful—take care of your bowels—salts and pill poisons leave them weak, and even less able to keep up regular movements than before. The only safe, gentle cleaner for the bowels are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS. They don't force out the fecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action—buy them and try them. You will find in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently put in good order for the Spring and Summer work.

Commencement.

What pupil of our schools does not look forward for years to the time when they shall graduate from the High School? At the same time gaining an incentive to study carefully and learn well the lessons given in order that they may take well the part assigned them in the graduating exercises and be successful to a larger degree in life. That momentous time came last week to eighteen pupils of our High School, the largest number which has ever graduated at one time from our schools. The Cass Day exercises were held on Wednesday afternoon at the M. E. Church, and the graduates not only brought honor to themselves in the way they played their parts but showed careful training from their teachers. The musical part of the program was furnished by Misses Laura Wickware, Nellie Perkins and Mamie Whalen, and Messrs. Bender, Wellmeyer, Fritz and Seeley. The invocation was made by Rev. A. Torbet. Walter Schell, by reason of holding the second place in the class, had the honor of giving the salutatory. The class history, from which we have the privilege of quoting, was given by Herbert Karr. John Morrison, the president of the class, gave an able oration on the subject "Government." The class poem was given by Miss Edythe Marshall, and the class prophecy by Miss Mary Somerville. The first place in the class was held by Miss Jennie McLellan, giving her the privilege of being a valedictorian, which position she filled most honorably.

CLASS HISTORY.

The class of '01 numbers thirteen girls and five boys, their average age being seventeen. Only seven of the number have attended the Cass City Schools throughout the school period of their lives, and only five reside within the village limits. The president, prophet and historian learned their first lessons together at the Bird school.

John A. Morrison, the president, was born Nov. 5th 1880, and made rapid progress at the district school until seven years ago he entered the 2nd intermediate department of the Cass City Schools. He has ever since ranked among the highest in scholarship.

Oren G. Schenck was born July 15th, 1884, and has spent her entire school life here.

Mary V. Somerville was born on a farm near Cumber, April 3rd, 1881, but both parents were taken by death, and she went to reside with her grand mother and entered the Bird school, where she continued until 1891, then coming to Cass City.

Minnie P. Denning was born at Oxford, Dec. 5th, 1882, and entered the grammar department of our schools in 1895, and has made an excellent record.

Jennie C. McLellan, born Nov. 13th, 1882, came from Greenleaf to enter our High School in 1899, and by diligence and faithfulness attained the highest rank in the class.

Beryl M. Kegan was born March 11th, 1882, and began school life at the Dilman school, entering the high school in 1897.

Chauncey C. Bolton was born July 24th, 1883, attended the Wright school until he passed the eighth grade examination, and entered the High School in 1897.

Emma S. Burg, born Sept. 8th, 1883, known as the quietest member of the class, also spent her entire school life here.

Minnie M. Kinnaird, the youngest member, was born Dec. 18th, 1885, and also attended the Dilman school, until three years ago she entered the ninth grade of our schools.

Spencer S. Hunt, another of the seven to enjoy the entire school period at our school and was born Feb. 11th, 1882. He is much interested in athletics but it has not interfered with his work.

Bessie Miller was born in Elmwood, July of '82, and although of a quiet nature, has always been ready for recitation hour.

Margaret Miller, the tallest of the class, was born July 7th, 1884, entered the kindergarten at the age of five years and has progressed steadily ever since.

Agnes I. McIntyre was born in Ontario, Jan. 10th, 1882, has spent four years in our schools, and to the best of purposes.

Edythe A. Marshall was born at Morriston, Oct. August 1st, 1882, but began school life at the Winton school, entering the Cass City schools after passing the eighth grade examination.

Walter C. Schell, the salutatorian, was born at North Branch in 1880. His opportunities were limited, but he had an abundance of pluck, and so has won a good place in the race.

Mary M. Orr was born at Cass City March 24th, 1883, and her cheerful spirit will ever be remembered by the classmates.

Margaret G. Zinnecker was born at Cass City, July 13th, 1883, and had attended school here ever since reaching school age.

The class historian, Herbert S. Karr, has refrained from including himself in his sketch. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Karr, who lives just south of town.

The motto of the class is "To the Stars Through Difficulties."

The Opera House was well filled on Thursday evening to listen to the address by Hon. Washington Gardner before the Graduating class. The stage was neatly decorated with flowers and the class motto, "Ad Astra Per Aspera," and as the opening march was played by Miss Laura Wickware, the class marched in and took their places, accompanied by the speaker of the evening, Prof. D. H. Kyes, Revs. Morgan and Torbet, and the members of the Board of Education. The invocation was made by Rev. Morgan, after which Miss S. Mary Bootes, of Jackson, gave a vocal solo in a very pleasing manner. Prof. Kyes then introduced the speaker. He chose as his subject, "Does it pay to educate?" and took the affirmative side. He was not confined to the primary meaning of the word pay, but treated more largely the higher and nobler compensation. He assumed that there was no such thing as a humble toil—that it was necessary, that it was done right, and in the right spirit, although it was true that some employment was more menial than others. Utility should be the motive to self improvement. He who serves others first, serves self best in the end. If we do it right and in the right spirit it pays, for the girl who is not content with her living is no less noble or virtuous than her more fortunate sister. It will pay to put yourself under the very best training, no matter what honorable calling you may choose. Some think that it does not take much thought rather that there was no profession which required more talent. Thorough preparation was never more needed than in this day and age. Failure is not so much to be feared as it used to be, for the lack of application along the lines of aptitude. Next to the soul immortal, the mind is God's greatest gift to man, and about us on every hand are evidences of the power of the human brain. There is no need to pine for good company. It pays to reach the condition of mind and thought where we can revel in the best there is. In government what tribute has been paid to education? Mind rules the world in education. Mind rules the world in the universe. Thought is as vital a current to the mind as the blood is to the body. Education means more manhood in man and more womanhood in woman. There is compensation in education from a social point of view—the mingling of kindred spirits. Education is not all gotten out of textbooks. It is necessary that we have a thoroughly equipped teacher, mentally and morally, that they may kindle in the heart the desire to be and to do.

The speaker declared that he would rather be the discoverer of a bright mind in the schools of Cass City and help it to grow and expand, than to discover a star in the firmament. Mind shall live to be a power throughout the ages because one goes to high school he will make a first-class teacher, but other things being equal, give a man an education and he will show himself the master in every field and walk of life. The fact that every man and woman has a place in society was given attention in the address, and the assertion made that grass was not green compared with the class of young people who leave their homes, call on the county clerk and then on the nearest minister to use the short form marriage service, and consider themselves fit for life. Education may not always lead to the highest possible domestic achievement, but it will help and therefore pay. In the larger field of education, the opportunity to pay to educate, as the opportunity to have the advantage every time and everywhere over the uneducated. Instances were given to prove this assertion. If you are going to be a lawyer, be a lawyer, not a slyster. Seventy-two per cent of our congressmen are college graduates. The officers of the civil war who were most successful were graduates of the military academy at West Point. There are three things necessary to a young person to gain an education—a good health and you should husband your health as you would the good name of your mother, good average mental ability, and command of your own time and earnings. May this be a commencement day for a higher education. If you cannot go to college or university you can go to the library. Don't get away from the love and devotion to father and mother, and remember that you are also under obligation to your teacher, the school board, the state and the nation for our system of education.

At the conclusion of the address, Miss Bootes sang again very acceptably and Rev. A. Torbet made some very appropriate remarks to the class. The presentation of diplomas was made by Wm. J. Campbell, as representative of the Board of Education, and the large assembly dispersed showering good wishes upon the graduates.
