THE FOURTH.

AUSPICIOUSLY CELEBRATED AT CASS CITY.

One and all seem agreed that the celebration of the Fourth of July at Cass City, 1901, will be a day of glory and of good fortune. The weather could not have been better, being neither too hot nor too cold, and everyone seemed to have the weather came up to order. The evening, it cleared the atmosphere and all was pleasant again for the pyrotechnical display in the evening. The crowds came from every direction and by every means of transit, and the most conservative estimate that we entertained in the neighborhood of four thousand guests. The hotels, eating houses, lunch counters, etc., were taxed to their utmost to provide for the inner man, and yet everyone seemed to have the goods well supplied, even with the cup which intoxicates. The street decorations were much after the usual style, but were improved by tasty window displays wherein bunting predominated, and some of the merchants displayed attractive banners, while one ventured to use a "sandwich" man. An "X" of colored incandescents at the intersection of Main and Seegar Streets added beauty to the evening effect. The Ladies Circle of the G. A. R. was the only society to serve meals and their coffers were enriched by about $67. The manager and circus of Gollmar & Schuman was no small attraction. The parade, about eleven o'clock was very good, and the parade given in this place, and the same may well be said of the show under the canvas, which was largely patronized. The tents were pitched just east of McColl's ten cent barns on Sanilac Street, and those barns were called upon to stable over two hundred horses at one time, which may give a little idea of the crowd in town.

"THE UNITED STATES, HER HOPES AND HER PERILS."

(The following synopsis of the 4th of July oration at the Opera House, has been kindly furnished us by Rev. A. Torbet, brother of the orator.)
America is but another name for opportunity. Truly ours is a glorious country. She lies in the northern temperate zone, and in the belt of power where "westward the Star of Empire takes its way." By the sea and by the sea she was in her youth isolated from European and Asiatic people till she could develop, test and strengthen the bulwarks of her Christian civilization over which the starry banner of freedom might forever wave. Here in the wilderness we learned the worthlessness of a titled aristocracy and to reject the arrogant nonsense of the divine rights of kings, and with Burns to say,

"The rank is but the guinea stamp,
The man's the gold."
Moreover our isolation in our feeble youth rendered us invulnerable to foreign invasion in that day of slow and dangerous navigation, till our schools, free press and freedom of speech could develop in us a spirit of self-reliance, and common interests bound the sparsely settled colonies into a federal union, so that we now sing, "The Union Forever." Now that our ship of state has grown strong and great modern inventions and providential leadings have removed our isolation, so that our status of liberty is enlightening the world. And ours is a country of magnificent distances. The American at a dinner party in Paris was poetic in the right direction as he thought of our manifest destiny among the nations when he gave this toast "Here's to the United States bounded on the north by the aurora borealis, on the south by the procession of the equinoxes, on the east by principal angles, and on the west by the day of judgment." And our resource as a nation are immense, for nature has with a lavish hand laid in the lap of Columbia her abundant store. Who can foretell our possible future greatness when we consider the inventive genius of the American people, who have learned how to hitch the lightning to their machinery and harness the torrent of Niagara? Separation of church and state and the unrestrained exercise of civil and religious liberty has liberated the American mind, so that from platform, press and pulpit unfettered thought falls into the good soil of a liberty loving people. The strong governments of olden times were administered by hereditary rulers in the interest of personal luxury and the glory of their thrones; but what makes us more mighty and worthy of a more enduring existence is that we are the government, and while we are intelligent and righteous our public affairs will be administered by the people and for the good of all. Personal interests and liberty here are never disregarded except when they are opposed to the common interests of all. These principles promise the federation of the world and the millennium of holy writ when "nations shall learn war no more" and "every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree, none daring to molest." But on this anniversary of our natal day we proudly review the past and optimistically look into the future, we must not forget the evils of the living present nor shut our eyes to the perils which confront us. Since the day when it was said, "The serpent shall bruise thy heel," until the angel shall stand with one foot upon the land and one upon the sea and declare that time shall be no more, "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." Perhaps you would rather hear the eagle scream than to hear me talk of perils, but personally I want her to scream in her ears yet to come. She now looks proudly upon Bunker Hill, Yorktown, Fort Sumpter, Appomattox, Santiago and Manila, but it needs no prophet's ken to be able to announce that we shall still be called upon to wage relentless war against the foes of liberty and good government or consent that at the close of the twentieth century the eagle shall in shame cover its head and wail, "It might have been." One peril is the race problem which has an end meaning by reason of recent events which have made many millions of alien races take shelter under the folds of our flag. This problem cannot be settled on the field of battle, but must be settled at our schools, press, platform and pulpit, and it will not be settled until all these organs ally into humane and just laws and popularized righteousness. Another peril is the peril of our cities, with their massing of cosmopolitan and polyglot populations representing every grade of wealth and poverty, intelligence and ignorance, righteousness and wickedness. It calls for true patriotism, real heroism and Christian philanthropy. The saloon works against every human interest and stands as one of our greatest perils. The plain duty of the state is to put every such business under the ban of absolute prohibition. The last peril we name is prosperity. Lyman Beecher, in the early years of our history, said, "If in our haste to become rich and ambitious we neglect our civil and religious institutions, they will never overtake us, or only come up after the battle of liberty has been fought and lost, as spoils to grace the victory, and adding inexorable despotism to the penalty of our bondage." The self-destructive sin of ancient governments was that they were self-centered, not existing for the common good of the people. The peril in our unprecedented prosperity is not so much the self-centered government as it is a self-centered citizenry of wealth and that we turn from patriotic and philanthropic purposes, to mere money-getting, pleasure-seeking, or the empty bubble of earthly fame. Mere national ambition and mere personal ambition are equally perilous. We need human and divine enthusiasm for the good of humanity, and this true Christianity alone can give. O Columbia, "fear God and keep His commandments," and thy Star of Empire shall abide forever.

BASE BALL.

A very interesting and well played game of base ball between the Caro and Marlette nines, occupied the attention of lovers of that sport at the Driving Park during a part of the afternoon. The game was won by Caro, the score standing 6 to 2 in their favor.

There was an abundance of music throughout the day. Our own cornet band made a good appearance and did well. The show had two bands with them and the zobo band did their part in entertaining the crowd.

There were refreshment stands galore and the crowd seemed to divide their patronage pretty well. The merry go round at the corner of Main and Grant Streets, was always well loaded and kept the little folk happy. Lovers of the light fantastic were accommodated at the Town Hall and Opera House in the evening.

The display of fireworks was pronounced excellent and kept a large number on the street until well along in the evening.

Just before midnight the fire bell began ringing, but owing to the peculiarity of the alarm, many thought it to be a ruse. There was cause for an alarm, however, as fire had started at the rear of the Cass City Bank, and the fire was not extinguished until it was necessary to turn on the water at the hydrant.

As Seen by an Outsider.

The display of bunting was "par" the patriotism at the opera house indicated only 25 per cent. The writer was among the first to take a seat to listen to the address of the day; he was one of about forty out of the thousands who had respect enough for themselves as well as for the speaker to attend the oration of the occasion. The few present were treated to an intellectual feast. Every thought presented was full of mental food, yet there was none in Cass City to sing an opening piece. The Rev. Torbet, of Cass City, said the singers were dead but that Morgan was yet alive and would act as chairman. This so touched our Masonic humor that we looked over the audience to see who was there. E. B. Landon and a few others of the village had time to come in, in the rest of the small audience made up of the farming community, and we whispered to our self "is an affront to the speaker, but there must be some reason for it that we do not understand, for in days of the gone by, Cass City read the Declaration of Independence and sang "Our Country 'tis of thee" with a will on such time. Perhaps gold standard has made them vain. As soon as we went out we paid a visit to both hotels and found more people at either than saw fit to listen to one of the best thinkers that has been in Cass City for years. It was wrong good people—the sentiment you gave the man from Ohio. He must have felt hurt over the matter, any man would. I now want to let you know how we do at our house (and call it home if you wish) when we talk it over, and we whisper to our self "is an affront to the speaker, but there must be some reason for it that we do not understand, for in days of the gone by, Cass City read the Declaration of Independence and sang "Our Country 'tis of thee" with a will on such time. BILLY THE KINGFISHER

Visitors to the Academy of Science in Lincoln Park Chicago may see on the upper floor a stuffed kingfisher looking pathetically through a window at a pond beyond. Some time ago the bird flew against the plate glass of the window, while taking a flight inland from the lake, and was killed by the impact. It was picked up, taken inside, and its skin was prepared and mounted and then was given a place by the window at which it met its death.

There is an interesting story connected with this kingfisher. The bird, a male, reached Lincoln Park from the south March 11, 1895. The pond was still frozen light, and the fisher bird had a hard time getting enough to eat until a generous thaw came along and opened up a hole through the frozen surface. From that time on until late in the fall, when frost closed the pond again, the kingfisher's life was one continual feast. As his name implies he was a royal bird, and he loved a royal fare. All the summer through nothing went down the royal plate except gold fish.

"Billy" Kingfisher, as the park frequenters named the bird, was so thoroughly satisfied with his literally glittering lot in life that he made no attempt to secure a mate, and lived a jolly bachelor's existence all through the season. His favorite perch was on a telephone wire, which ran across the pond. From this he would drop down and take a gold fish from the water, at times directly in front of the bow of a boat filled with park visitors. He was unmolested and like all other birds when they feel they are among friends, he was destitute of fear.

"Billy" came back to Lincoln Park three successive springs. Once within a day or two of his arrival a great northern shrike or butcher bird, which had spent the winter in the park killing English sparrows, came and perched on a branch directly over the kingfisher's head and, looking down, eyed Billy curiously and half savagely. Of course, no shrike would dream of attempting to strike down quarry of the kingfisher's size, but Billy felt rather uncomfortable under the shrike's scrutiny, and so, turning his head, he shouted his rattling cry full in the impertinent shrike's face.

That cry is enough to frighten a harder creature than the butcher bird, and small blame to it for turning tail and scuttling off as though an army of men with shotguns was after it. Billy fairly laughed at the shrike's discomfiture, and a few moments later, in honor of the event caught a gold fish of such unusual size that he almost choked to death in trying to make it go the way of his throat. This kingfisher's untimely death against the plate glass window at the end of his third season's sojourn in the park was lamented by scores of friends.

Since the death of Billy many other kingfishers have come to Lincoln

Park. For a year or two past a pair of the birds has been about the upper pond all through the nesting season, but all attempts to locate their home, if they have one, have been bootless. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

"Behold the Days Come, Saith the Lord, that the Plowman Shall Overtake the Reaper"—Amos, ix., 13.—The Force of the Bible.

(Copyright, 1901, Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)
Washington, July 7.—Although Dr. Talmage was hindered from attending the great annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor society at Cincinnati, his sermons show him to be in sympathy with the great movement; text, Amos ix., 13. "Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper."

Unable because of other important duties to accept the invitation to take part in the great convention of Christian Endeavorers at Cincinnati, began last week, I preach a sermon of congratulation for all the members of that magnificent association, whether now gathered in vast assemblage or busy in their places of usefulness, transatlantic and cisatlantic, and as it is now harvest time in the fields and sickles are flashing in the gatherings of a great crop, I find mighty suggestiveness in my text.

It is a picture of a tropical climate, with a season so prosperous that the harvest reaches clear over to the planting time, and the swarthy husbandman, busy cutting the grain, almost feels the breath of the horses on his shoulders, the horses hitched to the plow, preparing for a new crop. "Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper." When is that? That is now. That is this day, when hardly have you done reaping one harvest of religious result than the plowman is getting ready for another.

In phraseology charged with all venom and abuse and caricature I know that infidels and agnostics have declared that Christianity has collapsed; that the Bible is an obsolete book; that the Christian church is on the retreat. I shall answer that wholesale charge today.

Growth of Christianity.
But now let us see whether the book is a last year's almanac. Let us see whether the church of God is a Bull Run retreat, muskets, canteens and haversacks strewn all the way. The great English historian Sharon Turner, a man of vast learning and great accuracy, not a clergyman, but an attorney as well as a historian, gives this overwhelming statistic in regard to Christianity and in regard to the number of Christians in the different centuries: In the first century, 500,000 Christians; in the second century, 2,000,000 Christians; in the third century, 5,000,000 Christians; in the fourth century, 10,000,000 Christians; in the fifth century, 15,000,000 Christians; in the sixth century, 20,000,000 Christians; in the seventh century, 24,000,000 Christians; in the eighth century, 30,000,000 Christians; in the ninth century, 40,000,000 Christians; in the tenth century, 50,000,000 Christians; in the eleventh century, 70,000,000 Christians; in the twelfth century, 80,000,000 Christians; in the thirteenth century, 75,000,000 Christians; in the fourteenth century, 80,000,000 Christians; in the fifteenth century, 100,000,000 Christians; in the sixteenth century, 125,000,000 Christians; in the seventeenth century, 155,000,000 Christians; in the eighteenth century, 200,000,000 Christians—a decadence, as you observe, in only one century, and now, in the fourth century of the Christian era, we are up in the following centuries, while it is the usual computation that there were at the close of the nineteenth century 470,000,000 Christians, making us to believe that before this century is closed the millennium will have started its boom and lifted its hosanna.

Poor Christianity! What a pity it has no friends! How lonesome it must be! Who will take it out of the poorhouse? Poor Christianity! Four hundred millions in one century. In a few weeks of this year 2,500,000 copies of the New Testament distributed. Why, the earth is like an old castle with 20 gates and a park of artillery ready to thunder down every gate. See how heathendom is being surrounded and honeycombed and attacked by this all conquering gospel. At the beginning of the nineteenth century 150 missionaries; at the close of that century 84,000 missionaries and native helpers and evangelists. At the beginning of the nineteenth century there were only 50,000 converts. Now there are over 1,000,000 converts from heathendom.

The Force of the Bible.
Suppose the congress of the United States should pass a law that there should be no more Bibles printed in America and no Bibles read. If there are 60,000,000 grown people in the United States, there would be 60,000,000 people in an army to put down such a law and defend their right to read the Bible. But suppose the congress of the United States should make a law against the reading or the publication of any other book, how many people would go out in such a crusade? Could you get 60,000,000 people to go out and risk their lives in defense of Shakespeare's tragedies or Gladstone's tracts or Macaulay's "History of England"? You know that there are a thousand men who would die in the defense of this book where there is not more than one man who would die in the defense of any other book. You try to insult my common sense by telling me the Bible is fading out from the world. It is the most popular book of the centuries.

How do I know it? I know it just as I know in regard to other books. How many volumes of that history are published? Well, you say 5,000. How many copies of another book are published? A hundred thousand. Which is the more popular? Why the one that has the hundred thousand circulation. And if this book has more copies abroad in the world, if there are five times as many Bibles abroad as any other book among civilized nations, does not that show you that the most popular book on earth today is the word of God?

"Oh," say people, "the church is a collection of hypocrites, and it is losing its power, and it is fading out from the world." Is it? A bishop of the Methodist church told me that that denomination averages two new churches every day. In other words, they build 730 churches in that denomination in a year, and there are at least 1,500 new Christian churches built in America every year. Does that look as though the Christian church were fading out, as though it were a defunct institution? What stands nearest to the hearts of the American people today? I do not care in what village or what city or what neighborhood you go. What is it? Is it the postoffice? Is it the hotel? Is it the lecturing hall? Ah, you know it is not! You know that that which stands near to the hearts of the American people is the Christian church.

You may talk about the church being a collection of hypocrites, but when the diphtheria sweeps your children off whom do you send for? The postmaster, the attorney-general, the hotelkeeper, alderman? No, you send for a minister of this Bible religion. And if you have not a room in your house for the obsequies, what building do you solicit? Do you say, "Give me the finest room in the hotel?" Do you say, "Give me that theater?" Do you say, "Give me that public building where I can lay my dead for a little while we say a prayer over it?" No, you say, "Give us the house of God." And if there is a song to be sung at the obsequies, what do you want? What does anybody want? The "Marsellina Hymn"? "God Save the Queen"? Our own grand national air? No. They want the hymn with which they sang their old Christian mother into her last sleep, or they want the Sabbath school hymn which their little girl sang the last Sabbath afternoon she was out before she got that awful sickness which broke your heart. I see you appeal to your common sense. You know the most endearing institution on earth, the most popular institution on earth today is the church of the Lord Jesus Christ. A man is a fool that does not recognize it.

The infidels say: "There is great liberty now for infidels; freedom of platform. Infidelity shows its power from the fact that it is everywhere tolerated, and it can say what it will." Why, my friends, infidelity is not half so blatant in our day as it was in the days of our fathers. Do you know that in the days of our fathers there were pronounced infidels in public authority, and they could get any political position? Let a man today declare himself antagonistic to the Christ religion and what city wants him for mayor; what state wants him for governor; what nation wants him for president or for king? Let a man openly proclaim himself the enemy of our glorious Christianity, and he cannot get a majority of votes in any state, in any city, in any country, in any ward of America.

What Christianity Does.
A distinguished infidel once riding in a rail car in Illinois said: "What has Christianity ever done?" An old Christian woman said: "It has done one good thing anyhow. It has kept an infidel from being governor of Illinois." As I stood in the side room of the opera house of Peoria, Ill., a prominent gentleman of that city said: "I can tell you the secret of that tremendous bitterness against Christianity." Said I, "What is it?" "Why," said he, "in this very house there was a great convention to nominate a governor, and there were three or four candidates. At the same time there was in a church in this city a Sabbath school convention, and it happened that one of the men who was in the Sabbath school convention was also a member of the political convention. In the political convention on the name highest on the roll at that time and about to be nominated was the name of the great champion infidel. There was an adjournment between ballots, and in the afternoon, when the nomination were being made, a plain farmer got up and said: 'Mr. Chairman, that nomination must not be made. The Sunday schools of Illinois will defeat him.' That ended all prospect of his nomination." "The Christian religion is mightier today than it ever was. Do you think that such a scene could be enacted now as was enacted in the days of Robespierre, when a shameless woman was elevated to the dignity of a goddess and carried in a golden chair to a cathedral where incense was burned to her and people bowed down before her as a divine being, she taking the place of the Bible and God, while in the corridors of the cathedral were enacted such scenes of drunkenness and debauchery as had never been witnessed? Do you think such a thing could possibly occur in Christendom today? No. The police of Washington, or of New York, or of Paris would swoop upon it. I know infidelity makes a good deal of talk in our day. One infidel can make great excitement, but I can tell you on what principle it is. It is on the principle that if a man jumps overboard from an ocean liner, he makes more excitement than all the 500 who stay on board. But the fact that he jumps overboard does not stop the ship. Does that wreck the 500 passengers? It makes great excitement when a man jumps from the lecturing platform or from the pulpit into infidelity, but does that keep the Bible or the church from carrying millions of

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the president, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the university, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course, intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years according to the ability of the student. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under thirteen, is a unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-seven years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

NO REST IN AMERICA.

Machinery Here Is Not Permitted to Last Until Out-of-Date.
An experienced railroad man, writes Victor Smith in the New York Press, has the following to say regarding English railway methods: "It is singular, to say the least, that the English railway managers have just discovered that American locomotives consume more coal, use more oil and require more repairs than those of their home make. If this is a fact it could have been demonstrated in a trial lasting a month. Over here we wouldn't accept an English locomotive as a gift. It would be regarded as an antiquated monstrosity. I fear the British are beginning to feel a trifle sore over America's commercial invasion of all the markets of the world, and the Midland railway people are trying to knock us on our locomotives." Continuing, the official said: "The chairman of the Midland made one impressive statement, namely: 'We tend our engines carefully, rest them, clean them and do everything to make them last.' In this country we rest nothing, not even ourselves. Bishop Cumberland's familiar saying, 'It is better to hold out than to rust out,' has taken hold of us, body, soul and breeches. The Englishman rests his hats, shoes, trousers, coats, horses, carriages and whatever else he may own, animate and inanimate. A few advanced Americans have recently adopted the practice of 'treating' their shoes for a rest, and the result is longer wear without losing shape. Some of our locomotives are never allowed to cool off from one year's end to another. Little wonder that they do not live to be classed among the antiques."

America's Triumphs.
Financial Capital No Longer London, but New York.
The financial capital is no longer in London—it is in New York. No nation ever had in its treasury so much gold as the United States has now in its vaults. Our exports have recently broken all records and they are marvelous in their totals and variety. For a time it was only food that we sent to other parts of the earth—now American machinery and manufactures are carrying consternation into the stronghold of Europe's industries. There is something more, it is not mere luck that has won it. It is American excellence. Take an indirect illustration. Germany pays about $250 a year for each of her soldiers. Great Britain pays about twice as much. No other nation approaches those figures—except one. The United States pays an average of $1,000 a year. This means that the man is better paid, better fed, better kept. The results show. In the practical comparisons in China, where the troops of the nations came together in actual work, great honors came to the United States.

There was a time when the other nations were prone to laugh at our ways and to scoff at our pretensions, but that time has passed. We now possess the greatest country on earth; we have more railroads than the rest of the world; and we have the money. As to politics—well, what other executive except the czar could take a ten-thousand mile journey without getting outside his own balliwick.—Saturday Post.

Reward of One Penny.
"Honesty is its own reward," is the new shape in which the proverb presents itself to Harry Lee, a mason living at 67 Lower Thorn Street, Reading. Recently picking up a purse in the street containing £320 in notes and gold, he was going to take it to the police station, when work was over, but about half an hour afterwards was addressed by a man understood to be a commercial traveler from London, who proved himself to be the owner. He handed over the purse, the man gave him a coin, and was far away before the other could realize that he had been rewarded for his find with—one penny.

The Wearing of the Green.

Man—that is to say, any member of the male sex who wishes to appear as a well dressed man—must wear green this year if he wishes to aspire to the enviable position of "one who always does the correct thing." It is a hard position to fill, and by the dictates of fashion this year it is more difficult than ever before. For green is a very painful color to wear and a still more difficult color to wear becomingly.

The light summer suitings this year all have in them a slight shade of green, and although it is right to buy and wear them, yet they are a trap to catch the feet of the unwary. For it must be remembered that few colors will harmonize with green. Let the man who wishes to be in style and to wear green look regretfully at all his lovely negligee shirts laid away in his drawers. Let him bid good-bye to his favorite ties, for he can never use them while he wears his green suit. It does not need to be the shade of green which a certain Chicago alderman rendered famous by using as a dress suit, but greenish it certainly must be, says the Chicago Chronicle.

Tailors Are in Despair.
Tailors are in despair over the outcome. Some of those whose custom lies among Chicago business and professional men refuse to handle the goods, at all events agree only to carry such lines as have the green shade greatly subdued. The reason they give for their animadversion to the green is that their customers, while satisfied with the suit in itself, are never satisfied after they are wearing it and discover that only a certain shade of tie can be worn with it and that the colored shirt is, save in a few tints, an impossibility.

Of course the ultrafashionable tailors are not in any such quandary. They know very well that whatever fashion decrees their patrons will gladly wear, whether it be of a nature to cause a laugh on every street corner or no. This is the reason that so many curious contrasts are observed. There is a large class of men who go to the ultrafashionable tailors for their suits and who yet are sufficiently careless to wear with those suits the appurtenances provided by a down town haberdasher.

Military Coat Worn.
When in addition to this difficulty is observed the fact that most men are wearing a suit which has never yet appeared on the fashion plates and which it is confidently asserted will never so appear, the puzzle to the careful tailor is still more apparent.

"Ecco Sam" Ba-h-Houses.
Few persons know that the United States government derives an income from some of the largest bathing establishments in America, if not in the world. The hot springs of Arkansas, which have been a resort for invalids for many years, are owned by Uncle Sam, and he exacts a payment of $30 a tub for the use of the medicated water. As there are 534 tubs, the spring brings him an income from that source of $16,020 a year. The various hot springs, which are said to number seventy-three, issuing from the west side and the base of Hot Springs mountain, and which now are obscured from view, have been covered in many instances from several different issues into one outlet by development work done on the reservation under the supervision of the various superintendents. These springs vary in temperature, the hottest being 151 degrees. The flow of practically all of them is constant. The basis of estimate of the maximum supply for each tub daily is 1,000 gallons, which, at present, if used to the full capacity, would require 534,000 gallons. A conservative estimate of the supply at present under control is 750,000 gallons daily. In addition to the selling of waters to hotels and sanitariums, the government maintains a free bathhouse for the indigent.

Missouri's newspapers are making much over the fact that the city treasurer of Centuria, in that state, is named "Willie" Settle.

What the Cleric Has Done.
The wheel has done more in securing good roads legislation and in awakening a general interest in this important movement than all other agencies combined, and improved highways constitute one of the most powerful magnets for drawing home-seekers away from the cities and towns out among the meadows, streams and fields of the open country. Therefore let credit be given to whom credit is due. The trolley and the automobile are playing an important part in the movement countryward, but they are a later comers in the field. The wheel leads the procession; it is the pioneer.—Leslie's Weekly.

Women Cannot, Boss Each Other.
The old theory that woman is man's helper seems incorrigibly well founded, says E. S. Mart in McClure's Magazine. If the situation isn't satisfactory to her there is no help for it, for the conditions it came out of seem to be eternal. Women may vote. They cannot, boss each other. The chief Burgess (mayor) of Pottsville, Pa., went out the other day with an ax and chopped down the circus bill boards that had been erected about the town. A great rumpus has been raised in consequence. The boards had been erected in front of certain properties by the consent of the owners, who doubtless received some compensation, as it is customary to give free tickets to the show in consideration of such favors. There is an ordinance against such bill boards, and it was under the authority of this that the Burgess' action was taken.

Attempted Suicide.

On Wednesday of last week, Henry Jackson, one of the best known farmers of Greenleaf township, living one mile north of Holbrook, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor nearly severing the windpipe. Dr. Charlton of Greenleaf was called and attended the injured man so that recovery is quite likely, but from his actions it is feared he will repeat the attempt at first opportunity. A pair of scissors were found secreted by him since the wound was sewed up.

The officers of the Kingston Dairy Co. feel justly proud of the record they have made in the operation of the creamery this season thus far, notwithstanding the limited patronage given. To illustrate it we may be allowed to state that the Marlette creamery is offering to pay outright for the next two months 50 c. per cent. For the month of May the patrons of the Kingston creamery received at the rates of 53c. and appearances indicate that the month of June will make even a little better showing. This latter is simply mentioned to show that the officers are doing everything possible to make the creamery give satisfaction and this comparison should certainly satisfy anyone that they are doing as well by their patrons as any creamery around.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by use of powders, acid gases and inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that they make have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments only retard the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a remedy which when faithfully used, not only relieves, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD IN THE HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

FACTS FOR SICK PEOPLE.

MAY 11, 1901.
I was suffering from general paralysis as a result of diphtheria. I had treated with the best physicians of Tuscola Co., with no benefit; in fact I grew worse under their treatment. I was entirely incapacitated for work, when I consulted the Detroit Clinic at Vassar, on March 13th, two months' treatment has completely cured me, and I am able to do my work. I advise any one suffering from chronic diseases to consult this clinic.

(Signed) JOHN F. ALLEN,
Vassar, Mich.

Mrs. Grant McConnell, of Cass City, Mich., had a large growth of a cancerous nature growing on the inside of the mouth. It had been removed several times, but always returned. She had it removed by the surgeon of the Detroit Clinic, and without the use of a knife and with no pain, it was permanently removed in less than 30 days.

I have been growing deaf in both ears for the past six years as a result of La Grippe. I consulted the Detroit Clinic during their monthly visit to Cass City in January, and one month's treatment restored my hearing so that I could hear a watch tick five inches from my ear.

(Signed) JOHN HORNER,
Novesta, Mich.

For 10 years I was a terrible sufferer from chronic rheumatism. I did everything possible, but found no relief, until I commenced treatment with the Detroit Clinic. Three months of their treatment cured me.

(Signed) C. C. JONES,
Rochester, Mich.

Mrs. L. C. Smith, of Detroit, was cured of Epilepsy (or fits) after having had this terrible disease for seven years.

The great success with which the Clinic treats all kinds of diseases is the wonder and admiration of all scientific men. The specialist in charge is noted for his skill, and the care with which every case is treated. No case that is not curable will be treated, but curable cases are treated with the latest scientific methods, and in no case does it interfere with the work of the patient.

Remember, it costs you nothing to consult this specialist, such an opportunity does not offer itself very often to people outside of large cities, and our citizens will certainly do well to take advantage of this one. It is best to consult the specialist personally, but question blanks will be sent on application, and all communications will receive prompt attention, if they are addressed to

EX-GOVERNOR IN THE TOMB.

The Procession to the Cemetery Miles in Length.

60,000 VIEWED THE REMAINS.

Madden Rules Against the Newspapers—The Various Happenings About the State Briefly Chronoled for Ready Reading.

The Dead Ex-Governor. The train which brought the remains of ex-Governor Pingree to Detroit Friday morning was met by Detroit Post, of which the deceased was a member. In honor of their dead 10,000 persons stood along Jefferson avenue from Woodward avenue to Fourth street—waiting. On the coat laps of many of the men were rosettes of black, their centers little medallions of Gov. Pingree. They waited in silence, and that silence was the fine sign of their mourning.

The casket was placed on a gun carriage and escorted to the city hall by the post, and placed on a raised platform, where the distinguished dead lay in state till late in the evening, thousands passing through the building to lay upon the face of the ex-governor. In the evening the remains were taken to the family residence on Woodward ave., where the funeral service took place at 2 p. m., the officiating clergyman being Revs. Nehemiah Boynton and Reed Stuart.

The procession was the largest that ever did honor to the dead in the state of Michigan, so large that at the gates of the cemetery most of the organizations had to disband to gain entrance before the final service should be concluded. At the vault the service of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Masons was given, terminating with a volley by the soldiers and "taps" sounded on the bugle.

The Grand Rapids Bribery. The trial of Gerrit H. Albers, indicted by the grand jury for alleged bribery of Grand Rapids officials in connection with the water works, was booked to start Monday but the superior court dismissed the jury for a month and thus postponed the trial. In the circuit court arguments to quash indictments against Salisbury, MacLeod, McGarry and Taylor were postponed to July 12 by agreement between the prosecutor and attorneys for the defense.

Mr. Madden recently issued an order that any paper offering premiums to increase its circulation shall be debarred from second-class privileges, as shall any paper which shall print as many copies for free distribution as for regular subscribers. This, it was declared yesterday, is in direct accordance with the wishes of the great express companies.

Horribly Mangled. George Marlborough, a blacksmith living in Greenfield township, was run over Sunday night by car No. 20 of the Northwestern road, in front of his home. His body was carried about four rods before the car could be brought to a stop and was frightfully mangled. Motorman Rich says that the first he saw of Marlborough, he was lying face upward across the track in the moonlight. He put on the air brake at once, but could not stop in time. All those who were with Marlborough during the evening state that, while he had taken a glass or two of beer, he was not intoxicated. He had no reason to wish to commit suicide. Marlborough was 35 years of age, and made his home with his father.

Saved the Money. Mrs. Daniel Kelley, wife of a farmer living near Clayton, while alone at the house discovered two men approaching from the barn, with masks over their faces. Suspecting something wrong, she rushed to her room, securing the money in the house and hiding it. The robbers entered her room, seized her, bound her hand and foot, and demanded the money. She claimed they had none, and after hunting the house left, securing nothing but a little change. Mrs. Kelley was found two hours later by her husband.

The capital stock of the corporation has been increased to $1,000,000.

Although the railroads of the state have until August 1 for the payment of their specific taxes, quite a number have already paid. The following railroads paid their taxes Monday: Chicago & Northwestern, $89,000; Mineral Range, $11,924; Hancock & Calumet, $8,884; Manistee & Northwestern, $8,914; Manistee & Northwestern, $2,914.

After making a careful canvass of the northwest territory and preparing conservative estimates upon the conditions found throughout the grain belt, the traffic officials of the St. Paul, the Northwestern, the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Burlington systems, are agreed that the wheat crop of this region for 1901 will break all previous records.

The earnings of Michigan railroads during the month of May were $3,557,130.35, as compared with $3,935,525.55 for the corresponding month last year. The increase for the month being $253,528.28. For the five months ending May 31 the total earnings were $16,059,228.33, an increase of $1,044,370.92 for the period, as compared with the corresponding period of 1900.

George Davenport, ex-governor and state senator, was killed by lightning on his farm, a mile and a half north of Saginaw, Tuesday morning. He arose during the storm to close the barn doors, and was found dead in the morning near the building. He was very prominent here, was 52 years old and had lived in Saginaw all his life. He leaves a widow and two daughters.

There is great mystery surrounding the finding of the decomposed remains of an unknown man in an obscure locality at Ludwigs' Pier, five miles south of South Haven, Sunday afternoon. A bottle labeled poison was found near the body, which must have lain in the same place six months, although only a few rods from the residences of farmers. The body was found by boys picking flowers.

A GREAT STRIKE ORDERED.

The Sheet Steel Workers and The Mammoth Trust.

A BATTLE ROYAL IS NOW ON.

Not a Strike For Wages but for Unionism—Which will Bow to The Inevitable?—The Boast of the Amalgamated Association—Russia will Retaliate.

The Great Strike. As a result of the refusal of the representatives of the American Steel Sheet Co. and the American Steel Sheet Co., subsidiary companies of the Great United States Steel Corporation, to sign the workers' new scale at Saturday's conference in Pittsburgh, city leaders were sent out from the national headquarters of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers Sunday and Monday declaring a strike at all the plants of the two combines. The great strike is now on, but it will be several days before its actual extent is known. At the outset, however, over 35,000 men will be involved. It will be after the 1st of August, perhaps, when the combine makes a serious attempt to start up in full, that the real battle will begin if no settlement has been reached at that time.

The annual count of the coin, amounting to $25,000,000, began Friday. Saturday six bags were found to be missing from the cashier's vault. As the cashier's books tallied with those of the other departments the officers were forced to the conclusion that somebody acquainted with the inside affairs of the mint had taken the money. Director of the Mint Roberts says: "There appears to be no escape from the conclusion that some one or more persons employed in the mint has been faithless to their trust."

The quartermaster's division of the office of the auditor of the war department closed its record of work done during the fiscal year, which ended last Saturday with a showing greater in volume by almost 50 per cent than that of any previous year in the history of the treasury. This division examines, re-computes and tabulates all the accounts and expenditures of all quartermasters, commissary and engineer officers of the army.

The grand total of expenditures thus audited is $120,061,378, or over 23 1/2 per cent of the entire cost of the government. It is divided as follows: Quartermaster's disbursements, $73,000,000; commissaries, $29,000,000; engineers, $18,000,000. The total number of accounts settled was 16,481, involving the examination in detail of 2,340,000 vouchers.

At the special meeting of the supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias, in Chicago, it is understood a report will be made exposing persons alleged to have been implicated in a deal by which a former Illinois insurance commissioner received from a manager of the Knights of Pythias endowment rank $3,500 for a "cleverly done card" and a letter of recommendation for the rank.

The story is that the $3,500 bought a report showing that an investigation had been made and that the endowment rank's affairs had been found satisfactory. Later the Illinois and Connecticut insurance authorities began an investigation of the rank. This is not yet finished.

A marked increase in the trade of the Philippine islands during the calendar year of 1900 over the commerce of the previous year, is set out in a statement made by the division of insular affairs of the war department. The value of imported merchandise, gold and silver, for 1900, is set down at $27,765,100. This, according to the war department's statement, was the greatest importation for any single year in the history of the archipelago.

In 1899 the imports amounted to $29,440,074 in value, thus showing an increase of nearly 30 per cent in favor of 1900.

Disastrous hurricanes on the coast of New South Wales have paralyzed shipping. Two vessels have been wrecked and ten persons drowned.

The budget presented by the Newfoundland minister of finance shows a surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, of $78,000 and for the year ending June 30, 1900, of $258,000.

A South African war medal has been awarded A. M. Blum, an American citizen, in recognition of services rendered by him as driver of the engine connected with the water supply of Ladysmith during the siege of that town.

Accorded to Vatican circles one of the principal subjects of the recent conference between Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Chappelle and Cardinal Rampolla was how to devise means for counteracting the Spanish sympathies of the priests in Cuba and the Philippines.

Lord Chas. Beresford, of the English navy, although entitled to retain the Mediterranean command for two years more, is anxious to be relieved of it next February, it is said, because he desires a free hand in order to criticize the government's naval and military administration.

THE SOCIAL CONFERENCE.

The National Social and Political Conference that held sessions in Detroit passed resolutions eulogizing the late ex-Governor Pingree, expressing sympathy with Tom L. Johnson in the loss of his brother, and adopted this platform:

- 1. Direct legislation and proportion of representation.
2. Direct nominations and the popular recall.
3. Equal suffrage on the same conditions to all, regardless of sex or color.
4. Honest elections, free from partisan manipulation or control.
5. Direct taxation through progressive, land value, income and inheritance taxes.
6. Public ownership of telegraphs, telephones, railroads, and all other public utilities.
7. The eight-hour day.
8. The sole control by the people through their government, of their medium of exchange.
9. Home rule for cities, and local option in taxation.
10. Postal savings banks, state insurance and workmen's compensation for industrial accidents.
11. Opposition to militarism and complete advocacy of international arbitration.
12. We demand for others the same rights and liberties we ask for ourselves.

A Great Steal. Six bags of gold, each containing $5,000 in $20 gold pieces, had disappeared from the San Francisco mint and no trace of the thief has been discovered, although Supt. Leach and his force, assisted by Director of the Mint Roberts and his staff of experts, have been at work on the mystery since June 29.

Gradually the plans of President T. J. Shaffer of the Amalgamated association are being uncovered. Since the trouble in the W. Devozer Wood mills in McCookport a few months ago, the Amalgamated association has been actively engaged in breaking up the present arrangement of the combine in operating part of their plants with non-union men and the others with union men.

The strike now threatened in the bar mills, following so closely upon that of the sheet mills, has therefore a most serious aspect and may spread to enormous proportions. Indeed, in some circles, it is predicted that the gigantic struggle that has been talked of since the organization of the United States Steel Corporation was formed is on the eve of breaking out, and that it is coming much sooner than many believed was probable.

The situation the greater corporation is placed in practically frees the independent plants from complicity in the battle. The fight is not for wages, but for organization. Either the Amalgamated association must bow to the will of the greater combine or else the greater combine will have to give up its non-union mills.

When Russia's Gage's action in imposing countervailing duties on Russian sugar exported to the United States was followed by so disproportionate reprisal as the imposition of 30 per cent increased duties on the most important American importations there, the importers of American tools and machinery seemed stunned. They were disposed to support Russia on the least for the least.

Shaffer Retires. On Sunday two important events occurred at the government army post in San Francisco, the retirement of Maj.-Gen. W. R. Shaffer and the mustering out of four volunteer regiments. Gen. Shaffer went on his vacation, but the command of the department of California to Maj.-Gen. S. B. M. Young.

Porto Rico Free Trade. In a joint session lasting three hours, the Porto Rican assembly unanimously passed a free trade resolution. The assembly hall was crowded with people and cheers greeted the announcement that Gov. Allen had signed the resolution. The action of the assembly is considered to be the most important taken by it since the inauguration of Gov. Allen.

United States Senator James H. Kyle, of Aberdeen, S. D., died on Monday after a brief illness.

General Freight Agent Crosby, of the Burlington road, says the wheat harvest ended with a yield of 75,000,000 bushels.

Albert L. Johnson, of Cleveland, O., brother of Mayor Thomas L. Johnson, died Tuesday night at Fort Hamilton, a Brooklyn suburb.

Train No. 3 on the Great Northern Railway was held up by three masked men at Wagner Station, Mont., and the express safe robbed of $83,000.

GETTING OUT OF CHINA.

The city of Tien Tsin is now more crowded than ever. Officers of all nations are en route for their homes and the hotels are placing cots in every available place. Apartments have been prepared at the university of Tien Tsin for Prince Chun and his suite of forty, who will remain there for three days before leaving for Germany to make formal apology for the murder of Baron von Ketteler. Mr. Denby, who, when the foreign troops arrived, was appointed by the China Merchants' Company to protect their property, says the greater part of the company's property consisted of rice, which was afterward distributed under orders from the British and American generals to assist those in need. It is pointed out that the company stored three boxes of valuables with the chartered bank before the troubles began and did not withdraw these until October and that consequently it is quite improbable any jewels were left to be looted. Moreover, the palace was thoroughly gone through by local looters before the allied forces arrived. It would be legally impossible to hold any portion of the relieving force responsible for anything but the rice and coal.

The nine hundred and thirty Boer prisoners who arrived at Hamilton, Bermuda, on the British transport Armenia, have been moved into the camps prepared for them on Darrell's and Tucker's islands. These Boers are part of the force of Gen. Cronje, and were captured at Paardeberg; they include several boys of 8 or 10 years, who carried ammunition to their fathers when the latter were in the trenches; among the prisoners were also two Boers so old that they crawled on all fours to the transport's gangway. These two old men aver they never saw salt water before reaching Cape Town. The prisoners are pleased with Bermuda and enjoy the sea bathing. The gunboats Medina and Medway are guarding Darrell's and Tucker's islands.

Philippine Civil Government. With the administration of the oath of office to Wm. H. Taft as civil governor of the Philippines by Chief Justice Arellano, civil government was inaugurated in the islands. The ceremony was held on a temporary tribune on Plaza de Armas.

A feature of the inaugural address of Gov. Taft was the announcement that on September 1, 1901, the commission would be increased by the appointment of three native members, Dr. Wardo Detavera, Donato Legarda and Jose Linares. The closing of the celebration of the Fourth of July was a reception in honor of Gen. MacArthur at the residence of the civil governor, Messadems Taft and Chaffee assisted in receiving the guests.

Carnegie Gift. Andrew Carnegie writes from Scotland that he will contribute toward the erection of a new public library building in Detroit a sum of $750,000. This gift is to be in accordance with terms entered into between Mr. Carnegie and representatives of the Detroit library commission through extensive correspondence that has been carried on for some time.

There is much talk among the ultra-Pretestants in England about the use of income in the coronation service next year, says the Tribune's London correspondent. It is assumed by the clergy, both high and low, that the ritual of coronation at Westminster Abbey will be accompanied by a cloud of incense.

Twelve men were killed and a boy was probably fatally injured Sunday afternoon by a single bolt of lightning. The victims were fishing in Lake Michigan at the foot of Montrose boulevard, on the north side, Chicago. The fatal bolt struck the pier where they were seated and all were thrown into the lake. Only the boy has been so far recovered. The storm broke the hot wave.

CHAPTER II. The Terrible Ulin.

In fear and trembling sat Ulin, awaiting the coming of the terrible robber. Half an hour passed, and she had not been troubled; but during that time she had witnessed transactions which were not calculated to allay her fears. She had seen over fifty of the king's guards bound and led away, and she saw that a number of the robbers had been placed on guard at the entrance of the rocky passage. They were wild, savage looking men, appearing to her fear-wrought vision like evil spirits she had heard her old black nurse tell about.

At length the sound of feet was heard near at hand, and very shortly the door of the apartment was opened, and a black slave entered. It was a woman, and one of those whom the king had left.

"Good lady," she said, trembling as she spoke, "the hour of doom has come. I am a slave to a new master, and that master has sent me to tell you that he wishes to see you."

"Who is he?" asked Ulin.

"I don't know, but I think he is Julian, the Scourge. His look is terrible. Upon his brow sits the thunder, and in his eye flashes the forked lightning."

"Will he come up here?"

"He said so."

"I have no power to prevent him. Tell him I am weak and defenceless, and at his mercy."

The slave bowed and withdrew, and in a little while some one else came. A heavy footfall sounded without, and the door was slowly and carefully opened.

But, who is this? What spirit has thus appeared in the palace? A man had entered the chamber alone. He was youthful—not more than three or four-and-twenty—with kindly look, and of noble bearing. He was not larger of frame than common men, but the perfect symmetry of form, the exact correspondence of all the parts; the delicate rounding of the graceful outline, and the filling up of all points where sources of strength could be deposited, gave token of a power which might lead the careless observer to pronounce him a giant.

He gazed upon the beautiful maiden for some moments without speaking, seeming to drink in a new inspiration from her loveliness, as the student of nature does when some new and unexpected scene of grandeur bursts upon his vision.

"Fair lady," he said in softest tones, "permit me to hope that this intrusion may be pardoned. I would not give you pain, and if you have been alarmed, be assured that you have cause to fear no more. Tell me how I may serve you."

He approached her as he spoke, and she did not start, realizing what she did, arose and gave him her hand. If he had gazed upon her with admiration, her own feelings had not been entirely different. Her woman's instinct told her that here was a man whom she could trust; and her woman's heart beat with an emotion entirely new and strange.

"Noble sir," she said, meeting his gaze with the strength of perfect trustfulness, "Heaven has sent you to save me from the dread man who has made his way to this place. If you have the power to do it, you will lead me to bless you forevermore."

"Of what man do you speak?" asked the stranger, still holding her hands.

"I speak of him who is known as the Scourge of Damascus—of the terrible Julian."

The man was silent for a few moments, but he did not withdraw his gaze from the maiden's face.

"Sweet lady," he at length said, speaking very lowly and tenderly, "am I informed that the king of Damascus has sent you hither to keep you safely until he can make you his wife?"

"He hath done so, sir."

"And yet it seems that he did not provide so wisely, after all. Would you wish to be carried to the king?"

"No, no, sir—not to the king. I would be carried to my father."

There could be no mistaking the character of the emotions under which the princess spoke. With all the king's power her hope was not in him. The stranger marked the changes of her countenance; and, while a warmer light shone in his handsome eyes, he resumed—

"I cannot say when you shall be returned to your father; but I can give you my solemn assurance that I can protect you. I will protect you from the hands of those whom you have cause to fear; and, at the same time, I will regard you as a sacred trust, to be respected and purely cherished. And now, lady, have I your confidence?"

He let go her hands, held until now, and when he had taken a seat not far from her, he continued:

"Lady Ulin, you have spoken of Julian. There is another whom you have ever seen him?"

Ulin shuddered as she answered in the negative.

"Did you ever hear his story?"

"No, sir. Albia has told me something, but not much."

"I can tell you the whole, if you would like to hear it, fair sir."

"Believe me, lady, when you have heard what I shall tell you, you will not regard Julian with so much of abhorrence. But of one thing I give you warning: In telling the story of Julian I must speak harsh words against your affianced husband."

"My affianced—husband?" repeated Ulin, with a troubled pause between her words.

"I mean Horam, King of Damascus," said the stranger, regarding the beautiful maiden as though he read her every thought.

"I am not keeper over the character of Horam. The truth, so keen in a true cause, will not offend me."

"Then, lady, let me first assure you that Julian is not the monster your fears have painted. He has never done wrong to any, save the powerful of Damascus. Go to the forests and mountains of Lebanon, and you shall find a thousand poor peasants whose families he has befriended. He has taken gold and jewels, and precious stuffs of silk and linen, from the stores of Horam; but he hath not made himself rich therefrom. He and his followers have lived, and beyond this the booty has been bestowed upon the poor and needy. Julian hath also waylaid and broken up caravans; and turned back many expeditions which the king had sent out. He may be just what hath been said—he may be the Scourge of Damascus, but he has no wish to trouble honest men. His aim has been, vengeance upon the king."

"And why should he seek such vengeance upon the king?" asked Ulin.

"I will tell you, lady. But for the king of Damascus Julian might be now one of the most free and happy men living; but as it is, he is a stranger and an outcast upon the face of the earth. He is a wanderer, without a home, and with only such friends as are bound to him in his adventurous and dangerous course. Once many years ago—he had parents and the prospect of life was bright before him; but in an unhappy hour the gloom and the darkness came. Horam, in wicked, jealous wrath, swept away all that was bright and promising from the path of Julian and shut out the star of hope forever. O, sweet lady, I dare not pan your ear with all that Horam did. Were I to tell you all, you would regard the king as such a monster that your heart would close against him, and your very soul would shrink at the sound of his name. As true as the heavens are above us, so true is it that the heart of Julian is not evil. When he looks back upon the utter desolation of his young life, and realizes that the king of Damascus malignantly and cruelly brought the curse upon him can you wonder that his soul is fraught with vengeance?"

"I never heard this story before," said Ulin, her voice trembling with deep emotion. "If it is true, as you have told me, I cannot blame Julian so much."

"And yet you fear him, lady?"

"I cannot help it. He hath come hither in battle array, and made war against me."

"Nay, nay, sweet lady. You do much mistake his intent. I can tell you why he came hither. He heard from a messenger whom he met upon the plains of Marthal, that a fair damsel was shut up here—a maiden whom the king intended to marry. It might have pleased him to deprive Horam of a wife; but it pleased him more to release a gentle lady from such enslavement. He knows what the king of Damascus has here this, done unto his wives. He has heard that the dark waters of the Pharpar are but a short span from the royal bed. And hence he came to set free one whom he feared might meet a worse fate than the encountering of the Scourge of Damascus. Did he commit a grievous sin in this, lady?"

"Indeed, sir, I know not what to say."

"Will you not see Julian? Do not shudder. I assure you that he will be most gentle in his bearing. But I know he would like to speak with you—he would hear from your own lips that you do not think him a monster; and he would also know your pleasure."

"When will he come?"

"Let it be tomorrow morning, lady. It is near evening now, and your rest shall not be disturbed. You may sleep as safely tonight as ever you slept upon your mother's bosom, and so shall you be safe while I am near you. You will see Julian in the morning?"

"You will come with him?"

"If you wish it, lady."

"I do wish it, for I feel that I am acquainted with you; and, furthermore, I have said that I would trust you."

"It shall be so."

And thus speaking the visitor arose, and moved towards the door. He turned, with his hand upon the latch, and added:

"I trust that your dreams may be sweet and pleasant. If dark phantoms come to your pillow they shall not be of Julian. There is another whom you have more cause to dread—one who, in hard and hoary age would feast upon the charms of your loveliness. Pardon me, for I go with a blessing breathed upon thee."

In a moment more the man was gone, and the door was closed behind him. Ulin gazed vacantly upon the spot where he had stood, until she felt a hand upon her shoulder. She started, and looked up; and it was only Albia.

"My dear mistress, is not this a strange adventure?"

"Very strange," replied the princess, casting her eyes to the floor, and then slowly raising them to that vacant spot.

"What do you think of the strange man?" the slave girl pursued, sitting down by her lady's side.

"What do you think of him?" said Ulin.

"I think he is very handsome. He is the most noble looking man I ever saw."

Ulin showed by her look that she was grateful for this answer. It pleased her, though she may not have known it.

"Such a man could not be a bad man," she said. "Deception cannot dwell in such a face."

"I should think not," returned Albia, to whom the remarks had been put in the form of questions.

"And what do you think of the story he told concerning the robber Julian?"

"I think he told us the truth, my lady. As he went on with the tale, I remembered that I had heard it just so before. He told us the truth."

"Then the king must be a hard, bad man, Albia?"

"I must not answer you lady. The king is to be your husband, and it is not well that you should urge me to speak against him."

"Indeed, girl, I asked you to do no such thing. I did not mean that you should speak against the king."

"Then you should have asked me no question touching his character. I would rather talk of this man who has just left us. I, who am only a poor slave, could love such a man."

Ulin lifted her hand to her heart, and pressed it there as though some new feeling had crept in to worry her, and, as she sat thus, one of her black slaves came in to see if she would like her supper.

"Not now, Calypso," said the princess, starting up. "You may bring me some grapes, and a few dates. But first, tell me what these strange men are doing. How many of them are there here?"

"Not more than a score of them are in the palace, my mistress, but there are thousands of them outside of the valley."

Ulin had no disposition to argue the point; so she asked what the robbers were doing.

"Albia," said the princess, after the black slave had gone, "I do not believe that Julian is such a terrible looking man, after all. What do you think?"

"I think," replied Albia, "that people have described him who never saw him, and that their fear-fraught imaginations drew the picture."

"So I think," returned Ulin. She gazed a few moments upon that old vacant spot, and then added: "I shall see him on the morrow, and I must say that the thought is not frightful. I feel assured that he means me no harm."

"Yet," ventured Albia, "it is a curious whim which should lead him to seek to release you from the hands of the king. But I don't know as we can wonder at it. Perhaps he thought you were some friendless girl who did not know—"

The princess motioned for her companion to stop.

"We will not talk of the king, Albia, and touching this Julian, we shall know more when we see him."

COURTSHIP ENDED.

The Marriage of a Couple Stops Gossip in the East.

The end of the troubles of Miss Jennie Howell of Scranton, Pa., and Edward B. Dean of Hackensack, N. J., came when they were married. The courtship of Mr. Dean and Miss Howell was attended by unusual difficulties. The young couple met at Atlantic City last summer and were mutually attracted. Miss Dean was a woman of 31, and an invalid. Mr. Dean was a widower of 48, and each was well situated with regard to worldly goods.

Mr. Dean frequently visited Miss Howell in Scranton, and a story was soon circulated that they were engaged. This was violently opposed by Miss Howell's brother, Franklin Howell, who instituted proceedings to have her declared a lunatic. How these proceedings finally collapsed in the face of the testimony of expert physicians from Philadelphia was told in the papers a short time ago. In answering the questions of the marriage license docket in court, Mr. Dean had placed on the records mention of the fact that he was divorced from his first wife in Cameron county in December, 1879, and his second wife died on March 17, 1900.

Cork Industrial Exhibition.

The Cork Industrial exhibition, which is to be held next year, has not only been supported by substantial subscriptions from both Cork and Dublin, but it has now been given the approval and technical instruction, of which Mr. Horace Plunkett is president. The department, it is announced, has allocated a sum of £5,000 for the purpose of the exhibition, subject to the general scheme being approved by the department. A portion of the sum will be devoted by the department to the organization of an exhibit of products, appliances, and processes relating to industries, which are capable of being introduced into Ireland, or when already established, or being developed.

GLASS BRIC-A-BRAC.

Glass, though proverbially brittle, will stand any amount of hard usage; but once it is broken the only thing that remains to be done is to throw it away. Cementing will not do much good. If the stem of a wine glass or vase is broken mending is sometimes possible by applying to the joints some easily fusible cement, such as shellac through a silver tube.

Glass that has been properly annealed will stand variations of temperature perfectly well, but if this hasn't been done it is likely to break instantly and without apparent reason.

Frequently globes and chimneys fly to pieces when not properly heated. This is due to draught or moisture upon the chimney, especially lamp chimneys, which will crack from top to bottom, even after the lamp has been extinguished.

Glass vases used for flowers frequently become coated with an unpleasant deposit in the inaccessible parts of the inside. This is due to decayed stems of flowers that are left too long in the water. This deposit may be removed by cleaning with a cloth that has been dipped in pumice stone powder. Care, if beaten flat with a hammer and dipped into the powder, makes an excellent brush and holds the pumice stone in position between the fibres.

Hydrochloric acid, one part acid to eight parts water, will remove any ordinary deposit. If this does not have the desired effect the quantity of acid may be increased. It is advisable to keep the hands out of the acid as much as possible, as it is injurious and often cracks the finger nails.

OUR LOVE FOR SWEETS.

Americans are a sugar-loving people, and our taste for sweets is increasing. We not only increase our consumption with the increase of population, but individually we consume more each year, says the Atlanta Journal. Last year we consumed 2,219,847 tons of sugar, which was 111,779 tons more than we ate the year before. This does not mean only that our sugar devouring population had increased, but it means that while each man, woman and child—if he eat his or her proportion—consumed sixty-one pounds of sugar in 1899, he or she consumed a little more than 65½ pounds in 1900.

SMART CROWN OF MUSLIN.

THE ORIENTAL CRAZE.

Japanese fret work in simple conventional designs is used for many purposes in summer houses, on the walls of doorways, and to make cool looking cosy corners, says the New York Times. The Japanese carvings in wood are used for more elaborate summer houses as well as for city apartments. These carvings are wonderfully inexpensive, considering their beauty and the work in them. A deep piece which will fit into the top of a small doorway costs only $2. There is an interesting design of dragons in it in fine workmanship.

A-la-ba Take.

White of six eggs. Six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Two-quart brick of ice cream. A thin sheet of sponge cake. Make a meringue of the egg whites and the sugar, cover a board with white paper, lay on the sponge cake, turn the ice cream on the cake (which should extend one or two inches beyond the cream), cover with a meringue and spread smoothly. Place on the oven grate and bake until done. The board, paper, cake and meringue are poor conductors of heat and preserve the cream from melting. Slip from water on ice cream plate.

Made yoke and belt style, with ruffles of Hamburg.

The "something old" which Miss Vivian Sartoris, daughter of Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, will wear on the day she marries Archibald Balfour, in London, in August, will be fine old point.

1. Leghorn, flat, with black velvet ribbon and roses under the brim.

2. Yellow straw, with yellow crpe, gold buckle and black plume.

3. Ecru straw, with satin, black plumes and pink roses.

4. Brown straw, with double brim, separated at the side by black plume.

5. Yellow straw, field flowers and black tips.

IS LETTER WRITING A HOPE?

"I sometimes wish," said the woman, "that there was no such thing as letter writing. Maybe it is all right when it is still an art, but now it is all wrong. When a woman is happy she is usually too busy to write letters, but when the world is all awry, then she will sit down and relieve her mind by pouring out her feelings in ink and send the result to some member of her family or some confidential friend. It is all right, and I wouldn't begrudge any one the comfort found in writing the letter, but she should never send it."

John Ganzel was secured from the Kansas City club of the American league during the 1900 pennant race by the Chicago National league club, in a trade involving First Baseman Everitt and Pitcher Phyle, the former now a member of the 1901 Washington, and the latter, a teammate of Ganzel. Last fall Ganzel, Pitcher Garvin and Infielder Strange were exchanged by Chicago for Jack Doyle of the New York club. Garvin jumped to the Milwaukee club of the American league, but both Ganzel and Strange have made good as Giants. Metropolitan experts regard Ganzel as the superior of any first

THE JENNINGS CASE.

The fact that no word has been received from Jennings has exercised local cranks, and not without reason. That there may be no misunderstanding regarding the relations existing between Manager Mack and Jennings, a recapitulation of the negotiations is necessary. After the disastrous opening of the Athletics, President Ban Johnson and the writer made a flying trip to Ithaca and met Jennings by appointment. The situation was thoroughly gone over. Finally satisfactory terms were reached. Jennings, who was, and is now, probably, secretary of the Players' Protective association, objected to signing on the ground that he might be accused of bad faith with that organization. As he would not be able to play until after the conclusion of his law examinations, he was not pressed to sign then, but at the request of the writer he did give permission to announce that an agreement had been reached.

When the Cornell team played the 'Varsity here Manager Mack had an interview with Jennings. The latter thought he might do better financially, and Mack, in order not to let anything stand in his way of his securing his man, raised the ante. Jennings appeared to be more than pleased and discussed with Mack the team's chances, how it could be strengthened and so on. When they separated it was with the understanding that Mack would hear from him in about two weeks.

In the meanwhile McGraw declared himself in to the effect that Jennings had promised him the first chance at his services. McGraw and Robinson were also seen here, and both admitted that the Athletics were in greater need of Jennings than was Baltimore, and that they would not interfere. Jennings then wrote Manager Mack that if everything was arranged with McGraw he (Jennings) would report here about June 12. Subsequently McGraw had his own troubles, and—in a pique, probably—gave it out that he would insist upon Jennings playing with him. There the matter rests for the present.

Jennings wants to play with the Athletics, and the Athletics want him to play with them.

And Jennings will play here if he plays in the American League.—Frank Hough in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Later: The case has been settled by Jennings signing with the New Yorks of the National League.

THE ROOTERS' VIEWPOINT.

Scientific baseball is now in its highest plane of development, but the general fan—I mean those who attend a game once a week or even once in two weeks—often lose the little niceties of strategic play, but they understand a batting rally, daring work on the bases and the tricks which are falling more and more into disuse, both from legislation and from the advancement of scientific playing, writes a Chicago "rooter" in the Record-Herald.

Batting, too, appears less spectacular than formerly. At the present time most of our best hitters rarely gain more than one base, with the exception of Delahanty, Lajoie and a few more of that class. But what a pleasure it is even to a hardened fan to get up in his seat and yell when a home player drives the ball out toward the clubhouse for three bases or a home run. Such expressions as "Give it to him," "Why, they're easy for us," "That's right, Clarence, show the ladies how to run," or "Ice, ice, ice," are doleful cadence to a slow runner and do not mean much, but they are part of the game to a fellow full of hearty animation and make him think he's getting his money's worth, especially if he thinks he is a humorist, as most of us in the "rooters' chorus" do.

DIAMOND GLEIT.

Bobby Carruthers, the once famous pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, one of the grandest baseball organizations this country ever knew, is now an umpire in the Western association.

Jouett Meeking, New York's old twirler, is doing some good work in the box for the Louisville team of the Western association. "Si" Seymour, another of the Giants' twirlers, is doing well in right field for Baltimore in the American league and is likewise hitting the ball at a 315 clip.

Pitcher Matthewson of the New Yorks says that Hamilton is the hardest batter to pitch against that he ever faced. "Hamilton has the best 'batting eye' I ever saw," says the wonderful young twirler. "No pitcher should try to 'work him.' He will fool you every time. The best way is to put 'em over for him and take chances."

Catcher Chance of the Chicago Cubs thinks Pittsburg will win the pennant, and is of the opinion that New York has no right to be on top. He will find that as long as New York has a man who can keep up his work like Matthewson it will be in front or nearly so. A king pin pitcher is a great incentive to the rest of the team.—Ex.

The New York-Cincinnati game in the latter city Sunday was the greatest slugging match that has been seen in the league in many a day. New York made thirty-one hits, Selbach getting six of these. Three Cincinnati pitchers—Phillips, Rusie and McPadden—endeavored to check the sluggers from Gotham, but to no avail. The score was 25 to 13.

Latest statistics of the American league batsmen show that Napoleon Lajoie, the terrible Frenchman, is the batting leader of Ban Johnson's organization, with a percentage of .440. Willie Keister is second and Ralph Seybold third. Keister leads in stolen bases and Lajoie in runs scored.

Garvin jumped to the Milwaukee club of the American league, but both Ganzel and Strange have made good as Giants. Metropolitan experts regard Ganzel as the superior of any first baseball player in the country on wide throws. He does not rank high as a batsman, but is considered a good pinch hitter.

C. W. LATIMER.

C. W. Latimer, catcher for the Fort Wayne club, was born Nov. 30, 1875, at Williamsburg, O., but learned to play at Cincinnati. His first professional engagement was with the Austin club of the Texas league in 1898, but that organization disbanded in May and he then signed with the Dayton club of the Inter-State league, and that season he participated in fifty-three championship games with the latter, ranking high as a batsman, having a percentage of .307.

At the close of that campaign the Louisville club claimed his services, but the Dayton people filed a protest with President Young and the National Board was again called on to decide the matter. It awarded him to Louisville. He was one of the players turned over to Pittsburg when the latter club purchased the Louisville outfit. He was retained by Pittsburg until May, 1900, when he was released to the Syracuse club of the Eastern league, and continued with its team until June 27, inclusive, when, after taking part in twenty-seven championship games, he was released. He was next signed by the New Castle club of the Inter-State league and finished the season with its team, participating in forty-one championship games. When Manager McGraw was making up his Baltimore team for the American league early this year Latimer was selected as one of the catchers, but he was released in May and later signed with the Fort Wayne team of the Western association, where he is at present.

Jouett Meeking, New York's old twirler, is doing some good work in the box for the Louisville team of the Western association. "Si" Seymour, another of the Giants' twirlers, is doing well in right field for Baltimore in the American league and is likewise hitting the ball at a 315 clip.
