This is but a quarterly statement and it is impossible to get a correct idea of the average shipments until the yearly summary is made up, but the showing is certainly a good one. This section of Michigan, which is recognized as one of the leading states, is rapidly coming to the attention of those interested in agricultural pursuits and products, and is now recognized as among the most desirable locations for any industry dependent on the product of the soil. Our town has been somewhat handicapped because of the scarcity of local capital for investment, but the time appears to be at hand when outside capital will assist in the development of our agricultural resources. Much depends on the tiller of the soil and his willingness to assist in the various enterprises that may be launched, but we are pleased to believe that they will do their part when the occasion offers. Keep your eye on Cass City, and watch her development.

Among those who renewed their subscription to the ENTERPRISE during the past few days was Stewart Patterson, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., who says that everything is booming there and he is well pleased with his position.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the P. O. at Cass City, Mich., for the week ending Oct. 26: Biette Gallaway, J. J. Kelley, Frank Irvin. When calling for above please mention "advertised." H. S. Wickware, Postmaster.

Prof. Louis H. Wondree, the violinist, now residing at Gageton, was in town on Monday, and arranged to assist in the band concert to be given here Thanksgiving evening. The Professor thinks of locating permanently at Cass City and organizing a class for violin instruction.

Jas. D. Tuckey had a logging bee on Wednesday of last week, on his farm, west and south of town, and by a lot of hard work, yet by a cheerful crowd, got eight acres cleared. In the evening Jim served oysters at his home to as merry a crowd as ever met, there being nearly one hundred at supper.

Will Hennessey, from north of town, has been assisting to operate a corn shredder, and while at work in Elmwood township yesterday, was so unfortunate as to have his hand caught in the machine, where it was badly mangled. Elliott--Aplin.

We quote the following from the Bay City Tribune regarding the Elliott--Aplin wedding, mentioned in our last issue:

The wedding of William Matthew Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Elliott, of this city, and Maud Isella Aplin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Aplin, of Cass City, occurred Wednesday evening at eight o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Lewis. More than one hundred guests assembled to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. W. B. Pope, using the ring service. The bride and groom received the guests in person, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis. The time for the ceremony was announced by Prof. Walter Moore, who played Mendelssohn's wedding march. Ten young ladies joined hands in front of a bank of palms and flowers, forming a circle separating the wedding party from the guests, the little flower girl, Miss Florence Chamberlain, first entering the circle followed by the bride and groom and officiating clergyman. The bride was arrayed in white Swiss. The ten young ladies who assisted in the delightful event wore green and white. Delicious refreshments were served in the dining room, which was decorated in pink and green. At nine o'clock, amid a shower of rice and congratulations, the wedding party took carriages for the Pere Marquette for Detroit and the east. The many costly gifts were a slight token of the regard in which they are held in the city, where they are so well known.

Roosevelt is a name frequently mispronounced. The president himself speaks it as if spelled like this: "R" with a long "o" as in "rose"; "z," and the shortest possible sound of "e," ending with a short "vlt."

It is the custom in most countries in Europe to hold the hat in the hand while talking to a friend. In Sweden to avoid the dangers arising from this during the winter, it is no uncommon thing to see announcements in the daily paper informing the friends of Mr. So-and-so that he is unable, through the doctor's orders, to conform to this polite usage.

Rev. H. B. Musselman, Presiding elder of the Mennonite Brethren in Christ, Reading, Pa., made the announcement that he has not voted for seven years, and expects never to cast a ballot. "I cannot," he said, "vote to support a republic, for the man who votes with a government ought to fight for it, and I do not want to fight for this country. I am opposed to war; it is unnecessary at any time."

The reappearance on the English stage of George Coppin at the age of 83 recalls that of Charles Macklin at Covent Garden in 1789, when in his 100th year. He represented his favorite character of Shylock and even at that great age he was physically capable of performing the part with great vigor, but in the second act his memory failed him and he came forward with an apology to the audience. He died at the age of 107.

The most remarkable deed acknowledged ever recorded in Bartholomew county, Indiana, was recently filed with Recorder Hiner. It was a warranty deed from Daisy Edwards and her husband, Solomon Edwards, who has been dead for several months, to Ralph Spangh. Justice Pancke of Clifford acknowledged the deed in the following language: "State of Indiana, Bartholomew county, ss.—Before me, William E. Pancke, a justice of the peace, in and for the said county and state, the eighth day of August, personally appeared Daisy Edward and Solomon Edwards, deceased, and acknowledged the execution of the annexed deed."

Why is Theodore Roosevelt commonly spoken of as the twenty-sixth President of the United States when he is only the twenty-fifth man to hold that office? Obviously because some one thoughtlessly spoke of President Cleveland, whose two terms of office were disconnected, as the "twenty-second and twenty-fourth President" of the United States. But in a list of men, not of terms of office, should Mr. Cleveland be assigned two numbers? It is more logical to call him the twenty-second President of the United States, since he was the same man in both terms, and accordingly to call Mr. Roosevelt the twenty-fifth President. He is filling out the twenty-ninth Presidential term.

The lighthouse keeper on the island of Kuriato, outside Monastir, a little port on the coast of Tunis, is besieged by wild pigs. Originally those pigs were tame. They had been turned out to the island by a Monastir farmer to be fattened cheaply. Rapidly, however, they bred and increased in numbers till the island became too small for them. They ate off every vestige of food, devoured every r bit in the place, then, driven wild by hunger, fell to devouring each other. Finally, the unhappy lighthouse keeper, the only human being on the island, had to barricade himself in his cabin, whence he contrived to signal to the mainland, and a gigantic pig hunt is being arranged as the only way of raising the siege.

Forty-two years ago the late beloved Henry B. Whipple was consecrated bishop of Minnesota. It soon became simpler to call him bishop to the Indians. More than fifty times did he make the long journey from the northwest to Washington to tell the story of the Indians' wrongs and many times he encountered a pitiful failure because he could find no one person in authority. Authority was vested in boards and bureaus and hedged about with investigations. A notable exception was his first interview with President Cleveland. He explained how the grasping white speculator had moved on to Indian lands, dammed the rivers and let the waters overflow the Indians' grain fields. President Cleveland exclaimed that it was a burning shame. He sent for the secretary of the interior, asked him to take the statement from the bishop's own mouth, indorsed it, and sent it with an urgent message to congress. Within a week the long-suffering Indians were reimbursed for their great loss.

In England at the time of the great plague it was reported that no one living in a tobaccoist's house fell sick of the disease. This caused a great demand for tobacco. Hearne says in his diary: "I remember that I heard formerly Tom Rogers, who was yeoman beadle, say that when he was a schoolboy at Eton that year when the plague raged all the boys of that school were obliged to smoke every morning, and that he was never whipped so much in his life as he was one morning for not smoking."

FROM ALL OVER MICHIGAN.

Wiseman Confesses Murder of Mrs. Christofer Huss.

BARRELED OVER THE FALLS.

Family Re-union in Theatre at Lansing—A Walking Smallpox Patient—Various Things Happened and Done During the Past week Briefly Told.

Over the Falls She Went. Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, of Bay City, 43 years old, went over Niagara Falls on the Canadian side Thursday afternoon and survived, a feat never before accomplished. She made the trip in a barrel. Not only did she survive, but she escaped without a broken bone, her only apparent injuries being a scalp wound, one and a half inches long, a slight concussion of the brain, a shock to her nervous system and bruises about the body. She was conscious when taken out of the barrel. Mrs. Taylor's trip covered a mile ride through the Canadian rapids before she reached the brink of the precipice. As her barrel passed over the brink it rode at an angle of about 45 degrees on the outer surface of the deluge, and descended so gradually that she could descend to the white foaming waters. 155 feet below. Seventeen minutes after going over the falls the barrel was secured and ten minutes later Mrs. Taylor was taken out. She thanked God she was alive, thanked all who had helped her in any way, said she would never do it again, but that she was not sorry that she had done it, "if it would help her financially." Her reason for performing the reckless feat was to advertise herself among theatrical and museum managers. Her barrel was built by a Bay City beer cask manufacturing concern.

Hails From Flint. From the statement of Marie Forrest, who claims Flint, Mich., as her home, a messenger in jail for robbing the Amsterdam, N. Y. bank, is a liar. Marie said: "I lived at 310 West One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, with Leona Kuhn and husband Simon, who is a piano player in concert halls. I met Armitage some weeks ago in the tenderloin; he made love and frequently visited the flat. He claimed a fortune had been left him and later he flashed a big bundle of checks and money, saying it was the first installment of the fortune. He gave me $500 to furnish the flat, and invited us out for the night. We all went to Brooklyn. He spent $500, and we stopped at the best hotel. After the theater he called a messenger and expressed the bundle of checks to the bank, saying they would be placed to his credit there. The next day we separated, and I haven't seen him since. I am an actress, but have no engagement. Marie returned $485 to the police, having spent only $15.

A Theatrical Reunion. The theater-goers of Lansing Tuesday night were startled between the second and third acts of the play by the cries of a little girl who exclaimed: "here's my papa; look! look!" The man was William Shively, whose wife left him a couple of years ago. He had two children, but girls, and the mother obtained his permission to let them visit her at Grand Rapids. She disappeared from that city afterward, taking the children with her. Unknown to her husband she placed them in the custody of her sister at Milwaukee and went to live in Kewasha. The sister decided to restore the children to their father and she came with the two girls. Unable to find any trace of Shively, she went to the theater and was rewarded by finding the missing parent in the audience. Father and daughters were reunited in a very theatrical manner. Mrs. Shively's sister gave an assumed name while in Lansing, as she is said to be a lady of high standing in Milwaukee.

Wiseman Confesses. After several hours of the sweat box ordeal, Henry Wiseman, the convict, has finally yielded to the irresistible logic and close examination of Prosecutor Rockwell and make a full and complete confession of the murder of Mrs. Christopher Huss of the afternoon of September 20, 1900. The strain to which he has been subjected since Wednesday night was too much, and he finally broke down completely and exclaimed: "I killed the woman." He then said that his statement made Wednesday of last made killing Mrs. Huss was in reality a description of his own bloody deed. He refuses to assign a motive for the crime. This confession completely clears up the mystery which has been occupying the attention of the Oakland county authorities for three weeks.

Walking Smallpox Patient. Ernest Bancroft, of Deckerville, Sanilac county, was taken to the Detroit smallpox isolation hospital Tuesday suffering from a well developed case of smallpox in the primary stages. Mrs. Bancroft, who accompanied her husband, is also isolated, although she shows no symptoms of the disease. The pair stopped one night at a Port Huron hotel and took dinner at a Detroit hotel before the health officer of the latter city gathered them in.

The recent smallpox epidemic cost Kalamazoo county $3,000. Over 7,000 tons of peaches were shipped from Michigan the past season.

Some months ago a Lansing boy was playing with an old army musket his parents had purchased for decorative purposes from a local department store, and the weapon was discharged and the boy killed. Now the boy's father has brought suit against the department store for $10,000 damages. John B. Hamilton, an old resident of Alpena, went violently insane Tuesday night. He broke most of the windows in his residence and was badly cut about the arms, legs and body with broken glass. It took four officers to restrain him and lodge him in jail. He died in convulsions at 10 o'clock next morning.

The action of the Emmet county supervisors in voting to move the county seat from Harbor Springs to Petoskey is probably the beginning of the end of Charlevoix county. Four townships in that county contiguous to Emmet are to be taken to be annexed to the latter as soon as Petoskey becomes the county seat, and should this take place the rest of Charlevoix would undoubtedly be tacked on to Antrim county.

Dr. William Wilson, of Coldwater, whose bill for the cure of smallpox cases was cut by the board of supervisors to $250, has sued the county for $1,000, the entire amount of his bill.

FROM ALL OVER THE GLOBE.

Thieves Robbed the Chicago Post-office of Thousands.

FOUND HIS LOST DAUGHTER.

Current Events, Major and Minor Gathered and Briefly Given for the Busy Reader's Information, With Facts and Fancies Interspersed.

Chicago Postoffice Robbed. A sensational robbery which netted the perpetrators $74,610 in stamps, was discovered Monday morning when the Chicago postoffice was opened for business. The work of gaining an entrance to the vault had evidently been going forward with the greatest patience for many days. It is believed, however, that the intention of the thieves had been to enter the cashier's vault, in which there was $35,000 in money stamps valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars. The bottom of the vault is of steel, half an inch thick. In this 97 holes were bored until a space 18 inches square—just enough to allow the entrance of a man's body—had been so weakened that it was possible to take out the whole plate with little difficulty. Of the $74,610 in stamps taken, $4,712 were in "postage due" stamps and $2,000 in special delivery stamps; so the convertible stamps amounted to $67,898, but of these $4,828 were Pan-American stamps of eight and ten-cent denominations.

Long Lost Daughter Found. Nine years ago the 10-year-old daughter of Peter Bell, a miller living at St. Marys, Mercer county, O., failed to return home from school. The belief was general that she had been drowned. Her father, however, refused to believe the story and spent his meager savings searching for her. He finally became convinced, however, that the girl was dead. A gypsy told him recently that she was stolen and gave information by which the father found his daughter with a band of the nomads at Carthage, Ia. The young woman says she has been compelled to use food and clothing for the entire band of gypsies, who at all times have treated her cruelly.

Wu's Cheerful Prospect. The report that Chinese Minister Wu may be recalled and given a position on the new board of foreign affairs has given rise to gossip that Wu is altogether too popular in America to be loyal to China. According to talk in diplomatic circles, one of the mandarins said recently to an American army officer: "Why do the people of the United States make such a fuss about Chinese envoys? We think him a very clever and useful man," responded the officer. "Bah! When Earl Li dies we will bring him home and cut his head off." Wu says he has received no intimation that his government is dissatisfied with him.

Cuban Annexationists. A petition asking that Cuba be annexed to the United States is being circulated among Cuban business men; and every effort is being centered upon annexation as business men generally, it is alleged, believe that the reciprocity movement will amount to nothing. A meeting has been arranged for in Havana at which, although held under the guise of reciprocity, it is said, the first gun in the campaign for annexation will be fired by Cuba's orators, Senors Desobedo and Lanuza and the Marquis De Montoro.

King Edward's Ban. Society has been stunned by the announcement that King Edward has placed the ban of his disapproval upon Sunday entertainments of every sort. The news of the king's change of view came out as a result of his declining to leave Scotland for the return journey to London on Sunday. The king, it is said, now restores a rigid Presbyterian regime. The restaurant keepers are really more perplexed than their patrons, and predict that the restaurants will soon be closed on Sunday evenings. Sunday dinner parties will be regarded as vulgar.

An Obscene Play. Senor Tamayo has annulled the order prohibiting the Havana theatrical managers from producing the play "Los Reyes Del Tocio" (The American Pork Kings). The play ridicules the Americans generally and grossly questions the honor of the women of the United States. It is so obscene that the queen regent of Spain stopped its production in Madrid on the eve of the Spanish-American war, when feeling against the Americans was at its height in Spain. The play was also tabooed in Paris.

Ed Stokes Dying. Haunted by the face of Jim Fisk, whom he shot and killed for a pretty woman's sake thirty years ago, when he was a half-fellow-well-met, Edward S. Stokes, now wreck of his former self, is dying at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary McNutt, New York. The direct cause of his illness is necrosis of the kidneys, from which he has for years been a sufferer and which has resisted all attempts to effect a cure.

Kansas wants 100 acres of St. Louis fair space for an alfalfa exhibit. No will be left by the late John S. Pillsbury, former governor of Minnesota. His estate is estimated to be worth $5,000,000.

Worry killed John Dye, of Wabash, Ind. He was one of several heirs to an alleged estate of several thousand acres of coal land in Pennsylvania. Recently he received many anonymous letters stating that he would be kidnapped and held for ransom.

Resolutions approving the course of President Roosevelt in having Booker T. Washington, the negro educator, dine with him at the White House, were adopted by the national encampment of the Union Veterans' Union. The chief executive's action was characterized as manly and in accord with the highest ideals of American citizenship.

Nineteen Burned to Death. A fire in which the police say 19 persons lost their lives, many more were seriously and perhaps fatally injured, occurred Friday in the heart of the business section of Philadelphia. The nine-story building at 1219 and 1221 Market street, occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsters and furniture dealers, and two unoccupied buildings at 223 and 1225 Market street were destroyed. Many other buildings were damaged and the loss is estimated to be upwards of $500,000.

Gets a Ping Command. Rear Admiral Crowninshield for over four years chief of the navigation bureau, is soon to be relieved from that duty and assigned to his first flag command afloat. It is understood that he does not relinquish duty under the navy department entirely voluntarily, although it is said that he has desired an active command afloat for several months and above all preferred charge of the European station.

News in Brief. The bank at Dane Station, Wis., was blown and cleaned out Monday. Senator Chamney M. Dewey is to marry Miss May Palmer in the near future. Fire in the Hammond Packing Co.'s plant, at Hammond, Ind., Wednesday night, caused a $400,000 loss. The Russian American-built battleship, Rostizian, developed 1301 knots over a 20-mile course at Boston. The pope had an alarming recurrence of his intestinal trouble on Saturday night, and is in a state of great weakness. At the close of the fiscal year 1900 there were 76,688 postoffices in the United States, or one to every 1,000 inhabitants. Safe-blowers worked three Ohio towns near Lancaster, stole about $1,000 in money and half a dozen horses, then escaped. A plague of bugs has visited the entire Lake Michigan, west shore, for 200 miles, Milwaukee included. Chicago is not affected. Mrs. Louise Nostz, 60 years old, of Astoria, L. I., killed herself and her grandson, Willie Colby, 7 years old, some time Wednesday night. Senator McMillan says he does not think the tariff bill will be changed at the coming session, but perhaps, the Cuban sugar duty will be changed. Before 6 a. m. Monday, if everything is ready, Czagosz will be electrocuted in the Auburn, N. Y., penitentiary. Twenty-six witnesses only will be admitted. Ex-President Cleveland attended the funeral in New York of Frederick M. Benedict, son of E. C. Benedict, who was killed last Saturday by his automobile. During the last 10 days five men have been killed and three wounded while hunting in the woods of Maine. Most of the victims were mistaken for bear or deer. The cold rains, it is thought, will drive the brigands, who captured Miss Stone, out of the mountains, which will make them speedily accept the ransom and release her. Two fatalities resulted from the destruction by fire of the state insane hospital at Northfield, Me. The victims were Victor Casper and Jans Jasper, son of Cheyenne county, patients. Sir Thomas Lipton will not be a challenger for the America's cup next year. "I think there are no girls like American girls, but you may say for me that I will never get married until I lift that cup." It is said that the Commercial Cable Co., which is controlled by John W. Mackay, has already ordered wire for a cable from the United States to Hawaii and the Philippines, and will begin construction very soon. Two copper axes have been unearthed near the life saving station at the Portage Lake ship canal. They are evidently relics of the mound builders, being similar to the copper utensils which have been found in many of the mounds in the Mississippi valley. Peter Melendy, of Cedar Falls, Ia., is dead, aged 78 years. He was a delegate to the national Republican convention which nominated Lincoln and Grant, served fourteen years on the board of trustees of the state college at Ames and was the first president of the Iowa Central Railway.

Foreign Briefs. The Milwaukee board of health prohibits kissing by consumptives. A mosquito bit Mrs. Anna Lawler, of Elizabeth, N. J., on the ankle four weeks ago. Blood poisoning set in and she is dead of it. The first Boer baby born in the United States has been named Theodore Roosevelt Beddy. He is the son of T. A. Beddy, of Denver, Col. A divorce was granted to Mrs. Ella Sturtevant from H. H. Sturtevant, of Zanesville, O., and alimony awarded and paid in the sum of $30,000. Some time Sunday evening the music store of C. C. Norrgon and the jewelry store of Frank Marsh, of Reading, were treated to a liberal coat of stale eggs. Mrs. Dan Hanna, who fled to Europe with her three sons to evade a writ requiring her to produce the children in court, has returned to New York. She says the boys are to remain with her. Henry Himmelstorf, 17 years of age, of Chicago, was stabbed to death Thursday night by David Bernstine, 13 years old. A large blasting needle was driven through the lad's heart during a quarrel. The United States continues at the head of the list of the world's exporting nations. For the nine months ending with September, our exports of domestic products were $1,042,605,151, against $1,018,845,768 from the United Kingdom. Miss Alice Matson, of New York city, was arrested in Moscow and fined 16 roubles for giving English lessons without a license. As this is a criminal offense under the Russian law, Miss Matson escaped with a remarkably light sentence. Ninety guests at a wedding near Bala, Mo., were taken ill with symptoms of poisoning.

The Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette says: "Walter Baker & Co., of Dorchester, Mass., U. S. A., have given years of study to the skillful preparation of cocoa and chocolate, and have devised machinery and systems peculiar to their methods of treatment, whereby the purity, palatability, and highest nutrient characteristics are retained. Their preparations are known the world over and have received the highest endorsements from the medical practitioner, the nurse, and the intelligent housekeeper and caterer."

Fire at the Buffalo Fair. Buffalo, N. Y., telegram: New England's building at the Pan-American exposition was destroyed by fire. The contents, consisting of rich furnishings of historic value, costly oil paintings and other articles of great value, were also entirely destroyed. The building cost $30,000, and the loss of the contents is estimated at $100,000. The fire was discovered at 11.10 o'clock, and an hour later the building was in ashes. The structure was one of the finest of the so-called state buildings on the exposition grounds.

Major J. E. Hill Resigns Post. Springfield, Ill., telegram: Word was received at Lincoln that former Mayor James Edgar Hill of that city, brother-in-law of the late Governor Richard J. Oglesby, and now major in the United States army, has resigned his position as treasurer of Rizal province, Philippine islands. He says he finds the responsibilities and labor of his office too much for him, especially as the government makes him responsible financially for all his native deputies.

The Teacher's Wife. Clarissa, Minn., Oct. 28th.—Mrs. Clara Keys wife of Charles Keys, school teacher of this place, tells a wonderful story. For years her life was one of misery. Her back ached all the time; her head ached all the time; neuralgia pains drove her to desperation. She used much medicine, but failed to get any relief till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. She says: "Very soon after I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills all my aches and pains vanished like the morning dew. I consider this remedy a God-send to suffering womanhood."

Encouraged by their success in her own case, Mrs. Keys induced her mother, an old lady of 74 years, to use Dodd's Kidney Pills for her many aches and pains. Now both mother and daughter rejoice in perfect freedom from illness or suffering which is something neither had enjoyed for years before.

The Story of the Horse. Horses began in western America, says Professor W. B. Scott of Princeton, in the form of an mals hardly larger than domestic cats, whose remains are found in the Wasatch beds of Eocene time. Later on, in the form of the mesohippus, these animals attained the stature of sheep, and showed considerable advances in organization. In time the protohippus was developed and it not only attained a gaster size, but had a skeleton "so like that of a horse as to require a careful examination to note the differences." The change from the protohippus to the existing equus occurred early in the Pliocene. Yet "the true horse in the restricted sense of the term (species Equus catalanus) was not developed in North America, and appa s never to have reached this continent until brought here by European settlers. For reasons which can hardly be even conjectured, the horses disappeared entirely from the Western Hemisphere before the discoveries of Columbus, and continued to exist only in Eurasia and Africa."

Care of the Complexion. Many persons with delicate skin suffer greatly in winter from chapping. Frequently the trouble arises from the use of impure soap and cheap salves. The face and hands should be washed only in clear, hot water with Ivory Soap. A little mutton tallow or almond oil may be used after the bath to soften the skin. ELIZA R. PARKER.

Sun-Spots and the Weather. As we are believed now to be at the beginning of a new maximum sun-spot period, the question of the relation of the sun-spots to the weather is coming again to the front. The observations of Prof. S. E. Bruckner indicate that there is a periodical variation in the climates over the whole earth, the mean length of the period being about 35 years. Mr. W. J. S. Lockyer believes it has been demonstrated that there is a variation in the intensity of sun spot phenomena also having a mean length of about 35 years. The spot maximum, whose beginning is now at hand, will, according to Mr. Lockyer, resemble that which culminated in 1870, and which was remarkable for its intensity. A cycle of dry, hot weather corresponds with this type of maximum.

CHICAGO'S HORSE SHOW

The Great Society Event of the Season

ONE OF THE TURNOUTS TO BE SEEN AT CHICAGO'S HORSE SHOW.

The annual horse show in Chicago is the great society event of the season. The event begins the first Monday in November and continues for six days. Managing Director John B. Kitchen, who is practically at the head of the show this year, was instrumental in securing no fewer than 700 entries. Among the exhibitors this year are Thomas W. Lawson, George Gould, Howard Willits and William C. Whitney. Another prominent New Yorker, formerly of Chicago, who has made a number of entries is Judge William H. Moore. Among the prominent Chicagoans who entered large stables are C. K. G. Billings, James Hobart Moore, W. Vernon Booth, A. Montgomery Ward, H. M. Norton and M. H. Tichenor. Mr. Billings' Little Boy, who holds the world's champion record to wagon, will also be on exhibition. H. M. Norton's famous Dr. Pitzer, with a record of 2:12 1/2, and W. Vernon Booth's champion polo pony, Brown

Dick, are also entered. Many exhibitors from various points in the West will be in attendance. Two novel features have been added. On three nights there will be a competitive firemen's drill, when the horses from the engine houses will be put through all the details of a drill. On the other three nights of the week there will be an artillery drill, the men and horses coming from Fort Sheridan by special arrangement with the authorities at Washington.

Divorce Law Unchanged.
The effort made by a powerful element in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States to effect a change in its laws (a big with divorce has failed, after a most exhaustive discussion of the matter in the convention held in San Francisco. At present the church legalizes the marriage of a divorced person where the cause for the separation is the statutory law of this state—namely adultery. The proposed law would deny remarriage while either party to the original marriage contract was living. For the proposed amendment powerful voices were raised; but fear of its effect, if adopted, coupled with a belief on the denying remarriage to the innocent victim of another's sin, defeated the part of some of the injustice of measure.

Potatoes Yield Rich Returns.
The farmers of Central New Jersey have done well out of the potato crop this year. Here are some instances: Wilson Clayton, a Monmouth county grower, got 2,072 barrels from 20 acres, and he sold these for more than $4,000. Benjamin Hays got 100 barrels of potatoes to the acre and received more than $4,000 for his crop. Robinson brothers sold their crop early in the season, when the price was high, and got about $7,000 for it. Bank men say that more notes have been paid off this year by the farmers than ever before.

Growing Vegetables in Alaska.
The chance for young men to engage in trade in Alaska are still abundant. The dairyman at Juneau is getting rich. The gardener made $4,000 this season from a little two-acre patch of ground, despite the fact that there is a great number of vegetables that will not thrive in that locality. Tomatoes will not mature. The vines thrive well, but will not produce fruit. Cabbages grow until they become immense in size, but the heads will not get hard. Potatoes grow out of the ground and are not palatable. Corn, squash, beans and cucumbers will not grow on account of the excessive moisture and cool nights. Nearly everything else in the way of vegetables can be produced in large quantities.

Thistles as a Substitute for Hay.
The great scarcity of hay in Kansas has led to the trial of a substitute which has long been considered worthless but which is proving itself to be of great value as a food for cattle. Russian thistles are gathered and stacked like hay for winter feeding and, despite the fact that they have millions of fine spines, each of which is as sharp as the point of a needle. Cattlemen in the section where they flourish say that when damp, cattle eat them readily, and get a good deal of nutriment from them.

Malaria continues to be a greater scourge of the British army in India than any other fatal disease.

William Dean Howells, the novelist, said in a recent interview that, after a desperate endeavor he had at last been able to accustom himself to dictating his letters to a stenographer, but he added that he could not dictate fiction in this manner and never expected to be able to do so.

Girl as Acting Governor of New Jersey

MISS AGNES M. GILL

Miss Agnes Montgomery Gill has been Acting Governor of the state of New Jersey. Miss Gill is really only executive stenographer to Governor Voorhees, but recently the executive went to Buffalo to attend the exposition, taking Private Secretary Herbert Tuttle with him. Executive Clerk Edward T. Fox was taken sick the day after, thus leaving Miss Gill to act as Governor. Her duties consist principally of opening and answering the large number of letters that come every day for the Governor. Miss Gill, who is but 22, comes of a rather distinguished family. Her grandfather was Bennington Gill, head of the rich firm of agricultural tool manufacturers that did business up to a few years ago under the name of Gill & Sons. The family was wealthy. It has a record of revolutionary doings that distinguishes it. Miss Gill herself was born on the homestead at Allentown, N. J., ten miles from Trenton. It was after she was quite a girl that the family suddenly lost its wealth. Her father, Clarence N. Gill, became a railroad conductor to support his family, and today is conductor of a Pullman train between Boston and New York. Helen Gill, a sister, became a teacher, and last year had a kindergarten in their Trenton home at 290 Hamilton avenue. Miss Agnes was graduated from the Trenton high school in 1896 and entered Stuart's Business College. Then she went into a law office for a time. Helen now teaches music, and little Disbrow, 10 years old, and worshiped by both girls, is in school. The one entanglement of the heart of the Hon. Miss Gill is her passionate love for her mother. Mrs. Gill was reared in a home of refinement. Her early married life was passed in an atmosphere of wealth and comfort. And it is to make her happy that Miss Agnes works so hard.

The New Zealand government is raising the wages of its railway employees to the extent of $100,000.

POISON IN SILK STOCKINGS.

Careless Dyeing May Induce Blood Poisoning.
Among the various forms of metallic poisoning to which man is liable we must not forget that innocent as tin may be as a lining to "tin" vessels, some of its salts are by no means free from poisonous qualities, and when absorbed act seriously upon the nervous system. These salts are often employed in dyeing. Properly used they act as a mordant, but it is whispered that the manufacturer is not always sorry to find that the excess of the salt is not removed, for when left it adds weight to the silk—and silk is valuable—hence many troubles. Colored stockings often have been accused of causing poisoning. Not only does the pattern on the stockings sometimes cause eruptions on the legs, but in some cases poisonous materials have been absorbed into system. Arsenic, which in the early days of aniline dyes was often present, used to be the incriminated metal. This, however, is a mode of arsenical poisoning of which very little has been heard for many years. Now it is tin which is arraigned. A case is reported from Vienna of a woman who suffered from attacks of partial paralysis in the lower extremities, with anaesthesia, a sense of coldness and ataxic gait. She had noticed that whenever these symptoms were most pronounced her feet were colored yellow, and it was found that this staining was derived from the light yellow silk stockings which she wore. On analyzing these they were found to contain quantities of tin. Careful chemical examination of the excreta showed that they also contained tin, so that whatever may have been the cause of the symptoms there could be no doubt that the patient had tin in her system. The moral seems to be that persons who perspire should not wear pretty silks next to their skin unless they can be sure that they are not dyed with colors mordanted with tin. Possibly there may be in this case have been some carelessness, and it may not have been the metal combined with the color, but rather the excess, which had not been properly removed, that did the mischief. This, however, will not afford much comfort to the ladies who buy silk stockings, for how are they to tell whether any particular color is safe or not? It is unfortunate, but it seems to be the fact that in many instances colors which are "fast" enough in relation to ordinary washing are by no means incapable of solution in perspiration, especially when this natural secretion has been modified by the various fermentive changes which it is apt to undergo.—The Hospital.

DISCOVERED BY ACCIDENT.

How the Paving Value of Asphalt Was Brought to Notice.
All forms of bituminous pavements, whether manufactured from natural or artificial asphalt, are in fact artificial stone pavements. The industry started with the use of the natural rock asphalt from the mines in the Val de Travers, Canton Neuchâtel, Switzerland. The mines were discovered in 1721, but it was in 1849 that its utility as a road covering was first noticed. The rock was then being mined for the purpose of extracting the bitumen contained in it for its use in medicine and the arts. It is a limestone found impregnated with bitumen, of which it yields, on analysis, from 8 to 14 per cent. It was observed that pieces of rock which fell from a wagon were crushed by the wheels, and under the combined influence of the traffic and heat of the sun a good road surface was produced. A macadam road of asphalt rock was then made, which gave very good results, and finally, in 1854, a portion of the Rue Bergere was laid in Paris of compressed asphalt on a concrete foundation. In 1858 a still larger sample was laid, and from that time it has been laid year by year in Paris. From Paris it extended to London, being laid on Threadneedle street in 1869 and Cheapside in 1870, and in successive years on other streets.

Unimaginative.

The impression has been general that the Latin races are peculiarly imaginative. Mr. Marion Crawford holds an opposite view. According to his experience, people of very temperate climates are the reverse of imaginative. It is only in the extreme north and in the south that this quality of the mind is highly developed. Crawford asserts that the Italian people have little imagination, and cites as proof of this the Italian custom of presenting the story of Bethlehem on Christmas day with figures of various sizes. He thinks the use of these figures to aid the imaginative proves the imagination defective. Fairy stories and ghost stories are practically unknown among the Italians, who are incapable of developing for themselves any mental picture, and depend upon story-tellers to draw these pictures for them. To this day it is a common sight, especially in Palermo and throughout Sicily, to see the itinerant story-teller with his back to the wall, surrounded by a great crowd of interested auditors for whose benefit he recites thrilling tales by the hour. It seems then, that in the matter of imagination the modern Italian is like the Roman, who had many fine qualities, but was deficient in originality. The best that he had was borrowed from the Greeks.—Youth's Companion.

SCHLEY TELLS HIS STORY

Commander of Flying Squadron on Witness Stand.

REPLIES TO EACH CHARGE.

Sketch of the Movement from Key West to Santiago and the Stop at Cienfuegos—No Malice Toward Enemies—Captain Clark Testifies.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—Rear Admiral Schley took the stand in the afternoon and told the story of the beginning of the Santiago campaign in a plain, simple, straightforward manner, in which there was not the least trace of malice or resentment. His story carried absolute conviction with it, and made a deep impression upon the court and the spectators as he modestly explained his actions which have been questioned, and magnanimously refrained from attempting to question the veracity of any officer who has testified against him, generously crediting their misstatements to a failure of recollection. Before flatly contradicting Captain Sigbee regarding the information concerning the presence of the Spaniards in Santiago Admiral Schley was particular to say that Captain Sigbee was not capable of uttering a falsehood, but that his recollection was at fault and not his veracity. "Captain Sigbee," said the Rear Admiral, "would not make a misstatement for his commission." The Rear Admiral did not attempt to put the responsibility for the retrograde movement upon the officers of his fleet, and said previous to his movement toward Key West he had not called a council of war because it was his practice, he said, when in command of a fleet or a ship not to seek to escape responsibility, and never to seek to obtain a part of the glory of events in which he had not participated.

Says He Did Not Despair.

From the beginning of the testimony there never was any doubt that Rear Admiral Schley was in command of the flying squadron and never attempted to shirk any responsibility. The Rear Admiral disclaimed that he was guilty of disobedience of orders, as the order which reached him did not say the Spanish fleet was in Santiago, but directed Schley to find out if it was there, and not to permit it to leave "without a decisive action." "That part of the order was fully executed," modestly remarked Admiral Schley, and there was a peal of laughter on the part of the spectators. Schley then told of the conference he had with Rear Admiral Sampson on board the New York at Key West, during which he had assured Sampson of his loyalty. Captain Chadwick, on this occasion, remarked that any one who knew Commodore Schley was sure of his loyalty to the commander-in-chief. During this conference it was developed that both Sampson and Schley agreed the objective point of Cervera's fleet was either Havana or Cienfuegos, as the latter port was connected with Havana by rail. Neither had any idea that the Spaniards would go to Santiago, which is in the end of the island, the lines of communication being absolutely controlled by the insurgents. During another part of his narrative Admiral Schley said if any one made a mistake during the Santiago campaign it was in supposing the Spaniards would do the right thing at the right time. He was often surprised that Cervera did not leave Santiago when Schley left Cienfuegos. During the conference with Sampson information was given to Schley that Cienfuegos was heavily fortified, and he was directed not to jeopardize his ships by taking them near the shore batteries until the Spanish fleet was disposed of.

Difficulty in Coaling.

Speaking of the difficulty of coaling in the open sea, the Admiral said the Merrimac had several holes punched in its efforts to coal. He used every endeavor to coal, but the problem presented to him in this connection was one that had vexed the navies of the world for fifty years. He asserted that whenever it was possible to coal the ships he had done so, but there are times he would not assume the responsibility, as the vessels of his squadron would have been placed in jeopardy in attempting to coal in the open sea.

As to McCalla's Testimony.

Taking up the testimony of Captain McCalla relating to coaling plans, Rear Admiral Schley said he did not believe that any officer would deliberately misrepresent anything, but that when Captain McCalla was on the stand he did not tell the court the whole conversation he had with Commodore Schley. "He did not testify," said the Admiral, "that his advice to me was that the only place the vessels could coal was on the coast of Hayti."

Mr. Lemley Objects.

Later he explained the bombardment of the Colon, which has been called weak and resultless, as a reconnaissance to develop the land fortifications. Without betraying any feeling whatever, Schley denied the story told by Lieutenant Potts that the admiral was scared during this attack and hid behind the conning tower. "Mr. Potts is in error," said Schley, deliberately. "I was under no excitement, nor was I worried, for there was no occasion for worry at that range." He called to one man to leave the exposed position he occupied, as he was a newspaper man and was not paid for getting in danger. I felt it my duty to take risks, but I did not want others to do so when not necessary."

Judge Advocate Lemly interrupted the admiral, claiming that he was giving arguments, not testimony.

"This witness has no more right to state opinions and arguments than has any other witness," said Lemly, crossly. "I object to it."

General Rayner insisted that as the applicant in the case Admiral Schley had the right to give reasons for his actions. The court told Schley to go on.

OMINOUS BRITISH MOVE.

Call for All Classes of Troops in the Kingdom Prepared.

London, Oct. 26.—An error committed by some of the provincial police has led to the premature leaking out of the fact that the war office contemplates the possibility of having to call out every volunteer in the country. The war office has distributed to the police officers throughout the kingdom bills ordering all reservists, militia, yeomen and volunteers to report themselves without delay to headquarters, with the view of active service. These bills are accompanied by letters ordering that the bills be kept in a safe place until telegraphic orders to post them up are received. The police of Lancaster overlooked the letter and posted the bills, causing widespread perturbation.

Doubt Minister Wu's Loyalty.

Peking, Oct. 26.—There is strong opposition among conservative Chinese officials to Wu Ting-fang, Chinese minister at Washington, retaining a foreign mission. Those who take this view consider that his popularity abroad is a proof that he is not sufficiently loyal to the interests of China. It is probable that he will be recalled and given a position on the new board of foreign affairs, where his linguistic and legal attainments may be utilized under the eye of the government.

Plot to Kill Shah Revealed.

London, Oct. 26.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Mail says he learns of the discovery at Tehran of a plot against the life of the Shah of Persia, in which his majesty's two brothers, son-in-law, the Grand Vizier, and the whole revolutionary party were involved. The two brothers were banished for life, and the son-in-law was flogged until he revealed the other conspirators, all of whom will be beheaded or imprisoned for life.

MANY ARE LOST AT A FIRE

Factory, Crowded with Workers, Burned at Philadelphia.

SEVENTEEN BODIES RECOVERED

Scores of Men and Women Jump from Windows and Numbers Are Injured—Several Perish in Flames—Spectators Witness Scenes of Horror.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—A fire in which, the police say, seventeen persons lost their lives, many more were seriously and perhaps fatally injured, occurred in the heart of the business section of the city.

The nine-story building at 1219-1221 Market street, occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers and furniture dealers, and two unoccupied buildings at 1223 and 1225 Market street, were destroyed. Many other buildings were damaged, and the loss is estimated to be upward of $500,000.

The fire started at 10:30 o'clock. It is supposed to have been caused by an explosion of benzine or naphtha, which with other materials used in the manufacture of furniture, was stored in the cellar.

The flames shot up the elevator shaft and in less than five minutes every one of the nine floors of the structure was ablaze.

There were 320 employes, men and women, at work in the different departments at the time. Those on the second floor were the first to see the flames.

Rush for Fire Escapes.

Instantly there was a wild rush for the fire escapes, but owing to the highly inflammable nature of the material used by the firm, the blaze spread with remarkable rapidity, dealing death to the unfortunates as they made frantic, but unsuccessful, efforts to escape.

One woman leaped from one of the top floors into Market street and was instantly killed. Another was roasted to death as she was descending the fire escape in the rear of the building.

Two others either jumped or fell from the fire escapes and were killed. Five others who leaped from windows were picked up living, but they died on the way to the hospital.

While the fire escape was filled with the panic-stricken men and women the wall collapsed and eight persons are known to have been buried in the ruins. A few minutes later the front wall fell inward, and it is not known whether any bodies are under it. If such is the case the persons were probably burned to death before the wall collapsed.

Street Heaped with Victims.

When the firemen reached the rear of the building, which faces on Commerce street, a small thoroughfare, they found the street literally piled up with victims who had been carried down by the falling wall. These were hastily conveyed to the nearest hospital.

At 1 o'clock the fire was under control.

A new eight-story building at 1217 Market street, as yet unoccupied, prevented the spread of the flames to the eastward, in which direction they were blown by the wind. Otherwise the city would have witnessed probably the greatest conflagration in its history.

Several business houses on the south side of Market street were badly scorched, but not seriously damaged.

Buried Under Debris.

At about 11:30 o'clock the walls of the Hunt-Wilkinson building fell. This gave the firemen an opportunity to work on the other buildings that were ablaze, and at 12 o'clock the fire was believed to be under control.

The wholesale and retail rubber warehouse of Latta & Mulconroy, adjoining Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s building, is on fire, but the flames will be confined to the upper stories.

Stories conflict as to the number of persons killed. Hunt, Wilkinson & Co. employed 300 people, mostly girls. The fire is believed to have started on the second floor of their building, where fifteen persons were at work. It is not known whether any of these escaped.

TO AVOID SUNDAY WORK.

Why the Czolgosz Execution Was Set for Tuesday.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Warden Mead has selected Tuesday for the execution of Czolgosz, so that final arrangements may be made on Monday. In doing this he is following the general custom in the state prisons relative to electrocutions. It does away with the necessity of making final arrangements on Sunday.

The sentence of the court was that the execution of Czolgosz should take place during the week commencing Oct. 28, leaving to the warden of the prison full power to select the day of the week in which to carry out the mandates of the law. This latitude is given the warden to secure secrecy as to the time of execution and to guard against delay from accident, such as in 1893, caused by a delay of an hour in an execution after the condemned man had been taken into the death house at Auburn penitentiary. The witnesses will assemble at the prison at 6:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning. There have been twenty-six invitations issued and they are nontransferable. Each witness must present his invitation to the warden of the prison and if he is not identified to the satisfaction of the warden as being the man to whom it was issued, he will not be admitted.

tion. As they entered the parsonage, Mr. and Mrs. Weaver could easily see that they were going to be well provided for during this year, as the friends donated canned fruit, flour, potatoes, honey and dainties as well. Not only have they responded liberally with provisions but have paid the pastor over $45 on his salary. The preacher thinks the friends of Deford are a loyal lot of people to live amongst.

A Typical South African Store

Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale at A. Bond's, Cass City; F. A. Arthur Foley, Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, contributes an interesting paper to the November Cosmopolitan on "The Overcrowding of Great Cities and Remedies for It." Incidentally he has a hit at American intellectual life in the twentieth century.

Brain-Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutrient is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at Fritz's Drug Store, Cass City; or Francis' Drug Store, Kingston. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

Rather Venomous.

A tenderfoot who visited the Yosemite in the old days thus related his experience: The stage driver found out that he was seriously afraid of snakes and immediately proceeded to make his hair stand on end.

"Venomous reptiles? You bet. I don't know what reptiles is, but them snakes you can just bet your life is venomous. Why, one day I was comin down here drivin a wagon, when I catches sight of a snake in the brush all ready for a spring. My horses starts, an I whips 'em up fast to clear the snake, don't you see, afore he could spring. He makes one clear spring, the snake does, an he misses the horses."

"That was lucky. But you—you—" "Lucky? You bet your life it was lucky. He missed the horses, the snake did, but he stuck his fangs clean through the wagon."

"You don't say?" "I do say, and maybe you don't believe it, but it's a fact. He stuck his fangs clean through that wagon, an that wagon is swelled up so bad that we had to leave it by the wayside and take the horses home."

Dogs and Somersaults.
As there is more than one way of cooking a goose, so there is more than one method of teaching a dog to throw somersaults. But the most practical and thorough manner is to fasten a cord around the body of the animal close to the forelegs, and two people should hold the ends of the cord on either side of the unfortunate dog.

A third party armed with a stout rope takes a position immediately in front of the canine acrobat and with a measured and masterly stroke flogs the floor at close quarters to the dog's nose.

At each stroke of the rope the dog springs backward, and that movement is the trainer's golden opportunity. As the dog springs backward the rope passing under his body is jerked upward, and, although the first few attempts may prove futile, the somersault is acquired in course of time. An intelligent dog soon sickens of this order of things and throws somersaults without the assistance of ropes.

A Blunt Query.
A good story is told of one of the dignitaries of the Scottish church. Before he became known to fame he was minister of a remote parish in the highlands and was not considered a particularly attractive preacher. At his suggestion extensive alterations were made in the transept of his church, and these had the effect of sweeping away considerable seating accommodation. One day after the alterations had been effected he visited the church to see how it looked.

"What do you think of the improvements, John?" he asked of the beadle. "Improvements?" exclaimed John in disdain. "They're no improvements at all. Whaur are ye goin to put the folk?" "Oh," said the minister, "we have abundance of room, John, considering the size of the congregation." "That's a' very weel the noo," retorted the beadle, "but what will we do when we get a popular meeister?"

A New Excuse.
One of the men in a large pottery took two or three days' holiday now and again, and when he came back, on being asked what was wrong, he said he had been away burying his grand-mother.

He did this two or three times, and then he thought he had better change his excuse, so, on being asked the next time, he replied: "Well, my brother, the sailor, is at home just now, and he is so used to the sound of the waves that I had to lash painfuls of water on the window all night before he could sleep, and then I had to sleep during the day."

Too Smart.
"Huh!" exclaimed Mr. Rox after reading his morning mail. "Our boy's college education is making him too smart."

"What's the matter?" asked Mrs. Rox. "I wrote to him the other day that I thought it would be kinder for me not to remit the check he asked for. Now he writes, 'Dear father, I shall never forget your unremitting kindness.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Cruel.
Old Aunt (on her deathbed)—I am just making my will, my dear Heinrich. I know, alas, too well that you are not religiously disposed and have no desire to promote the cause of—Nephew (hastily)—Beg your pardon, aunt; quite the contrary. Aunt—Heaven be praised! Then you will be glad to hear that I have left all my property to the church!—Humoristische Blätter.

The Unicorn.
Chinese annals of great antiquity contain numerous detailed accounts of the supposedly fabulous unicorn, in which the description are identical with those handed down from the earliest times in the mythology or oriental countries. From this it is inferred that at some time in the remote past there actually did exist a single horned equine or cervine animal of some sort.

Early Experience.
Mother (to baby)—It's muzzer's little moosy-toosy. Muzzer loves her little darling baby. Fanny (who has just been spanked)—Don't you believe her, baby. When you (sob) grow up, she'll spank you t-t-too!—Exchange.

It's not easy for a woman to pin her faith to a husband who never gives her any pin money.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Man Has Died.

A MAN has died—and so have myriads more—They will, while yet this dying earth lives on; But when a leader makes the utmost shore, We sadly look toward where his ship has gone, And only get this message from the dead: "Study the past; my words have all been said."

A woman mourns—as woman always must, So long as joy has penalties of pain; And yet her fearful woe is not in vain: It teaches us that though love long endure, Only in Heaven its raptures are secure.

Geo. Henderson, who lives four miles east of town, in this county, had twenty-seven acres of beans and four acres of potatoes this year. He sold at the regular market price to our dealers and received checks for $1,078.41 for his beans and $281.41 for potatoes, leaving him thirty bushels of beans and one hundred and fifty bushels of potatoes still at home. We wonder how many business men can make a better showing? Yet many claim that it is impossible to make anything at farming.

In the early hours of last Thursday morning a fire alarm was sounded for the first time in many months, and it was soon discovered that the house of Mrs. Joanna Nedry, on Washington Street, just opposite the Roller Mills, was ablaze, and the fiery element had already gained such headway that there was little use in attempting to subdue it. The building was a total loss. It might be asked in this connection, would the fire engine have been of any use in case there was a chance to use it? It is stated that it is practically unfit for use. Can we afford to take such chances? Some one should be held responsible for the engine being kept in proper shape until we feel able to put in better protection. Little use to close the barn door after the horse is stolen.

A SKETCH.

A builder's yard, a ship upon the ways,
The groan of straining planks, the snap of stays,
The cheering of a crowd: "She moves! She's off!"
And with a sudden rush and splash the great ship
Leaves the wharf.

A storm swept, foam tossed sea, a howling gale,
A ship half lost in foam, a rag of sail,
The tolling of a bell, now lost, now clear—
"The shore! The shore!" She strikes in crashing Waves to disappear.

A summer's eve, a calm and wailing tide,
A dismal stretch of sand that tries to hide
The bones of some great vessel, proud on high,
Outlined against the sunset's last faint glow
Above the sky.

A Great Man.

I count him a great man who inhabits a higher sphere of thought, into which other men rise with labor and difficulty. He has but to open his eyes to see things in a true light and in large relations, while they must make painful corrections and keep a vigilant eye on many sources of error. * * * He is a great man who is what he is from nature and who never reminds us of others.—Emerson.

FACTS FOR SICK PEOPLE.
MAY 11, 1901.

I was suffering from general paralysis as a result of diphtheria. I had treated with the best physicians of Tuscola Co., with no benefit; in fact I grew worse under their treatment. I was entirely incapacitated for work, when I consulted the Detroit Clinic at Vassar, on March 13th; two months' treatment has completely cured me, and I am able to do my work. I advise any one suffering from chronic diseases to consult this clinic.

Mrs. Grant McConnell, of Cass City, Mich., had a large growth of a cancerous nature growing on the inside of the mouth. It had been removed several times, but always returned. She had it removed by the surgeon of the Detroit Clinic, and without the use of a knife and with no pain, it was permanently removed in less than 30 days.

I have been growing deaf in both ears for the past six years as a result of La Grippe. I consulted the Detroit Clinic during their monthly visit to Cass City in January, and one month's treatment restored my hearing so that I could hear a watch tick five inches from my ear.

The Cure of the Fields

By
M. Montgomery

I went down the great green fields,
Weary and spent with care,
My heart was sad, and my spirit had
A burden sore to bear.
But they led me to pray in their own
grand way.

And I left my trouble there,
Great and green and calm were they,
And they bade me be at rest;
For God was above, and his wondrous
fields
In them was manifest;
And to me there came, at a tired child's
claim,
A benediction blest.

"Faith," said the grasses soft and low,
Oh, but the sound was dear!
"Hope," said the light of the sunshine
bright,
"How could I choose but hear?"
"Love," said each voice, "and so rejoice, Child of the earth, nor fear."

I went my way from the great green
fields,
And I left my sorrow there;
For they had taught my puzzled thought
The spirit of their prayer,
And I joyed to know that I could not go Beyond our Father's care.

When Love Laughed.

BY W. D. NESBIT (JOSH WINK).

(Copyright, 1901, by Dally Story Pub. Co.)

It is that I was in this country yet

some time when I met the fair Norah,

an' she gave me the smile of welcome.

Oh, no, M'sieu', it is not that I

make the flirt with her, but that I am

given the introduce by the brave

Heiney Gruber, who makes the pretzel

at the place of the bakeshop. I am

all the time gilding the frame of the pictures in my store. Yes, Heiney

bring to me the fair Norah, an' say that she wish to have me to make the

frame of the picture of her father; the grand M'sieu' Patrick Dempsey.

Then it is that I have ask Ma'selle

Norah that I may call and make my devoirs. An' she make the smile of sweetness and say to me like this:

"Sure thing."

So it is that I am often making the

call at the house of the Dempsey's.

An' by-an'-bye, the fair Norah she begin to make me the first name. An'

her papa, he cannot like my first name

in the French. You see, M'sieu', the first name which I have is that of

Pierre, an' the papa of Norah, he do not like the French, nor can he make the pronouncing as it shall be, so he

call me "Perry."

Mon Dieu, they are awful, these

Americaine! The men! Not the women

No, no.

So it come that I have the track on the inside of the other adorners of the fair Norah. For why? Ah, M'sieu',

you ask such a question? Have I not the belle airs, the graces, the accomplishment, the charm of the true son of la belle France? Have you not seen it with your own eyes? Yes.

It is thus, M'sieu'. I take the charming

Norah to the chowder party of her father's club an' to the baseball game

an' to the horseracing an' to the opera.

But not so much to the opera as to the drama. For Norah, she say that she cannot make to like the singing of the prime donne. No, no. It is not that she have not the divine love of the art, but she say that the dagoes get too fresh nowadays anyway, an' it is not to the good to give them the encouragement by spending the money to get them to sing. Mais, certain-

ment, M'sieu', she call them all dagones. Ah, well, M'sieu', when you have the experience of me with the fair sex then you will know as I do

how to please them. So it is that I take her no more to the opera, but rather to the show where the man

stick the matchet in the head of the other man an' the audience laugh to the very much. Yes, An' I buy the ice cream an' the sodawater. Oh,

M'sieu', when one is with the Romans

he mus' make the Rome howl. Yes,

An' so I have adap' myself to the circumstance an' thus win the heart of the adorable Norah.

Thus it is that one day I make to her the questioning that she be my wife. I have the hand on my heart,

M'sieu', an' make the speech with the grace of only the true gentleman. Ah,
you should have seen me, M'sieu'.
When I p'pose it is as the picture
from the fan of Watteau, for grace,
not for the garments, that is, yes.
An' Norah, she make the blush—oh,
the divine blush—an' she drop the eye
an' say I mus' see the p'pa.

So I make the call upon M'sieu'
Patrick Dempsey at the office of himself, where he sell the street paving.
An' I tell him of my great love that I have for Norah, an' he laugh at me.
Mon Dieu! He laugh the bitter laugh
—what you call the hoss laugh. Yes,
he say to me like this:
"Perry, you are one dam fine boy,
but no daughter of mine shall make
the marry with a man that eat the frog leg. No, sare! Not on your life."

"It is not the chicken,"
he say. "Begob, none of that will I
lov' to mix."

Of course, then my heart is to the break utterly. An' when I see Norah
she weep upon my shoulder so that I have to spend fifty cents with the trier to fix the coat once more. But you know the proverb that true love make the laugh at the locksmith. So he also make the merriment at the p'pa.
Listen, I will tell it.

It is Norah that have the inspiration. An' it is I that make the inspiration the reality in action. I first have the conference with Antoine, my friend. He is the chef at the Cafe Francaise, an' he say he will be mos'
happy to help me, an' more than mos'
happy to be of assistance to the fair Norah. For he have seen her with me at the little supper on occasions.
Now, behold, the next step is to ask
the p'pa Patrick that he an' Norah
take the petite dinner with me at the Cafe Francaise. He say:
"Sure, Perry, me boy. But, remember, no frogs; just the plain dinner
of the Americans."
An' so it come that he have the seat of honor with me an' Norah at the table. An' I tell him that we have the fine spring chicken of France. An' he eat of the fine spring chicken. Oh, he eat with the mos' heartiness. Yes.
Yes. He ask for more, an' Antoine himself bring the more an' urge him that he make himself eat to the full of him. An' at the last, he make the chuckle an' say:
"Perry, they may not know much in France, but, begob, they know how to raise chickens, an' how to fry 'em,
too, head!"
Then it is that I am near to the fall
out from my chair for the laughter,
an' Norah, she too is making the giggle. An' when P'pa Patrick see the laugh that we make he ask what the joke is.
An' Norah she smile an' say:
"Oh, p'pa, dear, it is such a gran'
joke on you. It is not the chicken, but the leg of the frog that you have eaten so intensely."
Now, behold the nobility of the M'sieu' Dempsey, who have often tol'
me that he is from the line of the kings of Ireland'. He look at me an'

then at Norah, an' then he laugh until the waiters all look to the table.
Then he say:
"Sure, ye are two of the young divil,
I must say. But it will be a good 't'ing that we have all the frog-eatin' in the family, so Perry, lad, you may have her, an' God forgive the trick ye've
played on her poor of hungry daddy.
But are there any more of thim Frinch
chickens in th' kitchen?"

So you see, M'sieu', it is true that the man of gallantry was not an obstacle too much to the greatness which he have the grand passion in the heart of him. An' it is also true that the way to the heart of the p'pa-in-law is through the stomach. Yes, it is so.

THE GARROTE IN MANILA.

High Sheriff May be Compelled to Use
It at an Execution.

High Sheriff Peterson is wondering
how it feels to garrote a man, says
the Manila New American. The subject was suggested to him by the discovery that there was a murder case
on the docket of Judge Odlin's court
and that the mode of punishment prescribed by the Spanish code, under which the courts are now operated, is death in the chair.

The murderer is Lorenzo Antipadre,
charged with killing a native policeman last September in Tondo. If convicted and condemned to death, so the learned say, there is but one way to carry out the sentence: Section 101 of the code reads: "The penalty of death
shall be executed by garrote upon a scaffold."

The subject seemed to prey upon the sheriff's mind all day yesterday. He wore a preoccupied look and at times
was seen to give his hands a sharp,
twisting motion, followed by a look
of shock and disgust, as in the imagination he heard the neck crack or listened to the strangled victim's dying struggle for breath.

Opinions differed as to the form of the machine by which the death penalty was executed in years gone by.
Originally it consisted of a chair with an upright post for a back. To this was attached an iron collar, which fitted around the criminal's neck.
Through the post passed a screw, the point of which pressed upon the back of the neck of the man in the chair.
One turn of the crossbar handle of this screw forced the point through the cervical vertebrae of the condemned and killed him instantly.
This was the machine used in Cuba.

Spanish lawyers say that in the Philippines the apparatus differed in that the pointed screw and collar were absent. The back post had a broad board behind the head, through two holes in which passed ropes. The short board, narrow enough to pass
under the chin and cover the throat.
The other ends of the rope would round a drum, and when this was turned the throat piece was drawn back till the victim's wind was shut off and strangulation followed. If properly worked the shock killed instantly, but if the executioner faltered
slow death by suffocation ensued and the struggles of the unfortunate were terrible to witness and listen to.

Might Have Been Worse.
While things were humming in the ballot-room of the New York Metropolitan Opera House one day last week
a section of the ballet was called to the fore to rehearse an "Indian" ballet.
There was nothing in the girls' costumes to indicate the character of the dance, but as they came whooping and grating down the stage in front of Albertieri with their tin tomahawks,
some one looking on remarked:
"What? You got a Carrie Nation ballet?" "No," said Albertieri wearily;
"Eet eez no zo bad as zat. Eet eez only Indians."

Milling in Minnesota.
With its several hundred monster
mills Minnesota easily leads the country in its milling industry. The annual output of Minneapolis mills amounts to over 13,000,000 barrels, and the combined capacity of the state's mills is considerably over 100,000 barrels a day. The Minneapolis mills are the finest in the world, and one system of five of them grinds about 20, 000,000 bushels of wheat a year.

Diversion.
There was an old cheesemonger I knew once who was fined for having a lump of bacon fat stuck under the profile side of his butter scales. I spoke to him about it as delicately as I could. "I didn't ought to ha' done it so clumsy, o' course," he said. "But
you see my weights was all wrong, too,
and that might ha' meant imprisonment. So I had to divart suspicion."

No Horse Races for Buenos Ayres
Officials.
The mayor of Buenos Ayres has issued an order prohibiting those municipal employees who handle the public funds from attending the races. An investigation has shown that on race
days a majority of the office holders were not to be found at their posts, but at the race track.

His Admission.
"I hear that you are engaged, Gold-
thorp," said Sterlingworth. "Is it
time for congratulations?" "Well, I won't acknowledge that," replied the happy young man, "but I'm about to confer upon a certain young lady the right to select my neckties for me."

Marked Among Men

The face of Oliver Cromwell was dis-
figured with moles, pimples and warts.
He must have been very proud of them,
however, for when his portrait was being painted by Sir Peter Lely he swore
he would not pay for it unless all these facial disfigurements were quite clearly shown.

Hogarth, the famous painter, has a prominent scar on his forehead which was the result of an accident in his early days. He made this appear still more prominent in a portrait of himself which he painted with his own hand.

The great Napoleon was subject to epileptic seizures, one of which, it has been said, lost him the battle of Waterloo, although most people believe his defeat was accomplished by the Duke of Wellington.

Lord Nelson lost one of his eyes,
and his left arm had to be amputated
as the result of a wound sustained in one of his numerous engagements.
These deformities do not appear to have affected the great admiral's abilities, and on one famous occasion he found his blind eye particularly useful.

Wolsley Has Only One Eye.
Viscount Wolsley, the late commander-in-chief, has the use of only one of his eyes. He was deprived of the sight of the other in the Crimean war, a few days before the capture of Sebastopol.

As is well known, the Emperor William of Germany suffers from semi-paralysis of the left arm, and his father, the Emperor Frederick, died of a chronic affection of the throat.

Few people are aware of the curious throat trouble from which Lord
Brougham, the eminent lord chancellor, was a constant sufferer. At the back of his throat there was a kind of a pouchlike cavity, which not only diverted the food from its proper channel, but caused him infinite pain.

Lord Byron, who was otherwise a magnificent specimen of a man, had a club foot, of which he was anything but proud. It, however, detracted from his appearance and hindered locomotion. It did not hamper his genius.
Byron was possessed of a morbid fear
of going out of his mind.

Insanity Not Uncommon.
Indeed, all poets are said to be more or less mad. Cowper was certainly subject to fits of lunacy, as was I Ke-

Famous Keepers of "Pubs"

Potter Palmer and the Astors are not the only people of wide reputation
who are in the hotel business. In novels of English life it is always the retired butler who sets up a "pub"; but
in English real life—which, by the way,
is always vastly different from the life of the English novel—it is often
"his lordship" who opens the hotel.
Lord Spencer is the proprietor of two hotels in Northamptonshire. The one at Harleston is managed by Canon
Bury, the rector of the parish. Lady
Lechmere conducts the Spital Beck Inn on the road from York to Scarborough and does a thriving business. Her husband, Sir Frederick Lechmere, owns several hotels, which are under his direct control. The first peer to conduct an inn was "Dick" Croker's late neighbor, Lord Wantage, who for many years ran an establishment at Ardington and gave the proceeds to charity. The house differed from others of the sort inasmuch as soup
as well as beer and spirits was sold over the bar in winter. The actor
William Terriss, who was assassinated
by a crazy man in London a short time ago, was an enthusiastic hotel keeper. He ran one of the most profitable public houses in London—
the old Market House in Russell street, Covent Garden. He was not proprietor in name only, but always ordered his stock himself, attended to the books and had his real name.

The Iron Ore Industry.
The first shipment of iron ore from the Lake Superior region was made in 1850, and it was not until 1860 that the shipments of Lake Superior ore annually exceeded 100,000 tons. Neither Connellsville coke nor any other coke exerted an appreciable influence upon the manufacture of pig iron in this country until after 1850. These dates show how late in the last century we began to utilize the raw materials that now have a world-wide reputation.

The Recrout Man.
"I trust, Brudder 'Ephraim," said the pastor, "you is still walkin' in de straight an' narrow path?" "Is sorry
to say, pahsun," replied Uncle Sam,
deep y-pentent, "Ie back side a good deal lately."—Chicago Tribune.

A Princess of Hawaii.

"That the former royal family of Hawaii had supernatural powers is still firmly believed by a very large number of the natives of those islands," says Chief Examiner Serven of the Civil Service commission. "When Commissioner Rodenberg and myself visited the city of Hilo, while we were on the islands recently, we were told
the story of the rescue of that city
from destruction by a volcano by Princess Emma of the Hawaiian royalty. The story was told us by the judge of the city and vouched for by half a dozen Americans who claimed to know personally.
"The volcano which was doing the damage is some 30 miles from the city.
It began active operations, and the stream of lava which flowed from it started straight for the city of Hilo,
covering an area about half a mile wide. The flow of lava was slow, as it gained only a small distance each day. It presented a solid wall of red-hot stone six or eight feet high, and remains to corroborate the story.
"As the lava approached the city the natives became much alarmed and were on the verge of panic, when a message came from Princess Emma.

She said that when there was any danger of the destruction of the city by the lava, if she was informed of the same, she would come to Hilo and stop its flow. This message was just in time. The lava had reached to within half a mile of the city, and the princess was sent for in great haste.
She came at once, bringing a live white
dove, a sucking pig and a bottle of native rum. The populace of the city
all followed her as she proceeded to the edge of the lava. When there she ordered the pig killed, and dipping up its blood with her fingers she sprinkled its drops on the lava, repeating the while some strange native lingo. The death of the dove followed, and its blood was likewise sprinkled on the flowing stone. Last came the rum, and this was poured as a sacrifice to the mystic power.
"The story ends here, for the lava never flowed another foot. The city of Hilo was saved, and Princess Emma, likewise all of the royal blood,
can to this day wield all-powerful
sway with the natives of Hawaii."
This year robes, especially for high toilets, are to be more worn than ever.

Prevented a Massacre.

Owing to the vigilance of Lieut.
Thomas M. Bains, Jr. of the 9th
United States Infantry, another slaughter of American troops by Indians has been averted. Bains discovered a prisoner re-entering a cell at Carbaga, Island of Samar, where several were confined, through a hole that had been let in the wall. An investigation showed a plan to fill the jail with bolo men and to call the guard which would be necessary to get the door open and then to attack
the prisoners. It also developed that the instigators were a priest and the presbiter, both of whom have been arrested together with several other prominent persons.

Under Tons of Rock.
Fifty tons of rock caved in the rapid transit tunnel at One Hundred and Sixty-seventh street and Broadway, New York, Friday, carrying death to an undetermined number of the 40 men who were at work far down below the surface in the burrow. Foreman Madden was found pinned down by tons of broken rock,
only the feet being clear of the mass
of debris. Many of the other workmen were imprisoned in a small chamber of the excavation, and their fate
will not be known until the rescuers
reach them.

Starving Russians.
The Russian minister of the interior
has proclaimed famine conditions in five more districts in the province,
namely, Samara district, Bogouit,
musk, Naroussiemon, Nicolaevoic and Stavropol. This means that the bad harvest has already made itself
so keenly felt that a special medical and relief organization is deemed necessary for these districts. It is likely that the list will be added to from time to time during the winter.

The French Way.
"It has transpired," says a special dispatch from Paris, "that the French government wanted each member of the miners' committee, which advocated Wednesday at Etienne without making public the result of its deliberations, that, in ordering a strike under present conditions he would render himself liable to a sentence of death
for inciting to civil war and that the government would prosecute if necessary. This action, it is believed, caused the committee to temporize."

The Diamond Bracelet

By MRS. HENRY WOOD,
Author of East Lynne, Etc.

CHAPTER I.

The afternoon of a hot June day was drawing towards evening, and the great world of London—for it was the height of the season—was beginning to think of dinner. In a well-furnished dressing room, the windows being open for air, the blinds drawn down to exclude the sun, stood a lady whose maid was giving the touch to her rich attire. It was Lady Sarah Hope.

"What bracelets, my lady?" asked the maid, taking a small bunch of keys from her pocket.

"None, now; it is so very hot, Alice," added Lady Sarah, turning to a young lady who was leaning back on the sofa, "have them ready displayed for me when I come up, and I will decide then."

"I have them ready, Lady Sarah," returned Miss Seaton.

"If you will be so kind, Hughes, give the key to Miss Seaton."

Lady Sarah left the room, and then the maid, Hughes, began taking one of the small keys off the ring. "I have got leave to go out, miss," she explained, "and am going directly. My mother is not well, and wants to see me. This is the key, miss."

As Miss Seaton took it, Lady Sarah reappeared at the door. "Alice, you may as well bring the jewel box down to the back drawing room. I shall not care to come up here after dinner; we shall be late as it is."

"What's that about a jewel box?" inquired a pretty looking girl, who had come from another apartment.

"Lady Sarah wishes me to bring her bracelets down to the drawing room, that she may choose which to put on. It was too hot to dine in them."

"Are you not coming in to dinner today, Alice?"

"No, I walked out, and it has tired me, as usual. I have had some tea instead."

"I would not be you for all the world, Alice! To possess so little capability for enjoying life. No, not even for you, Alice."

"Yet if you were as I am, weak in health and strength, your lot would have been so smoothed to you that you would not repine at or regret it."

"You mean I should be content," laughed the young lady. "Well, there is nothing like contentment, the sages tell us. One of my detestable school room copies used to be 'Contentment is happiness.'"

"I can hear the dinner being taken in," said Alice; "you will be late in the dining room."

As Lady Sarah's Chenevix turned away to fly down the stairs, her light, rounded form, her elastic step, all telling of health and enjoyment, presented a marked contrast to that of a Miss Seaton. Alice's face was indeed strangely beautiful; almost too refined and delicate for the wear and tear of common life; but her figure was weak and stooping and her gait feeble. Of exceedingly good family, she had suddenly been thrown from her natural position of wealth and comfort to comparative poverty, and had found refuge as "companion" to Lady Sarah Hope.

Colonel Hope was a thin, spare man, with sharp brown eyes and sharp features, looking so shrunken and short, that he must have been smugged into the army under weight, unless he had since been growing downwards. No stranger could have believed him a colonel who had seen hard service in India, for his clothes were frequently threadbare. A black ribbon supplied the place of gold chains, as guard to his watch, and a blue, tin-looking thing of a galvanizing ring did duty for another ring on his finger. Yet he was rich; of fabulous riches, people said; but he was of a close disposition, especially as regard his personal outlay. In his home and to his wife he was liberal. They had been married several years, but had no children, and his large property was not entailed; it was believed that his nephew, Gerard Hope, would inherit it, but some dispute had recently occurred, and Gerard had been turned from the house. Lady Francis Chenevix, the sister of Lady Sarah, but considerably younger, had been paying them an eight months' visit in the country, and had now come up to town with them.

Alice Seaton lay on the sofa for half an hour, and then, taking the bracelet-box in her hands, descended to the drawing rooms. It was intensely hot; a sultry, breathless heat, and Alice threw open the back windows, which, in truth made it hotter, for the sun gleamed right through the leads which stretched themselves beyond the window, over the out buildings at the back of the row of houses.

She sat down near the back window and began to put out some of the bracelets on the table before it. They were rare and rich; of plain gold, of silver, of pearl, of precious stones. One of them was of gold links, studded with diamonds. It was very valuable, and had been the present of Colonel Hope to his wife on her recent birthday. Another diamond bracelet was there, but it was not so beautiful or so costly as this. When her task was done, Miss Seaton passed into the front drawing room, and threw up one of its large windows. Still there was no air in the room. As she stood at a hand some young man, tall and powerful, who was walking on the opposite side of the street, caught her eyes. He nodded, hesitated, and then crossed the street as if to enter.

"It is Gerard!" uttered Alice, under her breath. "Can he be coming here?" She walked away from the window hastily, and sat down by the bedecked table in the other room.

"Just as I supposed!" exclaimed Gerard Hope, entering, and advancing to Alice with stealthy steps. "When I saw you at the window, the thought struck me that you were alone here, and that at dinner, Thomas happened to be airing himself at the door, so I crossed and asked him, and came up. How are you, Alice?"

"Have you come to dinner?" inquired Alice, speaking at random, and angry at her own agitation.

"I come to dinner!" repeated Mr. Hope. "Why, you know they'd as soon sit down with the hangman."

"Indeed, I know nothing about it. I was in hopes you and the Colonel might be reconciled. Why did you come in? Thomas will tell."

"No, he won't. I told him not, Alice, the idea of your never coming up till June! Some whim of Lady Sarah's I suppose. Two or three times a week for the last month have I been marching past this house, wondering when it was going to show signs of life. Is Francis here still?"

"Oh, yes; she is going to remain here some time."

"To make up for—Alice, was it not a shame to turn me out?"

"I was extremely sorry for what happened, Mr. Hope, but I knew nothing of the details. Lady Sarah said you had displeased the Colonel, and after that she never mentioned your name."

"What a show of smart things you have got here, Alice! Are you going to set up a bazaar?"

"They are Lady Sarah's bracelets."

"So they are, I see! This is a gem," added Mr. Hope, taking up the fine diamond bracelet already mentioned. "I don't remember this one."

"It is new. The Colonel has just given it to her."

"What did it cost?"

"Do you think I am likely to know? I question if Lady Sarah heard it herself."

"It never cost a farthing less than 200 guineas," mused Mr. Hope, turning the bracelet in various directions, that its rich diamonds might give out their gleaming light. "I wish it was mine."

"What should you do with it?" laughed Alice.

"Spout it!"

"I do not understand," returned Alice. She really did not.

"I beg your pardon, Alice. I was thinking of the colloquial lingo familiarly applied to such transactions, instead of to whom I was talking. I meant to raise money upon it."

"Oh, Mr. Hope!"

"Alice, that's twice you've called me 'Mr. Hope.' I thought I was Gerard's to you before I went away."

"Time has elapsed since, and you seem like a stranger again," returned Alice, a flush rising to her sensitive face. "But you speak of raising money. I hope you are not in temporary embarrassment."

"A jolly good thing for me if it turns out only temporary," he rejoined. "Look at my position! Debts hanging over my head—for you may be sure, Alice, a young man, with a limited allowance and large expectations, contract them—and thrust out of my uncle's home with the loose cash I had in my pockets, and my clothes sent after me."

"Has the Colonel stopped your allowance?"

CHAPTER II.

Mr. Hope laid down the bracelet from whence he had taken it, before he replied.

"He stopped it then, and I have not had a shilling since, except from my own resources. I first went upon tick; then I disposed of my watch and chain, and all my other little matters of value; and now I am upon tick again."

"Upon what?" uttered Alice.

"You don't understand these free terms, Alice," he said, looking fondly at her, "and I hope you may never have occasion. Frances would, she has lived in their atmosphere."

"Yes, I know what an embarrassed man the Earl is, if you allude to that. But I am grieved to hear about yourself. Is the Colonel implacable? What was the cause of the quarrel?"

"You know I was to be his heir. Even if children had come to him, he had undertaken amply to provide for me. Last Christmas he suddenly sent for me, and to'd me it was his pleasure and Lady Sarah's that I should take up my abode with them. So I did, glad to get into such good quarters, and stopped there, like an innocent, unsuspecting lamb, till—when was it, Alice?—April. Then the plot came out. They had fixed upon a wife for me, and I was to hold myself in readiness to marry her at any given moment."

"Who was it?" inquired Alice, in a low tone, as she bent her head over the bracelets.

"Never mind," said Mr. Hope, "it wasn't you. I said I would not have her, and they bethed me and Lady Sarah, pulled me and my tests to pieces, and assured me I was a monster of ingratitude. It provoked me into confessing that I liked somebody else better, and the Colonel turned me out."

Alice looked her sorrow, but she did not express it.

"And since then I have been having a fight with my creditors, putting them off with fair words and promises. But they have grown incredulous, and it has come to doing. In favor with my uncle and his acknowledged heir, they would have given me unlimited time and credit, but the breach is known, and it makes all the difference. With the value of that at my disposal!"—nodding at the bracelet—"I should stop some pressing trifles and go on again for awhile. So you see, Alice, a diamond bracelet may be of use even to a gentleman, should some genial fortune drop such into his hands."

"I sympathize with you very much," said Alice, "and I wish I had it in my power to aid you."

"Thank you for your kind wishes; I know they are genuine. When my uncle sees the name of Gerard Hope figuring in the insolvent list, or among the outlays, he—Hark! can they be coming up from dinner?"

"Scarcely yet," said Alice, starting up simultaneously with herself, and listening. "But they will not sit long today because they are going to the opera. Gerard, they must not find you here."

"And get you turned out as well as myself! No! not if I can help it, Alice!"—suddenly laying his hands upon her shoulders, and gazing down into her eyes—"do you know who it was I had learned to love, instead of—of the other?"

She gasped for breath, and her color went and came.

"No; no; do not tell me, Gerard."

"Why, no, I had better not under present circumstances, but when the good time comes—for all their high-sounding indignation must and will blow over—then I will! and here's the pledge of it." He bent his head, took one long, earnest kiss from her lips, and was gone.

Agitated a most to sickness, trembling and confused, Alice stole to look after him, terrified lest he might not escape unseen. She crept partly down stairs, so as to obtain sight of the hall door and make sure that he got out in safety. As he drew it open, there stood a lady just about to knock. She said something to him and he waved his hand toward the staircase. Alice saw that the visitor was her sister, a lady well married and moving in the fashionable world. She met her and took her into the front drawing room.

"I cannot stay to sit down, Alice; I must make haste back to dress, for I am engaged to three or four places tonight. Neither do I wish to horrify Lady Sarah with a visit at this untoward hour. I had a request to make to you and thought to catch you before you went in to dinner."

"They are alone and are dining earlier than usual. I was too tired to appear. What can I do for you?"

"In one word—I am in pressing need for a little money. Can you lend it me?"

"I wish I could," returned Alice; "I am so very sorry. I sent all I had to poor mamma the day before we came to town. It was only £25."

"That would have been of no use to me; I want more. I thought if I had been misering up your salary you might have had a hundred pounds or so by you."

Alice shook her head.

"I should be a long while saving up a hundred pounds, even if I don't mamma had no wants. But I fear to her what I can spare. Do not be in such a hurry," continued Alice, as her sister was moving to the door. "At least wait one minute till I fetch you a letter received from mamma this morning in answer to mine. You will like to read it, for it is full of news about the old place. You can take it home with you."

TRIMMED HAT FOR "MERIKY."

America Too Big for an English Woman and She Returned.

One day a stout person penetrated from the laundry to the drawing-room door, hastily pulling down the sleeves over her scarlet muscular arms. "If you please, Missus," she said, "doest' think th' young lady as is so clever at trimmin' th'ats' a'd be so kind as to trim me oop one? A' 'ardly like to ask, but hoo's that kind a' thowt a'd try." The young lady, a visitor in the house, was greatly taken with the idea, and the dolly tub was left to itself for a time while Eliza expounded her views, which were definite, as to choice among the prevailing fashions. When the work of art was completed she expressed high satisfaction. "A' wanted to lulk well wen a' goes over there to my son and 'is family, 'd'yo see?" "Over where, Eliza?" "Why, over at Meriky, Missus; a'm going to see just now. A' meant to las year, but I couldn't save quite enough for th' passage money; now w' yo' washin' all winter that's a' right, so a'm goin' over in th' Teutonic week after next to 'ave a look round at them aw'. There's my sister's 'usband out to since last Barnaby, and my neebour as well. While work's been slack in town, folks thowt they'd try th' other side." So Eliza tried the other side, too, but not finding it to her liking, returned to Milltown and reappeared at the wash tub with as little in the way of travelers' tales as any one who ever left her native land.—Nineteenth Century.

Reforms in Old Mexico.

President Diaz is said to be considering plans to check the trusts in Mexico. One of the greatest of these is the Great Mexican Lottery, with drawings once a month in the City of Mexico. Does Diaz contemplate any interference with that?—St. Louis Star.

THE TIME TO LAUGH.

SOME GOOD JOKES, ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

The Big Bostonian Got a Seat, but Had to Take Keen Retort in the Bargain—A Quiet Retreat—Uncle Rastus' Philosophy.

PERFECTLY PLAIN.

Uncle Rastus, who was seeking information concerning mushrooms, had been referred by a preternaturally solemn student to the professor of botany, and with hat in hand he was addressing that dignitary.

"Would yo' mind tellin' me, Mistah Mandrake," he said, "how to 'stinguish a musharoon I'm a toadstool?"

"Willingly," replied the professor. "In the first place, you must remember that the amanita phalloides, or deadly agaric, closely resembles the agaricus campestris, or edible fungus, which is our common variety and absolutely innocuous. Next it will be necessary to fix firmly in your mind the distinguishing marks or characteristics of the agaricus campestris, which are these: A pileus not covered with excrecence-like scales; gills of a brownish purple when mature; stalk solid and approximately cylindrical; ring near middle of stalk; base not bulbous and not sheathed by membrane. The distinguishing characteristics of the amanita phalloides, or deadly agaric, are these: Pileus destitute of distinct excrecences; white gills, hollow stalk; large ring, and prominent bulb at base, with membranous upper margin. Bearing these points of differentiation fully in mind, you will never be at a loss to determine which variety you encounter in any given case."

"Yes, suh," said Uncle Rastus, turning his hat round and round in his fingers. "I un'stand dat all right, but how's I gwine tell 'em apart?"—Chicago Tribune.

HE GOT A SEAT.

A man who looked from his physical proportions as if he could back up any remark he might care to make in public, boarded a Boston (Mass.) car the other night. The car was filled, but the man happened to get in a row which held only four passengers. None of them made any sign of an intention to move up and give him a seat. He hinted repeatedly, but received no encouragement, and finally said gruffly, so as to be heard by every passenger in the car:

"These benches are made for five human beings or four car hogs."

His rebuke caused a general laugh, which was quickly turned on him when one of the four men arose to leave the car. As he stepped off he remarked:

"You are mistaken. These benches were made for four—three human beings and one car hog. Take your seat."

A QUIET RETREAT.

The doctor recommended me to go to a farmhouse for two weeks this summer," said the man of nerves, "and I'm wondering if he ever passed a night outside of a city. On my first night the tree toa's kept me awake, on my second the roosters crow'd a fog midnight on, and in my third a big bullfrog in the horse pond didn't permit me to close my eyes. I got up next morning and to'd the farmer I couldn't stand it and must go, and he heard me in surprise and said:

"Why, man, I've had summer boarders here who got so insomniac nights that they had to drive the old bull up and twist his tail to make him beller and keep them company!"

"You said," asserted the irate customer, "that this tonic would make hair grow."

"I did," admitted the clerk.

The customer removed his hat and showed a head as smooth as a billiard ball.

"I've been usin' that tonic for three months," he said.

"Oh, that's all right," answered the clerk promptly. "You have no hair to grow. If you had the tonic would work all right. What more can you expect?"

NOW HE KNOWS.

"I have read a good deal about killing mosquitoes with kerosene," said the breathless man who had climbed six flights of stairs to ask the question, "and I wish you would tell me how they do it."

"They drown 'em in it," responded the clerk promptly. "If you bet that they sink 'em in the kerosene and touch a match to them you have lost. Call again."

FOOLING A THEATER AUDIENCE.

APROPOS OF THE WAVE OF MELODRAMA now almost engulfing the local stage, Justice Jerome recalls this story of his father, the late Lawrence R. Jerome, who as "Larry" Jerome was one of the best known of the old school of practical jokers and "men about town."

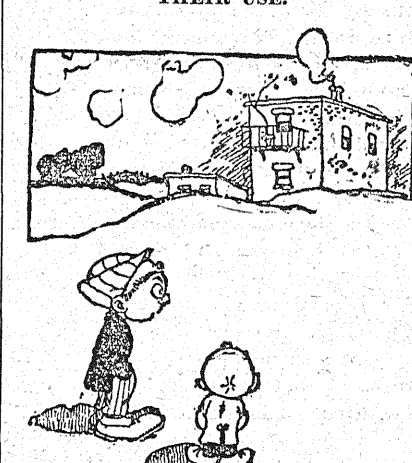

With a friend Mr. Jerome was watching the progress of a real heart thriller of the old days, the plot, of course, revolving about the disposition of a mortgage that threatened to thwart the happiness of the heroine—the charming Mrs. John Hoey, in her day as popular as any actress of these times.

With the plot at its thickest, the heroine in despair, the villain triumphant, and the outlook in every way dark for the persecuted girl as the curtain was descending at the end of the third act, "Larry" Jerome, with tears rolling down his cheeks, rose from his seat and in most impassioned tones, his voice broken with sobs, but audible all over the house, exclaimed to his companion:

"By heaven, Tom, I'll pay that mortgage myself!"

Then this consummate old joker and clever actor strolled out into the lobby to enjoy one of the biggest sensations of a first night audience at Wallack's had had in their lives. Incidentally too, the ruse of Jerome's helped materially to the making of the play.—New York Times.

JOHNNY ON THE CAMEL.

The camel is a large and homely animal and has warts on its knees. You can ride a camel if you want to, but I would rather pay 15 cents and walk. Still, if anybody needs exercise and has a camel I think he ought to ride him. The camel is a very patient animal. He will chew his victuals five minutes and still not have them ready to swallow, but keeps on chewing. The camel frequents deserts and caravans, and has one or two lumps on his back. He is often spoken of in the Bible and in Ben-Hur. We ought to read our Bibles every day and be good. One time there was a lion that dared a camel to run a race, and the camel took him up. They ran three times around the glittering arena and neither one was ahead, but when they dashed under the wire on the home stretch the camel straightened out his neck and won by nearly six feet. The camel has three compartments in his stomach and his hair is useful for making shawls and paint brushes.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Flowing of Metals.

It is, perhaps, not generally known that one of the most important properties of metals employed in striking coins and medals, and stamping and shaping articles of jewelry is that of flowing under pressure. Standard silver is remarkable for this property, which precisely resembles the flowing of a viscous fluid. The flow takes place when the metal is subjected to rolling, stamping or hammering, and the particles of metal are thus carried into the sunken parts of the die without fracturing, and a perfect impression is produced.

PROMPT DELIVERY H. L. HUNT

A Monday dispatch from Vassar says:—For the past two weeks Cass river, from Caro down to Saginaw, has been filled with dead fish. Such quantities have been thrown on the shores, and the stench has been so great that public health is in great danger. The common council has been employed burying the dead fish, but still it does not relieve the case. It is supposed that the drainage of lime water and acids from the Peninsular Co's sugar factory is the cause of the trouble.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ENTERPRISE.
Dear Sir:—I take this means of informing my friends and the public in general of my wonderful cure by Dr. Morrison of the Detroit Clinic. I have suffered for years with diseases of the heart, kidney, stomach and bladder. I have been treated by many doctors and received no benefit and concluded that my case was incurable, but on the first of May I consulted Dr. Morrison at Cass City and he told me that he could cure me. He has kept his word for I am cured and I want every one to know it, for after curing me it seems as if he could cure any one, for I think I was as bad as any one could be.

A Fiendish Attack. An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at T. H. Fritz's Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Merchants sometimes wonder why farmers send to those large department stores for goods. It is easily answered. Before them they have a large advertisement, circular letters and other such things telling them about the goods, qualities, price, etc., and having nothing else to prove that they can get the same here for just about the same price, with quality probably a little better, they send away. They are not entirely to blame for this; the merchants are, for with a comparatively small sum of money, many hundreds of dollars could be kept at home by the merchants doing a little judicious advertising, either by circular letter or by an appropriate space in their home paper.

A Report from Supt. J. C. Gluck Reform School, Pruntytown, W. Va. Oct. 18th, 1900.
