NEW R. R. SCHEME

Proposed Branch of P. O. & N. R. R. from Wilmot to Lexington.

Last Saturday's Detroit Free Press contained the following:

Port Huron, Mich., May 15.—A brand new project is now being agitated to give Lexington direct railroad communication, a luxury which she has long since craved. Her hopes have often been raised high only to be doomed to disappointment, but the present plan seems very feasible. The latest project is to extend a branch of the Pontiac, Oxford and Northern Railroad from Wilmot, through Sanilac Centre and Crosswell. This would traverse one of the richest farming districts of Sanilac County and also accommodate the new beet sugar factory at Crosswell. The interests of this section would receive an outlet by the way of Pontiac, over the Grand Trunk, and get into more direct communication with Detroit.

Arthur M. Clark, of Lexington, was in the city to day in conference with Manager W. C. Sanford, of the P. O. & N., and with Attorney Frank T. Lodge, of Detroit, at which the movement was fully discussed and the claims of Lexington to railroad advantages presented. Some pretend to see in the plan a scheme on the part of the Grand Trunk system to gain a hold on the Thumb's business by this extension, and assert that Grand Trunk interests are behind the project. The most enthusiastic believe that the projected extension is only a link in a contemplated line from Port Huron to Bay City, as with a twenty-four mile extension from Lexington here, and a like extension at the other end, the through route between the two cities would be complete.

The Port Huron Times says:—The road would kill off Gill. Lovejoy's blue print line from Lenox to Emmet, Yale and Crosswell. It would also form the longest link in the long discussed line from Port Huron to Bay City, as it is proposed to take almost the exact route of that line.

Ex-County Clerk Michael Reid, of Emmet, says there is no question that the Grand Trunk railway will build a branch from Emmet to Bay City. The men engaged in surveying have had orders to rush the work and it is expected that rail laying will begin about the first of July.—Port Huron Times.

Lovejoy's surveying party reached Sanilac Centre last evening but the preliminary survey this far will not be completed before the end of the week. Gil himself was here yesterday, Thursday, and says that he is willing to put up any kind of a bond with those that doubt if the road will be built. He seems to thoroughly believe in it himself. The survey will stop at Sanilac Centre for the present for the reason, Gil says, that he wants to get the road in operation from Sanilac Centre first.—Sanilac Republican.

The surveyors of the Lovejoy-Lenox-Sanilac Centre railroad are now well on this side of Yale, and Brother Graham predicts that the road will be completed to Peck by fall. In the meantime "Pa" Keyes, of the Lexington News, has given up talking railroad until navigation closes up again in the fall.—Marlette Leader.

Monday's Electrical Storm

The most serious damage yet reported from the storm on Monday, resulted to the barns of Jas. Profit, north of town. Alterations were being made and M. Anthes and crew had the barns raised for the placing of stone foundations. Duncan Crawford was also doing some new framing and had charge of the carpenter work. Several men were at work, when they noticed that the wind was carrying the entire structure from the blocking and a rush was made for safety. All got out of danger except Mr. Profit himself, who rushed to the team standing near by, and with them was thrown into a heap, but most fortunately escaped injury, as did also the horses. The barn did not collapse, but was so injured that it had to be taken down and rebuilt.

A. A. Hitchcock was attending to a farm team during the electrical storm on Monday, when one of the horses fell from an electrical shock and Archie was somewhat dazed himself, but neither was seriously injured.

During the storm on Monday evening, the screen door at Brian's restaurant was thrown back against the window, breaking the upper light, which fell inward, breaking a show case.

The electric current, during Monday's storm, struck J. D. Tuckey's hog house, and although no fire resulted, two fine brood sows were killed and four others slightly injured.

RURAL EXAMINATION.

Twenty-three Pupils Representing Eight Schools Took in the Examination. Twenty-three pupils took the eighth grade rural examination at the High School room on Saturday, their names being as follows: Taddie M. Beebehyser, Harry Orandal, Ethel Charlton, Ellen Julia DeDong, Ernest Deming, Gertrude Deming, James Gulick, Mary E. Gulick, Leslie P. Keopfgan, Mae Little, Bulah Martin, Irene Martin, Maggie McArthur, Myrtle Parks, Adam Pasage, Hazel Russel, Edwin Smith, Edna Spencer, Julia A. Sprague, Alice Striffler, Edie Wallace, Laura B. Wright, and Edna Young. The greater number of these pupils wrote on part of the eighth grade subjects last February, and it is expected that many, if not all, will obtain diplomas and enter the High School in September. No young person should think of trying to get along with anything less than a high school education in this twentieth century. The teachers who were represented by their pupils are Miss Maud Hamilton, Chas. A. McComb, Miss Bessie Miller, Miss Kate Miller, Miss Maty Spurgeon, Miss Turner, Miss Hattie Wheeler and Guy Woolman.

Another Stabbing Affair.

Jake Coffeld, the most notorious gun and knife fighter in the thumb, got into an altercation Monday with Wesley Parent, a farmer's son, living near Bad Axe, and seriously stabbed Parent in the abdomen. Jake claims self defense. He was arrested by Sheriff Rowe next afternoon and is now awaiting his hearing in the county jail on a charge of malicious assault. Coffeld was born in Missouri and is an ex-confederate soldier. He came to this country about 20 years ago and since then has been in a continuous warfare with his neighbors. He has been arrested numberless times and served one term in Jackson for fighting.

Photograph of Pueblo Indian Squaw and Child

Indians, as a rule, evince much dread of the camera, and their photographs are consequently difficult to secure, but the artist who took the above picture seems to have successfully overcome any scruples that existed, judging by the gracefulness of the pose and the expressions of pleasure on the faces. This photograph was taken in New Mexico, and the subjects are a Pueblo Indian squaw and her daughter. The picturesque costumes add to the effect.

BABY SWEEPED 500 FEET THROUGH A 14-INCH PIPE.

Through a brimming 14-inch irrigation pipe little Johnnie McAlannan was swept under ground 500 feet at Monrovia, Cal., and was hurled out at the end, sound as a dollar.

The little chap, who is only thirteen months old, tumbled into the pipe by accident and instantly was swept into the roaring stream that poured through the small opening.

It was his investigative turn of mind that led Johnnie into his lively adventure. A twenty-two inch stand-pipe, which was located within the range of Johnnie's playground attracted his curiosity. He concluded he would make an investigation into its mysteries. He could hear the water roaring down below and could catch sight of its dancing surface in the dark recess, but the rest he could not make out. He spent much of his time in trying to solve the mystery. He wanted to see where the water went and what else there was down there in the strange place.

He leaned far over the edge of the standpipe, staring down into the black abyss. The standpipe connected with the 14-inch irrigating pipe, which was running full of water.

"Look out, Johnnie, you'll fall," cried Johnnie's twelve-year-old lame brother, who was near by, watching Johnnie was too intent on his investigation to pay any attention.

He climbed up on top of the stand pipe, put his feet over and peered down.

Splash! Johnnie's little body shot out of sight down the standpipe and disappeared. Instantly it was caught by the swirling current and forced into the narrow orifice, the water carrying him with a rush through the pipe.

This little lame brother saw the boy fall. With a cry he jumped to his feet. He remembered in his excitement that the pipe emptied into a ditch about 450 or 500 feet away. There he ran as fast as his crippled legs would carry him, expecting to see ground, and the man began to roll him vigorously over and over. For half an hour this was kept up, the man stopping every few moments to shake little Johnnie violently.

After half an hour of it the little body showed signs of returning animation and the boy began to revive. Natural respiration was quickly restored and after a few minutes the child opened his eyes. He was perfectly composed, and not at all concerned over his violent ride through the narrow pipe. He had not even a bump to show for his exciting adventure.

The little fellow was taken home none the worse for his experience and very cheerful. He seemed to be more interested in getting something to eat than in bothering about his case.

A physician was called in and made a thorough examination. The boy was found to be perfectly well and sound. Not a single abrasion or bruise could be discovered on his face or body.

Still Much Uncultivated Land. Seventy-five acres in every hundred of England, Wales, and Ireland are cultivated, but in Scotland only twenty-five acres in the hundred. England and Wales still have over 2,600,000 acres of common and forest land. The largest tract of uncultivated land in England is Darimoor, which is 22 miles long and 20 miles wide, occupying about one-fifth of the whole county of Devon. Next comes the New Forest, which contains 64,000 acres. Yorkshire has in all 365,000 acres of moorland and mountain.

The British Coast. The seas around the coast of the British isles are mostly narrow. The greatest width of the English channel is between Portland Bill and St. Malo—140 miles. It narrows to 20 1/2 miles at one point in the Straits of Dover. The distance between Great Britain and Ireland is even less. Tor Head is only 12 miles from the nearest point of the Mull of Cantire. Between Carnsore point and St. David's head, in Wales, 47 miles is the least breadth of water.

Eggshell Farm for Children. An eggshell farm is a part of one of the primary school departments of study in this city. Each child takes an eggshell about two-thirds whole. The child's name is written on the shell and after a lesson on soils sufficient earth is placed in the shell to fill it. Each one in a room is given the same kind of seed to plant. After the plant becomes too large for the shell the child is encouraged to take it home and plant it in a large garden. The teachers aim to teach the complete life history of the plant from seed to seed.—Buffalo Express.

RIVER THAT IS ALWAYS PEACEFUL

Androscoogin Never Floods Country, Because of Dams.

"In all the reports of storm and flood, disaster and death, there is one great river—the outlet of Lake Umbagog, which debouches from the lake about forty miles and a trifle east of north of Mount Washington in New Hampshire, like the Nile from Albert Nyanza, a river of sufficient depth and breadth to float the steamers that ply in summer on the lake—that is seldom heard from," said a former New Hampshire man recently.

"The Androscoogin in all the trouble and tumult continues to flow on untroubled to the sea, carrying blessings without number to the land and people, the cattle on a thousand hills, birds of the air and creeping things.

"The region of this river is not exempt from conditions prevailing elsewhere. The Connecticut river, on the other side of the state and at the lakes but twenty miles away, is doing its share in the way of dams carried out, farms and towns inundated and ice gorges, fetching death and destruction in their course.

"Why, every one will ask, is the Androscoogin peaceful when all others are disturbed; harmless when others are bent on devastation? The answer is easy. A plain man, now deceased, Coe by name, and with a great head for business, who owned saw mills on the river, had the wisdom to spend thousands in order to save millions, holding the flood from water back when it would do only harm and having it for use during the long summer, when it would do good only. He dammed the Androscoogin at its principal sources. These dams form three great lakes in the wilderness covering the divide between the waters flowing through New England and those flowing back into the St. Lawrence, which holds back the flood until the storm is past.

"Thus one wise man did at his own expense for the people of two states," concluded the New Hampshire man, according to the Washington Star, "what great so-called commonwealths have not had the wisdom or enterprise to do."

SOUND PRAISES OF PINGPONG

Champion Player Says the Game Is Better Than Lawn Tennis.

The worst thing about pingpong is its name. This is the opinion of Kreigh Collins, the champion pingpong player of Chicago. He has played lawn tennis—in fact, was the champion of the West for two years—and he has played pingpong, and having compared the relative merits of the two games he asserts that the parlor brand is the more scientific.

"Pingpong requires more accuracy than lawn tennis," says Mr. Collins. "The reasons for this are that the balls and rackets used are lighter and it is more difficult to direct the course of a ball than in tennis. Another reason why more accuracy is required is that the playing space is smaller and where in tennis one can use one's legs to good advantage in pingpong practically everything depends upon the cleverness shown by the player in using his arms.

"Pingpong is in reality quite a game. In fact, I consider it the best indoor sport I have ever tried. It is easily played if amusement alone is sought after, and if a player desires to become skilled and proficient in handling the racket it also affords an excellent opportunity for practice and development. Then there is in addition to these advantages the vigorous exercise secured by playing the game with the added fascination of testing your own skill in handling a ball.

"I always was fond of tennis and still regard it as one of the best outdoor sports, but in many respects pingpong has it beaten. The two are played in practically the same way, but in pingpong one must be more guarded in one's plays than in tennis, for the reasons I have already explained. The same strokes apply to both games, however."

The West Tested Roosevelt. On Mr. Roosevelt's famous campaigning trip across the country in the fall of 1900, it became apparent that some of the plainsfolk were hardly satisfied that what they had heard of the candidate for vice president was not too good to be true. So there developed a unique system for the entertainment of the distinguished guest. He was mounted on the most spirited—and not always the most neighborhood—broken-horse in the neighborhood and was invited to go for a ride with a number of eminent citizens who wanted to "show him the country." Sooner or later in the course of that ride he would be decoyed to a stretch of open plain; the pace would be gradually increased until the ride became a breakneck race in which only the stoutest-hearted and steadiest-headed riders could hold their own. Time and again did this occur and no one was less disturbed by the practice than was Gov. Roosevelt.—May Ladies' Home Journal.

GOOD GHOST STORY

Spirit Shows Itself to Occupant of Its Old Room in Boarding House—Its Costume.

Miss Isabel Haggood of New York told a ghost story that is strictly up to date at the last meeting of the Nineteenth Century Club.

"I should like to know what it all means," she said. "I live in a boarding house in which there lived for some time in one room a man whom I knew for years. I didn't like him. I tell this to eliminate myself from any connection with the supposed psychic influences involved.

"He was taken suddenly ill and died. He was seized with pneumonia and in twenty-four hours was dead. That was in November. The room in which he died was fumigated, papered, painted, refurnished, and in fact in almost every way renovated thoroughly.

"Some time later a woman came to live in the house and got that room. She is not a sentimentalist or a psychic or a clairvoyant or a medium or a professed believer in spiritualism. She is just a plain business woman.

"One day in January she came to me—she happens to sit next to me at table—and said: "Do you know, I believe some one must have died in the room I occupy?" "I asked her why, and she replied: "Well, my mother, who is dead, has sometimes appeared to me, and she never comes except when something dreadful is going to happen—a loss of money or something else bad. But last night after I had gone to bed and was resting, but hadn't gone to sleep, I suddenly saw a man at the foot of my bed. I thought right away I had forgotten to lock my door and I got up. I went to the door and found that I had not forgotten. It was locked. The man had vanished."

"I asked her to describe the man. She did so minutely, and every detail of his appearance answered the description of the former occupant of the room who had died there, the man I knew, except one.

"How was he dressed?" I asked. "He was in his nightshirt," said she, and at this even the sedate members of the club laughed.

"Had he appeared to me, I believe that he would have been clothed otherwise," said Miss Haggood, quickly, "but even to the gray lock she told his every likeness. Now I would like to have you explain that."

Miss Haggood addressed her request for information to a lecturer who had been speaking to the club on the subject of "Progress in Psychological Research." But she didn't get an explanation of the incident she had related.

SEEK BURIED TREASURE

Expedition Soon to Set Out to Explore Is and in the South Atlantic Ocean.

Another company is being organized in England for the purpose of searching for buried treasure. This time it is an uninhabited island in the South Atlantic Ocean, and the treasure said to be buried there consists of loot from Peruvian churches valued at more than five million dollars. This is to be the second treasure-seeking expedition to this particular island.

Mr. E. F. Knight, the promoter of the company, made his first attempt to find the buried loot fifteen years ago, when he became the repository of secret information, together with a plan relating to the deposit upon an uninhabited island of treasure forming the loot of Peruvian churches. At that time Mr. Knight solicited the co-operation of a few young men of good physique who could each contribute five hundred dollars toward expenses, and would take an active part in the operations both aboard ship and in unearthing the treasure.

He got so many responses that he had no difficulty in picking out a most desirable party of young men to assist in the undertaking. The treasure, when found, was to be evenly divided.

The steam yacht Alert was chartered, and the adventurers sailed from Southampton on August, 1889. This expedition safely reached and explored the island, but failed to find the hidden loot. This was because it turned out that neither the ship nor her equipment was large enough for the work to be done, and that the most favorable season of the year had been allowed to pass before the arrival of the expedition at the romantic "Treasure Island."

For the forthcoming expedition a larger and better equipped ship is to be chartered. The island is to be systematically and thoroughly searched from end to end for the treasure, which consists of money, gems and gold and silver ornaments.

The party of 1889 endeavored to find the loot by laborious digging, but it is now intended to adopt the more feasible and common sense method of boring from the surface downward to suitable depths and testing.

Every participant in the treasure-hunting party will be young, healthy and ready to take his share of hard work. A capital table is to be kept and served by a capable chef, while not a few luxuries, in addition to wines, spirits and cigars will be obtainable as "extras." Ample fishing gear will form a part of the yacht's equipment, and there will also be a piano. So the treasure seekers are already assured of an enjoyable trip even if they do not find any buried treasures.

Finding What You Seek

Minister Tells of Cases of an Optimist and a Pessimist Who Illustrated an Old Truth.

"I used to know a man who had a habit of carrying odd stones in his pockets," said a minister. "He was a busy man, but in his moments of leisure he studied mineralogy and became a connoisseur on the subject.

"He classified his own collection and after some years it was examined by an expert and appraised at a value of $17,500. He confessed that he had picked up most of his treasures in streets and besides paths where others saw only worthless things.

"Recently I traveled abroad with a young man recently graduated from a famous university. He expressed the belief that this country is in the hands of unscrupulous politicians, that the government aims to rob its new possessions, that the churchgoers are generally hypocrites and that the capitalist class to which he belongs by inheritance is deliberately impoverishing the masses. His allusions to his own experiences showed that he was finding what he expected to find.

"In the same traveling party was a man well past 70. He was full of hope for the future of his country; he had good stories to tell of comradeship with men dead and living.

"He smiled to every child he met and had a kind word for every person he met. Everywhere men, women and children were eager to talk with him and to do him service. When he reached home he probably said that he had never met so many agreeable people nor had so enjoyable a trip.

"Seems to me that each of these two men found just what he looked for and that most other folks will have the same experience. Those who look for selfish motives and evil purposes live in a world where they see evidence of corruption everywhere. Those who expect the best from their fellow men are always making discoveries which delight them.

"It is simply the difference between the mineralogist and his neighbors. He found something valuable and they found nothing, because they were not looking for anything of value and he was."—New York Sun.

Mexicans Take to English. The progress that the English language has made in Mexico in the last few years is remarkable, says Modern Mexico. It has not been long since French was easily the second language of the country, but today it is effectually replaced by English. Where a half-dozen years ago only the larger establishments of those catering particularly to foreign trade employed English-speaking clerks, today it is possible for an American to make his wants known in his own language in every store of any importance. The demand for English newspapers, magazines and books among the better classes throughout the country has increased to a notable extent. So much of the important business transactions in Mexico today has an international character, and so many English-speaking foreigners are interested in business concerns of the country that professional men find the language almost a necessity in order to secure their share of a very profitable part of the business. How Pearls Are Formed.

The origin of pearls has been a subject of much speculation. About 150 years ago Philippi of Turin announced that a living organism forms the nucleus, and in a recent investigation M. Ralph Duvois, a French naturalist, has shown that all pearls found in a common pearl-bearing mollusk are cysts inclosing distomes—small marine worms. In the month of August, when few pearls are obtained, the tiny young distomes, a fiftieth of an inch in diameter, are to be seen instead as reddish yellow points. These become gradually coated with carbonate of lime, in an early stage appearing as black specks and later as brilliant pearls, which remain until the following summer, when they drop to pieces, and the parasite resumes activity and reproduces its kind. But if the parasite dies the crust continues to grow, a large and beautiful pearl being but the sarcophagus of a long-dead worm.

Heid on to a Chair. Palmer, Mo., May 10th.—Mrs. Lucy Compton has for the past eight or ten years suffered a great deal of pain and sickness. She had Kidney Trouble with an awful pain in her back, which was so bad at many times that she could scarcely get about at all.

"I have been down with my back for the past eight or ten years," she says, "and sometimes so bad that I could not get around only by holding on to a chair or some other object.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have given me more relief than anything I have ever used.

"After I had used the first box I was almost entirely cured of this dreadful trouble.

"I can truthfully recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any woman suffering as I had suffered for so long."

Mrs. Compton's cure was certainly a remarkable one.

MISS BONNIE DELANO

A Chicago Society Lady, in a Letter to Mrs. Pinkham says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Of all the grateful daughters to whom you have given health and life, none are more glad than I.

"My home and my life was happy until illness came upon me three years ago. I first noticed it by being irregular and having very painful and scanty menstruation; gradually my general health failed; I could not enjoy my meals; I became languid and nervous, with gripping pains frequently in the groins.

"I advised with our family physician who prescribed without any improvement. One day he said, 'Try Lydia Pinkham's Remedies.' I did, thank God; the next month I was better, and it gradually built me up until in four months I was cured. St. Jacobs Oil and Vogeler's Curative Compound Cured Him.

I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism for many years. I was laid up with Rheumatic Fever for nine weeks in 1894, and again for sixteen (16) weeks in 1896. I tried many medicines I saw advertised and others I was recommended; finally I was induced to take Vogeler's Curative Compound, which did me more good than all other medicines. In fact, I feel quite a different man since I have been taking the Compound. All my neighbors and friends are quite surprised to see me about and looking so well. I can only say that Vogeler's Curative Compound taken internally and by using St. Jacobs Oil outwardly acted like magic in my case. I had been taking medicines for years without obtaining benefit, but Vogeler's has practically cured me. I have recommended Vogeler's Curative Compound to a lot of my acquaintances, and they tell me that it has worked wonders.

CHAPTER V. Russia Takes the Plunge.

Merrick's first inclination when he realized the dastardly nature of the outrage that had been perpetrated upon them was to do something in order to strike back.

When Jones had, however, weighed the situation well and knew best how to handle it.

He had Merrick stretch out upon one of the seats, and with a rug made a very fair dummy of himself upon the other. In the flickering, uncertain light it would require an extraordinarily sharp pair of eyes to discover anything wrong.

It chanced that while prowling about, looking under the seats, Jones had run across a small piece of timber some four feet long, by as many inches in diameter, which, being round, had somewhat the appearance of a post. It was an elegant substitute for a battering ram.

And Jones welcomed its appearance with more than a little satisfaction—indeed, the article itself no doubt suggested the legitimate use to which so cleverly constructed a weapon should be put.

Eagerly Jones waited, transferring his watch back and forward from one door to the other.

What was that—a hand at the window, an arm raised to hold on by some projection above?

Evidently the intruder had expected to find the window closed—at least, he had come prepared for such an obstacle.

His head saw it coming in time to lower his head, when there was a crash of glass and the whole window went to bits.

When the job of smashing the glass had been completed in such a heroic manner, the face of a man appeared in the opening.

One glance told Jones his identity—there could be no mistaking that yellow head of hair and the blazing orbs of the Russian.

If Jones had any scruples with regard to what he proposed doing they never made themselves known. He had his battering ram in readiness and at the proper time he let it go.

The projectile struck fair and square, and with enough power to tear loose the insecure grip he had upon the carriage.

Merrick heard a yell such as the Cossack of the Don gives when he meets his fate in the mad rush of battle.

"He's gone?" demanded Merrick, who was partly in the dark as to what had occurred, and eager for news, of course.

"Yes—I struck him square in the face, a tremendous blow, with this affair. It knocked him clear off the car and the bridge. I could just see his big figure go whirling down, with arms and legs extended. And I heard the splash when he struck. Ugh! it will haunt me for many a day, I guess."

The picture thus conjured up was so exceedingly dramatic and full of horror that Merrick also shuddered, although his eyes had not beheld the actual occurrence.

"You believe the big Russian is dead, then?" he asked.

"Oh! no, that would be too good; but he'll have a perfectly delightful time getting out of the mud—I heard him swearing after he struck."

The excitement over they settled down to make the best of a bad bargain.

Suddenly the little motor ahead began to send out a series of shrill, agonizing screeches such as electrified even those of strongest nerve, since it seemed to presage a dreadful catastrophe.

Jones and Merrick unconsciously sprang to their feet, and the former made as though to thrust his head out to see what was coming; but ere he could do so there came a shock that sent them both sprawling against the cushioned back of the forward seat.

When Jones and his comrade thus scrambled about among the cushions and small luggage in the endeavor to maintain some decent sort of equilibrium, they knew full well that something out of the ordinary had happened.

Perhaps accidents are far less frequent on European railways than is the case in America, where greater hazards are taken in making speed; but nevertheless they do occur at times, and with just as fearful consequences.

A hasty examination gave Merrick and Jones the pleasing information that beyond a few contusions of small moment they had not suffered any damage from the accident.

Apparently there were others who could not lay claims to such luck.

At any rate, the death-like silence that had followed the last grand crash was succeeded by cries of terror, shrieks and the hoarse voices of alarmed men calling for assistance.

These appealed to the inmates of the carriages where disaster had set more lightly—when did cries for help ever sound in vain in the ears of men who were of the Anglo-Saxon race?

Jones, forcing a door, crawled outside, followed by his comrade.

A scene of turmoil and confusion presented itself such as they must remember long.

From the windows and smashed doors of the wrecked carriages men and women were crawling with almost ludicrous haste, like terrified bees escaping from a hive into which the smoke of tobacco had been injected.

When he saw a man equal to the occasion.

Whenever he saw a head he sprang to the rescue.

Some were bruised and cut more or less, for the shake-up had been pretty rough, and flying glass carries danger with it; but it seemed as though by the mercy of Providence there were to be no fatal casualties.

While he worked, Jones was endeavoring to solve the problem as to how the accident had happened, so when he reached the vicinity of the overturned motor, he began a search for the driver.

If he had stuck by his engine the chances were that he must be underneath the helpless monster and beyond all hope of saving.

Presently, however, a voice addressed him in French, and calmly begged that he would lend a hand toward rescue; and turning, he beheld a man who, from his garb, he knew must have been on the motor, pinned down by a heavy wooden beam or log.

It was the work of but a minute to extricate the man, and as Jones hurried, he turned out to be the engine driver.

He was bruised and sore, but gave thanks that no bones seemed broken.

When Jones had hastily questioned him with the facility of a lawyer, all he discovered was that the alarm had been given when the driver found he was swooping directly down upon a pile of logs that had been purposely placed upon the track, with the intention of stopping the Nice express, and upon which a red lantern had been placed, but which signal was seen at such short range that there was not time to bring the train to a stop, though he made a desperate attempt to do so—the stoker had jumped, but he explained on his motor to see the logs fly in every direction and then find himself pinned under one, ten yards away from the track.

At least Jones had satisfied himself there was no accident but dark design back of the wreck.

What he had learned made him uneasy. If robbery was intended those who took so desperate a means of accomplishing their purpose might doubtless be found looting the wrecked coaches even now.

He started the cry of alarm and sent it along—every man became aroused by the possibility of new danger.

If Jones had any doubts as to the possibility of marauders coming from the birds of Italy.

There were other chances, political ones. France was inwardly seething—Royalists were unceasingly plotting to bring about a crisis whereby the army might swing over to their cause, and as the army went so the people would incline.

Some important dignitary in multi might be on board this train, whose capture would be a feather in the cap of the plotters.

Stranger things have happened in France ere now.

Jones, who had evolved this clever explanation from his brain, looked around to see if he could not find corroborations.

And yet he was more or less startled when he did actually discover moving figures among the trees and rocks, figures of men carrying guns, and who had apparently remained hidden until now for some reason or other.

That they were brigands their number and military precision of movement seemed to veto.

Jones dropped behind a rock and concluded to watch the game—he did not believe it was any of his funeral, but all the same it paid to be on the safe side.

Now, if they would only lay hands on the count, for instance, and carry him off, no one would shed many tears.

To Jones' surprise, however, he saw plain signals pass between the grim leader of the marauders and the man from Africa's burning sands, which proved that honest Count Leon himself was in sympathy with the secret movement not to overthrow the republic, and place the Royalists again in power.

The distressed passengers huddled together like a flock of frightened sheep, while some of the armed men stood on guard others scrutinized each group, and a few more searched the carriages, doubtless appropriating what loose valuables they discovered.

He who seemed to be a leader drew the count aside and sternly covered him with a pistol while he asked a few questions in a low voice.

Then he went direct to a carriage that had escaped injury, as though directed thither, and dragged therefrom an individual who came forth very unwillingly.

Quickly this party made an effort at defense, but was set upon by several of the marauders, disarmed and made a prisoner.

Then sharp commands were given, the armed men fell into line, and while the travelers still huddled about the fires, the mysterious force vanished as strangely as it had come, among the trees and rocks that marked that treacherous section.

Meanwhile Mark Merrick was also engaged in playing with fortune's favors.

When Jones set such a charming example of man's nobility, by rushing hither and yon, pulling unlucky passengers out of their predicament, the younger man, urged on by similar motives, started in the other direction.

HEADACHE, BACKACHE, DIZZINESS

(PE-RU-NA CURES PELVIC CATARRH.)

"I am perfectly well," says Mrs. Martin, of Brooklyn. "Peruna cured me."

Mrs. Anna Martin, 47 Hoyt street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Peruna did so much for me that I feel it my duty to recommend it to others who may be similarly afflicted. About a year ago my health was completely broken down, had backache, dizziness and irregularities, and life seemed dark indeed. We had used Peruna in our home as a tonic against colds and catarrh and I decided to try it for my trouble. In less than three months I became regular, my pains had entirely disappeared, and I am now perfectly well."—Mrs. Anna Martin.

Miss Marie Johnson, 11 Columbia, East, Detroit, Mich., is Worthy Vice Templar in Hope Lodge No. 6, Independent Order Good Templars. Miss Johnson, as so many other women also have done, found in Peruna a specific for a severe case of female weakness. She writes: "I want to do what I can to let the whole world know what a grand medicine Peruna is. For eleven years I suffered with female troubles and complications arising therefrom. Doctors failed to cure me, and I despaired of being helped. Peruna cured me in three short months. I can hardly believe it myself, but it is a blessed fact. I am perfectly well now, and have not had an ache or pain for months. I want my suffering sisters to know what Peruna has done for me."—Miss Marie Johnson.

Miss Ruth Emerson, 72 Sycamore St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for two years with irregular and painful menstruation, and Peruna cured me within six weeks. I cannot tell you how grateful I feel. Any agency which brings health and strength to the afflicted is always a welcome friend, and to-day the market is so filled with useless and injurious medicines that it is a pleasure to know of so reliable a remedy as you place before the public."—Miss Ruth Emerson.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one-year has not this remedy to greater test than the past year.

Peruna is the acknowledged catarrh remedy of the age. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, has written a book on the phases of catarrh peculiar to women, entitled, "Health and Beauty." It will be sent free by any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Won't Follow Advice After Paying for it.

In a recent article a prominent physician says, "It is next to impossible for the physician to get his patients to carry out any prescribed course of hygiene or diet to the smallest extent, he has but one resort left, namely, the drug treatment." When medicines are used for chronic constipation, the most mild and gentle obtainable, such as Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets, should be employed. Their use is not followed by constipation as they leave the bowels in a natural and healthy condition. For sale at Bond's Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Dr. C. H. Gordon, formerly of Michigan, has forwarded to State Geologist Lane a report and some illustrations bearing on the encroachments of Lake Huron upon the land in Sanilac county. Investigation shows that the encroachment has gone on at the rate of about 5.7 feet per year for the last 80 years. An actual example of the water's encroachment is shown by a farm that in 1882 contained 185 acres, but which now embodies only 157 acres.

The meanest swindler heard of is a man who has been operating in neighboring counties. His game is a dental one. He goes to a house and extracts teeth without cost, provided a new set is to go in. He calls again in a few days, gets half the price for the plate, and fails to appear again, leaving his victim minus teeth and cash. There is weeping and wailing, but owing to the circumstances no gnashing of teeth. There is, however, a terrible chewing of gum.

It often asked how such startling cures, that puzzle the best physicians are effected by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The surveyors have finished their work of running the lines and making measurements for the new dam at the Ox Bow, and work has already been commenced. Mr. Beardsley, the contractor, expects to have it completed and the machinery installed inside of ninety days. A telephone line has been put up connecting Caro with the seat of operations. From the amount of material on hand it looks as if there was sufficient to build several such dams. The prospects seem to be pretty good at present for having light and power furnished by harnessing the Cass river in the near future.—Caro Advertiser.

The Maccabee expansion fight is waxing exceedingly warm and the exchanges contain all sorts of comment, pro and con. The Port Huron Times makes apparently the fairest summing up of the matter and thinks that Major Boynton and Thomas Watson will be re-elected as Commander and Great Record Keeper, that the larger tents are about evenly divided, so that the balance of power lies with the smaller tents, the delegates from many of which will go unrepresented and open to conviction. Both sides are "whistling to keep their courage up" and the Great Camp will undoubtedly make things lively in Marquette next month.
