PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

A County Ticket Placed in Nomination on Monday.

A mass convention of the Prohibition party for this county was held at the Court House, Caro, on Monday afternoon. A. Saigeon, of Cass City, was made permanent chairman, and A. A. P. McDowell, of the same place, secretary. Josiah Tompkins, of Fostoria, and David C. Jeffery, of Kingston, were appointed tellers. The convention was opened with prayer by Rev. I. E. Springer, D. D., of Caro. The following delegates were then selected for the state convention at Detroit, Aug. 7th and 8th: Mr. and Mrs. Ad. Moreland, W. A. Heardt, Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Salyer, H. P. Doying, Wm. Van Geisen, Rev. Geo. W. Brown, A. Traver, W. C. Morford, Geo. M. Sweet, Caro; Mr. and Mrs. J. Tompkins, Rev. M. R. Saigeon, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seavey, Fostoria; A. Saigeon, A. A. P. McDowell, Nathan Hill, P. S. McGregory, Fred A. Bigelow, Rev. L. Brumm, Cass City; D. C. Jeffery, Rev. M. S. Waller, John Elliott, Rev. W. C. McAllister, Grant Allen, A. P. Jeffery, Kingston; E. G. Otis, Rev. S. P. Todd, Fairgrove; Jas. E. Dando, Gageton; A. T. Gill, Dr. B. C. Bradshaw, Nelson Cody, Walter Cody, Irving Johnson, Mayville; D. S. Woolman, Millington; John Thomas, Rev. B. E. Allen, Unionville; Silas A. Lane, Vassar; Rev. J. W. Mulholland, E. Kuntledge, Chas. Andrews, Colwood; Rev. R. C. Crossman, Rev. C. A. Lohnes, Ellington; L. E. Butler, Watrousville. The following were then placed in nomination for the various county offices:

Sheriff—Ad. Moreland, Caro; Clerk—Irving Johnson, Mayville; Treasurer—Wm. Van Geisen, Caro; Register of Deeds—Roy Lester, Caro; Prosecuting attorney—C. A. Salyer, Caro; Circuit court commissioners—Dr. D'Arcy, H. P. Doying, Caro; Coroners—Dr. B. C. Bradshaw, Mayville; A. Traver, Caro.

A new county committee was then elected as follows: Chairman, Josiah Tompkins, Fostoria; sec'y, Mrs. Tompkins; treas., A. Saigeon, Cass City. The best of feeling prevailed and all seemed hopeful of rolling up a good Prohibition vote for the county, which already stands second in the state, only being surpassed by Kent county.

Stranded in a Fog.

Confused by a thick fog the whale-back steamer A. D. Thomson and consort Sir John Whitworth, bound from Duluth to ports on Lake Erie with cargoes of iron ore, stranded early Sunday afternoon at Point aux Barques. The Thomson is reported to be leaking. The tug Colson, with a lighter and a force of men to unload the cargoes, were immediately ordered to their assistance from Port Huron, and the wrecker Favorite left Cheboygan shortly after midnight to aid in releasing the vessels.

The stranded vessels belong to the fleet of the Pittsburg Steamship company, the steamboat end of the United States Steel corporation. If there are no storms it is believed both boats will be released with little damage as soon as the cargoes have been removed. Fourteen of the crew were taken off the wrecks by a life saving crew Monday. The steamer has been scuttled to prevent her from pounding to pieces during the gale. The Whitworth is afloat and is hanging to the steamer by a tow line.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Tuscola County Democrats held their county convention to elect delegates to attend the state convention, at the court house in Caro on Monday. The following were chosen to represent the county at the state convention: Geo. W. Howell, Milo Lamphere, T. J. Eveland, H. G. Spring, Carl Garnum, E. H. Pinney, S. Lazelle, H. Underwood, N. H. Burns, H. N. Montague, E. T. Michael, Chas. Asnten, T. Lowthian, B. L. Ransford, J. S. Curry, J. W. Heller.

DIED IN PHILIPPINES.

A. A. Crawford, School Teacher, Came From Gageton, Mich.

The war department Tuesday received a telegram from Manila stating that A. A. Crawford, formerly of Gageton, Mich., a school teacher in the Philippines, died on July 21. The dispatch said the Masons were in charge of the body, and had notified his family.

A Charivari.

We had supposed that our town had become far enough removed from barbarism to be beyond such a thing as a charivari, but certain youths resorted to the old custom last week. Webster defines it as a means of "nocturnal annoyance and insult," and we fail to see how it can be otherwise considered by any reasoning person. A musical serenade, properly conducted, is always a pleasing affair, and scarce ever fails to bring a ready response. If a newly wed couple must be urged to liberality, why not change the order, and resort to that which will give pleasure rather than annoyance?

CARO'S RACE MEET.

$2,700 in Cash to be Divided During the Three Days Races

Without doubt one of the greatest racing events ever held in Tuscola county will be the coming meeting of the Michigan Short Ship Trotting and Facing Circuit, which will occur at Caro on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 6th, 7th and 8th.

This driving circuit comprises fourteen cities and towns in the state, including Detroit, Jackson, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, and Caro is practically the first half mile track on which the races of this circuit will be held and coming the next week after the Bay City races, will get ninety per cent of the good horses on the track there.

All of the horses in this circuit will travel by a special train of palace horse cars, from one town to another, and the event will bring such an array of horsemen as have never been within the borders of the county.

The purses are guaranteed by the stockholders of the company, every one of whom are responsible and reputable business men, and every purse will be paid at the wire in cash.

There will be three races each day, the entries for which have been more than filled already, and it is expected making $200, which will be paid out each day or a total of $2,700 in the three days.

The Caro track is conceded to be one of the best half mile tracks in the state, and being in constant use through the season for training purposes is in excellent condition.

It is expected that the new Montague hotel will be open at this time insuring accommodations second to no town of its size in the state.

The Gains of Ten Years.

Mrs. Caroline F. Corbi, of Chicago, in a recently published letter against equal rights for women, says: "Let us calmly inquire why it is that after fifty years of agitation the cause of woman suffrage is making so little advance. The legislative records of the last few years indicate a strong arrest of development in its progress."

The cause of equal suffrage has made more advance in the ten years than in the fifty years preceding. During the previous half-century, full suffrage for women was aimed in only one State—Wyoming. (It is the latest ten years, it has been secured in three—Colorado, Utah and Idaho. During this period full suffrage has also been granted in New Zealand and Australia, bond suffrage in Iowa, Irish and district suffrage in England, library suffrage in Minnesota, municipal suffrage in Norway, and school suffrage in Ohio Connecticut and Delaware. France has given women equal in commerce the right to vote for juries of the tribunals of commerce; New York has given tax-paying women throughout all the towns and villages of the State the right to vote on questions of local taxation; Louisiana is given tax-paying women a vote; all questions submitted to the tax-payers; and Ireland has given women a right to vote for all officers except members of Parliament. The news of most important victory that the equal rights movement has yet won—the granting of national suffrage to the 800,000 women of Federated Australia—arrived just after Mrs. Corbi had published her letter asking why the cause was suffering from an "arrest of development."

The "arrest of development" is only in the minds of those who will not open their eyes to neight.

The game of baseball played at Caseville Friday, between Gageton and Caseville was one of the best games ever played there, Cville winning out by a score of 7 to 4. Batteries: For Caseville, Adar Adams and Cokeran. For Gageton, Johnson, Moden and Carlton; tires, McHugh and McMillan.

OUR NEIGHBOR GAGETOWN.

Is Still Making A Healthy Growth.

The ENTERPRISE editor had occasion to visit Gageton on Friday and was pleased to note the many changes that had taken place within the past year or two, and the healthy appearances now existing, with indications of still further growth. A number of new residences have recently been built and all but one or two have found tenants as soon as ready. A considerable amount of cement walk has been placed and we are informed that workmen are expected from Bay City in a few days to put down about as much more. The leading mercantile establishments of Ryan Bros., and the Purdy Mercantile Co., appear to be doing a thriving business and carry extensive lines of goods, each of them having found it necessary to open the second store. Other business houses also have a thrifty appearance and the managers appear satisfied with the share of trade they are getting. N. Morrison, who recently left Cass City and purchased the Henesey blacksmith business is finding plenty to keep him busy. He has rented the house next the machine shop and will move next week. Large ten cent barns are now in course of construction by Sol. Karr. This is the quiet season for the elevators and flour mills but both are splendidly equipped and making all necessary repairs for the increased business which will soon begin. The creamery is handling about 4,000 pounds of milk per day and is being patronized by some of the very best farmers in the section. That patronage is sure to be increased when farmers generally get to understand the advantages of the system, and the necessity of paying more attention to dairying as connected with successful farming. Taken all in all Gageton is a hustling little burg.

Mass Convention.

The Socialists of the Seventh Congressional district are called to meet in mass convention at the Cleveland House in Imlay City, on Wednesday, August 20th, at 1 o'clock to organize the Socialist party in said district to nominate a candidate for Congress and to transact any other business properly coming before said convention. The Socialists of the Lapeer-Tuscola Senatorial district are also called to meet in mass convention at the Cleveland House in Imlay City, on Wednesday, August 20, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of organizing the Socialist party in said district to nominate a candidate for State Senator and to transact other business. The convention is called by order of the Lapeer County Socialist Committee acting provisionally, J. C. Lamb, Chairman.

Got Into The Wrong House.

David McComb, who has been working at the McLellan Hotel for a short time, drove the ball players to Kingston last Friday and while waiting for the return journey became intoxicated. After reaching home, instead of going to his room, he crossed the street and entered the parlor of S. F. Bigelow's home, seated himself in a rocker and went to sleep. About three o'clock Mrs. Bigelow arose to give attention to the children and noticed him. She notified Mr. Bigelow, who is ill, and then went for Marshal Ramsay, who took him to jail for the remainder of the night. In the morning he was taken before Justice Perkins and allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Organization Completed.

An adjourned meeting of the Cass City Prohibition Alliance was held at the Epworth League rooms on Monday evening, and the organization completed. The following officers were elected: President, A. A. P. McDowell; vice president, Martin Parant; secretary, A. Saigeon; treasurer, S. Ostrander; marshal, Miss Annie Scripture. The meetings will be held on the first Monday evening of each month, the next meeting coming on August 4th, when a program will be given and a full attendance is hoped for. Considerable interest is being taken in the new organization and a large increase in membership is looked for at once. Men, women, boys and girls are all eligible to membership.

RESCUED FROM BLINDNESS BY DR. ONEAL

E. H. Reynolds, of Chicago, Restored to Sight by Dr. Oren Oneal, without the Knife, by THE ONEAL DISSOLVENT METHOD. Similar Cases in This Vicinity.

A delightful picture is painted in the glowing tribute paid Dr. Oren Oneal, Chicago, who was cured of cataracts without the knife. It is another evidence of the wonderful efficacy of The Oneal Dissolvent Treatment. The strongest recommendation Dr. Oneal's Dissolvent Method can have is the fact that it positively never injures the eye.

Mr. Reynolds saved from blindness. Mr. Reynolds had suffered for a number of years with cataracts of both eyes. For nearly two years he had been unable to see out of his left eye. He says: "I wish every one who is afflicted with eye trouble might know of the marvelous cure Dr. Oneal has effected for me. He has restored me to sight after years of mental torture in the belief that there was no hope for me, but that I must live out my days in total blindness. Cataracts had been forming for years. I visited oculist after oculist with no result other than the information that I MUST WAIT TO GO BLIND, and then the eyes could be operated on. Dr. Oneal, when I finally heard of him and had him examine my eyes, didn't say anything like that. HE TOLD ME HE COULD CURE ME. That was five months ago. I have been under his care since, and to-day I can see to read—in fact, my eyes will soon be well. It's wonderful. Dr. Oneal may send any one to me and I will be delighted to tell them how he saved my eyes."

Many thousands of similar cures are indebted to The Oneal Dissolvent Method. Dr. Oneal is proud that he has never injured an eye, nor has he failed in a cure when any sight remained and his treatment was given a fair trial. This is no more wonderful than the case of Andrew Tillman of Milwaukee, the history of whose cure is still fresh in the minds of Milwaukee people. Here is a letter written by Mr. Tillman, which verifies the statements made by Dr. Oneal: (Clemens Tillman, publisher of the Labor Exchange Advertiser of Chicago, and president of the Illinois Producers' Association, says: "Dr. Oneal straightened the eyes of my nephew, Andrew Tillman of Milwaukee, in two minutes, without the use of knife, chloroform or bandage."

CROSS-EYES STRAIGHTENED—A new method—without the knife or pain. Over 5,000 cases successfully treated. Dr. Oneal will be glad to advise anyone who will call or write, free of charge, and he will also send his new valuable book on Eye Diseases, and many testimonials free. Address

OREN ONEAL, M. D. Suite 145, 52 Dearborn St. CHICAGO.

None Other Wanted.

WANTED—A lady, young or otherwise, for domestic service in the editor's home, who can make herself an agreeable companion to the editor's wife, who has suffered the partial loss of her eyesight. One who has an experimental knowledge of religion preferred, or at least has enough of cleanliness, which is next to Godliness, to sweep the corners and perform the usual household duties properly. Apply at once in person.

BEWARE OF FAKES

I desire to call the attention of the farmers to the fact that the so-called horse dentistry as practiced in this community at the present time is a fake.

Anyone desiring their horse's teeth fixed can have the work done by calling on me. Night and day calls answered promptly.

What a constitution King Edward must have had at the start.

Ages will have to pass before we can have a firecrackerless Fourth of July.

Nursery reformers who propose to abolish the cradle are attacking a rock of ages.

The Polish officials who intend to try snubbing the Kaiser will be wiser after their experiment.

Prof. Albion W. Small thinks the idle rich should be obliged to work. But who would employ them?

By careful economy in his library fund Mr. Schwab is able to build a bigger house than Mr. Carnegie's.

By all means, ladies, adopt the reform dress proposed by a Cincinnati woman. Making and all, it costs $1.25.

Emperor William is reducing his weight by violent exercise at ping-pong. This is equivalent to swearing it away.

A man's idea of a good wife is one who never asked him for money and who doesn't sit up for him when he is out late.

People who kill themselves because it is hot must be thoroughly convinced that the other hot place exists only in fiction.

The American artist who was engaged to paint the coronation will probably now proceed to sue King Edward for damages.

J. Pierpont Morgan is said to be troubled with an affection of the eyes. Still, it does not appear that he is overlooking much.

The Duchess of Marlborough spent over $100,000 getting ready for the coronation. She is probably taking the king's illness sadly to heart.

The monkey that drank too much at a fashionable Newport dinner given in his honor proved that men are only the victims of a far-off heredity.

The girl who was preparing for a wedding with a man named Swope and who eloped with a man named Swope certainly can't be very particular about names.

The Moorish coronation envoy has just returned to his country. He was going back to a civilized country. Perhaps he saw them "maffick."

Wonderful to relate, the automobile race from Paris to Innsbruck was completed without the destruction or even the mutilation of a single spectator.

When the cashier of that Newport bank was through with the vaults contained just $35, while the liabilities are $300,000. But why did he leave the $35?

A man may figure that he is growing old when it is disinclination rather than dignity that prevents him from getting on the picnic merry-go-round and taking a spin.

Hamlin Garland has announced that there are two great English writers now living. One is William Dean Howells. The name of the other he can mention with one capital letter.

The Nebraska girls who have declared a boycott on all young men who swear and lie will have a chance to discover the truth of Mark Twain's remark: "Be good and you will be lonely."

It costs $31.62 per capita to govern the city of New York, and, considering the sort of government the people of the metropolis get, and considering other facts, also, the price is infernally steep.

The news that Prof. Bristol has shipped from Bermuda a pocket sea serpent leads the public to feel sure that the brand of American whisky exported to the island is not what it ought to be.

A British naval captain has committed suicide because he was left a fortune of $2,000,000. He considered his responsibility too great to be borne. What an enigma such a man must be to Hetty Green.

Another note of warning has been published against the use of iced drinks during the season of hot weather, although it would seem that an honorable exception might be made in favor of the mint julep.

The Northwestern Elevated Railway Company has devised a car attachment called the "fool catcher." It is to be hoped that it is not so perfectly protected by patents that it cannot be operated outside of Illinois.

The New York courts have decided that a woman's picture may be used for advertising purposes whether she approves of the same or not; all of which, to the layman, looks like a particularly vicious slap at common sense.

FROM ALL OVER MICHIGAN

A Great Career. Fannie Cooley McGowan, arrested in Anderson, Ind., refused to return to Kalamazoo to stand trial on the charges of swindling, without requisition papers, which were obtained when the case was settled on payment of $100. This quered the requisition and the papers were recalled. The woman is liberated. The action of the prosecution in advising settlement is severely criticised by local attorneys. The specific charge is that she obtained $100 from the postmaster of Comstock village on false pretenses. The woman, who in the past few months has gained the reputation of being one of the cleverest women swindlers in the country, is the daughter of Rev. E. Cooley, who at one time was the pastor of the Methodist church at Marshall. Her swindling schemes have only obtained for her a few hundred dollars in individual instances. It is said, however, that she has swindled thousands. She is said to have made victims of prominent men in Detroit, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo and a dozen other Michigan cities. She got $500, it is said, from a leading Kalamazoo attorney. One man in Battle Creek, it is alleged, gave her $100. One alleged victim was formerly mayor of Marshall. She is wanted by the officers in nearly all the places mentioned.

Now that the Supreme Court has sustained the constitutionality of the anti-colored oleomargarine law, the dairy and food department proposes to see that the law is enforced to the letter. Numerous prosecutions have been commenced in various counties, samples taken and analyzed in other counties with a view to commencing prosecutions. The accused were bound over to the Circuit Courts, and proceedings have there been stalled pending the decision of the Supreme Court in the case appealed to that tribunal. The department is planning a copy of the Supreme Court decision in the hands of every dealer in the state, with the information that the law will be strictly enforced. Dealers who now sell the prohibited article will be deemed to do so wilfully.

Bejaul's Oil Dream. Frank Bejaul, a Wilson township farmer, has discovered a free flow of oil on his farm, seven miles from Alpena. Bejaul says that he dreamed four successive nights that if he investigated a certain spot he would find oil. On Thursday, in company with another man, he visited the locality to which he was directed in the dream and commenced to excavate. The deeper he dug the stronger were the fumes of oil. Finally, at a depth of twenty feet he found a free flow of oil. The excavation was veiled. Oil men from Canada and a few others were present. Bejaul now wants the lease annulled.

The Damage by Rainfall. Reports from the various parts of the state that the heavy rains have caused damage to crops that it is estimated runs up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. The latest rains which culminated in Sunday's deluge adds many thousand dollars more to the farmers' losses. In Lenawee county the damage to the hay crop alone is given conservatively at $10,000. Farmers everywhere are discouraged by the fact that there are no indications of a change in the rains. No matter how favorable the weather might be for the rest of the season it could not materially reduce their loss for much of the damage to crops is already complete.

The Barton Boy Discharged. The police have discharged young Lee Barton, who was responsible for the shooting of Mrs. Earl Mesler, in Lansing last week, there being no evidence of any intention on the part of the boy to shoot the woman. The boy was released on the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney, Mrs. Mesler is at the city hospital, where it is reported she is getting along as well as could be expected, and her recovery is not improbable, although the bullet passed entirely through her body. There is some evidence of congestion of the upper portion of the lung, but it is believed that careful nursing will bring her through all right.

Stealing Water. Surprise was created at Benton Harbor the other day by the announcement that water theft has been going on for some time in various parts of the city, and that the city has been furnishing many families with water free of charge without knowing it. Supt. Richardson states that people have tapped the water pipes without notifying the city, and he is busy issuing warrants for the offenders. Several business men are said to be on the list.

Michigan Pensions. Michigan pensions: Original—Elijah Wilson, Detroit, $8. Increase—Aaron Purinton, Berrien Springs, $12; John Raymond, St. Louis, $8; Joseph D. Buckley, Climax, $14; John W. Taylor, Vicksburg, $14. Widows—Mary S. Lewis, St. Johns, $12; Matilda Dyckmond, Otsego, $8; Amalia Jones, Black River, $8.

Dora Delamere has been appointed postmistress at South Haven, Mich. Edwin Jones, a student at the mining school, whose parents live in Los Angeles, Cal., has been drowned in Portage lake while canoeing.

Battle Creek People think Gogewic swimmers do not tend to make it seem drinkable raw.

Orson Warner, a farmer near Quincy, while unloading hay, was caught in the ropes of a hay sling and carried up 30 feet from the barn floor when he dropped. Both arms were broken and his jaw dislocated.

The Henderson-Ames Case. The report that the Henderson-Ames Co. directors, complained against for perjury, will make a full confession of the affair at the examination this week is doubtless due to an incomplete understanding of the affair. The fact is the directors, both before the grand jury and on the trials of Col. Sutton and Arthur F. Marsh, told a story of the military supplies' transaction which Prosecuting Attorney Tuttle believes to be true. They can do no more. Attorney R. C. Ostrander is not prepared to outline his defense of the accused directors, but it is not believed that unless Col. Sutton is brought to trial the cases against the directors will be pushed as hard as they would otherwise be. The Henderson-Ames directors have, beside aiding the grand jury in unearthing the plot, reimbursed the state for the loss on the military supplies' deal without any assistance from the other conspirators, and they have suffered injury to their business, beside a great deal of anxiety. The legal expenses, in addition to the money paid to the state, has not been a trifling sum.

Smallpox Excitement. The family of Geo. Howard, living some 15 miles south of St. Joseph, has been quarantined for smallpox. The disease was diagnosed Monday by Dr. E. J. Witt. Great excitement prevails over the fact that the family has been afflicted with smallpox for two weeks, when they thought it was only chickenpox, and all of the time they have been picking berries for the Chicago market. This is regarded by the authorities to be a terrible condition of affairs, as every case of berries shipped by the family has been infected with smallpox and has gone to Chicago families. Some crates of berries from the Howard farm awaiting shipment at St. Joe have been confiscated and destroyed.

Wants Commissions. John Cole, of Fremont, formerly employed in the auditor-general's office, has bought suit and a motor car, and is now engaged to sell stock, and one buyer was Gov. Bliss, who invested heavily. Cole now claims that he has not been paid, the commissions promised.

Cyclone at Flint. A cyclone visited this county Monday night, doing much damage in the vicinity of Mt. Morris. Orchards were devastated and buildings were unroofed. Julius Piper's farm buildings were unroofed and his orchards destroyed. Thirty miles of crops were greatly damaged. In the city lightning struck the residence of Henry Hosler, Fourteenth street, while the family were at supper. The bolt passed through the house and struck Mrs. Hosler, rendering her unconscious and paralyzing her left side. Her condition is critical.

Pinched the Gang. What is alleged to be a gang of pickpockets struck Durand Saturday evening, but before they had time to make plans for action Deputy Sheriff Hovey with his deputies swept down upon them and placed them in the cooler. There were five in the gang, four men and one woman. They gave their names as George Meyers, Estella Meyers, his wife, Jim Brooks, John Bruce and Abe Miller. They had been doing business at St. Johns during the street fair, which was in progress last week.

Struck by Lightning. Mrs. John Knoll of the township of Frankenmuth, was struck by lightning while working in the fields with her husband and son, and killed Monday afternoon.

She was putting up shocks, and her husband and son were leading her hay on a wagon. The horses ran away when the flash came, and when the men succeeded in stopping them they found Mrs. Knoll lying on the ground dead.

STATE NEWS CONDENSED. Fred Grieve, of Saginaw, a Pere Marquette brakeman, was killed at Vassar Monday afternoon while shunting cars.

Glen Datson, of North Baltimore, 15 years of age, was arrested for burglarizing the house of Charles Gillespie. He was caught in the act.

Anton Leonard, of Menominee, has received word of the death by cholera in the Philippines of his son, Ephraim, a bugler in the Twenty-eighth infantry.

State Senator A. W. Farr has been renominated in the twenty-sixth district, which comprises the counties of Manistee, Mason, Oceana, Lake and Benzie.

The barns of Eder Fancher, four miles east of Utica, were struck by lightning Monday and burned, including all contents. Loss, $2,500; partially insured.

The New Home Gas Co. of Pontiac starts out on a 30 year gas lease. It has leased for 30 years a site on Sanderson avenue for a gas house and electric lighting plant.

Dr. Wm. H. Haze and wife, residents of Lansing since 1854, have celebrated their sixty-second wedding anniversary. The doctor is 86 years old and Mrs. Haze 78.

An unknown man about 40 years old was picked up on the track three miles west of Flint Thursday night in an unconscious condition. He was brought to the city hospital, where he is still in a comatose state. There are no marks or bruises to indicate violence.

AROUND THE STATE.

Reginald Loverman, 9 years old, fell off a log at Boardman's lake last night while fishing, and was drowned. Owing to the illness of an attorney, the Henderson-Ames Co. case, trial of which was to begin Monday, was put over to August 1.

Jerome Rutledge, father of Emma Rutledge, who under 16 years, and George, her half brother, are both in jail in Paw Paw on charge of criminally assaulting her.

Mrs. Katherine Wallace Robinson, a young actress, dropped dead Sunday at the Higbee hotel, Benton Harbor, where she was stopping for the summer with her parents.

The recently organized Boyne City Lumber Co. with $500,000 capital, has secured a site on the lake front for a large hardwood mill with a flooring and hoop and stave annex.

Capt. Fred Meno, William Rigs and Joe McLaughlin, all experienced lake men, have purchased the Ed Kendall marine reporting business at Port Huron and will personally conduct it.

Bernard Holtman, a former resident of Maple Grove, Saginaw county, and who went to Michigan 22 years ago, fell down the shaft of a silver mine, a distance of 80 feet, and was instantly killed.

Miss Lotta Miller, of Holland, Mich., aged about 13 years, was drowned at Jackson, Miss., while fishing. She was visiting her sister, Mrs. Frank Vogel. The remains will be taken to Muskegon for interment.

Bay City is to have a plant for the manufacture of wood alcohol by a new process which will use up waste, such as sawdust, shavings and slabs coming from mills where hardwood lumber is manufactured.

A 15-year-old son of Joseph Conroy, living near Bay City, was killed by a machine. His father now sues the company for $5,000.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD

THE RAGING FLOODS.

Devastation of Crops in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri Causes Suffering. The flood conditions are much worse, and the Mississippi river is from two to ten miles wide for seventy-five miles below Keokuk, Ia., and rising rapidly. The flood is reaching far outlying farms hitherto missed and farmers in the lowlands on the Missouri side have lost everything but their chickens on high knolls and a few fields behind the highest levees. Damage is also occurring on the Illinois side, between Keokuk and Quincy, where there are many thousands of acres on the river. The levees, and the levees themselves not being entirely a mile water is working through at the site of the flood gates.

The greatest damage is on the Missouri side of the Mississippi river, between Keokuk and Hannibal, territory covering 200 square miles, and on which the corn was estimated at 80 bushels to the acre a few days ago. Hundreds of farmers are tenants, who lost crops by last year's drought in the uplands, and moved to the lowlands this year. They are now penniless and are hunting work in towns and cities.

The damage done up the Mississippi river is greater than was expected or at first reported. One township, Green Bay, is six or seven feet under water. There are about 11,000 acres of crops. Families there were driven out hurriedly and some cattle were drowned. Corn was the very finest in this section of the country last week. This levee, eight miles north of Burlington, broke, inundating three square miles which had been considered safe.

The Skunk river, the most damaging tributary of the Mississippi, is roaring down a flood approach and twice in the history of the state, in 1851 and 1852. The water topped the record of 1852 and reached the highest record of 1851. This river rises in the center of Iowa and empties into the Mississippi, and greatly increases the flood at points below.

Thousands of acres are submerged in Ankenos county, Iowa, and there is much small grain caught in the fields. The crop in other places is chiefly corn. A new element which has appeared all over the submerged section of Iowa is disease among stock from the condition of pastures after the temporary subsistence of the waters.

Monday's reports show that the situation was growing worse, increasing the enormous destruction. The area covered by water is 700 square miles in extent, and all the bountiful crops are destroyed. Many rich farmers are penniless and others who were driven from their homes fled to nearby towns for immediate safety and assistance.

The Morgan Ship Trust. Whitelaw Reid, speaking at a banquet in his honor by the American chamber of commerce in London said: "If you have sustained the threatened dangers of recent years you can surely face with equanimity the terrors of the Pierpont Morgan venture. I suggest that the apprehension aroused by the recent change in shipping policy, which I think is identified is somewhat exaggerated."

"The monopoly in this case is fanciful. None has been created. I think none is desired, and I know none can be successful."

Mr. Reid maintained that the Morgan combine obliterated violent fluctuations in rates and insured to Great Britain a neutral fleet in which its food could be borne in spite of any possible enemy.

"I do not for a moment admit the possibility of war between our two nations," said Reid. "Nature presents us with a violent fluctuation in rates and insured to Great Britain a neutral fleet in which its food could be borne in spite of any possible enemy."

Passing of Millionaire Mackay. John W. Mackay, of San Francisco, who had been suffering from heart trouble since Tuesday, the 15th, died at his residence on Carlton House terrace, London, Eng., Sunday evening. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. The right lung was found to be congested, and symptoms indicated pneumonia. John W. Mackay, known everywhere as the "Bonanza King," has had a remarkable career. From a laborer in the mines he became one of the wealthiest men in the world. The remains will be taken to New York for interment in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn. The wealth of the dead man is almost fabulous, it being said that he could not tell within $20,000,000 the actual amount.

When in the penitentiary at Portland, Ore., he wrote home to his grandfather, asking him to undertake to get a permanent pardon for him.

A BATTLE FOR LIFE.

Two persons perished in Lake Michigan Tuesday night, and eight others fought hours for life, clinging to the overturned yacht Arab IV., owned by John H. Cameron, of Chicago. The yacht, struck suddenly by the fierce storm which swept over the lake late in the evening, capsized. Mary Taylor, 16 years old, and Harry Jensen, 17, both of Chicago, were drowned.

When the storm struck the yacht no attempt had been made to reef sail, and with all its canvas flying, the boat, with 10 merry-makers aboard wholly unconscious of danger, went over in a flash, filled instantly and left eight persons struggling for life in the waters of the lake, three miles from shore.

By heroic efforts on the part of the men, the women were supported in the water until they could be given a firm hold on the overturned boat.

Six of the party managed to crawl into the small yaw and after a fierce battle with the waves reached shore and notified the life-saving crew, who went to the rescue of the two who had been left clinging to the boat.

When found they were nearly exhausted and about to drop from the boat.

Bodies of the two young persons drowned were found in the cabin of the yacht when the boat was towed into the harbor.

The Boxers Again. A recurrence of the boxer movement in China is feared. Boxer agents are swarming over Mongolia. The mass of the population is in sympathy with the boxers, while the Lamasites are in sympathy with Russia. Rumors are in circulation in Mongolia that the Lamasites will petition the Russian government to extend its protection to them. Mongolia remained quiet throughout the recent boxer insurrection in China.

CHAPTER XV.

By Wire from Paris.

"You are positive, princess?" he asked hoarsely.

"There is no doubt, believe me. This is as serious as it is mysterious. The secret police of Paris rarely come to Monte Carlo, save to make an important arrest."

The man who had never quailed when facing the awful terrors of jungle and desert experienced a qualm of fear at thought of being convicted as a traitor to his country, for the fate of Dreyfus told how France would treat her sons who turned against her there were other prisons as terrible as Devil Island.

"You fail to notice one important fact, monsieur," she said softly, yet eagerly.

"Then tell me."

"These four men moved like automatic figures, under the direction of one master mind."

He gave a quick cry as he grasped what she meant.

"Sacre! the American?"

"Yes, Monsieur Jones."

"He is not what he seems, merely a lucky traveler—I remember now, he speaks French fluently. A startling suspicion bursts upon me—yes, it must be true that he is leagued with the secret police of the government against us. Mon Dieu! it is a perilous moment."

Count Leon never spoke truer words in all his life than when he declared with so much spirit that the moment was fraught with great danger to himself and the royalist cause he represented.

The shock was all the more severe because he had just been congratulating himself, as men will sometimes do in their egotism, over the kind fate that had given him the power over these tremendous issues.

A dozen suspicions took shape in his mind on the spur of the moment.

Jones assumed a malign form comparable only with Satan himself, and his most simple act appeared to take on a meaning that was both diabolical and crushing.

It flashed athwart the mind of our African conqueror that this American must be his particular bete noir, a figure destined to drag him down from the proud heights to which he had ascended, and accomplish his utter ruin, so that, unable to longer show his face in France, he must perforce return again to equatorial Africa and unite with bold Captains Voulet and Chanoine in their designs of founding an empire there.

When circumstances, aided and abetted by the sharp eyes of the adventuress, had snatched the mask from Jones, the innocent Yankee tourist assumed a degree of importance in the mind of this arch plotter that no one else had ever filled.

Perhaps the consciousness of guilt had much to do with it, for it oftentimes makes towards the bravest. He unconsciously turned his head and looked first to the right and then to the left.

There were many people passing hither and yon, for the crowd seemed loth to depart after the exciting episode of the evening, so that his eyes glanced from figure to figure, as though searching for some dreaded personality.

"Have they returned?" he asked.

"They are all here in the gardens. I made sure of that before I addressed you."

"And—that man?"

"Oh, Monsieur Jones is frowning at us even now, as he frowns at any man with whom he sees me conversing."

The count smiled grimly, being under the impression that perhaps for once the Olgavitch had overestimated the power of her charms and had deceived herself with reference to Jones.

"Well, this means a different scene from what I expected. I had thought to carry out my plans without much disturbance—now I shall be compelled to bring all my force to bear upon the matter. Yes, blood may even flow, and these beautiful gardens become a scene of battle."

The prospect might not seem alluring to most men, but then Count Leon had become a hybrid as it were, partaking somewhat of the nature of the hyena to be met with in the deserts, easily aroused by the scent of blood; and at the mere mention of war's horrors his nostrils dilated and his eyes glowed with the fire of slaughter.

It had been some time, you see, since his last encounter with the black hosts, and perhaps his good right hand really itched to get to work again. No French explorer who came back from Africa was ever willing to remain quiescent at home.

"But—there is something more, M. le Count, something mysterious, something that may even stagger you in your plans," said the princess in her quiet yet convincing way.

The other looked at her in a troubled manner and allowed his lips to form the words:

"Le Diable!"

It fully expressed his state of mind, for he felt that with the passage of every second the game was slipping further from his hands.

"I am one who suspects, who never takes things for granted. To-day a letter came from a friend in Paris, a gentleman high in the councils of the government. One little item in it attracted my attention—it was that he had just been attending a state council at the home of the president, who was not well enough to drive out. I looked at the date—it was yesterday. Monsieur, I was surprised. Either my friend, the minister, had made a mistake or else we were blind, for at the hour he declared he talked with France's chief executive in his own Paris home, behold, you and I were watching the president here at Monte Carlo!"

The soldier staggered as though he had been actually struck—indeed, he received a blow that was of far greater moment than a physical one would have been, since the foundation of his faith was knocked away.

He began to realize that perhaps the secret police were more capable of making discoveries than he had been willing to admit, and that the same style of tactics could not be employed against these shrewd adventuriers that he had used so successfully when coping with swarms of ferocious blacks.

One gleam of hope flickered still, and caused a sickly smile to flash over his dark face.

"Perhaps—the minister was mistaken in the day. He may have intended to say Monday, when we know monsieur was still in Paris. Yes, that is the explanation of the problem."

The enchantress smiled, and when he saw the expression of her face he knew she was about to knock away even this feeble prop which he had seized upon so eagerly as a means of keeping up hope.

"I have just received a message."

"From Paris?"

"Yes."

She placed a printed form in his eager hand and his hungry eyes perused its brief message with an agility that speedily put him in possession of the facts.

The wording was very precise and to the point:

"The president is in Paris to-day, Wednesday. I have just conversed with his excellency."

No wonder, after reading this, that the count's hand dropped as though palsied to his side—no wonder his amazed eyes turned on the quarter where the man who played the role of president stood chatting and laughing with his aides—no wonder his breath came thick and fast from between his set teeth. For where victory had seemed ready to perch he now saw miserably defeat staring him in the face with all its terrible penalties attached.

"Do you believe, now?" demanded the modern Dillah, exulting in the thought that it was her finesse that had accomplished this thing, and not his proud master mind.

He bowed his head.

"What else can I say? We have been deceived. All the while they, those wolves of Paris, knew what we intended doing. They have sent a dummy to represent the president traveling incognito. It is so very simple, so easy—why, sometimes men actually assist in deluding themselves, poor fools."

"Then the game is rung off, the curtain falls on a tableau with virtue triumphant and vice probably punished, as usual."

Her sneer went home, for it caused him to glance once more toward the young couple, so absorbed in one another they had no thought, no care outside the horizon of their happiness.

This recalled him to the consciousness that there were other branches embraced in the longitude and latitude of the chart he had drawn for his guidance.

If fame in a French empire were denied him, how about fortune and love?

Half a loaf would be better than no bread.

Besides, there was revenge—that word always has a sympathetic ring to the ear of a Frenchman.

Jones he hated like mad—Jones was hand in glove with Merrick—ergo, if he could kidnap the latter and throw him into the hands of the savage Bedouin tribes he knew along the Barbary coast, and at the same time steal his sweetheart, would it not be a glorious retaliation upon Monsieur Jones for spoiling the dream of an empire?

Rallying from his dazed condition, he cheered himself with the thought that all was not lost while a chance for Little Miss Millions as a bride remained; and with this as his spur Count Leon played into the game.

The count had a lieutenant who was capable of giving good advice in a matter of this sort.

Of course, this was the blonde giant from the North, the Cossack who came from the Don.

In a moment he had obeyed a signal and was at Villebois' side, eager to hear what was new, and ready to give his advice if sought.

Stromboloff had this long time been an abject slave of the fair enchantress, and fumed in secret when he saw her allowing the attentions of other men—still, he endured this frequent sight, knowing what the poor fools would receive in due time, since she had always been heartless.

Strangely enough he was even more bitterly set against Merrick than any of the others, for in his distorted vision it seemed a vile sacrifice that a common man without any illustrious pedigree or vast fortune, upon whom the princess deigned to smile, should treat her evident advances with contempt.

Accordingly Stromboloff was decidedly anxious to have the original plan go through.

He had a long head, this Russian, and declared it would be folly taking chances. The minister in Paris who was a slave to the siren's charms might be mistaken, or in the plot with their enemies, and, after all, this man, with whom they believed to be the president, might turn out to be no other.

At any rate, it was their duty to carry out the original plan up to this point, although the invasion of France by the Duke of Orleans could not take place until it was positively proven that it was the genuine president who had been abducted.

So the question was decided. Count Leon, having cast aside his doubts for the time being, became the energetic man of action.

One last look he cast around. The act was that of a soldier who combined caution with valor.

The lovers still stood by the terrace wall, looking out over the starlit harbor, where steamed the many riding lights of the congregated yachts at anchor.

They seemed oblivious of all around, wrapped up in the paradise that newly-confessed love opens to the human soul.

From this scene the count turned grimly, conscious of his magician's power to change it all by the wave of his hand.

Jones was next in his mind, for since the double nature of the man from over the sea had become apparent to the princess and himself the Yankee had grown to be a person of considerable importance, whose personality must be figured on, no matter how certain the game seemed to be.

But Jones was non est. While the three conferrers were debating as to the best course for them to pursue under the changed circumstances he had sauntered away.

The count confessed to him that it would have pleased him better had Jones maintained his post; for when he had a desperate foe to deal with it had always been the policy of the great explorer to keep his eye on him unceasingly until such time as he could cut him down.

And somehow he was possessed with an idea that Jones had not moved away in an idle frame of mind, but with a motive back of his action.

When he had seen that the president had not moved, but was still chatting with his companions, Count Leon knew the chain was complete, and that there was really no need of this looking forward.

Villebois drew out a small silver whistle and raised it to his lips.

Strange that such an innocent sound should, as if by magic, transform a peaceful scene into one where violence ruled.

The music still continued under the dome and spires of the Casino, but mellowed by distance and obtruding walls, the sound but softly permeated the air of the garden.

Count Leon blew three shrill blasts. There was something so startling about them that unconsciously every one in the extensive gardens seemed to take it for granted they were intended to be a signal of some sort.

Immediately a great commotion began.

Men appeared from various points, all heading toward a central hub—men who moved with haste, and yet showing some signs of military instruction—men who were grimly in earnest, no matter what their mission.

Every one was on the jump—a general fluttering had taken place, as if though that signal whistle aroused the electric waves in the atmosphere.

The princess had her eyes upon one man, and that was the lover of Constantine.

FORTUNES MADE IN TIPS.

One Man Averaged $1,300 a Year for Twenty Years.

In some restaurants in New York the waiters put all their tips in a box and divide equally. That is a very general plan in Paris. As a rule, in this country, however, what each gets is his own. In one cafe, with three distinct sets of patrons the tipping is so constant that the waiters serving there pay handsomely for the privilege. There is, however, only one such place.

At another well patronized place some of the waiters have served many years. One of these the other day said he had kept account of his tips for twenty years. The lowest on record was $800, the highest $1,800, while the average was $1,300. This means that in tips this worthy man had taken in $3.50 a day during twenty years.

I was quite prepared, says John Gilmer Speed in Lippincott's, to have him tell me that he had educated one of his sons, putting him through college and the law school. This man was German. It probably never occurred to him that there was anything debasing in a tip. And for him there was nothing debasing in it. He lived and acted in harmony with the sphere of life into which he was born. That was all. But it would be an entirely different thing for this son, this beneficiary of tips, to receive one. He is an American and must take fees only. For his father's sake as well as his own I hope his fees will be large.

Religious Notes

FAILURE.

Oh, long and dark the stairs I trod,
With stumbling feet to find my God,
Gaining a foothold bit by bit,
Then slipping back and losing it.

Never progressing, striving still,
With weakening grasp and fainting will,
Bleeding to climb to God, while he Serenely smiled, unmoving me.

Then came a certain time when I

Loosened my hold and fell thereby,
Down to the lowest step my fall,
As if I had not climbed at all.

And while I lay despairing there
I heard a footfall on the stair,
In the same path where I, dismayed,
Faltering and fell and lay afraid.

And lo! when hope had ceased to be
My God came down the stairs to me.

Foundation of Faith

Extract from Sermon by the Late George H. Hepworth

A great many honest minds have been disturbed and driven to the verge of doubt by their inability to form any conception of God.

He is the uncreated Creator, but the words convey no meaning whatever to our minds. If you look through the Lick telescope at Arcturus you see very little more than with the naked eye, and if the profoundest looks at the Almighty he sees very little more than the unlettered peasant. Still Arcturus is in the sky, whether you can peer into his secret or not, and God is in your life, though you most searching thought returns you to empty handed. The very words omnipotent and omnipresent have an unthinkable significance, and when the man of science tells us that space is absolutely limitless, that it consists of horizons which are simply endless in number, we accept the fact, but have no more conception of it than the microbe in a watch has of the delicate machinery whose ticks are a continuous roll of thunder in its ears.

What, then, you ask, is the basis of a religion which demands such self-control and self-sacrifice? If these problems will always remain insoluble, and if you can know so little of the Being who demands your soul's allegiance, why may not religion itself be a mistake? Many a heart has been englobed by these thoughts and many a mind befogged by them.

True religion is independent of any purely intellectual theory of the universe, and is founded on facts proven true by the universal experience of mankind. This statement is easily illustrated by childhood. The little one does not understand its mother, has no comprehension whatever of a mother's love or of the significance of a mother's discipline. If the baby were gifted with speech and could describe its relations to his mother, would he make as many misstatements as we do in describing our relations to God?

The mother's providence is wholly misunderstood; even her watchful care looks like interference with the child's rights, and the child might say, as Calvin did of the Almighty, that "of her own good pleasure" she pets at one moment and punishes at another. The knowledge that punishment and love are entirely consistent with each other, or that mother is pleasing daily duty, and sent up a word of prayer to your lord for wisdom to properly perform your task? If not, then you have missed one of the most blessed privileges that the Christian may enjoy.

Every child of God knows there is such a thing as "grace to help in time of need," but we can only begin to comprehend the wonderful power of His grace, when we strive to realize every moment of every day that He is close beside us every step we take, and is "a very present help" in every duty that we may be called upon to perform.—George D. Gelwicks.

TIM WILLING TO APOLOGIZE.

Wakened Hotel Guest to Express Regret for Noisy Argument.

Tim Donahue, the baseball catcher, who died recently at Taunton, Mass., figured in more good stories than any other player before the public. One of Tim's characteristic Hibernicisms was perpetrated at Hot Springs. Both Chicago and Minneapolis teams were training there and one night there was a fanning match in "Billy Moran's" room. Ryan, Kittridge, "Noisy Pete" Cassidy, and some others were arguing.

The argument grew so noisy that a traveling man in the next room beat on the door and said:

"For heaven's sake you fellows keep quiet. I've got to catch an early train and want some sleep."

After that the argument was less uproarious, and an hour later when all was subdued, Moran, an inveterate joker, said to Tim:

"Tim, it's an infernal shame the way you treated that traveling man."

"The way I treated him?" said Donahue indignantly. "Why, you fellows were making all the noise."

Of course the entire crowd supported Moran and Tim lost the argument. Finally he said:

"Well, if I didn't treat him right I'm ready to apologize," and straightway he went into the hall, beat on the traveling man's door, waked him and apologized.

What the traveling man said cannot be printed.

KITCHENER IS BEAUTY-PROOF.

Cannot Be Touched by Wiles of Women, It Is Said.

A coronation visitor to London from South Africa tells an interesting story, which is going the rounds of the clubs, which serves to illustrate the prevailing impression that Lord Kitchener is proof against the beauty and blandishments of all women.

When the new commander arrived at Cape Town, a beautiful Boer spy, who was suspected of using her fascinations on susceptible officers as a means of obtaining military intelligence, tried her wiles on the great warrior. She secured an audience from which, however, she retreated presently in great haste and confusion, saying to a companion who had waited outside:

"I'll try any other man, but not that living death's head. No wonder he conquered in Egypt. I think he'd conquer in Hades."

The Late G. W. Childs.

Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis, the well-known Philadelphia novelist, tells this anecdote in the Congregationalist: "I am reminded of some of the whimsical doings of the late George W. Childs, who put so much humor and keen perception of character into his sketches as to make charity a fine art. For example, one of his hard-working students won a prize at the academy which entitled her to a year's study in Paris. Mr. Childs sent for her and eyed her critically. 'Been inquiring about you, Miss Blank. Only child of your mother and she a widow. Have just sent her a check which will give her a year in Paris, too. Too many pretty art students over there already trotting up and down the Latin quarter alone. Mother goes with you. That's all. Good-day.' He had an innumerable acquaintance among poor ministers and clerks and young girls of good birth, but with no money—the people who can just pay their way, but to whom the extra dollar is a luxury. He took a keen delight in startling them with undreamed of comforts and pleasures known only to the rich. The half-starved clergyman had his three months in Europe, the clerk received a paid-up life insurance for his children, the penniless bride was made happier for life by a pretty trousseau, a good stock of napery and silver to carry into her new home.

An Explanation Requested.

The late John W. Bailey, managing editor of the Philadelphia Record, had a large fund of stories and anecdotes concerning typesetters. As a graduate of the university has this comment to make: "If Dr. Worcester's assertion is true, then the right of colleges to exist is wiped out. But people will hesitate to accept this assertion as fully or even partially established. It may be true that many of the colleges are not all that they should be, but that they fall below the morals of the business and political world is hardly credible."

Taught Lesson by King Edward.

Among the stories that are being raked up about King Edward is one that he was at a London reception recently where the guests were not selected with an eye single to the possession of blue blood. One of them was a customer of vast wealth and international reputation. He approached the king and said with somewhat of an air: "The crowd is rather mixed this evening, your majesty, is it not?" King Edward is said to have responded with an amiable smile: "Well, my dear sir, we can't all be tailors, you know," and the customer had his lesson.

Spread of the Scriptures.

Thirty years ago in Japan the Scriptures were printed secretly, and copies were sent out only after dark. Those who were engaged upon this work did it at the risk of their lives. Now there is a Christian printing company in Yokohama, issuing the Scriptures not only in Japanese, but in Chinese, Thibetan, Korean and two dialects of the Philippine Islands. Last year there were circulated in Japan more than 138,000 copies.

Mother Always Keeps it Handy

"My mother suffered a long time from distressing pains and general ill health due primarily to indigestion," says L. W. Spalding, Verona, Mo. "Two years ago I got her to try Kodol. She grew better at once and now, at the age of seventy-six, eats anything she wants, remarking that she fears no bad effects as she has her bottle of Kodol handy." Don't waste time doctoring symptoms. Go after the cause. If your stomach is sound your health will be good. Kodol rests the stomach and strengthens the body by digesting your food. It is nature's own tonic. A. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kington.

Representatives of the Union Traction company assert that their line will surely be built from Flint to Saginaw, although they are not saying much about it, preferring to let the actual work show for itself. They have asked bonuses and are getting them along the line from the various townships, $4,000 from Arbel and $5,000 from Tuscola. It is desired to get 7,000 from Frankenmuth. The company does not require any of the pledges to be paid until the cars are running and fares being taken over the line. The prospects are that the company will get the money.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Didn't Recognize It.

A distinguished member of the United States Judiciary has discovered that he still has something to learn in the direction of agriculture.

He bought a farm as a summer home for his family and finds especial delight in walking about the place, commenting on the condition of the crops and in many ways showing his interest in his new possessions.

One evening during the summer he was strolling over the farm. The hired man had cut the grass during the day, a very thin crop, and had left it lying on the ground to dry. The judge saw it, and, calling his man, he said:

"It seems to me you are very careless. Why haven't you been more particular in raking up this hay? Don't you see that you have left little dribblings all around?"

For a minute the hired man stared, wondering if the judge was quizzing him. Then he replied:

"Little dribblings! Why, man, that's the crop!"

The Prayer That Hurt.

A member of a certain Massachusetts parish, prominent for his thrift and personal consequence, was also notorious for his overbearing assumptions and pompous airs. Under the distress and fright of a dangerous illness he "put up notes" on several successive Sundays, and after his recovery, according to usage, he offered a note to be read by the minister expressive of his thanks.

The minister was somewhat "large" in this part of his prayer, recalling the danger and the previous petitions of the "squire," and returning his grateful acknowledgments with the prayer that the experience might be blessed to the spiritual welfare of the restored man. He closed with these words:

"And we pray, O Lord, that thy servant may be cured of that ungodly strut, so offensive in the sanctuary."

Middle Ages Burials.

In the middle ages founders and patrons of ecclesiastical buildings began to be buried nearer and nearer to the fabric of the church or cathedral. First the porch, then the cloister, then the chapter house or chantry, came under demand; the chancel was next encroached upon, and lastly burials were allowed under the altar itself. At the other extreme of custom was the burial of malefactors and stillborn children on the north or "devil's side" of the yard; a practice concerning which chapters might be written.

DETROIT-BUFFALO RATE WAR

WEEK-END RAILROAD EXCURSIONS STARTED IT.

PASSENGER BOAT MEN ACCEPTED THE CHALLENGE.

Rates Less Than One Cent Per Mile Now Obtainable.

The promised rate war between the rail and lake lines operating between Detroit and Buffalo is now on in full blast, the opening gun having been fired yesterday, when the Detroit & Buffalo Steamboat Co. announced that it had established its first-class rate at exactly one-half of the second-class rail rate, thus making the rate by boat less than one cent a mile, and allowing all first class privileges.

The trouble between the rail and lake lines began when the former began to run week-end excursions to Buffalo selling second-class tickets for $5, and on them allowing first-class privileges, checking baggage and granting sleeping car privileges without restriction. General Passenger Agent A. A. Schantz, of the Detroit & Buffalo line, when he learned of this, notified the passenger agents of the Grand Trunk, Wabash and Michigan Central roads that unless some restriction was made he would proceed to cut the rates, not only on week-end excursions but on regular traffic. He fixed a 10-day limit on this action, but the railroads did not see the situation from his point of view and would not meet his proposition.

The ten days expired yesterday, and the Detroit & Buffalo line at once inaugurated a $2.50 regular rate to Buffalo, a distance of 250 miles—less than a cent a mile. Mr. Schantz said yesterday that should the railroads want a rate war and meet the present cut he would come down another dollar, and, if necessary, carry passengers on the Eastern State and Western States for 50 cents.

Speaking of the situation yesterday, Schantz said that the new Detroit and Buffalo boats were built for legitimate business, and they had created this largely by the week-end excursions, something which, until the new boats went on the run, had not existed between the two terminals.

The new rate fixed by the steamboat line will make a through rate to New York on all lines except the New York Central, $10.50; Boston, $13.40, and Philadelphia, $10.40, with special rates to eastern summer resorts, from Buffalo to Detroit $2.50, Saginaw $5.00, Bay City $5.00, Grand Rapids $7.00, Chicago $8.50.—Detroit Free Press.

Deford.

There is talk of building an ark. Little Lester labors near Pontiac. Sick folks at J. C. McCain's are better. Geo. O'Rourke is completing his barn. Chandler Goodrich has returned to Deford. A quiet since the Stowell—Wethy "jamboree." Geo. Martin's new barn will be finished this week. We get our hay in by spells—good natured though. Walter Richards, of Grant, is laboring in the foundry here. Amos Jeffery, of Kingston township, will administer the estate of the late Joshua Sole. Macanley Wentworth better known as Cudge Wentworth is laboring at Kingston this week. John D'Arcy has completed his services for the season '02 caring for the horse Jim O'Donnell. The season has apparently been a successful one. The horse will continue to stand at the stable of Geo. O'Rourke, manager, Sec. 2, Kingston. That "old folks" are behind the times is a settled matter. As a proof last week when Wm. B. Hicks' barn was struck with lightning and set on fire his boys put on the blaze "Barn" was away from home as good fortune would have it for he would have went at carrying out his republican machinery and lost the barn.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale at A. Bond's Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Mrs. John Jacobs, a well known and highly respected lady, died at her home in Wells on Friday of last week, at the age of fifty four years. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs have resided in this locality for many years and were numbered among the best known of the settlers of earlier days. Deceased is survived by her husband and six children. The funeral services were held at the stone church and the address was given by Dr. I. E. Springer. The interment took place at the East Dayton cemetery.—Caro Courier.

Mrs. Simenton, of Marlette, and sons Arthur and George, visited at Wilmot over Sunday. Mr. Clemens lost a nice yearling Tuesday, killed on the track near the crossing here. Mrs. C. Chatfield is entertaining her niece, Miss Cora Chatfield, from the northern part of the state. Steve Herrington, who went to Ann Arbor last week for medical treatment, writes home that he is getting better. Miss Jennie Evans, of White Creek, who has a very lame arm, has been visiting her Grandma here the past few days. Ben Graves is busy getting his engine and boiler ready to move down south of Kingston, where he has been at work for some time in a saw mill. The wet weather continues and crops on the low lands will be almost a failure—in fact lots of the low land has not been planted on account of so much water. At the school meeting last week it was decided to build a new school house, capable of accommodating the scholars that attend school here and hiring another teacher. Proceedings do not suit a few of the voters who have called for another meeting August 2nd.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. Vacation Days.

Vacation time is here and the children are fairly living out of doors. There could be no healthier place for them. You need only to guard against the accidents incidental to most open air sports. A. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Poisoning the System.

It is through the bowels that the body is cleansed of impurities. Constipation keeps those poisons in the system, causing headaches, dullness and melancholia at first, then unsightly eruptions and finally serious illness unless a remedy is applied. DeWitt's Little Early Risers prevent this trouble by stimulating the liver and promote easy, healthy action of the bowels. These pills do not act violently but by strengthening the bowels enable them to perform their own work. Never gripe or distress. A. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Saved a Woman's Life.

"To have given up would have meant death for Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass. For years she had endured untold misery from a severe lung trouble and obstinate cough. "Often" she writes, "I could scarcely breathe and sometimes could not speak. All doctors and remedies failed till I used Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was completely cured." Sufferers from Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung Trouble need this grand remedy, for it never disappoints. Cure is guaranteed by T. H. Fritz, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston. Price 50c and $1.00. Annual Henley Regatta a Scene of Beauty

The splendid semi-social function which is held annually at Henley-on-Thames took on an added interest to Americans this year in consequence of the fact that the two greatest amateurs of the American continent were there to battle with the oarsmen of Europe for the famous diamond sculls, and that no less than two eight-oared crews from this side of the Atlantic contested with the great university teams as well as those from Britain's most famous rowing clubs, for the trophy that up to the present time has never been taken from the oarsmen of the little island.

The attendance of Americans at Henley was greater this year than ever before, for it is a safe conclusion that cosmopolitan crowd than the Henley event. Even without the royal patronage, which has never yet been officially given it, the nobility, the visiting nabobs, the smart London set and all visitors who can spare the time to do so, swarm to Henley.

The regatta lasts three days, and during this period, sober little Henley is turned topsy turvy by the reveling crowd. Coachloads of people tumble down upon it; deliberate English, voluble Americans, gesticulating Europeans and on every countenance there is the anticipation of good sport ahead, mingled with the necessary grain of uncertainty which makes the Henley event most attractive.

As early as you choose to go to the blue of Yale streaming from the parasols and hats of the Americans, the paler blue of Eton and Cambridge, the pink of Leander, the hues of Trinity, worn by English men and women, and waved aloft when the crew comes into sight.

Houseboats gay with bright awnings, flags and bunting, lie lazily along the shore. Smart little naphthas are banked against them. English and Canadian canoes bob restlessly around, between, and rub paint with tubs and family boats. River barges, giddy little skiffs, and standing in the stern of a punt a girl is craftily using a pole to push herself near the hem of the crowd.

Elderly Britishers with amusing

of the many thousands who crossed the Atlantic to see King Edward crowned there were few who were not found along the banks of the Thames to cheer their countrymen on to victory.

The Henley course during racing week presents one of the gayest and most brilliant spectacles to be seen in England during the entire season, and there are none who enjoy the festival here more than the Bohemian Americans, who try to forget the defeat of Harvard in '69, Yale in '94, Cornell in '95 and Yale again last year, and who were on hand this summer as usual to trumpet for Old Eli and urge our oarsmen to exert themselves to their best.

Next to the Derby, it may be said that no sporting event in England calls out a larger, more formidable or more little strip of Thames, you will find it crowded with pleasure craft. Hardly a hand's breadth of blue water is vacant, and a newcomer wonders how the boats will ever find room to race.

Nobody cares to move. Everyone is occupied looking for the crews. The scene is far gayier than any midsummer American scene. The men are out in flannels, blazers and straw hats, scanning the river with field glasses, and their eyes are all their favor. Their crew pulls evenly down between the cheering line of spectators. Scattered among them are the American men, in sober coats, watching for their countrymen's colors, that they may give them rousing cheers. If American colors are popular at home they are triply inspiring when seen floating by at Henley. On every side there is the flaunt of partisan ribbons, anxiety, stand up in their craft and scan the water. The fluttering draperies of the English women, the smart water costumes of the American girls, add to the lively maze of color that fascinates the eyes of those fortunate enough to occupy seats in the stands and boathouses that overlook the scene.

When the race is over another sort of gaiety begins. Bands of musicians travel along the bank and station themselves near certain barges, which pay them large sums for exclusive entertainment. The salmon, cucumbers and champagne cup are brought out. The great crowd feasts. The bank is a line of gaiety, music and song. Night falls and gaiety is still on the increase. Henley looks around and wonders. There are two days more of it, equally festive.

Library Building Erected in Memory of Gladstone

On the brow of the hill from which Hawarden church commands a magnificent birdseye view of the estuary of the Dee and the Cheshire plain, in England, there stands now a new and imposing building which the visitor to Hawarden will be informed is St. Denio's library, one of the national memorials to the late Mr. Gladstone.

The origin and object of the struc-

Gladstone, who, eminent no less as a theologian than as a statesman, established the foundation for the advancement of divine learning."

St. Denio's library, erected out of the nation's gratitude to the memory of one of her greatest sons, will thus carry on a work begun by Mr. Gladstone himself. The great statesman after his retirement from the strife of library has led to an increase of the books bequeathed by Mr. Gladstone, and the number of volumes now available for students is nearly 35,000. The books arranged by Mr. Gladstone in his own peculiar style, will be transferred to the new building when it is ready for their reception, in precisely the same order.

The new building, which is costing ture will be found eloquently expressed on its foundation stone, the laying of which was one of the last public acts performed by Mr. Gladstone's distinguished neighbor and friend, the late Duke of Westminster. Cut in the stone is an inscription which reads thus:

"In this building, erected to his memory by a grateful nation, is preserved the library of William Ewart politics had removed to a temporary iron building near the church thousands of the theological and classical volumes which composed his famous library at Hawarden Castle. There he arranged them with his own hands, and there they are to-day (pending their removal to the new library) to be read and studied by students from all parts of the globe.

£10,000, is rapidly approaching completion. It is built of Helsby stone, and its handsome porch and finely-carved turrets and pinnacles, in Gothic style, give it a classical appearance.

No date has yet been fixed for the opening ceremony.

OREGONIAN IN NEW YORK.

His interesting Experiences in the Eastern Metropolis.

An old Portlander, who has been traveling in the east for several weeks, has returned. He has concluded that New York city is too rapid in every way for him.

He was returning from a suburban resort to the city one day and saw a bad tough knocked out by a lady. The contemptible hound had snuggled up to one lady so close that she left the train, and he then crowded up against another lady and acted very rudely. She pulled out one of her hats and jabbed it clean through his leg above the knee. He gave an agonized yell and got out of the car as quickly as possible, and just fell off the platform.

After reaching the city the Portlander took the street car to go to his hotel. An old man who sat near him signaled to the conductor and got off the car on the wrong side. A vast trench had been blasted out in the center of the street, in which a subway is to be constructed. This trench is thirty feet in depth, and the old man stepped from the car down into it. He was picked up and thrown into a "bucket" in which rock is hoisted out, the engine went "chu, chu, chu" and he was brought to the surface on a run; an ambulance drove up, he was thrown in and taken away to a hospital, and the car proceeded.

The Oregonian was perfectly satisfied with his experience of life in New York and does not hanker for any more of it.—Portland Oregonian.

WERE ROUGH ON OATS.

All That the Western Farmer Knows of "Em'grants."

United States Senator Henry M. Teller, of Colorado, who entered with much spirit into the recent debate on the Philippine tariff bill, is proud of the achievements of the Rocky Mountain states and loves to tell stories of the vigorous frontiersmen who blazed the trail for American empire, says the Philadelphia Post.

One story is of a farming community that had established itself on the sunset side of the Rockies. A number of farmers had gathered around the stove at the village grocery, and one of the company was reading aloud from a newspaper.

On account of the swarming of emigrants toward the west, the paper stated, oats had become so scarce that the price had gone up in Denver to $2 a bushel.

"What's em'grants?" interrupted a farmer.

A significant silence demonstrated that the query had stumped the community. Finally the grocer, whose reputation as the infallible oracle of the country was at stake, spoke up.

"I don't know exactly what these pesky em'grants is," explained that worthy man, "but I know they're powerful destructive on oats."

Approved of the Distinction.

A certain American writer of international reputation who died recently was, like so many other geniuses, strangely incapable of managing his own domestic affairs. The small boy of the family was his father's pet, but the terror of the rest of the household. Now it happened that under this same roof with this small boy lived to maiden aunts, sisters of his mother. That they were thorns in his flesh he made no pretense of concealing. On one occasion when he had overstepped a bit farther than usual the bounds of propriety in addressing his relatives, his Aunt Julia appeared before his father to state the case. Her nephew had called her a fool, while his Aunt Martha had characterized him as a fool. The young offender was summoned to the paternal presence. Fixing him with his eye the father demanded:

"Did you call young Aunt Julia a fool?"

"Yes."

"Did you call your Aunt Martha a fool?"

"Yes."

"My son," was the prompt reply, "that is exactly the distinction I should make myself."

All in the Family.

"I had business in the far west last winter," said a Boston lawyer the other day, "and while I was stopping in a small town for a day or two a man was tried for stealing a horse. I went over to the court to see how they put things through, and closely followed the evidence on both sides. There wasn't the shadow of a doubt in my mind that the prisoner was guilty, and that evening I said to his lawyer:

"You'll lose your case to-morrow. The jury must certainly convict."

"I don't know," he replied.

"You don't hope to get him off, do you?"

"Maybe not, but there'll surely be a disagreement."

"I shouldn't count on that if I had the case."

"But I do, you know," he replied. "I've got two brothers-in-law on the jury and you don't suppose they are going back on the family, do you?"

"They didn't," laughed the narrator.

"Next day the case was closed, and the jury disagreed."

MRS. O'MALLEY RELEASED ON BONDS; FURTHER PROCEEDINGS NOT LIKELY

Mrs. Aline E. O'Malley and William Hearin both were held for trial at Philadelphia, the former on a charge of larceny, the man to face an accusation of conspiracy. The wife of the Notre Dame professor was admitted to bail in the sum of $1,200, the bond being signed by Thomas M. Daly, president of the Continental Title & Trust Company. Hearin's bonds were placed at the same amount, but no friend appeared to sign for him. Hearin is a handsome, boyish-looking young fellow—pretty boy—blond, with regular features and a graceful, slight figure. He leaned over the rail and whispered eagerly to Mrs. O'Malley, talking with animation, as if he were trying to comfort and encourage her, but she listened with no ardent smile and sat with her eyes on the floor, twirling an envelope around and around in her hands.

It is not thought any further action will be taken in the matter, and trial of the cases is unlikely.

Matter Made Quite Plain.

A writer in the Lancet, says the Chicago Record-Herald, generously sets himself to the task of giving out valuable information as to the amount of food one should eat. He proceeds to make the matter plain to the masses by saying:

"If you desire to know how much you ought to eat per diem you must first determine whether you are temperamentally anabolic or katobolic. Then, taking into account your age, sex, size, the amount of exercise you get and the temperature of the atmosphere, you should calculate the amount of food necessary to maintain the minimum weight of your body consistent with the best health of which you are capable."

Hereafter there should be no excuse whatever for overeating or undereating. The anabolic should be able to jump up and crack his heels together at least four times, and the katobolic ought to find it easy to turn flipflaps without the use of the hands. In view of the simplicity of the thing it is surprising that this whole matter was not disposed of long ago to the best interests of all concerned.

Separated by an Obliging Man.

On a recent evening as an excursion train was leaving Middleport for Columbus an amusing scene was enacted.

A middle-aged colored woman with a baby was at the depot awaiting the train, her friends held her baby, intending to give it to her after she had got aboard, but before they could get to her the train had started. A white man seeing the predicament she was about to get in stepped off the rear coach, grabbed the infant and jumped aboard again.

In the meantime the colored woman had got off the train, and as it was at once under headway she was unable to get aboard again. During all this time the gentleman was holding the baby, and as the train rounded the curve he was seen on the platform with his charge. The babe was left to her the next station and returned to its mother by another train.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MINISTER WU TING FANG RECALLED; SIR LIANG CHENG HIS SUCCESSOR

Sir Liang Cheng, formerly secretary to Minister Chang Yen Huang, who was beheaded in 1900 after being exiled to Turkestan, has been appointed Chinese minister to the United States in succession to Wu Ting Fang.

The new minister is at present secretary of the coronation embassy in England. He probably will remain in London for the postponed ceremonies and not go to Washington until the fall or winter, especially as the president will be away until October. New ministers to Russia, France, and Italy have also been named. The selections for these posts show that the dowager empress continues to regard the diplomatic service as unimportant. None of the appointees is of higher than the blue button rank, and none has held any important office.

Liang Chen Tung's appointment pleases the American state department. The newly appointed diplomat is a graduate of Yale university and is able, dignified and honest. He is the first of the body of students sent to America in the '70's to receive recognition befitting their accomplishments, the Chinese officials having disliked them because of their progressive views.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME, Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years, according to the ability of the student. ST. EDWARD'S HALL, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

UNDER THE FRENCH CAPITAL

Dark and Damp Caves Below the Paris Pavements.

The Paris of the pavement, gay, bright and exhilarating, is fairly familiar to us all, but underground Paris, dark, solitary and damp, extending for miles, is comparatively unknown. A part of this area is devoted to the catacombs—a valley of dry bones, a garden of the dead; the rest a garden still more vast, provides for the wants, or rather the luxuries, of the living—it is devoted to mushroom culture. These subterranean passages extend for some twenty miles under the gay capital and are from twenty feet to 160 feet beneath the surface.

It is very difficult to obtain permission to visit them, and when permission is obtained it requires some courage to avail oneself of it, for the only entrance is a circular opening like the mouth of a well, out of which a long pole stands. Through this pole, fastened at the top only, at fairly long intervals, sticks are thrust. This primitive ladder, the base of which swings like a pendulum in the impenetrable darkness below, is the only means of reaching the caves. "Here," again cried our guide, with a burst of cheerfulness, "see this door! On the other side are the catacombs—as full rooms." We smiled. We were not afraid of the bones with an iron door between them and us.—The Strand Magazine.

What Might Have Been.

Sonoma, Mich., July 21st.—Mr. DeLous Hutchins of this place says: "If I could have had Dodd's Kidney Pills 25 years ago I would not now be crippled as I am."

Mr. Hutchins spent from 1861 to 1864 in the swamps of Louisiana as a northern soldier and with the result that he contracted Rheumatism which gave him much pain till Mr. Fred Parker, the local druggist, advised him to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The first two boxes did not seem to help him very much, but Mr. Parker, knowing that Dodd's Kidney Pills would eventually cure him, pressed Mr. Hutchins to continue and by the time four boxes were used the short, sharp, shooting pains which had tortured his back, hip, and legs were entirely gone. Mr. Hutchins says: "I can not tell you how much better I am feeling. If it were not for the way my hands, feet, and knees are drawn out of shape I would be about as good as ever."

HOW BRAVE MAN DIED

PATHETIC ENDING OF GRANDSON OF JOHN BROWN.

J. A. Adams Wandered Away from His Camp on the Colorado Desert and Perished for Want of Water—Body Not Found.

J. A. Adams, a former resident of Arizona and a grandson of old John Brown, whose "soul goes marching on," wandered away from his camp on the Colorado desert on May 19 and perished for want of water. The story of his disappearance is graphically told by Charley Fay, one of the party, as follows:

"We went out on the desert prospecting for gold. An Indian whom we had employed to show us where to find water on the desert caught his foot in the stirrup while mounting his horse and fell on his back.

"The horse started to run, dragging the Indian by one foot. As the ground was covered with jagged rocks the Indian would have been killed had not Adams run up and taken the horse by the bit. The animal, wild with fright, reared and plunged. Adams was twice thrown upon the rocks, and once the horse's hoofs hit him, but he still gripped the bit until Mr. Lamere and I succeeded in releasing the Indian.

"After the danger was over, Adams sat down upon a rock and began laughing, and when asked if he was hurt, he replied, 'Oh, no, I'm only a little tired, but I guess you'll have to help me set this arm.' We then started for Yuva, Adams riding some 25 miles that afternoon and never once complaining, though we could see by his drawn features that he was suffering intense pain.

"At dusk we camped for the night, and within an hour the injured man was delirious and raving like a madman. Some time during the night he left camp. As soon as we discovered that he had gone we made every effort to find him, but could not do much until daylight, when we found his tracks in the sand. We followed the tracks all that day and until about 9 o'clock the next day, when we came to a hard, rocky place at the foot of some rock hills. Here we lost the trail and try as we might we could not find it again.

"For three days we searched the hills, but not a trace of the man could we discover, though we well knew that somewhere within a radius of twenty or thirty miles lay the body of one of the bravest men that ever lost his life in that great death-trap, the Colorado desert."—Yuma Sentinel.

Worry Causes Dyspepsia.

Worry is a cause and a source of much unhappiness. It sears the face with lines and furrows and has a most depressing effect upon that most sensitive organ, the stomach, which at such times becomes a most unwilling and laggard servant. Indeed, it is safe to say that unless encouraged by a cheerful temper and bright or, at least, hopeful thoughts, the stomach will play truant or sulk or do no good work. The physiological explanation of this is the close alliance of the great sympathetic nerves, which are worse than the telegraph for carrying bad news; the work and anxiety which depress the brain cause simultaneously a semi-paralysis of the nerves of the stomach, gastric juices will not flow, and, presto! there is indigestion. One sign of mental health is serenity of temper and a self-control that enables us to bear with equanimity the petty trials and jars of life, especially those arising from contact with scolding, irascible, irritating persons. Serenity of mind comes easy to some and hard to others.

Anecdote of Fitzhugh Lee.

Maj.-Gen. John Gibbon thus describes his meeting with Gen. Fitzhugh Lee at the McLean house. Appomattox county, Virginia, in April, 1865, at the time of the confederate surrender: "Going to the door, I found Gen. Fitz Lee seated on his horse and looking, as I thought, somewhat uneasy. He had been a cadet under me at West Point, and I had not seen him for years. As I looked at him a vision came up before me, and I could think only of a little rollicking fellow, dressed in cadet gray, whose jolly songs and gay spirits were the life of his class. My salutation of 'Hello, Fitz! Get off and come in,' seemed to put him at his ease at once and brought him to his feet. He came into the house and told me his story. Before leaving, with a grim humor, he took from his pocket a $5 confederate note, and, writing across its face, 'For Mrs. Gibbon, with the compliments of Fitz Lee,' he said, 'Send that to your wife and tell her it's the last cent I have in the world.'"

Snails Used as Medicine.

According to the London Spectator, one of the current medical fads among the English laboring classes is the following. Snails crawling up a church wall are caught—those crawling down possess no virtue—placed in a pan with a little water and boiled, being stirred meanwhile with a quill plucked from a black crow. When the mixture has boiled down to the consistency of a salve it is ready for use. When rubbed on the soles of the feet it is a sure preventive of disease, being especially efficient in the case of what is locally known as "hinfomony." It is also valuable in strengthening weak spines. Snails, whether raw or cooked is not evident, are also considered a valuable remedy for consumption.

The Gentle Art of "Getting Over It"

By Sallie Lee

IT IS a sweet and popular fallacy of poets and fiction writers that each man and each woman loves just once in a lifetime, and that that love, being unreciprocated he or she lives ever afterward, whether single or married, in a constant state of repressed and martyred regret.

Now, in my acquaintance with men and women I have never once met that person who fed on the dried leaves of a dead love. I have never met the sweet-faced old maid who had hidden at the bottom of her trunk a bundle of letters scented with lavender, tied with blue ribbon and surmounted by a faded photograph of a "frank boyish face." I have never met the bronzed man of forty just returned from the Orient who was known to have loved a beautiful woman who died, and who therefore never afterward looked at another woman. All the bronzed men back from the Orient whom I have ever known had eager eyes for every pretty woman they saw, and fell in love so quickly that one wondered how they had been able to stay away from home and women for so long a time. All the old maids I ever met were quite willing to exchange an old love for a new, says Sallie Lee in the New York Sunday Press.

The kaleidoscopic career of the average twentieth century heart breeds conditions that would have shocked the Lily Maid of Astelot, and which make the art of "getting over it" a necessary part of one's education. Had Elaine lived to-day she would never have chosen so foolish a method of making the world miserable. Elaine in a Continental hat and a chiffon gown would have been wise and brave. She would have gritted her teeth softly and waited until Lancelot had got over it; waited until Queen Guinevere should pull upon him and he should get up in the cold gray of some morning with that awful feeling we have all had when love has suddenly grown cold. Or, more than likely, she would have asked for an introduction to King Arthur.

To die for love is interesting. One makes a picturesque figure lying "cold and still" after the poison or the lead has done its work; but the satisfaction of such a revenge is somewhat marred by the fact that one cannot be present at the funeral to see how sorry everybody feels and witness the shame and remorse of the author of the trouble. Besides, this tacit acknowledgment of defeat is galling to a man or a woman of any pride. To live and nurse one's wrongs is torture to oneself and one's friends. There is but one thing, then, for a lover to do in the case of hopeless love; to "get over it" quickly, gracefully and permanently. That some men do get over love too quickly, too graciously and too often does not lessen the strength of my assertion. There are always people who will make a crime of a virtue by carrying it too far.

The best cure for love is—love. Cupid is a homeopathist. The easiest and quickest method of dragging one's heart out of one affair is to plunge it into another affair. The best way to erase one face from the tablet of memory is to draw another across it. The quickest way to forget golden locks is to look very steadily at glossy black ones; the cure for gray eyes is brown or blue. But this medicine is the most dangerous which a man or woman may take. It is apt to bring on another attack of the disease, to lead the sufferer from one gulf of despair to another, to keep the man or woman who tries it constantly in hot water, to wear one's nerves to a frazzle. It is a stimulant, not a legitimate medicine. Sometimes, too, this curing of an old love affair by a new tempts one into all sorts of follies, such as quick marriages, desperate flirtations and risky situations. It is the sort of medicine that should be used only as the doctor uses the operating knife—at the last moment and when all other remedies have failed.

If you get up some morning with the firm conviction that your life has been ruined, with a hatred of eggs and coffee, with a frown toward your fellow men and a well-formed "plan to end it all with a little leaden ball," buy a ticket for another town. A change of scene is one of the best and mildest remedies for hopeless love that has ever been suggested. It does not always cure, but it is wonderful how small a new mountain will make an old love look. Get away from the things that remind you of her or him. Get away in body, with a firm determination to get away in spirit. Do not carry his or her photograph about in your pocket or the lining of your trunk. Do not take old letters to read when you are feeling worse. Drop your misery at the station. When you have got over the first dizziness of the blow, open your eyes wide to the world and other people. There are other people in the world, you know besides just you two. Abstain from reading love stories for a while. They are apt to make you moody. Take an interest in your meals. Order the best you can afford and try to contemplate them with enthusiasm. Let your mind rest on the beauties of oyster patties and spring lamb. If your case is a mild one it will be cured in the length of one vacation.

Work, serious, enthusiastic, creditable work, is another and much less expensive remedy. There are some men and women who rush to work as the others do to drink or morphia as a panacea for pain. One can become as dizzy from the stimulus of good work as from the stimulus of alcohol. It may seem sacrilegious to make accounts a substitute for kisses, but it is eminently wise. Work well done and done in the right spirit is an antidote for every mental ill. If work fails you, if you cannot keep your mind upon your desk and a pair of eyes come between you and your books or papers, between you and the office boy, between you and your dinner plate; if you take something for your liver and yet continue to feel a pain at your heart; if you travel from New York to Egypt and carry your malady with you; if you "take notice" and look at other men and women and yet see only one face, you are beyond the chance of "getting over it." You are a rara avis in the catalogue of lovers.

That most men and women do "get over it" is proved by the indifference with which two people who have been lovers meet in after life. Jessica, with the memory of moonlight nights and old waltzes surging through her brain, meets Jack at a humdrum tea fifteen years after the quarrel which almost broke her heart. Jack is fat and married and has acquired a bald head and a beard; Jessica is lean and yellow and wears a false front. Instead of being shocked at the unromantic turn of things Jessica calmly inquires whether or not Jack's children study mental arithmetic, and Jack asks Jessica what she considers best for a baby with the croup. Neither feels a single pain nor a single thrill, except perhaps one of relief that they never married one another. The romanticist will scoff at this situation. He considers it disgusting. He sees nothing in it but sordid commonplaceness. Yet it is the result of the most beautiful heroism of modern life, the heroism of "getting over it."

To die for love is weak. Only the coward shows his heart to the world and drags the tragedy of his life through the newspapers. To live and nurse a broken heart is foolish; it is as foolish as living with a broken back or a broken arm which might be cured. It is a worse crime toward society than eating onions. It should be punishable by law. But to meet a sorrow boldly; to grit one's teeth in the face of the worst thing that can befall a man or woman; to trample down the garden one has planted in one's heart; to tear up the hopes one has grown and fostered; to rake the bare ground of one's life over and make it yield good fruit—that is the true heroism of "getting over it."

May Day in Belgium

Curious Custom of Young Girls in Deciding Love Affairs

THE most honored month of the year in Belgium is the month of May, known as the Virgin's month, and consecrated to the Virgin Mary. In the province of Liege young maidens have a quaint way of predicting their love affairs this month. A group of girls arrange to meet at sunrise, and start to walk through the fields until they come to a hedge, quite unobserved from the highway, where they generally choose a honeysuckle bush beneath the protecting branches of which to perform their mystic operations. Each maiden selects three blades of dew-laden grass, the tops of which she cuts to equal lengths, and to each of which she attaches a colored silken thread. Black represents a bachelor, red an unknown lover, and green the secret desires of the maiden's heart. Ten days afterward they return to the same spot where they left the blades growing, and that blade of the three chosen which has surpassed the others in height reveals the lover the maiden is destined to have.

It is calculated, that in London alone there are discharged into the atmosphere daily 18,000 tons of unconsumed fuel.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 3409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes: "After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1901, to take your valuable remedy, Peruna.
