THE FAIR

The 1903 Fair at Cass City Promises Exceedingly Well.

Sept. 29, 30, Oct. 1 and 2 are the Dates Fixed.

Our Fall Fair promises well for a great success. The dates chosen are popular ones, as compared one year with another, that week has proven to be well chosen for good weather. In making the arrangements this year not a hitch of any kind has occurred and while there are yet a few details to complete, matters are well enough in hand to warrant us in predicting a decided success.

The building and grounds are in first-class conditions and will yet be improved. Our track is known as one of the best in the Thumb, and is not as readily affected by wet weather as many. Exhibits in live stock promise to be many and good, and other departments are always well filled.

As to special attractions, the program is not complete, but two or three good ones are already secured. The Giant Quartette of Jubilee Singers from Chicago has been secured for the three days, the Rexos skaters and hoop twirlers, who gave such wonderful exhibitions here last year, will be with us for one day at least and we hope for more. Other attractions are in view and the Secretary is doing his best to land a couple more. We understand that a good base ball game will be included in the program. The Cass City Band is better able than ever to furnish good music and lots of it.

The Secretary, H. L. McDermott, will have an office established all next week at the ENTERPRISE office, for the receiving of entries, selling membership tickets, etc., and all who possibly can should make it a point to come in early, so as to avoid the rush at the last few days, and give the clerks an opportunity to keep their work in good shape.

Everybody come to the Fair at Cass City, Sept. 29th to Oct. 2nd.

Church Notes.

BAPTIST.

The Social Workers of the Baptist Society served tea last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Jones, West Street. The weather being so wet, many were prevented from being present and so missed another opportunity of getting a twenty-five cent supper for ten cents.

Rev. R. Weaver will preach upon the following subjects next Lord's Day: Morning—"God's Whispered Secrets"; evening—"Sudden Destruction." B. Y. P. U. at 6:30; topic, "Christian Culture." A good turnout is desired. All meetings open to the public and non-church going. A cordial welcome will be given to all.

METHODIST.

Wm. Predmore, of Cedar Run, led the Epworth League Sunday evening in a very profitable manner.

Remember the "senses" social given by the M. E. Ladies' Aid Society, tomorrow evening, at the home of D. J. Landon.

Rev. M. W. Gifford, Ph. D., T. H. Fritz and D. H. Kyes, of this place, are attending the sessions of the Detroit Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, now being held at Flint. Mr. Fritz attends as the lay delegate of the church here, while Mr. Kyes goes for the examination for admission on trial to the conference.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church will give one of their good suppers at the home of Mrs. J. L. Hitchcock next Wednesday night, Sept. 23rd.

At the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening at 7:30 Miss McBurney, a missionary among the Mountain Whites of the South, will speak of the life and needs of those people. Miss McBurney is an interesting talker and her subject is one of interest to every true American. It is hoped that a large audience will greet her.

New Feed Barn.

To be opened the first day of the Fair and continued thereafter. One and a half blocks south of the Roller Mills. 9-16-2* HENRY PHILLIPS.

High School News.

The Misses Vera Schell and Rena Schenck were visitors at the High School this week.

The new pupils who have entered school this week are Miss Mabel Dickson, of Gageton, and Otis Skinner.

There are now thirty-seven non-residents attending the High School, which is the largest number yet known so early in the term.

The committee of arrangements for the contemplated play rendering met on Tuesday evening, and decided upon the play to be given. They decided upon "Santiago," and the training will start soon after the Fair. Plenty of time will be taken for preparation so as not to interfere in any way with the regular school work. The date for its rendering has not yet been decided upon.

HER DRESS.

Take up the picture; gaze
On what she used to wear
In foolish, olden days—
See how she fixed her hair.

The things she wears to-day
Long hence may make men smile—
A year from now we may Laugh at this summer's style.

Take up the picture—see!
And yet your father wore
A fond fidelity
In spite of what she wore.

Ah, lovely ones, I guess
'Twas God that made you fair,
And not the foolish dress
The world has made you wear.

THE STUDENT'S STORY.

BY WM. W. REEVES.

Copyrighted, 1905, by The Authors Publishing Company

"It makes me nervous to think of it," said the old druggist, as we gathered around the cheerful fire one winter evening. "Yes, it was a close call."

"I was ambitious those days, and I determined before leaving the university to make a mark for myself in the field of chemistry, and you may be sure I was working hard."

"In those early days, liquefied carbonic acid gases were merely a laboratory experiment, and high explosives, outside of gun cotton, were comparatively unknown."

"It was in this field that I was working, and it was due to the premature explosion of a mixture akin to nitroglycerine that I think I owe my life."

"Attending the university at the time was a student by the name of Agathos, a Greek he certainly was, and his stupendous intellect made him always a welcome companion, in fact, he and I were quite chummy, and when I was not busy with chemistry, we were solving knotty problems concerning the construction of the universe."

"On the night that my hair turned gray," continued the doctor—glancing at the still raven locks of his wife, who sat opposite, "I had kept the nature of my secret well, and not even my student friends knew the dangerous composition in the huge beakers which I was manipulating."

"I think the hour was 11 p. m., or thereabouts, and I was alone in the recesses of the main laboratory, busy with combination of nitrates and carbon, when hearing a slight rattle, I turned and saw the face of my friend Agathos."

"For some moments he watched me as I observed the thermometer in the nitric bath, and then we engaged in conversation."

"Brown," he murmured, "I have today separated a new alkaloid, from the plant, coca-erythroxylon, and its effects on the human system are truly remarkable—here, try a dose; tasteless as water, I assure you; and, fool that I was, I took the proffered glass of water, into which he dissolved a fine white powder, and I have always regretted that I did so."

"The subtle drug paralyzed every muscle of my body and bereft me of the power of speech; I was like one in a trance; my intellect, however, was unimpaired—nay, even stimulated, and my eyesight was good, for all I could not turn my eyes in their sockets."

"It was at this juncture I learned that I was alone with a madman!"

"Definitely he removed the paraphernalia from an operating table, and lifting me bodily, I was soon lying on the marble slab, as if a subject for the clinic."

"Now," I could hear him mutter, "I shall soon test the material qualities of the human soul—but I must have those dissecting instruments; and while he was gone I was engaged in the most agonizing reflections."

"I remembered that in all our previous discourse on life and immortality he had argued that the human soul, if there was one, was as material as the heaviest atoms."

"I was at this juncture I learned that I was alone with a madman!"

"Definitely he removed the paraphernalia from an operating table, and lifting me bodily, I was soon lying on the marble slab, as if a subject for the clinic."

"Now," I could hear him mutter, "I shall soon test the material qualities of the human soul—but I must have those dissecting instruments; and while he was gone I was engaged in the most agonizing reflections."

"I remembered that in all our previous discourse on life and immortality he had argued that the human soul, if there was one, was as material as the heaviest atoms."

"I was at this juncture I learned that I was alone with a madman!"

"Vainly I tried to cry aloud, but my jaws were as firmly locked as if rigor mortis had actually set in. I tried to move, but I experienced only the horrible emotions of one about to be buried alive!"

"It was clear enough to me that he had obtained this fiendish idea from an old Ionian manuscript, written in the fifth century before the advent of Christ, clearly the work of a monk, by name Koryphanos, for I had read the theorem then and again, and was surprised at its absurdity."

"Thus it was that I was somewhat prepared for the terrible operation to follow, which consisted of removing the epidermis from the entire viscera, or in other words, in stripping

"The elderly gentleman of pompous appearance reads the leaders' first; while his competent, cheerful wife reads the recipes of the household page. Some clergymen read the wills of the dead, to see what charities have been remembered with bequests. There are many people who read the crimes, the scandals and the shocking accidents first. Poets, as a rule, will not read the newspapers at all."

A blinding flash, a jar that must have shaken the building to its foundation.

The entire chest of everything but the intervening thin membrane, so the action of the various organs could be observed while the patient was yet alive. It was thus that Agathos expected to pry into the secrets of the Almighty and observe the transit of the human soul."

It was clear the Greek was crazy, and it is a fact that insane persons always select their dearest friends for victims."

"At last I heard his footfalls swiftly coming along the empty aisles, flanked on either hand with racks of phials, retorts and glassware of all kinds, and I could well see my finish."

"I could discern the subtle odor of ether, and as he stooped over me, his eyes burned almost with the fury of a lion!"

"His next act was to deftly remove all covering from my chest and for an instant he listened attentively to the beating of my heart. Next he began to sharpen those murderous looking surgical knives, of which he had a godly supply, and having completed this task to his satisfaction, he uncorked a large bottle of ether, the only known anesthetic of that time, and began saturating a sponge with it, when a strange sputtering sound from the direction of the rack where I had been conducting my experiment caused him to desist."

"Already I saw salvation in sight, for, as the student of even elementary chemistry knows, concentrated acids heat violently when they combine with other substances, even with water, and I knew the mixture of nitro-carbon (I was using the light hydrocarbon) with powerful nitric acid, had gone too long without attention. An explosion was likely to occur at any moment."

"Anyhow, I reflected, I had much rather be blown to atoms than to be cut up piece-meal while yet alive. While the sputtering continued Agathos regarded it with an air of uncertainty, as if undecided what to do with the mess."

"The insidious drug with which I was charged—it must have been cocaine—was beginning to leave me, so that I was able to partly turn, and I am since thankful I turned my back in the right direction, else I would have been blinded."

"Agathos was bending over my apparatus, which contained a full quart of substance more powerful and even more unstable than nitro-glycerine, when, the cooling bath not being renewed, it exploded by reason of the excess of heat."

"There was a blinding flash, a jar that must have shaken the building to its foundations, and amid the sound of crashing glass I lost consciousness.

"Weeks and weeks, I am told, I hovered at death's door with brain fever, from which I finally emerged alive, due to the skill of my nurse, the lady you see sitting across the table there—my wife."

"There was scarcely a bottle or pane of glass in the laboratory that was not broken to fragments, and thousands of dollars' worth of fine instruments were rendered useless."

"Agathos was blown completely to atoms, and I am told it was with difficulty that enough of his remains could be found to give decent burial."

"When I recovered completely I was placed in the sweat box by the faculty to ascertain the cause of the explosion; but as you may surmise, they never learned the exact formula of that dangerous composition."

"My once black hair turned to snowy white, and for a long time afterward I would wake with a sort of nightmare to experience the sensation of cold steel penetrating my vitals."

"The immortality of the soul, or very existence may remain in doubt, but I still have the fifth century parchment that came near sacrificing me to the cause of science, and I never regard its uncial text without a shudder."

HOW THEY READ THE PAPER.

Varying Departments Which Interest Different People.

"Very old persons," said an observer, "nearly always, on unfolding their newspapers, turn to the personal columns. This is because, in the first place, they are more likely to find news of their friends there than in the news columns or in any other part of the paper; and, because, in the second place, they are interested in personal matters—they have the subject so much in their minds."

"Young girls turn first to the society news and weddings, and after that to the fashions. Young men of the healthy, open-air sort, turn first to the sporting news; while boys universally turn to this page, too. The actor, of course, reads the dramatic columns, and the writer the book reviews; but neither of these departments, I fancy, does any part of the disinterested public consult first of all."

"The elderly gentleman of pompous appearance reads the leaders' first; while his competent, cheerful wife reads the recipes of the household page. Some clergymen read the wills of the dead, to see what charities have been remembered with bequests. There are many people who read the crimes, the scandals and the shocking accidents first. Poets, as a rule, will not read the newspapers at all."

"The young of birds given their freedom are hardy and will follow their mother as soon almost as they are out of the shell; at least they are good tramps after they are a day old. The young live on bugs and seeds discovered for them by the mothers."

"In the early laying season the birds will lay their eggs anywhere, and several will deposit their eggs in the same locality. When about to sit they seek separation and lay a dozen or more eggs in a hidden nest, where they incubate them."

The guineas differ from common fowls in that the males are as anxious about the brood as is the hen, and helps take care of them during the day time, forsaking them at night."

Guinea hens and their broods forage in a body, the old males helping to keep up the laggards of the line. At night each mother collects her own brood."

The young at a very early age learn to roost in the trees, even before they can reach the branches by flying. They half fly and half run up the trunk of the tree."

Guinea eggs are very fertile and a large percentage of the birds hatch a live if they are permitted to run wild with their mother."

Like the turkey, the guinea prefers the open tree top to the secure poultry house."

Treatment for Heaves. In accordance with the request of a reader of the Farmers' Review we quote the advice for treatment of heaves from two writers:

Prof. D. McIntosh: Feed so as not to overload the stomach; allow a little hay to be eaten first, then give water and then oats. Never feed more than twelve to fourteen pounds of hay per day and fifteen pounds of oats. Bolus mixed with a little bran at night will keep the bowels regular, besides being very nutritious. Sulphate of iron, four ounces; bicarbonate of potassium, four ounces; nuxvomica, two ounces; divided into twenty-four doses, and one given every night in bran mash, is very useful. After this quantity has been given, skip two or three weeks and repeat. One ounce of Fowler's solution of arsenic given every night in a bran mash, when the animal is at work in the spring, is very good and often enables an animal to do a good day's work, which it could not do except for the arsenic. This can be continued for a month to six weeks without any danger to the animal. Then stop for a few weeks or as long as the animal can do without it, and when the breathing becomes difficult resume again and so on. I have treated horses in this way and they would do their work with ease for years."

Jonathan Periam: Treatment with a view to permanent cure is generally not successful. However, the ailment may be greatly ameliorated by a strict attention to the diet, which should be the reverse of that which has hitherto been given. Give nutritious food of small bulk and best quality, such as finely-cut wild hay mixed with ground oats and corn, bran and a small quantity of ground oil-cake or raxseed meal, and slightly moistened. In summer give green or succulent food instead of hay, and in winter daily allowances of sliced carrots and other roots. Such horses should never be fed or watered immediately before use, and they should be used only for slow and easy work. —Farmers' Review.

Women Brokers. Two young women in New York have lately made a hit as stock brokers. One of them was a stock dealer. Many women would rather deal with a woman broker when possible; and the men in the same line like her because she carries on her affairs in a businesslike way. The other woman broker, who has an uptown office, is just as discreet and systematic. They are both making money."

The Latest Girl Fad. The latest is a polished floor walk. Girls are so clever that even those who have rag carpets on every floor at home walk on the streets as if they had mince around on highly polished hardwood when at home.—Athenian Globe.

Water Drank by Hogs.

Prof. W. A. Henry says: "We find little recorded on this subject, possibly because the matter is not considered of importance by many. In a feeding trial by the writer at the Wisconsin station a group of ten pigs divided into two lots of five each, one lot getting barley meal and the other corn meal, was fed for a period of eight weeks, with the results given below."

"The five fed on barley averaged 208 pounds at beginning of test, ate 2,832 pounds of grain, gained 601 pounds in weight, consumed 9,056 pounds of water, and required 471 pounds of grain for 100 pounds of gain. For every 100 pounds of food eaten they drank 320 pounds of water."

"The five fed on corn meal averaged 209 pounds in weight at beginning of test, ate 3,100 pounds of grain, gained 713 pounds in weight, drank 6,120 pounds of water and used 435 pounds of food in making 100 pounds of gain. For every 100 pounds of food eaten they drank 213 pounds of water, or 107 pounds less than those fed on barley."

"The weight of water reported includes that required for soaking the meal and also that drank from a second trough."

"It will be seen that the pigs fed on corn meal consumed about two pounds of water, and the barley-fed a mere three pounds, for each pound of meal eaten. The pigs getting corn meal consumed over 900 pounds of water, and the barley-fed pigs 1,500 pounds, for each 100 pounds of gain in live weight. Pigs fed corn meal appear to require less water than when on other feeds."

Points on Guinea Fowls. Guinea fowls have dark colored flesh, but it is very palatable. Inbreeding results in rendering the birds tender and reduces their size.

The young of birds given their freedom are hardy and will follow their mother as soon almost as they are out of the shell; at least they are good tramps after they are a day old. The young live on bugs and seeds discovered for them by the mothers."

In the early laying season the birds will lay their eggs anywhere, and several will deposit their eggs in the same locality. When about to sit they seek separation and lay a dozen or more eggs in a hidden nest, where they incubate them."

The guineas differ from common fowls in that the males are as anxious about the brood as is the hen, and helps take care of them during the day time, forsaking them at night."

Guinea hens and their broods forage in a body, the old males helping to keep up the laggards of the line. At night each mother collects her own brood."

The young at a very early age learn to roost in the trees, even before they can reach the branches by flying. They half fly and half run up the trunk of the tree."

Guinea eggs are very fertile and a large percentage of the birds hatch a live if they are permitted to run wild with their mother."

Like the turkey, the guinea prefers the open tree top to the secure poultry house."

Treatment for Heaves. In accordance with the request of a reader of the Farmers' Review we quote the advice for treatment of heaves from two writers:

Prof. D. McIntosh: Feed so as not to overload the stomach; allow a little hay to be eaten first, then give water and then oats. Never feed more than twelve to fourteen pounds of hay per day and fifteen pounds of oats. Bolus mixed with a little bran at night will keep the bowels regular, besides being very nutritious. Sulphate of iron, four ounces; bicarbonate of potassium, four ounces; nuxvomica, two ounces; divided into twenty-four doses, and one given every night in bran mash, is very useful. After this quantity has been given, skip two or three weeks and repeat. One ounce of Fowler's solution of arsenic given every night in a bran mash, when the animal is at work in the spring, is very good and often enables an animal to do a good day's work, which it could not do except for the arsenic. This can be continued for a month to six weeks without any danger to the animal. Then stop for a few weeks or as long as the animal can do without it, and when the breathing becomes difficult resume again and so on. I have treated horses in this way and they would do their work with ease for years."

Jonathan Periam: Treatment with a view to permanent cure is generally not successful. However, the ailment may be greatly ameliorated by a strict attention to the diet, which should be the reverse of that which has hitherto been given. Give nutritious food of small bulk and best quality, such as finely-cut wild hay mixed with ground oats and corn, bran and a small quantity of ground oil-cake or raxseed meal, and slightly moistened. In summer give green or succulent food instead of hay, and in winter daily allowances of sliced carrots and other roots. Such horses should never be fed or watered immediately before use, and they should be used only for slow and easy work. —Farmers' Review.

Women Brokers. Two young women in New York have lately made a hit as stock brokers. One of them was a stock dealer. Many women would rather deal with a woman broker when possible; and the men in the same line like her because she carries on her affairs in a businesslike way. The other woman broker, who has an uptown office, is just as discreet and systematic. They are both making money."

The Latest Girl Fad. The latest is a polished floor walk. Girls are so clever that even those who have rag carpets on every floor at home walk on the streets as if they had mince around on highly polished hardwood when at home.—Athenian Globe.

SHE WAS NOT SENSITIVE.

Willing to be Taken for a Servant for a Consideration.

Employers in various lines of business who are out for tips are not easily insulted by chance or premeditated remarks of the people from whom the tips necessarily come. One woman who has had her pocketbook drained and her soul tortured by the insidious but persistent demands of such attendants had that fact impressed upon her early in the week.

She was a visitor in an up-town manure parlor. She had been there several times before, and each time had courageously gone away without paying anything in excess of the regular taxation. On the occasion of her latest visit the girl who took charge of her hands adroitly introduced tipping as an appropriate subject for conversation. The woman availed herself of the opportunity to express her sentiments forcibly.

"I think it strange," she said, "that self-respecting people who have a good position should so demean themselves as to accept contributions from strangers in that way. If the people for whom I work should offer to tip me every time I drew an extra breath I should feel insulted. I should imagine that they considered me a mere servant."

When the work was at last finished, the girl braced back and looked at the woman steadily.

"I'm not so sensitive as some folks," she said. "I don't mind if people do consider me a servant."

And the woman, carried away by sheer admiration for her audacity, gave her a quarter.—New York Times.

THE BEGGAR'S FINAL APPEAL.

Hardly of a Character to Bring Forth Charity.

Archdeacon Sinclair of London is considerably over six feet in height and broad in proportion. His features, like his leaning toward the church, may be said to have come to him through heredity, for his father, William Sinclair, was the fifth son of Sir John Sinclair, author of the "Statistical Account of Scotland," and was one of fifteen children, the shortest of whom was six feet in height, while the tallest reached six feet seven inches. When King George III. on one occasion was at Holywood Sir John presented his six girls to the king as "thirty-six feet of daughters." The pavement outside his house in Edinburgh was made of very large flagstones from the family property in Caithness and was, as Mr. Gladstone told the archdeacon, always spoken of as "the Giant's Causeway." The day the tallest of the archdeacon's aunts was going along the street when she was pursued by an Irish beggar woman, who invoked blessings on her head in the hope of alms. Finding her blandishments in vain, the woman changed her tone and exclaimed: "At least ye might give me your shoe to make a cradle for my baby."

A Winter's Night. Heigh-ho! for a winter's night, And how do dead men sleep? The shiver not when the keen frost bites, No winters make them weep.

They hear no moan of the weary earth, There's no a dreamless sleep, The while I bend o'er a flawless heart, And munch at a crust of bread.

Far from the wrath and wrongs of life, "Neath the wings of the dark they rest, While I am lost in the raging strife, With the red wounds on my breast.

For a dead man's neither rich nor poor, He'll lie and rain; The blast and the hailfall at his door Knock and knock in vain.

And the gods may grant, or the gods deny, Gifts where the homeless roam; But he recks not there if the daisies die, Or heek his grave like foam.

But—better a crust this winter night From the wealth of the world apart, With the memory bright of your eyes' gleam, And the life of your lips, sweetheart! —Atlanta Constitution.

It Didn't Matter. A little lad had climbed a very high spout attached to his parents' house to get a nest which had been built by some birds. He was successful, and was walking away with his companions when a gentleman who had watched his dangerous feat stopped him and said: "My little fellow, I am sorry to see you risk your life for such a paltry thing. What would have happened if the spout had given way?"

"Oh," said the lad, "it wouldn't have mattered much. We're going to leave the house tomorrow."

Moving a Paris Bridge. A clever engineering feat was accomplished in connection with the extension of the Paris "Tub." Between 6 o'clock in the morning and 3 o'clock in the afternoon a bridge 130 feet long, which spans the Seine at Passy, was moved a distance of nearly eighty feet. The preparatory work for this difficult operation took about ten weeks, and when everything was ready the huge mass was moved over wooden rollers by a windlass, worked by hand for safety. The operation was completely successful.

The Taste of Bobbins. A pompous individual, going up the staircase of a large Boston hotel, was violently poked in the back with an umbrella by a man who ran after him. When he turned to ascertain the cause of the assault the other saw his mistake and apologized, saying: "Excuse me, sir; I thought you were my old friend Bobbins."

"Indeed!" said the old gentleman, in measured tones, "and does your old friend Bobbins enjoy this sort of thing?"

IS A CITY OF HILLS

Sunny Capital of Portugal

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

Lisbon is a city all up and down hill. The seven hills of Rome are nothing to it; it seems to be built on about fifty, and to facilitate matters there are numbers of small cog-wheel cars continually ascending and descending from one level to another—apparently always full. There is also a vast system of open electric street cars for the level places, called carros Americanos, built in Philadelphia. No other city of its size in Europe possesses so many parks and public gardens, and recently laid out avenues, and surely no other can be so noisy. The people do not seem gay and laughter-loving like those of Southern Spain, but the traffic seems enormous perhaps because it is confined, within a small space, and the din and bustle cease but for an inconsiderable time during the small hours of the morning.

The chief open space is the Praco do Comercio, a large and handsome square, which is surrounded by public buildings. The harbor is one of the finest in the world, and the quays extend between two and three miles along the bank of the river. The town itself is a place of remote antiquity. Its earliest name was Oisipus, by which it was known when it was the capital of the Lusitanians. It has been held since then, in turn, by the Romans, the Goths, and the Moors, but in 1147 Alphonso I. of Portugal wrested it from the infidel. The city suffered from a severe earthquake in 1344, and was visited by a plague in 1348; the greatest disaster, however, befell it Nov. 1, 1755, when in less than ten minutes the greater part of the city was made a heap of ruins, from 30,000 to 40,000 persons were killed, and damage was done to the amount of nearly twenty millions sterling by one of the greatest earthquake convulsions on record.

There are several other rather queer things in Portugal, but the beds are the queerest. A wooden floor sometimes seems to yield, the human form adapts itself, fits in as it were, more or less to the inequalities of a rock surface; but these beds are adamantine and when you wake up you feel as if you had passed the night on a gridiron. The meals also are peculiar. As in some parts of Spain, you are supposed to have but two heavy ones, and nothing to begin the day upon. Here it is the almooce, breakfast, from 9 to 12 o'clock, and jantar, dinner, at evening. What an uncouth, and Arabic sound these names have! At both they serve innumerable courses, but at the first no dessert or fruit appears—only a large cup of black coffee, and just before this, as the last item on the bill of fare, the waiter comes and asks you if you will have eggs boiled or fried.

Cintra is the place in Portugal. It is a beautiful spot, a favorite summer resort for Lisbon and other Portuguese people, and even somewhat frequented by the English. Here the Queen Mother, Dona Maria Pia, has her summer residence. It is a quaint old palace, bearing in parts traces of its original Moorish architecture, and one above another, was not particularly impressive. The Pantheon of the infantas, however, is interesting and rather beautiful. It is a series of white halls filled with snowy sarcophagi, numbers of them occupied, but many awaiting their future tenants. One wonders whether sovereigns enough will ever sit on the throne of Spain to furnish infantas for all these marble coffins. Don John of Austria lies alone, as if in state, and admirably chosen mottoes and verses from the Scriptures, engraved upon the sarcophagi, lend an added dignity to these resting places of the sons and daughters of kings.

Emperor's Fifty-fourth Estate. The emperor of Germany has added his fifty-fourth residence to the fifty-three he already owns by buying the estate of Damm-Muehle, called the Pearl of Bradenburg, for $300,000. It was owned by a country squire, Von Mollank, and will be rebuilt and converted into a hunting castle.

two or three other places in Portugal, would well deserve a visit, but we had not time for these. But before we leave the country I must not forget one more thing which is almost queerer than the beds—that is the money. Many amusing tales are told of the consternation of foreigners when their bills are presented to them and they think that they are ruined. Indeed, it is rather appalling after a stay of a few days, to find that you are indebted for tens of thousands. But it is for thousands of reis, the smallest current coin in Europe, and the sums, after all, amount to but a very reasonable number of francs.

It is somewhat fatiguing business to get back from Lisbon to Madrid, especially if your ticket obliges you to go by way of Badajoz, where you arrive at 7 o'clock in the morning and have to wait until the middle of the afternoon. There is nothing to see here, but the town is historically interesting, having sustained several sieges and passed into the possession of one country after another, until it was finally taken by the French and given back to the Spaniards by the Duke of Wellington in 1812, while

There are, and need to be, no fireplaces, in the palace, but the ceiling of the attractive and enormous kitchen forms two gigantic cones, with great openings for the fumes and smoke to escape, and outside the tops of these cones tower up like factory chimneys, and are visible far and wide. some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Sale of the Chas. Montague & Co's Stock of DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES
—Is Now In Full Swing—

There never was a time in the history of Tuscola County when such seasonable, reliable merchandise could be bought so cheap in the face of the highest prices known for years in all branches of the dry goods trade. We are offering you all kinds of seasonable merchandise at less than present wholesale prices, or in other words less than your local dealer can buy the same for. If such a saving is worth taking into consideration, then you cannot afford to miss this grand saving opportunity. It is our purpose to close out as quickly as possible this large stock of goods.
To convert the same into cash in the shortest possible time is why we are offering such price inducements.

Since placing on sale the $5000.00 stock of new fall dry goods contracted for by Chas. Montague & Co., we have made some deep inroads, but there are plenty of good bargains still remaining, and all we can say, is, Don't put off buying until the last minute.

GRADUAL DECLINE

This is the fate of sufferers from Kidney trouble, as the disease is so insidious that often people have serious Kidney trouble without knowing the real cause of their illness, as diseased kidneys allow the impurities to stay in the system and attack the other organs. This accounts for the many different symptoms of Kidney Disease.

You begin to feel better at once when taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE as it stimulates the heart, increases the circulation and invigorates the whole system. It strengthens the urinary organs and gives you new life and vigor.

TWO SIZES 50c and $1.00
T. H. Fritz, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Chicago Business Man Cured
Foley & Co., Chicago, Gentlemen:—About a year ago my health began to fail, I lost flesh and never felt well. The doctor thought I had stomach and liver trouble, but I became convinced that my kidneys were the cause of my ill health and commenced taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE. It increased my appetite and made me feel stronger, and the annoying symptoms disappeared. I am now sound and well.—J. K. Horn, 1354 Diversey Blvd., Chicago, June 11, 1902.
Cured His Wife
E. C. Watkins, sexton of the Methodist Church, Springfield, Pa., writes: "My wife has been very bad with kidney trouble and tried several doctors without benefit. After taking one bottle of FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE was much better, and was completely cured after taking four bottles."
One Bottle Cured Him
A. H. Davis, Mt. Sterling, Ia., writes: "I was troubled with kidney complaint for about two years, but a one-dollar bottle of FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE effected a permanent cure."

Shabbona

Maggie Davidson has returned home from Cass City.

Mrs. E. A. Keyworth visited her old home last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mitchell are rejoicing over the birth, on the 10th inst., of a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mudge are entertaining a sister and her family from Gagetown.

Mrs. Geo. B. Gotham has returned from a five weeks' sojourn with relatives at New Haven.

A. A. P. McDowell, of Cass City, will preach in the M. E. Church, next Sunday morning at eleven a. m.

Mrs. R. B. McConnell, a missionary who has spent five years in Japan, visited Mrs. Dr. Truesdell last week.

Died—At her home three miles west and one-half miles north of Shabbona on the evening of Thursday, Sept. 10th, Lizzie, the beloved wife of John Kitchin. "In life beloved, in death lamented." Mr. Kitchin has the sympathy of the entire community in his very sad bereavement.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Waite was the scene of a very happy gathering Wednesday, Sept. 9th, the occasion being the marriage of their youngest daughter, Melissa L., to Elbert N. Welch, of Yale. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. W. Fenn, of Cass City, took place in the grape arbor. As the bridal party made its appearance, Miss Mamie Carson played a wedding march. The bride looked very beautiful in a dress of cream cashmere. She was attended by Miss Elva Phillips, of Cass City, and Miss Eliza Heronemus, of Lamotte. Mr. Welch was attended by his brother and Arthur Booker. After the ceremony a sumptuous dinner was served to about fifty invited guests. The only toast was "the bride" which was responded to by Mrs. Truesdell, who spoke feelingly of the esteem in which Melissa was held by both young and old and the blank her leaving would cause, and trusted that her light would shine at Yale with equal brilliancy; and although the church here had lost one of its most faithful workers, the Sabbath school one of its most efficient teachers and the choir its leader and organist, they unitedly wished her a useful and sunny future, "with just clouds enough to make a glorious sunset." Mrs. Truesdell was followed by Rev. J. W. Fenn, who emphasized the importance of character and reminded us "That 'tho' sundered far, by faith we meet around one common mercy-seat." The bride was the recipient of the following presents: Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wait, organ; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Wait, swing rocker; Mr. and Mrs. P. Leslie, swing rocker; Gladys and Norman Wait, oil painting and frame; Clarence Leslie, music rack; Arthur Booker, glass centre set and oil painting and frame; Mamie Carson, sofa pillow; Lizzie Rose, sofa pillow; Robt. Carson and family, one-half dozen silver knives and forks; Samuel Carson and family, one-half dozen silver tea spoons; Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Atkins, mirror, comb and brush bracket; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Vanorman, table spread; Arthur Atkins, crumb tray and brush; Ami Atkins, toilet bottle; Edith and Sybil Atkins, vanilla cruet; Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown, card table; Mrs. M. L. Phillips, table cloth; Asa McGregory, mirror, comb and brush bracket; Eliza and Peter Heronemus, arm rocker and sofa pillow; Elva Phillips, jardiniere stand; Roy Phillips, clock bracket; Owen Smith, paper rack; Dr. and Mrs. Truesdell, pair towels and china centre pieces; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Allin, one-half dozen silver tea spoons; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Still, one dozen silver tea spoons; Helene and Hazel Stitt, silver tooth pick holder; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Shaw, silver meat fork; Annie Wilson, silver fish knife; G. Morgan, silver butter dish; Mr. and Mrs. H. Lewis, silver sugar bowl; Albert Meredith, silver creamer; George and Miss Ethel Bond and Mr. and Mrs. D. B. McNaughton, silver fruit basket and horse radish cruet and spoon; Mr. and Mrs. D. Cook, card table and pansy doily; Mr. and Mrs. David McLaren, parlor lamp.

Nelson Leeb, living four miles northeast of Yale, swallowed carbolic acid with suicidal intent Wednesday night, but will recover.

Most men who smoke are desirous not to have their boys form the habit and this fact is one of the strongest arguments you can use with a boy.

While playing near a shallow creek a 6-year-old Ontonagon urchin tumbled in. Conceiving the idea of drying his clothes by a bonfire his playmates, after starting the blaze, stood him up in it. The timely assistance of his mother saved his life.—Millington Gazette.

A special excursion train on the P. O. & N. railway, returning from Imlay City, where it had left its load of state fair visitors, was wrecked two miles north of Pontiac late Friday night. The engine was backing and ran into a flock of sheep which were sleeping on the track. Eighty-five of the sheep were killed and the engine and two cars were derailed. Engineer Hufferman and Fireman Moyer were uninjured. The sheep were the property of Charles Walton.

Nelson Ralph escaped serious injury last week in the elevator here. He was working in the second story when he fell and passed through the joists of the first floor, striking on a barrel below, a distance of about 17 feet. He was thought to have been seriously hurt at first as he had no memory of what had happened for some time after he had fallen. Dr. McColl was summoned and found that he was only badly stunned by striking his head against something in falling.—Elkton Advance.

Wednesday morning when Leipprand Bros. opened up their store for business it was discovered that a glass had been taken out of a back window and upon closer investigation it was found that some parties had entered the store during the night and helped themselves to about two hundred dollars in cash, which was in the safe. As the safe was left unlocked it was easy to get the coin. The burglars also entered the hardware department and smashed the inner door of that safe, but there was nothing besides a watch in the chest. It is supposed that the hardware building was the first place that was entered. They also made their entrance there through a window. The money was in cash register pouches and these pouches were found in a box car Wednesday morning and in one of them was found a five dollar bill which had been overlooked by the burglars. The same night Loosemore's meat market was entered, but all the thieves secured was 9 cents. Up to this time no clue to the robbers has been found.—Pigeon Progress.

More Riots.
Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the Liver or Kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic and effective nerve and the greatest all around medicine for run down systems. It dispels Nervousness, Rheumatism and Neuralgia and expels Malaria germs. Only 50c, and satisfaction guaranteed by T. H. Fritz, Druggist, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingstons.

A genuine water spout was seen on the lake in front of Lexington one day last week. It was not far out and arose to a great height. As it whirled through space it went out over the lake a mile or so and then returned to its starting point, where it dropped back into the lake creating a great commotion in the water.—Lexington News.

Mr. D. P. Daugherty, well known throughout Mercer and Summer counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea; was attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any relief, when a neighbor learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours. For sale at L. I. Wood & Co.'s Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingstons.

Young man if you want to be a gentleman and thought one, never stand on the street corners either on Sunday or any other day and snicker and pass remarks about those who pass up and down the streets, especially women. Any low fool in the country could do this and you cannot afford to get into this class. Don't stand around the corners of streets at all. You were tended when a baby by a woman, and nursed by a mother and sister for something better than this. Every woman on the street is worthy of respect and far better than you.—Ex.

It Saved His Leg.

P. A. Danforth of LaGrange, Ga., suffered for six months with a frightful running sore on his leg; but writes that Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured it in five days. For Ulcers, Wounds, Piles, it's the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cts. Sold by T. H. Fritz, Druggist, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingstons.

It is better to be born lucky than rich. Mrs. Payne, of Almont, who has been acting as nurse in the J. J. Kearn's home here for three weeks, left for her home Monday morning last. She in some way dropped her wallet containing $98 while boarding the train at the station. Discovering her loss, she was in the act of getting off the train at Valley Centre to return to look for the lost property, when she saw the wallet lying on the car step, where she had evidently dropped it and where undisturbed by either trainman or passenger, the precious treasure had been carried safely for four miles. The lady picked up the wallet and proceeded on her way rejoicing and considering herself lucky indeed.—Brown City Banner.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale at L. I. Wood & Co.'s Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingstons.

Morris Morton established his reputation as an all around burglar fixer last Thursday night, and it is so firmly established that it will be a long time before another burglar will try to enter his house at night, at least it will be if the profession have a secret system of giving information. Mr. Morton's attention was attracted to a strange man, working at one of the rear windows of his house along in the night and at once gave chase. He caught the gettoman over in Henry King's garden and proceeded to punch him in the most approved style. After chastising him sufficiently the fellow was deposited in the village pen to await the coming of daylight. He was a sight to behold in the morning. Both eyes were swollen shut and the otherwise handsome face was covered with cuts and bruises so that his mother would hardly have known him. Deeming the punishment sufficient Mr. Morton refused to swear out a warrant and the fellow was allowed to get out of town, which he did as soon as he was able to travel.—Marlette Leader.

His Life Saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"B. L. Byer, a well known cooper of this town, says he believes Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy saved his life last summer. He had been sick for a month with what the doctors call bilious dysentery, and could get nothing to do him any good until he tried this remedy. It gave him immediate relief," says B. T. Little, merchant, Hancock, Md. For sale at L. I. Wood & Co.'s Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingstons.

Ford Boorn was the victim of mistaken identity this week that came near to being serious. He was up near Pigeon looking after some hay purchases and together with a companion came down through the town during the night and proceeded to Owendale, where he is expecting to build a hay shed. During the night Leipprand's store at Pigeon was burglarized and of course the circumstance of the two men going to Owendale was suspicious. In the morning Mr. Boorn went down the track a short distance to select a site for his hay shed and while there Mr. Leipprand came along and asked him rather abruptly what he was doing there. Ford answered that he did not know as it was any of his business, and this reply simply drove another nail into the solid chunk of circumstance that was weaving a web about him. Mr. Boorn took the train for home and two men got on with him and kept him under close surveillance all the way, though the suspect was unconscious of the attentions he was getting. A change of cars was made at Clifford and the "detectives" also changed and were getting anxious to reach a place where they could get officers to arrest their burglar, when he got off at Marlette. They followed and at once asked a bystander if he knew who the fugitive was. When they were informed that it was Ford Boorn, probably the largest hay buyer in the Thumb, they wilted, and at once stepped up and apologized. This was the first intimation that Mr. Boorn had that he was being followed and his chagrin at being chased as a burglar can better be imagined than described. He will become better acquainted when he gets fully started at buying hay up that way and they will have no reason to take him for a robber either.—Marlette Leader.

The City Council of Leipzig, at a recent meeting, passed a by-law prohibiting the use of automobiles in most of the streets of the inner city, and in other parts allowing them to be driven only along those streets which are traversed by electric cars.

If the wheat growers cannot get more men they will have to look to machinery for relief. It has been their mainstay for many years, but they will have to make a more extensive use of it. If men cannot be had machines can, suggests the Chicago Tribune. Manufacturers will be only too glad to supply them.

A doctor who has been investigating the effect of piano playing upon the nerves of children found that of 1000 girls who began to learn before they were fourteen years old 600 were affected by some nervous disease, while of 1000 who had never taken piano lessons only 100 suffered from their nerves. He urges that instruction on the piano should not begin until the pupils are over sixteen years old.

A review of the climate and agriculture of last year, which ranks as one of great agricultural produce, reveals some curious facts. Canada reaped the greatest wheat crop ever grown in the Dominion. Australia, on the other hand, had to endure the worst of all the disastrous droughts it has known, and the grain harvest was nearly ruined, and many millions of sheep, with thousands of cattle, perished.

Looking into the fire is very injurious to the eye, particularly a coal fire. The stimulus of light and heat united soon destroys the eyes. Looking at molten iron will soon destroy the sight. Reading in the twilight is injurious to the eyes, as they are obliged to make great exertion. Reading or sewing with a side light injures the eyes, as both eyes should be exposed to an equal force of light. Those who wish to preserve their sight should preserve their general health by correct habits of living, and give their eyes just work enough, with a due degree of light.

A Government Secret Service man, whose business is with counterfeiters, spoils the story that half the silver dollars are made outside the Government mints, and, being of the same weight and fineness of legitimate coin, cannot be detected—the silver in a dollar costing but fifty cents, making a nice margin for the maker of the queer coins. The detective calls attention to the fact that Government dollars, being stamped cold from silver in sheets, have clean-cut lines, while molded coins have not and are detected at once. For counterfeiters to operate a plant as expensive or as noisy as is necessary to stamp out dollars is impossible.

Chess for the blind is one of the latest "Nouveautés de Paris," though the idea was first originated by a professional chess player familiar enough to British devotees of the game. It one day occurred to Professor Goldberg that, considering how often chess is played blindfolded, there ought to be no difficulty in teaching the game to the really blind. He communicated his idea to M. de la Sezeranne, who took it up with enthusiasm, with the result that at the Vallentin Hady Association headquarters there was the other day inaugurated a special chess class for the blind.

The good roads question has been of interest to man ever since he began to be conveyed from place to place in some sort of vehicle with wheels designed to roll over the surface of the ground. Horsemen have always prayed for better roads, but the advent of the man-propelled bicycle brought the general public to a painful realization of the sorry state of highways in general. The bicyclists have now become lessened in numbers and power, but the automobilists have come to take their places and to keep up the agitation for better roads. The issue is certain to be kept alive indefinitely, remarks the Boston Herald, unless Santos-Dumont, of Paris, Professor Langley, of Washington, and others who are seeking to perfect the airship, shall finally produce some means for transporting freight and passengers through the air so cheaply, expeditiously and pleasantly as to render roads, as we now know them, in a great measure superfluous.

THE MICHIGAN NEWS

Showing What's Doing in All Sections of the State

A Fatal Spree.

Dell Dean and Joe Willis, the last known companions of Albert Lavender who lies dead at his father's house in Britton, are in jail at Monroe. They are held pending a decision of the coroner's jury. A wild spree in which they and Lavender participated resulted in the latter's death. The last that is definitely known of the three young men is that they started home in a buggy Saturday afternoon. Several scuffles are said to have occurred, during which Lavender fell out of the vehicle. Early Sunday morning Lavender's body, wrapped in a blanket, was found in Joe Willis's barn near Britton. Doctors who examined the body express the opinion that Lavender was dead when his body was placed in the barn. There were also indications, the doctors say, of efforts to pour liquor down the young man's throat after his death. The facts warrant such action. The commissioner has repeatedly warned Michigan property owners against these frauds and published a list of them in the newspapers of the state. Their operations in Michigan have been materially curtailed during the past year, but it is evident that further heretofore treatment is necessary before they are stamped out entirely. The commissioner says that every person found aiding them in procuring business in Michigan will be prosecuted under the criminal statute, and if he is the agent for real estate and authorized to receive his license for the latter will be revoked. Some arrests will be made at an early date.

Look Out For It.

The commissioner of insurance has had his attention called to several instances where it is alleged fire insurance agents in various sections of the state have placed business in unauthorized companies. Investigations are being made and arrests will follow in all cases where the facts warrant such action. The commissioner has repeatedly warned Michigan property owners against these frauds and published a list of them in the newspapers of the state. Their operations in Michigan have been materially curtailed during the past year, but it is evident that further heretofore treatment is necessary before they are stamped out entirely. The commissioner says that every person found aiding them in procuring business in Michigan will be prosecuted under the criminal statute, and if he is the agent for real estate and authorized to receive his license for the latter will be revoked. Some arrests will be made at an early date.

Five Were Drowned.

Five men, all of East Jordan, were drowned in Pine Lake Saturday evening in a collision between the steamer Pilgrim and naphtia launch. The Pilgrim plies regularly on Pine Lake, between East Jordan and Charlevoix. When about half a mile from shore the Pilgrim ran down a launch containing thirteen men returning from a ball game at Harbor Springs. The launch's bow struck the steamer's stern, and the launch was thrown into the water, and, although the yacht laid to and began a search for the drowning men, only eight of the thirteen men were saved. It is said the launch showed no lights until just before it was struck by the Pilgrim, and that the launch's crew rescued the men, but despite every effort five were drowned.

Sueing the Soo.

The first step towards the beginning of a suit by the United States government against the city of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to recover damages for the loss of the barracks at Port Brady January 3 last, by fire, is the presentation of a claim for $68,503 21. The government had a contract with the city for the maintenance of a supply of coal in the fort at a pressure of 15 to 20 cents per ton. It is asserted that on the night of the fire practically no water was obtainable, otherwise the barracks would not have been destroyed. The council will disallow the claim and the government will sue.

A New Industry.

It now looks as though the ruins of the Benton Harbor sugar beet factory, which was dismantled in order to remove the machinery, would again be utilized in the near future by a new industry about to be established by the Benton Harbor Co., which is moving to the Harbor from Chicago. This company has secured an option on the sugar factory site for a new furniture and school supply factory, it is stated, but the officials of the company refuse to give out definite information as to what they will use the site for, or when they will begin to operate it. The reason given by this company for moving is to avoid labor troubles in Chicago.

Great Cranberry Crop.

The season for cranberries, which is about to open, will be one of the greatest in the history of the industry. Within a few miles of St. Joseph is one of the largest and most productive cranberry marshes in Michigan. It is estimated that it will yield nearly 6,000 bushels this year and the harvest will begin in a week. With the harvest at its height 300 pickers will be needed, and many will be imported to the fields. Through the scarcity of the cranberry the market price holds high. This year the entire crop has been contracted for at $11 per barrel.

Boys Broke Jail.

Walter Chambers and Robert Espy, the juvenile burglars who confessed having entered the confectionary store of James Basso, of Niles, when they carried away $60, made their escape from the city jail. Someone had smuggled a hatchet to them, and they dug a tunnel under the door of their cell. Chambers, who is over 10 years of age, was to have been held to the circuit court for trial, but Espy, being under that age, was to have been sent to the reform school.

Light Wheat Crop.

According to the monthly crop report, the average yield of wheat for the state will be 16 bushels to the acre. Oats will average 31 bushels. The weather during August was favorable for corn, but warm dry weather is needed, however, to ripen the crop before frost. The condition of the crop will average 77 per cent of a normal crop. Beans will average 80 and potatoes 90 per cent.

It is reported that moonshine whisky is being made near Bay City from sugar beet molasses.

A New Church.

On Sunday there was dedicated in Battle Creek a unique church and society, and ordained as pastor a man with a remarkable career, whose marked personality promises to bring him to the front as a leader in a new independent religious movement. The church is Rev. Charles L. Clapp, who has built, entirely at his own expense, a church building in the midst of the workmen's section of the city. This new denomination has been christened "The Church of the Largest Hope." Rev. Mr. Clapp is a Battle Creek boy, having been born in this city May 22, 1875. His family is one of the oldest, wealthiest and most highly respected in the city. When young he belonged to the "fast set" of young men, and in time became a hard drinker and very dissipated. The death of one of his own set of relatives, who had experienced religion and who died in the presence of Mr. Clapp, expressing joy, comfort and happiness in his faith, completely changed Clapp, and he joined the Methodist church and began Bible study. Clapp's change was so sudden, so complete and so sincere, that it created a great sensation.

A Pension Refused.

Hascal M. Cole, of Adrian, fifteen years ago started the pension department at Washington by sending in his certificate, on which he had been drawing a pension for chronic disability incurred by military service with the Eighteenth Michigan Infantry at the front. At that period in his life he felt that he was cured physically and financially and that as a consequence he was no longer entitled to the benefit of the pension. Mr. Cole says he heard of the pension law as given by the late Tom Appleton, in Kansas who declined his pension. Mr. Cole was seven months in a southern prison as a prisoner of war and came out of the army with a lieutenant's commission.

Telephone Rates Safer.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Citizens' Telephone Co., of Battle Creek, it was decided to advance the rates to the maximum limit allowed under the company's present franchise. The present rate is $20 for a residence and $25 for business phones. The new rate will be $24 for residential and $36 for business telephones. The company begins next Monday to install its new automatic system and expects to have everything ready for operation within a few weeks.

The girl is now in the cells and Mrs. Schmuck is dying of the shock.

NEWS OF THE WORLD

A Brief Chronicle of All Important Happenings

The Pope's Sisters.

The three sisters of Pope Pius X. who lived with him in Venice and who arrived Monday, have not found in Rome quite what they expected. Not that they had any formulated desires, but the sisters thought that they could not fail to be certain of resuming their intimate relations with he pontiff, while they were in the city. They were disappointed in their unaccustomed eyes all its formality. They shrank from the curious glances cast at them this morning when they went all over Rome. The sisters, however, could see no beauty in the ruins, having scarcely heard of them. What they liked best were the electric street cars and the new wide lanes of Venice.

In the convent where the pope's sisters are stopping they are treated with great respect and attention, having their meals in their own dining room and not being allowed to do anything for themselves. Speaking of the Vatican, one of the sisters said: "How big it is. Reppi should not feel he is a prisoner. But, how he can be bothered with all these soldiers and officials we cannot see."

Sixty Thousand Butchered.

With the arrival of new and sensational reports of the wholesale massacre of Christians in Macedonia, the situation in Sofia is becoming more alarming. If the later messages, which state that 60,000 Bulgarians have been slaughtered in the districts of Orlyda and Lerin, shall be confirmed, no canal treaty satisfactory to both countries, Senator Obaldia, who has decided to support the canal treaty, has been appointed governor of Panama.

The Insurrection in On.

The Macedonian revolutionaries awaited the anniversary of the sultan's accession to proclaim the long-anticipated general insurrection in northern Macedonia, the proclamation of which was issued to-day, signed by all the members of the insurgent general staff. The new outbreak is headed by the famous Macedonian leaders, Gen. Zolitch, president of the Macedonian committee and Col. Jankoff, who was wounded in the rising of 1902. The new territory covers the district in the valley of the Struma at the base of the Rhodope mountain chain and to the north of the river Vardar. Col. Jankoff is directing the movements of the bands in the southern part.

Special Session of Congress.

After mature consideration and consultation in person and by mail with members of both of the senate and house of representatives, President Roosevelt has abandoned the suggestion that congress be called into extraordinary session in October. The extraordinary session, which he announced many months ago would be held this fall, will be called according to present plans on November 9, which was the date tentatively fixed some time ago. It is expected that the formal call for the session will not be issued until after the president shall have returned to Washington.

The Pope To Escape Prison.

Great excitement has been caused in Rome and all over Italy by the announcement that the pope has asked for estimates of the cost of repairing the apostolic palace of the Lateran in order to render it habitable for the papal court. Everybody is commenting on the news, as it shows the evident intention of Pius X. to escape at last from the prison of the vatican and venture again through the streets of Rome, notwithstanding the Italian occupation.

The German sergeant recently arrested at Metz with six private for selling two bombs, with a newly patented fuse attached, to a French agent, has confessed that he was to receive $800 for treasonable conduct.

The Corn Crop.

The success of the corn crop this year will depend largely upon the time the first frost appears. A few fields are well advanced while others are late. Some will be lucky if they have a crop at all. The backward condition of the crop is caused by the dry spring which interfered with the planting. If there is no frost until late in September the bulk of the crop will be out of danger. Should a frost come before the middle of September many fields will be injured or ruined.

Second Crop Strawberries.

Strawberries are an unusual crop to have on the market at this season of the year, but Berlin county is not to be denied and Fred Runge, of Royalton township, is now picking his second crop for this season and brought a case of luscious berries to this city. The berries were sold in a hurry at 15 cents per quart.

The Mystery Solved.

The body of Wilford Clements, of Saginaw, the young man who jumped overboard from a burning gasoline yacht last week, two miles up the river, was found floating in the river Sunday nearly two miles below the place where the accident occurred. The mystery is settled, it having been persistently claimed that Clements was seen ashore shortly after the accident on the night in question.

With a birthday present gun, Stewart Johnson, aged 13, shot and killed his sister, Mabel, aged 16, at Chicago. The bullet pierced her heart and the lad is almost crazed with grief.

Pittsburg Salvationists under the leadership of Staff Capt. White will leave Wednesday for the feud district of Kentucky and undertake the work of reforming the feudists. The objective point will be Breathitt county.

In the same house in which she came a bride more than 70 years ago, Mrs. Sarah Rumbley, mother of the late Walter Q. Rumbley, secretary of state under President Cleveland, celebrated her 101st birthday, at New Albany, Ind.

By eloping with a liverman, Miss Cloyetta Brownlow, daughter of the congressman at Bristol, Tenn., has created a sensation. The young lady was a favorite in Washington social circles during the past season, when she made her debut.

Doctored ice cream poisoned more than 50 tourists in Colorado Springs and Manitou, Col., several of them critically so. The cream, which was the basis of the diet, sent from a big dairy near Denver, was changed with formaldehyde. Arrest will be made.

The body of the Blackfoot Chief White Wolf, who died at Washington last February, has been stolen from the burial house of the tribe near Great Falls, Mont. White Wolf was 80 years old and the great war chief of his tribe before he became friendly to the whites. In fact, his body was stolen by curio hunters.

Milwaukee aldermen are in a panic. Merchants who, it is said, have kept the representatives of their special wards in spending money for a long time by being mulcted whenever they wanted concessions, are ready, since the arrest of Ald. Himmelstein, to turn state's evidence, if they can be guaranteed protection.

GEORGIA EDITOR SPEAKS IN ADVOCACY OF THE SEGREGATION OF THE NEGRO

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES

In a lecture delivered at the University of Chicago Editor John Temple Graves of the Atlanta News declared segregation of the negro to be the only and inevitable solution of the race question in the United States. Absolute separation of the two races is the only way, according to Mr. Graves, of settling what he holds to be the most vital question before the American people to-day. "Transport the negro," says Mr. Graves, "to lower California, western Texas, Africa or the Philippine Islands, and there let him work out his destiny alone under conditions more favorable than those which now surround him."

WAS "ELECTED TO DIE."

Member of Suicide Club Ends His Life in Connecticut. Whether or not solemn oaths bound Bernard Bernabucci of Derby, Conn., to destroy himself he took his life most calmly and deliberately. Bernabucci was forty years old, he was in good health, and he had employment. There seemed to be no reason why he should end his existence. He told his roommate, Joseph Esposito, that he was one of a suicide club whose meeting place is in Catharine street, New York.

"I have been chosen," he said to Esposito. "I have been elected to die. I have sworn not to try to escape my fate at the appointed time. Indeed, it would be useless, for if I do not kill myself they of the club will kill me."

The doomed man went to the line of the Naugatuck railroad. He tried to throw himself under a passing locomotive, but it whizzed by him. Arising, he explained to those around that he had stumbled and fallen. He coolly waited until a fast passenger train approached then he dived at the flying engine, fell under its wheels and was killed.

Lady Dudley Popular in Ireland. Lady Dudley, wife of the lord lieutenant of Ireland, is a woman of the kindest impulses and has greatly endeared herself to the Irish people. A short time ago while motoring near Rockingham she overtook a drove of donkeys coming from the fair of Tobarcurry. Among the herd was one only a fortnight old, who found the road terribly long. Lady Dudley stopped her car, bought the young one and its dam, had them cared for and sent by easy stages to her home, where the "baby" is already much beloved by the Ladies' Ward.

Fatal Tree Hacked Away. French automobile drivers and motor cyclists have almost demolished the famous tree on the Pacey near Eure road, against which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair were thrown and killed a year or so ago. Each motorist as he passes the fatal spot carries off a chip of the bark of the tree or a twig. Very soon there will be little left of the tree itself. Superstitious drivers of automobiles have charms made from the wood, mounted in gold and silver, which they hang on their watch chains.

Strange Effect of Poison. Five years ago, while on a visit to Mexico, Enri Dessi, a graduate of Pennsylvania, was bitten on the thumb by an insect. His mind became affected owing to the poison by which he was inoculated and he has grown worse constantly ever since until he has now become imbecile. A singular feature of his case is the fact that his physical powers have not suffered the slightest impairment.

SULTAN SPENDS MUCH MONEY.

His Household Costs Thirty Million Dollars Annually. The personal expenses of Abdul Hamid, sultan of Turkey, are larger than those of any other monarch in Europe. He spends annually no less a sum than $30,000,000. Of this $7,500,000 alone is spent on the clothing of the women of his harem and $400,000 on the sultan's own wardrobe. Nearly another $7,500,000 is swallowed up by presents, $5,000,000 goes for pocket money and still another $3,000,000 for the table. It seems incredible that so much money can possibly be spent in a year by one man, but when it is remembered that some 1,500 persons reside within the palace walls and live luxuriously and dress expensively at the cost of the civil list it appears a little more comprehensible.

Dog Saved His Life.

John Hoff of Fairview, Pa., may thank his faithful shepherd dog that he is living to-day. There is a sand bank on Mr. Hoff's farm, and he was working there, accompanied only by his dog. Without warning a large section of the bank tumbled down and completely buried the farmer. The dog commenced to dig and bark frantically above the place where his master was entombed. A teamster passing that way saw the animal and hastened to his assistance. He removed a large piece of turf and was astonished to see the head of a man. Mr. Hoff was released in an unconscious condition, but later revived, and will recover.

St. Louisian Claims Honor.

Mrs. Margaret B. Guion, now residing in St. Louis at the age of 90 years, claims to be the oldest native-born resident of that city. She is of French descent and for many years her family has been noted for the longevity of its members, many of them having passed the century mark. Mrs. Guion has had twelve children, and twenty-seven grandchildren are now living.

Favorite of Wagner.

Hermann Zumppe, the musical conductor, who has just died at Munich, attained his chief fame as the conductor of the first Wagnerian festival at Bayreuth in 1876. Wagner chose him from among all the musicians of Europe as the best qualified to interpret his music correctly, and at the close of the festival presented him with a handsome testimonial.

Princess Willing to Work.

Princess Serge Beloselsky of Russia, a daughter of Gen. Whittier of the United States army, has amazed everybody by announcing her intention of going with her husband to Siberia and living there quietly, working for a living until they can make enough to return and pay their debts. The princess enjoys a high standing at the Russian court.

WEBSTER NOT AN EGOTIST

Great Statesman Gave Unflattering Opinion of Himself.

A lady of one of the old families living near Boston related to a writer the other day an anecdote of Daniel Webster which has never been in print before. This lady happened to be one of a few friends who went with Mr. Webster to the hall where hung on exhibition, previous to its final location in Faneuil hall, Mr. Healy's now famous painting representing Webster making his reply to Hayne. "Mr. Webster," said the lady, "was very feeble and was led in by the artist. Ascending the platform which commanded a view of the picture, Webster looked at it for some minutes, making some pleasant observations to his friends respecting the different senators and the various points of interest on the canvas. This portrait and that were spoken of, and even the pages recognized. Finally, turning to go, Mr. Webster quietly remarked: 'And as for that man standing there in the center—well, I've seen better looking men in my day than he.'"

HAD HAD HER BREAKFAST.

How Fair Parishioners Answered Rebuke of Her Pastor.

I was told an amusing incident concerning Pere Ollivier last evening. One of his flock, a very beautiful and handsomely dressed woman, coming very late to church one Sunday morning, caused some disturbance and stir among the worshippers by her entrance, and interrupted the flow of eloquence of the worthy father, who, very irritable and easily put out, said: "Madame perhaps waited to take her chocolate before coming to church?" To this madame, by no means abashed, and in no way afraid of the sound of her own voice, even in the sacred edifice, graciously replied: "Yes, mon pere; and two rolls with it."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Delight of Long Ago.

Up out of the dust and dirt,
Up out of the bustle and din,
I'm painting a picture of other days
That the world has no part in.
'Tis a vision of idleness and ease,
Where the last of one's worries fade;
Down in a nook of the old corner lot,
Where the old hammock swung in the shade.

It was there I'd rest with my dreaming eyes
Turned up to the summer sky;
And the flowers bloomed and the robin sang.

And the meadow grass grew high,
There was never a care to worry or fret
In the hush of this peaceful shade,
Down in a nook of the old corner lot,
Where the old hammock swung in the shade.

I'd like to go back to it there again,
By the old orchard shadows caressed;
And you know how we weary of life and its toll
When all of one's boyhood dreams fade—
How we long for the past as I yearn for the nook
Where the old hammock swung in the shade.

Production of Nitric Acid.

The production of nitric acid by electro-chemical methods is a new process that promises extensive changes in our agriculture. The manufacture of nitric acid from the nitrogen and oxygen of the air in sufficient quantities for commercial use has been the dream and hope of scientists for years. At Niagara experiments have been conducted successfully in producing commercial nitric acid by using a high-tension current in an acid chamber, by which a yield of one pound of nitric acid is obtained for every seven horsepower hours.

Phil May's Methods of Work.

The custom of the late Phil May, according to the Westminster Gazette, was to make his first sketch for a drawing with the utmost care, putting in all the details, light and shade, and so on. When that was finished he proceeded to knock away the scaffold as it were, and in the finished product there remained nothing but the absolutely essential lines of the picture. He reached his ends by the elimination of the superfluous pushed to its furthest limits, and the result liberally repaid the sacrifice of labor apparently entailed by the process.

Had Reason to Weep.

"What are you crying about?" asked a stranger of a lad standing in front of a newspaper office weeping as if his heart would break. "Oh, pa's gone upstairs to whip the editor." "Well, has he come down yet?" pursued the good Samaritan. "Pieces of him have," said the boy, with a fresh burst of tears, "and I'm expecting the rest every minute."—Dickey (N. D.) Reporter.

Around the World in Six Hours.

Soon after the initial message around the globe, sent by President Roosevelt, in ten minutes, the Temps, Paris, made a more instructive trial. When the president's message was put on the wire, every operator was on the qui vive. The Temps circular message took the ordinary course, and made the circuit in six hours. It was "Temps, Paris," and cost $1.66 a word.

Accepts a Dangerous Office.

Joseph Newland, who recently accepted the position of town marshal in the feud town of Jackson, Breathitt county, Kentucky, has the distinction of being the one man in all that section who would take upon himself the dangerous responsibility. Mr. Newland is a man of temperate habits, a church member, has never killed his man and was never shot at. In the last five years four marshals have been killed and another, after remaining in office one term, declined to serve again.

ATROCITIES OF THE TURKISH TROOPS AFTER THE CAPTURE OF KRUSHEVO

The map shows the position of the Balkan states and the location of various points of interest, particularly Monastir, where the Russian consul was killed, and Krushevo, which was retaken from the insurgents with great slaughter. In the upper right hand corner of the map is Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria, from which the revolutionary movement is directed.

The following letter from a missionary in Turkey, contains the first authentic news of the atrocities committed by the Turkish soldiers at the sacking of Krushevo:

Krushevo is situated on the summit of a hill eight hours' journey to the northwest of Monastir. It contains 2,000 houses and 10,000 inhabitants, mostly Wallachs calling themselves Greeks. There are only about 100 Bulgarian houses, and the owners of these are poor. The Wallachs are prosperous merchants who go abroad on business, leaving their families at Krushevo, and after making their fortunes by diligence and economy return to spend their wealth on fine houses, furniture, jewels and vicious indulgence. The bazaar and market are frequented by the inhabitants of the surrounding villages. Its Turkish neighbors have long looked askance at the prosperity of Krushevo. The Macedonian committee, on the other hand, had already concerted arrangements with the Bulgarians in Krushevo, with a view to bringing about disturbances there. This became known in July last, when the Mudir of Krushevo observed a certain movement among the Bulgarians, and warned the Wali of Monastir, begging him to send to Krushevo sufficient reinforcements, as the garrison of thirty soldiers was inadequate. The Wali of Monastir, having received repeated warnings from the Mudir of Krushevo, the latter, at the end of July, went in person to Monastir to consult the Wali.

Sunday, August 2, was the day fixed for the Bulgarian attack upon Krushevo. On that day four marriages were celebrated in the Greek church there. After the last marriage a Komitaji, acting in concert with the band outside, remained hidden in the church. The sacristan locked the doors and departed at ten o'clock. In the course of the night the Komitaji who had hidden himself mounted the steeple, and began to sound an alarm, ringing the bell. Simultaneously a band of 200, commanded by Petroff, entered the town, firing their rifles. The terrified inhabitants, remained in their houses. The band proceeded to the house of Mudir, which they burned. The garrison of thirty soldiers surrendered and were massacred. The officials were also killed, but the Komitajis spared the Turkish harems. On Monday morning the Komitajis established a provisional government, consisting of a police and a municipality. They killed ten Christians who they considered had betrayed the plans of the committee. They also called upon the notables, a list of whom had already been prepared, and compelled them to contribute a sum of $10,000.

The Turks hearing of the capture of Krushevo sent immediately from Perlepe three squadrons of cavalry. As these were marching along the highway they were attacked and compelled to retire, leaving 100 of their number killed. After this check the Turks began slowly to concentrate, and by

Thursday, the 13th, seven battalions, with one battery of artillery, had assembled at Krushevo under Bakhtiar Pasha, who proposed that the Komitajis should allow the women and children to leave the town, but this proposal was rejected. On Thursday morning the bombardment of the town began. When the third bomb was thrown the Komitajis abandoned the town, and taking advantage of the cover afforded by traversing ravines, escaped into the neighboring forest, where pursuit was impossible. All resistance on the part of Krushevo then ceased, and the Turks entered the town. Meanwhile, however, the Turkish villagers in the neighborhood, all bad characters, assembled in the Turkish camp. These villagers, knowing all the houses of the families in Krushevo, guided the soldiers in their attack upon those of the Greek notables. Approaching the houses, they ordered the inmates to come out, searched them, stripped them naked, took from them the money and jewels which the victims were trying to save, then put the women and children aside, selecting whoever among the former appealed to their brutish appetites. Anyone who resisted was immediately killed. In this connection many terrible incidents occurred. A father, Nicholas Pouscas, was attempting to protect his daughter from violation, when he was killed by a blow from a hatchet. The earrings were forcibly torn out of the girl's ears, and her hand was chopped off to enable the assailants to obtain the bracelets she wore. All the houses were pillaged, and the Turkish peasants loaded their horses with whatever the soldiers could not carry away. The houses were then set on fire by means of petroleum.

The sack of Krushevo lasted three days, during which the women and children remained without food, shelter, or mercy on the part of the soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks. It was only on Saturday that the occupation of Krushevo was reported at Monastir. The Greek bishop of Krushevo, who was absent at Monastir, arrived at Krushevo on Saturday, and left again for Monastir on the Monday, having been unable to find any resting place. Over 100 Greeks were killed. The municipal doctor was murdered with a hatchet for protesting against the massacre. The Greek corpses have not yet been interred. Many of them have been gnawed by dogs and pigs, and the stench renders the district uninhabitable. The Turkish authorities, declaring an inquest to be necessary, refused permission to any of the survivors to leave the town. Three hundred and sixty houses and 215 shops including all the finest houses of the Greek notables, were pillaged and burned. Thousands of people are exposed to the inclemency of the weather and famine. They are left to contemplate with despair the smoking ruins of the beautiful town which was built by the fruits of their industry.

Good Effect of Laughter.

Dr. James Sully, the eminent Washington psychologist, claims to have proved by long observation and a series of mechanical experiments that society's ban against hearty laughter as "bad form" is producing a mirthless and sour-visaged race. People in the "smart set," says Dr. Sully, do not laugh as their forefathers did, because they think to do so would be quite vulgar.

WISDOM OF THE BEE.

Legend of the Visit of the Queen of Sheba to King Solomon.

"Here is the legend of the visit of the Queen of Sheba to King Solomon," said the Pascagoula Diogenes in the Rotunda of the Great Southern hotel, Gulfport, Sunday. "The queen reigned over a people that lived on the border of the Red Sea, who were the richest in Arabia. They were represented leading an idle life, owing to the abundance of natural produce of their country, which afforded the sustenance of life and also frankincense, myrrh, cinnamon and balsam that gave them an extensive commerce with other nations.

"The queen, owing to the splendid reputation of King Solomon, whose power and wisdom had spread to the remotest parts of the world, visited him at his own court. Presenting herself at the foot of his throne, in each of her hands she held a wreath of flowers—some composed of natural, the other of artificial. Art, in the labor of the mimic wreath, had exquisitely emulated the lively hues of nature; so that at the distance it was held by the queen to exercise the sagacity of the monarch for his judgment, it was deemed impossible for him to decide which wreath was the production of nature, and which the work of art. Solomon was, for a moment, perplexed; yet, to be vanquished by a woman irritated his pride.

"An expedient presented itself to the king by a swarm of bees on the outside of a window, which he ordered opened; the bees rushed in the court and alighted on one of the wreaths, while not a single one fixed on the other. Sheba was baffled and was convinced of the wisdom of Solomon. Such is the story handed down that the bee only rests on the natural beauties, and never fixes on the painted flowers, however imitable the color may be laid on."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE DEPTH OF DEPRAVITY.

Innocent Maid the Victim of Perfidious Society Man.

"My dear Julia, I'm so glad to see you, for I've just had such a shock. I want to tell you about it. You know George Billings—such a nice fellow, apparently. Well, my dear, would you believe it, he's the most underhanded, deceitful fellow in the world. You know I've been having quite a desperate flirtation with him for some time—dances, tele-a-tetes, hand squeezing, and all that sort of thing. Of course, I'm engaged to Tom, and I wouldn't be false to him for the world, but then there's no harm in a little flirtation now and then. Well, this affair with George got to be very desperate and I was afraid Tom might hear of it, so I thought I'd give George a little warning. Last night I met him at the Tompkins, and managed to hint something about my engagement. He just laughed and said:

"Oh, yes; I know all about it." "What do you think of that, my dear? Isn't that deceitful and underhanded to flirt with a girl whom he knows is engaged? But that isn't the worst. He told me that he was going to be married next month. Wasn't that perfectly scandalous? Why, it was perfectly outrageous. Just think of his acting in that way when he was engaged. His depravity is really shocking."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Angel Causes Dumb to Speak.

Crowds of pilgrims are flocking to Kerhous, a village near Brest, France, to see Marie Raguenes, a farm servant, who has been cured of dumbness in a miraculous manner. The woman is forty years old. When she was twelve she lost the power of speech as the result of fright, and none of the specialists who attended her was able to relieve her affliction. Recently while eating her dinner she astonished her fellow servants by saying clearly and distinctly:

"I can speak. Give me some bread." Marie then explained that a few days before an angel appeared to her and said:

"In the name of God I announce to you that at 12 o'clock next Wednesday you will recover your speech." At the appointed time the woman spoke after a silence of nearly thirty years.

The Way of Life.

When wayworn with the common round Of daily tasks so burdensome,
And when the self-same way leads on,
Through all the days and years to come,
Our hearts grow weary of the strife,
Where gloom doth always shadow cheer,
And beat so slowly to the words:
"The way of life—how long and drear!"
But when we watch the setting sun,
Or walk among the harvest sheaves,
Or listen to the tolling bell,
What time a passing spirit leaves,
The radiance of God's great love,
By which he claims us for his own,
Breaks over all the pathway drear—
"The way of life leads to His throne."
—Mary B. Fowler.

Of a Different Breed.

President Mellen of Northern Pacific was telling one of his Wall Street friends about the prospects in the Far Northwest.

"I never saw so many lambs and sheep on the farms as there are this year," he concluded.

"We have more than the average ourselves," said the broker with a sigh, "but we are not boasting about it."

"The breed I mean are worth $6 apiece," replied the railroad man, laughing.

"And there's where you have us beaten," sadly admitted the Wall Street man.—New York Times.

POULTRY

Raising Turkeys.

From Farmers' Review: It seems to me that our western farmers do not give enough attention to this grand variety of fowls. So many think, I suppose, that they are hard to raise, and that the price which they bring in the market is not commensurate with the bother and work necessary to raise them, but too many of them go to it the wrong way. My way of raising turkeys is as follows, and I have always met with good success:

After a few warm days as spring approaches, the turkey hen will begin to think of nesting, and where early turks are desired, make nests near some of the outbuildings, in a desirable place, with barrels having both ends out. With both ends out of the barrel the hen can go on and leave her nest without disturbing her eggs in the least, for if she should by any mistake or accident break an egg she would be very apt to acquire the habit of egg-eating, which is very bad in a chicken, but doubly so in a turkey hen. After she has laid some twelve or fifteen eggs, she will be wanting to sit and if you want large turks and heavy weights in the fall regardless of the numbers, set her. But if you wish more eggs and a larger number of turks, let her choose her own nest; throw upon her own resources she will sometimes wander quite a distance hunting a suitable place to deposit her eggs.

You should keep watch of her and daily remove the eggs lest they become chilled. Substitute a nest egg of some kind, and nearly every time you get a turkey egg place a hen's egg in the nest. After she has laid a number of eggs and thinks of setting, remove all the nest eggs and break up her nest. Taken by surprise she will soon make herself another nest, not far from the former, and begin laying again. A turkey hen can be made to lay thirty or forty eggs in a season by following up this plan. I allow fifteen eggs, as a general rule, to a turkey hen, although an old one could probably cover more than that number.

After they have hatched I allow them free range, but keep them in a field where the grass is short, as the tall grass on dewy mornings is hard on the young turks. After they are two weeks old I allow them to go wherever they please. When they are able to fly well, I drive them home to roost, keeping this up until they come without it.

As turkeys are of a nomadic disposition, the only true way to raise them is with the turkey hen. She will take them out into the meadows, teach them to eat grass and clover, and that natural food of all fowls, grasshoppers, bugs and other insects, and the sooner they are compelled to subsist principally on them the healthier they will become, and the better it will be for the farmer, as they destroy the insects which some years play such sad havoc with his crops.

Of this great American breed of fowls there are many varieties, the Narraganset, slate, white and mammoth bronze being the most popular. Each of these varieties has its friends, but I believe the mammoth bronze to be the most desirable, as it combines vigor, size (I having had one once that reached the remarkable weight of fifty-two pounds), and beauty above all varieties. It is not an uncommon thing for a bronze male to tip the scales at forty pounds. Young birds will weigh, with proper care and feeding, males twenty to twenty-five pounds and females from ten to fifteen pounds by Thanksgiving, and, taking into consideration care, feed, etc., I believe there is nothing the farmer raises that will net him as much clear money as a flock of turkeys.

No domestic fowl is more easily degenerated by inbreeding than the turkey. This is a great mistake, too often made by our farmers and because of this many meet with failure and declare that the turkey is a hard fowl to raise. They should procure a male every year not akin to their turkeys. These can be bought from our best breeders at from $3 to $5 each, according to quality, size, etc., which is very reasonable when you consider the cost of advertising, correspondence, crating, etc. I believe that the time is near at hand when poultry of all kinds will not be considered by our farmers as a secondary matter, but will receive the care and attention it deserves.—J. B. McAllister, Linn County, Iowa.

A Bargain.

It was in the raspberry-season, and a freckled, barefooted little girl in a torn blue calico gown came to the door of a country boarding-house to sell some berries she had gathered.

"How much are your berries?" asked the mistress of the house.

"They are fifteen cents a quart, 15 a.m. But," she added, in the same breath, "if you don't want them, you can have them for ten."

"I don't want them, so you may give me three quarts," replied the lady, merrily.—Woman's Home Companion.
