THUMB CHAMPIONS.

Our High School Base Ball Nine Has That Honor.

Elkton Forfeited the Game Tuesday.

The long-looked-for ball game between Elkton and Cass City High Schools, for the championship of the Thumb of Michigan, resulted in a forfeited game, 9 to 0, in favor of Cass City. This is the way it happened: Prof. Manney, of Elkton, asked Prof. Sinclair, at the Field Day meet, for a ball game on the following Friday, and he accepted it, but asked to have it postponed until Tuesday, June 14th, which request was granted, but on Saturday, 11th inst., Prof. Sinclair received a letter from Mr. Manney, saying that they could not come. The team management here telephoned them twice, after receiving their letter, but without result, and in this way Elkton refused to come and lost the game, along with the championship of the Thumb.

Being unsuccessful in getting Elkton, Prof. Sinclair telephoned Gagetown, who came with the idea of showing Cass City how to play ball, but it resulted in a very different score from what they expected, and they went home with very "cheap" looking faces. The features of the game were the battling and fielding of the locals, the pitching of A. Duncanson, who fanned eleven men, which makes a total of forty-five men struck out in his last four games, and the roofing of the High School girls. In the fifth inning, Karner, the Gagetown pitcher, who had been angered at his poor success, ran into Ehlers purposely, as he was scoring from third, knocked him out of the line and gave him a severe shaking, but he was able to continue the game.

THE SCORE.

Cass City	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Gagetown	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	9	10

Batteries—Cass City, Duncanson and Graham; Gagetown, Moden and Freeman, and Karner and Moden. Stolen bases—A. Duncanson 3, Ehlers 3, Graham 2, Phillips 2, McComb 1, Dillman 1, D. Duncanson 1 and Perkins 2; Hennessey, Cootes, Freeman and Moden.

The H. S. Ball Team received two tickets through the courtesy of A. A. McKenzie and an unknown person giving his name as "A friend."

Announcement.

The baccalaureate sermon to the Graduating Class of 1904 will be given next Sunday evening at the M. E. Church by the pastor, Rev. M. W. Gifford, Ph. D.

The Class Day exercises will be held at the Opera House on Wednesday evening, 22nd inst., to begin promptly at eight o'clock. The Commencement exercises will be held at the same place on Thursday evening, beginning at the same hour, and to avoid confusion all should be in their seats on time. Admission on Wednesday and Thursday evenings 10c. each; reserved seats, 10c. extra.

For the banquet at the New Sheridan on Friday evening, only seventy-two tickets will be sold at 75c. each, and the same will be on sale at T. H. Fritz's drug store on Monday and Tuesday.

Tickets for Class Day exercises on sale at the same place on Wednesday. For Commencement, on Thursday.

Creamery Doing Well.

Several more routes for the creamery have been started this week and the receipts of milk and cream are steadily increasing so that between nine and ten thousand pounds of milk are now coming daily. A large shipment of 650 pounds of cream came from Pigeon early in the week and regular shipments are promised from that point. Buttermaker Lavrack is now assisted by W. I. Frost and patrons may be sure of having their products well cared for at the plant.

Railroad Matters.

We understand that the newly organized railroad company is pushing the necessary details as rapidly as possible and something definite is likely to be placed before the people of this section very shortly. Caro is out after the road and Wilnot people are sure of it coming their way, so that if Cass City cares anything about it they should be manifesting their interest in some way at once.

Improved Cement Fence Post.

Carolan and Bertrand will be pleased to interview anyone who is at all interested in their invention, and to explain its advantages.

Messrs. M. T. Carolan and Bert Bertrand, of this place, have quite recently secured a patent (No. 759,344) for an improved cement fence post, which promises to come into general favor. Whereas the ordinary cement post sold heretofore has been made solid and either flat or square, this one is made v-shape, allowing a wire to pass down the inner side of the post for the purpose of locking the cross wires in their respective positions. Among the claims made for the new post are:—It is easily constructed, low in cost, does not rot or crumble, is easily wired or unwired without wasting of wire, needs no painting, cannot burn, and being indestructible, will last a lifetime. County and state rights are now for sale and Messrs.

Interior Changes.

Extensive changes and improvements have been made in the interior arrangements of W. A. Fairweather's big store. The rooms at the rear have been improved and re-arranged so as to accommodate the entire grocery department, which has been placed in charge of E. A. Jones and Frank Scripture, who have placed the complete grocery stock in a very tasty manner and are in shape to look after all patrons with neatness and dispatch. The high shelving through the center of the main store has been dispensed with, allowing a free view of the entire store from the cashier's desk, and still allowing ample room for the display of the large dry goods stock. A portion of the west side has been leased to Mrs. C. M. Seeley, for her millinery goods, for the present. F. A. Ellis is still retained as the efficient chief clerk, while he is ably assisted by the Misses Kathryn Zinnecker and Mary Walters. Call and see the new arrangement.

Pretty Wedding.

At high noon yesterday occurred the marriage of Colin J. Bingham and Miss May Summers, both of Elmwood, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Summers. The parlors were decorated very nicely, a beautiful arch of white carnations hanging in one corner, under which the ceremony was performed by Rev. D. E. Magee, of Gagetown. Alonzo Bingham, a cousin of the groom, acted as best man. A large number of guests were present and the gifts were both numerous and valuable. An elaborate wedding dinner was served after which the bride and groom were baptized in a shower of rice. They left on the evening train for a visit with friends in Ontario. They are popular young people in the community and a host of friends wish them a long and happy life.

Hotel Gordon Sold.

A deal was consummated yesterday, whereby Will Kile steps out of Hotel Gordon, of which he has been proprietor and manager for some time, and A. Doerr becomes the owner, taking possession this morning. Mr. Kile has not fully decided what he will do, but will endeavor to rent a suitable residence for the present and look after the interests of his farm, west of town. Mr. Doerr has had considerable hotel experience and will doubtless fully maintain the high reputation of the hostelry.

Will Move.

The ENTERPRISE will be moved in a few days to the Etherinton building, on the west side of Seeger Street, of late known as the Cass City House. Necessary changes are being made in the building now and will be completed very shortly. The management has also leased the second story of the building and will place a stairway on the south side for the convenience of those who may wish to rent the rooms for residence purposes. Anyone interested in securing them should apply at once in order that the rooms may be arranged to their liking.

Notice.

By order of the Village Council the Village Pound will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder, June 23, 1904, at 9 o'clock a. m. Sale will take place on the premises. Right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

H. L. McDERMOTT, President.
C. G. MATZEN, Clerk. 1-16-1

Fourth of July Celebration and Picnic.

Extensive preparations are being made to celebrate the Fourth of July in Carr's grove, two and one half miles east of Gagetown, with a grand joint picnic under the auspices of the Bethel and Gagetown M. E. Churches.

This is an ideal shady picnic ground and every effort will be made to provide for the comfort of those who attend.

Dinner and supper will be served and other refreshments. Provisions will be made for the care and feeding of horses.

Negotiations are in progress for two lively ball games also appropriate and valuable prizes will be awarded to contestants in the numerous other sports billed for the day such as men's running race, foot dressing contest, potato race, boys' race under 13 years, fat man's race, climbing the greased pole, catching a greased pig etc., etc.

An interesting and entertaining program is undergoing preparation which will consist of speeches, Male Quartette, recitations and a very pretty drill by 16 girls. H. P. Bush, Commissioner of Schools, and Rev. N. C. Karr, of Midland, will be orators of the day.

The services of the Cass City Cornet Band are secured to furnish music for the day, and there will be a grand display of fire-works in the evening, opened and closed by balloon ascensions.

Everybody is invited to come and enjoy a day of that liberty for which our forefathers fought and died more than a century ago.

Good Program.

The entertainment given last Friday evening, at the M. E. Church, by the Loyal Temperance Legion, proved a pleasing success, the attendance being very good indeed and the program being well rendered in each particular. Seats were arranged for the children in the League rooms and they made a pretty sight. Several of the numbers were deserving of special mention, but we refrain lest we should slight some deserving one. The receipts amounted to $17.00. The superintendent of the work, Miss Mabel Anderson, is especially pleased with the success of the first entertainment given by the organization.

Blew Open Safe.

Burglars broke into the postoffice at Elmer, four miles west of Sanilac Centre, last week, used dynamite to blow open the safe containing stamps, money and mail matter of value, and then carried off every last bit that was of value. It is believed the men who did the job are the same ones who have been burglarizing stores and houses in other parts of the state.

Stole Booze and Smokes.

A party of masked men held up a bartender in Anthony's saloon at Pinnebrog last Thursday evening and loaded 10 gallons of alcohol, nine gallons of brandy, a lot of whiskey, wine and beer, 3,000 cigars and $5 in cash. They then drove away without being identified.

THE SEA.

Come down with me to the moon-led sea,
Where the long waves ebb and fill—
Are these the files that follow
As the lunar impulse will?

Nay, rather this is the heart of God,
Naked under the sky,
And we hear its pulse with wonder—
The shore, and the clouds, and I!

Unearthly, awful, uncompeled,
Eternity framed in clay,
Through cosmic arteries hurled,
With the throbs of his faint pulses
God feels the veins of the world!

Its life is the blood of the universe
Through cosmic arteries hurled,
Swinging beneath the stars,
God feels the veins of the world!
And the lands are wrinkled and gray
And scored with a thousand scars,
But the sea is the soul of the Infinite,

England Magazine.

LEONARD CATHORNE'S HOMECOMING

BY FRED J. COX

As Leonard Cathorne walked down the narrow lane under the shade of the overarching hedges, he glanced about him with an eye of sober delight. The surrounding landscape was precisely that which had always formed the background of his dreams when at nighttime in his lone Canadian ranch current of his thoughts had involuntarily set homeward. As he remembered it as a boy, as he had dreamed of it as a man, so the picture remained, true down to the smallest of its details, even to the wisps of straw caught by the projecting forks in the hedge-row when the corn-lands wain had passed.

It was in such a setting that he had always thought of her. Indeed, the landscape without her would for Leonard Cathorne's eyes at least have lost more than half its charm. Presently the corn-lands ceased, and the lane broadening out ran by the side of undulating meadows to the village of Netherlands lying in the valley below.

Nethercote farm lay back from the roadway, just at the edge of the village. As Leonard walked up the path which led to the house a troop of early memories crowded in upon him. He had a clear right to a share of the property after their father's death, but Mark seized everything with that grasping nature of his and soon made it plain to Leonard that his room in Nethercote would be preferable to his company. Feeling this, like a sensitive man he had resolved to emigrate, and this resolve was industriously fed by Mark, who lent him £150 to start ranch life in Canada. Fortune had smiled so pleasantly upon him that the repayment of that sum was now, after fifteen years, quite an easy matter.

He knocked at the door, which was presently opened by a round-shouldered figure of a man, who with one hand held aloft a small metal lamp and with the other shaded his eyes and peered at the stranger.

"Well, Mark! You'll hardly know me, I guess?"

"Oh, it's you, is it? You'd best come in," answered the other.

He led the way into the farm parlor, a large room meagerly furnished, for the illumination of which the glimmer of the little lamp was absurdly inadequate. Leonard took a chair facing his brother and leaned his arm on a round deal table, ridiculously small to serve as the centerpiece of so large an apartment.

"A nice brotherly welcome!" cried Leonard, bitterly. "I see how it is. The sooner I'm out of Nethercote the better it will please you. I won't trouble you long, but before I leave your house to-night I've determined to settle up a little business with you."

"What business?" asked Mark.

"Look here," exclaimed Leonard quickly, "stow that kind of talk. I've come to pay back your money, for I wouldn't be beholden to you for a farthing."

A strange glitter came into the other's eyes.

"Here's the money," shouted Leonard, laying a bundle of bank notes on the table.

Just then the click of a latch at the back of the farm was heard. Both men started. The door leading from the farm kitchen into the parlor now opened and a woman entered, bearing a lamp which at once gave a cheerier aspect to the room.

She was fairly tall, apparently a little over 30 years of age and dressed becomingly in black. Dark brown curls clustered above her forehead, and her eyes as they glanced inquiringly at Leonard Cathorne had a rare sweetness of expression.

would at least come in every day and tidy up the place for him. He paid her for this, she said, and it was a great help.

"Better a thousand times be that man's servant than his wife," he cried. "But, dear Thirza, I am still in the dark about the money."

It was some time before she answered.

"It's a long time ago now," she said at last. "He wanted me to marry him and threatened that if I didn't he would do all sorts of things against you. And he was beginning to talk about you in the village, and—"

"So you paid the money to save my good name," broke in Leonard. "Darling Thirza! Twasn't much of a name to save, but you have a right to it because you saved it. Will you take it for your own, and its owner with it into the bargain?"

For answer she only nestled closer to him, while the stars and the round harvest moon smiled down upon them in benediction.—Fred J. Cox in Chicago Chronicle.

Old Dinky Was Easy to Please, but You Might Not Be.

Uncle Joe is an old negro on a farm near Chesapeake City, a farm owned by the family which his name was years ago. He is a widower, and lately has spruced up to a degree. Not long since, one of the young men of the place started for the city, when he was hailed by Uncle Joe.

GALLOW'S HILL TO BE A CITY OF HOMES!

(Special Correspondence.)

Gallows Hill, which for more than two centuries has frowned over Salem, the city's Calvary, where some of its best and purest were butchered in a sudden frenzy of bigotry and superstition, is to be blotted from the face of the earth, its surface covered with homes and its very name to change.

Happy homes will rise where once stood the gallows trees, with their ghastly burden of dead, and the laughter of children will ring where once resounded the shrill cries of despair from the wretched women hanged as witches, whose pleas for mercy and protestations of innocence were hurled back with curses by the spectators of New England's greatest tragedy.

The horror of that dark episode in Salem's history has brooded over the place and while other parts of the city have built up, Gallows Hill has still presented the same barren, forbidding aspect as it did a hundred years ago.

Long years ago the old oak tree on which the eighteen victims were hung looked upon as grievous sin by the Puritans. Tituba, the Indian servant, joined the children in these unhealthy sports, and taught them what she knew of Indian charms and spells.

The girls began to talk mysteriously of their hidden powers, and then suddenly found themselves the objects of universal interest. They feigned illness and dreadful pains, and were pitied and dosed, while gaping and sympathizing neighbors gathered to condole and to admire.

They talked rudely in church, interrupting venerable clergymen when preaching or praying, fell into fits, and the more they pretended, the greater was the sensation they created, and finally the whole New England colony was stirred by tales of the "afflicted girls."

Witchcraft was, of course, believed to be responsible for their condition, and some malevolent spirit pointed out the dreadful power over human life which they had in their hands, and when questioned by the elders of the church they declared that they had been bewitched by Tituba, Sarah Good and Sarah Osborn.

The storm had burst, and Salem's frozen persecution of innocent women raged from that time until the following fall, nineteen persons dying on the gallows or crushed to death by stones, two persons dying in jail, and a vast number suffering all the tortures of a death sentence, although reprieved at the last moment, when the people came back to their senses.

Married Life in Abyssinia.

In Abyssinia, a husband who can afford the expense is continually adding to his household of wives. As soon as his favorite begins to pall on him she deposes her for another. The new wife rules the house, dictates orders to the other wives, who, strange as it may seem, obey her without open remonstrance. If any of the former favorites ever cared for their lord they soon cease to be jealous of his affections. They know, too, that the time will surely come when they will be turned out into the streets to look for another master.

Show Surgical Operations.

Cinematograph records are now made of all operations performed by a certain famous physician and surgeon in Paris. He entered some time ago into an arrangement with an operator of the bioscope, who has taken pictures for the doctor on several occasions. It is stated that the records in question are invaluable as scientific documents. One of the surgeon's operations which has been cinematographed was that by which the link of flesh connecting the Hindu twins, Redica and Doodica was severed.

Old Soldier's Story.

Sonoma, Mich., June 13.—That even in actual warfare disease is more terrible than bullets is the experience of Delos Hutchins, of this place. Mr. Hutchins as a Union soldier saw three years of service under Butler Barke in the Louisiana swamps, and as a result got crippled with rheumatism so that his hands and feet got all twisted out of shape, and how he suffered only a rheumatic will ever know.

For twenty-five years he was in misery, then one lucky day his druggist advised him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Of the result Mr. Hutchins says:

"The first two boxes did not help me much, but I got two more, and before I got them used up I was a great deal better. I kept on taking them and now my pains are all gone and I feel better than I have in years. I know Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure rheumatism."

When gratitude goes up it never comes back empty-handed.

Peever married men than bachelors commit suicide.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constant failure to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Faith Monument, Plymouth.

deceased, and was burned up in one of the early Fourth of July bonfires. The stump of the tree was pointed out less than a score of years ago, but even that is gone now. Yet the place is still terrible to the youth of Salem, and few are the lads brave enough to walk over Gallows Hill at night, for fear of some ghostly hand seizing them or hearing the cracked voice of one of the old cronies who died beside the saintly Rebecca Nurse.

"Salem has been famed too long as the place where witches were hanged, and we are sick and tired of hearing about that miserable business." Said one of the leading merchants of Salem. "The sins of the fathers have certainly been paid for by the children in this case, and it is time for the memory of that unfortunate fit of crazy superstition to die away. Indeed, our city fathers and public men must have been more or less bewitched themselves before they could have placarded the whole town with signs telling just where the men and women lived who were hanged for witchcraft; where they were tried and where they bought their broomsticks, and everything connected with the wholesale murders. Somewhere in the Bible it tells of a people whose glory is their shame, and I guess whose glory is their shame, and I guess whose glory is their shame."

Just who was responsible for the tragedy has never been decided and will not until the victims and accusers face each other before the great Judge on the day of judgment. Rev. Samuel Parris, pastor of the First Church in 1692, is accused by some historians of a devilish plot to be revenged on some of his parishioners for withstanding him, by having their dearest relatives accused of witchcraft.

Gallows Hill.

Others say that the grim, stern Puritan life was responsible; the distorted forms of amusement to which the children were driven, striking the spark, which the gloomy religion and credulous superstition of the time and the locality fanned into such furious flame.

the stain on his country, his church and humanity, was turned out of the church and died some years later in Sudbury. Salem prospered, grew and flourished, lost its ancient prestige and much of its former wealth, but Gallows Hill has for 216 years remained unchanged, and with its merging into the life of the community the superstitious folk still left in Salem believe that better times will be ushered in for their city, and the curses of centuries be lifted.

Miss M. Cartledge gives some helpful advice to young girls. Her letter is but one of thousands which prove that nothing is so helpful to young girls who are just arriving at the period of womanhood as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly, for it is the only medicine I ever tried which cured me. I suffered much from my first menstrual period, I felt so weak and dizzy at times I could not pursue my studies with the usual interest. My thoughts became sluggish, I had headaches, backaches and sinking spells, also pains in the back and lower limbs. In fact, I was sick all over."

"Finally, after many other remedies had been tried, we were advised to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am pleased to say that after taking it only two weeks, a wonderful change for the better took place, and in a short time I was in perfect health. I felt buoyant, full of life, and found all work a pastime. I am indeed glad to tell my experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it made a different girl of me. The Ward of King Canute

A Romance of the Danish Conquest.

Voices rose in angry questioning, but Randalin was too far-remembered to understand what they said. Norman's keen eyes were turned upon her, and recognition was dawning in their gaze.

"The boy from Avalcomb! I would have sworn to it that I had separated his life from his body not eight-and-forty hours ago." A gleam of eagerness came into his face, and he bent over her. "You shall serve my purpose by your obstinacy," he said under his breath. "You shall tell me where your sister lies hidden, and it may be that I will grant to you a longer life."

Her stiff lips could not have spoken an answer had her paralyzed brain been able to frame one. She could only gaze back at him in helpless waiting. Through the hush a quiet voice spoke.

"You are eager in rising, my lords," it said.

From the shelter, half cave, half bower, which had been contrived amid the bushes, a warrior of mighty frame had emerged and stood examining the scene. The light that revealed the protruding chin had no need to pick out the jeweled diadem to mark him as Edmund Ironsides.

He repeated his inquiry, "What is the amusement, my thanes? From the clamor which awakened me, I had some notion of an attack."

Norman of Baddeley bent in a reverence. "Your expectations are to this degree fulfilled, my royal lord," he made answer. "Behold the enemy!"

Stopping, he raised the red-cloaked figure by its collar and held it up in the firelight. As a murmur of laughter went around he lowered it again and spoke more gravely. "A hand needs not be large to get a hit under its gripe, however. The young wolf is of northern breed. He seeks my life because in a skirmish, a few days ago, he and yeoman-soldiers, singly and in groups, filtered quietly through the shadows, and placed themselves at their chief's back.

But though the king's brows had met for an instant in a lowering arch, some second thought controlled him. When he spoke, his words were even gracious: "I think the Lord of Ivarsdale has the right of it. The crime the boy purposed was not carried out; and in each case, Lord Seburt was his captor. I am content to trust to his wardship."

Seburt's frank face betrayed his surprise at the complaisance, but he gave his pledge and his thanks with what courtliness he could muster, and releasing his passive prisoner, pushed her gently into the safekeeping of the old knight. Yet he was not so obtuse as to stop back, as though the incident was closed; he read the king's infection more correctly than that. Holding himself somewhat stiff in the tenseness of his feelings, he stood his ground in silent alertness.

A rustle of uneasiness crept the round of the assembled nobles. Only the monarch's bland composure remained unruffled. Advancing with the deliberate grace that so well became his mighty person, he seated himself upon a convenient boulder and signed the figure in the shadow to draw nearer.

As it obeyed, every one of the yeoman-soldiers strained his eyes in that direction, as though hoping to surprise in the great traitor's face some secret of his power, the power that had made three kings as wax between his fingers! But just short of the fire-glow the Gainer paused, and the hooded cloak which shrouded him merged him hopelessly into the shadow. Only the hand that rested on his sword-hilt protruded into the light. It was a broad hand, and thick-fingered as a butcher's, and it was milk-white and weighted with massive rings.

"Lord of Ivarsdale, I am not rich of time, and my present need is too great to spare any of it to the chastising of rebellious boys. Go back to your town, and lord it over your serfs until I find leisure to teach you who is master." Making a disdainful gesture of dismissal, he turned with deliberate grace and entered into conversation with the Mercian.

At the moment, it is likely that the young noble would have preferred arrest. The utter scorn of word and act lashed the blood to his cheeks and the tears to his eyes. With boyish passion, he snatched the sword from his sheath, and breaking it in pieces across his knee, flung the fragments clinking into the dead embers.

But if he had hoped to provoke an answer, it was in vain; the king deigned him no further notice. Resuming his seat, Edmund continued to talk quietly with the earl, a half-smile playing about his complacent chin.

The old knight bent forward and whispered in his chief's ear: "Make haste, Lord Seburt; they will be cheering in a moment, the church bells are pealed, and they are at the thought of going home. Hasten with your retinue."

It was a clever appeal. Forgetting, for the moment, humiliation in responsibility, the young leader whirled to his men. A gesture, a muttered order, and they were drawing back among the trees in silent retreat. A few steps more, and the bushes had blossomed into the Ironsides and his thames.

Meanwhile the king was speaking affably: "As you did not favor us with your presence among the Wise Men, my lord, it is likely that you do not know of the good luck which has befallen our cause. This prudent Earl, who before the battle had concluded with himself that England had so little to hope for from our reign that he was willing to throw his weight against us, has found his victory so without relish that he has become our sworn ally."

"In former days I think there was some hostile temper between the earl and you. But I expect you will see that under the stress of a foreign war all lesser strife must give way. So I desire that you will repeat in my presence the truth already pledged by these others."

"He made a slight gesture, and the Gainer took a step forward. Hesitating, the Etheling went from red to white. Then, with a swift motion, he unsheathed his sword and stretched it out, point foremost.

"King Edmund," he said, "in no other way does my hand go forth toward a traitor."

The sternness that had underlain the king's manner rose slowly and spread over the whole surface of his person, as he drew himself up in towering offense.

our swords. When we have paid the three taxes of fort-building and bridge-building and field service, we have paid all that we owe to the state."

"At last they stood defined, the first of the feudal lords and the last of the odal-born men. Even through the king's loftiness it was suddenly borne in that, behind the insignificance of the revolt, loomed a mighty principle, mighty enough to merit force."

"I observe that the men of your race have not been of great importance in the land. It appears that Ethelred was able to do without the rebel Lord of Ivarsdale."

"I admit that he was able to lose his crown without him," the rebel's son retorted swiftly.

The king's wounded dignity bled in his cheeks; he was stung into a movement that brought him to his feet.

"This is insufferable!" he cried. It was evident that the crisis had come. Several of the thames laid their hands upon their swords. At an almost imperceptible sign from the old knight, the henchmen made a noiseless step nearer their master.

But the lord of Cerdic, once fired, burned too rapidly for policy. Edmund's jaw was set in savage menace as he turned and beckoned to his guard. Had he spoken the words on his lips, there is little doubt what his order would have been.

Interruption came from an unexpected quarter. Even as his lips were opening, that white taloned hand reached out of the shadow and touched his arm.

"Most royal lord! If it may be permitted me?" Earl Edric said swiftly. His voice was very low, and every roughness had been filed away until it flowed like oil. Upon the King's wounded temper it appeared to fall as softly as drops of healing balm.

With his mouth still set he paused and bent his ear. There was a murmur of whispered words.

What they were no one ever knew, and each man had a different theory; but their result was plain to all. Slowly Edmund's knitted brows unraveled; slowly his mouth relaxed into its wonted curves. At last he had regained all his lofty composure and turned back.

"Lord of Ivarsdale, I am not rich of time, and my present need is too great to spare any of it to the chastising of rebellious boys. Go back to your town, and lord it over your serfs until I find leisure to teach you who is master."

At the moment, it is likely that the young noble would have preferred arrest. The utter scorn of word and act lashed the blood to his cheeks and the tears to his eyes. THE ODD CORNER

Which Foot Walks the Faster? You may think this a very foolish question to ask, but is it? There is no catch about it. It is a simple demonstrable fact which you can prove to your own satisfaction in a very few minutes.

If you will take any pavement that is clear of other pedestrians, so that there shall be no interference, and walk briskly in the center, you will find that before you have gone a hundred yards you will have veered very much to one side. You must not make any conscious effort, of course, to keep to the center, or you may do it; but if you will think of something and endeavor to walk naturally it is a hundred to one you cannot keep a direct line.

The explanation of this lies in the peculiarity of one foot to walk faster than the other. Or, to be more correct, perhaps it should be said that one leg takes a longer stride than the other, and this, combined with the quicker movement, causes one to walk more to one side than the other.

It is well known, for instance, that if one is lost in the woods, the tendency is to walk in a circle and eventually to return to about the starting point. This demonstrates the fact, also, that one foot walks faster than the other.

You can try an interesting experiment in this way if you will place two stakes in the lawn about eight feet apart, and then stand off about sixty feet, allow yourself to be blindfolded, and endeavor to walk between them. You will find it an almost impossible task, because one foot will go a bit faster than the other, either to the right or left. Now, which one of your feet walks faster than the other?

Making Steel Vibrate. A scientist once said that, given proper appliances, he could break an iron girder by pelting it with pith balls—using the law of gravitation, he meant. You know what pith is—the soft central part of cane.

This learned man never tried the experiment, but here is one which you may try, by means of which a bar of steel may be caused to vibrate through the dropping of water.

Place the bar, which must be thin and flat, upon supports of wood, triangular in shape. Let the support be one-fourth of the way from the end of the bar.

Set a water cooler on the edge of the table, the faucet directly above and in the middle of the bar. Cause it to vibrate by pressing up and down with the hand, and then set the water to drop in unison with these vibrations. Allow the dropping to continue and you will soon see movement in the steel. That is, if you watch very closely, for, of course, it is tiny as can be.

Lebanon Cedar in England. A famous cedar of Lebanon, which for more than 220 years has guarded the southern entrance of the old Chelsea physic garden in London, has just been cut down. In 1633 four Lebanon cedars, the first ever planted in England, were successfully introduced into the physic garden. Two of the trees flourished for nearly a century and then were removed.

Child's Wonderful Escape. The 2-year-old child of Mr. Levesque of Lewiston, Me., fell from a fourth story piazza downward head foremost. The piazza below is wider and there is a wire string clothes reel set upon it. The child, in falling, struck his shoulder upon the wire and, bouncing back, landed unhurt upon his feet on the piazza from which it had fallen.

Gum Copal Very Old. J. W. Cilley of Winooski, Vt., has a piece of gum copal in which a fly was embedded. As this article of commerce is only found now buried deep in the ground in Africa, where once it nourished on the gum copal tree, now long extinct as a growing vegetable product, the piece is no doubt thousands of years old.

Iron Found in Sand. A curious sight on the coast of Java is a long stretch of shore about twenty-nine miles in length where the sand is filled with particles of magnetic iron. In some places it is said that the surface sand contains 80 per cent of iron. It can be smelted, and a company has been formed to exploit the deposits.

Bird's Pathetic Death. A robin had built her nest in a tree near the home of George C. Downing of Dover, Me., and was sitting on some eggs. While searching for food she found a kernel of corn with a long string tied to it, and in the attempt to swallow the string she choked to death, and was sitting dead on her nest.

Lemons of Great Size. E. P. Kewick of Fairfield, Me., has a lemon tree on which there are a number of lemons, one of which measures ten and a half inches in circumference.

Onion Long in Woman's Ear. A Connecticut woman has just taken from her ear a tiny onion which had been there for forty-three years.

Latest Parisian Fad. Paris has a fad which calls for your sweetheart's face on your finger nail.

CATARRH IS THE CAUSE OF MOST KIDNEY DISEASES.

PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH.

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Beadle Court Angelina, 3422 I. O. O. F., 205 New High St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I came here a few years ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. I thought the climate would cure me, but found I was mistaken. But what the climate could not do Peruna could and did do. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine, and I was then a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney trouble through the use of Peruna, and it has a host of friends in this city."

Catarrh of the Kidneys a Common Disease—Kidney Trouble Often Fails to Be Regarded as Catarrh by Physicians.

Catarrh of the kidneys is very common indeed. It is a pity this fact is not better known to the physicians as well as the people. People have kidney disease. They take some diuretic, hoping to get better. They never think of catarrh. Kidney disease and catarrh are seldom associated in the minds of the people, and, alas, it is not very often associated in the minds of the physicians. Too few physicians recognize catarrh of the kidneys. They do not for something which they try this remedy and that.

Statement of Value. Of an eminent English statesman who was a very dull speaker Lord Ashbourne once told this story: "He was making a very dull speech one evening when I remarked to a member of the cabinet on the dreariness of the performance. 'He is an admirable man,' was the reply. 'I wish we had him?' 'Do with him?' Send him to Ireland, of course. He would disperse any unlawful assembly in five minutes."

Captain James L. Dempsey, Captain 2nd Precinct Troy Police Force, writes from 198 Ferry St., Troy, N. Y., as follows:

"From my personal experience with Peruna I am satisfied it is a very fine remedy for catarrhal affections, whether of the head, lungs, stomach or pelvic organs. It cures colds quickly, and a few doses taken after undue exposure prevents illness."

"Some of the patrolmen under me have also found great relief from Peruna. It has cured chronic cases of kidney and bladder troubles, restored men suffering from indigestion and rheumatism, and I am fully persuaded that it is an honest, reliable medicine, hence I fully endorse and recommend it."

JAMES L. DEMPSEY
Officer A. C. Swanson writes from 607 Harrison St., Council Bluffs, Ia., as follows:

"As my duties compelled me to be out in all kinds of weather I contracted a severe cold from time to time, which settled in the kidneys, causing severe pains and trouble in the pelvic organs."

"I am now like a new man, am in splendid health and give all praise to Peruna."

Maude Craig returned home from Flint last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens visited at John Fox's Sunday.

Arthur Craig and Misses Orpha Chambers, Maude and Merle Craig drove to Lamotte Sunday.

Drs. Hays and Wickware and Messrs. Outwater, Cootes, Wood and McKenzie attended T. Agar's barn raising.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Towle and G. Towle were called to Fairgrove Sunday on account of the sickness of the latter's brother.

There was a pleasant gathering at the home of O. Wells, one day last week. It was in honor of Mr. Meddough, it being his birthday. He was presented with a lovely chair.

A very exciting event occurred at the home of Tom Agar last Friday. After the barn had been raised and a number of the men returned home, Frank McGregory, of Shabbona, returned to the barn to raise some rafters. He was standing on the second highest brace when he slipped and fell to the floor, while the brace followed his example. He first struck on his back, bounded three feet and hit on his face. He was borne to the house, where he was cared for till the doctor arrived. It is reported that two of his ribs are broken and it is feared there are other injuries that are not yet learned of. On the same day, Thos. Agar stepped on a nail which penetrated nearly through his foot, Frank Bond had a very narrow escape from serious injury, through a "commander" or sledge falling. Fortunately he saw it coming in time to dodge so that it only slightly touched his head but gave him a lame shoulder. There were also one or two others slightly injured.

Gagetown

Mrs. John L. McDonald is visiting relatives in the village.

Mrs. Rathbun and daughter are visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Bert Wilbur.

On Monday Mrs. Wheeler and family removed to the home to be occupied by her daughter, Mrs. Alvin Beach.

Mrs. Vet Canley returned Saturday from Battle Creek, where she represented the local hive at the biennial session of the Great Hive.

Elmwood Tent was represented at the Great Camp review, K. O. T. M. M. at Battle Creek, by Wm. Come. On his return trip he visited his parents in Ann Arbor and arrived home on Monday evening.

Some of the Gagetown young people went to the Children's Day exercises at Bethel last Sunday evening. They pronounce it a splendid success, and prophesy it is an earnest of what will be afforded at the picnic in Mr. Karr's grove on July 4th.

Mrs. Clyde Wilbur, who has been visiting her brother-in-law here for the past few days, has gone to visit relatives in Caro and Vassar before returning to her home in Arizona. She thinks Arizona is the "only place there is." Funny! Every state seems to be the best if we listen to everyone.

A very pretty wedding occurred in our village at the home of Mrs. Wheeler, when her daughter, Battie, was united in marriage with Alvin Beach, of Elmwood township, on Thursday at one p. m. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. B. Magee in the presence of only the immediate relatives and friends. The rooms were very tastefully decorated in pink and white. The bridal pair took the four o'clock train for Orlitia, Ontario, amid a shower of best wishes and best rice from their friends. Upon their return they are to occupy the farm of Mrs. Wald, a mile south of the village.

The Croswell Jeffersonian presents a decidedly improved appearance under the management of Robert C. Wall, Jr., of Lexington, who last week took charge of it.

John Thompson, of Maple Grove Stock Farm, Carsonville, lost nearly the whole of his right ear by having it bit off by an over-affectionate horse one day last week.

DYSPEPTICIDE The greatest aid to DIGESTION.

HOW WOMEN SHOULD REST.

Stop Work in Time. The Afternoon Nap. Regular Out Door Exercise. Change of Occupation a Form of Rest. Necessary Recreation and Relaxation.

By CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK, Author of "Cradle and Nursery," "First Aid to the Young Housekeepers," "Housekeeping Made Easy," "What to Eat," "In City Tents," Etc.
(Copyrighted, 1904, by Christine Terhune Herrick)

The time seems to have come when American women have to be taught to rest. They have learned nearly everything else, but resting is something a good many of them have never had time to acquire.

There is a saying that Providence looks after the lame and the lazy. The implication is, apparently, that the healthy and the industrious know how to take care of themselves. The fact remains, however, that they seldom do. They go until they drop and never seem to have the least idea that they are over-doing until they give out entirely.

One of the first things to be learned about resting is that it is like some other remedies for the ills of this life. It is worth twice as much if taken at an early stage as it is if delayed until the disease has had time to gain ground. The true philosophy of resting is to rest before one is really tired. To know when to stop is as important a part of life's schooling as to learn where to begin. Indeed, the begining often presents itself, while the stopping place requires searching for.

Our Puritan conscience,—in so many lines a boon, in so many others a bane,—is one of the obstacles in the way of stopping in time. The average busy woman who wants to rest, feels, just because it would be an agreeable sensation, that it must somehow be wrong. She will make sure that she is as tired as she can be before she lays aside her work and takes the few moments repose she may need. But by the time she comes to that stage she is at a period of fatigue when a few moments of rest will do little for her. Her first fancied economy was a mistake,—and she is paying for it, as one does for all mistakes.

I have spoken before in these columns of the harm done by the Puritan conscience. Its effect in making the earnest woman scourge herself into over-work is perhaps one of its worst effects. There are many women who need to struggle to attain a state of saving unconscientiousness. Had they this, perhaps they might know how to rest without making a special study of it.

Said a young man the other day, in my hearing. "I wouldn't have my mother's conscience for anything." "Your mother's conscience?" I said. "Why? She is one of the best women in the world. What can she have on her conscience?"

"Running sores!" returned the youth, promptly. "She has punched it and pricked it so often that it is in a dreadful condition. Mine is just a comfortable callous!"

If more women could establish a "comfortable callous" in their conscience it would be better for them,—and one may add, for those about them. All parties concerned would have more chance to rest. Or, what might be better still would be for the women to learn to apply their conscientiousness to the rest problem.

How many business women make a point of taking a little nap every afternoon? Nature seems to indicate the advisability of this by making most people sleepy immediately after the mid day meal. While the process of digestion is going on there should be a temporary cessation of work. A rest of fifteen minutes or half an hour pays for its self before the day is out. The woman should go off by herself, loosen any tight clothing she may be wearing, stretch out on a couch, in a darkened room, shut her eyes and lie still for a fixed time. Even if she does not go to sleep she is sure to be rested. If she is nervous and excited she would do well to have some book of mild interest at hand in which she can read for ten of the thirty minutes she has allotted to herself. This will calm her and fit her for the sleep or rest she is trying to take.

But this is not all she requires. A woman cannot rest simply by stopping work and staying in the house. She needs a great deal more than that. She needs to get out of the house, and when she goes out she must do something that is good for her. Active exercise is as much of a desideratum of rest as absolute repose.

The woman who rides a wheel ought never to get really tired. For I do not call it getting tired to have a sensation of healthy weariness in limb and muscle. That is the sort of thing that brings sleep and rest. It is not in the least like the jaded sensation that comes over the woman who has toiled at her household duties all day or who has sat at her sewing until her back and eyes and fingers ache. Anyone who has once known the joys of the road on a good wheel will not tarry in answering when asked if there is any difference between the two kinds of fatigue.

So the woman who wishes to learn how to rest must exercise in the open air.

I have spoken of riding a wheel, because that seems to combine a maximum of exercises and of interest with a minimum of bother. The woman who rides a good chainless wheel with the proper sort of appurtenances in the way of skirt guard and the like, has no toilsome business of wheel and frock cleansing awaiting her when she gets home. She goes out with an easy mind, instead of being tired before she starts by the thought of the unpleasant task that awaits her when she gets home and whose anticipation takes the edge off her enjoyment. But if a woman cannot ride a wheel, for any reason,—and the good reasons against almost any woman doing it seem to be growing small by degrees and beautifully less, as the revival of the wheel goes on,—she must not on that account stay at home. Let her do something else,—walk, tennis, golf. Only let her do something and do it out of doors and do it every day, weather permitting.

Here then are two essentials of rest, repose and outdoor exercise. There are others. One among them is a pet recreation.

Women used to find this sort of thing in embroidery and worsted work. There are some women who do that even now. Others seek it in basketry, and while the uninitiated may not be able to comprehend the joy of this particular form of employment, it is a fact that there are many who revel in it. There are others who do bead work and others still who have some one of the many crafts that have drifted into women's lives of late years. It makes no difference what a woman does,—whether she embroiders or knits or weaves baskets or bead chains or hammers brass or burns wood,—so long as it diverts her. If she doesn't do this she would better play cards or fiddle-winks. The object is of no importance,—"the play's the thing."

The woman should play in other ways, too. She should go to see things that amuse her,—if it be only the circus. She should see a good play when she can, hear good music when it comes her way, indulge in such social joys as present themselves. All have their part in teaching her to rest,—which in its best meaning is a change of occupation. When women have once mastered the science of resting they will do better work, have better husbands and children and bring the nation and the race to a higher level of health and happiness than they occupy at the present.

Several citizens of Sanilac county are discussing which would be the most sensible move, to take in the St. Louis exposition or lay in the winter coal supply.

That Throbbing Headache
Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. WANTED—At once, an intelligent, industrious girl, to serve in the editor's home.

Ellington

M. Warren Smith is seriously sick. James Adams, who has been sick for some time, continues to gain.

The Ellington ball players were in Caro last Saturday playing a game with the Carottes.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Medcalf, of Elmwood, visited with A. W. Adams and family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Ostrander are the proud parents of a young daughter, who arrived last Saturday morning.

Rev. C. A. Lohnes, of Tuscola, will occupy the pulpit of the M. E. church next Sunday morning and evening, in exchange with the pastor, Rev. W. J. Weidenhamer.

The Children's Day exercises were delightfully rendered by members of the Sunday School and enjoyed by a crowded house, at the M. E. church last Sunday afternoon. The church was also beautifully decorated with evergreens and flowers.

"Hobby Horses" is the title of a lecture to be given by Prof. J. A. Muma, Supt. Mayville schools, at the M. E. church, Monday, June 20th. Those who have heard it speak well of it. The admission will be 15 cts for adults and 5 cts for children. This is given under the auspices of the Epworth League, who are working hard to secure a bell for the church.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequalled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentonsville, Va., serves as an example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by T. H. Fritz, Druggist, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

Cedar Run.

T. H. Fritz and wife called on John Spittler's Sunday.

D. Streeter is putting a coat of paint on his horse this week.

Wm. Leach, of Shabbona, visited his brother here on Sunday.

M. Ware, from near Unionville, called at I. Waidley's Monday.

J. Hartley and A. J. Spittler called on friends in Ellington on Sunday.

Chas. Wickware and wife, of Ellington, visited at J. F. Emmon's on Sunday.

Some farmers have had to replant their corn. Poor seed and wet and cold.

Miss Bertha Medcalf, of Ellington, visited her sister, Mrs. D. E. Turner, last week.

A Mr. Winchester, from Pennsylvania, has bought and moved on the Ed. Emmon's place.

Quite a number from this part attended Children's Day exercises in Ellington on Sunday.

Misses Florence and Eva Webster are visiting relatives at Vassar and other points at present.

Wm. Saddler, of Shabbona, has moved in I. Waidley's house and is drawing milk to the Cass City Creamery.

Our R. F. D. changes time again the 15th, starting from Gagtown in the morning, instead of afternoon as now.

The service at the Cedar Run school house next Sunday will be in charge of Rev. C. A. Lohnes, of Tuscola, at 3:00 p. m. who exchanges for the day with the pastor of Ellington.

The farmers in this part have for the past two seasons had their butter and eggs bought and goods delivered at their door by our merchants but this season it will be no more as some one has entered complaint, claiming they could not do this unless they paid a pedlar's license which cost too much for it to pay them to take it out. Some one is playing "dog in the manger" but it does not always pay or make any more friends.

The "Celery King complexion" is what one Cass City lady calls the beautiful skin that comes from the use of the tonic laxative, Celery King, 25c, at druggists.

Every housekeeper should know that if they will buy Defiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save not only time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 16oz.—one full pound—while all other Cold Water Starches are put up in 3/4-pound packages, and the price is the same, 10 cents. Then again because Defiance Starch is free from all injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 12oz. package it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of before he puts in Defiance. He knows that Defiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and figures "16ozs." Demand Defiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. Defiance never sticks.

Our Food and Drink.

We drink about our own weight of liquid every three months, and we Americans consume a little more than three pounds of solid food per day each. We consume about 1,200 pounds of food per year as a fair national average, and physiologists tell us that a man needs 1,600 pounds, a woman 1,200 and a child from 500 to 1,000.

SO DIFFERENT.

Lots of Claims Like This but so Different. Local Proof is What Michigan People Want.

There are a great many of them. Every paper has its share. Statements hard to believe, harder to prove.

Statements from far-away places. What people say in Florida. Public expression from California. Oftentimes good indorsement there. But of little service here at home. Michigan people want local proof. Michigan indorsement counts. It disarms the skeptic; is beyond dispute.

This is the backing that stands behind every box of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. Abraham Allen, corner of Frederick and Factory streets, Owosso, says: "There were constant aching pains through my loins and back, and if I stooped or attempted to lift anything they became sharp and piercing. I soon tired of my position and at night frequently turned from side to side and got up in the morning not feeling as refreshed as I was when I went to bed. The secretions from the kidneys became irregular, highly colored and unnatural and deposited a heavy sediment. I was also bothered with spells of dizziness and felt in general poor health. I had taken bottle after bottle of medicine but nothing appeared to do me any good. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them from Johnson & Henderson's drug store. I felt better after a few doses and I continued the treatment until I was completely cured."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name. Doan's, and take no substitute.

THE MICHIGAN NEWS

Showing What's Doing in All Sections of the State

LIFTED THE LID.

Why the Pere Marquette Assessment Is Too High. In the hearing of testimony in the railroad tax cases a curious admission has been made by a high official of the Pere Marquette railroad.

According to Assistant General Manager James H. Simpson, who testified the annual reports were staffed in order to jolly the stockholders and make them feel good. Fictitious earnings of more than a million dollars were reported. Then the tax board came along and soaked the railroad on its padded returns.

This compelled the management to either pay taxes on the excess or own up. Mr. Simpson was finally authorized to remove the lid, and the matter became public property.

Mr. Simpson stated that items amounting to an average of a million dollars a year had been shifted from the operating expense account in the years 1900, 1901 and 1902. The object was to show a more prosperous condition of affairs than existed. In his direct testimony on behalf of the railroad, which is trying to reduce the intangible valuation given it, he produced the reports made by the directors to the stockholders in those three years. Going over the reports item by item, he specified those which were not correct.

In the 1900 report he picked out items aggregating over $940,000, which he said should have been added to operating expenses. Had this been done, instead of a dividend and surplus there would not have been enough net earnings to have paid interest on bonds.

The attorneys for the state maintain that even if they accept Simpson's testimony as correct, it will not greatly decrease the value of the property. The effect will be to detract from the intangible valuation and increase the physical valuation. Several items were come upon that had been omitted from the valuation of physical property made by the state.

Mrs. Collins Convicted. Mrs. Caroline Collins, of New Lothrop, is guilty of murder in the first degree, and faces a sentence of life imprisonment. The verdict of the jury in her case was "guilty as charged," and was rendered Wednesday evening after about four hours' deliberations. The crime for which Mrs. Collins was convicted was the murder by arsenical poisoning of her hired man and alleged lover, George Leachman, who died in terrible agony on Oct. 23, 1903. The motive, according to the prosecution, were the facts that she owed him about $400 and that he stood in the way of a union with Col. Northwood. Other deaths which are popularly credited to Mrs. Collins are those of her husband, Nicholas Collins, her daughter, Mrs. Adolph Weissenberger, her 10-year-old nephew, Ira Wright, and Mrs. Northwood. The trial lasted 30 days and has cost the county about $6,000. Had there been a disagreement there would probably have been no new trial, as sentiment is strong against the expense. A stay was granted to permit a move for a new trial.

Prisoners at Large. Though the woods over a wide radius have been searched and the roads watched, the convicts who escaped from the Marquette penitentiary Wednesday noon are still at liberty. Asa Taft, George Wilson and George Taylor, all long-termers from lower Michigan, constitute the trio. Their escape was cunningly planned, was made possible by building operations in progress as the result of fire last winter, and was not discovered until last night. The escape is laid to Taft, who, as librarian, has considerable freedom within the walls and who undoubtedly found an opportunity at odd times for cutting through and concealing his work till it was completed.

The Floods Came. A miniature Johnstown flood poured down through the valley Tuesday, says a Traverse City report, as the result of the washing out of the dam at the head of Brewster lake, two miles above Kingsley. The waters of both Brewster and Cedar lakes formed a torrent which swept orchards, outbuildings, telephone and telegraph poles away and drowned considerable live stock. Nicholson creek, the natural outlet of the lakes, was swollen to several times its natural size. It is almost a miracle that no lives were lost, though there were many narrow escapes. Owners of fruit farms are particularly heavy losers.

No Beets to Be Grown. It is reported that the Tawas sugar factory, completed by the sugar trust last year at a cost of nearly three-quarters of a million dollars, will not be operated this season owing to inability to secure beet acreage. Contracts for only 2,000 acres have been secured, and plans are being made to ship these to the Bay City factory owned by the trust, and which has also had difficulty in securing a sufficient acreage.

Lansing has 100 factories, employing 4,000 people, and during the year ending May 31 paid $2,104,410 in wages. The work on Jackson's new Carnegie library is being rushed in view of the approach of the "under the oaks" celebration.

A celebrated gold brick that once sold in Lansing for $2,000 has changed hands for a consideration of $2. A junk dealer bought it.

The Grand Rapids council, after arguing the matter since July 5 of last year, has at last passed to the third reading a toy pistol ordinance.

A Fight for Life.

For the first time, W. S. Sanford, the Battle Creek ex-merchant, who killed a man at Montgomery, Ala., has spoken for publication. Through a friend in Battle Creek Sanford has unfolded his side of the story, and as he was always a respectable citizen of that place, the letter relieves the public mind considerably. He insists that he fought for his life. A man weighing 200 pounds started in to kill Sanford, who is smaller by 50 pounds, and when he found that Sanford would fight back, he pulled a woman in front of him as a shield, shooting over her shoulders. Then the man (James A. Achor, a locomotive engineer) threw a heavy glass at Sanford and knocked him down. As he fell, the former Battle Creekite drew a revolver and shot Achor in the face. This is Sanford's story, as he will tell it to the jury. Clippings from Alabama papers seem to verify Sanford's statements. He is suffering from severe injuries, as he would not shoot at Achor at first for fear of hitting the woman.

Jail Delivery Stopped. A general jail delivery was prevented Saturday by the help of the servants at the Ingham county jail. Three criminals, among them Jack White, alias Dell Anderson, had been transferred from the steel cages to the tramp department of the county jail that they might bathe and wash their clothing. White watched his opportunity and soon cut the top of the grating to one of the windows, bent the bars enough to crawl through, was seen to scale the high board fence in the rear of the lot and escape. The sheriff and his son were soon in hot pursuit and White was soon returned to the bastle, being found in an apple tree about a mile east of the city. The other prisoners who tried to escape were kept in the jail at the point of a revolver until the return of the sheriff.

Five Years in Court. When Judge Wandy, of the United States court at Grand Rapids, in whose jurisdiction the railroad taxation case was started and is now pending, receives the testimony taken at various times since early last fall, he will have a mass of technical stuff to wade through, undoubtedly bigger than he has ever tackled before. As was usual in such cases, to save the time of the court, the matter was referred to a special master in chancery, Charles L. Fitch, of Grand Rapids, and he was given a roving commission that authorized the production of witnesses before him in any part of the United States. It will be at least a month before the testimony is passed up to the court of appeals and the United States supreme court for four or five years.

Five in Seventy Years. Not in many years has Coldwater had a trial that attracted the interest that is aroused over the Ludwick murder trial, commenced on Monday, Mrs. Katie Ludwick, the alleged murderess, is but 39 years of age, and the circumstances of her alleged crime are no new trial, as sentiment is strong against the expense. A stay was granted to permit a move for a new trial.

Shot His Tormentor. Matt Wilson, about 35 years of age, was shot by a shoemaker named Thos. Doonin at Corrine Friday night. Wilson was brought to Manistiquette hospital, and died at midnight. Doonin is about 70 years old. He was bothered by young men, took a shotgun loaded with buckshot and fired. Seven shot took effect in Wilson's left side above the hip. Wilson was a Canadian and had no relatives in this vicinity. Doonin gave himself up.

Two Hundred Homeless. The village of Nahma, 5½ miles east of Escanaba, had a $40,000 fire Friday, in which 18 buildings were burned and 200 people rendered homeless. Little was saved from the burning buildings. A new water works system was finished a month ago, and had it not been for this the entire village would have been wiped out. The entire village is owned by the Bay De Noc Lumber Co., whose head offices are in Chicago.

NEWS OF THE WORLD

A Brief Chronicle of All Important Happenings

IN CRIPPLE CREEK.

Some Will Hang for Dynamite Outrage—Late Phases. The committee of safety was in session nearly all day Saturday holding examinations. A number of men have stated that they were willing to live up their unions cards as there was no longer any union, but they were not willing to take out a permit to work from the Mine Owners' association, but preferred to leave town. The committee states that it has extremely damaging evidence against a number of persons, connecting them with the Independence dynamite outrage and it is likely some very important evidence will be introduced when the trial comes up. A member of the court of inquiry says: "We have evidence that will hang five and possibly double that number, and enough to fill the penitentiary. We have unearthed a state of things that the public will be glad to believe that we ourselves are appalled at, even knowing as we have, that they are bad. We would be doing a wrong to turn these people loose. They must be punished, and will be, now that the laws are enforced."

Gen. Bell says: "I have indisputable evidence which will lead to the conviction of a number of union men for the murder of the non-union miners who were killed in the Independence depot explosion. We have between thirty-five and forty men in the bull pen who will swing for this crime. We are only waiting to capture two or three more men before we tell what our evidence is." He has announced that the troops will not be needed much longer as the civil authorities have control of the situation and the people are looking forward to a speedy end of the military rule.

In reviewing up the determination to ex-communicate the Western Federation of Miners, from the district, Gen. Bell, as military commander of the district, has issued a proclamation similar in wording and intent to that concerning the Portland mine, directed to the operators of the Pride of Cripple Creek district mine and the Winchester & Morgan leases. These were prepared to be operated with men who are alleged to be a menace to the welfare and safety of the good people of the county and a hindrance to the restoration of peace and good order, and their arrest was ordered as a military necessity.

The reopening of the mines continues, and by the end of next week practically every mine conforming to the military necessity restriction will be working full force.

No Legal Power. President Roosevelt has received a telegram from W. D. Haywood, secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, urging him to institute an investigation of the present serious condition of affairs in the Cripple Creek mining district of Colorado. At least twice heretofore, in the last six months, the president has been asked to interfere in the Colorado troubles, but declined, after mature consideration, because he had no legal power to take action in the matter. It is regarded by those in close touch with him to be unlikely that the president will interfere in any way with the action of the constituted authorities of the state of Colorado.

Four Iowa youths have been arrested on a charge of sending letters to Peter Musser, a wealthy Muscatine lumberman, threatening to kill him unless he paid them $4,000.

A Federal Case.

In a bloodless assault made by 150 militiamen and deputies, led by Adj. Gen. Sherman M. Bell, on the Portland mine, Thursday, the mine was indefinitely closed, to be reopened later on terms which will prevent any workmen securing work without presenting satisfactory working cards from the Mine Owners' association. Gen. Bell says the mine was closed because of "military necessity," as the men working in it were contributing to the support of the strikers and thereby continuing the present conditions in the district. His proclamation also states that dangerous men in the mine should be held.

The closing of the mine will probably be the means of reaching the federal courts with a case to test the power of Gov. Peabody to vest in the military absolute power in the district declared to be under martial law.

War Reports and Rumors.

Heavy firing was heard at New Chwang Monday morning, coming from the direction of Liao Yang. The Russians have evacuated Sin Min Tung (about 30 miles west of Mukden), and its vicinity. It is said that the troops which were at Sin Min Tung are joining troops on the road to Mukden. Nothing is known at New Chwang of the Japanese movements.

It is persistently reported in Liao Yang that the Port Arthur squadron made a sortie shortly before dawn Saturday, with the torpedo boat destroyers leading, and found the Japanese fleet quite unsuspecting of the presence of hostile warships, with the result that four of the Japanese ships were sunk during the attack.

It is reported in St. Petersburg that Gen. Kuropatkin's headquarters staff has moved 40 miles south of Liao Yang to a point between Hai Cheng and Dashihsiao.

Kuropatkin's move is considered to possibly foreshadow severe fighting in the northern part of the Liao Tung peninsula, but it is a mistake to assume that his action involves a change in the position of the Russian main army. Kuropatkin's best information, remains at Liao Yang.

A Japanese correspondent from Dalny confirms the reported advance of the Japanese army on Port Arthur, news of which was brought by the Chinese. The correspondent states that the Japanese fleet quite unsuspecting of the presence of the Russian main army, remains at Liao Yang.

The closing of the mine will probably be the means of reaching the federal courts with a case to test the power of Gov. Peabody to vest in the military absolute power in the district declared to be under martial law.

Bloodshed Follows Killing of Nonunion Miners in Colorado

Tragic Outcome of Long and Bitter Fight—Hundreds of Union Men Under Arrest—Gov. Peabody's Actions Upheld by Supreme Court.

The technical cause of the bitterness in Colorado between employers of labor and union laboring men goes back to an eight hour law passed by the legislature of 1901, pronounced unconstitutional by the Supreme court, and then declared for in a later election as an amendment to the constitution, but not acted upon by the legislature of 1903.

The blow aimed at the forces that have been most strongly entrenched against the eight hour law—the ore smelter proprietors—did not fall state military forces to suppress insurrection.

4. That he had the power to detain military prisoners for so long as he saw fit.

6. That the state courts could not interfere with military prisoners. Hence, that they had no power to discharge military prisoners.

A test case was made when Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was arrested at Telluride by the military authorities. The judge of a district court ordered his release. No attention was paid to the order. Application to the state Supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus was made. The Supreme court has just declared that the governor has authority to suspend the writ of habeas corpus. Other contentions of the governor also are upheld. In other words, under the conditions in Colorado, his power is supreme.

By this decision, the main contention against Gov. Peabody's action in placing certain mining districts under military control, and in giving mine owners protection for their workers, is legally swept aside. He is acting entirely within his powers.

SYNOPSIS OF CHIEF EVENTS.

Happenings Following Dynamite Outrage Told in Paragraphs. Platform of railroad station at Independence, near Cripple Creek, publicly that all union miners must be driven out of mining camps. He said to people: "It is time for you to drive these scoundrels out."

Deputy Sheriff Alfred Miller raised rifle, demanding to know whom he means. General shooting began from the crowd, killing two men and wounding six others.

Soldiers immediately ordered by Sheriff Bell to break up meeting of miners' union in their hall. While one company charged up the stairs and fired through the main doors of the hall, sharpshooters on the roofs of adjoining buildings fired indiscriminately through windows at miners inside.

Three men badly wounded, forty others captured in hall and locked up. All books and documents of the union were seized by the soldiers.

Arrests of miners wherever found continued all night until nearly 250 were under guard in the armory. "The miners' union issued a formal statement denouncing dynamite outrage and pledging assistance of all its officers and members in running down the perpetrators.

Bloodhounds from Trinidad followed the supposed trail of the man who pulled the wire that exploded the dynamite from Bull Hill to Colorado Springs wagon road.

The state Supreme court at Denver refused a writ of habeas corpus for President Charles H. Moyer of the where directed. It fell, instead, upon thousands of union workmen in the hills, who, although engaged for the eight hour day, were ordered to cease work in those mines that supplied the offending smelters with ores. The result in many camps was a walk-out.

The succeeding result was an attempt on the part of the owners to reopen their mines with nonunion labor. In the part that labor and politics play in Colorado, the administration of civil duties falls, in many mining cities and towns, upon authorities who are out of sympathy with nonunion methods.

Thus the owners of mines were harassed in many ways. There were mysterious disappearances. People unsympathetic with the cause of the strikers were driven from communities. Finally, mine buildings were blown up with dynamite, and mine workings destroyed.

In this crisis the mine owners appealed to the governor of Colorado for protection. The situation was strained at three points—in Teller county, where are the mining camps of Victor and Cripple Creek; at Telluride in San Miguel county, and at Idaho Springs in Clear Creek county. In the last place union workmen suspected of blowing up the Sun and Moon mine property were driven from town by the citizens of the place. This drastic action is worth noting, for, as a result of the high state of feeling in Colorado, it was upheld in the popular opinion. At all events, troops were not needed at Idaho Springs.

Gov. Peabody declared martial law in Teller and San Miguel counties early in December. Some of the military proceedings in each of these counties appear to have been extreme but Gov. Peabody has declared that no defense of his actions is needed. Union leaders were arrested, and in some cases these leaders were deported. State courts were appealed to by members of the union who felt the power of the military law, but the rulings of these courts had no effect on the representatives of the state government. Injunctions were merely ignored. The governor contented for these points:

1. That he had sole power to determine when a state of insurrection existed in any county in the state.

2. That the courts had no power to interfere with his exercise of this prerogative.

3. That he had the right to use the NAVAL LESSONS OF THE WAR. Struggle in the East Shows New Methods Necessary.

The present war has demonstrated that in operations around harbor mouths torpedo boat destroyers and mines are useful both for the attackers and defenders. Harbors, to be well defended, must be well provided with torpedo boats and mines. An attacking fleet directed against an enemy's "feet in being" lying in a hostile harbor must likewise be well provided with torpedo boats and mines.

But for the mastery of the high seas big ships which carry big guns are necessary. On the open ocean, when a storm blows up, a torpedo flotilla would be useless on a distance cruise.

Big ships are necessary to protect commerce, to destroy commerce, and to convey army bearing transports. Ships which can carry big guns are useful in joint land and naval attacks. The Japanese naval artillery demoralized the Russian fleet on Nanshan hill and made the success of the final assault possible.

But what kind of big boats are best? The present kind of battle ships or the present kind of armored cruisers? Or could not some new kind of big warship be adopted which would be better than either? The modern armored vessels are built to resist shells—namely, attacks above water. All their defensive arrangements have been put above the water line. Torpedoes and mines attack below the water in the unprotected regions where no defense has been prepared. In naval operations near harbor mouths, where the use of mines and torpedoes is feasible, the offense has now distinctly gained the advantage. The inventors must now devise a better means of submarine defense.

Perhaps they will resort to diplomacy for one thing and obtain international assent to the proposition that no mine may be laid outside the three mile limit. Perhaps they will construct a new and more perfect torpedo net to envelop the hull of the ship. Perhaps they will lighten the upper works of the ship and give additional buoyancy to the whole, so that contact with a mine will not result in immediate sinking. Certainly they will hereafter furnish all armored ships with a more complete searchlight system to discover hostile torpedo boats, and a more effective rapid fire system to destroy them.

Admirals will learn the lessons already assimilated by generals and will marshal their forces in more extended order, throwing before them a thicker screen of scouts.

ANCESTRY OF THE CZAR.

First Romanoff Mounted Russian Throne in 1613.

In the middle of the fourteenth century Kobyla, a chieftain of Lithuania, was driven from his own country for holding fast to paganism and refusing Christianity. Fleeing to Muscovy, his abilities as a warrior were welcomed by the Czar Ivan I. So promising a career opened before him that Kobyla renounced the heathen worship for which he had suffered exile and was baptized into the church under the name of Andrew. In course of events his family became known as the Romanoffs, and in 1547 Ivan IV took Anastasia Romanoff to wife. The Romanoffs thus became a notable party in the court of the czar.

With the death of Ivan the Terrible's son Feodor and the assassination of the rightful successor, Dimitri, in 1591, the house of Rurik came to an end after reigning over Russia for 720 years. Anarchy then reigned Russia asunder. Poles, Swedes and Muscovite nobles struggled for and successively usurped the throne. By virtue of his relationship with the late czar, Feodor Romanoff was one of the claimants. His ability and wisdom so enhanced his claims that his rival, Boris Godonoff, compelled him to become a priest and so debarred him from the throne.

Profiting by these intestine struggles, the Poles seized Moscow. In despair the Russians were about to accept the king of Poland's sovereignty, when a butcher of Novgorod rallied the people in a patriotic effort which drove out the invaders. The nobles, clergy and burghers were summoned to Moscow to elect a czar. The assembly met in Lent, 1613. After stormy debates, Michael Romanoff was elected king. He was a youth of 17, and the sole reason of his election was that he was the son of his father Feodor. Thus began the reign of the Romanoffs.

The Boy Was Doing His Best. Mayor Weaver, who was the principal speaker at the silver anniversary of the Rev. J. B. G. Pidge, who celebrated his twenty-fifth year as pastor of the Fourth Baptist church on Tuesday night, told a story about a clergyman who possessed the unhappy faculty of preaching a long and wearisome sermon.

"During one of these tiresome sermons," said the mayor, "the minister suddenly looked up and beheld a small boy in the gallery throwing chestnuts at the worshippers in the auditorium. He was about to rebuke the sacrilegious youngster when that worthy anticipated what was to come by shouting out:

"Don't mind me, sir. Go right on with your preaching. I'll keep 'em awake with these chestnuts!"—Philadelphia Press.

Characteristic Rockefeller Trait. When John D. Rockefeller is at his Pocantico Hills estate his chief companions are the three young sons of a New York broker who lives a mile or so distant. Three or four evenings a week Mr. Rockefeller sends his carriage down for the youngsters. Then he plays games with them, such as parcheesi and dominoes, at which Mr. Rockefeller invariably wins.

The eldest of the boys—he is about 12—was asked by his father not long ago why it was their host always came off victorious.

"Well, I'll tell you, father," said the diplomatic youth, "Mr. Rockefeller, he gets cross if we beat him, so we just let him win."—New York Press.

Not Wholly Reformed. In Venango county, Pa., is a queer fellow who is called Tom, who drinks and stutters and stutters and drinks. He has a brother Jim, who is glib of tongue and was a great liar—but was believed to have reformed, for he professed to become a good man, and was baptized in the river. It was a bitter cold day in winter, and the ice had to be cut to make a place for the ceremony. Tom was in attendance, and close by. As Jim came up out of the water he said to him:

"Is it e-c-c-cold, Jim?"

"No," replied Jim, "not at all."

"D-d-dip him again, m-m-mister!" cried Tom. "He l-l-lies yet!"

Mrs. Beecher's Birthplace. Many people are not aware that Henry Ward Beecher first met, and was afterward married to, the girl who was his lifelong companion, in a Sutton, Mass., farmhouse. The Bullard homestead, at the west end of the town, was the birthplace of Mrs. Beecher and the house in which she was married. The house was built in 1767, and has been in the Bullard family since 1805. Mrs. Beecher was Miss Eunice W. Bullard, daughter of Dr. Amasa Bullard. She was born in this house Aug. 26, 1812, and was married to the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, in the same house, Aug. 3, 1837.

The Three. One walked the ways of other men. And subtly bent his deed and will. To match the world's opinion still. Putting his conscience and then The world accorded high estate. Hailing him great.

One sought in ways of solitude To live his life the boy—he is not long ago why it was their host always came off victorious.

And one amid the jostling crowd In much temptation staunchly wrought. Keeping his independent thought. Holding his own with soul unbowed. The world, with understanding, cried, "Be thou our guide!"

MARK TWAIN LOSES WIFE.

Sudden Demise of Life Partner of Famous Humorist.

Mrs. Samuel Langhorne Clemens, who died suddenly June 5, at Florence, Italy, was the wife of the famous American humorist, "Mark Twain." Her maiden name was Olivia Langdon. She was a sister of Gen. Charles J. Langdon, and she was born at Elmira, N. Y., at which place she was married to Mr. Clemens in 1870. She was charming in manner, her home life was of the happiest, and but recently it was said of her that she seemed to possess the secret of perpetual youth. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter.

TROUBLE IN THE BALKANS.

War Cloud Lowering in That Part of the World.

In his estimates for the annual budget of the Austro-Hungarian empire, Count Goluchowski proposes the expenditure of many extra million dollars on the army and navy. Until this startling demand for an increase was made everybody supposed that Austria was doing nothing ahead of her which might disturb her peace, but immediately upon the submission of Goluchowski's estimates European politicians began to wonder for what trouble Austria was looking. By a process of elimination they finally arrived at the conclusion that Austria must have designs on the Balkans.

The Austria-Russia plan of reform for the Balkans has failed. Russia is sufficiently engaged in the far east to keep her hands tied. Austria feels that it is a propitious moment to go ahead to Salonica.

But Italy objects to Austria touching any part of Albania on the east coast of the Asiatic. Italy herself feels that she has reversionary interests there. If Austria started to "reform" Albania, Italy would interfere. Hence both Italy and Austria are now arming, and the annual Balkan war cloud has begun to lower.

MARRIAGE HAS BEEN UNHAPPY.

Husband Seeks Divorce from Daughter of Ex-Vice President Morton.

The daughter of ex-Vice President Morton, who married Count Bosou de Perigord, is now in this country, while her husband, who has since his marriage has assumed the title of Duke of Valenay, has applied to the Paris courts for annulment of the marriage.

DUCHESS OF VALENAY

Vote on Vacation Question.

The summer vacation in French high schools begins on Aug. 1 and ends on the last day of September. As July is a very warm month, it was suggested that it would be better to have the vacation extended from July 15 to Sept. 15. The matter was put to a vote; 36,000 parents voted for the change, 26,000 against it. Of the teachers, on the contrary, only 2,500 voted for the change and 5,300 against it. On the assumption that the teachers were wiser than the parents it was therefore decided to leave matters as they are.

Secret of Military Success.

One of the favorite maxims of Gen. Grant, and one certainly in accord with human nature, was that in every closely contested battle there comes a time when both sides are exhausted. When this condition arises, he said, the army that first breaks the hull and puts itself in motion is likely to win. A blow then is worth a dozen previous ones.

TOOK FIGHT OUT OF BULL.

Well Managed Automobile Too Much for Savage Animal.

Dr. John Phillips owns several farms in Essex, England, and, as he visits them frequently, he recently purchased an automobile and discarded the carriage in which he had traveled over his broad acres for many years. With his new acquisition he was mightily pleased until he happened one day to drive through a field in which a savage bull was grazing. The moment the animal saw the automobile it started to its feet and in the twinkling of an eye came helter-skelter for Mr. Phillips. The latter was equal to the emergency.

Increasing his speed, he charged for the infuriated animal and promptly knocked it down. In a second, however, the bull was again on its feet and with head lowered was preparing for a second rush, but the farmer was too quick for it, for, turning the automobile, he charged again, and struck the bull in the rear with such force that it was almost knocked senseless. This was the end of the combat, for as soon as it recovered from its amazement the bull sneaked away, and never since then has it ventured to renew the attack, though Mr. Phillips frequently drives close to it.

WHEGE BYRON IS POPULAR

In Eastern Europe the Best Known of English Poets.

An English writer, commenting on the waning popularity of Byron in England, writes: "It is a little curious that throughout eastern Europe Byron is almost the best known of our English poets. In country houses, both in Hungary and Russia, I have found complete editions well thumbed and with marginal notes showing a careful study which made me ashamed. At Kiev, in Russia, I was informed by one bookseller that he always kept complete editions in stock and found they had a ready sale. At the little town of Vezprom, in Hungary, Byron's works were the only English books available. Byron's works have been quoted to me in conversation at sugar factories in south Russia, where the speaker's knowledge of English was too limited for easy conversation, and I have found translations of some parts in out-of-the-way villages in the Carpathians."

Two Epitaphs. "Memento mori." "Gedenke zu Leben." "Think of Death!" the gravestones say. "Peace to Lie's soul striving!" "But the churchyard daisies,"—Nay, "Think of Living!" "Think of Life!" the sunbeams say. "O'er the dial lying;" "But the slanting shadows,"—Nay, "Think of Dying!" "Think of Death!" the night-birds say. "On the storm-blast driving;" "But the building swallows,"—Nay, "Think of Living!" "Think of Life!" the broad winds say. "Through the old trees sighing;" "But the whirling leaf-dance,"—Nay, "Think of Dying!" "Think of Death!" the sad bells say. "Fateful record giving;" "Clash the merry Yule-bell,"—Nay, "Think of Living!" "Dying Living, glad or loth. On God's Road riding;" "Pray He fit us all for both,—Living, Dying!"—Charles W. Stubbs.

Ancient Whistling Jars. Among the ruined cities of Peru nearly fifty different kinds of musical instruments have been found. Unique among these are many double whistling jars or musical water bottles. Near the top of the first or front jar, which is usually surmounted by a human or animal figure, is the opening of the whistle. When the jars have been partly filled and are swung backward and forward, a number of whistling sounds are produced. As the vessel swings forward and upward, the water is lowered in the first jar and rises in the other. In the backward motion it rushes back into the first, forcing the air out through the whistle.

Leading Horse-Raising States. Erroneous impressions are in circulation as regards the leading horse-raising states. One is impressed that Kentucky is entitled to the lead from the frequency that the horses of the Bluegrass State are eulogized. Yet there are fifteen states that surpass Kentucky in the number of their horses, while the average value in twenty-three states rises higher than the horses of the Bluegrass State. The horses of New Jersey average $99.28 a head, and of New Mexico $17.52, the extremes of average prices in the different states and territories.—Drovers' Journal.

"The Silent Sea." Of all the navigated seas of the world the most dreaded by the mariner is the great Southern ocean, which stretches between the Cape and Australia, and lies nearest to the Antarctic circle. A lonely highway is this—far from the main ocean trading routes, and but few ships are to be found in its waters. Its awful solitude has given it the name of the "Silent Sea."

Ingenious Smuggling Device. One of the latest devices of the smuggler is to bring in rings, watches and other compact articles of value concealed in books. A thick, innocent-looking volume is selected for the purpose and a hole hollowed out in the center large enough to receive the smuggled goods. The book is then closed and tied up. Its weight offers no clue to the presence of the valuable, even if the inspector should take it in his hand, and a book is, of course, likely to pass muster even with the most careful customs agents.

POULTRY

Taught by Mistakes. We learn much from our mistakes, and the lessons we so learn are impressed upon us. Every poultry raiser could cite a large number of disastrous accidents occurring as the result of precautions not taken. One man had two beautiful broods of half grown Plymouth Rocks. He had them in two coops, the slats of which were but indifferently nailed on. Two cats got in one night and slaughtered all the feathered innocents. That was a lesson in favor of well-built coops, and the owner of the said broods then bought wire netting and made coops that were cat-proof and rat-proof. Another man had a fine flock of hens, but left the door of their house open nights, as it was some trouble to shut it. A mink recognized it as his opportunity and slaughtered 22. The owner shut the door after that. A man we know of accidentally broke a pane of glass in a window adjoining the roosts of the poultry. It was March and the winds were cold and the rains frequent. He knew he ought to have the window fixed at once, but did not. In a week two of the birds had swelled heads and the man began to doctor for roup. But that was only the beginning. The roup had come in through the broken window, and it staid with the flock for four months. The man fixed the broken window and moved his fowls to a new poultry house, but the roup remained. After he had lost 46 birds, he killed the 40 that remained, and went out of the poultry business for a year, to give his yards a chance to cleanse themselves through the processes of nature.

We knew of a man that had 200 young chicks, the result of setting three or four hundred eggs under a large number of hens. He staked each hen in the yard and left a box for each hen and brood to run under. It would be so nice and natural for them to sit on the ground. The ground was a level grass plot bounded on two sides by a raised walk and on the other two sides by a picket fence with a board at the bottom. One night there came a tremendous down-pour of rain, the water falling with such rapidity that it could not run off the level land fast enough to prevent the inundation of the coops surrounded as they were by fences and walks. By the glare of the flashes of lightning the man succeeded in saving a part of the frightened broods. After that none of his chicks slept on the ground.

A farmer that had been raising chickens for a good many years thought he had learned about all there was to learn. He at least had learned one thing well, he believed, and that was that lard alone would kill chicken lice without the help of kerosene. But once he wanted to save time, and instead of giving the chicks several treatments with grease a few days apart, decided to do the job up at one time. If a little grease was good, more should be better. So he greased the chicks all over. But too much grease is fatal to chickens, and this man lost thirteen out of six or so he greased. But he didn't make that mistake again.

Feeding the Chicks. Many people have asked, on seeing the healthy-growing, well-feathered young chicks, what food we were using. The winter's experience, in which a variety of grains were used, says Cooper Curtice of the Rhode Island Agricultural College, indicates that it is not so much what the food is as how the food is supplied, providing there are plenty of starchy, albuminous, and green matters in nature, small seeds, insects and grass furnish food for chickens. These are most abundant in the spring and summer months, and it is at this time that the chickens thrive. To secure the best results, foods simulating both the composition and the mechanical character of these should be supplied. For instance, in the summer the tips of grasses are young and tender and easily broken by the chickens. For green stuff to be easily assimilable, some plant should be supplied which may also be easily broken. We have found hanging a head of lettuce in the brooder by a string to exactly furnish the desired want and be greedily, even crazily, eaten by the chickens. We have found that sifting the crackered corn, scraps, and cracked wheat through sieves, so as to remove both the meal and larger pieces, gives favorable results. Millet seeds, broken rice, rolled oats, and other things of this character were greedily eaten and well digested. For meat for the youngest chickens, we have given the sterile eggs boiled hard and ground through a sausage machine. While it is preferable, if one has time, to chop the egg fine and mix it with bran, or even feed it a little at a time to the chickens, we found it satisfactory to mix it with the bran until it was crumbly and feed it in bulk; a sufficient quantity being given for the number of chickens in the brooder. Mixing the eggs with cracker did not succeed with us as well for very young chicks, although it is fed by others apparently without harm. As the chickens grew older meat scraps were substituted. These were usually sifted, added to the grain ration, and strewn upon the floor of the brooder. Boiled liver and animal meal was also used, but there was very little difference in the gain of the different chickens when fed upon the animal meal, meat scraps, or egg.

Records of Dairy Cows

Superintendent Hoxie reports the official records of Holstein-Friesian cows from Nov. 12 to Dec. 3, 1903, and states that during this period the records of forty-one cows have been received.

Fourteen full age cows averaged, age 7 years 3 months 8 days, days from calving 25; Milk, 425.4 pounds; butter fat, 14,800 pounds; equivalent butter, 17 pounds 4.3 ounces; per cent fat shown in the milk, 3.52. Twelve four-year-olds averaged, age 4 years 6 months 1 day, days from calving 18; Milk, 382.9 pounds; butter fat, 13,342 pounds; equivalent butter, 15 pounds 9.1 ounces; per cent of fat shown in the milk, 3.50. Six three-year-olds averaged, age 3 years 5 months 29 days, days from calving 16; Milk, 345.0 pounds; butter fat, 12,142 pounds; equivalent butter, 14 pounds 2.6 ounces; per cent of fat shown in the milk, 3.47. Nine two-year-olds averaged, age 2 years 4 months 4 days, days from calving 8; Milk, 282.1 pounds; butter fat, 9,517 pounds; equivalent butter, 11 pounds 7.2 ounces; per cent of fat shown in the milk, 3.51.

It must be borne in mind that these records are made under the careful supervision of agricultural experiment stations and that 85.7 per cent of fat found in the milk is equivalent to a pound of butter.

High Testing Jerseys.
J. C. McClymonds of Portersville, Pa., furnishes the Jersey Bulletin with the following test record of his Jersey herd for fourteen months. The record is copied from the creamery books:

Month	Test
May (1902)	4.22
June	4.22
July	4.55
August	4.53
September	4.04
October	4.53
November	4.00
December	4.63
January (1903)	4.53
February	4.57
March	4.53
April	4.53
May	4.53
June	4.62
Average of tests for fourteen months,	4.045.

The cows were registered Jerseys, with only ordinary farm care.

Dairyman who deal with creameries will recognize the fact that the above record is a very rare one, says Hoard's Dairyman. There is only one way such quality can be put into cows and that is by breeding in. Here is right where the work of the skillful breeder comes in.

Road Constructed in South Carolina at $350 a Mile.

We have called attention several times recently to the good work done in Louisiana in the matter of better roads, especially in Ouachita and Natchitoches parishes, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. A better feeling has been aroused throughout the state, and we may look for a continued improvement from year to year—that is, the more miles of good roads constructed the more clearly their value will be seen.

The chief difficulty in the south in building roads is the expense. The southern counties have not the money to spend on expensive roads, however much they may be desired, as they have so many other heavy burdens on their hands in the maintenance of the schools, levees, etc. If they are to do much in the way of road building, it must be done cheaply.

South Carolina has been experimenting in this matter, and we learn from the Charleston News and Courier that it is doing splendid work in building good roads at small cost. Some of the facts and figures given by the South Carolina paper are most encouraging, showing that good roads can be constructed at a cost far below what we have believed possible.

Thus in Newberry county a road eight miles long was constructed at a cost of only $350, the chain gang being used. It is claimed that this road is the cheapest ever constructed in the United States, and this claim will not be disputed. The Newberry road has been graded from six to twelve inches thick. In Sumter county, where there is no gravel, good clay and sand roads are being constructed at a cost of $300 a mile, including the material and all other expenses except the maintenance of the convicts employed.

BANNER SALVE
the most healing salve in the world.

While it is true that dry "corn fodder" does not contain twice as much nutriment as green alfalfa, it is also true, we think, that some dry forage should form a part of a cow's feed every day, says Hoard's Dairyman. Professor Sanborn of New Hampshire found that dry hay was quite as effective as grain for feeding cows at pasture. Probably this would not hold true if it was desired to crowd the cow to her utmost limit, but for every day service cows require little or no grain when in good pasture or supplied with green clover or alfalfa. But to keep the digestive tract in good order they do require some dry feed, and corn stover or corn fodder or fodder corn should prove all sufficient, and both might be given in such amounts as each cow will eat with relish and then lie down and "chew her cud" contentedly. The amounts will vary with different cows and with the same cow at different times, but will probably average fifty to sixty pounds of green alfalfa and five to ten pounds of dry corn fodder.

In the matter of grain, if any seems to be required, we should feed at least as much bran in weight as linseed oil meal and even then would prefer to add some ground corn to such a mixture—say all three in equal proportions.

Begin at the Beginning.

To make good butter we must begin in the beginning, and that is at the cow and her feed. Some cows are bred to be producers of good butter as well as good butter producers. Others are good beefers, and still others are good for nothing, and they will all be true to their nature and tendencies. Therefore if you wish to make good butter select a cow bred up to the capability of making a profitable quantity of good, honest yellow butter. Give that cow good shelter, warm in winter, cool in summer and well lighted and ventilated, as you must see to keep her and her stable perfectly clean, and she must have plenty of pure air to breathe. Have a supply of pure fresh water within her reach, so she can take what she wants at all times. All this and much more to keep the cow in perfect health, as otherwise she cannot give milk wholesome enough to make fine butter.—L. W. Lighty in Stockman and Farmer.

Danish Butter Salting.

In Danish dairies, as soon as the buttermilk has been removed, the butter is weighed so as to calculate the amount of salt required, and the salt is worked in at this time, usually on the butter worker. Sometimes it is all incorporated at one working, but in many places it is preferred to add it in two workings.

The amount of salt used is adapted to the taste of the market where it is to be sold, but it varies between 4 and 5 per cent of the weight of the butter.

The salt is worked into the butter with just as little handling as possible, and it is then put aside for awhile before the next working takes place.

In warm weather the butter is put in the butter cooler, which is a sort of ice box. In winter it is laid in large rolls in the butter trough or on a table.

It lies here for a couple of hours in the cold season, but when the weather is warm it is allowed to remain for eight or ten hours, or until the cool of the following morning, before it receives the final working.

The object is not only to cool the butter and allow it to become firmer, but also to allow the salt to dissolve and to penetrate the whole mass.

When the butter has attained the proper degree of firmness it is again put through the worker, and most of the brine formed from the salt is worked out.—Journal of Agriculture.

A Good Selection.

P. H. Kieffer of Manchester, Ia., has been appointed to act as expert to criticize the butter sent to the national educational tests in 1904. This announcement will please the Iowa buttermakers as well as the Minnesota boys, for Mr. Kieffer comes from Minnesota and is known throughout both Minnesota and Iowa as one of the most competent and expert buttermakers and one who has made the production of June butter a study for years and has done much to improve Iowa creamery butter since his connection with the dairy department last year. We trust the Iowa buttermakers will take part in the 1904 tests. Those who have not received blanks should send for them to E. S. Stender, secretary of National Creamery Buttermakers' association, 3831 Windsor place, St. Louis.

Slag is to be used in making roads in Utah, says the Salt Lake City Tribune. The Salt Lake county commissioners at a recent meeting decided to make some extensive repairs on the roads of the county, and with that object in view the chairman was authorized to sign leases with the Germania smelter at Murray and the Mingo smelter at Sandy for their slag dumps. This slag makes good, serviceable roadbeds, and it is understood that the county can secure it from the smelting companies at reasonable cost.

BIG LEGS

CAN BE QUICKLY REDUCED WITH HEVE-O

From various causes, horses are troubled more or less with swollen or puffed legs, which if neglected will cause stiffness, clumsy action and an unsalable condition. There is no occasion for this trouble to exist as the new discovery called HEVE-O will, with a few doses, remove this very prevalent trouble. HEVE-O, the new discovery for horses, coughs, distemper and kidney troubles, is meeting with remarkable success. Its action is quick and decisive. Heaves usually start from distemper, colds, or musty hay or grain; in either case the stomach becomes impured and must receive treatment, as well as the other organs. HEVE-O is prepared for just such cases. Kidneys—a few doses will show marked improvement in any kidney trouble (which makes it a thorough blood purifier), or a few doses inhibit brain muck will stop distemper and cure the cough. Sheep and cattle frequently have bad coughs. HEVE-O is equally good for them. A trial will prove its superiority. One pound packages, 50c. Sold by all druggists. Remember the name, HEVE-O and ake nothing else.
