The Big Race Meeting.

Secretary Cutting has again been given charge of the Saginaw races and announces dates from August 9th to 12th. The very late season in Michigan the past few years has put back horses in their speed work, with everything else, and it is felt that the August dates will result in a greater entry list, although Saginaw has always enjoyed big fields and most excellent races. A program that will appeal to horsemen has been offered as follows:

Trotting: *2:40-$300, 2:35-$400, 2:28-$400, 2:25-$400, 2:23-$400, 2:21-$400, 2:18-$400, 2:12-$400.

Pacing: *2:40-$300, 2:35-$400, 2:28-$400, 2:25-$400, 2:23-$400, 2:16-$400, 2:16-$400, 2:12-$400—Free-for-all—$400.

*The '40 Classes will be in the nature of Consolation Classes in so far as the entries are concerned. The purses will be $300; conditions the same as other classes, but horses winning in faster classes at this meeting will not be eligible to the '40 class events.

At Rest.

Died, at his home in Novesta, on the 19th, Alexander Livingston, in his 84th year. He was born in Aldboro, Ont., of Scotch parentage, and was married to Janet McIntyre in 1856. Four children were born to them—Alexander, John, Dugald and Mrs. E. H. Horton, the latter of Pontiac, all of whom were present at their father's funeral this afternoon. A large concourse of people was in attendance. The sermon was preached by Rev. Jas. MacArthur, Rev. R. J. Bartlett assisting in the services. The text chosen was, "The altar with this inscription, To the Unknown God."—Acts xvii: 23. The line of thought was the method by which the unknown became the known God, and assurances and hopes proceeding therefrom; revelation superior to science, especially science merging in agnosticism. Mr. Livingston was highly regarded by his neighbors and acquaintances and appeared in his gardening as a ripe scholar. After the hard struggle of life in the decay of the system, a wise Providence has ordained rest. After the darkness and storm here future glory is revealed as the true beacon of light.

Disappeared.

John Auerhager, of Denmark township, living near Richville, disappeared as mysteriously and as suddenly as though the earth had opened and swallowed him. Mr. A. went to Reese, hired a livery rig and engaged J. J. Gies to accompany him to Caro on a little business matter. He drove up in front of Mr. Gies' with the rig, and as Mr. Gies was not quite ready, drove leisurely across the street and hitched his horse, which was the last trace of him. It is surmised that Mr. Auerhager has gone to the world's fair, for he drew $500 out of the bank, but why he should leave home so mysteriously is a query to his many acquaintances.

Died From Heat.

Among the four fatalities and three prostrations from heat in Detroit on Monday, was the fatal prostration of A. L. Smith, who was working as a carpenter in the city, but who owns the Gablehurst stock farm, three miles west of Bad Axe, where his wife and eight children reside. He had taken ice water freely during the day, and while driving down Jefferson Avenue with a load of lumber was taken ill and collapsed. He was taken into a doctor's office by pedestrians but died in a few minutes.

CASS CITY WON

In a Base Ball Game With Warner's Pharmics.

A very interesting game of base ball was played on the Driving Park here on Tuesday afternoon, between the Cass City nine and Warner's Pharmics, of Marlette, the latter being a base ball aggregation originated by L. H. Warner, a Marlette pharmacist. It was a trifle late when the game started, but very little time was lost during the game. The total score would make it appear an easy victory for our boys, and the score is what counts, but for several innings there was some very good playing on both sides, and one of the most pleasing features of the game was the good feeling prevailing between the opponents as well as their friends among the spectators.

The visitors went first to bat, their first man went out on a fly, next out at first and the third man up went out at second. Cass City started in strong, Ehlers making a two-bagger and Buckley and McKenzie each making safe at first. Knapp went out on a fly. A Gifford was hit by pitched ball thereby getting a base. Hargraves made a two-base hit, and Ehlers, Buckley, McKenzie and Gifford scored, but Hargraves went down in trying to make the home plate. Graham went out at first.

Again the Pharmics went to bat, but without effect, as the first man went out at first and the next two fanned out, but they succeeded in holding our boys down better next time. D. Duncan made a two-bagger and Ehlers got a base on balls. McKenzie was struck out and Knapp went out on a fly.

In the third innings the first Pharmic was struck out, next out on a fly, and the third went down through McKenzie making a splendid running catch of a foul. Gifford was the first batter for Cass City and took base on balls and stole another base. Hargraves made first safely and Gifford scored. D. Duncan and Graham went out on flies and Hargraves again went down short of home.

The first Pharmic up in the fourth was in reality struck out but through a tumble of the catcher made first, and got out at second. The next batter fanned out. His successor made first but the next went out on a fly. Cass City did no better, as A. Duncan went down on a well stopped grounder, Ehlers struck out and Buckley passed up a nice fly. In the fifth innings, Duncan struck out the first two batters and the next failed to reach first. Noble succeeded in returning the compliment and struck out McKenzie and Knapp. Gifford got a base on balls and reached third, but a quick play put him out there.

In the sixth, three Pharmics went out on flies, one man reaching third but dying there. For Cass City, Graham struck out, A. Duncan made a foul which was splendidly caught and Ehlers died short of first.

The seventh innings was the strongest one put up by the visitors and they succeeded in scoring twice. They started off with a two-bagger, but the second batter passed up his checks on a fly. A safe hit was made to first and in attempting to kill the man at third, the other fellow made second. Noble fanned out and his successor was hit by pitcher. A passed ball let in the two scores, but a fly foul ended the innings for them. For Cass City, Buckley made a bunt and through some wild throwing reached third base. McKenzie made a good hit which took him to second and more careless throwing allowed both to score. Knapp got first on balls but died at second. Hargraves was hit by pitcher and walked to first, but the pitcher caught a swift fly and played double to first.

The eighth innings started off with a three-bagger by a Pharmic, but his successor went down on a fly. Two safe hits were made to first and allowed a score. Another strike out and one dead at first gave Cass City the bat again, with Graham behind it, who made a safe hit to first. A. Duncan went down on an infield hit well stopped. Buckley was safe at first but McKenzie died at the bat. Knapp made a splendid hit and made a lively spurt. The ball was thrown wild and caused some confusion, allowing Knapp plenty of time to make home but he thoughtlessly neglected to touch the home plate, and over it the first unpleasantness of the game arose. As soon, however, as the situation was made plain, it was an easy matter to put things right, Cass City being allowed three scores, but going out.

In the last innings the Pharmics started off well, the first man succeeding in working his way around the diamond but was put out by a clever play between the second baseman and the catcher as he slid for home. His successor did better and made a score, but another was killed at second and a well caught fly by McKenzie ended the game, with the total score ten to four in favor of Cass City.

W. C. T. U. Notes

Alcohol from the time it issues from the coiled and poisonous worm in the distillery, until it empties into the hell of death, dishonor and crime, is demoralizing to every body who touches it. It burns up men, consumes women, destroys life, curses God and despises heaven. It degrades the citizen, debases the legislator, dishonors the statesman and disarms the patriot. With the malevolence of a fiend, it calmly surveys its frightful desolation and reveling in havoc, it destroys peace, ruins morals, wipes out national honor, curses the world and laughs at the ruin it has wrought. It does all this, and more—it murders the soul. By some writer it has been called "the devil's best friend and God's worst enemy." If we wish to know who is the most degraded and most wretched of human beings, look for a man who has practiced his vice so long, that he curses it, but still clings to it, he pursues it, because he feels an evil spirit driving him on to ward it. Reaching it, he knows it will gnaw his heart and make him roll him self in the dust with anguish and despair. He is no longer a free man; he is a slave to this appetite. "One glass more" he says, "then I am done." But does he stop with one glass more? No, the demon within calls loudly for more, and so he goes on, till at last he fills a drunkard's grave.

Have you a boy to spare? The saloon must have boys, yes girls too, or it must close its doors. Can not you furnish it one? It must have 2,000,000 boys or girls from each generation, or its operatives will be thrown on a cold world, and the public revenue will dwindle.

"Wanted—2,000,000 boys or girls," is the notice. One family out of every five must contribute a boy or girl to keep up the supply. Will you help? Which one of your boys or girls will it be?

Fathers, have you given your share to keep up the supply for this great public institution which is helping (?) to pay your taxes and kindly electing public officials for you? Have you contributed a boy or girl? If not some other family has had to give more than his share. Are you not selfish, voting to keep the saloon open to ruin boys and girls, and then not doing your part to keep up the supply? Men-voters, what are you going to do about it?

"It is nothing to me," the voter said, "the party's loss is my greatest dread." So he gave his vote for the liquor trade. Though hearts were crushed and drunkards made. But 'twas something to him in after life. When his daughter became a drunkard's wife, And her hungry children cried for bread And shuddered to hear their father's tread. "Is it nothing for us to jolly sleep, While the cohorts of death their vigils keep. To gather the young and thoughtless in And grind in our midst a grist of sin? Is it nothing? Yes, all for us to stand And clasp by faith our Saviour's hand, And learn to labor, live and fight For truth and justice and the right."

Summer Visitors

What is this blushing little face
Of pink and white upon the vine,
That clatters to my window sill,
And shyly looks up into mine
Ah, yes, I know thee, sweet newcomer,
For all your tipping and ceeping—
You are the rosy face of summer,
Into my sunny window peeping.

What is the music that I hear,
On thorn and woodland, fen and moor,
That stirs the silence on the hill,
And enters in my open door?
Ah, yes, I know you, little drummers
And fitters of the budding willows—
You are the voice of many summers,
Returned to break the solitude!
—Aloysius Coll in June Housekeeper.

THE ARCHANGEL

BY JAMES Q. HYATT

Copyright, 1925, by The Shortstory Pub. Co. (All rights reserved.)

Crawford and I had gone up into the foothills of the Sierras to shoot. It was autumn, yet the sun unscrewed us so immediately when we walked abroad that we were forced to seek the shelter of pines and dusty scrub oaks, as often as they fell across our path.

We were lying, one afternoon, under a row of young firs on the crest of a ridge, when the gaunt figure of an old man labored up the slope toward us.

"If all the world 'd lay about in the shade you 'uns and me—not interferin' with Nature—she'd get her hand in again on her own hook," he said, throwing himself down beside us.

"I'm an Archangel," he said, sweetly, and smiled at us.

Crawford shrugged himself a trifle nearer his gun and smiled back again.

"There's no crack," he assured us immediately. "That's been my title for three years. I got it because I held my hand from gorin' a man under false provocation."

"Tell us about it," we said.

He found a stone to rest his back against, and threw open his shirt at the throat.

"These hot summer days sizzle just as they did then—crisp your throat like coals curl bacon. I'd mined all this country in the gold days, and held my own with the dizziest dog of 'em all in findin' the color and epicuring the liquids. I run a drinking fountain in opposition to the Dead Falls, up Mokelumme way, and counted on Joaquin and his band for makin' a pot for me regular once a week—but 'taint what I started out to say."

The old man fell into a reverie. He seemed to see only the ends of his toes.

"About the Archangel," Crawford prodded.

This gentle old man stood up, and hunched savagely at his trouser band before he sat down again.

"Adolphe—his name'd tell you, wouldn't it? Chin beard—juicy voice—and hands a-curlin' through the air. Well, Adolphe and me sat up backin' and minin' together five years aback. I stayed on and on with him because 'his bread' make you hungry in your sleep."

"'Twas flour for that very bread that I went ridin' into town for, one summer day. There was a real estate dude 'd come up. He tucked a folded newspaper under my saddle-flap, just as I was tightening up to go home.

"Read that," says he. 'It's time all you fellers settled down to raisin' families, so's we could have a population, and school districts, and such. Never no hope of doin' anything with a lot of bachelors."

"Later, when the smoke went out of the chimney, curlin' through the trees, Adolphe and me sat on the saw-bucks a-readin' of that paper, the Matrimonial Messenger.

"By your names, sirs, there was three pages of 'um saying how enchantin' they was! Every blamed one of 'em willin' to send their photograph, swearin' their faces was their fortunes all their life!"

"I'm the Archangel!"

"'Twasn't long before we'd settled between two of 'em, but Adolphe, he was for one, and me for the other.

"What's it to you?" sez I. You "By the great snake mine, but women don't shave beards off and drink whisky!"

"I dropped her like a nettle, but she went forward with the crowd, smilin'— aint marryin' of her, are you?"

"He couldn't but admit the fact.

"'Gill—there's my livin' round her," he says.

"Anyway, seein' it was my business, and I was set like a jumper on a claim, Adolphe, he give in. The woman what made my heart feel empty said she was eighteen. She was decorated with yellow hair and eyes like copper-ore. She could talk French, and understood German, and could play the pianer. She'd marry a man that wanted a companion and not a cook."

"Sez I to myself continual: 'That's you, Daniel!'"

aint marryin' of her, are you?"

aint marryin' of her, are you?"

'n' smirkin' through the cheerin' an' he uproar.

"I mean to shoot the wig off your head and the paint off your face, Adolphe Lefevre, and leave you for the slickest viper that crawls without eggs."

"The sight of my gun lay between his eyes an' the crowd was as still as the barrel.

"Of a sudden came a voice in my ear. To this day God only knows from where.

"'Be like unto the archangels.' My arm fell to my side. They lifted me onto their shoulders. 'The Archangel,' they sent out a-echoin' in the hills.

"And it stuck, sirs, from that day to this, though I've lived alone, sirs, ever since."

ANOTHER JOKE ON PATRICK.

Why He Failed in Well-Meant Efforts to Secure a Fowl.

They were comparing notes and telling amusing incidents of recent trips abroad, when a charming daughter of the Emerald Isle, who was sitting dreamily in the corner, apparently taking no interest in the conversation, suddenly chirped in with the following:

"All of which reminds me of an incident which happened while I lived in Cork. There poultryer's stores are scarce because of the proximity of the country, but a coal heaver of my acquaintance, owing to the illness of his wife, was anxious to secure a fowl in a hurry; so he strolled along Patrick street in a forlorn hope of some sort of success, and when he came to a taxidermist's whose window displayed an owl under a glass case, why, poor Paddy thought that here was the end of his quest, so he entered and inquired:

"How much for the flat-faced hin in the windy?"

"That's no hen," the surprised shopman answered, "that's an owl."

"Yerrah," whispered Pat; "shure, I don't care how old she is, 'tis for soup I wants her!"—New York Times.

There's Not a Joy.

There's not a joy the world can give like the one that takes away the pain of the heart. 'Tis not on youth's smooth cheek the blush alone which fades so fast, but the tender bloom of heart is gone ere youth itself be past.

Then the few whose spirits float above the wreck of happiness. Are driven o'er the shoals of guilt or ocean of excess. The magnet of their course is gone, or only points in vain. The shore to which their shivering sail shall never stretch again.

Then the mortal coldness of the soul like death itself comes down; It cannot feel for other's woes, it dare not dream its own; they be. That heavy chill has frozen o'er the fountain of our tears.

And though the eyes may sparkle still, 'tis where the ice appears.

Though wit may flash from fluent lips, and mirth distract the breast. Through midnight hours that yield no more their former hope of rest; 'Tis but as ivy leaves around the ruined turret wreath.

All green and wildly fresh without, but worn and gray beneath.

Oh, could I feel as I have felt, or be what I have been, Or weep as I could once have wept o'er many a vanished scene; As springs in deserts found seem sweet, all brackish though they be; So, midst the withered waste of life, those tears would flow to me!—Lord Byron.

Niagara is a Huron Word.

"Every body pronounces Niagara wrong," said a philologist. "The accent of this beautiful Indian word should not be put on the syllable 'ag,' but on the syllable 'ar'—the penultimate before the last."

"Niagara means 'hark to the thunder.' Its accent should fall on the penult because the Indians themselves accent it there, because in practically all our Indian names of places the penult is the accented syllable.

"Think of the Indian names you know. Don't you accent nearly all of them on the syllable before the last? There are, for instance, Toronto, Mississippi, Alleghany, Appalachicola, Narragansett, Tuscaloosa, Saratoga, Tecondroga, Oswego, Conshohocken, Wiscatickion and Hechelaga. In all these names the accent is on the penult."

"Niagara is a Huron word, and, if you find a Huron, you will find that he accents it as he does Saratoga or Tuscaloosa. I don't know how we have fallen into the habit of accenting it wrong."

Secretary Hay is Democratic.

John Hay, secretary of state, is thus described by a Washington correspondent: "A short man, extraordinarily punctilious in dress, with an attentively combed beard, and attractive face, a pleasant voice—a voice of singular precision and silliance; a man who uses slang in private conversation and wields the English language like a musical instrument in his public utterances and who always wears evening dress in his own house after 6 o'clock—that is the outward man of the secretary of state. The impression is abroad that Hay is an aristocrat. In his tastes he is, but not in his manners. He is democratic, confidential, though always dignified. He sometimes, when talking to one he can trust, discusses great international questions in pungent idioms and with a Yankee rough-and-readiness that is proof positive of his authorship of 'Pike County Ballads.' He is sensitive to criticism—there is no man in public life more sensitive."

British Railway Casualties.

There were 187 more casualties among railway passengers on British railways last year than in 1902, but 6,613,731 more people traveled.

Cancer in Germany.

The mortality rate from cancer has trebled in Germany since 1875.

Halls of "Fair Harvard"

(Special Correspondence.)

The Pilgrim Fathers builded better than they knew when, on Oct. 2, 1636, they passed the following vote in the General Court: "The Court agree to give £400 toward a school or college, whereof £200 shall be paid the next year, and £200 when the work is finished, and the next Court to appoint where and what building."

This vote met with the approval of Gov. Henry Vane and his successor, John Winthrop. It was voted that the proposed college be established at Newtowne, and in the same year the name of the town was changed to Cambridge, because many of the colonists had been educated in Cambridge in England, and the American town was given the name of the Eng-man Clarke, Francis Parkman, George F. Hoar and John D. Long.

Hollis Hall was built in 1763 at a cost of nearly £5,000, by the province of Massachusetts, and was named in honor of Thomas Hollis, who was the greatest benefactor of the college had ever had up to that time. He was an English merchant and a Baptist, and he established the Hollis professorship of divinity and also the Hollis professorship of mathematics and natural philosophy. Edward Everett, W. H. Prescott, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Wendell Phillips and Troward lived in Hollis in their college days.

In the year 1780 Stoughton Hall was torn down to give place to a new hall, which was not built until 1804, and then it was placed on a new site, and was at first called "New Hall," but the old name of Stoughton was finally given to it. Stoughton cost $23,000 and three-fourths of this sum was raised by a lottery authorized by the state. Stoughton has thirty-two rooms, and among the men of note who have occupied some of these rooms in the past have been Edward Everett Hale, Phillips Brooks and Horace Grey.

Holworthy Hall was built in the year 1812, and again funds were raised by a public lottery. It was named for Sir Matthew Holworthy, an English merchant, who had left the college £5,000 by will in the year 1678. There are 24 suites of rooms in Holworthy, the suites consisting of a study and two small bedrooms. The visitor to Holworthy may see room 12, which was visited by the Prince of Wales in the year 1860, and in the year 1871 the Grand Duke Alexis also visited this room. Both of these royal personages presented pictures of themselves to the hall, and these pictures hang in room 12. S. F. Smith, author of "America," Charles Sumner, Samuel Longfellow and Robert Gould Shaw lived in Holworthy in their college days.

The present Harvard Hall took the place of the hall of the same name destroyed by fire in the year 1764. It was built in the year 1765-66 by the province of Massachusetts. It was here that Washington was received in 1789, and there are many historical associations clustering around the old hall, which is now used for lectures and recitations and contains several reference libraries.

Memorial Hall is the finest building on the campus. It was built as a memorial to the boys of Harvard who fought in the great civil war and the funds were given by graduates of the college. The hall includes a great dining room, a meeting place for the alumni, and its cost up to the time it was dedicated in July, 1878, was $368,484, and many additions and adornments have been made since that time. At one end is the great Sanders Theater, given by Charles Sanders and occupied for the first time on commencement day in 1876.

The halls of Harvard are filled with a small army of college "boys," and with their fun and frolic, most of them are there for the purpose of fitting themselves for the serious duties of life. From these halls have gone forth some of the greatest and most useful men America has known, and it is only the pessimist and the soured cynic who believes that no more such men are to come forth from the halls of "Fair Harvard."

Why Tom "Lost Interest."

Would Attend Church, but He Didn't Like "de Pastorage."

Maj. E. T. D. Myers, president of the rich little road over whose rails all southbound trains must run between Washington and Richmond, has a family servant—a butler—to whom he is much attached.

"Tom" is prominent in all matters concerning his church, and it was therefore with some surprise that the major discovered him cleaning silver one Sunday afternoon recently during church hours.

"Tom," he said, "what in thunder are you doing there? Why aren't you at church?"

"Ain't had time tuh go dis evenin', Major, sun."

"Nonsense," answered the major testily. "You always have time to go to church. Stop dawdling there and be off with you. Are you a backslider?"

"Nawseh, dat I ain't," answered Tom. "De chu'ch suits me mighty well. I see a Dickon in hit, en I laik de music en de prars en de solemnness; but, tell you de trufe, Major, I don't like de pastorage, en dat's hoccum I see lost intrust."—New York Times.

A Duel in Mid-Air.

"There was a famous balloon duel in Paris between M. de Gremapre and M. le Pique, arising from a quarrel about a lady who was performing at the opera, who, it was understood, would give her hand to the victor. Two balloons were constructed exactly alike, and the combatants ascended in them from the gardens of the Tuilleries. Each was armed with a big blunderbuss, and the arrangement was that the balloons and not the men were to be fired at. When the signal was given the ropes were cut, and the balloons, 80 yards apart, shot up into the air. When they were at the height of half a mile the signal was given to fire. Pique missed, but Gremapre sent his ball through the other's balloon which descended with frightful rapidity, and both Pique and his second were dashed to pieces. Gremapre then went on his voyage triumphantly and descended in safety."—London Morning Chronicle, June 22, 1808.

Ancient Spur.

The earliest spur known consisted of a sharp prod mounted on a base to fasten about the heel. Antiquarians place its date at from 300 to 100 B. C.

A Mexican Wonder.

The physicians of the Juarez hospital had something very unusual to talk about all day recently. Ramon Espinosa, who was murdered some three or four days ago, was taken to the hospital for an autopsy.

When the physicians were sawing the skull the saw touched a strange object, and as the physician attempted to continue his work the saw was broken in two pieces. Another saw was brought and the skull opened, when it was found that the strange object was a big steel piece, half the blade of a knife that evidently had been there for years. Even the scar produced by the wound had already disappeared from the man's forehead.

How this man could live with the steel piece in his skull is something that physicians here has been unable to explain.—Mexican Herald.

BIRD'S NEST ON CHAIR SEAT.

Fledglings Reared in Strange Way or a Baltimore Piazza.

A robin's nest in a rocking chair on a porch used every day by the family has been a curiosity at the home of M. Gill, at Roland Park, near the Baltimore Country Club. The nest has been the home of a family of five birds, and in it eggs were hatched and three little birdies first saw the light.

The nest was first noticed some weeks ago by Mr. Gill. It was built between the seat and back of a rustic rocking chair, the center one of several on the porch. Members of Mr. Gill's family and their guests use the porch almost continually, and the robin was interrupted many times, it is thought, when it was looking for a building site.

Mr. Gill determined to let the home of the robin remain for a while at least. He was warned that cats might disturb the serenity of Mr. and Mrs. Robin's nest, and the rocking chair was lifted on cords until it was out of the way of feline prowlers. The watching of the Gill family was finally rewarded by the appearance of three tiny birds.

The suspended rocking chair has become an object of wonder for residents, who were delighted when they learned that suburban life at Roland Park was so quiet that robins built on the same sites as human folk.

Refused to Listen.

"Pardon me, sir," began the feminine victim of hard luck, who was forced to solicit alms, as she approached the crusty old bachelor's desk, "but I am a poor lone widow, and—"

"You may as well break it off right there," interrupted the heartless o. b. "I can't use any leap-year proposals in my business."

No, He Wasn't Henpecked.

Mr. Scrapper—Maria, I—I— Mrs. Scrapper—Take that, you brute, and don't let me ever hear you say that you are henpecked again.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Different Kind.

Johnny—What does conscience mean? Teacher—It is something inside of you that tells you when you have done wrong.

Johnny—Ma said I didn't have no conscience. But I knew I had. Only, when I felt that way the other day, doctor said it was green apples.—Brooklyn Life.

One Man's Grief.

Smithkins—I met Empeck downtown today. He told me his wife had left him last week.

Mrs. Smithkins—Poor man! I suppose he's all broke up over it, isn't he? Smithkins—I guess so. When I congratulated him he insisted on opening a small bottle.

Cause and Effect.

Wife—John, do you know that you swore in your sleep last night? Husband—Did I? It must have been when I had that horrid dream.

Wife—What did you dream? Husband—I dreamt I was smoking one of those cigars you gave me on my birthday.

His Method.

"Don't you know that it doesn't do the least good to apply abusive epithets to a political opponent?"

"Of course," answered Senator Sorghum, "it doesn't do any good. But it assures your constituents that you are trying to do something to earn your salary."—Washington Star.

She Was O. K.

Mr. Knox (3 a. m.)—My dearsh-hicdon't be-hic-cross. I've had a hard tug of it.

Mrs. Knox—I should think it would be a hard tug to carry the load you've got.

Too Sanguine.

Edna—And after our marriage I am going to keep a cook.

Beile—You are too reckless, my dear.

Edna—Reckless? Beile—Yes. You should say you are going to try to keep a cook.

Practice Makes Perfect.

Shoe Clerk—I'm afraid you can't get these shoes on, madam. Suppose you try a size larger.

Mrs. O'Riley—Niver do yez mind, young man. O'll be able t' get thim on after O'll wear thim a toim or two.

Plausible Theory.

Myer—Who was it that originated the saying "the unexpected always happens?"

Cyer—Don't know. Some fellow connected with the weather bureau, I imagine.

Reason Why.

"But you Americans," protested the Englishman, "have no ancestors to whom you can point with pride."

"Well, that is o'r misfortune rather than our fault," replied the American girl. "Most of our ancestors came from England, you know."

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

It was Seburt who brought the dragging pace finally to a halt, throwing himself upon a stone bench to hold his head in his hands. "We cannot drive them off; that needs no further proof. And I do not see how we can hold out till the time that chance entices them away, when but one meal stands between us and starvation, and already we are as weak as rabbits. Naught can profit us save craft."

"I think I could manage it for you, lord. They think me your unwilling captive; you remember what the messenger said about freeing me? If I should go to Rothgar—" his voice broke and his eyes sought his friend's eyes as though they were wine-cups from which he could drink courage—"if I should go to Rothgar, lord, I could declare myself escaped, and I would be likely to believe any story I told him."

Seburt leaped up and caught the lad by the shoulders, then hesitated, weighing it in his mind, half fearing to believe. "But are you sure that your tongue will not trip you? Or your face, poor man?"

"The boy seemed to gather strength from the caressing hands, as Thor from the touch of his magic belt. "As to that, I think he is not wise enough to guess the truth. I will tell him that you have thought it revengeful toward him to starve your Danish captive."

Pulling the soft curls with a suggestion of his old light-headedness, the Etheling laughed with him. "You bantling! Who would have dreamed you to that degree artful? I would not have you suffer their anger. Are you capable of so much feigning?"

For an instant the boy's eyes were even audacious; and all the hollow-ness of the cheeks could not hide a

CHAPTER XII.

How Fridtjof Cheated the Jotun.

"I trust my sword; I trust my steel; but most I trust myself at need." The fair-haired scald sang exultingly to the Danishmen sprawled around the camp-fire. It was to no graceful love-song that his harp lent its swelling chords, but to a stern chant of mighty deeds, whose ringing notes sped through the forest like the bearers of war-arrows, knocking at the door of each sleeping echo until it awoke and carried on the summons.

Echoes awoke as well in the breasts of those who listened. When the minstrel laid aside his harp for his cup, Snorri Scar-Cheek brought his fist down in a mighty blow upon the earth. "To hear such words and know one's self doomed to wallow in mast!"

A dozen shaggy heads wagged surly acquiescence. But from the figure outstretched upon the splendid bear-skin a harsh voice sounded. "Now I see that because you lie in mast you have a swine's wit," it said. "Do you want the thrall to stand forth and prove for the hundredth time that their bins must needs be as empty as your head?"

Into the den the daughter of Frode came on her difficult mission. It was the Scar-Cheek who offered the first welcome in a jovial shout. "The hawk escaped from the cage! Well done, champion! Did you batter a way out with your mighty fists?" A score of hands were stretched forth to draw the boy into the circle; a score of horns were held for his refreshment.

Rothgar sat up on the great skin with a gesture of some cordiality. "Hail to you, Fridtjof! You are a thing that gladdens me. I did not like the thought of starving you, and I hope sideration. At the end of the harvest, any English house would be fitted out for weeks of feasting. You came the night the larder was fullest; and they have only spent one meal a day since."

Rothgar got upon his feet and towered over her, his Jotun-frame appearing to swell with irritation. "Tell shortly what you think of their case; can they last one day more?"

Fridtjof the Bold took refuge in sullenness. "They can last two weeks as easily as one. How much longer are you going to keep me from food?" She was free after that to do anything she liked, for their excitement was so great that they forgot her existence. Those whose fluency was not hampered by their feelings relieved their minds by cursing. And the few who were boldest turned and bearded the son of Lodbrok himself.

"How much longer must we endure this?" "Think of the game we are missing!" "There is little need to remind me. My naked fists could batter the stones from their places—" "In a week more, it is possible that England may be won!" "What do you care for their wretched land, chief?" "Chief, how much longer must we lie here?"

When that question was finally out, every man heaved a sigh of relief, straightening in his place like a dog that is pricking his ears, and there was a pause.

A fell look came into the Jotun's face as he gazed back at them; and for a time it seemed that he would either answer with his fist or not at all. But at length he began to speak in a voice as keen and hard as his sword.

"You know my temper, and that I must have my will. Always I have thought it shame that my kinsman's odd should lie in English hands, and now I have made up my mind to put an end to it. You know that I am in no way greedy for property. When I obtain the victory, you shall have every acre and every stick on it to burn or plunder or keep, as best pleases you." He interrupted himself to bend forward, shading his eyes with his hands. "If I am not much mistaken," he said in quite another voice, "yonder is Brass Borgar at last! Yonder, near those oak-trees."

In an instant they had all turned to scan the moon-lit open. And now that they were silent, the third of hoofs became distinct. Shouting their welcome, some hurried to heap fresh fuel on the fire, and some ran after more ale-skins; while others rushed forward to meet the messenger and run beside his horse, rattling with questions.

When the man finally stood before him, Rothgar said sternly, "It is time you were here! Ten days have gone over your head since I sent you out. You must do one of two things—either tell great tidings or submit to sharp words."

The Brass One laughed as he saluted. "I should have been liable to sharp steel had I come sooner, chief. Would you have taken it well if I had left without knowing how it went with the battle?"

"Battle! Three-score mouths cried with one voice. "Who were victorious?" The man laughed again. "Should I come to you with a noisy voice and my chin held high, if other than one thing had happened? Honor to the Thunderer, the Raven possessed the field!"

Such a clamor arose as though the wolf-pack had tasted blood. Three times, through the trumpet of his hands, Rothgar bawled a command for silence.

"The battle! Where was it? And how long since? Yonder, before any of these, how goes it with my royal foster-brothers? And how do his traitors carry sail, Odin's curse upon them! Speak! How fares he?" (To be continued.)

FARM YIELD $4,500,000,000.

Product, Not Including the Feeding of Stock, Estimated by an Expert. George K. Holmes, chief of the division of foreign markets, department of agriculture, says a conservative estimate of the value of the farm products of the county not fed to live stock in 1903, on the basis of the census valuation, places it at $4,500,000,000.

"In varying fractions, parts of many of these products, not being wanted for national consumption, are conveyed to foreign countries, but are stopped at the ports and international boundaries of this country, where officers of the customs take account of them and make a record of their values and weight of such of them as are measured and weighed in commercial practice. The values so ascertained are not farm values, since to the original farm value of the products have been added numerous charges and profits which the products must bear in the course of a distribution that is often intricate in its business details.

"The export value of the exported farm products of this country was $378,479,451 in the fiscal year 1903. During the preceding five years, 1898-1902, the annual average value was $861,037,815, and during the next decade, 1903-1912, it was $816,074,047. During the last eleven years the highest value reached was $951,628,331 in the year 1901, chiefly due to cotton."

To Preserve Old Capitol. A movement has been started at Colorado Springs, Colo., to preserve the old territorial Capitol building, in that city, which is now occupied by a Chinese laundry. The El Paso County Historical Society is considering plans for keeping the old log building intact and suitably marking the structure.

NO NERVES IN HIS TEETH.

John Chinaman Has at Least One Cause for Congratulation.

The impassivity of John Chinaman's countenance is now at least partially explained. He has no nerves in his teeth. This interesting bit of information comes "way from Oregon, where the dentists have been having a state meeting. One of the speakers, who makes no claims to "painless dentistry," said he had tinkered with the teeth of many Chinamen, and never once had known of them to whimper. The only thing in regard to which they show the least anxiety is to "secure any teeth they have pulled, which they want to take back or send back to China in order that they may have a full set when they are reincarnated." A Chinaman would be a good subject for a "painless dentist" to use in a public demonstration.

School for Theatrical Critics.

A school of theatrical critics is to be opened in Paris. The students are to attend dress rehearsals and write them up for practice.

Of Wide Interest.

Breed, Wis., July 18—Special—Charles Y. Peterson, Justice of the Peace for Oconto Co., has delivered a judgment that is of interest to the whole United States. Put briefly, that judgment is, "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best Kidney medicine on the market to-day."

And Mr. Peterson gives his reason for this judgment. He says: "Last winter I had an aching pain in my back which troubled me very much. I the morning I could hardly straighten my back. I did not know what it was but an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking one box I can only say they have done more for me than expected as I feel as well now as ever I did before."

Pain in the back is one of the first symptoms of Kidney disease. It not cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills it may develop into Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism or some of the other deadly forms of Kidney Disease.

German Love of Sauerkraut.

Here is an imaginative story to illustrate the estimate that some German citizens place on sauerkraut as a food staple. A German was speaking about the high price of cabbage. "I tell you, dose kebages is awful high dis year," he said; "me und me wife puts up six, seven, eight barrels of sauerkraut every year—but we can't dis year. Dem kebages dey cost too much." "You put up some sauerkraut, didn't you, Chris?" he was asked. "Oh, yes—two or tree barrels—just 't' half in de house in case of sickness."

Leprosy Among Fish Eaters.

Statistics are quoted showing that while in India the average occurrence of leprosy is three or four cases per 10,000 of population, in the island of Minicoy, in the Indian ocean, whose inhabitants are devoted to fishing, it rises to 150, and at Kalgooan, a fishing center, it amounts to 500.—Harper's Weekly.

Horsemen's Kindergarten.

"The men who are training the horses must be strict, and, at the same time, kind to them, and under no circumstances must they be played with. It is also not advisable to encourage the horses with sugar, carrots, etc.," is an order issued to the London Metropolitan Fire Brigade.

BACK LICK

Settled the Case With Her.

Many great discoveries have been made by accident and things better than gold mines have been found in this way, for example when even the accidental discovery that coffee is the real cause of one's sickness proves of most tremendous value because it locates the cause and the person has then a chance to get well.

"For over 25 years," says a Missouri woman, "I suffered untold agonies in my stomach and even the best physicians disagreed as to the cause without giving me any permanent help, different ones saying it was gastritis, indigestion, neuralgia, etc., so I dragged along from year to year, always half sick, until finally I gave up all hopes of ever being well again.

"When taking dinner with a friend one day she said she had a new drink which turned out to be Postum and I liked it so well I told her I thought I would stop coffee for awhile and use it, which I did.

"So for three months we had Postum in place of coffee without ever having one of my old spells but was always healthy and vigorous.

"Husband kept saying he was convinced it was coffee that caused those spells, but even then I wouldn't believe it until one day we got out of Postum and as we lived two miles from town I thought to use the coffee we had in the house.

"The result of a week's use of coffee again was that I had another terrible spell of agony and distress, proving that it was the coffee and nothing else. That settled it and I said good bye to Coffee forever and since then Postum alone has been our hot meal-time drink.

"My friends all say I am looking worlds better and my complexion is much improved. All the other members of our family have been benefited, too, by Postum in place of the old drink, coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days trial of Postum in place of coffee or tea is the wise thing for every coffee drinker. Such a trial tells the exact truth often where coffee is not suspected.

Look in each pkg. for the famous Little book, "The Road to Wellville."

In a Dutch Village.

At Marken, a fishing village of Holland, few men are to be seen, as they are nearly always out at sea in their boats. Those whom one does see are like Dutchmen in a play, in queer headgear, in the most voluminous knickerbockers that ever delighted the heart of a caricaturist and having on clattering wooden shoes which are, as a coasting skipper once said, the surest preventive of colds and of "cold feet" (which he spoke of as if they were a disease) to be found in the world. Clumsy enough these Dutch fisher folk look, but they are handy in a boat. But there is agriculture, too, of a simple kind at Marken. Not a man usually is to be seen working in the busy harvest or at other employment in the fields. The women do the farm work.

Low Wages Paid in Egypt.

The population of Egypt is about 8,000,000, and most of the people are engaged in a sort of desultory campaign against mother earth to force her to yield enough grain for the mere sustenance of lazy life. The labor supply is large and dilatory; the wages are correspondingly low. In upper Egypt one can hire farm laborers, or loafers, at 8 cents a day, and in lower Egypt at 13 cents a day, and for both to board himself. These laborers, or loafers, want no money in pay, but will take part of the crop.

Grasp the Opportunity.

In 1865, Durham was a village of a dozen houses. When the soldiers plundered the place, they got a quantity of smoking tobacco. They liked it so well that they hardly got home before they began to write to Durham to get more. There were in the town men of enough enterprise to see the opportunity which this situation offered them. It was not long before Durham salesmen were selling Durham tobacco in every part of the world.—The World's Work.

Soldiers' Superstitions.

Among the numerous superstitions of the Cossacks there is none stronger than the belief that they will enter Heaven in a better state if they are personally clean at the time they are killed. Consequently, before an expected battle they perform their toilets with scrupulous care, dress themselves in clean garments, and put on the best they have. This superstition is not confined to the Cossack alone, but is widely prevalent in all branches of the Russian army.

Speers, General Passenger Agent, Denver, Colo.

Imitation Furs.

The skin of the muskrat or musquash makes a much more durable and richer looking fur, and from imitation Alaska sable coats frequently are made. Rabbit skins also are used after a complicated treatment in the manufacture of imitation chinchilla. No wonder there is such a difference in the chinchilla furs.

Man Should Be Vegetarian.

Man's structure, compared with that of other animals, indicates that fruits and esculent vegetables are his natural food. The man-like apes live exclusively upon fruits, nuts and greener leaves.

Work and Prayer.

Praying for things and working for them brings results. Work brings results which are at least satisfactory for prayer may be answered in a way that is unexpected.

INFIRM, BUT LONG LIVED.

English Vicar Disappointed the Buyer of His Living.

In England the purchase of an advowson, or the right to succeed to a vacant church office, is not uncommon. There is a story told of a country vicarage whose incumbent was, though but middle-aged, very infirm. His tenure of the position being thus uncertain, the living was advertised for sale. The auctioneer who at the time had the disposal of all church preferments mentioned as a special advantage to intending purchasers that the holder could not last long. To put this prospect to the test several possible buyers went down to the village to look over the vicar. A father and son attended the Sunday services at the church. A servant led the ailing vicar, but the latter managed to get through a very earnestly delivered sermon lasting half an hour. In the afternoon he again conducted service, baptized children and preached for fifty minutes. Service in the evening was to follow. But the man who had come to buy had old cock ain't-a-goin' yet, I am, and he forthwith departed. In the end a young person bought the place for herself. The invalid outlived by twenty years the man who had bought his living; he lasted fifty years beyond the sale and died of sheer old age at 92.

A weak, aching back tells of sick kidneys. It aches when you work. It aches when you try to rest. It throbs in changeable weather. Urinary troubles add to your misery. No rest, no comfort, until the kidneys are well. Cure them with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. W. M. Dauscher, of 25 Water St., Bradford, Pa., says: "I had an almost continuous pain in the small of the back. My ankles, feet, hands and almost my whole body were bloated. I was languid and the kidney secretions were profuse. Physicians told me I had diabetes in its worst form, and I feared I would never recover. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in 1896, and I have been well ever since."

"We cannot drive them off; that needs no further proof." flashing dimple. "Oh, my dear lord, I am capable of so much more feigning than you guess!" he answered, daringly.

"Nay, have I not been wont to call you elf?" Seburt returned. Then his voice deepened with feeling. "By the soul of my father, Fridtjof, if you bring me clear of this snare, me and mine, I declare with truth that there will be no recompense you can ask at my hands which I shall not be glad to grant—" He paused in the wonder of seeing the sparkle in the blue eyes flee away with a flitting light.

The page turned from him almost with a sob. "Pray you, promise me nothing!" he said hastily. "If ever I see you again, and you have more to give me than pity—Nay, I shall lose my courage if I think of that part. Get me out quickly while the heart is firm within me."

"Certainly it would be best for you to come to them while they are in such a state of feasting that their good-humor is keener and their wits dulled." Seburt assented and his friend said to him that he would go to have me go," she told him with quivering lips. "Are you so eager in getting me off that you cannot say you will miss me?"

But the young lord only laughed good-humoredly. "What a child you are! Do you not know those things without my telling you? And as for missing you, I am not likely to have time. The first chance you get, you will slip back to me—I if you do not, I will come after you and fog you into the bargain; be there no forgetting!" She could not laugh as she would once have done instead she choked in the cup and pushed it from her. A passionate yearning came over her for one such word, one such look, as he would give the dream-tid when she should come.

"I wish I had not thought of it! I wish I had not told you!" she sobbed into the soft muffling. "Only to be near you I thought heaven; and now the Fates have cheated me even out of that."

The Etheling put his hand under the bent head to raise it that he might hear what the lips were saying, and she covered his palm with kisses. Then slipping away, like the elf he had called her, she glided through the narrow space of the half-open door and was gone, sobbing, out into the night.

YOUR PERFECT
HEALTH?

QUESTIONS

Where can I find a solid institution?

Where can I find a specialist who will restore me to perfect health?

Where can I find a specialist whose reputation has been established by the cures
he has made, rather than by his own self-assertion?

When a person asks these questions, he is standing on the threshold of his future and he should weigh them carefully. A mistake may mean years
of suffering and perhaps life itself.

Sift it down and you will find that the DETROIT
CLINIC with DR.
MORRISON at its head, is the most successful institution for his cure of chronic diseases.

HIS ORIGINAL METHODS

Of treating diseases gives him advantages possessed by no other physician, and the records will show a large percentage of cures in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Catarrh of the Nose, Throat, Stomach, and Bowels, Bronchitis, Asthma, Dropsy, Diseases of the Heart, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, Alcoholism and the Opium Habit, Blood and Skin Diseases, Constipation, Chronic
Ulcers and Fever Sores, Tumors, Nervous and Physical Debility, Insomnia Melancholia and Epilepsy, than any other institution in America.

What the People Say.

The Detroit News-Tribune, of July 30, 1898, said: "It is no individual comparison to say that no specialist in Detroit or in the State of Michigan, has had such a wide experience as Dr. Morrison, and as an expert diagnostician he has few equals in this country."

I spent 3 years and hundreds of dollars
looking for relief from Stomach and Liver Disease that made life a burden to me. I consulted Dr. Morrison of Detroit and after a course of his treatment was cured.
I advise all who suffer to consult him.
C. A. BANISTER, Fort Huron, Mich.

I was cured in two months of deafness and roaring in the ears that had troubled me for 8 years, by Dr. Morrison of Detroit

Beauley.

J. W. Young shipped a carload of young cattle last week.

Frank Carroll has been busy saving hay for the past few weeks.

D. McDonald was a business caller in Cass City one day this week.

J. W. Young lost a valuable horse last week by having its leg broken.

Farmers in this community are commencing grain harvest and everybody busy.

James Swick bought a new binder from D. McDonald this week. Mc-Donald has twine to sell at lowest price.

Henry Wettlauffer was a business caller in this burg this week. Henry is a hustling machine agent. He and McDonald sold a binder and mower on Tuesday.

We were too busy last week to give the balance of our picnic news:

Our speakers were Rev. J. W. Fenn, Cass City; Rev. Sedweek, Tecumseh; and Allen McDermott, M. A., Los Angeles, California. Mr. Fenn was first speaker and held the great crowd almost spellbound whilst he spoke on patriotism and our duty to each other as citizens and Christians. One cannot weary listening to a man that is up to date in every particular and it is whispered around that we better engage Mr. Fenn for our picnic for the 4th next year. Mr. Sedweek was second speaker and as for this gentleman his views are as far reaching as his body is large and we are sure anyone who knows him will say that is enough. He too spoke of the great danger to our nation from the liquor traffic and party corruption. Then Mr. McDermott gave a history of California, its vast dimensions and varied fruits and climate which was well received. And not only was the speaking grand but also the music. The Bad Axe male quartet rendered the best music for home talent that the Thumb, we believe, can produce. We expect to hear of them in the near future singing before great crowds in some of our great cities. Then our Epworth League choir rendered some good pieces that were well received.
Last but not least was our fire and drum corps: Master Reuben Finkle, Fred Young and Millington Mc-Donald. These are promising young Americans that may yet stir the hearts of nations with their music. Another grand feature of the day was that our Ladies' Aid cleared the nice little sum of $78 and we thank the good people for their attendance and promise just as good next 4th of July.

All diseases start in the bowels. Keep

How He Evaded the Suicide Law.

Local Chief Justice Hankford of England, who lived in a former century, not withstanding his high position became so tired of life that he determined to shuttle off this mortal coil. But he feared to commit suicide, because at the time a verdict of felo de se followed as a matter of course and the body of the suicide was buried at four crossroads, with a stake thrust through it.
Further, he had to avert the consequences to his relatives of forfeiture of his goods, which was also one of the penalties for self destruction. He adopted a novel expedient. Several of his dear having been stolen, he gave orders to his keepers to shoot any person they met in or near the park at night who did not immediately stand when challenged. Then on a dark night he threw himself in the path of the keepers and not answering the challenge, was shot dead on the spot. The stump of an old oak under which he fell still marks the scene of the tragedy and goes to this day by the name of Hank-ford's oak.

New York's Harbor Eagles.

Above the pier—close to it and together, as if for comfort—huddled a cluster of tugs, those curious, powerful, persistent little steam craft that ply back and forth up and down, suddenly and busily important, their rows of fenders trailing in the water, their black smoke billowing out behind. Often I had watched them nosing in and out among the heavier craft, nudging a great ocean liner into midstream and singly or together pushing or pulling some huge helpless bulk, as an ant or as two might seize and trundle a great dead bumblebee. Their power and their impudence had filled me with wonder. Viewing them now in repose, I was impressed by the fact, hitherto unconsidered, that upon all most every pilot house was a golden eagle with extended wings—a symbol of power and swiftness—and it was borne in upon me that the tug in truth is the harbor eagle, with all other craft of its prey.—Scribner's.

Perjury as a Fine Art.

In India, according to an Englishman who lived there many years, the more educated class reduce perjury to a fine art. If a case is to come before the court they are not content with coaching their witnesses beforehand, but they take them to the very spot where the deed was committed and go through all the incidents of the assault or tragedy to be sworn to, so that the various subpoenaed witnesses are littly likely to be caught by any cross-examination, no matter how severe it may be. He cites an instance of the methods of the ordinary Hindoo lawyer. A British officer had made a number of purchases of a Parsee merchant, who charged him such unreasonable
prices that he refused to pay the bill.
The merchant brought suit, and the officer consulted a lawyer, who agreed to take the case and win it if he were not interfered with. This was promised. When the trial came off, the defense promptly acknowledged the purchase of the articles at the prices named, but produced half a dozen witnesses who swore that they had seen the bill paid.

Long Hair

"About a year ago my hair was coming out very fast, so I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stopped the falling and made my hair grow very rapidly, until now it is 45 inches in length."—Mrs. A.
Boydston, Atchison, Kans.

than that of the stomach.
Hair hunger, for instance.
Hungry hair needs food,
needs hair vigor—Ayer's.

FROM ALL OVER MICHIGAN

RACE FOR LIFE.

A Farmer's Wild Drive To Save a Man's Life.

For more than seven miles with blood dripping from his buggy and leaving a ghastly trail in the road, Matthew Leonard drove a literal race with death—and won. Louis Pearl lies in a Grand Rapids hospital, terribly weak from loss of blood and almost at the point of death, but it is said he will survive.

Pearl was working on the Leonard farm in Alpena township, about seven miles from Grand Rapids, and in some manner got in front of a mowing machine. The cutting bar caught the right foot and cut through flesh and muscle and bone at a point a few inches above the heel. A great artery was severed and the blood poured from the wound in a torrent. Mr. Leonard put an emergency bandage on, but it did not check the flow of blood.

Leonard hitched up his best horse and started on the wild drive. The animal was kept on a dead run for the entire distance, persons, believing the animal was running away, making efforts to stop him.

Down the Bridge street hill the horse tore at full speed and through the city to the corner of Broadway, where, covered with foam, it staggered and fell to its knees.

Leonard had Pearl carried to the barn and the police ambulance was called. The run was taken up by the police team in a few minutes with Dr. E. Park Edwards working over the wound while the ambulance dashed to U. B. A. hospital.

Free Hair Cuts.

The disciples of Benjamin and Mary, Flying Rollers and other curbstone preachers must get off the main streets in the business district of Benton Harbor. This is the edict handed down by Mayor Gillet. For the past two months Benjamin and Mary, Dowries and preachers of other rival creeds have been competing for business on the street corners. The noise made by preachers and gospel singers and several kinds of wind instruments put all the medicine shows in the background and an appeal was made to the authorities. Any Flying Roller violating the edict is to be placed in jail and his hair clipped.

Imperfect Work.

It is doubtful if the Fred M. Warner state census supervisors will give out the figures on Detroit's population. As- sistant Supervisor Smith says the reports of the 150 local enumerators are so imperfect he believes no fairly accurate totals can be furnished. He declares, however, the returns indicate Detroit's population is nearer 300,000 than 353,258, the water board's recent estimate.

Foolish Risk of Life.

In a spirit of bravado, Capt. Armstrong, a young man of Plainville, climbed to the top of a 75-foot ladder erected by Prof. Horton for a high dive attraction to a show. The ladder chattered and creaked when Armstrong mounted to the top, and the affair swayed and broke, and the young man struck on a cement walk. His skull was frightfully crushed and his body badly mangled. He cannot recover.

Down in a Coal Mine.

Work on the new coal shaft at the "What Cheer" coal mine at Bay City, is being rushed. It will be the deepest coal mine shaft in Michigan, going to a depth of 214 feet. Very little territory remains in that neighborhood that is not covered by coal seams.

Electric Roads Consolidate.

The consolidation of the Detroit, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor & Jackson Railway Co. and the Jackson Consolidated Traction Co. has been completed. The consolidated property is under the control for a term of years, the Michigan members being J. D. Hawks and S. F. Angus, of Detroit, and W. A. Boland, of Jackson, Detroit is the eastern terminus of the system, which has a total mileage of 125 miles. The line passes through Detroit, Dearborn, Wayne, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Saline, Chelsea, Grass Lake, Jackson and several villages, representing a total population of 372,965. The system connects at Jackson on the west with the Jackson & Battle Creek Traction Co., which operates a third rail system through Albion and Marshall to Battle Creek, where it connects with the Michigan Traction Co. which operates the city systems of Battle Creek and Kalamazoo and an interurban line connecting the two cities. This gives a continuous electric railway system from Detroit to Kalamazoo, a distance of about 200 miles.

Deliberate Suicide.

Edward McGee, a man 50 years old, committed suicide in Marshall on Thursday. He bolted the door, and sitting before a looking glass, placed a .32 caliber revolver to his right temple and pulled the trigger. The bullet went through his head, and dropped upon the floor not far from where he sat. McGee had been working in Battle Creek for some time past. No reason can be assigned for the suicide. Marshall Stone, upon being notified, made an entrance to the room by a window and found him sitting dead on the chair. The dead man is survived by two sons, three daughters, a mother, three sisters and three brothers.

More Reasonable. Viceroy Alexieff's report that the Japs had been repulsed at Port Arthur with a loss of from 25,000 to 30,000 killed, is firmly believed by the people in St. Petersburg, although not the slightest confirmation of the report has come from any quarter, and official circles are inclined to put more credence in a later report which says that the Japs lost 2,800 and the Russians 1,800. This is considered much more probable.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD

BUTCHERS' STRIKE.

Fifty Thousand Are Idle and Prices Go Up.

As the result of a stubborn disagreement, chiefly over wages for unskilled labor, one of the most extensive strikes in the history of the meat packing industry of the United States began Tuesday in Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph, Mo., and other cities where large packing plants are located. If prolonged, the strike is expected to cause widespread inconvenience, possibly equaling the anthracite famine of two years ago. The number out is over 50,000 in the following cities:

Table with 2 columns: City, Number of workers. Chicago 20,000, Omaha 4,000, St. Joseph 6,000, Kansas City 12,800, East St. Louis 5,000, St. Louis 2,500, St. Paul 1,000, Sioux City 1,000, Nebraska City 400, Fort Worth 600.

Total 53,800. The price of meat in all the big cities has been advanced with prospects of still further advances. The strikers claim that they can stay out year without suffering, in fact that they are financially fixed for a prolonged fight.

The strikers have refused an offer to arbitrate with the employers and acts of violence are beginning. The situation may be changed, but there is little prospect of it at present.

IT'S EXPENSIVE.

Prices at the Great Fair Are Becoming Burdensome.

The raising of prices on everything at the St. Louis fair may result in the commissioners of the various states making a combined request to the national government to take hold of the fair and run it on a basis of fairer prices. The Michigan commission have been considering the matter of greater economy made necessary, it is said, through the policy of the fair managers in charging as much as possible for everything that is purchased. The Michigan commissioners fear that if expenses are not held down to the bottom it may be impossible to pull through on the $50,000 appropriation by the legislature, even though many donations were made. Secretary Smith says: "They have just raised the price of ice 30 to 50 cents per 100 pounds. The ice business of the fair was in the hands of concessionaires, but the managers took the trade out of their hands and assumed it themselves, raising the price at once. You can buy ice in Detroit for 20 cents per 100 pounds.

"The fair people also assumed all rights of cartage in the grounds and charged their own prices. One of the most annoying things in this connection was that, in carting furniture or anything else, they would not deliver the goods on the porch of your building, but would drop it right down in the middle of the road, leaving you to carry it in or hire somebody to do so.

"No adequate arrangements have been made to bring fruit into the grounds, and hundreds of carloads rot in East St. Louis. Everything must be carted to the grounds, and this takes two or three days."

Toledo's Mayor Dead.

Like All American Soldiers.

A correspondent of the St. Petersburg Herald at a letter describing incidents at the battle of Vafang says: "Lieut. Vokoulin stood beside two American athletes, Lieut-Col. Walter S. Schuyler, U. S. army, and Capt. William V. Judson, U. S. engineer corps. He was greatly impressed by their soldierly bearing. They did not leave the firing line a single minute but stood calmly observing the battle raging around and unconcernedly smoked cigars, although shells were bursting and bullets whizzing."

Two Hundred Perish.

A cloudburst over the hills northeast of Manila caused a flood which has destroyed San Juan del Monte. Two hundred lives were lost.

The low-lying districts were inundated. The homes of Americans and foreigners are isolated. Transportation through the streets is carried on in boats only.

Rain has fallen for 27 hours, totalling 17.15 inches. This is unprecedented. Communication with outside places is interrupted.

The damage to property is estimated at $2,000,000.

OOM PAUL.

The Old Ex-President of the Transvaal Died in Switzerland.

Paul Kruger, former president of the Transvaal republic, died in Clarens, Switzerland, Thursday morning from pneumonia and supervening heart weakness. Mr. Kruger lost consciousness Monday. His daughter and son-in-law were with him at the time of his death. He had been out only once since his arrival at the beginning of last month. Mr. Kruger, who was staying at the villa du Bochet, had been gradually failing for a long time, but he was able to attend to affairs, read the newspapers and receive visits until Saturday. A change for the worse set in on Sunday. He became unconscious Monday and remained so until his death. The ex-president's body was embalmed, and the remains will be placed in a vault pending funeral arrangements. Application will be made to the British government for authority to transport the remains to the Transvaal.

LOOMIS' BODY FOUND.

Washed Up by the Sea—The Treaty on the Way to Menelik.

The body of F. Kent Loomis, who disappeared from the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II, June 20, as that vessel was nearing Plymouth, was found Saturday morning at Warren Point, adjacent to Thurston Sands, some fifteen miles from Plymouth, Eng. Loomis was sent by the U. S. government with a treaty entered into with Abyssinia, which he was to present to the king. It was feared that Loomis was the victim of foul play and some reports cast suspicion on one W. H. Ellis, a wealthy colored man, who was on the ship and claimed residence in Abyssinia. He took the treaty from Loomis' effects and was authorized by the state department to take it to the king. In order to insure its prompt arrival in Abyssinia a cablegram was sent to King Menelik stating explicitly that, as the messenger who had set out with the treaty had disappeared, it would probably be sent on by W. H. Ellis, who carried it as a matter of accommodation and who is proceeding to Abyssinia on personal business, in which this government has no interest and with which it has no concern." It was also stated in the same cablegram that the bearer of the treaty, whoever he was, would have no official or diplomatic character whatsoever.

King Menelik has acknowledged receipt of this message and said that the status of the bearer of the treaty was perfectly understood by him.

JAPS DEFEATED.

Reported Repulse With a Loss of 30,000 Men.

An official communication from the Russian general staff says: According to information derived from Japanese sources and received by Admiral Alexieff's military staff, the Japanese attacked the Russian positions at Port Arthur during the night of July 10. They were repulsed with enormous loss. It is difficult to calculate even approximately the number of Japanese casualties, which amounted, it is said, to the immense figure of 30,000.

St. Petersburg was thrown into a fever of excitement by the news. The original report reached St. Petersburg Tuesday night in the form of a newspaper dispatch from Mukden threatening the Russian headquarters at Liao Yang, but was later corrected by about noon when Viceroy Alexieff officially telegraphed the news to the general staff. It created a tremendous impression. It was immediately transmitted to the Official Messenger and a few minutes afterwards the newswriters were racing their typewriters electrifying the crowds with the tidings. The boys were fairly mobbed by people eager to buy the extras.

RUMORS OF WAR.

A Sensational Report—(Situation Grows Grave—Japs Active.

Admiral Togo is dead! This very sensational report came from Port Arthur Saturday, but no details were given and little credence was accorded the story.

Trustworthy advices indicate that the situation of the Russian army south of Liao Yang is extremely grave. It is said in Mukden that Kuropatkin is almost entirely surrounded and that the Russians are being rapidly driven back on their center at Hai Cheng. A strong Japanese force is reported to have established itself at Anping, on the Liao Yang-Peng Wang Cheng road, threatening the Russian headquarters at Liao Yang. An attempt is said to have been made by the Russians to dislodge this force, but they were repulsed with severe loss.

Another Japanese army is reported at Chang Ling Sze, which seems to be aiming at Kuropatkin's line of communication. The Russian headquarters at Liao Yang and will probably intercept an effective barrier to his retreat to the north if he should decide to avoid giving battle at Hai Cheng.

The general opinion in Mukden is that Kuropatkin's chances of extricating his army from its present dilemma without such heavy losses as to practically destroy his usefulness as an offensive force are very slight.

FASTEST IN THE WORLD

Here is a picture of one of the two turbine express steamships now under construction for the Cunard line. Both these vessels are to make a speed of 25 knots per hour, and will be the largest and fastest steamship in the world.

The turbine selected, the Parsons type, is both simple and efficient. The steam raised in the boilers is conveyed to the cylinder inside, which is a drum or hollow shaft, studded with rows of blades set at an angle to the direction of the flow of steam. The first row of blades encountered by the rush of steam deflects it from its course, so that it would not effectually operate on the next row were there not between each row of working blades a row of guide blades affixed to the inside of the cylinder casing and set at the reverse angle. These guide blades are stationary and their use is to again alter the direction of the flow of steam and bring it back to the straight course from one end of the cylinder to the other before it encounters the next succeeding row of working blades. The tips of the revolving blades almost scrape against the casing of the cylinder, and the stationary blades almost touch the revolving shaft or drum. Thus there are practically a series of turbine wheels on one shaft, and the steam after performing its work in one turbine, say the high pressure, passes to the intermediate, thence to another or to the low pressure turbine, all the while gradually diminishing in pressure and gradually expanding. It will be seen that there is no friction in the turbine and no wearing parts save the bearings on which the main shaft revolves. From the low pressure turbine the steam passes to the condenser and thence back to the boiler, where it re-enters as pure water, inasmuch as no internal lubrication is required in the turbines. After many experiments, it is now demonstrated that the new vessels will be able to come to a dead stop from full speed in a shorter time than if driven by reciprocating engines; while their maneuvering power will be unsurpassed by any steamers afloat. To the engineering profession the adoption of rotary engines means increased speed for the same boiler power, due to reduced weight of machinery and increased economy in steam; the cost of up-keep is also less; while there will be a smaller engine room staff and a diminished bill for lubricants.

BREAKING THE NEWS GENTLY

Irishman's Neat Way of Informing Mother of Boy's Death.

A political lieutenant once announced to Senator Quay a disastrous defeat, making the announcement in blunt, brusque terms.

Senator Quay gave the man one of his peculiar direct glances, and smiled slightly. Then he said:

"You have broken this news gently. You remind me of an Irishman. This Irishman had great faith in his diplomacy and delicacy, and one day when a boy was killed at the quarry he told the news to leave everything in his hands, and he would break the news to the boy's mother as it should be done.

"So he went home, put on a black suit and a black tie, and he knocked at the door of the boy's mother's house.

"'Good mornin', ma'am,' he said. 'Tis a sad accident yer bye Tom's gold watch has had.'

"'Why,' said the mother, 'Tom never had a gold watch.'

"'Sure, an' that's lucky,' said the news breaker, 'for there's twenty ton of rock fallen on him.'

Mannel Guerrero and Florencio Pino had got the "marihuana" habit, and for the last few weeks had been smoking big cigarettes in which tobacco was mixed with the dangerous weed. Tuesday afternoon the two men smoked cigarettes composed of tobacco in smaller proportion than marihuana, and after a few minutes ran amuck.

Then went out into the street shouting, vociferating and attacking every-

Sick Man Would Not Go to Hospital in Dinner Hour.

Charles M. Schwab, on the day he sailed for Europe, said that he believed America offered to workmen more opportunities than any other country.

"The workingman, though," he added, "must be of the right kind. He must not be like the Greek I heard of recently.

"This chap, having come to America, secured a good laboring job at $11 a week. But he did not get on well. He was continually afraid of doing more than he was paid for.

"They say that a gentleman passing one day the new building the Greek was working on saw him lying on his stomach on the sidewalk. His face was pale; a succession of loud groans arose from him.

"'What is the matter with that fellow?' the gentleman said.

CROSS SECTION OF NEW DEADLY SUBMARINE AND PICTURE OF INVENTOR

George F. Ryan of Chicago, whose picture appears at the top, is daily looking for patents on a new submarine he has invented and which he claims will compel the world to bow to the United States. The secret of his war machine he declines to reveal. The lower picture shows the right body. First they marched hand in hand, declaring that they were the bravest men on earth and would kill anybody who dared to say a word to the contrary, but at last Pino declared that he was still braver than his friend, and a fight followed, the two receiving dangerous wounds. They were captured and sent to the hospital, where they had to be put into straitjackets. It is feared that the two men, if they recover from their wounds, will lose their minds permanently, as is the case often with marihuana smokers.—Mexican Herald.

His Own Pen Picture.

Prof. Henry Beers of Yale is noted for his dry wit and his lax discipline. His classes come at 5 p. m., when these hot days make students rather drowsy. Last week a sophomore went to sleep on a rear bench. Prof. Beers called on him, and stumbling in his feet in response to his neighbor's vigorous nudge the youth drawled, "Yes, sir."

"Read the poem on page 65."

"Oh, how green and fresh I am," the verses began, but the class caught on by that time and a gale of laughter ended that particular reading.

Points for Social Workers.

There are in the twenty-eight metropolitan boroughs of London 291,725 working boys who have no place but the streets to play in, with the exception of 29,912 of that number, who are members of one of the 465 boys' clubs, of the right kind and under efficient management already in existence. Put in another way, out of every 628 boys the existing clubs only receive fifty-five as members, leaving 573 boys or 91 per cent of the total, without the means of healthy recreation and amusement of any kind except the streets. So, too, out of 324,905 working girls only 22,079 are members of the 267 girls' clubs. That is to say, that out of every 1,217 girls, the girls clubs only receive eighty-three as members, leaving 1,134 girls, or 93 per cent of the total, without the means of healthy recreation or amusement except the streets.

Funny Anyway.

William Winter, the dramatic critic, is thought by some to write the worst hand of any man living. There may have been giants in the past, men like Horace Greeley, who surpassed him, but no one his equal remains.

Some years ago Mr. Winter was traveling in Scotland, and having had many amusing experiences, wrote an account of them to R. H. Stoddard, in New York. Mr. Stoddard received the letter at breakfast, and, combining familiarity with the intuitions of the poet, managed to make it out, and enjoyed several good laughs. He glanced up at Mrs. Stoddard and said: "It's from William Winter. Very funny. Want to read it?"

"You know I can never read a word of his writing," answered Mrs. Stoddard.

"Oh, that doesn't matter," replied Mr. Stoddard, tossing the letter over; "it's just as funny to look at!"—Boston Post.

GRADED SYSTEM OF ROBBERY.

Thrifty Millionaire Indignant at Extortion in Hotels.

Patrick Driscoll, the millionaire of Arizona, says he will visit the St. Louis fair this summer. Mr. Driscoll, with an income of $80,000 a month, spends only $30 monthly. He lives in a small clean cottage and he cooks his own meals.

"Big expenditures mean waste," he said the other day. "I could spend all my income without difficulty, but I wouldn't get the worth of each dollar. I would only be encouraging waste, extravagance and double dealing on every side.

"Take, for instance, hotel life, where you pay $10 or $12 a day. That kind of life is full of duplicity.

"Suppose I go to a $10 a day hotel. My shoe slits a half inch, and I say to the bellboy:

"'Take this shoe to the cobbler and have it patched up.'

"An hour later the cobbler's errand boy brings the shoe back. He hands it to the porter. 'Here's a patched shoe from Room 31,' he says. 'It's 10 cents.'

"The porter hands the shoe to the hall boy. 'Patched shoe for 31,' he says. 'It cost 15 cents. I paid it. Give me the money.'

"The hall boy takes the shoe to the bellboy. 'Here's your patched shoe. You owe me a quarter on it,' says he.

"And the bellboy, finally, brings the shoe to me. 'Your shoe,' he says. 'It cost a half dollar. I paid for it, sir.'

"A day or two later I meet the cobbler.

"By the way, I ask, 'what did you charge for patching that shoe of mine?'

"'Why, nothing,' answers the cobbler."

DANGER IN THIS SPORT.

Shooting Cobras in India Not Altogether a Pleasant Pastime.

Tales of tiger shooting in India are common enough, but one does not hear much about king cobra hunting. A Mervyn Smith tells how, accompanied by two natives, he went to a spot where a pair of king cobras were known to be. On arrival at the place he was made to get under a basket, the meshes of which were too small for a king cobra to put its head through. While he was beneath this basket one of the snakes came out, and was shot with arrows by natives. The other cobra then appeared and endeavored to overturn the coop. Describing the incident, the writer says: "The terror of that moment I cannot express. What if it should overturn the basket! The strength of 13 feet of muscle must be enormous, and if used in the right direction would soon overcome my pull at the cord. What would then happen? Certain death for me, I felt sure. Again the whizz of an arrow and I saw the gaping wound along the neck of the fierce brute as it quitted its hold to look for this new foe. Fixing my knee on the cord, I now placed the muzzle of my gun just through one of the square openings in the basket, and, aiming at the hood, fired both barrels in rapid succession, and had the satisfaction of seeing the horrid brute fling up the leaves and dust in its death throes."

WHAT I'D DO.

"What will you do, love, when I am gone?"
 With white sail flowing,
 The seas beyond;
 What will you do, love, when waves divide us,
 And friends may chide us
 For being fond?"
 "Though waves divide us and friends be chiding,
 In farthest seas,
 I'll still be true;
 And I'll pray for thee on the stormy ocean,
 In deep devotion,
 That's what I'll do!"
 "What would you do, love, if distant
 Thy fond confiding
 Should undermine
 And I, abiding 'neath sultry skies,
 Should think other eyes
 Were as bright as thine?"
 "Oh, name it not; though guilt and shame
 Were on thy name,
 I'd still be true;
 But that heart of thine—should another
 Share it,
 I could not bear it—
 What would I do?"
 "What will you do, love, when home returning,
 With bones high burning,
 If my bark, which bounded o'er foreign foam
 Should be lost near home?
 Ah, what would you do?"
 "So thou wert spared, I'd bless the morrow,
 In want and sorrow,
 That left me you;
 And I'd welcome thee from the wasting billow,
 This being thy pillow—
 That's what I'd do!"
 —Samuel Lover.

Females First; Males Second.

One spring I observed with much interest a phoebe bird building her nest not far from my cabin in the woods. The male looked on approvingly, but did not help. He perched most of the time on a mullen stalk near the little spring run where phoebe came for mud.

In the early morning hours she made her trips at intervals of a minute or two. The male flitted his tail and called encouragingly, and when she started up the hill with her load he would accompany her part way, as it were to help her over the steep part, then return to his perch and watch and call for her return. For an hour or more I witnessed this little play in bird life, in which the female's part was so primary and the male's so secondary.

There is something in such things that seems to lend support to Prof. Lester F. Ward's contention, as set forth in his "Pure Sociology," that in the natural evolution of the two sexes the female was first and the male second; that he was, in fact, made from her rib, so to speak, and not she from his.—John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

Be Merry.
 Pure merriment, that which leaves no regret, is the most cheering of all nectars. It gives lightness to the heart, health to the cheeks and good cheer to all mankind.

The gentleman that can make others merry has a passport into any company.

A merry heart goes blithely on its way, while a heavy one is aware ere the journey is begun.

We may not all be like Old King Cole—"the merry old soul"—but we can at least keep our faces from souring the cream, if we try.

AT GRANDMA'S FUNERAL.

Our office boy is a descendant of King Solomon. Another grandmother dies every time there's a ball game!

Poor Man.

Oh woe! Is the poor suburbanite!
 He waketh up early in the night—
 To catcheth the train that speeds to town;
 And misses a trade ere he gets down!
 He cometh again by sad moonlight,
 Too late for dinner—an awful sight!
 He leth to sleep in downy bed,
 But hears the alarm clock's burr instead!
 Oh woe! Is the poor suburbanite!
 We wouldn't be him by a dog-gone sight!

Odostoh in The Journalist—What exactly is a "society" girl? She often figures in the news items. For instance, a young woman masquerades as a man in Philadelphia, is run in by the police and discharged when it is known that she is a "society" girl from the West. Or again, a pretty "society" girl of Cambridge enters the gallery of the Memorial Hall while the Harvard students are at dinner. She places her foot on the rail of the gallery, takes off one of her garters and throws it to the cheering boys. What meaning exactly has "society" in these connections?

Foul Ball.

Upon the Podunk field the Red Birds smite the ball,
 And strive to drive the sphere out where the weeds are tall!
 And now the bags are filled, with Skinny Jones at bat!
 Loud hares admonish Skin to "hit 'er in 't' slit!"
 He strikes! Once! Twice!—while groans rise up from out the throng Again he strikes! "Hurrah! To third he drives! He strikes!"
 "What's that?" "A foul!" "Oh! Oh! The crowd with rage is hoarse!"
 A rush! The umpire yells: "Play ball!" and scorns their force!
 Mid jeers and wild complaint Jones bids his place once more!
 "Three strikes! And out!" the umpire calls: "A bas the score!"
 Then madly runs the crowd to tell the outraged press
 That fights it o'er again! Oh! awful baseball mess!

Earlville (Ill.) Leader—Many a woman goes out shopping dressed in silk and enveloped in perfume, whose hard working husband hasn't had a new suit of clothes or a decent meal in five years. Yes, and many a loafer stands on the street with a stinking pipe in his face; his tank full of booze and his mouth full of profanity, whose hard working wife hasn't had a new dress or a kind word since she was married.

Well, we tried it again! Got up at 4 o'clock a. m. and spent four wind-buffed hours on the bosom of Lake Michigan without getting a bite! A small boy on the pier caught twenty-seven, but his pole wasn't crooked and he didn't have a stone-bruise on his heel! All the signs seem to be failing this summer!

P. S.—Yes, we did. Spat on 'er every time, but it didn't seem to do any good. Do you suppose we've forgotten how?

We read in one of the city papers that "Miss Blahelle Mae Swanks, the well-known poet, has again favored the Hickey Harpoon with a contribution. It is called 'Lonesomeness.' Well, I swan!

CHEAP GATE FOR FARM.

Easy to Make and Satisfactory in Every Way.

I send you a drawing of a cheap farm gate I find to be easily made and satisfactory in every way. I have several such gates on my farm and have used one for eight years. The frame is made of 2 by 4 inch scantlings, morticed together. The brace is of the same material. My gates are strung with barbed wire, but woven wire could be used equally well. I make my own gates. The usual length is 14 feet. A gate of this length costs $1.50, including the hinges, besides the making. Gate posts will not leave or tip if set four feet in the ground and a piece of plank is spiked on each side as shown in the drawing. I always set gate posts and end fence posts in this way.

A Farm Gate.

Ox-Eye Daisy.

F. C.—I have a pasture infested with Ox-Eye Daisy, and I am now mowing them all down before they ripen. Do you think this will eradicate the pest? The Ox-Eye Daisy is not a native here, but has come, I am informed, from manure from cattle fed upon imported hay.

Mowing the Ox-Eye Daisy before the seeds are ripened will prevent the crop of seedlings for that year, but the plant is a perennial and the roots will produce new plants and new flowers another year. However, it does not root deeply. The best plan for clearing infested land is to break it up and seed down to clover. In this way the old plants are destroyed and any young plants from seed which should flower the second year, will be cut with both the first and second crops of clover before the seeds are ripe. Then, when the clover sod is plowed down, the Ox-Eye Daisy plants will be killed and the land be clean.

Ants In a House.

M. L. A. would like to know what is good to prevent ants staying around the place.

When ants appear in a house, the first effort should be made to discover where their nest is generally inside a wall or beneath a floor or some object close outside the building. If the nest can be found, it should be drenched with boiling water; out of doors bisulphide of carbon has been used with success, a sponful being thrown into the hole which is then plugged with a little clod of earth. If the nest cannot be located, as many insects as possible should be destroyed. For this, small pieces of sponge are moistened with water containing some sugar and a little vinegar or borax and placed in the spots frequented by the ants. The ants will collect on the sponges which should be collected several times a day and dropped into scalding water.

Coal Ashes for Grass Land.

J. V. B. Are hard or soft coal ashes a proper fertilizer for grass lands? Wood ashes are frequently used by farmers, but no coal ashes are used.

Ashes from either hard or soft coal are of little or no value to grass land. Unleached wood ashes are highly useful on grass land and may be applied at the rate of from forty to eighty bushels per acre. Leached ashes contain very little fertilizing ingredients.

Thunder and Incubation.

R. E. S.—I had a poor hatch from my incubator, getting only a 40 per cent. hatch. A great many chicks died in the shell after the eggs were chipped. We had a severe thunder storm on the twentieth day. Was that the cause?

Unless lightning struck very near the eggs the thunder storm was not likely to cause the trouble.

Galls on Plum Leaves.

A Sufferer—The long red objects on your plum leaves are galls made by a very small kind of mite of the same genus, Phytoptus, as the insect which causes the Pear-leaf Blister-gall. The occurrence of this mite in large numbers naturally does a considerable amount of harm, and it is most probable that the failure of the fruit on your plum tree to develop promptly is indirectly due to it. I am afraid it is too late now for you to make any application which will save your fruit this season, but next winter and just at the time when the buds are bursting in spring, if the trees are sprayed thoroughly with the lime and sulphur mixture they will be free of these insects next year. A simple formula for making this wash in small quantities is one pound of lime and half a pound of sulphur, boiled for two hours in one and a half gallons of water. When all the sulphur is dissolved the liquid will be of a bright amber color, and the quantity above mentioned must be filled up to three gallons with hot water at the time of using. This will leave a deposit on the trees, which can be plainly seen and which will destroy many kinds of insects.

Hand Separators.

M. Mortensen, in an address to Iowa dairymen, said: The hand separator system has undoubtedly within the last few years tended toward lowering the quality of butter. This is not because the hand separator system is wrong, but because that system is still in its infancy and the methods employed by the hand separator factories used improvement. Similar difficulties were observed the first few years after the factory separator was introduced, but soon the factory system was found to be superior to the old system, and the hand separator system has already proven to have several advantages over any of the previous systems.

When the hand separators were first introduced there were several of their agents that advocated washing of their separator once a day or once every other day. These representatives have nearly all disappeared by this time, which is a blessing to the dairy industry, as such men were not only a disgrace to the firm they represented, but they were trying to tear down that splendid reputation which the Iowa butter has and which it has taken so many years to establish. A cream separator, it matters not whether it is a factory or a farm machine, and all dairy utensils used in connection therewith, must be thoroughly cleaned each time they have been used, and if this rule is not followed, then the quality is going to suffer. This has been fully demonstrated by the bacteriologists as well as by the practical creamerymen.

The Thermometer.

The thermometer is an article that every buttermaker should have, whether he is making butter at home or in a factory. Very many of the thermometers purchased are far from reliable. We remember that some years ago an Eastern firm sent out a large number of thermometers as prizes. The writer had one and tried to read the weather by it. But he finally discovered that the mercury bulb was imperfect or not correctly graduated, for the readings were certainly more than twenty degrees out of the way. This is very bad, but frequently thermometers are two, three or four degrees out of the way and their owners do not discover the fact. This is more likely to be the case where the man has but one thermometer. If he has several he is about sure to notice that there is a marked difference in the readings and begin an investigation. One good way of telling the correctness of a thermometer is to place the bulb under the tongue. If the person doing this is healthy and not unduly excited the thermometer should register 98 degrees. If it registers more or less something is wrong, either with the thermometer or with the person making the test. Thermometers do not cost much, and it will pay to buy several when making the purchase of one. Then in case of breaking one, there is always another that may be placed in service.

Keep Up the Milk Flow.

Now is the time of year to look carefully after the milk flow and see that it does not materially fall off. Every dairymen knows that when a cow is allowed, through lack of succulent food, to fall off in her milk, it is impossible to again bring her back to the original flow, no matter how bountifully she is fed. Even if the food costs more than the milk during the summer drouth, it is best to keep it up if it is intended to milk the cow through the fall and winter. To allow the milk yield to run down is to court a double loss. The loss of the milk is something, but if the milk is going to a creamery that is co-operative in any phase the lessened supply from all the patrons will increase proportionately the cost of making butter and thus force a further loss on the patron. Unfortunately on most of our farms it is looked upon as the regular thing to have the cows fall off in their milk at this time of year, and nothing is done to prevent it. This not doing anything is the hardest thing to overcome when we are trying to induce the adoption of methods that will insure the continuation of the flow of milk during early summer through the hot weather. This is a hard period for our creamery men, but the loss always gets back to the farmers in the end. This should be remembered and measures taken to insure different results.

Palatability of Food.

The value of any food for an animal is indicated to a considerable degree by its palatability. No matter what balances of protein and carbohydrates a food may show on analysis, if it is not palatable enough so that the animals will eat it and eat a good deal of it, it will not be of any use in the economy of the farm. This is illustrated by the experiments carried on at the Indiana Experiment station in feeding distillery grains to horses. Those grains may contain a great quantity of digestible protein and certainly do, but the horses did not find them palatable and refused to eat more of them than they were compelled to. This is the report of the station, after a trial lasting two years. Reports were also secured from teamsters on this point and they agreed with the experience of the station experimenters. There are many other kinds of food that would make good and cheap stock food if the cattle, horses and other stock cared for them; but they do not.

Time Is the Test.

And the Testimony of Michigan People Stands the Test.

The test of time is what tells the tale, "A new broom sweeps clean," but will it wear well is what interests most. The public soon find out when misrepresentations are made and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Michigan people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills, they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

S. F. Snell, cigar manufacturer, of Division street, Dowagiac, cured at Sherwood & Burlingame's drug store a medicine of rare virtue. I had a severe lameness which was something unusual and when on my feet I had an aching across the loins. ## "Tattletale" Boys.

Both teachers and parents should discourage tattling among children. The practice is bad enough among girls, but is contemptible among boys. A boy who tells tales on others will doubtless be properly castigated by the courts of juvenile justice which convene in alleys and back lots, but he should not have the satisfaction of feeling that his punishment is in the nature of martyrdom nor should he be made a favorite with his teacher for doing that which most boys instinctively detest. Boys have always been educated to regard tattling as cowardice. This code of ethics has developed some pretty good men. It is good enough for the present generation of schoolboys.—Chicago Tribune.

BIG LEGS

CAN BE QUICKLY REDUCED WITH HEVE-O

From various causes, horses are troubled more or less with swollen or pulled legs, which if neglected will cause stiffness, clumsy action and an unsalable condition. There is no occasion for this trouble to exist as the new discovery called HEVE-O will, with a few doses, remove this very prevalent trouble. HEVE-O, the new discovery for horses, coughs, distemper and kidney troubles, is quick and decisive. Horses usually start from distemper, colds, or rusty hay or grain; in either case the stomach becomes impaired and must receive treatment as well as the other organs. HEVE-O is prepared for just such cases. Kidneys—a few doses will show marked improvement on any kidney trouble (which makes it a thorough blood purifier), or a few doses (but bran mash will stop distemper and cure the cough). Sheep and cattle frequently have bad coughs. HEVE-O is equally good for them. A trial will prove its superiority. One pound packages, 60c. Sold by all druggists. Remember the name, HEVE-O and take nothing else.
