There are three new pupils this week in Mrs. Fritz's room. Total enrollment is 63.

There are 48 pupils in the 5th and 6th grades, only one of the number being a non-resident.

The Cicero class has been omitted this semester as there were very few members for the class.

Jennie Little and Luella Schenck were absent the fore part of this week on account of sickness.

The total attendance in the High School is ninety-five, of which forty-four are non-resident.

Bessie and Clayton Wright, Eddie Fitz and Elwin Wallace entered the Grammar Room this week.

Lois Cleaver, Mamie Brooker and Roy McKenzie are taking a post graduate course in the High School.

Several volumes of the new addition to our library have arrived. A complete list will be given in a later issue.

Anna Adair and Roy Houghton entered the High Room on Monday, and Dora Wallace and Edna Young on Tuesday.

Vida Patterson was absent on Wednesday, having the responsibility of her father's grocery store during his sickness.

The school board has authorized the purchase of a new unabridged dictionary. We hope to soon have control of the English language.

The pupils of the third grade are diligently studying Tuscola county, while those of the fourth are busily studying their native state.

Theo. Blake, who was enrolled in the 5th grade last week, has returned to his home in Bay City and will attend the Dolsen school there.

In one of our Literature classes this week we were informed that Benjamin Franklin's last words were: "A dying man can do nothing easily." Is this true?

The Misses Beryl Koepfgen and Violet Eno, also Mrs. L. V. Soland and the Misses Emma and Lena Diefenbach, of Pigeon, visited the schools on Tuesday.

The Caseville baseball team scheduled to play with the High School boys on Tuesday, failed to appear, and the boys think they "backed down" or are afraid of a telephone bill. Which is it?

The pupils of the grades are showing much interest in the musical course, under Miss Perkins. The hours scheduled are: Kindergarten, 9:00 to 9:15; 1st and 2nd grades, 9:15 to 9:30; 3rd and 4th grades, 9:30 to 9:50; 5th and 6th grades, 9:50 to 10:10; 7th and 8th grades, 11:00 to 11:20.

Rhetoricals have been arranged by the High School faculty for the 10th and 11th grades, which will consist of debates, declamations and orations. Miss Perkins will have charge of the music. The first recital will be given at three p. m. on Oct. 14th, in the High School room. Further details will be announced later.

Serious Fall from Apoplexy.

Miss Mamie Dyer, aged 20, a daughter of Frank Dyer, the Caro jeweler, suffered a stroke of apoplexy about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon, causing her to fall in the kitchen and then down the cellar stairs, but only mild bruises resulting from the fall. The hemorrhage caused the protrusion of the left eyeball, and the attending physicians consider her condition very serious. Mr. and Mrs. Dyer are visiting relatives in Ohio and all efforts to locate them have thus far proved without avail.

Ray, young son of F. A. Bickie, while playing with some companions one day last week, stumbled and fell, striking his shoulder on a corner of the cement walk in front of the Boston store and broke his shoulder blade.—Sanilac Republican.

The Cass City Fair

The Programme to be Fresh and Exciting

GOOD HORSE RACES---PLENTY OF MUSIC.

A Memorable Occasion That Will Educate, Amuse and Enlighten the People

Overcome with wonder, and oppressed with joy—This vast profusion of extreme delight, Defies the aid of words and mocks description. —Lillo.

THE Cass City Fair has become widely popular, to such a degree that the anticipation of being present at that interesting event on October 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th, is already producing a joyful broadening of countenances, as the program, already announced, is a splendid one and offers several attractions entirely new.

The custom of holding annual fairs has ever since the first agricultural communities were first formed. Their beneficent influence has long been felt and they are yearly increasing in number and extent through the growth of population and the widespread recognition of their importance. Each district will know what it has done and can give a proper account of itself only when the annual fair has been held, and the citizens come together to display their wares and to compare notes. The farmer who thinks he has grown the largest squash then finds out his mistake, and his successful competitor is proudly acknowledged on all hands. The breeder of horses and cattle then gets his deserved praise for the labor and care he has devoted to his animals and the good he has done to the community by improving the breed of stock. The dealer in agricultural implements brings the latest improvements to the notice of those who have use for them and they are duly appreciated. The new and useful in house hold wares is shown, and the comparison of the exhibits broadens the range of vision.

In order that the coming Fair might be the greatest exhibition ever given by the association the first work taken up was the revision of the premium list, which was carefully and thoroughly revised and corrected. The wants of exhibitors have been carefully studied and concessions made wherever the exhibition could be prospectively benefited, and as great liberality is shown in the prizes offered, we are assured of a matchless, mammoth exhibition of our country's choice agricultural, mechanical, industrial, material and artistic products. Every department of husbandry, industry, art and commerce will be represented, and the competitive efforts will strengthen and diversify knowledge, stimulate improvements and tend greatly to the good of all. It is expected that the exhibits will show an unusually high order of merit, and that spirited rivalry among contestants for prizes will be greatly augmented over that we have had at any former fair. All who can exhibit anything of interest in any one of the several departments are invited to do so, and thus aid in making the exhibition fully representative, and a manifold exposition of all the varied products of farm, garden and household industry, the earth's generous bounty to earnest tillers of her soil.

THE ATTRACTIONS.

It is the ambition and aim of the officers to make every day a big day, with special features, ceremonies and attractions peculiar to itself, which, as a whole, will make the coming Fair the most extensive, liberal, noteworthy and successful ever held.

"Black Diamond," the Celebrated Trotting Ostrich, said to be the largest male ostrich in America, the property of the Ostrich Farm, at Hot Springs, Ark., Thos. A. Cockburn, proprietor, the most novel, up-to-date, thrilling racing attraction now before the public, has been secured for exhibitions here on one day only—Wednesday, Oct. 5th, and no one should miss this wonderful sight. He is put on the track in first-class style, being hitched to a sixty-five pound modern skeleton speed wagon, and is placed with a running horse. He weighs near 400 pounds and stands nine feet eight inches high and seems to be perfectly docile, well trained and very fleet.

What is conceded to be one of the greatest acts given at any fair this season, is the marvelous monkey, Chicot, looping the loop, and the management has secured this novelty for the three last days of the Fair. Advertising matter is not yet at hand but this act is sure to please everyone and should not be denied the little folk.

Then comes the Barlows, the wonderful revolving ladder artists, introducing A. Y. Barlow, the funny clown gymnast; doing their wonderful breakaway ladder while suspended in mid-air.

To help everybody to a good, healthy, hearty laugh, Glenn Bros., the wonderful trick house acrobats, have been engaged, introducing a line of new acrobatic feats and trick house comedy. They bring their own specially constructed trick house and are very funny.

The Cleodoras introduce their famous flying trapeze and breakaway Feat, featuring the beautiful Marie Cleodora, the aerial queen, the most perfect formed trapeze artist in vaudeville and for several seasons featured with the leading circus throughout Europe.

The Great Roudini, contortionist, completes the list of special attractions, but is far from least. His acts embrace the most wonderful feats ever attempted, one of them being a complete twist of the body—an act once seen never forgotten.

Watch for advertising matter giving more detailed information of these interesting attractions.

A splendid program of horse races is also being arranged and is in the competent control of E. A. McGeorge.

Lack of space forbids further comment but the half has not been told. Come and see!

Mrs. H. A. Tinlin, of Houston, Texas, who has been ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. M. W. Gifford, for some time, has so far recovered as to be able to go to Hamilton, Ont., last Friday, to spend a few weeks with relatives there before returning to her home.

The Detroit conference of the M. E. Church is in session at Adrain this week, and as Rev. M. W. Gifford is in attendance, there will be no preaching service in the church here on Sunday. The Sunday School, Junior League and Epworth League will meet at the usual hours.

Another Bad Fire.

North Branch Gazette.

At about 4 o'clock last Sunday morning the Hudson Valley Coöperage Co's stove and heading mill, in the north part of the village, was discovered to be ablaze. The alarm was immediately sounded and soon the fire brigade, re-enforced by hundreds of people who, startled from their peaceful rest-day slumbers, had unceremoniously hastened thither, was at the scene in fighting order. But with such enticing food upon which to feed, the rapacious flames had made such rapid progress that the mill was doomed beyond all hope, and every effort was directed toward saving as far as possible the stock in the yards, and the adjacent buildings. Fire had already been communicated to the huge piles of staves and heading located some distance from the burning factory, and despite the heroic efforts of the firemen, aided by an army of willing volunteer workers, several thousand dollars worth of this stock was destroyed, aside from much damage being done to logs and bolts before the devastating elements could be headed off. The loss aggregates approximately $10,000 and falls heavily upon the operating company, as only a comparatively small amount of insurance was carried.

Pleasant Surprise.

Saturday evening, Sept. 10th, proved a very pleasant evening for Mrs. David H. Kyes, of Deford, when about forty of her friends surprised her at her home. Mrs. Robert Brown presented her with a beautiful china salad dish from her friends at Greenbank as a slight token of the esteem in which she is held by them. Mrs. J. K. Lewis, of Deford, gave her a purse of six dollars from her friends at Deford telling her it was only a slight token of esteem for her. Mrs. Kyes was so filled with emotion, she said she could not find words to express her gratitude. Rev. Kyes made a short speech and said in part, "This is my first year in the ministry and if each succeeding year is made as pleasant for me as this one has been I will be more than satisfied." He said he had found warm hearts not only at Deford, but at Greenbank, Shabbona and Wickware, to help him in his work and that he was truly thankful to them for their kindness. Rev. Kyes left Monday morning for conference and his wife visits at her parental home. They leave many kind friends behind them, who would be pleased to see them back again to remain at the snug little parsonage at Deford, as they have greatly endeared themselves to the people and are a blessing to any community in which they may reside.

Youth and Cupid

Oh, none so bright! Oh, none so bright!
Oh, none so bright as I!
If Cupid dares within my light,
Within my light to fly,
He'll sing his wings, and then for spite
Declare he's like to die!

I only laugh, laugh at his plight,
And unrelenting cry
"It serves you right! It serves you right!
And 'tis no use to sigh,
For though you sing your wings tonight,
Again you'll venture nigh."

Amabel's Love Affairs

BY ETHEL HOLMES

"It's from Cousin Fred," said Dora with conviction.

"Ye-es," said Amabel, slowly. "I believe it's a proposal," said Lucy.

Amabel said nothing. "I knew he'd propose to you!" Lucy continued. "He fell in love with you straight away. And he's never been really in love with anybody before," she added.

"I can't think what to do!" sighed Amabel, gently.

"Aren't you going to accept him?" gasped both the girls at once.

"It's a little awkward," Amabel began.

"But he's ever so much richer than anybody else!" Lucy interrupted her.

"And you have encouraged him, Amabel," said Dora.

"But there are the other two," said Amabel, uncertainly.

"What other two?" asked Lucy.

"The two I'm engaged to already."

"Engaged already!" gasped Lucy. "To two men!" choked Dora.

"Yes, two of them," said Amabel, hopelessly.

"You see," she explained, "it was like this. I was staying with the Lawsons for some dances and Charlie Lawson proposed to me during the 'Blue Danube' waltz, and, somehow, I couldn't say no. Then I went to stay with the Gibbsons and a Captain Harrison proposed to me one day when we went on a paper chase. We were simply miles from home, and it would have been so awkward to have said 'no' then. And now—oh, dear! what shall I do, girls?"

"Of course, you are really engaged to the man who asked you first," said Lucy.

"You're never going to accept Cousin Fred as well!" gasped Dora.

"He's much the nicest," Amabel assured her.

"Seriously, Amabel, you are engaged to the waltzing man," Lucy expostulated.

"Charlie Lawson," said Amabel, with a resigned sigh.

"And you must write to the other man saying you have made a mistake," Lucy continued, authoritatively.

"I'll write to Captain Harrison at once," said Amabel, obligingly. "I never did really like him."

"Of course!" both girls assented, indifferently.

"And this?" Amabel glanced at the note in her lap.

"Oh, of course, you must explain to Cousin Fred," Lucy remarked reluctantly.

"Should we explain for you?" Dora offered, kindly. "It might be a awkward for you, and we could just hint—"

"No, thank you," said Amabel. "I'll do my own explaining. You see, they are my proposals."

"We will leave you to write your letters, then," said Lucy.

"He says he will come for his answer this evening," Amabel sighed.

"Poor, dear man! I'll write him a little note and just slip it into his door opened and a tall young man came hopefully into the room. Amabel shut her eyes, held her breath and extended her little white hand and the note. The hand was eagerly seized and kissed.

"Well, what was the matter with little Prober?"

"Nothin' much," responded her good-natured husband, "except that he said he hadn't had a good feed of crude oil since he left New Jersey and he was just starving for it. I gave him a dose and he went to sleep contented. By the way, we must lay in a new supply to-morrow. We're all gettin' a little run down for the lack of it. Miss Roosevelt at Bar Harbor. It will tend to the social making of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch when Miss Alice Roosevelt visits them in Bar Harbor. It is expected the colony there will outdo itself in entertaining her. The Damroschs always have moved in the best element of Bar Harbor society and Mrs. Damrosch, as a daughter of James F. Blaine, had a good social position before her marriage. But it is one thing to entertain quietly and another to have a president's daughter as a guest. Miss Roosevelt's itinerary is arranged carefully and no matter how pressing may be her hosts, she must order her maid to pack up her boxes and move along at a fixed time.

A Foe to Comfort. When the tall woman with the bun dles sat down she sighed contentedly. "This is nice," she said.

"Yes, it's hard work standing," said her short friend. "You got pretty tired, didn't you?"

"No, I didn't get so tired," said the tall woman. "That is not the reason I'm glad. I am rejoicing on account of all those men sitting down. They look so much more comfortable since I got off their toes and their con-science."

But the tall woman was mistaken. From then on to the end of the trip there wasn't a comfortable man in the car.—New York Press.

The Patient That Got Away. "I have cause to feel encouraged," remarked a young medical man who recently hung out his shingle, "for I nearly had a patient the other day. I got back to my office after a morning's ramble and almost fainted when the maid announced that a man was in the office waiting to see me. The gentleman inquired if I was the doctor. On assuring him he was speaking to that important personage he politely remarked that he was glad to meet me, and went on to say:

"I just dropped in to ask you if you could possibly tell me where the doctor who used to live next door has moved to?"

German Scholar Honored. Kuno Fischer, the renowned philosopher and teacher of Heidelberg, among the most distinguished of living professors and the last representative of a great school of German scholars, reached his eightieth birthday recently. In spite of the old man's protests thousands of students who have sat at his feet gave vent to their reverential and affectionate feelings by messages and otherwise. Even the grave old senate of Heidelberg rose to the occasion and established an honorary Kuno Fischer prize. The great old man is rapidly declining.

Lawyer's Labors Divided. De Lancey Nicoll's most recent explanation of his retirement from the post of district attorney of New York county in 1894 came under the eye of James W. Osborne, who was his opponent in the criminal libel proceedings involving Amory and the Metropolitan Street Railway company. "I had tired of sending men to jail, and wished to try another branch of the profession." "Guess that's about right," observed Osborne. "The first half of Nicoll's career was spent in getting scoundrels into prison. The last half is spent in keeping them out."

Old Saying Rounded Out. Senator Thomas C. Platt was approached some time ago by a friend who had lost a position in the federal service through the appointment of a new supervisor. The friend wanted the senator to intercede for him. He admitted that he had been discharged for an infraction of the rules, but he insisted that the matter was trivial and would have been overlooked by the new man's predecessor.

"Well," replied Senator Platt, you should have been careful. You know that a new broom sweeps clean."

"Yes," assented the other, gloomily, "but did you ever consider that it was devilish hard on the carpet?"—New York Times.

THE REASON MADE PLAIN.

Awkward Man's Dancing Accounted for by Accident.

Capt. Spencer-Clay, who is to marry Miss Pauline Astor, is well known in the American colony of London. "Clay," said a young American, "is an amusing chap. Going about from place to place, he picks up a myriad of odd and taking episodes. These he stores away, and during lulls in conversations he relates them with vivacity.

"He described the other day a dance at his place in Surrey. He said two girls were there who were jealous of one another. The first girl danced with a tall and awkward fellow, and afterward she sat down beside her rival. Clay, who stood near by, then heard her say:

"I have been dancing with Mr. Smite."

"Mr. Smite," she went on, with a complacent laugh, "pays beautiful compliments. He said that, till he met me, his life had been a desert. 'Ah,' said the second girl, 'that is why he dances like a camel, eh?'"

Impatient Mosquito. It was in a well-regulated family of mosquitoes that had recently moved hither from New Jersey.

The wife said to the husband: "For pity's sake, Spiker, go and see what that child is crying about!"

Dutifully the husband arose from his bed and went into the children's room. When he returned his wife said:

"Well, what was the matter with little Prober?"

"Nothin' much," responded her good-natured husband, "except that he said he hadn't had a good feed of crude oil since he left New Jersey and he was just starving for it. GROTESQUE RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCES

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

Ten thousand devout peasants, their faces black with dust, perspiring, puffing and blowing from their exertions, have today been hopping like frogs through the pretty little village of Echternach, in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, singing at times a litany, to the accompaniment of a shrill cornet, but for the most part trilling out a monotonous tra-la-la, tra-la, to the rhythm of their amazing dance.

This grotesque religious observance is in honor of St. Willibrod, patron saint of the Frieslanders, who, when Echternach was a flourishing city, founded here a Benedictine abbey.

Every Whit Tuesday the peasants from miles around come to the old town, hop and dance for a mile the resting place of the sacred relics, the tail of it was still hop, hop, hopping over the bridge.

Viewed from the heights above the Sure, the scene was both grotesque and astonishing; a vast gathering of old men and young mothers and maids and little children, hopping continuously for a mile, the men holding each other by the hand, the women bound together by the wrist—so the great crowd made its slow, irregular advance, excited, disheveled, and breathless, but all buoyed up by the prospect of indulgences from St. Willibrod.

Here a portly peasant, puffing and perspiring, trotted lustily forth his "tra-la-la, tra-la," to the rhythm of his through its quaint ill-paved streets, and, reaching the ancient church, touch reverently a casket enshrining the relics of St. Willibrod, and thus gain indulgences for another year.

During yesterday evening and all last night little bands of pilgrims, each headed by its village "cure" and its choir bearing church crosses, were tramping in from all the surrounding districts.

Many slept in the open air till day-break, grouping themselves at the foot of the steps leading to the old church; others found corner in barns and stables. But all were ready at the rising of the sun to take their part in this odd religious rite.

Echternach is on the banks of the Sure, a picturesque effluent of the Moselle, which runs at the foot of steep and wooded rocks between the territory of the grand duchy and that of Rhenish Prussia.

Beyond the old Roman bridge across the Sure, on the very first piece of Prussian territory, is a rude cross, which marks the site of a linen tree planted by St. Willibrod when he first came here to preach to the people.

Hard by an antique pulpit has been raised, and it was from the foot of this that the weird procession started.

Just after daybreak the local clergy held a brief service here, the vicar preached a five-minute sermon, and the pilgrims sang a short mass. Then the signal was given for the start.

At the outset the procession consisted only of a few hundred peasants from the Prussian mountains, very quiet and sedate, hopping solemnly and devoutly, absorbed in the purely devotional side of their task.

But on the Luxemburg side a great mass of seething religious humanity joined them. Brass bands clashed out religious music, drums rolled sonorously, beating the time of the hop, hop, top forward, and the hop, hop,

When they had all touched the sacred casket, the pilgrimage was over, save for another brief sermon, and the pilgrims were happy for another year.

A good many performed the rite by deputy. These were the decrepit, the corpulent, the feeble, and the lazy, who found substitutes in the shape of small urchins who for a shilling a head danced the whole journey for them.

Proof of Blackmore's Popularity. It is announced that the English memorial to R. D. Blackmore, author of "Lorna Doone," has not only been fully paid for by the subscriptions, but the committee reports a surplus of £20, which has been presented to the pension fund of the Authors' society. As memorial funds are prone to run short of rather than to exceed the required sum, the popularity of the memorial

SLEEP AN AID TO BEAUTY.

Plenty of Rest Will Enable One to Defy Hand of Time.

Women who sleep a great deal and comfortably, who are addicted to naps and regard nine hours of wholesome rest as absolutely requisite to their physical well-being are the women who defy the frosting hand of time.

These are the women whose wrinkles are few and far between and whose eyes remain the brightest and cheeks the rosiest for the longest period after the bloom of youth has fled. No less notable a beauty than Diana de Poitiers, who retained her irresistible loveliness until her seventieth year, recognized the value of sleep as a preventive of wrinkles. Indeed, so fearful was she of losing a moment of perfect rest, that, mistrusting the beds of her friends, she carried her own, with its splendid fittings, on all her journeys.

Catch Words or Phrases. If you desire to get rich quickly, invent catch-words or phrases that will grip the attention of the public. Big sums are paid for the right article. The inventor of a word now used for a brand of crackers is said to have received $5,000 for it. Manufacturers of various things from soap to hats have paid nearly as high. A railroad company gave $100 to a girl who suggested a name for one of its fast trains.

Man and Wife. Buxton, N. Dak., Sept. 12 (Special).—Mr. B. L. Skriveth of this place has been added to the steadily growing following that Dodd's Kidney Pills have in this part of the country.

Mr. Skriveth gives two reasons for his faith in the Great American Kidney Cure. The first is that they cured his wife and the second is that they cured himself.

"I must say," says Mr. Skriveth, "that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for Kidney Trouble I ever knew. My wife had Kidney Disease for years and she tried all kinds of medicine from doctors but it did not help her any. An advertisement led her to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first box helped her so much that she took eight boxes more and now she is cured."

"I also took three boxes myself and they made me feel better and stronger in every way."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have never yet failed to cure any kidney disease from Backache to Rheumatism, Diabetes or Bright's Disease.

Mosquito Cause of Death. A Jersey mosquito caused the death of a barber named Rosho Dorso at Harrison, N. J. The barber was shaving and a mosquito lit on his nose. The razor was directly under the barber's chin, and in making a slap to drive away the mosquito, he cut a deep gash in his throat. A physician arrived too late to save him.

Theory Regarding the Moon. The novel theory of Dr. Voigt, a German astronomer, is that the great or part of the moon's craters represent work of coral insects in long vanished seas. He finds that if the earth's tropical ocean were suddenly dried up the bed would resemble the face of the moon, the coral formations appearing exactly like the craters of the extinct volcanoes.

Wife in Place of Hog. The following anecdote shows how the Fijians treat their wives. A Fijian chief bought a gun from a captain in the navy for which he was to pay two hogs. But try as he would he could manage to get only one hog. This he sent to the captain, and in place of the other hog sent his wife.

Value of Laughter. If we realized the power of good cheer and the habit of laughter to retard the progress of age and to stay the hand which writes the wrinkles of care and anxiety on the face, we should have discovered the famed fountain of youth—the elixir of life.

Cattle Bring High Prices. At a sale of shorthorn cattle in the capital of the Argentine Republic sensational prices were recently paid for Scottish shorthorns; £2,610 was given for Newton Stone, a Morayshire-bred bull.

How to Gain Riches. Otto Wicke, a prominent New York politician, whose check is worth $125,000, at one time lived on five cents a day and slept in the city hall park.

WHAT'S THE USE To Keep a "Coffee Complexion." A lady says: "Postum has helped my complexion so much that my friends say I am growing young again. My complexion used to be coffee colored, muddy and yellow but it is now clear and rosy as when I was a girl. I was induced to try Postum by a friend who had suffered just as I had suffered from terrible indigestion, palpitation of the heart and sinking spells."

"After I had used Postum a week I was so much better that I was afraid it would not last. But now two years have passed and I am a well woman. I owe it all to leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place."

"I had drunk coffee all my life. I suspected that it was the cause of my trouble, but it was not until I actually quit coffee and started to try Postum that I became certain; then all my troubles ceased and I am now well and strong again." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Suffered Agonies from Kidney Disorders Until Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

George W. Renoff, of 1953 North 11th St., Philadelphia, Pa., a man of good reputation and standing, writes: "Five years ago I was suffering so with my back and kidneys that I often had to lay off. The kidney secretions were unnatural, my legs and stomach were swollen, and I had no appetite. When doctors failed to help me I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and improved until my back was strong and my appetite returned. During the four years since I stopped using them I have enjoyed excellent health. The cure was permanent."

Church Decorating. Women who take upon themselves the pleasant duty of decorating their churches may be interested in what the bishop of Worcester has to say on the subject. "Flowers," says the bishop, "should be used only on festivals; they should never be allowed to remain after they are withered; they should be voluntary offerings; there is no ecclesiastical reason why they should be put in brazen jars or tortured into unnatural shapes; there should not be too many of them; leaves or flowers should not be allowed to intrude themselves upon or near the ledge of the pulpit so as to interfere with the preacher's hands or books, or to hinder the proper use of the font."

Collecting Old Doors. Near Pontefract lives a banker who has a museum of old doors. They are from old houses, castles, or abbeys that have some historic interest. Quite lately he bid $5,000 in Paris for a door through which, during the French revolution, Marie Antoinette, Charlotte Corday, Danton and Robespierre passed to the guillotine. One of his doors is said to have shut off Charles II from his Roundhead pursuers, and it bears marks of a battering. A collection of ancient weathercocks is also one of this gentleman's possessions.

THE WORLD'S FAIR—ST. LOUIS. Hotel Epworth, three blocks from the Administration and Convention entrances, is a safe, permanent brick building of over 500 rooms. It costs no more to stop at Hotel Epworth than at the temporary stuff and frame hotels. Rates $1.00 a day and up. European plan. First-class dining hall—reasonable prices. Every convenience. Headquarters Farmers National Congress. Rooms may be reserved. (Delmar Garden car on Olive, Hotel Epworth, 6500 Washington Ave., St. Louis, Mo.)

Fatal Hot Potato. Margaret Kirchbaum died of eating hot potatoes. She was in a hurry to go out and gulped several hot potatoes. She died in great agony. The autopsy showed that her throat and the lining of her stomach had been so badly burned that the swelling had caused her to choke to death.

The Ward of King Canute

A Romance of the Danish Conquest.

By OTTILIE A. LILJENCRANTZ, author of The Thrill of Lief the Lucky.
Copyright, 1903, by A. C. McCLURG & CO.

CHAPTER XIX.—Continued.
"I want not that recompense, lord. Little shall you think of the debt,—or think that in helping you, I repaid you for your hospitality, your—"

Her voice broke as the memory of that time passed over her like bitter waters, and she was obliged to stand silent before him, steadying her lip with her teeth, until the waters had fallen.

"It was the King who sent for you, that he might know whether I had spoken the truth concerning my disguise," she said when at last her voice returned. "Now, by coming, you have helped me against his anger,—let that settle all debt between us. I thank you much—and I bid you farewell." Again Elfgiva's schooling came to her mind and she swayed before him in a courtesy. She did not know that her cheeks were as white as her kerchief, that her eyes were dark wells of unshed tears. She knew only that at last he was bowing, he was turning, in a moment more he would be gone—

But just short of that point he stopped, and all motion around her appeared to stop, as a noise down the corridor plotted out every sound in the garden,—the noise of a great body of people rousing the echoes with jubilant shouting.

"The King! The King!" could be heard again and again, and after it a burst of deafening cheers that drowned the rest.

Listening, everyone stood motionless as the babel came nearer with a swiftness which spoke much for the speed of the shouters. Only Randalin's little red shoe began to tap the earth impatiently. What did it matter what they said?

"Hail to Canute of Denmark!" "Hail to the King of the Danes and—"
Again cheers drowned the rest.

The pages, who had sped at the first alarm like a covey of gray birds, came panting back, tumbling over one another in their efforts to impart the news. Elfgiva caught the nearest and shook him until his teeth chattered; and in the lull, the swelling shout reached them for the first time unbroken: "Honor to the King! Hail to the King of the Danes and the Angles!"

From the Lord of Ivarsdale came a cry, sharp as though a heart-string had snapped in its utterance, the tie that for generations had bound those of his blood to the house of Cordic. "Edmund?"

The mob of soldiers and servants that burst through the doorway answered his question with exultant shouts: "Edmund is dead! Edmund is dead! Long live Canute the King! King of the Danes and the Angles!"

Unbidden, memory raised before Randalin a picture of the English camp-fire in the glade, with the English King standing in its light and the hooded figure bending from the shadow behind him, its white taloned hand resting on his sleeve. If he was dead, he was dead, and there was no more to be said. Was the Ethelung always going to stand as though he were turned to stone? Would he never—

Ah, at last he was moving! As if the news had only just reached home to him, she saw him draw himself together sharply and stride toward the door; and she watched feverishly to see if anyone would think to stop him. One group he passed—and another—and another—now he was on the threshold. Now he was out of sight.

She let her suspended breath go from her in a long sigh. "It is good that everyone is too excited to notice what I do," she said to herself. And even as she said it she realized that her limbs were shaking under her that she was sick unto faintness. Staggering to a little bench under one of the old oaks, she sank down upon it and leaned her head against the tree trunk and waited.

CHAPTER XX.
A Blood-stained Crown.
"Tata!" That was the pet name which Elfgiva had given to her Danish attendant because it signified "the lively one." "Tata! I have looked everywhere for you!" The pat of light feet, a swish of silken skirts, and Dearwyn had thrown herself up on the bench under the oak tree, her little dimpled face radiant. Only think that Elfgiva will be a queen and she shall all go to London! As the only adequate means of expression, she threw her arms around her friend in a rapturous embrace.

"What is the matter with you that you are so silent as to your tongue, when you must needs be shouting in your heart?" Disengaging herself gently, she climbed upon the bench as she chattered. "The messenger had a leather bag around his neck which I think likely contains Edmund's crown and—Ah, Tata, look! Thorkel is holding it up!"

Yes, it was Edmund's crown. Again, a picture of the English camp-fire rose before her, and she shivered as she recognized the graceful pearly points she had last seen upon the Ironside's stately head. Now Thorkel was setting them above the Danish circlet on Canute's shining locks, while the shouts merged into a roar of acclamation.

"But why does he look so strange?" Randalin said suddenly.
And Dearwyn laid a finger on her lip. "Hush! At last he is going to speak."

Canute, was bending toward the messenger, holding him with his glance. "Tell more news, messenger," he was saying sternly. "Tell about the cause of my royal brother's death."

The messenger seemed to lose what little breath he rode on the shoulders of the crowd had left him. "My errand extends no further," he panted. "It is likely that the Earl will send you more news—I am but the first—"

His breath gave out in an inarticulate gasp, and he began to back away.
But the King moved after him. "Stop!" he commanded,—or it may be that I will cause you to remain quiet for the rest of time. You must know what separated his life from his body. Tell it."

Stammering with terror, the man fell upon his knees. "Dispenser of treasures, how should I know? The babblings of the ignorant rust not be repeated. Many say that the Ironside was worn sick with fighting."

"You lie!" Canute roared down upon him. "You know they say that Edric murdered him."
At that, the poor fool seemed to cast to the winds his last shred of sense. "They do say that the Earl poisoned him," he blubbered. "But none say that you bade him to do it. No one dares to say that."

"How could they say that?" Randalin cried in amazement, while the King drew back as though the growling figure at his feet were a dog that had bitten him.
"I hid him do it?" he repeated. All at once his face was so terrible that the man began to crawl backward, screaming, even before Canute's hand had reached his hilt.

Before the blade could be drawn, Rother had stepped in front of his royal foster-brother with a savage sweep of his handless arm. "Do not waste your point on the churl, King," he said in his bull's voice. "If you want to play this game further, deal with me,—for I also believe that you bade the Gainer murder Edmund."

As though paralyzed by his amazement, Canute's arm dropped by his side. "You also believe it?"
Little Dearwyn hid her face on the Danish girl's breast. "Oh, Randalin, would he do such a deed?" she gasped. "The while that he seemed so kind and gentle with us. Would he do such horrid wickedness?"

"No!" Randalin cried passionately. "No!"
But even as she cried it, Thorkel the Tall dared to lean forward and give the royal shoulder a rallying slap. Amleth himself never played a game better," he said; "but is it worth while to continue at it when no Englishmen are watching?" And his words seemed to open a door against which the others were crowding.

"King Canute, I willingly admit myself the blockhead you called me," Ulf Jarl hastened to declare in his good-natured roar. "When I saw you took your point away from Edmund's breast, that day, my heart got afraid that you were obliged to do it to save yourself. Even after I heard how you had made a bargain to inherit after each other, I never suspected what kind of a plan was in your mind."

Standing in silent listening, Canute's gaze traveled from face to face until it came to the spot where Elfgiva fluttered among her women, holding her exquisite head as if it already wore a crown. An odd gleam flickered over his eyes, and he made a step toward her. "You!" he said. "What do you believe?"

Pealing her silvery laughter, she turned toward him, her eyes peeping at him like bright birds from under the eaves of her hood. "Lord, I believe that I am afraid of you!" she coquetted. "When I bethink me that all the time I have been chiding you for being unambitious for glory, you have had this in your mind!" Laughing, she stooped and kissed his hand with the first semblance of respect which she had ever shown him.

His face was curiously still as he regarded the beautiful Elfgiva,—and stiller, as though he were examining some familiar object in a new light. "You believe that I had him murdered?" he asked. "And you find pleasure in believing it?"

"Now, it is not murder," she protested. "When a king kills—in war—"

"But this is not war," he said slowly. Lifting one of the jeweled braids from her shoulder, he played with it as he studied her. "This is not war, for I had reconciled myself to him. I had plighted faith with Edmund Ethelredsson and vowed to avenge his death like a brother."

Her white forehead drew itself into a puzzled frown. "But you were not so foolish as to swear it on the holy ring were you?" When he did not answer, she raised her shoulders lightly. "What should I know about such matters? Have you not told me, many times and oft, that it behooves a woman to shun meddling with great affairs?"

He gave a short laugh. "And when were you ever before content to follow that advice?" Letting the braid slip from his fingers, he stood looking her up and down, his lips curling with scorn.

Randalin spoke abruptly to her companion. "Dearwyn, I can tell you something. Elfgiva will never get the queenship over England."

"What moves you to say that?" the little English girl asked, her startled. But Randalin's attention had gone back to the King, who had turned where the son of Loabrok waited regarding him over sternly-folded arms.

"Brother," he was saying gravely, "your opinion is powerful with me, so I will openly tell you that you are wrong in your belief. Never have I so much as hinted to yonder peace-nitching a word of harm against Edmund Ironside."

From Thorkel the Tall came one of his rare laughs,—a sound like the grating of a rusty hinge,—Rother unfolded his arms to fling them out in angry rejection.

"This is useful to learn!" he sneered. "Do you think I could not guess that you had no need to put your desire into words after you had shown Edric by your actions that your mind and his are one, after you had admitted by your bond with him that you hold the same curious belief about honor?"

This time it was Randalin who clutched the English girl. "Oh!" she gasped.
For Canute's eyes were less like eyes than holes through which light was pouring, while his fingers opened and shut as though he had forgotten his sword and would leap upon the scoffer with bare hands.

Thorkel left off laughing to grasp the Jotun's arm and try to drag him backwards. "Do you want to drive it from his mind that he has loved you? Go hide yourself in Penari's mouth!" (To be continued.)

SWEET PEAS KILL FLIES.
Druggist Makes a Discovery of Value to the World.
A local druggist has found a new agent for the destruction of flies that for activity and effectiveness discounts anything heretofore offered for that purpose. And not only is it harmless, but it is a thing of beauty as well. After selling annually thousands of sheets of fly paper of the sticky and poisoned varieties and a ton more or less of insect powder, the new antidote for the pest bids fair to supersede all previous methods with him and those of his friends who are in on the secret.

For several days the druggist, who is a lover of flowers, has had upon his front cases bunches of sweet peas of a variety grown originally in California and but recently cultivated in this section of the country. Each morning after opening up the store he has found collected around the base of the vessel containing the peas quite an accumulation of dead flies.

For the first day or so he regarded the mass of defunct dipterous insects as an accidental gathering in the neighborhood of the flowers, but curiosity prompted him later to watch the conduct of the few flies left in the store. It was observed that the peas were freshly plucked that immediately after their being placed in the vases those flies in the vicinity swarmed upon the petals and proceeded to fasten themselves there. Shortly afterward they fell from their positions, dead.

It is presumed that the odor of the peas attracted them first and that afterward they absorbed some poisonous exudation that the flowers possess and died in consequence. So far as known the peas possess no toxic effect upon the human being.—Springfield Journal.

INDIANS AT SCHOOL.

WHITE MAN'S INSTITUTION IS LIKED BY THE MOQUIS.

Little Ones Climb Down Immense Rock to Get Instruction, and Teachers Praise Their Good Behavior During Lesson Hours.

The home of the Oraibi branch of the Moqui Indians is a mesa 500 feet high, upon which the old Indians practice the snake dance and other favorite ceremonies of the tribe. But it is probable that the coming generation, or, perhaps, the present one, will grow out of these things. The white man, with his school house and other usages of civilization, has found the young Indians and made friends of them.

A few years ago these Indians of the mesa were considered hostile because they exhibited more opposition to the influence of the whites than did the other Moquis. When it was proposed to build a school house at the base of the mesa and to place all the children in school, the parents stubbornly refused to permit it. But a house was built, and after long and persistent effort, every child of proper age was enrolled as a pupil. The Indians, who had so vigorously opposed at first, became zealous friends of the school as soon as they saw the results of it.

The enterprise has been very successful, and now one may stand near the school at 7 o'clock in the morning, and looking up at the plateau, 500 feet above, see suddenly a curious thing. Little children, looking like dolls, begin to appear over the edge of the mesa. One child comes into view behind another, and soon the face of the great rock is alive with the little creatures as they descend, in single file, the steep, zigzag path leading to the base of the mesa and the school. The little folk seem to be hanging to the wall of the immense rock as they slowly descend the face of it. They keep pouring over the edge at the top, and the head of the line has reached the school on the plain below before the last of it leaves the mesa.

When the straggling line comes fully into view, it is nearly a half mile long. A fanciful person might see in its convolutions on the path some resemblance to the movements of a snake, and think of it as the snake dance with which the young Indians have replaced that of their grandfathers.

In this school there are 175 children, and in regularity of attendance it is said to head the list of Indian day schools in all the country. A fine large new building, costing between $3,000 and $4,000, has taken the place of the first schoolhouse. New clothes, such as white children wear, are supplied the pupils when they enter school. The children are fond of their lessons, and the teachers have but few complaints to make of bad behavior.—Youth's Companion.

WERE FRIENDS WITH OFFICERS.
Indians of the Plains Treated Them as Brothers.
"The best friend the Indian ever had was the old-time regular army officer," said T. P. Montgomery, a cattle raiser of Miles City, Mont., "and incidentally, the best friend the young cub officer just of West Point ever had was the old-time Indian. I have lived in Montana, Nebraska and Idaho practically all my life, and I saw and took part in many of the Indian campaigns of twenty and thirty years ago. During the Indian wars I saw hundreds of things to prove to me the bonds of friendship existing between the boy officer and the wily old Indian, even when the latter was on the warpath."

"In the summer of '76, about the time of Custer and the Little Big Horn, I was in Montana. The Cheyenne Sioux were giving the settlers trouble, and two troops of cavalry had been sent after them and were encamped on what is now my own ranch. The old officers at that time had a habit of sending out a lieutenant with three or four men on scouting expeditions.

"One old Indian told me afterward that he and a party of his scouts were in hiding one afternoon when a lieutenant and three privates rode by, looking for them, and less than twenty yards from where the Indians were hidden. Did the Indians shoot? Of course not. They knew the young lieutenant, had probably swapped tobacco with him, and they allowed him to pass by unharmed."

Real Leaders of Men.
Men of genuine excellence in every station of life—men of industry, of integrity, of high principle, of sterling honesty of purpose—command the spontaneous homage of mankind. It is natural to believe in such men, to have confidence in them and to imitate them. All that is good in the world is upheld by them, and without their presence in it the world would not be worth living in.—Samuel Smiles.

First Bomb Outrage.
The first "bomb outrage" was committed on Christmas eve, 1800, by Saint-Napoleon, who wished to remove Napoleon, then first consul, in the interest of the Royalists. Napoleon escaped, but among his escort and the bystanders there were about 130 casualties.

The daily wage for skilled labor in Italy is, for machinists, 55 to 70 cents; masons, 50 to 60 cents; carpenters, 50 to 70 cents, and cotton workers, 30 to 50 cents.

Rest.
My feet are wearied, and my hands are tired.
My soul oppressed—
And I long for what I have long desired—
Rest—only rest.
'Tis hard to tell, when toil is almost vain,
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow, and never garner grain,
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best;
And I have prayed—but vain has been
For rest—sweet rest.
'Tis hard to plant in spring, and never reap
'Tis hard to yield;
'Tis hard to till, and 'tis tilted to weep
'O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry a weak and human cry:
So heart-oppressed—
So sick at soul, a weak and human sigh,
For rest—for rest.
My way has wound across the desert years,
And carries infest
My path, and through the flowing of hot tears,
I pine—for rest.
'Twas always so; when but a child I
On mother's breast
My weary little head; e'en then I
I prayed—
As now—for rest.
And I am restless still; 'twill soon be
'O'er—
For men on the west
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest.

The Tan That Won't Come Off.
Courtleigh looked with mingled astonishment and apprehension at Miss Raquet, as she hurried from the tennis court and bath, her sunburned face in a barrel set outside the clubhouse to catch rain water. The attention Courtleigh had been paying the fair maiden warranted the assumption that he was interested in having her complexion maintained in a good state of preservation.

"Don't you worry," said Miss Tatle. "Nothing sets a tan like cold water. If a girl bathes her sunburn in iced water a few times she will acquire a tan that will endure through the winter, in spite of all the cold cream and skin emollients on earth. It simply won't come off. Gertie will have a tan like a Sandy Hook pilot before she gets back to the city. A girl who wants to stay out in the sun and still go back to town without tan bathes her face in water as hot as she can stand it."

"Cottages" More Like Palaces.
Some idea may be gained as to the size of a Newport "cottage" from statistics regarding the "bal blanche" given there by Mrs. Herman Oelrichs. At one time there were 384 people within the walls of the villa and there were 414 different persons attending at different times. Three hundred and ten persons sat down to supper at one time.

When it was proposed to build a school house at the base of the mesa and to place all the children in school, the parents stubbornly refused to permit it. But a house was built, and after long and persistent effort, every child of proper age was enrolled as a pupil. The Indians, who had so vigorously opposed at first, became zealous friends of the school as soon as they saw the results of it.

The enterprise has been very successful, and now one may stand near the school at 7 o'clock in the morning, and looking up at the plateau, 500 feet above, see suddenly a curious thing. Little children, looking like dolls, begin to appear over the edge of the mesa. One child comes into view behind another, and soon the face of the great rock is alive with the little creatures as they descend, in single file, the steep, zigzag path leading to the base of the mesa and the school. The little folk seem to be hanging to the wall of the immense rock as they slowly descend the face of it. They keep pouring over the edge at the top, and the head of the line has reached the school on the plain below before the last of it leaves the mesa.

When the straggling line comes fully into view, it is nearly a half mile long. A fanciful person might see in its convolutions on the path some resemblance to the movements of a snake, and think of it as the snake dance with which the young Indians have replaced that of their grandfathers.

In this school there are 175 children, and in regularity of attendance it is said to head the list of Indian day schools in all the country. A fine large new building, costing between $3,000 and $4,000, has taken the place of the first schoolhouse. New clothes, such as white children wear, are supplied the pupils when they enter school. The children are fond of their lessons, and the teachers have but few complaints to make of bad behavior.—Youth's Companion.

WERE FRIENDS WITH OFFICERS.
Indians of the Plains Treated Them as Brothers.

"In the summer of '76, about the time of Custer and the Little Big Horn, I was in Montana. The Cheyenne Sioux were giving the settlers trouble, and two troops of cavalry had been sent after them and were encamped on what is now my own ranch. The old officers at that time had a habit of sending out a lieutenant with three or four men on scouting expeditions.

"One old Indian told me afterward that he and a party of his scouts were in hiding one afternoon when a lieutenant and three privates rode by, looking for them, and less than twenty yards from where the Indians were hidden. Did the Indians shoot? Of course not. They knew the young lieutenant, had probably swapped tobacco with him, and they allowed him to pass by unharmed."

Real Leaders of Men.
Men of genuine excellence in every station of life—men of industry, of integrity, of high principle, of sterling honesty of purpose—command the spontaneous homage of mankind. It is natural to believe in such men, to have confidence in them and to imitate them. All that is good in the world is upheld by them, and without their presence in it the world would not be worth living in.—Samuel Smiles.

First Bomb Outrage.
The first "bomb outrage" was committed on Christmas eve, 1800, by Saint-Napoleon, who wished to remove Napoleon, then first consul, in the interest of the Royalists. Napoleon escaped, but among his escort and the bystanders there were about 130 casualties.

The daily wage for skilled labor in Italy is, for machinists, 55 to 70 cents; masons, 50 to 60 cents; carpenters, 50 to 70 cents, and cotton workers, 30 to 50 cents.

Rest.
My feet are wearied, and my hands are tired.
My soul oppressed—
And I long for what I have long desired—
Rest—only rest.
'Tis hard to tell, when toil is almost vain,
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow, and never garner grain,
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best;
And I have prayed—but vain has been
For rest—sweet rest.
'Tis hard to plant in spring, and never reap
'Tis hard to yield;
'Tis hard to till, and 'tis tilted to weep
'O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry a weak and human cry:
So heart-oppressed—
So sick at soul, a weak and human sigh,
For rest—for rest.
My way has wound across the desert years,
And carries infest
My path, and through the flowing of hot tears,
I pine—for rest.
'Twas always so; when but a child I
On mother's breast
My weary little head; e'en then I
I prayed—
As now—for rest.
And I am restless still; 'twill soon be
'O'er—
For men on the west
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest.

The Tan That Won't Come Off.
Courtleigh looked with mingled astonishment and apprehension at Miss Raquet, as she hurried from the tennis court and bath, her sunburned face in a barrel set outside the clubhouse to catch rain water. The attention Courtleigh had been paying the fair maiden warranted the assumption that he was interested in having her complexion maintained in a good state of preservation.

"Don't you worry," said Miss Tatle. "Nothing sets a tan like cold water. If a girl bathes her sunburn in iced water a few times she will acquire a tan that will endure through the winter, in spite of all the cold cream and skin emollients on earth. It simply won't come off. Gertie will have a tan like a Sandy Hook pilot before she gets back to the city. A girl who wants to stay out in the sun and still go back to town without tan bathes her face in water as hot as she can stand it."

"Cottages" More Like Palaces.
Some idea may be gained as to the size of a Newport "cottage" from statistics regarding the "bal blanche" given there by Mrs. Herman Oelrichs. At one time there were 384 people within the walls of the villa and there were 414 different persons attending at different times. Three hundred and ten persons sat down to supper at one time.

Work of British "Grafters."

According to the committee of public accounts, wholesale "grafting" prevailed on the British side during the Boer war. For example, out of a total sum of $6,250,000 issued to the imperial yeomanry committee, $2,230,000 can not be accounted for. Of 999 mules shipped to Beira, on the South African coast, 158 died at sea and the remaining 841 "can not be traced further than Beira." As for remounts, out of 617,000 horses and 155,000 mules supposed to have been sent to Africa, 34,468 horses and 5,862 mules can not be accounted for.

Laughter and Dyspepsia.
Laughter stimulates the digestive process, accelerates the respiration, and gives a warm glow to the whole system. It brightens the eye, expands the chest, forces the poison out from the least-used lung cells, fills them with life-giving oxygen, and tends to restore that exquisite poise or balance which we call health. If there is anything we need to learn, it is to laugh at meals. There is no tabernacle like it. It is the great enemy of dyspepsia.

Miss Hapgood tells how she escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for four years with what the doctors called Salpingitis (inflammation of the fallopian tubes and ovaries), which is a most distressing and painful ailment, affecting all the surrounding parts, undermining the constitution, and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago, before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and had noticed the swollen eyes, sallow complexion and general emaciated condition, and compared that person with me as I am today, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to you and your wonderful medicine, which restored me to new life and health in five months, and saved me from an awful operation."—Miss Lucretia Hapgood, 1023 Sandwich St. Windsor, Ont.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries or fallopian tubes which adjoin the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries, indicated by dull throbbing pain in the side, accompanied by heat and shooting pains, should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital course with its terrors, may easily result from neglect.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

A Fall Race Meeting.

The management at Saginaw is to give a fall race meeting next week at Union Park. Those of our people who attended the summer meeting will remember the sensational racing of that meeting and will feel like going again. One thing can be said of the Saginaw races and that is that they are free from suspicious holding of horses, that should win, and the management is to be commended for its zeal in giving the patrons of racing their money's worth. This meeting is in no way connected with a fair and is in every sense a fall race meeting with $300 and $400, certainly very liberal offerings for fall events, and purses that will bring the cream of the country together for the last meeting of the season.

GOOD ADVICE.

Oh, when you're in doubt, Don't rummage about Among the political jobbers, The grafters and crooks Who're out with their hooks, Or even the smooth-tongued train robbers. Walk up to the polls When round the day rolls Nor wait for the bosses' permission, And drop one in marked "Prohibition."

He who fails to vote for what appeals to him as the best thing for society in general, regardless of personal interest, fails to do his highest duty. He betrays the trust which has been bestowed upon him; he has failed to do his duty to mankind.

A CHILD'S QUESTIONS.

"Papa, what is a prohibitionist?"
"A person who tries to make the people drink more whisky?"
"How do prohibitionists make men drink more whisky?"
"By passing a senseless law aga inst making and selling intoxicating drinks."
"How does this law lead men to drink?"
"Because they will not obey it my son."
"Is it good to drink intoxicating liquors, papa?"
"No, my son, I hope you will never drink them."
"What do men make them for?"
"Well, chiefly for drinking."
"If it is bad to drink them is it right to make them?"
"My son, you do not understand these things."
"No, I do not. But papa, would not good people obey the law?"
"Oh! yes; but there are very many bad people."
"Do the bad people obey any law?"
"Well, no; I am afraid not willingly."
"Is there a law against stealing?"
"Certainly, my son."
"Does it make men steal?"
"My son, I think it is time for you to go to bed."

Caro business men want to get connections with Bay City by electric road and for that reason are working with might and main to put the Bay City-Caro electric road proposition through the Bay City council. George W. Closson, Prop. of the large Livery Stable and Hack Line, at 187-189 West Main St., and residing at 930 Territorial St., Benton Harbor, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Harry L. Bird's drug store have been used in my family and undoubted results were obtained. My wife first learned of them through her brother-in-law, Mr. J. P. Mitchell, employed as Mail Clerk on the Michigan Central R. Co., between Detroit and Chicago. He advised her to use them and they proved to be an excellent remedy. I heartily join Mrs. Closson in endorsing this valuable medicine. To any one complaining of backache or any of the incidents that follow in the wake of that far too prevalent complaint kidney disease, my advice is, use Doan's Kidney Pills."

Showing What's Doing in All Sections of the State

LOST ARMS.

Two Lads Mangled by Machinery in Shocking Manner. Twelve-year-old Frank LaForest was caught in a saw at the mill of the Detroit Box Co. and had an arm torn off Thursday afternoon.

The LaForest family lives at 425 Gouin street. The father finds it hard to feed his large family, Frank, anxious to lessen his father's burden, found work in the mill, concealing the fact that he was only 12.

"Give me work of any kind," he pleaded, as he applied at the office Thursday morning. "Yes, I am old enough to work."

A few hours later he was carried to St. Mary's hospital, cruelly torn by a big rotary saw.

At Coombs' flouring mill in Coldwater Jay Quint, aged 19, while working was caught in the machinery and his right arm torn off. He was alone, and called for 15 minutes before he was heard.

His mother is ill and the news was kept from her.

Sturgis Has Hold-Ups. Marie Dart, the 18-year-old daughter of Fred Dart, Sturgis, was held up Wednesday night while returning from the Christian Science meeting by an unknown man who grabbed her, covered her face and mouth with his hands, and threw her to the ground.

Her screams attracted the attention of two young men who were coming around the corner at the time. One of them went to the girl's assistance and the other chased her assailant several blocks, when he disappeared in a grove.

These hold-ups are common occurrences, and it is necessary to carry some weapon of defense.

Murder and Suicide. Annie Stenikewicz, 21 years old, was shot and killed Friday night, in the little parlor of her home, Detroit, by her discarded lover, Amos Prommveel, who, a few moments later, sent a bullet into his own body.

He staggered to the yard in the rear of the house, where he fell in a ditch and died. The girl died 15 minutes after she was shot. Prommveel was madly in love with the girl and was extremely jealous of many suitors who sought her hand.

He had frequently threatened to shoot her if she married anyone but him, but no one paid much attention to him.

Cost a Life. Frank H. Bondy, aged 70 years, a respected pioneer of Newport, lost his life trying to play a little joke on a friend. The latter had purchased some things at a drug store, among them a half pint of carbolic acid for a sick horse. His horse and buggy was tied nearby and Bondy climbed into the buggy in his friend's absence and pulled out a bottle in full view of several other friends who were standing about. Raising the flask Bondy took a large swallow, but immediately screamed with pain and alarm. He realized that he had swallowed carbolic acid and was hastily started for Dr. Valade's office, but died before reaching there.

Saved the Boy's Life. E. J. Quint, the Coldwater young man mangled so terribly at Coombs' flouring mill, is in a critical condition. The arm was amputated at the shoulder. If he lives he will owe his life to the prompt action of John Rau, who discovered Quint hanging in the machinery, the arm almost torn off. He saw the blood gushing from an artery. He quickly cut the torn arm off, getting the boy to the torn artery, stopped the flow of blood until medical attendance came.

Died in Prison. Samuel McDonald, aged 24, who was sent to the Detroit house of correction for Leslie, Mich., July 23, for 90 days for larceny, died in prison Thursday night. He showed no signs of illness until noon, when he complained of a pain in the head. McDonald's death was probably due to the bursting of a small blood vessel in the brain, an attack of the prison says. "He had never been punished and his work consisted in doing chores about the yard."

A Girl Tramp. Mary Smith, of Coldwater, Mich., aged 11 years, a girl tramp, was taken in custody by the police at Elkhart, Ind., and taken to the county jail. The girl ran away from Coldwater six weeks ago and made the statement to the officers that she had lived by tramping and beating her way on freight trains, and during this time she covered nearly the entire states of Ohio and Indiana.

Shooter Is Free. The coroner's jury in the case of John Bennett, shot by his employer at Harris, Menominee county, has returned a verdict of accidental death, and Frank Loeffler, who did the shooting, has been released from custody. Loeffler mistook Bennett's gray cap for a partridge.

War Veterans to Meet. The annual reunion of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry Association will be held at Ponton, Mich., Sept. 21. A rate of one and one-third fare has been secured on the railroads.

Shot Man for Partridge. John Benning, of Green Bay, was accidentally killed by Frank Loeffler, of Escanaba, at Harris, Mich. The latter thought he was shooting at a partridge. Under the recent law of Michigan the killing of a hunter in the woods is made a prison offense punishable by five to ten years' imprisonment or $1,000 fine—or both.

The chemical plant of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co. in Gladstone was struck by lightning on Monday and destroyed. Loss $150,000; no insurance.

Colorado Wants Him. An effort will be made by the Colorado authorities to secure the extradition of Robert Romaine, who has confessed to the officers of Topeka, Kas., that he had a part in the Vindicator and Independence explosions in Colorado. Romaine was given an indeterminate sentence Thursday for burglary, and before he can be extradited it will be necessary to secure a pardon from Gov. Bailey.

Romaine says he helped to place the dynamite and wires running beneath the depot and by which the charge was set off, and gave the names of 12 other men who he alleges were implicated with him in the plot.

The men whom Romaine implicates with himself are said to be former officers and members of miners' unions in Cripple Creek. One only of them, believed to be Charles G. Kennison, former president of the Miners' union No. 40, Cripple Creek, is now in the district. Kennison is now in the county jail charged with murder and conspiracy to murder in connection with the Independence depot explosion.

Eenn, in behalf of the congregation, introduced a resolution, expressing hearty good wishes to the retiring pastor, Rev. M. W. Gifford, and his family. It was unanimously adopted by a rising vote and Dr. Gifford replied in a few carefully chosen words. To the officials of the church Dr. Gifford reports a subscription list of between $2,400 and $2,500 raised by private effort to liquidate the debt of $2,250 and interest on the church. The list has been turned over to the trustees.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bauer, of Algonac, and John Bauer, of Sault Ste. Marie, were the guests of their sister, Mrs. Chas. Tallmadge, south of town, the past week, returning home on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bauer, of Fond du Lac, Wis., and Mrs. Dodge, a cousin from Saginaw, also visited her the first of the week returning home on Tuesday. A short time before leaving the Soo, John Bauer, who has attended the locks there for the last twenty years, met with a serious accident.

By a false movement he caught his forefinger in some of the gearing of the machinery and by main force he pulled his finger from his hand, thereby saving his arm and perhaps his life.

Wed at Owosso.

On Wednesday of this week occurred the marriage of Edward Pinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Pinney, of this place, and cashier in the Exchange Bank here, to Miss Ellen Elizabeth Haines, of Owosso. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of about twenty guests, immediate friends of the young people. Mrs. Pinney and C. W. McKenzie, of this place, were among the guests. After a short trip the newly married couple will be "at home" in the groom's neat little residence on Houghton Street, recently vacated by Mrs. W. H. Hebblewhite. The ENTERPRISE joins in extending the heartiest congratulations.

A lad named Ward, son of L. A. Ward, of Wells, was taken in charge by Sheriff Daugherty on Wednesday, having been apprehended in possession of a bicycle stolen from Charles Ennis last week. The boy is detained at the county jail and it is expected that he will be assigned to the reform school at Lansing.—Caro Courier.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjust this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at T. H. Church Dedication.

The new Roman Catholic Church at this place, erected at an approximate cost of $3,500, and named the Church of St. Pancratius, was dedicated on Sunday by Bishop Foley, assisted by the parish priest, Rev. Dwan, also Fathers Stapleton, of Bad Axe; Ryan, of Pontiac, and Brochard, of Reese. The new church was literally packed to the doors for the morning service, but good ventilation and a cool day prevented suffering from heat. The altar was beautifully decorated with geraniums, foliage plants and asters. A special train from Pontiac brought many who were interested, arriving here in time to make a trip to Gagetown and bring the crowds from that section who were anxious to witness the ceremony. The committee of management estimate that fully one thousand people were in attendance as over six hundred were served to dinner in the basement of the church.

The usual ritual service of the church was used for the dedication, after which the Bishop and the assisting clergy made brief addresses. In the afternoon a confirmation service was held when a class of eighty young men and women were confirmed.

The financial receipts for the day amounted to about $300, and the members of the organization here feel very well pleased indeed over the success of the opening and the general outlook, as the building project was started with considerable misgiving as to the outcome. To-day they have a very desirable property with only about $1,800 unprovided for. Rev. Father Dwan, in the name of his congregation gives public thanks to the people of Cass City for their kindness in making the dedication of the church a success and hopes their generosity may be returned a thousand fold.

TYING KNOTS IN JAPAN.

It is a serious art, as a mistake may mean an insult.

Like the arranging of flowers, the tying of knots has been carried to the point of a complex art by the Japanese. There is one way—one right way, that is—to knot the cord that confines a birthday or New Year's present. There is one way to tie the broad bag of the tea jar when the latter is empty and another when it is full. Not only general ignorance of social customs but deadly insults may be communicated by the way a knot is tied, foreigners often making dreadful mistakes either through not knowing or from ignoring the niceties of knot etiquette.

Books and eyes, buttons and buckles are unknown so far as Japanese dress is concerned. They do not have time to fasten, but what they do have they fasten with cord. That is why they have carried the tying of cord so far. The Japanese have hundreds of ornamental knots, some of them so old that they antedate written history.

Japanese children are taught to make knots just as they are taught to write and draw. All sorts of flower and animal forms are copied. There is the chrysanthemum knot, the iris knot, plum blossom, pine tree and cherry blossom knots. There is a stork knot, a turtle knot, a knot named for the sacred mountain Fujiyama. An easy knot is called the "old man's knot." There is also an "old woman's knot."

THE PARISIAN LUNCH.

A Substantial Meal Served in the Middle of the Day.

Noon or 12:30 is the universal hour for the strictly Parisian lunch, which commences with "hors d'oeuvres," appetizers eaten with butter—the only time butter is ever served on a French table.

The endless variety of "hors d'oeuvres" would fill a volume—sardines, shrimps, olives, radishes. Tiny salads of every description are included among them.

An egg or fish course follows, and the various ways in which both are cooked would also fill a volume. Next the meat is served—beef, mutton, lamb or veal—accompanied by one vegetable or a salad. If a vegetable, the salad follows as a separate course with fowl, game or cold meat of some kind. If a salad is the accessory for the meat then some vegetable comes after it as a single course preceding the cheese—never omitted—and which with fruit of some kind forms the dessert. Between the salad and cheese course a sweet dish, an "entremet," consisting of a custard, cream, tart or the like, is often served, but cheese and fruit are usually allowed the honors of the ordinary average luncheon dessert topped off with a good cup of coffee and a tiny glass of some liqueur.—What to Eat.

A Simple Question.

"May a man marry his widow's sister?" was a question I heard put to a prominent lawyer.

"Certainly he may," was the reply without a moment's hesitation. Then the lawyer had another think coming.—Albany Journal.

Good for Hillside.

In yesterday's report of the State Fair, as given by the Detroit Tribune, we find the following:

"The exhibit of John Marshall & Son, of Cass City, cannot be overlooked when the summing up is made. The fact that Mr. Marshall's aged bull won first from Kintore Hero speaks well for this herd from the Thumb and as the herd contains many young animals sired by this great bull more will be heard from these cattle a little later on. The Marshall cattle won their share of the premiums and the fact that they had not been fitted for the event argues greatly in their favor."

A man may earn a great deal of money and still not be well off. It is how much he saves not how much he earns that counts when the trial balance is taken.
