

Water unsafe to drink at three homes

By Mike Eliasohn

Residents of three homes on Doerr Road have been advised not to drink water from their wells because it is polluted with chemicals.

The state Department of Natural Resources will be testing to determine if the chemicals come from the nearby Walbro plant on Garfield Street. Evidence so far suggests it is not the source.

It was because of chemicals Walbro uses and wants to use that the contamination in the home wells was discovered.

In July, 1979, under orders from the DNR, the firm ceased disposing of 4,500 gallons of liquid waste per day into an underground pit on its property, from which it slowly seeped into the ground.

The waste consisted primarily of water, but also contained chemicals used to fill pores in carburetor castings, promote curing of resin, and as cleaning agents.

Since then, Walbro has had to pay a waste hauler to truck the liquid to a Detroit area waste disposal firm, which solidifies the material and then disposes of it in an approved landfill.

Because of reduced carburetor production, the amount disposed of presently, according to Walbro Director of Purchasing Bill Ewald, is "way down." He guessed the amount now is only 8,000 gallons a week.

Of the chemicals used, the main one of concern has been Metaseal, used for filling pores, which contains 40 percent styrene. Styrene is a suspected cancer causing agent. It has not been found so far in the home wells.

DISCOVERY

The DNR first learned of Walbro's underground disposal in mid-1978, which eventually led to its orders to cease the underground disposal.

Walbro also had to agree to have test wells sunk in order to determine if any of the contamination from the underground disposal had spread and affected underground water supplies. Sixteen test wells have been drilled.

According to William Iversen of the DNR's hydrogeological section, samples of water taken from the test wells showed styrene only close to where the discharge was.

As an added precaution, testing was also done at five homes on Doerr Road. Water samples were taken by the Tuscola County Health Department in October, December and January.

According to Ed Kimbrue, the department's director of environmental health, at one home, the water contained 18 parts per billion of trichloroethylene (TCE) and at another, 350. TCE is a chemical compound used mainly as a degreasing agent.

Occupants of those two homes were told Jan. 8 to no longer drink their water.

At a third home, traces of as yet undetermined chemicals were found after the third sample was taken and the occupants there were advised Feb. 2 to obtain their drinking water elsewhere.

WHAT NEXT?

What happens now, Iversen said, is that samples of water from the Walbro test wells will be tested later this month specifically for TCE. A determination will also be made what compounds are in the water at the third home.

If a link is established between the TCE in the home wells and at Walbro, Iversen said Walbro would be directed to eventually undertake measures to clean up the problem.

That might mean having to pump out the ground water in the vicinity for proper disposal elsewhere, a process the official admitted, "certainly isn't cheap."

"We've never used it

(TCE) to my knowledge," Ewald said.

If, indeed, the TCE didn't come from Walbro, Iversen commented, "That becomes a real bear," meaning that tracing it would be more difficult.

One possible source, he suggested, might be from the homes themselves. TCE is used in some home cleaning products, so might have gotten into the wells from the home septic systems.

The solution for the homeowners, no matter where it might be coming from, will Please turn to page 17.

AMID THE RUBBLE can be seen, at left, the car of Jim Neiman. The garage, which belonged to his father, Bob Neiman, on M-81, burned Wednesday, Feb. 4, with loss estimated at $15,000. Fortunately, the fuel storage tank was empty.

$15,000 loss as garage, car, and tractor burn

Loss was estimated at $15,000 in a fire last Wednesday afternoon that destroyed a garage on M-81, east of Dodge Road.

Owner of the structure was Robert Neiman.

Contents included a 1963 Chevrolet, belonging to his son, Jim, tractor, brush cutter, acetylene tanks, many tools and various other items.

Cause of the fire could not be determined, according to Elkland Township Fire Chief Dave McNaughton. Firemen received the call about 2:30 p.m.

The wood garage with metal roof had a wood burning heater and electricity.

Jim Neiman had been working on his car in the garage, but the fire in the heater was apparently out when he left.

Some time after that, Robert Neiman, who was in his house, heard what he thought was a car door slam. He looked out and saw smoke. He called the fire department. By the time he got to the garage after that, it was in flames.

McNaughton said the acetylene tanks and gasoline in the car's tank exploded before firemen arrived.

They were there about 1 1/4 hours.

Elkland firemen were called to the Ken Grady residence on Woodland Street, two blocks south of Main, at 5:50 p.m. Friday because of a chimney fire.

Creosote inside the chimney, which led to a wood burning heater, had ignited.

By the time firemen arrived, Fire Chief Dave McNaughton said, the fire had calmed down. They stood by for about 10 minutes, to make sure the sparks burned themselves out. There was no damage.

Harmer's complaints fail to stir board

Clayton Harmer of Deford harangued the Cass City School Board Monday night with a long list of complaints about the way the school was operated in general and treats his children in particular.

In his list of complaints Harmer accused the school of:

- Showing favoritism to certain students over others. He went on to say that the administration "didn't like my family and I can prove it" and then vowed to "take his complaint to the State."

- Operating buses for purposes other than transporting students. Claimed that one bus he clocked ran around town five times without students and that other buses were parked at the Big D Restaurant.

- Feels school should have smoking room for 18-year-old students if smoking is allowed in the teachers' lounge.

Harmer feels that his children have been discriminated against by suspensions and undue discipline.

After listening to Harmer's request to have a suspension stricken from his son's record, the board took no action thereby denying the request.

Supt. Donald Crouse said that if Harmer's statement was true, that the bus was driven through town five times one morning, he should have told the administration prior to the meeting so that the driver could come and tell his side of the story. Harmer replied he wasn't after the driver.

While Harmer was suggesting a smoking room for young adults, the board adopted a policy to try to eliminate smoking by students in restrooms.

Accordingly a set of rules was adopted. A proposal to cut down partitions was rejected. However, more than one student in a partitioned area will be cause for suspension. Teachers say that students crowd into the areas to smoke. First offense is a 3-day suspension. Second offense is 5 days and third offense is 10 days. Lesser penalties for other infractions were authorized.

The smoking problem was first aired at the January meeting. Another problem that was presented then was also acted upon. It is a change in the confidentiality of student's records. Slight changes were made to conform with existing laws as required by the Federal government.

Another federal requirement was met when the board adopted new guidelines for free and reduced price lunches. The change was in the amount families could earn and still qualify for the meals. The changes made it slightly harder to qualify but Supt. Crouse said that it affected only one family in the district.

The hot lunch program was the subject of a complaint by Mrs. Rita Capps. She appeared before the board to complain about milk that was served about two weeks after the expiration date.

She also was critical of the variety served in the cafeteria. The board took no action on the complaints.

HOLD DRAWINGS

To clear up questions of seniority among teachers the school will conduct 10 or more drawings. The method will be used to determine positions on the seniority list for teachers hired the same day. It goes back 15 or so years and affects roughly 25 teachers. Leo Gengler told the board that it really didn't affect teachers with long service but could be important to recently hired teachers in case of lay-offs.

In another phase concerning seniority Gail Narker asked that administrators be dropped from the seniority lists. The board rejected this, feeling that the years that administrators served the district should be counted.

In another action concerning administrators the board adopted a resolution allowing them to participate in the Michigan Association of School Boards annuity programs. There is no additional expense to the school but the resolution was needed for eligibility.

BUDGET AMENDED

The board approved an amended budget. Revenues were practically the same while expenditures dropped slightly. The bad news is that the school is projected to operate $154,626 in the red and that will eat into the

Crouse freezes salary for year

Supt. Donald Crouse announced Monday at the regular meeting of the Cass City School Board that he will not be asking for any adjustment in his salary for the 1981-82 school year.

Crouse said that he made the decision because of the financial condition of the school. Reduced enrollment, State Aid adjustments and inflation have created a financial bind at the school.

Crouse said that he had no recommendations for the remainder of the administrative staff at this time.

Teachers will not be affected by the freeze in wages for the superintendent. They are in the second year of a three-year contract and will receive a wage increase of about 10 percent.

NEVER ENDING -- Or at least it must have seemed that way for snowplow drivers Tuesday, as they struggled to keep roads open to traffic. Although Cass City streets, state highways and some county roads were kept open, many rural roads were impassable. (Story on page 20.)

Cass City loses $90,000

Schools feel financial pinch from sharply cut state aid

By Mike Eliasohn

Area school superintendents received the news last week they haven't been looking forward to, the amount of state aid their districts will receive this year.

What the computer printouts from the state Department of Education show is a drastic reduction in the amount of aid they will receive from Lansing, compared to last year, despite a sharp increase in costs.

What it will mean, the superintendents say, will be layoffs and requested millage increases.

The Cass City district will receive $89,918 less, from $1.16 million received in 1979-80 to $1.07 million this year.

Owen-Gage, which doesn't receive membership state aid, will receive at least $15,823 less for transportation, vocational education and special education.

The Uby district will lose $141,966 over what it received last year in state aid, from $622,814 in 1979-80 to $480,848 this year.

In 1979-80, the Tuscola Intermediate School District received $3.24 million in state aid. This year, it will receive $2.96 million, a reduction of $284,019.

State aid figures for the Kingston School District couldn't be obtained in time for inclusion in this week's Chronicle.

The figures listed are for the state's fiscal year, which runs from Oct. 1-Sept. 30. School districts' fiscal years begin July 1.

The significance of the figures, which arrived along with quarterly state aid payment checks last week, was that for the first time this school year, superintendents know how much money they will be receiving from Lansing.

When they prepared budgets for approval by their respective boards last fall, they had to make an educated guess as to what their state aid would be, which wasn't always close to actuality.

The amount Uby will actually receive is $87,000 short of the estimate contained in its original budget.

All districts except Owen-Gage receive membership state aid and some of the loss can be attributed to a decline in enrollment. The other big factor is the state's decline in income due to the recession.

Grim as the figures may be, should the economic pinch continue, there could be a further cut in state aid. In addition, some state aid comes from the federal government, which is funneled through Lansing, such as for special education.

Some federal money goes directly to schools. In the Cass City district, for instance, federal funds pay the salaries of all but one teacher aide and for the remedial reading program.

Should the Reagan administration cut funds for education, that will have an effect on school programs.

CASS CITY

Based on the new state aid figures, the Board of Education Monday night approved a revised 1980-81 budget. (See above story.)

Prior to the meeting, Supt. Donald Crouse predicted, "I'm sure the way things are, we're going to have to have a millage increase or make some rather severe cuts in programs."

Although a reduction in state aid of $87,000 doesn't sound like a lot out of a total budget of $3.17 million (of which state aid pays about a third), he pointed out that it is still a significant amount.

Counseling for children available

Catholic Family Service of the Thumb has announced formation of several groups which will afford participants an opportunity for personal growth and development.

Group counseling for children will begin soon. There will be groups for children 6-8 years of age; 9-12, 12-14 and 15-18.

Children in single parent families, blended families or families faced with unusual stress will be afforded the opportunity to deal with the issues, their feelings and appropriate ways to cope. In addition, they will learn to deal with peer pressure, values clarification and school adjustments.

For more information regarding the date each group will begin, and the fee involved, or to register, call Catholic Family Service at 269-7931 in Bad Axe or 648-2304 in Sandusky.

Ella Mae and Dean Weltin

Ella Mae Peter of Ubyly, and Dean William Weltin of Warren were married Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Free Methodist church in Bad Axe.

Rev. Ray Dan Shinabarger performed the single-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Peter and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Weltin, all of Ubyly.

Carol Peter and Janet Peter, both sisters of the bride, and Annette Weltin, sister of the groom, sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Rose."

The bride wore a gown of white Qiana knit featuring a modified Queen Anne neckline outlined with silk Venice lace and long, cuffed bishop sleeves. The full circular skirt fell from an empire waistline and was styled with a full chapel-length train.

Her hat was a Swiss braid derby-style trimmed with matching lace medallions, detailed with a silk illusion veil with hand-rolled edges and bowed in the back with fingertip-length butterfly streamers.

She carried a bouquet of red rosebuds.

Denise Lamke, friend of the couple, was the maid of honor.

She wore a floor-length gown of burntwood Silesta knit with an ivory Schiffli embroidery see-thru yoke small Peter Pan collar, long sleeves with ivory Schiffli embroidery inset at the wrist, and a full circular skirt. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds.

Donald Harris, friend of the couple, was the best man.

Robert Plotter and David Guigar, both friends of the couple, were the ushers.

The reception was held at the Rapson Sportsmen's Club.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Ubyly High School and is a nurse's aide, formerly employed at Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe.

The groom is a 1980 graduate of Ubyly High School and is a meatcutter at Merry Time Meats in Warren.

The couple will reside in Warren.

Cass City Rotary entertained the farmers Tuesday noon and learned about Michigan Livestock Exchange.

The yard at the corner of M-53 and M-81 is big business, grossing nearly $59 million yearly and handling 4,265 carloads of livestock yearly.

It's the largest yard in terms of livestock handled east of Chicago.

Judy Woody of Cadillac writes that members of Chambers of Commerce should stick together. (She works for one now.)

After reading in this trivia that information about Arizona was needed and not received she sent me some she had.

Never one to overlook an opportunity, she also slipped in a visitor's guide to Cadillac.

A new newsstand for Kingston area readers starts this week (weather permitting) at Kingston Party Store.

In defense of the folks at Cass City Schools who run the hot lunch program I submit that when you eat out at the same place every day you become tired of it no matter how good the restaurant and the food.

Ask any student about the food in the dorms at colleges, for instance, and it's a rare exception when they don't tell you it stinks.

It could just be that hot lunch programs could be on the way out under the new Reagan administration. Costs of the program are one of the areas under close scrutiny. Without the Federal aid it's a lead pipe cinch that everyone will be brown bagging it at lunchtime.

There will be no mail deliveries Monday because of President's Day, a federal holiday, so we would appreciate your sending us your news and other items a day earlier, if possible.

Good Shepherd church installs Rev. Fruendt as new pastor

After serving four years as pastor of a church with 800 members, Rev. Allen R. Fruendt is looking forward to serving a smaller congregation where he can get to know his parishioners better.

The new pastor of the Good Shepherd Lutheran church was installed Sunday. The installation was supposed to be the Sunday before, Feb. 1, but was postponed due to the snow storm that day.

Rev. Fruendt, 35, was born on a small farm outside of Guernsey, Iowa. There was livestock on the farm, but no dairy cows, Guernsey or otherwise.

He attended a Lutheran elementary school, public high school, then Concordia Junior College in St. Paul, Minn. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Concordia Senior College in Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1976. He received his master of divinity degree from Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., in 1971.

He and his wife, Ann, were married in 1970. They now have three children, Christopher, 8, Jennifer, 5, and Jonathan, 2.

Mrs. Fruendt is a registered nurse and plans to work part-time in Cass City in her profession, probably starting this summer.

Rev. Fruendt's first pastorate was at Zion Lutheran church in Scotia, Neb., from 1971-77.

From a town of 450 and a church of 220 members, he went to Centralia, a town of 45,000 in southern Illinois, where he served from 1977 until coming to Cass City. He was the lone minister for a congregation of 880 communicant members (those who have gone through communion, usually about age 13 and up).

The minister found he was spending most of his time dealing with administration, and going from Sunday sermon to funeral to wedding, without having enough time to think and to get to know his parishioners better.

That led to his decision to seek another church to serve and ultimately to accept the offer of the pastorate at Good Shepherd.

"That place was too large for me," he said of the church in Centralia. "I enjoy the closeness of a smaller congregation. You have a family feeling, rather than a business feeling."

Good Shepherd has about 400 communicant members and 560 baptized.

The new minister here replaces Rev. James Van Dellen, who left at the end of May for a church in Lake Orion, and Rev. John Riske of St. Peter Lutheran church in Bach, who served as interim pastor.

"If It Fitz. . ." Touched by a machine

By Jim Fitzgerald

In this amazing age of Miracle Whip, I was fully aware that human beings often make phone calls that are answered by machines. But I didn't know machines called up human beings. If I'd known that, I would have had a machine instead of a human being for a son.

I was waiting for an important phone call. In spite of all that reach-out-and-touch-someone mush on TV, I think phones should be used for important calls only. Electronic touching is not important. It can be important to use a phone to arrange a rendezvous, but it's a criminal waste of human resources to have the rendezvous over the phone.

For instance, in listing possible marriage partners for Prince Charles of England, the Daily Mail of London reported: "There is talk that a meeting has been arranged between Prince Charles and his cousin, blue-eyed, blonde Baroness Alexandra. Maria von Holzhausen of Austria." It would be acceptable to arrange this meeting by phone, but it would not be touching for a prince to use the phone to ask his beautiful cousin if she would give up her lower-case v to become the future queen of England.

Naturally, many important phone calls involve emergencies. That's the type of call I was expecting the evening the machine called me up. My wife had driven 60 miles south to deposit our son at college, and she had promised to be back home by 6 p.m. unless she phoned otherwise. By 7 p.m. there was still no wife, and no phone call. I knew that only some sort of an emergency would force her to force me to risk melting my own dinner. The last time I opened the freezer compartment of the refrigerator, a roast of beef fell out on my foot. I cursed for a week and limped for a month.

The freeway was slippery that day. I figured my wife's car had slipped into a ditch, and I envisioned her tramping the frozen tundra, bent against the blizzard, trying bravely to reach a phone booth in time to save me from another broken foot. I refused to even consider the terrifying possibility of anything more damaging than a soft skid happening to her, especially at a time when this nation is confronted by a cruel shortage of peanut butter.

During my hours of hungry agonizing, the phone rang only once. A female voice said it was a recording and my order was ready to be picked up at Sears. What? What?

The recorded voice also gave the address of the Sears store where the order was waiting, and a phone number to call if I had any questions. But I didn't quite get the address and number. I was too stunned at receiving a call from a machine. I asked the machine to repeat the numbers, which was really intelligent. I also talk back to TV sets.

Never in my life have I ordered anything from Sears. I do all my shopping at cigar counters in the front of poolrooms. I knew that Sears order was for my wife, and I knew she would be unhappy when she got home and learned what a botch I'd made of the message from the Sears machine.

She did get home, safely, at about 8 o'clock, and she was surprised I'd been worried that she'd had an accident and I'd be forced to survive in a world without her and peanut butter. She had been delayed by unforeseen circumstances but had instructed our son to phone and tell me she'd be two hours late.

The son had forgotten to call, a circumstance which could easily have been foreseen. When he and his mother had begun that day's trip, they'd almost headed in the wrong direction because he had forgotten which college he is attending this year.

The moral is that machines are more dependable than human beings, and if Baroness Alexandra Maria von Holzhausen never becomes queen of England, it will probably be because Prince Charles forgot to call her up. She should reach out and touch Sears.

Elkland oks

The Elkland Township Board Monday evening approved issuing a Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act (Public Act 116) agreement between the state and Allen and Joan Merchant for 27 acres in Section 31, in the southwest corner of the township.

Hiring of Roger Hurley, a fireman volunteer and a mechanic, to perform maintenance and repair work on the fire trucks was approved.

The board will work on the 1981-82 budget at its March 9 meeting.

The Haire Net

It's cynical to believe that if George Washington never told a lie he used the truth to his advantage.

If you study our history you may substitute realistic for cynical. All through our 200 years our leaders have operated this way.

Certainly Ronald Reagan did the other day. He picks up a dollar and then says it's worth only 36 cents of what it was just a few years ago.

That's true. Or half true, depending how you see the truth. The dollar is worth 36 cents, but the amount of dollars we earn have more than risen to offset the loss in purchasing power. That's the real truth.

The current auto dilemma is said to be caused in a large measure by government regulations. That's not even half true. Disregarding all the other causes, the question that comes to mind is if it's regulations that are hurting us, why aren't the Japanese in the same boat? Government doesn't have any monopoly on half truths. The advertising world is full of it.

Ads that read 50 percent off famous brand suits, for example. Half true. When you get to the store they have maybe a dozen at the sale price and the rest at regular prices.

Then there are the trick ads. The ones that read like news and you don't know it's an ad until the very end.

In the same category are ads deliberately placed upside down in newspapers. The reason for both is to gain attention. They do. But in a sense that's another half truth.

The reason for advertising is to generate sales. While unusual ads may generate readership, surveys have shown that they don't generate sales. It isn't mother nature alone that doesn't like to be fooled.

In the long run advertising that is truthful, factual and to the point is the most effective.

The same kind of straight-from-the-shoulder talk from our elected representatives might be effective, too. I say might, because no one knows. It's never been tried.

What the government is trying to do is the same as the oil companies, who proclaim they are working for us, not record profits. That doesn't rank as even a half truth.

But the approach is based on the same reasoning. What they are doing is downgrading us again. You and I. Working on the premise that we can't see through even the most simple subterfuge.

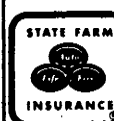

But we can. We can. And that is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

Letters to the Editor

Why forgotten? asks 'Nam vet

To the Editor:

Maybe I'm wrong in the way I look at things. I'm referring to the 52 hostages. They were given a big old ticker tape parade, meal at the White House and this was just part of the big hullabaloo.

I was in Vietnam with thousands of guys and gals, of whom hundreds were in prisoner of war camps, some as long as eight years, a little more than 444 days that the hostages spent in Iran, but we didn't receive no big parades or have no big fuss made over us.

From what I observed, the 52 hostages came home in one piece, but I know there were guys and gals that came home from Vietnam and Korea without arms and legs. Some even came home without a mind, not to mention the ones that returned home in a pine box.

The hostages were called heroes. If you want a look at some real heroes, go to a few Veterans Administration hospitals and see a few real Americans that deserve to be called heroes. They made it that far but some will never see home.

What did the hostages do that made them so darn important? What did they do for the United States?

Take a minute and sit down and think what all the guys and gals who were in the military did for the United States!! What about the hundreds of thousands that lost their lives defending the United States? The way I look at it is that the United States just gave back the money that really didn't belong to them for the 52 hostages, where they paid through the back side for the conflicts we were in and are still paying.

Carter and Reagan told the hostages their bosses were begging them to take their jobs back when they were ready and if they wanted them. What about the veterans that couldn't get their jobs back if they had one to begin with.

The Iranians showed everyone that if you want anything from the United States, just grab some of its people, hold them for hostages and demand ransom, which seems to work 100 percent. Who or what will be next?

Our government has already taken most of the benefits away from the veterans for it says it has to cut costs, but look what it spent on and for the hostages! For them, cost is no object.

In closing, all I can say is it looks like the veteran is the forgotten one and a thing of the past, but remember, we did our part!!!

A veteran that was proud to serve,

Reader defends cancer society

To the editor:

As a board member of the Tuscola Unit of the American Cancer Society, I was disturbed by an article that appeared in the Chronicle Jan. 22 concerning the American Cancer Society.

I would like to make the following comments:

The average annual medical bill for a cancer patient is $20,000. If no monetary limit were set for the 239 cancer patients in Tuscola county, it would cost nearly $5 million to provide unlimited financial support for a single year!

Although the American Cancer Society has set a $200 limit on direct assistance to cancer patients, unlimited indirect assistance can be provided through information and referral as well as an extensive loan closet filled with items such as wheelchairs and beds that patients can borrow as long as is needed.

During difficult economic times charity dollars become scarce. Non-profit organizations like the ACS must increase their fund raising efforts in order to maintain the same level of programming as during better times. This challenge becomes almost impossible to meet when the ACS must compete with another organization for the dollars the public will give to help fight cancer.

All non-profit organizations are responsible to their contributors. Anyone can call the American Cancer Society or Michigan's Attorney General and receive full financial and program figures, including numbers of people educated, patients serviced and programs provided to youth.

Dr. Papanicolaou developed the Pap test under American Cancer Society funding. The ACS launched a massive educational campaign in 1930 to demonstrate the value of the test to American women. At that time uterine cancer deaths totalled 28 per 100,000. Such deaths shrunk to only 8 per 100,000 by 1976.

In Michigan this year, 4,100 people will die of lung cancer, 2,100 will die of colorectal cancer, 1,400 will die of breast cancer and only 400 will die of uterine cancer. Because the ACS has succeeded in reducing the uterine cancer death rate, emphasis is being placed now on lung, colorectal, and breast cancer.

To combat breast cancer and demonstrate that up-to-date techniques used in regular physician examinations can detect breast cancers before they spread beyond the breast, the ACS and National Cancer Institute established 27 breast cancer detection centers. Ten thousand Michigan women, including some from Tuscola county were screened annually over the period of five years at the center in Ann Arbor. Results of the demonstration project will be available to the public this spring.

Efforts to prevent lung cancer by the ACS include quit smoking clinics, for adults, smoking programs for youth, the Great American Smokeout (16 million smokers quit for the 1980 GAS) and programs like "An Early Start to Good Health" which encourages youth to develop good health habits and stress the benefits of not smoking.

The ACS in Michigan regularly conducts programs for physicians and other health professionals to teach them the latest cancer diagnosis and treatment techniques.

Having been in business for more than four decades, the ACS is the largest voluntary health organization in the U.S.A., with more than two million volunteers.

PEDALING AROUND

The long and short

By Mike Ellasohn

According to Detroit Free Press fashion editor Linnea Lannon, above-the-knee dresses will be making a comeback this year.

If the rest of her looks like the part that shows in her photo in the paper, she probably has a great set of stilts, but she is not thrilled by the idea.

"After all, how many great pairs of legs can there be in the world?" she asks. "Whatever the number, there are far fewer great sets of kneecaps walking around, and I, for one, don't want to see them."

Granted, the last time short skirts were in style, there were a lot of awful looking legs being exposed, but it was fun separating the chaff from the wheat, or however that expression goes.

If indeed the distance between the bottom edge of skirts and the floor does become greater, I have no doubt women — at least young women — will wear them, even if they don't like them.

The first time knees started being exposed in semi-modern times (other than when wearing shorts) was 20 years ago. I remember the occasion well, because that is when I first realized I did not understand women.

It was on a cold winter day, I was in the 10th grade, and I was walking home from school with a fellow I knew and a girl we both knew.

Out of the blue (pun intended), the girl commented, "I wish skirts would get longer. My knees are cold."

Myself and the other male then asked the obvious question. If her knees were cold, how come she didn't wear a longer skirt.

Her reply was that that just wasn't done. Wear something that was out of style, for instance, a longer skirt, and other girls would give her dirty looks.

Let me explain two things for the benefit of younger readers.

Twenty years ago, all city kids walked to school, which for me was about a mile. It was very rare for a high school kid to own a car and he probably would not have been permitted to drive it to school.

That's why the three of us were walking.

As for why the girl didn't wear slacks, girls didn't wear slacks in school in those days. Notice I said slacks, which might be worn to a cold football game or picnic, but that was about it.

If girls even owned a pair of blue jeans, about the only time they would be worn is if they were helping their parents clean out the garage.

Jeans were not worn in public, they were somewhat baggy and were certainly not thought of as a means of sexual attraction. Of course, 20 years ago, Calvin Klein was probably also in high school and Brooke Shields, who supposedly lives in his jeans, wasn't even born yet.

She would have been in diapers the first time I saw a girl in a REALLY SHORT dress. I and a lot of other people.

It was in the summer of 1966 or 1967, and I was attending Eastern Michigan University. I was working in the dormitory cafeteria, taking food from the kitchen to the serving line.

I don't remember who saw her first, it may have been me (reporters are supposed to be observant and I was in training then), and the word soon spread: "There's a girl out there wearing a miniskirt." (Actually, it was a dress.)

Up to that point, miniskirts were only something to be read about, having been "invented" (does one invent clothes?) in England.

As the girl ate her meal, the word spread. By the time she got up to carry her tray to the dish washing room, the cooks were all gathered by the doorway and the dish washing personnel were all at the window.

It was the first time in the history of Eastern Michigan University that a girl busing her tray had a mass audience.

The dress, by the way, was blue with short slits on each side. Amazing what I remember.

Commercial, industry values up slightly

Average commercial assessments in Tuscola county will increase only slightly in 1981, while the overall valuation of industrial property is decreasing.

The County Board of Commissioners Tuesday accepted the equalization studies for those two classifications of property, which were presented by county Equalization Director Donald Graf. They will now be sent to the State Tax Commission (STC).

Commercial property increased an average of only .53 percent, while industrial property declined 2.13 percent.

The reason for the slight changes, according to Commissioner Royce Russell of Elmwood township, chairman of the board's equaliza-

Barr to retire

Owen-Gage administrators receive salary increases

The Owendale-Gagetown Board of Education Monday evening approved salary increases for its three administrators.

It was announced that high school Principal James Barr will be retiring at the end of the school year.

Setting of the salaries followed a one-hour executive session.

The salaries are for the present school year. Supt. Ronald Erickson received a boost from $29,500 annually to $30,488, plus the board will begin paying his Social Security tax for the first time (6.65 percent of $29,700, the maximum on which the tax is paid, which equals $1,975).

Elementary Principal William Britt received an increase from $18,500 to $19,120, plus the board will pay his share of his Social Security tax (equal to $1,271).

Barr will receive a boost from $21,750 to $27,825, the large increase, according to the superintendent, being in reward for the job he has done. It will also increase his state teacher retirement system pension, which is based on a percentage of the average income for the person's five highest paid years.

A letter was read from the principal, announcing that he will be retiring as of August. Barr has been principal at Owen-Gage seven years and has spent 36½ years in education.

Present at the meeting was State Rep. Keith Muxlow, R-Brown City, whose district includes Huron and Sanilac counties. He was elected for the first time last November.

The legislator met earlier in the day with Erickson, board President Ronald Good and Jim LaFave, husband of board member Leona LaFave, to discuss matters of concern to the district.

One of the items discussed was a reintroduction of legislation that would require a public vote on property transfers from one district to another after more than 10 percent of the original district had been transferred away.

Such legislation was introduced in the previous session by Muxlow's predecessor, Quincy Hoffman. It was approved in the House but didn't make it through the Senate.

"I would like to go back to Lansing and look at some of the things we discussed," he said at the board meeting. He explained he would contact the board later, but did not make any commitments.

OTHER ITEMS

Attorney James F. Schouman of Dearborn, who has represented the district in other legal matters, has been hired to represent Owen-Gage concerning its appeal of an arbitration panel's ruling that the district owes Construction Coordinators Inc. $41,283 for work done on the high school addition.

At a hearing scheduled Friday Erickson said, it is expected Huron County Circuit Judge M. Richard Knoblock will announce whether Owen-Gage can appeal the ruling.

The district originally tried to hire Bay City attorney John Hebert to represent it in the matter, but wasn't returning telephone calls, according to the superintendent, hence the decision to hire Schouman.

It was announced that the Band Boosters have donated the approximately $1,800 it cost to install new lighting fixtures and brighter lights in the Gagetown gym. The organization also spent about $180 for a large new flag for the gym.

Farmer's Tax Guide available

Today's modern farmer has many unique tax situations and a free publication from the Internal Revenue Service can help answer the questions that arise from these situations.

IRS Publication 225, Farmer's Tax Guide, covers a wide range of subjects, such as soil sales, crop destruction, chicken purchases, casualty losses, and share farming. Examples of how to prepare the Form 1040 and related schedules, and listings of important tax dates which affect farmers throughout the year are also included.

The guide can be ordered via the order form in the tax package or by calling the IRS tax forms/information number listed in the telephone directory.

Opportunity rarely knocks on a locked-up door.

Iris Lienhard dies at 62 in Detroit

Iris Leola Lienhard, 62, of Detroit died Sunday at Detroit Central Hospital after a long illness.

She was born May 17, 1918, in Detroit, the daughter of Paul and Belle (Brown) Lienhard.

Miss Lienhard is a cousin of Grant Meredith of Snover.

Funeral services were to be conducted Wednesday afternoon at Little's Funeral Home, Cass City, with Elder Dean Smith of the Shabbona Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints officiating.

Burial will be in Mooretown cemetery, Moore township, Sanilac county.

Social Security in Caro

The Social Security Administration has office hours every Thursday in Caro.

Two representatives of the Saginaw office are at the Indianfields Township Hall, 111 Joy Street, that day from 9 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m. No appointment is necessary. Persons are served on a first come, first served basis.

People can obtain answers to questions about Social Security, Medicare, or Supplemental Security Income and apply for a social security number and retirement and survivor benefits. Disability claims are generally not done because they are too time consuming.

Since phone calls are not accepted in Caro, people are still advised to call the Saginaw Social Security office at 771-1010. Tuscola county residents can call collect.

Your Neighbor says

Milliken has been governor long enough

As of Jan. 22, William G. Milliken began his 13th year as governor of Michigan, the longest anyone ever served in the position.

"Milliken isn't too bad as a governor, but I think he's been in long enough," is Oscar Becker's assessment of the state's chief executive.

Becker has voted for Milliken every time he ran, but should he run again in 1982, "I think I'd vote for somebody new. We've got to have somebody with some new ideas in there now."

A priority of the governor in the remaining two years of his term, Becker feels, should be elimination of property taxes for senior citizens. "They've done their share. Somebody should help them."

He does not feel any state police troopers should have been laid off because of the state's budget crunch. "The more that's out on the highways, the less accidents there's going to be."

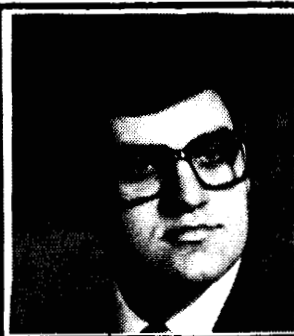

Among cuts he feels should be made are in the pay of legislators. "They're getting too much for the little bit they're doing." He feels even Gov. Milliken could take a reduction in pay.

He would also like to see the governor "try to get the car companies to cut their prices on cars." Lower prices would sell more cars, which would put more people back to work.

Becker and his wife Joyce and their two children, Lori and Paul, live on E. Cass City Road, Ubyly. He has three children from a prior marriage, all married and living in the Detroit area, and six grandchildren.

Becker has worked at General Cable 15 years.

Monthly mini-message

By Pastor T. W. Teall

Last year 2,317,000 couples fell into love and got married, while 1,170,000 couples fell out of love and got divorced.

Is love such a fickle, unpredictable, unexplainable thing that one day it is here and the next day it is gone? Well, maybe so, if you accept the definition of love as exploited by TV, movies, and the gossip pages on the local magazine counters.

But definitely not, if you accept the definition of love from a God of love, our God of true, pure, unconditional love. It grieves me greatly to see the majority of the media's presentation of supposed love to be nothing more than what the Bible calls lust.

Our youth need to hear from their parents and reliable sources that love doesn't equal sex, nor does sex equal love. For those of you who didn't know, God is the one who created sex, ordained it and planned it to be a part of the expression of love between husband and wife and them alone. It is a disaster to think that man has so distorted the reality of love in all relationships that he can no longer function with a sense of true perspective in regards to his Maker, his mate or his home.

Stop now to consider some great truths about love from the Bible. The Bible says that God is love. Please note it doesn't say love is God. God is revealed as one who loves man, so much in fact that when man separated himself from God because of sin, God sent His only Son, Jesus Christ, to die to redeem man whom He loved. That brings up an interesting point. Love stimulates action. John chapter three tells us that God loved the world so much that He gave.

And so it is true for us, if we love someone, we give to them time, attention, gifts, favors, as well as, discipline and direction.

Another interesting principle from the Bible about love is that action stimulates love. I have sat across my desk from a middle-aged couple who frankly have said, "We just don't love each other anymore."

"Oh, really? Did you ever love each other?" I asked.

"Oh, yes," they said, "but not now." After some discussion, the couple realized that their love had changed because their actions had changed. No longer were there the nice gestures of love and affection that were there while they dated or were first married. The Bible's advice is "commit your actions unto the Lord and your emotions shall be established." Proverbs 16:3. Thus, kind acts of love do, in fact, stimulate love. (By the way, the couple mentioned above were out-of-towners, so don't bother running through our membership list.)

Without doubt the strangest truth about love is that love can be commanded. God says, "Husbands, love your wife." It is not a mere suggestion. It is a command! If you don't love your mate or your children or your parents or whomever the case may be, you are disobedient to God.

The greatest fact about love is that love forgives. God loves each of us and is willing to forgive. His forgiveness is not, however, automatic. It is conditional upon your faith and trust in His Son as your Savior. That is why the apostle John wrote, "We love Him because He first loved us."

So with Valentine's Day upon us, let me ask you, "How's your love life? How are things at your home with your mate, children or loved ones?" But most importantly, "How are things between you and God who loves you?"

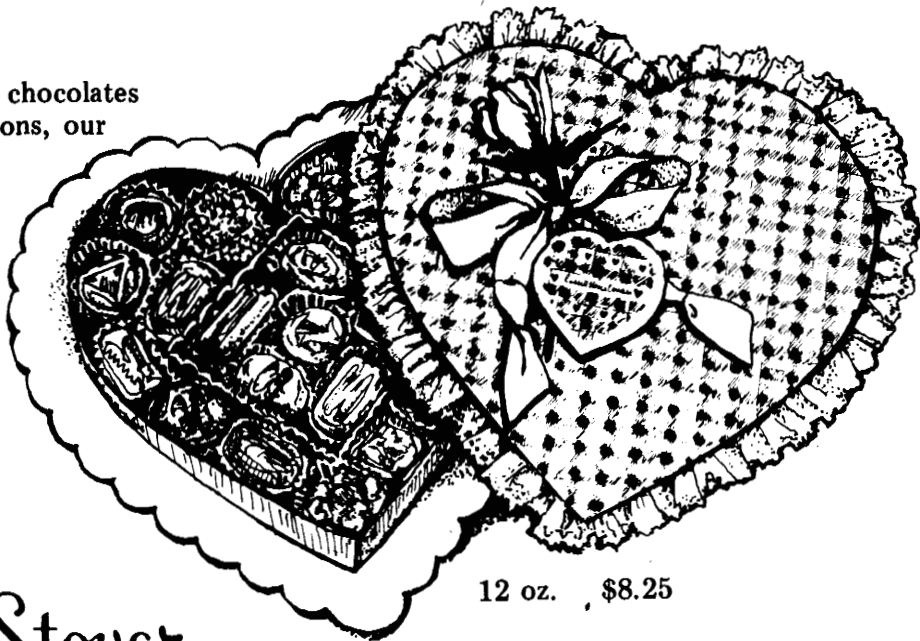

This monthly mini-message is provided by the First Baptist church of Cass City as an expression of our concern and love for our community and nation. Your comments are appreciated: write - Mini-Message, 6420 Houghton Street, Cass City or call 872-3155. (Adv.)

Kurt Proctor in Ferris singing group

Kurt Proctor of Cass City performed in the fourth annual Winter Jazz Showcase at Ferris State College in Big Rapids.

The showcase, held in conjunction with the 1981 Festival of the Arts, was to have been held Wednesday.

Proctor is a member of the Collegiate Singers, a group of 20 singers with 16 performing at any one time, backed by a four-piece rhythm section. The singers combine vocals, choreography and a matching wardrobe to present a variety of popular songs which range from occasional swing vocals to the hits of today.

The Collegiate Singers are in demand to perform at high schools and clubs throughout Michigan.

Fritz Olson renamed to tobacco group

Freidolph K. (Fritz) Olson, president of Trend Vendors in Cass City, has been reappointed by Gov. William G. Milliken to the Advisory Tobacco Industry Council. His term will end Jan. 15, 1982.

Olson, of 4851 Crestwood Drive, was first appointed to the council in April, 1978.

The seven-member body, he explained, meets twice a year and makes recommendations to the governor concerning furtherance of the tobacco industry and the taxation of tobacco.

"I think we've had some successes," he commented, the major one being that the state cigarette tax of 11 cents per pack has stayed at that amount for 11 years, despite many efforts to increase it.

A higher tax, the vending machine company owner said, would encourage bootlegging, that is, illegal importation of cigarettes into Michigan from low tax states for sale here without paying any taxes.

More illegally sold cigarettes, he pointed out, not only would hurt the tobacco distributors and sales outlets in Michigan, it would also hurt state tax revenues.

According to the Tobacco Institute, taxes paid on cigarettes in Michigan in 1979 totaled $164.7 million.

Olson is also president of the Michigan Tobacco and Candy Distributors and Vendors Association.

To achieve such recognition, students must earn a 3.0 grade-point on a 4.0 scale.

Computer seminar set for farmers

Farmers interested in "what computers will do for you" are invited to a seminar Friday, March 6, at the Wildwood Farms restaurant, M-53, Cass City.

It is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

The seminar will run from 11 a.m.-2 p.m., with lunch at the participant's own expense.

Call any of the three extension offices to register. The deadline to do so is March 1. Enrollment will be limited to 20 persons.

Representatives of computer firms will be present to discuss the abilities of several computers now on the market.

Dr. Sherill Nott, Michigan State University agricultural economist, will present an overview of how computers can assist farmers in improving their abilities to make profitable management decisions.

Weight loss therapy class scheduled

Catholic Family Service (CFS) is offering a Food Anonymous Therapy (FAT) group program for persons who have problems losing weight and keeping it off.

Two groups will each meet from 10 a.m.-noon for 12 weeks, with the Sandusky group starting Tuesday, Feb. 24, and the Bad Axe group the next day.

The group therapy program, according to William P. Walters of CFS, challenges the individual to deal with the underlying issues that lead him or her to compulsive or inappropriate eating patterns.

Unless one changes his or her thinking and outlook, evidence has demonstrated that the rate of success for making the weight loss permanent is very low. Many persons become discouraged with the never ending cycle of losing and gaining.

Participants in the past have learned how to recognize basic needs and develop the skills to cope with the underlying issues that are responsible for the weight gain.

A fee will be charged for the program. For more information or to register, call CFS at 269-7931 in Bad Axe or 648-2304 in Sandusky.

AROUND THE FARM

Soybeans, waste oil

By Don Kebler

Last year, Michigan State University had more than 100 soybean varieties in their yield comparison plots. Their yield comparison results will be made available at the Mid-Michigan Soybean Day Wednesday, Feb. 25, at the Saginaw Civic Center.

This event will be the only soybean educational meeting held for the Saginaw valley soybean growers and will be run from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Current research shows narrow-row soybean plantings, less than 20 inches, are capable of higher yields than wider row spacings. However, to obtain this success, new production techniques are required.

Dr. Richard Cooper, U.S. Department of Agriculture soybean researcher from Ohio State University, will talk about how to increase narrow row soybean yields. Cooper is recognized as one of the foremost soybean breeders in the U.S. One of his newest accomplishments is developing of new semi-dwarf soybean varieties.

He will be joining with Michigan State University specialists to relate the newest narrow-row bean production techniques, including chemical weed control. They will show how narrow row plantings help control late germinating weeds, soil erosion, and make harvesting more efficient by less lodging and pods higher off the ground.

Efficient marketing strategies will be discussed by industry representatives. There will be over 40 exhibits to visit. Lunch can be purchased in the Civic Center.

Before long you will be hearing more about a new program and maybe even participating. The county extension offices in conjunction with MSU and participating businesses will be entering into an oil recycling program.

Purpose of this program is to collect used automobile oil and convert it into reusable products. Participating volunteers will set up collecting stations, where anyone can leave their old oil. These collection stations will be provided a display sign. The waste will be picked up by recyclers.

I heard it said not too long ago that there is approximately one automobile for every four people in the USA and in Michigan the count is even higher.

If this be the case, each time all the automobiles in Michigan have an oil change, we're talking of from 40,000-50,000 barrels of recyclable oil. In the U.S. it could amount to more than three quarters of a million barrels.

Michigan bean sales up sharply

The Michigan Bean Commission has announced that through the end of December, for the 1980 crop year, there have been 5,265,309 bags of beans sold by growers.

This compares with 3,403,303 bags of beans sold during the same time period from the 1979 crop year.

The crop year dates from Sept. 1.

The primary reason for this 54.7 percent increase in grower sales is the greatly increased production intended to meet the Mexican contracts.

The latest Agriculture Reporting Service production estimates for Michigan are 7,448,000 bags of edible beans.

Industry experts indicate a potential for increase in the production of blacks and pintos next year, while production totals for all bean varieties are forecast to remain relatively consistent.

"This new man Billings...he is bonded, isn't he?"

Auto-Owners for Fidelity Bonds

Business fraud and embezzlement are big business these days. And, if it happens to you, you could be in big trouble.

Protect your business with a Fidelity Bond from Auto-Owners. To insure you against losses from an employee who just might be a wolf in sheep's clothing.

Talk to your independent Auto-Owner's agent. Or else you could find yourself looking awfully sheepish, someday.

Icy roads contribute to many area accidents

Icy roads continue to be a contributing factor to numerous accidents, none of which resulted in serious injuries during the past week. Several mishaps were reported by Cass City police.

Barbara J. Regnerus, 20, of 6432 Seventh Street, was ticketed by officers on a charge of failure to stop within an assured clear distance ahead after an accident at 11:02 a.m. last Thursday.

They reported she was eastbound on Main Street, attempted to stop for the light at Seeger, and slid on the ice into the car parked by the south curb.

Owner of the parked car was E.J. Powell of 5850 Fisher Street, Kingston.

At 12:32 p.m. that day, Randy A. Whittaker, 28, of 6209 Main Street, eastbound on Main, was stopped for the light at Seeger when the vehicle behind him, unable to stop, slid into the rear of his car.

Driver of the errant vehicle was Cheryl L. Dohn, 18, of 6911 Deckerville Road, Deford.

At 11:45 a.m. Friday, according to police, John L. Hill, 63, of St. Louis, Mo., westbound on Main, attempted to pull from the right into the left lane.

In doing so, his semi-truck ran into a westbound car in the left lane, driven by Gerald D. Naylor, 54, of Port Huron.

Michael Stec of 4184 Maple Street reported to officers Sunday that an unknown vehicle ran into the side of his car while it was parked along the south side of the alley behind Old Wood Drug from 8:30-9:30 a.m. Yellow paint from the other vehicle was found in the damaged area.

Janice P. Horner, 37, of 4410 S. Seeger Street told police that her vision may have been blocked by a high mound of snow, the result of which was an accident at 12:55 p.m. Monday.

According to officers, she was eastbound on Third Street, didn't yield at Maple Street and collided with a northbound car, driven by Martha Sue Nicholson, 29, of 6619 Houghton Street.

The mound of snow at the southwest corner was reported to be 6-7 feet high.

At 7 a.m. Tuesday, according to village police, Gary Lee Wichert, 33, of 4216 Maple Street was eastbound on M-81, west of Greenland Road, when his vehicle collided with a deer.

INJURY ACCIDENTS

A two-year-old Kinde boy, Ricky Bowers II, was treated and released from Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, following an accident last Wednesday afternoon in that community.

According to Bad Axe police, he was a passenger in a car driven by his father, Ricky R. Bowers, 24, which was northbound on Hanselman Street. Southbound on Hanselman was Gordon T. Willis, 25, of Cass City.

Police said Allen J. Arndt, 46, of Harbor Beach was eastbound on South Street, slid into the intersection with Hanselman due to his speed and the icy surface, and collided with the Bowers' and Willis' autos.

James A. Lockwood, 12, of Greenland Road, Cass City, sought his own treatment after a 10:55 a.m. accident Saturday.

Bad Axe state police said he was a passenger in a car driven by Ellen I. Lowe, 41, of 4695 S. Washington Street, Ubyly, which was northbound on M-53, south of Sebawaing Road, when it went out of control.

The car went off the east side of the road, became airborne for a short distance, and came to rest leaning against a station wagon parked in a driveway.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Robert D. Torres, 26, of Caro, was cited by Caro state police on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor after a 2:20 a.m. accident Feb. 3, east of Gagetown.

He told troopers he lost control of his car on icy pavement while turning south onto Richie Road from eastbound Bay City-Forestville Road.

The car went off the right side of the road, rolled over in a field and came to rest on its wheels.

Myrtle F. Deegel, 50, of 4223 E. Sanilac Road, Kingston, was ticketed by Caro state police on a charge of violation of the basic speed law after an accident at 10:45 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 4.

According to officers, she was southbound on Ross Street, south of State Street in Kingston, and lost control of her car going up an icy incline. Her car went off the west side of the road and struck a parked Kingston school bus.

At 8:10 p.m. that day, according to sheriff's deputies, Judy Wright, 38, of 4917 State Street, Gagetown, lost control of her car while turning north onto Cleaver Street from eastbound South Street in that community.

Her auto then collided with a car parked on the east side of Cleaver, owned by Paul Slater of 4118 S. Seeger Street, Cass City.

Mary Jane Powell, 42, of Dorance Road, Kingston, was ticketed by Caro state police on a charge of violation of the basic speed law after a 4 p.m. accident last Thursday.

Officers reported she was eastbound on Dorance, east of Phillips Road, when the back end of her truck started to slide as she was going downhill.

The rear end crossed the centerline and hit the left side of a westbound car driven by Cynthia R. Ernst, 33, of Dorance Road.

Deputies cited John D. Maynard, 22, of 5930 Argyle Road, Decker, on a charge of driving with license suspended after a 5:30 a.m. accident Saturday.

They reported he was eastbound on Frankford Road, east of E. Dayton Road in Wells township, when he lost control of his car on icy pavement. The vehicle struck a snowbank on the north side of the road.

Schools feel financial pinch from sharply cut state aid

proved by the board Monday anticipates a deficit of $154,626, which will have to be made up by dipping into that account.

OWEN-GAGE

The district's biggest loss in categorical state aid will be for transportation, from $45,020 last year to $31,514. Special education state aid will decline from $5,623 to $3,607.

Owen-Gage also receives vocational education aid, which is funneled through the Huron Intermediate School District, for which Supt. Ronald Erickson did not yet have the figures.

No cutbacks are anticipated at this point, according to him, with the future depending on the outcome of the Goslin property transfer case in the Michigan Supreme Court.

"If the Supreme Court goes against us, then we will have to do something drastic," Erickson commented.

UBLY

The district is anticipating using up all of the surplus it had at the beginning of the year and still running $70,000 in the red at the end of the year, according to Business Manager Mark Tenbusch.

The deficit will come despite board action earlier this year to lop off $30,000 from the budget. Measures included eliminating five co-op jobs for students, ending all field trips and certain trips by students in Ruth, Parisville, and Minden City to Ubyly.

Layoff of personnel during the year was considered until the district's attorney told the board and administration that layoffs would have been in violation of its contracts with employees.

The board Monday evening adopted a revised budget, based on the new figures, and discussed measures for 1981-82.

Tenbusch predicted the district's only options will be layoff of personnel and/or additional millage.

Tips for saving energy

Insulate the heating and cooling ducts and reduce your utility bills by up to 15 percent.

Pack the freezer full, even if you have to fill milk cartons with water and freeze them to take up empty space. More energy is used in an empty freezer.

Don't overload the refrigerator. If air can circulate around the food, this appliance will use less energy.

Wash only full loads of clothes and use warm or cold water instead of hot in your washing machine to save electricity.

Turn down the heat or turn off your central air conditioning if no one is home for more than three hours.

Set your thermostat no higher than 68 degrees during the day and 60 degrees at night during the winter to save on heating fuel bills.

TUSCOLA INTERMEDIATE

It is special education that will feel the biggest impact of the cutback in state aid, according to Jerome Thienes, Tuscola Intermediate School District (TISD) assistant superintendent for finance.

State aid for special education programs will decline from $1.1 million in 1979-80 to $820,369, a reduction of $284,624.

The district levies 1.6 mills for special education, including payment of construction bonds for the Highland Pines School, but there isn't enough millage money to make up for the state aid loss.

In anticipation of less state aid, the TISD Board of Education last July laid off eight aides and didn't replace some teachers who left.

Some bus routes have been eliminated and other cuts made.

For the 1981-82 school year, Thienes said, some more personnel will have to be let go. In the meantime, the district will have to dip into its equity to get by. "We're delaying the agony, so to speak."

The one program for which state aid is increasing is for education of Caro Regional Center residents, for which the appropriation is increasing from $1.65 million to $1.79 million.

Total state funding for vocational education will decline $104,117, from $259,287 in 1979-80 to $155,170.

But with 1.75 mills levied in the county for the Tuscola Area Skill Center (1.25 for operations and .5 to pay off construction bonds), Thienes doesn't anticipate there will have to be any layoffs this school year or next.

The cost of operating the vocational education program is comparatively cheaper than special education because there is a summer program and the staff, having started this year, overall is paid less.

State funds for TISD operations, the pregnant students' program, Regional Educational Media Center and professional development will decline from a total of $221,476 last year to $183,733 for the current school year.

$30,000 school vandalism

Aulbert plea bargains for reduced court charge

Kenneth Aulbert, charged in connection with the more than $30,000 vandalism spree Oct. 1 at Akron-Fairgrove High School, pleaded no contest Tuesday in circuit court to breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit malicious destruction of property over $100.

Judge Patrick R. Joslyn accepted his plea. A sentencing date will be set. Bond was continued.

Aulbert, 17, of 2698 N. Ringle Road, Akron, a student at the school, was originally charged with breaking and entering, malicious destruction of property over $100 and larceny from a building.

His plea was the result of a plea bargain with the prosecution, with the original three charges to be dismissed when he is sentenced. He was scheduled to go on trial on the charges Feb. 18.

Also Tuesday, Dean A. Emery, 24, of 2939 E. Deckerville Road, Caro, was sentenced to 3-14 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for uttering and publishing. He was credited with 156 days served.

He pleaded no contest to the charge Monday, of having falsified or altered a check for $50 cashed at Brown's Party Store in Caro, July 5.

In other cases Monday before Judge Joslyn:

William Peplinski, 32, of Frankenmuth, pleaded guilty to criminal sexual conduct (1st degree), to having committed a sexual act with a girl under age 13 Aug. 17 in Ellington township.

His plea was taken under advisement, with a sentencing date to be set if the plea is accepted. Bond was continued.

Gene R. Dembowske, 35, of W. Ackerman Road,

Unionville, stood mute to a charge of criminal sexual conduct.

A plea of innocent was entered. A two-day trial will be scheduled. Bond was continued.

Dembowske is charged with having committed a sexual act with a girl under age 13 Dec. 5 in Columbia township.

Donald F. Tedford, 40, of 1719 Garner Road, Fairgrove, pleaded guilty to unlawful use of an auto. His plea was accepted and a sentencing date is to be set.

He was charged with driving away the pickup truck of James Streeter April 10 in Akron.

Debra Partaka, 24, of 2787 Dutcher Road, Caro, was placed on two years' probation for uttering and publishing. She was also sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, with serving of 15 of them postponed to the end of her probation. She was fined $50.

She pleaded no contest to the charge Jan. 19, to writing three checks in September totaling $77, for which there were insufficient funds in her bank account.

Timothy Timko, 18, of 3191 N. Graf Road, Caro, was placed on one year's probation for delivery of marijuana. He was sentenced to 25 days in the county jail, with credit given for one day served, fined $50, assessed $100 court costs and ordered to pay $15 restitution.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Dec. 15, to having sold marijuana to an undercover police officer Oct. 16 in Caro.

A prosecution motion for dismissal of a charge of malicious destruction of property under $100 against Ronald L. Capling, 25, of N. State Street, Caro, was granted.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Feb. 11, 1980, in connection with damage done to a building in Caro, after which sentencing was delayed a year.

He having complied with the provisions of his probation during the year, the charge was dismissed.

Huizar was found guilty of taking $70 in cash and $42 in checks Aug. 1 from the Black Dahlia Bar in Akron.

DISTRICT COURT

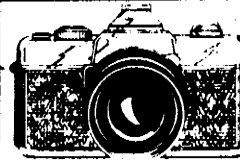

JURY TRIAL

A circuit court jury Feb. 4 found Bryan Huizar, 20, of 4195 Elmwood Road, Akron, guilty of a charge of larceny over $100. The trial lasted two days.

Judge Joslyn scheduled sentencing March 23 and set bond at $10,000, cash or surety.

Thomas Barrons, 20, of 3483 River Street, Kingston, was placed on probation Monday by District Judge Richard F. Kern and assessed a $100 oversight fee for possession of marijuana.

Barrons pleaded guilty to the charge Jan. 25, having been cited Dec. 8 in Koylton township by sheriff's deputies.

READ WHAT GM SAYS ABOUT GAS LINE PRESSURE REGULATORS

The following service item is a reprint in entirety as taken from a recent GM dealer newsletter.

Questions We Thought You'd Never Ask

- Q: I am not happy with the gas mileage I'm getting on my car, despite new plugs, points, etc. What's wrong?
- A: It could be your fuel pump. Sometimes this usually reliable component can malfunction by exerting too much pressure on the line leading to the carburetor. You may need a gas-line pressure regulator. This will make your present fuel pump perform properly and improve your car's gas mileage. Let us check the entire fuel system.

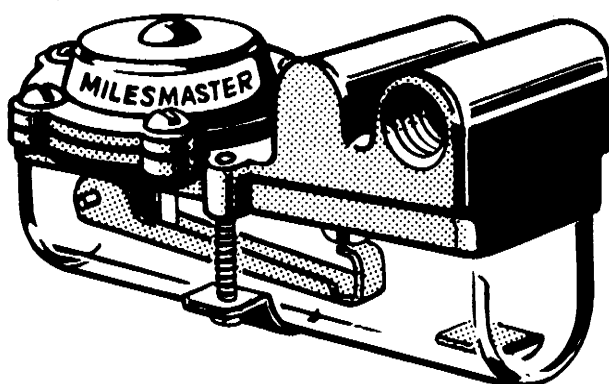

Fuel pump operates by action of spring-loaded arm against diaphragm inside pump. This opens and closes valve to create pumping action. Fuel flows into inlet side from tank and is forced out to carburetor as cam lobe depresses arm.

New books at the library

AZTEC by Gary Jennings (fiction). A big, brilliantly colored novel about Mexican life in the last years before the Spanish conquest - the clash of cultures and a host of memorable characters, including the life of a wholly original and unforgettable character, Dark Cloud-Mixtli, in the language of the Mexican people. It is exciting, intricately plotted, and historically accurate.

THE BURNING BED by Faith McNulty (fiction). Mickey Hughes was asleep in his bed in the early evening when his wife, Francine, walked into the room, spread gasoline all over the floor and tossed a match into the room. By the time the fire was extinguished, Mickey was dead and Francine was at a police station, with three of her children, confessing to the murder. This is a harrowing yet moving and insightful account of true crime and domestic violence, the story of a woman who managed to raise a family and hang on to her own identity while she traveled through a physical and psychological hell.

THE SATAN SAMPLER by Victor Canning (fiction). Richard Seyton, who has inherited an ancient English country house after his older brother's death in a car "accident," finds that his brother had leased it to the Felbeck Christian Heritage Foundation. An unfinished letter and three tapes from the dead brother led Seyton to the discovery of a blackmail scheme in the hallowed halls of the family estate.

Monday Night Movies at Rawson Memorial Library Feb. 16 at 7:30 p.m. are: "The Magic of Disneyland" - A tour of Disneyland park; "Ponies of Mikaelangi" - A story of how two children and their horse survive an earthquake, filmed entirely in Iceland, and "Rapids of the Colorado" - a trip down the Colorado River.

Overtime win over Caro keeps Hawks in title chase

Cass City kept its hopes alive for a share of the Thumb B Association title Friday with an overtime decision over league leading Caro Tigers, 69-66.

It was the third overtime game in a row for the Hawks and their second victory in the extra period outings.

The game, before a near capacity crowd, had the fans on the edge of their seats from the opening whistle. Cass City was in front by eight points midway through the first period as Todd Comment sank four shots in a row from 20 feet to get the Hawks off and running. In the first period Comment netted five buckets and two free throws.

Cass City was in front most of the way. It was not until midway through the final period that Caro went in front for the first time, 59-58. After that the lead changed hands just about every time down the floor.

The score was tied at 61-61 with 2:51 and it was then that Larry Smith, 6-5 Caro center, fouled out of the game.

With the score tied at 64-all and 1:27 in the game, Caro had the ball and decided to play for the last shot. It was an 18-foot jumper in heavy traffic and it missed.

In the overtime Cass City went ahead on a pair of free throws by Comment. The Tigers missed two good shots from the field.

Ray Ferris was fouled and sank the first of a one and one to make the margin three points with less than a minute left. Caro closed the gap to a point with a basket by Rick Thompson. Tim Sontag moved the lead back to two points with a foul shot and Craig Tonti made the first of a one and one with five seconds left to clinch it.

While Comment carried the Hawks in the first quarter it was Tonti who kept Cass City in the game in the third quarter. He hit on two jumpers from the top of the key and another on a drive.

Cass City needed all the help it could get as Darryl Lesoski whipped in three quick buckets at the start of the second half to keep the Tigers on the heels of the Hawks.

When Cass City adjusted to stop Lesoski, Jeff Jones took over with jumpers from the side.

It was a game that Cass City wanted to win. A must game. Comment discarded the ankle supports that he wore for the previous two games. Whether or not that was the reason for his fine game the fact remains that it was his best game since Athletic Director Roland Pakonen said that the postponed game with North Branch was to have been played Wednesday night.

If weather doesn't permit the game Wednesday it will be played Thursday. Every effort will be made to play the game sometime this week as rules allow only two games a week outside of tournament play and Cass City has two games a week for the rest of the regular season.

before the holidays. Tonti played a strong game after a slow start.

Comment was the leading rebounder in the game with 10. Sontag had 8. Smith was credited with 9 and Lesoski, 7. Comment collected 27 points and Tonti added 25. Sontag netted 14. Jones tossed in nine buckets, mostly from outside, and added a free throw to share scoring honors with Lesoski with 19 each.

The Hawks converted 24 of 45 shots from the field while Caro hit 32 of 57. Caro had only four foul shot tries and converted two of them.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The Cass City Junior Varsity stayed in the running with the Caro JV for the first half. But after that the Tigers took charge and won going away, 65-39.

Cass City	FG	FT	PTS
Ferris	-	1-2	1
Tonti	9	7-9	25
Comment	10	7-8	27
Sontag	4	6-9	14
Pobanz	1	-	2
	24	21-28	69

Caro	FG	FT	PTS
Jones	9	1-2	19
Cockerill	3	-	6
Hartman	1	-	2
Cooper	3	-	6
Smith	4	-	8
Thompson	3	-	6
Lesoski	9	1-2	19
	32	2-4	66

IT LOOKS AS if Craig Tonti is charging on this bucket but he wasn't. No foul was called on the drive by Cass City's and the Thumb B Association's leading scorer.

3 teams still in race for Recreation League title

It's apparent now that People's, Stevenson's and Shetler's will fight it out among themselves for the Cass City Recreational League regular season championship.

No other team is near these teams in talent this season. The trio proved that again this week as they rolled over the competition in preparation for the games with each other that will decide the title.

The opening game of the week last Wednesday was between a pair of non-contenders. McMahan's topped Charmont, 63-52.

The game was decided in the first quarter. Charmont has had trouble all year getting off to a quick start. The same trouble cost them again against McMahan's. At the end of the first quarter it was 15-6 and Charmont never recovered. Charmont cut the lead to 26-19 at the half, but the winners posted a 21-17 last period advantage to nail down the victory.

Leon Kaniecowski, 20, and Kurt Copeland, 10, were in double figures for McMahan's while Dennis Dunkel, 11, Dave Doerr, 10, and Tim Severance, 10, led the losers.

Winless Erla's had no chance against potent Shetler's Plumbing and Heating. The Plumbers used all 11 players and won with ease. At the end of three quarters Shetler's was in front 63-27 and coasted in.

Jim Madison, 16, headed balanced scoring for Shetler's. Doug Krohn, 12, and Kent Shetler, 10, were in double figures. For Erla's Chuck Hendrick scored 16 and Tom Prich, 10.

In Thursday's opening game, People's State Bank stayed tied for the lead with a 72-58 decision over Hill-aker's Auctioneers.

After trailing 16-15 at the end of the first eight minutes, Hillaker's came alive and roared to a 37-28 half-time advantage. One of the baskets was a crowd pleaser as Dave Zawilinski hit the league's leading scorer, Roy Calahan, with a long pass and Calahan dunked it for two points.

But that was the end for Hillaker's. The Bankers started to play good defense and posted a 21-6 advantage in the third quarter to take the lead. A 23-15 last period advantage quelled whatever hopes Hillaker's had of an upset.

Calahan scored 33 for the losers. People's had five players in double figures led by Chuck Peterson with 18. Others were Norm Stephens, 11, Tim Bates, 11, Dirk Sutherland, 10, and Dave Holder, 10.

In the final game of the week Stevenson's Insurance put on an offensive show to roll over Caro Plumbing and Heating, 104-62.

Stevenson's roared out of the starting blocks with a 22-9 advantage in the first period and added to it with 29-19 advantage in the second quarter and it was all over but the shouting.

Bill Stevenson led the winners with 33 points. Other big scorers for Stevenson's were Jeff McKensie, 25; Rick Tuckey, 19; Mark Green, 15, and Mark Gainforth, 12. Jay Owens led the losers with 22 points. Pat Hagen had 13 and Mar Schubel, 10.

The standings:

People's State Bank	7	1
Stevenson's Ins.	7	1
Shetler's P & H	7	1
Hillaker's Auction	4	4
Charmont Lanes	3	5

School board ok's new league line-up

The Cass City School Board approved a possible realignment of the Thumb B Athletic Association Monday night at its regular meeting at the high school.

The approval doesn't signify the end of the Thumb B for Cass City. Trustees will go along with a realignment to help schools in the Big Thumb Conference that is disbanding. However, the school is happy with the Thumb B as it is today.

What the board did was okay Cass City entering a "west" division of a new 15-team league.

The division would include Reese, USA, Vassar, Caro, Lakers, North Branch and Cass City. The "east" division would include Bad Axe, Harbor Beach, Uby, Marlette, Sandusky, Mayville and Brown City.

A north-south alignment of teams was rejected by the board.

The new league could not begin operating until the fall of 1982 if organized. However, informed opinion is that the merger plans will fall through. It takes a 75 percent majority vote of participating schools to make a change and that's not deemed likely.

Wrestlers Thumb B co-champs

Cass City wrestlers are co-champions of the Thumb B Association with Caro following the league meet held Saturday in Bad Axe.

The Hawks won a share of the coveted trophy by finishing second in the conference meet, which accounts for 50 percent of the score, and going undefeated in dual conference meets this season.

Caro won the conference meet with a score of 171. Cass City netted 165½ points. Other teams finished in the following order: Marlette, 131 points; Sandusky, 129 points; Bad Axe, 60 points; Vassar, 56 points; Lakers, 22 points.

Cass City won four events. Phil Harmer was the victor in the 112-pound class and his brother, Clayton, took honors in the 132-pound class. Doug Sowden was the champion in the 198-pound class while Jim Jensen won it all in the unlimited class.

Other results were: 98-pound class, Andy Brydon, Marlette, was the winner. Jeff Papp, third.

105-pound class, Todd Webster, Caro, winner.

119-pound class, Tim Wendt, Marlette, was the winner. Paul Brown, third.

126-pound class, Angel Martinez, Sandusky, was the winner. Mark Dolecki, CC, second.

138-pound class, Scott Smith, Caro, winner.

145-pound class, C. Driscoll, Sandusky, winner.

155-pound class, Scott Blank, Sandusky, was the winner. Bob Sawdon, third.

167-pound class, Aymen, Bad Axe, winner.

185-pound class, Bob Suranye, Caro, was the winner. Shawn Papp, second.

Cass City to host wrestling tourney

Cass City will host the district high school Class C wrestling tournament Saturday starting at 11 a.m.

There will be 14 schools in the competition and events will be run continuously all day.

Schools in the competition are: Bad Axe, Burton Atherton, Burton Bendle, Burton Bentley, Capac, Cass City, Flint Hamady, Goodrich, Lakers, Marlette, Montrose, New Lothrop, Saginaw Sts. Peter and Paul and Sandusky.

O-G spikers tops in league

Monday's scheduled non-league match at home against Uby was tentatively postponed until Wednesday because of the weather. The Bulldogs host Flint Holy Rosary Thursday and Akron-Fairgrove Monday.

Owen-Gage finished third in an eight-team volleyball tournament Saturday at Pottsville, southwest of Lansing.

Coach Judy Campbell's squad defeated Michigan Lutheran Seminary in the opening match, 11-1, 11-3. The first team to score 11 was the winner, instead of the usual 15.

Host Pottsville downed the Bulldogs in the second, 11-6, 12-10.

Owen-Gage won its final two regular matches, 13-11, 11-8, over North Adams, and 11-3, 11-2, over Litchfield, to qualify for the playoffs.

Playoff matches were for 15 points, with the Bulldogs losing their initial playoff match, to Saranac, 11-15 and Owen-Gage then won the third place trophy over Lutheran Seminary, 15-2, 15-12.

For the day, Julie Andrakowicz scored 36 points, Kris Erickson, 29, and Peg Berube and Becky Howard, 22 each.

Howard collected 92 good spikes and 31 ace spikes; Andrakowicz, 36 good and 16 ace.

PECK

Owen-Gage increased its North Central D League volleyball record to 4-0 Thursday night with two wins at home against Peck.

The Bulldogs won the first match 15-5, 15-0. Kris Erickson scored 10 points and Peggy Berube, 8. Becky Howard had five good spikes.

Owen-Gage won the second match, 15-5, 15-7. Julie Andrakowicz scored 13 points, Berube, 8, and Howard had seven good spikes.

Owen-Gage also won the junior varsity match, 15-5, 15-13.

CASS CITY tried to press Caro frequently but the speedy Tiger guards handled it well. Challenging Mark Cockerill is Ray Ferris.

Plans more time on farm

Severance ends 30 years' public service

After 30 years of public service, Lloyd Severance has decided it's time to spend more time on other matters.

"I kind of hate to give it up, but I just got too many things to do," said the ex-school board member, township official and Sanilac county commissioner. "I've just got too many irons in the fire."

His biggest iron is dairy farming with sons Art and Les. "Farming is my first love. I've been doing it all my life."

Severance, 64, was elected to the Evergreen Township Unit School board about 1950. The district was a consolidation of the seven one-room schoolhouse districts in the township.

He was board chairman in 1953, when the present school was built. "I remember signing all those bonds" (to finance construction).

He became an Evergreen township trustee about 1954 or '55. He left the school board job some time before the district merged with the Cass City district in the mid-1960s.

In March, 1959, Severance became township treasurer. Ten years later, he became township supervisor, a job he held four years. He was following in the footsteps of his father, Charles, who was supervisor for 35 years.

Severance was first elected to the Sanilac County Board of Commissioners in 1972, representing district 1, Evergreen, Greenleaf, Lamotte, Argyle and Moore townships.

He served eight years, having chosen not to seek reelection last November. His term ended Dec. 31.

He and his two sons each own some land of their own; Art and Les each have their own dairy herds, with each milking about 100 cows, but the three work together. Lloyd owns the machinery and does machinery repair and feeding. He also does a lot of the buying.

"I milk one cow a month, just to say I know how to milk a cow," he joked.

The three Severances all live on Severance Road.

"There's a lot of work for everybody," Lloyd said in explaining why he didn't run again for the county board. "I didn't feel I was carrying my end of it."

In addition to their two sons, Lloyd and his wife Esther have two daughters, RuthAnn Marshall, whose husband David works for the Severances, and Linda Hirsch, whose husband Leland is also a dairy farmer in the Decker area.

One of Art's sons, Tim, also works full time on the farm. Esther Severance keeps the books for the operation.

Lloyd Severance's other iron in the fire is selling insurance for the Sanilac Mutual Co., of which he is vice-president. His father was a director of the casualty insurance company, which is 81 years old.

IT'S ALL BEEN A learning experience," he said of his years of service at the township, school and county level. "The experience I had in township office was sure appreciated when I became a commissioner."

Severance was also a member of the Federal Land Bank board for awhile -- "I probably learned a lot about farm finance." -- and was a member of the 4-H Fair Board from 1954-74.

He has four years remaining on his term on the Sanilac County Board of Health, a position he started serving while on the county board of commissioners.

"IT'S AMAZING HOW much things have changed in eight years," he said of his four terms as county commissioner.

He offered as an example, the Thumb Area Commission on Aging, which was formed during that time. "Whoever would have thought that (senior citizens) would be a priority item government would be taking care of?"

More people and more government regulations and programs made county government more complicated. Revenue sharing and the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program are two federal government programs that began in the 1970s. "With all new programs, there are more responsibilities," he commented.

IN ADDITION TO THE weekly county board or committee meetings, Severance usually had one or two other meetings to attend each week.

He served on the finance and personnel committees and as a member of the latter, was involved in negotiations with the five unions that represent county employees. "We wouldn't even get one settled and we would be on another," he commented.

Until the board hired John Dean in August, 1979, as county administrator and labor negotiator, the personnel committee was doing all of the negotiating.

That took so much time that it became a full-time job at part-time pay for Severance and he considered quitting. "There was just so much work, that it got to me." Pay, incidentally, increased from $5,200 his first year to $6,000 his last.

He found during his eight years there is a lot of misunderstanding by the public about the responsibilities of the county board. It does not have control, for instance, over the county Road Commission or Department of Social Services (welfare). "UNTIL I BECAME A commissioner," he added, "I didn't understand what went on down at the courthouse."

He feels that Sanilac county government is well run, that commissioners and department heads are careful how money is spent.

"When people talk to me about fat in government, in county government, do you know what my answer is? 'There isn't any more fat than in our personal households.'" All households have at least a little fat, he added. "Of necessity, we could all cut down."

During his last year as a commissioner, and for the first time in his eight years, the board found the only way the county could make ends meet was to lay off seven employees and not replace some persons who retired.

He described that decision as "very difficult and you sure don't make any friends."

Drinking water unsafe at 3 Doerr Road homes

probably be either sinking deeper wells or tapping into the close-by village water system.

The three homes with the contamination problem, Kimbrue said, all draw their water from shallow wells, about 15 feet deep. The two homes with no problems have deep wells extending more than 100 feet.

COST TO WALBRO

The cost to Walbro for sinking the test wells, having testing done and having the liquid wastes hauled away, Ewald said, has been very expensive, though he didn't care to give specific amounts.

Since the firm first started to have its liquid wastes hauled away, it has sought permission from the DNR to use Metaseal containing a chemical other than styrene in its manufacturing operation.

It wants to use the version of the compound containing vinyl toluene, and then discharge all of its waste water into the village sanitary sewer system. That would be much cheaper than trucking the liquid away for disposal.

Walbro had to hire an independent laboratory to test the new compound for possible harmful effects.

After more than a year and a half of hassles between Walbro, the laboratory and the manufacturer of the chemical with the DNR over testing procedures and test results, the state agency has now given a tentative go-ahead to the company.

Permission was granted, according to Dan Myers of the DNR municipal wastewater treatment system, with the strong recommendation that Walbro not begin discharging its liquid wastes into the sanitary sewer system until Cass City's new sewage treatment plant is in operation, which won't be until February, 1982.

Furthermore, once the discharge takes place, careful monitoring must be done to determine how effectively the vinyl toluene compound is broken down in the treatment process and its effect on the treatment plant.

Doing so will require hiring of a private laboratory to do testing, a cost which will have to be paid by Walbro, according to Ewald.

The ultimate decision whether to grant permission to Walbro to discharge into the sewer system, Myers said, is up to the village.

Ewald will be meeting with village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie to discuss when Walbro can begin discharging its liquid wastes into the sanitary sewer and what measures must be undertaken before it can begin doing so.

Kingston area home ransacked

A portable color television set worth $200 was stolen in a break-in reported to Tuscola sheriff's deputies Friday.

The break-in at the home on Legg Road, Kingston, owned by Leo Zabinski of Dearborn was reported by Howard Tucker of Bevins Road, Kingston, caretaker of the home.

It took place sometime since Jan. 6, when Tucker was last there.

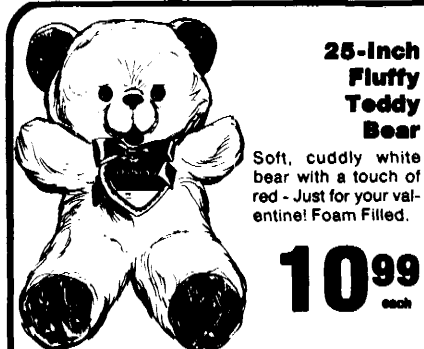

Also taken was the battery from a tractor in the garage. Some other items may also have been stolen, but that wasn't immediately determined.

Entry was gained by breaking a window. The intruders, in addition to stealing the items, ransacked the home, including emptying the contents of a fire extinguisher on a living room wall.

LLOYD SEVERANCE may no longer be a Sanilac county commissioner, but it's impossible to get away from government paperwork. In this instance, he is looking over his federal income tax forms.

Card of Thanks

MANY THANKS to all the friends and relatives for the well wishes, prayers, lovely cards and flowers. Also for visits. To the nurses and Dr. Jeung for the wonderful care while I was hospitalized and also to Rev. Tegenhorst and Rev. Gelatt for their visits. Thank you again and God bless you all. Milford Robinson.

13-2-12-1

THE FAMILY OF Arthur Eskilsen express sincere thanks to relatives, neighbors, and friends for the many acts of kindness during the bereavement of our departed loved one. In addition, special thanks to Rev. and Mrs. Deatherage for the comforting message in word and song; to Rev. Wachterhauser and members of the Trinity United Methodist church and church of the Nazarene for providing the family dinner; to the Cass City village for snow removal, and to the Little's Funeral Home for the services rendered.

Most mail goes through despite the snow storm

The mail must go through and almost all of it did, despite Tuesday's snow storm.

The snow kept schools closed a second day and they were closed again Wednesday.

At the Cass City wastewater treatment plant, a total of .9 of an inch of rain and melted snow were measured at 7 a.m. Wednesday, having fallen during the previous 24 hours.

There were four inches of snow measured, which meant that rainfall after it stopped snowing about 9 p.m. Tuesday totaled a half-inch.

Had it kept snowing, there would have been a total of 9 inches of snow. (One inch of water is equivalent to 10 inches of snow.) The high temperature sometime

Tuesday night reached 38 degrees, recorded at the treatment plant.

Cass City Postmaster Grant Glaspie said rural carriers were unable to get to only four homes Tuesday, despite the heavy snowfall.

"Today may be a different story," he said Wednesday morning, his doubts being because of the high winds and drifting snow expected that day.

The mail truck did come in from Saginaw Wednesday, but the amount of mail was less than normal. Mail is delivered to the Saginaw station from Detroit and Chicago, and apparently not all of that got through.

The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Wednesday morning reported that state highways were open, though snow covered and slippery. Some side roads were passable, but others were blocked by snow.

Accidents Tuesday because of the snow and ice were reported to be relatively few, none of them serious, one reason being that many persons were staying off the roads.

Teeth vary with person

While tooth decay is basically a food-related disease, the relationship between food intake, brushing, tooth structure and cavities is very complicated. For example, even if two people have the same habits of tooth care and consume the same amount of sugar, one could develop tooth decay and the other might not, simply because of differences in genetic and nutritional background.

Studies show that food which stays in the mouth for long periods of time or is eaten often is more likely to cause cavities.

Pair earn degrees from Saginaw Valley College

Two area residents, Gene K. Schroeder of Cass City and Cindy A. LaFave of Saginaw, graduated from Saginaw Valley State College at the end of the fall semester.

Schroeder, of 6840 Severance Road, a father of three, graduated magna cum laude. He received a bachelor of business administration degree, with a major in accounting.

He graduated from Cass City High School in 1964, then attended Michigan State University for two years.

A summer job at Marlette Homes turned into a full-time job, interrupted by four years in the Air Force. He worked a total of four years at the manufacturing firm before quitting six years ago to work at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

The first four years at the hospital, he was a maintenance worker. Four years ago, he started attending classes part-time at Saginaw Valley.

Two years ago, he obtained a job in the hospital accounting department and 11 months ago was promoted to billing office manager.

Except for one term, when he had classes in the afternoon, Schroeder usually took two classes, two nights a week.

Now that he has finished his schooling, he will have more time to spend with his family. Schroeder and his wife Nancy have three children, Scott, 11, Stephanie, 9, and Amanda, 1.

Cindy LaFave received a bachelor of arts degree in elementary education. She is presently doing substitute teaching in schools in Tuscola and Huron counties.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul LaFave of 2506 E. Bay City-Forestville Road and a 1975 graduate of Owendale-Gagetown High School.

In addition to attending college, since graduating from high school she also worked as a teacher's aide and a waitress.

Cindy LaFave

COLLEGE GRAD -- Gene K. Schroeder, billing office manager at Hills and Dales General Hospital, is a magna cum laude graduate of Saginaw Valley State College.
