

Suspect arrested for 1980 murder at Quanicassee

A Saginaw man was arrested early Wednesday, charged with the June 4, 1980, murder of Tommy Lee Smith at Quanicassee.

Arrested at his home at 2:30 a.m. was Randy Lee Tume, 22. The arrest was made by Saginaw police and Detectives Larry Walker and Ronald Phillips of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Tume was taken to the county jail in Caro.

He was scheduled to be arraigned by District Judge Richard F. Kern sometime Wednesday. His preliminary examination before the judge will be May 4.

Smith, 39, of Saginaw was shot in the back with buckshot and apparently died instantly, while fishing in a channel off the Quanicassee River in the northwest corner of the county.

He was shot by someone in a passing car and the nearest witness was .3 mile away. All witnesses had noticed after hearing the shot was a green car driving by, occupied by two men. The murder took place between 5:30 and 5:45 p.m.

Tuscola County Prosecutor Artis Noel issued the warrant for the arrest of Tume at 11 p.m. Tuesday. "The case developed at that point and we're not going to waste any time on a first degree murder charge," he said in explaining why it was issued at that late hour.

He indicated a person had supplied some key information several months ago and that Tume had been a suspect since then, but declined to state what had been the breakthrough, other than that there had been some last minute circumstances that further indicated the suspect's involvement. More details will be forthcoming at the preliminary examination.

Although there was supposedly another person in the car with the person who pulled the trigger, Noel wouldn't say whether the other person was the one who had supplied the information or whether that other person is still being sought as an accessory in the murder.

The prosecutor had praise for the investigation done by Walker and Phillips and the sheriff's department. "It was one the sheriff's department put a lot of hours in and did a good job."

Smith was survived by a wife, Icey, and daughter Tonya, then 12. He had been employed at the General Motors nodular iron plant in Saginaw and had gone fishing after work.

His body was discovered by a friend, with whom he had gone fishing, who wasn't close by when the shooting occurred.

Mrs. Smith was notified by the sheriff's department Tuesday night that Tume was to be arrested for her husband's murder, Noel said.

THE ARTRAIN IS COMING -- And to greet its presence in Cass City, May 5-9, 7-foot long banners made by fiber design students of Karen Wallace at the high school will be hanging from downtown lampposts. Completing her banner depicting a peacock was Karen Franks. There will be 11 or 12 banners. Students are also making a quilt for the occasion.

Senior citizen lunch program starts Monday in Cass City

Get the knives, forks and spoons, plates and glasses ready.

After a lengthy delay, the Thumb Area Commission on Aging (TACA) hot lunch program for senior citizens will begin at the First Presbyterian church in Cass City Monday.

Meals will then be served Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Serving time will be at noon.

The program is open to all persons 60 and older and their spouses, even if under 60, regardless of income. Persons are not required to pay for the meals, but there is a suggested donation of 75 cents per meal.

Should senior citizens bring a guest who is not eligible, for instance, a grandchild or neighbor, that person will be charged the actual cost of the meal, $2.70.

Providing a balanced meal is only one part of the program, according to Joan Andrakowicz, TACA nutrition director. The other is to provide an opportunity for senior citizens to socialize.

For that reason, the church hall will be open from either 10 a.m.-2 p.m. or 11-3. She will be at the church Monday to ask those present what hours they prefer.

It is suggested senior citizens come Monday about 11 a.m.

Usually prior to the meal, persons come to play cards or visit. After the meal, there is an organized activity, such as a speaker, film or crafts, arranged by the meal site manager. The manager in Cass City will be Betty Jo Kulling.

The meals will be prepared at the senior citizen meal site in Caro and for that reason, prior reservations will be needed so that she can notify the kitchen there how many meals to prepare.

The deadline for calling her the day of the meal is 9 a.m. Suggested hours to call her at her home, 872-4270, are between 8 and 9 a.m. or 7-9 the previous evening.

Once the program is underway, persons attending can make a reservation at the church for the next meal, so won't have to call.

It is anticipated that about 40 persons will eat at the church each time, based on experience at other meal sites. Mrs. Andrakowicz said, however, there is no set maximum number that will be served.

When the meal site at Peck opened Monday of last week, 30 came the first day and 20 the second day.

The Commission on Aging presently operates 15 meal sites in the three upper Thumb counties, which serve either two, three or five meals per week.

Hot meals will be served. One such meal, reading from a TACA menu, is spaghetti and meat sauce, green beans, lettuce, garlic toast and baked apple.

Another is ham, scalloped potatoes, cooked carrots, coleslaw, and peaches. Bread and butter will be available and milk, coffee and tea to drink. Meals are planned by a registered dietician.

No dish washing facilities are available at the church. Accordingly, it will be necessary for those eating there to bring their own dishes, silverware and cups.

As mentioned, the suggested donation per meal comes no where close to its actual cost.

The main subsidy for the program comes from the .2 mill for senior citizen activities, approved by Tuscola county voters in August of last year.

The program is budgeted at $7,055 from now through Sept. 30, according to TACA Director Ron Cassie, plus $4,060 had to be spent for purchase of equipment for preparation of the meals and an insulated container for bringing the meals from Caro.

Of the $7,055, it is anticipated that $1,755 will come from "donations" and the rest from the millage.

Of the amount categorized as donations, 47½ cents per meal comes from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, in lieu of providing surplus commodities, such as it provides to schools, and the rest from the person eating the meal.

The target date for establishing the meal program in Cass City had been in February. The delay, he explained, was because he and Mrs. Andrakowicz were trying to find a site within the village limits that was barrier free with a kitchen that could be certified for preparing meals on a continuing basis.

When that proved impossible, it was decided to have the meals prepared in Caro, so they then looked for a site that was barrier free. They were unsuccessful there, so it was finally decided to rent the Presbyterian church basement on Church Street.

There are a few steps leading to the basement. Cassie said the offer has been made to the church that if it will make the basement barrier free, by installing ramps and/or wheelchair lift, the TACA is willing to increase the rent it pays after its present rental contract expires Sept. 30.

Program participants will be encouraged to offer suggestions concerning meals and activities. In addition, a formal advisory board will be established composed of four persons who eat at the site, three other persons from the community, Mrs. Kulling and Mrs. Andrakowicz. The board will meet as needed.

GETTING READY -- The senior citizen noon meal program begins at the First Presbyterian church in Cass City Monday. Making plans for opening day were Joan Andrakowicz, left, Thumb Area Commission on Aging nutrition director, and Betty Jo Kulling, the meal site manager. Mrs. Kulling and a cook who will bring the meals from Caro will be the only employees at the site.

to practice in Cass City

Cass City will have two doctors, and possibly a third, moving here this summer.

In addition, Hills and Dales General Hospital has announced it has signed an agreement with Mid-Michigan Emergency Doctors, Inc. (MEDIC) of Grand Rapids to have a doctor staff the emergency room from 6 p.m. each Friday to 6 a.m. Monday. The new service began this past Friday.

The two doctors establishing practices in Cass City in July are Dr. Doo Sup Lah, MD, a pediatrician (children's doctor), and Dr. No Yun, MD, a general practitioner. The third doctor who may be coming here is also a general practitioner.

Dr. Lah, 34, received his medical training at Seoul (Korea) National University and will finish his residency in pediatrics at Lincoln Medical Center, the Bronx, New York City, at the end of June. He is married.

According to Hills and Dales Administrator Ken Jensen, he was initially recruited through the American Medical Association placement service. Local Doctors Hoon K. Jeung and Sang H. Park then aided in the effort to persuade him to move here. His office will be in the Hills and Dales Medical Center, across from the hospital.

Dr. Yun was recruited by Dr. Jeung, according to Jensen, and more information about him will be forthcoming shortly. His office will be in the new clinic Dr. Jeung has under construction on Hospital Drive.

Efforts are still underway to recruit two more general practitioners (in addition to the one who may come here, who met with Jensen Monday), with the aim of having one open an office in Sebewaing and the other in the Deford-Kingston area. Both would serve on the Hills and Dales staff.

In addition to improving the services provided by the hospital, Jensen said, the agreement with MEDIC is an aid to present doctors on the staff and in recruiting new ones, since it means they won't have to be on hospital standby duty on week ends in case of emergencies.

The physicians who will be providing the service are fully licensed in Michigan and are members of the American College of Emergency Physicians. MEDIC contracts with various hospitals, some full-time, to provide emergency room service.

Patients seeking treatment will be seen immediately by the MEDIC doctor, with a report sent to their family doctor. Those admitted will be turned over to the care of their family physician. The MEDIC doctor will bill the patient in the same manner their family physician bills them for his professional services.

MEDIC will receive $87,000 for its first year of coverage, Jensen said, minus the amount it collects from patients. It is expected that it ultimately will cost the hospital about $40,000.

Hills and Dales treats about 5,000 emergency patients a year and it is expected the MEDIC doctors may see half of them. The MEDIC doctor on duty Friday evening saw 10 patients.

In addition to staffing the emergency room, the Please turn to page 12.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Monday night was c-o-l-d. Or was it? Evidently not for a group of young persons at the park at about 9 p.m. They were in their shirt sleeves playing basketball under the lights.

I shivered for them.

The Bob Wischmeyer family was without one car to use or a couple of days. No, the car wasn't wrecked and there was nothing wrong with it.

The trouble was that a key is needed to start it. Over the weekend, my spies tell me, son, Kirk, lost one key and his mother lost the other.

The car was still sitting Monday waiting for a key from out of town.

The village completed paying for the present sewer system this year, just in time to start paying for the new one under construction.

There is a slight difference. In 1956 the addition to the plant cost $165,000. The new plant is budgeted at $6 million.

Monday the temperature hovered around 25 degrees. A year ago Monday, according to Bill Kritzman, the temperature was 84 degrees.

Take heart. The forecast is for warmer weather this weekend. Last year two days after the thermometer registered that very fine weather, it snowed.

Ah! Michigan in the spring.

Vandals have been active at the Rotary Exercise Trail in the woods at Cass City Recreational Park.

Most of the signs indicating the type exercise at each of the 20 stations have been vandalized. All but a couple of the untouched signs are on the edge of the woods and open to view.

Most of the signs in the park can be repaired with a little work by the village crew. However, two are beyond repair.

The trail itself is in excellent condition and ready for use anytime.

M.B. AUTEN was greeted by old friends Saturday in the basement of the Cass City State Bank. Guests enjoyed a slice of a huge birthday cake. The open house marked Auten's 90th birthday.

Too soon to tell about frost damage

It's too soon to tell whether frost Monday night damaged any of the new planted sugarbeet crop.

Michigan Sugar Co. agronomist Phil Brimhall, who was out inspecting beet fields Tuesday, said afterwards it won't be possible to determine the amount of damage for a few days yet, when any damaged plants will turn black.

Those likely to be damaged, he explained, are the ones just barely showing or just below the surface.

Sixty percent of the acreage contracted by Michigan Sugar has been planted and with good weather, the rest could be planted by the end of the week.

Planting started at the end of March, according to Brimhall, about a month earlier than usual. Farmers took a chance on suffering frost damage in order to benefit from a longer growing season, which would result in bigger sugarbeets. Farmers can replant beets ruined by frost, he noted, but it will cost them time and money.

Sugarbeets weren't the only possible casualties of the frost.

At 6 a.m. Tuesday, Lloyd Trisch, one of the few fruit growers in the area, was out spraying his sweet cherry trees with water. The ice coating seemingly protected them from when the sun came up later, which seems to be the time they would be damaged if unprotected.

Tuesday evening, he said it was still too early to tell if they had suffered any damage. He thought it was too early for his apple and peach trees to have suffered any damage.

Trisch, who lives west of Ellington on Colwood Road, has almost 500 fruit trees, mostly apple and peach, plus cherries, plums and pears.

"If It Fitz..."

Fathead with fur hat

By Jim Fitzgerald

Everyone knows that if a man wants to be a social success, he should dress fashionably. I try. Lord, how I try. That's why I was crestfallen when Dolly Katz laughed at my hat.

Dolly is the Free Press medical writer. Having a president named Jimmy helped me to accept medical advice from someone named Dolly. Recently she wrote that coffee might cause cancer. One of her readers mailed the article back to her with "Bullbleep" scrawled across it. Dolly posted this vulgar message on an office bulletin board with this note attached: "Bullbleep causes cancer."

To be fair, it should be acknowledged that Dolly probably didn't know how telling I would be by her criticism of my fur hat. For some reason, perhaps something I wore, it isn't generally known around the office that I am fashion conscious. My wife made me that way. She always notices clothing and what is wrong with it.

For example, I showed her the nearly nude photos of Rita Jenrette, the ex-congressman's estranged wife, in Playboy magazine. I expected some comment on Mrs. Jenrette's unusual smile or breasts, all three of which appeared to be starched. But my wife saw only clothing.

"I can't believe they would print pictures of such sloppiness," she said. "Her nose are wrinkled."

By golly, they were wrinkled, at the knees in two photos and at the ankles in a third. I guess Rita ran out of starch.

You probably wonder what my wife thinks of my fur hat which has a brim and a creased crown, just like a fedora, and is black and white. I hope the fur is fake because I don't believe animals should be killed just to make Dolly Katz laugh.

The label inside the hat says "Macy's Men's Store, New York." I can't remember where I got this hat, but I know I've never been inside Macy's. Perhaps I was given the hat inadvertently by a hatcheck person who mistook me for the operator of a dogsled. Whatever, I know my wife didn't buy me the hat because she doesn't like it.

The first time my wife saw the hat, she also laughed. So did my children. But there was a difference between this familial laughter and the laughter of Dolly Katz. My family laughed when they saw the hat on my head. Dolly has never seen it on my head. She laughed when she saw it perched on the coat rack next to my desk.

"Is this yours?" she whooped, picking up the fur hat with two fingers, as though she were about to begin an autopsy. "Was it an endangered species?"

When I described Dolly's reaction to my wife, she said, "You'd better not let Dolly see the hat on your head. She might laugh so hard she will hurt herself."

The problem, according to my family, is that my head is so big even the largest-size hat looks strange on top of it, and when the hat resembles a dead skunk, the strangeness breeds hilarity.

It's true that my head is rather large, which is why I like the fur hat. I do much walking in the wind, because that's the kind of a guy I am. I prefer the wind in my hair, but winter weather makes a hat necessary to survival. Most fedora-type hats blow off my head and under cars, but my fur hat stays put because it has ear flaps.

When I pull the flaps down tight over my ears, the hat is secure in the wildest wind. My family said this looks funny, but I was consoled by not freezing. But now Dolly has laughed, and I must face the fact that my fur hat even looks funny on a hat rack, with flaps withdrawn. Funny isn't fashionable so, as mentioned earlier, my crest is drooping.

As long as the winds blow, I continue to wear my fur hat, and hope for a change in men's headwear fashions. But I no longer wear it into the office for fear Dolly Katz will kill herself laughing. Each morning as I near the Free Press building, I take off my fur hat and carry it in my arms. People pet it.

The Haire Net

Elmer Francis of Cass City was the latest in a long list of first time travellers abroad to remark about the extreme poverty in many foreign countries.

Extreme poverty contrasted by a few very wealthy families. That's the rule, especially in the Caribbean. Invariably the very poor are undereducated.

We don't have that in the United States but we do have a growing number of persons at the poverty level and a growing number with more than an adequate income.

Like the foreign traveler, I'm struck by the numbers of people with money to burn everytime I go to northern Michigan or to towns like Birmingham or similar affluent suburbs.

The Detroit area hardly seems like a disaster situation when you can't get two tickets together at $12 a copy for a play that has been running for months.

It's a certainty that some of the patrons of that theatre during the time the play has been shown have voted against a school millage somewhere.

Just because there are plenty of families with money out there is no reason why they should vote for a school tax if they believe it is not necessary.

On the other hand it's easy to find an excuse for boarding dollars that you don't want to spend on schools.

Every millage vote brings out myriad reasons why the school doesn't deserve the money. It's the teachers, the superintendent, the curriculum, the waste and on and on.

You have to believe in education to vote for schools if you don't have any kids attending. Believe that good schools ultimately result in a better community for everyone.

That doesn't mean that the school should have a free rein where everything asked for is automatically granted.

It does mean that the school situation in your community should be looked at carefully. It's not reasonable to expect that schools can go on year after year without sharply increased costs anymore than we can.

Certainly for families on the poverty line, supporting a tax increase is a definite hardship. You can't blame these people if they feel they have to vote no.

By themselves these votes wouldn't kill a millage. Because so many are going down, there's little doubt that many taxpayers that could afford to support our schools aren't willing to do so.

In the long run that's expensive for all of us with a stake in the place where we live.

PEDALING AROUND

Close

By Mike Eliasohn

Whenever Michigan suffers a recession, the solution offered is always the same. We need to diversify our economy, which is too dependent on the auto industry.

A recent issue of the "Michigan State Economic Record," published by the Michigan State University Graduate School of Business Administration, traces the history of diversification efforts back to 1958.

There was a recession that year and someone named Cecil M. Birch published a paper, "Can Detroit's Economy Be Diversified?" The first major economic study came the following year and among its recommendations were to stop minimizing Michigan's virtue and exaggerating its problems, a research effort to determine industries for which the state is best suited, growth and stabilization of existing firms and an exploratory committee to consider efforts to take advantage of Michigan's water resources. Sound familiar?

The article notes there have been some positive efforts over the years, mainly legislation to ease the tax burden on new industries, but apparently not enough to offset the negative aspects.

The article concludes with a list of reasons why the many efforts over the years to diversify the state's economy have failed. One was poor timing, that the studies suggesting solutions were generally issued after the recession that spurred it was over, and no one cared any more. Another was that the studies generally stated goals instead of specific recommendations on how to achieve those goals.

Prosperous times provided high paying jobs, which discouraged other industries from moving or expanding here. Michigan bankers shied away from making loans to prospective new businesses which contained an element of risk because they could make more money by loaning money to the auto industry and farmers and investing in tax anticipation notes.

It's too early to tell whether the solutions being suggested this time will have a fate any different than the proposals offered in the past.

The big problem Michigan faces in competing with the other states for jobs remains the high cost of labor, in pay and for worker's compensation (which hopefully will be reformed through the legislation approved last year) and unemployment compensation.

One new twist this time is the emphasis being put on agriculture as a means of helping get Michigan out of its economic doldrums. That was the emphasis of the recent Governor's Conference on Agriculture in Lansing.

With Michigan importing half the food consumed here, the emphasis was on increasing the amount of what is grown and processed here and thus increasing employment.

One example offered of the current imbalance is that although Michigan is one of the leading soybean producing states, there is no soybean processing plant here. Soybeans are shipped out of state, processed into soybean meal and then shipped back here for livestock feed.

Michigan corn and soybeans are shipped to western states to feed livestock. The livestock ultimately ends up on dining room and restaurant tables in Michigan. Expanding the state's livestock industry would reduce shipping costs and produce more jobs.

Emphasis was placed on growing food closer to home because of ever increasing transportation costs. For every $2 spent in the United States to grow food, it was reported, $1 is spent moving it around.

Earnings
at Walbro

Lambert E. Althaver, president and chief operating officer, Walbro Corp., reported consolidated net sales of $11,485,390 for the three-month period ended March 31, 1981.

This compares with $11,595,480 for the same period in 1980. Net earnings for the period were $224,339, down from $403,292 in 1980.

On a per-share basis, earnings for the period were 29 cents, compared with 52 cents for the first quarter of 1980.

Althaver attributed the lower earnings to reduced sales of the company's carburetors and plastics products, combined with increased labor and material costs and increased interest charges.

He noted that sales of the company's automotive products and aluminum and magnesium diecastings were up, compared with 1980. Sales of these products are expected to remain strong throughout the year.

A further increase in automotive sales is expected in late 1981 when the company begins supplying its new rotary fuel pump to the automotive original equipment market. Worldwide sales of carburetors are expected to remain considerably below 1980 levels throughout the second and third quarters.

Walbro's annual stockholders' meeting will be April 27 in Cass City.

THIRD-FOURTH GRADE division winners at the Rawson Memorial Library Battle of the Books were, from left, Steven Bills, Randy Johnson, Daniel Barriger, Ken Micklash, Josh Constat and Mike Bills.

Champions crowned
in battle of books

The first annual battle of the books came to an end last Thursday at Rawson Memorial Library with two championship teams being crowned.

The winning team in the 3rd-4th grade division, all students at Campbell Elementary, was composed of Steven Bills, Randy Johnson, Daniel Barriger, Ken Micklash, Josh Constat and Mike Bills. Their manager was Theresa Micklash.

Winners of the 5th-6th grade division, students at Cass City Intermediate, were Jean Weaver, Carolyn Tuckey, Jenny Davis, Meg Brown, Michelle Gaffner and Alicia Bliss. Their manager was Mary Brown.

To make it to the championship round, the final four teams had to defeat either two or three other teams.

The winning 3rd-4th grade team didn't miss a question in its preliminary rounds and only missed one in the finals. The 5th-6th grade champion missed only one question in the preliminaries and one in the championship match. That meant not only answering their own questions right, with the few exceptions, but also the ones missed by the opposing teams.

The other 3rd-4th grade team to make it to the finals was composed of Connie Schneeberger, Connie Profit, Susan Polega, Janet Koch, Sally Brooks and Justin McNaughton, managed by Hilda Koch.

Second place in the 5th-6th grade division belonged to Katie LaBelle, Patty Milligan, Robyn Powell, Heidi Iseler, Lisa Rutkowski and Renee Szarapski, managed by Kathy Iseler.

A total of 11 teams were entered in grades 3-4 and nine in 5-6.

Teams were assigned 25 books to read, with a different 25 for each division.

Some teams chose to have everyone read all 25 and some had each person read only some of them. The teams in which everyone read all the books usually did better, head librarian Barbara Hutchinson noted.

She, the rest of the library staff and Cass City elementary school librarian Donna Emerson wrote the questions, an estimated 500 in all.

Tigers will finish in no. 1 spot

With the Detroit Tigers' win-loss record at 6-1 after Friday's win over Toronto, Phyllis McQueen couldn't have been more enthusiastic about her favorite team's chances during the still very young season.

"They're going to come right out on top," she predicted. "They're going to be No. 1 this season. They're going to stay right up there."

She isn't even pessimistic about pitching, which is felt to be the team's major potential weakness. If the team goes into a slump, she feels, it won't be just because of the pitching, but because of all the players.

Mrs. McQueen found it difficult to name a favorite player, mentioning that one difficulty in doing so is because there are so many new players.

One new player she did mention was pitcher Kevin Saucier, who threw against one batter in relief last Thursday night at Toronto. Compared to the Tigers' ace reliever, Aurelio Lopez, "I think he's going to be just as good."

As for the Detroit manager Sparky Anderson, she commented, "I think he's good. I don't think they can get anybody better than Sparky."

The Tiger fan does not listen to all the games on radio, but, "When it's on TV, I'm right there."

Mrs. McQueen, husband

Clare, and son Gordon, 13, live on Germania Road, Snover.

Job seekers should be warned of bogus advertisements offering high paying jobs or selling Alaska Job Kits for a certain dollar amount. This information is available for the cost of a postage stamp from the State of Alaska.

Tax returns can be amended

Many taxpayers discover that after they have filed their federal tax returns, some item was left out, such as a deduction or an income figure.

These taxpayers can change their original tax returns by filing corrected returns on Form 1040X, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

The original return can be amended any time during the three years following the due date (including extensions) of the original, or two years from the time the tax was paid, whichever is later.

Taxpayers can receive copies of Form 1040X and additional information by calling the IRS tax forms - information number listed for taxpayer assistance in their telephone directory.

Interlochen band slated in Caro

The Caro High School Band Boosters and Caro School Community Services office will sponsor a concert by the 78-piece Concert Band from the Interlochen Arts Academy Sunday, May 3, at 3 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

The band is composed of high school students from all over the world who attend classes and study music at Interlochen's fine arts boarding school, southwest of Traverse City. Edward Downing, conductor of the band, is also director of the famed National Music Camp, Interlochen's eight-week summer fine arts program. He will share the podium with the band's principal guest conductor, Dr. Frederick Fennell, founder and conductor of the Eastman Wind Ensemble, recently retired as conductor in residence at the University of Miami.

During their five-day tour, the band will perform in Caro, Lake Orion, Oxford, Lansing, St. Johns, Delton, Spring Lake and Manistee.

Entries still accepted for art festival

Registrations are still being taken from artists who would like to participate in "The Festival of the Fourth," a multi-media art event at the Tuscola County Fairgrounds in Caro, July 4-5.

The juried art show, held in cooperation with the Michigan Council for the Arts, is open to all Michigan artists 18 or older. All work must be original.

Prizes of $100 will be awarded to three artists displaying outstanding work at the festival.

An entry fee is being charged. No commissions are required. A continental breakfast will be provided for all participating artists on both days and volunteers will be available to man booths during breaks.

The event will also feature musical and theatrical activities, a youth art center and a commissioned community mural made possible through a $1,000 grant from the Council for the Arts.

Individuals wishing to be considered should send their names, addresses, entry fee and slides to Peggy Crane, 312 Birch Knoll Lane, Caro 48723. For further information, contact the Caro Arts Society weekdays from 1-5 p.m. at 673-5266 or Ms. Crane at 673-7027.

4-H leaders to attend photo session

John Agar of Decker, Kim King of Cass City, John Agar Sr. of Decker and William and Darlene Warren of Snover will join other Michigan 4-H teen and adult leaders at the 4-H Photography Leaders Workshop, May 8-9. The workshop will be at Kettunen Center, the 4-H leadership training facility near Cadillac.

The workshop will provide an opportunity for leaders to develop photography skills and learn how to use them in 4-H youth projects.

The workshop is designed to help amateur photographers and occasional picture takers improve their skills.

Workshop sessions will range from basic techniques for composition, exposure and developing good camera habits, to more advanced skills such as photographic lighting and outdoor photography, use of various lenses and lens attachments and the many films available.

HEALTH TIPS

Take it easy when beginning exercise

Ninety minutes of exercise each week can firm sagging muscles, increase endurance and help lower a person's odds of injury during summer sports, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Adults beginning an exercise program should gradually build up to at least 20 minutes of cardiovascular exercise for 3-5 days per week," stated Walter Zeiler, Auto Club's MemberLife manager. "A 20-30 minute workout is needed to challenge and improve the capacity of the lungs, heart and muscles, known collectively as the cardiovascular system."

"Most fitness experts agree that running, bicycling and swimming help produce peak cardiovascular fitness and burn the most calories per minute," Zeiler said.

Running a mile in less than 8 minutes has the same conditioning value as playing handball for 35 minutes, cycling 5 miles in less than 20 minutes or swimming 600 yards in less than 15 minutes. Walking at a brisk pace for 30 to 40 minutes is also an excellent cardiovascular exercise.

To avoid the dangers of overexertion, individuals should see a physician before beginning a vigorous exercise program if they have medical problems, suspect disorders or are over age 35.

Auto Club stresses that individuals beginning a summer fitness program should not do too much, too fast or too soon. Participants should ease into activities to avoid the muscle aches, excess fatigue and injuries common among "week-end athletes."

Participants also should choose activities that are fun and appropriate for their conditioning and not be swayed by what's popular among neighbors and friends.

To shape up with safety and for best results, Auto Club offers this advice:

-Include a 5-10 minute warm-up and cool-down period in all sports activities. Do exercises that involve large muscle groups plus exercises to condition key muscles used in the sport. Mild, slow stretches are best for they prevent the build up of lactic acid which causes muscle pain.

-Exercise at a comfortable level so that you can carry on a conversation. Signs that you're working too hard are faintness, nausea, shortness of breath, chest pain and a racing pulse. Observing any of those signs means you should consult a physician.

-Monitor your pace by checking your heart rate immediately following exercise. First subtract your age from the figure 220. Multiply the resulting figure by .80.

Computer checks results of 8th grade career planning tests

"What will you do? What will you do?"

In this instance, the question does not apply to persons whose travelers checks are stolen, but to Cass City Intermediate School youngsters who must begin deciding what they might like to do in life.

What they at least think they would like to do has a bearing on what program they will pursue in high school: college preparatory, trades, business or general.

To help guide eighth graders in making that decision, counselor Gene Lukshaitis administered a series of aptitude and interest tests to them in February, and of late has been going over the results individually with each of the 161 students in that grade.

What makes the test unique is that the computer which totals the results also suggests potential careers, based on the findings.

The career planning program is done by Psychological Corp. of New York City, and costs the school district about $180.

Lukshaitis, in his first year in Cass City, previously used the test program when he was a counselor at Mio (Mich.) High School and St. Mary's Central High School in Menasha, Wis.

He stressed the purpose of the test isn't to push those taking it into certain careers. "You're not trying to plug a kid in. You're saying, let's take a look."

THE TEST TOOK SEVEN classroom periods to complete. Students were tested in three areas, aptitude, interests in school and career choices.

Aptitudes tested were verbal reasoning, numerical ability, abstract reasoning, clerical speed and accuracy, MEDIC physicians will also handle in-hospital emergencies and will be able to fill in for regular doctors on hospital rounds if the doctor is away during the week end.

During the week, local doctors will continue to be on stand-by on a rotating basis in case of emergencies during nighttime hours.

Area handicapped coalition growing

In late 1979, the Tri-County Handicap Organization was founded by Tom Sheridan, George Cook, Herb Thompson of Tuscola county and Scott Stevens of Huron county.

Purpose of the organization was to make people aware of the barriers that handicapped persons face; inform disabled persons of their rights, and to enforce the laws established by local, state and federal governments.

Starting with seven or eight members, the organization has grown to approximately 50 active members and another 150-200 inactive ones. In all, seventy percent physically handicapped and 30 percent mentally handicapped persons, make up the membership.

The name has been changed to the Tri-County Handicap Coalition and its office is located at 1184 Cleaver Road, Caro.

The coalition is in the process of obtaining non-profit organization status, in order to better serve the handicapped of the Tri-County area. There are approximately 500 known physically and mentally handicapped persons in the three counties.

This being the International Year of the Disabled Person, the coalition, under mechanical reasoning, space relationships, spelling and language usage.

Interests in school included art, drama and music, business management and finance, office skills, biological sciences, math, food and personal care, school maintenance and entertainment and sports, a total of 18 in all.

There were 20 occupational groups listed, such as math and physical science research, engineering and applied sciences, medicine, business, education, crafts and trades, agriculture, attendants, helpers and loaders, clerical, and sports and entertainment. Students had to list their first, second and third choices.

ALL THE ANSWERS were fed into the Psychological Corp. computer and back came the results, tailor made for each student.

The results read like the following sample from the guidebook for the test administrator:

"In your career planning questionnaire, you indicated that you are 14 years old, a boy in the ninth grade and that you expect to graduate from a four-year college. Furthermore, you said that your grades put you in the second quarter of your class. Among the groups of school subjects and activities, you said you liked technical subjects, physical sciences and crafts."

"You indicated that your first choice of career goals was in the group called: business - sales and promotion. Most people who do this kind of work have had school interests which are not like those you reported. However, they have had the amount of education you plan to get, and they have aptitudes like yours. While this choice seems reasonable in terms of your tested abilities and your educational plans, you may want to also think about the possibility of some field of work closer to your expressed interests."

The career planning report then analyzes the student's second and third choices and finally lists some other career areas he or she might want to explore.

THE COMPUTER DOES not take into consideration job opportunities. It may indicate the student is best suited to be a philosopher, but doesn't point out that very few persons make a living as philosophers.

That is one thing the counselor must point out, Lukshaitis said.

One advantage of the testing is that it points out deficiencies students need to improve upon in high school if they are to pursue their career choice.

For instance, if a student is interested in a career as a newspaper reporter, but the results show he or she is weak in spelling and language usage, the person knows they must improve those skills in high school. "I think it . . . serves as a warning to these kids," the counselor commented.

There are, of course, instances where the test results show the student isn't likely to achieve the goals he or she wants in life, for instance, a student of average abilities who wants to become a doctor.

In such instances, according to Lukshaitis, "You can never say never. You can say your chances are slim."

THE TEST RESULTS also can't be taken as gospel

Confusion reigns on tax change

specifies that the proposed constitutional amendment would: "Reduce by 50 percent, homestead property taxes used for operating schools and local governments." However, the reduction will be limited to $1,400 in 1981 and "changed yearly as home values change."

The exemption won't apply to commercial and industrial property, timber cutover and, for instance, for a home not occupied by the owner.

The proposal contains six additional provisions, including raising the sales tax from 4 cents per dollar to 5½ cents and "letting" farms and forests be assessed at use value."

WHAT HAPPENS IF property owners don't send in the affidavits and the proposal passes?

Both Graf and Regentin said their understanding is persons who don't send it in won't qualify for the immediate reduction in their property tax bills but will either be able to claim the reduction as a rebate on their state income tax or be sent a rebate check by the state.

Both men received copies Monday of the legislation outlining the affidavit requirements. Regentin saw a copy of the affidavit form Friday, prepared by the Midland computer firm Sanilac contracts with for tax work. Tuscola contracts with a different computer firm and as of Monday, Graf hadn't seen the form yet.

Regentin speculated the forms will be similar as the computer firms prepared them in consultation with the Michigan Department of Treasury.

INDICATIVE OF THE confusion is that none of the men contacted by the Chronicle knew yet all the details about the affidavits, which as of Monday had to be mailed within 11 days, or of the proposal itself, which voters will be voting on in 3½ weeks.

For instance, Regentin mentioned that although the computer firm would be preparing exemption affidavit forms for all residential and agricultural property, township assessors (usually supervisors) would have to pick out only those involving a homestead for mailing.

Possibly the different counties will observe different procedures. Gallagher said his understanding is that the letters will go to all agricultural and residential property owners and it will be up to them to designate whether the property is their homestead.

for another reason, that students may have had some bad days when taking it. If so, the counselor checks previous test results to determine if there is a discrepancy.

For instance, the Psychological Corp. test showed one girl, who does very well in school, was low in verbal reasoning. Previous tests showed she was high in verbal reasoning, so the conclusion was she had had a bad day when taking that portion of the test.

"That's why you have to be super careful in test interpretations," Lukshaitis explained.

That is also why he meets with each student individually to discuss the results.

Parents are invited to meet with him for the same purpose, and so far, a few have chosen to do so. A letter was sent to parents before their children were administered the test.

One trend Lukshaitis has noticed over the past few years is that more students are choosing to take advanced training after high school, in trade or business schools as well as college.

Whatever program the eighth grader eventually decides to pursue in high school in training for a career, that doesn't mean he or she is stuck for life.

U.S. Department of Labor studies, the counselor said, show that a person goes through an average of five career changes in life.

Programs cut at Caro office

Commission feeling heat of Reagan policy

Mary Ann Vandemark isn't worried that she will soon be presiding over an empty office.

But the executive director of the Human Development Commission in Caro is facing some changes in the numerous programs it conducts because of the new economics being practiced by the Reagan administration in Washington.

One program has been eliminated already and another faces extinction Sept. 30.

There has even been talk of eliminating the Community Services Administration (CSA), through which the HDC and the other 29 community service agencies in Michigan receive their basic federal funding, but she doesn't think that will take place.

This is all happening at a time when HDC staff members are still getting used to their new office building. Open house for the remodeled structure, formerly the Caro Lumber Yard building on Montague Street, was held March 20 and 22.

The village of Caro, in need of additional space for its department of public works, bought the property and buildings for $85,000.

The HDC helped Caro obtain a $300,000 federal community development block grant, of which $30,000 went for rehabilitation of the building and the rest for housing rehabilitation in the community.

The HDC then obtained a federal Economic Development Authority grant of $112,000, of which $55,000 was spent on the lumber yard building and the rest for energy conservation measures at two other village-owned buildings.

The HDC also got a $10,000 state grant to use as matching money for the EDA grant and $60,000 from the CSA for the rehabilitation project, raised more than $4,000 at its auction and $10,000 in non-federal resources.

A foreman was hired and contractors for the electrical and plumbing work, but the rest of the work was done by the workers paid with federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds.

Add it all up and the project cost $214,801. The building is owned by the village, which leases it to the HDC for $1 a year.

Although it may seem like an inappropriate time to be moving into new offices, when some of the HDC's programs are in doubt, the move was necessitated by a law mandating that as a state and federal agency, its offices be barrier free. Its offices had been in the upstairs of two buildings in downtown Caro.

PROGRAMS

The HDC, founded in 1965, operated 11 different programs in 1980 in Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties (not all programs were operated in all counties).

Its budget consisted of $3,176,320 in federal funds from various agencies, $573,724 in state funds and $480,548 in local funds, including local government funds, "donated" office space, supervision and equipment, and private donations.

A description of some of the agency's 1980 programs is contained in the accompanying article.

"Where we can see the need and get the money," was Mrs. Vandemark's description of how her agency determines which program to operate. "We usually tend to deal with the people who fall through the cracks." "What this agency has always attempted to do is give people an opportunity to change their lifestyle. To assist them, not just give to them."

CETA

One program that did that, as far as she is concerned, is CETA, but the Reagan administration apparently doesn't see it that way.

As of March 31, 100 persons employed in the CETA Title II-D work experience program had to be let go, as well as two staff members who ran the program. The HDC operated the program under contract with the Thumb Area Consortium. Two or three worked for the HDC, but the rest were employed with various governmental and non-profit agencies.

Under the federal regulations, the persons could work a maximum of 32 hours a week at the minimum or entry level wage for the job, for a maximum of 1,000 hours. They were not eligible for unemployment compensation.

What happens now, according to Mrs. Vandemark is, "These people have no where to go, other than to find money to move to another state or go on welfare."

She cited statistics to show what she felt had been the program's success.

The program in 1979-80 served 347 persons.

Of the 347, 163 were receiving welfare at the time they were enrolled in the program and others were living on unemployment compensation, savings or were considered underemployed.

Of the 218 whose eligibility ended during the fiscal year, quit or were dismissed, 44 found regular jobs, 85 transferred to other CETA programs, 10 went on to school and 79 were considered "non-positive" terminations, one reason being that they couldn't find a job after finishing their CETA training.

The other CETA program definitely intended for extinction, as of Sept. 30, is Title II-D public service employment.

The HDC presently has 26 persons enrolled in that program, four as clerk-typists, five in renovating the new building and the rest in its weatherization crews.

Persons can work in the program a maximum of 18 months. Once their eligibility ends, they will be replaced.

CETA funds are used to pay most of the weatherization workers, so the loss of such money will mean a reduction in the number of homes being weatherized. The HDC has already received a waiver from the U.S. Department of Energy, which funds the weatherization program, to spend more money on labor and less on materials once it starts losing its CETA workers.

As mentioned, Mrs. Vandemark has reservations about the effectiveness of cutting the CETA jobs programs, that with few if any jobs in the private sector, the result of letting CETA people go will be more people on welfare. "I think you're moving the money," she commented. "I don't think the projected savings will result in the amounts anticipated."

She also expressed reservations about turning some present anti-poverty programs into block grants to the states for them to spend as they see fit, in order to eliminate complex federal regulations.

If the states are not required to be accountable as to how they spend the money, she has doubts as to how effectively it will be spent.

MARY ANN VANDEMARK

One-time grant

Low income families receive fuel aid

A total of 5,162 low-income individuals received one-time assistance on their fuel and utility bills through the Human Development Commission's Crisis Assistance Program in 1980.

Assistance consisted of a maximum benefit of $320. Of that total, 1,034 individuals were senior citizens, 1,331 were homeowners and 77 percent, or 3,975 individuals, had income sources other than public assistance.

Individuals totaling 230 were served through HDC's Housing Programs, funded by Title XX Department of Social Services and Farmer's Home Administration. These programs deal with housing needs of families experiencing landlord-tenant difficulties, emergency housing and counseling services for delinquent borrowers.

During its second year of toll-free telephone service, the Information and Referral Services responded to a total of 2,116 calls, serving 1,982 individuals. This service is targeted at low-income individuals; however, is available free to anyone.

There are 278 service providers listed. This service enables the agency to identify needs that are unmet, matching them with needed services, resulting in a savings of time, energy and costs. The services are supported by a budget of $21,767. Nighttime and some daytime services are provided by volunteers.

A total of 390 homes (1,093 individuals) were weatherized in 1980. Of those, 351 were elderly and 254 were handicapped.

Home weatherization results in energy savings and savings of dollars for people on fixed incomes. The maximum that can be spent per home is $1,000.

The HDC put 88 persons to work in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act work experience program.

The individuals worked an average of 32 hours per week at an average hourly wage of $3.53. This enabled them to develop good work habits and skills and pay their share of Social Security, federal and state taxes. A total of $1.5 million in federal funds was paid in wages, $185,000 in Social Security taxes, $226,789 in federal and state taxes and $56,080 in Worker's Compensation costs.

The Foster Grandparent Program is targeted at elderly and children with special needs. Sixty-four grandparents were matched with children in public schools, special education programs or institutions, to give them love and support. Of the program budget, 90 percent went directly to the grandparents.

As the coordinating agency for substance abuse services in the four-county area, services were provided to 10,258 individuals through five subcontracting human service agencies in Lapeer, Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties.

Types of services provided were outpatient family and individual counseling, alcohol highway safety classes, problem assistance and substance abuse prevention through informational presentations to schools, community groups and industry and in-service training to area professionals.

The outreach and intake component assisted 13,864 individuals in applying for needed services provided by HDC. The services include determining eligibility in the areas of employment, job training, energy, housing, senior citizen involvement and providing direction to other agencies which offer other solutions to problems.

Group challenges decision of Thumb Consortium

The decision by the Thumb Area Consortium Administrative Board last month on who will run the federally-funded Summer Youth Employment Program this year came under heavy fire last Thursday from representatives of the organization that wasn't selected.

Also at that meeting, it was announced that funding had been obtained to continue the general assistance welfare work program, which had been threatened with extinction.

In March, the board awarded the contract for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act summer youth program to the Huron Intermediate School District (HISD). The Human Development Commission in Caro, which operated the program the previous seven summers, had also submitted a bid to run the program.

Thursday, HDC Executive Director Mary Ann Vandemark, supported by four members of her board, was present to blast that decision.

She contended her organization would have provided jobs for more youths, that there were irregularities in awarding of the contract and that the HISD couldn't operate the program for the amount it said it could.

The HDC proposal said it would provide jobs for 350 youths while the HISD said 300. Consortium Executive Director Frank Lenard's summary of the two plans, presented to his board before it voted in March, said 298 for HDC and 323 for HISD.

The difference, he explained, was that the HDC figure used was that of the total number of youths who would be employed during the summer, based on some not working the entire period and being replaced by others.

His figures were based on dividing the amount the two organizations had set aside for salaries by $3.35 per hour times 35 hours per week times 10 weeks, to determine the average number of youth who would be working at any given time.

The HISD proposal was based on longer than 10 weeks, thus had a lower average number of youths who would be working.

Lenard said he didn't present bid requirements in writing to the HDC and HISD because he hadn't had time, but visited with representatives of each personally to discuss it. He denied the resulting two proposals were based on different standards.

Mrs. Vandemark contended Lenard and consortium Program Coordinator Marvin Pichla had assured her and other HDC staff members that the agency "would be the deliverer."

Lenard responded that that was before it was known the HISD also wanted to bid to run the program.

The HISD's proposal allocated 3.6 percent of the $474,000 total cost of the program for administration, versus 9.9 percent by the HDC.

Based on the HDC's seven years' experience in running the program, Mrs. Vandemark remarked that youngsters need counseling and other services, in addition to a paycheck, to solve their problems. "It cannot be done at 3.6 percent."

Later in the discussion, LeeRoy Clark, chairman of the HDC Board of Directors, put it more bluntly, "I'll eat that budget if they can do it for 3.6 percent."

What the protest boiled down to, Lenard asked Mrs. Vandemark, was that she didn't feel the HISD could run the program successfully.

She agreed and Lenard said he disagreed.

Consortium Board Chairman Calvin Reibling then commented, "We feel the intermediate school can do just as good a program as can the HDC." He added later that since the HISD specified in its contract proposal that it could run the program for the amount it specified, "they're just going to have to stick with it."

After Mrs. Vandemark and her board members left, without getting the consortium board to change its mind, Lenard said she had written to the Michigan Department of Labor asking it to investigate the awarding of the youth program to the HISD.

WORK PROGRAM

The ending of the CETA Title VI job program, announced at the March meeting, was supposed to have meant the end of the Tri-County Public Service Agency, which ran it.

That was supposed to mean the end of the general assistance work relief program in the upper Thumb, because the TCPSA also ran it. The work program required able bodied general assistance recipients to work off their welfare payments at the minimum wage rate of $3.35 an hour.

Since then, Tri-County Administrator Leonard Hool announced Thursday, his agency has received $62,500 from the Michigan Department of Social Services — originally intended for purchase of furniture — to continue the program until Sept. 30. The DSS apparently views the program as a pilot program for the state.

Since July, when the program started, through Feb. 28, Hool reported, 433 persons performed work worth $73,000 (at $3.35 an hour), while persons taken off the welfare rolls for not working saved taxpayers $156,620. Those refusing work remain ineligible for three months.

Jobs performed have ranged from refinishing a boat at the Harbor Beach Coast Guard station to cutting brush along drainage ditches to cleaning buildings and fire trucks.

OTHER ITEMS

Since the March meeting, when the Title VI program was supposed to end March 31, a final allocation was received with enough funds to keep 10 persons employed until the end of June.

That doesn't hold true for the CETA Title II-D public service employment program, where funds are running out faster than expected.

Lenard said 50 persons now receiving training will be transferred to the Title II-B program, where money is available, and about 20 teacher aides paid with II-D funds will be off the payroll by June. If further cuts are still needed, some persons will have to be terminated from the program. There were 188 enrolled as of March 31.

A review of the consortium's Title II-D program conducted March 30-31 by the Michigan Department of Labor, according to a letter from it, indicated "it is well run and that there are no major discrepancies which require corrective action."

Report 2
car mishaps

Two cars met misfortune for different reasons last week.

A dead tree limb, broken loose by strong winds, fell on the car of Robert L. Martin, 6575 Lincoln Street, Gagetown, at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday. The roof was dented and the rear window smashed, with damage estimated at $600.

The car was parked in the north Main Street alley between Seger and Oak Streets when the limb fell. At 6:13 p.m. Thursday, Mrs. Arleone Retherford of 6855 Gifford Road, Deford, was southbound on Cemetery Road, a few hundred yards south of the Cass River bridge, when the car filled with smoke.

The Elkland Township Fire Department was called. Fire Chief Dave McNaughton said the smoke, which had cleared away by the time they arrived, was due to a wiring problem under the dash. There was no fire damage.

Taking Stock

The new administration wants to cut government spending. It wants to trim the massive spending for food stamps.

"Do you want to deprive the needy?" bleats Tom Pettit of NBC, in a talk show. No, but we'd like to see the rules changed where a scion of a millionaire Palm Beach family isn't eligible.

This was the case of a young college graduate who was taking his time picking out a suitable job. He was living at home meanwhile.

His folks, of a less liberal generation, had to talk pretty sharply to young Joe to stop him from going down to apply for food stamps.

The president wants to trim the spending for CETA — the so-called Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. Immediate walls were heard that this program trains the jobless, that these people will then go on welfare.

Well, we know of two youngsters who were on CETA last summer. One was the child of a bank president, whose salary was $50,000 a year. Another was the child of a family whose income was $25,000 a year. Free school lunches are another target.

"Do you want the poor children to go hungry," cry the liberals.

Figures printed recently from Broward county show that nearly half the 70,000 children were on the government lunch program. Does anyone believe that half the children in Broward are so poor the government must feed them?

We were visiting with a Deerfield Beach mother a while ago. She and her husband both work. Their total income would exceed $25,000. They had three children.

"Under the rules, I found that I could get free lunches for the kids," she told me. "So I went down and signed up. Jim came home and gave me the devil, but I figure, if you can get the handout under the rules, why not?"

It does seem that the program has a little more fat in it than is needed.

Unemployment compensation is another overblown program ready for pruning. There is already screaming about the hardships if jobless pay is trimmed. The television cameras have been set up in the lines for the weekly handout; there is plenty of testimony that 39 weeks — 9 months — of benefits is not enough.

This is the program where you can take a seasonal job, then go on "unemployment" and draw benefits that pay nearly as much for loafing as you'd get for working. College students for example get a summer hotel job, go back to school in September when the tourist season is over up North and are classified as "jobless."

Golf pros work summers up North, close up the course in October, come to Florida and register as jobless, and loaf until spring, when their old job reopens.

We knew a bank president who was moving from one Michigan bank to another. He came to Florida, went to the unemployment office and said, "Any jobs for bank presidents?" got on the rolls because no such jobs were available and had a nice winter vacation on the public teat.

The tales of government handouts are endless. The crazy grants for projects doomed to lose money. Like the gasohol plant near Alma, Mich., announced last fall just before election time in a Congressional district where the vote was going to be close.

Washington shoveled out $10 million for this plant. Its capacity was going to be a million gallons of alcohol a year. The cost to the government in interest on the money was a little less than the total value of the product. Such things as raw material, labor and other expenses were overlooked in the rush to blow your tax money, and make a hero out of the incumbent congressman.

Let the networks and the big city dailies quit bemoaning the hardships they fancy will occur by cutting the government spending. Let them tell instead for a while of the waste and foolishness of such programs, and champion the cause of frugality and common sense. Or is this asking too much?

Charles Smith killed when tractor overturns Friday

Charles A. Smith apparently died Friday of asphyxiation due to a chest injury, according to the preliminary findings of the medical examiner.

Smith, 61, of 2140 Clothier Road, Deford, was found Friday pinned under a tractor which had overturned in a ditch. He was dead at the scene.

He joined the state police in 1967 and has also been assigned to Blissfield, Pontiac, Flint, Lansing and Detroit. He is an FBI National Academy graduate. He is a native of Bad Axe and he and his wife, Tamra, and family, are temporarily living in that community.

The Elkland-Novesta United Way will be allocating $5,725 to 11 area organizations this year.

Tuscola County United Way, which conducted its first fund drive last fall, has collected about $11,000 so far and is still waiting to receive some funds.

The Elkland-Novesta board met earlier this month to decide how much organizations will receive from the community fund drive conducted last fall.

The groups were sent request forms at the end of February, for them to state how much they received last year, how they spent the money and how much they will spend this year.

Allocations decided April 13 were as follows: Cass City park program, $1,500; Rawson Memorial Library, $1,000; boys' Little League, $1,000; Cass City Arts Council, $500; Girl Scouts, $500; girls' Little League, $400; Boy Scouts, $300; Babe Ruth League, $200; Cass City Cub Scouts, $150; Deford Cub Scouts, $100, and Reading is Fundamental, $75.

The total is $5,725, compared to $5,310 allocated to those organizations in 1980.

There was also $566 spent for Christmas baskets for the needy in December and $1,000 is being kept for emergencies.

A final accounting will be prepared at the end of the organization's fiscal year, to be ready in time for the 1981 fund campaign kickoff dinner in October.

An additional $6,450 is being allocated to the Tuscola County United Way. That takes the place of funds previously allocated separately to countywide organizations and to United Way of Michigan.

THE COUNTY UW board met about a month ago to hear presentations from nine organizations seeking funds. According to Elkland-Novesta UW President Dale Deering, a member of the county board, the presentations of the organizations were examined with a fine toothed comb, including questioning of wages paid to staff members and the amount spent for telephone calls.

The county board will meet again April 27 to decide how much the organizations requesting funds will receive.

There are four local United Way organizations in the county — Elkland-Novesta, Caro, Vassar and Akron-Fairgrove — and each has two representatives on Smith was pinned down by the steering wheel and a hydraulic lever. The ditch was filled with several inches of water, but his head and shoulders were above the water.

Smith was found by LaDonna Hampshire, also of 2140 Clothier, who was following a few minutes behind him, and who was to take him home after he left the tractor and spreader at the Ronald Hampshire farm, 2821 Clothier. She called the sheriff's department, the incident being reported at 12:49 p.m.

A tractor driven by Ronald Hampshire and a wrecker from Kingston were used to pull the tractor off Smith.

The body was taken by ambulance to Caro Community Hospital, where it was examined, then to St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw for an autopsy. Results of the autopsy were not available Tuesday.

Smith was born Dec. 13, 1919, in Lamotte township.

He married Annie Luchene Oct. 31, 1946, in Toledo, the marriage ending in divorce. He married Nina May Smith Dec. 12, 1953, in Perry.

He is survived by his wife, Nina May; his mother, Mrs. Ethel Smith, Marlette; three children, Mrs. Bobby (Martha) Edgar, Stockton, Calif., and Mrs. David (Grace) Thorne and Albert Smith, both of Modesto, Calif.; five grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Grace Hickey, Deford, Mrs. Walter Lindow, Farmington, and Mrs. Cecil Hinkle, Marlette, and three brothers, William Dean Smith, New Mexico, Henry Smith, Marlette, and Ralph Smith, Brown City.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Marsh Funeral Chapel, Marlette, conducted by Christian Science Reader John Krause of the Kingdom Hall in Caro.

Burial was in Marlette cemetery. Pallbearers were Harvey Hickie, Henry Hickie, William Green, James Green, Thomas Hinkle and Randy Hampshire.

the county board, plus county officers.

According to Deering, a formula was developed to determine a suggested amount each local organization should give to the county UW, based on what they gave previously to countywide organizations and to United Way of Michigan.

The Elkland-Novesta UW board decided, however, it couldn't afford to contribute the suggested amount, hence the decision to give $6,450.

ONE REASON WHY THE county organization was formed was so that the Tuscola county residents who work in Saginaw county could designate that their pledges made at work through the payroll deduction plan could go to their home county.

Saginaw County UW had refused to allow pledges to be designated to the four local organizations. Now that there is a county organization, it only allows 50 percent of such pledges to go to Tuscola county. It keeps the rest.

Of the approximately $11,000 raised by Tuscola UW so far, according to county UW President Iris Tuckey of Cass City, more than $9,000 came from Saginaw county, which meant that Tuscola residents working there actually contributed twice that. That's more than any of the local drives raised, she pointed out.

The mail campaign conducted by the county organization to collect donations from residents not living in areas covered by the four local organizations raised somewhere between $1,200 and $1,300.

Although not a lot was raised, the first year campaign did have the benefit of making persons aware of its existence in future years, Mrs. Tuckey said.

THE EXACT AMOUNT raised by the Tuscola UW isn't known yet because it

Set clocks ahead on Sunday

If ministers find their congregations a bit blurry eyed Sunday morning, the parishioners may have a good reason for it.

The change from Eastern Standard to Eastern Daylight Time takes place at 2 a.m. Sunday, which means persons should turn their clocks ahead one hour before retiring for the night. That also means they will lose one hour of sleep unless they go to bed an hour earlier than usual.

And if persons show up at church an hour late, that means they forgot to turn their clocks ahead or they overslept.

2 accidents

Cass City police reported two accidents last week.

At 7:05 a.m. Thursday, Leola L. Engelhart, 53, of Sebawaing, was backing from a parking place in the General Cable lot, turned and backed into the front end of a southbound car.

Driver of the other car was Betty Lou Watson, 39, of Leslie Road, Cass City. At 11:20 p.m. Friday, Bobbie E. Elliott, 16, of 6862 Severance Road, was northbound on Greenland Road, slid sideways and her car went off the west side of the road and struck a barbed wire fence.

hasn't been notified how much it will be receiving from the Genesee-Lapeer County UW in pledges from Tuscola residents working in those two counties.

She noted that Saginaw County UW is the only county organization that keeps half of the amount pledged by non-county residents. The rest keep at the most 20 percent to cover the cost of the extra paperwork involved. Some don't deduct anything.

Saginaw County UW was the last one to allow workers living in Tuscola to designate their pledges to their home communities.

To do so requires workers when asked to donate at their plant to, for instance, Saginaw County UW, to request a designation form.

TUSCOLA UW DOESN'T have the money collected in the other counties yet. Since it is collected through the payroll deduction plan and thus is still coming in, the other county United Ways will forward half in July and the rest in January, 1982.

Although the money coming from other counties goes to Tuscola UW, credit is given to the local organizations for persons living in their areas who donate at their out-of-county workplaces. Elkland-Novesta UW received credits from Saginaw county totaling $327.74 from workers with Cass City and Deford addresses, which will be deducted from the $6,450 it is allocating to the county organization.

That illustrates, however, that not too many persons have received the message yet about designating their pledges to their home UW organizations, Deering said. Only one person from Cass City donated and he later informed Elkland-Novesta UW officials he knows at least 15 persons from Cass City who work at his plant.
