43 lose jobs at intermediate district

The Tuscola Intermediate School District Board of Education voted Monday to dismiss 43 staff members at the end of the school year in order to eliminate $360,000 from its budget.

Except for three persons, all are in special education, 23 being teachers and 17 being para-professionals, mostly teacher aides. One more person, a speech therapist, was scheduled to be laid off but he submitted his resignation, having found another job.

Three staff members in the program for pregnant students are also being laid off. The board decided at an earlier meeting to eliminate that program but didn't okay the layoffs until Monday.

Some of the jobs might be saved, said TISD Assistant Supt. Jerome P. Thienes, if an agreement can be reached with the unions to reduce wages in the case of the professionals and if some of the para-professionals decide to retire or agree to take a leave of absence.

Another possibility, not considered likely, is that some of the reductions in state and federal aid won't be as severe as presently expected.

The reason for the drastic cutback is threefold, according to Thienes. First is that the state has been transferring students who live at the Caro Regional Center to other state institutions.

An attorney general's ruling put an end to using state special education funds to pay school social workers, psychologists and teachers of the homebound and hospitalized if they also work with non-special education students. A school psychologist assigned to Cass City, for instance, might have worked with students in both categories.

The final reason is reduced state aid for special education and the revenue from the 1.6 mills levied in Tuscola county for special education not keeping up with inflation.

An impact stemming from that is that when the Highland Pines School for special education, which opened last fall, is paid for, the intent was to reduce the 1.6 mills. But with less state aid available for operations, the 1.6 mills will have to be retained in order to keep the school operating.

When Highland Pines opened last fall, Special Education Services Director Elton Mahan said, there were almost 300 students there. The number now is about 270 and he anticipates come fall, there will be 250.

NO CUTS HAD TO BE made in vocational education, Thienes said, because when the Tuscola Area Skill Center opened last fall, it wasn't fully staffed. There were plans to add an audiovisual position and a night school superintendent plus a couple of intended classes weren't held due to inadequate enrollment. Now, even if enough students want to take the classes come fall, they may not be offered and the other positions won't be filled.

State aid for vocational education has been reduced. The impact, he explained, is that the TISD has not been able to build up as large a fund equity as it had hoped out of the 1.75 mills levied for vocational education.

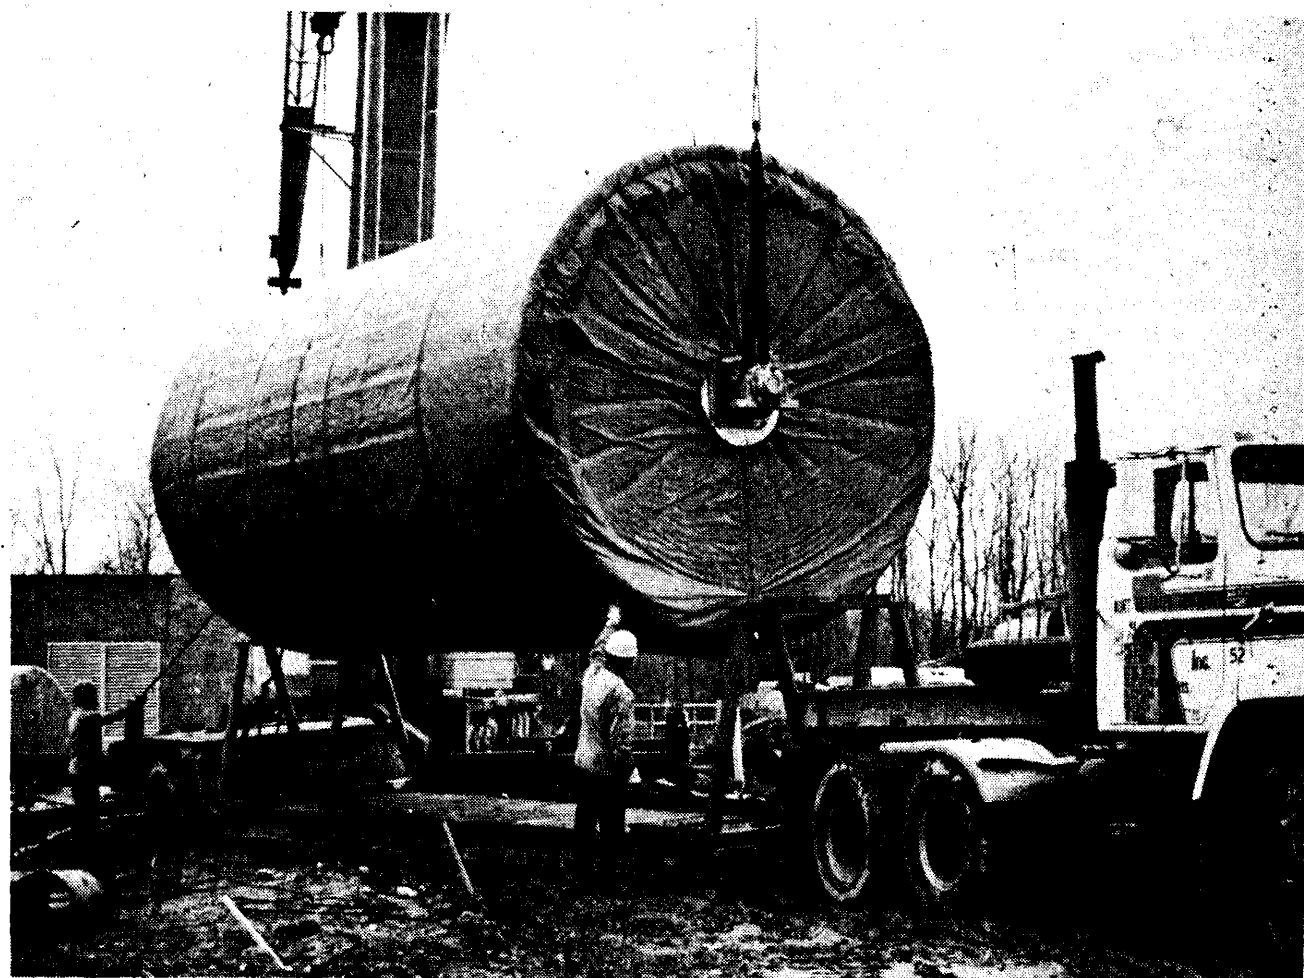

That means the district may have to borrow money this fall to fund operations until property tax revenue starts coming in in December. If state aid hadn't been reduced, the district could have saved more and definitely would not have had to borrow.

THE SPECIAL EDUCATION cuts, according to Mahan, will mean elimination of one full-time program, the behavior modification specialist who worked with Regional Center students and with other severely mentally impaired youngsters.

The audiology program will be reduced from a full-time to a part-time program.

Tennis court bid awarded

Village millage the same; valuations up 9.58%

The Cass City Village Council voted Monday night to continue the 14 mills for village operations and 2.5-mill debt levy for the sewage plant construction, amid a warning that no matter what happens May 19, the village's cash flow will suffer.

The council awarded a contract for construction of new tennis courts, which might be completed by July 4, and opened bids for erection of lights at the courts. Tennis players better get their games in quick, however. Demolition of the two present courts may be any day.

This year will be the second year Cass City has levied 14 mills for operations and the third year for the 2.5 mills to pay off the money borrowed to finance the sewage plant construction.

Even with the same millage rates, taxpayers will pay an average 9.58 percent more in taxes, which is the average increase in valuations since last year, not including new construction.

The debt levy is sure to increase in future years as the amount Cass City must repay each year increases, Village President Lambert Althaver said after the meeting. A delay in construction from the original timetable has kept the payments comparatively low up to now. The May 19 state-wide property tax proposal has no effect on debt levies.

It will have an effect on the operational levy, however, no matter what happens May 19.

Normally, Village treasurer Joyce LaRoche would notify the county treasurer's office immediately that the millage levies have been set, tax bills would be prepared by the county and be ready for mailing by June 1.

The 14 mills, based on the village's equalized valuation of $19.81 million (compared to $17.949 million in 1980) will raise $277,379. (The 2.5 mills will raise $49,532.)

Normally, by the time the late payment penalty goes in effect Aug. 15, 75 percent of the village taxes have been paid.

However, a law passed in connection with the May 19 election bars the village from levying the millage until after the election is over. That means preparation of the tax bills can't begin until then, the result of which, Mrs. LaRoche estimated, is that mailing of them will be delayed about a month.

If the proposal passes, the results are more complicated. For starters, the law says summer taxes can't be levied until July 6, which means tax bills won't get mailed until sometime in August.

The proposal requires property taxes be cut 50 percent on homesteads, with the state to reimburse local taxing units for the lost property tax revenue.

A law that would implement the proposal says that the state will reimburse units for one-fifth of the lost revenue Aug. 20 and for an equal amount the 20th of each month through December.

That means money the village would have had in summer and could have been drawing bank interest won't be coming in until fall.

That may mean Cass City will have to borrow money to meet its obligations, Althaver said.

Although business and industry in Cass City won't have their taxes cut and the village will receive the taxes much sooner, it isn't known yet how much that will be. Speculation was that more than half of the village's property tax revenue comes from owner-occupied homes.

The increase in the state sales tax from 4 cents to 5½ cents per dollar won't be enough to make up for the loss in property tax revenue. That suggests, though it isn't known yet, that the legislature will cut other revenues to cities and villages and schools to make up for the property tax reimbursement.

Out of Cass City's projected 1981 general fund revenue of $452,000 (plus $48,000 from savings), $103,700 is expected to come from Lansing, so reductions there will hamper Cass City's ability to maintain its present operations.

Commissioners to appeal state imposed boost in valuations

Don't give in. Fight back.

With the encouragement of township supervisors, the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners voted Tuesday to appeal a state-imposed increase in property valuations to the State Tax Commission (STC).

If it loses, it will mean higher property taxes, although passage of the May 19 property tax proposal might change that.

Commissioners met Monday in special session with supervisors and a representative of the STC, which had ordered the increase. At the end of the session, according to Commissioner Royce Russell, chairman of the board's equalization committee, the feeling of the supervisors was that the board should appeal, rather than give in.

The board voted at its regular session Tuesday to appeal to the STC, which will be done when the latter meets in Lansing May 11 to present its proposed state equalized valuations for all Michigan counties.

Since the county must appeal to the same body that is imposing the increase, if Tuscola loses, county commissioners can then appeal to the state Court of Appeals.

What the county will be appealing will be the STC's recent adding of $21.03 million to the 1981 county equalized valuation, as determined by the county equalization department. With the addition, the total valuation of the county (half of the determined true market value of all property) is $572.799 million.

The reason for the difference, STC area representative William Guile told those present Monday, was the result of equalization studies conducted by his department based on property sales and/or appraisals. Perhaps we used sales and appraisal studies the county doesn't use, he explained in accounting for the difference.

A study of agricultural property sales in three townships in the southwest corner of the county resulted in agricultural values being boosted countywide by 3.5 percent.

Residential property was boosted 4.25 percent and commercial values, based on studies in the Cass City, Vassar and Caro areas, were boosted 9.48 percent. There was no change in industrial valuations.

GUILE WAS ASKED how studies could be conducted in a small portion of the county, yet the STC could determine valuations should be boosted countywide.

He responded that since it is assumed the county equalization department did its job correctly in making sure property values were equalized from township to township, an increase in a few would accordingly apply to all.

A supervisor argued that only "five people" could still afford to buy land and that it wasn't fair to base the value of all agricultural property on only those few sales.

But that small number, Guile replied, does affect all agricultural values. "You're not going to attempt to sell the land for anything less than what somebody else got, are you?" he said.

His overall response to such questions was that the STC is bound by law and has to consider market values. "The people set the market," the official commented, not his agency.

ALTHOUGH THE STC determines overall valuations, it is up to the county board — should it lose its appeal — how to spread the imposed valuation increase across the county.

Should that happen, Russell said, commissioners will probably spread the agricultural and residential increases countywide. That means all owners of such property will receive a boost in their valuations.

But since commercial values have only been increasing in the Cass City, Caro and Vassar areas, and with Vassar already equalized, according to the studies, the 9.48 percent increase would only be imposed in Cass City and Caro.

Should the county win its appeal before the Tax Tribunal, and Russell had doubts that it will, that means no increases will be imposed beyond those that

Gas tank explodes, Sheufelt is 'critical'

David H. Sheufelt, 27, of Owendale was still fighting for his life Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw, with burns covering most of his body.

He was reported in critical condition.

If it were not for fast action by four men Wednesday, April 22, he would probably be dead.

Sheufelt, who operates a junk yard on Brown Road, southwest of Owendale, with his brother Art, was using a cutting torch to remove a gasoline tank from a junk car when the tank exploded. The car was on a hoist, 6 feet off the ground.

Standing next to him when it happened was his nephew, Rolla Kretzschmer, 16, who said he was blown about 20 feet by the force of the explosion.

Approaching Sheufelt had been three men, Phil Kuck of 4767 Cedar Run Road, Cass City, and two friends visiting him, Jim Gilpin of Millston, Wis., and Larry Kerns of Waco, Texas. They had come to sell Sheufelt some transmission parts. Gilpin managed to brace himself when he saw the explosion about to occur. The other two men were knocked down.

He said as soon as he saw Sheufelt in flames, he grabbed him to try to get him to the ground. Gilpin was burned on his arms and hands and was later treated and released from Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon. He also had a piece of shrapnel from the exploding tank in one arm.

Gilpin then removed his jacket to use to try to smother the flames. That didn't work, so Kretzschmer grabbed a rug that was covering some engines.

The four men got him rolled up in the carpet and the flames extinguished.

Kretzschmer said it took about 30 seconds to put the flames out and Sheufelt came to about 30 seconds later. "I didn't think he was going to live," the teenager said. "He could hardly breathe."

According to Owendale

Fire Chief Ronald Susalla, Sheufelt was burned from his knees up. All his hair was burned off. He was in great pain, was conscious and kept mentioning his hands. Susalla said there must not have been much gasoline in the tank, as there was no fire when his department arrived.

The Owendale Fire Department and Pigeon ambulance were dispatched at 2:22 p.m. after the incident was reported by telephone to the Huron County Sheriff's Department by Kretzschmer and Kerns. The fire department, being closer, arrived first.

Kuck got in his pickup and headed for Pigeon to make sure the ambulance would come to the right place. After it passed him, he got a Pigeon police officer, who came to the scene. Huron county deputies were also dispatched, at 2:39 p.m. Kuck also took Gilpin to the hospital.

Sheufelt was rushed by the ambulance to Scheurer Hospital, then transferred to the burn unit at St. Mary's.

We never left it. Last fall when clocks were to be pushed back an hour we kept putting it off, putting it off, putting it off until it became so late that we just let it ride and now we're back in sync again. (Is that the easy way?)

When you go to the polls June 8 in the Cass City School Board election there will be six names on the ballot but there will be at least 8 candidates seeking the two open board positions.

Already announced as sticker candidates are Luis Salas and Fred Matthews. This is Salas' first attempt in the political arena while Matthews ran previously.

With the glut of candidates it's not trite to say that your vote is important. With so many running anyone can win with only a small percentage of the electorate behind the candidacy.

UPSET TRUCK -- Edward Schwartz of Cass City was injured Saturday when his truck, in the process of being attached to the wrecker, overturned.

Three hurt in Friday crash

Schwartz 'serious' after truck rolls over Saturday

Edward G. Schwartz, 52, of 4234 S. Seeger Street, Cass City, was reported in serious condition Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw, where he was taken after being injured when his truck rolled over Saturday.

The accident took place at 11:20 a.m., when he was eastbound on Deckerville Road, east of Hadley Road in Evergreen township.

According to Sandusky state police, his dump truck went off the south edge of the road. In steering back onto the road surface, he turned too sharply and lost control. The truck went off the north side of the road and rolled over, spilling gravel on the road.

Schwartz told troopers something went wrong with his truck's steering. He was to be cited on a charge of careless driving.

He was taken by ambulance to Hills and Dales General Hospital, then transferred to St. Mary's.

The Lamotte Township Fire Department was called to the scene because of gasoline leakage from the truck, in case there was a fire -- there wasn't -- and to wash down the pavement.

THREE INJURED

Three persons were injured in a 3:30 p.m. accident Friday on Rescue Road, east of Bay Port Road in Brookfield township.

Cindy Ramirez, 19, of Cass City, was reported in fair condition Tuesday afternoon at Bay Medical Center, Bay City.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Peggy S. Limberger, 17, of Third Street, Cass City, who was treated and released from Bay Osteopathic Hospital, Bay City, along with another passenger, John Limberger, 39. A third passenger was unhurt.

Huron county deputies reported the Limberger auto was eastbound when it went out of control and into a deep ditch on the south side of the road.

Ms. Limberger was ticked on a charge of no operator's license.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Cass City police reported that at 7:12 p.m. last Wednesday, B.A. Calka, 59, of 6306 W. Main Street, backed out of his driveway on Brooker Street and backed into a car parked on the opposite side of the street.

Owner of the parked car was Cheryl Marsh of Caro. At 8:15 p.m. last Thursday, according to Caro state police, Deena M. Kappen, 19, of 2546 Keilitz Road, Cass City, was headed southwest on M-81, near Colwood Road, when a deer ran into the side of her car.

About an hour later, they reported, Rebecca F. Speirs, 16, of 4930 E. Akron Road, Cass City, was headed northeast on M-81, missed a turnoff and pulled onto Birchwood Drive, east of Birchwood Road, to turn around.

She didn't see the car approaching, headed southwest on M-81, pulled out and the two vehicles collided.

Driver of the other vehicle was Kenneth G. Wagner, 71, of Caro.

At 6:45 a.m. Tuesday, according to Cass City police, Wendy Sue Hockey, 30, of 6721 Garfield Street, was westbound on Houghton

Several months ago, a reader asked me, "When did Michigan citizens decide they wanted a full-time Legislature?" Despite diligent research, I haven't been able to find out when, but I know why.

The "when" question was prompted by Joseph Hardig, who is chairman of the State Officers Compensation Commission, which determines how much legislators should be paid. "Michigan opted for a full-time Legislature and if it's full-time, you've got to pay them for a full-time job," he said in an interview last November. "I can't believe we're only paying them $27,000."

Out of regard for those taxpayers who otherwise might be overcome with grief at the thought of legislators trying to survive on only $27,000 per year, it should quickly be noted that they are also paid $5,000 for expenses. Also, through Officeholder Expense Funds, they are allowed to spend cash contributions from supporters on many of the terrible expenses "incident-al" to holding office, such as their wives' golfcart rental fees.

It was state Sen. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, who listed the golf-cart fees as one of the expenses covered by the $18,780 in officeholder funds he spent in 1980. This was reassuring information for concerned taxpayers who realize a necessary part of every senator's job is to save his spouse from walking 18 holes.

Another example of how concerned taxpayers are better off than they might think was provided by state Sen. Harold Scott, D-Flint. He contributed $500 of his officeholder funds to his wife's unsuccessful campaign for state representative last year. All concerned taxpayers realize one of the most important expenses incidental to being a state senator is the cost of getting your wife elected to public office, otherwise she might spend all her time on a rented golf cart.

However, the exact amount of state legislators' remuneration is beside today's point. I mentioned their fringe benefits only to reassure concerned taxpayers who, like Joseph Hardig, are worried that underpaid legislators might be facing starvation. Today's point is when and why.

I can remember when the state Legislature convened on a part-time basis, usually six months a year, but I can't remember when "Michigan opted" for full-time and a search of newspaper files uncovered no evidence of voters ever opting for the change. But, as Hardig indicated, it must have happened sometime. Certainly, legislators wouldn't expand their own hours simply to gain more time for passing resolutions of tribute.

Admittedly, the resolutions are a big reason why a full-time Legislature is needed. Each year, the Legislature passes thousands of printed, framed resolutions honoring athletic teams and beauty queens and other esteemed citizens such as Reginald Wilson who, since being fired as president of Wayne County Community College, has been positively awash in honors.

Just to give you an idea of how big a job it is to honor everyone worthy, Sen. Jackie Vaughn III of Detroit, who instigated the Wilson resolution, had to introduce 329 tributes all by himself last year. He could never have done it in six months. Taxpayers were grateful to pay about $40 per tribute.

Of course, legislators have more important things than tributes to worry about. The Mississippi House of Representatives recently voted to ban umbrellas in state-owned football stadiums because they drip water on spectators. Anyone who has ever attended a Michigan game on a rainy day realizes the umbrella issue is one that our own Legislature will have to face up to sooner or later.

Not incidentally, a dissenting Mississippi legislator asked the sponsor of the umbrella bill: "Are you out of your mind?" That's a question that might be asked whenever Michigan legislators gather together to pay tributes and compare their spouses' golf-cart rental fees.

Open mind needed

There will be some works of modern art on the Art-rain, but Artrain Executive Director John J. Hohmann suggests those viewing it should do so with open minds. "We think if people take full advantage of what is on the train and the guides and materials we hand out, there will be enough added information to make it a truly educational experience," he said.

If the Republicans follow their own advice, there won't be any quotas on Japanese car imports to the United States.

It will be interesting to see if Reagan and associates have the will to resist the mammoth pressures that are being exerted to bail out the industry.

If you live in Michigan, chances are the restriction of imports would be beneficial. Nearly all of us are affected one way or another by what happens to car sales.

More sales, more jobs. More jobs, better opportunity for all.

That's the short term outlook. Long term, it might be better to take our medicine now and get it over with.

If we restrict imports for only the short term, all of us can expect to pay even more than we do now for cars.

If the foreign pressure is lessened, do you believe for an instant that any of the big three wouldn't act to "recover costs" on smaller cars where profit margins have been held down by competition?

Do you feel that the unions will let up for an instant at the bargaining table if there is not extreme competitive pressure threatening jobs?

And if wages in the industry remain so much higher than wages in the general job market, how long will it take for the jobs to move off shore?

Not long if past history is a guide. In the Chronicle in the 1950's every press in the back shop was made in the United States.

Today there are none. In fact none of the popular presses are produced here. It's all off shore.

The industry is asking for short term relief for time to get their house in order. Three years is often heard.

Subsidies in the past have proved to be like temporary taxes. Older residents can remember the "temporary" sales tax enacted in Michigan to avert a financial crisis. It was to be, I'm told, 2 percent for three years only.

The real answer as everyone agrees, is more productivity.

The real question is do we have the guts and the ability to face up to it and do the things necessary to become competitive again.

You have to feel that we won't if we turn to Uncle Sam and he gives us an aspirin to cure our cancer.

We're feeling the pain of the disease today and the only real cure for our long term financial health is to take a knife and cut out the rot.

75% can vegetables

According to the National Gardening Survey, three out of every four vegetable gardeners preserved some of their home-grown produce for fall and winter eating last year. Freezing was the number one method of preservation with canning not far behind.

PEDALING AROUND

Jean-ius defrocked

By Mike Eliasohn

Look out, Brooke Shields. Now men can wear your pants.

The jeans America's favorite teeny-bopper made famous are now being made for men.

Not just any men, of course. Would Brooke Shields go out with any man (or boy)? According to the ad, "The Jean-ius of Calvin Klein now shapes young minds with his famous 5-pocket western styled jeans cut slimmer to fit a young man's body naturally."

Since jeans are supposed to emphasize a particular portion of one's anatomy, does that mean that young men who wear his jeans have their brains in other than the normal location?

In fairness to Mr. Klein, the Detroit Free Press ad from which the above was taken was written for a retailer selling his jeans, not directly for his company.

I'm sure he doesn't object, as long as the ad helps sell his pants.

I wonder who will buy them. Few young men can afford them and if they only fit a "slim young man's body," no older man can get into them.

Granted, at age 36, I don't think I am over the hill and my spread around the middle is not so much that I couldn't get into his jeans. The reason I wouldn't get into his jeans is I am too cheap to buy them.

To be honest, I have never been much for wearing blue jeans, probably because it seems like everyone else is wearing them, including lots of people who a few years ago would not have been caught dead wearing them in public.

It reminds me of my Army days, except that instead of everyone wearing green, they are wearing blue. Maybe that is the way to get enough young men and women to join our armed forces without resorting to the draft. Change the uniforms from khaki to blue denim.

I own one pair of blue jeans, which I seldom wear because they are too tight. I bought them years ago, probably with the idea young women would lust after my body. (They didn't lust after my mind, either.)

The other reason why I seldom wear my blue jeans is that I am slightly bow-legged, and I am afraid if someone sees me in them, they might think I had been riding a horse.

The last thing I would want anyone to think is that I had been on a horse. I refuse to ride anything that creates fertilizer.

College graduations are now getting underway. The Chronicle likes to run stories with photographs if possible about local graduates, their future plans, parents, etc. Some colleges take a few months to send out their list of graduates, so rather than wait, graduates or parents of graduates might like to call or send me the information. If the latter, please include your telephone number, in case I need additional information.

Quelled by Elkland Fire Department

Minor damage in 2 fires

Elkland township firemen were called to two fires Saturday, neither of which resulted in major damage.

The first was at 8:40 a.m. at the home of Henry Nolan, 4421 Crane Road, south of M-81, where creosote inside the chimney leading to a wood burning stove had ignited.

Nolan climbed on the roof with a garden hose, poured water down the chimney and had the fire out by the time firemen arrived.

Damage was estimated at $100 from smoke and clean-up required from the material washed down the chimney.

At 4:50 p.m., they were called to Cass City Steel Supply, 6837 Main Street.

They had the fire extinguished before it could cause much damage. Burned was one edge of an overhead garage door at the rear of the building and the molding alongside it.

The fire was spotted by a next door neighbor, who called business owner Harold Craig, who called the fire department. No one was inside when it started.

Fire Chief Dave McNaughton said the fire was apparently started by kids who accidentally or deliberately threw a cigarette in or otherwise set fire to a burlap bag of bolts inside a cardboard box that was sitting outside the garage door.

He estimated damage at $150.

TRUCK FIRE

Damage was estimated at $400 to a pickup truck that caught fire last Thursday afternoon.

The driver, Steve Hollis, was eastbound on M-81, about 1 1/2 miles east of Cass City, when the fire started. The truck was owned by his father, Larry Hollis, of 6378 Argyle Road, Cass City.

Elkland township firemen, who extinguished the flames, said the engine had backfired, starting a fire in the carburetor. The fire was reported at 1:10 p.m.

Damage was confined to the engine compartment and the truck was repairable.

grams which will be reduced in the number of staff are ones in which the personnel worked with students in local school districts. The others affected are speech therapy, social workers and psychologists.

The result will be a higher caseload for those who remain and reduced service for those who need it. A child in need of speech therapy, for instance, may not see the therapist as often or as long as in the past.

THE OTHER PROGRAMS being reduced are all at Highland Pines, which was built to serve county and Regional Center residents. The TISD was reimbursed by the state for the latter.

The programs are hearing impaired, severely mentally impaired, severely multiply impaired, teacher consultants, music therapy and occupational therapy.

The result, Mahan said, is that services won't be as readily available for the students who need them. Even without the loss of students from the Regional Center, some cuts would have to be made because of less money being available, so it wasn't a matter of only cutting staff to match the reduced enrollment.

The professional staff who will be given termination notices as a result of Monday's board action will be five speech therapists, one audiologist, four teacher consultants, three school psychologists, three social workers and one person each of the following: occupational therapist, music therapist, behavior modification specialist, severely mentally impaired teacher, severely multiply impaired

Pros and cons of the Proposal A, the property tax reduction and tax shift proposal to be voted on May 19 by Michigan residents, will be discussed Tuesday, May 5, starting at 8 p.m. at Reese High School.

The meeting, free and open to the public, is being sponsored by the 8th (Congressional) District Citizens for Better Government.

Speaking in favor of the proposal will be Dr. Gerald Miller, director of the state Department of Management and Budget, and Bill Rustem of Frankenmuth, chairman of Citizens for Proposal A.

Speaking against will be Shiawassee Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch, author of the well-known tax limitation proposals named after him that appeared on the ballot in 1978 and 1980, and Alan Schmitt of Saginaw, president of Taxpayers United of Michigan.

The format, according to Herbert Bauer, chairman of the Better Government group, is that each speaker will be given an allotted amount of time to present an opening statement.

They will then respond to written questions submitted by the audience. If time permits, the speakers will also be allowed to present a closing statement.

Moderator will be Free-land auctioneer Jim Erskine.

Although his organization opposes Proposal A, Bauer insisted the program will be fair to both sides. "I want people to know what it's all about," he said of the proposal drawn up by the governor and legislature. "In order to do that, we want to be fair. We feel you should do your own judging."

Reese High School is located on Van Buren Road, east of Reese.

Sponsors needed for bike-a-thon

The ride is open to children and adults. Youngsters fourth grade and under will have to be accompanied by an adult.

THE GOOD BUY BOOK, by Annie Moldafsky (non-fiction). Retail stores that have direct outlet relationships with manufacturers and thus are able to sell goods at 20-80 percent off usual retail prices are listed and described in this guide to bargains in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin. From goods to mattresses, buying information is exceptionally complete. Product description, store hours, range of savings, acceptable forms of payment, and parking facilities are arranged in a state-by-state format.

MR. WIZARD'S SUPERMARKET SCIENCE, by Don Herbert (non-fiction - junior). This book is itself a supermarket of interesting science-related devices, stunts, and puzzles to make from items found at a grocery store. Mr. Wizard presents more than 100 projects (grouped by grocery-store section), including a camera obscura made from a cereal box, a straw oboe, a vinegar rocket-launcher, sugar "gems" and a mold garden made from soup.

I'M STILL ME, by Betty Jean Lifton (fiction - junior). A history assignment stirs 16-year-old adoptee Lori Elkins to the realization that she wants to find out about her "birth parents." Though her relationship with her adoptive family is loving, it is a nonconfiding one regarding the circumstances of her birth. Partly because her desire to complete her identity makes her feel guilty, Lori turns to her voluble best friend and to her neighbor's finance and is ultimately able to fill in a missing part of herself.

Sugar beets are in early

By Mike Score
Tuscola County
Extension Agricultural Agent

Over the next several weeks information will be presented regarding the production of several major cash crops in Tuscola county under conventional and conservation tillage systems.

This week's crop is sugar beets. Beets were planted unusually early this year. According to a Michigan Sugar Co. field man who has been in Tuscola county nearly 20 years, this year's crop is the earliest he has seen planted. Early planting was made possible by warm, dry weather beginning in late March.

Beets planted before April 15 were probably subject to a killing frost when temperatures dipped below 22 degrees on a recent April evening. Beets killed by the frost will be replanted as soon as weather conditions permit.

Many producers utilized fall cover crops on sandy soils where beets were planted this spring. Based on my experience in county plots and the experiences of many farmers, it should be recommended that cover crops be killed off before spring tillage operations to increase the mellowness of the seedbed and reduce cultivator plugging.

Where winter hardy cover crops are used, Round-up should be used, however, this extra cost can be avoided by planting winter killed cover crops such as oats or summer grains.

Beet field should be checked approximately two weeks after planting for germinating weeds so that a post emergence control program can be developed.

Funeral held Monday for George Roose

George Roose of Cass City died Thursday, April 23, at his home after a long illness.

He was born July 17, 1898, in Ichteghem, Belgium, the son of Desiree and Emma (Van Maele) Roose. He came to the United States as a young man and settled in Detroit.

He married Alexia Vermeersch May 6, 1922, in Detroit. After their marriage, they made their home in Detroit. They came to Cass City in 1975.

Roose was a World War I veteran of the Belgian Army, a member of Local No. 98 of the Plumbers Union, a member of the Holy Name Society of St. John Berchmans Catholic church of Detroit and a member of St. Pancratius Catholic church of Cass City.

He is survived by his wife, Alexia; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas (Virginia) Sutter of Cass City and Mrs. James (Theresa) Sarnacke of Warren; four sons, Jack Roose of Richmond, Henry Roose of St. Clair, Edward Roose of Hadley, and John Roose of Rochester; 35 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren. Five brothers, three sisters and two grandsons preceded him in death.

A rosary was recited Sunday at Little's Funeral Home, Cass City.

Funeral mass was conducted Monday morning at St. Pancratius, Father Joseph Morales officiating. Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Extension tour planned to Rockford

Tuscola county members of Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers are sponsoring a one-day tour to Rockford, Wednesday, May 13.

Total cost is $17.25, which includes transportation and evening meal. The agenda includes leaving the St. Michael's church parking lot at 6:30 a.m., a morning tour of the Wolverine Hush Puppy shoe factory and the Rockfords Historical Square of shops and museums. The evening meal will be at Camp Concordia in Gowen.

Concert band receives '2' rating at state

The 40 members of the Cass City High School concert band came home Saturday with an overall 2 rating earned at the state band and orchestra festival at Saline High School, near Ann Arbor.

The band, mostly ninth and 10th graders, qualified for the state competition by earning a first division rating at the district festival March 21 at Mayville. It was the first Cass City High School band to qualify for the state festival since about 1975.

Band Director Thomas Clair was very pleased with his students' performance. "The kids did real well and they're ready to do it again next year," he said.

At Saline, the band had to play a march, a required number selected from a list of possible pieces, a number it had selected previously and two sight read numbers, for which the band had only a few minutes to prepare after seeing the music for the first time.

The concert band and the symphony band will be performing at the Evening With the Arts at the high school Monday, with the concert band starting at 7:30 and the symphony band about 8.

Your Neighbor says

Spring is the best season of them all

Spring is Alan Proowski's favorite season. "I guess it's my favorite because winter is over," he said.

Now that spring has arrived, he has been busy with numerous activities.

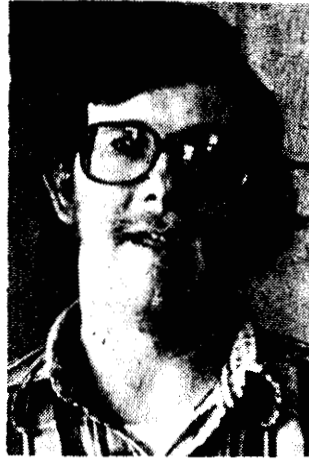

He already has one-third of his vegetable garden planted. He devotes one-third of his yard to his garden and grows "a little bit of everything."

Proowski also likes fishing. He went fishing last week end on Saginaw Bay and caught 30 perch. Other fishermen commented the fishing should get better as the weather gets warmer.

He has been dipping for smelt twice, at Forester in Sanilac county and at Port Huron. At Forester, he and another fellow collected five gallons of smelt in five hours, which took two hours to clean.

Morel hunting is another activity. So far, he has found only one black morel in at least three expeditions, but it's early yet. "If the warm weather keeps up," he said Monday, "by this coming week end, the black ones should be coming out."

It is almost time for the white morels to start coming out. Some of the best places to find them are along ditchbanks and in apple orchards, but they can be found, Proowski explained, "about anywhere you look, if you have the time and patience."

When the white morels come out, it's also time to look for wild asparagus, which usually can be found in about the same places.

Proowski is employed by Becker Insulation of Fairgrove insulating houses.

He and his wife, Terry, have three children, Alan Jr., 5, Chrissy, 3, and Michael, 2. The family lives on Fourth Street, Cass City.

Art Holmberg started career of noted scientist

Editor's note: The following article is reprinted with permission from the Huntington College Bulletin. Dr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith Sr. of 2485 E. Dickerson Road, Elmwood township, and a 1960 graduate of Cass City High School.

In high school, he was the 1960 recipient of the Thelma Hunt Memorial Scholarship, awarded by the Student Council, was a class officer, active in the Science Club and a member of the National Honor Society, varsity basketball and track teams. The college is located in Huntington, Ind.

One of the most admired professionals in the life of Gerald Smith, high school student, was his chemistry teacher, Arthur Holmberg of Cass City High School, located in Cass City, Michigan.

Smith credits Holmberg as being "the person most responsible for my interest in chemistry. A teacher of the 'old school,' challenging, interesting, giving us good laboratory experiences and illustrating his lectures with demonstrations."

Holmberg introduced young Smith to radioactivity and nuclear processes — an introduction which has remained an area of special interest to him as a professor of chemistry.

Smith has the ability to laugh at and learn from his own mistakes. "I recall an embarrassing incident that occurred the year after I had high school chemistry," he shared. "As president of the science club, I had access to the chemistry lab and store-room. Alone with another student, we decided to check out the reaction of water on calcium carbide which produces flammable acetylene gas.

"Unfortunately, the quantity of calcium carbide we put into the beaker of water, was much more than we could control. The burning acetylene was quickly out of control. Although we managed to dump everything in the sink and smother the flames, the lab was filled with floating soot which we tried to sweep out of the air.

"At that moment, the chemistry teacher came into the lab . . . and we were caught! Needless to say, the lesson was well learned that unauthorized experiments were prohibited."

Smith's interest in chemistry continued to grow and, in 1960, he enrolled as a freshman at Huntington College. He received his Bachelor of Science in Chemistry, in 1964. In 1972, he was presented the Ph.D. in Radiation Physics from Purdue University. In addition, he did graduate study in four other universities: Washington, Michigan State, Louisiana State and Ball State.

Prior to his joining the HC faculty in 1967, he taught for two years at John Wesley College, Owosso, Mich. After a year's study leave (1969-70), Smith returned as assistant professor of chemistry (1970-73), associate professor (1973-77), and in 1977, he was advanced to a full professorship. He took a year's sabbatical leave in 1979, and returned last spring to reassume his teaching duties. Last fall, he accepted an added responsibility — the chairmanship of Division III, Natural Sciences and Mathematics.

In addition to his chairmanship responsibilities, Smith is continuing to teach chemistry and physics. Through the years, he has worked long hours and developed innovative teaching methods to provide memorable learning experiences for his students.

"The rewards of teaching are tremendously satisfying," Smith reflects. "As I work with students over four college years, I watch them develop and mature and clarify their values. I share their successes and pleasures and sometimes, their tears. Those are very rewarding times for me. Then, too, in the small college, the impact of one's contributions is more evident, and there is much satisfaction in sharing in common efforts with respected colleagues in a collegial setting."

He spoke of the division which he now serves as the chairman: "In one sense providing leadership to the division is easy since all of the faculty are strong and capable, yet cooperative and willing to give assistance. Nearly all of them have an earned doctorate and are particularly interested in the teaching process while combining that interest with consulting work, small research projects and writing.

However, this also means that the division chairman is always scrambling to stay ahead.

"The Division of Natural Sciences and Mathematics continues to develop the facilities available to it and to add to the equipment used to support various programs," Smith continued.

"In the area of natural resources, the college has exceptionally good natural areas including the campus grounds and arboretum, the Thornhill Nature Preserve just north of town, and Pinkerton Acres to the south, the use and cooperation of Salamonie and Huntington Reservoirs, and the Upper Wabash Basin Resource Center with its herbarium collection and seed depository in the lower level of Brenn Hall of Science.

Chemistry and physics equipment is quite extensive and used in many courses. Recently, the Chemistry Department added some precision infrared spectrophotometers as the result of a gift from Eli Lilly & Co. Last fall, the department purchased an extremely sensitive polarographic analyzer.

"The biological sciences are making real efforts to enhance their instrumentation capabilities, and this spring, the solar greenhouse, now under construction, should be completed.

"In computer sciences, the department has expanded its capabilities with a microcomputer which serves as a graphics terminal to the larger system. Plans are already being made to expand to a much larger system, and to add to the programs available in that popular area.

"There are plans for continued improvement to the science building. The lower level is nearing completion (when built in 1963, the area was left unfinished as a storage area and future expansion area — it has now been expanded).

"As one of the members of the division has stated frequently, we want to provide a 'viable alternative' for the student who may not wish to attend a large university, who is interested in a Christian environment in a liberal arts college setting. We want to provide quality and excellence for the student who makes the investment of his education with us," Smith stated.

Dr. Smith has served as the North Central Association institutional self-study coordinator (1972-74, 77-79); HC director of institutional research, (1974-76); faculty representative to the Administrative Council (1972-78), and on many standing committees.

He is the recipient of the Atomic Energy Commission Fellowship, University of Washington (1964-65), Public Health Service Fellowship, Purdue University (1969-72), and was selected as a participant for the AEC Summer Institute, Louisiana State University (1967), and HEW Summer Institute in Advanced Institutional Research, Ball State University (1966).

During the decade of the seventies, Dr. Smith's honors included Outstanding Educators of America; Phi Lambda Upsilon, Chemistry Honorary; Sigma Xi, Science Research Honorary; Outstanding Young Men of America; American Men and Women of Science, 14th Edition, and Who's Who in the Midwest, 17th Edition.

Smith is the author and coauthor of several professional articles published in scientific journals.

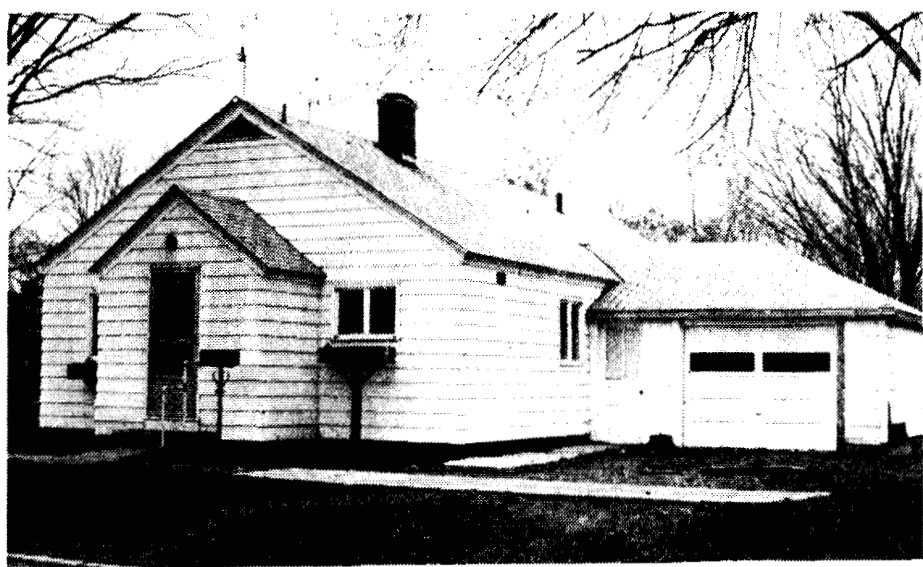

Because of his reluctance to have too much made of it, it has not been generally known that the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission recently extended an inviting appointment to Smith. The NRC offered him the position to oversee licensees who produce the fuel rod assemblies for nuclear power plants in the United States. He declined the generous offer because "I did not feel prepared to make a career change at this point. I enjoy my relationships with colleagues and students . . . and, as long as there is a sense of accomplishment and appreciation, I prefer to make my contribution to my alma mater and the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, both to whom I have deep feelings of loyalty."

Regular exercise is an important key to fitness and weight control. When food calories equal calories expended through activity, weight should remain about the same. Sports buffs are reminded by Automobile Club of Michigan's MemberLife area to shape up before beginning strenuous summer activities. It is important to start with moderate activities, such as walking or bicycling, then gradually build to vigorous ones. Before beginning any exercise program, the guidance of a physician or other health professional should be sought, especially by persons with medical problems or those over age 35. Calories stated above are estimates and will vary with the vigor of activity and a person's weight.

Minor youths face charges for illegal game shooting

Two teenagers went bird hunting April 20, the result of which was they found themselves in Sanilac county probate court.

Not only is it not bird hunting season, they were shooting from their car, which is illegal.

Tuscola sheriff's deputies were dispatched to Lamton Road, between Severance and Shabbona Roads, at 5:34 p.m.

There they found Cass City officer Phillip Klaus already at the scene, with the two subjects in their vehicle. He had confiscated two .22 rifles. The boys had in their possession a rooster pheasant and a sparrow hawk.

According to the deputies, a Gagetown man saw the two boys, ages 15 and 16, shooting out of the windows of their car. He stopped and asked a resident, who had heard four shots, to call police.

The Gagetown man and some others blocked the car from leaving, until Klaus arrived.

The boys were turned over to Department of Natural Resources Conservation Officer Frank Rosinski when he arrived.

As the boys live in Sanilac county, they were petitioned to probate court in that county. One boy has a Cass City address, the other is from Deford.

Set tryouts

Manager Pete Martin issued a reminder this week about tryouts for the team in the Babe Ruth League.

The tryout is for boys between 13 and 16 and will be held May 6 at 6 p.m. and May 9 at 9 a.m. at the Cass City Recreational Park.

The saying that less government is the best government may find a home in Michigan under a proposed constitutional amendment which would reduce the length of the annual legislative sessions to five months.

Currently, Michigan has year-round legislative sessions. Only Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York also have full-time legislatures. Generally, the Michigan Legislature takes as long as nine months to complete its annual budget work including the basic budget supplements and transfers.

During the budget process and for the remainder of the year, the membership is working on a myriad of other problems facing the industrialized state.

However, this year the Legislature put the finishing touches on the $9.81 billion budget in mid-April just four months after the opening of the new session.

Besides other pieces of legislation, the Legislature completed action on a controversial property tax cut ballot proposal along with all the implementing statutes should the proposal be adopted by the voters May 19.

SEN. DONALD BISHOP (R-Rochester), following the lead of Gov. William G. Milliken in calling for shorter legislative sessions, has proposed a constitutional amendment which would limit the lengths of sessions to five months.

"I think it would be a better planning product with the session beginning in January," he said.

With the time constraints, he predicted, lawmakers would no longer dawdle, the number of frivolous bills introduced would be sharply reduced and the taxpayers would save money.

He said that during a five-month legislative session, lawmakers could still meet about 105 working days, compared to about 130 currently worked now under the full year session approach.

DURING A TYPICAL week, the Legislature meets Monday nights and during the day on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Lawmakers generally take a two-week recess during the Easter-spring break, are off during the summer months and again are off for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

These breaks are normally lengthened prior to the August primary and November general elections, when members are up for reelection.

DURING HIS STATE-OF-the-state message, Milliken called for six-month legislative sessions so lawmakers could use the remainder of the time dealing with constituent problems in their respective districts.

At that time, House Speaker Bobby Crim of Davison and Senate Majority Leader William Faust of Westland discounted that plan, saying that since Michigan is a major industrial state, there is always some matter needing legislative attention.

Under Bishop's proposal, a special three-day session of the Legislature would be convened, probably in June, to consider overrides of any bill vetoed by the governor.

In addition the governor would be allowed to call special 20-day sessions with the concurrence of the speaker of the House and majority leader of the Senate.

Standing and special legislative committees, meanwhile, would be allowed to meet throughout the year to prepare legislation for immediate action upon the regularly scheduled legislative sessions.

Great opener for O-G girls . . .

Owen-Gage opened its North Central D League softball season at Carsonville-Port Sanilac Monday with two wins, collecting 42 runs in the process.

The Bulldogs led 17-5 after two innings in the opening game, only to see the Tigers come back and tie. The game went to eight innings before Owen-Gage pulled out the win, 25-19.

Dana Laurie was the winning pitcher, aided in relief by Leeann Ellicott, Becky Howard and Julie Enderle. They combined to strike out four, walk 15 and give up nine hits.

Losing pitcher Deb Albrecht went the distance, didn't strike out a batter, walked 12 and surrendered 12 hits.

Enderle hit three singles, Howard, a triple and a single, and Karla Kretzschmer, a double and a single.

Laurie had no trouble going the distance in the second game, a 17-2 triumph, to pick up the win. She struck out one, walked two and allowed only one hit.

Dawn Regnier was the losing pitcher. She and reliever Jennie Jarchow struck out three, walked 15 and gave up 10 hits.

Laurie aided her cause with three singles. Howard clobbered a home run and a double and Kretzschmer batted two singles.

The Bulldogs are at Peck Thursday and entertain Akron-Fairgrove Monday.

. . . dismal start for O-G boys

Owen-Gage began its North Central D League baseball season by losing both ends of a double header Monday at Carsonville-Port Sanilac.

The Tigers won the opener, 2-1, with pitcher Lee Burton going the distance. He gave up three hits, walked one and struck out 10.

Both of Carsonville's runs were scored on errors, the Bulldogs making a total of four in the game. Their opponents made one.

Losing pitcher Randy Radabaugh surrendered three hits, struck out six and walked one.

Top Owen-Gage hitter was Scott Gaeth with a double and a single. He drove in his team's lone run.

The Tigers took the second game, 8-6.

Winning pitcher was Scott Regnier, who pitched 4 1/3 innings. Tim Travis pitched the remainder, the duo combining to give up eight hits and two walks. They struck out eight. Alan LeValley went the first 3 2/3 innings for the Bulldogs before being relieved by Jim Kuhr, who gave up six hits, walked five and struck out three.

Gaeth picked up another double and a single, plus two RBIs. Kuhr and Jim Glidden each collected two singles.

Owen-Gage is at Peck Thursday, in a tournament at Uby Saturday and hosts Akron-Fairgrove Monday.

County to appeal valuation boost have already taken place, which supervisors felt are high enough.

For instance, Elkland Township Supervisor Jack Gallagher said his township's board of review heard more appeals than ever this year and many persons said they can't afford to pay their new property tax levy. The STC imposed increase since then will only add to that burden.

SHOULD THE COUNTY lose its appeal, the situation gets more complicated, Russell explained.

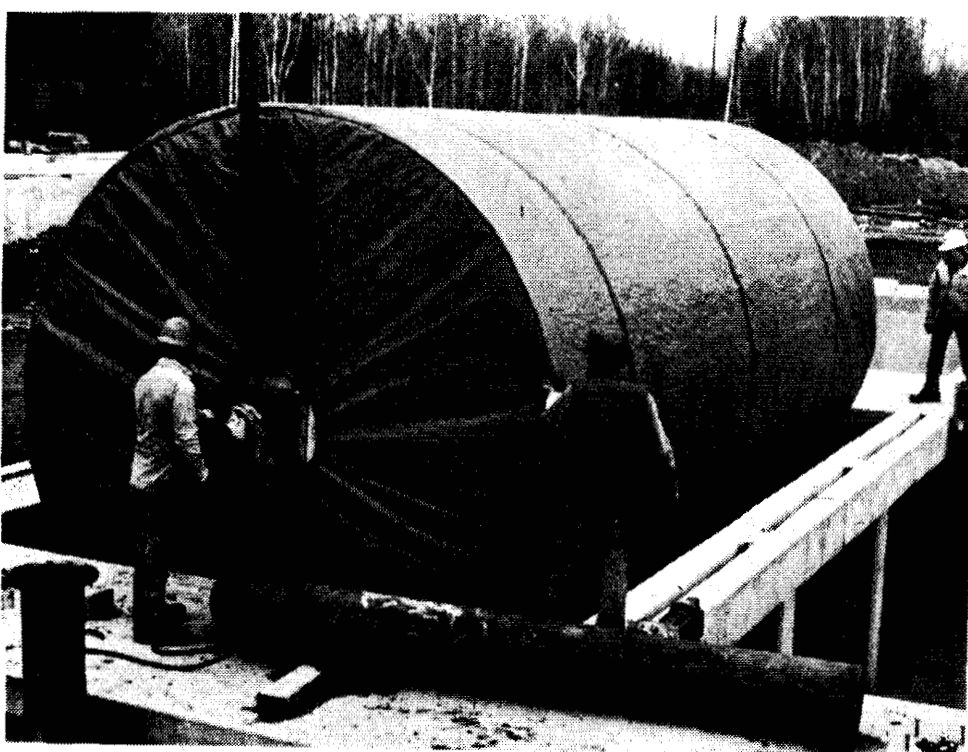

By law, school districts can impose property taxes based on the higher valuation as determined by the STC. That means the schools will get more property tax revenue, though they may get less state aid as a result.

The county and townships, however, can decline to impose the valuation increase, so their property tax levies will be based on the lower valuations as determined by the county equalization department.

If the county wins its appeal, however, schools will have to base their property tax levies on the lower, or county imposed valuation.

The supervisors wanted the commissioners to appeal, Russell said, so that it will be clear to taxpayers, should the county lose, that the increase is being imposed by the state and not by them.

Seventeen of Tuscola's 23 townships were represented at the morning meeting in Caro.

EASY DOES IT -- The big filters had to be lowered gently onto the mounting studs imbedded in the concrete. The filters will rotate and use algae to remove organic wastes from the water flowing through them. Part of the plant, including the discs, will go in operation in August or September, with the entire plant to be done by spring, 1982.

Dogs of any age can be trained

Dogs of any age can be given basic training and become your—and the neighborhood's—pride. This training teaches the dog to obey, to walk at heel, stop and sit when you stop, sit and stay where placed, and come when called. Make lessons no longer than 10 minutes (five for very young puppies.) Give plenty of praises and petting. No food rewards.

Teach sit and heel in one lesson. With the dog at your side, press down on the rump with your left hand, while pulling back on the collar. Command "sit." If the dog tries to stand, repeat until it learns.

After praise, command "heel," tug on the leash and move forward. If the dog surges forward, a gentle tap on the nose with a cane or umbrella will bring it back to heel. Thereafter, a swinging cane or umbrella will teach it to keep its head even with your body. If it lags behind, repeat the command, and give a gentle tug forward.

Vary your pace from slow to fast, repeat a dozen times, then rest, praise, and pet. After a week, try working without the leash. If the dog bolts, catch it, start again, while warning it with stronger commands. Working in an enclosed place, such as a tennis court helps. Finally, train with other dogs or varied distractions.

To teach "stay" sit the dog, warn it with your open palm, then walk slowly around it. If it moves, replace it and try again. First work in the home or garage. Put the dog in a corner. Warn it to stay, then back away, using the open hand for restraint. Warn it also to stay while returning to it.

Next back slowly away, then turn your back. Repeat until it continues to stay. Then walk out of the room. If it leaves the corner, catch and replace it. Now you work out of doors, perhaps at first in an enclosed place, and finally in the presence of other dogs, or varied distractions.

To teach it to come when called, tie cord about 30 feet long to the dog's collar. Allow the dog to drag it until used to it. Then when the dog is not looking, or going away, call it, grab the end of the rope and begin to pull the dog in. The command will be "Towser, Come!"

Keep praising even if you have to drag the dog at first. Repeat again and again. Work again out of doors in an enclosed area. Repeat the lesson when the dog is off the leash.

When your training is completed, the dog will be proud; you'll be proud; and so will the neighbors.

It's odd but true that the family who lives beyond its means is always behind.

Treasurer seeks retirement funds for home financing

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

State Treasurer Loren Monroe has put forth a plan to use about $80 million in retirement system funds to provide financing for new home construction in Michigan.

Under the proposal, the money is to be funneled through banks and savings and loan associations to purchase blocks of mortgages from home builders.

Monroe said he is embarking on the new plan because high interest rates have stalled new home construction. "Our initiation of this program will provide builders with the necessary financing for new construction. It will provide lenders with money to loan potential home buyers," he said.

He noted homeowners will find it easier to get mortgage money and the state employees retirement system will, meanwhile, get a "handsome" return on an insured certificate.

The retirement system will get a net return of 13.7 percent if the loans are held to the maximum 30-year period.

The lenders (banks and savings and loan associations) will pay the state 12.875 percent interest and the issues will be guaranteed by the Mortgage Guarantee Insurance Corp.

Lenders would, in turn, be allowed to add one fourth of a percentage point as a handling fee when providing the funds for home builders.

The money is to be used to finance single-family, owner-occupied property, with a maximum loan for any one mortgage at $125,000.

Some 75 banks and savings and loans have agreed to handle the mortgages.

Monroe said he expects all $80 million to be committed within a few months. Four separate issues of $20 million each will be authorized.

Treasury department officials have discussed the program with the state's Investment Advisory Committee, which oversees investments of retirement funds, and Monroe said he did not expect that group to disapprove the mortgage program.

Stan Arnold of the state Building and Construction Trades Council welcomed the state's action, saying it would prod home construction and get the industry moving again.

Gov. William G. Milliken also praised the program, saying it makes good sense to use Michigan money to solve Michigan problems.

Toys can be learning tools

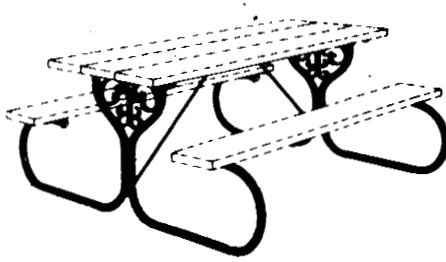

Even before a youngster reaches school age, he has tools that help him to learn. To find them, you need look no further than the playroom. A child's toys are not only his friends, but his teachers as well. They inform and educate him about the world around him. And, they provide a private place for him to keep, protect and develop his own person. Board games can be Boards of Education, too.

According to Dr. Brian Sutton-Smith, a leading authority on child development and children's play, there are three educational "systems" that significantly affect a child's growth. The first is their relationship with their parents and others close to them; the second educational system is the world of play, and the third is formal schooling. "Playthings," says Sutton-Smith, "are the tools of children's play and are as important to the second educational system as textbooks are to school. They provide opportunities for children to master and then exercise creative control over some aspects of their environment. They also introduce children to complex technology and opportunities for choice they will encounter in adulthood, help inject novelty into a child's life and suggest that learning and problem solving can be fun."

Scenes like these in 1972 Youngsters' art talent sure to be repeated in '81 on display at library

The creativity of Cass City elementary school students will be on display during Artrain week at Rawson Memorial Library.

Hours for the children's art exhibit there will be from 2-4 p.m. and 6-8 p.m., Tuesday through Friday, and noon-8 p.m. Saturday.

Also on display at the library during those hours will be documents and original newspaper articles about the great fire of 1881, which swept through much of the Thumb. The display was prepared by Cass City Area Historical Society President Jack Esau.

Elementary art teacher Trudy Muzynski has selected about 60 works done by students in grades 2-6 at Campbell, Deford and Evergreen Elementary Schools and Cass City Intermediate School. Some works by Intermediate School students in grades 7-8 may also be displayed.

Miss Muzynski said she selected the works to be displayed based on originality and creativity. The exhibit will include watercolors, pencil and chalk drawing and papier mache.

The library show will not replace the annual elementary art shows in each of the buildings at which all students display their work. Those shows will take place around the end of May.

Special hours, from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, have been set aside for student tours of the Artrain.

Those touring from the Cass City School District will be all 4th-8th graders, who are at an age when it is felt they will be more receptive to developing an interest in art, and high school art students.

As of Tuesday, other districts that will be sending students, either art students and/or selected grades, were Owendale-Gagetown, Kingston, Mayville, Bad Axe and Unionville-Sebewaing.

Only about half the time allocated to non-Cass City districts was filled at that point, according to Geraldine Priesskorn, who has been handling the scheduling. Other school districts in the area have been invited to send students.

MIXED UP

Too many people seem to think that perfection comes through finding fault with others.

SCENES LIKE THIS will be repeated during Artrain's visit. At the potter's wheel when it visited in Cass City in 1972 was Cara Priesskorn. Watching, from left, were Ben Drews, Kurt Proctor and Ken Kerbyson. Photo was taken by Jim Hansen of Setauket, N.Y., and appeared with an article about Artrain in Parade magazine, which is distributed nationally with Sunday newspapers.

VELMA CLELAND of Holbrook demonstrated chair caning when Artrain was in Cass City in 1972. She will be demonstrating it again Wednesday, May 6, from 2-4 p.m. at the Cultural Center.

OPTIMUM NUTRITION

There's a lot more to health than just the absence of disease. The World Health Organization defines health as the full achievement of physical, social and psychological well-being. Optimum nutrition plays a major role in each individual's feeling of well-being.

What is meant by optimum nutrition? According to Dr. James Scala, noted authority on nutrition and Shaklee Corporation's vice president of Science and Technology, optimum nutrition simply means obtaining all nutrients in the quantities and combinations required by your individual metabolism for maximum performance.

The exact nutritional requirements for each of us vary. These are determined by all of the thousands of differences that make each human being unique. Some of these differences are obvious.

The nutritional demands of an infant are far different from those of his grandmother or even an older sibling. Compounding these age differences are the nutritional variables that result from different styles of living. Some examples include participation in strenuous exercise, dieting or use of oral contraceptives and other prescription drugs.

According to Dr. Scala, "Because few of us adjust our diets to provide for changing nutritional needs, food supplements are 20th century products that offer us one more option for improving our nutritional well-being."

Minor thefts reported

$10,000 tractor stolen from Kingston area barn

A tractor and attachments worth $10,350 were stolen from a Kingston township barn last week.

The theft was discovered Friday night by the owner, Dennis Ludeman of Utica.

The property he owns, where the tractor was located, is on Gilford Road southeast of Deford.

Ludeman reported the theft at 10:19 p.m., the tractor having last been seen by him Sunday, April 19.

Stolen was a John Deere Model 2630 diesel, green with yellow wheels, fitted with a three-point hitch, rear 6-foot blade and front end loader attachment. It had a wide tread front axle.

According to deputies, entry was gained to the barn by pulling open a locked door to the silo shed, then kicking open the door leading from the shed into the barn. The thief or thieves then pried open the hasp on the two large doors, allowing them to drive the tractor out of the barn.

Tire tracks led to Gilford Road, but the officers couldn't determine once it got there, in what direction it was driven.

OTHER ITEMS

George Hosner of 231 N. Kingston Road, Deford, reported to sheriff's deputies April 20 that the house across the road, owned by George Kortjohn of Center Line, had been entered sometime since March 30.

Entry was gained by breaking out a window, then pulling out the frame. Another window was also broken and the frame removed. Missing from inside the house was a small wood stove. Loss was estimated at $75.

Carl Nicol of 5495 Decker-ville Road, Deford, reported to deputies April 18 that his mailbox had been damaged early that morning.

William McCreedy of 6537 Main Street told Cass City police at 7:04 a.m. April 21 that two lights were removed from the rollbar of his pickup truck during the night. The truck had been parked behind the building where he lives.

Mike Shaft of 6549 Main Street reported to village police at 7:47 a.m. Wednesday, April 22, that a 10-speed bicycle parked behind his residence and store was stolen during the night. Police found it a short time later on Doerr Road, just south of Main Street.

Nancy Ann Faber of Huntville Trailer Park told village police Saturday that she parked her car at 10 p.m. on Leach Street, near Main. When she returned at 11:45, she discovered someone had written on the hood, trunk and side with a marker pen.

Regular care will aid trees

In one way, trees are like cars: with regular maintenance, they last longer and give you fewer problems.

A good tree program includes proper planting, watering, fertilizing and pruning.

A tree maintenance program actually begins with tree selection. "A lot of maintenance problems can be avoided by selecting a tree that's well suited to the planting site and free of bothersome characteristics," according to A. Rex Sieting, Sanilac county extension director.

For instance, some trees -- such as catalpas, mulberries, and black walnuts -- have messy flowers or fruits.

Others, like the white birch when grown in southern Michigan, are vulnerable to insect attack or disease. Still others, the flowering dogwood, the peach and the highly advertised "Royal Paulownia," may be injured or killed by the low temperatures of a Michigan winter.

Among the trees recommended for Michigan are the little-leaf linden and the Marshall seedless ash.

A number of varieties of little-leaf linden are readily available. This tree is hardy throughout Michigan. It has very few insect or disease problems and it is good under urban conditions.

The Marshall seedless ash has all the good qualities of other ash varieties without the large quantities of seeds that some people find objectionable. It is a strong tree with a good growth rate and relatively few pest problems.

Proper planting and watering during the first year are necessary to get a new tree off to a good start. Regular fertilization and water during dry times help keep the tree growing vigorously, which in turn helps it resist attack by insects and disease.

Proper pruning eliminates dead or damaged branches and weak, V-shaped crotches where breakage is likely to occur. Pruning also removes low-hanging branches from pedestrian and vehicle rights-of-way and improves a tree's appearance. Now is a good time for pruning.

A tree that is well maintained -- properly planted, watered, fertilized and pruned -- will grow as well and as fast as those trees that are advertised as fast growing shade trees and you'll end up with a stronger, healthier tree that is less likely to give you problems, Sieting said.

'Fuel use estimator' available

Michigan's Energy Administration has a new publication to help residents estimate energy use in their homes and determine savings they could gain from adding insulation, weatherstripping, caulking or storm windows.

"Spring and summer are good seasons to plan and undertake energy conservation actions," said EA Director Peter S. Walters. "Our new publication, the Fuel Use Estimator, makes it simple to figure the savings people can realize from weatherfitting their homes. Many Michigan homes can be just as comfortable as they are now while using only half as much energy -- if they are properly fitted with insulation, weatherstripping and storm windows."

People interested in learning about energy conservation or renewable energy resources, or who would like a free copy of the "Fuel Use Estimator" can call the Energy Hotline toll-free at 1-800-292-4704. More than 200 other free publications are also available on conservation and the use of renewable resources.

HEALTH TIPS

Children can learn good dental habits

Good teeth start in childhood.

There are things parents can do to help insure that their offspring have a minimum of dental health problems in childhood and later years.

To point up the fundamentals of good dental health for children, the American Dental Association lists four simple rules which, if followed faithfully, can help reduce decay:

--Cut down on sweets, especially between meals.

--Brush teeth immediately after eating (snacks as well as regular meals). When this is not possible, rinse mouth thoroughly with water.

--Have regular dental checkups. This enables the dentist to discover decay and other problems at an early stage.

--Fluoridation of community water supplies greatly reduces decay. Where water supplies are not fluoridated, dentists sometimes suggest applying fluoride directly to children's teeth.

Sugar is named as a major cause of tooth decay. Bacteria that are present in the mouth act on sugar to produce acids. These acids attack the teeth.

Of course, sugar is an important part of the diet. But it can be controlled. Nibbling on sweets all day is hard on your teeth. Eat your candy all at once, then brush your teeth.

The American Medical Association points out that many children, perhaps most of them, lose a tooth or two through an accident, often with a baseball bat or a playground fall.

If this happens, wrap the tooth in a wet towel and take both child and tooth to the dentist. Sometimes the tooth can be replanted.

Dental authorities agree that the child should make his first visit to the dentist at about age 2½ to 3 years. By this time the baby teeth are in, and the dentist can check for signs of decay or malformation.

Sound teeth in childhood can prevent many dental problems in later life. Regular dental care is an important part of the overall health care of the family.

Nurse Week set next week in Michigan

May 3-10 has been designated Michigan Nurse Week, sponsored by the Michigan Nurses Association.

It is an effort to gain recognition for all nurses among the public and other health professions and to raise the awareness of the diversity of today's nurse.

"Nurses: Qualified to Meet Special Needs" is the theme for 1981. Through local and statewide activities, the aim is to give emphasis to the many specialty areas in nursing.

Hills and Dales General Hospital plans to honor its registered nurses Wednesday, May 6. It plans to honor its licensed practical nurses May 7. The hospital employs 52 RNs and LPNs.

One job finished today is worth a dozen planned for tomorrow.

Taking Stock

(First of two articles)
The times they are a-changin'

The days when you kept a moderate amount in the checking account and the rest in a regular savings account have gone. The regular savings accounts are now being merged with checking accounts and pay 5 1/4 percent interest from the first day in to the last day out.

It's not quite a free lunch. Typical requirement is that you keep at least $2500 in the account. Drop below, and you'll pay typically a $6 service charge any month you're below $2500.

Many people think this is a good deal. Certainly it's better than to keep a separate savings account where the balance stays above $2500 all the time. Now you can get interest on the whole thing — savings account plus checking.

Others, whose cash needs hop around a lot, will find that a $6 a month service charge amounts to $72 a year. If your average balance in the combined account is $1400, that will offset your interest income earned yearly.

Such people have several choices.

1. Bank CD's. Rates change continually. Interest paid on accounts less than $10,000 is about 12 of 1 percent more than the savings rate, or 5.75 percent. You are locked in for the period of the CD, and the penalty is harsh if you withdraw early.

2. "Money-market certificates" for amounts of $10,000 and up. Term: 6 months, or 2 1/2 years. Rates are tied to U.S. Treasury bills (at this writing around 12 percent). Again, you're locked in for the period, but the rate is liberal.

3. U.S. Treasury bills themselves. Bank or broker can buy them for you, and will arrange safekeeping. Rate currently about 12 percent. You can pick any period, practically, up to a year. Minimum purchase, $10,000. Commission is low. Advantage over CD's or "money-market certificates" is that you can sell at any time.

Amount you get on sale can be lower or higher than what you paid, depending on market. But if you hold to maturity you are assured of principal and interest as at time of purchase. No commission if held to maturity.

4. U.S. Savings Bonds. Only good thing, aside from their safety is that they can be bought in small amounts, and often through payroll deductions. They pay 8 percent after the first six months. Actually, they're another form of a government bond, and all other government bonds are paying around 12 percent. A rip-off, as I've said many times.

5. Money market mutual funds. Not the same as "money-market certificates" described above. These funds invest in government bonds and short-term CD's mostly. Their interest rates are keyed to the current market. In past years their rates have varied from 9 percent to 18 percent, currently about 15 percent.

This new type of investment is attracting much cash that used to go to the banks. It takes a bit of explaining. Next week, we'll examine money-market funds in detail. Don't leave town.

If you never dream of doing the impossible, you'll find it fairly difficult to do the possible.

Tennis courts may be done by July 4

TENNIS COURTS

Bids for construction of the four new courts were opened April 14.

The council awarded the contract Monday to the low bidder (of two), Valley Asphalt of Saginaw, at $58,900, plus $750 for installation of a protective rail along the top of the chain link fence.

The contractor's bid specifications stated 120 days for completion, but Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie said the firm has indicated it will try to have the new courts ready by July 4.

Four bids were opened Monday for tennis court lights, with the lowest being Blank Electric of Snover at $9,800. They were referred to the architects, Toshach and Sobczak Associates of Saginaw, for review and a recommendation.

Village workmen will remove the old courts, starting sometime soon, LaPonsie said. Councilman James Ware speculated the courts must be at least 40 years old.

Federal funds are paying $30,800 for the courts, with the village paying the rest, minus any donations received. The Walbro Charitable Trust has donated $2,000, bringing the total to $27,800.

OTHER ITEMS

The council met in executive session for about 40 minutes with attorney Clinton House, its negotiator, to discuss the status of negotiations with the Fraternal Order of Police, which represents Cass City's three patrolmen. Afterwards, it was reported the council had directed House to finalize an agreement with the FOP, the implication being agreement was close. "We've got a lot of words on paper, most of which are agreed to," Athaver commented. No date has been set for the next negotiating session.

The Cass City Planning Commission will conduct a public hearing Tuesday, May 26, at 7 p.m. on the proposed rezoning of the northeast corner of the Northwood Village subdivision from RA-1, which requires minimum 1,200 square foot houses, to RA-1B, which would allow 1,000 square feet. Minimum lot size of 12,000 square feet will be the same for both categories. The council will conduct its regular meeting after the hearing and could act on the planning commission's recommendation then.

Annual clean-up days will be Wednesday and Thursday, May 13-14. Free pick-up of trash will be provided for items placed by the curb.

Annexation petitions from Dr. Edward Scollon and Frank and Shirley McComb, both on N. Seeger Street, across from the high school, were accepted. The annexations must now be approved by the county Board of Commissioners.

Emission rules may be changed

Proposed state administrative rules to implement the inspection and maintenance provisions of the auto emission control law have been delayed by a joint legislative committee in hopes for changes in the federally-prodded program.

The Department of State complied with the request of the Joint Committee on Administrative Rules to withdraw the rules but a spokesman said the department would like the rules implemented and will resubmit

The council approved advancing $400 to the Lioness Club so it can purchase a multi-level play structure to be put in the village park this summer. The club has raised $2,600 and once it has raised the remaining $400 needed, will reimburse the village. The structure includes platforms, a slide, swings and chinning bar.

A request from Ron Seeley and Ken Orton to sell ice cream in the village from a truck was referred to attorney House to determine its legality.

Councilman D.E. Rawson will be in charge of the Memorial Day parade.

A letter was read from the David Bush family, thanking police officer Ken Schott for going into their burning home April 13 to try to find their son, who, it turned out, was not home.

The Cultural Center, which is 100 years old this year, is receiving a facelift. Village workmen have scrubbed and buffed the floors and painted the first floor interior walls and the exterior entrance.

them as soon as possible.

Phillip Frangos of the Department of State, the state agency responsible for implementing and enforcing the program, said the committee's action means the state could be set back in its ability to implement the emissions program by the Jan. 1, 1982 deadline set by federal officials.

The state is threatened with the loss of federal funds for a variety of programs and with denial of industrial construction permits if the program is not in operation by then.

Auto emission testing and maintenance is required in areas failing to meet certain air standards. It is expected to affect, for now, only Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Both Governor William Milliken and Secretary of State Richard Austin have asked President Reagan to lift the emission requirements, saying the state could come into compliance with clean air requirements through other means.

In asking the department to withdraw the rules, the committee members indicated they wanted to see if any changes would come from Washington.

Officials in the federal administration have indicated they want to make changes in the clean air requirements.

The committee members also said they wanted to tie their action on the auto emission requirements to action on the air and water pollution surveillance fees.

FRANGOS SAID THE committee action showed a "reluctance to do something until some guidance from Washington."

The proposed State Department rules deal with actual testing of motor vehicles in areas not found in compliance with clean air rules.

Artrain fulfills purpose by increasing interest in arts

The Michigan Artrain made its first stop in May, 1972, in Traverse City, and was first in Cass City in July, 1972.

It was conceived, according to its executive director, John J. Hohmann, by the Michigan Council for the Arts as a project that would last only two or three years with the aim of serving as an art resource through the state. It would enable persons who would otherwise never visit an art museum to see works of art and would also encourage local artistic efforts.

The latter may be the best way to measure Artrain's success. "In Michigan, we're credited with creation of probably half of the 90 community arts councils there are," he said. In addition, the presence of Artrain in communities has spurred the creation of permanent annual festivals and the restoration of buildings, especially railroad depots.

Since May, 1971, Artrain has been in 135 communities in Michigan and 81 in other states, and has been visited by almost 2 million persons. Attendance usually averages 1,200-1,500 per day, with the record having been established in Kokomo, Ind., the first stop in this year's tour, when about 2,500 persons went through it.

The popularity of Artrain led to its being made a permanent entity, established as a non-profit corporation governed by its own board of directors.

The chairman of the steering committee when Artrain made its first stop in Cass City was Holly Althaver. The visit here was so successful, she was asked by the Artrain staff to serve as a consultant, speaking at workshops in other states to discuss local organizing efforts in conjunction with Artrain visits.

Since 1974, she has been a member of the Artrain board and executive committee. Her husband, Lambert, president of Walbro Corp., became a board member the following year and presently is its chairman.

ORIGINALLY, THE ARTRAIN was funded entirely by the Michigan Council for the Arts, which is a state (taxpayer) supported agency. It now receives its funds from a variety of sources.

Its budget for the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, Hohmann said, is $560,000. The MCA is providing $100,000 to help pay for the train's Michigan tour this year, which does not cover the entire cost. In addition, the MCA funds between 13-15 percent of the Artrain's administrative budget.

As the only traveling art museum in the United States, he feels it is a good investment for the state's taxpayers. "It's a terrific ambassador for Michigan. There's nothing really like the train."

A major source of funding when Artrain is outside of Michigan is the National Endowment for the Arts, which is federally funded. No Michigan taxpayer money helps pay for the train when it is outside of the state.

The rest of Artrain's funds comes from state arts agencies (when visiting the other states), foundations and corporations. It also runs a small art gallery at its office at the Fisher Building in Detroit and accepts donations (tax deductible).

Admission to the train is free, but there is a collection box for persons who would like to donate.

A non-monetary contribution comes from the railroads, which haul the five-car train from place to place for free.

Prior to the Artrain's visit here, $4,000 was raised from individuals and businesses to pay such expenses as site preparation, printing and motel accommodations for the Artrain staff.

WHERE THE TRAIN goes each year is part of a lengthy planning process that begins a couple of years in advance.

The theme and the exhibits on the Artrain change each year.

It is the job of Hohmann, curator Tom Elliott and the 10-member curatorial committee, of which Mrs. Althaver is chairman, to select each year's theme. Where the train will tour is a factor in choosing the theme and vice versa.

For instance, the theme this year is "Traditions: The Region/The World," and much of the art on display is by artists from the states through which the train will be touring, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania. The theme was chosen about 1½ years ago.

Indicative of how far in advance planning must be, the 1982 tour will take the Artrain to California, Washington, Oregon and Alaska and in 1983, Michigan and New York, and probably in 1984, Canada.

States are usually receptive to having the Artrain visit. "Fortunately, Artrain has been a relatively irresistible program once people are introduced to it," Hohmann said. Formation of state organizing committees in each state is the next step.

Once it's known which states the Artrain will be in, communities apply to have it stop there. In the case of Cass City this time, it was asked.

Once the theme is selected, it is the job of Elliott and his assistant, Pat O'Conner, to find what artworks are available that fit in with the theme, persuade their owners to loan them to the Artrain, arrange shipping and insurance, etc.

Artrain has a staff of eight in its Detroit office. In addition to the three already mentioned, there is a community coordinator, Michael Savoia, who was in Cass City in late February; an assistant, who does research and prepares educational materials; a state fund raiser; national fund raiser, and office manager.

A big change for the Artrain is somewhere down the tracks, when it will become a national organization, though still based in Michigan. That will increase the potential for obtaining funds, Hohmann explained. The goal within 10 years is to have two trains, operating year-round.

MANY STOPS

In addition to having traveled all over Michigan, Artrain has also been in Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Nevada, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Indiana.

Artists to give demonstrations

The Artrain will feature artists from all over the world. Its presence in Cass City will provide an opportunity for artists from all over the Thumb area to show their works.

The public will be able to see the artists at work in the Artrain studio car and see their works on display at the Cultural Center on Main Street.

Not all of the working artists will have their works on display and vice versa. Jeanne Ellinger, an artist herself, had the task of recruiting the 25 artists (plus herself) who will be demonstrating the creative process on the train. The two artists who go where the train goes, painter Donna Bruton and potter Carol Jocks, will also be giving demonstrations. The hours each artist will be there, their community and medium, are listed in the schedule elsewhere in this section.

The Cultural Center exhibit will be open from 2-4 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and noon-8 p.m. Saturday.

Linda Elisinger, who will have needlework of her own on display, recruited the artists whose works will be on display.

6 artists travel with Artrain

There are six persons who travel with the Artrain. Beverly Ritchie is the operations manager, in charge of the overall operation at each stop.

She has a master's degree in education from Eastern Michigan University and extensive drama experience. She toured for 11 years with theatre groups, including some tours in Europe.

Joan Kreuger is the curatorial and gallery coordinator, responsible for taking care of the art works on the train. She has a degree in arts from the University of Wisconsin and spent 3½ years at the Michael Koehler Institute in Wisconsin.

Two artists provide live demonstrations of their talent in the Artrain's studio car, along with local artists (see story elsewhere). One is Carol Jocks, an Albion College graduate, who will be making pottery.

The other is Donna Bruton, who will be painting. A Michigan State University graduate, she has a background as a commercial artist, was employed by the Detroit Council for the Arts and has worked with children.

Nothing is perfect in life and to fix things that go wrong and to take care of potential problems, the Artrain carries two technicians.

Senior technician is Dan Dantilowicz, a graduate of the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit with a master's in fine arts degree in photography.

Junior technician is Bernard Helling, a Canadian with a background in community planning.

One of the technicians rides on the train when it is moved from city to city to keep an eye on everything.

CURATORS - The job of selecting the artworks that go on the Artrain belongs to curator Tom Elliott and assistant Pat O'Connor. They were in Cass City April 15 to give an orientation to the guides.

Special music programs

Many guest artists to appear Wednesday, May 6, at Presbyterian Church during Artrain week

Two special music programs have been scheduled during Artrain week, Wednesday, May 6, and Friday, both at the First Presbyterian church.

Highlight of the Wednesday program, which starts at 8 p.m., will be performance of the Gloria mass by the church choir, which first performed it in January for the congregation. The mass was written in the early 1700s by the Italian composer, Antonio Vivaldi. Soloist will be Andrea Hofmeister of Gagetown.

Musical accompaniment will be by Brian Etta, Ann Arbor, and Linda Bishak, Midland, violins; Susan Reim, Mayville, cello; Jeri Blough, Freeland, flute, and Dana Hull, Ann Arbor, organ.

The rest of the program will consist of a short Renaissance dance suite, an instrumental, arranged by Eric Nisula, the church's music director; two anthems sung by the choir, and an organ solo performed by Ms. Hull.

The entire program should last about one hour.

A varied program will be presented starting at 8:15 p.m. Friday.

Three numbers on the piano will be played by Paul Kerbyson of Cass City, a junior at the Michigan State University School of Music. The numbers will be "Soaring Ebor" by Robert Schumann, five Hungarian peasant songs by Bela Bartok and "Dance," by Claude Debussy.

Next will be duets with Nisula playing lute and recorder and Laura Witezak on flute. Nisula, in addition to directing the church choir, is assistant professor of music, teaching choral music, at Saginaw Valley State College. Mrs. Witezak is the band director at Owendale-Gagetown High School.

Mrs. Hofmeister, accompanied by Kerbyson, will then sing four selections, by Mozart, Robert Abramson, Michael Head and Handel. She has a master's degree in voice performance from the University of Michigan. The lyric soprano and mother of two children farms with her husband Ken. A former elementary music teacher, she teaches piano and voice and performs frequently in this area. The final performer will be Teresa Scollon of Cass City, who will play piano solos by Chopin, Gershwin and Khachaturian. She has a minor in piano from the Interlochen Arts Academy, is a part-time organist at St. Pancratius Catholic church and is a student at Michigan State University.

Refreshments will be served following the performance.

"Evening with the Arts"

Program to showcase Cass City pupil talent

The many talents of students at Cass City High School will be on display Monday at the annual "Evening with the Arts," being held in conjunction with the visit of the Artrain.

Activities will begin at 7, with the opening of exhibits in the high school foyer.

Industrial education students, taught by Ron Lomasney, will have cabinets, shelves and various small projects on display.

The consumer home economics students of Katie Jackson will show sewing and furniture.

The art classes taught by Karen Wallace will have paintings, fiber designs, weaving, pastels, pen and ink drawings and other works on display.

Architectural and machine drawings prepared by David Hoard's students will be shown.

Members of the Foreign Language Club will be serving Spanish desserts called sopapillas, a light pastry with cinnamon and honey. Club advisor is Debbie Martin.

From 7:30-8:30, the concert band and symphony band, directed by Thomas Clair, performing separately, will play light music and marches in the gym.

The program resumes at 8:40 in the cafeteria, when teacher Denise Kling will present the writing contest awards. From 9-9:30 will be forensic demonstrations and skits, directed by her.

The final activity will be the choir performing classical and popular songs, from 9:40-10:15. It is directed by James Hobbs.

Volunteers work to get ready

Preparing for the visit of Artrain to Cass City required a lot of advance planning by a lot of people, all volunteers, with the exception of the permanent Artrain staff, mentioned in other articles.

During its visit here, many more persons will be volunteering their time, as guides on the train helping explain to visitors what they are seeing; local artists who will be working on the train, and many others who will be participating in the various programs being held in conjunction with the visit, such as the musical programs at the First Presbyterian church.

Co-chairmen of the local steering committee are

Holly Althaver, a member of the Michigan Artrain board, who was also chairman for its visit here in 1972, and Karen Wallace, art teacher at Cass City High School.

In charge of raising the $4,000 needed for local expenses were Ken Jensen, administrator of Hills and Dales General Hospital, and Celia House, Cass City Arts Council treasurer.

On the education committee, scheduling the visits of student groups were Intermediate School art teacher Linda Edwards, elementary school art teacher Trudy Muzynski, who is also in charge of the children's art exhibit at Rawson Memorial Library, and Geraldine Prieskorn.

Jeanne Ellinger recruited the artists who will be working on the Artrain studio car, Linda Eisinger recruited artists who will display their works at the Cultural Center and Marilyn Bieffer recruited the guides who will be on the train. Dorothy Stahlbaum made the arrangements for displays in downtown store windows.

In charge of getting the site ready was George Clara.

Other committee members were Mary Brown, assisted by Lynda McIntosh, promotion; Barbara Tuckey, general protocol; Mary Lou Erla, festival committee, and Iris Tuckey.

Downtown merchants will have displays of their own in connection with the presence of Artrain.

Most merchants will be displaying in their store windows antiques, handicrafts, collections, or other items of interest.

Store owner Dorothy Stahlbaum, who has been organizing the downtown effort, said window "shoppers" will be able to see such items as antiques, quilts, chair caning, toll painting on furniture, primitive or folk art, china painting portraits, needlework, stained glass, folk instruments and Cass City memorabilia.

The two downtown auto dealers will both have antique cars on display.

The local merchants had similar displays when the Artrain was here in 1972 and during the 1976 Bicentennial celebration.

Some of the merchants will be displaying items of their own and for other stores. Mrs. Stahlbaum made arrangements with the owners of the items to have them displayed.

HOUSE WARMING - Iris Tuckey of Schwegler Road started building her miniature house during Christmas, 1979, and figures she has several years of work remaining before everything is "just right." She also made most of the furniture. The house will be on display during Artrain week in a window at the Kritzman's Clothing Store.

Opening Artrain ceremonies Monday for patrons, workers

Opening ceremonies for the Michigan Artrain will take place at 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Invited are patrons, those who donated the approximately $4,000 raised locally to pay the expenses in connection with the train's visit here; steering committee members; guides, who will be on the train as the visitors go through it, and artists who will be working on the train, and some dignitaries.

About 250 persons have been invited.

The official representative of the Michigan Artrain present will be John J. Hohmann, its executive director.

Providing entertainment will be cellist Susan Reim of Mayville.

Following the ceremonies and the tour of the train, a reception will take place in the Artrain caboose.

In case of rain, the ceremonies will be held at Rawson Memorial Library.

The day before the opening ceremonies, Sunday, there will be a preview slide presentation for patrons and guests at the high school small auditorium.

It will be presented by Artrain curator Tom Elliott and Marsha McDowell, curator of the Michigan State University Museum folk art division.

Traditions: The Region, The World

Artrain: what you will be seeing

"Traditions: The Region-The World" is the theme of this year's Artrain exhibits. The train began its tour in Indiana earlier this month. Cass City will be the first Michigan stop, followed by Detroit, Ypsilanti and Traverse City. It then will travel to Pennsylvania and Ohio before completing its tour back in Michigan in November.

The train will be open to the public from 5-8 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, May 5-8, and noon-8 p.m. Saturday. Student tours will take place from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. To fully absorb what is on the train takes about 45 minutes. Those arriving close to 8 p.m. will be given time to complete the tour.

The train will be parked on the Vulcan Street crossing, north of Garfield Street, four blocks south of Main Street. It is barrier free, with a lift provided for wheelchair users.

The first thing visitors will see will be an audio visual presentation lasting about 7 minutes, which presents a brief history of art and the Artrain. The last thing they will see will be the studio car, with artists at work.

It is what is in-between that forms the essence of the train, which is America's only traveling art museum.

There will be 94 works of art on display and though they might not always be recognizable to those who only appreciate art when it looks like the "real thing," through them runs a common theme.

The works, according to the brochure prepared for the tour, "speak specifically to people and their times and to the region where artists have lived and experienced the daily history of their people and the changing beauty of their land."

The artists whose works are exhibited didn't always consider themselves artists for among them are quilt makers and carvers of wood chairs and fans.

FOLK ART

The first segment of the exhibition is entitled "Immigrant Folk Art in the American Heartland: Opportunity and Assimilation." It attempts to examine the folk arts of some immigrant groups that settled in the American heartland.

Five folk art traditions will be shown: Norwegian woodcarving in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas is what is called "kubbstol" or log chair. Examples of Swedish woodcarving in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, will be cedar fans on display.

Two folk traditions involve quilt making. Afro-American ones from Ohio and Michigan, created by migrants from the south, and Amish quilts from Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania. The final tradition shown is Pennsylvania German religious art.

FRENCH AND JAPANESE

The next section of the train will be devoted to French Barbizon painting, and Japanese Ukiyo-e printing.

The Barbizon school was a group of French artists who rebelled against the Romantic style of art, preferring instead a more realistic portrayal of their environment. They used as their subjects peasants and farmers, the figures, their land and environment becoming a reflection of 19th century France.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the world, Japan was breaking out of its centuries long isolation from the rest of the world, starting about 1840. A repercussion of the change was the creation of three distinct social classes, each served by a different group of artists.

Artrain visitors will be seeing the developments coming from one of the three schools, known as Ukiyo-e, which translates as "glimpses of the fleeting world."

What will be on display will be woodcut prints, which first became popular in Japan as inexpensive art the people could afford, later recognized for their beauty and simplicity.

AMERICAN LANDSCAPE

While traditions were changing in Japan and France, in America around 1830, a traditional artform was first being established, without awareness of what was happening in France.

One early group of artists, the Hudson River school, according to the Artrain brochure, captured the "naturally rugged, unrefined American landscape... as an awe-filled world, one of vast forests dotted with lakes and punctuated with sharp hills."

The works shown were painted between 1850 and 1920.

EARLY MODERN, PRIMITIVE

Meanwhile, back in France, a new school of art was developing, the Symbolists, who helped bring back a romantic attitude that had been displaced by Barbizon and Impressionist painting. The Symbolists dealt with the spiritual quality of their environment and paved the way for such later painters as Matisse and Picasso.

Another change in European art came early in the 20th century from the influence of primitive artwork, brought back from anthropological expeditions. Many artists saw in the primitive works a freedom of expression and emotion missing from their own tradition. Picasso was one of the European artists influenced by the African artifacts.

THE REGION

The final segment of the exhibit is labeled as "The tradition continues."

Shown are works by artists from Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. The styles and expression are diverse, according to the Artrain brochure, "yet they all claim a piece of the American figurative tradition. Interest in portraying the people and places in today's America is intact."

The final car is the studio car, where local artists and the two artists who travel with the train, will demonstrate their techniques and explain them to the visitors.

Facilities at Artrain site

Until last year, two grain elevators had stood there for almost 100 years.

The now vacant site along Vulcan Street, north of Garfield Street, will be reborn again for a week when the Michigan Artrain is parked there. The train will arrive Saturday or Sunday, with opening ceremonies Monday evening.

George Clara, the facilities chairman, expects there will be enough parking available at the site. In case there isn't, the Walbro parking lot is close by. Boy Scouts will direct traffic.

The site will be decorated with evergreens, a pool and bridge, provided by an area nursery, and a rail fence. Members of the Gavel Club will help put the decorations in place.

Functional but non-decorative will be the portable toilets at the site.

Greg Mark to exhibit

In conjunction with the visit of Artrain, artist and former Cass Cityan Greg Mark will have an exhibit of his works on display at the Thumb National Bank on the west end of Cass City.

He is currently working with plastics, which will be on display.

Mark is a graduate of Cass City High School and Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo and is currently employed in that community.
