

3 mills Aug. 11

All-out campaign planned for millage

Extensive plans were formulated Monday night for an all-out campaign in the Cass City School District to seek approval for three extra mills for operation previously turned down by the voters. The special vote will be held Aug. 11.

Members of the school board revealed preliminary plans at a special meeting at the high school when they approved an austerity budget before about 35 concerned citizens.

The budget calls for abolishing nearly all extra-curricular activities and the elimination of five staff positions.

Two of the positions will not be filled regardless of the outcome of the next vote. They were cut because of declining enrollment projected next year at 1926, 15 less than this year.

These two jobs will not be a hardship on the present staff because it will not be necessary to fire anyone but simply not fill vacancies created by two retiring teachers.

The three cuts in staff caused by the lack of funds is a different situation. Cut has been the school nurse, the elementary-intermediate librarian and the vocal music department. Also gone will be nearly the complete program of extra-curricular activities, including most athletics, if the budget adopted is followed.

However, it's nearly certain that the budget as adopted will be substantially changed regardless of whether the millage passes.

Right now the board is undecided about what the exact program will be without the extra millage. President Geraldine Prieskorn said that rather than cut all athletics except varsity and JV basketball which pays its own way, an abbreviated program could be installed.

That could be handled by not buying one new bus at a cost of $20,000, it was pointed out. Athletic director Roland Pakonen frowned on a pay-to-play program by students. Suppose they pay and aren't good enough to play, what happens?, he asked.

While the money crunch is on the district now, it's not nearly as severe for 1981-82 as it will be the following year.

That's because the district will use the $190,000 that it carries as a fund balance to operate next year.

According to the budget

the estimated revenues for 1981-82 are $3,046,686 while the expenditures with all program cuts are estimated at $3,213,717.

Most school observers feel that the chances for being forced to operate without the extra millage are greater next year than ever before.

They point to the substantial defeat of the three-mill levy request, 718, no, to 461, yes, and the economy as reasons for worry.

To try and reverse the previous vote most of the persons present signed a paper indicating they would work for passage of the millage Aug. 11.

These members will try to enlarge the working group and make a concentrated effort to get out the vote and explain the proposition to the electorate.

It will be at least two weeks before the educational drive can really get under motion. That's because a definite listing of curriculum cuts will not be decided until the regular board meeting July 13.

It was the last meeting for Dean Hoag, who did not run for reelection and he made a pitch for athletics before leaving.

It's a very small part of the budget and has great value in curbing unrest in the school and the community, he said.

Tentative cuts

Although subject to change, the cuts in the program indicated by the budget adopted Monday night by the Cass City School Board included the elimination of the following personnel and activities:

Elementary librarian. Elementary and intermediate vocal music.

All boys' and girls' athletics in junior and senior high school that do not pay their way. (Varsity and junior varsity basketball is the only sport that does not show a deficit.

Cheerleading. Marching band, pep band. Junior and senior high concerts.

School nurse. Junior and senior high solo and ensemble. Junior and senior high dramatics.

National Honor Society. Retained were the annual and senior high newspaper, and programs requiring supplemental payment for home economics and chemistry-physcis.

Two persons killed in county traffic accidents

Two men were killed in two days in Tuscola county traffic accidents last week. John J. Oberlein, 20, of 4058 N. Bradleyville Road, Akron, was killed at 1:30 a.m. Friday when his car went out of control, according to the sheriff's department.

Oberlein was westbound on Akron Road, southwest of Ringle Road, when his car struck a driveway culvert on the south side after going out of control.

Oberlein was thrown from the vehicle, which rolled over onto him, deputies said. The victim was dead at the scene.

Robert A. McNeil, 18, of Lake Orion, died Saturday after an accident on Colling Road. McNeil, heading north on Colling Road, went off the west shoulder north of Dutcher Road and hit a tree broadside, according to officers.

He and his passenger, Marcie R. Miles, 17, of Lake Orion, were taken to Caro Community Hospital. McNeil was transferred to Saginaw St. Mary's, where he later died. Information on Ms. Miles was not being released by the hospital, at the request of her parents.

Oberlein and McNeil were not wearing seat belts at the time of the accidents.

They were the sixth and seventh traffic fatalities in Tuscola county this year. Last year at this time, 10 persons had died in traffic accidents.

BICYCLE ACCIDENT

Tyler Scott Ruchgy, 14, of Boyne Road, Marlette, was reported in good condition Tuesday afternoon at Marlette Community Hospital, following a mishap at 4:50 p.m. Monday, north of that community.

Sandusky State Police reported Debra Lauria, 26, of Hadley Road, Cass City, was northbound on M-53.

The youngster was east-bound on French Line Road on his bicycle, went through the intersection and ran into the left front of her car. The boy was thrown over the auto and landed on the road.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Louise M. Northrop, 24, of 6587 Sadler Road, Decker, was ticketed by Caro state police on a charge of improper lane use after a 3 p.m. accident last Thursday.

She told troopers she was shifting gears, realized she was at the edge of the road, attempted to steer to the left but couldn't. The car went into the east side ditch and rolled over.

The mishap occurred as she was northbound on Froede Road, north of Bevens Road. She was ticketed on a charge of improper lane usage.

WHO SAYS LIONS DON'T HAVE HEARTS? This new park games area for children cost the Cass City Lionesses $3,000 to build. The club's small membership, including Marilyn Green at right, held various fund raisers to purchase the equipment. Swings and a bridge will be added to complete the structure, which is located near the Lions-built pavilion.

More people working as economy slowly improves

It's too soon for those who have gone to Texas to start coming back, but the job market in Tuscola county and Michigan is showing a small improvement over the depths of a few months ago.

In Cass City the situation is mixed, with General Cable having recalled its laid off workers and hired some additional ones, while heavy layoffs at Walbro continue.

In Michigan, the unemployment rate fell from 12.2 percent in April to 11.5 percent in May.

In Tuscola county, the April unemployment rate, the latest for which statistics are available, was 15.2 percent, down from 19.1 percent in March. In Huron county, it was 17.7 percent, down from 20.1 in March, and in Sanilac, 21.4 percent, a slight decrease from the 21.9 percent recorded in March.

"The big thing is, the auto-workers are back," said Charles Cramer, Michigan Employment Security Commission branch manager in Caro. He expects the May unemployment rate will decrease from April.

He added that due to more automation and more components and cars being built overseas, the number of persons employed in the auto plants will never be what it once was, even if car sales return to earlier high levels.

The one really sour note in the employment picture, he said, is in construction industry, victim of the bad economy and high interest rates.

CASS CITY

Business has been on the upswing since the early part of the year at General Cable, according to Plant Manager Henry W. Ardler.

In late January, the firm had just recalled 30 persons, who had been out of work since summer, bringing the hourly work force to 235. Now there are 361 persons punching time clocks at the plant. That includes 25 who were recently added to the payroll.

"The current short term outlook indicates our business level will remain constant," he said.

In January, the Walbro plants in Cass City and Caro had a total hourly work force of about 200, half of what it had been in good times.

The number working now is about the same, Director of Human Resources Don Tonti said Tuesday, and there are no prospects for improvement in the near future.

OTHER INDUSTRY

Business is better at Evans Products in Gagetown, which manufactures materials handling equipment for the auto industry, but not by much.

There presently are 45 hourly workers there and seven on the office and management staff, according to Plant Manager Carl Vandiver. That compares to only 15 hourly and six in the office in January.

However, from about March to August, 1979, there were 130 hourly personnel and an office staff about twice what it is now.

At Active Industries in Elkton, Plant Manager Roland Henne described the situation as still "pretty bleak."

In good times, the plant which makes stampings and assemblies for the auto companies and kitchen and bathroom sinks has employed about 900 hourly workers.

In January, only about 400 were punching time clocks and the number now is only 441.

The slight improvement has come in the auto parts business. Sinks, "if anything are worse."

Henne doesn't expect business to get better "for the foreseeable future."

TEXAS

With business improving in Michigan, some persons who went to Texas have come back, Cramer said, only to find they can't find jobs here, with the result they wished they had stayed in Texas.

He estimates 1,200-1,300 persons have left Tuscola county in the last year to find work in Texas and other sunshine states.

His office still receives an average of 3-4 notices per day from persons who had been receiving unemployment compensation that they have found jobs in other states.

Countdown underway for annual July 4th Festival

Plans begun months ago for the annual Cass City 4th of July Festival are fast becoming a reality.

The programs are printed, entertainers booked, invitations sent out and registration forms for various events can be found all over town. Even the new Miss Michigan, Gwen Roberta Brown, who will ride in the parade, was crowned last week.

The third annual festival, sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce, has a full schedule, including some new and improved attractions.

On the list of improved events, according to festival organizers, is the 1981 Pace-setters Marathon Run, being organized by Curt Strickland and Dale McIntosh.

Last year the "fun run" was divided into 5 kilometer and 10 kilometer distances, with a total of 92 entrants. This year there will be a 5-mile cross country run for adults and a 1-mile tot run. "I hope to have 200-300 runners," said Strickland, who has advertised the race "all over the Thumb."

The adult run, which requires a $5 entry fee, will begin at the Cass City Recreational Park track in front of the grandstand at 5:30 p.m. July 4.

There are 40 medals, certificates and a trophy at stake, Strickland said. The medals will go to the first five places in each division for men and women, 18 and under, 19-29, 30-44 and 45 and over. All participants will receive a certificate and the oldest runner will be awarded a trophy.

Registration forms are available at area businesses, plus there will be a late registration from 2-4 p.m. July 4 in the lower level of the football field announcing booth. Tots are not required to register for their run.

AN ADDITION TO THIS year's festival is a queen pageant, organized by Sally Doerr.

Unlike the king and queen contests of previous years, which were never very popular, this year's pageant has 16 girls entered, ages 16-18.

The pageant, which will be Friday, July 3, at 8 p.m., in the Cass City High School cafeteria, is open to the public and will include a talent dance and evening gown competition, followed by the five finalists answering questions. Wayne Dillon will be master of ceremonies.

At a meeting Monday, Mrs. Doerr stressed to the contestants the importance of their getting involved in the community, through this pageant.

Calling the pageant a "queen pageant," Mrs. Doerr said the three out-of-town judges will be looking for a "happy, fun loving, good-personality Queen," who will reign over festival activities and also be awarded some prizes.

ANOTHER SPECIAL event on the week end's agenda is the unveiling of a Michigan state historical marker at the century-old Cultural Center. The unveiling will be part of a 9:30 a.m. ceremony that Cass City Historical Society members have invited state and local officials to participate in.

Other attractions of the annual festival include a "bigger than ever" parade, which starts at 10, tractor pull, swimming contests, dog show, children's games, carnival and paint-in, a greased pig chase and square dance. In addition, 13 different concession stands featuring a wide variety of food, bingo, arts and crafts show, antique car show, and softball tournament are scheduled for all day July 4 at the park.

A beer tent will again be set up behind the Charmont, with the Irish Gaels leading a sing-a-long July 3 and "Windfall" performing July 4.

"If It Fitz. . ."

The glass babushka

By Jim Fitzgerald

Lately I've noticed that more and more women have eyes in the tops of their heads. At least, that's where they're wearing their eyeglasses. Elvi is not one of these women.

Elvi is a retired school-teacher who confesses she "can look dowdy even in a Dior creation." She complained to me about the treatment she usually receives from clerks while shopping in such high-ticket fashion shops as Lord's & Taylor and Gucci.

Usually the clerks ignore her, as though they believe she came in by mistake and will leave as soon as she realizes the National Enquirer isn't for sale at the checkout counter. Recently, Elvi was so bold as to ask one of these haughty clerks the price of a dress she had been fingering.

"It is very expensive," the clerk said, and walked away.

"I felt like a shoplifter," Elvi recalled later. "But I felt better when I read about the woman who had no trouble shoplifting diamond rings from Cartier's and Tiffany's because the clerks found her 'well-dressed.'"

I'm sure Elvi would receive more respect in fancy shops if she wore eyeglasses in her hair, but I don't know why. That is, I don't know why so many women wear glasses there they have no eyes. They don't tie hair ribbons to their noses.

One woman told me she wore eyeglasses on her head so they'd be handy when she needed them to read with. I used to wear a pencil behind my ear so it would be handy when I needed it to write with. I quit when someone said the pencil made me look like a grocery clerk. I have nothing against grocery clerks, but I got sick of strangers asking me which aisle the breakfast cereal was in.

When I'm not reading, I keep my eyeglasses handy by carrying them in my pocket. I tried carrying them on top of my head but they kept falling off when I moved. If I walked in a crouch, without moving my body above the waist, the glasses stayed on top of my head, but I got sick of strangers asking me where Harpo and Chico were.

My wife said my eyeglasses would stay on the top of my head when I walked normally if I let my hair grow longer. Also, she said, glasses on top of my head would keep the longer hair from falling in my eyes. This made me wonder.

Are women using eyeglasses for scarves, to keep their hair from falling in their eyes? Does the well-dressed woman go to an optometrist to buy a glass babushka? I could understand this. When I was in high school, all the girls wore babushkas. They looked like refugees fleeing a bombed city, pushing furniture in baby buggies. They would have looked better if their babushkas were eyeglasses.

The reason for women wearing eyeglasses in their hair is more likely vanity than practicality. People often forget where they put their glasses, and certainly it is practical to put them on top of your head. People usually stay within easy reach of their heads. But on TV I saw a newswoman read the news from papers on her desk. Her eyeglasses were in her hair, looking straight up. Maybe she doesn't need glasses to read? Maybe those were sunglasses on her head and she was keeping them handy in case of a lift in clouds. This reminds me of baseball players. For day games, they should always keep their sunglasses handy, even if it's raining. The weather could change suddenly, and if a right fielder loses a fly ball in the sun because his sunglasses are in the dugout, his angry boss might slash his next pay raise to only $6 million. Better to be prepared than poverty-stricken.

Al Kaline, the baseball announcer who used to play right field, recently revealed that he always asked the nearest umpire to carry his sunglasses for him, in case of sudden sun. Having an umpire for an eyeglass caddy is a stylish idea.

If my friend Elvi wants to be noticed in Gucci's, and she doesn't want to wear a yellow ribbon in her nose, she could wear an umpire in her hair, looking straight up.

Owendale and Deford churches damaged

Two area churches were damaged last week, one because of an accident and the other due to vandalism.

Damage to the Owendale RLDS church on Elkton Road, south of Canboro Road, has been estimated at at least $5,000, according to Otto Bacon of Cass City, chairman of the church's building committee.

Bad Axe state police reported that Roger G. Forster, 47, of 6929 Schwegler Road, Cass City, was south-bound about 5:30 p.m. Thursday when the pin connecting the empty flat bed trailer to the tow bar of his vehicle came loose.

The trailer then ran into the entranceway of the church. Forster was ticketed on a charge of defective hitch.

According to Bacon, the errant trailer destroyed the doors and frame, damaged the entranceway foundation and the back wall.

He said it was the second time in three years such an incident has occurred. The previous time a tractor ran into the building.

The structure was built when Elkton Road was a narrow dirt road, but now the door is only 8 feet from the edge of the road.

The building committee was to have met Wednesday evening to decide what it will do, he said, with one possibility being to relocate the door farther from the road.

Insurance will cover the loss.

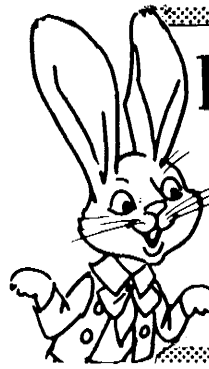

Seven windows at the Deford United Methodist church were broken Tuesday afternoon, June 16, by a youngster or youngsters who threw stones through them.

Three juveniles were caught at the scene, according to church board member Arleon Retherford, but the two witnesses to the incident were unsure whether one or two of them threw the stones.

An investigation is being conducted by the sheriff's department. What will happen to the youngsters hadn't been determined as of Tuesday this week.

Danny Allen, chairman of the church board, said two stained glass, four frosted and one clear window were broken.

Tuesday, he was waiting for an estimate from a glass company as to the monetary damage and repairs that can be made.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Hot off the presses are the programs for the third annual July 4 Festival. You'll find them scattered around town. Pick one up and send it off to friends that may be interested in attending.

If a story that I personally read after it was composed doesn't appear in this issue don't look for me, I'll have left town.

It concerns the 5-mile marathon run on the Fourth. It was supposed to be published two weeks ago and I forgot to write it.

I trotted down to Thumb National Bank and apologized to Curt Strickland.

Last week the story was written, placed in type and somehow, somehow didn't get published again.

Misery always comes in threes. At the same time the story didn't appear, the advertising for Thumb National was missed, too.

Regardless, the people at the bank are still talking to me. . . I think.

Another hole-in-one was recorded at Rolling Hills Golf Course Monday on the short par three, number five hole.

It was registered by Gene Kloc who picked the ideal time to do it. It was during play in the Cass City Golf League and wins him $1 from each member.

I celebrated my birthday Monday by attending the Cass City School Board meeting. Board President Geraldine Prieskorn presented me with a rose. Probably a return favor for calling attention to her birthday a couple of months ago.

Anyway, it was wilted and the question that flashed quickly to mind was, was she trying to tell me something?

Talks continue with deputies

Negotiations with the Fraternal Order of Police, which represents sheriff's department employees, and the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners resume Thursday, according to Commissioner Royce Russell, a member of the negotiating team.

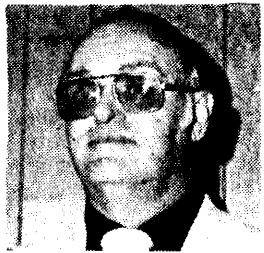

Some preliminary issues involving contract language have been resolved and the two sides will be discussing economics.

At the county board meeting Tuesday, a letter was read from county Emergency Services Director Frank Kroswek, announcing his retirement effective Sept. 25.

Among the ideas discussed, Russell said, was the possibility of combining the emergency services job with another one in selecting a replacement for Kroswek.

Prosecutor Artis Noel informed the board he will represent the county in the law suit filed by a former administrator of the county Medical Care Facility, challenging his dismissal.

Court denies Kingston re-trial in mobile home dispute

A request by the village of Kingston for a re-trial in their suit against Marshall Real Estate was denied by Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn Monday.

The village claimed the court erred in its January decision to overrule Kingston zoning ordinances and allow Marshall Real Estate of Marlette to build a mobile home park. Jerry Marshall, of the real estate firm, owns land in the Kingsbury and Pine Street area, where, before high interest rates, he had hoped to build a 30-50 site mobile home park.

The land is zoned for residential use, with the only area zoned for mobile home use within the village currently occupied by a Veterans of Foreign Wars post.

In his argument for a re-trial, Rand Smith, the village's attorney, said Michigan precedent has been to uphold decisions made by zoning boards with valid reasons.

Smith was unavailable for comment regarding a possible appeal or other action.

The Haire Net

It's probable that Rev. Donald Wildmon is flying high these days on the top of his censor's broom.

Wildmon is one of the honchos guiding the Coalition for Better Television that claims five million families including the Moral Majority.

"Better Television" of course is television that Wildmon approves. The way he is attacking the networks is to hit them in the pocket-book by boycotting products of sponsors who pay for shows on the hit list.

Wildmon is feeling his oats these days because Procter and Gamble, the nation's largest TV advertiser, has announced that it is pulling ads from 50 shows it considers offensive.

Now the Coalition is ready with the big blitz. A 10-million piece mailing June 29 listing products to boycott until sponsors pull from offensive shows. It's complete with a reference card so that members won't have to do any thinking for themselves.

High on the list have to be the jiggle shows. Selfishly, I'd love to see them off television. Not because of the morality but because they are boring.

The trouble with the Coalition's tactics and all extremist groups is that it's like being in the current of a river headed for the waterfalls. You keep going down the river faster and faster until you reach the point of no return and, bingo, you're headed for the rocks below.

The current crusade is just one facet of the battle to control our minds and thoughts. Fortunately it just won't work.

Outstanding works of literature like "Catcher in the Rye" have been the target of reform groups and right here in Cass City there has been an attempt (resisted fortunately) to dictate what appears in the school library. While the Coalition may prove to have a limited effect on network television it's likely that the long-term effect will be negligible.

Far more sensuous, more objectionable material appears on subscription cable television than that presented by the networks. And the number of cable channels is increasing almost daily. Most of the material is presented without advertising.

Will an attempt then be made by the Coalition to abridge our traditional freedom of speech guaranteed by the constitution? That's when we go over the waterfalls.

It seems to me that the five million families purported to be members of the Coalition have an easy way to see that their families aren't subverted by television.

All they have to do is turn it off. That's the only real form of censorship with any long-lasting benefit.

It's also the traditional American way.

Bensinger promoted

Kirk R. Bensinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton F. Bensinger of 1969 Main Street, Uby, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force

Reserve to the rank of technical sergeant. Bensinger is an aircraft mechanic at Selfridge Air National Guard Base.

Thirty-five persons attended the 71st annual Novesta township Old Settlers' reunion Saturday at Deford Elementary School.

The meeting started with a cooperative noon meal. Harold McComb of Detroit presided over the business meeting, which was followed by a program. The 1982 reunion is planned for the third Saturday in June at the same location.

Officers to serve for the coming year were elected as follows: president, Audley Horner, Cass City; vice-president, Grant Kelley, Caro; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Audley Horner.

Martha Knoblet Putnam conducted a memorial service for 12 former residents who died during the past year: James Delong, Pontiac; Amy Palmateer, Rochester; Velma Prong, Yale; Fern Kelley Severance, Akron; Elsie Warner, St. Johns; Thelma Crawford, Pontiac; Edna Malcolm, Kingston; Wilma Wentworth Didier, Florida; Lloyd Osborn, Marlette; Louis Babich, Deford; and John Wentworth and Frank Hutchinson, Cass City.

The eldest in attendance was Mrs. Goldie Martin McLaughlin of Detroit. Coming the greatest distance were Mr. and Mrs. Don Ross of Newport News, Va.

Persons came from Detroit, Port Huron, Pontiac, Caro and the local area.

History group meets Monday

The Cass City Area Historical Society will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Rawson Memorial Library.

It will be the annual meeting, with two directors to be elected, along with other business.

It will also be a work night, of sorting, identifying and labeling documents and photographs which will be placed in the society's new cabinets.

Your Neighbor says Postage increase isn't necessary

Ida Jewett of Cass City would like to see some changes in the postal system, and she doesn't mean more hikes in postage stamp costs.

"The salaries and the number of clerks working in small town post offices like Cass City should be cut," she said, claiming the mail carriers deserve their wages, but the clerks do not.

Jewett, whose son-in-law is a supervisor in a Chicago post office, says Cass City clerks "would never make it if they had to work in the city."

Disagreeing vehemently with the proposal to raise postal rates from 18 to 20 cents, Mrs. Jewett said there should be no postage increases, but reductions should be made in personnel and salaries at small town post offices.

More than once the Jewett mail has been put in a neighbor's box, forcing the neighbor to call and her to go down and pick it up -- an unnecessary inconvenience.

"When we have a bad snowstorm here, they close the office right down," she said, remembering one time in 1973 or '74 when there was a bad storm the day Social Security checks should have been delivered.

"People count on those checks being there, they need them and in Chicago and other big cities they make sure they get them even if they are in the middle of a bad storm," she claimed.

Mrs. Jewett also "sees no reason why the post office lobby can't be open seven days a week."

The housewife and mother of four said she'll write to President Reagan and "give him a piece of my mind" about the proposed increase.

She and her husband, Charles, live at 6557 East Elizabeth Street. The couple also has four grandchildren.

New books at the library

DANSE MACABRE by Stephen King (non-fiction). Stephen King, the reigning master of the macabre, takes us on a bizarre journey through the heart-stopping films, TV programs and books that have influenced his own work and chilled and thrilled generations. King comments on the best - and worst - examples of horror: from the gut-level terror of such films as Psycho and King's personal favorite, Tourist Trap, to the less-than-immortal The Navy vs. The Night Monsters... from radio's Lights Out to TV's Thriller... and such classic horror fiction as Frankenstein, Dracula and Ghost Story. As readable and compelling as the author's spine-tingling, best-selling novels, Danse Macabre is a devilishly delightful excursion into the fantasy of horror.

NOBLE HOUSE by James Clavell (fiction). This is a sweeping, panoramic tale of love, intrigue and adventure at the hub of the modern-day Orient. Hong Kong is a city of sin, secrets and power... of spies, lovers and traitors. And at its center is the great commercial enterprise known as the Noble House. Into this Asiatic maze come a beautiful American businesswoman and her lover-partner, prepared to make a corporate kill. They soon discover that nothing is easy in the subtle and treacherous East.

SOMEBODY ELSE'S KIDS, by Torey L. Hayden (non-fiction). When public law mandated the mainstreaming of emotionally disturbed children, Hayden, who had been teaching in a special education self-contained classroom, was reassigned as a resource teacher, working throughout the day with small groups of exceptional children. Here she describes her experiences during one school year as she became the mainstay in the school lives of four children - a brain-damaged 7-year-old with reading problems, an autistic 7-year-old, a violence-prone 10-year-old and a pregnant 13-year-old. This book evokes the author's fears, doubts, and feelings of inadequacy - but most of all her love and concern - and portrays the children as very real individuals.

15 Sanilac 4-H'ers to go to Washington

Fifteen Sanilac County 4-H'ers will be among nearly 5,000 teen 4-H members from 44 states participating in the annual citizenship-Washington focus program June 27 - July 4.

They are Alan Adam, Alan Fry, Julie Gierman, Suzanne Hirsch, Carol Kietzke and Linda Tomlinson of the Marlette-Snover area; John Agar, Merilee Leslie, Teresa Woodward and Renee Ziemba of the Cass City area; Karen Cutler of Carsonville; Jeff Janowiak and Charles Medcoff of Decker-ville; and Holly Westbrook and Keith Langenburg of Croswell.

Purpose of the week-long program is to give young adults an opportunity to study citizenship responsibilities, our nation's heritage and its governmental system.

With the nation's capital as a classroom, a variety of field trips and meetings are planned, including a trip to Capitol Hill to meet members of Congress and to see government in action. Visits to federal agencies, national organizations and historical and cultural sites are other highlights.

Special emphasis will be placed on improving participants' leadership skills.

The Sanilac delegation will also spend a day visiting historical Gettysburg, Penn.

The citizenship program is conducted by the National 4-H Council on behalf of the Cooperative Extension Serv-

PEDALING AROUND

Cool cars
and hot air

By Mike Eliasohn

I have been trying my best lately to help our road builders out of their financial dilemma.

Since I got my new car May 6, I have driven it more than 2,000 miles. The more gasoline my car uses, the more money goes to road commissions, the state Department of Transportation and municipalities for road building and maintenance.

However, don't expect the gravel road in front of your house to be paved soon. Before summer is over, I won't be driving as much.

May 16, as previously mentioned, I drove about 100 miles to Detroit to ride my bike 50 miles.

June 7, I drove 110 miles round-trip to Crossroads Village near Flint, so I could ride my bike 27 miles. (It was supposed to be 25 miles, but I missed a turn.)

Crossroads Village was only the beginning and ending point. I hope to go back there, maybe this summer yet, to see the turn-of-the-century restored buildings and ride on the Huckleberry Railroad. The train is pulled by a steam locomotive, so I won't have to pedal.

June 14, I slogged through the rain to Utica, about 150 miles round-trip, to see an antique and special interest car show. There were about 600 autos on display, some of which weren't very old. A few, in fact, were newer than the 1970 car I recently got rid of. All the cars were in excellent condition with not a rust spot to be seen.

Since I like to consider myself slightly off-center, what little hanging around I did was with the Morgan owners. I'm not rich enough to hang around with Ferrari owners.

The Morgan Car Co. in Malvern, England, has been around since 1910, making it one of the world's oldest car companies.

Morgan does not believe in making too much progress. Most of the factory is almost as old as the company and the basic front suspension design is the same as on the very first car.

The major change came in 1962, when the firm stopped making three-wheelers. (The single wheel was in back.)

Four-wheel Morgans, almost all convertible sports cars, have been built since 1936. The major styling change came in 1953, when the flat radiator grill was replaced by a curved one, with the headlights flared into the bodywork. Before then, the lights stuck out in the open. The fenders have always been exposed to the breeze, like on a Model A Ford. The framework supporting the body has always been made out of wood.

It's all a matter of taste, of course. I saw a woman at the show take several photographs of a Corvette, of approximately 1960 vintage, I think.

Sunday, when I was in Lansing, I crawled out of bed at 4 a.m. to drive to Battle Creek to watch 100 or so balloons ascend at 6 a.m. in the World Hot Air Ballooning Championships.

I figured it would be a truly awe inspiring sight, one which I would never be able to see again. Unfortunately, I never saw it.

The morning flight was cancelled due to the overcast skies and the next mass ascension wasn't scheduled until 6 p.m.

If you are wondering what all this verbiage means, the answer is that underneath my suave exterior is a framework built out of wood, full of hot air and my chain is loose.

To clean silver, try soaking it for about two hours in the water in which potatoes were boiled.

90 MILES AND 10 HOURS after leaving Fraser, a Detroit area suburb, this group of singers, called the "Spokesmen," arrived at Salem United Methodist church. An interdenominational group of about 60 teen-agers, they travel all over Michigan on bicycles, singing at church services and concerts. They arrived Saturday and stayed with church members overnight, singing at morning services and then traveling to Kingston for an evening performance.

Sherwood given probation in Kingston bar incident

A Royal Oak man, charged in connection with a March 14 incident inside the Kingston Tavern, was placed on three years' probation Monday when he appeared before Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

William D. Sherwood, 30, pleaded guilty April 20 to carrying a concealed weapon and felonious assault in the incident, in which he threatened a bar patron while carrying a .38 caliber revolver.

He was also sentenced to 60 days in the county jail, serving of which was deferred to the end of his probation. He was fined $200 and assessed $200 court costs.

In other cases Monday: Woodrow J. Cochran, 44, of Mt. Morris, was sentenced to 1-1/2 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for receiving and concealing stolen property over $100, in connection with breaking into a station wagon May 1, 1980, in Denmark township. He pleaded guilty April 21. Cochran was credited with four days served.

Dwain A. Proper, 20, of 3778 N. Main Street, Akron, was placed on five years' probation for delivery of PCPY Oct. 23 in Akron. He pleaded guilty June 1.

He was also sentenced to 60 days in the county jail, with work release privileges granted, fined $1,000 and assessed $350 court costs.

Richard D. Kohler, 33, of Clio, was placed on three years' probation for larceny over $100. He was also sentenced to 90 days in the county jail, with credit given for one day served, fined $250 and assessed $300 court costs. Restitution is to be determined.

He pleaded guilty May 4, in connection with theft of explosive devices Aug. 27, 1980, from a storage building in Arhela township.

Diana D. Zagorski, 39, of 4308 Leach Street, Cass City, pleaded no contest to attempted larceny in a building. Her plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be set.

She was charged with taking a telephone from Fisher's Big Wheel store near Caro March 7.

Probation was extended three years for Jerry P. Franz, 19, of 3854 Hanes Road, Vassar, who pleaded guilty June 8 to violating probation by failing to maintain steady employment. He is to receive vocational training.

He was placed on 24 months' probation Feb. 19, 1980, for attempted breaking and entering an occupied dwelling.

James R. Stevens Jr., 19, of 6411 Fourth Street, Tuscola, was placed on five years' probation for larceny in a building. He was sentenced to six months in the county jail, with credit given for 70 days served. He was fined $200 and assessed $300 costs.

Bruce Lee Hall, 20, of 3030 W. Caro Road, Caro, pleaded no contest to delivery of LSD Jan. 17 in Caro. His plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be set.

TRIALS

At the end of a two-day trial last Thursday, Judge

Joslyn found Gabriel Palomares, 51, of 301 N. Cass Avenue, Vassar, guilty of carrying a concealed weapon Aug. 26, 1980, near Caro.

He was also found guilty of larceny in connection with the same incident, but that charge may be dismissed if the prosecution fails to produce a certain witness. The prosecution has since filed an affidavit for appearance of the witness.

A sentencing date will be set. Bond was continued.

At what was to be the start of a jury trial last Wednesday, Joseph R. Murday, 25, of 4880 Center Street, Fairgrove, pleaded guilty to attempted delivery of marijuana Oct. 18 in Fairgrove.

His plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be set. Bond was continued.

CETA program faces big cutback

The federally-funded Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program in the upper Thumb in 1981-82 may only be a third the size of the present program in terms of dollars spent.

That, however, is very tentative, as Congress has yet to approve the program for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

Last Thursday, the administrative board of the Thumb Area Consortium, which runs the CETA program in the Upper Thumb, approved an annual plan for the upcoming fiscal year, based on 90 percent of the amount received this year for the programs expected to continue.

The total comes to $2.065 million, compared to the consortium's 1980-81 budget of $6.85 million. However, the 90 percent figure is always used for such planning purposes, consortium Executive Director Frank Lenard explained, and he expects the actual amount received to be more than the estimate.

Still, the CETA program will be sharply reduced during the next fiscal year. The only programs included in the annual plan were Title II-B and C and VII. Title II will mainly pay the cost of classroom job training for participants, with smaller amounts for on-the-job training and work experience programs with governmental and non-profit private agencies. Title VII pays the cost for on-the-job training programs with private employers.

Gone will be the Title II-D program, public service jobs with government and private non-profit employers, and the Title VI emergency jobs programs. The latter ends Saturday. Funds for II-D may not last until Sept. 30.

The demise of the two programs is the main reason the consortium will be spending so much less in 1981-82.

The annual plan did not include Title IV, various youth employment programs, which may be continued by Congress at a reduced amount or merged into Title II-B. Conceivably, it could be ended altogether.

The reduced program will mean some consortium staff cuts. Board chairman Calvin Reibling appointed a three-member committee to review staff positions "to decide what is needed to operate this office" and salaries for 1981-82 and make recommendations to the full board. On the committee will be Royce Russell, Tuscola county; Harold Hobson, Sanilac, and William Nugent, Huron.

Staff cuts have already been made by agencies the consortium contracted with to run some of the CETA programs.

The consortium has received $35,000 in additional Title VII funds for the current fiscal year, which should be enough to fund about 23 training positions with private employers. There presently are 63 persons in the program.

Art show in Caro July 4

The Caro Arts Society will conduct a multi-media art show, the Festival of the Fourth, July 4-5, at the Caro fairgrounds. Hours will be noon-6 p.m. each day, rain or shine.

Attractions will include a juried art show, student exhibition booth for elementary, junior and senior high school artists, body painting booth and painting of a community mural on the side of the Merchants Building by anyone who wants to pick up a brush. The mural was designed by professional artist Ken Kueffner of Caro and funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Artists from throughout the state will display their paintings, pottery, photography, jewelry, weavings and sculpture. All will be on sale.

There will be a youth art center where children can work in water paints, clay, wood construction and collage projects under the supervision of art instructors and other adults.

Entertaining during the two days will include dance demonstrations, fiddle music and performances by individual musicians.

"Well, with what our insurance paid for our stolen stereo, less depreciation... this is all we could afford."

Auto Owners for Real Replacement Value Insurance

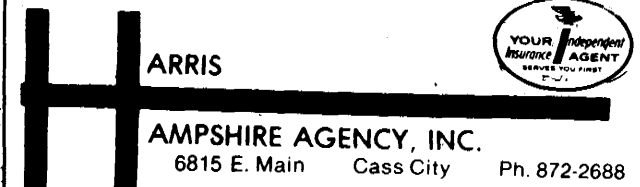

If you have personal possessions destroyed or stolen, some homeowners insurance policies will only pay you the depreciated value on those items. Even though it may now cost much more to replace them.

But with Auto-Owners new Replacement Cost Endorsement, we'll pay you the whole amount it will cost to replace the articles that were stolen or destroyed (not to exceed 400% of actual cost value). And, it can be easily added to your present homeowners policy.

So talk to your local independent Auto-Owners agent. You could make beautiful music together.

A tentative agreement between the teachers and the administration at Cass City Schools was reached in nearly all night bargaining at the High School.

A controversy swirls around the five new homes now under construction in Cass City by Rodarte Builders of Saginaw. It stems from the type of construction used in the homes with the representatives for Federal Housing Administration and Housing Unit Development on one side and local builder Gary Deering on the other. A 16-day strike at General Cable Corp. in Cass City ended Monday when members of Local 6222 of the United Steel Workers voted to return to work.

HEALTH TIPS

Picnics have potential for food poisoning

Have you ever been ambushed by a fried chicken? It's not pleasant. The common term for it is food poisoning.

We mention food poisoning, because we're like history repeating itself, reviving the custom of picnics and potlucks, sharing food with other people, carrying it in our cars or on bikes to a central meeting place.

But if that chicken or meat, fish and eggs has not been refrigerated and properly cooked, the picnic can turn into a disaster.

Salmonella bacteria thrives in warm food, especially unrefrigerated meat, fish, poultry and eggs. When it's there, lurking in the potato salad yellow with eggs, or lying in wait in the undercooked chicken, beware! You could get food poisoning.

The symptoms don't appear for 12 to 36 hours after you've eaten the contaminated food, but when they do, you know you've been attacked. There is sudden abdominal pain, severe diarrhea, nausea and vomiting, and if babies get it, they become dehydrated.

No matter what our age, we need medical attention immediately. After the major attack is over, diarrhea and loss of appetite continue for a few more days. The salmonella has struck again.

Another suggestion is to keep your hands clean when preparing food and eating. It's not always easy outdoors, but play it safe, because the bacteria can take its toll there, too.

Food poisoning is one of the diseases that is reportable by law. When the county and state health departments know where the outbreaks are, they can detect the culprit food (especially in restaurants or wherever large numbers of people gather to eat), and inspect the premises against recurrence.

If you don't want to play cops and robbers with salmonella, make sure it doesn't appear. Don't be tempted by that drumstick warming in the sun. Keep cold food cold and hot food hot. Wash your hands, cook the food well, and keep it refrigerated.

4-H plat maps now available

The Tuscola County 4-H Council announces the arrival of 3-by-4-foot Plat maps.

The maps include cities, townships, roads, landowners and other vital county information. They were designed to give companies, farmers, landowners and private individuals a large as well as accurate overview of the county.

Plat maps and plat books are available at the county extension office in the basement of the sheriff's department in Caro.

All proceeds from the maps and books are used to support the 4-H program in Tuscola county.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters

A 17-year-old from Vassar is eager to have female attention. She enjoys all sports and any outdoor activities. She has some very special needs, and could benefit from a one-to-one relationship.

Fishing, camping, and sports are a few of this boy's interests. " " is 12 years old and from the Vassar area. Why not offer some guidance and companionship?

This 10-year-old from Caro is in need of a good male companion, a one-to-one relationship with someone who is willing to give the time and the care that he needs.

An outgoing and adventuresome 9-year-old from Caro needs a Big Brother. He enjoys bow and arrow hunting, fishing, karate, baseball, swimming, demolition derbies, motorcycle races and craft type projects. Why not give him some of your time?

Tuscola County Big Brothers-Big Sisters is located at 129 E. Burnside, Caro 48723, telephone 673-6996.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad. McGrath is a 1981 graduate of Mid-Penninsula High School, Rock, Mich.

was taught by Mrs. Robert Sawdon. The date for the rummage sale in August will be announced later at the home of Katherine Turner. There will be no meeting in July. The August meeting will be at the annex. For roll call, bring a craft to show.

Kingston twp. road work hearing set

The Tuscola County Road Commission will conduct public hearings Thursday, July 2, on three proposed road improvement projects in Kingston township.

They will take place at its office on M-24, south of Caro. All the proposed work is on Cemetery Road, with the hearing concerning the section between Bevens and Chapin Roads at 9:30 a.m.; between Mushroom and Chapin Roads, at 10, and between Gilford and Mushroom, 10:30. A total of 3 miles is involved.

Proposed, according to Road Commission Clerk Jim Miklovic, is such work as grading, adding pit run (un-crushed) gravel and draining work.

The Kingston Township Board will pay the cost, with the Road Commission paying the fringe benefits for its employees doing the work.

State law requires a public hearing when road improvements are proposed, Miklovic explained.

The hearings must be conducted before cost estimates are prepared, at which time the township board can then decide how much work it can afford to have done.

Bike-a-thon raises $1,866

A total of $1,865.65 for St. Jude's Childrens Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., was raised in the May 16 bike-a-thon in Cass City, according to Rev. P. Thomas Wachterhauser, the organizer.

It took a while for all the participants to turn in their pledges. The money was finally mailed to St. Jude's Friday.

The 37 participants in the four-hour event rode a total of 714 miles. Jason McCallum, Jeremy Capps and Jurgen Roth rode the farthest, 37 miles each.

Randy Teichman, who rode 10 miles, collected the most money, $130.

Those who collected more than $25 received a T-shirt and 26 did so. Twelve riders collected more than $75, which entitled them to a T-shirt and a backpack.

The participants rode an approximately 5-mile course laid out on Cass City streets and collected pledges for each mile ridden. The amount collected was more than the $1,794 originally pledged.

Temperance Union votes contribution

The Cass River Women's Christian Temperance Union met Friday at the home of Mrs. Walter Putnam.

The opening of the meeting included pledges to the flags and roll call, which was answered with a favorite verse of scripture. "Treasures of Joy" was the theme of the devotion led by Mrs. Harriett Rayl.

In the business meeting, announcement was made of the national WCTU convention Aug. 25-28 at Calvin College in Grand Rapids. Members voted a contribution to the Youth Temperance Council camp Aug. 2-8 at Brown City.

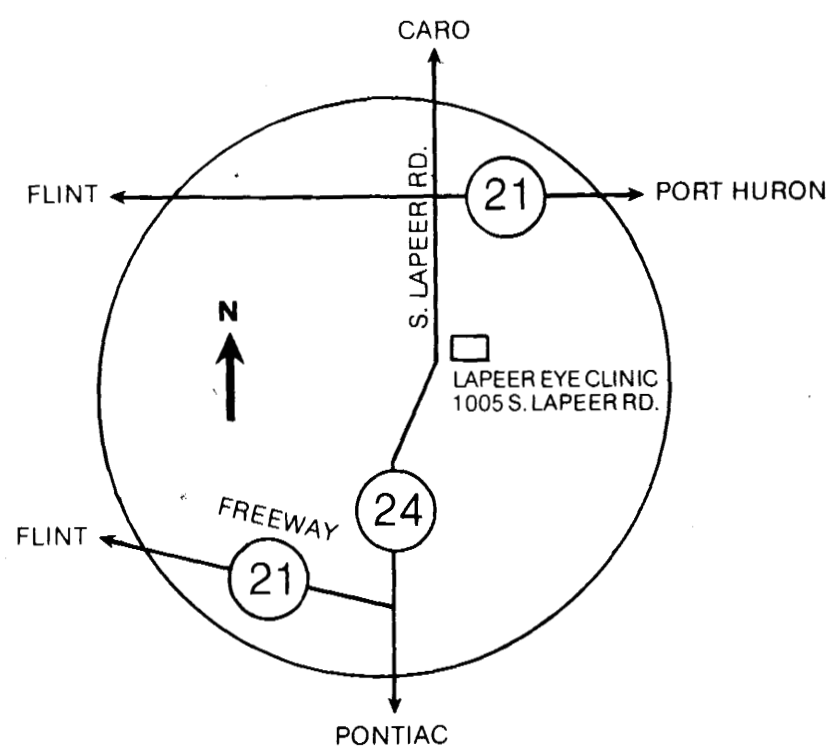

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The July meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Elsie Thompson and Georgia.

The Braves topped the Tigers 5-1.

Becca Priessorn pitched a one-hitter against the Tigers June 17 with Ann Polk and Tina Benitez batting in the team's five runs. The Tigers, whose pitcher was M. Schmidt, scored one run when J. Hurd stole home from third base.

Laurie sees tax cut as boon to family farm

Four Michigan farmers, members of the Michigan Farm Bureau board's legislative committee, told reporters at a news conference in Lansing June 9 why

President Reagan's proposed three-year, 30 percent tax cut proposal would boost the agricultural industry and consequently, the state's entire economy.

Jack Laurie, of Dodge Road, Cass City, dairyman and MFB vice-president, said the proposed tax cut would mean an estimated $119 million in savings to Michigan agriculture, a savings which he predicted farmers would use to improve their family owned businesses.

"As farmers invest in farm machinery, equipment and buildings, the total potential impact on the state's economy will be almost $487 million, and that does not include the savings from proposed changes in depreciation and investment credit rules," he said.

"I'm confident that Michigan farmers will, more than any other segment of our economy, use this broad, across-the-board tax cut to invest in and improve their family owned farms, thus further increasing the productivity of our state's number one industry. In addition, a healthier and more vigorous agriculture will help create more goods, services and jobs for the entire Michigan economy," he said.

The farm leader said a tax cut of less than 10 percent a year would not do the job. "We need substantial tax cuts for a sustained period of time to renew confidence in our economy and inspire long-term planning," he said.

"It's important to remember that if no tax cut is enacted, bracket creep and inflation will force farmers and all consumers into spending a larger and larger percentage of their personal income to the federal government."

"If present trends continue, most taxpayers will be in the top 50 percent tax bracket on their earned income by the year 2000—less than 20 years from now. That will not be a very pleasant way for us or our children to start the new century."

Appearing with Laurie were Michael Pridgeon, Branch County hog producer; Donald Nugent, Benzie County fruit farmer, and William Spike, Shiawassee County dairy and cash crop farmer.

Meet set in Bad Axe

"Crop Damage by Air Pollution and Acid Rain" is the topic of a free public program to be presented Saturday, July 18, at 1:30 p.m. in Bad Axe.

Speaker will be Dr. Christopher Bernabo, executive director of the Inter-Agency Task Force on Acid Precipitation, Council on Environmental Quality, Washington, D.C.

The meeting is sponsored by Huron Agricultural Resources Tomorrow (HART), a county based farmland preservation group concerned with preserving present natural resources.

"Legume crops, such as the beans grown here in Huron county, are particularly sensitive to air pollutants and acid rain," states a HART spokesman.

The meeting will be in the Farm Bureau building on Van Dyke Road.

Osentoski rolls to title in Flint tourney

The Osentoski softball team of Cass City won a 19-team double elimination tournament last week end in Flint.

The players were undefeated until the championship game, but because it was their first loss, the same team had to defeat them again for the championship, but didn't.

Osentoski played three games Saturday, defeating Star Lincoln-Mercury from Southfield, 4-2; Jomac's from Flint, 8-2, and Flint Merchants, 4-2. Brian Helwig won the first and third game, with Craig Helwig winning the second game.

Sunday, they played the only other undefeated team, the Owosso Retailers, last year's class D State champs, beating them 8-7.

Brian Helwig was the winning pitcher. Mike Rea had two doubles and a home run accounting for five of the runs scored. Jeff Hartel hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning to win it for Osentoski.

Owosso came back through the losers' bracket to play Osentoski for the championship. Owosso won, 3-2, forcing another game between the two teams.

Tim Severance tied the second championship game in the fifth inning with a single, scoring Jerry Toner from second. With the score tied 2-2 in the bottom of the sixth, Jerry Toner hit a single with bases loaded to score the winning run. Craig Helwig came in to pitch the final inning to save the win for Ken Martin. The final score was 3-2.

Jerry Toner was awarded the tournament's most valuable defensive player plaque, with the plaque for most valuable hitter going to Mike Rea. Ken Martin, Jerry Toner, Tim Severance and Todd Alexander also did a fine job at the plate throughout the tournament. Al Poellet and Doug Elbers, two pick-up players, also played well defensively and offensively.

Brian Helwig had a 3-1 record, striking out 18 batters. Ken Martin was 1-0 and Craig Helwig was 1-0 with 10 strikeouts in 12 innings of play.

Deford wins 2 in Church League play

Deford Community church won two games and the Cass City Catholics won one in church league action last week.

Deford edged Colwood United Brethren 7-6 in ten innings June 16, with Al McKee recording the win. Jack Groombridge, pitching for the Catholics, was the leading hitter in the team's June 16 win over Church of Christ, 10-8. Groombridge also performed impressively June 18, striking out six Deford batters and slamming a home run for his team's only run. Deford scored three times in the game to give pitcher Al McKee another win.

Zawilinskis retire together to enjoy leisure life together

Plan ahead, save, be used to doing things together and have things to do.

That is John and Marge Zawilinski's prescription for a happy retirement.

The couple, married 38 years, retired March 6 from General Cable, which makes them unique. As far as is known, they are the first couple to retire together in the company's history. "Cable" has 16 plants, so there have been lots of retirements.

Mrs. Zawilinski, who will be 57 June 25, started working at the Cass City plant Nov. 10, 1961, and had the title of "leadperson, quality assurance-cordset," when she retired. What that means is she was a final inspector of various telephone cords.

Her husband worked for the Nestles Co. for 24 years. When the Cass City plant creamery was closed in 1954, he transferred to the Ubyl facility and when it was closed in 1970, he was only out of work about a week before starting at General Cable.

He began work there Feb. 16, 1970, and was "leadperson-textile" in the plant on the south side of Garfield Street when he retired. (His wife worked in the main plant on the north side.) He handled various jobs, including setting up machines, running the machine that lacquers the cloth covering for wires, respooling, etc.

Zawilinski decided it was time to retire, partially because a World War II knee injury was bothering him a bit. More important, since he could afford to retire, "I think you should get out and give a young person a chance. A lot of them are looking for jobs and I think they should be entitled."

As for why Mrs. Zawilinski retired at the same time, she explained, "He's 62 and wanted to retire and he always said he wouldn't retire unless I retired."

To that, her husband added that he couldn't see the sense of sitting around while his wife was still working.

DOING THINGS TOGETHER, they feel, is one of the secrets of a happy retirement.

It's also important, they feel, for couples to be used to doing things together when they're younger and working. Otherwise, they have trouble spending so much time with each other when they retire. "It's hard to get together when you're old if you never got together when you're young," Mrs. Zawilinski explained.

One activity they have enjoyed over the years is fixing up houses they lived in, selling them and moving into another home. They have remodeled three homes. Their home at 6316 Church Street is their fourth.

They have only lived there since July of last year. Since moving in, they have painted it, built a wood patio deck, rail fence and put in a rock garden.

Their last home, on Schwegler Road, had 11 rooms and 2½ acres of yard to mow. They sold it and moved to their much smaller home with retirement in mind. "We didn't want to be working in the yard when everybody was going fishing," Mrs. Zawilinski explained. The couple does not owe any money on their present home.

FISHING IS A favorite activity. They did try golf a couple of years ago, but togetherness on the links didn't work out. "It started out to be fun," she said with a laugh. "He expected me to improve and I didn't." She and her husband feel they will eventually try the game again.

Since retiring, they helped a son install a new bathroom in his home, which he was selling. The Zawilinskis have three sons, Al, John Jr. and Rick, all single and living in Bay City, and two married daughters, Joann Smithson and Linda Salas, both of Cass City, and four grandchildren. A son, Jerry, is deceased.

The Zawilinskis like to go to garage sales, flea markets and auctions, though they don't always buy things.

The couple doesn't plan ahead as to what they will do each day. "We just kind of play it by ear," she explained.

THE ZAWILINSKIS receive their retirement income from six sources. Mrs. Zawilinski has a small pension from General Cable, very small because she retired so young.

Her husband has a pension from Cable, from Nestles, Social Security, and disability income from his World War II injury.

Their income would have been more had Zawilinski chosen to work until age 65. Social Security payments are 20 percent less and he "loses" $83 a month from General Cable by leaving at 62, cutting that pension almost in half.

Their other income source is interest from savings. "I hope they have been saving," Mrs. Zawilinski advised those soon to retire. "You've got to have some income (from interest) other than Social Security and this small pension plan."

The couple lives comfortably, but are careful how they spend their money. They don't own a boat or a cottage, Zawilinski pointed out as examples. Their one indulgence is they like to have a new car in the driveway.

Indicative of how they watch their pennies is that despite their income being considerably reduced from what it was when both were working, they aren't spending all their pension income. Some is still going in the bank.

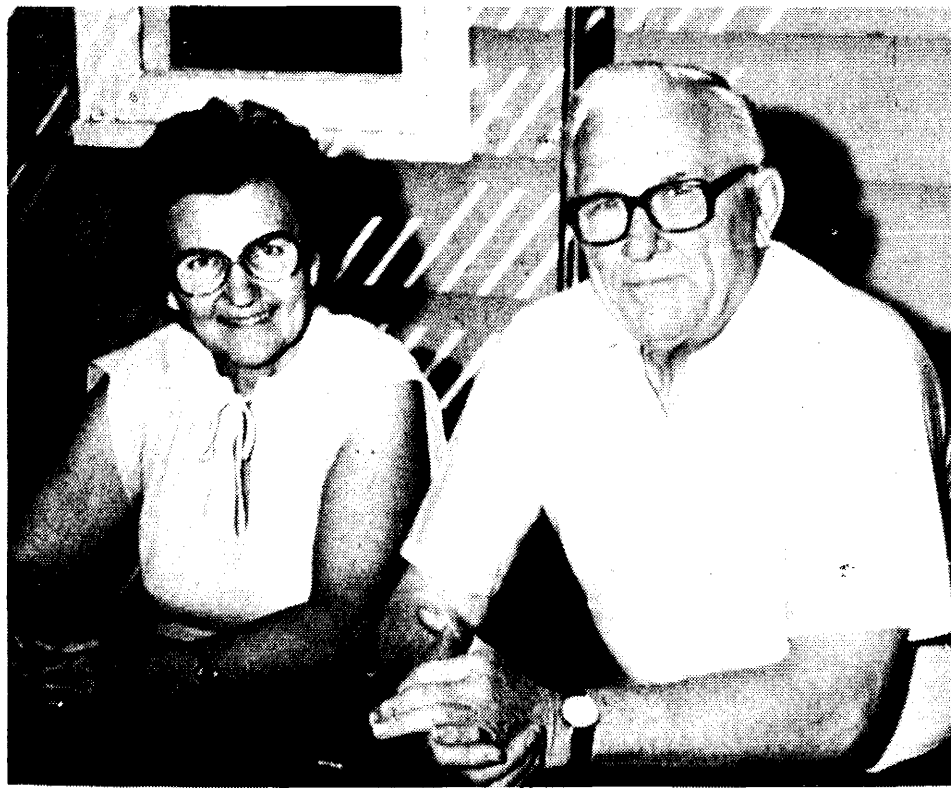

A FINANCIAL BENEFIT they have is their Blue Cross-Blue Shield continues, paid by the company, until age 65, when they will have to switch to Medicare and a supplementary policy to cover the gaps.

Presently, the Zawilinskis are enjoying the summer weather. To keep enjoying it, they plan to spend 2-3 months in Florida this winter.

Their plans are still tentative, but they figure they will probably live in a mobile home.

That is about the only thing they are tentative about.

Asked if he regretted retiring or whether he was worried he and his wife might run out of things to do, Zawilinski responded firmly, "Nope."

List 9 ways to foil burglars

When's the best time for a burglar to enter your home, uninterrupted, and clean it out? Almost anytime. But especially while you're on vacation. Residential burglaries, in-town and suburban, account for most burglaries, according to police statistics. Many are committed in the summer or on holidays when homeowners and apartment-dwellers are away.

In addition to installing an alarm system, there are several ways you can make your home look occupied and less appealing to thieves.

1. Don't publicize the fact that you and your family are going on a trip. And be careful not to give important details to strangers.

2. Stop milk, newspaper and other routine deliveries while you're away. Have the post office reroute your mail. Or arrange to have someone regularly pick it up at your house.

3. To maintain the lived-in look, arrange to have the lawn cut during the summer, leaves raked in the fall or snow shoveled in the winter.

4. Don't draw all blinds and shades. Partially uncovered windows suggest that someone is home.

5. Don't allow your lights to burn continuously. This only fools a would-be-thief for a few hours in the evening. Instead, use timing devices to automatically turn on and off lights — inside and out — and your TV or radio as well.

6. Don't leave children's toys outside. If they're seen after dark, in the same position for several days, it's a tip-off that no one's at home.

7. Lock all doors, windows and screens before you leave. The doors to the car, too, if that will remain at home.

8. If you're traveling by plane, show only your business address on baggage tags. Otherwise thieves lurking around check-in and baggage areas can read the tags and see who will be away from home.

9. In many communities you can have the police make a house check. Tell police of your whereabouts and identify a neighbor or friend who has a key to your house and permission to enter it. (It's a good idea, too, to leave an address and telephone number where you can be reached.)

Commission nixes interest payment for O-G teachers

The state Municipal Finance Commission has told the Owendale-Gagetown School District it can no longer reimburse its employees for the interest on the money they borrow during payless paydays.

Employees were last paid March 13 and Supt. Ronald Erickson estimates employees have borrowed about $150,000 from the Farmers and Merchants State Bank. A teacher told the Chronicle the bank charged 15 percent interest on the loans.

The MFC notified Erickson in a letter dated June 11 that the district's paying such interest might be a violation of state law and it would have to discontinue doing so if it is to obtain the commission's approval to borrow money in anticipation of receipt of property tax revenue.

Owen-Gage has a request pending before the MFC for permission to borrow $395,000 from banks. It won't be able to resume paying its staff and give them their back pay until it receives the loan.

Erickson, who checked with the district's accountants, expressed doubt that paying the interest was illegal, pointing out that the letter had said "may be."

However, he has written the MFC stating the district will not pay the interest and also sent letters to staff members informing them of what happened. "We can't fight it," he told the Chronicle. "We need the money."

MFC Administrator Donald Fichter more or less agreed with the superintendent in telling the Chronicle that it would take an attorney general's ruling to truly determine if the district's paying the interest was illegal.

As for why the MFC hadn't acted before, since Owen-Gage has been paying the interest for the last few years because of payless paydays, he responded it didn't know about it before.

The letter to Erickson, the superintendent explained, included a photocopy of a Chronicle article mentioning the interest reimbursement, which someone had sent to the MFC.

Fichter said the MFC will probably act on Owen-Gage's loan request at its meeting Tuesday.

Erickson said he wouldn't be surprised if it doesn't receive the commission's okay the first time around because of minor technicalities that have to be corrected.

On another matter, Fichter said the MFC is still awaiting an attorney general's opinion concerning its contention that Owen-Gage owes about $160,000 from its general fund to the 1977 building and site fund for money paid from the latter to Construction Coordinator's Inc. for overseeing the high school construction project. The controversy began in January.

The Owen-Gage School Board will conduct a special meeting Monday for reasons not related to the MFC action.

The meeting will be in the Gagetown Elementary cafeteria, starting with a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on the 1981-82 budget, for the fiscal year that starts July 1.

The budget projects general fund total revenue of $1.088 million and general fund expenditures of $1.066 million.

The general meeting will start at 8 and one of the agenda items is rehiring of three teachers who were "pink slipped" by the board in March.

Variety meats

Among the most important by-products of cattle, hogs and sheep are variety meats, reports the National Live Stock and Meat Board. In addition to adding interest to menu plans, variety meats such as liver, kidney and heart are excellent sources of many nutrients including high-quality protein, B-vitamins and the minerals iron and zinc. Liver stands out as an outstanding source of the vitamins A and C.

Charge three for break-ins of Cass City Gun Club

Preliminary hearings have been set for a Cass City man and two St. Clair Shores men in connection with two break-ins of the Cass City Gun Club on Englehart Road.

Stanley E. Woodruff, 18, of 3279 Crawford Road, was arraigned in district court Monday on a charge of larceny from the gun club Jan. 28. Bond was set at $3,000 and a pre-preliminary examination scheduled Wednesday, followed by the preliminary examination July 17.

Thirty cases of empty beer cans, worth $72 as returnables, and one case of full cans, worth $8, were taken in the Jan. 28 or 29 break-in.

Robert F. Weber, 18, of St. Clair Shores, has been charged with breaking and entering in that break-in and the June 3 break-in at the club.

He was originally connected to the June break-in after Imlay City police stopped his car for what was reported to be a routine traffic stop and found beer, candy, snacks and soft drinks from the gun club. Also in the car was Jody L. Miller, also of St. Clair Shores.

Police there later charged the pair with possession of marijuana, and minors in possession of alcoholic beverages, both substances having been found in the car. They were stopped at 4 a.m., believed to be one hour after the gun club break-in.

"Statements made by Weber after the arrest led to charges of the January break-in," Assistant Prosecutor Scott Sterner said.

Bond was set at $15,000 for the June 3 charge on Weber and $25,000 for the January break-in. He is being held in the Tuscola county jail, after a pre-preliminary examination Monday. The preliminary examination will be Friday for the June charge. His pre-preliminary examination will be June 29 and preliminary examination

July 2 for the January case. Also being held in the county jail is 20-year-old Miller. His bond is set at $25,000, after a pre-preliminary examination Monday with a preliminary examination Friday on charges of breaking and entering the gun club June 3.

Seek ways to cut budget

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

Governor William G. Milliken and legislative leaders recently directed budget experts to pursue ways to resolve current-year budget problems without resorting to general executive order cuts.

Budget officials said avoiding general cuts would not have been possible were it not for the recently discovered fact that income tax refunds will be about $55 million lower than earlier estimates due to fewer property tax credits and more accurate filings of exemptions.

The governor and the legislators reviewed the budget problems but left unresolved the question of whether to continue the 5 percent cut in welfare grants that was imposed in June.

Executive officials and legislators, however, disagreed on how to solve the remaining $120 million gap.

Milliken is budgeting in $40 million in lapses (cutting the deficit to $80 million), but legislative leaders pushed for a higher figure of $65.8 million in lapses — appropriated money returned to the general fund from various state departments.

Other options to aid in balancing the budget deficit include borrowing as much as $40 million from the recreational land trust fund and delaying until fiscal 1981-82 the $18 million weekly payment to Medicaid vendors.

In a positive budget note, preliminary welfare caseload figures for May showed the first significant decline in two years.

Figures released by the Department of Social Services showed the caseload in May for families with dependent children dropped by about 3,700 cases and general assistance declined 2,300 cases.

The ADC total was 241,219, compared to April's figures of 244,936.

The GA caseload showed a total of 112,954, compared to April's total of 115,217.

Chris Kissmer, of the department's policy office, said the ADC drop was probably due to continued implementation of the state's step-parent responsibility law. The law, which took effect in April, requires step-parents to bear financial responsibility for their stepchildren.

Wins state school bus driving title

Schumacher a champion behind the wheel

When students in the Cumber area climb on the bus this fall to ride to school in Ubly, they will have a distinction like no others in Michigan.

They will be the only students being driven by a state champion.

Their driver is Leonard Schumacher, winner of the fourth annual Michigan Association for Pupil Transportation Championship Road Race June 13 at Harry Hill High School in Lansing.

The students may even be driven by a national champion. In addition to winning a big trophy, Schumacher also won a free trip to Boston to compete in the national school bus road race.

As of last week, all he knew about that contest is that it is sometime in mid-July. His wife, Myrt, plans to accompany him.

Schumacher, 39, has driven a bus for the Ubly schools for seven years. He and his family live on Wheeler Road, 1½ miles north of Cumber, and his route, with a potential 67 passengers (he has yet to carry that many) is in that area.

This is his third year in the driving competition. This year, he won the regionals May 9, held at Ubly High School for 24 drivers from 10 school districts, and then the state title.

Dump truck stolen near Cass City

A 1969 GMC dump truck was stolen last Wednesday east of Cass City.

James McDonald reported the theft of the truck from his business on Cass City Road, about a quarter-mile east of Schwegler Road, to the sheriff's department after discovering it missing when he returned there between 5 and 6 p.m.

The truck, valued at $2,000, was yellow with red fenders, with blue paint over what had been the Detroit Edison markers on the doors, the utility being the original owner.

McDonald told officers he usually left the keys on the floor.

Eugene Kaake of 5259 Bay City-Forestville Road, Galetown, reported to the sheriff's department at 6:15 a.m. Friday that a hit and run vehicle had killed his cow, valued at $600.

Just west of where he found the cow, vehicle tracks went into the ditch headed west, crossed Russell Road, then ran along the ditch for 500 feet before leading back to the road. From the terrain, it is believed the vehicle had four wheel drive.

HE BECAME THE MICHIGAN champion by the narrowest of margins. Of a possible 400 points, he scored 375, only one more than Jo Ellyn Myers of the Delton-Kellogg district near Battle Creek.

He knew he had a good run in the driving portion of the competition and felt he had a chance for a trophy. After the third and second place finishers were announced at the luncheon following the morning competition, he decided he hadn't finished in the running. When his name was announced, "I was really shocked. . . I never dreamt I would be first."

The top three drivers in each of the 13 regional events went to the state meet, which was sponsored by the Association for Pupil Transportation and the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Seventy-five of the points in the competition were based on a written examination consisting of 25 true-false questions.

THE REST OF THE points come from a driving test, with all the drivers using standard 66-passenger buses, 33-35 feet long, furnished by a Lansing area district. (Schumacher didn't even drive his own bus when the regionals were held at Ubly.)

It takes about 10 minutes to negotiate the course, which begins by maneuvering the bus through a series of serpentine curves. Then comes turning from one alley into an "offset" alley without adequate room to make a smooth turn. (The course is laid out on a large parking lot, with "alleys" and turns designated by markers.)

Next is a railroad crossing, followed by a stop to pick up students. The only "student" to get on is a judge, who asks the driver some questions.

Then comes driving a straight line between two rows of tennis balls sitting on two-inch high sections of rubber hose, with clearance on both sides between the back wheels and balls only two inches (assuming the bus is centered).

It gets harder after that, because next is the test of diminishing clearances. There is clearance of 4 inches on each side at the beginning of the straight-line run, but only 1 inch at the end.

The driver must next stop within 2 inches of a line. The final maneuver is to back the bus up and stop it within 1 inch of the line.

Schumacher finds it easier to maneuver backwards than forwards, because he can see the back corners of his bus through the rear view mirrors. He can't see the front corners.

ALTHOUGH A CHALLENGE, he doesn't find the driving test of much value in actual day-to-day driving. "Experience is the best thing for driving, as far as I'm concerned."

He also doesn't believe in "practice makes perfect." After the regionals, the only time he practiced was the day before the state meet, when he spent a couple of hours going through the marked course at Ubly.

That doesn't hold true for the written part of the competition, however. "I believe it helps my bus driving because I read my rules and regulations all the time. It sharpens you up, I think."

Schumacher got interested in the competition after the Ubly bus supervisor, Gerald Booms, heard about it and then asked his drivers if any of them would be interested. Two or three Ubly drivers, including Schumacher, have competed each of the three years in the regionals.

HE STARTED DRIVING a bus because the money came in handy, there wasn't much to do on the farm in winter, and, "I just love driving a bus. I love driving anything."

Schumacher hauled milk for 11 years and drove a semi a couple of years. He also likes driving a bus because, "I love kids." He feels the admiration must be mutual. "They must like me for a bus driver. They don't have any complaints at school, or if they did," he added with a smile, "they don't let them out."

He and his wife have three children, Sue, 15, Randy, 14, and Paul, 11. Their one helper on the farm is his father, Leonard D. Schumacher, of Ruth, a retiree from General Cable in Cass City.

The family farms slightly over 300 acres of corn, hay, wheat and beans and are presently feeding 33 beef cattle. After his 28 heifers freshen (give birth) in August and September, he will be milking them.

That will mean a return to his schedule when he had his previous dairy herd of getting up at 4:30 a.m. in order to have his milking and other chores done by 7, which gave him a half-hour to shave and eat breakfast before starting his bus run. Before then comes his trip to Boston and if he doesn't win the national title this year, he plans to try again next year.

He finished 10th in the regionals in his first year of competition, won the regionals last year and finished 10th in the state and won everything this year. He figures if he finishes 10th in the nationals this year, 1982 should be his year.

Particka accepted at Gerald Ford Institute

Mechelle Particka, the 1981 Cass City High School co-valedictorian, is one of 16 freshmen accepted to the Gerald R. Ford Institute for Public Service at Albion College.

In order to qualify, students must have maintained a minimum 3.0 grade point average (hers was 4.0) in high school while having displayed leadership, interest in government and involvement in political, community and school activities.

At Albion, the students will take courses in ethics, statistics, public policy, English, history, economics and political science.

They will serve one semester in an off-campus internship where they will have the opportunity to see a practical application of the political theories they have explored in the classroom. The internships are usually served during their junior year in Washington, Lansing or Philadelphia.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Particka of Cumber Road, Ubly, is also the recipient of a Webster Scholarship from Albion, which required a minimum 3.5 grade point average.

It is named after William C. Webster, a well-known economics professor and businessman.

Burn victim on the road to recovery

An Owendale man who had been in critical condition in Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital since April 22 with burns covering most of his body, is improving slowly.

David H. Sheufelt, 27, is now listed in serious condition, with "a long way to go still," according to his brother, Art.

The brothers operate a junk yard on Brown Road, southwest of Owendale, where Sheufelt was using a cutting torch to remove a gasoline tank from a junk car when the tank exploded.

Burned from the knees up, Sheufelt was rushed to Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon and then transferred to the burn unit at St. Mary's.

"He will probably be at St. Mary's for at least another month," Art Sheufelt said, indicating further plans for rehabilitation have not yet been made.

Taking Stock

Lori White, the collections teller at First Marine Bank, is busy these days, cashing in E Bonds, the U.S. Savings bonds held by so many people.

"They come in here with 70 or 80 bonds at a time," said Lori. "They cash them on the first day they can — six months after purchase."

Lori's counterparts in other banks, I am sure, have similar reports.

Scant wonder these E bond holders are dumping these over-priced, under-yielding securities. Although U.S. Savings bonds went up from 8 percent to 9 percent May 1, the yield is still far too low.

The first six months, they have gotten only 4 percent on their money. If they are held a year holders will get 5.5 percent. After five years, 7.5 percent. Held to maturity bonds bought now will average 9 percent for the 8-year span of the bonds. By compounding, the original investment doubles in these eight years.

Other 8-year government bonds at this writing are yielding about 14 percent. Assume interest is re-invested at the same rate, your money will double in five years, compared to the eight years for E bonds.

There is a slight advantage in E bonds, in that you have no tax to pay on the interest until you cash the bond. Then the difference between what you paid for it, and what you redeem it at, is considered straight income (not capital gains).

They can be bought in small amounts, but then, many government bonds of the regular sort can be bought in $1,000 sizes.

Save your money until you get $1,000 and buy yourself a government bond at 14 percent, and you've increased your 9 percent yield by over half.

FOOTNOTE: Although the increase in rate from 8 percent to 9 percent on May 1 was announced back in April, no Boca Raton banks had been notified yet when we called on May 18.

The banks still thought the rate was 8 percent. It took us five long distance calls to sweat it out of the Treasury Department that the rate was really and truly 9 percent, and had been since May 1.

The latest report on performance of bank trust departments in portfolios of stocks show that two-thirds of the major banks did better than the stock averages the first quarter of 1981.

They didn't have a very high mark to beat. The S & P average of 500 stocks was up only 1.4 percent.

In any case, to compare three months performance of banks, or your personal results, or anybody else's for three months doesn't mean much. Too many distortions get into the picture.

Looking at the 3- and 5-year performance of trust departments compared to stock averages and we find rather bleak results:

Of 19 of the larger banks (chosen by the Wall Street Journal) only six outdid the stock averages in the five-year period.

Of 22 banks, over the last three years, 12 did better than the average.

By blind chance, half of each sample should be better than the averages. You'd be tempted to say that the pro's are spinning their wheels.

Deer killed

that at 11:15 a.m. last Wednesday, Kermit E. Hartwick, 65, of Cass City Road, was southbound on Leach Street, failed to yield at Garfield and collided with the eastbound car of Leola L. Englehardt, 53, of Sebewaing.

CAR-DEER

Daniel V. Smith, 19, of Phillips Road, Deford, was eastbound on M-81, east of Cedar Run Road, according to Cass City police, when his car struck a deer. The mishap occurred at 5:15 a.m. Friday.

Deputies reported that at 11:55 p.m. Saturday, Dana L. Truemmer, 25, of 6577 Huron Street, Cass City, was westbound on M-81, west of Schwegler Road, when his vehicle collided with a deer.

Oil leasers beware

A new lease form, described as "perfectly legal, but with far-reaching consequences for landowners," has appeared on the scene of Michigan's hotbed of oil and gas leasing activity.

Ron Gaskill, Michigan Farm Bureau local affairs specialist, says that landowners should be aware that the new form is known as a mineral deed and includes all minerals — not just oil and gas.

"If signed, this form would lease 50 percent of ALL minerals located on a landowner's property, which means that 50 percent of all minerals on the land would be owned by the leasing company," Gaskill explained.

State repeals auto emissions program

The state Senate has voted to repeal the auto emissions testing program slated to begin in southeastern Michigan in January.

The program was begrudgingly approved last year under the threat the federal government would withhold construction permits for new industries in areas not complying with the program under the Federal Clean Air Act.

Permits were being sought at the time for construction of new General Motors and Volkswagen of America plants in the area. Senator John Hertel (D-Harper Woods), sponsor of the repeal bills, said the program was "hanging over the heads of the people in the southeastern Michigan area" as Congress is considering repeal of the federal act.

Hertel noted that even if Congress fails to repeal the act, the Reagan administration has no intention of enforcing the provisions of the federal law.

AND THE RIGHT ANSWERS.
