Convict still eluding police net

Two state prisoners, part of a work release program in Sanilac county, went to work Monday and never returned to their night residence at the county jail in Sandusky.

One of the prisoners, Randy Mazzolini of Sandusky, stole three vehicles, survived a high speed chase and evaded two tracking dogs, a helicopter and officers from five different police and sheriff departments. As of Wednesday morning, he had still not been apprehended.

The pursuit began when Sanilac county deputies received information from state troopers at 1:06 a.m. Monday that a pickup truck had been stolen from the Golden Fawn bar in Argyle.

The truck was sighted heading west on Mushroom Road from M-53 by a deputy on patrol at 1:15 a.m. The officers pursued the vehicle down Mushroom Road and across side roads before being forced to ram the vehicle on Shabbona Road, two miles west of M-53.

Mazzolini, 21, and the other prisoner, Tracy Sears, of Deckerville, jumped out of the stopped truck and attempted to run from deputies, who ordered them to stop.

Sears, 24, halted immediately, was apprehended and taken to the county jail in Sandusky. Mazzolini, however, ran out into the fields, the Sanilac County Sheriff's Department reported.

A department tracking dog followed the escaped prisoner through fields for about three miles, heading in a southwesterly direction. Before officers could catch him though, Mazzolini stole another vehicle near Crawford Road, running it into a ditch and through a fence about 1/4 mile away from the Argyle bar where the first vehicle had been taken.

The prisoner continued his escape on foot for 30-45 minutes, deputies said, attempting to steal another pickup truck about one mile west of the ditch where he had left the stolen car. His attempt was unsuccessful though and he continued across fields in a southwesterly direction, with a second dog, from Michigan State Police, relieving the first.

A Huron County Sheriff's Department helicopter, as well as officers from the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department and the Cass City Police Department became involved in the pursuit at various times during the night.

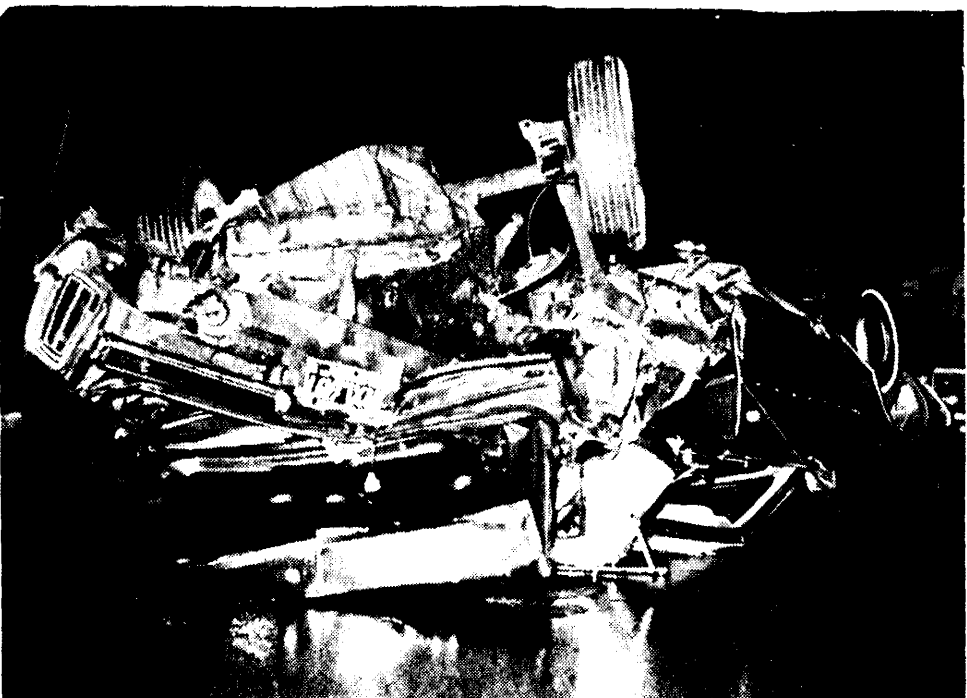

At approximately 8 a.m., Tuscola county deputies on patrol were flagged down by a Deford man whose pickup truck had been stolen. Gary Bruce, of Chapin Road, told deputies he heard the truck start around 5:30 a.m., but fell back asleep, noticing the truck was missing when he got up later.

The truck, which deputies believe Mazzolini took, is a 1976 blue Chevrolet pickup with a woodgrain cover belonging to Gary's father, Jesse Bruce.

Deputies said the prisoner, who has a record of various felonies and misdemeanors, is "possibly" armed. It's hard to say exactly where Mazzolini may be headed, they added.

RESCUERS -- Onlookers and firemen lifted the car driven by Douglas VanValkenburgh, so that emergency medical technicians could remove him from the car. He had been pinned inside. The damage sustained was at the other end.

THE BACK END of the car driven by Christine Buehrl was a twisted mass of steel after being clobbered by the car that ran into it early Saturday.

18 injured, 4 killed in area crashes

The July 4th week end in the upper Thumb was a tragedy marred one, with four persons killed in traffic accidents and many others sent to hospitals.

One of the victims was Mary Frederick of Decker, one of two persons killed in a Sunday evening accident southwest of Bad Axe.

The other deaths were that of a 14-year-old Richville boy, killed when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a car Friday and a Unionville teenager who died when his car went off the road Sunday.

One of the worst accidents in Cass City history took place at 1:55 a.m. Saturday and resulted in seven persons being sent to Hills and Dales General Hospital.

The driver of one of the vehicles, Douglas J. VanValkenburgh, 21, of Filion, was treated and released, then taken by police to the Tuscola County Jail in Caro.

Cass City officers Monday obtained a warrant from the prosecutor's office, charging him with felonious driving, a felony. A preliminary examination is scheduled for July 13, with bond set at $5,000.

Police quoted witnesses as saying he was going at least 80 miles per hour when his car, eastbound on Main Street, ran into the rear of one driven by Christine M. Buehrl, 18, of 7731 Greenland Road, who was on her way home from working at the Charmont. She was reported in fair condition Tuesday at Hills and Dales.

The collision took place at the Ale Street intersection, after which the two cars traveled about 200 feet before rolling over.

There were five passengers in the VanValkenburgh auto. Most seriously injured was Tim Chappel, 18, of Kinde, who was transferred to Saginaw General Hospital, where he was reported in fair condition Tuesday.

The other victims treated and discharged from Hills and Dales were: Ramona Sadro, 18, of Bad Axe; Darren Bushey, 20, of Kinde; Emma Sadro, 19, of Bad Axe; and Richard VanValkenburgh, 18, of Filion.

Officer Ken Schott said he and Officer Michael Pine were exiting the Charmont onto Main when a westbound motorist stopped to tell them he had just been passed by an eastbound car traveling at a high rate of speed.

The motorist said he had to swerve to avoid colliding with the car when it crossed the centerline.

The officers headed east and encountered the accident scene. The Cass City ambulance, Collon Ambulance from Caro and the Caro Fire Department rescue unit were used to transport the wounded to the hospital.

Some Cass City emergency medical technicians speculated the seven persons hurt were the most ever in an accident within the village limits.

Fuel was leaking from both vehicles, so Elkland township firemen stood by until the vehicles were finally towed away, then washed down the pavement.

Schott said no one he later talked to who was at the beer tent behind the Charmont recalled seeing the persons from the VanValkenburgh auto prior to the accident.

More than one person involved with the on-scene policing of the accident and rescue efforts commented it was a miracle no one had been killed. None of the victims was wearing safety belts.

Caro state police and Tuscola sheriff's deputies assisted.

DOUBLE FATALITY

A 9:39 p.m. accident Sunday took the lives of Mary Frederick, 56, of Leslie Road, Decker, and Irene M. Elliot, 62, of Hazel Park. Passengers in different cars, they were pronounced dead on arrival at Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe.

Bad Axe state police said Mrs. Frederick was riding in a car driven by her husband, Lloyd, 58, which was southbound on M-53 when it was hit broadside by a car driven by Wanchai Simon, 17, of Hazel Park, which was eastbound on Sebawaing Road and failed to stop at the stop sign.

Also in the Frederick auto were Charles Darr, 40, and Lois Darr, 30, both of Shabbona. They were transferred from Huron Memorial to St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw, where they were reported in critical condition Tuesday afternoon.

Frederick was reported in fair condition Tuesday afternoon at Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe.

There were four passengers in the Simon auto, including Mrs. Elliot, all from Highland Park. Treated and released at Huron Memorial was Dwayne Frye, 18. Discharged Monday were Simon, Wayne McKenzie, 18, and Robert Rex, 16.

The accident remains under investigation. The two women were the fifth and sixth persons to die in Huron county traffic accidents this year.

Mary F. Bouton was born Aug. 31, 1924, in Cookville, Tenn.

She married Lloyd E. Frederick in Plymouth, Oct. 29, 1949. The couple lived on their Decker farm for 31 years.

She is survived by her husband; three sons, Harvey, of Canton, Jerry, Dallas, Tex., and Roney, Decker; one daughter, Bette Frederick, Livonia; one grandson and her mother, Dorothy Bouton of Cookville. Other survivors are four brothers, three sisters and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Friday at the MacAlpine Funeral Home, Bad Axe. William Engle and Elgin Jensen will officiate, with burial following in the Shabbona cemetery, Evergreen township. Friends and neighbors may call at the funeral home Wednesday and Thursday, from 2-4 or 7-9 p.m.

FOUR INJURED

A 12:05 p.m. accident Saturday sent four persons to Hills and Dales. (See photo, page 5).

One of the drivers involved, Paul J. Dow, 19, of Burt, was transferred from Hills and Dales, but a report on his condition was unavailable Tuesday afternoon.

His passenger, Sue Pokorski, 19, of Center Line, was discharged from Hills and Dales Monday.

The driver of the other auto involved, Paula Martin, 24, of Troy, was treated and discharged from Hills and Dales General Hospital. Her passengers were her son, Brian, 7, who was treated and released, and her husband, Russell, 26, who was not injured.

Both autos were eastbound on M-81, just east of Cedar Run Road. Caro state police reported Mrs. Martin pulled onto the shoulder of the road and started making a U-turn. As she was turning, her car was hit broadside by the Dow auto.

Mrs. Martin was ticketed by troopers on a charge of failure to yield right of way. Elkland township firemen stood by in case of fire and later washed down the pavement.

BICYCLE FATALITY

A 14-year-old, Richville boy died Friday after a van struck his bicycle from behind on M-46, near his Vassar township home at 12:40 p.m.

Authorities laud community cooperation

Crowds ignore clouds at festival

Everything but spirits seemed to be dampened Saturday as rain fell for the first time in three years on the annual Cass City 4th of July Festival.

Clouds threatened all week end, holding the rain off until Saturday afternoon, at making early festival events muggy affairs to attend. The rain fell for a short period in the afternoon.

From the festival's start Friday night at the Cass City High School cafeteria until its close early Sunday morning at the beer tent, attendance figures remained consistent with last year, organizers agree.

"I think it was about the same in attendance as last year," chairman Tom Herron said. "Some people think a little more, some a little less."

The festival began Friday night with a standing room only crowd attending the festival's first queen's pageant at the high school. Chairman of the pageant, Sally Doerr, was "surprised" and "excited" by the turnout.

At the end of the pageant, Tom Herron crowned Brenda Langenburg, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Langenburg of Cass City, festival queen.

First runner-up was Colleen Janssen and second runner-up was Jill Seury-nck, both of Gagetown. Sheri Stec, of Cass City, and Sheri Franks, of Gagetown, were also finalists in the 15-girl competition.

FESTIVITIES CONTINUED Friday night at the beer tent, where about 520 persons met to sing-along with the Irish Gaels, chairman Aime Ouvry said.

"Attendance at the beer tent was tremendous," he said. "We won't know for sure for a few days, but it looks like we're in good shape (financially)."

"Windfall" performed Saturday night at the tent, with twice as many people, 1,011, paying the cover charge to get in.

About 10 ropes supporting the beer tent were cut late Saturday night, Ouvry said, explaining he remembers seeing someone bending down behind the tent. "I thought he was looking for something," he said, but the person must have been cutting the ropes then. The tent might have fallen if eight or 10 more ropes were cut.

Generally, there were few problems for police and no arrests were made, Chief Gene Wilson said.

Getting some patrons to leave the beer tent at closing time was a slight problem, he said, although the Chamber of Commerce had two private security guards on duty Friday and three Saturday.

THERE WERE FEWER traffic problems at the start of the parade than last year, Wilson and Al Kico, parade co-chairman, agreed.

The Doerr Road area, where the parade set up this year, was a great improvement because there was more shade and room than in previous years when the parade assembled near the Charmont, Kico said.

"It was a problem not being on a private road," he admitted. "We will have to correct those problems in the future," Kico continued, citing two-way traffic as one problem.

Although it wasn't a problem, Alan Kico admitted he and Mike Weaver, the other co-chairman, were "dis-

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

One of the topics after the festival was the story in the Detroit Free Press. It got mixed reviews. Alan Kico thought it made us look like a rube town. Tom Herron felt it talked too much about the festival and not enough about what Cass City has to offer. Evelyn MacRae felt it was a fine story.

My opinion? All-in-all not too bad. You can't expect the paper to be a press agent for the town. The story was better than what dozens of other communities across the state received about their July 4 celebrations, including a couple right here in the Upper Thumb.

Through a snafu, the Chronicle was left this week without a column by Bill Myers that normally appears on the back page.

The column has been well received. The regular readers it has generated in its brief appearance in the news columns can rest easy. It will be back as usual next week.

Curt Strickland was in to pay a bill and at the same time he gave me one of those neat Pacesetter T-shirts that went to runners in the 5-mile run.

No way can I wear it around here. Everyone knows that no way am I about to run five miles. It'll be a conversation piece when I'm up north and can lie a little and get away with it.

Incidentally, Strickland says that next year he'd like to have the run the night before to beat the competition on the Fourth from Frankenmuth and Bay City.

I'm a Tiger baseball fan and I miss the games. I miss them and ordinarily I only see one or two games a season.

What I miss most is not hearing about them on car trips or catching them when convenient on television. The biggest loss of all is the void on the daily sport pages.

I just can't get into soccer.

GOOD CROP -- Ed Deering examines his red potatoes, which were about ready for harvesting last week. His scarecrow is in the background.

Fertile soil, ample rain grow bountiful crops

Mother Nature has been kind so far this year to gardens and gardeners.

That's the verdict of Ed Deering, who has already harvested some of his bountiful crop.

"Wonderful. We've had the rains when we should have," was his summary of growing conditions. He hasn't had to water his vegetables yet.

Deering, 66, is a retired farmer and factory worker, who lives with his wife, Vera, on Seeger Road, northeast of Cass City.

His approximately 80-by-130 foot garden has one advantage over most. It was originally a barnyard and the years of cattle manure that fell there has made the soil so fertile that in the eight years or so the garden has been there, he has never had to use fertilizer.

His first crop to be harvested, about 1½ bushels worth from two rows, was peas, which were planted May 7 or 8.

Potatoes and beets were also planted about then. The red potatoes, as of late last week were ready for harvesting. He had at least 15 bushels of spuds from four rows last year. This year, he has five rows.

Lettuce, planted June 1, was also ready. Cabbage, peppers, tomatoes (three varieties), yellow beans and onions also went in then.

Sweet corn, which grows in a separate plot closer to the house, went in in mid-May and was comfortably knee high by July 4. Also in a separate plot are melons.

Cucumbers for pickles were planted the last week in May and by the beginning of July, were already an inch long. Other vegetables are squash and cabbage.

Mrs. Deering does a lot of the harvesting and the freezing and canning. What they don't use is given to their children and grandchildren.

Other than some of the picking, her husband does all the garden chores.

Between that and his large yard, he figures he spends 2-3 hours a day.

Besides keeping him busy, the garden is also a good way to save on grocery bills. Deering figures he has spent $85 this year on seed, insect spray and gasoline for his tractor.

He sprays his potatoes, cucumbers, peppers, squash, tomatoes and cabbage.

Two cats take care of rats and mice.

Deering had problems in past years with deer jumping over his barbed wire fence to feast in his garden. This year, he installed a scarecrow and put some old clothes on the fence -- the human scent is supposed to scare them away -- and so far hasn't had a problem.

Novesta protests landfill committee

The Novesta Township Board authorized payment of $5,000 to the Tuscola County Road Commission for the re-surfacing of parts of Severance Road Monday.

The payment leaves a $7,000 balance left for the township to return to the road commission for work done last year on a two-mile stretch of road.

The board also discussed the appointments of 13 members to a committee charged with investigating the Cass City landfill situation. Members of the board, township clerk Nurse Kloc explained, are upset that none of the committee members is from Novesta township.

"The dump is in our township, so we should have someone on the committee," Mrs. Kloc said.

Township Supervisor William O'Dell was unavailable for comment.

The Haire Net

It was only a small item in the paper a couple of weeks ago telling that a massive 8-year-old anti-trust suit against the nation's 8 largest oil firms will be dismissed.

Nothing remarkable about that unless you read on and find out that the reason for the recommendation by the prosecution for dismissal was that the evidence compiled by the Federal Trade Commission was so old that it would be of limited value. That's if the case ever did make it to trial.

The lawyers said that even under the most favorable conditions the trial could not start until 1985.

In other words if you have enough money and clout the laws that apply to you and me just don't work. The reverse may be true as survey after survey has shown that the defendant without money doesn't get the same defense as the client with even a limited bankroll.

As disclosed in a metro Detroit paper this spring, the taxpayers were paying for appeals by convicted felons that were never made. That's robbing both you and me and the guy who had his constitutional rights ripped off.

That's the other end of the scale. We're talking here about Big Oil and its successful delaying tactics.

When I read this I was struck by the timing.

It's no secret that the present administration is pro big business.

Its first act was to deregulate oil and make it even easier for the oil cartels to make even more money than they have in recent years.

I wondered to myself if the evidence would have been so old to have become useless if a human rights conservationist had been at the helm.

Did the constant hammering of the president about deregulation and the work of the FDC have an influence on the case?

There's no way that you and I could find the answer to these questions. Truthfully most of us don't care.

Don't care that is until the fuel bill comes rolling in or we stop at the gas station and shell out for a tank of gas.

From what I can gather, few of us correlate that with the policies in Washington.

It's one and the same of course, if the oil companies can charge all the traffic will bear, it will and does.

If there is no control in Washington and no redress in the courts there's only one thing left to do.

Pay up and shut up.

"If It Fitz. . ."

Once in a while, you cry

By Jim Fitzgerald

In the nursing home there was a poster listing the residents having birthdays that month. All of them except one were born around 1900. The exception was Ed, who was born in 1947. He is a military statistic.

The middle-aged husband razzes his wife, gently, for the tears she often sheds after visiting the nursing home. She cries easily, and her tears aren't always for the lovely woman -- her mother -- who is the reason for her regular visits. She sometimes weeps for other residents, people she barely knows, when she discovers they're having a particularly bad time.

The husband tells her she should try not to care so much, because the world is full of sick, elderly people who must live out their final years in nursing homes. There's no way she can make things better for all of them, and she can injure her own health by worrying too much about what she can't do. When the husband says such things, he knows he is wasting his breath. He also knows his wife's stubborn compassion is one of the reasons he loves her.

So the husband's razzing is gentle, but it is still razzing, and that's why he felt guilty about his own sudden tears when he saw Ed's name on the birthday poster. Why was he crying about a situation he knew he couldn't improve?

He wasn't surprised to see 34-year-old Ed listed with all the 80-year-old birthday celebrants. He'd known that all the nursing home's residents weren't old. He'd known that Ed, permanently paralyzed in the Vietnam war, had been living there for many years. And he'd known, ever since Ed had been hit in the head by shrapnel in 1969, that there was nothing he could do about it.

The husband decided his futile tears could be blamed on a combination of events. The same month he saw the birthday poster, he also saw a TV documentary in which a U.S. Army colonel proudly predicted his soldiers would suffer "only 10 to 20 percent casualties" during a chemical warfare attack.

And this was the month the husband wrote in the newspaper: "After reading everything I could about the bombing, pro and con, I still can't decide whether Israel had any right to destroy Iraq's nuclear reactor. But I'm sure I wouldn't have any trouble making up my mind if I were the spouse or parent of someone killed in the raid."

Several well-intentioned readers responded that only one person died and only a few were wounded in the bombing of Iraq, and the husband should be grateful for such favorable statistics. The statistics will be much bloodier if Iraq ever builds a nuclear bomb, they said.

It is this use of statistics to measure human suffering, and mask it, that bugs the husband. A military officer is proud to project only 10 to 20 percent battle casualties. A nation brags the fatalities were less than one percent in its sneak attack. A Pentagon statistician is surprised -- but pleased, of course -- that battle losses were 15 percent below informed estimates. Whoopee.

Ed is a statistic of the Vietnam war. He can't move his arms or legs and he is in a nursing home for life. The husband claims it is madness for a so-called civilized society to not only accept such a statistic, but to plan it, as though war were a parlor game and people were checkers.

There is too much talk about offensive and defensive capabilities, the husband insists, and not enough thinking about the people these capabilities can kill and maim. He is dismayed by the Reagan administration's eagerness to throw dollars at the Pentagon and furnish weapons to almost any nation that wants them.

On his darkest days, the husband thinks suffering and death from wars is as inevitable as suffering and death from old age. But he doesn't cry about it, because he knows there's nothing he can do about it.

Except he cried in the nursing home when he saw Ed's name on the birthday poster. For a few seconds, he was like his wife and he cared enough. He wept because he knew enough people will never care enough long enough. Statistics prove it.

Those who help

By Mike Ellasohn

It is almost 11 p.m. Saturday as I am typing this and the ambulance went by a short while ago, for at least its third run of the day.

The first time was shortly before 2 a.m., for that awful accident on Main Street in which six persons were injured. A miracle no one was killed and so senseless.

I haven't seen the police report yet, but it appears the root cause was drinking.

At best, the ambulance attendants and firemen who stood by at the accident scene maybe got an hour of sleep, if any at all, before getting ready for the parade and other festival activities.

At 12:15 p.m., there was another accident, on M-81, west of town, with five persons going to the hospital, though apparently one didn't need treatment. Again, firemen stood by and washed down the pavement after the cars were cleared away.

There were fires at 1 a.m. Sunday and another at 11 a.m.

Being a fireman or emergency medical technician isn't an easy job. They get paid, but it isn't that much, and isn't enough to make up for lost sleep and interrupted meals, family activities and work.

It's also hard to get volunteers. Firemen have especially been short-handed during weekday daytime fires, when many are at work outside of town or have jobs they can't leave.

It's always the other guy whose house burns or is in an accident, but when it isn't the other guy, it's nice to know the firemen and ambulance personnel are there. Too bad there aren't more of them.

It's also nice to know there were persons willing to spend a lot of time planning the Fourth of July Festival.

The returns, so to speak, aren't in yet as I write this, but once again, it appears everything went well.

The crowds were probably about the same as last year and presumably everyone had a good time. If they didn't, shame on them.

To use a cliché, there was something for everybody, and without trying to sound like a Free Press reporter -- heaven forbid! -- it was a nice, traditional Fourth of July celebration.

The weather could have been better in the afternoon, but it could have been worse. Fortunately, it didn't rain hard enough or long enough to spoil anything very long, even the tractor pull. Tractors don't work too well in the mud.

Other than that minor exception, that makes three years in a row the weather has cooperated.

Unfortunately, the calendar hasn't been as cooperative. The first year's festival was most successful in terms of turnout, partially because it was new, but also, apparently, because the festival was on a Wednesday.

It appears turnout is less when the festival is part of a three-day week end. That even applied this year, when many persons had Friday or Monday off from work.

There was also more competition on the 4th this year than there was the first year. There were events taking place both in Caro and Owendale Saturday, plus others in the upper Thumb.

The next time July 4 will not be part of a three-day week end is 1984. Hopefully, there will be a July 4th festival again. To continue will mean more persons getting involved in putting on the event, instead of merely attending it.

Most of those who have borne the brunt of the burden so far have full-time jobs to attend to and rightfully would like some others to take over the reins. Hopefully, others will.

Postage rates

Remember when it cost 3 cents to mail a letter?

A review of the history of first class letter rates shows the cost has climbed at a steady rate.

They started out at 2 cents in 1885, went to 3 cents in 1917, back to 2 cents in 1919 (the only time they decreased), and up again to 3 cents in 1932. In 1958, it cost 4 cents; 1963, 5 cents; 1968, 6 cents; 1971, 8 cents; 1974, 10 cents; 1975, 13 cents; 1978, 15 cents, and this year, 18 cents. It may go to 20 cents soon.

FOUR INJURED -- The car driven by Paul Dow (left) suffered the most damage when it ran into the car driven by Paula Martin, who was making a U-turn, according to Caro state police. Four persons were injured in the Saturday accident.

July 4 holiday marred by carnage on area highways

Timothy Berlin, 8099 W. Sanilac Road, was taken to Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital where he died at 2:38 p.m., deputies said.

He was riding his bike west on M-46, when a van driven by Gerald Dunn of Marysville hit him, west of Bradleyville Road in Denmark township, deputies said.

DRIVER KILLED

Scott Ackerman, 18, of Unionville, was killed about 2:30 a.m. Sunday in an accident a half-mile south of Sebawaing.

Huron county deputies said he was southbound on Liken Road at a high rate of speed when his car went off the road on a curve.

The vehicle traveled 188 feet, then became airborne, crossed Myers Road and crashed into the south ditch bank, then traveled 16 more feet before coming to rest on a lawn.

The victim was a 1981 graduate of Unionville-Sebawaing High School.

Ackerman is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ackerman; a sister, Valerie (Mrs. Roland) Jamieson, Cass City, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Alegria, Akron.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT

Another accident occurred Saturday when an Uby woman backed into a parked vehicle in the parking lot at the Cass City Recreational Park.

Susie L. Radar, 17, of 5425 Cumber Road, hit a parked car owned by Alan L. Rochefort of Bad Axe as she was backing out of a parking spot near Rose and Ale Streets, according to Cass City police.

Week-end tragedies in Tuscola county brought the number of traffic fatalities to nine, compared to ten in the county as of July 9, 1980.

State-wide, there have been 12 traffic fatalities so far this month, with a total of 678 so far for the year. As of this date last year, there were 803 traffic fatalities recorded in Michigan.

At Owendale

Crowds flock to firemen's fete

The Owendale Fire Department 25th anniversary celebration over the July 4th week end was an artistic success, but not a financial one.

"I think we're going to come out a few hundred dollars in the hole," said chairman Walt Howard.

The firemen's only money maker was supposed to be the beer tent, but the poor turnout Friday ruined the chances for making a profit or at least breaking even. Turnout was better Saturday and Sunday nights, with the biggest crowd being on the final night.

Firemen were hoping to make money to buy a power takeoff driven pump for the tanker truck.

Other than the beer tent,

Howard said the festival events drew a good turnout.

The Saturday morning parade had 80 entries, with the following winners: best float, Satow's Home of Fine Furnishings; Sebawaing; best musical entry, Owendale-Gagetown High School band; most humorous entry, Wickes Agriculture, Owendale; and best fire apparatus, Oliver Township Fire Department.

At the afternoon water ball contest, the winning fire department in the men's division was Crosswell, with defending champion Kinde second and Owendale No. 1 team third.

Kinde was first in the women's division; Bay Port, second, and Owendale, No. 1, third.

Saginaw youth dies in swim accident

A swim with friends ended tragically for a 16-year-old Saginaw youth at Anderson Park in Vassar township Sunday.

Michael A. Patterson had been swimming for about 30 minutes with four friends in the gravel pit-swimming area on Washburn Road when he became exhausted and went under water at approximately 7 p.m. He apparently swam past a lined-off area into water 20 feet deep, where a friend who was with him was unable to help him, Tuscola county deputies said.

Divers from the sheriff's department and Caro Police Department searched for 15 minutes before recovering his body at 7:53 p.m.

A Vassar ambulance took Patterson to Caro Community Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

HEALTH TIPS

Elderly need less calories for health

Frank Chappell
Science News Editor
AMA

Nutrient requirements of elderly adults are basically those of younger adults, but fewer calories are needed. Foods high in proteins, minerals and vitamins should be chosen by older people so that the reduced food intake will provide the needed nutrients. Such factors, says an American Medical Association pamphlet, as decreased activity, chronic illness, decreased sensitivity to taste and smell, loss or impairment of teeth, and inadequate income may affect the eating habits of an older adult.

Some elderly people simply do not eat enough; calorie and nutrient intakes are too low to maintain health.

Many older people reduce intake of meat without increasing consumption of other protein-rich foods. Calcium and iron intakes are sometimes too low. Milk, cheese, or yogurt should be regular features of the diet of older individuals, because they are excellent sources of protein and calcium.

Iron needs can be met by using lean meats, egg yolks, green leafy vegetables, and whole-grain or enriched breads and cereals. Fruits and vegetables are needed each day, for their vitamin C, vitamin A and fiber content.

Those concerned about the cost of food find that there are many ways to obtain foods high in nutrients and low in cost.

For example, canned evaporated milk and nonfat dry milk have the same protein and calcium value as that of fresh fluid milk, and frequently can be substituted for fresh milk in cooking and baking.

The large packages of non-perishable items like sugar, flour, and rice are generally less expensive per pound than are the small packages, and do not lose nutritive value during storage of several months.

Low-cost cuts of meat and fish are as high in nutritive value as are the more expensive items. Thrifty buys are usually available on stew meats, pot roasts, liver, variety meats, and fresh fish in season.

Bean queen candidates needed

The Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee is making preparations for the 1981 Bean Queen Contest.

The committee is accepting nominations from individuals, groups and organizations who wish to sponsor a candidate for the 1981 contest. The deadline for entering is July 20.

Monday evening, July 27, the contestants will be asked to meet at the County Farm Bureau Building in Caro, where they will be provided with a dinner and be interviewed.

Naming of the 1981 Tuscola County Queen will take place Wednesday evening, Aug. 5, during the Tuscola County Fair.

Bean queen entry blanks are available at the Farm Bureau office and Extension office in Caro.

Bean queen committee members are Ed and Connie Spannagel of Unionville, Mark and Rachel Schiefer of Frankenmuth and Ken and Andrea Hofmeister of Gagetown. Roy and Elaine Hickley of Fairgrove are helping the committee in an advisory capacity.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Stacy Leigh Chappel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Leigh Chappel of Marlette, born July 4 at Hills and Dales General Hospital, was the hospital's only bicentennial baby.

Cass City's new $2,200 fire whistle went into operation Tuesday night. It's installed above the Elkland Township Fire Hall and will be used for fire, tornado, and air raid warnings. This new one replaces the 50-year-old siren which wore out.

TEN YEARS AGO

With the change in the money market and easing of mortgage rates, Cass City has experienced a 150 percent increase in the total dollar value of area construction in a comparison of building permits issued from July 1970 to July 1971 and those issued from July 1969 to July 1970.

Crowds of young persons ranging from an estimated 4,000-7,000, kept police busy all week end with about 75 officers pressed into service at Caseville.

A proposed plan for a park in downtown Cass City received unanimous approval by the Chamber of Commerce during a special meeting at the Cultural Center.

This Fourth of July week end was exceptionally quiet as far as Tuscola county and the Cass City area were concerned. Accidents were held to a minimum and the area seemed to take a mid-summer breather.

Celebrations and parades put Cass City on map

Editor, Cass City Chronicle,
It is not my intention to take away the glory or recognition from the people who worked hard to make the Fourth of July festival a huge success and homecoming. Well done!

However, I do feel that Cass City was very much on the map long before these past three years.

I would just like to remember that there were some years when many citizens of the community and yes, the Chamber of Commerce also did sponsor big celebrations.

Yes, we did have "just nifty" parades with good bands leading out. Fire trucks, antique cars, horse clubs, many excellent floats with lovely young queens. One float which I remember and have a picture of was the late, very gracious Mrs. Knapp, then a senior citizen riding proudly on the Rotary Club float.

The girl scout float with its thousands of green and gold flowers made to make the girl scout emblem, by the girls. The young girl scout who sliced a chunk out of her finger cutting wire for the flowers on that float. Yes, the boy scouts were there, the steam engines, the square dancers, and all that makes up just a "nifty parade."

I am sure without mentioning any names, parents and community crews will remember how long their legs and bones were weary from hoisting tents in the park to house 4-H exhibits and concession stands. The hours that were put into preparing food and working those concession stands, the after hours put into the final clean up and all the chores that go with it.

Lest we forget, Cass City has been on the map for quite some years. Have had some great celebrations in the past and now I would like to say "God bless America" and "God bless Cass City" and may there be many more great celebrations and "nifty parades."

Sincerely,
Cass City Festival Committee
Tom Herron,
chairman

Cass City youth elected regional FFA president

Six officers and a candidate for regional office from the Cass City High School Future Farmers of America chapter attended the leadership camp June 29-30 at Central Michigan University.

The candidate, Scott Hobart, returned as FFA Region 7 president.

The officers who attended were Brian Moore, president; Kim Sangster, vice-president; Brian Stine, secretary; Mark Merchant, treasurer; Joe Kappen, reporter, and Terry Sweeney, sentinel.

They attended the camp to learn how to be better officers and to develop public speaking abilities and leadership abilities and other skills.

The first day, the region was split into four divisions, with each chapter having three officers give extemporaneous speeches. The best speaker from each division competed for the regional title, which, along with a trophy, went to Scott Hobart.

A representative of each chapter had to give a speech about the things the chapter did during the past year or the chapter had to do a skit about FFA. There was also a facts quiz in which everyone participated. A wrong answer and the person was out of the quiz.

The camp participants interviewed the candidates for regional offices and listened to the speeches they gave.

Officers were then elected with Hobart chosen president. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hobart of Hobart Road, Gagetown.

Also at the camp, such games as egg toss, swimming relays and volleyball were played.

July 4th Festival Very enjoyable

Everyone seemed to enjoy this year's 4th of July Festival, Margaret Brown of Cass City said.

"Everyone had a wonderful time, cars were coming and going all day," she said, adding the rain didn't seem to stop people. "The kids especially seemed to get wet and then just dry off and enjoy themselves."

Mrs. Brown worked at the Order of the Eastern Star concession stand most of the day, attending the square dance at the pavilion in the evening. "Last year I didn't miss a thing, but this year I worked most of the day."

"I think we did well," she said, explaining the Lions were sending patrons to the Eastern Star booth when they ran out of chicken.

There was quite a crowd at the pavilion for the square dance, with as many squares of dancers as could fit under the pavilion, the retired teacher continued. Mrs. Brown, who didn't dance, but watched the demonstration, said she especially enjoyed that part of the festival.

The former sixth grade teacher at Cass City Intermediate School hopes the festival will continue. "I think there are a lot of people who care about the festival," she said, admitting there are also a lot who don't or can't do the work of organizing it. "That's true of any endeavor though, only a few do the work."

Mrs. Brown missed the parade, but said "my family saw it and thought it was lovely." The only complaint they had about the parade, she said, was there weren't enough horses.

She and her husband, Hazen, live at 7181 Walter Road. The couple has three daughters and five grandchildren. One of their daughters lives in Fenton, and came home for the festival, she said.

9 arraigned on criminal charges in Circuit Court

Nine persons appeared before Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick F. Joslyn on criminal charges Tuesday, with five pleas of guilty and two pleas of not guilty entered.

A plea of guilty was accepted from Joseph J. Van-

Sickle, 19, of Drayton Plains, on charges of breaking and entering and larceny in a building. Bond was continued at $10,000, with sentencing date to be set.

Merchandise stolen from a Deford home on or about June 22, 1980, was found in VanSickle's car several months ago by West Branch police who caught the suspect attempting to break and enter a home in that area. Over $6,700 worth of possessions was taken from the Albert Curtis home, 1525 Kingston road, last year.

One of the St. Clair Shores men believed to be involved in the June 3 break-in of the Cass City Gun Club also entered a plea of guilty.

A sentencing date will be set for Jody L. Miller, 21, whose $25,000 bond was continued on charges of larceny in a building.

Miller was linked to the gun club break-in after Im-lay City police stopped him and Robert Weber, another suspect in the case, for a routine traffic violation. Beer, candy, snacks and soft drinks from the club were found in Miller's car by the officers.

Raymond J. Johnson, 19, of 3030 Leix Road, Caro, entered a plea of guilty to receiving and concealing stolen property over $100. The charge involved a March 16 jewelry larceny from the home of Gary Fulgham in Almer township.

The plea was accepted, bond continued and a sentencing date will be set.

A Millington man was fined $150 in costs after pleading guilty to distributing marijuana. Paul Henshaw, 21, 4525 E. Main Street, stood mute as his plea was accepted by the court.

Two men were arraigned on charges of breaking and entering and larceny of a Gilford township store June 7.

John J. Chvatal, 20, of Reese, pleaded not guilty to the charges; James B. Nash, of St. Petersburg, Fla., arraigned on the same charges, pleaded guilty.

Bond was continued for both at $3,000 for the case involving a store on Bradleyville and Gilford Road.

A sentencing date will be set for Nash, while Chvatal, 1645 Meadow Lane, will appear for a pre-trial hearing

July 13.

Also pleading not guilty was Kenneth Causey, 18, of Caro. Causey is charged with assaulting a woman at the Caro Regional Center May 23.

A request for a forensic examination of Causey was granted by the court, with a preliminary hearing to be set later.

A motion for a new trial made by a Caro man was denied, but his request for a polygraph examination was granted.

Joseph J. Wenta, 23, 1405 Oak Ridge Drive, was found guilty of delivering marijuana May 16, 1980 in Indianfields township. A sentencing date will not be set however until after the polygraph examination.

Sentencing was also delayed for a Detroit man, whose $5,000 bond was continued for one year, pending appeal.

Michael G. Jone, 31, was found guilty, in a May trial, of carrying a concealed weapon in Indianfields township July 3, 1980.

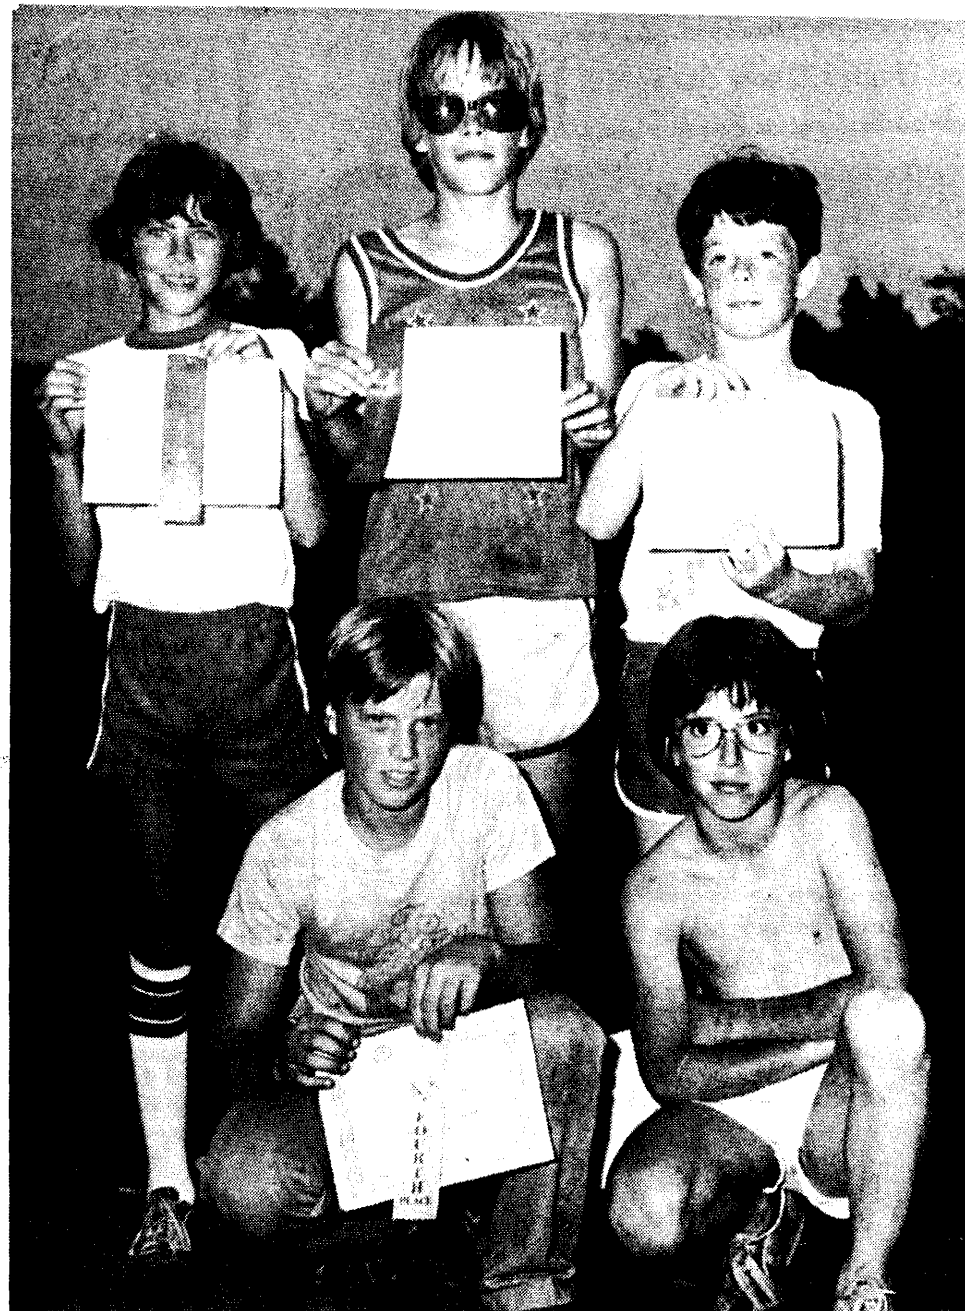

Gagetown awards contract

The Gagetown Village Council accepted a bid from Cove's Sanitation in Bad Axe Monday.

The company will pick up the village's rubbish for $375 a month, village clerk Elery Sontag said.

In other action, the council agreed to build a driveway for Mrs. Torres behind ST & H Oil Co. on State Street.

A motion to buy paint for the town hall and old pump house was also approved at the meeting.

New Cass City doctor likes small towns and fresh air

Dr. Doo Sup Lah, Cass City's new pediatrician, had been in town less than a week when he began seeing patients July 1 in his new office in the Hills and Dales Medical Center across from the hospital.

Lah, who specializes in baby and child medicine, completed his three-year pediatric residency at the Lincoln Medical Center in New York City just before coming to Cass City.

"Dr. (Sang) Park invited me to come here and start my practice," he said, explaining the two met while both were at the Lincoln Medical Center.

States after his discharge in 1976.

When he has time, Lah likes to play tennis, travel and watch sports like baseball. Mrs. Lah is a pianist, with a music degree from Seoul National University.

Sheriff's employees are continuing to work under provisions of their old contract, which expired June 30.

Due to the death of my husband, I will sell the following personal property at public auction located at 4671 South Street in Gagetown, 2 blocks west of the fire hall, across from the Catholic Church:

Dr. Doo Sup Lah

Lah, who was raised in Seoul, South Korea, was surprised when he got to Cass City. "It's not as small as I expected," he admitted. The newcomer said he noticed right away how calm it is here, how fresh the air is and how nice the people are.

Young Hee Lah, his wife, especially likes small, rural communities where it's not "too crowded and there's not too much crime." The Lahs, who are renting a home on Church street, have two children, Benjamin, 5 and Carol, 9 months.

Prior to his residency at Lincoln Medical Center, Lah spent a year of "rotating internship" at the Jewish Memorial Hospital in New York City.

The 34-year-old doctor attended medical school at Seoul National University, graduating in 1973. He then put in his compulsory time in the Korean Army as a doctor, moving to the United

Kids flock to Festival games in record numbers

A RAINBOW FULL OF COLORS was this painter's picture at the Deford Community Church sponsored paint-in Saturday.

HUMAN WHEELBARROWS were among the sights to see on the football field Saturday as children of all ages competed for prizes. This combination didn't win the 9-10 year-old division, but they made a valiant attempt on the soggy field.

5-mile fun run a breeze for 66-year-old Mozdzen

Adolph Mozdzen started running at 62 and hasn't stopped since.

At 66, the former Deford area farmer was the oldest competitor to compete -- and finish -- in the five mile run conducted as part of the Cass City Fourth of July Festival Saturday.

Not only did he run, so did three of his sons, Mark, of Deford, Alvin, Lapeer, and Jerry, Evert.

According to their father, he started running first. Now a resident of Lithia, Fla., most of the year, he started when he retired.

"I had a little high blood pressure and it all went down," he said. Not only has his blood pressure declined, so has his cholesterol level and he no longer gets cramps in his legs. "I feel good."

The retiree runs at least one mile a day. He likes to run before breakfast and he likes to run fast. "It gets your heart pumping . . . bang, bang, bang. You can make it stronger."

Mozdzen, who completed the distance in about 45 minutes, first ran last year, when he competed in the 3.1 mile event.

In addition to those children already mentioned, he and his wife, Jennie, have four other children, Ronald, who now runs the farm, and Eddie, also of Deford and daughters Julie Mozdzen and Margie Veldman, all of Deford.

Their father is trying to convince them to start running.

He has already had some success with the third generation of the family. Grandchildren Craig Mozdzen, 5 (Alvin's son), and Lynette Veldman, 10, are runners.

The children's games conducted Saturday afternoon as part of the Fourth of July Festival drew about 200 participants, according to chairman Dave Lovejoy.

That was the most ever, he said, one reason being there was a public address system used for the first time to summon children to participate.

In most divisions, there was more than one winner due to heat races being conducted with no runoffs to determine an overall winner. First place winners are as follows:

Sack race -- Andrea Kiser, Taera Izydorek, Jill Christner, Jill Wright.

YOU CAN BANK on It!

Q. I want to determine personal net worth. How do I go about it?

A. Personal net worth is the dollar value that remains after subtracting your total liabilities from your total assets. Figure your assets first. List the amount of cash you have at home and in checking accounts. Record savings accounts and the value of any US savings bonds. Include cash values of life insurance policies and pension or profit-sharing plans (today's value). List separately current market values of other things you own: a home, other real estate, stocks, cars, boats, business interests, personal belongings, appliances, jewelry and household furnishings. The total equals your assets. For liabilities, list all the debts you have, including current bills and tax liabilities as well as bank notes and installment debts. August 15 target date for public transportation in Thumb

Buses may be rolling in Sanilac and Huron counties by Aug. 10, but they won't be the traditional yellow ones seen in the upper Thumb.

That is the latest target date for the start of the public transportation system to serve residents of those counties.

Tuscola county won't be included because its board of commissioners didn't want the county to eventually have to pick up part of the tab.

It is conceivable, however, the buses may stop in Cass City.

Aug. 15, if the target date is met, will be the beginning of a 3-month start-up period, according to Sanilac County Administrator John C. Dean, who has been overseeing the program until a manager is hired.

The Huron-Sanilac Transportation Board Authority board was expected to have done that this Wednesday.

It was also expected Gov. William G. Milliken by then will have signed the agreement between the state and the two counties. The state will be paying the total cost (except for fares) the first two years for operating the system.

One of the delays was because the resolutions approved by the two county boards authorizing the chairman to sign the agreement weren't worded identically, so the procedure had to be done over.

Possibly during the first three months, Dean said, service will be limited to clients of human service agencies, such as mental health and Huron County Sheltered Workshop.

When the radio communication equipment is ready, the buses will begin picking up the public. That will be no later than Nov. 10 -- if the Aug. 10 deadline is reached -- "and hopefully much sooner."

SERVICE

The system will have 12 14-15 passenger buses running, plus three on standby. Five of the buses are presently being used by the two counties' mental health agencies, which will turn them over to the transit authority.

Some of the 12 buses at any time will be running on regular routes, while others will provide pick-up service at homes, provided the passenger makes arrangements at least 24 hours in advance.

The home pick-up buses may take passengers to their destination or it may take them to the nearest fixed route, depending on time and other circumstance.

A passenger living in Greenleaf township who has a doctor's appointment in Sandusky, for instance, may be taken directly from his home to the doctor's office or to catch the fixed route bus. If they live on or close to the fixed route, they may be expected to take that bus.

Service hours will be 6 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Saturdays. The buses will be available for charter Sundays.

Projected fares, which may increase before service begins, are 60 cents for a one-way trip within a county and half that for senior citizens and the handicapped.

If the passenger goes from one county to the other, then he or she will pay $1.40, or 80 cents for senior citizens and the handicapped.

FUNDING

Fares will only pay a small portion of the operating cost.

The state is providing a total of $2.3 million for the first two years, which includes the cost of buses and other equipment, which will cover the entire cost of operations, except for the fares.

Estimated annual operating cost is $600,000, of which an estimated $102,500 will come from fares the first year; $121,200 the second year, and $128,300, the third.

The third year, under the agreement between the state and the two counties, Lansing will pay 75 percent of the cost and Huron and Sanilac, 25 percent.

Counted in the local share will be the amount raised from fares including money paid by human service agencies to the transit authority for transporting their clients.

Starting the fourth year, the state is to pay 50 percent and the two counties, the rest.

It is hoped, according to Dean, fares will pay almost the entire local share.

If after the first 18 months, the bus service isn't meeting with much success with the public, the two counties can notify the state they won't pick up the local share and the service will end at the end of two years.

The same arrangement will be in effect at the end of three years.

PERSONNEL

The transit system will be hiring about 12 full-time employees -- drivers, dispatcher, manager, book-keeper and mechanics, plus some part-time.

Dean said he already has a big stack of applications, but persons interested in applying can send applications to the Huron or Sanilac County board of Commissioners.

The start of the bus service, he explained, has had numerous delays because of government red tape.

For instance, assigning of radio frequencies not only had to be approved by the Federal Communications Commission, they also had to have the okay of the Canadian government because the transmissions might be heard in that country.

Original planning for an upper Thumb bus service began about 1975, but came to a halt after the Tuscola county board decided it didn't want to participate because of the required local share funding. The project, obviously, was later revived, with Tuscola commissioners again deciding not to participate.

CLEANING UP -- State highway roadsides in Tuscola county will be cleaner this summer, due to the efforts of, from left, John Wiacek, Dean Prime and Dennis Hogan, plus Ronald Dennis and Tom Taylor, employed in a state Department of Transportation summer program. June 26, they were picking up trash along M-81, east of Cass City.

Galaxy of farm equipment at MSU Ag Expo '81

Ag. Expo '81 takes place July 21-23 at Michigan State University.

"Just about any type of farm equipment, supply or service needed for a farm production system will be displayed during those three days," said William C. Bickert, chairman of the event.

Examining the array of farm machinery components and discussing machine capabilities with manufacturing representatives and MSU specialists may assist farmers in their quest for production efficiency.

The primary Expo site will be located at Mt. Hope Road and Farm Lane, close to the central MSU campus. A 30-acre tract adjacent to a paved parking area will hold more than 240 national farm machinery manufacturers' displays and agribusiness exhibits.

The full range of commercial exhibits includes such items as tractors; buildings; tillage, forage, and grain and livestock handling equipment; irrigation systems; animal feeding apparatus; storage facilities; fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides, and planting and harvesting equipment.

Educational activities include tours of MSU research farms, computer demonstrations, a farm problem trouble-shooting clinic; displays on energy conservation, drainage planning and 4-H youth activities, and antique machinery collections. There will also be demonstrations of old steam engines.

Augmenting these activities will be field demonstrations on land improvement, including tile drainage installation, waterway construction and land contouring. This segment of Expo is being organized by the Michigan Land Improvement Contractors' Association.

Free bus service will be available from the main Expo site to the field demonstrations.

Tillage demo at Caro area farm

Most agronomists agree that conservation tillage is not for all farmers all of the time and that growers shouldn't jump into it with both feet.

Yet the practice has merit for most Michigan farms. The degree to which conservation tillage is feasible in the Saginaw Valley will be demonstrated at a field day in Tuscola county Aug. 10.

The program, beginning at 10 a.m., is to be conducted at the Paul Findlay farm, 4 miles north of Caro at the intersection of Luder and Dutcher Roads.

The demonstration site covers 20 acres and contains crop emergence comparisons under conventional and conservation tillage field practices. The crops to be seen include sugarbeets, corn and dry edible beans.

Commercial farm exhibits and educational displays will augment the program. "Conservation tillage is usually not thought adaptable to the heavy soil that is common throughout the Saginaw Valley," says Michael Score, Cooperative Extension Service agricultural agent in Tuscola county.

"However, our trials indicate that to a significant degree, the system can be used and, in the long run, saves money," Score adds.

For the past year, Score has been cooperating on the conservation tillage project with the MSU Agricultural Experiment Station, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and the Soil Conservation Service in Tuscola county. Also involved in the project is the East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region.

It will be pointed out during the day's program that all conservation tillage systems require a higher level of managerial skills than conventional tillage. Farmers making a change in tillage systems need to recognize this point and think it through carefully.

In a time of dwindling, expensive energy resources and rising production costs, conservation tillage is worth looking into. The field day provides growers an opportunity to do so.

Leaflets describing the event may be obtained at county extension offices.

RINGS AND THINGS were some of the many items to tempt a festival-goer in the arts and crafts building. The building was open all day, with a flea market and antique sale outside to tempt those passing by.

Missing Cass City band sour note to successful festival appointed" when three groups scheduled to be in the parade, cancelled -- including the Cass City High School marching band.

"Evidently not enough students showed up to practice," Klico said, explaining there were no percussionists, so the band couldn't march. "I heard a lot of comments about them not marching. I was quite upset about that, especially with the millage (election) coming up."

The parade lasted 65 minutes and featured more antique cars and fewer horses and children on bikes than last year. Klico said they tried to get more local people to come out, groups with horses for instance, but couldn't get them. "My own thinking is that we need to see more Cass City people get involved." He described he and Weaver as "happy" with how it went.

AFTER THE PARADE, the crowds went to the park for an afternoon of games, food and activities.

One annual festival activity, planned to be held all week end, was a softball tournament. "Three teams called Tuesday and cancelled out," chairman Jack Hillaker said. "I called and couldn't get any other teams to come."

Last year, the Jaycees sponsored the softball tournament, but this year the Osentoski Realty softball team was sponsoring it. The trophies were already ordered and paid for, so they may organize another tournament, he said.

Children gathered to play a variety of games often in pouring rain, but attendance seemed down at the usually-popular tractor pull.

"The rain probably hurt us a little," co-chairman Dick Hampshire said, estimating the chamber probably lost "a couple hundred dollars" on the tractor pull. Final figures aren't in yet, he continued, but it definitely was not a money maker.

SOME CONCESSION stands, which will return a percentage of their profits to the Chamber of Commerce, were hindered by rain.

The Lions Club, which began serving barbecued chicken at 11 a.m., ran out at 4 p.m., Don Erla said. "Last year we didn't wrap until 10 p.m.," he said, admitting the lower price and better location this year helped.

Erla estimates the club served over 1,000 dinners, but didn't make as much money as last year because they lowered the price by $1.

The Rotary Club, which served an estimated 250 pancake breakfasts Saturday morning, did a little better than last year with the breakfasts, but not with the other meals. About 1,500 lunches and dinners were served, Dick Erla estimated, a slight decrease from last year because of the rain.

VILLAGE SUPERINTENDENT Lou LaPonsie said the groups did a "good job" cleaning up. "There were no problems at all," he said. The summer park crew, including three employees and the department of public works superintendent worked Saturday, emptying trash barrels and keeping things clean.

LaPonsie said he did receive several complaints at his home Saturday night that the beer tent was too loud, but other than that things went well.

There was a lot more cooperation this year than last year, getting things set up the night before and cleaning up, Herron said. "We were really surprised at the number of citizens that showed up. Things were much easier than last year."

"I think everybody's satisfied, things went well," he continued, predicting there will be a festival next year.

Next year, July 4th is on a Sunday, so the committee will have to decide whether to have the festival on Saturday or Sunday, Herron said.

Dedication of the historical marker at the 100-year-old Cultural Center took place Saturday morning before the start of the July 4th parade.

The honor of officially dedicating the plaque fell to the recently crowned Miss Michigan, Gwen Brown.

The invocation was given by Rev. P. Thomas Wachterhauser, of the Trinity United Methodist church.

Brief remarks were given by State Rep. Loren Armbruster, R-Caro, Village President Lambert Althaver and Elkland Township Supervisor Jack Gallagher.

Master of ceremonies was Jack Esau, president of the Cass City Area Historical Society, which paid $500 to have the bronze plaque made. The Cultural Center has been listed on the state's historical register since August, 1979.

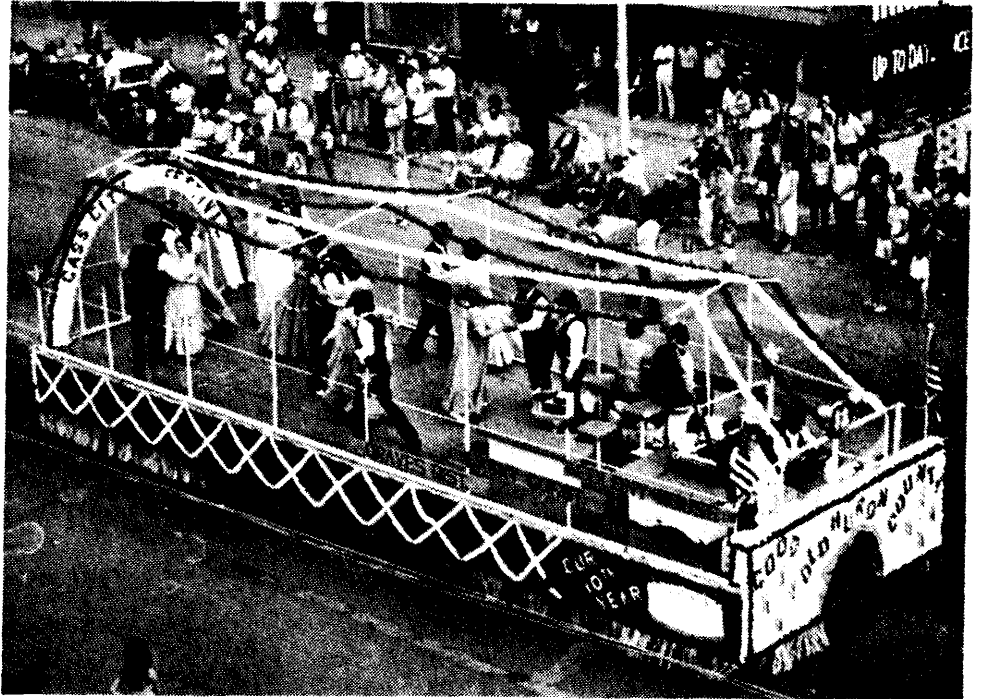

Special guests were Fred Jaus of Bad Axe, a former Cass Cityan who was born the year the building was constructed, and Eleanore Dillman of Zephyrhills, Fla., who gave the carriage owned by her grandfather, Jake Striffler, to the Historical Society for safekeeping.

Striffler purchased it about 1900.

She and Jaus rode to the ceremonies in the carriage, driven by Jim Milligan, who owned the team of ponies pulling it. Esau was also a passenger.

HEE HAW! - Area square dancers demonstrated their moves in Saturday's parade. Square dancers also held a dance Saturday night at the park pavilion and gave demonstrations.

DANCING "9 TO 5" was the way to make a Cass City Festival queen Friday when 15 girls competed for the honor of reigning over this year's festivities. This dance, to Dolly Parton's song, was the talent competition.

THREE-WHEELING -- Allen Childs of Munger started his run in the 1,750-pound mini-tractor class Saturday with four wheels, but came to a premature halt when he lost one of them.

SCOTCH PLAID -- The Windsor, Ont., Police Pipe Band was one of three Scottish bands marching in the Cass City parade Saturday.

Top Quality competition 7th annual summer cage tournament starts Friday

Cass City has been the winner or the runner-up in all seven of the summer tournaments held at Cass City but the odds are that the record will be shattered this week end.

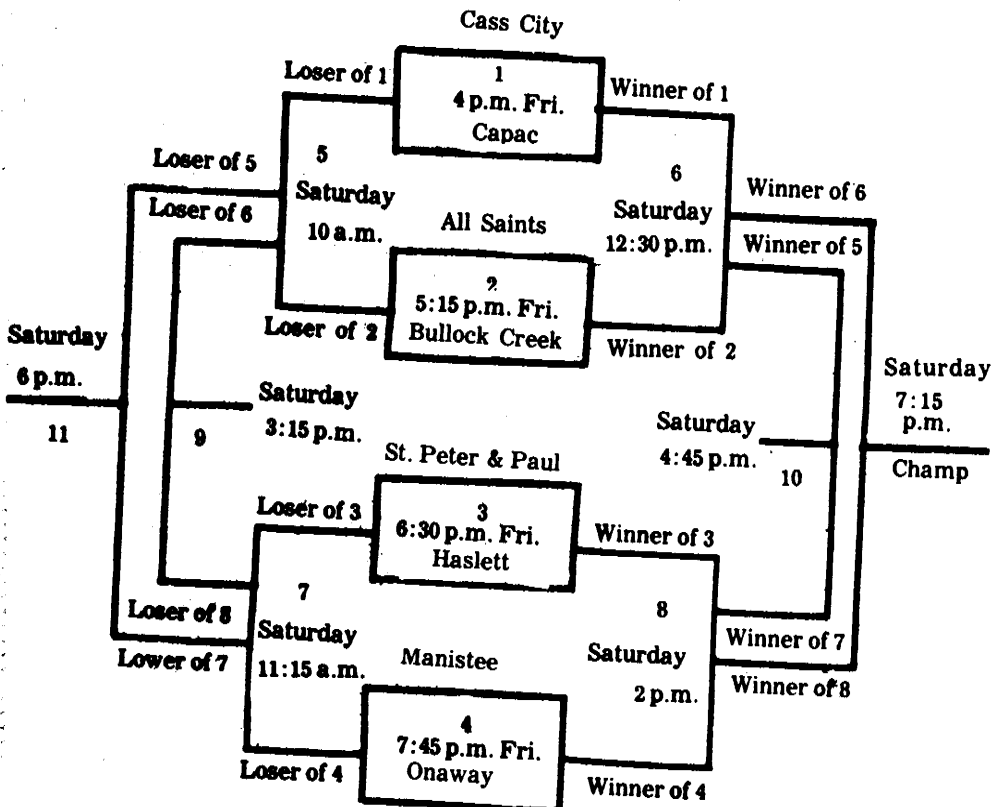

Coach Ron Nurnberger's charges are in the midst of a rebuilding year. In games this summer the squad has shown sound defense but has been unable to generate much in the way of point production.

Couple that with the traditional strong teams that participate in the tournament and it's easy to see rough water ahead for the Hawks.

New to the tournament this year is Class A Midland Bullock Creek and Class C Capac.

Tough Saginaw SS Peter & Paul and Bay City All Saints will be joined by Manistee, Haslett and Onaway.

All Saints is the defending champion. Games start at 4 p.m. Friday, the first of four games that night. Saturday the action starts at 10 a.m. and continues through the championship contest that starts at about 7:15.
