(And anyone else he can get to help)

Golfing with Ed Pasant recently the subject turned from golf to other things. One of them was my status in Cass City. Pasant, a school teacher, is a recent arrival to the community. Are you a native? he asked. Naw, I said, I'm a comparative stranger. Only been here 30 years.

On M-32 west of Gaylord the road passes by three small lakes. Previously, the lakes were named by three signs erected, I guess, by the highway department.

This year all three signs are gone and I always wonder what happened. Has the department changed policy or have the lake dwellers decided no publicity is good publicity?

Anyway the lakes in question are Martin, Pettifor and West. (This IS a column of trivia.)

Things to do in the once is enough department: walk the Mackinac bridge.

On the 24th annual walk two daughters and I were among the 33,000 on the 5-mile trek. The youngest in the crowd had to be the baby in the stroller and the baby carried on the mother's back. Neither was over 6 months old.

Besides the babies there were walkers of all ages and physical condition including handicapped that were pushed by nurses or buzzing along on motorized wheel chairs. On the plus side it was a glorious day even at 7:30 in the morning. Just right for walking and then feeling virtuous after it was over.

The negative side? Overeating at the big brunch that followed, effectively negating whatever health benefit the walk produced.

Teen faces negligent homicide charge

Wanchai Simon, 17, of Hazel Park, was arraigned in Huron County District Court Friday on a charge of negligent homicide in connection with a July 5 accident that claimed two lives.

Killed were Mary Frederick, 56, of Leslie Road, Decker, a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Lloyd, and Irene M. Elliott, 62, of Hazel Park, a passenger in the car driven by Simon. Seven others were injured in the crash.

Judge John Schubel scheduled Simon's preliminary examination Sept. 17. He was released on personal recognizance bond.

The Huron County prosecutor's office issued the warrant charging the youth with the high misdemeanor Sept. 1.

The nighttime accident took place when the Frederick auto, southbound on M-53, was struck broadside by the car driven by Simon, who was eastbound on Sebawaing Road.

Bad Axe state police reported at that time that Simon had failed to stop for the stop sign.

Lots of cherries

Two hundred and seven million pounds of Michigan cherries were harvested last year. Tart cherries totaled 149 million pounds, valued at $30.4 million.

The Haire Net

Persons with a few nickels put away usually are applauding the tight money, high interest rates now prevailing.

Persons with big incomes are happy about the new tax exempt saving certificates.

There's another side to this that's not so rosy. That's in addition to the obvious effect on business that high interest has.

You read every day about the plight of the auto and building industry and that's bad. It's especially bad, of course, in Michigan.

The argument for the high rates is the curbing of inflation and let's hope that it works.

It hasn't worked up to now and if you follow the stock market you must conclude that Wall Street feels that "supply side" economics won't work either.

Besides the obvious effect on business, high interest rates are going to hurt local and state governments. They are driving up costs for schools.

That was brought home to me when I received a call from a stock broker the other day trying to sell me tax exempt school tax anticipatory notes for 10.6 per cent.

The schools are in the western side of the state.

When a broker draws my name out of hat to try and sell me school notes you know that there is trouble finding money at those rates.

Normally this money is loaned by banks and there is no trouble. Certainly if a broker is handling it he's getting a commission. And it goes without saying that if the school could borrow the money without resorting to a professional it would do so.

To tell what this really means you should look at the figures for Cass City. Last year the district borrowed money for 7.2 per cent. This year the cost is expected to

The extra 3.78 adds up. The school has authority to borrow up to $740,000. If it used the full line of credit, which it never has in the past, the cost to district taxpayers would be $2,331 per month more than the $4,448 per month the same amount would have cost in 1980-81.

There's no telling how much more the school will actually borrow this year because of variables that can only be estimated now.

What's sure is that it will increase the cost of doing school business just like it has the cost of living for you and me.

It's also certain that if the school had the cash in the bank as it did up to a year ago, the interest earned on the funds and the interest payments saved would have solved the problem that the school boosters are solving with projects and donations now.

Paying for spaying

By Jim Fitzgerald

Because there are too many dogs and cats, the Michigan House of Representatives is considering a bill offering citizens a cash incentive to have their pets spayed or neutered. There are also too many people. I wonder...

It's not a new idea for the government to pay citizens to do things that, in an ideal society, they'd do for free. If this were an ideal society, we wouldn't need parking meters.

For example, most everyone agrees school integration is a noble goal, but achieving it is a bumpy bus ride. In a desegregation plan suggested for St. Louis, the Reagan administration offered free college educations to youngsters who voluntarily participated in the bused integration of high schools. Anyone who has paid college tuition lately realizes this offer is worth thousands of dollars.

Motivation is the idea, and cash is motivating. So is candy, which costs cash. An experiment conducted recently by two Central Michigan University psychologists indicates school children do better on IQ tests if they are offered candy for correct answers. It would be nice if children - and adults - strived to excel just for the joy of excelling. It would also be nice if teachers never felt like turnkeys. But until the ideal society arrives, no one should be surprised that a kid will work harder for a lollipop in hand than an "A" in spelling.

And no one should be surprised that government is willing to pay people to be better citizens and spay their dogs. Any fool knows the money comes from the people in the first place. When a youngster receives a college education for riding a bus, or a lollipop for passing a test, the tab is paid by thee and me, dear. There is still no such thing as a free lunch, or a discount spaying.

The cheap spaying is advertised in Michigan House Bill No. 4485, which says the state, through a tax credit, will pay half the cost of sterilizing an individual citizen's dogs and cats. Naturally, the whopping cost to all taxpayers, including those who own no pets, is easily justified by the explanation that all citizens will benefit when the streets are wiped clean of excess dogs and cats. Also, I suppose, all taxpayers will benefit from the knowledge that they're helping to make thousands of veterinarians happy, not to mention rich.

OK. We have established that it's acceptable for government to use our money to bribe us to be good citizens. This isn't much different from government giving General Motors tax breaks - using our money to bribe GM to build factories in our backyard and hire us to be working citizens. Now let's move on to wiping the streets clean of excess people.

If government can pay citizens to limit the pet population, why not pay them to limit the people population? Most of the world's problems would be solved if there were fewer people to exhaust resources. Bob Myers, publisher of The Lapeer County Press, recently wrote that government programs such as Aid to Dependent Children encourage women to have children. He suggested the government make it equally attractive not to have children.

"It costs the government about $200,000 for the first 20 years of a child's life. That's for schooling and the child's share of various public services," Myers said. "So, at the age of 50, we'll give $200,000 to each woman who has had no children. That's half of what two kids would cost the government, so the government saves money and the woman gets a bundle. If she has one child, she gets $100,000."

You might think such a suggestion is silly or outrageous. On the other hand, you might be a government official, in which case you are salivating at the thought of the huge bureaucracy that would be required to police Myers' program and bring underground mothers to justice.

Onward and Upward, until the ideal civilization arrives, or at least until government pays you better for being better.

PEDALING AROUND

Rain, rain,
go away

By Mike Eliasohn

It is late Sunday afternoon as I am typing this and the sun is shining -- or at least trying to find an opening between the clouds.

How long ago has it been since the sun was last shining? Wednesday maybe or was it Thursday?

There has been an advantage to the cloudy skies. I haven't had any sunglasses to wear since someone sat on them Aug. 24 (which he would not have done had I not put them on the passenger seat). Since then, I haven't had much need for them.

For those of you who are wondering, I haven't bought new ones yet because the old ones are repairable if I can find a very tiny screwdriver.

As I recall, I bought these sunglasses to replace a pair I broke because I sat on them.

Other than not needing sunglasses, I can't think of an advantage of all the rain we have been having.

On second thought, yes I can. I got a couple of photographs out of it for this week's paper. At least I hope I did, since the film hasn't been developed yet. If it had been sunny, what would there have been to photograph?

Since I started typing this, the sun has disappeared and it looks like it is going to rain again.

To farmers watching your crops rot in the fields, my condolences. Hopefully, the sun will be shining and it will be HOT by the time you read this.

Three or four days without sunshine makes everyone gloomy, but for me, it is far from a record.

Where I was in Vietnam, a couple weeks could go by without the sun ever shining and when the sun wasn't shining, it was raining.

I was fortunate in that the compound in which I lived had concrete sidewalks, but step off the sidewalk and you could sink into a sea of mud. The treasured item to have under such conditions was a pair of rubber boots.

The regular canvas and leather jungle boots weren't designed to keep one's feet dry. The theory was that the poor GIs who had to slog through streams and rice paddies and down muddy jungle trails (fortunately, I wasn't one of them) were going to get their feet wet anyway. Thus the boots with their canvas sides and metal vent holes freely admitted water, but once out of the water, the wearer's feet would dry out faster.

That was fine for the "grunts" but for those of us back in the "trenches," rubber boots were the thing to have for sloshing between barracks, mess hall and office.

I did have a set of four or five buckle boots someone gave me, but they weren't in very good shape and eventually ripped beyond repair.

Of course, there were a few oddballs, like my friend "Louie." He loved to slosh through the mud, even if it was up to his knees. Given a choice between a dry sidewalk and a muddy path, he would take the mud.

If he survived the war and civilian life so far, he is probably a champion mud wrestler at some bar out west.

As for the Vietnamese peasants, they didn't worry when it rained. They wore rubber sandals and they didn't grow beans. Rice grows well when it's under water.

P.S. Since writing the above, I have fixed my sunglasses -- provided the glue holds.

I also talked to county Extension Director Bill Bortel about our Aug. 20 story headlined, "Farmers complain, too much rain."

The headline originally was to read, "Some farmers complain..." which would have been accurate as some had too much rain, but it was too long to fit the space. However, Bortel said, many farmers at that time still needed rain.

Unfortunately, now the headline would be very accurate.

WINNING FORM -- Kevin Robinson of Uby demonstrates his technique while on his way to winning class B of the first annual Uby Jaycees Labor Day weekend horseshoe pitching contest. Class A results were Richard Strohm, Deckerville, first; "Tiny" Paehlig, Deckerville, second, and Bill Garrick, Elkton, third.

THIRD PLACE in class B was Neil Maher of Port Sanilac. Waiting his turn is Glenn Vatter of Deckerville, who finished second. The event was postponed to Sunday as the horseshoe pits in the village park were under water Saturday.

Two law suits filed in traffic death

Two law suits have been filed in Tuscola County Circuit Court in connection with a March 22 traffic accident in which one person was killed and four injured.

The suits were filed by Barbara Jean Myers, of Unionville, as guardian for her two children, Leisha Ann and Robert J. Myers, 13 and 8 respectively at the time of the accident.

The two were passengers in a car driven by Laurel C. Miller, 36, of Unionville, who was killed.

The accident took place on Bay City-Forestville Road, about four miles east of Unionville.

Defendants in the suits are Richard K. Duke, then 37, of Akron, driver of the other vehicle involved, and Glen McCollum as representative of the estate of Mrs. Miller.

Agriculture, our state's second largest industry, is a productive, stabilizing influence on Michigan's economy. At least one of every three Michigan citizens receives some part of his income from agriculture.

Caro state police reported following the accident that she was eastbound on Bay City-Forestville Road, about four miles east of Unionville, and started to pass the pickup driven by Duke. He moved over into the west-bound lane and the two vehicles made contact.

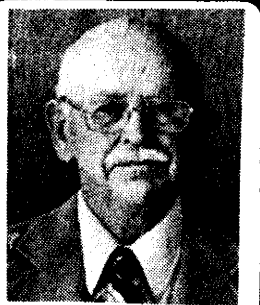

Mrs. Miller lost control and her car traveled 292 feet before slamming head-on into a tree.

The suit claims the two Myers children suffered injuries, including permanent impairment of body functions. It seeks from each defendant damages in excess of $10,000 "to which they are found to be entitled and costs and interest."

Less seriously injured in the crash were two other occupants of the Miller auto, her son, David, 5, and Darrell Myers, 14.

The two passengers in Duke's pickup were Michael Myers, 14, a brother of the other three, and Scott Miller, 14, a son of Mrs. Miller. No one in the truck was injured.

Silverware, ring stolen in area

A 12-piece silverware set valued at $200 and a $375 14 carat wedding ring with six diamonds were reported stolen last Wednesday from a home on River Road, south of Cass City.

The home's owner, John Mulrath of 6729 Third Street, told sheriff's deputies the items were stolen some time since Aug. 31.

Entry was gained by prying open a window and screen.

Dana L. Truemner of 6574 Huron Street told Cass City police Sunday morning that three spoke type wheel covers worth $80 each were stolen from his car. He said he heard a noise by his car at 1:30 a.m., looked out the window, but didn't see anything.

Village police made three arrests during the past week.

At 2:15 a.m. Sunday, they took Ronald D. Langmaid, 20, of 7705 Van Dyke Road into custody on a charge of driving with license suspended after stopping his car on Main Street because only one headlight was working.

At 9:35 p.m. Monday, they took Peter W. Kritzman, 41, of 3826 Van Dyke Road, Decker, into custody on the same charge after stopping his car on Seger Street because of a broken taillight. Both men were later released from the county jail, pending appearance in district court.

Dennis R. Karr, 19, of E. Cass City Road, Uby, was arrested at 2:40 p.m. Monday on a civil traffic warrant. He was taken into custody when spotted exiting his car on Huron Street. He was later released from jail after paying his bond.

Karen M. Harmon of 4360 Leslie Road, Decker, reported to Cass City police Monday afternoon that while following a vehicle on M-81, near Schwegler Road, a rock or other object flew from the vehicle. It struck her windshield, causing it to shatter.

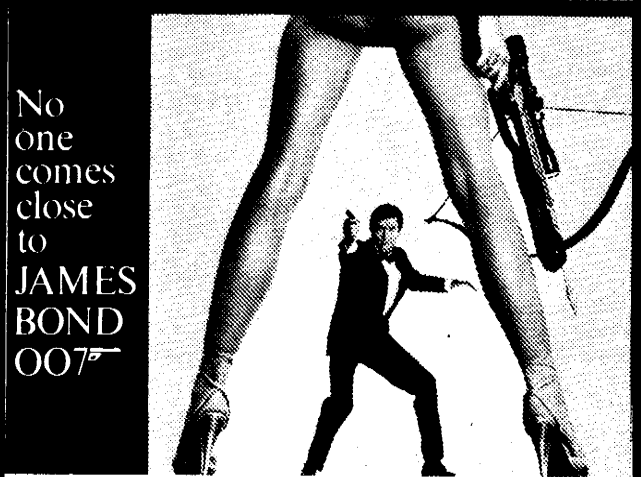

Paul A. Langlois of 6121 McGregory Road, Gagetown, reported to village police Friday night that someone broke off his car's antenna while it was parked behind The Station bar, 6444 Main Street, late Aug. 21 or early Aug. 22. Damage was $25.

HEALTH TIPS

When to call and not call the doctor

By Frank Chappell
Science News Editor
American Medical Association

Someone in the family is sick or injured. When does it become serious enough to call the doctor?

This question faces every family sooner or later. And there is no pat answer.

If the problem is a real emergency, such as a broken bone, severe bleeding, possible heart attack or stroke, diabetic coma, severe abdominal pain, the victim should be taken to the hospital, preferably in an ambulance attended by paramedics.

If you're unsure of the victim's condition, and the symptoms include pain, vomiting, diarrhea, difficulty in breathing, high fever, call the doctor, regardless of the hour. If the illness or injury is not severe, try to call the doctor during office hours.

If you must call the doctor at home, do not wait until late at night unless the victim's condition suddenly worsens.

It is very helpful when calling the doctor to be prepared to give specific information on symptoms, including temperature, pulse rate, number of loose watery stools, location of pain, age of victim.

If there is severe head, neck or back injury, allergic shock, drug overdose, unconsciousness, call an ambulance and head for the hospital. Most communities today have an ambulance service, and many are manned by paramedics trained to stabilize the victim before transporting.

Paramedics should not be called for minor illnesses or injuries such as sprained ankles, minor cuts, colds.

The American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care points out that no one can say what constitutes an emergency for another person.

If you will feel relieved by going to the hospital emergency room, go. Call ahead and tell them you are coming, and the nature of the emergency.

Emergency room treatment is generally more expensive than medical treatment in a doctor's office. Most hospitals will process insurance forms and many today will accept major credit cards.

New books at the library

AMAZING GRACE: John Newton's Story by John Pollock (non-fiction). Author Pollock recreates the early life of John Newton (1725-1807), the British slave trader turned minister who wrote the hymn "Amazing Grace." A ship captain's son, Newton spent more than 10 years at sea, eventually prospering as a slave trader along the African coast. He faced death at the hands of men and the elements many times, and decided only divine providence had spared him. Pollock traces the hymn writer's colorful sea adventures, his gradual religious awakening, and his eventual marriage to a childhood sweetheart. His inspiring account ends with a brief glimpse of Newton's subsequent career as a popular minister of the Church of England.

MASQUERADE by Kit Williams (fiction). An art book with the appeal of a children's fable that seems to be fascinating adults everywhere. Jack Hare is sent as a messenger by the Moon to her love, the Sun, with a jewel. Somewhere along the way the token is lost. An intriguing puzzle becomes apparent when the reader realizes that there are clues to the location of the jewel scattered throughout the book. The prize will belong to the first person who can locate the buried golden pendant.

APPLE CRUNCH by Frederic V. Huber (fiction). A very funny and exuberant novel about a master plan to bilk the city of New York out of $20 million by playing games with computers. Very quickly we learn the identity of the two computer experts who are behind it all, not just for the money but because they have real and terrible grudges against the city. We see how they put the scam into operation. The idea is to make off with essential information that will enable the city to acquire a huge federal loan. A ransom note is delivered to the mayor: pay up if you want your information back. There is a rip-roaring finale and the good guys win out. It's how they celebrate their victory that is a tantalizing surprise.

You can Bank on it!

Q. I'm seriously considering taking the "big plunge" and going into business for myself. I think I have an excellent product, the wherewithal to produce and market it, but little funding. What, frankly, is the best basis on which to approach and do business with a bank as a small business borrower?

A. According to many people in the industry, the answer to your question can be summed up in two words: Mutual trust. In initial dealings, honesty is, as always, the best policy. Afterward, you need to have enough trust in your banker to go to him with a problem. Likewise, your banker shouldn't panic if there is a downturn in your particular business, or you run into an unavoidable snag. How do you build this sort of relationship? Initially with good, solid, frank and honest conversation. Get to know your prospective banker, and let him get to know you. Then, keep the conversations going, whether things are going well, poorly or indifferently. Mutual trust, and the relationship built upon it, can be an invaluable business asset.

Your Neighbor says Detroit Lions should have a good season

The Detroit Lions' 24-17 win over San Francisco Sunday marked the beginning of what Marc Inbody feels will be a good year for the team.

"I think the Lions will do pretty good if nobody gets injured."

Contributing to the Lions' good fortunes, he feels, should be experience gained last year, the return of defensive tackle Doug English after a year's absence, and running back Billy Sims. "He's their whole backfield."

The high school student has mixed emotions about starting quarterback Gary Danielson. "He could be better at times, but he serves his purpose."

An added incentive for the Lions, he feels, is that the Super Bowl will be played this season in their home stadium, the Silver Dome. He's hopeful the Lions will be playing in that game.

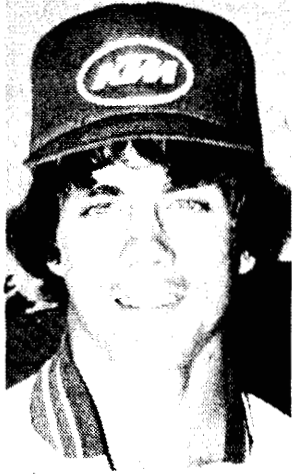

As for his favorite college team, the University of Michigan, Inbody goes along with the pundits who predict the Wolverines will dominate this year.

He pointed out Michigan lost only eight seniors, of which four were starters, of a 44-man squad.

Marc is the son of Orrin and Mary Inbody. The family lives in the Argyle area.

In addition to helping on the family dairy farm — they milk 22 cows — he is a senior at Deckerville High School.

Soil testing

By Mike Score
Tuscola County
Extension Agricultural Agent

In 1981 we have seen encouraging production of cash crops under conservation and conventional tillage systems.

There is no question in my mind that failures in weed control systems are possible on both conventional and conservation tillage plots. Also, insect populations are no higher under conservation tillage systems than other systems we've traditionally used, due to the severe winters we have in our fertile Saginaw Valley.

Regardless of which tillage system you use for your 1982 season, crop production and profitability of your operation will once again depend partially on your soil fertility program.

Soil tests are a must if you expect to get maximum yields (weather permitting) in 1982. Without a soil testing program you are taking the risk of applying either too much or too little fertilizer.

In either case you may end up wasting your money without a soil test, and even the kids in our church youth group will tell you that fertilizing without a soil testing program is poor management.

Soil testing can be done by yourself, a local fertilizer company, some elevators, or the Tuscola County Field Service Cooperative. For more information on soil testing contact me at 673-3161.

Another delay for bus service

Public bus service in Huron and Sanilac counties is now slated to begin Sept. 28 or Oct. 5.

The latest of several target dates had been Sept. 10.

The continuing delay, according to Huron-Sanilac Transportation Authority Director Brad Diamond, is because the radios have not been delivered yet by the manufacturer. He now hopes he will have them by the end of next week.

The state Department of Transportation (DOT) will be instructing the drivers and it didn't want to do that until the radios had arrived so that instruction for their use and driving training could be done all at once. The training will take one week.

The program definitely will begin by Oct. 5, with or without the radios, Diamond said, as that will mark the end of three months from the official starting date for the program.

The state, which is funding the program, requires service to begin within 90 days of the starting date. The DOT is providing $2.3 million for the first two years of the program, which includes the cost of buses and other equipment and operating subsidy.

Lack of size, quickness is problem

O-G North Central D title contender

The Owen-Gage football team is young and experienced.

That may sound like a contradiction, but the 1980 team was very young. Veteran coach Arnie Besonen started two freshmen and five sophomores last year and all of those players are back.

Despite the youthfulness of last year's team, it finished 4-2 in the North Central Thumb D League, tied for second place (two teams tied for first) and 6-3 overall. Thus the team will have experience, but it is still young, Besonen pointed out. Its other strength is the line-men are "fairly quick" off the ball.

The weak points of his team, the coach feels is that it is "young, small, no speed to speak of and lack of depth."

Besonen lost only four seniors to graduation, but among them were speedy wide receiver and end Jim Glidden, named to four all-state teams as well as all-conference, and Scott Gaeth, all-conference linebacker. The other seniors were Jim Kuhr, second team all-conference, who was a guard and defensive end, and Robert LaFave, tackle and linebacker.

The new quarterback this year is Stan Andrakowicz, a junior, who played tight end last year. "He looks pretty good considering this is his first year there," Besonen said of his new signal caller. Andrakowicz, he noted, has a good passing arm, essential to the Besonen offense.

Returning offensive tackles are Mark Furness and Ed Rievert. The latter, a senior, didn't get any game experience last year because he hurt his knee during the first week of practice.

Returning guards are Paul Lopez and Craig Enderle, both juniors.

At center will be junior Mike Powell, who was a tackle last season. Tight end will be junior Dan Glidden. Randy Radabaugh will be in the wide receiver's spot.

Among those expected to see a lot of defensive action will be George Vargo at cornerback, Nick Swaistyn, probably at noseguard, and Tom Wood at an as yet undetermined position. All are juniors.

Besonen is starting his 13th season at Owen-Gage. So far his teams have accumulated an 80-19-2 mark.

He expects the top teams in the league to be Akron-Fairgrove, Peck and North Huron, with Caseville a dark horse.

As for his Bulldogs, provided they stay healthy and don't make mistakes, he said, "Owen-Gage will be a competitor as long as we play football."

Games start at 8 p.m. unless otherwise noted:

Sept. 11 Arenac Eastern 7:30 (non-league)
Sept. 19 at Caseville 2 p.m.
Sept. 25 North Huron
Oct. 2 at Kingston
Oct. 9 Akron-Fairgrove
Oct. 17 at Peck - 2 p.m.
Oct. 23 at Deckerville
Oct. 30 Carsonville-Port Sanilac
Nov. 6 Mich. School for Deaf (non league - date tentative)

BULLDOG BOOSTERS -- Cheering Owen-Gage on this season will be, clockwise from right, Cindy Brown, Dena Wells, Renee Nicholas, Julie Enderle and Laurie Louis. Absent was Karla Kretschmer.

Star cagers graduated

Rebuilding year for defending champion O-G

This will be a rebuilding year, "very much so," for Owen-Gage Girls' basketball coach Judy Campbell.

Gone from last year's 21-3 squad which made it to the regional finals before being eliminated are all-stater Becky Howard, headed for Delta College on basketball and volleyball scholarships; the team's other "most valuable player" last year and top rebounder, 5-10 Julie Andrakowicz; other starters Terri Sontag, and Dana Laurie; plus sixth player Heidi Rockefeller and Julaine Kundinger.

The only starter back from last year is Joan Mosack, who will play center on defense and forward on offense. Miss Campbell described the 5-11 junior as a "lot better this year."

Except for Mosack, however, the team is a lot shorter than the 1980 squad, with the next tallest coming in at 5-6.

Other starters are expected to be senior guard Julie Enderle, senior Karla Kretschmer, defensive forward and offensive center, and junior Lori Wissner, who will probably play forward both ways.

As of last week, the fifth spot was still up for grabs. The only other player not already mentioned with experience on last year's varsity is Leeann Ellicott.

Miss Campbell hopes to compensate for her team's lack of size and experience with enthusiasm, of which they have lots. "They're willing to learn new things," she said. "I think they have a real good outlook on the season."

Since other coaches aren't expecting Owen-Gage to do too well this season, she expects some will be surprised. "I don't think anybody is going to blow us off the court."

Realistically, she said, "I'd be very happy with a .500 season."

In her past six years at the helm, Miss Campbell's teams have taken the North Central Thumb D League title three times and finished second the other three times.

She expects North Huron -- "tough" -- to finish on top this year, with Caseville and Peck the other contenders.

Junior varsity games start at 6:30 p.m., with varsity games at 8.

The schedule:

Sept. 10 at Carsonville-PS
Sept. 15 Deckerville
Sept. 17 at Caseville
Sept. 22 at Port Hope
Sept. 24 North Huron
Sept. 29 Peck
Oct. 1 at Akron-Fairgrove
Oct. 13 at Uby (non-league)
Oct. 15 Carsonville-PS
Oct. 20 at Kingston
Oct. 22 Caseville
Oct. 27 Port Hope
Oct. 29 at Peck
Nov. 5 at North Huron
Nov. 10 Akron-Fairgrove
Nov. 12 at Deckerville
Nov. 17 Uby (non-league)

Kingston rips O-G in opener

Kingston defeated Owen-Gage Tuesday evening, 45-42, in the opening girls' basketball game for both schools. The game was played at Owendale.

The Bulldogs trailed throughout, the biggest margin being nine points, 35-29, at the three-quarter mark. A fourth period comeback attempt fell short.

Jenni Lalko led the Cardinals with 22 points, followed by Shelly Engler with 12 and Deb Cummings with 10.

The only Owen-Gage player in double figures was Joan Mosack with 21.

Kingston also won the junior varsity game, 29-17.

Osentoski fourth in state tourney

The Osentoski fast pitch softball team of Cass City won two games and lost two games last weekend in the state Class C finals in Coldwater to finish fourth of 11 teams.

Osentoski defeated Family Tavern of Caledonia, 3-2, Saturday afternoon.

Spare Time Lanes of Cheboygan sent Osentoski to the loser's bracket Sunday afternoon by defeating them, 2-0.

Osentoski then beat Donkers of Marquette, 2-0.

Family Tavern was Osentoski's next opponent. This time the Caledonia team came out the winner, 5-2.

The final two games were also on Sunday.

In contrast to the weather in much of the state, it was dry in Coldwater over the weekend.

Steel shot zones

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) has announced its steel shot zones in 26 states.

Included is the Saginaw Bay area, covering an area from Tawas Point in Isosco county on the north to Pt. Aux Barques at the tip of the Thumb in Huron county on the east.

This year's rules are "basic" rather than "annual," which means they will remain in effect from year to year, with changes only made as needed.

Rank Michigan 2nd

Michigan sold more than 5,696,000 flats of bedding plants last year, ranking second to California in the industry. California's products result from two growing seasons, not one as in Michigan.

Hawks favored in grid opener at Standish

The Cass City Red Hawks lift the curtain on the 1981 grid season at Standish-Sterling Central Friday in a tune-up for Thumb B Association competition that starts next week.

Coach Don Schelke said that last Thursday's scrimmage revealed about what would be expected with a green backfield and a veteran line.

We were strong defensively, but mistakes kept us from moving the ball well on offense, Schelke pointed out. The wet, rainy weather also hampered the offense.

Perhaps with an inexperienced team it is fortunate that Cass City opens at Standish. The host team also lost heavily by graduation and last year's team failed to win a game.

Balancing that were the Standish-Sterling JV squads that have beaten Cass City JV's three years in a row.

Following the scrimmage and practice last week,

Schelke has named a tentative starting line-up for Friday.

On the offense Ray Ferris and Tim Horner will be at end. Jim Adkins and Chuck Erla will share one tackle post and Brian Moore will start at the other tackle. The guards will be Dave Osentoski and Steve Steely while Terry Sweeney will be at center.

Jim Crickon will be the starter at quarterback while Joe Decker will be at left half and either Joe Kappen or Darryl Hoag will be at right half. Hoag is nursing an injury. Greg Hutchinson is the fullback.

On defense the down linemen will be Osentoski, Adkins, Erla and Hutchinson. All will see two-way duty this season. Linebackers will be Jeff Loomis, Matt Lukshaitis, Hoag or Steely and Kappen.

The backs will be Horner, Crickon and Decker. All will play on offense as well as defense.

Returns home after one year

Sweden a feast for Dale Cleland

Sweden is a land where the people you know will nod at you as you walk down the street, but once you are friends, you are friends for life.

"SWEDEN IS FANTASTIC" is what it says in Swedish on Dale Cleland's T-shirt. The area where he lived is known for its glass works so among the items he brought back were some glass objects. The fan at right was carved from two pieces of wood. He also brought back a pair of cross country skis.

Few accidents

Area traffic accidents during the past week were few in number. Sheriff's deputies reported that at 5:10 p.m. Friday, Timothy R. Hartman, 30, of 5411 Risky Road, Gagetown, was turning left from eastbound M-81 into a private driveway, east of Deckerville Road, when a car ran into the rear of his vehicle. The other driver, Frank H. McComb, 60, of 4829 N. Seeger Street, told officers he didn't see the turn signal of the Hartman vehicle. Hartman said he didn't remember if he had activated the signal. At 3:20 p.m. last Thursday, according to Cass City police, Lee Jamieson, 51, of Seventh Street, Owendale, was backing from a parking space in the Erla's Food Center lot, turned too wide, and the left front corner of his car hit the right side of the car parked alongside. Owner of the other car was not identified in the police report. Daniel Schram of Cass City reported to village police that another car hit the left side of his car at 10:30 p.m. Sunday, while it was parked in the lot at Pine and Leach Streets. The driver then left.

That was one of the observations of Dale Cleland, Cass City High School senior, who spent his junior year as a Rotary Exchange student in Sweden. The 17-year-old is the son of Jerry and Theo Cleland of Germania Road, Uby. Since he returned, his sister, Katha Jo, 16, departed for Finland, where she will spend the year as a Rotary Exchange student. He has one other sister, Beth Ann, 13. Cleland's first choice when he applied for the program was an English-speaking country, but now that he is back, is glad he didn't get his first choice. "I'm glad I didn't, because now I know another language. I know another culture, in essence." "I don't think they're that different," he continued, "but they do have some old customs we're not familiar with." For instance, food is a dominant feature during holidays, with a special food for each holiday. Featured at Christmas is the "Jul bord" (Yule table), a table crammed with dozens of types of food. A surprise was in the way Swedish persons react towards others they know on the street. He would see persons he had met and instead of a friendly "hello," all they would do is nod. Cleland eventually learned that is the Swedish way. He also found, "Once you get to know these people, they'll be the best friends you ever had. They'll stick with you through thick and thin." "One of the things I did notice politically is the idea of socialism and communism is accepted over there," Sweden, he explained, has a socialist government and does a lot of trading with Communist countries. The student also found public transportation in Sweden is "fantastic. You can get pretty near any place there by train or by bus."

Bicycles are a popular means of transportation, especially for teenagers as they are not allowed to drive until they are 18. The parking lot at his school for bicycles, he said, was larger than the lot for cars. Close to half the teachers at his school rode bikes to work. When students begin high school, they are enrolled in a "line" or area of specialization. Cleland's was natural sciences, which meant a lot of chemistry, physics and math, plus history and civics. The only elective students have is a choice between music and drawing. CLELAND, OF COURSE, didn't speak Swedish when he arrived there in July of last year. He and the other 24 American Rotary exchange students first took a three-week crash course in the language. "In that time, they gave us everything at once. It was a little confusing." The students then went to their host families and started school. Cleland and the two other Americans in his school then attended a language school for immigrants part-time for two months. "By that time, I could understand Swedish and I could speak enough to communicate. After that, it got easier and easier." As for his school work, he said, "I didn't have too much problem with it once I learned Swedish." The school day started at 8:10, but depending on the classes he had that day, he was done anywhere from 1-5 p.m. Some classes were taken three times a week and some only once. The schedule each day was different. SCHOOL IS DIFFERENT in another way, in that the only extracurricular activity is band. To take part in sports requires belonging to a club. Dale joined an orienteering club. The sport, very popular in Sweden, combines cross country running with map and compass reading skills. Races over an unmarked course range from 2 kilometers (1.2 miles) for youngsters to 10 km (6 miles) for adults. Cleland took part in four or five 4-6 km competitions and, "I did get lost."

Swedes are very sports and exercise minded and each town has a sports hall. The one in Alvesta had a swimming pool, bowling lanes and basketball, racketball and squash courts. CLELAND, WHO IS hoping to go to a military academy, preferably the Coast Guard Academy, or to study engineering at a college, stayed with two families in Sweden. In the first, the father was the headmaster (superintendent) of all five schools in Alvesta and the mother was a school teacher. He had one "brother," age 14. The father of the second family owned an iron foundry and the mother was a nurse. They had one daughter still at home, age 15. The host families, of course, provided the room and board. The Cass City Rotary provided a monthly allowance of $30-40 and paid his school fees. His parents paid the airfare, an initial fee with Rotary and spending money. The high school senior had high praise for the exchange program. "I think Rotary has a very good program. I'm very glad for the opportunity to have gone. I hope it continues to offer the opportunity and kids take advantage of it."

There are three types of high schools, called gymnasiums, in Sweden. One is for those who want to go on to a technical center after graduating and another is akin to the Tuscola Area Skill Center, where such job skills as welding, drafting and woodworking are taught. The one Dale attended was for those planning to go to a university. The co-ed school had more than 1,000 students.

JERRY'S HELPERS -- Among those assisting in the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy campaign in Cass City Sunday and Monday were, from left, Connie Davis, chairman Helen Bartle, Karen Fischer, Sherry Kappen and Betty Greenleaf. The United Steelworkers Local 6222 sponsored effort raised a little under $2,600 in pledges and cash donations, down at least $200 from last year. The national campaign raised almost $31.5 million, about $400,000 more than in 1980.

COLLECTOR -- Larry Franzel's big hat drew the attention of passing motorists on Main Street Monday, who hopefully stopped to donate money to the Muscular Dystrophy campaign.

Teachers threaten court action to protect salaries

... must prove that the schools closing could be imminent and that your contracted salaries must be protected with an immediate injunction. They must be convincing to the courts so they will hammer on the lack of enrollment, the property transfers, the lack of funds, the poor schedule of classes, etc..."

Set closing park hours at Gagetown

The Gagetown Village Council last Wednesday voted to close the village park at 11 each night.

Any group wishing to use the park past that hour will need permission of the council.

The council members also decided to invite representatives of the bloopers league to the October meeting to straighten out which teams use the park. They want to do that before granting permission to use the diamonds next year.

The council also met with John Walsh of Anderson, Lynch, Nietzke and Co., which audits the village's books.

ERICKSON FURTHER suggested, "Your small group (Owen-Gage teachers) could and has always been considered expendable by the state and I would suppose the MEA could feel the same way. Maybe a compromise has been made with the bigger units (school districts) around us who are losing enrollment, having money problems and who would definitely benefit by our closing."

Erickson, contacted by the Chronicle, said he didn't regret sending the letter when he did. He referred to the possible legal action by the teachers as "a slap in the face to the people of this district."

He said his letter only applied to the "5 percent" of the teachers "being duped by the MEA" and "if they don't like it, they can get the — out."

THE TEACHERS' VOTE Aug. 25 followed a meeting in early summer they had with Lee Longfield, the MEA area representative.

The main concern at that meeting, she said, was the obligation of the district to pay the interest for the teachers who borrowed money during the March-July period of payless paydays.

The answer was that the district isn't liable, since the loans were between the bank and the individual teachers. Owen-Gage had always reimbursed its employees for lost interest or interest owed during previous payless paydays. However, the state Municipal Finance Commission, in approving the district's request in June to borrow $395,000 in tax anticipation notes, said payment of such interest isn't legal.

The school board voted in July to ask Attorney General Frank J. Kelley to rule on the issue, but has yet to receive a reply. A favorable ruling would allow Owen-Gage to continue to pay interest.

THE QUESTION AROSE at the early summer meeting, Mrs. Longfield said,

Drowning workshop set

A workshop on cold water drowning will be conducted Wednesday, Sept. 16, from 7-10 p.m. at Caro High School.

Although primarily for emergency medical technicians, nurses and physicians, the public is invited. For reservations, call Arlene Taylor or Sandra Furst at Caro Community Hospital, 673-3141.

Instructor will be Midland Hospital paramedic John Cottenhand.

about what happens should the district fold during a period of payless paydays, "which we hope it doesn't."

If the district doesn't have enough money to pay all its obligations, the issue becomes who has first priority — businesses and attorneys, etc., to whom it owes money, or its own employees.

If that were to happen and teachers employees didn't come first, Thies said, some teachers could be out $4,000, $5,000 or $6,000. That led to the decision Aug. 25 to seek court action with the aim of putting the employees at the top of the financial priority list.

He described it as "simply a safeguard."

The Chronicle contacted the state Department of Education to find out whether state law or legal precedent covers such an instance.

Spokesman Craig Carter did some checking, but could find no one who knew of a school district folding and leaving employees unpaid. "It would be a first," he said.

Jury finds Tune guilty of first degree murder

they felt an obligation as her family "to back her up."

The defense attorney also addressed the issue of why, as he claimed, Linda Williams made up her story. "I don't know, I can only conjecture."

His speculation included the fact that she had been granted immunity from prosecution, felt guilty over an affair with her cousin (Tune), who was seven years younger and an unsuccessful attempt last fall to reunite with her ex-husband.

NOEL HAD HIS ammunition, among them Patty Hatt, who knew both Tune and Mrs. Williams for several years. When the defendant found out she knew about the shooting, the prosecutor reminded the jury, she testified he had phoned her twice to "keep my mouth shut or the same thing would happen to me." Added the second time was "as the guy at Quanicas-see." For the prosecutor to prove his charge of first degree murder, he had to show the killing was intentional and premeditated.

Joslyn, in his 45 minutes of instructions to the jury, told them there were five possible verdicts: first or second degree (intentional but not premeditated) murder, voluntary manslaughter, negligent discharge of a firearm resulting in death or innocent.

He also reminded the jurors that because Mrs. Williams was an accomplice in the crime Tune was accused of committing, and for that reason had been granted immunity, "you should examine her testimony with greater care than if she were an ordinary witness."

Threats abound in Tune case

Threats were made from the time Randy Lee Tune was first arrested for murder, according to Tuscola County Sheriff Paul Berry. One was against his family.

After the 10th grade dropout was arrested at his Buena Vista Township home in April, Berry said, the sheriff's department learned from informants that an attempt might be made to free Tune from jail and that Prosecutor Artis Noel would be "taken care of" if the defendant was found guilty.

Wednesday, Aug. 26, after the 14 members of the jury were seated, a threatening note was left on the car of one juror and some wiring cut when the vehicle was parked at M-24 and M-46. Berry said the juror was probably followed on his way from Caro.

Circuit Judge Patrick Joslyn, who presided over the trial, was notified. The juror was disqualified and the remaining 13 were sequestered during the duration of the trial. They stayed at a Caro motel and ate their meals together.

(One juror was excused, by drawing lots, before the jury began deliberations.)

Aug. 27, the sheriff said, a threatening phone call was made to his family at home. Asked if he thought it might have been a practical joker, he responded, "When they threaten my family, it's no joke to me."

The threats remain under investigation, Berry said.

He added that the key witness against Tune in the trial, Linda Williams, will remain under protective custody "for a while."

The Great Fire

by Emma Ackerman
Part II of a Series

Ten years later (in 1881), nature repeated itself and brought another summer of endless drought.

One newspaper commented, "The summer had been long, hot, and dry." Temperatures throughout the month of August held consistently in the 90's. On Aug. 30, Saginaw reported temperatures of 122° in the sun, and Port Huron reported 102° in the shade. Barely a drop of rain fell during July and August. The earth baked to a crust under the hot searing sun. All vegetation became parched, streams and cisterns dried up, as well as mosquito infested swamps. Farmers took advantage of the dry spell to burn off unwanted timber, such as poplar, ash, and even maple, left by earlier lumbermen as they continued to clear the land for more extensive cultivation.

The loggers left a wilderness of slashings, pine tops, branches, stumps, and rejected, cut trees that in many places were piled twelve to fifteen feet high. There were also large masses of dead and fallen trees left by the fire of 1871.

One early pioneer in the Gageton vicinity remarked, "What gave the fire so much to feed on was there had been so much lumbering. Tops of trees left behind were dry and that gave the fire so much force."

Another early Gageton pioneer commented, "Well, you see, the lumber around us was green lumber, but it had been such a hot summer, that it burned just like dry wood."

An interview with a Cass City resident provided still another comment, "One of the reasons that the fire of 1881 was so bad was because the fire of 1871 had left so much debris scattered all around."

A detailed account explaining the situation appeared in a Thumb newspaper. To realize how a force can be so destructive and extensive, one must understand the condition of the unimproved land in Huron County. Fires of 1871 had converted much of the green wood into windfall. Thousands upon thousands of acres of hemlock, spruce, cedar, and some hardwoods fell interlocked into every imaginable shape.

In some areas settlers had attempted to clear the impenetrable masses by cutting cord wood and reburning some tracts of land. Those intent on making homes in the area found the cheapest way to clear the land was simply to fire the wooded areas several times during the hot, dry summer. They congratulated themselves when a "good burn" would result. Thoughtlessly, they had built their homes within a few rods of the windfalls. Villages, too, had carelessly permitted these firetraps to remain close to their borders. Utterly reckless and with no consideration of possible consequences, settlers continued to set fires in the locality during the month of August, and elsewhere throughout the Thumb, fires burned constantly, giving people little or no reason for apprehension.

Warning should have been given by a fire originating in Lapeer County Aug. 31. It spread rapidly northward to Sandusky in Sanilac County and on to Deckerville. Strange as it might seem, the wind that had reached gale proportions, blew out the flames that same night, causing any worry to be short-lived. Everyone considered the fire just another incident.

NEW AND OLD -- The new St. Mary's Historical Society museum is housed in this log cabin in Parisville that was built about 1875. It was moved to the site and restored by society members.

COME ON IN -- St. Mary's Historical Society President Stan Rutkowski stands by the doorway. The museum will be open Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 27 from 1-4:30 p.m.

Turner honored in book list

James G. Turner of 5129 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, has been selected for inclusion in the 1981 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Turner, 35, has been social services supervisor at the Huron County Department of Social Services (DSS) since 1977.

He was internal vice president of the Cass City Jaycees from 1979-80, president in 1980-81 and is presently chairman of the board. He has received the district president's award for member recruitment and a state Jaycee award for excellence.

He is presently chairman of the St. Pancratius Parish Council education committee and president of the Cass City Fast Pitch Softball League, which he started in 1977. He also serves as an umpire and coordinates a few softball tournaments each year.

Turner was chairman and an organizer of the Huron-Sanilac Family Planning Committee, which operates a family planning program in the two counties, and was a vice-president of the Regional Inter-Agency Coordinating Committee for the Developmentally Disabled, on which he still serves.

The Cass City native received his bachelor's degree in 1968 from Aquinas College, Grand Rapids, in 1968 in economics and sociology, and master's degree in social work from the University of Michigan in 1976.

He was employed by the Saginaw County DSS from 1968-73, Tuscola County DSS from 1973-75, and worked for the Caro Regional Center for a brief time after receiving his master's degree before starting his present job.

Turner and his wife, Joyce, have two daughters, Laura, 8, and Kristi, 6.

He was recommended for the Outstanding Young Man honor by former Elkton Jaycees President Dennis Esch and Huron County Medical Care Facility Administrator David Opal of Cass City, a previous recipient.

New museum housed in restored 1875 log cabin

The St. Mary's Historical Society picked an appropriate year to open its museum at Parisville -- the centennial of the Great Fire of 1881.

The museum is housed in a log cabin built about 1875. The fire six years later came within a mile in all directions of consuming it.

Parisville, which traces its origins back to 1854 and is the oldest Polish settlement in the United States, is 6 1/2 miles east of Uby. The museum is located on Parisville Road, north of Atwater Road and the St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Its opening exhibit, appropriately enough, is devoted to the 1881 fire that burned in four counties, killed at least 125 persons and destroyed an estimated $2 million in property. Parisville is located, suffered the greatest documented loss of any township in the four counties.

Unique to the exhibit are seven paintings and drawings by Uby artist Marilyn Rutkowski of the fire, most based on actual incidents during the conflagration.

Other exhibits include a map showing the burned areas of the upper Thumb, drawings, newspaper accounts and some accounts written by survivors. A tape recording gives a brief description of the fire.

The museum will be open Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 27 from 1-4:30 p.m. Admission is free, but donations are accepted. Memberships are also sold in the Historical Society.

The exhibits will be changed annually, according to society President Stan Rutkowski (Marilyn's husband). Next year's exhibition will concern the history of Parisville. The intention is to have the museum open weekends from the beginning of July through Labor Day. The museum wasn't ready to open this year until Aug. 17.

THE HISTORICAL Society was formed in April, 1978, for the purpose of preserving the history and culture of Parisville.

The log cabin was donated to it by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Susalla. It was built about 1875 by Michael Mairzyk.

The cabin was located on Parisville Road about two miles north of the 1-acre plot the society purchased. It was moved there in July, 1979.

Although it was in quite good shape -- only three logs had to be replaced, for instance -- there were still countless hours of work involved in completely gutting and then restoring the structure.

"It's a little hard to pin down how many people came and worked," Rutkowski replied when asked the number.

INSIDE. THE CABIN doesn't look like a log cabin, the reason being, he explained, because, "We adapted it to our needs." It is intended to serve as a museum, archives and library.

There is a 2-inch gap between the solid walls and the logs to allow air to circulate. Anything attached

Plead guilty in court

Police nab 4 after chase

Four men pleaded guilty in Tuscola County District Court Tuesday to charges that stemmed from an approximately 10-mile police chase early last Thursday in Ellington and Novesta townships.

Pleading guilty to larceny under $100, to stealing gasoline, were Edward S. Periso, 18, of 402 E. Decker Road, Caro; Daryl Lee Periso, 17, of 6206 Barrett Road, Kingston, and Doral K. Lawhorn, 20, and Kevin A. Lawhorn, 18, both of 287 N. Thomas Road, Bad Axe.

Edward Periso, the driver of the car chased by police, also pleaded guilty to eluding a police officer.

The incident started at 12:57 a.m. when a resident on Gerou Road in Ellington township reported a car had gone past his house several times.

Deputies James Fyvie and Phillip Malloy were dispatched and on Gerou Road spotted a car approaching. The officers turned on their overhead blinker light, but the car went past them and then accelerated. The officers turned around and gave chase.

The car went westbound on Gerou, northeast on M-81, eastbound on Akron Road, then southbound on Dodge Road. The driver almost lost control twice.

During the chase, two five gallon plastic containers partly filled with gasoline were tossed from the car.

third one had been tossed when the patrol car's overhead light was first activated on Gerou Road.

During the chase, the sheriff's department dispatcher alerted the Caro state police, Cass City police and another sheriff's car.

As the pursued car was southbound on Dodge, nearing Shabbona Road, a state police car was approaching from the south. The driver apparently saw it coming and tried to turn onto Shabbona, but lost control and the car went into the ditch at the southeast corner.

The four occupants of the car were taken into custody and lodged in the county jail.

After questioning, they were charged with having siphoned gasoline from a truck at the H. W. Campbell sawmill on Jacob Road in Ellington township, prior to when the chase began.

The chase was sometimes at speeds in excess of 70 miles per hour, much of it on unpaved roads.

District Judge Richard F. Kern accepted the guilty pleas of all four.

Edward Periso was assessed $240 in fines and costs on the two charges. Doral Lawhorn was assessed $150 in fines and costs for larceny under $100; Daryl Periso, also $150; and Kevin Lawhorn, $100 in costs.

All are free on bond and on probation until they pay their fines and costs.

Poison Control

Asphyxiation

If the victim's asphyxiation is due to inhalation of natural gas, carbon monoxide, etc., move victim immediately to fresh air and begin CPR life support (see below). Send for medical help. CAUTION: If victim is involved in a fall, be cautious of a possible head injury — seek professional help.

Bites

Animal — Flush the wound area with water and then wash with soap and water for at least five minutes. Cover with a clean dressing or cloth. Immediately transport victim to a hospital or physician.

Snake (nonpoisonous) — leaves a set of teeth marks usually in a horseshoe shape. Wash wound area with soap and water for five minutes and then hold under running water for five minutes. Apply a clean dressing and immediately transport victim to a hospital or physician.

Snake (poisonous) — leaves one or two fang marks. Have the victim sit or lie quietly, keeping the bite lower than the level of the heart. Tie a shoelace or rope about two inches above the bite between the wound and heart (above the swelling). This constricting band should be loose enough to permit a oozing from the wound and a finger should be able to fit underneath the band. Keep band above the swelling area. If available, cover with an ice pack and immediately transport to a hospital.

If unable to transport patient to medical help for several hours, with a clean sharp knife or similar object, cut through the fang mark(s) just through the skin. Cuts should NOT be made across an arm or leg. Be extremely careful when cutting so as not to sever a major artery, tendon or nerve. Immediately suck out the venom from the wound with a snake bite kit or orally, if possible, for 30 minutes. CAUTION: If you have a sore or open cavity in your mouth, do not suck the bite area. After suction apply a cold compress and immediately transport victim to a hospital or physician.

Attempt to identify the animal or snake so it can be safely caught and brought in for identification and observation. If it is necessary to kill the animal, avoid injury to the animal's head area.

Burns

Minor — When skin is red or blistering occurs. Immerse burn area in cool water or apply cool, wet towels. Never apply butter, grease or ointment. Cover with gauze. After a clean and cool water compress is on for at least 45 minutes, apply anesthetic ointment and clean dressing for comfort. In all cases with broken blisters apply a clean dressing.

Severe — When skin is charred. Have victim lie down and cover him. Treat for shock. Never break burns, clean burns or remove charred clothing. Transport immediately to hospital.

Chemical — Flush area with water for five minutes, cover with gauze and transport victim to hospital.

Bleeding

Minor — Wash wound area with soap and water, apply a clean compress.

Major — If possible, elevate the cut area above the heart, applying pressure directly on the wound with gauze or a clean article of clothing.

If bleeding persists, apply pressure on a blood flow "pressure point" such as the upper arm (where you make a muscle) or groin.

Do not use a tourniquet unless there is no other way to control severe bleeding. If applied, a tourniquet must be tight and removed only by a physician, unless you cannot get to the doctor within 30 minutes. Then it must be loosened every 15 minutes to permit some return of blood flow to the extremity.

In all cases, after emergency procedure, seek professional help.

Nosebleed — Have victim seated and lean forward. Pinch nose and allow victim to breathe through mouth or pack bleeding nostril(s) with gauze and pinch. If bleeding persists, call physician.

Choking — Heimlich Maneuver

What to look for:

The victim of food or water choking:

1. Can not speak, breathe or cough.
2. Turns blue and gives the Heimlich sign: Hand to neck.
3. Collapses. You have 4 to 6 minutes to get the airway opened when this occurs before brain cell death.

What to do:

1. Victim standing or sitting, rescuer standing. Stand behind the victim and wrap your arms around his waist. Place your fist thumb side against the victim's abdomen. Slightly above the navel and below the ribcage. Grasp your fist with your other hand and press into the victim's abdomen with a quick upward thrust. Repeat several times if necessary.
2. Rescuer kneeling, victim lying face up. The victim is lying on his back. Face the victim kneel astride his hips. With one of your hands on top of the other, place the heel of the bottom hand on the abdomen slightly above the navel and below the ribcage. Press into the victim's abdomen with a quick upward thrust. Repeat several times if necessary.
If the victim vomits turn his head to the side and wipe the mouth out.

This is also an excellent way to clear water from the lungs of a drowning victim. You may have to do CPR after this, check the victim for breathing and a pulse. Call a physician.

Coma

See unconsciousness.

Concussion

See head injury.

Convulsion

Gently prevent victim from hurting himself on nearby objects. Loosen clothing after jerking subsides. Have victim lie down and help him keep his airway open. Turn his head to the side in case he vomits to prevent choking on inhaled vomitus. If breathing stops, administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation or CPR (see below). After seizure allow patient to rest. Seek medical attention.

Electric Shock

Turn off electricity if possible. Do not touch victim until contact is broken. Pull him from the contact line or article with a dry rope, wooden pole or cloth. Administer CPR as shown below. Send for medical help.

Eye Injuries

Chemicals — have victim turn head so injured side is down. Flood eye with water for at least 15 minutes. Cover eye with clean compress and seek professional help.

Foreign particle — prevent patient from rubbing the eye. Do not rub eye with hands or fingers. Grasp upper eyelashes, elevate upper lid, overlap lower lid and permit tearing to flow foreign particle to inner corner of eye. Raise the eyelid, and with a moistened handkerchief corner, try to remove the particle. If unable to locate the particle, cover eye and seek professional medical help.

Fainting

Place the patient on his back with his head in a low position. Check his airway to be certain it is clear. Loosen tight clothing and apply cold cloths to his face. Allow him to inhale aromatic spirits of ammonia. When he revives, give him hot coffee or tea.

If fainting lasts more than a minute or two, keep patient covered and seek medical help.

Falls

Stop any bleeding (see above) and cover wounds with clean dressings. Keep victim comfortably warm to prevent shock. If fracture is suspected, do not move victim unless absolutely necessary (as in case of fire). Call for medical help.

Fractures

Stop any bleeding (see above) and cover wound with clean dressing. If a simple fracture, set in splint (wood, corrugated cardboard, rolled-up blanket, pillow, etc.) supported with cloth or rope ties.

Do not move patient if back or neck injury is suspected. Keep victim warm and treat for shock (see below). Call for professional medical help.

Head Injury/Concussion

Usual symptoms of simple concussion include headache, slight dizziness, queasy stomach or vomiting. These usually require an ice pack to the head and rest.

Observe for any severe symptoms such as unusual drowsiness, unequal pupils, persistent vomiting, confusion and lack of coordination. If any of these or combinations are present, immediately transport to a hospital.

Insect Bites and Stings

Bee or wasp sting — Try to remove stinger by gently scraping with a clean knife blade. Cleanse with soap and water and apply an ice compress to reduce swelling. If victim has an allergic reaction (will happen within first 30 minutes), hives, itches all over, wheezes, vomiting, or a history of allergic reaction, follow directions on bee sting kit, if available. Immediately transport to doctor or hospital.

Tick bite — Cover the insect's body with a heavy oil or lighter fluid for about 20 minutes. Carefully remove tick with tweezers, being sure to fully remove all parts of the insect. Scrub area with soap and water.

Itchy bites — Use calamine lotion or rubbing alcohol.

Poisoning

In almost all cases immediately give victim milk or water to dilute poison.

Exceptions:

If poison is petroleum product (gasoline, lighter fluid, furniture or nail polish, etc.), a strong acid (bleach, toilet bowl cleaner) or a strong alkali (lye, drain cleaner), patient should NOT be made to vomit.

Do not give the patient fluids or cause him to vomit if he is unconscious or in convulsions.

Immediately transport to a hospital.

Shock

Have victim lie down, loosen clothing and cover him to prevent loss of body heat. Be cautious not to overheat. Check pulse rate and seek professional help.

Sprains

Elevate the injured joint to a comfortable position. Apply an ice bag or a cold compress over the sprain to reduce pain and swelling. Ability to move a body joint does not rule out fracture. There should be no weight bearing on a sprain. Sprains which continue to swell with pain should be examined by a physician.

Unconsciousness

When victim can not be aroused, lay him in a flat position and make sure victim's airway is clear. Check pulse rate. If no pulse is felt begin administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation or CPR (see below). Keep victim comfortable and warm. Never give an unconscious person food or liquid. If vomiting should occur, turn head to the side to prevent choking on inhaled vomitus.

Call for medical help.

ABC of Life Support

This emergency first aid procedure consists of recognizing stoppage of breathing and heartbeat — then applying cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). This involves (A) opening and maintaining victim's airway, (B) giving rescue breathing, (C) providing artificial circulation by external cardiac compression (heart massage).

A — Airway open. Turn victim on back and quickly remove any foreign matter from mouth. Place your hand under person's neck and lift, tilting head back as far as possible with other hand. This provides an airway.

B — Breathing restored. If person is not breathing, place your mouth tightly over his, pinch nostrils, and blow into his mouth until you see the chest rise. Remove your mouth. Give four breaths and check for neck pulse (see C below). If pulse is present, continue rescue breathing at 12 times per minute.

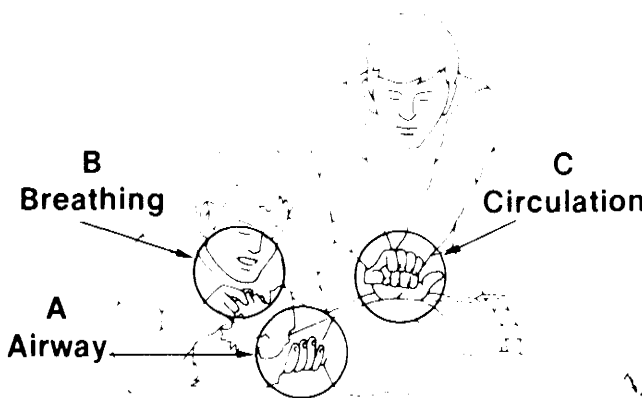

C — Circulation maintained. Quickly feel for neck pulse. Keeping victim's head tilted with one hand, use middle and index fingers of other hand to feel for carotid pulse, in neck artery, under side angle of lower jaw. If no pulse, start rescue breathing and external cardiac compressions.

Victim's back should be on firm surface. Place heel of your hand on lower breastbone (about 1½ inches up from the tip), with fingers off chest and other hand on top. Gently rock forward, exerting pressure down, to force blood out of the heart. Release pressure. Alternate (B) Breathing with (C) Circulation.

Two rescuers: Give 60 chest compressions per minute — one breath after each five compressions. One rescuer: Perform both artificial circulation and rescue breathing, giving 80 chest compressions per minute — two full breaths after each 15 compressions.

For small children and infants: Cover nose and mouth with your mouth; blow gently, 20 times per minute. For compressions, use only heel of one hand for children; only the tips of index and middle fingers for infants. Give 80 to 100 compressions per minute, with one breath after each five compressions.

To be able to perform CPR effectively, it is essential to take a course that includes practice on a manikin.
