

Murder-suicide probed

Investigation by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department is continuing of what appears to have been a murder-suicide Tuesday evening.

Found dead inside their mobile home on E. Evergreen Drive, Vaughn's Village mobile home park, on M-81 southwest of Caro, were Ernest Bucher, 61, and his wife, Mary, 58.

It is believed he shot her and then himself, according to the sheriff's department, but that has not yet been confirmed. The couple apparently had been dead about 48 hours when discovered.

A neighbor came to talk to the couple and found them slumped over chairs with a shotgun beside them. The incident was reported at 8:22 p.m.

The Caro Police Department assisted at the scene.

Crawford released on surety bond

Eighty-two-year-old John A. Crawford, charged with second degree murder in the Sept. 11 shooting death of Samuel W. Ozorowicz, waived preliminary examination in district court Tuesday.

District Judge Richard F. Kern granted a motion for setting of bond. He set it at $25,000 surety and before the afternoon was over, Crawford was released from the county jail. He had been there since the shooting.

Arraignment is scheduled in circuit court Monday, Oct. 5.

Prosecutor Artis Noel said Tuesday the possibility of a plea bargain, allowing Crawford to plead guilty to a lesser charge, is being examined.

The defendant's surety bond was signed by his son, Richard, of Mount Clemens, with the home and property where the elder Crawford lives being pledged as surety.

The shooting took place outside his home on Cartwright Road, south of Kings-ton, about 6:30 p.m.

Ozorowicz, 59, who was dead at the scene, was shot while sitting in a car driven by Crawford's step-son, David Goff of Clifford.

The victim and Crawford have been described by some who knew them both as close friends.

The preliminary examination had been scheduled Friday, at which the prosecution would have had to present enough evidence to Judge Kern to warrant Crawford being bound over to circuit court for trial.

O-G cuts budget to eliminate deficit

The Owendale-Gagetown Board of Education Monday evening adopted a new 1981-82 budget slashing $128,542 from the budget it approved in June.

It did so on the advice of its auditors in order to eliminate the $81,973 deficit it had as of June 30 of this year and come out in the black at the end of the present school year.

The new budget makes official changes already made, including 3½ fewer teaching positions and elimination of one bus run.

The deficit is even worse if one takes into consideration that the 1980-81 fiscal year audit presented to the board Monday lists $101,231 in property tax revenue from the Goslin territory, which the district didn't receive. The new budget lists $123,469 in revenue from the source for 1981-82.

The auditors, Laine, Apold and Co., list that revenue, presently going to the Cass City district, because, according to the 1980-81 audit, "It is the opinion of the legal counsel of the district that, regardless of whatever ruling the Supreme Court renders . . . the 1980, 1979 and 1978 state equalized valuation of the Goslin transfer will ultimately be assigned to . . . Owendale-Gagetown . . ."

The audit was presented to the board by Walter Moore and Mark Janke of the certified public accounting firm.

They explained the $81,973 budget deficit occurred for several reasons, basically beyond the district's control.

The single biggest factor was that the 1980-81 budget was based on expected state revenue of $56,350, of which most was to be for transportation. Actual state revenue was only $7,389 because of two cuts by Gov. Milliken because of the state's poor financial situation. That, Moore said, "took the day-lights out of state aid."

Federal aid was budgeted at $86,000, but only $48,596 was received, the major reason being only $6,605 was received in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds, versus $40,000 budgeted.

ANOTHER BIG LOSS came on interest from investments, budgeted at $25,000. Only $9,467 was received from that source. The reason was the district's continuing precarious financial condition.

In better times, when Owen-Gage received its property tax revenue and income from sale of tax anticipation notes, most of it could be deposited in banks and draw interest until needed. Now, however, the money is almost all spent soon after it is received, so doesn't draw much interest.

Owen-Gage "lost" a big chunk of property tax revenue in 1980-81 compared to what it had received the previous year. Revenue in 1979-80 from that source (not including Goslin) totaled $851,066 because property owners had to pay extra, the State Tax Commission ruled, to make up for what they didn't pay in 1976, when taxes were based on the lower county equalized valuation, instead of the higher state equalized valuation.

In 1980-81, property tax revenue, based on the SEV, totaled $790,815.

Although Owen-Gage didn't have much control over the loss of revenue during the last school year, the auditors explained, the administration and school board should have kept track of the declining revenue and reduced expenditures accordingly. The result was the $81,973 deficit.

THE AUDITORS worked out the budget approved by the board Monday with Supt. Ronald Erickson and board President Ronald Good.

Basically, it doesn't require the board to do anything that hasn't already been done; it merely puts it

Polish refugee family comes to Cass City

There is no looking back for Wojchich and Wanda Kowalski and their daughter.

They left their relatives and almost everything they owned behind in Poland for a new life in the United States. Their future is still uncertain, but at least there is food on the table to eat, which was not always certain in their native country.

The family has been in Cass City since Sept. 13. Although they claim they had no complaints about the political system in Poland, they fear something might happen to their families they left behind -- his father, sister and brother and her mother, sister and brother. They didn't want their last name used (Kowalski is fictitious), didn't want to say what city in Poland they came from and didn't want to be photographed. They consented to having their daughter, Eva, 7, photographed.

Wojchich (pronounced vo-tek) is 32 and was employed as a supervisor of an auto repair garage. Wanda, 30, was a high school biology teacher.

The only English the family knows is the few words they have learned since arriving in the United States, the day before they came to Cass City. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lubaczewski of Gagetown translated during the Chronicle interview.

There were three reasons why the family decided to leave. One was that although he had served two years in the Polish Army reserves in his early 20s, he was in danger of being recalled to active military service.

He was afraid the Russians were going to invade Poland.

The other reason is that the shelves in Poland are bare. Buying milk required getting in line at 4 a.m. and two hours later, it was all gone. Milk is watered down so much by those who do get it, children are suffering from malnutrition.

If one chooses to stand in line for milk, by the time he or she gets it, it is too late to get in line for something else, such as meat or sugar, for those items will also be gone by then.

Poland, it was not possible to buy soap for bathing or laundry.

THE KOWALSKIS LIVED comfortably. They had a color television set, for instance, and owned a car, so it was not a case of not having money to buy the necessities of life. "He had the money but there wasn't anything to buy," Lubaczewski translated. (They did not have their own apartment. They shared one with Mrs. Kowalski's mother, -- she had two rooms and they had three.)

The family lived in a city of 30,000. The shortages are in the city, Kowalski explained. Those who live in the country still have something to eat.

He could not explain why there are such severe shortages. Farmers had a successful harvest this year in some crops. He just didn't know where the food went. The shortages of mostly food started about 1½ years ago.

KOWALSKI SAID HE had no complaints about the government, that they had the freedom they wanted.

That freedom, however, did not include the right to emigrate to another country. Poles can, however, go to other countries for vacation and Kowalski told authorities the family was going to Rome.

He had obtained his passport sometime earlier with the idea of someday defecting. The threat of being recalled to military duty was the determining factor in when they decided to leave.

THEY DID NOT EVEN tell their families when they left that they did not plan to return. They only took in their four cases items that a family would take on a vacation in June. (They left June 20.) They did not dare, for instance, take warm cold weather clothing with them. The family drove through Czechoslovakia to Austria, where they made contact with the Tolstoy Foundation, which helped them obtain their visa to the United States, paid their airfare and gave them $75. In Austria, they called their families to tell them they were not returning.

Why did they want to come to the United States? Kowalski smiled and explained through Lubaczewski that they wanted to come here because the U.S. is a free country and they would not be persecuted.

THE SCENE NOW switches to Lapeer, where Carol Hrycko, director of nursing for the Tuscola and Lapeer County Health Departments, is attending a meeting Sept. 9 with a representative of the Tolstoy Foundation, which helped settle several Asian refugee families in Lapeer county.

The representative said she was having trouble placing several Polish refugees who were arriving shortly. Mrs. Hrycko, who lives on Green Road, Gagetown, suggested the representative call her husband, Tom, since he is of Polish ancestry. Maybe some of his relatives could help.

The next thing the Hryckos knew, they were the Kowalskis' sponsors. Hrycko's mother, who lives in Royal Oak and speaks some Polish, picked up the family at Detroit Metropolitan Airport Sept. 12 and the Hryckos brought them to Cass City the next day.

The immigrants are living in an apartment in Cass City, thought better than being in the country, since

Extended benefits end will hurt 200 jobless

Slashing of about 1,000 jobs from the Michigan Employment Security Commission payroll, plus elimination of other services, won't have much effect in Tuscola county, according to MESC Caro branch Manager Charles Cramer.

However, the ending of unemployment compensation extended benefits soon will affect about 200 county residents.

The layoffs and closing of several offices, mainly in metropolitan areas, was announced last week. The reason is that all of the MESC's funding comes from the federal government.

Congress has authorized funding for state employment agencies for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 at a higher level than recommended by President Reagan, though less than it has appropriated in prior years.

Until it does, MESC Director S. Martin Taylor said, he has no choice but to reduce his agency's budget to be in line with the administration's recommended cuts.

At the Caro office, Cramer said, that will mean the loss of one clerk in the employment service section. Four persons who were working in the Trade Readjustment Act (TRA) benefits section were previously scheduled to lose their jobs Sept. 30 because that program is being cut sharply as of that date.

One of the statewide changes to cope with the reduced revenue will be elimination of the job bank and its daily listing of job openings throughout the state.

That will mean, for instance, a Tuscola county resident won't be able to find out what jobs are available in Saginaw county unless he goes to the MESC office there. The Caro office will only have a listing of jobs available in Tuscola county.

The loss of the job bank hurts those living in rural areas more than those in urban areas, Cramer said, but it wasn't as beneficial as it might have appeared.

The problem, he explained, was that unless the job seeker saw the job soon after it was listed, if it was outside of the immediate area, by the time he or she could apply, it was probably filled.

EXTENDED BENEFITS

More directly hurting the unemployed will be the end, at least temporarily, of the extended benefits (EB) program and tightened eligibility criteria for granting of TRA benefits.

Both are the result of legislation approved by Congress and signed into law by President Reagan in August.

The EB program pays jobless workers up to 13 weeks of additional benefits beyond the 26 weeks payable through the regular state program. Extended benefits have been paid in Michigan since October, 1979.

The program is funded equally by the state and federal government, with eligibility based on the insured unemployment rate for the past 13 weeks. That rate is different from the labor force unemployment rate, which is based on the number looking for work.

Under the old law, the number receiving EB was included in computing the insured rate. Under the new law, the cutoff point stays the same, but those receiving EB aren't counted.

The new law took effect in late August and since then the insured unemployment rate had hovered just above the 5 percent cutoff point.

It was 5.03 percent last week. Once it hits 5 percent, extended benefits end.

Bus service begins Monday

Long delayed public transportation in Huron and Sanilac counties, called Thumb Area Transit (TAT), starts Monday, with or without its radios.

Hours of the door-to-door service will be 6 a.m.-6 p.m. weekdays and 8:30-4:30 Saturdays. Within Zone 1, the Bad Axe and Sandusky areas, weekday hours for demand-response service will be 9-4; Saturdays, 8:30-4:30.

The demand-response service means a person can call and have a bus dispatched to pick them up at their door soon thereafter. Outside of Zone 1, it will be necessary to call 24 hours in advance. If the radios haven't been installed by Monday, 24 hour advance calling will also be necessary in Zone 1 until they are. As of Tuesday, they hadn't arrived yet.

The toll-free number for ride reservations is 1-800-322-1125. For information, call the TAT Bad Axe office, 269-2121.

This week the dates for the Village Bach Festival were released. It will be held Nov. 27-29.

It seems like the Festival is one of the newer events in the village but November's show will be the third annual.

Many of the artists change from year to year, but not the conductor.

Don Th. Jaeger will return again. This year he comes from Palm Springs, Calif., to lead the orchestra.

Look for the Cass City School Board to appoint Doty Scollon to head the committee to secure the passage of millage next spring.

The action will probably be taken at a special meeting of the board Monday.

If you eat all the meals, devour all the baked goods and win any of the raffles that are contemplated to help build school extracurricular funds this fall and winter, say good-bye to diets and hello to expanded waistlines. (You can always say you did it for a good cause.)

Just when you think that we're a notch above the rest, something happens to put it all in perspective.

We're talking about raising the money for Cass City School programs. We're doing fine. But we are striving to keep championship teams from last season afloat.

How about Capac? For three years now they have kept the football team going there with donations.

What makes this great is that in the three years the team has posted a winless season and the best record it has compiled was two wins. If the team didn't build character among the players, it certainly must have among the supporters.

She's not a spy, not really. But she is the next thing to it. Deena Kappen, Cass City, joined the Air Force this week.

Her job is already reserved. After basic she will go to school, learn a foreign language and then eavesdrop on the broadcast of a foreign country using the language she will have learned.

THURSDAY MISHAP -- Michael W. Gibson was taken to the hospital after his pickup, southbound on Cemetery Road, went off the road into a ditch Thursday afternoon and slammed into a driveway culvert.

Drivers charged after accidents

Michael W. Gibson, 28, of 3980 Shabbona Road, Cass City, has been charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor and driving with license suspended following a 3:10 p.m. accident Thursday.

Deputies reported he was southbound on Cemetery Road, south of Kelly Road, when his pickup went off the right side of the road onto the shoulder and then into the ditch. It traveled 453 feet off the road before coming to an abrupt halt against the side of a driveway culvert.

Gibson was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital, then transferred to the detoxification unit at Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, for treatment.

He is now free on bond, with arraignment before District Judge Richard F. Kern scheduled Sept. 28.

Jack W. Witkovsky, 40, of Plain Road, Caro, was arrested on a charge of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor after a mishap at 7:35 p.m. Friday in Ellington township.

Deputies reported they found his car in the ditch on the south side of Broadway Road, "atop" the stop sign at Hurds Corner Road. His car had been headed east.

He was later released from the county jail on bond, with arraignment before Judge Kern scheduled Sept. 28.

At 1:10 p.m. Monday, Cass City police reported, Marion M. Weltin, 45, of 4262 Oak Street, turned right from eastbound Main onto Oak. She turned too wide, however, and her car hit the left front of the car headed north. Driver of the other car was Thomas J. Hutchinson, 30, of Marlette.

CAR-DEER

Gary S. King, 23, of 8601 Chapin Road, Deford, was westbound on Stevens Road, east of Lamton Road, at 8:10 p.m. Sept. 15 when a deer ran into the left side of his pickup, deputies reported.

At 12:15 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 16, deputies reported, Martin H. Tworck, 39, of 6674 Severance Road, Cass City, was eastbound on Stevens Road, west of E. Dayton Road, when his vehicle hit one of the animals.

Officers said that at 8:15 p.m. that day, Thomas L. Baker, 41, of 6839 Herron Drive, Cass City, was northbound on Kingston Road, south of Gilford Road, when a deer ran into his car, then ran away.

Wayne D. Schram, 17, of 6379 Garfield Street, was southbound on Cemetery Road, north of Kelly Road, at 6 p.m. Friday, according to Cass City police, when his car collided with a deer.

At 8:15 p.m. Saturday, deputies reported, Michael B. O'Dell, 18, of 4816 Hoppe Road, Cass City, was eastbound on Severance Road, east of Cemetery Road, when a deer ran into the right side of his car.

Thrown object breaks window

A Cass City motorist reported to sheriff's deputies Thursday that someone threw an object at his windshield, which put a large crack in it. Replacement cost is $185.

Adrian L. Hutchinson of 4235 Doerr Road, said he was headed southwest on M-81, northeast of Caro, when someone in a car headed in the opposite direction threw a small round object at his windshield. The incident occurred about 2 p.m.

John Mulrath of 6474 River Road, Cass City, reported to Caro state police Sunday morning that someone had broken a large picture window in his home. Value of the window wasn't listed in the report.

Robert MacKay of M & M Block Co., 6741 Kelly Road, Cass City, told state troopers last Wednesday that the firm's building was broken into during Labor Day week end.

Taken were five box end wrenches, $60; two pipe wrenches, $20, and two five-gallon cans of gasoline, $13. Entry was gained by kicking out a section of the door.

Beverly Louks of 6632 Pine Street told Cass City police Monday that her son Martin's bicycle was stolen while left unattended from noon-1 p.m. Sunday at the gravel pit south of Elizabeth Street.

The 20-inch wheel bike was black and red with gold wheels.

The Haire Net

There is a little sugar coating to the castor oil that business has been taking in the Thumb as well as in Michigan.

The sugar coating is that there are many more capable persons available in the work force today than there have been at any other time in years. Possibly more than there have been in the last 30 years.

That's a strong statement and it's judged only by personal experience, not by any scientific survey or poll taken locally.

State-wide is a different story. It has been determined scientifically what most of us can see all around us. There are not many jobs floating around these days. The plight of the auto industry and the job market has made it politically expedient to come up with solutions to Michigan's high cost for workers' compensation and unemployment compensation insurance.

There's a realization that the law in Michigan is costing jobs. The auto unions are blaming the high costs on the insurance companies, saying that they are ripping off business with higher than necessary rates.

There's no judging the merits of that in Detroit, but if it's that profitable for the companies you couldn't prove it by the way they operate locally. Insurance companies don't seek this type of insurance business here and one that I talked with wouldn't even write that type of insurance unless you included it in a package deal with other coverages.

If the changes suggested become law some of the burden will be lifted from firms doing business in Michigan.

Perhaps that will help stem the flow to new locations by long established Michigan employers. You have to be concerned when a company like Bendix moves its headquarters from Detroit to Maryland. After all Bendix started and flourished in Michigan from its beginning.

You can't blame it all on the economic climate, of course. Bendix has announced that it wants to move into high technology fields and away from the nuts and bolts approach as an auto supplier.

But one of the areas examined for the new headquarters was Ann Arbor and it was high on the list.

But in the end it was passed over for a new out-of-state location.

It may have been inevitable all along. But you can't help but ask yourself, would Bendix have left if the business climate in Michigan were as attractive as it is in other areas?

Perhaps, but you can't help wondering.

"If It Fitz. . ."

Man in motion

By Jim Fitzgerald

Several people have asked whether I will compete again this year in the Detroit Free Press International Marathon. Yes. I will be in the starting position when the race begins the morning of Oct. 11 and, barring injury, I plan to still be sitting when the last runner crosses the finish line, no matter how long it takes. Under no circumstances will I be a man in motion.

Admittedly, my sitting will not be international. I will do it all in the United States, while the runners begin in Canada and pass through the tunnel to finish in the U.S. An international sit simply isn't practical. I suppose I could sit astraddle the border separating the two nations, in the middle of the tunnel, but that would make me a sitting target for any Baptist minister with a gun who might mistake me for a lazy mugger.

That's a cheap shot. I know the dozen or so Baptist ministers recently arrested for carrying pistols from the U.S. into Canada are good Christians and were armed only to defend themselves against unfair attempts to convert their cash into alms. But it is slightly dismaying to realize that, as a certified anti-gun nut, I may be violating the freedom of religion.

Anyway, while my sitting may be domestic, it will be decisive. Lately, while sitting and watching football on TV, I've noticed that running has become indecisive. I am referring to the new motion now being made by the man in motion.

I never did understand that particular football play, even in its original form. The football team lines up on offense, ready for the snap of the ball, but first the halfback lined up on the far right side of the field runs all the way across to the left side, or vice versa, while everybody else waits for him to get where he's going. What's the sense in that? If he wants to begin the play from the left side, why doesn't he line up there in the first place?

This season there is a new twist that's really silly. Before the play begins, the man in motion runs halfway across the field and then stops, turns around, and goes back where he started.

What would you think if, during a baseball game, before each pitch, the first baseman stood at third base for a few seconds, and then held up play while he jogged over to first base, or went halfway and turned around at the pitcher's mound and went back to third? You'd think he'd spent the previous day getting hit in the head with a batted ball.

Football fans say the man in motion is a stealthy maneuver used to confuse the defense. That's a hoot. The man in motion doesn't sneak. He doesn't even run fast. Not only the defending players assigned to guard the man in motion, but also everyone else in the stadium can plainly see what he's doing because he's the only one doing anything. Also, an announcer often announces that there is a man in motion and reveals his identity. That is as stealthy as a pick-pocket wearing boxing gloves.

I suspect the real reason for the useless and indecisive running of the man in motion is the coaching. On a recent evening I watched a high school football game between Cardinal Mooney and Brother Rice. I was there to investigate a rumor that Rice was really the Cardinal's stepbrother and to give Catholics equal time in the cheap-shot department.

I counted at least eight coaches for each team, and that was only a high school game. There must be even more coaches in the professional league, where the man in motion runs most rampant, and that's probably why. With only 11 players on a team, it can't be easy to find something for all the coaches to do, so it's not surprising that some of them would be assigned to teach young men how to run from one side of the field to the other before the play begins, and, after considerable seasoning, how to stop halfway and return to their original position without falling asleep.

Because of his indecisiveness, the man in motion may well be as useless as the marathon runner. At least, that's how it looks from where I sit.

Polish family to start over here

everything they need is within walking distance. The Hryckos paid the first month's rent and bought them some groceries.

Big job

On Oct. 16, 1758, Noah Webster began his 85 years on earth. As time passed the teacher, patriot, journalist, lecturer, lawyer, legislator and author managed to make a mark for himself few men can match. Webster is most remembered for his American Dictionary of the American Language, a work which took him 20 years to complete.

The family is now taking English lessons from David Preston of Caro and living on Aid to Dependent Children and food stamps. Eva is starting at Campbell Elementary School this week.

ONCE HE LEARNS English, and possibly before, Kowalski would like to find a job. He knows how to fix Polish-built Fiats and can presumably learn to fix others, can paint and operate a fork lift.

Unfortunately, as those who have been helping the family here had to tell him, jobs are very hard to find, especially in Michigan, so what happens jobwise is an uncertainty. Kowalski, Lubaczewski said, had been under the assumption he could find a job right away. He had been ready to go to work the day after he arrived.

The Kowalskis don't expect to ever return to Poland. "The way it is now, he would be afraid to go back," Lubaczewski said.

That means leaving their families and their country behind forever, although they can exchange letters.

Yes, it was hard to leave, Kowalski admitted.

Their decision also meant leaving their countrymen behind to cope with Poland's immense problems. That was also a factor to deal with in making their decision.

"He's got a family of his own and he has to protect them," Lubaczewski translated. "It was a hard decision to make."

See benefit end for 200 jobless

In Tuscola county, according to Cramer, that will mean about 200 unemployed persons will immediately stop receiving benefits.

The 200 were among the 1,508 county residents receiving unemployment compensation last week.

Cramer said that doesn't reflect the true number of unemployed in Tuscola county, since many have exhausted their unemployment benefits.

In July, the latest month for which statistics are available, Tuscola county's unemployment rate was 15.2 percent, out of a work force of more than 25,000. Cramer expects the August rate will be about the same. That is well above the state unemployment rate for August of 11 percent, which in turn is well above the national rate of 7.2 percent.

TRADE READJUSTMENT

The other new change involves TRA benefits, previously paid to workers when imports "contribute importantly" to their unemployment.

The new criteria specifies the workers will have to demonstrate that imports were the "substantial cause" of their unemployment. The change does not take effect until February.

Effective Oct. 1, however, are other changes regarding TRA, one of which requires eligible workers to exhaust their unemployment compensation and extended benefits before they can receive TRA.

The maximum time they will be able to receive the combination of the three is 52 weeks. Previously, they could receive the maximum 39 weeks of regular and extended benefits, then 52 weeks of TRA.

Under the old rules, United Auto Workers Amalgamated Local 213 applied in July, 1980, for TRA benefits in behalf of workers at several upper Thumb plants.

Local President Dennis Beadle was notified only last week that the U.S. Department of Labor has rejected the application for three employees of Armca, Inc., of Cass City, for all of 1979.

In June, he was notified the application for 42 employees of Arjay Manufacturing of Bad Axe, a Walbro subsidiary, had been rejected. Benefits had been sought for the period January-August, 1979.

The ruling for both was that the workers' unemployment was due to decline in sale of the firms' products, not because of imports.

Beadle is still waiting for a ruling on the request for TRA benefits for 200 Walbro employees in Cass City and Caro who were out of work from June, 1980, into 1981. He is hopeful, now that rulings have been made concerning Armca and Arjay, one will be made soon concerning Walbro.

Under the old rules, TRA paid up to 70 percent of the recipient's average weekly wage during the period of unemployment, to a maximum of $289 per week. The new maximum as of Oct. 1 will be $182, which is the maximum paid under the regular state unemployment benefits program.

Sanilac county GOP to meet

The Sanilac County Republican Committee will meet Thursday, Oct. 1, at 8 p.m. in the county conference room, 37 Austin Street, Sandusky.

Items to be discussed will include reapportionment of county commissioners' districts. Non-committee members may attend.

Door-to-door subsidized bus service starts in area

Zone 1 boundaries in Huron county are Grassmere Road on the west, Berne and Rapson on the north, Verona on the east and the county line on the south. (Ugly is within the boundaries.) Boundaries in Sanilac are Bullgreen Road on the west, Downington on the north, Church on the east and Marlette Road on the south.

Fares within each zone (1, 2 and 3) are 80 cents for adults 18-59; 60 cents for students, and 40 cents for persons 60 and older and the handicapped. There is an additional fare when crossing from one zone to another.

In some instances, it will be necessary to transfer buses, with the main transfer points being the TAT garages in Bad Axe and Sandusky. The buses will not be traveling fixed routes.

If the ride originates in Huron or Sanilac counties, it will be possible to be dropped off in Cass City, but not the opposite.

TAT is starting with 15 buses and 25 employees, according to Director Brad Diamond.

The state is providing $2.3 million to fully fund the transit system the first two years, except for fares. The amount includes the cost of buses and equipment.

The third year, the state will pay 75 percent and the two counties, 25 percent (plus fares), if the counties decide to continue the service. In the fourth and future years, the state and counties are to split the cost 50-50.

Tuscola county had an opportunity to participate, but its board of commissioners declined because of the eventual expense to the county.

PEDALING AROUND

Owen-Gage's future

By Mike Eliasohn

Writing about the Owen-Gage School District isn't always easy.

Other than the news involving students — sports, homecoming queens, etc., of which there happens to be a lot this week — most of the news from there is unavoidably negative.

It would be nice if the stability of the district were such that the school board meetings were always dull and routine, like I suspect Cass City's are — or used to be until it started having money problems like all school districts these days.

(Having attended only one Cass City board meeting in 'he more than four years I have been here, I don't know for sure what they are like. All I know is my boss always gets done covering the Cass City meeting before I get done with Owen-Gage. Both boards meet the same night.)

The question I get asked most often by Cass Cityans about Owen-Gage is some variation of, "How can they (employees) survive without getting paid?"

The answer is that the staff (remember it's not just teachers) has always been eventually reimbursed by the school board for their back pay, plus interest, so it was always a matter of hanging on until payday finally came.

Unfortunately, that has been getting harder to do. The periods of payless paydays have become longer and more frequent, interest rates for those forced to borrow have skyrocketed and until and unless someone overrules the Municipal Finance Commission, the district can no longer reimburse its staff for the interest. There was also the fear raised at the Sept. 14 school board meeting that the bank that has always made loans to the staff may no longer do so.

One reason Owen-Gage has survived is because it has had a staff willing to stick with it, pay or no pay, even when times were better and they maybe could have got jobs elsewhere. Now, when school districts all over the state are laying off personnel, the odds of getting jobs elsewhere should be the worst happen are slim at best.

It is with the realization that the district cannot continue to run on "empty" that the board has scheduled a millage election Nov. 2, with voters being asked to approve three mills for three years.

It seems hard to conceive that the district can keep going without the millage. For the property owners in the district, who have been loyal in the past, approving the millage may be the ultimate sacrifice.

Owen-Gage's total levy, if the added millage is approved, will be 26.75, well below the state average of about 30 mills, but that won't be a consolation to those who have to pay it. (The debt levy is an additional 2.2 mills.)

The added 3 mills won't insure Owen-Gage's survival, though it will certainly help.

The school board, of course, hopes it will win the property transfer case now before the Michigan Supreme Court and end up on Easy Street.

The high court, incidentally, heard the arguments in the case last November. A deputy court clerk said at that time the justices sometimes take a year to make a decision and sometimes longer so waiting this long for a decision isn't unusual.

It may be heresy to say it, but I think Owen-Gage can survive without the Goslin territory.

What will kill it is if the state Board of Education approves more property transfers from the district and/or if it has to keep paying big legal fees. Owen-Gage cannot continue to shell out $50,000-90,000 a year in legal fees.

Even if the three mills are approved, Owen-Gage and all other school districts will be hurt if the legislature approves a property tax cut this fall, which seems likely.

Gov. Milliken's proposal calls for a 10 percent property tax cut the first year, another 15 percent in 1982 and 20 percent in 1983. The state would reimburse school districts and local governmental units for 65 percent of the lost revenue; they would have to make up the rest by cutting spending and/or seeking increased millage rates.

"The Story of the Kelly Gang," an Australian film from 1906, was the first film to run over one hour.

Consortium staff granted 8 percent pay boost Oct. 1

With one exception, Thumb Area Consortium employees were granted an 8 percent pay increase last Thursday by the agency's administrative board.

The pay increases take effect Oct. 1. As of then, the Cass City-based tri-county agency will have 16 full-time employees and one part-time, with one full-time worker's job to end Nov. 30.

The lowest paid full-time employee is one clerk-typist, who has seniority, at $9,000 annually. (Starting pay for the position is $7,875.)

The one exception to the above was Executive Director Frank Lenard, whose base pay remained at $32,000. As part of his new contract approved by the board, however, it agreed to pay his 50 percent share of the Social Security tax (FICA), which will save him $2,088 in 1981-82.

The administrative board consists of two county commissioners each from Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties. The only one to vote against his contract was Margaret Wenta of Tuscola. The 8 percent pay hikes were approved unanimously.

The other change in Lenard's contract was an increase from his present 15 paid vacation days a year to 20, though so far this year, he has only taken about a week off. He explained he wanted the added days "as undoubtedly during the next year I will be looking for work."

As administrator of the federally funded Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program in the upper Thumb, he added later during the meeting, "I put this whole system together and now I'm taking it apart and I need something more challenging than taking things apart."

THE CONSORTIUM started the soon-to-end fiscal year with seven programs and a budget of about $8.

million, reduced by the Reagan administration during the year to $7.016 million. Lenard is expecting four programs for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1 and a budget of an estimated $2.8 million.

Expected expenditures by program will be: classroom training, $1,125,000; on-the-job training, $375,000; work experience, $220,000; administration, $345,000; summer youth, $550,000, and youth employment training, $202,000. Approximately 1,300 persons will participate.

The 1980-81 CETA program nationally cost $10.5 billion. Congress has authorized $3.5 billion for 1981-82, he explained, but has not yet actually appropriated the money, plus what President Reagan may do is still uncertain.

The feeling expressed at the meeting is that CETA will disappear as a formal program after Sept. 30, 1982, to be replaced by block grants to states for job training to be spent as each sees fit.

THE CONSORTIUM HAS been notified by the state

Petition governor

Seek to save meat laws

In a last ditch effort to stop termination of the state meat inspection program Sept. 30, meat inspectors Friday turned over petitions bearing 26,000 signatures in Lansing to a representative of Gov. Milliken.

The petitions urge the governor to retain the state's program and higher meat standards. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is scheduled to take over the program Oct. 1. It will be hiring the state inspectors, but for less pay.

Spearheading the petition drive, supported by the Michigan State Employees Association, was meat inspector Tom Lounsbury of Dodge Road, Cass City, an MSEA safety and regulatory unit chief steward.

He said "maybe 80 percent" of the state's 120 inspectors circulated the petitions. "A lot of the guys felt it was no use doing it because it was too late."

Of the total, 6,000-7,000 signatures were gathered in the three upper Thumb counties.

Lounsbury, who doesn't feel his union has done as much as it might have to save the state program, was in Detroit Tuesday to testify in a Michigan Meat Packers Association suit filed in Wayne County Circuit Court in an effort to stop the turn-over to the federal government.

The Meat Packers' immediate goal is to obtain an injunction barring Michigan from ending its inspection program before the merits of the case can be heard.

Lounsbury never took the stand because, he said, the assistant attorney general representing the state stalled until 5 p.m., when the proceedings were adjourned for the day.

The judge said he will decide Wednesday whether the governor's action in deciding to terminate the program was legal, according to Lounsbury. If he decides it wasn't, then he will hear arguments and decide whether to issue the injunction. Lounsbury may have to go back to Detroit to testify.

The legislature had voted to phase out the state program over three years. The governor decided to end it all at once to save $1.5 million. He did so at the urging of Democratic House Speaker Bobby Crim.

Lounsbury claims the federal takeover will work to the benefit of the big meat packers, who would like to get rid of the state's higher meat standards, which forbid inclusion of pig snouts, ears, lips and stomachs in

Set date for annual Bach festival concert in village

The third annual Village Bach Festival will be conducted Thanksgiving week end, Nov. 27-29, in Cass City.

As in past years, the three-concert series will be presented in the Presbyterian church under the leadership of Don Th. Jaeger. Jaeger, artistic director and co-founder of the festival, will return from his new residence in Palm Springs, Calif., where he is music director and conductor of the Northwood Symphony.

The festival orchestra will be an assemblage of professional artists and soloists brought together from throughout the nation to perform in Cass City.

The three concerts will feature a variety of J.S. Bach's music, including Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and No. 6, a Concerto for Two Harpsichords, a trumpet and organ work, the Violin Concerto No. 2, cantatas and organ solos. Other week-end activities will include a film on harpsichord building in America today, lectures on the music performed and open rehearsals.

Zonta Club hears Jaws of Life talk

Zonta Club held its monthly dinner meeting Tuesday evening, Sept. 15, at the Charmont.

The speaker was Elkland township fireman Jim Jezewski, who showed pictures and talked about the rescue tool "Jaws of Life." The Zonta Club, in cooperation with the fire department, is conducting a drive to raise money, including a beef raffle, to purchase one for Cass City.

The tool can perform all functions required to gain entry into vehicles and can be put into action within seconds after arriving on the scene. It can cut, spread and fold back a roof or door in 30 seconds. The tool cuts, spreads and punctures and saves many lives in accident cases. The cost is about $7,500.

There will be a tea Oct. 10 with Toby Weaver as hostess for Zontians and prospective members. Nov. 17, the Zonta Club will put on a style show at the high school.

The next meeting will be hosted by Edith Little when the club will have its annual auction and dinner.

Bike-a-thon Saturday in Owendale

The third annual bike-a-thon in Owendale to raise funds for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis will take place Saturday.

Hours will be from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. with all the riding being done on the quarter-mile track surrounding the high school football field. That site was chosen this year for the first time, chairman Ruth Fluegge said, because some parents were concerned about their youngsters riding on the village streets.

In case of rain, the event will be held the following Saturday.

Sponsor sheets are available at the schools in Gagetown and Owendale. Participants can show up at the beginning of the event even if they don't have sponsor sheets.

Riders who collect at least $25 will receive a St. Jude's T-shirt. If they raise at least $75, they receive a backpack. In addition, Owendale merchants are offering cash prizes to the riders who raise the most money and ride the farthest distance.

Last year's bike-a-thon raised about $400 for the hospital founded by entertainer Danny Thomas.

Milk output increases in August

Michigan's August milk production totaled 431 million pounds, up 2 percent from August, 1980, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service.

Cow numbers, at 392,000 head, remained slightly below a year ago. Milk per cow during August at 1,100 pounds was up nearly 3 percent from a year ago.

Producers received an average of $13.60 per hundredweight (cwt.) for their milk during August, 70 cents above the August, 1980 price. However, since January, milk prices have declined 60 cents per cwt. in Michigan. The cost of replacement milk cows averaged $1,330, up $90 from a year ago, while prices received for slaughter cows were down 9 percent.

U.S. August milk production totaled 11.1 billion pounds, up 3 percent from the previous year. The nation's 10.9 million milk cows averaged 1,014 pounds per cow for the month, 19 pounds above August, 1980. Cow numbers were up 1 percent from last year.

Your Neighbor says

Cut welfare; don't cut Social Security

Reducing government spending has been on the minds of President Ronald Reagan and Gov. William G. Milliken lately.

The president has proposed eliminating $16.2 billion in expenditures from the budget for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

The governor, in a speech to the legislature last Thursday, presented his comprehensive economic development package, which includes cuts in property taxes and the Single Business Tax, which will require a reduction in state spending to make up for the lost revenue.

Gaylord Kritzman has one suggestion for reducing government spending, cut welfare payments. "They're getting too much now."

As a Social Security recipient, he doesn't care for President Reagan's proposal to postpone the scheduled cost-of-living increase in Social Security from July 1 next year to Oct. 1. "They should leave that the way it is."

Closer to home, he feels property tax cuts, such as proposed by the governor, are needed.

A lot of the state's and nation's ills would be resolved by a revived economy. Kritzman feels interest rates must be reduced for the economy to improve. "To get things going, it's got to come down."

However, high interest rates don't hurt everybody, he noted. "If you got money in the bank, it's alright. If you don't, it's a horse of a different color."

Kritzman is a retired farmer. He and his wife, Pauline, live on Shabbona Road, Snover.

Physician doesn't come to Cass City

A doctor who was coming to Cass City, Leon R. Miral, D.O., has instead opened an office in Sandusky.

Miral, a general practitioner, was at one time planning to open an office in the Hills and Dales Medical Center Aug. 10. He had been in private practice and industrial medicine in Detroit.

Some complications arose, according to Hills and Dales General Hospital Administrator Ken Jensen, which led to Miral's decision to relocate elsewhere. The doctor opened his Sandusky office Monday.

Jensen said he is talking to a couple doctors about moving here and Cass City will be represented at a Michigan Health Council sponsored conference for recruiting doctors. There will probably be about 40 doctors there, looking for communities in which to locate, he explained, but more than twice as many communities will be there looking for doctors.

By 1984 or '85, that problem may disappear, as it is expected enough doctors will graduate by then to create a surplus.

When members of Cass City's First Presbyterian church gather for their special 18th Century Day Sunday, they will be doing more than just eating a large meal and hearing excerpts from a 200-year-old sermon. Plans for the day call for display of crafts such as candlemaking, quilting, rug hooking and weaving.

The oldest Presbyterian church in the upper Thumb celebrates its centennial next Sunday. Fraser Presbyterian church, located on M-53, 10 miles northeast of Cass City, plans a special service and a buffet luncheon.

A scrappy Red Hawk team lost to the strong Marlette eleven Friday, 12-0. Marlette's Miller scored touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters.

An estimated 1,000 people attended the open house at the new Bulen Chevrolet Sales building on E. Main Street Wednesday.

Lloyd R. Bartley of Westfield, N.Y., will be the new music teacher in the Cass City Public School.

Edison seeks rate increase of 15.6%

The Detroit Edison Co. Sept. 14 asked the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) for approval to increase electric rates to its 1.7 million residential, commercial, industrial and governmental customers.

The proposed increase, which could be implemented only after comprehensive hearings, would take effect in two steps. If approved, Edison would increase rates by $365 million, or 15.6 percent.

Ernest L. Grove Jr., vice chairman and chief financial officer for the company, said the increase is necessary in view of continuing inflationary increases in

$50,000 grant to aid area displaced homemakers

The Human Development Commission (HDC) in Caro has received a $50,000 state grant to aid displaced homemakers in Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties.

It was one of nine agencies in the state to receive a total of more than $490,000 to aid women who through divorce or widowhood have lost their means of support and have no job or job skills or other financial resources.

"They often have to compete for jobs with younger and better educated people. They are women who, for most of their lives, cared for children and a home but have no up-to-date marketable job skills," said Gov. William G. Milliken in announcing the grant.

The funds received by the HDC, the agency's executive director, Mary Ann Vandemark, explained, will be used to serve 100-150 women for varying lengths of time, depending on their needs.

One full-time and one part-time counselor will be hired. They will sometimes work directly with the women, such as for counseling, and sometimes refer them to or place them in other programs, such as budget and credit counseling, classes,

Close offices Friday

All Secretary of State branch offices will be closed Friday, Secretary of State Richard H. Austin has announced.

The closure complies with the governor's directive furloughing all state employees without pay for six days throughout the year. Branch offices with normal Saturday hours will be open Saturday.

Individuals whose license plates or drivers license expires Sept. 25 should renew prior to that day, Austin said.

or job development.

According to state regulations, no woman will be accepted into the program who has a child younger than 16 at home. The theory is that women who do have children at home younger than that can qualify for Social Security or Aid to Dependent Children, if necessary (plus a limit has to be set somewhere, as there isn't enough money to serve everyone). There is no income criteria to determine eligibility.

Mrs. Vandemark expects most women in the program will be in their 40s or older. She expects the staff to be hired by Oct. 1 and the program to be underway by Oct. 15.

Women who feel they might be aided by the new program can call the HDC's toll-free number — 1-800-292-3666 — before then and ask to be placed on the waiting list.

HEALTH TIPS

Hunting can be danger for your heart

As thousands of Michiganders prepare themselves for another hunting season, many will be going to the shooting range to brush up on both their marksmanship and their gun safety procedures.

Such precautions are indeed justified, because every deer hunting season, several people die in shooting accidents.

There is, however, another risk awaiting Michigan's hunters as they hit the woods — heart attack.

What few hunters probably realize is that the rigors of hunting can quadruple the heart's workload.

Several factors contribute to this added workload, according to Dr. George Ritter, Lathrup Village cardiologist who is president of the Michigan Heart Association.

"Hunting can be very strenuous," said Dr. Ritter. "The average hunter is not used to really exercising all year. Suddenly he's in a different environment, where he'll have to climb over hills and around trees. Cold weather adds to the strain on his system. He may be carrying a gun and other heavy equipment. Add to that the excitement of the hunt itself, and you're asking for trouble."

Dr. Ritter listed some precautions hunters can take:

—Never hunt alone.

—Know where to get help in case of emergency — any kind of emergency. You should be aware of the phone number of the sheriff's department and hospital facilities in the county in which you are hunting.

—Be sure you are in condition. A program of moderate exercise will help put you in better condition to withstand some of the situations you're likely to encounter while hunting. But, before starting a conditioning program, be sure your physician has evaluated you for your ability to exercise and participate in such a program.

—Be sure to wear warm clothing that protects head, ears, hands and throat. Cold weather puts an added strain on the heart.

—Know the symptoms of heart attack: a feeling of fullness, heaviness or squeezing pain in the center of the chest, which may spread to arms, shoulders, neck or jaw and may be accompanied by nausea, vomiting, sweating or shortness of breath. If someone in your party experiences these symptoms, get help fast!

—If you are on medication for your heart, make sure that all members of your hunting party know where you keep your medication and how it should be used.

—Don't tire yourself excessively. Take the hunting, the eating and the celebrating in reasonable doses, and get plenty of rest.

—Watch your alcohol intake; though it may make you feel warmer, alcohol causes your body to lose heat faster.

—Get help to drag your quarry out of the woods — it can be very physically demanding to do so alone.

Child class scheduled for parents

Do you worry when your child has a temperature of 101 degrees or has an earache in the middle of the night and you don't know what to do?

Hills and Dales General Hospital is sponsoring a child health class for parents in which these and other questions will be answered.

The class is being taught by Dr. Doo Sup Lah, MD, pediatrician, and will start Tuesday, Oct. 6. The class will be from 7-8 p.m. in the large meeting room.

Four Tuesday night classes are planned. Among topics to be covered are fever, colds, accident prevention, immunization and feeding problems.

The classes are free. Class space will be limited. Parents should call Jane Mitchell, RN, at Hills and Dales, telephone 872-2121, for reservations.

New books at the library

THE URGE TO DIE: Why young people commit suicide, by Peter Giovacchini (non-fiction). Growing concern with adolescent suicide has prompted psychoanalyst Giovacchini to discuss with parents, teachers, and counselors what they can do to cope with this problem. The author, with his extensive experience in dealing with teenage trauma and emotional distress, describes case histories and offers a number of realistic solutions to be used in spotting and confronting potentially suicidal behavior. A sympathetic and understanding popular treatment.

CHURCHILL'S GOLD by James Follett (fiction). Follett's rousing wartime story features a pugnacious U.S. whaling captain, Robert Gerrard, who rams a German submarine in the early days of World War II. This deliberate display of belligerence causes Gerrard to become involved in an elaborate scheme for the transport of the last of Britain's precious gold supply from Africa. Packed with U-boats, spies, unresolved feuds, romantic entanglements, fighter planes, whaling boats, and even the Bismarck, the adventure never lags.

THE CINDERELLA COMPLEX by Colette Dowling (non-fiction). From her own personal struggle to understand and free herself, the author has written a book that will bring the shock of recognition and the relief of understanding to any woman who has ever unconsciously sabotaged her own future or felt afraid of being alone. Here is a systematic, helpful and controversial volume for every woman.

Around the Farm

Efficiency needed

By Mike Score
Tuscola County
Extension Agricultural Agent

All economic forecasts for 1982 indicate that if everything goes as expected, next year will be a crop production season which will demand efficiency.

With prices forecasted in the low to moderate range, producers will have to beef up their marketing programs and cut their cost of production. Crop quality will be one of the major factors in determining the profitability of our many agricultural commodities.

Producers who use conservation tillage systems in place of conventional systems could cut their cost of production significantly if they choose their tillage tools wisely and time their field operations properly to avoid wet soil conditions.

When picking the primary tillage tool for soil management programs, producers should consider their soil type. Heavy, poorly drained soils should be worked with a primary tillage tool if a tillage hard pan exists. The depth of the primary tillage operation should be just deep enough to shatter the hard pan. Tillage deeper than this will require more fuel and will show no response in yield.

On heavy soils, chisel plows or sub-soilers will require less fuel than a mold board plow and should result in equal yields.

Disks, although used commonly in Tuscola county, will compact the soil, resulting in lower yields and poorer crop quality at harvest in wet years. A good example of this is this year's bean crop. Several producers have indicated that bean picks were higher on disked ground and color was poorer where excess water was received in late August and early September.

Excess or poorly timed secondary tillage operation will also result in soil compaction, leading to lower yields and poorer crop quality.

Producers should look for spots in their fields where improved drainage is needed. If fields are tiled and drainage still needs improvement, producers should consider surface drainage to aid in removing excess water from their fields in 1982.

Improving soil structure, crop rotations, fertilizer programs, and tillage system efficiency will be the key to successful farming in upcoming years.

Eastern Star Grand Chapter to meet

The 115th session of the Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star of Michigan, will be held Oct. 13-15 at Wings Stadium in Kalamazoo.

Four thousand members and guests from Michigan, the United States and Canada, are expected to attend. The Order of the Eastern Star is the largest fraternal organization in the world to which both men and women belong. There are 80,000 Michigan members.

YOU CAN BANK on it!

Q. My son recently asked me how a person becomes a millionaire. I had no real answer except they work hard, get lucky, etc. Do you have anything to add? A. You're right. There are no easy answers, especially in today's economy. Looking back through history, those exceptional people who made their million seemed to have certain qualities in common, and, many practiced discipline, along with making wise investments, watching their business carefully, etc. Some experts in personal finances say there are basically two reasonably certain ways to build a net worth of a million or more by age 65. One is to invest $10,000 at age 30 and receive an annual 15 percent return on the money, compounded every year until retirement. The other way would be by investing $1,000 ± a year, every year, for 35 years and receive the same compounded 15 percent return every year. And, even without the single-minded objective of becoming a millionaire, it is wise to have a solid plan for a substantial net worth at retirement. Any of our bank officers can explain several different plans to help you toward this goal and many have attractive tax advantages.

Altar Society plans events

The St. Michael's Catholic church Ladies' Altar Society in Wilmot met Wednesday, Sept. 9.

Virginia Bilicki, of the Christian service commission, reported on the social hour after mass Aug. 29 and announced the next one will be Saturday, Sept. 26, after the 7:30 p.m. mass. The catechism program will be explained and refreshments will be served. Mrs. Bilicki also reported on the rummage sale in August.

Maxine Kozlowski of the liturgy commission reported on the liturgy committee's meeting planning the special healing service and mass for the anointing of the sick which was celebrated Sunday, Sept. 13.

Mrs. Kozlowski has arranged for a mass to be celebrated Dec. 8 for the deceased members of the Altar Society. Dec. 8 is the feast day of the Immaculate Conception.

President Vida Champagne, representing the Altar Society at the parish council meeting, reported a feather party will be held Nov. 8. Proceeds will be given to the religious education program.

The Kingston blood bank drive will be Oct. 6 at the Kingston United Methodist church. Vida Champagne and Virginia Bilicki will be in charge of telephoning and setting up appointments with parishioners for blood donations.

Mary Sabo, Virginia Bilicki and Marguerite Krywko were selected to be chairpersons of the annual Christmas bazaar Nov. 19-20.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Maxine Kozlowski demonstrated a doll-making craft, starting with the parts, the putting together and the result - a "farmer and wife" couple and a "mother and daughter" two-some.

Next meeting will be held Monday, Oct. 5, at 7:30 p.m.

it was time for him and his wife, Dean, to retire or at least semi-retire.

That they have done, because on Sept. 1, the Zinger Funeral Home in Ubly became the Zinger-Smigielski Funeral Home.

The new owners are John and Ariene Smigielski. His grandfather, father and mother were all morticians in Detroit. Smigielski has been a licensed mortician since 1962 and was working at a Royal Oak Funeral Home before buying Zinger's.

Mr. and Mrs. Zinger won't be too far removed from the funeral business, however. They have moved into the house next door to the funeral home.

The Zinger Funeral Home dates back to April, 1921, when Ernie's father, Edward, bought the business of Joe Morris. When Ernie took over the business in 1950, his father built a home next door. After Edward Zinger died 10 years ago, his son rented out the house until he retired.

Zinger, 62, has assumed the title of associate director at the funeral home. What that means, he said, is, "Whenever John needs me, I'm here."

Remaining a full-time employee will be Cass Scheffka, who worked for Zinger for more than 20 years.

THE ZINGERS HAVE six children, Charles, Fort Worth, Texas; Jon, Mesa, Ariz.; Lynn Shubel, Mount Pleasant; Mark, Aurora, Colo., and Audean and Ernest W., both of Ubly, and six grandchildren.

None chose to go into the funeral business, their father explained, because they know how much work is involved.

It is a feeling he can understand, because he didn't plan to go into the business either. From 1937-41, he worked for the State Tax Commission. In April, 1941, he decided to get his required military service over with so volunteered for the Army. World War II intervened, however, and he didn't get out until 1946.

Military service did have one big plus. While stationed in Texas, he met his wife-to-be. They were married in January, 1946, a month before his official discharge. At that time, Zinger was debating whether to return to his job with the state or take a job with a Philadelphia radio station that a friend in the Army had offered him.

ERNIE AND DEAN ZINGER who performed more than 2,500 funerals since taking over the funeral home from his father in 1950.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Zinger were honeymooning in South Carolina when Zinger received a call from his father. His (Ernie's) brother, Raymond, who was also a mortician, was ill and their father needed help.

Raymond died a few months later and Ernie was home to stay. Two years later he became a licensed mortician and in January, 1950, took over ownership of the business from his father.

Edward remained active in the business until shortly before his death in April, 1971, at age 86.

DURING ZINGER'S first decade, the funeral business underwent a big change. When it began, most embalming and mourning took place in the deceased's home. The body wasn't removed until just before the funeral. "We wouldn't have three wakes in a funeral home in a year when I first started."

But tradition changes, plus a much better job of embalming could be done in the funeral home. A few still wanted the embalming done in the deceased's home, until, "I finally just refused to any more."

The funeral business isn't steady like an assembly line or a minister who knows what he will be doing every Sunday morning, which is one thing that makes it difficult. Zinger has gone six weeks without a funeral and once had eight bodies laid out in the funeral home.

The Zinger Funeral Home operated an ambulance service from 1932-79 when it was replaced by one operated by Bingham township. In terms of hours, it didn't make that big a difference on his work load, Zinger said, since it only averaged about 70 runs a year. Of course, like the funeral business, that wasn't steady either. He could have one call in a month or five in a day.

Zinger also had a branch funeral home in Ruth from 1953-71. The present funeral home in Ubly was built in 1966.

EXCEPT FOR A TRIP TO Hawaii to celebrate their 30th anniversary, the only vacation the Zingers have managed the last several years was once a year to Texas to visit Dean's mother and other relatives.

Now that they have the time, the Zingers are planning to visit their children and other friends throughout the country.

Zinger played fiddle in a dance band in his younger days and would like to take up music again, to learn how to play the organ and bass guitar.

Another retirement activity he is planning is to organize all the old funeral home records prior to when he took over, for the benefit of persons tracing their ancestors.

When the Zingers moved from the funeral home to their "new" home, they threw everything in boxes and carried it next door. Mrs. Zinger said she has been too busy unpacking to give much thought to what she planned to do in the future with her leisure time.

The wife of any small town funeral director, her husband said, must raise her family, help her husband and have her life continually disrupted.

One of her many duties at the funeral home was doing the hairdos of the deceased.

No small town funeral home director could succeed without his wife working alongside him, Zinger said, and his wife was no exception. "At any small town funeral home, a tremendous amount of credit has to go to the wife."

Gov. Milliken urges labor to help find solutions to problems

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

With an eye toward the fall legislative session where the priority will be on economic development, Gov. William G. Milliken knows he will need the support of organized labor to accomplish his goals.

The governor has always been able to work well with the labor lobby in Lansing and wasted no time in taking his case to labor to enlist their help to tackle economic problems facing the state.

Michigan is in a battle with so-called sun belt states to attract new or expanding businesses to the state.

Milliken is promoting the state with its unlimited reserve of fresh water -- a necessity for industrial concerns -- and the state's experienced work force.

Milliken met with delegates of the biennial state AFL-CIO convention recently and told them they may not like many of his proposals to spur economic development in Michigan, but urged them to look at the proposals "as residents of this state who are concerned about our future" and then work together with business and the legislature to reach solutions.

The governor did not outline the specifics of the program. The program was unveiled before a joint session of the legislature when it reconvened last week.

He did, however, tell the delegates that additional workers compensation and unemployment compensation reforms will be part of that package.

Milliken insisted that Michigan is still a good place to do business and that studies which rate the state poorly for business are flawed.

"We must eliminate the perception among a substantial portion of the business community that it is harder to make a profit in Michigan than elsewhere. To change this, we must be bold and decisive," he said.

MILLIKEN SAID THERE is a strong history in Michigan of business and labor working together to achieve common objectives. He added the programs he would propose to the Legislature would "continue to build on this process and relationship."

"In all candor, I suspect your initial reaction to my proposals will not be totally positive," he told the labor delegates.

Even though major changes to both workers and unemployment compensation were adopted last year, more must be done to reduce the costs, Milliken asserted.

"We must take a cold, hard look at the problem and develop fair, realistic reforms which will deal with it in a forthright, effective way, Milliken said.

UNION MEMBERS AND leaders should take part in developing those solutions to workers and unemployment compensation, he added.

"Nothing we can do is more important than to take the steps necessary to assure a growth in employment,"

He suggested that before labor reacts to his proposals, there should be a careful and dispassionate look at Michigan, at its long-range problems and what can be done to assure jobs for future generations.

Both parties in the legislature and the governor's office have established business interests as the major priority for the fall session.

Besides workers and unemployment compensation, other areas to be addressed include property taxes, the single business tax on business and incentives for employers to create new jobs.

The Gagetown Elementary School gymnasium was transformed into Safetyville Thursday afternoon and Friday.

The practical safety lesson for kindergartners and first graders is sponsored by the Huron County Sheriff's Department, which presents it annually to all the schools, public and parochial, within the Huron Intermediate School District.

Safetyville depicts a village, complete with buildings (painted on canvas), streets, sidewalks, vehicles (pedaled toy tractors the youngsters ride), railroad crossing, stoplight, walk-wait sign and school bus, complete with red flashers.

The youngsters are taught such lessons as how to safely cross a street, obeying traffic lights, precautions when boarding and exiting a school bus and using safety belts in cars. When they are done, they receive a safety guide and safety coloring book.

It takes each class about 75 minutes to complete the program. They go through most of it in small groups. Instructor is Sgt. R.B. Woodward, the sheriff's department director of community programs.

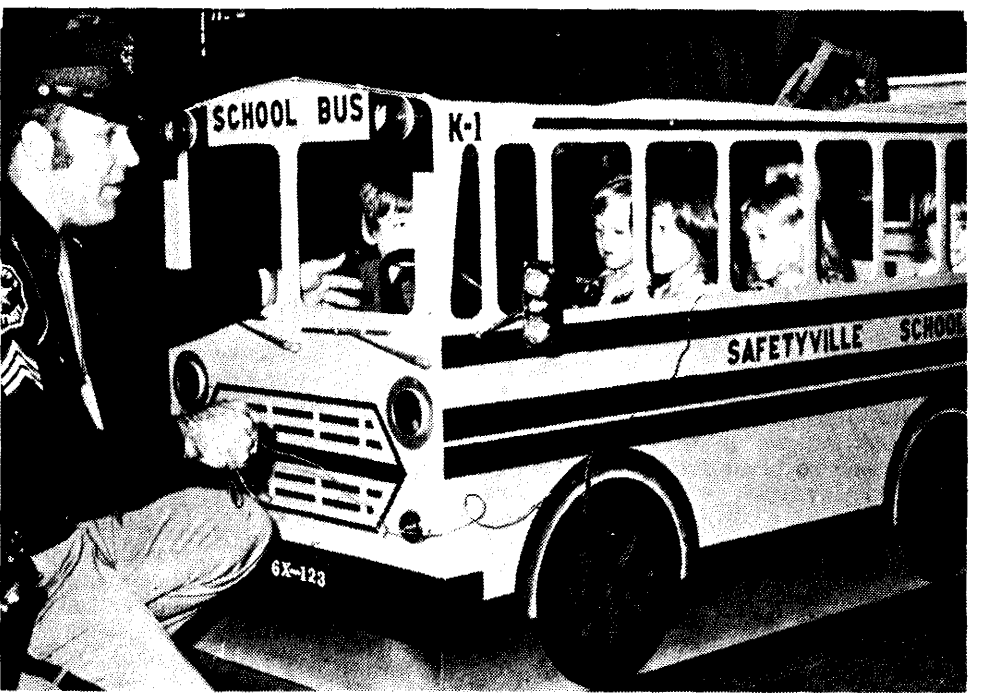

Safetyville requires 3,000 feet of floor space. Because it takes about a half-day to set up, it's easier to bring some classes to it, rather than the opposite. Friday, kindergartners and first graders from Caseville were bused to Gagetown.

This is the second year for Safetyville. There were 1,376 youngsters who went through it last year, according to Woodward.

The initial cost was $6,000, of which $4,700 came from the Office of Highway Safety Planning and the rest from the Huron County Board of Commissioners. Numerous businesses and some individuals made donations of materials, items or money.

SAFE CROSSING -- Sgt. R.B. Woodward of the Huron County Sheriff's Department teaches youngsters in Safetyville the importance of obeying walk-wait signs and looking both ways before crossing streets.

SAFE RIDERS -- Safety on the school bus is important, Sgt. R.B. Woodward points out, but it is also important to be careful when walking from house to bus and vice versa. The wire he holds in his hand controls the bus' rear flasher lights, just like on a real bus.

Insulate openings to cut fuel bills

Step into your attic some winter night. Even if it is insulated at floor level, you may be surprised to find the attic is much warmer than the outside air. That means that some of the expensive heat you need downstairs has escaped up to where it won't do you any good.

It is common to find large openings where pipes, ducts, or exhaust fans are cut through the attic floor. But they can be stuffed with foil-backed insulation or scrap plastic such as dry cleaner bags taped in place. Stopping attic bypasses can save from $25 to $80 a year in heating costs.

All the obvious holes and gaps can be plugged with the exception of the gaps around recessed light fixtures and the vents in the attic. Do not cover light fixtures directly with insulation as this may cause a fire. Also, the vents must be able to breathe so that they can prevent moisture accumulation in the attic.

Another major attic bypass is the gap where the furnace stack or chimney meets the wood framing of the house. This gap is very important, because it often creates a kind of mini-chimney effect, carrying air all the way from the basement to the attic and making a river of heat loss. Fireproof insulation can be stuffed between the wood frame and the wall of the chimney. Do not use cellulose here, as it may burn.

Another good candidate for a little insulation is the attic door. It should be covered with a batt of foil-backed insulation. The edges of the door should be weatherstripped so that air cannot escape around the sides. This measure alone can save $20 if you have electric heat, $8 for gas heat, and $12 for oil heat. It will also save on air-conditioning costs.

2 major tests ahead

Hawks in title picture after Vassar win

In the next two weeks Cass City football fans will find out if the current edition of the Red Hawk football team is for real.

The Hawks upset a favored Vassar Vulcan eleven last Friday, 14-6, to set the stage for the two tests ahead.

The first is in the home opener Friday against the Lakers. The Green and White have a veteran backfield and showed plenty of team speed in an impressive win over North Branch last week.

If the Hawks get by the Lakers it will be Caro next week, a favorite for the league championship in pre-season estimates.

The Hawks weren't thinking about any of the games ahead last week at Vassar. For the second straight week Cass City was forced to come from behind to win.

The Hawks received an early break when a fumble was recovered before the fans could settle in their seats. With a first on the Vassar 30, Cass City could do nothing and the scoring opportunity was wasted.

After that neither team was able to put together a semblance of a drive until midway in the second period when the Vulcans started a march on their own 45. Mixing passes and runs effectively, the host team moved down the field for a first on the 12-yard line. From there Steve Toyzan bulled over right guard to score. The try for extra point was missed.

Cass City showed its mettle after being stung by the Vulcans. The Hawks took the ball and marched down the field to score. Two big plays did the trick. Darryl Hoag took a handoff and dashed around his own left end. He broke into the clear and looked as if he might go all the way out he was hauled down from behind on the Vassar 10.

From there quarterback Jim Crickon ran a bootleg to the left side to cover the final 10 yards.

The Hawks received a little foreign aid to go into the lead. Paulo Leme, exchange student from Brazil, came in and kicked the extra point to put the Hawks in front.

Cass City nearly added to the margin in the final moments of the first quarter. Jeff Loomis intercepted a Vassar pass to give Cass City a first on the Vassar 20. But the Hawks couldn't move the ball and an attempted field goal try was blocked.

As it turned out, Cass City didn't need any more points. The Cass City defense, the bulwark of the team in the early season, got tougher and tougher. Vassar never made a serious threat to score the rest of the game.

Cass City put a little icing on the cake in the fourth period when Tim Horner took a pass in the right flat on the 21, broke a tackle and scored on a 42-yard play. Leme added the extra point.

Jim Adkins, who was credited with 20 tackles, including six solo efforts, was named Red Hawk of the week. Adkins also played offense and recovered a Vulcan fumble.

O-G seeks to bounce back after loop loss to Caseville

For the first time in recent memory, it was Caseville reigning victorious over Owen-Gage Saturday. The home team Eagles walked off the gridiron with a 28-15 win.

The Bulldogs, now 0-1 in the North Central Thumb D League and 1-1 overall, are hoping the outcome will be different Friday when they host North Huron at their homecoming.

One ingredient necessary for a win, line coach Phil Gray said, will be stopping Warrior fullback Wally Barsanski. North Huron opened the season with a 42-0 loss to non-league Uby. It gained its first league win Friday over Peck, 16-6.

Owen-Gage was first on the scoreboard in the afternoon game when quarterback Stan Andrakowicz collected six points in the first quarter on a one-yard run. Dan Glidden kicked the extra point.

Caseville scored all the points it needed in the second quarter, starting with a two-yard run by Brian Siegfried. He then ran the ball across the goal line for two more.

Wayne Simmons then scored on a three-yard run. The run attempt for two more points was stopped short.

Mike Stahl's 29 yard pass to Dan Osentoski put another six points on the board and Siegfried kicked one more.

The third quarter didn't start off well for the Bulldogs as halfback Siegfried returned the Bulldog kickoff for 75 yards for a TD, then kicked the extra point. The Owen-Gage defense had him trapped, but he reversed himself and outmaneuvered them for the score.

"We didn't play well," said Gray, citing that touchdown as an example.

The Bulldogs' final touchdown came in the third quarter on a two-yard run by Andrakowicz, who also ran the ball in for two extra points.

Owen-Gage had trouble moving the ball against the larger Eagles. They gained 103 yards in 34 carries and 58 more through the air on six completions of 13 attempts with one interception, for a total of 161 yards. Top ground gainer was Alan LeValley with 31 yards in seven carries.

The team made nine first downs, fumbled once and was penalized four times for 40 yards.

Caseville gained most of its yardage on the ground, 181 in 42 carries. Siegfried was the top ball carrier with 112 yards in 22 carries.

In the air, the Eagles gained 88 yards on three completions of six attempts, with one interception, for a total of 269 yards.

The team collected 10 first downs, did not fumble, and was penalized 10 times for 80 yards.

Defensive standouts for Owen-Gage were Nick Swaistyn with 10 tackles and Dan Glidden with nine and one pass interception.

Al Perry and Mike Kelley each made seven tackles for the victors.

Jim Adkins, who was credited with 20 tackles, including six solo efforts, was named Red Hawk of the week. Adkins also played offense and recovered a Vulcan fumble.

JOE DECKER broke briefly into the open and waited for a pass Friday at Vassar. But the Jim Crickon heave was too long for the Hawk halfback.

THIS PLAY EVENTUALLY resulted in a touchdown. Darryl Hoag broke around left and raced along the sideline to the Vulcan 10 on a 45-yard gallop.

USA presses Hawks to loss in 2nd half Tuesday

USA used its team speed to advantage in the second half to top an improving Cass City team Tuesday night at Sebewaing, 51-35.

The Hawks and the Patriots battled on even terms for the first two quarters before the host team went to a half court press that the inexperienced Hawks just couldn't handle.

While USA led all of the way it was anybody's game for the first two quarters. At the end of the first period the score was 10-8 and at the half USA was in front 23-19.

Cass City scored the first two points in the third quarter and the margin was a single basket. But that's when the Patriots went into its press and after that the winners dominated the play.

Dawn Englehardt of USA led all scorers with 17 points. Kelly Adam and Jan Tietz netted 10 each for the winners.

For Cass City Carrie Lautner led with 12. Michelle Fahrner, 10, and Joy Root, 9, led the Hawks in rebounding.

VASSAR GAME

The Cass City Red Hawks lost their opening Thumb B Association game Thursday at Vassar, bowing to the Vulcans in a close game, 39-36.

The Hawks fell behind in the first period and were never able to overcome the deficit although the game wasn't decided until the final period.

Vassar outscored Cass City, 8-4, in the initial stanza and the Hawks chipped a point off the margin in the second quarter to trail 19-16 at the intermission.

The hosts pushed the margin to five points in the third quarter and Cass City's two-point margin in the final quarter was too little, too late.

Carrie Lautner and Joy Root scored 8 points each to lead Cass City while Marj Erbish led the winners with 12.

Jill Hutchinson snagged 15 rebounds for Cass City. Coach Lloyd Schinnerer said that his team didn't handle the ball very well and the large number of turnovers contributed to the defeat. A 29 percent shooting average from the floor didn't help much either. Cass City hit just 13 of 45 shots. Free throw shooting was good with 10 of 15 for 67 percent.

Vassar made its night complete in the preliminary as the Vulcan JV team defeated Cass City 22-17.

Harriers now 7-0

Hawks add to win string

The Cass City boys' cross country team extended its dual meet record to 7-0 Tuesday with a win in a home meet in the village park.

The Red Hawks compiled 31 points, narrowly edging Unionville - Sebewaing, which had 35. Harbor Beach was third with 69. Bad Axe had three runners, not enough to collect points.

First across the finish line was USA's Kirk Scharich with a time of 16:20 for the three miles.

Second was Red Hawk Greg Bliss at 16:24. Other Cass City runners placing were Scott Hobart, 3rd, 17:28; Kevin Bliss, 7th, 18:42; Tom Rutkowski, 9th, 18:54; and Randy Nicholas, 10th, 18:57.

The Red Hawk girls came in second with 40 points to 30 for Harbor Beach. The distaff harriers now have a 3-2 dual season mark. USA and Bad Axe also had girls running, but not the minimum five required for points.

First to finish was M. Volmering of Harbor Beach at 19:29 for the three miles. Renae Stimpfel of Cass City was second at 21:24. Other Red Hawks placing were Lorie Hurley, 7th, 22:52; Merilee Leslie, 8th, 23:16; Tammy Stimpfel, 11th, 24:08; and Lisa Wilson, 12th, 24:27.

The harriers compete Saturday at Marlette and Tuesday in a Thumb B meet at Lakers.

AKRON-FAIRGROVE

The Cass City boys' cross country team won first place in a meet last Thursday at Akron-Fairgrove. The Red Hawk girls finished second.

First across the finish line was Cass City's Gregg Bliss at 17:06 for the three miles. Kingston's Jack Barden was second at 17:32.

Other Red Hawks placing were Kevin Bliss, 8th, 19:27; Scott Hobart, 9th, 19:35;

Tom Rutkowski, 17th, 20:15; and Mike Middaugh, 20th, 20:24.

Team standings were Cass City, 50 points; Capac, 53; Akron-Fairgrove, 57; Kingston, 62; and Genesee, 130.

First place among the girls was Kingston's Jill Barden at 20:45.

Red Hawks placing were Bonnie Smerdon, 3rd, 21:55; Renae Stimpfel, 8th, 23:14; Lorie Hurley, 12th, 23:44; Merilee Leslie, 15th, 24:18; and Lisa Wilson, 16th, 24:25.

Point totals were Akron-Fairgrove, 48; Cass City, 54; Kingston, 59; and Capac, 63. Genesee does not have a girls' team.

No trouble: Model A Ford chugs to Texas

Ted and Marilyn Morgan drove from Cass City to Texas in August. It took them three days to drive the more than 1,300 miles and their car averaged 18-20 miles per gallon.

What's so special about that? Their car was a 1930 Model A Ford two-seater coupe.

Actually, the car isn't theirs, which is why they made the trip.

Their son Jim, now 27, bought the car in 1973, shortly after graduating from high school. He and his father restored it.

It was quite a project, the senior Morgan recalled. They brought the car home in two pickup loads. "It was all tore apart." Jim bought the car for $550 in Pine Run, north of Flint. A couple of thousand dollars in parts and paint have been spent since then. It's now worth about $6,000.

Jim moved to Texas in 1976, where he works for Delta Airlines as a freight handler, but the car stayed behind.

The intent had been to someday drive the car to Texas so Jim could get it back, explained Morgan, the Elkland township cemetery sexton, but it wasn't in good enough condition to drive the long distance.

He and his son originally restored the engine in the basement of their then Pringle Road home one winter, when they were still getting their feet wet about such things.

In preparation for the trip, Morgan had the engine rebuilt for $550 by a professional in East Tawas.

Originally, he and his wife planned to make the trip around Christmas time last year, but the rebuilt engine wasn't done in time, then one thing or another intervened, so their departure from their Cass City Road home didn't come until 6 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 9.

The week end before, they had made a shakedown trip to Traverse City, a round trip of about 400 miles. Morgan discovered he needed to install a new distributor and make some changes to the radiator overflow before the big trip.

HE TOOK NO CHANCES when they departed for Texas. "I had enough spare parts to overhaul it." Among them were a generator, three sets of distributor points, bulbs, condensers, fan belt, two gallons of water and an extra mounted spare tire (in addition to the normal spare).

Morgan was prepared for anything. What happened? Almost nothing. He had to replace a burned out headlight bulb and adjust the points twice. The latter isn't unusual for a Model A.

In St. Louis, they got caught in a downpour and the engine started to miss. They were afraid it would die, but it stopped raining and they kept going.

They were also afraid the engine would overheat, which is why they carried the extra water, but they never needed it, even though the temperature was in the 90s by the time they got to Oklahoma and Texas.

THE MORGANS DROVE a little more than 400 miles the first day, to west of Indianapolis, and about 400 the second, to Lebanon, Mo. After driving a little more than 500 miles the third day, they arrived at Jim's home in Keller, 15 miles north of Fort Worth, at 10:30 p.m.

They averaged about 42 miles per hour. They traveled at 45 mph only in states where that was the minimum speed limit. As much as possible, they traveled on the expressways.

"We didn't pass anybody," said Mrs. Morgan, who let her husband do all the driving.

One of the many cars that passed them was another Model A, in Indiana. "He was pouring it on," Morgan said. "He must have been doing 50."

Top speed for the 40-horsepower Model A is about 60 "if you really wanted to trust your luck. The vibration would get you."

OTHER THAN A FEW drivers who got upset because the Morgans were traveling so slow, the reaction they often received was one of blowing horns and waving, especially the farther they got from home.

Mrs. Morgan said some cars turned around and passed them two or three times.

"They couldn't believe we were making that good a time to get there in three days," Morgan said was another reaction.

The couple arrived in time for Jim to drive his car in a parade in Kendall. One day they were there, the temperature was 104 degrees. They came home by plane Aug. 18.

NOW THAT JIM'S CAR IS gone, Morgan has more room to work on his other projects.

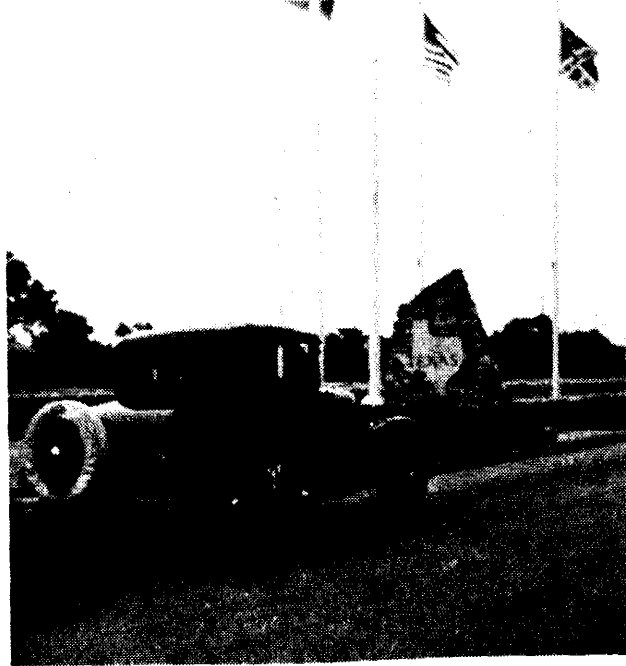

The first antique he bought, about 1966, was a 1922 Model T Ford, which he has never quite finished. He still has to do the interior. There is a 1929 Model A roadster on which he has lots of work to do, plus a 1925 Model T touring car — "real, real rough" — for which he is still collecting parts.

His other antique is a restored 1928 Model A Tudor sedan. Jim also owns a 1923 Model T pickup, which is still here, unrestored.

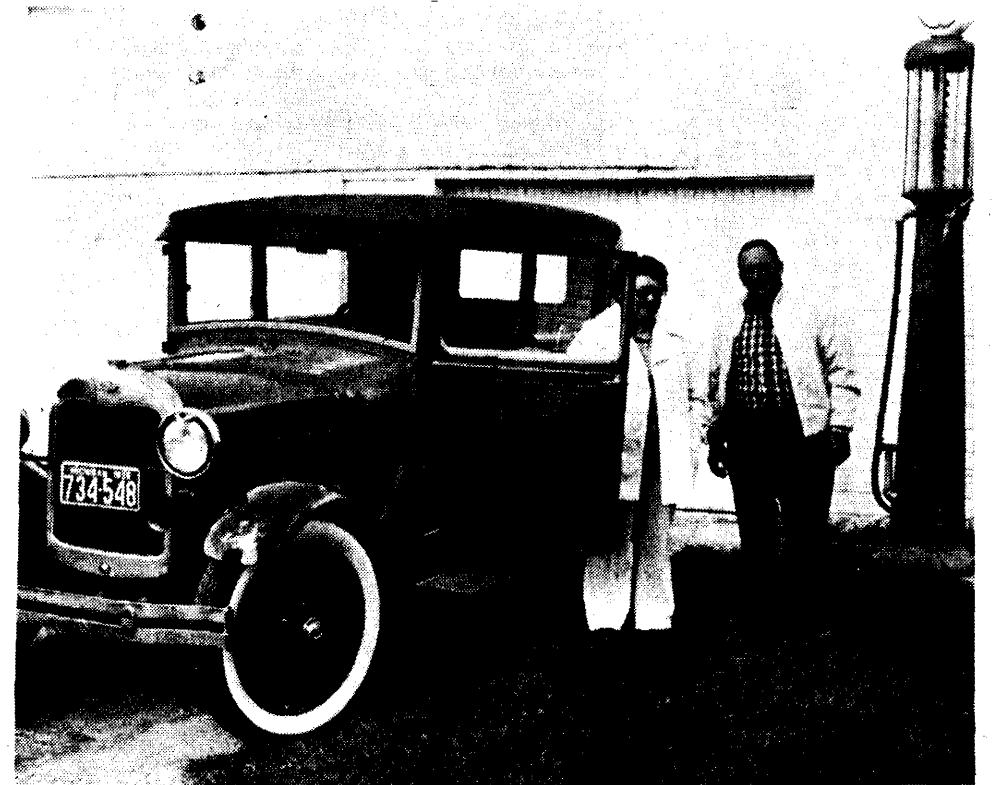

The car now in Texas isn't done yet either. The interior upholstery kit arrived the day after they left. The Morgans will take it with them on their next trip to Texas and do the job there. Upholstering is Mrs. Morgan's specialty. She sewed the seats for the car originally, which are now worn.

Asked whether they would like to make another long trip in an antique car, Morgan replied enthusiastically, "Yes I would."

Mrs. Morgan wasn't quite as enthusiastic. "I guess I would have to go to read the road map."

ALMOST THERE - Marilyn Morgan got out of the 1930 Model A long enough to take this photo while her husband crossed the border from Oklahoma into Texas. Note the twin spare tires and water jug on the running board.

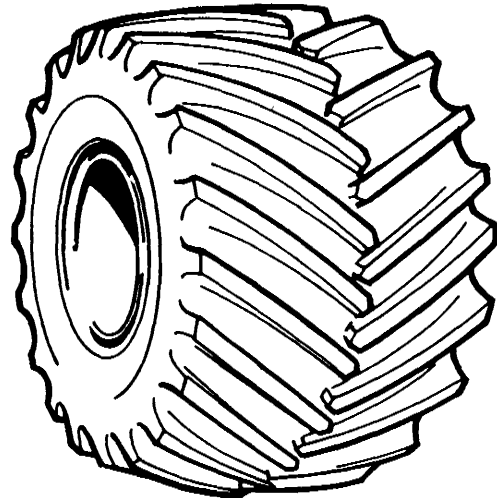

BACK HOME -- Marilyn and Ted Morgan and the car they are keeping, a 1928 Model A Ford Tudor. They do own a modern car for most long trips, but use the antique for around town and antique car club activities.

Cuts approved as O-G moves to balance budget

in writing in the form of a new budget.

The cost of instruction is cut from $691,480 originally budgeted to $612,308, mainly by the reduction of 3½ teaching positions which accounts for a reduction in pay and benefits. There are not actually 3½ fewer teachers on the payroll as some new ones are working part-time.

Supporting services were cut from $498,288 to $449,918, the main reductions being a $30,000 slash in legal expenses and a $9,500 cut in pupil transportation by eliminating one bus run and reducing projected expenditures for fuel, tires, tubes and batteries.

Mainly reflecting inactivity since the Supreme Court heard arguments in the Goslin case last November (no decision has been made by the court yet), legal fees fell from $91,317 in 1979-80 to $49,967 last year.

THE NEW BUDGET more accurately reflects projected revenues, reduced from the original $1.2 million to $1.15 million. Interest on investments and delinquent taxes was reduced from $27,500 to $10,000 and the $35,000 listed in CETA funds was eliminated entirely.

The revised budget should put the district in compliance with state law, which requires that "total estimated expenditures, including an accrued deficit in the budget, shall not exceed the total estimated revenues."

In addition to recommending the board approve the new budget, the auditors also recommended the school board periodically review the budget and amend it if required. That also is a requirement of a new state law, which bars governmental units from spending money in excess of the amounts budgeted.

DURING THEIR AUDIT, the accountants discovered the district's insurance policy for fire and other damage had lapsed. It was renewed immediately and they recommended insurance policies should be checked more often in the future.

Another recommendation was that the high school principal have more control over the internal accounts for various student organizations and activities, as several are in the red, which is being implemented.

The auditors also recommended that even during payless paydays, pay should continue for employees in the hot lunch and Title I remedial education programs. Up to now, the district has always cut off their pay out of fairness to other employees who weren't getting paid.

However, since those two programs receive federal funds, the district could get into trouble if it doesn't pay those employed in them when the money is there.

FOLLOWING THEIR presentation to the board, Moore and Janke told the Chronicle passage of the additional 3 mills in the special election Nov. 2 will go a long way in alleviating Owen-Gage's cash flow problems. Receipt of the Goslin tax money will put the district in very good financial condition.

Defeat of the millage, however, would mean it might have to use all of the property tax revenue it starts receiving in December for back pay (Sept. 11 was the last payday possibly until December) and other bills and quickly resume payless paydays again.

In addition to accepting the audit and approving the budget, the board also officially established Nov. 2 as the date of the special election. If the millage is approved, it will go on December tax bills.

Sentencing of David A. Ertman, 19, of 131 W. Burnside Street, Caro, for attempted breaking without entering with intent to commit larceny was delayed one year. He was assessed $200 court costs.

Army sergeant recorded immense losses in fire

by Emma Ackerman
Part IV of a Series

A complete report of the 1881 disaster was made by Sergeant William O. Bailey of the Signal Corps, United States Army, and placed on file in Washington, D.C. He ranged the burned district on foot, horseback, and buggy to gather vital statistics.

Michigan History magazine credited him with the extent of this great fire being better known than any previous fires, either in Michigan or elsewhere. He listed a total of 44 townships in Tuscola, Huron, and Sanilac counties, or 1,014,000 acres of land, completely burned.

One may well conclude that even though the reports of losses vary, and this is conceivable of this period of time when transportation and communication were both in their infancy, the fire of 1881 will always rank as one of the worst disasters by flame that this nation has ever experienced.

Actual accounts by individuals describing the two great fires and their experiences were similar in detail. People near the lake waded into the water as far from shore as possible. Those inland sought shelter in plowed fields, digging holes in the earth to bury their heads to escape the suffocating smoke.

Meanwhile, the fire burned their clothes and blistered their flesh. Some took cover in wells and cisterns clinging to the sides with fingers and toes as the blaze raged overhead.

Others sought safety in rivers, submerging their heads to escape the flames and heat. In many places, the river water became so hot that fish trapped in the shallows were cooked.

Wild beasts tamed with fear sought protection as they herded with domestic animals in the open fields. Others took refuge in the lake waters in company with people. The bodies of one family were found in a cornfield, while nearby were the charred remains of a bear.

Thousands of birds flew far out over the lake waters where they drowned. Bodies floated among the dead fish brought down by rivers flowing through the burned forests.

The unnatural became commonplace. The heat was so intense that it withered leaves on trees two miles from its path. Fields of corn, potatoes, onions, and other vegetables not touched by the flames were roasted on the plants or in the ground. The heat also caused some fruit trees to burst into bloom, the petals quickly dropping, browned and scorched.

Along the road between Cumber and Greenleaf, people were digging potatoes which had been baked in the ground and were eating corn roasted on the stalks.

Days became as dark as night in the smoke shrouded atmosphere, choking and blinding all creatures. By contrast, the nights took on the brightness of days as the flames licked up the towering pine trees.

The Sand Beach newspaper observed that, "It was absolutely impossible to see one's hand before his face."

We have never seen the darkness of a night which exceeded it." The Minden newspaper editor reported that at noonday, "Egyptian darkness prevailed. It was darker than the darkest night we ever saw. Objects couldn't be distinguished a foot distant."

The Bad Axe newspaper attributed many of the deaths to the extreme darkness which preceded the on-rushing fires. Some people suddenly thought the world was coming to an end, and in their confusion, they were apt to rush into the thick underbrush as into the open fields.

Taking Stock

Before this invasion of the domain of Stan Goodman, Boca Raton's official arbiter of eating out, I got special permission from Stan to do this piece.

Although he didn't ask to censor it, I did have him review it, and he added a couple items of his own. Others who had ideas were Betty Harris of Wellsville, N.Y., Brad Newsom of Boca Raton, and Jeanne Martin of Delray Beach.

This column is about NOT eating out, and why many of us stay home so much. The list is of things that bug me, and many of my friends, in restaurants.

Some are annoying, some are depressing, some are only slightly disturbing. You assign to each one as many points as you want, on a scale of one to five, five being the most upsetting. Then, depending on your disposition — and to some extent on your alternative, eating at home — you decide how many points you can stand before you blacklist the restaurant.

The black mark system:

1. No one to greet you on entering.
2. Hostess or captain doesn't seat you.
3. Water and bread and butter don't appear.
4. The menus are dirty.
5. Too many choices on menus.
6. Not enough choices.
7. Dishes between courses are removed from some while others at table are not finished.
8. The waiter asks while walking by, "Everything OK with you folks?"
9. The waiter announces, "My name is Sheryl and I'll be serving you."
10. The waiter, when serving as she puts the plate down, "There you go."
11. At the end of the meal, waiter says, "Everybody want coffee here?"
12. At the end of the main course, you have to pry out of waiter if there are desserts, and if so what.
13. Unbrewed tea.
14. Unbrewed Sanka.

15. Your water glass stays empty.

16. There are paper napkins at dinner.

17. The ash tray is not emptied.

18. Beverages, salads, etc. are put down on the wrong side.

19. The waiter doesn't know who ordered what. Example, "Which of youse is the capon?"

20. The check doesn't appear after a decent interval when you're done eating.

21. The sign says "Wait for hostess." But there is no hostess.

22. After you've decided on your order, and it had been taken, the waiter returns from kitchen, and says, "Sorry, we're out of that."

23. Air conditioning directly overhead, chilling you and the food.

24. Potatoes baked in aluminum foil.

25. Being shunted into a bar to wait when there are empty tables; an obvious scheme of the maitre d' to extract a bribe.

Proctor picked for Rotary advisory group

Thomas W. Proctor of Cass City was recently appointed by Rotary International President Stanley E. McCaffrey of Stockton, Calif., to the Youth Exchange Consultative Group.

The group exchanges ideas and makes recommendations to the general chairman of the Service to Youth Committee on the respective youth activities.

Proctor, owner of the Old Wood Drug, has been involved in the Rotary Youth Exchange Program for many years. He is a past district governor, as well as a Paul Harris Fellow of Rotary International. He is a member of the Cass City Rotary Club.

Rotary has about 890,000 members in more than 19,000 clubs in 156 countries.

Airtight homes can lock in pollution during winter

Homeowners who invest in energy-saving additions to their homes without the proper know-how may be exposing their families to a serious health hazard — indoor air pollution.

According to National Wildlife magazine, air-tight homes outfitted with triple-glazed windows, air-lock vestibules, weather stripping, and plastic vapor barriers in walls, floors, and ceilings, may be "residential thermos bottles," which trap dangerous pollutants inside.

In fact, a report recently released by the National Academy of Sciences concluded that exposure to indoor air pollution is "common enough to account for substantial mortality and premature mortality."

The problem is much more prevalent in newer homes, the magazine emphasizes. In older, draftier homes, the air is replaced by fresh air about once an hour.

But in some of today's tightly-sealed houses, the inside air is replaced only about once every 10 hours. Because most Americans spend 80 to 90 percent of their time inside rather than out, there is a real health threat. "In some circumstances, there's much more exposure to indoor pollution than outdoor pollution," Yale epidemiologist Dr. Jan Stoltwijk told National Wildlife.

The pollutants trapped inside dwellings may include:

—Formaldehyde, which is found in a host of products — particularly board and plywood, insulating foam, adhesives, and household furnishings. The gas given off can cause eye irritation, breathing difficulties, and nausea.

—Carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen, which are mainly generated by gas ranges, heaters, wood stoves, and tobacco smoke. The gasses can cause headaches, dizziness, and are linked to a variety of respiratory ailments.

—Suspended particulates from tobacco-smoking and wood-burning which can be inhaled and lodged in the lungs. The tiny particles of hydrocarbons can cause respiratory ailments.

—Radon, a decay product from radium, often found in soil and building materials. Where radon levels are high, the radioactive particles can accumulate in the lungs and may eventually cause cancer.

—Household chemicals, including furniture polish, oven cleaner, hair spray, and air freshener. These products contain organic chemicals that add to indoor smog. Health impacts from these pollutants are not yet known.

Homeowners hoping to cut down on fuel bills needn't be discouraged. They can still take such energy-saving measures as installing storm windows, insulating ceilings and hot water heaters, and turning down thermostats.

They should also be on the alert for warning signs. If the home seems stuffy, if there is excess moisture in the winter, or if family members suffer from frequent headaches or eye irritation, indoor air pollution may be a problem.

For energy efficient homes, the U.S. Department of Energy recommends air-to-heat exchangers. These devices, widely used in Scandinavia and Japan, boost ventilation while retaining much of a dwelling's heat.

Child care big cost to county

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners is faced with paying a much larger child care bill than it ever contemplated.

Probate Judge W. Wallace Kent Jr. told the board Tuesday it will cost the county an additional $92,000 this year for children in detention facilities, foster homes and other institutions, beyond what it had originally budgeted.

A big reason for the increase is the detention facilities for juvenile offenders, such as in Flint, are now charging the county $124 per day. A year ago, the rate had been about $80.

The board appropriated $25,000 out of its contingency fund and its finance committee will meet with Kent to discuss what will be done about the remainder.

Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn discussed with the board the new state law aimed at standardizing pay for judges. He presently receives $47,725 annually, of which $14,450 comes from the county and the rest from the state.

Next year, the state will pay $8,950 of the county's share. Joslyn requested that he be paid that much additional out of county funds, in addition to the state subsidy. With the state's basic pay to also increase next year, if his request is granted, he will be making $63,480.

The judge said that several other counties, including Huron and Sanilac, have already approved the $63,480 total.

The board approved a new salary for James McCann, who is now the veterans counselor and emergency services director. For the latter, he will receive $13,800, of which half will be paid by the federal government. As veterans counselor, he will receive $6,740, for a total of $20,540.

The board approved a resolution supporting a change in the state gas tax from 11 cents per gallon to a percentage of the sales price, plus an increase in license plate fees, so that county road commissions will receive more money. The proposal is currently being considered by the legislature.

Local United Way kickoff Tuesday

Michigan United Way board member Iris Tuckey will be the speaker at the Elkland-Novesta United Way kickoff dinner Tuesday.

The dinner for those who will be soliciting donations in the annual charity campaign starts at 6:30 p.m. at the Charmont. Those attending will be receiving their instructions and envelopes.

Mrs. Tuckey, of Schwegler Road, Cass City, was president of the Elkland-Novesta United Way two years ago, was president of the newly formed Tuscola County United Way this past year and earlier this year was named to the state board.

Jon Fahrner is chairman of this year's drive, which will run from Sept. 30 - Oct. 26.
