Boosters raise money for fall, winter activities

The Cass City Boosters Club has raised more than $20,000 so far, according to President Bob Tuckey, enough to fund all fall and winter sports and extra-curricular activities.

The next goal is an estimated $10,000-13,000 additional needed for spring activities.

The next fund raising activity planned is a dinner some time in December. The first one, Sept. 25, raised more than $1,500.

Other fund raising events have included a golf tournament, girls' softball tournament, run-a-thon, auction, "Red Hawk" license plate sales, plus donations, season ticket sales and Booster Club memberships.

Sale of season tickets for winter sports will begin shortly. Memberships are still available.

At the Oct. 12 Boosters meeting, Dotty Scollon, school board appointed chairman of the millage campaign committee, discussed the millage vote which will be sometime next year.

The public was urged to register to vote. To make that easier, it will be possible to do so at the Deford Elementary School open house from 7-8 p.m. Monday and the Intermediate School open house from 7-8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Cross county coaches Dennis Meck and Doug Grezak spoke to the group.

The next Boosters Club meeting will be at 8 p.m. Monday at the Charming. Future meetings will be on the fourth Friday of each month at that time and place.

All members and interested residents are invited.

Sunday a time for sleeping

Sunday may be the best morning of the year.

It will be possible to sleep an hour extra and still get to church on time.

The reason is that at 2 a.m. Sunday, daylight time ends and it becomes 1 a.m. That means before retiring for the night, clocks and watches must be set back one hour. (Spring ahead, fall behind.)

That also means that although it will get light an hour earlier, darkness will also arrive an hour earlier.

Lansing hearing set for Deford bar license

The Michigan Liquor Control Commission (LCC) will conduct a formal hearing Tuesday on the application of Eugene Kaake for a tavern license to operate a bar in Deford.

The hearing is at the request of Kaake. It will be conducted at the State Secondary Complex outside of Lansing.

Kaake's request for the formal hearing followed rejection Aug. 26 by the LCC of his request for the tavern license.

It did so, according to the letter sent to the Novesta Township Board, "due to failure of applicant to receive favorable recommendation from the Novesta Township Board."

Cited was a state law that, "An application for a license to sell beer and wine or spirits for consumption on the premises . . . shall be approved by the local legislative body . . . before being granted a license by the commission."

Township Supervisor Bill O'Dell and some other board members plan to be at the hearing.

A lawyer who didn't want his name used said Kaake's next step, should the LCC deny his appeal, will probably be to file suit against the township board.

He added that a recent attorney general's opinion specifies criteria under which a governmental unit may deny a tavern license, that there must be valid reasons.

Kaake, of Bay City-Forestville Road, Gageton, has an agreement to purchase a building on Bruce Street (Decker Road) in Deford for the tavern.

Trunk Pro. ture key to future rail service

By Mike Eliasohn

The Grand Trunk Western Railroad has not ruled out someday abandoning its rail line that runs through Kings-ton, Cass City, Gageton and Owendale.

If that happens, say users of the line, mainly grain elevators, farmers will be the losers because the only way to haul grain will be by truck, which costs more.

The railroad says it doesn't make enough money from the line to pay for needed repairs. The state paid $1.5 million for track improvements for the first year of what was supposed to be a three-year program, but doesn't have any more money.

And, says one user of the line, if Grand Trunk would improve service, it could make enough money to fix the track without government help.

The 66-mile line in question runs from north of Imlay City to Caseville.

The Grand Trunk petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission in October, 1974, for permission to abandon the line, claiming that it was losing money.

Hearings were eventually held and an ICC administrative law judge subsequently ruled, in July, 1977, that the railroad had to maintain the same level of service.

The judge did not require the railroad to rehabilitate the tracks. Testimony made at the hearing was that the track was so bad, trains could go no faster than 20 miles per hour in most

Accidental shooting hurts Rife

Randy R. Rife, 24, was reported in fair condition Tuesday afternoon at Hills and Dales General Hospital, where he was taken after being accidentally shot in the leg Sunday evening.

He told investigating state police he and his brother, Donald, were in an upstairs bedroom of their home at 8100 Germania Road, Greenleaf township.

They had a .22 caliber rifle, which Donald was going to clean. They were examining it and when Donald turned around, Rife said, it discharged. The bullet entered his left leg, just above the knee.

Rife was taken to the hospital by his brother and their parents. The incident took place about 7:10 p.m.

places. In three sections, including the one through Cass City, the maximum safe speed was only 15. The fastest they could go in the best sections was only 30.

REHABILITATION

According to Grand Trunk spokesman John David Williams, the railroad pointed out in the 1977 hearing that the line was of only marginal profitability. Some years it lost money and some years it was above the break even point.

For that reason, it could not see the sense in spending the millions necessary to rehabilitate the line, that it was better off spending the money for repairs on lines where it had more customers.

Such rehabilitation, Williams said, would allow use of large hopper cars in unit trains traveling 50-60 miles per hour, which would make Thumb farmers' products more competitive, since they could be moved to market at lower cost.

Although the Grand Trunk didn't find the money, the state did.

It gave the railroad $1.5 million in 1980 for installation of nine miles of continuous rail, surfacing of nine miles of track and repair of 11 bridges and nine highway crossings, according to Don Riel, a Department of Transportation Railroad Section administrator. The railroad contributed $500,000 in materials. (According to Williams, nine miles of continuous rail was installed, 41 miles of track resurfaced, 12 bridges and 10 crossings repaired.)

That was Phase I of what was supposed to be a three-year program to improve the entire 66 miles, at a total cost of $4.7 million, Riel said. To obtain the grant, Grand Trunk had to agree it would keep the line in operation for at least five years after the project was completed.

The state doesn't have the money now for Phase II and III, he continued, so the five-year commitment presently applies only to the southernmost nine miles, on which the improvements were made. If the Grand Trunk decides to abandon the line before five years are up, it has to repay the grant to the state.

"It's not dead, it's just that we don't have the funds to implement them," Riel said of Phases II and III. If the economy improves and the state does have the money, it might be in the form of a loan to Grand Trunk to complete the project, instead of a grant.

Meanwhile, Williams explained, as long as the railroad may someday abandon the track, the ICC requires it to file an annual legal notice in newspapers that the status of the line is "anticipated abandonment."

CUSTOMERS

If use of the line ended, it would have serious consequences for farmers.

"That would definitely hurt our area farmers tremendously," said Blount Agriculture Manager Kale Bradley in Gageton.

It is roughly 50 percent cheaper to haul grain by train than by truck, he explained. If everything had to be shipped by truck, the increased cost would be reflected in the price paid to farmers for their crops.

Wickes Elevator Manager Bob Wischmeyer made similar comments. The elevator is a heavy user of the HUNTING WAS DIFFICULT on opening day Tuesday but Gerald Stephane, left, and his brother, Joe, managed to get a pat and a pheasant hunting three miles south of Cass City Road on Wheeler Road. They reported seeing only one other group of hunters all day. Another pair on Cass City Road said that they saw no other hunters all day. Hunting pressure state-wide was light.

Bulldogging and roping just fun events for Randy Frost

Randy Frost's mother didn't want him playing football in high school. She was afraid he would get hurt.

Now on almost any week end he can be seen leaping from his horse onto the horns of bulls weighing 450 pounds plus. Or roping calves.

The Ritter Road, Cass City, resident is a cowboy, but not the kind who hangs around country-western bars where the only thing that bucks is a mechanical bull.

Frost isn't a full-time cowboy. A job with the state pays his bills.

But come almost every week end of the year, he can be found at a rodeo in Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky or Indiana.

The 30-year-old grew up on a Dansville beef farm, near Lansing. There were always horses on the farm and he has been riding since he was old enough to walk.

In fact, his father had done some rodeo riding and when there was a rodeo on television, they would watch. The senior Frost would even get his son out of bed to watch.

Frost, who at 5-10 and 210 pounds, is built like a football player, didn't play the sport in high school, not only because of the opposition of his mother, but also because he was needed in the fall on the farm. Instead, he was the marching band drum major. He did play four years of basketball and ran track.

When he went to Michigan State University in the fall of 1969, he became a charter member of the MSU Rodeo Club, which conducted its first rodeo in the judging pavilion in February, 1970.

That was the first rodeo in which he participated. He entered the bareback riding and managed to stay on the bucking bronco one second. He continued to participate in that event through the summer of 1970, and then switched. "I already knew how to ride a riding horse," he explained, thus couldn't see trying to ride one that didn't want to be ridden.

He went to a rodeo school to learn bulldogging and roping — he also had help with the latter from a friend in Stockbridge (near Dansville) — and those have been his events since.

He then lets go of the saddle and grabs the inside horn with his left hand, plants his feet into the ground, throws his hip into the steer's shoulder and if everything works right, it lands on its side. The stop-watches stop when the steer is on its side and its four feet are in the air.

In Frost's 300-foot practice pen, large for a rodeo arena, 5-6 seconds is a good time. He finished second in one rodeo with a time of 3.8.

In calf wrestling, the rider swings a 27-foot rope, with one end tied to the saddle horn. The calf is to the rider's left. Once lassoed, the rider pulls the slack out of the way, gets off, throws the calf on its side and ties both back legs and one front leg together with a 6-foot long rope called a "piggin' string." Depending on the size of the arena, a good time can be from 4-12 seconds.

FROST PREFERS CALF roping, but does better in bulldogging, which he says is easier. "I can take anyone off the street and teach him bulldogging in three weeks."

In Mid-States Rodeo Association events, he competes in both steer wrestling and calf roping, but in the International Rodeo Association, where the competition is tougher, he competes only in bulldogging.

Frost also participates in about 40 Michigan Ropers Association events a year and recently won its individual annual championship. The MRA only has calf and team roping in its events.

Roping requires teamwork between the rider and his horse. That isn't as important in bulldogging, however, so Frost doesn't own his own horse for those

RANDY FROST and his registered quarterhorse, "Skipper," which he rides in roping events. In calf roping, winning requires the rider and horse to train and work together.

Church burns remodeling loan note

Sunday, Oct. 11, the Gage-town United Methodist church celebrated their re-decorating note retirement. Trustees Amasa Anthes Jr., Leslie Beach, Patty Rayl, Kerry McKellar, Ver-nita Rayl, Jack Laurie, Howard Muntz and Earl Rayl, and the church treas-urer, Janet Muntz, partici-pated in the burning of the facsimile of the original Port Huron District Board of Mis-sions loan agreement. Money was also borrowed from the Gagetown branch of the Farmers and Mer-chants State Bank. That loan was repaid in 1980.

The project began in 1977 when the almost 40-year-old sanctuary rug needed re-placement. The administra-tive board dreamed big -- wall to wall carpeting, new pews and furnishings, wall paneling, and modernizing the restrooms -- an anti-cipated total of $18,000, with $2,000 on hand.

Some of the needed money came from selling the old fixtures and pews to persons all over the state. With church members Garry McKellar and Randy Rayl directing the remodeling, the men and women of the congregation did much of the work themselves. Dur-ing the winter of 1977-'78, the worship services were held in the basement.

The current pastor is Rev. Myra Lee Sparks.

Received a chain letter through the mail this week. This is different than most because it is innocuous. It doesn't try to lift any money from my pocket.

It tells about the failures of great men in the past and says to stop worrying about business and play golf. (My wife claims I reached that exalted state years ago).

Anyway the gist of the letter is that if I send it to five friends it will bring good luck in four days.

If I break the chain it will mean bad luck. I'll have to risk it. The letter says that my secretary should make four copies to send along with the one I received.

My secretary is the same person who advised me about playing too much golf and it's just my luck that there is no way, no way at all, that she will do as that letter suggested.

Business women's club 20 years old

This week is National Business Women's Week, an appropriate time for the Cass City Business and Professional Women's Club to celebrate its 20th anniversary.

The actual anniversary is Nov. 4, as charter night for the club was on that date 20 years ago. The Caro BPW was the sponsor of the Cass City club.

When organized, the club had 25 members. It has 32 now, of whom 10 have belonged since its inception. They are Leota Anthes, Betty Carmer, Katherine Crane, Geraldine Fischer, Mary Kirton, Verna May MacRae, Loraine O'Dell, Thelma Pratt, Martha Putnam and Sherryl Seeley.

Presidents over the years have been Dorothy Muntz, Patricia Wagner, Betty Carmer, Verna May MacRae, Sherryl Seeley, Grace Nemeth, Martha Putnam, Clara Gaffney, Mable Wright and Antoinette Stachura.

Present officers are Sherryl Seeley, president, Marilyn Hanselman, first vice-president, Leota Anthes, second vice-president, Shirley Haag, recording secretary, Nina Davis, corresponding secretary, and Helen Bartle, treasurer.

Projects over the years have included floats in the Cass City centennial (1965) and July 4th festival parades, awarding of scholarships to two or three high school graduates each year to further their education, and fund raising for various community projects.

The club conducts a dinner meeting on the third Wednesday of each month at Veronica's Restaurant. There is usually a special program.

Criteria for joining is that the woman must be employed or self-employed or be retired from a job. Women interested can contact any officer or member.

The longest running variety show on television was Ed Sullivan's, from 1948-1971.

The Haire Net

How did it happen that a segment of the population is granted special discounts because of age? Or better still, why did it happen?

It's commonplace today to have discounts for senior citizens. As if the arbitrary age of 62 or 65 is a magic threshold and when you cross over you become privileged for having survived.

Maybe living through Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, Carter, makes seniors deserving of hero medals.

Here's one vote for an extra large medal if they live through Reagan, but that's another story.

But economic concessions are something else.

Certainly there are exceptions, but when you look at it, for the majority, there's less economic stress at 65 than at 25.

After all, for most the big expenses are over. The kids are gone and the house debt paid. At the very least a smaller, less expensive home has to be maintained.

Contrast that with a young couple starting out where everything is needed and the money to buy it with is available only at an inordinate interest cost.

And since business runs at a profit, a discount of 10, 20 or 25 percent has to be made up with a higher overall cost for the product. The cliché applies: there are no free lunches.

Every senior citizen discount has to be paid by the rest of the consumers. Don't equate senior citizen discounts with aid to senior citizens or social security. Social security is an earned benefit that millions of Americans have paid for and counted on in retirement plans.

Aid programs, when not abused, take care of the truly indigent.

In one way, the discount trend for the Geritol set is similar to social security. More and more recipients will be supported by fewer and fewer in the work force.

We are living longer and the more senior citizens around, the more clout they possess.

So the trend to more and bigger concessions to the group is almost assured.

I guess that's to be expected in a society where the majority feel that teachers are overpaid at $18,000 per year and floor sweepers in a car plant sympathized with while pulling down $25,000 a year.

The silver lining is that at its worst it's better here than anywhere else in the world. There's no discounting that.

Cuber's thumb syndrome

By Jim Fitzgerald

There was a painful period of my life when I often suffered from yo-yo finger, but I was never a snob about it.

A Canadian doctor, Douglas Waugh, recently wrote in the prestigious New England Journal of Medicine that he had cuber's thumb. He said he got it from playing Rubik's Cube which according to its inventor, is an arty game for smart people.

"This is no yo-yo, but rather an intellectual game," said Erno Rubik in a newspaper interview.

Boy, I really hate that.

The cube is a three-dimensional, six-color plastic toy about the size of a baseball. When you buy one, you must buy nourishment separately because the cube is too big to fit inside a Crackerjack box. A cube costs 66 forints ($2.25) in Hungary where Erno Rubik lives, and $5 in the United States where I was a neighborhood yo-yo champion, but never a snob about it.

The way to play Rubik's game is to mix up the six colors by twisting the cube's parts randomly around a central pivot, then return the colors neatly to where they belong. That's it. Once you've licked the cube, you are automatically qualified to be a professor of geometry at Oxford University.

There are cube competitions in which speed counts as much as neatness. The winner of a recent contest in Budapest was a 12-year-old boy who took 28 seconds to return the colors. He is resented by older cube players, not because of his youth, but because he has never publicly denied the vicious rumor that he once played with a yo-yo.

As for cuber's thumb, Dr. Waugh said a person gets it from manipulating a sticky cube, which is a sticky wicket. The condition is characterized by swelling of the joint between the fingers and the wrist. At first, Waugh's family physician diagnosed gout, probably contracted while hanging around a swell joint. Most people think gout is a disease of the foot, and immediately it was suspected that Dr. Waugh didn't know his thumb from his big toe.

However, Waugh had witnesses to prove he always holds his cube in his left hand with one of the corners firmly braced against the base of his left thumb, while never taking off his shoes. Because it is Waugh's left thumb that hurts, there is little doubt that people who play with Rubik's Cube may get cuber's thumb.

There is also little doubt that people who get cuber's thumb will brag about it, the same way other people brag about their tennis elbow or jogger's nipple. In our warped society, there is glory in hurting from tennis, jogging and cubing. The victims are proud of their injuries. They think they are better than people who hurt from swell joints.

As evidenced by the Erno Rubik quote mentioned earlier, people who play with cubes also think they are better than people who play with yo-yos. They think more mental exertion and physical dexterity are required to master the cube than the yo-yo.

I doubt it. I think it's harder to rock the baby with a yo-yo than put some silly colors back where they were. But that's not the point. Even if cube players are superior, they shouldn't be snobbish about it. They shouldn't look down on people who might not have 66 forints to buy a cube. And people with cuber's thumbs shouldn't flaunt their ache like a medal of valor. Whatever happened to aw-shucks modesty?

I remember when I had yo-yo finger. It was caused by the string pulling tightly around my middle finger when I snapped the yo-yo down hard enough to make it walk the dog for a week. The string cut cruelly into the flesh, and my finger throbbled painfully. But I never told the New England Journal of Medicine about it. I never acted superior to kids whose middle fingers didn't throb.

In fact, the day I won the yo-yo championship, I was not only suffering from yo-yo finger, I also had jacks knuckles. That was from scraping my knuckles while playing jacks on the sidewalk. I didn't brag about that any more than President John Kennedy bragged about invading Cuba.

PEDALING AROUND

Computed laziness

By Mike Eliasohn

I have mixed emotions about the computer age in which we are living.

Computers definitely make life easier, but do they also make us lazy?

I assume school teachers still teach arithmetic the old fashioned way, but at what point do pocket calculators intervene? With a calculator, one doesn't have to know how to add, subtract, multiply and divide as long as one can read numbers and knows the concepts involved.

Do some children eventually rebel and say, "I don't have to know that. A calculator will do it for me." Why learn the multiplication tables when pushing a few buttons will give the same answer?

Computers or computer operated equipment put some persons out of work. For instance, typesetters at most large newspapers and many smaller ones are a thing of the past.

The reporter types his copy on a video display terminal. After it is done and reviewed by the editor, a button is pushed and the copy is set automatically.

No one has to retype it for it to be set into columns for printing.

The axiom taught in economics classes is that for a job eliminated by automation, another job is created. That may be true, but the person losing the job isn't necessarily (and probably isn't) getting the new job created. What does a person nearing retirement but not old enough to retire do when he or she is "displaced" by automation or when the new job, for which the person isn't qualified, is 2,000 miles away?

A new use of computers is in drafting, which for all but small operations may eventually make use of the pencil and T-square obsolete.

For instance, in the designing of the new Dodge 400 and Chrysler LeBaron (basically the same car), the computer drawing and data for the steering control arm was fed directly to a parts manufacturer's computer-programmed tooling equipment. Only after production began were the drawings sent by Chrysler to verify the computer-fed information. Probably some day that step won't be necessary.

In what is called computer graphics, display screens and an electronically sensitive drawing board replace the paper. A hand held "cursor," used like a pencil, sends electronic signals through the drawing board. The signals are translated by the computer into lines, angles, circles, etc.

A television can also be thought of as a computer. It's not necessary to know how to read. Watch Dan Rather and you can know all about world affairs without turning a page.

No wonder children are becoming better at misspelling than spelling.

Of course, computers have tremendous advantages. They do make many tasks easier, like doing my income tax. What used to be torture in adding columns and columns of figures is now merely a pain.

Supposedly, necessity is the mother of invention, but I agree with bicycle component manufacturer and inventor Phil Wood that inventors invent to make life easier for mankind.

To quote, "Laziness has produced more things than anything else in the world. Laziness is the mother of invention."

Creative, inexpensive Christmas gift tags can be made with holiday cookie cutters and used greeting cards. Place cookie cutter over card, trace shape and cut out. Punch a hole at one end, insert piece of colored string and there you have it!

Rail abandonment would be costly to farmers

railroad. How grain is shipped out, he explained, depends on where the best price is. If it's in Saginaw, it goes by truck. If it is on the east coast, then it goes by rail.

Wickes brings in fertilizer by rail. Kingston Farm Service owner Richard Walker said 60-70 percent of the grain is shipped out of his elevator by rail.

If train service ended, it wouldn't kill his business, he said -- "I guess we're expecting it anyway." -- but it would hurt the farmer.

About 90 percent of the grain shipped out of the Thumb Area Commodity Cooperative terminal south of Cass City goes by rail, according to Manager Earnest Cook.

By rail, it costs 33 cents per hundredweight to haul it 240 miles to Toledo, he said, which works out to $198 for 1,000 bushels. By truck, it would cost $270-300.

It takes three semi-trucks to haul what one rail car can carry.

Last year, Progressive Plant Food of Cass City bought 60 railroad carloads of fertilizer. This year, because it got a better price elsewhere, it was all shipped in by truck.

Without the railroad, said Manager Dave Wilhelmson, which has enabled him to buy from as far away as Florida, Saskatchewan and Mexico, he has one less option in where to buy his fertilizer. Less competition among his suppliers would enable them to raise their prices. "I imagine in the long run it would hurt our pricing," he said.

General Cable in Cass City uses one tank-car load a month of RCV resin. It could be brought in by truck, said Materials Manager Greg Brown, but it would cost more.

COMPLAINTS

"If they (Grand Trunk) would get on the ball and make money, they could repair their own rail," complained Cook of Thumb Area Commodity. "They'd make more money if they would service us better."

He feels the railroad has no incentive to improve service and make money, because if it did, then it might not get the state subsidy to repair the tracks.

The single Grand Trunk train runs north to Caseville on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and makes the return trips Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

One of Cook's complaints is that instead of dropping off grain cars at his terminal on the northbound trip, it does so when it is going southbound.

If, for instance, it could leave the car on Monday, TACCI could have it loaded, checked by a federal inspector and ready for the return trip Tuesday. Now, however, if he gets the car Tuesday, it won't be picked up until Thursday.

Wischmeyer and Bradley said that sometimes is a problem, but not always, since it might not always be possible to get cars loaded and inspected in time for their return the next day.

Three reports of vandalism

Three incidents of vandalism occurred in the area within the last week.

Cass City police reported that a tire on the pickup truck of teacher Jim Hobbs was damaged while it was parked in the high school lot Friday.

Teacher George Bushong caught two boys, one of whom later admitted doing the damage.

Police will seek a warrant charging the youth with malicious destruction of property.

A broken window and screen, 2-by-3-feet, at the St. Pancratius Catholic church parish hall was reported to village police Monday morning. The damage was done sometime since 8 p.m. Saturday.

David Klinesmith of Shay Lake Road, Kingston, told sheriff's deputies Wednesday, Oct. 14, that 15 acres of his hay field at Shay Lake and English Roads were damaged by an apparent four-wheel-drive vehicle that ran back and forth over it.

The damage was done sometime since Oct. 12.

Kay Rutkoski of 4271 S. Seeger Street told officers Friday afternoon that her son's 12-speed bicycle was stolen when it was parked behind Old Wood Drug. He parked the bike at 3:40 and was gone 15 minutes. The brown Hiawatha was worth $50.

Guy Howard of 4261 Oak Street reported to village police last Thursday for insurance purposes that the four chrome centers from his wheels were stolen while his car was parked at the Charmont Sept. 13.

Joe Viney of 3665 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, told deputies last Thursday that four newly cut cords of hardwood were stolen the previous day on Riley Road in Wells township between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. The wood was worth $35 per cord.

Charles Skinner of 3264 E. Dayton Road, Caro, re-

Soldan's slippers keep feet warm

There are a lot of cozy feet at Provincial House, thanks to Beatrice Soldan.

The Kelly Road, Cass City, resident has taken on the job of singlehandedly crocheting slippers for residents of the care facility who need them.

Dec. 15 of last year, she delivered 88 pair. Last Thursday, she brought 72 more.

Mrs. Soldan, 61, provides them for free. "It makes you feel good to help someone who can't help themselves. We may be in that position ourselves someday, who knows."

All of the yarn she uses is donated, since she and her husband, Milton, are retired and can't afford to buy it. "I've had neighbors donate till they all ran out. I need the yarn desperately so I can keep going."

Mrs. Soldan doesn't need complete skeins. Any yarn left over from knitting or crocheting projects will do. In fact, she likes using various color yarn in her slippers instead of making each pair one color.

Persons with yarn to donate can leave it in boxes placed at Veronica's Restaurant and Helen's Beauty Salon or take it to her home.

It takes Mrs. Soldan about four hours to crochet a pair of slippers. "I can make two pairs a day if I have no interruptions."

She likes to crochet while watching television. Without any yarn, "I just feel lost without any material to work with."

It was through her daughter-in-law, Sharon Soldan, that she got started on her unique activity.

Sharon was a nurse's aide at Provincial House -- she is now a cook there -- when she noticed that some residents needed slippers.

She mentioned it to her mother-in-law and took some slippers each had made to work. The residents liked them and the senior Mrs. Soldan had a new mission in life.

She started in July of last year and, as mentioned, delivered her first 88 pairs last December.

Despite her delivery of 72 pairs last week, she plans to make more by Christmas this year if she can get the yarn.

Mrs. Soldan learned how to crochet from her mother. In addition to crocheting, she makes her own clothes and has done Artex painting of decorations on clothes and pictures for 20 years.

She and her husband have four children, William, Floyd, Lee and Lucille (Mrs. Charles) Hayes, all living in Mrs. Soldan is modest about taking credit for what she has done. "I'm not doing it for myself. It's for them, for the patients who need them (the slippers) so desperately."

She does give someone credit, however, "I asked the Lord to keep me well and strong. Otherwise, I don't think I could do it."

Gerstenberger computer farm 'pioneer'

Richard Gerstenberger of Snover is one of 25 farmers selected to be "AgriCom Pioneers" in Michigan Farm Bureau's pilot marketing information and education program.

Each received his farm computer terminal and operating instructions at a meeting in Lansing Oct. 2.

The program will convert the participating farmers' telephones, computer terminals and television sets into an agricultural communications center, providing current commodity prices (sent to Farm Bureau Center in Lansing via satellite), analysis of statewide and worldwide news affecting markets and farming, agricultural weather forecasts and legislative reports.

Michigan Farm Bureau President Elton R. Smith said that Agri-Com (a Farm Bureau member-only program) was initiated because a year-long study showed the organization should be involved in disseminating marketing information to producers through means such as on-farm computers. Michigan is one of eight states participating in a nationwide marketing information program being coordinated by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Participants were selected from applications filed by farmers to represent broad commodity interests and geographic areas.

Travel club has last camp-out

The Upper Thumb Sammers Club, Chapter 48, of the Good Sam Club, traveled Sept. 18-20 to London, Ontario.

There were eight recreation vehicles in the convoy, with Roy Davis, wagon master, leading the group.

Oct. 9-11, the group camped at Camp Ber-wa-gana on M-46. There were 36 persons in the group. Participants enjoyed a color tour, potlucks and bonfire. It was the last camp-out of the season.

The club had a couple of raffles to earn money to train dogs for the deaf.

The group will meet at the home of Ralph Brown, Ubyly, Nov. 7, at 5:30 p.m. for a potluck supper.

House oks dairy, sugar legislation

The U.S. House of Representatives has completed action on the dairy and sugar provisions of H.R. 3603, the "Food and Agriculture Act of 1981."

The dairy provision modifies the dairy program by providing a minimum price support of $13.10 per hundredweight for the fiscal year which began Oct. 1; a minimum support of 72.5 percent of parity for the second year, and a minimum support of 70 percent of parity for the third and fourth years, unless Commodity Credit Corp. purchases are less than 3.5 billion pounds, in which case the minimum support level shall be 75 percent of parity.

"Under the House plan, the price support is a political determination in the first and second year of the program," according to Al Almy, director of Public Affairs for Michigan Farm Bureau. "But in the third and fourth years of the program, the price support will be a signal for dairy producers to produce more closely what the market wants."

The sugar provision reduces the loan rate for sugar from 19.6 cents per pound to 18 cents for 1981-82. The loan rate is then increased one-half cent per pound each year up to 19.5 cents per pound in 1984-85.

"Under this provision a price support loan will be available for the first time for both beet and cane sugar," Almy said. "This is an attempt to provide some stability to the U.S. sugar industry and provide consumers with a more stable supply of domestic sugar."

New books at the library

THE GLITTER DOME by Joseph Wambaugh (fiction). It's merely a question of which psychotics are weirder -- the ones who are criminals or the ones on the side of law and order -- in Wambaugh's latest look at life inside the Los Angeles Police Department. Two veteran detectives are assigned to the hard-to-crack murder case of a movie producer. The two cops lead the reader into a moral quagmire that dirties up the lives of both investigator and investigated.

WOMEN'S WORK by Anne Tolstoi Wallach (fiction). When Domina Drexler, the queen of Madison Avenue, is assigned to work with handsome, dynamic Monroe Rossen, she sees it as an opportunity to finally reach the top. What she doesn't see is the smoldering love affair and treacherous office politics that will engulf her.

A BRIGHT-SHINING PLACE by Cheryl Prewitt and Katherine Slattery (non-fiction). A compassionate portrait of Cheryl Prewitt who, at the age of eleven, was left with one leg two inches shorter than the other from an auto accident. Here she tells the story of her miraculous healing, her faith, and how she became Miss America in 1980.

Law suit filed in drowning

A law suit has been filed in Tuscola County Circuit Court seeking damages for the death of a 6-year-old girl who drowned in a pond May 24 of this year.

Plaintiff is Kenneth D. Wymer of Pinconning, representing the estate of his daughter, Jennifer.

Defendants are James and Coleen Holmes of O'Brien Road, Mayville.

According to the suit, Jennifer wandered into the pond while a guest at the Holmes' home and drowned.

In each of three counts, Wymer seeks damages for whatever amount he is found to be entitled, with costs, interest and attorney fees. The amount in controversy, according to the suit, is in excess of $10,000.

A jury trial has been demanded.

Girls fall to last quarter blitz by loop leading Marlette

The Cass City Red Hawks played the Marlette Red Raiders to a standstill for three quarters Tuesday night at Cass City High School before bowing in the final period, 53-42.

The story of the game was the superior rebounding of the visitors who kept hammering away for rebounds and finally making the easy shots that had been missing earlier in the game. Cass City picked off only 25 rebounds.

Cass City jumped into a lead midway in the first quarter while making good use of the press. The Hawks quickly expanded it to 14-6 with 1:33 left, the largest lead that Cass City was to run up all night. By the end of the quarter it was 16-10. The drive was helped by some good ball handling by Jamie Fox.

Marlette started hitting the boards in earnest in the second quarter to close the gap. With 1:45 left in the first half the Hawks led 19-18. Carrie Lautner took charge at this point and pumped in two quick baskets from outside to up the margin to 23-19 as the half ended.

The teams stayed on almost even terms in the third period but the roof fell in during the final 8 minutes as the visitors went into a press of their own which Cass City failed to handle well.

Lautner led Cass City with 11 points and Jill Hutchinson scored 10. For Marlette Deanna Wilkins, 11, Nell Ross, 11, and Cheryl Miller, 10, were in double figures.

Cass City's record is now 4-3 in the Thumb B Association and 5-7 overall.

SANDUSKY GAME

The Cass City Red Hawks used their big weapon in the second quarter to run to an 8-point halftime lead and then held on in the last two quarters for a 40-37 decision at Sandusky Thursday.

The big weapon is the Hawks' press. It caused many turnovers by the Redskins and gave the Hawks easy baskets.

The Hawks needed something to pick up the tempo as neither team found the range in the slow first quarter which ended in a 4-4 stalemate.

After running up their lead at the intermission, the Hawks never trailed although the Redskins kept the fans on the edge of their seats until the final whistle.

Sandusky stayed in the game in the second half on the shooting of Jenny Thompson, who netted 8 of her 10 points in the final two periods, and Ann Bradley, who scored all 8 of her points after the intermission. Cass City was led by Joy Root with 8 points and Jill Hutchinson with 7.

Michelle Fahrner played a key role with 10 rebounds.

300 help Knights observe 2 anniversaries Sunday

This year marks two anniversaries for Ephraim and Mary Knight of Elkton Road, Cass City.

Sunday, the couple were guests of honor at a luncheon to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. About 300 guests attended the affair at the Colony House on M-53, put on by their children and their spouses.

They have two children, Janis (Mrs. Aaron) Wolfe, Rochester, and Edward Knight, Sterling Heights, and three grandchildren.

This year also marks Knight's 50th year in farming.

The Knights were married Oct. 18, 1941, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Nugent, at Wadsworth, between Bad Axe and Uby.

Rev. Earl L. Barthlow of the Uby Presbyterian church officiated.

Their attendants were his brother, Robert, now living in Germfask in the Upper Peninsula; her sister, Florence Nugent Osminski, Bad Axe; her brother, Lyle Nugent, now deceased, and Mildred McConkey, also deceased.

The Knights live on the Grant township farm where he has lived since age 6. It was 80 acres when his grandfather bought it in 1890, which makes Ephraim the third generation on the farm. Part of the house they live in is 105 years old.

The farm presently is 120 acres. Knight farms that and 40 rented, on which he grows wheat, corn, beans and oats.

The most he has ever farmed is 200. He doesn't feel the super large farms of today, sometimes 10 times that size and more, are necessary to earn a livelihood. "I don't think you need 2,000 acres to earn a good living and raise a family."

Small farms are easier to manage, he feels. "If everyone was back farming family size farms, everyone would have their beans off."

Knight, as of last week, not only had his beans harvested, he also had his wheat planted.

THE FALL OF 1941 stands out in his mind for another reason in addition to being when he got married. Until this fall, that was the worst one he has seen in his half-century of farming.

In 1941, he had 17 acres of beans. In those days, beans were pulled and put into piles and allowed to dry for a few days to a week before being taken to the barn, where they were threshed.

After he got his beans pulled, it started raining and didn't stop. Knight pulled some fence rails out into the fields and piled the beans on top of the rails. That enabled the air to circulate through the beans, which kept them from rotting, even though it continued raining.

Knight had dairy cows until 15 years ago, then raised deacon calves (from calf up to feeder size) until seven years ago and now raises just cash crops.

As best he and his wife can recall, who helped with the farming, they didn't get their first tractor until the early 1950s and he still kept a team of horses for several years after that. "I still enjoyed farming when I drove three horses better than any tractor I ever owned," he said. He now owns two.

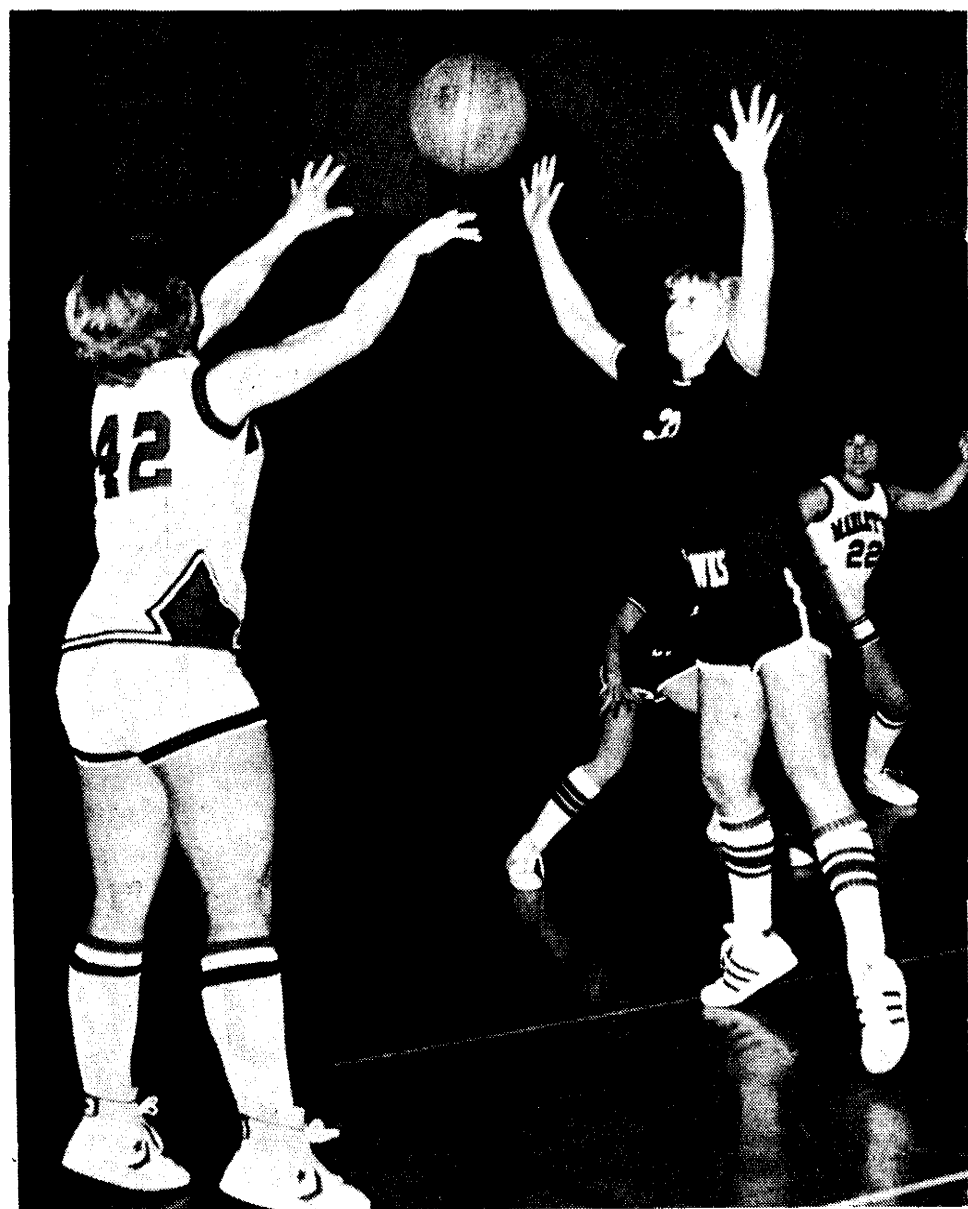

Knight didn't get his first milking machine until the late 1950s. The most cows he ever milked, which came after that, was 28. He notes with pride he once finished second in the (hand) milking contest at the state fair.

ALTHOUGH FARMING was harder work when he started, he feels life was much easier. Farmers didn't have the stress, the massive debts many have today and there was "lots of time for everything."

One activity the Knights always find time for is square dancing. They have been doing it for 27 years and attend an average of at least two dances a week year-round.

Knight has also found time to serve on the Grant township board since 1940. He was originally a justice of the peace. For the past 26 years, he has been township treasurer.

Because he does make money off his winnings, for tax purposes his hobby is registered as a small business. "It's a hobby per se because I don't do it full time." Last year, he declared a loss of $587, which he considers very reasonable. There are few hobbies one can make money at, he pointed out.

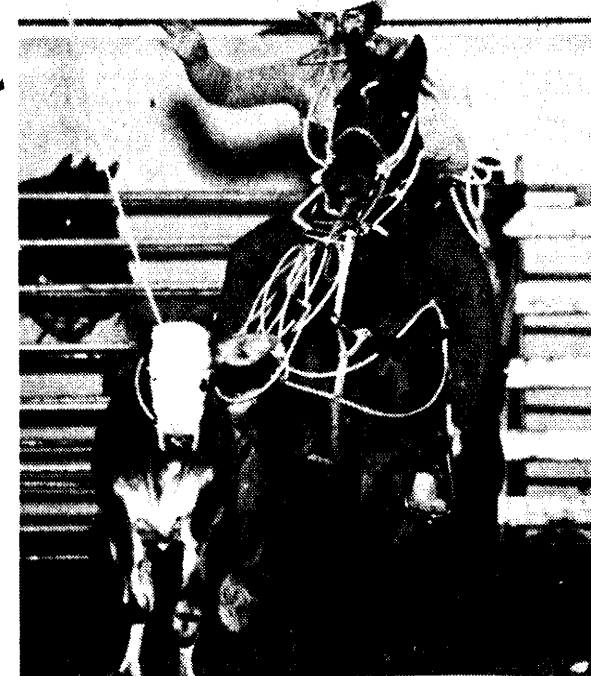

rides with four or five fellow cowboys in a camper pulling a four-horse trailer and they go to more than one rodeo in a week end. They once went to three rodeos in Illinois and two in Michigan in three days.

Last year, Frost drove 20,000 miles in his own truck and rode 8,000-10,000 miles in someone else's.

He is the only cowboy in the Upper Thumb. His nearest rodeo buddies (which include a teacher and a lawyer) live in Saginaw, Clio and Richmond.

Frost has threatened to quit a few times when he got in a slump, like in any other sport, but soon forgot about it. "It's in my blood," he explained. "Some people like to hunt and fish. I like rodeo."

GOTCH YA' -- Frost ropes a calf in the Mid States Rodeo Association finals in Marion, Ohio, in 1979. He was runner-up in the season's standings that year. He ropes his target about 95 percent of the time. When he started, he was successful no more than 15 percent.

Tough Sandusky next

Nothing works, Hawks fall to North Branch, 16-0

If coach Don Schelke had his choice there's no doubt that he would like to have the big plays this Friday go the way they did against Bad Axe rather than the way they did against North Branch. Cass City plays at Sandusky Friday.

Against the Hatchets everything worked. Against the Broncos nothing worked and as a result the Hawks lost to North Branch 16-0 in a game that pitted two evenly matched teams against each other.

The Hawks are going to need a few good bounces against the Redskins this Friday. The Sandusky eleven has a 3-2 record and has played the top teams in the Thumb B Association on nearly even terms while losing close decisions.

It's likely that the defense will be severely tested against Sandusky, but then it has been tested all season and has played well.

The trouble plaguing the Hawks is not defense, but getting points on the board and this Friday promises to be no easier for the offensive. Many of the players are recovering from assorted bumps and bruises.

Cass City's offense never did get into high gear against North Branch. The Broncos used big plays to score in a game that appeared about even along the line of scrimmage.

Neither team was able to score in the first quarter. North Branch exploded for a score in the second period. It was marked by a beautiful pass from Bob Thibodeau to Kevin Withey.

Withey got two steps behind the Hawk secondary in the right flat and never broke stride as he galloped to the Cass City two. The play covered 63 yards.

From there Rob Griffin smashed over for the marker. The try for point missed.

That ended the scoring in the first half. The play that broke the back of the Hawks came in the third period.

The Broncos had marched to the Hawk 18 and then was stopped for a huge loss only to have the play negated by a face mask penalty.

That kept North Branch within field goal distance and the Broncos cashed in on a 27-yard attempt by Art Adell with 4:06 left in the third quarter.

Pheasant opener poor

Restaurant owners may have been the big winners Tuesday, the opening day of pheasant hunting season.

Carlton (Bud) Jarvis, Department of Natural Resources area wildlife biologist, who spent the day in southwestern Sanilac county, said he saw more hunters opening day than he has in recent years, and restaurants were full, but at best, hunters weren't taking any more birds than last year.

The hunters weren't very successful, despite the fact that Sanilac and part of Tuscola probably have more pheasants this year than they have had in the past 10-15 years.

The main reason for the poor hunting is that most corn is still standing. In addition, fields were wet and it was very windy.

The poor conditions kept most pheasants on the ground, which made it difficult for hunters to spot them and also to keep track of where their dogs were.

Pheasant season runs until Nov. 10.

ing officer of Walbro Corp., reported consolidated net sales of $10,219,065 for the three-month period which ended Sept. 30.

This compares with $9,838,792 for the same period in 1980. Earnings for the period were $96,381, compared with $187,531 for the third quarter of 1980.

On a per-share basis, earnings for the period were 12 cents per share, compared with 24 cents for the third quarter of last year.

For the first nine months of 1981, Walbro's sales totaled $33,036,058, compared with $32,463,762 for the same period in 1980.

Earnings were $446,348 for the period, down from $813,029 for the first nine months of 1980. Per share earnings were 57 cents for the first nine months, compared with $1.04 for the same period in 1980.

Althaver noted that reduced sales for the company's Carburetor Group resulted in production levels considerably below normal at those facilities, with a related drop in profitability.

Lower sales during the third quarter for the company's die cast operation, due in part to auto industry changeovers, also contributed to lower earnings.

The Walbro executive said sales of the company's products are expected to remain at current levels during the fourth quarter, with an upturn anticipated in early 1982.

Your Neighbor says

Guns vs. butter difficult decision

"Guns or butter" is what the economic argument is called.

When there isn't enough money to go around, should the government cut defense spending or spending for education, environmental protection, social programs, etc.

President Reagan is sticking to his guns in insisting that defense spending only be cut $2 billion while cuts in civilian programs should be several times as much.

Brian Bills has mixed emotions about such arguments.

"I still think our country should stay strong," he said. If the government reduces its defense expenditures, "it will make us weaker."

He noted that spending to build airplanes, tanks, etc., will create jobs.

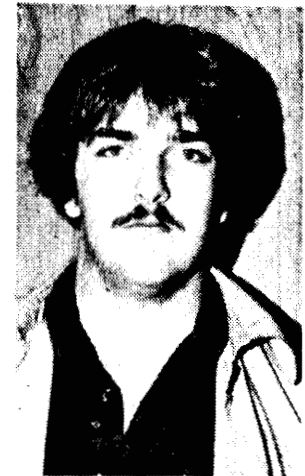

Bills has a vested interest in the military. The May graduate of Cass City High School has already taken his physical for the Navy and plans to enlist. He hopes to learn a skill that will have application in civilian life. "I hope by the time I get out, the recession will be over."

He hasn't ruled out making the Navy his career.

Although Bills sees the need to maintain heavy defense expenditures, he can also understand the viewpoint of those concerned about cuts in welfare. Although some people abuse it, he said, "some people really need it."

Guns vs. butter? "That's a hard decision to make."

Bills is employed at the Big D Restaurant in Cass City. He lives with his parents, Herbert and Jean Bills, at 4750 Maharg Road.

Car-deer crashes continue

Minor accidents reported in area

Five accidents were reported in Cass City during the past week by village police, none serious.

At 7:25 p.m. last Thursday, village police said, Evelyn Sue Langenburg, 20, of 6197 Koepfgen Road, eastbound on Main, was turning right onto Ale Street and her car ran into a semi-truck waiting at the stop sign on Ale.

Driver of the truck was Blas A. Saldana, 39, of 6729 Houghton Street.

Ms. Langenburg declined treatment.

At 9:50 p.m. last Wednesday, according to officers, Vernita Mae Jaster, 68, of Caro, westbound on Garfield, failed to stop at Seeger Street and collided with a northbound vehicle driven by Ronald L. Richards, 28, of 3837 N. Phillips Road.

David McQueen, 74, of 3645 Elkton Road, Owendale, backed into a parked car at Village Service Center, Main and West Streets, at 11 a.m. Thursday. Owner of the parked car was Ralph Perry of 5050 Van Dyke Road.

At 4 p.m. Friday, police said, Daniel L. Schram, 18, of 6379 Garfield Street, northbound on Doerr Road, was waiting to turn left onto Main Street.

A car driven by James R. McLeMore, 39, of Caro, pulled out of the Thumb National Bank parking lot. Its turn signal remained on so Schram thought McLeMore was turning onto Doerr. He wasn't. Schram started to pull onto Main and the two vehicles collided.

At 11:50 a.m. Saturday, Bryan J. Gettel, 17, of Sebewaing, southbound on Seeger Street, north of Main, started to move into the right lane. He didn't realize there was a car in that lane and the two vehicles collided. Driver of the other auto was Vincent A. Albin, 17, of Caro.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

A horse was killed and a 9-year-old girl injured in an 8:45 p.m. Sunday accident on Sebewaing Road, five miles east of Owendale.

Treated and released from Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, was Tracy Vaughan of Bad Axe, a passenger in a car driven by Kenneth J. Ruthkowski, 25, of Ubyly.

Huron county deputies said their car was eastbound on the road when it collided with a small horse owned by Robert Thorpe of Owendale. At 9:35 a.m. Sunday, according to Tuscola deputies, Barbara Ann Skiles, 45, of Phillips Road, Deford, was passing another car northbound on Cemetery Road, north of Deckerville Road.

The driver of the other car, Cecil Wells, 79, of 2862 Lamton Road, Decker, started to turn left into a driveway.

Ms. Skiles drove onto the left shoulder in an attempt to avoid a collision, but Wells kept turning and the two vehicles collided. Officers said Ms. Skiles failed to notice Wells' turn signal.

CAR-DEER

At 7:30 p.m. last Wednesday, Caro state police said, Alan E. Proskowski, 28, of 6371 Fourth Street, Cass City, was northbound on Cemetery Road, north of River Road, when his car collided with a deer.

Deputies reported that at 11:20 p.m. last Thursday, Timothy J. Wald, 18, of 6466 Lincoln Street, Gagetown, was westbound on Stevens Road, west of Pierce Road, when his auto hit a deer.

At 11:30 p.m. Friday, deputies said, Douglas A. Lagos, 16, of 1040 Plain Road, Cass City, was eastbound on Deckerville Road, west of Murray Road, when his vehicle collided with a deer.

Resident blasts new bus policy

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the article in the Oct. 15 Chronicle headlined, "Some students may walk to save district money."

According to the article, "backtracking" to pick up some students cost over $11,000, so to save that money, these students would have to walk to get a ride to school.

To me, this is very unfair. Don't those parents pay taxes to the school district to run the school, which also includes transportation for students? There must be a better way to trim costs than making children walk in the rain, snow and cold.

One question I have is why are the bus drivers allowed to take the buses home? And what does this cost the district?

It is my feeling that they should be responsible for getting back and forth to work themselves.

Why is the school giving its drivers a ride and not the students?

I'm sure people employed at Steering Gear or Chevrolet or just any place, aren't given cars to go back and forth to work. If a person wants a job, they should drive themselves to work.

These kids have a right to be picked up at their homes. Like I said, I'm sure their parents pay taxes that help keep those buses rolling — and rolling to their driveways, not to the nearest corner that their children would have to walk to in cold, wet weather.

Sincerely,

Rita Bartle
Cass City

Editor's note: Having the drivers leave their buses in Cass City would not save any money, according to Jim Fox, the school district transportation director.

Most drivers live on or close to their routes, which means no time is wasted in the morning starting their routes or in the evening when they drop off their last passenger. If the buses had to be parked in Cass City, some would have to drive their buses 5-6 miles from town before they picked up their first passenger and at night, drive the same distance back to park their buses.

He also said the buses are safer at night from vandals if parked at the drivers' homes than they would be if all were parked at one place in town.

Cass City has 22 buses running daily routes, plus four for back-up in case any break down.

Parents tell of Caroline Swart death

Dear Sirs,

In 1979-80, you had Caroline Swart as an exchange student in your town.

She had a wonderful time in Cass City and she had many friends in your city. Though we wrote some of you already about the terrible accident of Caroline, we wanted to inform all her friends in Cass City about it.

It happened Oct. 6. She was working as a stewardess on an NLM City hopper. The plane crashed and no one survived.

Caroline was 21 years old. She had a wonderful year in Michigan. You did so much for her and gave her so much love. We were so lucky to visit her in Cass City and to meet many of you.

Now we must tell you that she will not be able to answer your letters any more. What she left is a nice remembrance.

The Chronicle reserves the right to edit letters for length and clarity.

We will not publish thank you letters of a specific nature, for instance, from a club thanking merchants who donated prizes for a raffle.

CETA dishes out $6.77 million

The Thumb Area Consortium spent $6,774,131 in federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds during the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30.

That was 96.5 percent of the money it had available, leaving a balance of $242,347, according to the monthly financial report presented to the consortium administrative board last Thursday.

Administrative costs totaled 6.8 percent of the total budget. Up to 10 or 15 percent is allowed, depending on the CETA program.

Until Congress and President Reagan finally approve a CETA budget for the fiscal year that started Oct. 1, the consortium will have to get by on some of the money it has left over.

That consists of $53,713 in administrative funds, $69,301 for Title II-B classrooms and on-the-job training, $8,207 for Title IV Youth Employment Training Program, and $14,262 for Title VII on-the-job training. The $10,517 left over from the defunct Title VI jobs program will be transferred to administration.

To be refunded to the federal government will be $78,488 left over from the Title II-D on-the-job, public service and work experience program and $160 from the Title IV Youth Community Conservation Improvement Projects program, both now defunct.

There was $7,698 left over from the Summer Youth Employment Program, which has to be returned, but that will be kept in a separate account for use next summer.

There were 412 persons enrolled in the various CETA programs as of Sept. 30.

Consortium Executive Director Frank Lenard said the House of Representatives has approved a CETA budget for the present fiscal year of $4 billion more than the Reagan administration has recommended.

The Senate has yet to act, however. If the amount it ultimately approves is different than that of the House, they will have to compromise. If what is ultimately approved is more than the president recommended, he might veto it and the process would start over.

As allowed by a new state law, the administrative board voted to withdraw from membership in the Municipal Michigan Employees' Retirement System, which now must be approved by 90 percent of the consortium staff to take effect.

The law was passed as it is doubtful the CETA program will last long enough for any of its employees to collect retirement benefits.

If the withdrawal is made, the consortium employees will get back what was deducted from their paychecks to be put into the retirement system.

Judge Quinn succumbs

Retired Michigan Court of Appeals Judge Timothy C. Quinn, 73, a native of Caro, died Monday in Santa Barbara, Calif., of heart complications.

He was born Aug. 13, 1908, in Caro. One of the original nine members of the Court of Appeals, he served from 1965-78. He was chief judge pro tem for many of those years.

Quinn was Tuscola county prosecutor and then a circuit court judge in Tuscola and Lapeer counties from 1953-64, before being elected to the state court. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan and its law school. He began practicing law in Caro in 1933.

Since his retirement, he and his wife Jessie lived in California during the winter months and in their home on Saginaw Bay during the warmer months.

Quinn is survived by his wife; four sons, Timothy Jr. of the New York City area, William of the Kalamazoo area, and George and James, both of California, and one daughter, Ann Quinn Paulson of Kalamazoo.

Funeral services were private. A memorial service will be held at noon Saturday at the First Presbyterian church in Kalamazoo. Cremation and burial will be in California.

Taking Stock

In recent columns I have argued that the place to keep securities is with a broker. It's not that the brokers do a very good job. It's just that the alternative — keeping stocks and bonds yourself — is even worse.

I checked 12 month-end statements the other day from a medium-sized Detroit broker. There were errors in six of them.

In the space of a few days I heard these reports from other investors of their own experiences.

One we'll call Charley sought to retrieve 25 bonds he had placed two months ago with one of the nation's largest brokers for safe-keeping. It took him 19 days to get the bonds.

Meanwhile he had sold them, and of course couldn't deliver to the selling broker within the legal time of five business days. Only by being lucky and finding a friend who loaned him 25 similar bonds did he make delivery.

The worst thing about this case was the brush-offs and complete lack of interest both the Flint and Detroit offices of this mighty brokerage firm displayed in a serious problem.

A friend in Texas discovered a $25,000 error in her account — incidentally with this same broker — and it took her "forever," in her terminology, to get it straightened out.

We personally were involved with a major sell-off of a third of a million in stocks (again, this same big broker) and saw this member of our family wait three weeks to be paid after the legal deadline.

I have transferred securities to small, medium and big-sized brokers, and I'd say half of the time the entries have been bobbed up when they get into the account. They do get corrected, but it's annoying as the devil.

The bigger the firm, the longer it takes to get a mistake straightened out.

In the whole lot of brokerage firms, I have found only one that doesn't make mistakes, and that's Cyrus J. Lawrence & Co. of New York City. I did a lot of business with Cyrus Lawrence in years gone by and I found them absolutely faultless.

They are an old, old firm, and have only one office. Since they deal mostly with pretty big accounts, they're not cluttered with nickel-and-dime customers. But apart from all that, there is some real management at Cyrus Lawrence and they simply don't make mistakes.

I was fortunate in having the priceless secretary of one of the firm's partners, one Eileen McCarthy, tending to my orders, and that woman should have a medal. There has been only one other like her, Anne Dunne of Manley, Bennett and McDonald of Detroit, and she doesn't have the back-room backing that Eileen had.

But Eileen left the firm and so did her boss, and that, plus the factor of distance and loss of personal contact, made me shift the account.

I've recounted the disadvantages of keeping securities yourself. Turning them over to a bank trust department isn't much better. Brokers, sloppy as they are, are still the best of three choices.

4 jailed on criminal charges

Four persons were sentenced Monday when they appeared in Tuscola County Circuit Court in front of Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

LAST WEEK

At a hearing Wednesday, Joslyn found Kurt A. Urban, 20, of 109 E. Gamble Street, Caro, guilty of violating probation by having possessed marijuana Aug. 30.

The following day he was sentenced to 32-48 months in the custody of the Michigan Department of Corrections, with credit given for six days served. Vocational training, a psychiatric examination and substance abuse counseling were recommended.

He was placed on 60 months' probation in March for delivery of marijuana.

Steve R. Yennior, 23, of Houghton Lake, failed to appear Thursday for a jury trial on a charge of delivery of marijuana March 12 in Vassar. A bench warrant for his arrest was issued.

In cases Tuesday before Joslyn:

Robert F. Weber, 18, of St. Clair Shores, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering an unoccupied building, the Cass City Gun Club June 3.

His plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be set. Bond was continued.

In a plea bargain with the prosecution, an identical charge in connection with a Jan. 28 break-in at the Gun Club is to be dismissed.

Raymond S. Benavides, 29, of 5326 Beach Street, Akron, pleaded guilty to non-sufficient funds - check, in connection with an attempt to cash a check for $1,600 June 29 in Caro.

His plea was refused and a trial date will be set.

Donald R. Bliss, 23, of 1115 Roger Court, Reese, was placed on five years' probation for delivery of marijuana March 30 in Denmark township.

He was also sentenced to six months in the county jail, fined $1,000, assessed $150 court costs and ordered to enroll in a drug abuse program.

On a possession of marijuana charge March 12 in Denmark township, he was sentenced to a concurrent 30 days in jail, with credit given for one day served, fined $50 and assessed $50 costs. He pleaded guilty to both charges Aug. 24.

He was also sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, with work release privileges granted, fined $200 and assessed $400 court costs.

John L. Chvatal, 20, of 1645 Meadow Lane, Lot 11, Reese, pleaded guilty to attempted larceny in a building, a store in Gilford township June 7.

His plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be set. Bond was continued.

Valencia McCaw, 24, of Saginaw, was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail, with credit given for six days served, for forgery. She was assessed $200 court costs and ordered to pay $170 restitution.

She pleaded guilty to the charge Sept. 2, 1980, of forging a money order for $170, which she cashed July 20 that year at Paul's Party Store in Kingston township. After her plea, sentencing was delayed one year.

DISTRICT COURT

Peter W. Kritzman, 41, of 3826 Van Dyke Road, Decker, appeared before Judge Richard F. Kern Monday on a charge of driving with license suspended (second offense). Bond was set at $2,500 personal recognizance and a pretrial hearing scheduled Nov. 10.

He was arrested by Caro state police the previous day on the charge after his car was stopped on M-24 in Indianfields township.

Schools' count down

Caseville was the only school district in the Upper Thumb which did not lose enrollment in the recent fourth Friday enrollment counts conducted in all school districts statewide.

Caseville gained one student, from 296 in 1980 to 297 this year.

As previously reported, Cass City declined from 1,963 students to 1,853. Including an estimated 33 full-time equivalent (adult education) students, it has 1,886 versus 1,996 last year.

Enrollment in other Tuscola county school districts (1980 enrollment in parentheses) were: Akron-Fairgrove, 813 (841); Caro, 2,697 (2,755); Kingston, 785 (817); Mayville, 1,500 (1,535); Millington, 2,348 (2,436); Reese, 1,111 (1,175); Unionville-Sebewaing, 1,101 (1,134); and Vassar, 2,161 (2,196).

In addition to Caseville, other Huron county K-12 school districts were: Owendale-Gagetown, 409 (431); Bad Axe, 1,484 (1,514); Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port, 1,426 (1,482); Harbor Beach, 917 (984); North Huron, 851 (895); Port Hope, 181 (193); and Uby, 1,006 (1,206). The big drop in Uby was mainly due to termination of the shared time programs with the Catholic schools in Parisville and Reese.

Enrollment in Sanilac county was: Brown City, 1,159 (1,207); Carsonville-Port Sanilac, 707 (741); Crosswell-Lexington, 2,360 (2,520); Deckerville, 1,034 (1,072); Marlette, 1,570 (1,677); Peck, 608 (643); and Sandusky, 1,446 (1,469).

Average $32 person

Hospital employees top 1981 United Way goal

Those who work at Hills and Dales General Hospital have more than exceeded its goal in the 1981 Elkland-Novesta United Way campaign.

The 60 percent of employees, ancillary personnel and staff have contributed more than $3,400 so far, an average of $32 per person, with the final total expected to reach $3,600, according to medical social worker Harry Pestruie, the hospital campaign chairman. The goal this year was $2,800.

The goal last year at the hospital was $2,400. Contributions totaled $3,000.

Interest was spurred in the campaign by two means. Theme of the wall display in the cafeteria was cartoon character Snuffy Smith, who moved up the hill closer to his goal of bagging a raccoon for every $200 contribution.

There were also two drawings. Winner of the stuffed toy raccoon that Snuffy was climbing up the hill towards was registered dietician Bonnie Johnson. Jean Anthony, LPN, won a dinner at the restaurant of her choice (up to $30). Housekeeper Pat Wutzke completed a poem to win a month's worth of free meals in the cafeteria. The hospital drive lasted two weeks.

The community United Way drive began Sept. 29 and is scheduled to end Monday.

Not too many solicitors have turned in their collections yet, said Chairman Jon Fahrner, so he doesn't know how much has been contributed yet. The goal is $14,000.

Because of rainy weather this month, some solicitors may not have made all their rounds yet.

Anyone who is not contacted who would like to make a contribution can make out their checks to Elkland-Novesta United Way and send them to the treasurer, Florence Karr, at 5132 Penny Road, Cass City.

Persons living outside Elkland and Novesta townships who would like to contribute to the county Unit Way can send their checks Tuscola County United Way, Caro 48723.
