One protest or rates Council grants 8% pay boost for 1982

Village employees will receive an 8 percent pay increase this year, the Cass City Village Council voted Tuesday evening, Dec. 29.

The increase, personnel committee chairman Dorothy Stahlbaum told her fellow council members, will cost an additional $17,300, not including the increase in the wages of the new department of public works employee hired during the meeting.

The only change in fringe benefits, as recommended by the personnel committee, was in dental benefits. The village's old insurance program paid half the cost for basic dental service, with the employee paying the other half. The new program will pay 75 percent, with the employee paying the remainder.

For an employee with a family (also covered, a total of three or more persons), the village will pay an additional $1.75 per month per employee, the new premium being $17.18.

Mrs. Stahlbaum didn't have a total amount the change in dental coverage will cost.

That and the pay boost affects 12 village employees. The personnel committee doesn't negotiate with them, as they don't belong to a union, but does discuss the situation with village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie.

Police officers are members of the Fraternal Order of Police and have a contract with the village. Their next pay increase, 7 percent as provided for in the pact, goes into effect May 1.

The council also approved the 1982 village budget, with only a few minor changes from what was presented a month earlier.

The 1982 budget lists general fund revenue of $419,200; major street fund, $52,000; local streets, $19,600; federal revenue sharing, $42,800 (all budgeted for police protection); parking system, $5,850; sewer fund, $230,000; and water fund, $76,500; plus $33,000 taken from savings, for a total of $878,950.

Total expenditures are the same amount.

The changes from the original budget are an additional $10,000 from savings into the general fund; $10,000 more for insurance and bonds, for a total of $45,000, because of insurance for the new treatment plant, and an increase from $4,500 to $5,000 for Rawson Memorial Library.

The budget is basically a stand-still one, with no special projects or purchases planned in 1982.

PROTEST

One person appeared to protest the increase in sewer rates approved by the council at its November meeting.

A senior citizen who wouldn't give her name, she protested, "I don't understand how you are penalizing people living alone especially people who are living on Social Security."

The rates for persons such as herself, who use the minimum of 5,000 gallons or less per quarter, more than doubled, but everyone else's wasn't doubled, she said.

As an example, she continued, if she uses a total of 16,000 gallons in a year, she will pay $186.72. If a neighbor used that much in three months, he would pay $76.85 for the quarter "and I don't think that's fair."

The minimum users, she commented, don't mind paying their fair share, but they can't save any money by using less, since they are already being billed for the minimum.

Present sewer and water bills list one lump sum and the rate for 5,000 gallons or less is $21.12.

Under the new system, the water rate stays the same. The more one uses, the less he pays per gallon. In contrast, sewer rates are the same per gallon. Someone using 10 times as much as someone else pays 10 times as much.

The new bills will list the amount of water used twice, one time for figuring the water rate and the other for the sewer rate.

An inequity acknowledged to the woman was that whereas the minimum rate for water is for 5,000 gallons or less, the federal government, which is paying 75 percent of the cost for the new sewage plant, requires the minimum sewer rate to be for 10,000 gallons or less.

The woman also protested that persons such as herself who will receive the bill in early February will be billed at the higher rate for November, December and January, although the new rates technically didn't start until Jan. 1. "It makes a $17 difference to me. I think it's inconsiderate."

Village President Lambert Althaver responded that the council discussed that point in November "and we came to the conclusion we did."

As for her overall complaints, he said, "If there are some problems, we will try to deal with them."

PERSONNEL

Hired for the department of public works, to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Ed Anthes, was Gary Barnes of Cass City, who was one of 53 applicants. He will receive $15,495 annually, which includes the 8 percent pay raise.

Fourteen persons applied for the policeman's job. Hired was Robert Moore of Kingston, who has been a part-time officer here for about three years. He and his wife have been house parents at Teen Ranch. They will be moving to Cass City. He will be receiving $14,347, with a 7 percent increase (to $15,351) coming May 1. The police department now has a chief and four officers.

Trash haulers both seeking local garbage

There's cash in trash, and two refuse disposal firms would like it.

Cass City residents are being asked to choose, which has caused some confusion.

The situation developed because of the decision of Gary Stine, after 20 years and two months of picking up Cass City's trash, to sell his business to Gateway Sanitation Service of Almont.

Final sales papers haven't been signed, Stine told the Chronicle, but Gateway placed dumpsters in the downtown area Saturday and began commercial pickups there this week.

Stine and his crew will continue residential pickups until Gateway takes that over soon, once the sale becomes official.

In preparation for the takeover, Stine has notified his customers that garbage must be placed curbside in cans or plastic bags. (Alley pickup will continue in the downtown area.)

Stine and his men previously would go behind homes if necessary and emptied burner barrels.

In addition to Cass City, Stine also has a pickup route on Schwegler Road to Bay City-Forestville, down to it to Koeppgen and back to M-81, plus on Milligan Road once a month. He didn't know whether Gateway will take over that route.

SOME CONFUSION WAS created when Howard (Rich) Conway, owner of Rich's Disposal of Deford, circulated cards in the community advertising his services. Some persons who knew Stine was going out of business were confused.

Planning Commission meeting quiet; no protests over adult foster home

An informational meeting Tuesday evening about foster homes in Cass City turned out to be just that.

About a dozen persons came to the special meeting of the Cass City Planning Commission, in addition to five of its six members and other village officials. It was called in the wake of an application to the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) for a license to operate an adult foster care family home on Pine Street.

A lot of questions were asked, but no protests were made.

Invited to what was billed as an informational meeting were State Sen. Alvin DeGrow, R-Pigeon, and State Rep. Loren Armbruster, R-Caro.

Had anyone protested the presence of a foster home in Cass City, their protests would have been relatively meaningless as DeGrow explained.

The senator gave the background leading to the passage of the state mental health code in 1974. It stemmed from court decisions in the 1960s and early 1970s that said persons in state institutions, especially the mentally ill, either had to be treated or released.

Prior to the law, one of the problems in establishing foster care homes, he said, was "local governments tended to put them between the factory and the railroad tracks."

The result was the law supersedes any local zoning ordinances and says local governmental units cannot zone such facilities into one particular place.

State law (since 1977) says the DSS must notify the community in which a foster home may be located at least 45 days before a license is granted.

MOST OF THE QUESTIONS that followed were directed at Craig Lundsted, an adult service worker for the Tuscola County DSS, whose job entails checking seven of the 35 adult foster homes and their residents in the county. There is one such home presently in Cass City, licensed for one resident.

He drew a distinction between alternative institutional setting (AIS) homes that DeGrow referred to in part of his presentation and adult foster care homes.

Barbara Jamieson, who wasn't present, has applied for a license for the latter for her Pine Street home.

The AIS homes, he said with some later clarification from DeGrow, are for persons released from state institutions, being either mentally ill or retarded.

The state Department of Mental Health contracts with operators of the homes, who staff them with paid employees.

IN CONTRAST, THE owner-operators of the foster care homes usually live there with their residents and are regulated by the DSS.

Residents, a maximum of six per home, are 18 and older and may be physically handicapped, mentally ill or retarded, elderly, or a combination of such difficulties. They are not bedridden.

Lundsted said after the meeting most persons placed in the foster homes are county residents. Some may have been in state institutions at one time, but have not been just released from one. Some may have been living with their parents, who are no longer able to care for them.

Much depends on the operator of the home, but foster homes do enable residents to "grow" when given the opportunity, he claimed.

Some residents attend school. Others go to church, into stores and socialize with other persons.

Sales slow, merchants waiting for better times

By Mike Eliasohn
First of two parts

This Christmas was not one that Cass City merchants will look back on with fond memories.

Compared to the Christmas, 1980, shopping season, sales were down, according to the merchants the Chronicle asked.

Most reported sales were down slightly, although one said business was off 50 percent.

The year 1980 saw two stores close their doors, Gamble's in the spring and Ron's Automotive a couple of months ago. A third, Hobart's Family Shoes, will probably be open for the final time Saturday.

Business is slow, but understandably, the merchants feel it will get better. "You have to be optimistic," said Clothes Closet owner Dorothy Stahlbaum. "There's no other alternative."

Her women's clothing business this past fall, she said, was very poor, but finally picked up close to Christmas. "The last week or 10 days of holiday was really good," she continued, adding that post Christmas sales have been excellent. It is too soon to tell, however, whether the surge was enough to offset the poor fall sales.

"I think the first quarter (three months) will be slow, but after that it will pick up," predicted Dick Jones, owner of Richard's TV, Appliance and Furniture.

"It hasn't been like it has been in the past," he said of his Christmas sales. Sales of some items were up and others were down. For instance, sales of stereo equipment the last three weeks was so good, he had to order additional from suppliers.

At Schneberger's, Clarence (Bud) Schneberger said sales were down slightly from last Christmas.

Big sellers this year included microwave ovens and color televisions.

Although business is down, he said, "We're not hurting too much. We're going to survive."

What strengthens his business, he explained, is that 75-80 percent of his customers are from the three upper Thumb counties, outside of the immediate Cass City area.

Schneberger is optimistic about the future of Cass City, but feels community and business leaders need to work to promote new businesses, industry and residents here.

"I've faith in Cass City. I've never had a losing year in the 22 years I've been here. It's a good business town."

THE MAN WHO HAS been in business in Cass City the longest, 53 years, is Keith McConkey.

This season has been the worst since he opened his jewelry store in October, 1946, he said.

He and his wife, Cindy, anticipated this Christmas season would be slow, so ordered less inventory and did probably more advertising than ever, with the result they didn't come out too badly, he said.

Overall, customers were buying less expensive items this year and more careful in their shopping "and pretty well set with what they had in mind."

ALTHOUGH TIMES aren't good, McConkey continued, they are nowhere as bad as they were during the Depression in the 1930s.

He was working at the A&P grocery then. Writing on a piece of paper, he noted that a family back then could buy 25 pounds of flour, yeast, a pound of tea, two pounds of lard, two pounds of cheese and a pound of baloney, for $1.14 -- enough for a family to live on for almost a week.

The problem was a lot of families didn't have that much money. "If you had a dollar, you were in luck, but there were a hell of a lot of people who didn't have a dollar."

He recalled a woman who once came into the store with a prescription from a doctor for soap, needed because her son had a skin disease.

She couldn't afford the soap and the only way she could get it on credit was to have the prescription.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Two skiing vignettes. At Boyne Highlands, supposedly one of the premier skiing spots in Michigan, a tot, perhaps about six years old, no older, was crying because she was afraid to get on the chair lift alone. The lift operator, far from sympathetic, was bullying her to get on the chair.

One of our party volunteered to go up with her. When she got to the top she found her dad and was overjoyed. Don't ask me why he went on ahead without her.

Contrast that with Mt. Holly where the lift operators were friendly, courteous and did whatever they could to make your visit enjoyable.

An irony, one estimate was that there were 10,000 skiers at the Highlands on Dec. 31 each paying $16 to get on the slopes.

Idle thought. An easy way to make a billion bucks. Figure out a sure cure for this miserable cold of mine and all others like it.

Tuscola County roads were a lot safer in 1981. Ten persons were killed in traffic accidents during the year, the last one July 15, compared to 21 killed in 1980.

NEW SANILAC County Board of Commissioners' districts are shown above. Commissioners elected from the new districts will take office Jan. 1, 1983.

New Sanilac board districts revised

The Sanilac County Reapportionment Commission, which thought its work had ended Dec. 10 after adopting a plan that split the county into five county Board of Commissioners districts, found itself meeting Dec. 31, and Jan. 1, 2 and 3.

It ultimately, on Sunday, adopted a modified five-district plan.

In adopting the plan Dec. 10, county Clerk Delene Schultheiss explained, it gave until Dec. 31 for someone to present a different one.

Wednesday, Dec. 30, someone did. Sandusky attorney Donald A. Teeple Jr. presented a plan calling for eight districts, with a maximum population variance between the largest and smallest of 13 persons.

The five-member plan had a variance of 157.

The reapportionment commission, meeting for 3½ hours last Thursday, finally voted down Teeple's plan by the same 3-2 split that earlier approved the five-member plan.

Voting against Teeple's plan were county Republican Chairman Steve Kovac, county Democratic Chairman Richard Davies and county Treasurer Ken Rhead.

In favor were Mrs. Schultheiss and county Prosecutor Robert W. Barnes.

Those who wanted five county commissioners argued it would save money. Those opposed said the commissioners would have to meet more often, since each would have more work to do, so nothing would be saved, as part of their pay is per meeting.

With those supporting the smaller county board prevailing, the commission then voted to have a special census conducted in three townships in order to decrease the variance between the five districts.

That had to be done during the New Year's week end by township officials in Moore, Forester and Buell Townships by checking tax rolls, voter registrations and checking door-to-door.

Involved were five sections of Moore, which had a total population of 92 persons; Forester, five sections and 72 persons, and Buell, three sections and 76 persons.

Sunday, the commission met again and adopted by voice vote a revised plan with a variance of only 12 between the largest and smallest district.

Had it not done so, Mrs. Schultheiss explained, the original five-member plan could have been subject to legal challenge on the grounds the commission had been presented with another plan with the districts more equal in population. State law requires districts to be as close in population as possible.

The revised plan approved Sunday moves five sections of Moore Township — Sections 12, 13, 24, 25 and 36, all along the eastern border with Custer Township — into District 4.

The northern five sections of Forester Township are moved into District 5 and three sections of Buell Township along the eastern edge are moved into District 1.

The district of the most interest to those living closest to Cass City is No. 5, which consists of Greenleaf, Evergreen, Lamotte, Argyle, Austin, Minden, Delaware and Marion Townships, plus the previously mentioned five sections of Forester.

The plan now must be submitted to Secretary of State Richard Austin for approval.

The present eight county commissioners will serve through the end of this year. The new five districts will first be used in the August primary, followed by the November general election.

"If It Fitz..."

Foibles can be funny

By Jim Fitzgerald

At a cocktail party in Grosse Pointe, a recently divorced woman said she and her ex-husband are "closer now than we ever were."

Say what? Change the scene: Back downtown, as I was hurrying out the door, my wife asked whether I would mail a letter for her. Sure.

"Just a minute," she said, then sat down and started writing the letter.

Another scene changer: During a week end in a Cincinnati motel, my wife suddenly groaned: "I've lost my gold bracelet, the one you gave me. It cost $100."

The loss didn't bother me, for two reasons. First, I'd never pay that much for a bracelet. Tight questioning revealed the actual cost was nearer $50. She used the higher figure because she estimated its value had appreciated that much since I bought it.

I said a 50 percent cut in the depth of her groaning would be equitable because the bracelet would never be worth $100 unless she sold it, and she'd never do that because of its sentimental value. She assigns sentimental value to everything she has owned for over a year, and she will part with none of it, including the glop in 20 covered saucers in our refrigerator.

The second reason I didn't mourn the bracelet was that I knew it wasn't really lost. She'd brought two multi-pocketed purses to Cincinnati, plus a traveling bag with over a dozen separate compartments, and two suitcases. I assured her the bracelet was somewhere in her luggage and she would be delightedly surprised to find it someday when she was looking for something else, such as a stray grandchild.

But she insisted she'd looked everywhere and the bracelet was truly missing. The last time she'd seen it was at the swimming pool where she remembered saying she would put the bracelet somewhere she'd be sure to find it. That's where she puts everything. Three Christmases ago, she brought home two wristwatches, purchased for grandchildren, and put them somewhere she'd be sure to find them. She hasn't found them yet.

So we searched the swimming pool area for the bracelet, with no success. She then reported the loss to the room clerk and alerted our Cincinnati relatives to be on the lookout for a gold bracelet with no arm through it. She scattered her sad story about indiscriminately, along with our address, and someday we will entertain strangers, visiting from Cincinnati, who didn't find the bracelet but figure we owe them food and lodging for all the days of their lives they spent searching for it in answer to my wife's urgent pleas.

You know the bracelet finally turned up, or I wouldn't be writing about it. A few days after we returned home, it was back on my wife's arm. One thing about me, I'm the type of person who always says "I told you so." After I said it, she grudgingly conceded she'd found the bracelet, but she absolutely refused to tell where. That really bugs me.

Which brings us back to the original scene, starring the woman who is closer to her ex-husband now that they're divorced. I figure they split because she did things that bugged him, or vice versa, or, most likely, both. But what could they do that would drive a spouse further up a wall than I travel when my wife asks me to mail a letter she hasn't written yet or sends out search parties to find something lost in her purse?

My wife's husband loves her madly, and she knows it. One of the reasons is that I enjoy laughing at her foibles, once I come down off the wall. Another reason is that motel pillows are never fat enough for me, so I always take along my own pillow, and then leave it on the motel bed. There's one in Cincinnati right now, where the bracelet isn't, and my wife laughs about it.

If I were Ann Landers, I'd say couples who are closer than ever once they're divorced didn't have much reason to split. Maybe they just didn't laugh enough when they were married. Too bad. Foibles are funny, and have sentimental value.

Bush Hog®'s Soil Conservur is the spring tillage implement engineered for efficiency — because you level, incorporate chemicals and pulverize at the same time. That means you save fuel, time and money. Plus, you get your crop in earlier for increased yields and bigger profits.

Here's how Bush Hog's one-pass seedbed preparation works. The 18" front discs smooth and level ridges left by crop residue or primary tillage. Four ranks of field cultivator shanks incorporate chemicals. Spike mulcher teeth finish mixing chemicals and thoroughly pulverize soil for a perfect seedbed. You get even chemical incorporation with no hot or cold spots.

One-pass tillage means soil doesn't get compacted. And the soil retains valuable moisture for better seed germination.

Come in and get the facts on one-pass seedbed preparation with the Soil Conservur. Bush Hog is so sure you'll be impressed, they'll send you a FREE belt buckle just for stopping by and learning ten ways the Soil Conservur out-performs the competition. Do it today!

3-year-old bit by dog

Three-year-old Justin Briggs of 4195 West Street was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital after being bitten by a dog Saturday afternoon.

Cass City police reported the boy was bitten by a dog owned by Donald Puskas while the youngster was at Puskas's Sixth Street home.

The owner was advised to keep his dog confined for 10 days and to report if it develops anything unusual which might indicate rabies.

The Haire Net

In between James Watt, Secretary of the Interior, whose actions indicate that the best environmental protection is no environmental protection, and Ralph Nadar, the consumer advocate, is the mainstream of public opinion.

It's the thought here that President Reagan misjudges the mainstream when he cuts the power of the Environmental Protection Agency funds so drastically that it can no longer do its job effectively.

EPA funding is dropping at about 20 percent a year and staff cuts amounts to one percent per month.

Of 148 regulatory actions concerning dangerous chemicals pending in January, 78 have been delayed more than two months and 40 have been abandoned.

In Michigan, which still hasn't determined the long-term effect of PCB that has been scattered throughout the state population by the sale of beef, there's a concern about protection from killing chemicals.

Most of us are willing to pay the increased cost to prevent the spread of suspected cancer causing substances.

What negates the program and the peg on which special interest groups hang their appeal to kill provisions that cost them a buck or so is the lack of common sense in administering the rules. Like the Snail Darter, the little four-inch fish that held up a big power project because it was a threatened species. If you didn't follow the case closely you read just about the senseless preservation of a useless fish. The real battle was that the dam on the river was of doubtful value. Opponents claim it was a gigantic waste of Federal funds.

The media has to take part of the blame in the Snail Darter case. A useless fish holding up a multi-million dollar project is news. The reason for the fight in the first place is not nearly as sensational.

You can get a hint of what most folks think about protecting our heritage from the bottle law in Michigan.

Despite huge public relations expenditures and massive campaigns. Despite an increased cost per bottle of beer or pop, attempts to get the law rescinded have fallen flat before they could be launched.

Most of us don't want to risk cancer from chemicals. Most of us want our rivers and lakes clean. Most of us want our drinking water safeguarded.

And most of us are willing to pay to see that it's done. The politicians should be reminded of that whenever the occasion arises.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The first baby of the year is Julie Ann Devore. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Devore of Sebewaing.

Cass City village employees Dec. 28 won a 1977 wage and fringe benefit increase totaling 8.64 percent from the village council.

Cass City blew open a run and gun game at Cass City against Harbor Beach Tuesday night with a surge mid-way through the last half. The Hawks won, 94-87.

A $30 smoke alarm received as a Christmas present and still in the box saved the mobile home of Donna DeLong of Kelly Road, Cass City, Dec. 31. Smoke damage was estimated at $500.

TEN YEARS AGO

The 1972 business outlook is good, say the town's businessmen. Last year was one of the best, in spite of the generally uncertain economic conditions of the country as a whole.

Bill Bliss Jr. has filed a petition for village trustee to replace the retiring Gary Christner. No petitions have been received for assessor. Cass City is no exception to the flu bug that has threatened much of the Midwest, but doctors are not alarmed.

Representatives of the sheriff's deputies and the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners have agreed to go into mediation to settle the wage pact for the coming year.

Cass Cityans continued digging out from an 11-inch snowfall that blanketed the Thumb this week.

25 YEARS AGO

A grateful village presented Anthony Repshinska, 68, of Gagetown with a new television set in appreciation of his 34 years of service to the Gagetown community. Repshinska has retired after being responsible for the village streets, water works and other municipal services since 1922.

Some 50 persons attended the 10th reunion of Cass City High School's class of 1946.

JoAnn Bigelow was the toastmaster for the evening. Cass City placed four men in the top 19 in basketball league scoring, after four games. Tied for top honors for Cass City are Jim Johnson and Bob Martus, each with 62 points. John Meininger had 56 and Dick Hanby had 42.

35 YEARS AGO

The December quarter at the local post office was the heaviest in history.

Willis Campbell, who managed the campaign for the sale of Christmas Seals in Cass City, has sent $290, the amount contributed, to the Michigan Tuberculosis Society.

The first baby of the year is Roy Carl German, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl German of Route 2, Cass City.

Allen J. Field, 9, of DeFord, was critically hurt while in Florida. His family was in Florida working.

Hofmeisters

head Farm

Bureau drive

Ken and Andrea Hofmeister of 4481 Hobart Road, Gagetown, have been named chairpersons of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau's 1982 membership campaign.

The announcement was made by David Sting, president of the county Farm Bureau.

Under the leadership of the Hofmeisters, volunteer farm leaders in the county will aim at a goal of 2,625 member families, Tuscola's portion of the Michigan Farm Bureau state goal of 77,155 family memberships.

The largest general farm organization in the county, state and nation, Farm Bureau serves as spokesman for more than 2 million farm and ranch families in the United States and Puerto Rico.

The county Farm Bureau officially opened its membership campaign Tuesday at a meeting led by the Hofmeisters.

Campaign workers in 23 townships will be contacting eligible residents to offer them the opportunity to join their organization.

The Hofmeisters reminded the volunteers that members who wish to maintain their eligibility in member only programs, including the Blue Cross-Blue Shield group health insurance, must renew their membership no later than Jan. 31.

One-third to one-half a teaspoon dried herbs is the equivalent of one tablespoon fresh herbs.

Chainsaws stolen near Kingston

Theft of two chainsaws was reported to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Dec. 27.

Walter Wolak of 5780 Legg Road, Kingston, said they were taken from one of his farm buildings. The Stihl chainsaw was worth $325; the McCulloch, $200. Also taken were 40-50 gallons of fuel from two combines, one in another building, and a tractor.

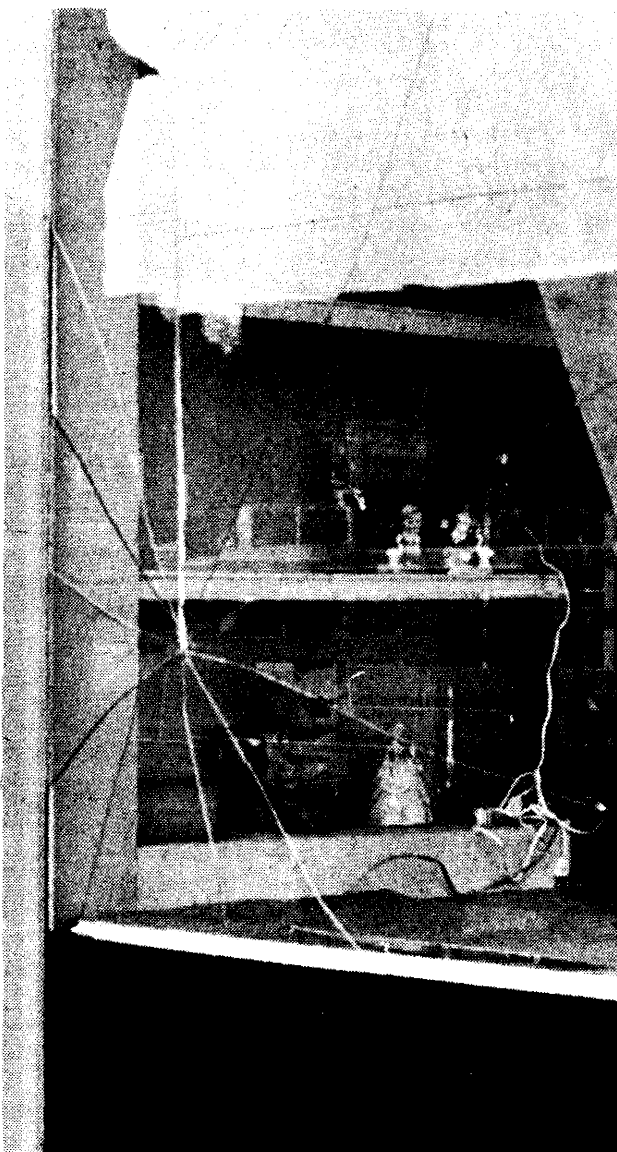

Gregory B. Burns of Warren reported to Cass City police last Wednesday that while he was hunting that day someone fired shots at his vehicle, parked on a trail near Milligan and Buehrly Roads.

He heard shots at 4:45 p.m. and returned to his car a half hour later to find the windshield had been hit near the top, with damage also done to the chrome strip along the top edge, and the driver's door window shattered.

No footprints were found so it is believed the shots were possibly fired from a passing vehicle.

Two broken windows were reported to village police Saturday at the vacant home of Dr. Rosemary Havey on Brenda Drive. They were discovered by the next door neighbor, Gerald Bennett.

An outside garage window and one by the door leading from the garage to the kitchen were broken.

WINDOW BROKEN -- This window at McConkey Jewelry and Gift Shop on Main Street was broken between 5:30 p.m. last Wednesday and 8:50 a.m. Thursday. Nothing was taken and the store was not entered. Owner Keith McConkey said replacement cost will be $515. He is offering a reward for information leading to conviction of the person who broke it.

Two teens charged in market break-in

Two teenagers have been charged with breaking and entering in connection with the Dec. 16 or 17 break-in of the Owendale Market.

Arrested and arraigned Monday before District Judge John Schubel was Alain K. Mosack, 17, of Sebewaing Road, Owendale.

He waived preliminary examination and was bound over to circuit court, where he will be arraigned Friday. Bond was set at $5,000 cash (10 percent) or surety.

Also charged in warrants issued Monday was Rolla M. Kretschmer, 17, of Brown Road, Owendale, who is believed to be out of state, according to Detective Sgt. David Neundorff.

Neither is presently a school student, he said. Solving of the case, he explained, started with rumors and then a process of elimination.

A search warrant was executed Dec. 31 in the home of one of the two charged. Found, according to the detective, were some empty beer bottles and a couple of packs of cigars taken from the store. The .357 caliber revolver belonging to store owner Duane Moore of Cass City was found elsewhere.

Taken in the break-in, in addition to the gun, were about $400 in cash, 20 cases of beer, 14 gallons of milk, about 30 cartons of cigarettes, 25-30 cigarette lighters, cigars, three or four boxes of candy bars and some packaged pizza and sandwiches.

Entry was gained through a rear window after the store closed Dec. 16.

4-H vote held

All the ballots have been counted and the Sanilac County 4-H leaders have elected three new members to serve two-year terms on the 4-H Council.

The 4-H Council is responsible for carrying out the program desired by the 4-H club members and leaders of the county. They also assist the county 4-H Agent in providing projects and activities to meet the needs of the 4-H club members and leaders.

The Council is composed of eight individuals, four men and four women who represent the four quadrants of the county.

The new members are: Delphine Peruski, dairy leader from the Lakeside 4-H Club (northeast); Betty McQuarrie, arts and crafts leader from the Flynn Hustlers (southwest); and Alfred John Palling Jr., dairy and beef leader from the Applegate Cattle Club (southeast). Current 4-H Council member Jack Gillig was reelected to a second term. He leads crops and electrical in the Lucky Stars 4-H Club (northwest).

They join Judy Doerr, Uby; Rodger Wood, Brown City; Karol Alexander, Peck; and Jim Kaufman, Sandusky, on the council.

Your Neighbor says U.S. should aid the Polish people

President Reagan announced a series of political and economic sanctions against the Soviet Union last week in reprisal for the crackdown by the military and government in Poland.

Jim Karr of Cemetery Road, Cass City, believes the Polish government was forced to do what it did by the Russian government. "I don't think they had a choice. I think they (the Russians) forced them in a corner."

He doesn't like what has happened. "I hate to see someone get kicked when they are down."

Karr doesn't feel the Soviet Union will be satisfied with what the Polish government is doing. "I still think the Russians are going to come in there (invade Poland)."

As for what the United States should do, he suggested we should try to help the Polish people by supplying them with food, medicine, clothing, advice to help them reestablish their economy -- "Whatever they need."

If the Russians do invade

Poland, he doesn't think our country should send weapons to the Polish people.

Karr has worked for 20 years at Yale Rubber Manufacturing Co. in Sandusky, where his wife, Shirley, is also employed.

They have four children, Donald Karr and Linda Reed of Cass City, Cheryl Chambers, who attends Central Michigan University with her husband, and Cindy Karr, also a student at CMU, and two grandchildren.

HEALTH TIPS

Chemical burns can damage eyes

By Frank Chappell
Science News Editor
American Medical Association

Chemical burns of the eye are very serious and may lead to blindness if immediate action is not taken.

Speed in removing the burning chemical is all important. Drain cleaner, bleach or other cleaning solutions are some chemical agents that can burn the eye.

Flush the eye immediately with large quantities of cool running water for about 10 minutes to rinse out the offending chemical.

Hold the victim's head under a faucet, prop the eyelids open and allow the water to run from the inside (near the nose) to the outside. If both eyes are affected, let the water flow over both or quickly alternate from one eye to the other. Pull back eyelids so all parts of the eye will be cleansed.

The American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care suggests that if no faucet is available, fill a sink or large pan with water and have the victim immerse his face and blink frequently.

After flushing thoroughly, cover the injured eye with a pad of sterile gauze or a clean folded handkerchief and bandage in place.

Do not allow the victim to rub his eyes. Get medical attention promptly, preferably from an ophthalmologist, or at the nearest hospital emergency room.

Never attempt to remove a foreign body that is sticking to the eyeball. Particles of eyelashes or specks that are resting or floating on the eyeball or inside of the lid may be carefully removed.

If the foreign body is sticking to the eyeball or into the eye, let it alone and get medical attention promptly. If it is floating on the eyeball, gently pull upper eyelid down over lower eyelid and hold for a moment. This causes tears, which will hopefully wash out the particle.

If this doesn't work, fill a medicine dropper with warm water and flush out the particle. If this fails, carefully lift the particle out with a moistened corner of a clean handkerchief or cloth. Any cuts to the eye can be very serious. Cover the injured eye with a sterile pad or gauze or clean folded cloth, bandage in place and get to a doctor quickly.

For a hard blow to the eye from a ball, fist, etc., apply cold compresses, keep the victim lying down if possible, and get to the doctor.

Around the Farm

Bean Day Jan. 9

By Don Kebler

If I were asked what are the foremost questions farmers are asking themselves relative to their 1982 business decisions, I guess my answers would be as follows:

What are my production costs, what prices will I receive for my products and will there be a bean contract with Mexico?

The first two will affect all farmers, the last will affect cash crop producers, and in an indirect way, livestock and poultry producers.

Persons attending the Saturday, Jan. 9, annual Bean Day program will hear estimated crop production costs and be shown how to make adjustments for individual operations.

Contracting beans with Mexico may affect all crop producers. If there is a reduced sale or no sale to that country this year, bean producers will be adjusting the selection and acreages of alternative crops along with production and cultural practices.

Also, if the acreage of black beans decreases and more production of other crops occurs, there could be a change in those crops' market value. This Mexican bean contract, bean outlook and situation also will be discussed at the Bean Day.

Other topics to be covered will be bean varieties, the status of the direct harvest navy bean, effects of conservation tillage on beans, Tuscola County Field Service, a report from your Bean Commission and 1982 bean disease and insect controls.

Bean Day will be from 9 a.m.-noon with refreshments and door prizes. Registration begins at 8:30. It will be at Akron-Fairgrove High School, located 2 1/2 miles north of Fairgrove.

The adopted budget for fiscal year 1982 for the Village of Cass City is available for public inspection on weekdays at the Municipal Building, 6737 Church Street, Cass City, Michigan, between 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Wright done with Navy basic training

Navy Seaman Recruit Steven M. Wright, son of Marvin A. and Judith A. Wright of 4580 Queen Street, Ubyly, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields. Included were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid.

Wright is a 1981 graduate of Ubyly High School.

posting an easy win Tuesday night against Mayville, 64-41, at Cass City the Hawks swing back into Thumb B Association action when Caro comes to town.

Don't be deceived because the Tigers are just 1-1 in the league. Toss that loss to Marlette out the window. Caro played without two of its top players. But they will be at full strength Friday and in the position of having to have a victory to stay in the thick of the race.

After the Caro game, the Hawks take to the road to face undefeated North Branch and if they win both of the upcoming games could be in the driver's seat in the Thumb. The same goes for North Branch which faces Sandusky this week before meeting the Hawks.

Coach Ron Nurnberger said that the defense played well against the Wildcats and said a repeat performance will be vital to stay in the game against Caro.

Although Cass City led all the way, the game was close until the final period. Cass City scored nine unanswered points to start the final period and that was the ball game.

Until that splurge it was the defense that carried Cass City. The Hawks started with a zone press and later switched to its usual man-to-man defense.

Both sides were missing easy shots in the early going, perhaps showing the effects of the lack of game competition over the holidays.

At the end of the first period the score was 14-8. Cass City added to its lead in the second quarter, as both teams started hitting with more regularity.

At the intermission, Cass City was in front, 29-21. Mayville made a game of it in the third period. With 1:18 left in the quarter the Hawk lead was cut to 35-30. But that was as close as Mayville was to come. When the Hawks made their run to start the final period the only thing in doubt was the final score.

Scott Hobart led Cass City with 19 points. John Meininger added 12. For Mayville Ron Raymond notched 14 and Doug McLane, 12.

December hunt one of best for long-time hunting crew

Hugh Hefner has his bunnies and magicians pull them out of hats, but for Stanley Morell of Hurds Corner Road, Cass City, and a group of friends, rabbits are the ultimate target for hunting.

What makes the group unique is that it can trace its origins back to at least 55 years, though like the joke about the historic axe owned by George Washington which has since had the blade and handle replaced, none of the present members were around when it started.

Morell, Frank Scpenski of Caseville and Jack Johnson of Flint have been hunting together at least 35 years. When they joined the group, among the hunters were Les Gingrich of Bad Axe and Earl Tilt of Kinde. "They hunted 20 years before I joined them," Morell said. Age finally caught up with Gingrich and Tilt and they no longer hunt.

Tilt's son, Ken, of Filion, hunted with the group for years. Another long-time hunter has been Les Beach of Gageton.

Over the years, the group has hunted in various places, including the Upper Peninsula when rabbits in the lower peninsula got scarce. They stayed in hotels, cabins and trailers.

Morell and Scpenski bought a cabin between Houghton Lake and Lake City in 1973 and since then, the group has stayed there.

This year's hunt was Dec. 4-11. In addition to Morell, Scpenski and Johnson, also there were Jim Dennis of Caro, Tim Poisson of Caseville, Frank Scpenski's son, Frank Jr., of Caseville, and Jerry Houghton, who recently moved from Cass City to Houghton Lake.

DURING THIS YEAR'S sojourn, the group bagged 47 rabbits, snowshoes and cottontails.

The best time came four or five years ago, when 48 rabbits were shot in a day and about 90 for the week.

The limit is five each of cottontails and snowshoes per hunter per day and a maximum of 50 each per season. Morell remembers some years when all the group got total was 10-12 in a week.

Scpenski and Morell do all the cooking during the excursions, the latter commenting that he has done it "as long as I can remember." Understandably, rabbit meat is often on the menu.

In addition to the week's expedition, three or four of the hunters will go back to the cottage two or three week ends each winter, if the snow isn't too deep," to go rabbit hunting.

Morell also hunts the animals in this area.

In Department of Natural Resources Zone 2, where the cabin is, the rabbit season runs from Oct. 1-March 31. The upper Thumb is in zone 3, where the season runs from Oct. 20 - March 1.

WHAT'S THE APPEAL of rabbit hunting?

For Morell, a retired Fuel-gas employee, 63, who has "hunted rabbits as long as I remember," it's the dogs, which drive the animals toward the hunters.

One has to like dogs to hunt rabbits, said Morell, who used to also hunt deer and pheasants, but gave that up. "A rabbit hunter is really a rabbit hunter. Rabbit hunting gets in your blood."

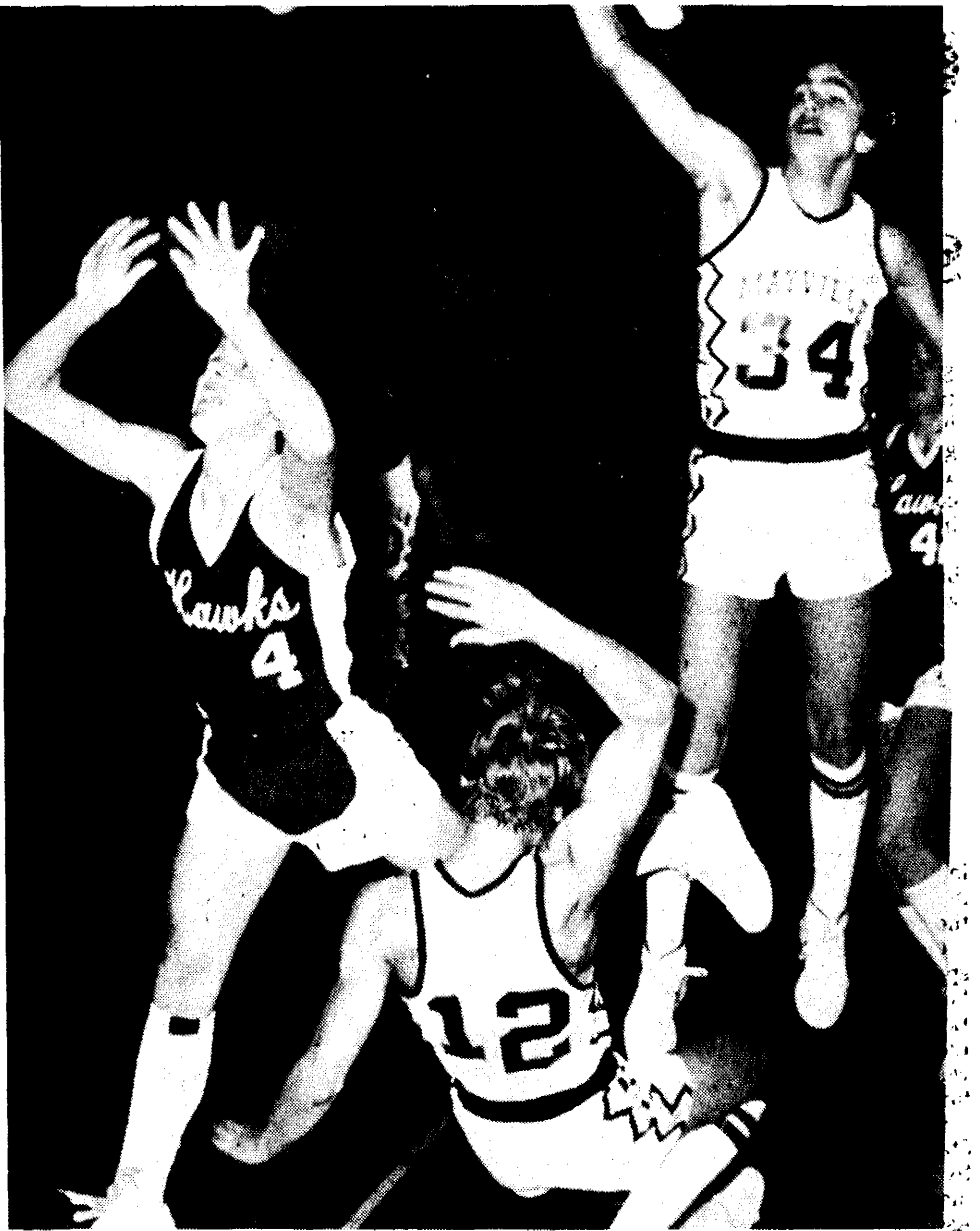

When the dogs are driving the rabbits toward the hunters, he said, "that's the thrill of it. There's no other sport like rabbit hunting because of the dogs."

Morell, incidentally, does not carry a rabbit's foot for good luck. "I'm not superstitious."

Gageton ponders trikes

The Gageton Village Council spent most of its meeting Monday evening discussing three-wheel supposedly off-road vehicles.

The council decided to consult with its attorney, Thomas D. Abbey, of Caro. The main question it would like answered, Village Clerk Elery Sontag said, is whether it is possible to make it legal for the three-wheelers to be driven on the streets from town out to the village park for riding there, where it is legal.

A LITTLE BALLET music please. Gary Robinson and Greg Walker, 12, and Rick Harris, 34, appear in the midst of a dance step as Robinson makes a drive for the basket.

JOHN MEININGER did everything right on this shot except that it missed. The Hawks didn't need these gimmie baskets Tuesday but the odds are that they'll need every one Friday against Caro.

O-G wins in overtime

Owen-Gage started the new year right in basketball Tuesday night, winning a thriller in overtime, 54-49, over visiting Michigan Lutheran Seminary of Saginaw.

With four seconds left in regulation play, the Bulldogs trailed 43-40. Dan Glidden was fouled, made the first free throw but missed the second.

Seminary got the ball out of bounds, but on the in-bounds pass, the player doing the passing stepped over the line. Owen-Gage got the ball back, still with four seconds left, and Terry Muntz put it through the hoop to knot the score at 43-41.

Coach Claude Stevens' squad rang up 11 points in the overtime to six for Seminary for the final margin.

Glidden scored 16 points for the evening. Muntz, 14, and Mike Powell, 10. The team shot 22 of 50 from the floor, 44 percent, and 10 of 26 from the charity line, 38 percent.

Seminary collected its points on 21 field goals and seven of 13 charity tosses, 54 percent.

Muntz and Glidden each grabbed 12 of their team's 42 rebounds.

The Owen-Gage junior varsity also won, 39-38, on a foul shot by John Shope with no time left on the clock.

Beef survival seminar set in Lansing

Unless changes are made in Michigan's beef industry, it could become a thing of the past.

Cattlemen attending a special statewide seminar, "Survival in the '80s," at Long's Convention Center in Lansing, Jan. 22, can learn what changes are necessary for survival.

Sponsored by Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service and the Michigan Cattlemen's Association, the session features some of the top beef cattle production authorities in the United States. The program runs from 10 a.m.-9 p.m.

Hot political battle seen

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

With the recent announcement that Gov. William G. Milliken will be leaving elective office at the end of his current term, a signal was sent out to begin the most wide open battle for political leadership in the state in the past 20 years.

Democrats said they were elated at the chances of recapturing the office held by Republican Milliken for 13 years and Republican George Romney for the preceding six years.

Republicans, meanwhile, said it opens the door to setting a new direction for the party.

Lieutenant Gov. James Brickley and insurance executive Richard Headlee are both probable candidates for the Republican nomination next year although they both refused to commit themselves after the Milliken declaration.

Conservative State Sen. Jack Welborn (R-Kalamazoo) has announced he is a candidate for the nomination and expressed disappointment that Milliken would not run as he said he wanted to run against Milliken directly.

Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson is also seeking the Republican nomination.

Democratic candidates for their party's nomination are many and they all expressed optimism for their chances after Milliken announced he would not run.

Those candidates include 1978 nominee William Fitzgerald of Detroit, Congressman James Blanchard of Pleasant Ridge, always-a-candidate East Lansing attorney Zoltan Ferency, state Senators Gary Corbin of Clio, David Plawiecki of Dearborn Heights, Kerry Kammer of Pontiac and Edward Pierce of Ann Arbor, and Robert Tisch who has attempted but failed during two elections to cut property taxes by as much as 50 percent.

THE OUTGOING GOVERNOR may not do much to help voters decide who he would like to succeed him. He said he would vote for his lieutenant governor if he were a candidate, but did not indicate if he would be much more active than that in the primary.

"There is no such thing as an heir apparent. Every candidate must compete on his own merit," he said.

Milliken said he intends to serve out the remainder of his term - through Dec. 31, 1982 - making a total of 14 years in his record-setting tenure as Michigan's chief executive.

He added he would begin a new career after that, but said what that will be is unclear. "I have not yet explored the options," he said.

THE GOVERNOR SAID he decided to leave office, in part, so he could work full time on the state's problems.

"Next year may well be the most critical in Michigan's history. Michigan's problems in these extraordinary times are too serious to have a governor unable to devote full energies to them. . . a governor suspected of putting political self-interest ahead of public interest . . . a governor preoccupied with months of campaigning."

"It will need an unprecedented degree of bipartisan cooperation and achievement between Republicans and Democrats - between the legislature and the governor. I want all of my efforts in this critical period to be judged on their merits - not suspected motives," he said in his announcement.

Milliken said his major objectives in 1982 are further moves for an economic recovery program, guiding the fiscal affairs of the state through the continued recession and establishing a Resource Heritage Fund to enable the state to use revenues from depletable natural resources to enhance permanent recreation, pollution control, waste disposal and other environmental programs.

Elkland Township fire fighters were called to a house fire on Phillips Road, north of Kelly Road, at 10:45 a.m. Wednesday. No further information was available as of press time.

Budget slash removes DNR fire control from area

Monday marked the end of the Department of Natural Resources forest fire service in the upper Thumb.

It may not make a difference now, but come spring, when grass and brush fires begin, it will. "From our standpoint, we're going to miss them, I'm sure," said Elkland Township Fire Chief Dave McNaughton.

In order to save $333,000 as part of a $5.5 million budget reduction, the DNR eliminated all eight fire officer positions in approximately the lower half of the lower peninsula.

For Fire Officer Richard Shevchenko, who has been at the Caro DNR office 13 years, that meant reassignment to Sanford, northwest of Midland.

But for upper Thumb fire departments, that means when they have trouble extinguishing grass, brush and woods fires, they won't be able to call on Shevchenko and his big bulldozer.

This past spring was kind of wet, McNaughton said, and Shevchenko's services were only used two or three times, but in a normal year, he might be called on seven or eight times.

The bulldozer had a V-plow on the back, which could cut a 4-6-foot wide bare path to stop approaching fire. What little fire that leaped the swath, according to the fire chief, could be swatted out by firemen using brooms.

The bulldozer blade came in handy in knocking down brush piles if they started burning.

Shevchenko also had two four-wheel-drive small tank trucks.

The Elkland department is better off than some, McNaughton said, because it has its own 4WD pickup for getting to hard-to-reach grass fires. Some departments don't have them.

The DNR equipment has either been sent to the fire stations up north or moth-balled.

What may happen without Shevchenko and his equipment?

It may mean, McNaughton said, saving buildings, and waiting for the fires to burn to the nearest road.

'Lady' in training for career as seeing eye dog

"Lady" isn't an ordinary dog.

The black Labrador retriever's role in life — if she measures up — was determined by the time she was born.

That may make it difficult for her owner, Connie Profit, 11, because she is not really the owner.

The daughter of Edward and Judy Profit of Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City, is the only Tuscola County 4-H'er presently enrolled in the Leader Dog 4-H Puppy Program.

What that means is she will raise the puppy until it is about one year old, when it must be returned to the Leader Dog School in Rochester, where it was born.

Her parents and 4-H leader had to sign a contract with the school in which she agreed to raise the dog until approximately 1 year of age and notify it in case of loss, theft, injury or death. The Leader Dog School retains ownership.

Connie picked up the dog in Rochester Oct. 31. "Lady" — Connie gave it her name — was born Aug. 27.

During the time she has it, there is a long list of dos and don'ts. The aim is to prepare the dog for training as a Leader Dog.

One of the first tasks, which has been done, is to get Lady housebroken.

Connie's tasks include teaching the dog to sit beside the table while persons are eating; to get used to traffic, household noises, stairs, being with people, including small children, and riding in a car.

It must learn to respond to the voice controls of "no," "good dog" and "bad dog." The dog isn't supposed to be disciplined by hitting it with a newspaper or hand.

Included with the written instructions is that when the dog is corrected, that should be followed by praise when it does right.

Among the don'ts, Lady must be taught are not to jump on furniture or at people, chase other dogs or cars. It isn't supposed to be taught fancy tricks.

"They just want it well socialized," Ed Profit explained. He offered to take the dog to obedience school, but was told not to.

AS MENTIONED, CONNIE is the only 4-H'er in Tuscola County presently raising a leader-dog-to-be.

"We'd love to have more leader dogs in the county," said 4-H Youth Agent Peggy Breclaw, who can be contacted at the extension office in Caro for more information.

Once a 4-H'er applies for the program, she explained, the Leader Dog School checks with the 4-H office and with the youth's 4-H leader before allowing him or her to have a puppy.

The 4-H'er and family bear the cost of raising the dog.

Lady presently eats a little more than a pound of dog food per day, according to Profit.

NO MATTER HOW GOOD a puppy's upbringing, some don't make it once they get to the Leader Dog School for training. Some just don't have the temperament for it, are afraid of traffic, etc.

If that happens, Connie can have Lady back if she wants her. (If not, the school has a waiting list of persons who want such dogs.)

Chances are that won't happen, however, and perhaps the hardest part of raising the dog will be giving it up.

Connie is a first-year member of the Cass City Livestock Club. Asked why she wanted to raise a Leader Dog puppy, she responded, "I just wanted to do something for 4-H."

As for whether it will be hard to give up Lady when the time comes, she could only nod her head "yes."

FUTURE LEADER — Connie Profit and Lady, her black Labrador retriever for a year. Connie wears a Leader Dog patch on her jacket as identification to enable her to take the dog in restaurants and stores.

Ubly snowmobiler hurt in accident near Ruth

Icy roads continued to cause problems for motorists during the past several days.

It wasn't an icy road, however, that sent an Ubly man to Huron Memorial Hospital Saturday.

Huron County sheriff's deputies reported Gary T. Grifka, 28, was northbound on Edwards Road, northeast of Ruth, at 4:45 p.m. and going down a hill on his snowmobile when he came upon a bridge that was closed.

The machine then went up a snow covered gravel pile and went airborne. Grifka became separated from the machine and fell to the ground. He was released from the Bad Axe hospital Tuesday.

Farm tax workshop Friday

The Sanilac County Cooperative Extension Service will conduct its annual seminar Friday on changes in tax laws affecting farm businesses.

It will be in the conference room adjacent to the extension office at 37 Austin Street, Sandusky. Bill Hamilton, the regional farm management agent, will be the speaker.

The morning session, beginning at 9 a.m. will be devoted primarily to those using the Telfarm system. The afternoon session is open to all.

No one was injured in any of the area automobile accidents.

Hugh D. Walls, 25, of 5706 E. Sanilac Road, Kingston, was ticketed by Tuscola deputies on a charge of careless driving after a 5:35 p.m. accident last Wednesday.

Officers reported he was northbound on Washington Street, south of Arthur Street in Kingston, when he lost control of his car on the slippery pavement.

It went into the southbound lane and collided with the oncoming car of Barry W. Shaver, 18, of Silverwood.

Bert F. Emerson Jr., 19, of Columbiaville, told deputies that at 5:15 p.m. that day, he was eastbound on Rossman Road and collided with a car that was southbound on White Creek Road.

After the impact, the driver of the other car drove off without stopping. Emerson said neither vehicle could stop in time because of the icy surface.

Deputies reported that at 2:40 a.m. last Thursday, Paul L. Reidel, 18, of 2114 E. Evergreen Drive, Vaughn's Trailer Park, Caro, was parking on Evergreen. Due to the icy pavement, his auto slid into the one parked in front of it, owned by Dagmar M. Brown, 58, of Cass City.

At 3:10 a.m. Friday, according to Cass City police, Phillip C. Harmer, 17, of 1935 N. Dodge Road, Deford, was southbound on Cemetery Road, north of DeLong Road, when his car hit some slush on the road.

The vehicle went off the east side of the road into a ditch and rolled over, landing on its roof.

At 4:40 p.m. New Year's Day, Michael R. Dadacki, 21, of 4063 Shaw Road, Kingston, was southbound on Kingston Road. He attempted a left turn onto Howard Street, deputies said, but his vehicle slid into the utility pole at the southeast corner.

He was ticketed on a charge of no proof of insurance.

Cass City police reported that at 6:45 a.m. Monday, Sheila Jane Fox, 28, of 4567 N. Seeger, turned left from Seeger into Walnut Trailer Park, couldn't stop in time due to the icy entranceway and slid into a parked car.

Owner of the parked car

Ray Kloc finishes Navy basic training

Navy Seaman Raymond F. Kloc, son of Stanley J. and Nurse L. Kloc of 6195 Severance Road, Cass City, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields. Included were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid.

Kloc is a 1981 graduate of Cass City High School.

was Randy Mallory, no address listed.

Mari Beth Lowe of 4167 Maple Circle reported to village police Monday that while her car was parked in the lot between Seeger and Leach Streets, north of Main Street, another vehicle hit it in the left front corner and then left.

Deputies reported that at 2 p.m. Dec. 29, Morton F. Lee, 47, of Sandusky, was southbound on M-24. He told them he stopped at E. Dayton Road but then pulled into the intersection and collided with an eastbound auto.

Driver of the other car was Charles M. Smith, 46, of 1626 N. Main Street, Snover.

CAR-DEER

Frederick L. Hicks, 29, of 259 N. Crawford Road, Deford, was westbound on Deckerville Road, west of Cemetery, at 8:20 p.m. Dec. 29, deputies reported, when his car hit a deer.

An hour later, Cass City police reported that Randall S. Severance, 18, of 6331 Severance Road, Decker, was westbound on M-81, west of Schweigler Road, when his auto collided with a deer.

Larry K. Becker, 19, of Fairgrove, was northbound on Buehly Road, north of Milligan Road, at 8 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 30, Cass City police said, when his auto hit a deer.

Theodore A. Powell, 51, of Deckerville Road, Cass City, was eastbound on Deckerville Road, west of Dodge Road, at 9 a.m. Monday, deputies said, when his vehicle collided with a deer.

Almost all meat okay

New federal meat inspection makes shady slaughter easy

By Mike Eliasohn

The Michigan hot dog, already on the endangered species, may soon be a thing of the past.

Meanwhile, if someone offers a great deal on some beef or pork, nicely packaged and no questions asked, beware.

It has been almost three months since Michigan's meat inspection program ended, Sept. 30, to be replaced by a federal program.

The big objection to federal inspection, say some area meat packers, isn't what gets checked, it's what doesn't get checked.

Two ex-state inspectors, one now doing the same thing for Uncle Sam, have those objections and some of their own.

Under Michigan law, all meat was inspected when it was slaughtered and processed, whether intended for the retail customer or custom slaughter, the latter being when a customer brings in an animal to be butchered for his own use.

Because federal inspectors don't check custom slaughtered meat, that opens the way for abuses.

The state law requiring all meat to be inspected remains in effect, but the state retains only 10 inspectors to check custom slaughtering.

That isn't enough, according to Gene Gainer of Gainer's Meat Packing in Bad Axe. His business slaughters 90-110 cattle a week, about half retail and half custom.

A federal inspector is present when the meat is headed for the retail counter, but no state man is there for custom slaughtering, so his men must go ahead anyway.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE Director Dean Pridgen has told the House Agriculture Committee it will take 20-24 inspectors to do the job right, at a cost of about $1.2 million a year, according to the Michigan State Employees Association News.

Ironically, said ex-state and now federal inspector Tom Lounsbury of Cass City, it would have cost Michigan only $300,000 more than that to keep the entire program, as the federal government would pay an equal share.

That's not the direction the state is moving, however. The MDA is backing a bill in the legislature that will repeal Michigan's 1965 meat inspection act, thus allowing the department to lay off its 10 remaining inspectors. It had 120 when the state inspected all meat.

That will also mean an end to Michigan's tougher standards for hot dogs and sausage — no pig snouts, ears, lips and stomachs. Federal inspectors don't enforce them now.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN IF all meat isn't inspected?

Persons who buy their meat at a supermarket or meat market shouldn't have to worry, with one exception.

"... we wouldn't kill it if it's not fit to eat," said John Maurer of Maurer Slaughter House near Ubly.

Unfortunately, not everyone is that particular when there is a buck to be made.

Ex-inspector Ed Paladi of Cass City said he could start butchering animals in his garage, claim them as custom exempt, deal in sick animals and get away with it.

It wouldn't be much more difficult for an unscrupulous slaughterhouse operator, he continued, since a federal inspector is only there a few hours a week. Uninspected, supposedly custom slaughtered meat, could then be sold with inspected meat.

PALADI, A STATE INSPECTOR 12 years, became a federal inspector, but quit Oct. 28. He was working 32 hours a week at Caro and Silverwood and getting paid for 40 — "One day I sat there and did nothing," — but foresaw his hours being cut drastically or his being transferred.

"I didn't see any future in it, so I quit," he explained. Now drawing unemployment compensation, he is waiting for his daughter to graduate from high school in June, then figures he may have to move to find a new job.

He mentioned that even honest operators can easily overlook something that an inspector would see, for instance, enlarged or discolored glands, an indicator of bad meat.

Gainer pointed out another disadvantage of not inspecting custom meat. He and his men can usually tell if meat is bad but if it's a customer's animal, they can't throw it away if the customer wants it.

That means an unscrupulous farmer can have his animals slaughtered and processed at a packing house and then, as long as he says it is for his own use, sell it to unsuspecting customers, whether the meat is healthy or not.

GAINOR AND HAROLD Deering of Deering Packing, Silverwood, both said there have been instances since federal inspection began of a few farmers bringing in more animals for slaughter than they obviously needed for their own use.

Deering cautioned that all custom slaughtered meat must be stamped "not for sale" and packages of such meat must have labels saying the same thing, that reputable packers "wouldn't wrap it if they wouldn't eat it themselves."

Lounsbury pointed out, however, such markings can easily be removed by those who are disreputable. "If someone wants to violate the law, it's very easy for them to do so."

The Dodge Road resident is in his eighth week of working in Grand Rapids.

The government pays him additional to cover the cost of lodging and meals, plus mileage for a trip home every other week end. He doesn't expect that arrangement to last.

A reorganization of inspectors' assignments is supposed to come this month.

THE ONE MEAT OPERATION in the upper Thumb that has full-time federal inspectors is Erla's in Cass City, which in addition to supplying its own supermarket, sells meat to many other stores and restaurants. It also does some custom butchering.

Dick Erla said his business has already increased, as some small meat packers are now buying the meat from him they sell over the counter instead of slaughtering their own.

He doesn't like the idea that some meat being slaughtered in Michigan isn't inspected. "My main concern is we fought for many years so that livestock would be an inspected product."

At this point, however, he would not like to have to switch his slaughterhouse and processing plant back to state standards. It has already cost his firm $5,000, he said, for new labels and boxes to comply with federal standards and some equipment changes will also have to be made, for instance, switching from plain steel to stainless steel racks.

Gainer said some packers are talking about launching a petition drive to enable voters to decide whether state inspection should be reinstated. "We haven't given up on state inspection yet."

No protests over foster care home

Lundsted said he usually visits each foster care home 2-4 times a month. He and the two other adult service workers in the county must investigate all complaints.

PLANNING COMMISSION member Nat Tuttle asked about an evaluation of Mrs. Jamieson and her home before she is granted a license.

Lundsted couldn't give a definite answer, since he doesn't handle licensing, but assumed the state official will check her references in addition to visiting her and her home. There used to be training provided, but he wasn't sure if there still is, due to state budget cuts.

The homes must comply with fire codes but don't have to be barrier free unless there are wheelchair users there.

Operators receive a maximum of $443 per resident per month in Supplemental Security Income (federal and state funded) and a small amount of Medicaid. Residents usually receive $32-$2 a month each in SSI for their own use.

Another member, B.A. Calka, asked if the eventual goal is to empty the Caro Regional Center. DeGrow responded that it wasn't, that the facility will probably always house 300-500 residents who need around-the-clock care. It once had 1,400-1,600 residents.

IT WAS MEMBER LEE Rabideau who commented more than once, "There's just no problem" with adult foster care homes, which have been around for a long time.

"I think the main concern of this board is the AIS homes," he said, suggesting more information is needed.

Village President Lambert Althaver said after the meeting that the village council in accordance with state law must notify the state DSS that Mrs. Jamieson's home is at least 1,500 feet from a similar facility and that it recommends she be granted a license.

That appears a formality, he commented, especially since no one protested, and will probably be voted on at the Jan. 26 meeting.

CHANGEOVER -- Snow was falling late Saturday afternoon when employees of Gateway Sanitation Service of Almont unloaded dumpsters in the downtown area. They were picked up for the first time Tuesday.

Two trash haulers seek local refuse business mistakenly thought Rich's was taking it over.

Up to now, Cosway has had two commercial customers in Cass City. He said Monday he has gained some new ones. His three trucks pick up trash in Kingston, under contract with the village, Marlette, and in rural areas.

When he takes trash to the Cass City-owned landfill south of town, he explained, he is charged $1 per cubic yard capacity of his truck. He has 16 and 20 cubic yards trucks. The price is the same no matter how much is in the truck.

It thus is to his advantage to pick up as much trash as possible. He said he never solicited customers in Cass City as long as Stine was in business, but felt now was an opportune time to solicit new customers.

He also requires trash to be curbside for pickup.

Stine hasn't had to pay anything to Cass City to dump his loads at the landfill because he had an agreement with the village where by he had two men at the landfill when it was open to the public.

The days and times will remain the same, village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie said, but now a village employee will be there. The landfill is open to persons who haul their own trash from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Wednesdays and 7-11 a.m. Saturdays.

LAPONISIE SAID HE told a representative of Gateway last week that the firm was not to dump any trash it picks up in Cass City until after the village council meets Jan. 26 and decides on new rates.

94 apply for 3 village jobs

Of the 27 who applied for the secretary's job, Rona Hillaker of Cass City was hired for $4.71 an hour, which equals $10,310 annually. She replaces Deanna Patnaude, who is resigning effective Jan. 29, and will work part-time until then.

The new personnel started Monday.

OTHER ITEMS

Two 66-foot width lots off Herron Drive at the east end of the village were accepted from Tom and Linda Herron, dedicated for future street and public utility purposes. The lots were reserved for the purpose several years ago, in case the Country View Haven Subdivision is ever expanded, but dedication to the village was never completed.

The village has received a letter from the Department of Natural Resources stating that Cass City's landfill south of town does not comply with the standards to be in effect Sept. 1, 1984. However, state required soil borings haven't all been

Christmas sales slow in village

IN THE SAME BLOCK is the Federated Store, where Bernard Ross has been in business since 1940.

Christmas sales started slow, but ended up very good, he said. Overall, sales were a bit less than a year ago.

Actually, he noted, in terms of dollars, business was up, but that was due to inflation. The actual number of items sold decreased.

Like McConkey, he also ordered less inventory. "We're in good condition"

The council Dec. 29 briefly discussed the situation and decided to take some action at its January meeting.

In addition to the fee charged to the trash haulers and individuals, Cass City also charges townships $3.75 per resident per year to let their citizens use the landfill.

Elkland, Novesta, Ellington and Elmwood Townships presently pay.

Persons who don't live in those townships or in Cass City pay 50 cents per cubic yard for a pickup and $4 for a truckload to dispose of their trash at the landfill.

The council will be looking at whether any of those fees should be changed, according to the village superintendent, and also at restricting commercial haulers from bringing in refuse from areas outside of those paying Cass City.

Gateway has already been informed not to bring in loads from outside the area, he said.

The firm does have another place to dump, according to Stine.

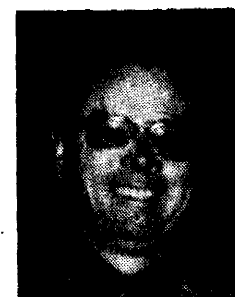

It will be making its pickup Tuesdays and Fridays, using a 25 cubic yard truck driven from Almont on those days.

Stine's truck only had a yard box and the compacter can't compress refuse as effectively as the one on the Gateway truck.

As for why he is retiring, he said, "I think it's about time for quitting."
