

UPSIDE DOWN — Cass City Area Ambulance Service personnel treated Richard Patera before placing him in the ambulance. The accident took place early Saturday along M-81, about four miles west of Cass City. A view of the car after it was pulled back on its wheels is shown in the inset.

Accident victim waits several hours for rescue

Richard Patera may have lain in a ditch more than eight hours, less than a quarter-mile from his house, from the time his car went off the road early Saturday until it was discovered by a passing truck driver.

Patera, 28, of 3137 E. Cass City Road, Cass City, was reported in fair condition Tuesday afternoon at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies reported his Corvette sports car, east-bound on M-81, went off the big curve east of Green Road onto the south shoulder, slid sideways 345 feet before crossing the road, went into the ditch, then flipped into the air and traveled 15 feet before landing upside down.

The car came to a halt in the deep ditch and was further obscured by tall reeds. The result was the convertible, with Patera trapped, wasn't visible to most passing motorists.

Patera told deputies he only knew it was dark out when he went off the road. Deputies estimate it was about 1 a.m. The accident wasn't reported until 9:21 a.m. The engine of the car was cold when officers arrived.

Patera's home is on the south side of M-81, less than a quarter of a mile west of where his car went into the ditch.

He was ticketed by deputies on a charge of violation of the basic speed law. After he was removed from his overturned car by Cass City Area Ambulance Service personnel and others, a wrecker was used to turn his car upright.

Gasoline started spilling from the punctured tank, so the Elmwood Township-Gagetown firemen were called to wash it away.

Cass City police assisted at the scene.

Arson blamed

Fire leaves family of six homeless

Arson has been attributed as the cause of a fire that destroyed a home in Gagetown Wednesday morning, Aug. 11.

Owners of the home on Mill Street were Vernon and Sheryl Higgins, who lived there with their four children, ages 11-16. No one was home at the time when the fire was discovered about 9 a.m. by someone working at the nearby Agri-Sales elevator.

Elmwood Township-Gagetown firemen arrived within a few minutes, but by then, a neighbor said, the flames were 12 feet high.

Firemen didn't finish until after 12:30 p.m. They were assisted by Elkland Township fire fighters, who brought a pumper, tanker and rescue van to the scene.

Fire Chief Chuck Wright said the old frame dwelling was valued at $12,500, not including contents.

After the flames were out, Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Detective Larry Walker investigated. He was later assisted by officers from the state police fire marshal's office.

Several dark spots on the floor were places where flammable liquid had been spilled and lighted, he explained. There was also other evidence indicating arson, Walker added, and investigation is continuing.

Higgins suggested to the Chronicle there might be some persons who would want to torch his house, but declined to go into detail. "Sure wasn't," he responded to the question whether he was responsible for starting it.

He said he and his family lost everything. They had only been living there about a month, having moved from Caro. He and his wife were buying the home, which was insured.

Among items lost, according to Higgins, were several antiques, including a sewing machine plus a collection of old bottles.

As of Monday, Mrs. Higgins said the family didn't know where it would resettle.

HOUSE FIRE — Arson is believed to have been the cause of a fire that destroyed the home of Vernon and Sheryl Higgins and their four children in Gagetown Wednesday morning, Aug. 11. Only a few small items were salvaged from the home.

THREE INJURED

Three persons were admitted to Hills and Dales following a 12:25 p.m. accident Aug. 7.

Injured were David A. Boyce, 40, the driver, and Patricia Ann Boyce, 41, of 2979 Keilitz Road, and John Haggard, 23, of 4410 Houghton Street, all of Cass City.

Mrs. Boyce was discharged the same day and the others the following day.

There were eight passengers riding in the pickup truck. Sitting on the inside seat, in addition to those injured, was another adult, who was holding a child in her lap.

Three teenagers were riding on a seat attached to the bed of the pickup, one of whom was holding a 1½-year-old infant.

Deputies reported the pickup was eastbound on Shabbona Road, east of Duprey Road, when a deer jumped into its path. Boyce swerved to avoid it and the vehicle went off the south side of the road and hit a small tree.

Antlerless deer season approved in upper Thumb

Like it or not, the Natural Resources Commission (NRC) has approved antlerless deer hunting this fall for Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties.

Shooting does has been permitted for the past several years in Tuscola, but will be new this November in Huron and Sanilac, where it has drawn some opposition.

The NRC at its July meeting, acting on recommendations of Department of Natural Resources staff, approved antlerless hunting in almost all of the lower peninsula, including all of the Thumb area.

Meeting in Marquette last Thursday and Friday, the NRC approved the number of antlerless permits to be issued in each zone.

The dividing line through the upper Thumb is M-46 from Port Sanilac west to M-53, then north to Bay City-Forestville Road, then west to Saginaw Bay.

North of the line is zone 124, which is all of Huron County, the north half of Sanilac and Tuscola north of Bay City-Forestville. It totals 1,310 square

For four mills

School board okays third millage vote

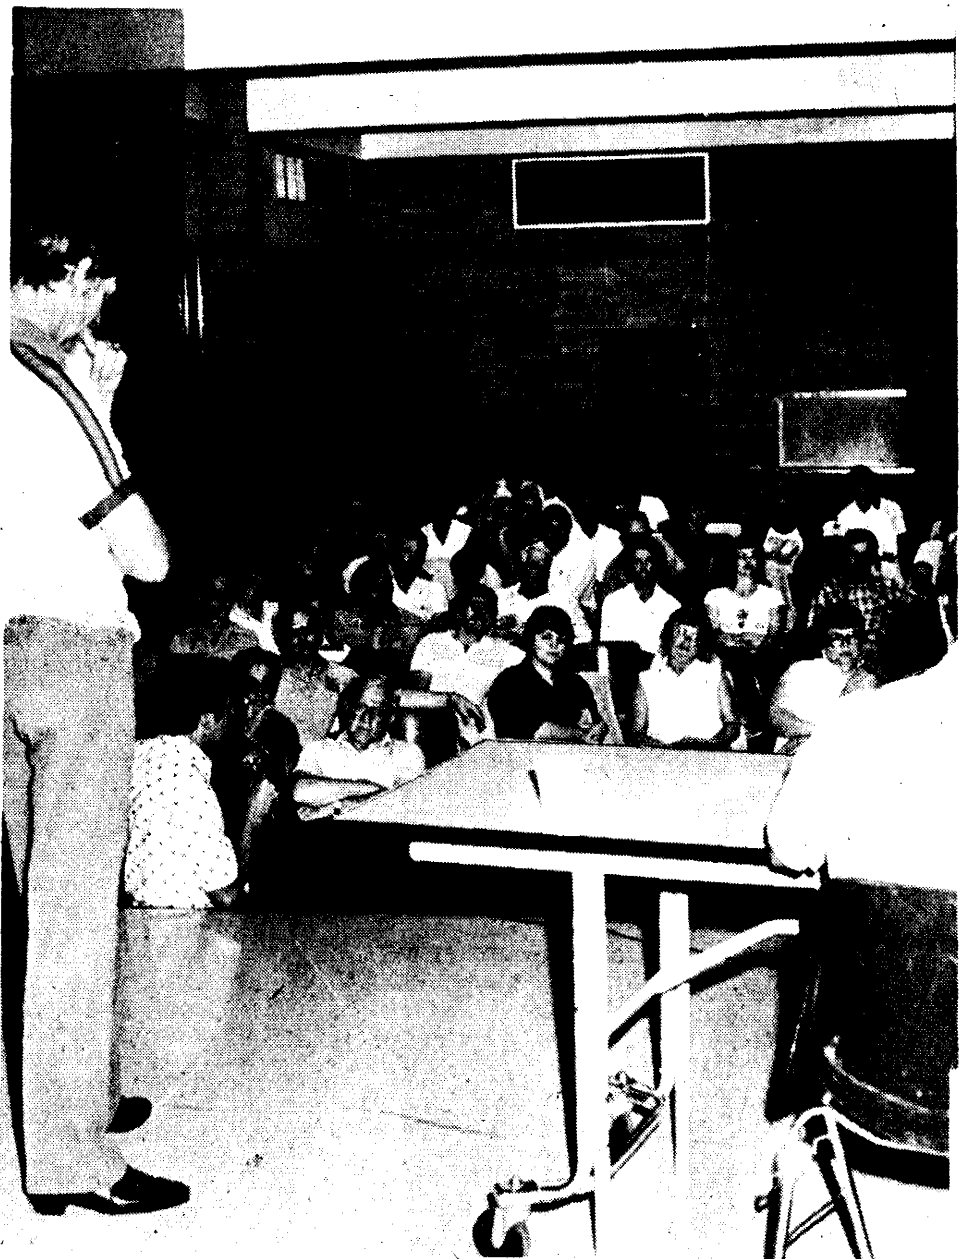

A third try for extra operating millage was authorized by the board of Cass City Schools in a special meeting Monday at the cafeteria at the high school.

The voters will be asked to approve 4 mills, one mill less than the five-mill package turned down in the first two votes.

It is expected that the official election date will be Sept. 27 and the official resolution will be adopted at a special meeting Friday.

The board authorized the election after it received a petition from Dave Loomis with 476 signatures asking for the third vote.

The board also passed a motion binding it to spending the four mills for the purposes outlined in the petition. That action was taken because the ballot will list only four mills for operation and not specify what the money will be used for.

The motion passed means that the money will be spent for these programs:

- 2½ mills for restoration of bus service.
- 1 mill for partial restoration of curriculum as follows: Intermediate counselor, school nurse, elementary art, high school librarian, elementary and intermediate librarian.
- One-half mill for all extracurricular activities, including all junior and senior high athletics, debate, marching band, vocal music, national honor society, junior and senior concert bands, junior and senior high music festivals, junior and senior high dramatics and forensics.

Again Monday the majority of the 150 persons present were looking for some way to get the buses running again.

The result was the same as it was the previous week. At best, the only busing available during the school year will be for a short period in the winter months and even that could be lost depending on what happens to the ever shrinking amount paid in state aid.

A suggestion of central pick-ups or switching children, for convenience, in the three elementary schools was suggested.

The board said that every effort will be made to do whatever can be done to accommodate residents.

Payless paydays possible

Employees in the Cass City School District could be facing a payless payday because the state is holding back an already overdue payment due the school.

That's the information that Supt. Donald Crouse gave the school board in a special meeting Monday at the high school cafeteria.

Currently, the school has a request in to borrow funds against anticipated state aid, but it is not known whether approval will be granted in time to meet payroll.

The state aid payment had been set back once to August 20 and the school was notified last week that because of the cash crunch in Lansing it was delayed again, this time indefinitely.

PRICE INCREASE

Students will be paying more for hot lunches this year. Prices were boosted 10 cents in all categories. Elementary and intermediate lunches will be 85 cents each. High school students will pay 90 cents and adults will be charged $1.30. Milk was increased from 20 cents to 25 cents a half pint.

The increase was authorized by a 6-1 vote. Voting against the increase was Mrs. Geraldine Priekorn.

I felt a nickel boost was enough and that the cafeteria should not be required to absorb indirect costs, Mrs. Priekorn said. The price boost is expected to take the hot lunch program out of the red.

"If It Fitz..."

No manicure

By Jim Fitzgerald

According to the newspaper, President Reagan's manicurist was fired for talking too much. Which reminds me that, no matter what the newspaper said, I've never had a manicure.

In the case of my fingernails, the newspaper was The Lapeer County Press. In a recent issue, Publisher Bob Myers wrote: "Jim Fitzgerald was in town last week, baring the untanned ears of a fresh haircut. He says he's licked inflation in the barber business. He used to get a $2 haircut from Paddy Carter every two weeks. Now he gets a $25 job every six months, and they throw in a manicure."

I understand why Myers felt constrained to publicize my tansorial habits. He wanted his readers to know that their former editor, since moving from a rural weekly to an urban daily, has changed, but not altogether. The cosmopolitan environment of the big city may have made me prey to the blandishments of sexy manicurists, but I still get my hair cut too late and too short, and I'm still a cheap-skate.

I also understand why Myers, in making a gossip item out of my barbering, got most of the facts wrong. Like many reporters, he was the victim of the distractions indigenous to the setting in which he interviewed his subject. We were leaning on a busy bar.

It is true that, many years ago, I paid Paddy Carter $2 per haircut every two weeks. But if Myers hadn't kept hollering for more drinks while I was talking, he would have heard that I now pay $10, not $25, every two months, not six, and I get a shoe shine, not a manicure, and it's not free, it's $2. Such sloppy reporting can be forgiven, however, just as long as the bartender hears the holler and the reporter owns the newspaper.

When Paddy Carter cut my hair, I always wanted a brush-cut but never ordered one because they cost 50 cents extra. Instead, I told Paddy to keep clipping until he reached the exact point where the price went up and then stop immediately or I would bite his arm. Whenever he balked at such a chintzy arrangement, I threatened to put his real name in the newspaper. I probably wasn't LaVerne's favorite customer, and that was many years before he quit barbering and went on TV with Shirley.

Paddy (he got the nickname when he was a pod-shaped child) didn't have a manicurist in his shop, which is why I mentioned to Publisher Myers that there is a manicurist available where I now get my hair cut, in the Men's Quarters Salon for Men in beautiful downtown Detroit. I wanted to impress him with how terribly sophisticated I've become since my rustic days when I lived in a town where the only salon was identified by a sign from which one "o" had fallen.

But not once during our tansorial conversation did I claim to have employed the services of the Men's Quarters' manicurist, and it was libel for Myers to write that I did.

It has always seemed to me that only two types of men refuse to maintain their own fingernails. One type is a fop who wears lace cuffs and has a handkerchief up his sleeve. The other is a gangster who wouldn't be shot dead in a barbershop without a manicurist's lap to pillow his bleeding head. Because I have never possessed sufficient ostentation to sit idly by while another person trifles with my cuticle, it is unfair to publicly identify me with either type.

I don't know if Ronald Reagan is a fop or a gangster. All I know is the newspaper said the president's manicurist was fired for publicly disclosing the name of the product she used to keep his fingernails so shiny. "There was no sense in the kind of attention she was drawing to the president," a White House source said.

Likewise, there is no sense to the kind of attention Publisher Myers has drawn to me. Because of his libelous reporting, strangers stop me on the street and ask to see their reflection in my fingernails. I would sue Myers, except I can't afford to have a lawyer hold my hand, either.

The Haire Net

There's a lyric to an old song that goes something like this:

"You've got to give a little, Take a little, Let your heart just break a little, That's the story of, That's the glory of Love"

All of which is a sneaky way to get you interested in one more column about Cass City schools and a proposed vote for millage.

After this one, I promise to shut up and not say anything more.

But I did have this to lay on you before I do.

In last week end's very unscientific straw vote, one thing is clear. There is no clear mandate for any of the options offered.

The margin was nearly two to one in the balloting to include extracurricular activities in the four-mill proposal to be placed before the electorate.

But there was a substantial vote for eliminating extracurricular activities and adding more to the curriculum.

There were three ballots where the two options were crossed out and 2½ mills for transportation only penciled in. There were a couple marked over in heavy ink, "no millage."

Now for everyone that is dead set against more millage despite the hardship it poses for the kids there is no problem.

If that's the majority, the efforts of Dave Loomis and followers are doomed regardless.

There's little doubt that there is a substantial group out there who are willing to pay for extracurricular activities, but not curriculum. Another that will pay for busing and not curriculum. Others that will pay more curriculum and let the kids walk to school.

All of you should get a record of the song quoted above and take it to heart.

You've got to show a little love for your neighbor and his problem. If you live 10 miles from school and need those buses, have a little sympathy for the guy that lives across the block and wants his kid to star in basketball or band or vocational agriculture.

A sure way to go on the way we are started is to say the vote "Should have been" ... should have been whatever it is that's closest to your heart. What really affects you and your family.

Realistically, you have to admit that getting any millage passed is a long shot today.

If there is to be any chance for the kids at all, each and everyone of you that is willing to pay for ANY kind of added service or program should forget about what you feel is the ideal.

Supporting any proposal that gives you most of what you want and most of what your neighbor wants, too, is the only one with any chance at all of passing.

False alarm

The fire siren in Cass City sounded twice Saturday morning, both false alarms.

The first time, the sheriff's department dispatcher meant to dispatch the Elmwood Township-Gagetown Fire Department to an accident on M-81, west of Cedar Run Road, but pushed the wrong button before pushing the right one. (See accident report, page 1.)

The second time, a fire was reported on Houghton Street, but none was found by firemen.

Pedaling Around Election thoughts

By Mike Eliasohn

This fall's election campaign for governor should be interesting, with Democrat James Blanchard and Republican Richard Headlee offering voters -- to use a cliché -- a choice, not an echo.

There won't be such a big contrast in the campaign for U.S. Senator. The Republican candidate, Phil Ruppe, isn't as liberal as incumbent Don Riegle, but I don't think he is a member of the Dick Headlee School of Conservatism.

However, after the results were in, Ruppe did attack Riegle for voting "for more and more spending, and then voted to cut the revenues needed to pay for that spending."

The cut in revenue Riegle voted for was President Reagan's massive tax cut of last year. Is Ruppe going to attack Riegle for voting for the Republican President's tax cut program?

The President is now pushing a $99 billion tax increase? Is Ruppe going to criticize Riegle if the senator votes for it?

Under President Reagan, the United States will spend more than $100 billion more during the 1982-83 fiscal year than it takes in. That makes it kind of hard to argue that only Democrats are guilty of big deficit spending.

One issue I hope won't be an issue in the campaign is abortion. Ruppe and Headlee both think it should be illegal; Riegle and Blanchard feel it should be legal.

Since their positions are clear, they should find other things to argue about, which I'm sure won't be a problem, especially between Blanchard and Headlee.

What I don't care for about Blanchard is my feeling he is a tool of the labor unions, it was their leaders who persuaded him to run and that if elected, he will be in their debt.

It was those same labor leaders who opposed worker's compensation reform, which the legislature wisely approved, which was necessary if Michigan is to become attractive in competition.

Jaycees

Cass City Jaycees hosted their wives or girl friends at their annual "wives night" Aug. 7.

The cookout was held at the home of member Dave Bartnik. Forty-seven persons attended.

ing with other states to attract business.

Other reforms, such as in unemployment compensation, are still needed. If Blanchard becomes governor, is he going to do what is needed or what the labor leaders want? -- some of whom are unfortunately short-sighted.

Blanchard won the Democratic nomination by not saying much, in order to not offend anyone. Now that it's him against Headlee, he is going to have to start spelling out what he will do if elected.

Of course, what candidates say they will do during the campaign and what they actually do after they are elected are often different -- and that is true of Republicans and Democrats.

A good example of that is Ronald Reagan, who argued we could cut taxes, have a balanced budget and create more jobs. So far, his program isn't working.

One of the president's biggest supporters in Michigan has been Richard Headlee, who organized a group called Citizens to Support the President, or something like that, and ran on a program for governor of lower taxes, less government and more jobs.

His main campaign theme was that Michigan needs to be run like a business, which may be nice in theory, but isn't always practical in reality.

In business, if a company has a store or a factory that isn't making money, they can close it.

Government isn't that simple. The governor can't close a university, a park or a mental health facility simply because it is too costly to operate. That is not to say that such facilities should never be closed, only that such decisions are more complicated because the public is involved. (I suppose conservatives would argue, why should such decisions be more complicated.)

Also in business, what the boss says, goes, and at Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance, Headlee is boss.

If he becomes governor, Headlee will also be the boss, but he will have a lot of back seat drivers in the form of legislators who have power over the state's purse-strings, and entrenched bureaucrats, some of whom don't always jump when the governor tells them to.

$1,700 taken from Deford area home

The theft of $1,700 in cash from a Deford home was reported to Caro state police Saturday.

Jean Curtis of 758 N. Kingston Road told troopers she had been away since Aug. 8 and when she returned, the money was missing from a bedroom dresser drawer.

It is believed a former occupant took the money and then went to another state. Investigation is continuing.

Neal D. Daniels of Mayville reported to sheriff's deputies Aug. 5 that his motorcycle was stolen from 1424 N. Kingston Road, Deford.

The 1975 red Honda with fairs and saddlebags was valued at $2,000.

It was taken the night of Aug. 4-5. Deputies said it appeared the cycle was rolled down the hill to the Deford Elementary School yard next door, then loaded onto a truck or trailer.

BATTERY THEFTS

Cass City police investigated a rash of battery thefts last week. Roland Nicholas of 6627 Seed Street reported Tuesday morning that the battery was stolen from his pickup while it was parked in his driveway overnight. One battery cable was broken. Loss was set at $50.

Paul Nicholas reported Tuesday his battery, worth $50, was taken from his car while parked at his home between 2 and 11:30 a.m. that day. The cables had been pried off.

Marie High of 6624 Huron Street told officers Tuesday that an attempt had been made to steal her battery. The hood of her car was up and the cables removed, but the battery was still there. The culprits left a pair of gloves behind.

Lawrence Guinther of 6367 Seventh Street told police Thursday morning that the battery and a toolbox with tools were stolen from his pickup while parked in his driveway since 9 p.m. Wednesday night.

The battery was worth $50; the toolbox and tools, $150.

Ziehm taking one-year look at foreign farms

Ron Ziehm is leaving for a year long trip to Germany and Australia, but it won't be a vacation.

Although the June graduate of Michigan State University will do some sight-seeing, the primary purpose of the trip is to work on farms in those two countries.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ziehm of 6221 Green Road, Gageton, will be a participant in the Future Farmers of America Work Experience Abroad program. He emphasizes the "work" in the name of the program, that the purpose isn't fun and travel.

Ziehm, 22, majored in dairy science at MSU. The family farming operation includes a dairy herd.

He leaves for Germany Aug. 25 after a two-day orientation for participants in the FFA program. All will tour Europe for a week for an introduction to that continent's agriculture before departing for the farms on which they will be living and working.

In West Germany, he will be working on a 92-acre farm which produces grains and sugar beets, has 36 dairy cows, 34 cows with calves and fattens 400 hogs annually.

He will be living with the family that owns the farm and in exchange for his labor, he will receive a stipend to help pay his expenses locally.

After three months on the German farm, Ziehm will travel through Europe for two weeks with the eight other program participants who are also going to Australia.

Ziehm won't know until November where he will go in Australia, but will work for six months on one or two farms and he expects they will be dairy farms.

After he finishes working on the farm or farms, he plans to tour Australia for a month and New Zealand for a week before arriving home in August of next year.

Ziehm hasn't decided yet what he will do when he returns.

He may return to the family farm, where he would be in charge of the dairy herd, or go into some agriculture-related occupation. He is interested in some type of supervisory position in the FFA exchange program. "I'm hoping this year will help me decide," he said.

One reason why Ziehm became interested in applying for the FFA program is that the Ziehm household has always been somewhat international. Exchange students from Sweden, Mexico and Brazil have lived with the family and in the 1960s, they hosted foreigners a week end at a time who were enrolled in "crash" English courses.

After graduating from Cass City High School in 1978, Ziehm visited Japan for a month.

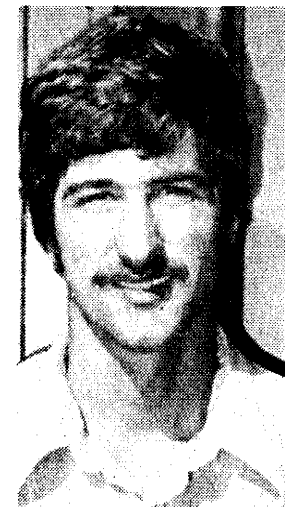

He studied Spanish for two years in college, but considering where he is going "it doesn't do me much good." Prior to his departure, he studied German with a neighbor, Hilda Koch.

He figures his year's travels will cost $4,600. The Cass City High School FFA chapter, of which he was a member, and the Pigeon Cooperative Elevator Co., as sponsors are paying a small part of the cost, but the rest is his.

"I'm not getting any money from my parents," he said. "This is all my own." He got his money from savings bonds since he was a child and selling his car.

Ziehm was an active FFA member in high school. He was chapter treasurer and vice-president, won the FFA state farmer award and a first place in oat production in the Wickes Big Acres contest and participated in the Michigan Sugar Co. FFA-4-H program in understanding the cost and receipts gained in farming.

Secretary Block pledges fight for foreign markets

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block quoted President Reagan that "the granary door is open" for exports when he spoke to several hundred persons Monday evening.

Block was the guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Pigeon Cooperative Elevator Co. and the Pigeon Cooperative Oil Co., held at the Colony House on M-53, Cass City.

His speech to the near capacity audience, which gave him a standing ovation, culminated a long day for the head of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

His first stop was in Traverse City to meet with cherry growers, upset at the federal government's veto of a 20 percent set-aside of this year's bumper red tart cherry crop.

He next participated in the 25th anniversary celebration of the Breckenridge-Wheeler Co-op Inc. elevator, described as the biggest country grain elevator east of the Mississippi.

Then it was on to the Colony House, where in his speech and a press conference beforehand, he emphasized the need for exports to revive the depressed farm economy.

The hog farmer and former head of the Illinois Department of Agriculture said the federal government's price support program will help farmers, but the only long range solution is to sell grain on the market.

The Reagan administration, unlike previous administrations, he said, is not going to establish embargoes for price or policy reason without the support of other countries. He quoted the president as saying the United States will remain a reliable supplier.

"INTERNATIONAL MARKETS are of vital importance to us," the 47-year-old Block said.

Once the Soviet Union accepts President Reagan's one-year extension of the present grain sales agreement, "if they do, it will give us the green light." He then mentioned the president's comment about the granary door being open.

Block said the administration is not only committed to increasing trade, but also to protecting it from unfair competition, that "if markets are not open, we must fight for them."

He mentioned subsidies paid by foreign countries to their farmers to help sell their crops to other countries.

ries as an example of unfair competition.

BLOCK, A WEST POINT graduate who served three years as an Army infantry officer, said low crop prices because of bumper crops should only be a temporary problem and that the long-term outlook for farmers is good.

Recessions always end, he noted, and good weather that has been creating the huge surpluses "won't always be so cooperative." He encouraged his farm audience to decrease output to help strengthen the market.

Adjustments in productivity because of the marketplace sometimes are painful, he commented.

The agriculture secretary urged support for President Reagan's almost $100 billion "tax package" now making its way through Congress as essential to get the federal deficit under control. If the deficit isn't reduced, "we face the likelihood of interest rates going back up."

He said the tax program won't affect farmers much "but if we don't get the deficit under control, it will affect everyone in this room."

BLOCK TOOK OVER operation of the family farm in Illinois in 1960 and since then it has expanded from 300 acres and 200 hogs produced annually to 3,000 acres and 6,000 hogs.

He was introduced to the audience by another hog farmer, Michigan Department of Agriculture Director Dean Fridgeon.

Although Block's long-range outlook was optimistic, he ended his remarks by wishing his audience a successful and safe harvest "and for all our sake, I hope the price goes up."

O-G and Ubly

2 area schools open next week

For youngsters in two area school districts, summer vacation ends next week.

It's back to the books Wednesday for Owendale-Gagetown students. Ubly students start school the following day.

Owens-Gage students will have a full day of classes the first day. School hours are the same as last year.

Bus routes will be about the same as last year.

Lunch prices, subject to change, are 55 cents for elementary students, 85 cents for grades 7-12 and $1.25 for adults.

The one new teacher this year, not yet hired as of the end of last week, will be for home economics at the high school. Preferred is one who can also teach a foreign language.

Students will have Friday through Monday, Sept. 3-6, off for Labor Day week end.

The opening day of deer hunting season, Nov. 15, will be a holiday.

The last day of school before Christmas vacation will be Dec. 17. School will resume Jan. 3.

Seniors will graduate May 19 next year, with the final day for other students being June 2.

UBLY

Students in the Ubly Community School District will report Thursday, Aug. 26, for a full day. The school day will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 3:05 p.m. A half-hour lunch period will be observed.

Housing of kindergarten classes will be determined at the Board of Education meeting Friday, Aug. 20, at 8:30 p.m.

If the special election for two additional mills passed this Wednesday, busing will be provided and the 12 bus routes will be the same as the last school year.

Lunch prices for elementary students will be 60 cents a meal. Secondary students will pay 65 cents and adults, $1.30.

The Thumb Area Transit System will again transport students to the Huron Learning Center in Bad Axe. If the mileage fails, busing will be provided for the special education students only.

All sports for the second year are being sponsored and financed by the Ubly Athletic Boosters Club and are not a part of the general fund budget. Most band expenditures are supported by the Ubly Band Boosters Club.

Upper classmen will be permitted to enroll in shared time vocational education classes at the Lakers, Bad Axe and Harbor Beach High Schools. A number of seniors will be involved in the cooperative program with various business places.

Parents are reminded immunization requirements must be completed by Oct. 1.

There will be two new teachers this year. Denise Keller, a 1976 Ubly graduate, will teach agriculture at the high school. The other, not yet hired as of early this week, will be an elementary resource room (special education) teacher.

Libraries seek 35¢ per capita

It was incorrectly reported in last week's Chronicle that Tuscola County librarians had asked the county Board of Commissioners for a subsidy of 20 cents per person from the county's federal revenue sharing funds.

Twenty cents is what the libraries received in 1981, the last time they received the subsidy.

What representatives of the 10 libraries serving county residents asked for Aug. 10 was 35 cents per capita. For Rawson Memorial Library, which serves 6,571 county residents, that would mean $2,300.

Kingston Public Library, 3,071 residents, would receive $1,075, and Columbia Township Library, 2,792 residents, $977.

Swimmers earn charity funds

The Helen Stevens Memorial Pool in the Cass City Recreation Park last Thursday and Friday was the site of the sixth annual 24-hour swim-a-thon to raise funds to fight muscular dystrophy.

Between $800 and $900 was raised. The total won't be known until after all pledges are collected in about a week.

Mike and Steve Bills, both 10, collected the most money, a total of $302, and were given season swim passes for 1983. Jeff Hockey, 8, raised the next highest amount, $60. Forty-one swimmers, ages 8-18, took part and swam a total of 107 miles. Their goal had been 75 miles. The event began at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Postpone solid waste hearing

An oversight has led to the rescheduling of a public hearing on the proposed Tuscola County solid waste management plan from this Wednesday (Aug. 18) to some time in December.

Caro Village Manager Donald Dugger, chairman of the 13-member committee responsible for preparing the state-mandated 20-year trash disposal plan, explained that two representatives of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), with whom he met last week, pointed out that the law said copies of the plan had to be "submitted" to local governmental units in Tuscola county and to the surrounding county governments.

Units were notified where copies were available for review, but none was mailed out, he said. "We didn't submit it. We said it was available."

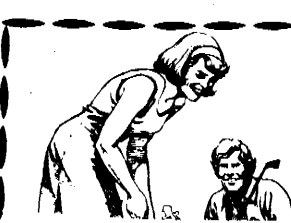

Now, however, more than 40 copies will have to be printed and mailed. Recipients must be given at least 90 days to review them, which means the hearing won't be held until December.

The planning committee will have to meet in the next few weeks to set the date.

It had contracted with the Human Development Commission to prepare the plan. When committee members last met in May, HDC planner Howard Hoskins still had to write the management portion of the plan and responses to some comments about the plan made by the DNR.

Hoskins didn't have all that done when he left for a new job in California. No replacement has been hired. Dugger and HDC Executive Director Mary Ann Vandemark met with the DNR representatives last week to go over what still needed to be done and that is when the problem about the plans not being submitted to the governmental units was discovered.

With American Musical Ambassadors

Julie Enderle plays flute in Europe

Julie Enderle, 18, always wanted to go to Switzerland. She got her chance when she was invited to be a member of the American Musical Ambassadors. Composed of student musicians mostly from Michigan, the band visited seven countries in western Europe during a three-week trip this summer.

Though not sure how she was selected to be a member of the group, she received a letter that asked if she would like to perform with the band. She thinks some of her previous accomplishments may have helped.

Along with being a member of the Owen-Gage High School band, she was in the state solo and ensemble, which is a competition for high school band members. She was also a member of the Lions Club all-state band which went to Montreal.

Once the May Owen-Gage graduate accepted the invitation to play with the Musical Ambassadors, she had to audition for her position in the band. She ended up as the ninth chair out of 16 flute players.

The band was composed of approximately 100 members, mostly from Michigan. The band director was Professor David Croton from Michigan State University and tour director was Professor Maxin Lefever of Purdue University.

WORK FOR THE BAND members began July 8 when they had to report to New York City for grueling 12-hour rehearsals. July 11, they embarked on their tour of Europe where they performed nine concerts. They visited France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, West Germany, the Netherlands, and England.

Her favorite place was Switzerland.

"I really liked the mountains of Switzerland," Miss Enderle said. "The scenery in general was also fantastic."

England was the most different from America, according to Miss Enderle. It took a while for her to get used to English drivers driving on the left side of the road.

Another obstacle she had to overcome was the communication gap.

For obvious reasons, England was the easiest to communicate in, while Paris was the hardest because not too many people spoke

English and the group ended up using sign language for most of their communication.

The band performed concerts in the parks in the cities they were staying in and Paris is where the band was appreciated the most, Miss Enderle felt.

"We were asked to do seven encores, and then when we finished playing, the people came up to us and asked us for our autographs."

While they toured Europe, they stayed in hotels. Only in the Netherlands did they stay with families.

The $2,000 cost of the trip, paid by each member, covered all expenses for members including hotels and transportation. They had to buy their own lunches and had to bring their own spending money.

SOME OF THE HIGHLIGHTS of her trip were the canals in Venice.

"There were no streets, so everyone had to get around the city on boats through the canals."

In Austria, the band toured the Olympic facilities in Innsbruck. Miss Enderle thought Austria was a very pretty country.

In the Netherlands, her host family took her on drives through the country where she had a chance to see some windmills and some farms.

Members of the band went sightseeing in London and viewed St. Paul's Cathedral and Buckingham Palace.

Changing money was difficult because the band was in many countries, each with different rates of exchange and different kinds of money.

One thing that did impress her during her stay in Europe was how clean the countries were.

THE EXPERIENCE OF being able to play with the band has helped her musically, she said. Miss Enderle will be attending Central Michigan University this fall and has already auditioned for the concert band. She is considering making music her minor. She may major in business.

If asked to join the Musical Ambassadors next year, Miss Enderle said she would.

"But I would let my brother go before me because I have already gone to Europe with the band."

On the return trip, band members are asked to recommend five people they think are good enough to play for the band next year. She wrote the name of her brother, Craig. Craig is 17 and will be a senior at Owen-Gage this fall.

Miss Enderle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Enderle of 6995 McAlpin Road, Gagetown.

MUSICAL AMBASSADOR-- Julie Enderle of Gagetown practices playing her flute. Her abilities earned her a position with a student band on a one-month trip to Europe.

5 O-G musicians perform on tour

Five other Owen-Gage High School musical performers were invited to travel with a band this summer also. They were selected to be part of the Lions Club all-state band which toured three southern states for two weeks.

Four students, Vicki Alexander, Terry Muntz, Linda Retford and Mark Furness, were recommended for open seats in the band by the band director, Clifford Westby, at Owen-Gage, upon request from the Lions Club. A fifth member, Jason Reinhardt, was chosen when not enough other trumpet players accepted invitations to play with the band.

The students left from St. John's June 26 and returned to Michigan July 5.

They spent four days at the Lions International Convention in Atlanta where they competed against other state Lions bands and local high school bands.

The Michigan band placed second overall and took first place for an all-state band. The bands that competed were also in the Lions parade. The band then spent two days in Knoxville, Tenn. It was scheduled to perform at the World's Fair, but the concert was cancelled due to rain. Instead, it played at the University of Tennessee in a concert on campus.

The final stop was in Louisville, Ky., where band members were presented with patches and attended a banquet. They spent the night on a riverboat with entertainment and a dance.

There were 152 members in the band, each having to pay $500 to cover all expenses.

Miss Alexander, who was fourth chair clarinet, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander. Sebe-waing; Muntz, eighth chair alto saxophone, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Muntz, 6164 Koepfgen Road, Cass City; Reinhardt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Reinhardt of W. McAlpin Road, Owendale; Furness, 17th chair trombone, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Furness, 4124 S. Elkton Road, Gagetown, and Miss Retford, fifth chair flute and piccolo, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Retford, 3802 Nottor Road, Owendale.

Taking stock

This column is for the younger people if they want to act directly or for the parents if they have the notion they might influence slightly the habits of their offspring.

It's the simple old story of compound interest, old as mankind itself, but now we resurrect it because it has new meaning.

Why? Just because interest rates are so bloomin' high, and look as if they'll stay at least pretty high for a while to come.

A generation or so ago, in the 1940s, banks paid interest on savings at one percent and 1½ percent. Even certificates of deposit which tied up your money, as they still do, paid only three percent.

Government bonds sold at 1½ percent — that's right, 1½ percent.

As late as 1958 there was a new issue that came out at 2.625 percent. Idiot's Delights, they called them. A lot of us idiots bought them.

In my home town of Lapeer, we sold tax-exempt school bonds for the Irwin School in 1947 at 1.625 percent. Today that issue would fetch at least 12 percent before it could be sold.

Giving up pleasures of the moment for the sake of savings didn't mean all that much in the '40s. Say you didn't put a radio in the new car you bought, saved $100 and put it in the bank.

In the best ethical tradition you sought future benefits instead of gratifying today's wants. At 1.5 percent in 20 years, the $100 would have amounted to $126.94. No big deal.

Do the same thing today when government bonds are yielding 14 percent. Put aside the $100 you save by leaving off some little gimmick on the new car.

In 20 years, in the year 2002, that $100 tucked away now will be $1,374.

The rate on a government bond at 14 percent is guaranteed because it is non-callable. The reinvestment, or compounding, is up to the gods, or politicians who also control our destiny quite effectively.

Say you can reinvest at only 10 percent average rate. You will have $672, 20 years hence.

What a bonanza for the early saver! At age 20, forego $100 in spending. Save it and let it compound. At age 40 see what it has grown into.

At age 40 you get high-minded again, and let the little next egg that started at $100 ride for another 20 years. Guess what you'll have at age 60 — and believe me that will come sooner than you wish.

$18,883 — that's what. And all because in those early days you passed up a $100 gadget.

Again, drop the average rate to 10 percent for the whole 40-year period and the $100 becomes $4,525. This ancient concept of compounding now takes on new meaning.

It's worth considering. In days of yore it didn't amount to much. You could be improvident and it didn't make that much difference whether you saved or not. Now it's a new ball game.

Council delays decision after special Rose Street traffic problem meeting

When is a rose not a rose was the question the Cass City Village Council wrestled with at a special meeting Tuesday morning. Council members pondered the Cass City School Board's request to have them make Rose Street one-way in order to alleviate congestion once school starts from parents dropping off their children. The street runs in front of Campbell Elementary School and Cass City Intermediate.

Trustees ultimately decided to consult further with school officials with the hope of coming up with a solution before the first day of classes Tuesday, Aug. 31.

What troubled council members was that making Rose one-way might create as many problems as it would solve. "It's going to be congestion no matter what happens," Elwyn Helwig commented.

Village President Lambert Althaver said police would no doubt have to be stationed on Rose Street the first few days of school but he did not want to have them there permanently. "I certainly would not want to set a precedent."

Along with there not being buses because of failure of the last two millage proposals, there also won't be crossing guards.

One concern expressed was of traffic southbound on the unpaved portion of Ale Street that runs between the high school and Rose Street. Drivers wanting to continue south will have to cut across traffic turning left onto Rose as there is a jog in the road there.

That problem could be eliminated by requiring traffic southbound on Ale to turn right onto Rose, but that would increase the number of cars on the latter street.

Police Chief Gene Wilson pointed out that even when the buses were running, Rose Street was crowded, especially on days when it was raining, which increased the number of parents bringing their children to school.

One idea council members liked was banning all parking on Rose Street, which would eliminate problems from cars backing in and out. Teachers and other school staff will apparently be parking in the area formerly used for school buses.

Talked about a lot was making Rose one-way westbound, as the school board wants, and the alley behind the two schools one-way eastbound. "I really think you should make Rose and that alley one-way, otherwise you'll have chaos," Councilman Jim Ware commented.

The alley is owned by the school district, not by the village, and Wilson pointed out that other than for buses picking up and dropping off children, it has been used as a playground.

Nothing officially was decided, but probably the council's street committee and/or Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie will discuss the possible solutions with the aim of having something decided in time to publicize it before the start of school.

If council action is needed, it will probably be done by phone.

PINE STREET

The other action of the council Tuesday was to schedule a public hearing at its Aug. 31 meeting concerning construction of curb and gutter on Pine Street between Seeger and Oak Streets.

Pinney State Bank has requested the curb and gutter, since cars using its new drive-in facility may be exiting or entering using Pine Street.

Althaver reported the bank has been given verbal okay by all residents on the street of their willingness to pay their share of the project.

Property owners will have to pay $.65 per foot of frontage for the curb and gutter and engineering, for a total of $3,200.

The village will have to pay the rest, an estimated $2,950 for grading, reconstruction of two catch basins and installation of two catch basin covers.

The present paving would be removed and the curb and gutter installed this year, with the aim of paving the street next year.

Althaver cautioned, however, that paving the street is subject to the 1983 budget, that is, how much money the village has next year.

Ware asked whether beginning the project will get the council in trouble with other property owners who want curb and gutter and new pavement on their street.

Althaver responded the only petitions for such work still outstanding are on streets where drainage problems make such work unfeasible for now.

Following the Aug. 31 public hearing, there will be a hearing at the council's September meeting regarding establishment of a special assessment district.

The Michigan Department of Transportation has informed the village that once Pine Street is completed, it will reclassify it and the one block of Oak between it and Main as major streets, which will mean more motor fuel and weight tax revenue for Cass City, the proportionate share of $3,500 per mile annually instead of $700-800 paid for local streets.

Antlerless deer protest futile

Keith Muxlow, R-Brown City, who wrote the board back that he would be willing to arrange a meeting of the commissioners with the DNR.

Monday, Dean was writing a letter thanking Muxlow for his offer, "but at this point, it (a meeting) looks to be unfruitful." He added that the possibility exists of legislation being introduced to stop the antlerless season.

Greene said a meeting had been scheduled with a DNR official and the Sanilac board, but had to be cancelled because of a schedule conflict by the official. A meeting was held with the Huron County Board of Commissioners.

The biologist said he would be willing to meet with the Sanilac board.

ALTHOUGH SANILAC commissioners in their resolution only requested a public hearing, the Moore Township Board recently approved one requesting the DNR to "not hold a special firearm doe hunting season within the boundaries of Moore Township . . . during 1982."

The letter to the state agency explained, "There are many reasons, including the fact that in 1981 there was one firearm hunting death in which an individual shot at sound instead of looking for antlers first. Doe hunting can possibly lead to more careless sound shooting."

"Furthermore, local farmers, whose crops a deer feeds upon, are most opposed to having an antlerless deer season. Should damage become intolerable, a permit can be secured by the farmer to shoot deer damaging crops."

Also opposing the antlerless season in the county is the Sanilac Sportsmen's Club.

Green commented he doesn't have enough manpower to investigate every potential request from farmers for special permits to shoot crop eating deer. Compared to use of landowner permits, issuing special permits "is not a very good solution."

Payless payday for teachers?

Representatives of Canteen, the concern that manages the hot lunch program, said that indirect costs, such as electricity, propane gas and other items were not charged in its accounting procedure.

That was one reason why the firm's books showed about $400 profit and the auditor's showed a $12,800 loss.

Other reasons for the difference were said to be inventory variances and $3,000 due from payment from government. Considering all of these it was established that a net loss of $6,800 was experienced.

Canteen produced meals that were generally conceded to be better than the ones furnished before it took over last year. More meals were served and the deficit was less than it was the previous year.

For this reason the board reaffirmed a previous action and Canteen will handle the program again in 1982-83.

BOILER TREATMENT

The boilers at the high school need repairing at an estimated cost of $8,737. Needing repair are the tubes that are leaking where they enter walls. They must be welded. Also needed is a new pump on each of the two boilers that will circulate the water in the tubes and keep it from lying in the tubes.

The board approved the repair but at the suggestion of Trustee Dick Albee asked that Crouse look around to see if there is a source to secure a competitive bid for the work.

School board seeks to punish children

Dear Editor,

The Cass City School Board seeks to punish the children of parents who won't go along with the millage that they want to run the schools.

What I would like to know is what happened to the agreement signed by the school board when they guaranteed transportation for these children when they wanted to do away with the one-room schools by consolidating the school system.

They have a responsibility to get these kids to school. The township could sue to make them keep their agreement.

Set 3rd school millage vote

The seriousness of the money crunch was outlined by Allan Lowry who said that he can't afford to arrange transportation for his two children in school, and would be in violation of the law if he didn't.

He said that he had contacted the American Civil Liberties Union and they are considering taking his case to court.

The question of whether it is legal not to furnish bus transportation surfaced again and the answer given by Supt. Don Crouse is that test cases in Cadillac and an appeal in Alpena indicate schools do not have to provide busing.

In preparation for the coming crunch of traffic at the school, several steps have been suggested. One is that Rose Street be turned into a one-way to the west and the road that runs just north of the Willis Campbell Elementary and Intermediate schools will be one-way to the east.

Another is a change in opening hour of schools. Previously the high school opened later than the other schools in Cass City. Now the two schools will be moved closer together in starting times to eliminate waiting by parents with students in both schools.

Almost too good to drive

400 plus horsepower make super car

Scott and Sheree Hendrick of Owendale have a car they like so much they rarely drive it.

But when they do, it's like a rocket ship on wheels, and makes up for the time they don't drive it.

Their prized possession is a much modified 1978 Pontiac Trans Am with at least 400 horses under the hood.

The car was featured in Thunder Am, a national magazine billed as "The Voice of the Pontiac Enthusiast," which devoted four pages of the June issue to a photo story about it.

Hendrick bought the car new in June, 1978, when he was still single, and since then it has only been driven about 16,000 miles.

The car only served as his regular transportation for the first two summers he had it. After the first summer, when he went to buy snow tires for it, he decided it was cheaper just to buy a junk car to go to work and keep the Trans Am in the garage.

The car cost him $7,000 new and he has sunk about $5,000 in improvements in it. Total that up and it comes to about what a new Trans Am would cost today, which is one reason why he is sticking with his 1978 model car.

WHAT MAKES THE CAR so special?

The outside is basically stock, because its owners prefer it that way. The basic changes are louvers over the rear window and removable smoked plexiglass covers over the grill openings.

Inside the car, the most noticeable addition is the chrome plated roll bar, more for looks than for rollover crash protection.

The suspension set-up and wide tires are intended to make the car handle, not to make it go better in a straight line on a drag strip, although Hendrick would like to some day test its performance in a quarter mile.

One of the thrills in driving it, he said, is in going around corners, because of the combination of high horsepower and good handling. Another is in accelerating onto freeways from the on-ramps.

WHERE MOST OF THE money went is under the hood. About the only thing left from the original engine is the block, which was modified. Everything else has been changed to add horsepower, while remaining reliable.

"I wanted something that was bulletproof, rather than high horsepower, but it still has 400-425 horsepower," Hendrick explained.

Preparation and assembly of the short block (basically the engine block, crankshaft, connection rods and pistons) was done by a Detroit area firm specializing in such work.

Preparation of the heads, designed originally for a 455 cubic inch engine (Hendrick's has 400 cubes) was done by another firm.

Other than the short block, Hendrick put everything together and made it work right.

A machinist at Walbro, he made many parts himself, including the exhaust system.

WHAT REALLY MAKES the car move is the turbo-charger that Hendrick installed, which pumps more air into the carburetor. The resulting increase in fuel and air going into the cylinders produces more horsepower.

One item he made, and it took him eight months to do it, was the fancy cover over the carburetor, into which the turbocharger pumps the air, which is then sucked in by the carburetor.

Asked her opinion of all the time and energy put into the car, Mrs. Hendrick responded, "I was the one who suggested the turbo."

The car is a joint project and both of them drive it. That's why the personalized license plate reads, "TA 42" (Trans Am for two).

THE RESULT OF ALL that horsepower is that the vehicle will move. Its theoretical top speed with the engine turning 6,000 revolutions per minute is 132 miles per hour.

Hendrick hasn't had it going that fast, but confesses when on a vacant road, he likes to make sure of its power. He hasn't clocked it, but even up to the legal speed limit, it will get there in a hurry.

For the curious, on a trip in June to the street machine nationals in Springfield, Ill., for modified cars no older than 1949, the car averaged 14.8 miles per gallon. Before the turbocharger was added, which makes the engine run more efficiently, it was averaging 11 mpg.

Before the summer is over, the Hendricks will have driven the car to two more such shows, both in Michigan.

They like to go to such shows to show the car off. Hendrick said he likes them because the work he has done on the car is more appreciated there than when he merely drives it around town.

For that reason, the couple will sometimes take the car for a pleasure ride, but not often.

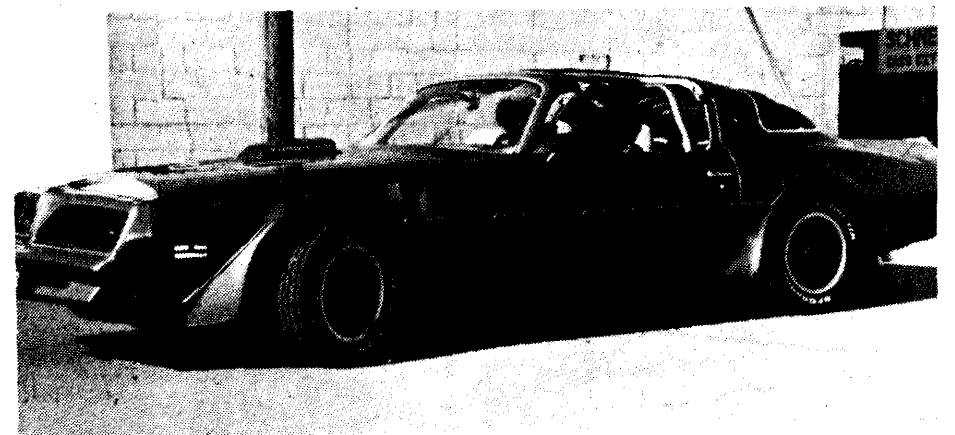

Hendrick isn't done yet with his dream machine. He next wants to install a nitrous oxide injection system, which will provide even more power by injecting more fuel into the engine.

To some, it may seem ridiculous to put so much time and money into a car that is rarely driven, but Hendrick doesn't see it that way.

"It's more or less a form of recreation rather than a form of transportation," he explained.

SUPER RIDER -- Scott and Sheree Hendrick in their super 1978 Trans Am. Other than the headlight covers and louvers over the back window, the exterior is stock.

UNDER THE HOOD -- Scott and Sheree Hendrick examine the engine of their car, which puts out more than 400 horsepower. The metal box over the carburetor, into which the exhaust driven turbocharger pumps air, took Hendrick eight months to make.

Recount sought in Sanilac election

Donald Decker will seek a recount of his one-vote loss to Eugene Foote for the Republican nomination for commissioner from District 5 of the Sanilac County Board of Commissioners. The county Board of Canvassers, which met Friday, certified the originally reported vote from the Aug. 10 primary as the official count, 445 votes for Foote and 444 for Decker.

Decker said Friday after the canvassers had completed their work that he will ask for a recount. He has until Thursday to do so.

District 5 consists of Greenleaf, Evergreen, Lamotte, Argyle, Austin, Minden, Delaware and Marion Townships, plus part of Forrester Township. There are 14 precincts and it will cost Decker $10 per precinct for each one he wants recounted. If the recount uncovers errors that result in his winning the nomination, he gets his money back.

Decker, a Marion Township farmer, and Foote, an Argyle Township farmer, are both presently members of the county board. They were forced to run against each other when redistricting put them in the same district. The winner faces Democrat Charles Izydorek in November.

Their race was not the closest for the Sanilac board, however.

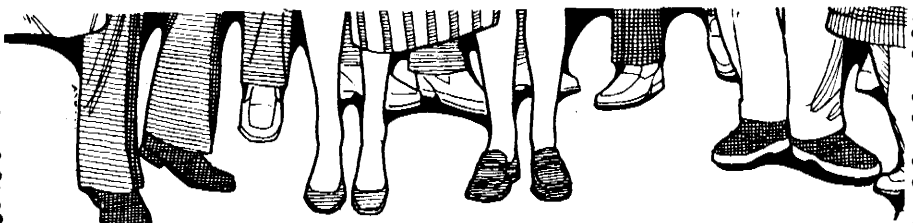

In District 2, roughly the south central part of the county, incumbent Robert Warren originally received one more vote than did Wilfred Dean, 287-286. The Board of Canvassers' tally gave Dean one more vote, so they are now tied at 287 each.

In addition, the canvassers found that the bridge millage — three-quarters of a mill increase in property taxes for five years — was only defeated by 15 votes, 3,477-3,462.

It was originally reported to have lost by 113 votes, 3,445-3,332.

The reason for the big discrepancy, County Clerk Delene Schultheiss explained, is that when the results from one precinct were called in, the total from one voting machine inadvertently wasn't included, and in another precinct, the yes and no votes when originally reported were reversed.

It will take 2-3 weeks before the state releases the ballots — the hold is in case there are any statewide recounts — and then any recounts in the county must be conducted within 14 days.

250 county residents in large group cancer study

A total of 250 Tuscola County residents will be among 40,000 Michigan residents who will serve as subjects this September in the American Cancer Society's second major nationwide study.

This new research program, Cancer Prevention Study II, will try to identify factors in people's lifestyle and environment that contribute to cancer or offer clues to the prevention of cancer.

Sheryl Cleland of Vassar, CPS II unit chairperson for Tuscola County, is organizing and directing the recruitment of area volunteers.

"Nineteen volunteer researchers were trained in July," she explained. These researchers will enroll their family and friends to participate in the study.

Beginning Sept. 1, these enrollees will be asked to complete a health and lifestyle questionnaire. Then once every other year for the next six years, the volunteer researchers will report to the American Cancer Society on their status and whereabouts.

Evelyn MacRae, telephone 872-3365, is the group chairperson in the Cass City area. Persons needing more information about CPS II may contact her.

According to Donna Stover, RN, director of the Borgess Medical Center cancer program in Kalamazoo and volunteer coordinator of the Michigan CPS II, "The First Cancer Prevention Study, conducted from 1959-72, was instrumental in informing the American public about the dangers of smoking. The study identified many factors related to the development of cancer and other diseases."

Since the first study was conducted, changes have taken place in lifestyles, food and products that are used. Ms. Stover said CPS II, through the collection of data for at least six years, will evaluate how such changes have affected health risks.

The 19 CPS II volunteer researchers in Tuscola County will contact men and women from all racial, ethnic, and economic backgrounds. Family groups containing at least one member over 45 years of age will be recruited.

"With the information gained from the study, the American Cancer Society intends to develop new comprehensive programs on cancer prevention," said Stover.

Cystic fibrosis robs its victims of breath

Cystic fibrosis is a disruptive inherited disease.

Affecting one of every 2,000 individuals, it robs its victims of breath and engages them in an exhausting battle for their lives — a battle eventually won by the disease.

Although no cure exists, the Michigan State Medical Society notes that substantial treatment advances in the past three decades are presently allowing CF patients to live longer, more normal lives.

The basic defect causing cystic fibrosis is not known. The disease manifests itself as a generalized disorder of the exocrine glands and is characterized by the excessive secretion of thick mucus.

Normal respiratory, digestive, and male reproductive functioning becomes impossible as mucus clogs the ducts and passages of the organs in these systems.

The degree of respiratory impairment is the most significant factor affecting the ultimate prognosis of a patient and thus major therapeutic efforts are directed toward control of pulmonary infection.

Mucus blockages in the airways of the lungs cause severe shortages of breath and chronic coughing. CF victims are also frequently plagued by episodes of bronchitis (inflammation of the mucus membranes of the bronchial tubes) and are particularly susceptible to pneumonia.

These problems may be somewhat alleviated or prevented through the use of antibiotics, aerosol medications, nocturnal mist tent, and routine chest physiotherapy (treatment by massage, exercises, heat, etc.).

Blockage of the ducts of the pancreas results in an inability to adequately digest and absorb food in more than 85 percent of all CF patients.

Though they have voracious appetites, these individuals are unable to gain weight easily as proteins, fats, and certain vitamins are malabsorbed. This defect may, however, be partially corrected through the administration of pancreatic enzymes produced in pigs or cows.

Infertility is common in male CF patients, again because of mucus duct blockages. At present, little can be done to prevent or rectify such fertility loss.

And while it is not possible to determine whether a person is a CF carrier, physicians and scientists do understand the genetic make-up which can lead to CF.

A person with one CF gene (a carrier) will be normal, as will his or her children unless the other parent is also a carrier. When both have a CF gene, the chances are one in four that any child will be affected, and two in four that any child will be a carrier.

Thirty years ago members of the medical community took it for granted that cystic fibrosis victims would die in early childhood. Today more than half the patients survive to reach 21 years, and many are adults pursuing active, productive lives.

But, the Michigan State Medical Society concludes, continued aggressive research is essential to effect further advances in the fight against CF, the most common inherited lethal disease.

Help sessions slated

Catholic Family Service of the Thumb will be conducting a therapy-support group to help persons who are separated or divorcing to cope constructively with the emotions and realities of a broken marriage.

SPLIT (Separated Persons Learning in Therapy) Group is a six-part program that will meet every other week.

Group sessions will be held in two locations. In Sandusky at the CFS branch office at Eastland Plaza, 119 E. Sanilac, Suite 6, sessions will begin Monday, Sept. 13. In Bad Axe at the CFS main office, 592 N. Port Crescent, the initial meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 7. The 1½-2-hour sessions will begin at 7 p.m. in both locations.

Pamela Jo Kahler, MSW, who will be the group leader, specializes in family, marriage and divorce counseling.

Soybean, corn record projected

Generally adequate soil moisture coupled with warm temperatures has helped push corn and soybean prospects to record levels, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service.

Farmers are expecting to produce a record corn crop of 294 million bushels, up 7 percent from last year's record crop. A new record yield of 105 bushels per acre is the driving force behind the increase. This year's expected yield exceeds last years by 9 bushels per acre.

Soybean production is projected at over 34 million bushels, 18 percent above 1981 and 13 percent above the record set in 1980. The production increase is spurred by projected record acres for harvest and record yields. A yield of 33 bushels per acre is expected, 2 bushels above last fall and 1 bushel above the record two years ago.

Winter wheat output at 25.6 million bushels displays a 38 percent decrease from last year's crop. Yield expectations of 40 bushels per acre are down 10 bushels from last season.

Sugarbeets are expected to total slightly over 1.9 million tons, down 5 percent from 1981. Currently 20 tons per acre is expected from 96,000 acres. Production of alfalfa hay at over 3.3 million tons is up 1 percent from last summer. All other hay production is expected to be 660,000 tons, up 11 percent.

Nationally, corn for grain production is forecast at a record high 3.32 billion bushels, 1 percent more than the previous record set in 1981. Soybean production is forecast at a record 2.29 billion bushels, 13 percent larger than the 1981 crop.

FIVE YEARS AGO

When fire broke out Friday morning in the home of Francis and Mary Withey on Cemetery Road, it meant that everyone in Mary's Beauty Salon, located in the rear of the building, had to leave. So while Elkland Township firemen put out the fire, which was in the kitchen, Barb Geister continued work outside on Doris Fritz' hair. They later were able to go back inside.

Ondrajka participates in rescue

Navy machinist's Mate 2nd Class Frederick J. Ondrajka, son of Mabel Ondrajka of 5240 Risky Road, Gagetown, recently participated in the rescue of the crew of a sinking Yugoslavian freighter.

He is a crewmember aboard the destroyer USS Forest Sherman, homeported in Charleston, S.C.

While crossing the Mediterranean Sea, the Forest Sherman responded to a distress call from the freighter "Kristo Marinovic," on fire off the island of Crete. The destroyer's crewmen rescued 14 men and one woman from a lifeboat after they had abandoned ship.

A helicopter from another U.S. ship, the frigate USS Jesse L. Brown, rescued the only remaining crewman, the captain of the "Kristo Marinovic." He was lifted from the ship's bow as flames engulfed the after-portion of the vessel. Soon after, the freighter exploded and sank.

The survivors were later transferred to another U.S. ship and were delivered to the Yugoslavian Counsel at Alexandria, Egypt.

The Forest Sherman is 418 feet long and normally carries a crew of 292 men. It is armed with guns, missiles and anti-submarine torpedoes.

New books at the library

A WOMAN IN RESIDENCE, by Michelle Harrison, M.D. (non-fiction). In a riveting and vividly written journal, Michelle Harrison, a practicing physician and single parent, presents a shocking expose of the dehumanization of women's health care. Leaving her private practice for residency in a well-known teaching hospital, Dr. Harrison was introduced to a system that demanded an exhausting schedule, personal commitment to the hospital and its staff, rather than to the individual patients, and an over-dependence on unnecessary drugs and operations.

WORLDLY GOODS, by Michael Korda (fiction). A sophisticated first novel from the best-selling author of "Power" and "Charmed Lives" interweaves glamour, suspense, passion, and intrigue in the story of a great Central European banking family and an obsessive struggle for power and wealth. Spanning more than 40 years, the novel moves from New York boardrooms of the 1980s to pre-World War II Hungary and the Nazi death camps, as investigative reporter Irving Kane probes the mysterious past of Paul Foster and Niki Greenwood, longtime business rivals desperately attempting to buy a small New York publishing firm. A stunning saga of a family, a fortune, and a crime, with an unexpected climax.

GERRY SPENCE, GUNNING FOR JUSTICE, by G. L. Spence (non-fiction). The defense attorney who won the $10.5-million settlement in the Karen Silkwood case and a record libel judgment against "Penthouse" magazine recalls his famous trials and discusses his views of the American justice system.

Blight free bean seed

By Don Kebler

Obtaining blight free navy bean seed could be a real problem in 1983.

I'm seeing a big number of bean fields with common blight on the plants right now. With this potential hazard, I suggest that dry bean growers very seriously consider doing the following:

Go into your fields periodically from now until harvest and watch closely for the presence of bacterial blight.

If you don't find diseased plants or the disease is on the leaves but not on the pods, you can have the field inspected the same as certified seed fields are inspected. Contact the Michigan Crop Improvement Association at East Lansing. A charge is made for the service.

If the field is clean or non-infected areas are flogged-out, you have a potential source of common blight free seed. You should go this next step to greater insure your beans are blight free and that is to send a representative sample to the MCIA for a blight test. If it comes back clean, a final step is to have the seed treated with streptomycin.

After following these procedures, not including seed treatment, the MCIA will provide you with tags showing their field inspection and blight free seed test verification. They cannot verify the variety or variety purity.

I have seen more bean virus mosaic this year on both navy and colored beans than in 1979 when we got that outstate mosaic infected black bean seed.

Field inspection is the only handle we have on this seed-borne disease. There is no internal disease control of mosaic any more than for common blight, halo blight, or anthracnose.

I think this could be the most critical year for having a most serious shortage of disease-free seed to use in 1983. You owe yourself this protection.

With corn at the two dollar mark, this means about 31 bushels shelled equals one ton. So $2 per bushel corn is worth about $62 per ton.

There is certainly fuel energy in shelled corn whether it is used to make ethyl alcohol or burned like wood chips. At $3 a bushel or $93 per ton, corn could be cheaper than coal to run electric generators.

Wood chips are being used to fire steam boilers to run generators. Why not burn shelled corn if it is not profitable to sell it as animal feed or make alcohol?

At this writing, I do not know what the sulfur content is or the BTU of energy a ton of corn contains. I can only assume the unit quantity of sulfur can be less than found in an equivalent unit of some of our coal and even liquid fossil fuels now being used.

Your Neighbor says Let's vote again on school millage

With two Cass City school millage proposals having been defeated this year, should another one be placed on the ballot?

"Yes, definitely," said Gwen Sowden.

Of the two suggested millage proposals listed in last week's Chronicle, she favored the first one "because that's all part of school for these kids." The proposal would consist of 2 1/2 mills for restoration of bus service, 1 mill for partial restoration of curriculum and a half-mill for extracurricular activities.

"...I want all my children to have all the advantages I did," said Mrs. Sowden, who feels that sports and other activities are as much a part of school as academics and are necessary to help keep children interested in school.

Lack of busing will be a hardship for Mrs. Sowden and her family, who live on a dairy farm on Gifford Road, Deford, seven miles from Cass City. She and her husband, Donald, have three children, Rob, 12, Michael, 10, and Heather, 18 months.

If she has to drive her two oldest children to school, Mrs. Sowden explained, and Michael isn't supposed to be at Deford Elementary until 8:15 a.m., there is no way she could get Rob to Cass City Intermediate before the tardy bell rings.

She has talked to neighbors about sharing driving chores, but "We definitely haven't decided anything yet."

What farmers complain about, she continued, is that they pay more in taxes, but when money runs short, the first thing taken away is transportation.

Even with transportation, they are at a disadvantage, for instance, if their children participate in sports, which means a trip into town after practice to pick them up.

Some persons voted against the two prior millage issues she feels, because they believed money would still be found for transportation without the millage and because of the economy, some "people don't have all the money to pay those high taxes."

Mrs. Sowden feels with voters now realizing that without more millage, there won't be busing, a majority might now vote for it. "I'm hoping that they will."

Editor's note: The above was written prior to Monday's school board meeting.

Dry bean acreage declines

Planted acreage of Michigan dry beans totals 560,000 acres for 1982, down percent from a year ago, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service.

The estimate is based on a survey of about 2,000 growers conducted in mid-July after planting was completed. Acreage expected for harvest this fall should total 540,000 acres, a decline of percent from a year ago.

Acreage planted to Navy beans is estimated at 460,000 acres, compared to 420,000 acres in 1981.

Planted acreage for all other classes (colored) of dry beans is pegged at 100,000 acres, compared to 230,000 acres last year. Colored bean acreage, particularly black turtle and pinto varieties, dropped sharply from last year as export contracts with Mexico were not renewed for 1982.

Development of the dry bean crop is about two weeks behind normal as a result of adverse weather during the normal mid-June planting time.

Yields for all classes of dry beans are expected to average 1,300 pounds per acre, based on conditions as of Aug. 1. If realized, this will be a gain of 80 pounds from last year's weather reduced yields. Total production is expected to be slightly over 7 million hundredweight (cwt.) a drop of 2 percent from a year ago.

The national dry bean crop is forecast at 26.4 million cwt., 17 percent less than last year.
