

BUSING MEETING — Vic Beddow (standing) and his wife Shirley hosted the meeting Sunday for about 80 disgruntled residents of the Cass City School District who discussed busing and millage. The meeting was held in the Beddows' workshop building.

Some may keep children home

Show us schools need the money, group asks

About 80 citizens who met Sunday afternoon are waiting to be convinced that Cass City schools need additional money.

If they are convinced, they will only support an additional 2.5 mills for busing, not the 4-mill proposal that will be voted on Sept. 27 that also includes money for partial restoration of curriculum and extra-curricular activities.

Until they are convinced, some may keep their children home from school.

What was advertised as a meeting for all persons concerned with busing was held at the home of Vic and Shirley Beddow on Elmwood Road, west of Cass City. What was finally decided at the meeting was changed the following morning.

Much concern was expressed at the hour and 40 minute session about how the school spends its money and where it goes. A desire was expressed to go over school financial records and Beddow said a certified public accountant has expressed willingness to do so for the group.

As required by state law, a CPA firm must audit the school district's books each year, but whatever the results are won't be satisfactory to everyone. "You get two people with the books and they can make those books look real pretty."

Another man countered, "I got a suspicion you're going to look at the books and find nothing wrong. It's what the money is being spent on" (that is the issue).

(Supt. Donald Crouse told the Chronicle Monday the auditors will probably present their report for the fiscal year that ended June 30 at the Sept. 13 school board meeting.)

WHAT WAS FINALLY decided was that a volunteer delegation of eight would call on Dr. Edward Scollon, the school board president, and ask for an opportunity for an outside auditor to go over the books to determine if the millage is needed and whether the money the school district spends is being spent properly.

Monday morning, Mrs. Beddow called the Michigan Association of School Boards in Lansing and was told having an outside auditor examine the school's books

Ubly may try again for busing millage

Ubly School District residents may vote again for a millage increase to support busing of students.

School begins this Thursday with students having to find other means to get to school because of the defeat Wednesday, Aug. 18, of a two-mill increase for two years, specifically earmarked for transportation.

The levy, which would have raised about $140,000 the first year, was defeated 703-596, a margin of 107 votes.

The 1,299 persons who voted were about 48 percent of those eligible. That was the second highest turnout in the history of the district, Supt. David Landeryou said.

About 80 percent of the district's students normally ride buses. The farthest any of them live from Ubly, where all the schools are located, is 17 miles.

Why was the millage hike defeated? "I suppose all the ones (reasons) you heard before," Landeryou responded, "including crop prices too low and taxes too high and some disenchantment with the school, all the usual things."

The school board met the evening after the millage vote and more than 100 persons attended.

There was a lot of discussion about what will happen without busing, problems in parents driving their children to school, etc., Landeryou said, and there was also some talk about having another vote.

Most persons present, he continued, supported the idea, arguing that with the relative closeness of the

Getting to school won't be easy job

BY MIKE ELIASOHN

It will take three generations to get Shannon Turner through kindergarten at Campbell Elementary School because the school buses won't be running this year -- or at least until the buses start running should the Sept. 27 millage proposal be approved by voters.

Her family lives at Phillips and Severance Roads, six miles from Cass City. Shannon's mother, Karen, will take her to school each morning, then wait two hours until she starts her job at the intermediate school cafeteria.

Since Mrs. Turner will be working when her daughter finishes school, her mother, Phyllis King, will pick up Shannon during her lunch hour at Walbro.

Since no one will be at the Turner home then, Mrs. King will take Shannon to the home of her mother (Shannon's great-grandmother), Beatrice Little, a mile away from the Turner home. When Mrs. Turner finishes work, she will pick up her daughter at Mrs. Little's house.

That may be complicated, but Mrs. Turner received permission to have her daughter attend Campbell as she figures there would have been more difficulties had her daughter attended Deford Elementary, which she would have attended under normal circumstances.

That may be the only three generations needed to keep a fourth generation in school, but getting children living out in the country to school will cause all kinds of problems and hardships for them and their parents.

Some won't have as big a hardship as others. Lori Sawdon, a senior, will drive herself and sister Deborah, a ninth grader, to school. She may also take a cousin to school.

Since Lori will be in the co-op program this year, her mother, Mrs. Clayton Sawdon explained, she would have had to drive to school anyway so she could get to her job. Her job will end in time to pick up Deborah each day.

The Sawdon family lives on Gilford Road in Kingston Township, seven miles from Cass City.

Merilee Leslie of Leslie Road, Decker, is also a senior who will be on co-op and will be driving to school, taking with her her brother Al, a sophomore, and sister, Ann, an eighth grader.

There is one problem. After school and co-op, Merilee has cross country practice and Al has football practice, so Ann will have to wait until they are done.

"What else are you going to do?" said their mother, Audrey.

David Purvis, 17, has his own car and will be driving himself, brother Matthew, a neighbor boy and girl, and possibly pick up two more youngsters along the way. It's 14 miles from the Purvis home on Froede Road in Wells Township to Cass City.

His mother, Shirley, has some concern. "I hate to see them on the road in bad weather, being responsible for that many kids in the car."

Catherine Kappen has nine children in school, of which the oldest will be driving everyone to school. Mrs. Kappen will have to pick up her kindergartener at noon and come winter and spring, when some of her youngsters are involved in sports, will probably have to make a second trip each day to pick up those not in sports. The family lives on Bay City-Forestville Road, 6 1/4 miles from Cass City.

Car avoids train, but five injured

Five persons were injured Monday when the car they were riding in almost hit a train but instead slid into a ditch.

All were released from Hills and Dales General Hospital, Tuesday. Injured were Diane C. Smith, 30, of 5820 Severance Road, Deford, and her passengers, Leonard, Robin, Billie Joe and Anna Hawley, all of 4417 Germania Road, Snover. Leonard and Billie Joe are 6 years old, Robin is 8 and Anna is 3.

Sheriff's deputies reported Ms. Smith was eastbound on Shabbona Road when she saw the train approaching from the south. She panicked, hit the brakes and lost control. Her car crossed the tracks and ran off the north side of the road into the ditch.

The engineer, Edward York of Rochester, told

Movie makers film 'Going Back'

It's show biz right here in Cass City

If show business is glamorous, what are those two actors doing lying on their sides in a space two feet high, knowing they are going to have some glop poured on their heads?

Whatever the reason, shooting of the scene is about to begin when the sound of several cars can be heard passing by.

The director is upset. "J--- C---. What do we got, a g---d--- freeway out here. Everyone wants to rev their engines. All afternoon, it's been quiet out here."

The cars pass by and then the only sound to be heard is the barking of a dog, which apparently isn't loud enough to be picked up by the sensitive microphone.

It's finally time for the shooting to begin. Just like in Hollywood, the woman holds the clap board in front of the camera. "Scene 9, Take 1, Sound 1," she says, then slaps the two pieces of wood together. The camera and sound recorder roll.

It wasn't Hollywood, but the Kelly Road area southeast of Cass City became the setting last week for the shooting of an honest-to-goodness movie.

But don't start asking Cass Theatre owner Dick Hendrick when he will be showing, "Going Back." The film probably won't be shown in movie theatres and may not be shown publicly at all.

"Going Back" is the work of Ronald Teachworth, who wrote the script, directed it and is financing it.

The reason it was filmed along Kelly Road is because that is where his parents, LaVerne and Helen Teachworth, live and a rural setting was needed.

Their son, 35, teaches a class in film making and another in painting at Eisenhower High School in Utica and spends the rest of his time as an administrator for the arts and government grants.

"GOING BACK" IS THE story of two boys from the big city, who having graduated from high school, decide to do some sightseeing before they begin college.

An old farmer picks them up while they are hitchhiking and befriends them. The boys spend the summer on his farm. One has a summertime romance with a local girl while the other becomes especially close to the old man.

The boys go to college and when they near graduation, decide to go back. When they do, they find the girl has gotten married and the old man is ill and his farm overgrown with weeds.

"The lesson they learn," Teachworth explained, "is you really can't go back."

The film is set in the 1960s because that is when its writer and director was experiencing much of what the boys go through. He admits it is somewhat autobiographical.

"All characters are part of me, except the girl, I suppose," he said.

THERE ARE ONLY four actors in "Going Back." The old man is played by bearded Perry Mallette, who makes his living as a social worker and therapist at a clinic, but has been acting in the Detroit area for about 30 years.

The two boys are played by Bruce Campbell and

Cass City, Kingston start Tuesday

Summer is over as school begins again

It's back to school Tuesday for students in the Cass City and Kingston School Districts.

Classes at the Tuscola Area Skill Center will begin the next day.

There are two parochial schools in the area. Students start Monday at the Deford Christian Academy; Sept. 7 at the Thumb Christian Academy.

Cass City schools open with a full day of classes. Because there will not be any busing (except for students going to and from the Skill Center), there will be some changes.

Hours for grades K-8 remain the same as past years, 8:25 a.m. - 3:05 p.m. So that parents won't have to wait a long time if they have children in those grades and also have to pick up children at the high school, hours there have been changed to 8:20 - 3:10. They had been 8:35 - 3:25.

The hours may be changed back if the millage is approved Sept. 27, which would restore busing.

All six students in grades 6-8 from the Deford and Evergreen areas will be going to school in Cass City. Last year, Evergreen still had a sixth grade class.

Class lists will be posted this Thursday at 3 p.m.

Buildings will be supervised from 8 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. Supt. Donald Crouse explained janitors open the buildings earlier than that, sometimes at 7 a.m., and some are working there until late at night.

What that means is that parents who have to drop off children way before school starts or pick them up long after school is over will be able to do so with assurance their children won't have to be walking the streets.

What can't be worked out until school starts and the problems become apparent, the superintendent said, is what arrangements might have to be made for students coming or leaving late.

As of now, Rose Street in front of the intermediate school and Campbell Elementary School will remain two-way while village officials study whether it should be made one way westbound.

The alley north of those two schools will be one-way eastbound. To lessen confusion, students whose last names begin with A-M should arrange to be picked up along Rose Street as they are to exit the buildings on that side. Students whose last names begin with N-Z will exit on the north side, so should be picked up in the alley.

Along with busing, school crossing guards have been eliminated because of lack of funds. Mrs. Terry Groombridge has volunteered to coordinate volunteer crossing guards. Persons interested in helping can contact her evenings at 872-4263.

Lunch prices are up 10 cents from last year. Lunch for students in grades 1-6 is 85 cents; grades 7-12, 90 cents. Milk is up a nickel to 25 cents.

More information about the start of school is contained in the school district advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

KINGSTON

The first day of school is Tuesday, with classes from 8:30-11:15 a.m.

The normal schedule, 8:30 a.m. - 3:15 p.m., will be followed the next three days, then students will have the next four days off -- the weekend, Labor Day and the day after that. Classes resume Wednesday, Sept. 8.

New students should enroll at the elementary or high school as soon as possible.

Lunch prices are the same as last year -- 70 cents per meal for all students or weekly tickets for $3.50.

One change this year is that homecoming will be Oct. 1. In the past, it has been later in October.

Negotiations with teachers and bus drivers over new contracts are continuing, according to Supt. Robert Cameron, but the school calendar has been agreed to by all parties concerned and there is no concern school won't start as scheduled.

SKILL CENTER

The Tuscola Area Skill Center, outside of Caro, which serves all nine of the county's school districts, starts its third year of operation Sept. 1.

As of Friday, according to Principal Gary Martin, 807 students had enrolled, but the number will change with students dropping classes or enrolling.

Students attend their home high school a half-day and the skill center the rest of the day.

Of the 807 enrolled so far, 104 of them are from Cass City High School and 40 are from Kingston.

The center has a capacity of 911 students. How many each school district can send depends on its proportion of the total enrollment in the county. However, if one school doesn't fill its allotment, other schools can send more.

The center offers 23 programs for juniors and seniors, one of which isn't taught there, cosmetology, which is taught at Howard's Beauty Academy in Caro.

Programs for which there were still openings as of Friday, Martin said, were heating and air conditioning, horticulture, drafting, building maintenance, graphic arts, commercial arts, building trades and machine trades.

The rest are not only filled, they have waiting lists. The courses which are always filled the fastest, he said, are data processing, auto mechanics, auto body repair, and stenographic and word processing.

Students interested in attending the skill center in the subjects still open should see their high school counselor.

its second year of operation Monday.

Enrollment as of a recent count was 56 students, compared to 32 when the Chronicle profiled the school last December.

Full-time staff is Rev. John Motter, Greg Reynolds and Sharyl Gilliam. Part-time teachers will be Becky Reynolds and Karen Cox.

The Thumb Christian Academy operated by and in the Faith Gospel Tabernacle on Rescue Road, southwest of Bad Axe, starts its third year of classes Tuesday, Sept. 7.

As of Friday, secretary Bernice Higgins said, about 40 students were enrolled, about the same as attendance last year. Enrollments are still being accepted.

The school had grades K-10 last year. Eleventh grade has been added this year. The academy has three teachers.

Its new building, across the road from the church, isn't done yet and Ms. Higgins said it is questionable whether it will be completed this school year. Construction began more than two years ago.

Fire destroys pickup, three other fires fought

Loss was estimated at $4,500 in a fire Tuesday afternoon that destroyed a pickup truck and camper unit.

Owner of the pickup was Robert Hawkins of 5981 Robinson Road, Cass City, who was driving it when the fire started.

He told Elkland Township fire fighters he thought a stone had ruptured his gas tank. He heard a pop and noticed that the fire had started around the tank.

The 1977 Dodge truck caught fire at Hadley and Robinson Roads. The fire was reported at 1:45 p.m.

according to Elkland Assistant Fire Chief Ron Pawloski.

The creosote in one chimney that hadn't been cleaned started burning Sunday. It was at the home of Jeff Tuckey at Dodge and Elmwood Roads. A fire had been lit because of the chilly temperatures.

An extinguishing fuse was used to put out the fire and a chain was dropped down the chimney to clean it out.

Pawloski said there was some minor smoke damage and some wallpaper burned where there had been a connection to the chimney.

The first was reported at 2:25 p.m. Wednesday on property owned by Martin Two on Severance Road, east of Cemetery Road.

Cause was undetermined. Only a couple of hundred square feet burned before it was put out.

About two acres burned in a fire reported at 4:45 p.m. Saturday on property owned by Clare Tuckey off Koepfgen Road, about a half-mile south of M-81.

Fire department Captain Don Root said because the fire was a long way back from the road, and since there was no apparent reason why it started, it may have been set.

Grass and some old stumps burned. Fire fighters were at the scene about one hour.

Pedaling Around

Start walking

By Mike Eliasohn

Tuesday will be a memorable day in the history of the Cass City schools for the wrong reason.

I doubt if anyone is happy, no matter what side of the busing-millage issue they are on.

To make what may be Cass City's worst traffic jam in history a little less frustrating, I offer the following suggestion -- for those who can walk.

Unfortunately, in our modern society, walking has become alien in many households. Parents can't conceive of walking more than a couple of blocks, thus they feel their children shouldn't have to either.

Thus it is likely that many of the cars Tuesday and the days that follow that will be contributing to the traffic jams will be driven by parents who live in town.

With a few rare exceptions, there is no reason why kids living in Cass City and maybe a few living close to town can't walk to school. If they're very young, a parent, older brother or sister or neighbor can walk with them.

I hate to sound like an old fogey, but when I was a kid in Lansing, I walked to school, which in junior and senior high was about a mile one way. If it rained, I wore a rain coat. If it was cold, I wore a heavy coat. And I can't recall that we had more than one or two days during my public school days that schools were closed because of snow.

I'm sure there are a lot of "old timers" and not-so-old-timers reading this who attended rural schools who walked a lot more than one mile to school.

I'm not bragging, but if I could walk to school, a lot of other kids can too. Of course, a lot of kids do walk, but more could.

Another alternative, which isn't new for many students, is to ride bikes to school.

With presumably many more cars on the streets close to the schools, it will be necessary for bicycle riders to be very careful -- stick to the right and don't dart between cars.

There is a third alternative to reduce traffic jams. Even for parents who must drive children to school because they live too far away, there is no reason why the children have to be delivered to the school door. Drop them off a couple blocks away, let them walk the rest of the way, while you avoid getting stuck in traffic.

Whatever happens won't be pleasant and for some families, lack of busing will create terrible hardships. Supt. Don Crouse at Friday's school board meeting told about a father who plans to drop off his children at a neighbor's, who will take them to school while he goes on to work. The father works in the Detroit area and leaves at 4 a.m.

Hopefully, some of the severe problems can be worked out once school starts and everyone figures out which neighbors' kids are going where. Maybe some students can undertake an effort to see what arrangements can be made to relieve some of the extreme hardship cases.

For instance, in the above mentioned example, maybe something can be worked out so that someone can pick up the man's kids instead of their having to get up in the middle of the night to go to a neighbor's.

One thing I find unfortunate in all this is that apparently many persons voted "no" on the last millage proposal because they didn't believe the school board and superintendent when they said there wasn't money for busing without the added millage.

Obviously, that wasn't the case with everybody. Others have voted against millage increases because they felt they couldn't afford it and some as a protest -- against the school board, I suppose.

What greatly disturbs me is those who voted "no" not because they couldn't afford it, but because their children are too young to be in school or are too old and no longer in school. An attitude of helping one's neighbor has been replaced by "what's in it for me?"

Much of what I have written here also applies to the Uby district, where a millage increase for busing was defeated last week and where a greater percentage of students ride buses than in the Cass City district (80 percent versus about 70 percent).

No matter what happens in the future, many persons will still be mad and some will be losers.

The only way for everyone to be happy is to have busing, athletics, libraries, etc., without having to pay anything additional, but if there ever was such a thing as a free lunch, those days are gone.

Wednesday is named after the Scand in avian god Woden.

TILLAGE DAY -- The Thumb Area Conservation Tillage Field Day last Thursday west of Cass City drew about 500 farmers to view the latest in minimum tillage equipment.

Less is more - field day promotes minimum tillage

What's new in less tillage attracted about 500 farmers last Thursday to the second Thumb Area Conservation Tillage Field Day northwest of Cass City.

Aim of the program was to show equipment and materials available for minimum or conservation tillage, which leaves some crop residue on top of the soil.

The advantage of leaving some residue is that it helps protect soil from wind and water erosion. Conventional tillage with a moldboard plow turns all the soil over thus burying the residue.

The advantage of the field day, explained Extension Agricultural Agent John Posselius, the event's organizer, is that it enabled farmers to make side-by-side comparisons of equipment and materials, such as herbicides.

The second annual event was sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service and East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region, with the cooperation of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), Soil Conservation Service (SCS) and Environmental Protection Agency -- all federal agencies, and the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District and Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

All are involved in a federally funded program aimed at reducing pollution of Saginaw Bay from soil erosion and runoff of other farm chemicals and fertilizer. Begun in 1979, the program was recently extended through September, 1983.

Most of the cost of the field day was borne by pesticide, fertilizer and seed dealers, who paid for display space.

The farmer who donated use of his 60 acre field, mowed the parking area and helped in other ways, didn't want his name publicized.

Barley had been planted in the field, at the southeast corner of Dodge and Milligan Roads, which was harvested at the end of July. Posselius pointed out the heavy loam soil there was typical of that found in the Saginaw Bay erosion and control project area.

Rain fell the night before and early in the day, it looked like it would rain again, which may have scared some spectators away. Despite that and late advertising, Posselius commented, "I think we had a quite respectable crowd."

THOSE ATTENDING, if they so chose, were taken on a walking tour that lasted more than one hour, conducted by an ASCS, SCS or extension agent.

First stop was four strips sprayed with herbicides at varying rates and with different nozzles. Two were sprayed three days before the exhibit and the others two days before.

Weed control is an integral part of conservation tillage, but even with conventional tillage, Posselius noted, "You have to have some sort of weed program." In the three years of the Saginaw Bay project, he said, weeds and insects haven't appeared to be any worse with minimum tillage than with conventional.

Next, farmers were able to see three discs, either in operation or after they had made a few trips across the plots and back.

Next came seven chisel plows, which have long prongs to break up the soil. Some of the implements only did that, but one was fitted with a flail mower to chop the residue and others had cutting coulters in addition to the prongs.

The teeth on the subsoiler, the third type of tillage tool demonstrated, dug 15 inches deep to break up deeply compacted soil.

THE FINAL TWO stops displayed ridge tillage systems, a new concept in agriculture, none of which has been used yet in Tuscola County.

It requires two machines. The first is a combination cultivator and ridger, which makes ridges while cultivating twice during the summer.

Once the field is harvested in the fall, nothing has to be done until it is time to plant the following spring.

The special planter knocks off any residue and then plants on top of the ridges.

The advantage to the ridge system, according to Posselius, is that the ridges, having more exposed surface, dry quicker and warm up quicker in the spring, so planting can be done earlier.

It thus appears better on wetter, heavier soils common in the upper Thumb than pure no-till, which can hold moisture in, since no field preparation work is done between harvesting and planting the following spring, thus leaving a lot of residue on top of the soil.

Two manufacturers of the ridge tillage systems had their cultivator-ridging machine and planter on display.

Two cooperators in the Bay project will be trying the ridging system, but not until this fall.

One no-till planter was on display in the afternoon.

Robert Jewell commended, his brother reenlists

Robert J. Jewell

Richard Jewell

Navy Fireman Robert J. Jewell has received a letter of appreciation for the role he played in combating a fire on his ship.

His brother, Richard Jewell, has reenlisted in the Navy for five more years. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Jewell of Detroit and Gagetown and attended Cass City schools before the family moved to Detroit.

Robert Jewell received a letter of appreciation from the commander of the USS Ajax for his "outstanding performance of duty" during a major casualty to No. 4 boiler (fire in the boiler air casing).

"Displaying exceptional skill and resourcefulness," the letter continued, "he controlled a major casualty by securing No. 4 boiler and minimizing damage. He rapidly identified the problem and carried out procedures which resulted in the orderly handling and control of the casualty, despite extremely adverse conditions and operational commitments."

"In addition, Jewell made prompt corrective action to restore the damage, thus reducing down time to a minimum. His diligent efforts and resourcefulness inspired all who observed him."

The Ajax's home port is San Diego, Calif. Jewell has been in the Navy almost two years.

His brother, Richard, has been in the Navy five years and has signed up for five more.

The chief petty officer first class is a damage control officer on the USS Durham, also homeported in San Diego.

It's official - millage vote set Sept. 27

The Cass City School Board Friday adopted a resolution officially establishing Sept. 27 as the date for another millage election.

The proposal will be as outlined in the petitions the board accepted Monday of last week: 2½ mills for busing, 1 mill for partial restoration of curriculum and a half-mill for extra-curricular activities.

Election inspectors appointed were the same ones who served in the June school election.

After the meeting at which the petitions with 476 signatures were accepted, attorneys had to write the official election resolution, which is what was adopted Friday.

After the meeting, Supt. Donald Crouse said the petitions were not legally binding on the board, but members did not want to schedule another election unless a large number of persons had said they wanted it. Some board members added that if necessary, a procedure could have been followed which would have required the board to schedule an election.

During the meeting, Crouse read a copy of a letter written by attorneys for the Millington Community Schools regarding liability of a school district for students riding in private cars to athletic events, should they be in an accident.

The position of the attorneys was that school districts are only liable for negligent operation of their own vehicles.

Board members then discussed whether they should have a policy regarding driving of athletes to events. As expressed by Dick Wallace, "I just don't want a high school student driving."

There was some feeling that it might be best to not have a policy so that the school district would not appear responsible.

Crouse said he and Athletic Director Roland Pakonen had discussed that and they felt if there is no policy and some students are involved in an accident, "do you say they went without authority?"

The board then appeared to be leaning toward a policy of requiring either a coach or parent to drive athletes to games and will make a decision at its Sept. 13 meeting.

As for persons driving non-family members to school each day, it was mentioned that apparently they would be covered by their regular insurance policy in case of accident as long as they don't charge for rides.

HEALTH TIPS

Strokes claim nearly 7,000 lives a year

Stroke, Michigan's third largest killer, claims nearly 7,000 lives a year, fewer only than heart attack and cancer. It cripples, temporarily or permanently, thousands more. Odds are, you know someone who's had a stroke.

But how much do you really know about it? Why not take a couple of minutes with the following quiz from the Michigan Heart Association and find out?

- 1) Which of the following symptoms are warning signs of stroke?
 - a) Dizziness or unsteadiness.
 - b) Temporary loss of memory or change in mental ability.

c) Numbness or weakness in face, arm or leg.

d) Garbled speech or difficulty understanding speech.

e) Eye problems such as temporary dimness, loss of sight or double vision.

f) Recent, severe, sudden headaches.

2) True or false: Strokes usually happen to people over 65 years old.

3) True or false: There is nothing that can be done to prevent a stroke.

Here are the answers:

1) All the symptoms are warning signs of stroke. And if you'll notice, the first letters of each warning sign spells "danger", so they're easy to remember.

2) False. Nearly one quarter of all strokes happen to people under 65.

3) False. Much can be done to prevent strokes. "In fact," says Dr. George Ritter, president of the Michigan Heart Association, "we could prevent as many as half of all strokes if people who were having warning signs would visit their doctor and begin receiving proper medical treatment."

A stroke, explained Dr. Ritter, is much like a heart attack, except that it occurs in the brain rather than the heart.

It is caused by stoppage of oxygenated blood to a portion of the brain, by a blood clot which has formed in one of the arteries of the brain, or one which has travelled there from another part of the body, or by a ruptured blood vessel, or by pressure on a blood vessel, as from a tumor.

"It is because trouble is developing in the brain that you may have the warning signs listed in the quiz," he said. "And what part of the brain is affected will determine which of those symptoms you may have, or what kind of paralysis you may have following a stroke."

"Some people have very mild results from having a rather minor stroke, while others may be greatly afflicted with a paralysis of one side or the other of the body, loss of speech and so on," Dr. Ritter said.

"But there's so much we can do, both medically and surgically, to prevent a person with symptoms from having a full-fledged stroke, if people would only learn the warning signs and visit their doctor if they experience any of them."

"Likewise, a carefully planned physical therapy program begun shortly after a patient has had a stroke does much to hasten and improve his or her recovery."

"Also, there are now some 24 stroke clubs for patients and their families throughout the state, and recently a club for young adults who have had strokes or other closed head injuries has begun in the Detroit metropolitan area. "We'd really like to see more of these get started all over the state, as they have been immensely helpful to both stroke victims (as they call themselves) and their families in understanding what happened and how best to hasten the recovery process," Dr. Ritter said.

For more information on stroke warning signs, risk factors, stroke treatment and recovery, and joining or starting a stroke club in your area, contact Jean Mayer, at the Michigan Heart Association (313) 557-9500.

Bernard Ross, president of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce, will spend the day as special guest at the Michigan State Fair, Wednesday, Sept. 4. The Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring Sharon Parmer as a candidate for queen of the State Fair.

A fire razed the barn and contents of the Leonard Hawley farm, west of Cass City Thursday, Aug. 22. Lost in the fire were some 50 chickens, 35 pigs, 200 bales of straw and 700 bales of hay.

C. R. Hunt of Cass City was low bidder on one phase of the work of improving the Huron County Memorial Airport, the Michigan Department of Aeronautics in Lansing announced. The Hunt company will blacktop a runway 2,350 feet long with a width of some 50 feet.

The Happy Dozen Euchre Club and their families met at the Bad Axe Park for a wiener roast Sunday evening.

Sandy's cops San-Cass crown

Sandy's Hillside Hitters of Cass City became the San-Cass Fast Pitch Softball League champion last Thursday by defeating McGraw-Edison of Sandusky, 8-0.

The game between the Cass City and Sandusky division champions was played at the Cass City Recreation Park.

Brian Helwig struck out 13 batters for the winners and allowed only one hit to pick up the win. The hit came with one out in the seventh inning.

The winners collected 10 hits, led by Dean Severance, who hit a home run with one man on base and a triple. Rusty Hoag also hit a home run and Jim Hillaker and Randy Ferris each had two hits.

Jim Brown was the losing pitcher.

Sandy's finished the season with an 18-1 record. McGraw-Edison finished 14-6. It won the second half of the Sandusky division season by winning a three-team playoff as it finished tied with Liberty Lanes and Wolverine State Bank, both of Sandusky. M-E then defeated the first half winner, Sanilac Dairy Farms, to become the division champion and earn the right to play in the league championship game.

Little reduction in Fed student aid

Federal aid for students was not drastically reduced for the 1982-83 academic year, according to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Educators are concerned, however, that availability of monies will decrease in the future.

If your income is above $30,000, you must show need for low interest loans. In addition, if your income is above $75,000, you will be asked to supply more details about your assets.

To lighten financial aid, the government increased the interest rate on Guaranteed Student Loans (GSLs) to 9 percent for new borrowers. The origination fee, taken directly from the loan, remains at 5 percent, which means you receive 95 percent of your loan. GSLs are obtained by students directly from lending institutions; but the loans are government guaranteed.

The government has also lowered the maximum income for Pell Grants, which is the largest federal student aid program. However, unless your family's adjusted gross income is $25,000 or below, your child probably won't qualify.

Besides allocating Pell Grants, the government gives schools money to distribute through Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants and National Direct Student Loans, for which the current interest rate is 5 percent.

Not all schools or all states offer the same aid programs, so it is best to talk to the financial aid officer at the school.

More information on government loans can be obtained by calling toll-free 1-800-638-6700.

When calculating the amount of aid needed, remember that many programs have debt ceilings. Combine federal, state and college aid, if possible, to get the most aid at the lowest interest rate. Don't forget to ask schools about scholarships and grants funded by their endowments or affiliated groups.

To complete your investigations, you might want to contact a scholarship search service. Such services charge to look for scholarships generally unknown.

Sometimes the qualifications for these monies are based on the student's field of study, heritage, or even your surname.

Recycling cans looks attractive

The more you look at aluminum beverage can recycling, the better it's likely to look. That's because everybody benefits.

In the last eight years thousands of civic groups and over a million individual can collectors have earned over $250 million through recycling. The public profits from a cleaner environment and aluminum companies get to put the used metal back to work.

Recycling also creates jobs. The recycling industry is growing fast. Since 1970, it has added an estimated 18,000 new jobs to the economy. These jobs involve buying, processing, transporting and remelting used cans into new aluminum.

Moreover, recycling aluminum can help some municipalities generate extra revenue. Aluminum is the most valuable material found in quantity in municipal resource recovery systems. Recycling also helps to relieve overburdened landfill facilities.

For school truancy Judge outlines parent penalties

Parents who don't send their children to school, as some have threatened to do out of inability or as a protest because of lack of busing in the Cass City district, could be jailed for as much as 90 days.

They ultimately could appear before a probate judge, charged with child neglect and could lose custody of their children.

The law does make one exception, in addition to one for children attending parochial schools: Children age 8 and under who live more than 2½ miles from school measured by the nearest traveled road do not have to attend school if the school district does not provide transportation.

At the request of the Chronicle, the school attendance law was examined by Jerome Thienes, assistant superintendent of the Tuscola Intermediate School District, and Tuscola County Probate Judge W. Wallace Kent Jr.

The law says that if a child is repeatedly absent "without valid excuse," the school is to notify the county attendance officer. In practice, Thienes said, usually 10 days is considered a repeated absence.

The attendance officer must investigate and then notify the parents or persons who have responsibility for the child by registered mail or in person of the non-compliance. The child is then to appear in school on the next scheduled school day.

If the child still doesn't come to school, the officer then notifies the court of jurisdiction.

Violation of the law is a misdemeanor, handled by the district court judge, and a parent found guilty of the law can be fined from $5-50 and - or sentenced to 2-90 days in jail.

If the child still doesn't show up in school or if the attendance officer decides other circumstances warrant, he can contact the Department of Social Services protective services and the parent may end up appearing before a probate judge.

The parents could be charged with neglect and ultimately could lose custody of their children.

Judge Kent said the only such cases he has had were ones where the parents didn't care if their children attended school. He has never had a case of parents deliberately keeping their children from school.

With the exceptions of children attending parochial schools and those 8 and under living more than 2½ miles from school, the law says that all children from the age of 6 until their 16th birthday must attend school.

Board sets tax hearing Sept. 9

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday scheduled Sept. 9 at 10 a.m. as the date for its truth in taxation hearing.

The hearing is necessary under a new state law in order for the board to levy the full 4.2 mills authorized for county operations.

Without the hearing, the millage would have to be rolled back so that county government does not receive any additional revenue from increases in valuation.

The board approved a contract to receive $265,570 in 1982-83 from the state Department of Social Services for emergency child care. The program is administered by the probate court.

County Board Chairman Paul Nagy was appointed acting emergency services coordinator in place of Jim McCann, who is on leave of absence while campaigning for state representative. McCann is still taking care of the paperwork, but without pay.

Rutkowski earns art laurel

Marilyn Rutkowski of Maurer Road, Ubyly, was recently selected as a semifinalist in the West '82 Art and The Law national art competition.

She was awarded honorable mention in the final review for her pastel, "No Vote - No Work". Almost 1,400 entries were received from artists across the United States.

The exhibition was sponsored by the West Publishing Co., St. Paul, Minn., which is one of the nation's leading law book publishers. West has a long tradition of encouraging artists to create works which interpret and illuminate the law. The artist's pastel entry depicts Polish artisans staging the first strike for civil liberties in America at Jamestown Colony, Virginia, in 1619. The Poles, who made glass, tar and ash, won the strike.

Mrs. Rutkowski toured Jamestown about a year ago and after extensive research, created the artwork. An interest in history provides the stimulus for her creation of historical works.

This painting and several other examples of the artist's historic artworks are currently included in the exhibition "Early History of Parisville" now showing at the St. Mary's Historical Society's log house in Parisville weekends through Sept. 5. The exhibit is open from 1-4:30 p.m.

Need jobs for co-op students

Any employer seeking part-time help is invited to contact Wayne Dillon at Cass City High School.

Students are available to work in co-op jobs in the morning or afternoon and for after-school jobs and on weekends.

Students interested in finding jobs can also contact Dillon though he can't make any guarantees.

Dillon, the vocational-career education director and counselor, said co-op jobs for students are getting harder to find this year.

In 1981-82, 100 students had such jobs, plus 30 were working on farms through the co-op program (usually on their family's farm).

His "guesstimate" Friday was that there may be 75 off-the-farm jobs this year, plus the same number on farms as last year.

One reason for the lower number, he said, was that former co-op students, who in better economic times would have moved on after graduating from high school, have held on to their jobs.

Your Neighbor says

Back to school something to do

Summer vacation is almost over for kids like Becca Prieskorn.

Is she looking forward to going back to school Tuesday? "Yes," she responded, "...because it will be a new experience."

What will be new for the 14-year-old is that she will be starting high school (ninth grade).

She admitted, though, she isn't tired of summer vacation. "No, not really."

Becca played Little League softball this summer and two weeks ago began high school basketball practice. She has been playing basketball since the fifth grade.

Still to come when interviewed by the Chronicle was a visit with her family to Chicago.

Miss Prieskorn does not have a favorite subject in school. "It's something to do," she commented. What she likes about school, she said, are the things that go along with it, like basketball.

Becca is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn of 4645 Kennebec Drive.

Cook ends nearly 25 years at school

Mona Phillips: helpers made her job easy

After cooking meals for Cass City schoolchildren for nearly a quarter century, Mona Phillips has decided it's time to give the spatula to someone else.

"I would do it again," she said. "There is no question, I could do it right over again, I enjoyed it so much."

Mona Phillips retired from her position as assistant manager and cook for the Cass City Schools at the end of the school year.

"I thought it would be the best thing to do," she said of her decision to retire. "I wasn't tired of work, I just thought it was about time."

Mrs. Phillips began cooking for kids Dec. 1, 1957, at Deford Elementary School, when Deford still had its own school system.

She was manager and one of two cooks. The other was Effie Warner. They prepared meals for about 200 students in grades kindergarten through eighth grade.

"We spoiled them in those days. We made homemade foods and meals like they would have gotten at home had their mother prepared the meals."

She moved to Cass City High School in 1968, after the Deford and Cass City school systems merged.

At the high school, she kept her manager position and was in charge of cooking and ordering materials.

The number of meals served in the last few years she worked there totalled about 1,100.

This past year, when Canteen Corp. ran the lunch program for the school system, Mrs. Phillips was an assistant manager.

SHE CLAIMS HER many years as a cook is due to the fact that she had such good help in the kitchen. There were six other people working in the high school kitchen.

"I have had very good help, there was a lot of cooperation among all the people that worked with me. I am happy things went as smooth as they did."

She said all the workers had fun and they all enjoyed themselves while they were working. Everybody was nice to work with and they were all good people.

When she first started to cook, she remembers meals cost only a quarter. Now, the price is at least 85 cents.

For that price, children can get their favorite meal, which after many years' experience, Mrs. Phillips believes to be a barbecue sandwich such as sloppy joes, plus corn and cake for dessert. One of the overall favorites of students is chocolate chip cookies.

She considers herself a good cook.

I like to cook and I think I am a good cook for my family." Her family consists of her daughter Alice and Alice's husband, Tom Ellis, who live in East Lansing and work for Michigan State University. Alice is a 1964 graduate of Cass City High School. Mrs. Phillips' husband died 22 years ago.

AMONG HER MANY memories of working with children over the years, she remembers only a few really bad times.

There were two or three food fights.

"The fights were unbelievable, the mess they made. Mashed potatoes and gravy all over the floors and the walls. Just unbelievable." She said the simple solution to that problem was having two or three teachers eat in the lunch room with the children.

Now that she is retired, she plans to do things she hasn't done in a long time.

"I would like to spend more time doing things with my hands. I like to sew and knit."

She would also like to visit friends and her daughter and son-in-law in East Lansing. On her agenda of things to do is work in her garden. She lived on a farm before moving to her home at 5965 Bruce Street in Deford.

"I take care of the garden, then I go on a short trip, and when I get back I have to start all over again."

Mrs. Phillips will also be doing some cooking, but not in the traditional manner.

"I just went out and bought a microwave oven. It is just perfect. I have always wanted one. It is so nice to wake up in the morning and have fresh donuts at the touch of a button."

"If given the chance, I would do it all over again. I have enjoyed my job very much. The kids were not bad. I really liked the children."

Baptists hold third family camp

Members of First Baptist Church held their third annual family camp at the Wesleyan Campgrounds near Vassar, Thursday through Saturday. A total of 122 persons participated, some staying on the grounds and others driving in.

Harold and Helen Rayl were in charge of arrangements, with various members overseeing specific activities. Rev. John Wood was the devotional leader.

Thursday evening featured a carry-in dinner, a film, "Somebody Special", and a campfire.

Following a chicken barbecue Friday night, Barb Hutchinson was in charge of Family Night. A special addition of Family Feud was played, with Jill Hutchinson as "Rachel Dawson". Humorous commercials and skits were presented by several groups. Pastor Wood capped the evening with a devotional talk from Proverbs 30 on the ant, the coney, the locust and the spider, using special visuals made by Mrs. Wood and demonstrated by Ed Connell, Harold Rayl, Bill Ewald and Don Kowbel. A campfire followed, with Mark Shaw playing the guitar for group singing.

Other activities during the day included swimming, canoeing, archery, horse shoe tournament, children's games, volleyball, softball and table games.

Veterans Administration spends record amount

The Veterans Administration spent a record $634.47 million in Michigan during fiscal year 1981, $35 million more than was spent the year before.

The largest amount was for compensation to disabled war veterans and pensions to older workers in need, which totaled $362.99 million.

Operating cost of the five VA hospitals in Michigan and the regional office in Detroit totaled $170.52 million.

In Tuscola County, VA expenditures in fiscal year 1981 were $2.01 million, of which compensation and pensions totaled $1.59 million.

Expenditures for educational benefits to Vietnam War Era veterans and other training programs amounted to $296,019. Veterans received $131,245 for insurance and indemnities.

In Huron County, expenditures totaled $1.39 million, of which $1.096 million was spent for compensation and pensions. Expenditures for educational benefits to Vietnam Era veterans and other training programs totaled $204,499. There was $90,669 spent for insurance and indemnities for veterans.

In Sanilac County, VA expenditures totaled $1.27 million, of which $1.002 million was spent for compensation and pensions. Expenditures for educational benefits to Vietnam Era veterans and other training programs amounted to $187,027. Veterans received $82,922 for insurance and indemnities.

Fee for busing?

State Rep. Thomas Mathieu, D-Grand Rapids, has introduced legislation that would allow school boards to charge a fee for students riding buses.

If it does pass the legislature, the measure is of questionable constitutionality.

According to the Associated Press, Mathieu said the idea was sparked by the Rockford School District, near Grand Rapids, which dropped busing last fall. It was reinstated in December after residents approved a millage increase.

"A group of parents came to me and said they would be willing to pay," he explained.

The legislator said he is unaware of any legal prohibition against school districts charging for transportation, but state law doesn't specifically give them authority to do so.

A spokeswoman for the state Department of Education said it would probably oppose such legislation, contending that a 1980 opinion by Attorney General Frank Kelley indicates such a law would be unconstitutional.

Letter to the editor

God bless 3 board members

Dear Editor:

Your paper dated August 12 states that, "Supt. Donald Crouse said that the money received for the operation of the fleet this year from the state would be used for bus service in the coming school year if it was not needed to balance the severely cut school budget."

In regard to the new millage vote, your paper dated Aug. 19 states, "The board also passed a motion binding it to spending the four mills for the purposes outlined in the petition. That action was taken because the ballot will list only four mills for operation and not specify what the money will be used for."

If Mr. Crouse has the authority to use state busing funds to balance his budget, what is to prevent him from using the funds from the new millage for the same purpose, in spite of the vote of the board that it will be used for the purpose intended???

Or what is to prevent him using any millage which is voted strictly for busing for any purpose he may choose ??? It appears that he has the backing of four of our school board members in any action he wishes to take.

I thank God for the three board members who are not afraid to stand up and be counted on behalf of the people of our school district. May God continue to bless them in their efforts on our behalf.

It is my opinion that the people of our school district are dissatisfied with our administrator, and a change could help in solving our problems.

Thank you,
Lucille V. Lounsbury
4984 E. Cass City Road

Editor's note: The money received from the state was reimbursement for money already spent by the Cass City Schools in 1981-82 for busing, and therefore doesn't now have to be spent for that purpose. In round figures, busing cost the district $400,000 last year, minus $100,000 received from Lansing, which is computed on a mileage basis.

deputies the train was about 200 feet south of the crossing when the car went off the road.

The crossing is 1 1/4 miles west of Cemetery Road, south of Cass City. The accident took place at 4:05 p.m.

THREE INJURED

A 12:40 p.m. accident Sunday northwest of Kingston resulted in injuries to three persons.

Most seriously injured was Irene S. Lemanski, 66, of 6995 Bevans Road, Deford, who was released Tuesday from Marlette Community Hospital.

The driver of the other car involved, Steven E. Horsch, 16, of Farmington Hills, and one of his three passengers, Kurt S. Priebe, 18, also from Farmington Hills, sought private treatment.

Horsch was southbound on Hurds Corner Road and told deputies he couldn't stop in time. Mrs. Lemanski, who was westbound on Bevans Road, said he ran the stop sign. The vehicles collided.

Horsch was ticketed on a charge of failure to yield.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Robert F. Joos, 16, of 4667 Schwegler Road, Cass City, was treated and released from Hills and Dales after his bicycle was struck by a vehicle last Wednesday evening.

Deputies reported he was riding his bicycle eastbound on M-81 and attempted to turn left onto Schwegler Road.

The youngster told police he didn't see any vehicles before starting to turn, but he pulled into the path of Robert A. McLachlan, 23, of W. Huron Line Road, Ubyly, who was eastbound.

McLachlan swerved in an attempt to avoid the collision, but his vehicle ran into the rear of the bicycle and then slid partly off the road.

Donald J. Osentoski, 22, of 8670 Ubyly Road, Ubyly, was arrested by Ubyly police on a charge of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor following a 12:05 a.m. mishap Saturday in Cass City.

Witnesses told police they saw his vehicle back into the mailboxes at the Northwood Apartments and then hit them a second time before the car drove away.

An alert was broadcast, which resulted in Osentoski's arrest later by police in Ubyly.

Cass City police reported a hit and run accident at 6:30 p.m. last Wednesday involving the car of Joseph F. Santos of Cass City. His car was parked in the alley behind The Station tavern on Main Street.

The driver of the other vehicle involved, William A. Perlaki, 65, of Elmwood Road, Cass City, told officers Monday that when he got out of his car, it rolled into the Santos auto. He didn't think there was any damage, so he drove away.

SUSPICIOUS FIRE -- A fire early Saturday destroyed this mobile home at Coach Light Mobile Home Sales at Hemans and damaged two others that were parked on both sides. Cause of the fire is still under investigation by the state fire marshal's office.

3 trailers burn, cause investigated

Fire of a "suspicious" nature destroyed one mobile home and damaged two others early Saturday at a dealership at Hemans.

The fire was at Coach Light Mobile Home Sales on M-53, owned by Kitchener (Bud) Innes Jr. Lamotte Township Fire Chief Art West said the fire, discovered by a passing motorist, was reported at 1:18 a.m.

Completely destroyed was a new mobile home. The most heavily damaged but apparently repairable one was also new. The other one damaged was used and appeared only to have scorched and slightly buckled siding on one side.

West said damage totaled at least $20,000 and that Innes had insurance.

The one totally destroyed was parked between the two damaged ones. According to the fire chief, the fire started in the one that was a complete loss and spread to the others. All were single width mobile homes.

Because the origin of the fire was "suspicious," West said he asked for the state police fire marshal's office to send an investigator, who was to have been there Monday.

Lamotte firemen were assisted by the Moore Township Fire Department, with each unit having two trucks there.

Firemen were at the scene about 2 1/2 hours.

As of Tuesday evening, West had yet to hear from the fire marshal on what he had discovered.

Group wants school figures

would be too expensive and the state will only do an audit if there is "just cause" to show that there has been misappropriation of funds.

She told the Chronicle members of the group will now consult a lawyer to determine what they should do next.

MANY OF THE persons who spoke were angry and much of their anger was directed at Supt. Donald Crouse, and to a lesser extent with the school board.

The general complaint was that Crouse isn't always open in presenting financial figures and the board accepts whatever he presents. "The board doesn't know how much money Crouse has," Beddow complained.

"There's no figures at those (school board) meetings," Mrs. Beddow added. "It's all in his (Crouse's) head."

Beddow did defend the superintendent to some extent, stating that he wasn't "head hunting" right now because he didn't know all the facts.

His feeling the superintendent should be given a chance wasn't unanimous.

"Let's get Crouse and (high school Principal Russ) Richards out," one man said. "You're going to have to get rid of the source of the problem. If you don't get rid of them, we're wasting our time."

There was some talk about a recall of school board members, which might be necessary to get rid of Crouse, if presumably the present board would support the superintendent.

Raymond Garety suggested that might not be necessary. "You've got the power in the board. What we need is the power to prod the board."

NO ONE SPOKE IN favor of the 4-mill proposal that will be on ballot, but there was support for 2 1/2 mills just for busing provided the need is shown.

Mrs. Beddow suggested that if the need for the millage is proven, the group can work just as hard to pass it as it did to find out the need was there.

But some threatened that until they find out what they want, they will keep their children home from school. "We want to make sure they need this money and no b.s. about it," a man said. "Until we find out, we're not sending our children."

Not everyone agreed with that tactic, however. "We will not use our children," said Delores Garety.

When another woman suggested, "But they (the school board) are using yours," Mrs. Garety responded, "That's on their conscience."

vote, they felt they could get more persons to the polls next time to vote in favor who didn't vote this time.

The superintendent told the Chronicle that "many, many people" worked for passage of the millage last week and that, "Everyone was disappointed. We thought it was going to pass."

He noted that some persons at the meeting opposed having another vote.

Board members made no commitment, but decided to talk to other persons to gauge public opinion on having another vote before meeting again this Friday to make a decision. The meeting will start at 8:30 p.m. in the high school library.

If the board decides to have another vote, the earliest it could be held would be mid-October, Landeryou said.

Also at the meeting last Thursday, the board appointed athletic director and teacher Dick Holdship and guidance counselor Hilary Cook to share the duties of high school principal until Fred Ruthko is able to return.

The principal has been absent since last April because of a stroke. He may be able to resume his duties by November.

Holdship and Cook will still perform some of their other duties.

Garage fire cause is arson

The fire that destroyed the garage of Donald Bass in Kingston Aug. 17 was caused by arson, according to Detective Larry Walker of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

There was evidence that a flammable liquid, apparently gasoline, had been poured on much of the cement floor and some of it had spilled out the doorway.

Investigation is being handled by the Kingston Police Department.

Many problems in driving kids

Roads, 10 miles from Cass City, has a son, Derek, who will be starting kindergarten, and daughter Marni, starting fourth.

Under the arrangement worked out with a neighbor, who also has a kindergarten in school, Mrs. Doerr or her husband will take the three children to school. The neighbor will pick up the two kindergartners at noontime, and Mrs. Doerr will pick up Marni in the afternoon.

Donald and Janice Smith of Leslie Road, Decker, have children going to two schools.

Donnie is starting fifth grade at Evergreen Elementary School, 1½ miles from home. His mother said he will be walking or riding his bike, at least in good weather.

She or her husband will be taking their daughter, Julie, a 10th grader, to Cass City, about 11½ miles one way, and picking her up after sports practice. Even if the buses were running, Mrs. Smith pointed out, with her daughter involved in sports, she would still have to make one trip to town each day to pick her up.

CAR POOLS

From some parts of the school district, trips to and from school will look like convoys.

Judy Doerr of Germania Road, Uby, said there are 11 families living close by with children in school. Two of them, however, have pickups, and three have small cars, so it will require three or four cars each time to get everyone to school.

Since she leaves for work at 7:15 a.m. three days a week, her contribution to the car pool will be to pick up a load of youngsters after work those three days. She has a son, Jeffrey, in the second grade.

A mother on Englehart Road, who didn't want her name used, has one child attending Deford Elementary and three going to Cass City. There will be two car pools on her mile of road, one taking children to the elementary school and the other taking children to Cass City, which from her house is seven miles.

MILLAGE VOTE

Driving of children to school may not last long, if voters approve the four mill proposal that will be on the ballot Sept. 27.

Reaction varied among those questioned as to whether they favor the proposal and whether they think it will pass.

"I don't think so," responded Judy Doerr when asked if she thought it would pass. "I think they (voters) are trying to tell them (the school board) something and they're not listening."

She questioned why transportation had to be eliminated entirely, why there couldn't be limited busing with parents having to take their children to pickup points (for her area, Germania and Cass City Roads), with some additional cuts in other programs.

Mrs. Leslie, who was a bus driver, couldn't predict one way or the other the fate of the millage. She said some voters in her area have children too young to go to school, some who no longer have children at home, and some whose children will be driving to school, and they might vote "no."

Mrs. Sawdon predicted that with parents having to drive their children, "I think they'll change their minds and pass it."

"I would say we need it for busing, yes," Mrs. Purvis said.

Mrs. Smith said she would like to see the millage pass, "but I don't like the taxes either."

The mother on Englehart Road will be happy to see the millage lose again. With a $500 increase in their tax bill, "We can't afford our taxes now."

In addition, she doesn't like her children riding buses. "I don't care for the atmosphere on the bus." As for driving her children to school (She is participating in a car pool), "It doesn't bother me a bit."

Siphoning of gas leads to arrest

James N. Giddings, 18, of 6420 Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City, has been charged with aiding and abetting larceny under $100 in connection with the theft of gasoline from Cass City school buses parked behind the high school.

Officer Don Miller was patrolling behind the high school at 2:50 a.m. last Thursday when he discovered a parked pickup truck, five gasoline cans and two hoses, one of them hanging from a bus gas tank. In the bed of the pickup was a 55-gallon drum with a siphon hose sticking out of it and two more gas cans.

Whoever was using the truck had left. Miller removed the keys from the ignition.

A check of the license plate led to the owner, who said he had loaned the truck to Giddings.

No warrant has been issued yet against the other suspect, who will probably be charged with larceny, Police Chief Gene Wilson said.

Giddings appeared before Magistrate Donald Smith later Thursday, who scheduled arraignment Aug. 30 before District Judge Richard F. Kern. Giddings was released from custody on $2,500 personal recognition bond.

Wilson said most of the buses have locks on their gas tanks. The gasoline was siphoned from the ones that didn't.

OTHER ITEMS

James R. Mohnke of Grand Rapids told Cass City police that he stopped at the Village Service Center at 6:50 p.m. Monday, put the hose in his fuel tank and only then realized the station was closed.

He forgot to remove the pump hose before driving away and in doing so, pulled the pump around. Other than that, there appeared no damage to the pump.

Donald Ball of 5328 Main Street told village police Aug. 17 that one of the wheel covers had been taken from his 1979 Thunderbird some time since Aug. 9. Replacement cost is $50-75.

Although elimination ruled legal activities and some other programs, so busing then resumed after almost an entire school year without it.

Prior to then, in April, 1981, voters recalled six of seven school board members over the issue of busing, with six new members being elected in June of that year.

Also during the turmoil, the superintendent of schools left and a new one was hired.

The new school board, however, wasn't able to restore bus service and the other activities without the millage increase. "They still had to get the money somehow," Ms. Croft commented.

THE ALPENA SCHOOL District, on the shore of Lake Huron in northern lower Michigan, drew national and even international attention when it shut down Oct. 16, 1981.

That came, Alpena News reporter Betty Werth explained, after voters rejected a combined millage renewal and increase in May, August and October of that year.

After school doors were locked, voters again went to the polls Oct. 30. The school board for the first time put two proposals on the ballot, renewal of the millage that was expiring and an additional levy to pay for transportation, sports and some other activities.

The renewal was approved, but the additional levy was defeated, so schools reopened Nov. 3 minus busing. The district had transported students from the time school opened that fall until it shut down in October. Seventy percent of them rode buses.

By late November, three families filed suit against the school board in Alpena County Circuit Court, but Judge Joseph P. Swallow postponed hearing arguments until after yet another millage vote, an additional levy for busing, sports, etc.

The vote was held Dec. 1 and the proposal lost, so the judge held hearings.

DURING CHRISTMAS vacation, the judge ruled in favor of the plaintiffs. Swallow in essence said that public education is a fundamental right guaranteed by the Michigan constitution transporting students to school was part of that right, and therefore the school district was obligated to provide busing.

He ordered the Alpena schools to phase in a new busing program, to be in full operation by February. Ms. Werth said the judge did not specify exactly what the busing program had to be, only that there had to be one.

The school board immediately appealed to the Michigan Court of Appeals, which issued a stay of Swallow's order until it decided the issue. The buses were parked for the remainder of the school year.

The appeals judges -- not the same ones who heard the Cadillac case -- heard arguments in May. The two sides are still waiting for a decision, which may still be some months away, Ms. Werth said.

THE ALPENA district is immense. It covers all of Alpena County, has 6,000 students and 13 buildings. (There were 14, but one elementary school was closed due to declining enrollment.) From the city of Alpena, where the high school and junior highs are, to the farthest end of the county, is about 27 miles in a straight line.

Despite the fact there hasn't been a millage vote or an increase since last December, buses will again be transporting students this fall.

Part of the reason is a difference of philosophy of the new school board, Ms. Werth explained.

Alpena elects its school board members in November. Last November, one board member whose term was ending didn't seek reelection. The incumbent who did run was defeated.

The two new members took office in January. That month, one board member resigned.

In April, the four old members of the board were recalled, so in the span of five months, the entire board was replaced.

WHY DOES ALPENA now have money for busing?

One reason is that the school district saved a lot of money by not having busing last year, Ms. Werth explained.

Closing of the elementary school saved some money.

A lot of money was saved when 70 employees, mostly teachers, were laid off. The result is a lot of former programs no longer exist.

There is no elementary art, physical education or music and no elementary libraries. The high school day was cut from six hours to five.

There is no longer a program for gifted students. Extracurricular activities have been eliminated and only a few sports are supported by booster groups. For instance, the high school will not have a football team this fall.

Thus, students will be riding buses this fall, but they won't have a lot of other things. "It's a matter of trade offs really," Ms. Werth commented.

In addition to the Alpena case, two other cases, both involving suburban Detroit districts that eliminated busing, are also awaiting a decision in the Court of Appeals, she said.

One man arrested in barn break-in

One man has been arrested and the search continues for a second suspect in connection with the breaking and entering of a Kingston area barn last Wednesday.

Charged with breaking and entering is George J. Ozburn III of Burton, who was arrested on his 25th birthday.

He appeared Thursday before Magistrate Donald Smith, who scheduled arraignment Aug. 30 before District Judge Richard F. Kern. Bond was set at $10,000. Ozburn has since posted the required 10 percent of that and has been released from the county jail.

The barn is located on Harmon Lake Road between Reid and Turner Roads and is owned by Donald Werner of Mayville.

Larry Geister of Reid

Road, Kingston -- Werner is his wife's uncle -- was driving by the barn when he saw a pickup there. He pulled into the driveway to investigate.

The driver of the pickup then pulled around Geister's car and drove off east on Harmon Lake Road. As Geister was standing by the road, another man ran from around the barn into a corn field.

Geister had his wife, who was with him, leave and call Caro state police. The incident was reported at 7:54 p.m.

Troopers had a tracking dog brought in, but it eventually lost the scent of the man who had run away and is still at large.

As for the man who had driven away in the pickup, Kingston Police Chief Wayne Newton was on his way home when he heard the

"be on the lookout" broadcast.

He saw the pickup at Bevens and Kingston Roads, five miles away from the barn, but when he attempted to stop it, the driver took off. Newton gave chase and after more than four miles, finally captured the suspect at the end of Collins Road.

Inside the bed of the pickup, all taken from the barn, were eight large ash beams, three wood doors, a pitchfork, roll of copper screen, two metal wheels, two large wood wheels, a large floor jack and set of tire chains.

Also in the truck were an electric saw, sledge hammer, shovel, two hammers, screw driver, wrench and a pry bar, tools apparently used to break into the barn.

New books at the library

DIFFERENT SEASONS by Stephen King (fiction). This book is divided into four novellas. One of these, "Apt Pupil", is a disjointed tale of a teenager and the parasitic relationship he falls into with an ex-Nazi. Another, "The Body", describes four 10-year-olds and their first encounter with death, while "The Breathing Method" concerns a group of elderly gentlemen who sip brandy and tell horror stories.

THE IMPERIAL ROCKEFELLER: A Biography of Nelson A. Rockefeller, by Joseph E. Perisco (non-fiction). An informal yet psychologically astute study of the millionaire businessman turned politician. Rockefeller's principal speech writer from 1966 to 1977, Perisco benefits from this close contact with his subject while Rockefeller was New York State governor, presidential candidate, and U.S. vice-president.

WOMEN'S DIARIES OF THE WESTWARD JOURNEY by Lillian Schlissel (non-fiction). Lengthy selections from the journals and reminiscences of four women who endured the grueling westward migration from 1841 to 1867 provide the finale to Schlissel's extensive historical analysis of the letters, diaries, and memoirs of more than 100 pioneer women. This book provides statistics and points of history, as well as a stark picture of trail life and settling in the West, from Oregon to California, with a collection of 43 photographs.

Taking stock

President Reagan is making an effort to cut out some of the silly rules of the bureaucrats, and we applaud.

(We wonder, though, if the career employees aren't adding new ones as fast as the administration gets rid of old ones.)

Take the rules for radio stations, for example. Every three years, under rules of old, the Federal Communications Commission said that in order to get its license renewed, the station "must ascertain the significant needs and interests" of its service areas.

This requires even little stations to interview 60 community leaders and 200 ordinary citizens.

What tommyrot! Do you think the Boca Raton News in order to stay in business needs to interview 260 people in town to learn their "needs and interests?" An editor worth his salt would know that by instinct and observation his first week on the job.

If the News wasn't meeting its obligations as a newspaper it would be pretty obvious in the number of advertisers and the number of subscribers. And there'd be another paper starting up.

The marketplace and not the bureaucrats decides whether a newspaper or a radio station should stay in business.

But Washington can't accept anything as simple as that. The social planners would dearly love to control all the media; unfortunately for them the Constitution keeps them from running the newspapers.

Once I was a partner in radio station WTHM at Lapeer. Despite the high social goals we promised in the application to the FCC for a license, our real motive was to keep out a serious competitor to the newspaper my brother and I owned.

I remember the rules of the FCC about interviews with local townsfolk, to find out if a station was really wanted.

I did about 20 of them one afternoon without leaving my typewriter, and without so much as a phone call. I just made them up, I am frank to confess, now that the statute of limitations is past.

Later I told the subjects, as I ran into them around town: "You don't know it, but you were interviewed about a Lapeer radio station, and you were in favor of it. OK?"

"OK, Bill." These people, long-time friends, would have been just as agreeable if I had wanted to quote them as being violently against a radio station.

The 10,000 pages of the FCC regulations still didn't cover one situation, which is recounted here for the first time in print.

It happened one Sunday afternoon. The station manager whose name was Ed Oyster (honest), was driving around and as usual had his car radio tuned to the station WTHM.

As yet another record came to its end, the voice of the disc jockey wasn't to be heard. Just the click...click...click...of the end of the record.

Alarmed, Oyster wheeled his car about and speeded for the station. He dashed up the steps, opened the door, and there was his disc jockey and a girl friend, making love on the couch, while the record on the turntable went click...click...click...

Lights, camera, action - show biz comes to Cass City area

Chris Howe. Campbell makes his living in various aspects of show business -- he's promoting a horror film he helped make and is about to be a permanent member of the cast of a soap opera to be produced by a Detroit television station.

Howe is a former student of Teachworth's and just graduated with a major in drama from Oakland University.

The other member of the cast is Susan Yamasaki, who was selected by Teachworth because she had the right personality and look for the part, plus he knew her.

The actors are only part of the drama, of course. In addition to Teachworth as director, also working behind the scenes were cameraman, sound man, camera assistant, sound assistant, and an assistant to the director.

In addition to Howe, the camera assistant and assistant to the director were also former students of Teachworth.

There were also helpers, including Teachworth's wife, Jill, and parents.

"GOING BACK" IS A very equalitarian production. No one is being paid, though they may be if Teachworth sells his property. "So far, it's my money," he said.

Where will be sell it? "We hope to market it wherever we can with whomever we can find who will buy it."

"Going Back" started as a movie for television, "but the more I got into it, the language became less suitable."

The farmer uses some four letter words as part of his normal speech. "It is a clean film other than the language," Teachworth said, noting the strong language can be edited out if needed.

More likely, he sees the film as suitable for cable television which is a bit more liberal than stations that use the airwaves.

Another possibility is as a short feature film for theatres. "Going Back" started as a 60-minute film, but there may be enough good material to make it into an 80-minute theatre film.

Ninety percent of it was shot in the vicinity of Kelly Road. Shooting started Saturday, Aug. 14, and finished this past Sunday. The remainder of the film will be shot in the Detroit area.

Teachworth doesn't expect to have it finished and ready for marketing until late spring of next year at the earliest.

Although Cass City will be listed in the credits, along with a thank-you to those who helped locally in its production, it won't be mentioned in the film. The reason, its director explained, is, "I want this to reflect the rural Midwest," not a specific locale.

AS FOR THE SCENE where the old man and one of the boys (Howe) are lying or 'their sides:

They are supposed to be under the man's trailer, unplugging a stopped-up pipe. It was originally going to be shot under the trailer owned by Milton Phillips, where many of the scenes were shot, but it was decided it would be more convenient and comfortable to build a mockup on some scaffolding, erected under a canvas awning behind the Teachworth's home.

While fixing the pipe, Howe asks Mallette if he had ever done any hitchhiking. The old man then tells about the night he spent in a $1.75 a night hotel in New York City with his bed jammed against the door for security.

Someone with a knife tries to break in and instead picks another victim down the hall, who is carried out horizontally the next morning.

Finally, the pipe is unscrewed and a mixture of oatmeal, paint, fudge mix and water is poured down the pipe -- over the actors.

In contrast to other scenes, which were shot as many as seven times and took as much as four hours to set up and shoot (the longest scenes ran only three minutes), this one is perfect in only one take.

When it's over, the crew applauds. Then someone jokes, "Do you want to do it again with film in the camera?"

TIGHT SQUEEZE -- The space between the two boards simulates the space under a mobile home and in there are actors Perry Mallette (left, mostly hidden by light) and Chris Howe. When they disconnect the supposedly plugged pipe, Kurt Rauf (on top) will pour some glop down the pipe. At left is director Ron Teachworth. Setting up his camera is John Prusak.

LIKE THIS -- Chris Howe is supposed to be daydreaming in this scene, and Ron Teachworth tells him how he wants to play it.

Epilepsy is misunderstood

Literature and history have managed to make epilepsy—a rather common condition—a source of myth and misunderstanding.

Alexander the Great, Alfred Nobel, Dostoyevski suffered from it, as do two million Americans today—one out of a hundred.

Among the common myths about epilepsy is what causes it. It may be caused by anything that injures the brain—accidents, infections, tumors, birth injuries. But it's not genetically inherited and it's not contagious. Thus, it is not a disease, but a condition: a symptom of disturbed electrical activity in the brain.

If a person's brain is damaged, some of the 12 billion nerve cells may malfunction, disrupting the normally smooth-running pattern of electrical activity. The damaged cells "overload."

The result of this temporary overload is a seizure which causes some body activities to go awry. There's a sudden loss or disturbance of consciousness. The types of seizures range from convulsions to momentary lapses of attention.

There's no pain with the seizure, and usually no long-term after-effects. Many people who've had seizures, especially mild ones, are unaware they've had one.

Because damaged brain cells cannot be repaired, there's no cure for epilepsy.
