

OPENING DAY of the Cass City schools Tuesday was marked by students being driven to school and by pickets protesting the lack of busing and supporting a recall of some school board members. No major traffic problems were encountered.

Council hands the Control of truck load merchants unlikely

What can Cass City merchants do about persons who sell merchandise out of the back of a truck?

Apparently nothing. A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce attended the village council meeting Tuesday evening to ask if anything can be done.

"We would like to get your feeling on it as it has become a problem," explained chamber President Curt Strickland. So called transient merchants lately have been selling furniture, tools and knickknacks.

Dick Albee of Albee True Value Home Center commented "Most of them (merchants) are concerned they're paying taxes to improve the community and yet these people are coming in and conducting business and not doing any of these things and not putting anything back into the community."

"You can't prevent it," the village's attorney, Clinton House, responded. Laws that supersede any ordinances the council might pass allow the village to require transient merchants to buy a license and to insure that nothing illegal is being sold, "but you can't charge a fee that would prevent them from operating."

Council members, three of whom are merchants, were sympathetic, but felt their hands were tied.

That led Albee to exclaim, "I'm a little upset I didn't set up a tent. It would have been a h--- of a lot cheaper."

Village officials ultimately promised they will try to learn what any towns have done to regulate transient merchants -- so far, none has apparently been successful -- and the Chamber members will also try to learn what has been done elsewhere.

All that is done now if a transient merchant comes to town is that Police Chief Gene Wilson checks to make sure the merchant has a sales tax permit and permission of the owner of the property on which he will be displaying his wares.

GAME ROOMS

The Chamber delegation, which consisted of Strickland, Albee and attorney Kim David Glaspie, also asked if there can be any regulations of video game rooms.

The game room on Main Street between Seeger and Oak closed in early August. A new one opened recently on the block between Seeger and Leach.

The concern, Albee said, is making sure the game rooms are well run. Although no allegations have been made against the Cass City game rooms, he said, control ordinances enacted in other communities suggest problems can develop.

Police Chief Gene Wilson said the only severe problems with the first game room were internal -- broken machines, broken wall and theft of money from the management. The only public problems were with bicycles on the sidewalk and sometimes noise.

There weren't any situations for which local ordinances were inadequate to control them.

STREETS

No objections were made, so the council approved proceeding with building of curb and gutter on Pine Street between Seeger and Oak.

Property owners along the street will be assessed $6.05 per linear foot for the curb and gutter, which they will have three years to pay.

That work will be done this year. Village President Lambert Althaver said the council will aim at paving the street in 1983, but that will depend on the village's finances. After the meeting, he said paving the street would be at the top of the priority list next year.

Donald Ball of 5328 Main Street, who along with some other Main Street residents and business owners between West and Brook Streets have asked for paving of the alley behind their structures in the past, presented a new proposal to the council.

He asked if the property owners could pay to have the alley paved this year or next and then be reimbursed by the village the following year. Estimated cost of the paving would be $6,000. Such an arrangement was made when the alley behind the new Cass City State Bank was paved a few years ago.

"We have taken the position streets come before alleys," Village President Lambert Althaver said.

Council member Dorothy Stahlbaum expressed concern that if the council committed itself to paving the alley, "what happens if everybody wants their street done and there isn't money to do it?"

The council didn't commit itself, but told Ball he can check with all the property owners along the alley to determine if they want to pay in advance for paving it. He had only checked with some of them.

With no major traffic problems having been encountered opening day of school Tuesday, Rose Street in front of the intermediate and elementary school will remain two-way pending further study.

purchase of the former Wickes Elevator.

The bid of Michael C. Healy of 6309 Church Street of $350 for purchase of the storage building on the former Bauman property was accepted. It was the highest of seven bids received.

No bids were received for removal of the house on the property and leveling of the basement.

The council decided to accept new bids to be opened at the Sept. 28 meeting, but this time, bidders will only have to remove the house (by Dec. 31). Village workmen will level the basement.

At the July meeting, the council discussed whether the village should have a boiler and machinery insurance policy to cover accidental failures of village mechanical equipment, primarily at the new sewage plant.

Some council members didn't realize it until Tuesday, but the village had such a policy since July 1. It had been included when the insurance package was budgeted for this year, with the idea if the council didn't want it, it would be taken out. Then its inclusion was overlooked.

Tuesday, the council voted to cancel the policy since there is a warranty on equipment for the first year the plant is in operation and there is doubt insurance is needed since everything at the plant has a backup system in case of failure.

The council will reexamine whether the policy is needed next year.

The new sewage plant, completion of which had been delayed due to strikes, should be done in about a month, councilman James Ware reported. Final completion date is being negotiated.

The swimming pool in the village park will be open daytime hours only Saturday, Sunday and Monday before closing for the season.

Treasurer Joyce LaRoche reported 90.2 percent of village property taxes have been paid so far, versus 83.5 percent paid by the same date last year.

Recall sought of 3 Cass City board members

An effort has begun to recall three members of the Cass City School Board.

To be named on the recall petitions, according to Vic Beddow, one of the organizers, will be the board president, Dr. Edward Scollon, Geraldine Prieskorn and Ben Hobart.

The reason stated on the petitions will be failure to maintain school busing.

Beddow had wanted to include Dick Wallace until he found state law prohibits recall of public officials who have held office less than six months. Wallace was elected to the board in June. "We'll get him later," he said. "I don't think we'll forget him."

School board minutes were examined, Beddow explained, and it was decided Dr. E. Paul Lockwood, Thresa Burnette and Dick Albee had continuously questioned "anything done by (Supt. Donald) Crouse." "We feel the other four (Scollon, Prieskorn, Hobart and Wallace) are more sympathetic to Crouse than to the people."

Beddow added that he would prefer to avoid a recall -- "I don't want this stigma over this city." -- and that the three named on the petitions would be asked first to resign.

The first official step in the recall procedure came Monday when Beddow requested Tuscola County Clerk Elsie Hicks to determine the number of signatures needed on petitions in order to force a recall election. She now has until Friday to do so.

He doesn't expect the petitions to be ready for the gathering of signatures until the middle of next week.

He and his wife, Shirley, who hosted a meeting Aug. 22 of citizens concerned about the termination of busing, have hired Marlette attorney William Drillock to prepare the petitions.

He said he had lots of offers of financial assistance, but he and his wife are paying all the expenses because he doesn't want it to appear they are gaining financially from the recall effort.

Beddow also said he has plenty of volunteers to circulate petitions and several supporters of the recall effort have indicated willingness to run for the school board should the recall succeed.

The opening day of school Tuesday, opponents of the busing shutdown picketed the schools and met later in the park to plan strategy. One of the aims of the picketing, he explained, was to show "that we do have support."

As an additional protest, some including Beddow and his wife plan to keep their children home from school this week, but then have them start school Tuesday of next week. (Monday is Labor Day.) "We don't want to deprive any kids of their education," he said.

Attendance Tuesday was 87 percent of the anticipated enrollment, according to Crouse. Normal absentee rate is about 7 percent.

Beddow is confident enough signatures will be obtained to force a recall election. "I guarantee we will get more than we need."

Recall also underway in Ubyly district

The organizer of a petition drive to recall five members of the Ubyly School Board isn't opposed to the two-mill increase earmarked for restoration of busing that will be voted on in October.

Hugh Roberts not only supports it, he feels the only way it will pass is if the Ubyly School District gets a new board of education, that persons won't vote for it as long as the present board members hold office because they don't trust them.

The Minden City resident began gathering signatures at Friday night's board meeting, at which the board voted to try again to get two mills approved for busing.

Named on the recall petitions are Bernard Puvawski, the board president, Julia Heilig, Arthur Jahn, Allan Moses and Clarence Rutkowski.

The two new board members elected in June, Kenneth Dekoski and Alfred Grifka, aren't named on the recall petitions, Roberts explained, because he was told there is a legal prohibition against recalling public officials who have been in office less than six months.

The petitions list three reasons why the recall is being sought: Refusal by the board to answer questions at board meetings, refusal to bus students and no financial statement being released.

Heated meeting draws 400

Ubyly to try again for busing millage

By Mike Eliason

In front of approximately 400 spectators and after heated comments from some of them, the Ubyly Board of Education voted Friday night to seek an additional two mills for two years earmarked exclusively for busing.

UBLY SCHOOL Supt. David Landeryou faced and responded to a lot of accusations at Friday's school board meeting.

The biggest ovation of the evening came after Terry Haupt of Minden City asked school district Business Manager Mark Tenbusch what the school's total payroll was.

Tenbusch responded that it was about $1.2 million.

Haupt then proclaimed that if everyone were given a 10 percent pay cut, there would be enough money to run the buses without a millage increase and if any employees didn't like it, there were lots of other persons willing to take their place.

Amid the loud applause, someone yelled, "Better than unemployment." (A full busing program will require $175,000; two mills will raise about $140,000.) If noise were the criteria, that was the majority opinion among those who squeezed into the old high school gymnasium, but it wasn't the only opinion.

THE LONGEST RUNNING argument during the 2½-hour meeting was whether the board should put the buses back on the road Monday, if it scheduled another millage vote, in anticipation that it would pass. If the levy lost, then they would be pulled off the road.

Supt. David Landeryou, who faced a lot of flak directed at him during the meeting, said the earliest the millage vote can be scheduled is after Oct. 15. Board President Bernard Puvawski also took a lot of heat from persons demanding he poll the board so that each member would say how they felt about putting the buses on the road before the millage vote.

He refused, saying that each could do so on their own if they wanted to, but he wouldn't force them to.

If silence is an opinion, then the board's opinion was no buses until voters approve a millage to pay for it.

One board member who did express her opinion was Julia Heilig. "If I put the buses on the road Monday, there is no guarantee we will have the money come October," she said. "I see no reason to change my vote."

A member of the audience, Judy Glaza of Ubyly, supported Mrs. Heilig's reasoning. "How are they (the public) going to vote if they put the buses on the road Monday," she declared. "They (the public) are going to say it's a big bluff and vote 'no.'"

ONE OF THE CRITICISMS expressed at the meeting was that the 2-mill levy for two years defeated Aug. 18 was listed for operations. The board never voted that it would all go for busing, only that busing would be dropped if the measure lost.

The new measure, the board voted Friday, will be specially earmarked for busing.

Although teachers agreed to a pay freeze in 1982-83 when they approved a new contract last spring, they are to receive an 8½ percent pay increase in each of the following two years.

Those that argued that they should receive a pay cut ultimately drew the ire of Landeryou, who was also criticized for still driving a school owned car (provided for in his contract) while buses were parked.

He compared the pay received by Ubyly teachers ($20,004 for top of the scale plus benefits) with that received by teachers in surrounding districts.

"Our teachers make less than any teachers in the surrounding area. Our teachers are not overpaid."

As for complaints about his salary ($34,500) and his car, he said he takes phone calls "if not all day, half the night," from parents and also spends a lot of time talking to board members.

"Yes, you can take the car away from me, but I'm telling you those benefits I have are part of the job I have and are necessary," he said. That drew a big round of applause.

THE TWO BASIC VIEWPOINTS debated at the meeting were expressed early in the meeting.

David Blaine of Ruth said to the board that defeat of the last five millage proposals in the district "should tell you they (the public) don't want to pay more responsibility." EARLIER, LANDERYOU had explained the board's decision to eliminate busing without a millage increase.

In anticipation of declining revenue, the board had laid off 31 employees, including 16 teachers and a counselor. Despite that, the school district still finished the last year. "The food on this table is education. Transportation is people's responsibility."

Making further cuts in order to fund busing would reduce education to rock bottom, he continued. "If you want this to be a day care center, say so." For a decent education, "It's going to take two mills. It's our responsibility."

Later in the meeting, Huron County Intermediate School District Supt. James McBride told the audience

VERBAL EXCHANGE -- The conversation between Ubyly School Board member Julia Heilig and Terry Haupt of Minden City became quite heated at one point during Friday night's board meeting. Haupt said put the buses on the road Monday; Mrs. Heilig argued that was no guarantee the millage needed to run them would pass.

Small world department. Stan Guinther of General Cable was in Dallas on business recently. While circulating in the lobby of one of Big D's hotels he ran into a Texas transplant.

It was Howard Bacon, former Walbro vice-president, who left several years ago for an executive position with a Texas firm. While in Cass City the Bacons and the Guinthers were cross-the-alley neighbors.

The George Kings left on a vacation last week end, got as far as Gaylord, ran into about 25-degree weather, threw in the towel and came home.

If that's not looking for the silver lining, it will do until the right thing comes along.

Not everyone that attended the meeting Sunday to discuss the busing situation at the school was there to plan for a busing only campaign.

Some were there to learn more about the situation, said Delores Garety, when she was in the office to submit a letter to the editor that appears in this issue. Judging by the letter, the Garety's were among the group seeking information.

Labor Day, Monday, means that the paper loses an important production day. The Chronicle will be closed Monday and all advertising and news deadlines are advanced for next Thursday's edition.

Fritz Olson was chatting informally about the price of cigarettes today. Olson is retired from Trend Vendors now and his business is run by son, John.

Fritz has been in Cass City nine years. When he started, cigarettes sold for 35 cents a pack. Today they sell for $1.00. About 80 percent of that increase comes from increases by the manufacturer and about 20 percent from increased taxes, Fritz estimates.

Accidental shooting victim in fair condition

John W. Smithers, 50, of 1140 Huron Line Road, Ubyly, was reported in fair condition Tuesday afternoon at Hills and Dales General Hospital after having accidentally shot himself.

He told Cass City police he had cleaned his hand gun about 9 p.m. Monday, then reloaded it and put in on his bed.

He then went to watch television. When he got into bed later he forgot the gun was there and it discharged.

As there was no one else home, he drove himself to the hospital. The incident was reported to police at 11:20 p.m.

Arrest brother for stabbing

Ken Brooks, 29, of 4995 Innes Road, Lamotte Township, was treated and released from Marlette Community Hospital after he was stabbed in the shoulder early Saturday in his home.

His brother, Richard L. Brooks, 22, of 2793 Lamotte Street, Marlette, was arrested by Sandusky state police following the incident and charged with felonious assault. He was lodged in the Huron County Jail in Bad Axe because there wasn't room in the Sanilac County Jail.

Brooks, who was arrested in his brother's home, was arraigned Monday before Sanilac District Judge Richard P. Riordan, who scheduled preliminary examination Sept. 7.

He was also arraigned on misdemeanor charges of indecent exposure and possession of marijuana, not necessarily connected to the stabbing incident, and will be tried on those charges Sept. 7.

Caro State police said the stabbing incident, done with a knife, stemmed from an argument concerning a female relative.

Elmwood Township reduces millage

The Elmwood Township Board Aug. 18 voted to roll back the township millage levy in compliance with the state truth in taxation law so that township coffers won't gain from an increase in valuation.

The rollback will cost the township about $3,000 in property tax revenue.

Also at the meeting, several Green Road residents expressed concern about proposed rebuilding of their road between Cass City and Hoppe Roads, a distance of two miles.

It was arranged for them to meet the next day with officials of the county Road Commission, who further explained what is proposed.

Their main concerns, according to township Clerk Joanne Sattelberg, was cutting of trees and that the front yards would be reduced.

The proposed rebuilding includes ditching, which would require removal of some trees, but not as many as the residents originally thought, Mrs. Sattelberg said.

The township board will decide at its Oct. 20 meeting whether to have the Road Commission do the project. If it decides to go ahead, according to the clerk, the work won't be done until next year.

Also at the meeting, the board approved two Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act (Public Act 116) agreements.

Emily's "smart" list

By Jim Fitzgerald

"I'm making a list of all the smart things Emily can do," Grandma said.

Emily is almost 11 months old. Recently she spent her first week end alone with her maternal grandparents, with neither parent present to prevent rampant spoiling. Grandma prepared for this most auspicious visit by vacuuming and scrubbing every rug and carpet in sight. This struck Grandpa as dumb.

"I understand why you always houseclean completely before adults come for dinner," he said. "There is always the terrifying possibility that a sister-in-law will see dust while eating roast beef under the washing machine. But I really don't think you have to worry about a tiny baby thinking you are a lousy housekeeper."

"I can't wait until she learns how to swim so I can watch you wash the water in the swimming pool," Grandpa said. It wasn't one of his better ripostes because his heart wasn't really in it. He also didn't want sweet, precious little Emily soiled by any icky yucky old dirt. When it comes to being a cliché grandparent, Grandpa is almost as big a boob as Grandma.

It was for posterity that Grandma listed all signs of incredible intelligence demonstrated by Emily during her visit. "I'll give the list to your mummy and she can put it in your baby book," Grandma explained to Emily as the kid nodded her head understandingly while at the same time reaching for the section of the New York Times with the crossword puzzle in it.

And Grandpa, eavesdropping, felt a little twinge of sadness. Such twinges are common when the grandchildren are around. He can't remember whether he and his wife compiled baby books for their children. It has been 24 years since their last baby, and there is so much he had forgotten. Watching a grandchild perform, Grandma often says, "Remember when Eddie did that..." But Grandpa can't remember, no matter how hard he tries, and the failure makes him sad.

He remembers how much he enjoyed his babies, but few details. At what age did they first crawl and walk and talk? He has no idea. How did they behave the first day they went to school? He can't remember. Did they used to stick their tiny fingers into his ears, the way Emily does today? Not that he can remember. So many good times are gone forever, beyond recall, and he feels cheated by his poor memory.

Grandpa worries that maybe he didn't pay close enough attention all those years ago. Determined not to make the same mistake again, he watched Emily closely during her first solo visit. He rediscovered the pure joy of nuzzling a freshly bathed baby and the peaceful comfort of slipping into a dark room late at night to watch a sleeping baby breathe. He even contributed an item to Grandma's list of smart things done by Emily — "clapped her hands when Tiger game was switched off TV." And he spent so much time watching her play on the clean carpet he didn't finish reading Friday's newspaper until Sunday night.

There was one slight lapse. Just out of the bathtub, Emily was nude on a blanket on the floor, Grandpa was instructed to keep his eye on her while Grandma stopped something from burning in the kitchen. He said it would be a pleasure. Emily always flails her arms and legs wildly and laughs loudly when she is undressed, and Grandpa thinks this might be the most delightful sight he has ever seen. But he was mentally distracted for a second, trying vainly to remember if any of his babies had ever flailed in the nude.

Until it was too late, he didn't notice that Emily had crawled onto the clean carpet and made it doubly impossible for Grandma to list that one of the smart things Emily can do is wait until she gets to the next gas station.

Encore: One item Grandma could have listed, but didn't get the chance, was that one of the smart things Emily can do is eat the list of smart things she can do.

What's right about town and what's wrong around town? Listen.

QUESTION: All schools are in a serious financial bind today. Is this a temporary phenomenon that will be cured when economic conditions improve?

ANSWER: Certainly when the state has more money, things will be better than they are today. The cutback in state aid is one of the reasons for the current problem state-wide. I really can't see any fundamental change in the way schools operate on the horizon.

The majority of the persons paying the bills want extracurricular activities, a curriculum that includes more than just reading, writing and arithmetic, and on-the-job training for various vocations.

The big change I can see in the next 5 to 10 years is the attitude towards spending. Before the current crunch, the emphasis was on more and more with only a casual thought of the increasing school budgets. It will be awhile before that kind of atmosphere prevails again.

One of the problems that is destined to be with us now and in the future is union-management labor relations.

QUESTION: There are a few empty buildings on Main Street today. Does that mean that Cass City and towns like it are on the way out as business centers?

ANSWER: Not if history repeats itself. Several times in the last three decades we've gone through periods with empty stores, with the accompanying concern among all of us with our futures tied to the community.

Each time, after the temporary lull, the town has come back bigger and stronger. That doesn't mean that it will today. In the long run what will tell the tale is the services we offer as a community that will make us attractive to the persons who provide the jobs that mean prosperity.

QUESTION: Speaking of jobs, hasn't the job climate picked up recently?

ANSWER: You betcha. General Cable has been hiring for the last month and Walbro has been recalling employees at a rapid rate. That's good news for all of us.

Lower interest rates the start of economic recovery or the start of a new round of inflation?

ANSWER: If I knew the answer to that, I wouldn't be wasting my time writing this column.

NURSIE KLOC, Clerk

Retired together June 18

Seeleys adjust to leisure life

Being retired means not having to watch the clock or carry a lunch bucket. According to Earney Seeley, that is a relief. Seeley, 64, and his wife, Clara, 60, both retired from the Caro Regional Center after a combined total of 30 years of service at the state facility. They both retired June 18, she as a switchboard operator and receptionist, he from a janitorial job in the administration building. Now with all their time, they plan on doing more visiting and hopefully some more traveling.

Their one daughter, Carol Ehrlich and her husband Bill live in Gagetown. The Ehrlichs have a son, Billy, 11, that the Seeleys like to spend time with. "We will be spending more time with our grandson," said Mrs. Seeley, "plus we will want to catch up with visiting relatives in the area." Seeley has six brothers and sisters in the area, some of whom he has not seen in a long time. "My one brother lives right here at the end of the road, and sometimes I go three or four months without talking to him."

The reason he didn't often see them was the Seeleys worked the evening shift from 2:30-11:30. By the time they went to work, most of the people they knew were already at work, and when they came home, people were already in bed, Seeley said.

THEY WOULD LIKE TO do some traveling now that they have the time. "For the last seven years, we have gone to Florida for three weeks, and sometimes to Texas to see friends," said Mrs. Seeley. "We would like to do more traveling in the United States or even just through Michigan. We like to take short trips."

Along with their short-term plans, the Seeleys, who have been married 42 years, are also making some long-term plans for their future. "We would like to build another house," Seeley said. "A smaller house next door." The Seeleys own 14 acres of land on which their home at 4659 Schwegler Road is located. They have lived in that house for the last nine years.

Before their present home, they lived in six other homes, three they built themselves, and three they bought and then remodeled, according to Seeley.

"But for right now, we are happy with working on this house and the yard," Mrs. Seeley said.

THEY ALSO ENJOY THE wildlife in their backyard. Deer come from the woods around their house and drink water from the pond in the backyard and there are always birds at the feeders on the back patio.

Seeley likes to go deer hunting but his retirement will have little effect on how much time he has for the sport. "I never miss a day of deer season."

There has been a period of adjustment since their departure from the Regional Center. "We have finally worked out a system," Mrs. Seeley said. "Our lives are more relaxed now. We miss the people we worked with and enjoyed the evening shift. Now though, we enjoy it when people just drop in to visit, which they could not do before."

"I just hope our health holds out," she added. "I am just very happy with the way it is right now," Seeley said.

NO TIME CLOCKS -- That is the best part of being retired, according to Mr. and Mrs. Earney Seeley. They retired together from the Caro Regional Center June 18.

Charge Caro driver after car crash

A Caro man was charged by sheriff's deputies with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (second offense) and driving with license suspended following a 6:45 p.m. accident Aug. 24 southeast of Cass City.

Arrested was Donald R. Budreau, 46, of 141 First Street, who refused treatment from Cass City Area Ambulance Service personnel.

He posted bond and was released from the county jail the following day, pending arraignment Sept. 7 before District Judge Richard F. Kern.

Deputies reported he was eastbound on Severance Road and his car went off the south side of the road into the ditch, just east of Crawford Road, and traveled 30 feet before coming to a halt.

Two passengers were reported to have received possible injuries and were apparently examined by the ambulance personnel.

Robert A. Mullin, 66, of Caro, sought his own treatment for injuries following a 12:30 p.m. accident Friday.

Deputies reported he was northbound on Hurds Corner Road, north of Gilford Road, when he steered toward the shoulder to avoid a bump in the road. His truck then hit a soft spot and slid into the ditch along the east side of the road.

Marc E. Southworth, 19, of Mayville, was ticketed by Caro state police on a charge of violation of the basic speed law (too fast for conditions) following a Saturday accident.

Troopers reported he was northbound on Jacob Road, south of Gerou Road, in Ellington Township. He told officers a deer ran onto the road and he locked his brakes trying to avoid hitting it.

His car went off the right side of the road and rolled over, damaging the lawn and flower garden of H.W. Campbell, 2550 Jacob Road.

Two rearview mirrors collided in an accident at 4:38 p.m. Friday.

Deputies reported that Lawrence M. Sanback, 24, of Vassar, was westbound on Gilford Road, west of Colling Road, and Theodore W. Begeman, 41, of 1670 Dodge Road, Deford, was eastbound.

Both of their vehicles had extended left side rearview mirrors for use when pulling trailers. The vehicles were too close, and the mirrors collided.

Two cars collided at 11 a.m. Aug. 24 in the parking lot adjacent to the Pinney State Bank.

Cass City police said both Nellie Muntz, 84, of 6299 Bay City-Forestville Road, and William K. King, 59, of 2225 Clothier Road, Deford, were backing up. King then started to turn and backed into the left side of the Muntz auto.

Martha Emmons of 51 Bay City-Forestville Road told village police last Wednesday afternoon that a hit and run motorist damaged the right rear corner of her car while it was parked all day in the lot between Oak and Seeger Streets, south of the south alley.

Handicapped can reduce their taxes

Handicapped and disabled persons and their families should be aware of a special publication that highlights how they can reduce their taxes, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS has a free booklet, Publication 907, "Tax Information for Handicapped and Disabled Individuals," which covers subjects of particular interest to the disabled or handicapped and their families.

This publication, for example, explains how individuals can:

- Exclude certain disability payments from income
- Claim a $1,000 exemption for blindness.
- Deduct medical expenses.
- Claim a credit for disabled dependent care expenses; and how a business can:
- Claim a credit for hiring handicapped employees.
- Take a business deduction for the cost of removing architectural and transportation barriers for easier access by the handicapped.

In addition, the publication gives general tax information on such topics as what kind of income is taxable, and certain additional exemptions, deductions and credits and how to claim them.

To get a copy of this publication, contact the IRS.

Pedaling Around Movie making

By Mike Eliasohn

If I had a choice, I would rather write about the making of a movie starring Pia Zadora. (The rest of my fantasy I can't put in a family newspaper.)

Chances are, the only movie being made I will ever write about is "Going Back," which will probably be the only movie to be shot "on location" around here.

Despite the lack of Pia Zadora, it was interesting doing the story. Since I couldn't get everything in my story that ran last week, I thought I would add a little information in this space.

For the actors, making a movie involves more sitting than acting. While the crew is getting the cameras positioned, putting the props in the right places, etc., the actors sit and-or study their lines.

Once everything is ready, the actors may have to do the scene several times before the director decides everything is right.

The longest any single scene ran was three minutes, but it could take as much as four hours and seven takes before it was done right.

Being a low budget operation, that was all it took. I read some place that some perfectionist Hollywood directors have actors do a scene as much as 35 times.

What was filmed each day was seen late the next day. Someone took each day's film to Detroit to be developed and brought back the previous day's already developed film.

I didn't see any of the rushes (the developed film). Hopefully I will get to see the finished product.

Ron Teachworth, the director-writer-financier etc., seemed to look kindly on the idea of some day showing his movie here, so hopefully, everyone here who wants to see it will be able to.

Maybe he will also show it at the Cass City Cinema. There is such a place in Detroit. Actually, it's a church on Cass Avenue - hence the name - and movies are shown there. I think, just on week ends, either old ones, foreign ones and-or ones of specialized appeal.

The actor who played the old man, Perry Mallette, said when he told friends in Detroit he was going to make a movie in Cass City, they asked what there is to film there, thinking that he was going to make a movie at the church.

The last part of the film was shot first. The reason is that the two young men in the story, having gone through college in the 1960s, had more hair than when they started and when they went back to the old man's farm, it was overgrown with weeds.

After the last part was filmed, the young actors had their excess hair cut off and the farm yard was mowed, then the rest of the movie was shot.

When I asked Teachworth how much the movie was costing him to make, he said he hadn't added up the bills yet.

The Aug. 23 Detroit Free Press article said he estimated the cost at $35,000-50,000, plus $15,000-20,000 later to convert the film from 16mm to 35mm.

The reason the Free Press knew about Teachworth's movie is because he is a friend of Lona O'Connor, who wrote the article, and the wife of Free Press photographer Taro Yamasaki, who took the photographs for the article, was the lone actress in the movie. Teachworth is also a friend of the Yamasakis.

Unfortunately, I never met Ms. O'Connor or Taro Yamasaki while they were here. It's always nice to "talk shop" with one's fellow professionals.

I especially would have liked to have met Yamasaki, who won a Pulitzer Prize for the photo-story series he did in the Free Press on what life is like inside Jackson state prison.

I've never met a Pulitzer Prize winner before. Of course, I've never met Pia Zadora either.

90-year-old Hendrick recalls dark depression days on farm

Times may be tough, but compared to the Depression, they're not so bad, according to Theo Hendrick.

"This is nothing compared to what we had at that time," he said.

Hendrick will be 90 years old Friday and has lived his entire life on his Cedar Run Road farm, which dates back to 1866. It was during the Depression of the 1930s that he came very close to losing that farm.

To celebrate his birthday, his four daughters and their families are hosting an open house from 2-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at his home, about 1.3 miles south of M-81 on Cedar Run, 3 1/2 miles east of Cass City. His home is the first brick one south of M-81. He does not want any gifts.

Hendrick, whose given name is Theodore, was born Sept. 3, 1892, in a log house on the farm, which had been settled by his grandfather in 1866. His father was 11 years old when the family moved there from Ohio.

The family moved from the log house to the brick one where he lives now in 1903. He lived there until he and his wife, Effie, were married in 1915, when they built a small house on the farm. Mrs. Hendrick died in 1968.

HENDRICK WAS A farmer until 1936. "The Depression broke me," he explained, "I had to quit farming."

Farmers then were getting 80 cents a hundredweight for the milk and 12 cents a dozen for their eggs.

That sounds incredibly cheap, but wages were also very low. Hendrick recalled hiring a man once to help him dig potatoes, for which he paid him 50 cents a day.

The man was regularly employed by another farmer, who paid him $15 a month, plus milk, eggs and use of a house.

It wasn't just low prices that led to Hendrick's demise as a farmer. "Another thing that helped break me during the Depression was my barn burned in 1935 and my bean crop and hay was in it."

Hendrick rented out the farm land after he was forced out of farming, keeping only two cows, and got a job working as a janitor at the school in Cass City. (Now the intermediate building, at that time it housed all grades and was the school district's only building.) His own education ended with the eighth grade at Cedar Run School.

Still, Hendrick almost lost the farm. What saved him after he had to quit farming was a state law that said lenders couldn't foreclose as long as the purchaser was still paying taxes on the property and interest on the mortgage.

But in 1940, the legislature didn't renew the law and Hendrick couldn't afford to pay off the mortgage. It was the president of the school board, John Sandham, who saved the farm. Hendrick asked him for a loan. Instead, Sandham bought the farm from the Federal Land Bank Association, then resold it to Hendrick on a land contract. By the time he retired as a janitor in 1951, "I had it paid for."

IT WAS IN 1940, THAT Hendrick and his family moved back into the brick house, to be with his parents, in order to take care of his mother, Fannie, who had broken her hip. She died in 1944, two years after her husband, Orson, passed away.

It was in 1940 that the home was finally wired for electricity. Electric lines had been installed in the area three years earlier, but the elder Mrs. Hendrick didn't want electricity in her home.

After she broke her hip, the doctor wanted to X-ray it, but she was unable to go to the hospital. In order for him to bring in a portable X-ray machine, Hendrick had the house wired - everywhere except in his mother's room. He had a plug installed just outside in the hallway.

Although Hendrick bought his first car about 1925, a used Buick (he never bought a new car until 1950) and had a tractor before World War II (many farmers didn't get them until after), he feels that electricity is the greatest innovation he has seen in his almost 90 years.

After he retired as a school janitor, he worked for his son-in-law in the plumbing business for three years and then at the Mac and Leo gas station in town for about six months before retiring.

After that, he did some house painting and carpentry work for a while.

HENDRICK HAS FOUR daughters, 16 grandchildren, 46 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. His daughters are Isabelle Whittenburg, who with her husband, Don, lives with him; Irene (Mrs. Ivan) Tracy, who lives next door; Ruth (Mrs. George) Fisher, Cass City, and Phyllis (Mrs. Sherwell) Kelly, New Boston.

A sister, Fannie Finkbeiner, 87, lives in Owendale. She was the youngest of 10 children and he was the second youngest. They are the only ones still living.

Except for having to use two canes to walk, Hendrick is in good health. He has perfect eyesight, "one thing BIRTHDAY -- Theo Hendrick, who will be 90 Friday, is proud of his centennial farm, where he has lived all his life. It was started by his grandfather in 1866.

"I'm thankful for."

He loves to read, especially western novels. His favorite author is Louis L'Amour. The day before the Chronicle interview, he had read all of one L'Amour's books.

He bought the complete set of books by another Western author, Zane Gray, "but there was too much cussing (in the books). I didn't like that."

Hendrick also likes to do crossword puzzles and play various games and puzzles, such as Scrabble and Dominoes. (One puzzle he gave up on after getting only one side right was Rubik's Cube.)

He watches the news on television and a few programs, but isn't an avid watcher.

HENDRICK STILL drives a car, including to church (Sutton-Sunshine United Methodist), once a month to the American Association of Retired Persons meeting in Cass City and to his doctor once a month.

He also likes to drive back into his fields to check on the crops. He once owned 100 acres and now has 65, which is rented out.

Hendrick says there is an advantage to getting old. "Some people say it's not good to get old, but I enjoy parts of it."

One part that he enjoys is reading. When he was working, he explained, he didn't have much time for it.

Free cheese distribution
Sept. 9

The Human Development Commission (HDC) will conduct a surplus cheese distribution Thursday, Sept. 9, at 10 a.m. at the Elkland Township Fire Hall on Church Street, Cass City, 3 1/2 blocks east of Seeger Street.

The cheese will be distributed until the supply is exhausted.

All households who are receiving a form of public assistance, such as ADC, General Assistance, food stamps, SSI or Medicaid, are eligible to receive cheese.

Households who are not receiving any of these types of public assistance, but who have received services through the Human Development Commission are also eligible to get cheese. Also persons living on fixed incomes or unemployment benefits might be eligible, in accordance with Federal Poverty Income Guidelines.

Individuals must report to the distribution site in person and show proper identification or documentation of eligibility. Persons who are unable physically to go there may have someone pick up their cheese ONLY if proper identification is shown.

Only one household member may receive cheese during the distribution. Persons receiving cheese in the past can receive it again if they still meet eligibility requirements.

The surplus cheese has been made available to the HDC, the community action agency serving Huron, Lapeer, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties, from the federal government and is intended for personal consumption by low-income and needy families.

According to Mary Ann Vandemark, HDC executive director, this distribution is the third one for HDC and will involve a total of 26,000 pounds for the four-county area, with approximately 6,500 pounds being available to each county.

Deputies' union wants arbitration in pay negotiations

The Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), which represents employees of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, has asked for binding arbitration to settle its salary dispute with the county.

Employees July 1 began the second year of their contract with the county, a provision of which called for negotiating new salaries for the second year.

According to Caro attorney Thomas Abbey, hired by the county Board of Commissioners as its negotiator, the last meeting of the two sides took place Aug. 13 with a state mediator present, but the wage issue remained unresolved.

The FOP is seeking a 5 percent pay increase, he said, while the county board wants a wage freeze, that is, a continuation of 1981-82 pay scales. The board imposed a wage freeze on department heads for this year and the union representing courthouse employees accepted a freeze in their contract.

The FOP made the request last week to the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) for binding arbitration.

Abbey said the county can file a response, but there is "no such thing as an objection to it (arbitration), they're entitled to it by state law."

MERC sends both sides a list of potential arbitrators, who are not employees of the state agency, and the one appointed must be agreeable to both.

The county and FOP must split the bill for the arbitrator's services and must accept whatever he decides.

The FOP represents 10

sheriff's department officers and 40-45 deputies, clerks, matrons, etc.

The union is requesting binding arbitration for all of them. According to Abbey, there is a question to be resolved whether it can apply to all the employees or only to certified officers.

First baby born in birthing room

HEALTH TIPS

Children's behavior gives clue to vision problems

Hills and Dales General Hospital's new birthing room was used for the first time last Wednesday when John Maynard II was born.

The son of John and Jennifer Maynard of Decker was born at 10:29 p.m. and weighed nine pounds, six ounces.

Faith Fahrner, RN, the obstetrics supervisor, said Mrs. Maynard had given birth to her first child in the regular delivery room. "She said this one was definitely much better."

According to Mrs. Fahrner, Mrs. Maynard said she was more relaxed and comfortable this time and liked not having to be transferred to another room immediately after delivery.

Use of the new birthing bed enables the mother to labor, deliver and recover in the same room, plus she can deliver her baby in a sitting up position, which is more natural and comfortable. Curtains, wall hangings, a lounge chair and other fixtures give the room a more homelike and therefore relaxed atmosphere.

The hospital still has a conventional delivery room for mothers who prefer it or when two mothers are giving birth at the same time.

Children have a secret code for sending out messages about how well they are seeing but parents and teachers can crack it.

"Most children with vision problems think everyone sees the way they do," said Dr. John P. Fitzpatrick, president of the Michigan Optometric Association. "But their behavior often gives clues parents and teachers can spot."

Always sitting close to the television set can be a sign of nearsightedness. So can a preference for reading or other close work over outdoor or sports activities requiring good distance vision.

The reverse — preferring active play to close work — may be a sign of a near vision problem. So is frowning, scowling or placing the head close to the book or desk while reading or writing.

Closing or covering one eye or turning the head to use one eye only could mean vision is much better in one eye than the other.

Losing the place while reading, using a finger or marker as a guide, or omitting, repeating and miscellaneizing words may be signs of eye tracking or eye coordination problem.

After the second grade, children who persistently reverse words, have difficulty identifying and reproducing basic geometric forms, or confuse similar words may have vision perception problems.

A thorough optometric examination annually is a good way to be sure children have the vision they need for learning.

"Don't rely on school vision screenings," Dr. Fitzpatrick said. "They won't detect many children's vision problems."

The average dollar bill in circulation will last about 18 months.

WALKING NAKED by Nina Bawden (fiction). The story takes place in the span of one day, a Saturday, when novelist Laura encounters several of the important people in her life, each individual either causing her to remember a certain phase of her existence or reminding her of the many capacities in which she functions . . . as a wife, mother, daughter, friend, and overlaying all, a writer.

A WOMAN OF HER TIMES by G.J. Scrimgeour (fiction). A sweeping saga that moves from exotic Ceylon to pre-World War II Hollywood. Elizabeth is a beautiful young woman who cares for no one and nothing except herself. Then her husband's womanizing and her daughter's selfish behavior force Elizabeth into a series of choices that lead her to a life, not only of independence, but of commitment and meaning.

CHILD STRESS by Mary Susan Miller (non-fiction). Examines stress and stressors as they exist in the lives of children today, from birth through adolescence. The author probes into the different ways in which children respond to stress and stressful situations, and offers concrete suggestions to parents and teachers ways in which they can help children handle stress and ways in which they can avoid creating it.

Although CF is still the leading genetic cause of death among children, the average life expectancy is now the early 20s.

The greatest health problems from the disease are caused by increased lung damage from repeated infections and by malnutrition from inadequate digestion of food. With early diagnosis and daily therapy and medications, the quality and length of a child's life is improved.

Congress has established Sept. 19-25 as Cystic Fibrosis Week nationwide.

Krystal Isa entering Alma College

Freshmen entering Alma College in the fall of 1982 will be members of the Class of 1986, the class which will graduate during Alma's centennial year.

Included is Krystal Isa, a Cass City High School graduate and the daughter of Michael and Karla Isa of 7776 E. Cass City Road.

The 310 freshmen Alma expects to enroll in the fall far exceed the 34 students who registered when Alma's doors first opened Sept. 12, 1887. The college was founded by Presbyterians in 1886.

A 10-day freshman pre-term orientation, from Aug. 28 through Sept. 7, precedes the start of classes Sept. 8.

Your Neighbor says Legislation to control foreign cars needed

The United Auto Workers is promoting "local content" legislation that would require foreign auto makers who sell more than 100,000 cars in the United States annually to utilize at least 25 percent U.S. labor in manufacturing each car.

Virgil Faust thinks such legislation is a good idea. Many American cars use some foreign-made parts, he said, so why not require foreign ones to use some American made parts. (Ford Escorts, for instance, which are made in Michigan, use Japanese built transmissions.)

Better than a local content law, however, would be, "Quit buying them (foreign cars), that's the main thing."

American workers, he feels, should buy American made cars. "If they make their living in the U.S., then they should buy their products."

Faust also supports the idea of limiting the number of foreign cars that could be sold in this country.

Why do persons buy foreign cars? Price is one reason, he said.

Car sales would increase, he continued, if they weren't so expensive. "I'd never pay the price they pay for an American car. I'd buy a junker and fix it up."

Faust drives a 1973 Oldsmobile, purchased used four years ago, which has 180,000 miles on the odometer. He does all the repair work himself and the biggest job he has had to do is replace the engine timing chain.

He thinks American cars are more costly than they need to be. "They ain't got half the metal they used to have. Why are they so expensive?"

Faust and his wife, Mary Ann, live on Hadley Road, Cass City, and have three children and "quite a few" grandchildren.

Faust started Faust Rebuilding Service (generators, alternators, starters), now run by his son, Dennis, then began rebuilding auto mobile starter solenoids, a operation which he is going to have his son take over.

Viney truck is recovered

A stake truck stolen in June from Joe Viney of 3665 Cemetery Road, Cass City, was found Tuesday, Aug. 24, southwest of Kingston.

Herman Chantiny of Reid Road, south of Harmon Lake Road, called Caro state police at 3:30 p.m. that day to report someone had left the truck on a lane on his farm earlier that afternoon.

The truck was traced to Viney, who had last seen it on state land about two miles west of M-24 near Wahjamega. He used the truck in his wood cutting operation.

Cass City police arrested two persons in the early hours of Friday morning. Alan G. McCoy, 30, of Lansing, was arrested on charges of trespassing and disorderly conduct after refusing to leave The Station tavern on Main Street after being asked to do so by the management.

Terrance R. Bucholtz, 25, of 5163 Koepfgen Road, was arrested on charges of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor and no operator's license after his pickup truck was stopped on Seeger Street, north of Pine Street.

Both men were taken to the county jail but no further information was available as of Tuesday.

Louis Nemeth of 6305 Main Street told village police Friday that two airline tickets for a flight from Detroit to Tucson, Ariz., had been stolen some time since March from his home.

He hadn't noticed the tickets, purchased in advance to take advantage of lower fares, were missing until the day before he reported it.

Gary Goslin of Unionville told Cass City police Monday that someone had swung a car door into his car door, which dented it, and bent over the hood ornament on his car while it was parked in the lot at Pine and Leach Streets.

Accident leads to lawsuit

A lawsuit involving an accident near Cass City, originally filed in Saginaw County Circuit Court, has been transferred to Tuscola County Circuit Court.

The change of venue was sought by the attorney for the defendant, William E. Zeidler of Huron Line Road, Cass City.

The plaintiffs are Clarence and Diane Palach of Ruth.

The accident took place May 21, 1979. The suit claims Zeidler, who was driving north on Koepfgen Road, disregarded the stop sign at Bay City-Forestville Road, and then collided with the westbound auto driven by Palach.

Palach claims "pain and discomfort to the indefinite future" and his wife claims loss of companionship and consortium of her husband.

They ask for "such damages as a jury shall determine to be fair and just . . . plus interest from the date of injury and costs and attorney fees."

FINAL DIVE — The car of Tony Sweeney slid into a ditch at Bach and Hartsell Roads Monday afternoon, then caught fire after he had left to call for help. The car was a total loss.

Experts on child care advise that you should always let your child know what's expected of him. If you're taking him on a visit, for instance, tell him where you're going, how long you'll be there and how he should behave while you're there.

Freak crash, fire destroy Sweeney car

A car was destroyed by fire following a freak accident Monday afternoon north of Cass City.

The car belonged to Tony Sweeney of 3490 Bach Road. He told the Chronicle he was westbound on Bach Road and turning right onto Hartsell Road when the car went into the ditch at the northwest corner of the intersection, apparently either due to a steering malfunction or a blown tire. He was unhurt.

He then walked 1 1/2 miles north on Hartsell to the home where he had been driving to, to call for help. When he returned, the car was on fire. The Elkland Township Fire Department was called at 3:30 p.m. by someone who lives within sight of the intersection.

Sweeney speculated the carburetor overflowed after his car went into the ditch, which resulted in the fire.

A four-wheel drive, eight-wheel tractor was driven from the Sweeney family farm, a couple of miles away, which was then used to pull the car out of the ditch. Sweeney said he had paid $300 for the car, a 1972 Chevrolet, last spring.

THURSDAY CAR FIRE

A leaky fuel pump or fuel line was the apparent cause of a fire that damaged the car of Jean Doerr of Dickerson Road, Unionville, last Thursday morning.

Mrs. Doerr was driving to Cass City on M-81 when she smelled smoke coming from under the dash. She pulled into the drive at Fred Martin's repair garage, about 1 1/2 miles west of town, where employees poured water on the engine and called the Elkland Township Fire Department.

Mrs. Doerr said by the time she and her children got out of the car, she could see flames.

Firemen, who received the call at 11:45, confined the damage to the engine compartment.

The car, a 1966 Chevrolet, was valued at $500-700 before the fire.

HOUSE FIRE

Damage was reported to have been minor at a house fire on Bevens Road, east of Clothier Road, in Kingston Township last Thursday.

Kingston firemen received the call at 1:15 a.m.

The home was vacant and the last known owner was reported to be Hazel Hockmuth.

Arson is believed to have been the cause.

10 starters return

Besonen sees O-G in thick of title fight

At Owendale-Gagetown High School, there are a lot of growing boys and that's just the way football coach Arnie Besonen likes it. Besonen's 13th season as Bulldog coach last year was his first losing one -- 4-5 overall and 2-5 in the North Central Thumb D League -- and when it was over he told his players to gain some weight, lack of size on defense being one of his team's problems. There hasn't been any food left on plates since then. "Everyone put on at least 10 pounds and we pretty well met that goal (of gaining weight) already," Besonen said. Even with the weight gain, none of the Bulldog boys are built like tanks and lack of size is one of the potential Owen-Gage weaknesses. "We're not too big, but we're kind of average," the coach explained. That, however, is one of the team's few weaknesses. The team's big plus is experience. Ten of the 11 starters also started last year. The only starter both ways, lost to graduation was right tackle Mark Furness. Randy Radabaugh, an end, started on defense only. Last year's team only had two other seniors, flanker Terry Muntz and utility lineman Ed Rievart. One player who did a lot of growing since 1981 is quarterback Stan Andrakowicz, who was 6-1 when the season started last year and is now 6-4. Besonen describes him as an excellent passer and with his better vantage point to see his targets, should do even better this season than last. "We're going to throw the ball because we have the best quarterback and end around, everybody knows that," Besonen said. "The best end" around is 6-2 Dan Glidden, who gained 1,115 yards in pass receptions last season and was named to the Detroit News, Associated Press and United Press International Class D all-state teams. But if Owen-Gage opponents are looking for Andrakowicz to pass all the time, they may be surprised -- by Lee Gettel as he runs past them with the ball. The left half was the team's leading ground gainer with 795 yards last season and gives the team speed to the outside.

With the ability to move the ball on the ground or in the air, Besonen said, "We can plan a more wide open game if we have to." The other members of the starting backfield will be fullback Alan LeValley, a junior now who has started since he was a freshman, and Jason Reinhardt, who started on defense last year as cornerback and ran plays as a halfback on offense.

On the line will be center Mike Powell, guards Gary Erickson and Paul Lopez, tackles Craig Enderie and John Shrope and ends Glidden and George Vargo. Shrope is the only one of the starting 11 who wasn't a starter last season. The one change on defense will be Nick Swiastyn who will be coming in at nose guard. The 5-6 senior only weighs 165 pounds, but his coach describes him as "the meanest guy we got." The veteran coach, who has an 84-24-2 win-loss-tie record in his 13 years at Owen-Gage, said his teams three main weaknesses are lack of good size, overall speed and depth. "We can't afford any major injuries." Barring severe injuries, he predicted his team will be a contender. He expects Akron-Fairgrove to be the team to beat in the league, with Deckerville also contending and Caseville as a darkhorse.

Assisting Besonen will be Phil Gray, Dean Roller and John Osterland, who have a total of 37 years at Owen-Gage (not including Besonen), making it probably the most veteran coaching staff in the upper Thumb. Roller will be handling the junior varsity, which is good for long range prospects. The past two years, Owen-Gage didn't have enough players to form a JV team, other than for one contest each year against the Caro freshmen. This year, there are enough players for a whole JV schedule, which is still being finalized.

The league has changed the starting time for varsity games from 8 to 7:30 p.m. this season. The schedule:

Sept. 10	at Arenac Eastern (non-league - 3:30 p.m.)
Sept. 17	at Carsonville-PS
Sept. 24	Caseville (homecoming)
Oct. 1	at North Huron
Oct. 8	Kingston
Oct. 15	at Akron-Fair
Oct. 22	Peck
Oct. 29	Deckerville
Nov. 4	at Mich. School for the Deaf (non-league - 3:30 p.m.)

Apple canning

Apple canning season goes from late summer well into fall. When selecting apples for canning, choose fresh, firm, tart fruit that is not overripe. Imperfect fruit may be used, but all blemishes should be removed. Wash fruit, pare, core, cut into quarters or halves. Keep fruit from discoloring until you pack it by dropping it into a solution like lemon juice. Drain. Boil one minute in thin or medium syrup. Pack in jars, cover with boiling syrup and process 20 minutes in boiling water-bath.

For choicest results when it comes to syrups for canning, make syrup from the water in which fruit was cooked or cook some of the cut-up fruits and use the liquid as a syrup base instead of water.

Ball handler needed

O-G cage coach sees better year

Owen-Gage basketball coach Judy Campbell can be reasonably sure of one thing — her team should do better than last year.

Unfortunately, after three league titles and three second place finishes in her first six years at the helm, last year was a disaster for her Bulldog girls, who won only one game.

The reason for at least some optimism is experience. Three of last year's starters are back, including 5-11 center Joan Mosack, who will be a starter for the third year. The other starters back are Vicki Alexander and Jackie Kain. The latter became a starter about midway through the 1981 season.

The fourth starter will be 5-10 Linda Retford, a sophomore.

Who will be the fifth starter illustrates Miss Campbell's biggest problem — she only has a choice of three as the varsity squad only has seven players.

The fifth starter will be either Carol Zimmer, Shelia Engelhardt, the only juniors, or Rita Sullivan. Everyone else on the team is a senior except for Retford.

Retford and Engelhardt are the only players who moved up from last year's junior varsity; the rest were on the varsity.

Miss Campbell also coaches the junior varsity, which only has eight players, and at this point doesn't see any of them moving quickly up to the varsity.

In addition to lack of depth, the veteran coach's other problem, which she had last year, is lack of a good ball handler. "I have the height, (Mosack and Retford), but nobody to get the ball to them," she said.

Miss Campbell expects Deckerville and North Huron to be the top teams in the North Central Thumb D League this season, with Caseville and Carsonville-Port Sanilac also tough competitors.

As for her Bulldogs, she said, "I'm hoping for .500, but I don't know if we'll get there."

The team started its season at the Caseville tournament Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Regular season games start with the junior varsity games at 6:30 p.m., followed by the varsity contest about 8.

The schedule:

Sept. 14 at Akron-Fair.
Sept. 16 Port Hope
Sept. 21 at Caseville

Only varsity will play as Hawks lift lid on season with Caseville

Coach Lloyd Schinnerer will have 18 players in uniform Tuesday when the Cass City Red Hawk girls open the 1982 basketball season. The Hawks will host Caseville in a non-conference encounter.

The reason that the varsity squad has been enlarged is that there will be no junior varsity competition this season because of the school's financial crunch.

On the squad are seven freshmen and three sophomores that will be suited to keep them in the program.

This year's squad won't be rated as the strongest in Schinnerer's six years at the helm, but it does promise to be a good one.

Schinnerer feels that his veteran letter winners can play with any team in the league. The Hawks are weak in experienced bench strength, but the coach hopes to correct that fault as the season progresses.

Cass City's graduation losses were light and that's one reason why there's hope for a better season than 1981 when the team was 7-7 in the Thumb B Conference and 8-13 over-all.

Missing will be Kris Proctor who was a part-time starter and first or second off the bench last season.

The guard spot will be handled by two experienced seniors. Carrie Lautner, a three-year veteran, is quick and a good shot. She will team with Jamie Fox to make Schinnerer's fast break work.

The only junior that is expected to be among the starters is Jill Hutchinson. She was voted the team's most improved player and received honorable mention all-conference honors.

She will team with Michelle Fahrner to give the Hawks board strength and inside scoring punch.

Another senior, Laura Richards, is an aggressive defensive player who earned a letter last year.

Schinnerer sees a wide open race in the Thumb B with the Lakers as the favorites.

Because there will be just one game played each night this year starting time for home games is 7 p.m.

The schedule:

Sept. 7 Caseville, home
Sept. 9 Harbor Beach, away
Sept. 16 Marlette, away
Sept. 21 USA, home
Sept. 23 Vassar, home
Sept. 29 Frankenmuth, away

Ashcroft guilty plea rejected

A Deford man pleaded guilty Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court to a charge of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling, but Judge Patrick R. Joslyn refused to accept his plea.

Rejected was the plea of Randy T. Ashcroft, 18, of 450 Kingston Road, who is charged with breaking into a home at 6025 Mushroom Road, Deford, April 28.

The judge scheduled a pre-trial hearing Sept. 20. Bond was continued.

Ashcroft also appeared Monday before District Judge Richard F. Kern for sentencing for his Aug. 18 guilty plea to impaired driving, for which he was arrested April 10 in Novesta Township.

He was placed on one year of probation, fined $118, assessed $182 court costs and is to receive alcohol education and counseling if necessary.

In other circuit court cases Monday:

Harold W. Simpson, 23, of 1054 N. Germania Road, Snover, pleaded guilty to no account check, to writing a check for $29 made out to Caro Pharmacy July 11 despite not having an account in or credit with a bank.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Jan. 10.

In a plea bargain with the prosecution, a second charge of no account check, of writing a check for $84 to Fisher's Big Wheel, Caro, July 11, is to be dismissed upon sentencing in the other case.

A motion for dismissal of a charge of negligent homicide against Ralph S. Legue, 19, of 5289 Hanes Road, Vassar, was denied.

He is charged with driving in a negligent manner, which resulted in the death of Larry Lee Fabbro Aug. 28, 1981, south of Vassar. Legue's pickup had collided with Fabbro's motorcycle.

Mark A. Johnson, 22, of Caro, pleaded guilty to escaping from the custody of a police officer Dec. 29, 1981, in Caro.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Sept. 27.

Jerry L. Franz, 21, of 3854 Hanes Road, Vassar, pleaded guilty to uttering and publishing a check for $25 made out to a Vassar truck stop July 26, but his plea was refused.

He stood mute to a second charge of uttering and publishing, of writing a bad check for $25 made out July 25 to a Vassar gas station. A plea of innocent was entered.

A pretrial hearing for both charges was scheduled Sept. 13. Bond was continued.

DISTRICT COURT

Marsha Ewald, 29, of Bad Axe, was sentenced Aug. 23 by Judge Kern to three days in the county jail for driving under the influence of liquor July 10 in Elkland Township. She pleaded guilty to the charge July 19.

She was also placed on one year of probation, fined $156, assessed $244 court costs and her license was suspended for 90 days except for driving to and from work and alcoholism meetings.

Aug. 17, Kern granted a prosecution motion to allow Edmund Good Sr., 76, of 8046 Bach Road, Gageton, to plead guilty to a lesser charge of impaired driving because he had completed the alcohol treatment program ordered by the court.

Good then pleaded guilty to the lesser charge.

He originally pleaded guilty June 28 to driving under the influence of liquor June 18 in Gageton and was placed on one year of probation, fined $118 plus $182 court costs. That sentence will remain.

SMOOTHER TRAVELING --- Street repairs in Cass City were completed last week, including repaving of the north (seen here) and south crosswalks at Seeger and Main. The work was done by Jack Stahlbaum and Sons and cost the village $17,583.

School problem: communication

Dear Editor,

When tragedy strikes our community, we will not be without someone to blame. All possible accusations will have been made involving the school administration, school board, teachers, voters, and concerned and unconcerned citizens. We have all judged and have been judged.

For a city which calls itself the Pacesetter of the Thumb, we are setting a pitiful pace. With anger, hostilities, poor attitudes, and community division, we have reduced our pace to a standstill.

Along with high unemployment, reduced income, no incomes, soaring taxes and inflation, depressed economy and 40 years of bus transportation in Cass City, it has suddenly become the "parents' responsibility" to get their children to school.

We have annexed other school districts, accepted their children and taxes, setting up impossible situations without buses to carry it out, yet it is now the "parents' responsibility." Our farmers pay a large share of taxes, live the greatest distance from town, and now they are told there will be no buses to take their children to school.

Even with the safety measures being taken, our children face a very dangerous traffic situation trying to get to school. Regardless of the hardships, financial and otherwise, parents face fines, jail and the possible termination of their parental rights if they fail to get their children to school.

Our present administration and school board collectively convey the attitude: More millage is the answer. Taxpayers feel they can give no more, and want a more effective use of what is available.

The school board represents the community. Parents want to hear the school board voicing their concerns and be open to suggestion, not saying "more millage" to a community which has already said twice, "We cannot give more."

It has become apparent the real tragedy in Cass City is not the failed millage, but the total lack of communication.

Need more crossing guards

More volunteer crossing guards are needed to help children cross busy streets to school. If more don't volunteer, the program may be dropped.

As of Wednesday morning, volunteer coordinator Terri Groombridge said, she had about 16 volunteers.

With guards usually at three crossings, and most who have volunteered so far wanting to work only one morning or afternoon a week (a half hour each time), that means six a day or 30 are needed, or nine if there are also to be guards at noon-time for kindergarten classes.

A total of at least 30 are needed, Mrs. Groombridge said, and 40 if the service is to be provided for kindergartners.

Persons who would like to volunteer can call her after 5 p.m. at 872-4263.

She said she and some other mothers agreed that if enough persons don't volunteer to insure guards will always be at the crossings, it will be better to drop the service so that parents will definitely know there won't be any crossing guards, rather than assume there will be.

Locations for the guards are Seeger and Main, Ale and Main and Rose and Seeger.

Crossing guards in the past were paid, with the school and village splitting the cost, but were dropped this year along with busing.

We have a severe situation of everyone talking and no one listening. But, in all of the heated discussions, accusations, and suggestions lies the answers.

There should be a monthly budget report to the people and a communication from the administration concerning current problems and any encouraging information about the schools. A monthly report, prior to school board meetings, informing people what will be discussed, followed with an in-depth report of the school board meeting by alternating board members would keep our citizens informed and in touch.

If people cannot get to the school board meetings, take the school board meetings to them. Lack of communication is adding to the seriousness of our situation, yet is the easiest to correct.

There have recently been many excellent non-millage suggestions made to the administration and school board concerning schools.

A citizens advisory committee comprised of at least 20 citizens who represent a cross section of Cass City's financial climate could work with our administration and school board to thoroughly investigate the possibility of these suggestions and any others made, set priorities to help make crucial decisions and assist in accepting the consequences. The school board has already stated it would be willing to consider such an advisory committee.

Our problems are in part state budget cuts and the suggestion to the financially hurting school districts to cut bus transportation. It is not only now legal to manipulate taxpayers with the bus transportation issue, it is being advised by the "anonymous state." However, the budget cuts and the advice come from two separate state departments.

State officials have no business advising rural areas in setting priorities on bus transportation. Their life support system is centered in the city of Lansing where neighborhood schools and public transportation are available to their children. They do not realize bus transportation in rural areas is as crucial as basic education.

It is apparently time for citizens to unite and form a citizens action movement for school children. So much can be accomplished through organized efforts. The state will listen, the problem is getting their attention.

Regardless of the strong efforts of the millage supporters, there are many unanswered questions in the minds of the taxpayers that must be answered within the next three weeks in order for the millage to pass.

Do we really need the millage? This can best be answered at the upcoming Sept. 13 school board meeting with a detailed financial statement and a factual presentation by a county school official to clarify the state cuts and answer questions. Also, a representative of the teachers stating their position on our present financial dilemma would answer people's concerns.

We need an acknowledgment from our school board showing they are interested

LETTER TO EDITOR

In pursuing an attitude open to all possible financial readjustments necessary to meet the needs of our children.

While we are all waiting for the millage miracle that may never happen and are attempting to deal with our frustrations in our own way the real issue, the children, is being overlooked. There are many children trapped in the country with no realistic means of getting to school and those who can walk are in extreme danger.

Whether you have children or not, if you can help transport to or from school, go to your neighbors and offer to help. Terri Groombridge is in dire need of help in her efforts to secure voluntary crossing guards. Call her at 872-4263 and offer your help. You may be saving a life.

Anyone with spare time on their hands could call the schools and volunteer their services where needed. If you have a constructive opinion, a suggestion, or a problem, write to the school board. They are elected to represent you.

We are a community in trouble and need a community effort to solve our problems. These children are our future and will some day be in charge of us. Sometimes our children survive in spite of us. We can only hope they often survive because of us.

Sincerely,
Raymond and Delores Garety

Nemeths file suit for damages

A lawsuit has been filed in Tuscola County Circuit Court by a Cass City woman and her husband who claim she was injured when she fell in a local supermarket.

Plaintiffs are Grace and Louis Nemeth of 6305 Main Street. Defendant is Harry Lenda Inc. as owner-operator of the IGA Foodliner.

The suit claims Mrs. Nemeth was injured Aug. 21 1979, when her slacks caught on a metal barrier at the store's exit, she fell and struck a gumball machine and carpet shampooers and was thus unable to grab a guardrail to break her fall.

The suit claims that Mrs. Nemeth permanently injured her lower back and that the store was negligent in failing to repair a metal screen and thus leaving metal exposed.

In Count I, Mrs. Nemeth asks for more than $10,000 in damages together with costs, interest and attorney fees. In Count II, Nemeth asks for the same to compensate for being deprived of the consortium of his wife.

A jury trial has been demanded.

Suggest minor change in youth job program

The federally funded Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP) administered by the Thumb Area Consortium received only minor criticisms from two agencies that inspected its operation.

The $450,000 program, which ended Aug. 20, had 306 youths employed as of July 31. The consortium had contracted with the Huron Intermediate School District to run it.

One of the reviews, presented to the consortium administrative board last Thursday in the form of a letter, was conducted by the U.S. Department of Labor associate regional administrator for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program, Daniel P. Harley.

He wrote, "... it appears that the program is providing good supervision and an interesting variety of work experiences for the participants."

His criticisms were that "little more than one-half of the supervisors attended the orientation sessions" and that participants didn't receive their first paycheck until the end of the fourth week of the program.

"For some participants this constitutes a considerable hardship, especially for those who must meet out-of-pocket expenses for participating in the program."

He suggested that the first pay period might end after the first week of the program, not the second, or a special payroll should be processed early for those in extreme need.

The other inspection was conducted by the Bureau of Employment and Training of the Michigan Department of Labor. The letter summarizing its findings concluded, "The Thumb Area Consortium's SYEP appears to be very viable and successful."

Its criticisms were the aforementioned one concerning not all supervisors receiving orientation and that the work permit was not on file for one participant. (It later was obtained.)

Consortium Executive Director Frank Lenard explained the reason so many supervisors didn't attend the orientation was that only one session was held in each county (Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola) and that some had attended orientations in past years.

He said the problem can be corrected in future years. The federal inspector had suggested more orientation sessions for smaller groups or possibly at the worksites.

As for the suggestion of setting up an early payroll for those severely in need, Lenard responded, "It takes quite a while to set up a payroll for 340 persons without going to the effort of setting up a special payroll for those in need." He did say it might be possible to end the first payroll period after the first week.

CETA'S FUTURE

Lenard reported to the consortium board that the U.S. Senate and House have each passed their own version of legislation continuing the CETA program for at least two years.

The two versions differ, so a joint House-Senate committee will now have to prepare a compromise version, which both the House and Senate will have to approve, as well as President Reagan.

The present CETA program ends Sept. 30, so if that isn't done by then, which is possible, the consortium and all other similar agencies that run CETA on a local level could be out of business temporarily.

The other alternative, which is perhaps more likely, is that Congress will approve a continuing resolution prior to Sept. 30 authorizing CETA to continue in its present form for another year.

That would allow a year to prepare for and phase in the new program, consortium Program Planner Marvin Pichla said after Thursday's meeting.

Lenard told the board in late July he had been offered $36,000 in additional SYEP funds, which he didn't need. He then "swapped" that money for $100,000 in CETA Title II-B job training funds, which some other agency didn't need. The $100,000 will be enough to carry the program through until Sept. 30. Without it, it would have ended early.

As of July 30, 479 persons were enrolled in II-B programs, most of them in classroom training for various jobs.

The board approved a new one-year lease for rental of office space in the Hahn Real Estate Building in Cass City, starting Oct. 1.

Rent will be $24,000 for the year for 3,527 square feet of space, an increase of $528 from 1981-82. The building's owner, Elsie Hahn, supplies the heat, electricity, bathroom supplies and trash removal.

READY FOR A RIDE in 1908 were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Frutchey and daughter Irene in their Ford. Identification of the photo was made by Irene, now Mrs. A.D. McIntyre of Saginaw. The Frutchey house on Main Street is now Little's Funeral Home. Photo is owned by Florence Mayhew of Mt. Clemens, who is related to the Frutcheys.

World director Proctor tells of Rotary youth exchange

Covering the major part of a wall in the small office behind Tom Proctor's prescription counter are pictures and gifts from exchange students. Around the office are gifts and artifacts from many trips to other countries setting up contacts with Rotary Club members.

A story goes with each picture and he is glad to show off his two most prized gifts. One is a banner with pewter lettering and insignia from Belgium and the other a deer-hoof made into a banner from a Scandinavian country.

The scene is fitting for the international director of the Rotary youth exchange program, and anyone who walks into Old Wood Drug may get a chance to eye the display.

Proctor was chosen to be international director at this year's annual Rotary exchange student program meeting in Dallas in May. He will have the position for one year, which began July 1, and be an advisor to the next international director for the following year. He is also on the board of directors of the exchange program for three years. Last year he was treasurer.

Proctor has a long history of involvement with Rotary International and its youth exchange program.

He is president of the Cass City Rotary, is chairman of District 631 which covers 19 counties in northeastern Michigan, and is the Scandinavian correspondent for the central states region of the national Rotary exchange program.

Proctor makes new contacts in new parts of the world and meets with "the other end of the deal," the officers in the other countries.

As Scandinavian correspondent, he handles sending 75 American students to either Norway, Sweden, Finland or Denmark, and makes arrangements for about the same number of students who come to the U.S.

"WHAT WE DO, WE DO WELL," he said of the district he is chairman for. Eleven years ago, when he first became involved in the program, District 631 had no exchange students. Now there are 45 that stay with host families in the district for a year and "many more" for four or six weeks.

"The exchange program has touched many families in Cass City. It is a very loving situation for the Rotary also."

"Both the organization and I believe that the peoples of two countries can become friends by hosting and exchanging their young people. We really believe this will lead to good citizenship on the parts of both the students and the people of the countries."

Proctor and his wife, Elaine, have hosted numerous foreign exchange students and their own children have gone to other countries. Kurt was a Rotary exchange student for a year in New Zealand and Kris spent one summer in Finland and one summer in Austria.

"Either I like doing what I am doing for the program," he said, "or I think it is important for the friendship for everyone involved. I think it is a little bit more of the latter."

WORLD DIRECTOR of the Rotary youth exchange program, Tom Proctor, displays some of the pictures and gifts from exchange students on a wall in his office at Old Wood Drug.

Court okays no busing

The Michigan Court of Appeals last Thursday ruled that the Alpena School Board had the right to end busing last year after it ran out of money.

The three judges said they were "disturbed by the prospect" that their unanimous ruling might be unfair to rural families. "Be that as it may, it is the responsibility of the legislature -- and not the judiciary -- to remedy any such inequity."

In their ruling in favor of the Alpena board, the appeals judges overturned the opinion of Alpena County Circuit Judge Joseph Swallow that free public education was a right contained in the state constitution, therefore the state was obligated to make sure students, especially those in such a large district, got to school.

The appeals court acknowledged, "A free public education is of little use when school is so far away that the cost of transportation... is prohibitively expensive."

It went on to say, however, that the state constitution says, "The legislature may provide for transportation of students."

"The word 'may' is... permissive rather than mandatory," the judges explained, declaring that the legislature "has the power but not the duty to provide student transportation."

Busing came to a halt in the Alpena district and schools were closed last Oct. 16 after voters rejected a combined millage renewal and increase. About two weeks later, they approved a millage renewal but not added millage, so school reopened but the buses stayed parked.

Three families filed suit to restore busing and Swallow ruled in their favor. The board appealed and the appeals court stayed his order to restore busing until it ruled.

The ruling has no immediate significance because busing will resume in the Alpena schools this fall due to money saved by not having it last year, layoff of 70 employees, closing of one elementary school and some other cuts. About 75 percent of the district's 6,850 students ride buses, some as far as 35 miles.

The Alpena School Board's attorney, Dan White, said of the ruling, "I don't think it's a green light to stop busing programs. It gives school districts the ability to terminate busing if they feel it is in the best interest of the district."

The ruling in the Alpena case follows one made in June by a different set of three appeals court judges that the Cadillac School Board had the legal right in October, 1980, to suspend busing because of a millage defeat.

Auction nets $2,000 for Channel 19

Organizers of a farm equipment consignment auction Aug. 21 in behalf of Delta College's WUCM-TV 19 are calling it a success.

The auction, conducted at the Caro fairgrounds and sponsored by Tuscola county Farm Bureau Women, generated between $2500 and $3,000, according to Andrea K. Hofmeister, of Gageton, vice-president of the organization, and WUCM Station Manager William J. Ballard. After promotional and other expenses are paid, Mrs. Hofmeister said, proceeds should total about $2,000.

The proceeds from the auction, the first of its type for WUCM, will go towards programming for the public television station.

"We felt we had excellent participation," said Mrs. Hofmeister, who initiated the idea to get Thumb area residents more involved with Channel 19.

She added that everyone involved with the auction is really pleased with its outcome, considering the economic condition of the Thumb area, particularly its farming community.

Ballard echoed Mrs. Hofmeister's comments, adding, "For a first time, this was fantastic."

Also involved in putting on the auction were Osentoski Realty and Auctioneers, Cass City Zonta Club, Caro Exchange Club and Channel 19 volunteers.

The auction was attended by more than 100 persons.

UBLY PROTEST — Several mothers carried picket signs outside schools in Uibly last Thursday to protest suspension of busing. "I don't think my kids have boots made for walking when they have to walk 12 miles," one of them said. Their children stayed home that day. Enrollment opening day was 76 percent of normal; Friday, 82 percent, and Monday, 91 percent.

Clerks outline recall methods

With a recall of five board members underway in the Uibly School District and a recall starting of three Cass City School Board members, the county clerks in Huron and Tuscola Counties had to check the laws to determine the proper procedure.

The number of names needed to force a recall election is at least 25 percent of the number of votes cast for all candidates for governor within the school district at the last election, which was in November, 1978.

The clerk has five days from the day she receives the request to determine the number of signatures needed, which she must supply to the petition circulators.

Huron County Clerk Helen Lemanski received the request for the Uibly recall Friday. Tuscola County Clerk Elsie Hicks received the request for the Cass City recall Monday.

Since voting precincts for gubernatorial elections (townships) aren't the same boundaries as for school districts, determining the number of names isn't an easy job.

The Cass City School District, for instance, includes all of only two townships, plus parts of 11 others.

If, for instance, three-fourths of a township is in the Cass City district, Mrs. Hicks explained, she takes three-fourths of the votes cast for governor (and then one-fourth of that) to determine the number of signatures required.

The petitioners then have 90 days to gather the required number of signatures, which must be from registered voters. The petitions must be filed at the county clerk's office.

The clerks must then notify the school board members named on the petitions within 72 hours of the filing of the recall petitions.

No more than 35 days after the petitions are filed and after the petitions are checked to make sure they have an adequate number of valid signatures, the clerk must set an election date, to be held within 60 days (total of 95 days).

Mrs. Hicks pointed out that two elections cannot be held within 30 days of each other and because of the other time limits and the Nov. 2 general election, the earliest a Cass City recall election could be held would be in December.

If any board members are recalled, an election then must be held within 60 days to fill the vacancies. Persons running will need at least 20 petition signatures to get on the ballot.

What happens between the time of the recall election and new board members are elected?

If only a minority of the board is recalled, no problem, but if a majority is recalled, which is possible in both school districts, since a majority are being named on the recall petitions, no business could be transacted.

Since some business might have to be transacted in the interim, there may be a provision in the law to provide for interim school board members, but neither Mrs. Hicks nor Dr. Bruce Dunn, Tuscola Intermediate School District superintendent, could say without further checking.

In the case of the Water-town Township Board, where a majority was recalled in the Aug. 10 primary election, Mrs. Hicks said Gov. Milliken will appoint interim members. She didn't know if that procedure applies to school boards, however.

Recall drive starting in Cass City

At the Aug. 22 citizens meeting, Beddow said he wasn't "head hunting." The main concern expressed then was that the need for additional revenue to the school district had to be proven. If the group was shown the need, some might support 2.5 mills for busing only, but not the 4-mill proposal that will be on the ballot Sept. 27 for busing, partial restoration of curriculum and for extracurricular activities.

Asked why a recall is now being attempted, Beddow told the Chronicle, "If you noticed at the meeting, that's what they wanted."

What will a school board with three new members do that the old one didn't?

Beddow feels it will be more willing to probe where the money goes than the present one, determine if any savings can be made and be better able to explain everything to the public.

It thus would be believed more than the present board if it said additional money was needed for busing. If it did say so, "The people opposing the board would go out and get the money we need (by supporting the millage)," Beddow said.

Would he like to see the new board replace Crouse with a new superintendent? "I sure wish they would," he responded.

Taking stock

Recently we talked of the high cost of settling an estate.

In a $400,000 estate, our file showed costs totaling $20,000 for a simple estate of cash, securities and personal effects.

This estate, that of a Pompano Beach, Fla., woman, went the probate court route. Property was bequeathed by a will.

How could the person who left the $400,000 saved her heirs most of the $20,000 in expenses?

Simply by having a living trust. The property could have been divided exactly the same as under the will.

Instead of taking a year to get distributed with a bank, lawyer and a judge having a go at it, the assets could have been distributed within a month and the federal tax return filed. The cost, $1,000 or less. The bank-lawyer-judge triangle could have been by-passed.

Oh, I can hear a cry from the trust department: "But you won't get the final OK from the government on the tax for more than nine months. What if you distribute money and find you have underpaid the government? Then you as trustee are liable!"

Nuts. On most returns the amount of tax is a sum simply arrived at. Assume your accountant can add and subtract, and there's no reason it won't stand up.

If you fear it might not, hold back some funds and get a waiver from the beneficiaries they'll pay a later assessment. I have signed these waivers myself, and I know this can be done. Trust departments shouldn't be so skittish.

So much for the savings. Now, exactly what is a trust, and how do you create one?

Let me give you my own experience. A lawyer drew up my first trust in 1976. I spent a couple of hours with him, discussing the details of leaving my assets to relatives and charities.

I was my own trustee, to serve until I died or became incompetent.

My wife was the successor trustee to take over at my death. If she was not living at the time, or unable to serve, then a bank stepped in as trustee. Reason for naming a bank was to assure there'd be a trustee who wouldn't expire.

A will was also drawn providing if there were assets outside the trust that they would automatically pour over into the trust at my death.

Then I simply changed the title on my bank accounts and my account at the broker's to "William Myers, trustee, under trust dated Sept. 30, 1976."

Cars we titled jointly and we declared by letter that all our personal belongings and household furnishings were jointly owned.

On my death there will be nothing to probate.

Meanwhile, my life is not a whit different from before. The checks have printed on them, "William Myers, trust" and the broker account is the same. I do business with the broker exactly as before. He has a copy of the trust in his files and so does the bank.

I amended it once, and sent a copy of the amendments to the bank and broker.

My income tax? One extra sheet (Form 1041, I think) is added to the return. All trust income goes to me, so the extra sheet just explains that. A five-minute job. There are no other reports to file.

On my death, my wife as the successor trustee will take my list of assets (stocks, bonds, bank accounts) to the same accountant that does the income tax and ask him to file a federal tax return.

The broker will provide an appraisal of the market value on day of death. Likely he won't charge for this.

The tax can be paid right then or the trustee can wait for six months for another appraisal and take the lower one.

Meanwhile, most of the assets can be distributed, for the trustee will know that the tax won't be any more if the later appraisal date is used, and may be less.

I can change my trust any time I want by amendment or I can revoke it entirely. It's really a very simple thing. It saves money, it saves time and frustrations. It also keeps your affairs private after your death and out of the eye of the curious.

Cost of preparing one is not much — $200 to $1,000 depending on the lawyer and on your particular case.

I personally have been involved in a number of estate-settlements, as a beneficiary, as an executor, and as a trustee under a living trust.

I am speaking from personal, and what has been sometimes painful, experience. There is no valid reason for a person with property not to have a living trust.

Uibly board to try again for school busing millage that a large part of the district's financial troubles was due to cuts in state aid due to Michigan's financial troubles.

"If the state was providing full funding, Uibly would have more money than they knew what to do with it," he said.

He urged farmers to enroll their farms in the state Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act (Public Act 116) program, which provides a rebate or credit for 100 percent of property taxes they pay in excess of 7 percent of their household income. "That is the only thing Huron County people will get back," he said, suggesting money not claimed in that way will instead go to metropolitan areas.

The board approved the motion to schedule another millage vote, two mills for two years earmarked for busing, by voice vote. Apparently the only dissent came from Clarence Rutkowski, who said he wanted the levy to be for one year.

In other action Friday, the board:

--Laid off the assistant bus mechanic and bumped transportation supervisor (and chief mechanic) Gerald Booms, a 20-year employee, to maintenance worker, with the lowest seniority janitor to be laid off. Fourteen bus drivers were laid off earlier.

--Approved a half-day kindergarten class at Minden City Elementary School. It will be the only class meeting there.

--Approved the bid of Community Bank of Bad Axe and Uibly of 8.84 percent for purchase (loan) of $640,000 in tax anticipation notes, to be repaid by April 1. It was the lower of two bids received.

Recall sought of 5 on Uibly board

Roberts said he voted for the Aug. 18 millage proposal and will support the next one, that it is cheaper for him to pay the extra millage than it is to drive his children 12 miles to Uibly.

He didn't want to go into detail, but indicated many of the recall supporters oppose the school board's decision a few years ago to eliminate grades 1-6 at Minden City Elementary School. This year is the third one that the building is only being used for one kindergarten class.

Roberts said all he wants is a new school board and restoration of busing of children to school.

He hopes to have enough petition signatures gathered so that it will be known prior to the millage vote that there will be a recall election.

If a recall election is held, according to Huron County Clerk Helen Lemanski, it will be the first ever in the history of the county.

7 Michigan sites

Fed allots waste cleanup funds

Seven sites in Michigan are among 45 around the country getting federal funds to clean up hazardous wastes.

The money, released on a matching 90 percent federal funds for 10 percent state funds, comes from a five-year, $1.6 billion program.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) officials earlier had selected a Grafton County landfill for the cleanup program.

The seven additional sites are one in Dalton Township of Muskegon County, Battle Creek, Utica, Swartz Creek, Oakland County, Cadillac, and Rose Township of Oakland County.

The state had already declared a toxic substance emergency at Berlin and Farro in Swartz Creek.

State Department of Natural Resources officials estimate $30-$50 million in federal funds will be spent over the next three or four years to clean up the dumps.

The EPA authorized $249,000 for emergency work at the Liquid Disposal Co. site in Utica to remove some of the health hazards. Two men were killed as the result of a chemical accident at the site in January.

Michigan and New Jersey had the largest number of sites selected for the cleanup program, but Gov. William G. Milliken said that is the result of better recognition of the problem.

The cleanup projects will involve either a direct federal contract managed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, or cooperative agreements, with the state taking charge of the private cleanup through voluntary or court-ordered action.

MEANWHILE, MILLIKEN is urging federal officials to select Michigan to run a pilot program under which companies would be given the chance to monitor their compliance with federal and state environmental laws.

The initial environmental auditing program would involve facilities with good compliance records and who volunteer to participate.

Milliken asked for the designation in a request to U.S. Environmental Protection Administrator Jane Gorsuch.

If accepted, the Department of Natural Resources would work with a citizen advisory group to develop guidelines for an acceptable program, under which companies would be required to show they have sufficient internal procedures to detect and correct problems.
