Third try school millage vote Monday

By Mike Eliasohn

For the third time this year, electors in the Cass City School District Monday will be voting on an increase in school millage.

There are two differences between this millage proposal and the ones voted on in April and June. Cuts that were proposed then — or threatened, depending on one's point of view — have become reality and the amount to be voted on this time is 4 mills, compared to 5.5 the previous times.

Passage this time won't restore everything that has been eliminated.

It will restore busing, crossing guards and some teaching and other positions, plus school funding of extra-curricular activities.

The levy is for one year only and if approved, will appear on this December's tax bills.

The polling place is the high school and voting hours will be 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

The proposal on the ballot will specify the millage is to be "for operating purposes."

However, Supt. Donald Crouse pointed out that the school board, in accepting petitions bearing 476 signatures requesting another millage vote, did vote that if the millage is approved, it will be used for the following:

- 2½ mills for restoration of busing and crossing guards.
- 1 mill to reinstate the intermediate school counselor, school nurse, elementary art teacher, high school librarian and the elementary-intermediate school librarian.
- ½ mill for extra-curricular activities — intermediate and high school sports for boys and girls, debate, marching band, vocal music, National Honor Society, participation in intermediate and high school bands music festivals, dramatics and forensics.

The reason why the ballot proposal won't specify specifically what the millage will be used for is basically one of simplicity, Supt. Crouse explained.

Earmarking three separate millage levies for specific purposes on the ballot would require establishing separate bookkeeping accounts for each.

If approved, the four additional mills will raise an additional $412,770 for the school district.

Four mills will mean an additional $4 in taxes for each $1,000 of assessed valuation for property owners.

BUSING

In preparation for the expected year of inactivity, batteries were removed from all the school buses and some didn't receive their regular summer maintenance, since it wasn't thought they would be needed.

There is a question how soon they can be running if the millage passes Monday, but Crouse hopes they can be on the road two days later, even if it requires overtime to get them ready. "I want those buses going Wednesday," he said. "I can't guarantee it, but that would be my goal."

The annual audit, presented to the school board Sept. 13, showed pupil transportation cost the school district $303,303 in 1981-82, of which $93,146 was for driver salaries and $88,654 for gasoline, oil and grease.

One bus was paid for last year at a cost of $24,362, which had been delivered the previous year.

In the past, the school district has purchased three new buses a year, and Crouse feels there will be enough money if the four mills passes for some replacements.

The state bases transportation aid partially on depreciating buses over seven years, so keeping them longer means less aid. Buying three new buses each year meant none was in regular service more than seven years.

The school district hasn't received the reimbursement from the state for last year's busing program. It received $125,813 from Lansing in 1981-82 for the previous year's busing program.

CURRICULUM

Fourteen persons were laid off by the school board this year due to lack of money.

The positions eliminated were two elementary teachers, elementary physical education, elementary art, elementary — intermediate school librarian, high school librarian, intermediate school counselor, five high school teaching positions, school nurse and one maintenance worker.

The 14 who actually lost their jobs weren't necessarily filling those positions, since layoffs were based on seniority and what subjects those in the terminated positions were qualified to teach. The two librarians, for instance, are now teaching.

The layoffs have had repercussions, according to the principals surveyed. At the high school, class sizes range up to 41 students. Last year, Principal Russell Richards said, a few classes had 30-32 students but most were 30 or less.

Some teachers are teaching subjects that they are certified in, but not familiar with. For instance, the art teacher is teaching one drafting class.

At the intermediate School, Principal Bob Stickle is doing some counseling plus special education and extracurricular work that the counselor used to do.

Kindergarten classes at Campbell Elementary School have 28 or 29 students. Principal Jacqueline Freiburger would prefer no more than 25. Some other

PARK OR RIDE — Whether the Cass City school buses parked behind the high school will stay there or start transporting students will be decided Monday when electors vote on an additional four mills for transportation, curriculum and extracurricular activities.

Death of Davison woman one of several accidents

A Davison woman was killed Monday morning in an accident in the southwest corner of Tuscola County.

Pronounced dead at the scene was Winifred Nord, 74. She is the seventh person to die in a traffic accident in the county this year, compared to 11 as of this date in 1981.

A witness told sheriff's deputies, Mrs. Nord was westbound on Birch Run Road, failed to stop or even slow down at the stop sign at Bray Road and collided with a northbound auto.

The driver of the other car, Donald K. Robinson, 40, of N. Bray Road, Clio, was reported to have suffered minor injuries, however, his passenger, his wife, Margene, 33, was seriously injured and taken to Flint Osteopathic Hospital for treatment.

None of the victims was wearing a safety belt, according to deputies. The accident took place at 8:55 a.m.

INJURY ACCIDENTS

John J. Hays, 25, of Fenton, was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital following a 3 p.m. accident Tuesday, Sept. 14, at Ellington.

Caro state police reported that the trailer being towed by Michael F. Satchell, 39, of Ellington, came loose from the vehicle that was towing it. He was driving southwest on M-81.

The trailer went into the opposite lane of traffic and collided with the Hays auto, which was headed northeast.

Satchell, of 2647 E. Caro Road, was ticketed on a charge of no safety chains on trailer.

Mary L. Billow, 37, of 6809 Walsh Road, Gagetown, was treated and released from Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon following a 6:30 p.m. accident Sept. 14.

Lawrence A. Nerkowski of 6701 Lincoln Street, Gagetown, told deputies he was eastbound on Bay City-Forestville Road, started to turn left onto Russell Road, and didn't see the eastbound car driven by Ms. Billow passing him until it was too late.

He swerved to the right, but was unable to avoid a collision.

Nerkowski was ticketed on a charge of operating an unregistered vehicle.

Brian C. Holmes, 17, and his passenger, Dennis L. Ewald, 29, both of Caro, sought their own treatment following a 7:15 p.m. accident Sept. 13 in Elmwood Township.

Holmes told deputies he was turning north onto Jacob Road from Cass City road when the rear of his car slid around. He tried to straighten the vehicle's path, but the car went off the west side of the road into a culvert.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Marion May Weltin, 46, of 4262 Oak Street was ticketed by Cass City police on a charge of failure to stop within an assured clear distance following an 8:20 a.m.

accident last Thursday.

Officers reported Nancy Ann Urban, 33, of Sebewaing, southbound on Seeger Street, was about to turn left into the driveway north of the intermediate school when the Weltin auto ran into the rear of her car.

Deputies reported that at 10 a.m. Saturday, Douglas Hunter, 60, of 4468 Hurds Corner Road, Kingston, westbound on Shay Lake Road, went off the north side of the road and his car struck a tree.

Hunter told officers he apparently fell asleep. Although his fist went through the windshield, deputies said he indicated he was uninjured.

Caro state police reported that Maude A. Francis, 41, of 4619 Van Dyke Road, Cass City, was eastbound on Stevens Road, east of Clothier Road, at 10:10 p.m. Sept. 14 when her car collided with a deer.

John E. Lange, 29, of 7712 Deckerville Road, Deford, was eastbound on Mushroom Road Friday, east of Cemetery Road, when his car struck a deer, deputies reported.

Cass City police reported that Donald A. Smale, 36, of Caro, was westbound on M-81, east of Schwegler Road, at 8:30 p.m. Sunday when his car hit a deer.

Mediator in Kingston, but no settlement

Representatives of Kingston teachers and the school board met for 3½ hours Tuesday afternoon with a state mediator in an attempt to reach a settlement on a new contract.

It was the first time the two sides met with the mediator.

No agreement was reached, Supt. Robert Cameron said, so each side will now assess its position before one or the other requests the mediator to return. No date was set for another negotiating session.

The board will presumably discuss the status of negotiations when it meets Thursday, Sept. 30.

The board would normally meet Monday, but postponed the session to when it will be opening bids to borrow $185,000 in tax anticipation notes. This will be the first time in at least 10 years the district has had to borrow money for school operations, Cameron said.

600 TO GO — Don Schuette of Elkton began pulling beans Monday, starting with 20 acres of kidney beans in a field he rents along Elkton Road in Grant Township. He had 600 more acres of dry beans to harvest after completing the field. The Michigan Bean Shippers Association reported Monday 10 percent of the colored beans were harvested in Huron County, with expected yields of 15 hundredweight (cwt.) per acre and 35 percent of the navies with yields averaging 13 cwt. In Tuscola, 40 percent of the navies were harvested with a yield of 14.7 cwt. Colored beans were 25 percent harvested at 15 cwt.

Tie vote — Don Decker wins nomination in draw

Donald Decker's new nickname may be "Lucky."

The recount completed Wednesday, Sept. 15, showed Decker and Eugene Foote both received 444 votes in the Aug. 10 primary for the Republican nomination for Sanilac County commissioner from District 2, which consists of Greenleaf, Evergreen, Lamotte, Argyle, Austin, Minden, Delaware and Marion Townships, plus part of Forester.

As a result, a drawing was held in the commissioners meeting room Tuesday. Decker drew the slip of paper on which was written "nominated," so he will now face Democrat Charles Izydorek in the Nov. 2 general election.

Decker and Foote both presently serve on the board, but were forced to run against each other when redistricting reduced the present eight seats to five, starting Jan. 1.

When the votes were certified by the board of canvassers, Foote was the winner by one vote, 445-444. Foote lives in Argyle Township, Decker in Marion Township. Both are farmers.

In District 2, roughly the south central part of Sanilac County, Robert Warren and Wilfred Dean had tied for the Republican nomination Aug. 10 with 287 votes each. The recount gave Warren the Republican nomination, 286-285. Stanley Alexander finished third with 273 and Adrian Zielinski fourth with 204.

Warren, of Brown City, will run against Democrat Ora Lee Leesch in November.

The third recount conducted last week was of the three-quarters of a mill increase in property taxes for five years for bridge repair. It originally lost by 15 votes, 3,477-3,462.

The recount showed it losing by 26 votes, 3,481-3,455. Sanilac County residents will vote on the same measure Nov. 2, it having been put back on the ballot by county commissioners at the request of the county Farm Bureau and Road Commission.

The one difference is that if approved, the millage won't appear on property tax bills until December, 1983. If voters had okayed it Aug. 10, there would have been time to assess the levy on this year's tax bills. The levy is for five years.

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Consider seriously for a moment Monday's vote for four mills for operation of Cass City Schools. The result could be even more debilitating than just the loss of curriculum or the absence of busing, as serious as this is.

What appears to be happening is a polarization of the community which is hardening daily.

The best solution for the school, for the kids and for Cass City is to pass the extra millage which would restore busing and get the school by with a minimum of cuts in curriculum.

The alternatives aren't pleasant. Most close observers feel that if the four mills fails there is no chance for piecemeal proposals to pass either. We believe that to be the case. It was true in an earlier vote and is even more true today.

Busing by itself will not pass. Curriculum by itself will not pass.

Realistically, school voters should face up to it going in. If they vote no for four mills, they are voting no for any extra millage this year for any purpose.

Given today's financial crunch that may be the way the majority want it. If so, accept it.

Making wild, unfounded accusations and spreading unfounded rumors about persons that feel differently about the school situation adds salt to an already deep community wound that will take literally years to heal.

Mike Eliasohn and I are in another friendly argument. He says that no one will want to buy special license plates available to persons who were prisoners of war. I say they will.

The specially-designed plates can be purchased from any branch of the Secretary of State that sells licenses at the cost of regular licenses plus a $5.00 handling fee.

Just for fun, if you spot one, tell me about it, will you? If you happened to buy one for yourself, please call for a picture.

Downing semi-finalist

Cass City High School senior Kevin Downing is a National Merit Scholarship Program semi-finalist, based on his score taken in tests last October.

He is the son of Jack and Harriet Downing of Walsh Road, Gagetown.

Whether he becomes a finalist and therefore eligible to receive a financial scholarship to college depends on an evaluation of information about himself that he has sent in to the program and results of the Scholastic Aptitude Test, which he still must take.

Counselor Jerry Cleland said Downing is the first semi-finalist at the high school in several years.

The Haire Net

I may be too well informed to vote for governor of Michigan in November. The more I read the more uncomfortable I get with both Richard Headlee and James Blanchard.

Headlee, the Republican, is offering more of the Reagan-type political nonsense and Blanchard, the Democrat, is offering us some traditional pie-in-the-sky.

This week he announced his plan of action for the State. It calls for the creation of jobs at government expense without a raise in taxes.

There is something about paying for the program with revenue bonds. I can't understand that either. Revenue bonds are paid with a levy on whatever project is used as security. Now Blanchard may not call that a tax, but a rose by any other name smells, smells.

I'm a little hazy about that revenue repayment plan because I just didn't have the stomach to read the gory details.

When you consider that Michigan is on the verge of bankruptcy, any state-supported spending program gives me the chills.

If elected, Blanchard undoubtedly will owe a big debt to labor and one of the pay-offs will be making the state's unemployment compensation law more uncompetitive with other states than it already is.

At least Blanchard has a program, feeble as it is. Headlee has yet to come up with one other than to cut waste and cut taxes.

That's like coming out for mother love and the flag. Who can argue with it? What I'd love to see is how he is going to cut taxes and how he's going to eliminate waste.

His success will likely match that of Reagan. The president has cut taxes, income taxes that is, and is now trying to make it up with taxes on phones, cigarettes, etc. Indirect taxes.

Meanwhile the federal deficit grows and grows and military spending increases and increases.

Since Headlee is following the same pattern it makes you wonder if the state militia will be given more money while state employees are placed on a non-paid holiday.

Blanchard or Headlee is

Home games aren't

By Jim Fitzgerald

The football game, in the Pontiac Silverdome, ended in a 14-14 tie. Not too thrilling. According to the sports cliché, "A tie is the same as kissing your sister."

Why is it never said that a tie is the same as kissing your brother?

At the very moment I asked myself that intriguing question, as chance would have it, I was sitting between two of my innumerable sisters, Terrible Jean and Mary Lou. It was a uniquely opportune time for me to ask them why they are more thrilled to kiss their brother than I am to kiss my sisters.

We weren't at the Silverdome to watch the Detroit Lions play. I quit attending Lions games when they moved out of Detroit. People keep telling me it makes sense for the Detroit Lions to play home games in Pontiac because the Dallas Cowboys don't play in Dallas, they play in Irving, but I'm not impressed by that reasoning.

When I was a little boy, I was terribly confused because I had to deliver the Saturday Evening Post on Wednesday. Since then, I've been trying to put some order back into my life, and it simply doesn't seem orderly to drive 30 miles from my Detroit home to see Detroit play home games in Pontiac. Besides, the Cowboys always make the play-offs.

Also, the way it was explained to me, the only possible way to avoid traffic jams before and after the Detroit Lions games in Pontiac is to arrive at the Silverdome several days before the game begins and not leave until the Detroit Pistons begin setting up their basketball court. Remarkably, the Detroit Pistons also play in Pontiac.

Pontiac teams play their home games in Flint where Detroit fans can park and walk to the Pontiac Silverdome to see the Lions play. The Silverdome parking lot is reserved for only those fans who have had face-to-face meetings with auto magnate William Clay Ford, who owns the Detroit Lions and has them play in Pontiac not only to confuse me but also because there is no Michigan city named Chevrolet.

So, Terrible Jean, Mary Lou and I and sundry members of our respective families weren't at the Pontiac Silverdome to see the Detroit Lions kiss their sisters. We were there for a high school game between Dearborn and Birmingham Brother Rice. One of my innumerable nephews, the son of Mary Lou and her husband, Jack, plays for Brother Rice. Jack often buys me tickets to Brother Rice games to show how much he appreciates my stopping by his house so regularly to help him empty bottles.

Mary Lou has been watching her son's games for three years now, so I was surprised when she expressed surprise when Brother Rice and Dearborn traded directions at the end of the first quarter. "I thought they only changed ends at halftime," she said. And when I asked how she could possibly watch more than 40 football games and not yet know they changed every quarter, she explained she probably knew it last year, but "I try to forget all the football I can during the off-season."

As for Terrible Jean, she spent much of the game amusing everyone by abusing me. She got her biggest laugh after a woman friend said her brother used to play high school football but their mother would never go to the games for fear of seeing him get hurt. Terrible Jean said our mother used to feel the same way about me, causing the sundry relatives to gleefully slap thighs in unison. My athletic ability is well known. As Terrible Jean pointed out, the only thing Mother had to worry about was someone falling on top of me while I was scrounging for dropped coins under the bleachers.

Anyway, it turned out high school football is more thrilling than the college-professional brand. In case of a tie in regulation time, overtime is played. Brother Rice eventually edged Dearborn, 17-14, in an exciting finale that was the same as kissing your brother.

Later, while giving Jack more help with his bottles, I pointed out to my sundry relatives that it was Saturday and I only wanted to see them on Sunday because I am trying to put some order back into my life.

Millage,
part 47

By Mike Eliasohn

I have the unfortunate distinction of probably being the only newspaper reporter in the state who has had to write about TWO school districts where there hasn't been any busing this fall.

From the news standpoint, that has been good. Let's face it. In this area, sometimes there isn't much happening and I really have to scrounge to find stuff to fill the paper with.

The lack of busing has made that part of my job much easier of late, plus several persons have written letters to the editor on the subject, which means, at least in theory, less stuff that I have to write.

Journalistically, that is the good part.

As for the bad side, I am rather tired of writing about the subject, and I suspect some of our readers are tired of reading about it.

As of the time I am writing this column, I still have to complete my article for this week's paper about the Sept. 27 millage vote in the Cass City district. After this week's paper is done, I will have to write an article about Uby's Oct. 4 millage election.

How many recall stories will I have to write before that is over in the Cass City and Uby districts?

It's hard to get through a day without getting involved in a conversation about busing, recalls, millage, etc.

Last week, there was a long telephone conversation with a man who was concerned that those who are questioning such things as the school district's finances are being portrayed as anti-education.

He was not necessarily anti-school board or pro-school board or anti-millage or pro-millage, but was concerned with ensuring his children receive a "Cadillac education," to use his phrase.

He was upset over the fact that his property taxes have increased several fold over the years yet the school district still needs more taxes.

The very simplified answer is that as local valuations and therefore property taxes increase, state aid to a school district decreases. There is a rationale for the state aid formula being that way, which is too complicated to go into here.

Another conversation, this one in the office, was with a retired school teacher who was upset that some persons apparently blame senior citizens for the millage defeats, the theory being that since they don't have children, they all vote "no."

The credit or blame for millage defeats, depending on one's point of view, must go to numerous factions, due to lack of a better word.

Some vote against the millage because they are too old to have children in school and some because they are too young.

Some vote "no" because they feel they cannot afford to pay higher taxes and some who can afford them vote "no" because they don't want to pay them.

Presumably some Cass City residents vote "no" because their children don't ride school buses even when they are running, but since a majority of school children do ride buses, obviously parents of some of the latter also vote against the millage.

Even if the millage passes this time, we will have to go through this again, since the proposal only affects this December's tax bills.

It's hard to conceive that circumstances will change before the 1983-84 school year begins so that another millage increase won't be needed.

Since this is the last school year for the current contract with teachers, that will make negotiations next year very interesting, especially if the school board asks them to accept a pay freeze.

The teachers won't be able to respond, as they did this year, that there was nothing to negotiate since they had a contract already in effect.

The Board of Directors of Walbro Corporation has declared a third quarter dividend of 10 cents per share payable Oct. 29 to stockholders of record Sept. 30.

The third quarter dividend continues a five-year trend of 10 cent quarterly dividends.

"The corporation's overall sales are expected to remain level during the fourth quarter," Walbro President Lambert E. Althaver said in announcing the third quarter dividend.

"It is anticipated that sales of the company's small engine carburetors and die-castings will remain at low levels for the remainder of the year.

"Sales of the company's electric fuel pumps, however, are expected to continue at record levels due to strong demand in both the automotive original equipment and replacement markets," he continued.

"New automotive business for the company's plastics operations will also help offset softness in the other segments of Walbro's operations."

Pair on probation for welfare fraud

A Caro couple charged with welfare fraud was placed on five years' probation Monday when they appeared before Tuscola County Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Ora LeRoy Keltner, 47, and his wife, Marline, 45, of 2045 Mertz Road pleaded no contest to the charge July 19, of accepting $3,825 in welfare payments to which they were not entitled between June, 1979, and October, 1980.

In addition to probation, they are to repay the total amount, plus the judge fined each $200, plus $200 court costs. A lien is to be placed on their property to secure payment.

In other cases Monday: Penny Simpson, 22, of 1054 Germania Road, Snover, pleaded guilty to no account - check, to writing a check for $45 July 4 in Mayville, despite not having a bank account.

Her plea was accepted and bond was set at $5,000 (10 percent), pending her sentencing date.

A prosecution motion for dismissal of a second charge of no account - check, part of a plea bargain, of writing a bad check for $150 July 4 in Mayville, was taken under advisement.

Evelyn J. Reynolds, 33, of Adrian, stood mute to two charges of uttering and publishing, of writing a false or altered check for $188 Aug. 28 in Caro and one for $355 Aug. 30 in Unionville.

A plea of innocent was entered and a pretrial hearing scheduled Oct. 4.

Supplemental information was filed by the prosecution, charging her with being a habitual offender, to which she pleaded innocent. Her plea was accepted. Bond was continued.

Edward P. Osborn, 19, of 4275 Center Street, Akron, pleaded guilty to larceny in a building, to stealing a beer keg, money and cigarettes Sept. 5 from the Black Dahlia Bar and Golden Mushroom Restaurant in Akron.

His plea was accepted and sentencing was scheduled April 1, 1981, involving a girl less than 13 years old.

Judge Joslyn declared a mistrial and will schedule a new trial.

The trial lasted two days.

DISTRICT COURT

Gordon Roy, 20, of 6727 Pine Street, Cass City, was placed on two years' probation Monday by Judge Richard F. Kern for unlawful starting of a motor vehicle and larceny under $100.

He pleaded guilty to the charges Sept. 7, of starting the truck of Herb Beecher Aug. 20 and of stealing Beecher's citizens band radio. The incidents took place in Indianfields and Ellington Townships.

Roy was also fined $47 and assessed $53 court costs on each charge and is to receive counseling. He served five days in the jail awaiting bond.

John Churchill, 19, of 4131 Krapf Road, Cass City, was fined $25 and assessed $30 court costs Monday after pleading guilty to creating a disturbance in a public place.

The incident took place Sept. 4 in Cass City, Churchill having been cited by police for fighting with another man.

A circuit court jury last Wednesday was unable to reach a verdict in a case involving a Reese man charged with criminal sexual conduct.

The defendant was Rance W. Kilbourn, 33, of 9973 Dixon Road, who was

at consortium

Thumb Area Consortium administrative employees will receive the same salaries for the new fiscal year starting Oct. 1 as they did during this past year.

In adopting the salary schedule last Thursday, the consortium administrative board did grant its 14 full-time employees one concession. The federally funded agency will pay the employees' share of the Michigan Municipal Employees Retirement System, which will save them 4.5 percent of their pay.

The highest paid consortium employee is Executive Director Frank Lenard at $32,000. The lowest paid is an intake worker at $9,500.

The consortium also has two part-time employees. Lenard reported to the board on the status of the consortium and the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program.

As of the meeting, Congress still hadn't approved a new CETA program or a continuing resolution to allow the present program to keep running, nor any funds. CETA will come to a halt, at least temporarily, unless Congress acts by Sept. 30.

Until it appropriates new funds, assuming Congress doesn't let CETA die, the consortium will have to get by on what it has left over as of Sept. 30, plus possible left-over money from elsewhere in the state.

That should be enough to keep the consortium and similar agencies elsewhere in Michigan going for 2½ more months before they run out completely.

The consortium has had three advisory boards, the private industry council (PIC), the advisory council and youth planning committee.

Lenard told the administrative board legislation pending in Congress eliminates all but the PIC, so as of Oct. 1, it will take over the duties of the advisory and youth committees. The PIC will thus have the duty of planning all the CETA programs in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties.

Vandals
windows

Twenty-five window panes at a home on Elizabeth Street were broken by vandals, it was reported to Cass City police Friday afternoon.

Edward and Roy Francis told officers the home belonged to their mother.

No damage estimate was listed on the police report.

Craig Ryland of 4242 S. Seeger Street told village police Monday that the passenger door window of his utility vehicle was broken while it was parked in his driveway from midnight-11 a.m. that day.

Six fire extinguishers were stolen from Cass City High School during the previous few days, two custodians reported to village police Monday afternoon.

All were marked with "CCHS." No value was listed on the police report.

Terry Nicholas of Main Street, Cass City, told police Monday that a tire on his car was cut while it was parked at the Brentwood in Caro from 10:30-midnight Saturday.

He didn't realize how the damage was done until he returned to Cass City. Replacement cost of the tire is $70.

Rollback in Sanilac

The Sanilac County Board of Commissioners Sept. 8 voted to roll back the millage levy for county government, rather than accept added revenue from an increase in valuation.

Commissioners voted unanimously to levy 4.4759 mills in accordance with the new state truth in taxation law, which will give the county the same revenue for 1983 that it received this year in property taxes, approximately $2.4 million.

It could have levied 4.943 mills, had it first conducted a public hearing, which would have put $154,000 additional into the county treasury.

Auction for Channel 19 nets $1,481

Profit from the Aug. 21 auction sponsored by the Tuscola County Farm Bureau Women for the public television station at Delta College totaled $1,481, according to organizer Andrea Hofmeister.

It was announced earlier that the net proceeds would be about $2,000, but one successful bidder for a truck was unable to obtain financing, so couldn't complete the purchase. That dropped the total down to $1,481.

That should still be enough for the Farm Bureau Women to sponsor "Sesame Street" on WUCM Channel 19 one day a week, Mrs. Hofmeister said.

Considering the state of the farm economy, she commented, "We were very pleased to turn a profit."

Both the bank and auctioneer that helped put on the event have indicated willingness to do it again, Mrs. Hofmeister said, so another auction for Channel 19 will probably be held once the farm economy improves.

The auction was held at the Caro fairgrounds.

AROUND THE FARM

Staying in business

By Don Kebler

I'm going to talk about a disagreeable subject which nearly every farmer will be or is already confronted with. This subject is staying in business.

I don't know any easier way to reach the point and it won't do any good to wish the subject away.

It has been said, and I have seen it happen, that a farmer can be going broke three years before he does and not know it. There are farmers that have an inkling they are or know their business is entering the financial problem millstream.

It is a shock to all at once realize a financial problem exists when everything seems to have been going along fine. Once the shock wears off, or it numbs one, then the frustrations of salvaging the business begin.

What to do, where to start and where to go to salvage the business could be of a most perplexing nature. Whether you surmise what is happening before your lender does or not, you'll be meeting with your lender sooner or later.

Before this meeting concludes, you'll provide inventories of crops, livestock, feed, supplies, equipment and any other non-real estate items plus a listing of debts. Usually a net worth statement is for you to provide.

If things look shaky, budget analysis cost data, crop enterprise planning, marketing procedures and cash flows will be analyzed for possible weaknesses or strengths.

Here's where a better than good set of farm business records comes in, and I emphasize the word complete. If your system of keeping excellent records leaves much to be desired, remember Michigan State University TelFarm Record Keeping and Business Analysis System is available to anyone.

To help you to get more use and good from your records or if you have need for identifying a hidden financial problem or solving an existing one, Michigan State University has a computer program called Program 80 that puts all your record information together and shows where financial difficulties occur.

Once your data is piped into the computer, any type of changes in input or expenditure combinations can be tried to help determine alternatives one can use to improve a bad situation.

All the credit institutions are aware of this computer program and its availability to them. There is no cost.

Last winter, I announced the availability of this program and the lending agencies were invited to attend a meeting explaining it. Very few people responded.

I believe it will have a big workout come this winter and early spring. Call me if you would like to run a Program 80 for your farm. You really might have needed it this last winter and spring and not have known it.

Want to end your Canada thistle and bindweed problems once and for all? Start planning a Banvel® Herbicide Between Crops Application now.

Banvel Herbicide works right into your fallow/rotation program. Go in after crop harvest this fall with up to 2 quarts of Banvel Herbicide per acre on fallow land, lighter rates on land rotated to winter wheat.

The fall application kills Canada thistle and bindweed that would otherwise have time to store up nutrients before the winter freeze. A follow-up application in the spring will catch perennial seedlings and escapes.

In addition to clearing out Canada thistle and bindweed, a Banvel Herbicide Between Crops Application controls many other annual, biennial and perennial weeds.

Make this season the last season you're stuck with Canada thistle or bindweed. Ask your Velsicol dealer about a Between Crops Application with Banvel Herbicide.

Dutch farmer Adrian Leune visits

Crop yields big on small Dutch farms

In the Netherlands, farmers do a lot with a little. Adrian Leune knows, because his father and mother raised him and five other brothers and sisters on the proceeds from only 59 acres. "You can make a living off it," he said.

The Dutch farmer, 22, has been working on the cash crop farm of Alan Rogers Jr. on Deckerville Road in Evergreen Township through the Future Farmers of America Work Experience Abroad program since April 1. He will leave Oct. 1, then tour the United States for a month before going home.

The farm he grew up on with 59 acres is smaller than the average in the area, but the average isn't much bigger — 80 acres.

Although large enough for his father to support his family, it isn't large enough to support two farmers, which is why Leune works for another farmer.

When his father nears retirement age, Leune may go into partnership with him and work part-time there until his father quits farming altogether. He will then take over the farm full-time. Leune has two brothers and three sisters, but none went into farming.

His father grows potatoes, sugar beets, onions, green peas and winter wheat.

THERE ARE TWO REASONS why Dutch farmers can make a living off such small farms.

One is that the land, reclaimed from the sea, is very fertile.

The other is a combination of intense and very careful farming. Nothing goes to waste.

For instance, soil samples are taken each year to determine how much fertilizer that is applied is used by the crops, so that the following year, no more is applied than is necessary.

The Netherlands usually has good steady rains, but in dry years, water is pumped into the field tiles (all land is tiled) in order to soak the ground internally. No water is lost to evaporation that way.

What kind of results do Dutch farmers get? Leune's father's winter wheat crop this year averaged 123 bushels per acre. The highest in the area was 130 per acre. (According to "Michigan Agricultural Statistics, 1981," the average yield in Michigan in 1980 was 44 bushels per acre, the highest in five years.)

LIKE IN AMERICA, crop prices in the Netherlands depend on the whims of the marketplace, so farmers reduce their risks by growing several crops. "We don't gamble on one crop," Leune said.

What would happen if they did depend on only one crop was illustrated a few years ago when farmers were selling their onions for only 1 cent a pound. "You just gave it away."

Sixty percent of the crop land in the Netherlands is devoted to dairying, with the rest being in cash crop farms.

Seventy-five percent of what Dutch farmers grow is exported, mostly to the other 11 countries in the European Common Market. A big non-Common Market for Dutch potatoes is Brazil.

AS MENTIONED, THE Leune family farm is on ground reclaimed from the sea.

The area was created in 1932 when the Dutch government built a 20-mile long dike. Then diked off areas were built behind the main dike and the water pumped out.

The Dutch government not only retains ownership of the reclaimed land, it also owns the buildings. Leune's father leases it all from the government. He has farmed the property since 1958. It was first farmed by someone else in 1952.

Leune will be able to take over the farm from his father when the latter retires because following the equivalent of high school, he attended an agricultural school for three years.

The government won't lease farms to persons who haven't had the proper training or experience.

The farm where Leune works totals 115 acres, on which are grown potatoes, seed potatoes, sugar beets, winter wheat and tulips. He is the farmer's only employee.

Since Dutch farms are small, farmers normally own only a tractor, planters, etc., and pay someone who owns the equipment to do the harvesting.

LEUNE, WHO STUDIED English for seven years in school, has picked up various ideas about agriculture during his stay here. One that made a special impression was a pick-your-own strawberry farm near Lake Orion that Al Rogers' father, Alan Sr., took him to see.

As far as the visitor knows, there aren't any such operations in his country. "That made me a little excited. I'll probably add it to our crops."

AFTER HE LEAVES the Rogers farm, he will be going to Iowa, where his fiancee was an exchange student five years ago, to Oklahoma to visit Al's two brothers who work there, to his (Leune's) uncle's dairy farm near San Diego, Calif., and to visit a friend of Al's in Florida.

The visiting farmer has already been to Holland, Mich., and says it is a very interesting place to visit, "if you want to view Holland (the Netherlands) how it was, not how it is."

For instance, the remaining windmills in his country serve as museums now. They no longer are used for grinding grain.

There is still a bit of the old Netherlands remaining, however. Dutch farmers sometimes still wear wooden shoes.

Leune especially likes to wear them while working in the farm shop in winter, since they (and a pair of thick socks) keep his feet warm. His father often wears them while working.

VISITING HELPER — Adrian Leune greases a combine pulley as Alan Rogers Jr. looks on. The visitor is paid a small wage by Rogers, the aim of the exchange program being to gain experience and understanding, not to make money.

WINNER of free use of a Chevette for one year was Mike Otulakowski of 6313 Kelly Road, who received the keys Monday from Ouvry Chevrolet-Olds President Gloria Ouvry. The drawing was held in conjunction with the dealership's recent 10th anniversary celebration. In the center is Mike's wife, Deb.

Cass City school tax vote Monday

classes are also larger than she would like.

If the four mills are approved, the following positions will be restored: Elementary art, intermediate school counselor, both librarians, school nurse and materials for the restored programs.

million budget cut approved in Lansing last week.

(The money was cut out of the state's 1981-82 fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30. Remaining school aid due from the August payment is supposed to be paid to school districts next June, which is during the 1982-83 fiscal year.)

The earliest Cass City and other school districts will receive the payment that should be mailed Oct. 1 is Oct. 20.

HEALTH TIPS

Home fires can be hazardous to health

By American Medical Association News Service

EXTRACURRICULAR

Last school year, the Boosters Club supported all activities that had been previously supported by the school district.

Since it was intended to be a one-year effort only, the Boosters aren't raising funds this year.

As a result, activities being conducted this year are being supported by money raised by the participants, coaches and advisors and some have fallen by the wayside this fall due to lack of support.

Passage of the four mills should mean restoration of everything supported by the school in the past.

FINANCES

The 1982-83 school year ended with the district having spent $13,552 more than it took in, but with $107,384 in the bank due to a fund surplus from the previous year.

The district spent more than $3.2 million last year.

Total state aid last year (general fund, busing and categorical) totaled $951,291, a drop from $1,061,034 the previous year.

Crouse can't say yet how much Cass City will receive this year from Lansing because the legislature hasn't approved state school aid yet.

But with the district's valuation up and enrollment down, he said, "I would guess it will be considerably less than last year."

Adding to the financial complications are delays lately in mailing of state aid checks because the state hasn't had enough money to mail them on time to all the school districts in Michigan.

Half of the $144.6 million in state school payments that should have been mailed Aug. 1 won't be paid until Sept. 20 and the other half, part of the $150 million budget cut approved in

The state should have mailed $144.6 million in school aid payments Aug. 1, which would have meant $120,446 to the Cass City district.

Instead, Crouse received a check for $38,843 Tuesday and apparently the rest won't be mailed until June of next year, as part of the $150

Next to falls, fires kill the largest number of people in the home each year.

To prevent the tragedy of a home fire, provide ample ashtrays and don't place them on a flammable table cover.

Don't smoke in bed; do watch candles carefully and make certain fireplace screens fit snugly.

The American Medical Association points out that the kitchen stove can be a hazardous area. Treat it with caution.

Blousy sleeves and frilly aprons invite disaster. Try to keep abreast of information about flammable fabrics.

Keep children and pets away from the stove area while cooking. Store salt and soda near the stove to extinguish grease fires.

If small children are not secured in high chairs, do not allow them in the kitchen if you have to leave while the stove burners are on.

Be careful with matches around the home. Teach small children early how hazardous fire can be if it is abused.

Regularly and thoroughly clean out attics, basements, closets and stuffed furniture.

If you must keep flammable liquids such as gasoline or kerosene, keep them

New board makes change in operation of grain terminal

Earnest Cook, who has been associated with the Thumb Area Commodity Co-operative Inc. (TACCI) grain terminal south of Cass City since its inception, has been replaced as manager by a vote of its board of directors.

The facility held its grand opening in September, 1976, at which time it was called the National Farmers Organization Grain Terminal and Cook was its president.

The terminal, always locally owned, broke away from the NFO three years later. The reason, present TACCI board President Robert Bieble of Cass City explained, was because it had more storage capacity than NFO members were able to fill.

In essence, breaking away from the identification as an NFO facility was a means of attracting more customers. Cook was quoted at the time of the breakaway that local farmers were disenchanting with the low prices being paid by the NFO and its slowness in making payments.

The facility has continued to handle grain sold through the NFO, but the number of farmers who do so at the TACCI terminal is "nothing earth shattering," Bieble said.

The terminal went through several managers in the beginning who didn't work out, he explained, and Cook eventually became manager.

The co-op has about 150 members from Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer Counties, who elect a nine-member board of directors.

At the annual meeting in August, four new directors were elected. One of the directors whose two-year term was expiring was Cook and he was defeated in his bid for reelection.

It normally issues warehouse receipts, which means farmers storing grain there retain ownership until it is sold.

Asked how the terminal is doing financially, Bieble responded, "We're holding our own."

Although no longer affiliated with NFO, at least two of its board members are active in the organization, including Dennis Stacer of Harbor Beach, who is the Huron County NFO president.

SECOND TIME AROUND — The Gladys Lenzner home was moved from its original location on Pine Street to Severance Road in November, 1976. The buyer, William H. Shaw, never used it, so sold it. The new owners are Raymond and Antoinette Stachura, who had the home moved Sept. 10 to the present site of their mobile home on Crawford Road, just north of Deckerville. Anthes Brothers of Gagetown did the moving, less than 2½ miles. The Stachuras will restore it themselves.

Damage $500 in early Tuesday house fire

Damage was estimated at $500 in a house fire reported at 1 a.m. Tuesday to the Elkland Township Fire Department.

The home on Bay City-Forestville Road, a short distance east of M-53, is owned by Frank Preba and is being lived in by his daughter.

Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. said a wood panel around the pipe from a wood burning stove where it connected to the chimney became too hot and started burning. The fire then worked its way into the rafters and the roof.

Root said the daughter called her father, who removed part of the ceiling and then using a garden hose, almost had the fire out by the time fire fighters arrived.

They removed more ceiling and insulation and used the garden hose to make sure the fire was out. The stove was in the dining area.

The desire to have a manager with professional training, something Cook didn't have, was one reason for Nichols being hired, Bieble said.

The other was a "personality clash" between Cook and some of the co-op members.

Cook is breaking in Nichols as manager, but it isn't expected he will remain with TACCI, although he was given that option, Bieble said.

Cook declined comment when contacted by the Chronicle.

He is one of the four newly elected directors, the others being Harold McAlpine, Snover, Dale Gornowicz, Ubyl, and John Olszak, Gagetown.

The other directors are Bieble; Jim Nichols, North Branch; Gerald Learman, Rapson; Mike Reinbold, Caro, and Paul Izdorek, Decker.

Missionary convention this week

Rev. James Roussos will be one of the guest speakers for the missionary convention which will be held at the Cass City Missionary Church, 4449 Koepfgen Road, this Thursday through Sunday morning.

Roussos returned to Cyprus, the land of his birth, in 1966 to preach the gospel to his own countrymen. He came to the United States as an 18-year-old and graduated from Fort Wayne Bible College in 1960 after which he pastored a Missionary Church for six years.

Mildred Wanner will be the other guest speaker for the convention.

Her first overseas assignment in 1948 took her to Ecuador, but illness in the family forced her to stay home after completing one term.

In 1956, she went to Haiti. As a registered nurse, she keeps busy in the clinic and maternity hospital in La-Jeune, Haiti.

The services begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday. Saturday evening will be a very informal service with a carry-in dinner at 6. The Sunday morning service is at 11.

Honor Tonti for education work

Don Tonti of Cass City, director of human resources for Walbro Corp. and a long-time volunteer in career education, has been awarded top regional honors by the Michigan Business-Industrial Alliance.

The annual award for involvement in vocational and technical education recognizes individuals from business, industry and labor who have made significant contributions to vocational education.

Tonti won a local award for similar service and was then nominated for regional honors. The region consists of Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola, Lapeer and St. Clair Counties.

"Tonti has been very active in vocational education at the local CEPD (Career Education Planning District) and regional level," Intermediate Tuscola School District Vocational Education Director William Pratt wrote in nominating him.

chairman of the program selection committee for the Tuscola Area Skill Center (TASC)," Pratt continued, referring to the surveys which were conducted to determine the types of classes to be offered at the Skill Center.

Tonti has served seven years on the CEPD Council and is presently its chairman.

He recently volunteered to be on a subcommittee for the Program Review and Planning Committee for TASC.

During his years of service, according to Pratt, Tonti has employed vocational graduates supported student activities, hosted field trips, aided millage efforts, served as a speaker, prepared news releases and served on a number of other committees.

"He has arranged for several co-op positions for students, encouraged and helped arrange classes for his employees through vocational education, and has been active in economic development."

New line-up for Vassar

Mistakes costly in Marlette loss

Hawk football fans had better hope that the skies are clear and the air brisk and dry Friday when the Vassar Vulcans come to town.

Judging by the results last Friday at Marlette, Cass City just isn't a very good mudder on the gridiron. The Hawks lost to Marlette, 14-7, and scored their only touchdown in the first quarter just before the rains came and stayed for the remainder of the game.

Coach Don Schelke doesn't blame the weather for the defeat. We just made too many mistakes, he said. We'd get something started and a penalty or some other goof kept us from mounting a sustained drive. That's our inexperience showing, he added.

While there won't be new faces in the line-up Friday for Vassar, several position switches will have been made.

In the linebacking corps, Dave Osentoski will go to full time and Brian Wright, the junior student, will move up from safety.

Against Marlette the Hawks operated without the services of Bryan Beecher, the sophomore who shared quarterback duties with Joe Langenburg. Beecher is injured and is doubtful for this week's game.

It didn't look as if the Hawks would need Beecher to win against the Raiders. The Hawks took over on their own 42 and moved in to score.

A 20-yard scamper put the ball on the 28 from where two plays gave Cass City a first on the 11. Langenburg then went around end to the three on a pass-run option and Osentoski bulled over for the marker with 6:24 left. Tore Tollersrud, exchange student, split the uprights for the extra point.

After that it was all Marlette. The Raiders threatened in the second quarter, moving for a first on the seven-yard line only to be stopped by Cass City.

In the third quarter it was a different story. Dave Taylor capped a drive with a 15-yard spurt in the period and a pass from Lindsey Hager to Rich Woycik put the Raiders ahead, 8-7.

Marlette added an insurance marker in the final period as Taylor scampered 62 yards with 9:10 left and that ended the scoring as Cass City continued to sputter on offense.

Osentoski was the work horse of the offense with 25 carries for 107 yards. Taylor picked up 112 in just three carries for the winners.

JV RESULTS

O-G girls split 3 loop games

Owen-Gage lost at Caseville Tuesday evening in girls' basketball, 50-41.

It was the first loss by the Bulldogs in North Central Thumb D League play this season.

Further details were not available as of press time.

PORT HOPE

The Owen-Gage girls played their first basketball game of the season at home last Thursday and walked away with a 47-32 win over Port Hope.

The Blue Stars only scored one point in the second quarter and three in the third, so never threatened Owen-Gage after the first period.

Joan Mosack led the victors with 21 points, followed by Jackie Kain with 10. Mosack also grabbed 27 rebounds. Linda Retford pulled down 19, and Shelia Engelhardt, 14.

Top scorer for Port Hope was Iris Gallagher with eight points.

The Bulldog junior varsity also won its third game of the season out of four played, 24-23.

Score by quarters:

O-G	12	11	11	13	47
PH	10	1	2	19	32

AKRON-FAIRGROVE

The Bulldogs gained their second win of the season -- twice as many as last year -- with a 38-29 win Tuesday, Sept. 14, at Akron-Fairgrove.

The Bulldogs trailed at halftime, 19-16, pulled out to a one point lead, 26-25, at the three-quarter mark, then ran up the big victory margin in the final eight minutes.

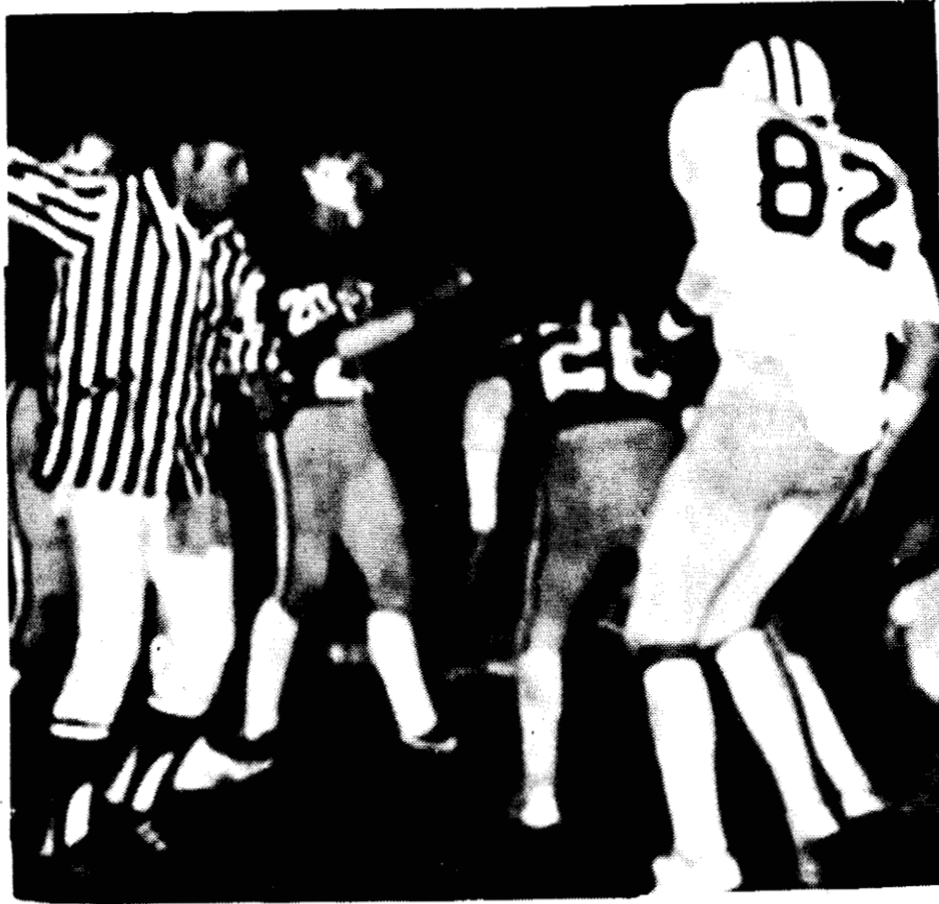

Joan Mosack was the only Owen-Gage player in double figures with 18 points, plus 18 rebounds. Carol Zimmer grabbed 12 rebounds and Linda Retford, 11.

Leading the Vikings were Linda Rutkowski with nine points and Sherri Stone with 21 rebounds.

The Bulldog junior varsity also won, 21-14.

Score by quarters:

O-G	4	12	10	12	38
A-F	5	14	6	4	29

A HAPPY MOMENT for Cass City came when the referee signaled the ball was across the goal line. The TD was scored by Dave Osentoski. Watching the play is Barry Lapp, number 82.

Winless Cass City cagers fall to USA, Marlette

Unionville - Sebewaing showed Cass City why it is the third rated team in the state in Class C Tuesday night by rolling over the winless Hawks, 74-37.

The Patriots jumped off to an 18-2 lead in the first quarter to settle the issue early. Cass City played on even terms in the second period, each club scoring 18 points. The USA regulars poured on the heat in the third quarter to post a 21-6 advantage and then coasted in for the win.

The winners had three persons in double figures. Stacy Holland, 18, Dawn Englehardt, 13, and Kelly Adam, 11, were the top scorers for USA while Carrie Lautner, 8, Laura Richards, 7, and Jill Hutchinson, 6, led Cass City.

The Hawks were held to just six field goals but converted a respectable 25 of 36 from the free throw line. USA scored 29 field goals and was 16 of 26 from the charity stripe.

MARLETTE GAME

It could be a very long season for Cass City's basketball team which has yet to win a game in three starts last week and was to have met state-ranked USA Tuesday at Cass City.

The Hawks dropped their third game last Thursday to Marlette, 43-22. It was the first Thumb B Association game for the team. The second is slated Thursday night when the Vassar Vulcans come to town.

Marlette salted away the game with a 13-4 spurt in the first period as the Hawks suffered another poor shooting night, hitting just 8 of 34 shots for 24 percent. From the foul line the team was only 6 of 15 for 40 percent.

The winners were led by Deana Wilkins who netted 15 points on six field goals and 3 of 5 free throws. Top scorer for Cass City was Carrie Lautner with six points.

Kim Wagg continued to show the way in the rebounding department for Cass City with 10. As a team the rebounding was much closer than the score would indicate.

The Red Raiders led by just one board, 30-29.

Battle of unbeatens

Tigers fall, O-G faces Caseville

In lieu of an Army tank or a four-wheel drive tractor, Owen-Gage coach Arnie Besonen will have to find some other means of stopping Caseville's offensive threat, Brian Sigfried, in order to ensure a Bulldog victory Friday.

Owen-Gage, victors last Friday night over Carsonville-Port Sanilac in overtime, 12-6, for its second win this season, hosts the Eagles in its homecoming game this Friday. It will be the first home game of the season at Owendale.

As for Sigfried, the senior running back gained 271 yards rushing and scored four touchdowns Saturday as he led Caseville to a 43-0 rout over Peck.

Not only are the 2-0 Eagles an offensive threat, Besonen said, they are also tough defensively.

As for last Friday's game, the toughest thing for both teams in the rain was trying to hold onto the ball.

It wasn't until six seconds were gone in the fourth quarter that someone made it across the goal line. It was the Tigers' Jason Lechnyr who scored on a seven-yard run. The kick for the extra point was no good.

With 2:30 left, Lee Gettel put six points on the board for Owen-Gage on a six-yard run. The attempt to kick the extra point was unsuccessful due to the holder fumbling the snapped wet ball.

That put the game into overtime. Owen-Gage had possession of the ball first and scored on its first play, on a 10-yard run by Dan Glidden.

The Bulldogs held C-PS scoreless for its four downs and the soggy game was over.

Owen-Gage gained 10 first downs in the game, fumbled once without losing the ball and was penalized eight times for a total of 60 yards.

Harriers place high in meets

In the annual USA Invitational Cross Country race held last week, Cass City harriers finished well in the competition among the dozen schools entered.

Renea Stimpfel showed that she is rounding into shape with a 20:54 clocking that was only 4 seconds slower than her 12th place finish in the state last year. Other times and places of finishes posted by the girls were: Merilee Leslie, 14, 22:26; Lorie Hurley, 16, 22:33; Lisa Wilson, 16, 22:24.

In the freshman, sophomore competition, Chris Tuckey was 11th, 21:58.

In the boys' competition, Greg Bliss was first in the race for juniors, 15:59, and Randy Jackson was sixth, 17:16.

In sophomore competition, Kevin Bliss was second, 17:35, and Tom Wallace, 16th, 18:29.

If team scores had been kept, Cass City girls would have been third from among 11 teams.

Your Neighbor says

Stricter penalties needed for criminals

Stricter penalties would reduce the crime rate and the number of drunk drivers, Franklin B. Webb believes.

"I don't like these break-ins and robbing," he commented. "I don't think they give them (criminals) enough (penalty) for what they do."

The legislature has been deliberating whether to impose stricter penalties for drunk drivers including mandatory minimum penalties, license suspension or revocation, jail time (not mandatory for first offenders), fines and screening of offenders to determine their need for treatment.

The law is too lenient now with drunk drivers, he said. "That's why a lot of trouble starts."

Alcohol abuse by parents, he feels, results in their children being deprived, so he supports anything that would discourage persons from drinking, such as stricter penalties for drunk driving.

The Michigan Supreme Court last week upheld a State Board of Canvassers ruling that enough valid petition signatures were not obtained to put the death penalty on the ballot.

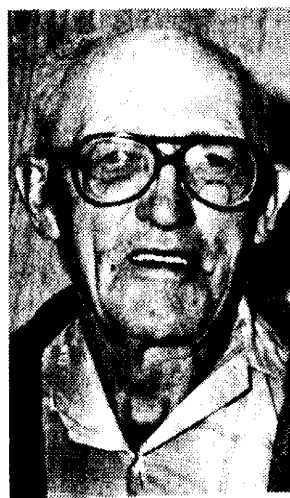

Webb thinks Michigan should have a death penalty, that it would stop a lot of murders.

Once criminals are in jail, he supports the idea of putting them to work, such as in cleaning up roadsides as is being done in Sanilac County. He pointed out that in his native Tennessee, the first roads across the Smoky Mountains were built by prisoners. "I say that's a good thing."

Although stricter enforcement of the laws might send more persons to already crowded prisons, he suggested in the long run, prisons will not be as crowded because persons will be discouraged from committing crimes.

Webb and his wife, Ruth, live on Arnold Road, Snover. He retired 10 years ago from Yale Rubber Manufacturing Co. in Sandusky, after working there 20 years.

Recall petitions to be circulated in Cass City

Backers of an election to recall three members of the Cass City School Board plan to be in Cass City Saturday asking persons downtown and door-to-door to sign petitions.

Until now, petitions haven't been circulated in Elkland Township, organizer Vic Beddow said, because of an interpretation of state law that said the circulator of the petition within a township had to be from that township.

Most of those involved in the petition drive, he said, live in the rural areas, outside of town, and those who live in Elkland or the village who were willing to circulate petitions backed off because of threats. Two petitions at a local restaurant were stolen, he claimed.

An interpretation of the law was requested from state election officials, who said this week that the provision saying the circulator had to reside within the election district means they can be from anywhere within the school district, that they don't have to be from within the township they circulate the petitions in.

Beddow said the minimum 818 petition signatures needed for an election to recall board members Geraldine Prieskorn, Ben Hobart and Dr. Edward Scollon have been obtained. "We're going to get the insurance policy (extra signatures) now."

As for critics of the petition drive, he commented, "Why in the world is everyone scared of this going through? All a recall petition is is a vote of confidence."

Beddow said he opposes the four mills that will be voted on Monday, that since the ballot proposal says the millage is to be used "for operating purposes," there is no guarantee it will be used for the specific purposes sought for by those who wanted the election, that they "can run the buses for two weeks and shut them down."

He feels busing is essential, and that non-essentials such as music should be eliminated first if there isn't enough money for everything.

3 students enroll at Northwood

Three area students recently attended summer freshmen orientation at Northwood Institute in Midland.

They are Annette Sue Vandemark of Deford and Kirk M. Winter of Cass City, both Cass City High School graduates planning to major in business management, and James Patnaude of Gagetown, an Owendale-Gagetown High School graduate planning to major in advertising.

The three-day session informed freshmen about the college and its curriculum, programs, services and activities. They also registered for fall classes.

Northwood is a private, tax-exempt independent co-educational business and management oriented college.

In a year's time 30 tons of barnacles can attach themselves to the bottom of an ocean-going ship.

Children are precious

To the editor,
Those who know me best will perhaps agree that I am not, by nature, an argumentative person.
I have never, as far as I can remember, written a letter to the editor. Perhaps I should have sometime during the almost half century that I have lived in Cass City, but I haven't.

Two thoughts, however, keep pounding away in my mind as I face the election next week. I would like to share them with others in our school district who will meet the same responsibility.

First, we would do well to remember that in making our decision, we are dealing with a very precious commodity -- the education of our children.

Whether our graduates will be pursuing further training, in college or university, or entering directly into the world of work, the challenges and demands made upon them will be tremendous.

On occasion, I have served as a substitute teacher in chemistry and physics. I have been absolutely astounded at the increased volume, as well as difficulty, of the material they are expected to master, compared to what was true when I last taught those subjects in the mid-1960s. I am sure the same is true in other subject areas.

It seems to me that as a responsible adult member of my community, I cannot in good conscience do less than give our young people the very best preparation possible for the high hurdles they will be expected to meet.

The second thought, though perhaps less serious, bothers me a great deal.

For many years, when I have identified myself to people in other communities as a resident of Cass City, I have almost invariably been reminded of the many fine achievements our area has made in education, athletics, cultural advantages, and many other pursuits.

Very often it has been added that one thing about Cass City is that its people work in harmony. They find something that needs to be done and they all pitch in to do it. The events of the past few weeks have, I'm afraid, done much to tarnish that image. I wish that it might be restored.

So, when I enter the voting booth next Monday, I am going to be thinking about what I can do to insure a quality education for our young people and to make certain that Cass City will continue to be a community of which I may always be proud.

Consider consequences

Dear John,
Cass City voters who are requesting further cuts in the school system are not considering the consequences.

It is like asking an already weakened body to undergo exploratory surgery. Shall we go for a leg, the head, the heart? We have lost a leg already (the buses).

We'll lose the head if we undergo a recall and the heart of us all will be lost if the system ultimately collapses.

Sincerely,

Dotty Scollon

Letters to the editor

School situation is dividing community

To the Editor:

I can see it happening and it's heartbreaking -- our community is becoming divided! People are avoiding each other. Lifelong friends aren't speaking to one another. And the reason is the lack of busing.

The people who depend on busing vs. those who don't. The rural people vs. the town people. But who are the "good guys" and who are the "bad guys?"

This fight is absolutely ridiculous because both "sides" strive for the same goal -- a good education for the children in the area.

During this current depression, many people are definitely hurting. No one can blame them for not wanting higher taxes. But do they realize that Cass City residents pay the lowest millage (almost) in the state?

Now our school system has financially hit rock bottom, perhaps because we've been sliding by on these low taxes.

Wake up, Cass City! We really need the millage! The four mills are just a drop in the bucket compared to what we should be paying to give our kids the quality education and "extras" they deserve.

For some reason the school board seems to think that the rural people are the ones who have consistently defeated millage proposals.

We have become the "scapegoats" and we've been treated as such. Now we're taking the full blame for defeated millages, and we're forced to suffer with our lack of school buses.

This discrimination is grossly unfair. I'm sure that a comparable number of "city" people have voted down millage proposals.

Perhaps now everyone should set aside his feelings of prejudice. It's time to start being a "community" again.

Let's work together and restore Cass City to its "pacesetter" quality.

Mrs. Sally Wood
Crawford Road
Deford

Special gifts need developing

Dear Mr. Haire,

In response to the recent articles concerning our schools, please consider this point of view:

Within each child, there are special gifts. Some are musical, some are intellectual, some are artistic, while others are athletic.

Within our classrooms, there are future farmers, mechanics, secretaries, bankers, factory workers, and business people.

Whatever the gift or talent, schools are meant to find it and develop it to the fullest extent of the child's abilities.

Only a full school curriculum can develop these varied abilities and gifts.

On Sept. 27, vote "yes" for the sake of all children.

Sincerely,

Barbara L. Tuckey
4738 Schwegler Rd.

Senior citizen is concerned

Dear editor,

I resent statements that take for granted that all of us will automatically be against raising the needed millage for our schools.

We have been and still are very concerned citizens who want to do what we can for our schools and community.

We have lived through many troubled times and are very much aware of the economic problems of the day. We are the senior citizens.

It is my sincere wish that the millage can be raised this time.

Sports are important, too

To the editor,

I am writing concerning the upcoming millage election.

The necessity of a complete education is a must for all students in today's society.

As a recent graduate of Cass City High School, I am not speaking just of reading, writing and arithmetic. Extracurricular activities are an important part in a student's education.

Being active in sports, I learned the values of teamwork, self-discipline and coping with the disappointment of losing.

As a past member of Honor Society, Student Council, class offices, and other groups, I also learned the values of leadership, responsibility, the importance of compromising and setting good examples for underclassmen.

I am very thankful for the values and education I received at CCHS. I hope that ALL of the above will be offered to students in the very near future.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Martin Jr.
Class of 1980

Schools vital to progress

Dear Editor:

The upcoming millage election for our Cass City School District prompts me to address all the members of the district concerning the importance of a strong school system.

One of the strengths our district has is a well balanced economy -- agriculture, industry, wholesale and retail business, and services, such as the hospital and nursing home -- which combine to provide an economic base that usually carries us through difficult times such as we find ourselves in today.

In working to promote our area, I have always used this fact to explain why we have a full central business district, a strong school system, a recreational facility second to none and a generally prosperous community.

In recent efforts to seek new industry and new retail business, one of the strengths that we have continued to point out is the school system. Failure to pass the upcoming millage will seriously erode that strength and will make the job of improving our area and its economy much more difficult.

Why are we concerned about additional industry and more retail business? Industrial and commercial state equalized valuation accounts for approximately 7 percent of the total

lives in town

To the editor,

In answer to the letter to the editor last week asking how many people in Cass City voted for busing, I did and have always voted for school millage.

I have paid school taxes over 40 years, which included busing and extra activities.

My children never rode a bus but it was needed in the community.

Our school has one of the lowest tax millages in the state. Our school board spends many long hours to get the most for our money.

Why don't you quit your bickering. Stand behind your school board. Give them the money they need to run the school as efficiently as they have in the past years. Vote yes for the millage.

Ray Fleenor

Tom Herron
4861 Spruce Street

school district. These stores and plants pay taxes directly to the district, yet they do not increase the costs of operating such a district. Obviously, they also hire people who bring additional growth and prosperity to our area.

The decision that will be made next week concerning the future millage for our Cass City schools will have far reaching effects for years to come.

Difficulty in bringing in new business and promoting the community could ultimately cause the total decline of our area and of individual property values.

It is because of my concern for the future growth of our community, as well as for the many contributions provided by its citizens over many years, that I urge all voters to cast a yes vote.

L.E. Althaver, president
Village of Cass City

Industry needs good schools

Dear John,
Walbro has been proud of its long association with the Cass City area.

We feel that both the

Good schools community aid

Dear John,

To the Cass City School District voters:

As past president of the Chamber of Commerce and a resident of this community I feel I must express my feelings on the upcoming millage vote.

As a building contractor, I meet a lot of people who are considering moving into this community. Most couples have families and one of the first questions asked is, "What kind of school do we have?"

If we have a mediocre school system, we can't attract trained professionals, new business or industry.

Do you realize any time a new industry considers moving into this town, they need qualified engineers and managers as well as a work force from this community? This also applies to a present industry considering expansion. If we cannot fulfill their needs here, they will go elsewhere.

That affects me a lot, but it affects you too. Where will you work, where will you shop? Your property will no longer appreciate in value as the town deteriorates. No one likes more taxes, including myself, but an investment in the school is an investment in our community. Please vote "yes" on this school issue.

company and the people have benefited from these many years of mutual assistance. When recruiting new employees, we very often express our desire that they become involved in living in and helping the community.

These individuals often are looking to leave a larger community where there are many problems in raising a family. We have told these concerned parents about the environment in which they can raise their children, a large part of this being the excellent school system.

The recent millage problem has caused us to have concerns about acquiring the employees Walbro needs in today's competitive business climate.

As our employees know, we are competing for a share of the automotive supplier business. This requires new technology which we must quickly adopt to remain competitive.

This can only be done by hiring qualified, experienced people and relocating them in the Cass City area. This has become more of a problem when concerned parents ask about the recent millage defeat and lack of funds to provide what they consider a good education for their children.

We must ask ourselves how many prospective and current employees we will lose because of a less than adequate education for our children. It should also concern everyone that we are one of the lowest millage school districts in the State.

Thank you,

Don G. Tonti
Director of Human Resources
Walbro Corp.
