Buses back in Ubly

For the first time this school year, Ubly School District buses picked up students Wednesday morning as the result of the overwhelming approval Monday of two additional mills for the purpose.

The millage is for two years

The levy was approved 897-544, which was 62.2 percent voting in favor. The 1,444 votes cast (three ballots were spoiled) was 53 percent of those eligible to vote and was the greatest number to ever vote in an Ubly school election, Supt. David Landeryou said.

The same levy, though not specifically earmarked for busing, had been twice defeated earlier this school year.

Why the difference this time? "I think people were tired of driving their children into school and people just recognized children should have transportation to and from school and they were concerned about safety of children,' Landeryou said.

He added, "I think the vote in itself indicates people do have faith and trust in the board of education.

However, the effort to recall five of the seven school board members continues.

"I thought I would go ahead with it if I can get enough signatures," organ-izer Hugh Roberts of Minden City said Tuesday evening.

Named on the recall petitions are Bernard Puvalowski, Julia Heilig, Arthur Jahn, Allan Moses and Clarence Rutkowski.

Roberts said about 250 signatures have been gathered so far for each -- a minimum of 419 is needed -with most of them coming from the Sanilac County portion of the school district

When he started the recall campaign, he said he felt the only way the millage would pass is with a new school board because the voters didn't trust the present one. Now that the millage has bassed, Roberts compassed, mented, "I still don't feel the school board is doing the job it was elected to do." He said he voted for the millage increase Monday.

Enrollment ups in area school districts

Springport, MI 49284

Continuing a trend of the last few years, enrollment in all area school districts has declined since last year.

Cass City los

Friday was the day that all school districts in the state had to conduct their official count of students.

The Cass City schools have 1,825 students enrolled, a drop of 60 from last year. Owen-Gage counted 393 students, down 15; Kingston, 750, a decrease of 35, and Ubly, 921, a loss of 85.

Owen-Gage and Ubly, the latter for the first time this year, don't receive regular state aid because of high average property valuations per student, so don't lose money when enrollment declines

Cass City and Kingston are affected, however. Cass City Supt. Donald Crouse is figuring state aid will be $1,700 per student, so the loss of 60 students will cost the district $102,000.

The loss would have been even greater were it not for the increase in the number in increased property taxes, of adult high school completion students, from a fulltime equivalent of 32 last year to 60 this year.

In contrast, the number of daytime students decreased from 1,854 to 1,765, a loss of

By building, the following number of students were counted Friday (1981 figures in parentheses): High School, 596 (642); intermediate, 534 (519); Campbell Elementary, 434 (444); Deford Elementary, 105 (136), and Evergreen Elementary, 96 (112).

The decline in enrollment was not unexpected. "We've been experiencing that for the last three years," Supt. Donald Crouse said.

He attributed the decline to a dropping birth rate, persons moving from the school district because of the economy and possibly an increase in enrollment at the Deford Christian Academy

The four-mill increase approved by voters Sept. 27 will raise $412,770 this year however, the loss in state aid will partially offset that. The result, according to the superintendent, is that combined state aid and property taxes will only be $332,723 more than last year. Crouse is projecting that membership state aid this school year due to various factors including enrollment loss will total $460,000, compared to $761,000 the school district received last year from Lansing. The $460,000 doesn't include $82,000 in withheld state aid (part of a $150 million state budget cut) that is supposed to be paid to the district next June, but isn't guaranteed.

KINGSTON

"No question about that," Supt. Robert Cameron said. The loss of 35 students will mean a loss in state revenue, but since he still doesn't know what the state aid formula will be, doesn't know how much money the of the district, so this year's drop in enrollment was expected. There are 380 students in grades K-6, compared to 401 last year, and 370 in the high school, down from 384 last year.

OWEN-GAGE

Enrollment at Gagetown Elementary School is as follows: Kindergarten, 34, first, 19; second, 29; third, 29; fourth, 31; fifth, 35, and sixth, 35, for a total of 212 students, a gain of eight from 1981-82.

At the high school, the number of students is: seventh, 24; eighth, 33; ninth, 25; 10th, 3;; 11th, 29, and 12th, 35, for a total of 181, compared to 204 last year.

Millage rate 26.73; six staff members recalled

After adjustments required by the "Headlee" amendment and the addition of the four extra mills recently approved for operation, taxpayers in the Cass City School district will pay a total of 25.63 mills or $25.63 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. Millage to pay off two school debts remains the same with a total for the school will decrease from $760,930 last year to $459,051 for the current school year. Cost of operation of the

That information was released in the truth in taxation meeting Monday at the high school before about 30 interested district residents.

The total tax represents a 30.91 percent increase in taxes for the year. Howaver, the amount of money that is available to the school did not increase nearly this amount.

That's because when valuation rises as it did in the Cass City district, the amount of money received from the state decreases. Property valuation went up little over 10 percent in the district. The state formula guarantees $1,700 per child for education, depending on the millage raised. If the mill rate remains the same from year-to-year and the valuation increases, the amount of money paid by the state decreases.

Regular readers of this trivia will recall the report about John Tomczak who won two lottery drawings on the same day at a Rotary Club meeting.

With 25 or so tickets in each drawing I reported that he had to be the luckiest guy in town to buck the odds in that fashion

I still think that's the case, but I do have to report that the same thing happened to me Tuesday. I won two drawings on two different tickets, too.

It must be that the Tomczak magic works no matter who buys the tickets. I purchased mine and was forced to leave before the drawing and needed someone to care for my tickets.

Do I need to tell you that Tomczak handled my tickets for me? Of course I don't.

Okay, now, did you remember that Monday, Oct. 11, is Columbus Day? Sure, you did. I mention it only to remind you that Columbus Day is a holiday. It is, that is, if you work in the post office which will be closed for the holiday.

Ouch department. One of the names on the recall petitions that have been circulated is board member Geraldine Prieskorn.

One of the happy events of Monday's special board meeting was a vote to recall five teachers that had been laid off due to the financial crunch.

Tongue-in-cheek Dick Wallace announced that it was fit and proper that Mrs. Prieskorn should be the one to make the motion to recall, much to the enjoyment of the remainder of the board and the 30 interested spectators.

It appears that the Cass City School Board faces a Hobson's choice in setting a bus policy for drivers. If it allows them to drive to jobs it will be open to criticism by persons who see the buses on the road and don't know all the facts

If they don't allow the buses to be used they are spending more money than they need to.

Maybe a sign could be placed in the window saying this bus is on the road to save you money?

reorganization

Farm Bureau Services, Inc., which has a facility in Gagetown, filed Friday for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code in order to protect it from further damage claims resulting from the accidental mixing of PBB and cattle feed in 1973.

The filing shouldn't have any effect on operations. "Farm Bureau Services expects to continue operations as usual," said Newton Allen, the firm's vice-president and chief executive officer. The reorganization won't affect Michigan Farm Bureau or any of its other companies, he added. In 1973, FBS workers accidentally mixed the fire retardant chemical with animal feed, which caused a massive contamination

In explaining the filing for Chapter 11 protection, Allen said in a statement Saturday that "over the years, PBB claims have caused a severe strain on the about $40 million in damage claims so far.

"By having the balance of the PBB claims disposed of under supervision of the bankruptcy clerk," he ex-plained, "FBS will be able to eliminate the ongoing burden which this litigation has imposed on its operation." "The disposition of the remaining PBB claims will enable FBS to move forward in furnishing to its thousands of members and others a wide range of programs, products and services.' though they were on the way to a party, even when they

We're all proud of the commitment these 4-H youngsters have made to agriculture. Likewise our Loan offices have dedicated themselves to serve the financial needs of Agri-Business and the Farmers of this area.

There doesn't seem to be any middle ground any more. Not in government anyway. It's either the unfeeling, unproductive policy of Reaganomics or the giveaways of the Kennedys.

It's the same way in Lansing. Blanchard is advocating spending to prosperity, the same solution that has failed in the past. Headlee is trying to sell us the cut spending policy that isn't working at the national level.

Any homeowner or any businessman wouldn't buy that stuff for a minute if they were trying to sell it to them about their own personal finances.

When there is no money, there is no spending and if more money is needed, someone goes to work for it. More often than not the whole family works for the extra money that they need to keep the lifestyle going the way they want. They know there's no free lunch.

The money for government comes from just one source, taxes, and it's piein-the-sky to think that we can put on public works programs without a hefty boost in taxes to pay for it.

Headlee, like Reagan, says that he'll make the money available by cutting spending. It's likely that this program would be about as effective as the president's, whose budget cutting has increased the cost of government over what it was when he took office and has sent the national deficit soaring beyond what it has ever been. They talk in billions now. Or maybe it's trillions. For most of us it's so much money that we don't know what it means anyway.

What we do know is what it costs us out of our paychecks when we hit the grocery store or the clothing store or when taxes come due.

According to the polls, there's only a slim chance that Headlee will ever get a chance to put his theories into practice. That leaves us with turn into statesmen. You hope against hope that it might be the case with the new chief executive of Michigan. But if it does turn out to be Blanchard, be skeptical.

After all he is the candidate of and obligated to, the state's big unions. Their aims and those of the rest of us aren't always compatible. On the other hand, big business isn't too much concerned about you and me either. The bottom line is profits.

If our chief executive whips it on big business the answer will be simple. More of them will turn to the south or to foreign shores than already have, and there is already a well defined trail leading out of the state.

Watching the bow hunters walk around downtown Fri- have collected everyone's day made me think I should uniform at the embarkation have worn my Vietnam point and then issued used jungle fatigues to work.

I would have fit right in - to go home in or they could at least when I was walking have let GIs go home in their down the street. At work, I jungle fatigues would have looked a bit strange.

I was wondering what the fellow peons in Vietnam and deer hunters were doing we all agreed that besides walking around Cass City in saving the taxpayers their camouflage outfits. money, being allowed to The deer were out in the wear our fatigues home country, not in town.

Maybe it's like men (and I of a better word, to those suppose women) who walk who saw us that we had around ski resorts carrying skis or hanging around in -the ski lounge bar who never ski. They're there for the atmosphere, not for the physical activity.

One of the greatest benefits of being in the military is the clothes you get to keep when you get out.

There is one exception, the dress green uniforms and I have two of them. The Army in its wisdom made GIs send one set of dress greens home once they got to California or Washington state and received their jungle fatigues before embarking for Vietnam.

Once soldiers got out of Vietnam, assuming they did so vertically, they were given another dress uniform to go home in. Thus I and hundreds of thousands of other GIs own a uniform that we have worn once.

Not that I could probably get in mine if I wanted to. When I got out, I weighed 125 pounds. Now I weigh 135.

I also can't wear my hat, not that I would want to. I tried on the flat folding dress cap a while ago and it was too small for me. You can make up your own jokes about my having a swelled head.

Thus if anyone reading this would like to play soldier at home on leave, let me know.

Giving GIs a uniform to wear once to go home in illustrates the military's mentality about spending taxpayers' money.

Whoever wrote the song that contains the line about 'flying through the air with the greatest of ease" certainly didn't have ultralight airplanes in mind, but somehow it seems appropriate.

'It's calming'

If ultralights hadn't been invented, flyers like Ed Bezemek would have never got off the ground. The 34-year-old Argyle resident wanted to learn to fly an airplane since he was a kid, but with flight lessons and airplanes being so expensive, he never thought he would have the opportunity.

That was until two years ago, when he first read about the latest development in aviation and visited a man in Yale who had an ultralight. Since then he has been saving and reading all he could about the various models available (51 at last count). In June, his dream came true when he bought his own Ultralights are called that because they are very light, no more than about 250 pounds. There are some two-seaters now on the market, but the vast majority carry only the pilot. Most leave the pilot exposed.

The first ultralight was a hang glider that someone attached an engine and propeller to so that he could take off from any field, instead of having to jump off a cliff.

Ultralights have become much more sophisticated since then and have long since sprouted wheels for they wore out. I don't keep track of fashions much (other than hemlines on women's skirts), but apparently the military surplus look, once very in, is out, having been replaced by the nylon ski and back-packing jacket look.

That's alright with me. If wearing green is good enough for Kermit the Frog, it's good enough for me. It's also cheaper.

There are now about Bezemek has since passed 15,000 ultralights crisscrossing the skies over the United a written test to become a certified ultralight pilot. The Federal Aviation THE CHEAPEST Administration last ultralights sell for about Thursday came out with a $3,600, but much of the con-

TAKEOFF PREPARATION -- Ed Bezemek gets his ultralight ready for a flight. The plane has only four controls. The "joystick" to the left of the seat makes the plane go up and down and left and right. To the right of the seat is the throttle. The two large foot pedals control the spoilerons on top of the wings, which aid in roll control and making steep descents. The small pedal pushes a skid against the front wheel for stopping. The tube by the top of the seat is the air speed indicator.

Mary Albee head librarian in Caro

Mary Albee of Cass City is the new head librarian at Indianfields Public Library in Caro.

She replaces Sue Cassie of Kingston, who held the job two years and worked a total of four at the library, who is moving with her husband, Ron, and family to Wisconsin.

The change in leader-ship took effect Friday.

Mrs. Albee is working on her master's degree in library science at Central Michigan University.

She has worked as an English teacher in the Cass City Community Education Department adult high school completion program, as a librarian at Caro High School and a substitute librarian and teacher in the Cass City schools and as a housewares and giftwares buyer at Albee True Value Home Center.

She and her husband, Lynn, have three children.

As head librarian, Mrs. Albee will have numerous duties, including ordering books, supervision of staff, program planning, public relations and budgeting and financing.

The Indianfields library serves approximately 11,000 persons in the Caro area.

CROSSINGS by Danielle Steel (fiction). This book is set in the tense, unreal years of World War II. Beautiful Liane deVilliers is married to a French ambassador accused of collaborating with the Nazis. Wealthy industrialist Nick Burnham has turned his back on his wife and fortune. But amid the chaos of their personal lives and a world girding for war, Liane and Nick cling to their love for each other and their desperate hopes for the future.

CINNAMON SKIN by John D. MacDonald (fiction). Travis McGee enlists the aid of his best friend, Meyer, to track down a crazed killer. The trail takes them from the Florida Keys to Texas to upstate New York to the danger-filled jungles of Mexico. In their travels they meet a beautiful Mayan woman who proves to be indispensable not only in providing some missing clues, but to Travis as well.

MURPHY MUST HAVE BEEN A MOTHER! by Teresa Bloomingdale (non-fiction). Here we are entertained with anecdotes on a variety of things that go wrong in big families . . . from appliances that talk back to costumes that even Dior couldn't design . . . from dealing with "intimi-dators" to handling those "horoscopes" that promise trouble in your life.

New law tougher on drunk drivers

By Mike Eliasohn

Persons arrested for drunk driving under a new law approved by the Michigan legislature last week are more likely to be convicted and if convicted, face stiffer penalties.

Local law enforcement and judicial officials contacted by the Chronicle feel the new laws will help get drunk drivers off the roads, but do have some reservations about how effective it will be.

None dispute that alcohol and driving is a problem. "I'd say in probably 80 percent of our accidents in Tuscola County, alcohol is involved somehow," Prose-

Gov. Milliken is expected. The new laws will then take effect 90 days after the last day the legislature is officially in session this year, according to State Rep. Loren Armbruster, which means they will become law about April 1. The Caro Republican voted for the legislation.

One thing the new laws do is make punishment for driving under the influence more certain.

Present law, according to Tuscola County District Judge Richard F. Kern, specifies that a first time offender's driver's license must be suspended for no more than two years.

That means a judge can suspend a driver's license for as little as one day. Kern's standard sentence is 90 days suspension (plus fine and costs, probation and sometimes a jail term).

The new law says a first time offender's license must be suspended a minimum of six months and a maximum of two years.

Kern doesn't care for educing judges' discretion in sentencing.

Should a 70-year-old man with a clean driving record who drank too much at a nephew's wedding and then drove receive the same sentence as a middle-age man who had a high blood alcohol reading when arrested, no special reason for drinking and a history of

marvelustre

Kern and the others questioned about the new law were handicapped in that none of them yet had seen the final version of the law approved last week, so their only knowledge of it was from newspaper reports, though they had read about earlier versions of the legislation. PROSECUTOR NOEL feels the change is a big improvement over the old law in that it will only be necessary to prove that the person had a blood alcohol level of .10 or more to prove him or her guilty of driving under the influence (DUIL). To prove a person guilty under the present law, it is necessary to show he or she registered .10 or higher, plus other evidence, such as the person's car was weaving before it was stopped by a police officer.

For the past several months, Noel has had a policy of no plea bargaining for DUIL cases if an accident was involved, for a second offense or for a first offense where the defendant's blood alcohol content was .17 or higher.

He hopes one effect of the tougher new law is that it will discourage intoxicated persons from driving or that sober ones with them won't let unsober ones drive.

Drunk driving cases, he commented, cause more property damage and grief than any other type of crime.

CONVICTING A PERSON of drunk driving is only one aspect of the new law. First, the person has to be arrested.

A major change in that regard is allowing police to use portable breathalyzer equipment.

Presently, all persons arrested in Tuscola County must be taken either to the sheriff's department or the state police post in Caro, both of which have breathalyzers and certified operators.

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson doesn't think the new law will make much difference in that regard, since any arrested for driving under the influence have to be taken to the county jail anyway.

Producers of Grade A milk will vote on the proposal in November.

Producer's participating in the superpool, mainly Michigan Milk Producers Association members, will not notice a difference in their milk checks, according to Sanilac Extension Agricultural Agent Mark Stephenson, because the superpool premium will be 10.5 cents higher than it has been and the same amount for promotion will then be deducted from milk sales, provided the proposal is approved. Only producers who are not participating in the superpool will notice a difference.

Guest musician performs at Salem church

The two worship services Sunday morning at Salem United Methodist Church and the evening service were well attended.

A special guest for the services was Merrill Dunlop of Oak Park, Ill., musician. It was his second visit to the church.

The morning services were given over to a concert presented by Dunlop, assisted by Donald Greenleaf on both piano and organ.

The evening service featured a hymn sing led by Rev. Eldred Kelley, after which Dunlop gave a special presentation of "The Storm" on the organ with a solo by Donald Greenleaf.

Following the morning services the congregation was invited to the social rooms of the church to meet Dunlop and for a sampling of wthnie foods.

While in Cass City, Dunlop was a house guest of Donald Greenleaf and his mother, Mrs. Helen Green-

Defense extends O-G win streak

Owen-Gage has scored a total of four touchdowns in its last three games. Because of its stout defense, that has been enough to win all those games, including last Friday's 7-6 win at North Huron.

The Bulldogs are going to have to play better than that to ensure a win this Friday against visiting Kingston, according to coach Arnie Besonen. "Kingston is winning now and they are tough.

Hawk cagers' loss streak now at 8 games

Winless Cass City dropped two more games last week stretching its loss streak to seven games while losing to potent Frankenmuth, 66-14, last Wednesday and 47-35 to Lakers Thursday.

The Eagles had too much of everything for Cass City, jumping off to a 14-6 first quarter lead and going on from there.

In the middle two quarters Cass City was able to score just four points. Jill Hutchinson led the Cass City scorers with eight points. Mary Dug, 14, Diane Gib-son, 14, and Kathy Nuechterlein, 11, were in double figures for the winners.

Diminutive Carrie Lautner led the rebounders for Cass City with 9.

. It was closer against the Eakers. The teams played even in the first quarter and Cass City trailed by just four points at the half.

But the Lakers salted away the decision with a five-point bulge in the third quarter and a 13-10 advantage in the final 8 minutes.

Jamie Fox, 8, and Lautner, 7, led Cass City while Eva Sturm scored 14 and Shelly Baur collected 10 for the winners. The Lakers outrebounded the Hawks 37-29. Laura Richards was the top boarder for Cass City with 7.

Cass City is slated to host Caro in a Thumb B Association game Thursday.

USA GAME

There is one bright note for the Cass City Red Hawks in its dismal cage season. The team will not have to face USA again during the regular season. The Patriots have one of the state's top rated teams and they easily swept by winless Cass City Tuesday, 69-32.

The Hawks started strong against the host Patriots trailing at the end of the first quarter, 20-14, in one of the most productive point quarters of the season for the team.

But after that it was all down hill. Cass City scored 8 points in the second quarter, six in the third quarter and a meager 4 points in the final period.

Carrie Lautner netted 12 points for Cass City while Stacy Holland, 16, and Dawn Englehardt, 14, paced USA.

Laura Richards snared seven rebounds and Jill Hutchinson, six, for Cass City.

Dry weather has enabled farmers to catch up on their dry bean harvesting. The Michigan Bean Shippers Association survey Monday of Cooperative Extension Service agents showed an estimated 75 percent of the navy bean crop in Tuscola County has been harvested and 65 percent of the colored beans.

In Huron County, 70-75 percent of the navy beans were off the fields and in Sanilac County, 55 percent. Statewide, farmers were getting close to having 75 percent of their beans harvested as of Monday.

The MBSA reported navy bean yields in Tuscola are averaging 14.7 hundredweight (cwt.) per acre, which county Extension Director Bill Bortel said is a good yield, "very respectable In Sanilac, the MBSA said later navy beans are running 14 cwt. per acre and colored beans should average 13. In Huron, late navy beans and colored beans are averaging 13.5. The rain that mercifully ended last week only hurt farmers who had beans windrowed but couldn't get them combined before it started raining, Bortel said. He guessed possibly 4,000 acres or about 5 percent of the crop was lost in Tuscola. The bad news is that no matter how good a crop, farmers are losing money with every bag of beans they harvest. The market price early this week for navy beans was only $11 per cwt. Bortel said depending on the farmer, they need at least $18 cwt. just to break even.

Dykes has been in the county jail since July 23 pending the waiver hearings, and will remain there at least until he is arraigned in circuit court.

Patients who wear dentures often ask how will they know when their dentures need replacing. My reply is - studies have shown that dentures are usually replaced every ten years. Obviously, many people wear their dentures much longer than this, while others replace theirs at shorter intervals. It depends, of course, on the rate of change in a person's mouth. Some of the signs which may indicate the need to change dentures are as follows:

1. A deepened crevice at the corners of the mouth. 2. The chin appearing to be more prominent (forward)

The high court overturned an appeals court ruling that said the so-called "fuzz busters" were illegal under a 1929 state law which prohibits equiping civilian cars with a radio capable of receiving police channels.

Linda Kritzman thinks that if radar detectors are going to remain legal, the legislature should raise the speed limit. "If they're go-ing to have fuzz busters, they should have the speed up there.'

Restoring the old speed limit of 70 would presumably make fuzz busters useless for most persons. She feels it is inconsistent to have the speed limit 55 and then allow devices that encourage drivers to go faster than that.

Even if the speed limit were 70, she feels the high cost of gasoline would encourage drivers to go slower, since the faster a car goes, the more gas it consumes. "I couldn't afford to

Downtown application rejected

Cass City's application for a $4,500 federal grant to prepare a downtown development plan has been rejected. Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie said the application, made in July, was rejected because federal small cities community development block grants are being spent on projects that result in creation of jobs, not on planning for such projects.

Had the grant been approved, a Kalamazoo firm was to be hired to prepare drawings of what revitalized downtown buildings might look like and investigate various means of finandowntown improvecing ments.

The Cass City Chamber of Commerce was going to donate $1,350 as the required local share needed to get the grant, had it been approved.

Prices Cut On Over 50 Higher Priced Prescription Drugs

Coach Light is concerned about the spiraling cost of health care and is doing something about it.

We realize the cost of higher priced drugs can be a serious financial burden. We've adopted a new price schedule on many of these drugs and invite you to come in and ask about it.

A special thanks for your business in the past. We are anxious to please, let us know how we can help.
