Chopper fire loss $32,000

Fire Tuesday afternoon apparently damaged a corn chopper beyond repair. It was valued at $32,000.

The fire was extinguished by Elmwood Township-Gagetown firemen, who received the call at 12:30.

The chopper belonged to brothers John and Joseph Graham of Jacob Road, Caro, and was being used in a field south of M-81, west of Cedar Run Road.

At the time the fire started, the machine wasn't running.

John was greasing it while waiting for his brother to return from unloading a load of chopped corn at their dairy farm.

Joe said Tuesday evening he and his brother believe the cause of the fire was electrical.

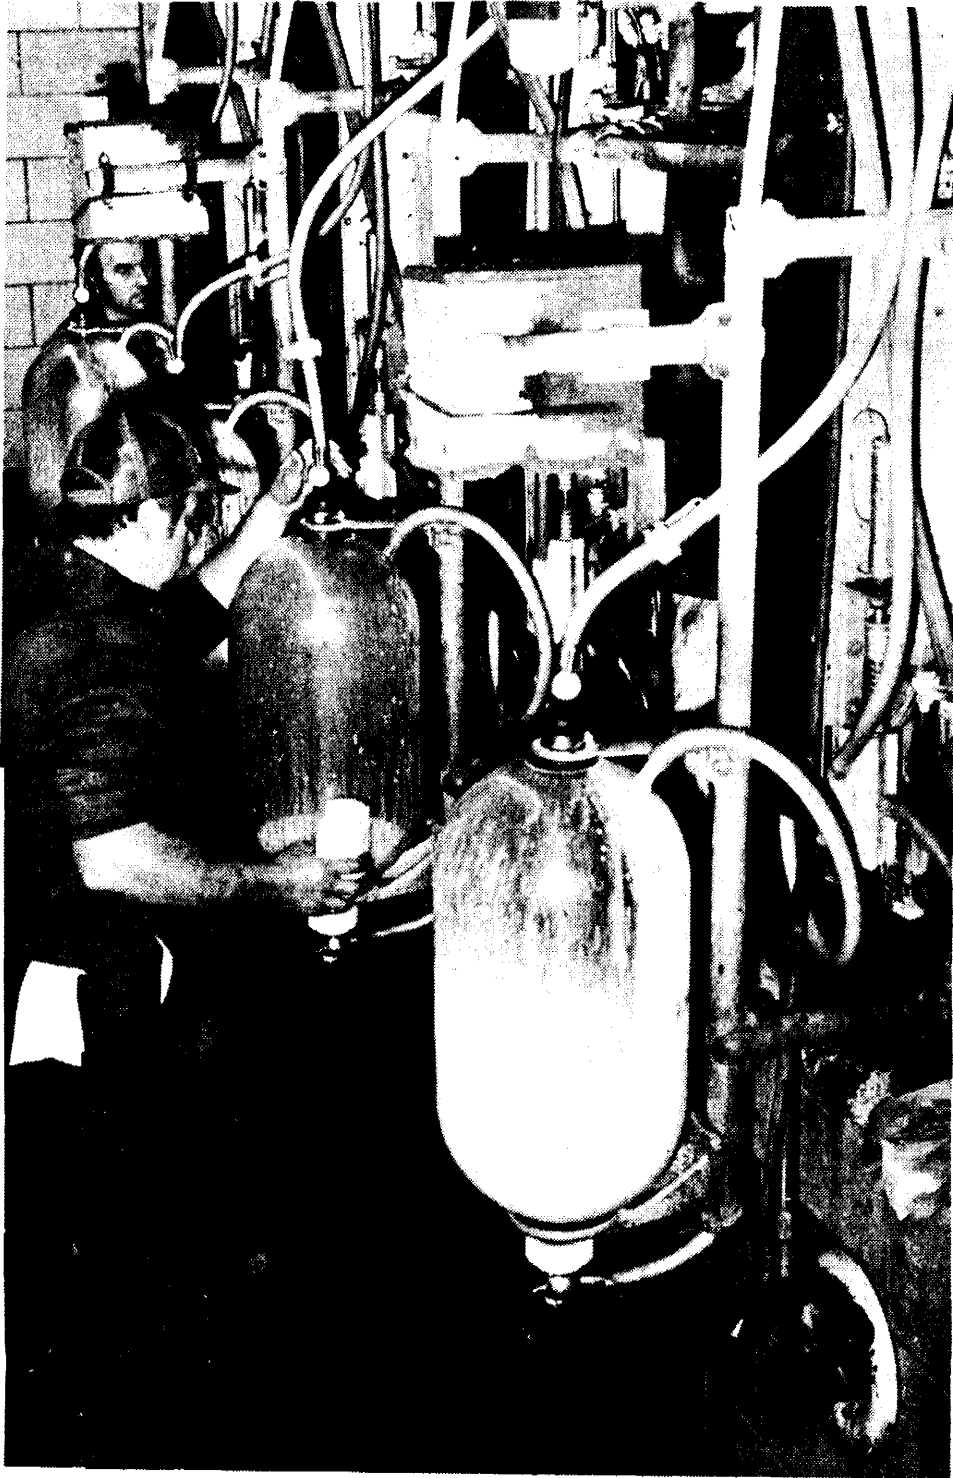

After discovering the fire, John unhitched the wagon the chopper was towing and then drove the burning vehicle away from the standing corn into a part of the field already harvested.

He did so, Joe explained, out of fear the standing corn would start burning had he left the chopper there.

The fire trucks had to travel more than an eighth-mile across the field to get to the burning chopper, fireman Mert Hendershot said. Firemen returned to the fire hall at 1:40 p.m.

The Gramahs later had someone from the dealership where they purchased the machine look at it. He told them that the power unit, valued at $32,000, appeared to be a total loss. The detachable chopper unit was salvageable.

It still had to be examined by the insurance adjuster, Joe Graham said.

MILKING TIME -- Milking cows on the Elwood (Butch) Morell farm on Robinson Road are Melvin Laming (rear) and Raymond Errer. Each cow's milk first goes into the glass containers so that it can be easily determined whether it is giving the normal amount. Milking the 175 cows takes about 3½ hours twice a day.

Less income

Milk price support cut may backfire

By Mike Elliasohn

A cut in the federal price support for milk, intended to reduce the amount of milk produced and thus the amount the federal government spends for dairy price supports, may have the opposite effect.

Dairy farmers contacted by the Chronicle feel that to offset the loss in income, they and their fellow dairymen will try to increase production. That means taxpayers will end up spending more money to subsidize dairy farmers, not less.

As of Dec. 1, the government will deduct 50 cents per hundred pounds of milk from the current support price of $13.10 per hundred pounds (cwt.) of milk and starting April 1, 1983, the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture may be able to deduct another 50 cents.

Oct. 1 marked the start of the third year that the $13.10 minimum support price has been in effect. In order to maintain that price, it is estimated Uncle Sam will have spent about $1.9 billion during the last fiscal year to buy surplus milk, butter and cheese -- which is about 10 percent of the total produced.

The deduction can mean a big chunk of income. One farmer, who didn't want his name used, said he will lose about $24,000 annually from the first 50-cent cut unless he offsets the lower price by increased production. Despite that, he isn't worried about going out of business. "I'm still going to be here."

In fact, those farmers contacted agreed that even with the cut in the price for their milk, they will still be better off than cash crop farmers, who are suffering from very low prices. "Crop farmers are really going through the wringer," said Fred Matthews of 4871 Hadley Road, Decker, who milks 25 cows.

THE VERY LOW prices paid for corn, beans, wheat, etc., is part of the problem. Not only does it pay for the dairy farmers to feed as much of their grain to their cows as possible, as opposed to reducing their herd size and selling some of the grain on the market, some cash crop farmers are getting into the dairy business.

"I'm really afraid it (cut in support price) is going to have the reverse effect, especially when farmers alternatives are bad," commented Jack Laurie of Dodge Road, Cass City.

Laurie, Michigan Farm Bureau vice-president, milks 120 cows with his father, Grover.

CROP PRICES ARE low, he explained, because for the first time in history there has been record worldwide production three years in a row. "I just can't imagine that's going to happen four years in a row."

Needed in addition to a less than record harvest is "open up every export market in the world." (Laurie was interviewed prior to President Reagan's announcement Friday that he would allow sale of up to 23 million metric tons of grain to the Soviet Union, versus the 6-8 million contracted for.)

Until crop prices and cull cow prices (dairy cows sold for slaughter) go up, Laurie doesn't see much cause for optimism and he doesn't see prices going up before April 1.

For Laurie and his father, the 50-cent cut in the support price works out to $80 per cow per year, or a total of $9,600. A second 50-cent cut would mean an additional $4,800 for six months.

The agriculture secretary can chop another 50 cents per cwt. off milk checks as of that date if government purchases of surpluses are projected at 7.5 billion pounds or more and if he has established a system to give dairymen a refund if they have reduced their milk output. How the refund system will work hasn't been decided yet.

Asked if he thinks the second 50-cent cut will lower milk production, Laurie responded, "I don't know."

WHAT MIGHT REDUCE milk production is if the cut in the support price results in some dairymen going out of business.

In the past, dairymen going out of business hasn't resulted in less milk output because other farmers have purchased their cows to increase their herds, plus improved management and practices has resulted in cows giving more milk.

What may be different this time, Matthews noted, is that bankers may not be willing to finance expansion of dairy herds as they tighten credit they extend to farmers.

He said his alternative to reduced milk checks will have to be to try to do a better job with his herd and try to cut expenses. "I have no desire to increase. I would sooner comply with a cut," he added. He hasn't figured yet what his potential loss in income will be.

It is likely most farmers will try to increase production by increasing output per cow, rather than expanding herd size.

Most dairymen, Laurie noted, are at capacity now, so in order to add cows, they would have to expand their buildings and milking capacity, which would require most to borrow money -- and banks may not be willing to lend it.

Although he doesn't like the idea that who stays in the dairy business may become a survival of the fittest, he felt that may become true. THAT ALSO BOTHERS Bill Jones, of Pringle Road, Decker, who milks 50 cows. "I don't think guys should be forced out. It doesn't seem right to me."

The Sanilac County National Farmers Organization president and NFO national board of directors member, would like to see a bigger effort made at developing new dairy products in order to get rid of the surplus.

"I feel there has got to be more research. I can't understand why they can't sell bottled flavored milk, except chocolate, which isn't good for you anyway." What he has in mind is fruit flavored milk.

ELWOOD (BUTCH) Morell of Robinson Road, Cass City, also mentioned the need for better promotion.

He mentioned Michigan Milk Producers Association members, reported in the MMPA monthly magazine, who persuaded a Zealand restaurant owner to install a milk dispensing machine, in place of serving milk by the carton, and then offering second glasses of milk for free. In three weeks, sale of milk increased from seven gallons a week to 70.

Increasing milk sales and higher grain prices may work in the long run to eliminate the surplus problem and increase milk prices paid to farmers. It won't solve the immediate problem.

Until then, dairymen such as Bill Jones, who said he could lose as much as $8,000-9,000, will have to tighten their belts.

"I think I can (survive) because I haven't spent a lot of money on expansion," he commented, "if I watch myself and not spend money unnecessarily."

No problems foreseen for new ambulance contract

The Cass City Area Ambulance Service is nearing completion of its fourth and final year of operation under its present contract.

Representatives of the four townships that subsidize the service -- Elkland, Novesta, Evergreen and Greenleaf -- have yet to finalize a contract with the operator, Jack McDaniel, but no special problems are anticipated, according to Elkland Township Supervisor Jack Gallagher, chairman of the ambulance board, since no one objects to the service provided.

McDaniel would like to have the details worked out at his next meeting with the board, Nov. 1, in time for the four township boards to approve it before the present contract expires Dec. 31. He made his first proposal for a new contract to the board in June and has offered two or three more proposals since, he said.

For 1982, the townships paid $1.55 per resident to subsidize the service, with the rest of the operating revenue coming from fees collected from users, their insurance companies, Medicare or Medicaid. The 1983 rate hasn't been determined yet.

As his charge for operating the ambulance service, McDaniel keeps 25 percent of the fee collections. The difference between the remaining 75 percent of the fees collected and the actual operating cost must come from the subsidy from the townships.

The ambulance service began operating Jan. 3, 1979. In its first 44 months of service, McDaniel said, it "lost" $22,000, not including the cost of the ambulance, which had to be made up by the subsidies from the townships.

The subsidy paid by the four units has declined since the beginning. It was $2.75 per capita when it started. One reason it has declined is because interest payments on the loan to purchase the ambulance declined as more of the principal was paid off. The ambulance, now paid for, is owned by McDaniel.

ONE OF THE THINGS that must be worked out in the new contract, McDaniel said, is financing of a new ambulance. Another is whether he will continue to keep 25 percent of collections.

When the first ambulance was purchased, at a cost of $26,546, it was said the average life expectancy of such vehicles is 4-5 years, and it's now almost four years old.

Residents of the four townships which subsidize the service are charged less when they have to use the ambulance, $65 per person plus $2.50 per loaded mile.

Persons living outside the four townships who need the ambulance pay $130, plus $4 per loaded mile.

When the ambulance started running, the fee was $50 and $1.50 per mile within the four townships; outside, $100, plus $2 per mile.

McDaniel said the ambulance has averaged 300-320 runs per year since it started.

THE AMBULANCE service has nine emergency medical technicians and four driver-attendants, plus members of the fire department serve as drivers when needed. "We could use double that," McDaniel said. When possible, two EMTs and a driver go on each run.

They have been paid the same rate since the service started. EMTs receive $7.50 per run, plus $5 per hour beyond the first hour. Driver-attendants receive $5 per hour, plus $5 for each additional hour.

McDaniel and his family have moved from Cass City to Bay City since the service started. He handles findings, including sending bills and collection.

Jim Jezewski oversees the local operations, scheduling maintenance, etc. Dispatching is done by the sheriff's department.

The Cass City Area Ambulance Service replaced the ambulance run by Little's Funeral Home.

McDaniel was the only person who made a concrete offer four years ago to operate the service and he said the situation hasn't changed. "It's like it was four years ago."

He said he would be content to get out of the ambulance business and let someone else run it, but no one has made the offer. "I made the (new contract) proposal because Cass City still needs the ambulance. It would not bother me at all to get out of it... but no one wants to take it over."

Kingston teachers say board 'unfair'

The Kingston Education Association plans to file an unfair labor practice charge this week with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission against the Kingston School Board.

In addition, the teacher organization plans to request the return of a MERC mediator to sit in on negotiations with the school board or to have him request a fact finder.

Teachers are presently working without a contract.

KEA President Fred Gerhardt said Monday evening the teacher group will file the unfair labor charge on the grounds of regressive bargaining (retreating from a previous position), using a bargaining team which does not have authority to negotiate and interference with the teacher bargaining unit (someone trying to influence a member of the bargaining unit). If MERC decides the charges have merit, Gerhardt said, it will conduct a hearing.

Supt. Robert Cameron responded that he was aware of the teachers' intent to file the unfair labor complaint, but there was no comment he could make.

As for the stalled negotiations, both he and Gerhardt said the issue is money. The school board has offered a pay increase, which the teachers consider inadequate.

The two sides met for about a half hour last Thursday evening, Cameron said, but neither chose to move from their present positions.

It was the third session held since the state mediator was last present. Gerhardt told the Chronicle he will be contacting the mediator this week.

The mediator can return and if he decides the two sides cannot come to an agreement, can request MERC to appoint a fact finder. Or he could decide without returning to Kingston that the two sides aren't likely to reach an agreement so could ask for a fact finder without returning.

If a fact finder is appointed, he will study the issues in the contract dispute and then recommend a settlement. Acceptance of his recommendation is voluntary.

Earlier in the negotiations, according to Gerhardt, the KEA proposed binding fact finding, but the school board rejected the proposal.

If the board had given its consent, that would have meant that the two sides agreed beforehand to accept the decision of the fact finder.

Wood burning may some day hike insurance rates

Burning wood has become increasingly popular the last few years as a means of reducing costly heating bills.

It has also meant many fires, usually chimney fires, which sometimes burn themselves out harmlessly, but sometime result in major damage, and it may eventually result in increased insurance rates.

Higher rates haven't happened yet, but they may, according to three local insurance agents.

"I imagine there will come a day when insurance companies say, 'We have to surcharge those policies (of homeowners who burn wood),' " said Alan Kloco of Harris-Hampshire Agency.

Whether they might, explained Ed Doerr of Doerr Insurance Agency, ultimately depends on the number of claims that result from wood burning caused fires.

Bob Copeland of Copeland and Gornowicz Insurance Agency thinks rates will eventually increase "unless we can cut down on the rate of fires we have been having."

The number is considerable. During the 1981-82 heating season (October through April), the Elkland Township Fire Department responded to 30 chimney or related fires that stemmed from burning wood.

Although the companies represented by the three agencies contacted haven't boosted rates (the Chronicle did not survey all local insurance agencies), some companies elsewhere already are automatically increasing rates when homeowners start burning wood.

Several in the Upper Peninsula have added surcharges for policy holders with wood heat, according to Henry Huber, Michigan State University forestry specialist. One such company lost more than $1 million due to claims because of damage from wood stove fires.

One Minnesota company, he said, charges 25 percent extra for free standing wood stoves and another assesses $1 for every $1,000 in coverage.

ALTHOUGH COMPANIES insuring local homeowners may not be boosting their rates yet for those with wood heat, the agents said, their companies will only provide fire coverage if the wood burning units are installed correctly.

Only one of the agents, however, said he personally inspects installations or the person must have a written statement from a member of the fire department stating the installation is safe before coverage is provided.

For about the past 1½ years, according to Paul Lefler, Tuscola County building codes

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Honestly, I can't tell you for sure the name of the reigning male monarch in England or just what his title is right now. That's because of scant interest in the coming and goings of royalty. After all they have little real power in the running of the country today.

But I'll remember the younger brother because of some enterprising writer's nickname for him. The pilot who served in the recent war in Argentina has been reported flying with a soft porn queen.

"Randy Andy" sticks with you just like "Tricky Dick" except that Randy is much more fun in retrospect than Dick.

Bill Zemke (who else) was busy showing a certificate of deposit issued by the Deford Bank to him in 1941 for $4.25. Zemke now owns the building that housed the bank. See, one wag at the coffee table said, what saving your money will do? Deposit $4.25 and pretty soon you own the bank.

It wasn't too long ago that the Cass City School Board met once a month and once in a great while held a special meeting.

The recent school woes changed all that. There's been a meeting about every week recently.

Plans for this week off have been followed, but the board will make it up next week when there will be two special meetings.

The first is Monday when goals will be discussed, the second is Thursday. No telling how long the first will last but the second should be short and sweet. That's because it was called to open bids for the opening of tax anticipation notes showing how much lenders will charge to borrow money.

The meeting is required by law and shouldn't last more than a few minutes.

7 car-deer crashes reported in area

The woods may not be safe for deer trying to hide from bow hunters, but area highways haven't been safe lately for deer or cars.

Seven car-deer accidents were reported in the area during the past week, with three of them occurring Saturday.

Thomas A. Stimpfel, 37, of 5725 Kelly Road, Cass City, was northbound on Cemetery Road Monday, near Severance Road, when his vehicle collided with a deer, according to Caro state police.

Cass City police reported two such accidents Saturday, the first at 6:15 p.m. when Marian R. Brown, 51, of 5504 E. Cass City Road, was eastbound on M-81, east of Greenland Road.

The next was at 8:15 p.m. Dennis F. Francis, 29, of 6577 Deckerville Road, Deford, was driving on M-81, west of Schwegler Road, when his vehicle collided with one of the animals.

At 12:50 p.m. Saturday, deputies reported, Brenda D. Rodgers, 35, of 1392 Kingston Road, Deford, was eastbound on Snover Road, east of English Road, when her auto hit a deer.

Caro state police reported that at 3:10 a.m. Friday, Elman L. Culbert, 33, of Caro, was eastbound on M-46, east of Portsmouth, when his car hit a deer.

Charlene A. Krueger, 35, of 2510 Lamton Road, Decker, was westbound on Deckerville Road, east of Crawford Road, at 7:52 a.m. last Thursday, according to deputies, when her car hit a deer.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

At 11:15 a.m. Saturday, according to deputies, Warren Griffie, 61, of Clifford, was backing up along the north edge of State Street in Kingston and backed into the car of Minnie David, 32, of 6300 Centerline Road, Kingston.

Joyce M. Barrows, 54, of 3483 River Road, Kingston, told deputies Oct. 9 that she fell asleep while her car was eastbound on M-46, east of Froede Road, at 2:46 a.m. The car went off the north side of the road and hit a traffic sign and mailbox.

The Haire Net

When the voters of Michigan gave the Michigan State Police the right to form a union, it produced an ambient feeling.

On one hand it seemed fair to grant the police the clout that much of the rest of the workers enjoyed.

On the other hand, police are in a special position of power and if they used that special clout in a strike, what was to happen?

The fear of a crook's field day would tend to make the administration buckle to demands of the union at the expense of all the taxpayers.

There has been a check on the power of the union. When it bargains, the specter of reduced employment lurks in the background. That's because there are so many dollars available and the amount is shrinking as the state's depression continues.

Now the troopers want to remedy that. They want you to pass amendment B in the November 4 election. What it means is that the State Police would be set up as a constitutional entity. If it passes, the legislature would be forbidden from laying off troopers and would have the power only to increase the number of troopers. It also grants state troopers "full police powers" whatever that is. I, for one, don't want to find out.

The troopers stand alone in this battle as the governor, Michigan Sheriff's Association, the American Civil Liberties Union and the director of the Michigan State Police have gone on record as being against the proposal.

In the battle to get what they want, trooper spokesman Sgt. Gordon Gotts, union president, threatens to consider joining the Teamsters or the AFL-CIO to acquire the clout to prevent the legislature from cutting funding.

Proposal B is a bomb not only because it removes civilian control over the department but because it establishes a precedent of allowing the constitution to protect one employee group.

If the police get it, you can get long odds here that the Michigan Education Association would be next and after that other state employee groups would follow.

If B were to pass, the amendment would force the state to hire 113 more troopers immediately at an annual cost of about $3.5 million at a time when there isn't enough money in the coffers to pay the previously obligated school aid funds.

The worst feature of the amendment is that it removes civilian control of the police department, a basic tenet that has protected our individual freedoms since the dawn of the Republic.

It's too bad that we haven't seen any commercials this fall like the one that keeps blasting "D is dumb."

This one could say B is bad and it would be right on.

Sagging arches

By Jim Fitzgerald

It is truly terrible what hapless taxpayers have to put up with. Two examples . . .

Several years ago, before construction began on the ill-fated Zilwaukee bridge over the Saginaw River, I joined several other spoilsports in blasting a government that forces taxpayers to buy caviar when they can't afford gruel.

Presently there is a drawbridge at Zilwaukee. When it is raised to allow big boats to pass through, auto traffic backs up on I-75. To eliminate this occasional congestion, the new bridge is being built high enough for the Queen Mary to pass below. That will be kind of nice, of course, but when the whopping cost is compared to the tiny amount of time gained by a relatively few motorists, it becomes glaringly evident that the hapless taxpayers have been screwed again.

One of the chief critics of the Zilwaukee rip-off has always been Ed Perlberg, who publishes the Arenac County Independent newspaper in nearby Standish. Ed once wrote that the $81 million bridge will cost taxpayers $1 million a second. He was referring to a nearby alternate route - I-675 - that motorists can take when the drawbridge is up. This route, well-built and easy driving, takes 81 seconds longer than I-75 when the drawbridge is down.

Of course, the appropriate co-incidence was short-lived. It is no longer true that $81 million will be spent to save 81 seconds. The $81 million estimate went bloated last August when one section of the aborning bridge sagged, and another section lifted, rather like a teeter-totter. It has not yet been determined exactly what happened, or why, or how much it will cost to assess the blame, repair the damage and litigate the inevitable lawsuits.

At this point, the only certainty is that the final cost of saving 81 seconds will be well over $81 million, and the great majority of taxpayers who pay for the new Zilwaukee bridge will never use it.

But don't despair. Last week, the U.S. General Accounting Office announced it will "investigate why the Federal Highway Administration decided to build the bridge when nearby I-675 already provided an alternate route across the Saginaw River."

The barn door will be closed, by God, no matter how much it costs you.

In 1980, at least one newspaper editorial strongly urged voters to "Vote No" on a proposal concerning whether state legislators should be exempt from some civil laws that govern all other citizens. But a "yes" vote was required to say no to the exemption. The editorial writer had misunderstood the ballot language, which wasn't surprising. I correctly predicted the proposal wouldn't pass simply because voters in doubt usually vote no, and the proposal was purposely worded to create doubt.

The same thing will probably happen again this November. The same proposal - Proposal A - is back on the ballot with essentially the same convoluted wording.

Many years ago, it made sense for the state constitution to protect legislators from legal harassment that might prevent them from attending legislative sessions. But that was before the legislature began meeting full-time, and before a few lawmakers began using the Constitution to escape paying traffic tickets and plumbing bills.

So on Nov. 2, legislators will ask voters whether they should "pass laws to reform their existing constitutional exemption from civil arrest and process during legislative sessions." And many doubtful voters who really mean yes, get rid of that exemption, will vote no, and the exemption will continue.

Given the alleged intent of Proposal A, reasonable people might wonder why the ballot doesn't simply require a yes or no vote on "A proposal requiring that all state legislators always obey all laws or always face the consequences, the same as everyone else."

Reasonable people just don't understand how important it is to screw the hapless taxpayers.

Ballot proposals

"Ballot Proposals 1982" is the title of a Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service bulletin that explains the seven state-wide proposals that will be voted on Nov. 2.

Copies are available at county extension offices in Caro, Bad Axe and Sandusky. The bulletin number is NRM 13. A single copy is free.

CASS RIVER -- Jason Kitchin took this photograph about 1910 or '11. The bridge carries what is now M-53 over the south branch of the Cass River, just north of what is now Sanilac County Park No. 3. It was replaced by a new one in 1926 which has since been replaced by the present bridge. In the boat are, from left, John Kitchin, Manley Kitchin and Ray Kitchin. On the bridge are William Kitchin (seated), who still lives nearby and is the owner of the photo, and Floyd Wheaton. All the Kitchins were brothers except for John, who was a cousin.

Dykes mute on criminal charges

John P. Dykes, over whom jurisdiction was recently waived in probate court, stood mute to two charges Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Dykes, 17, of 508 E. Frank Street, Caro, stood mute to breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling, the Caro fairgrounds office July 17, and breaking and entering a bicycle shop-garage on Riley Road, Caro, July 5.

He was 16 at the time the alleged offenses occurred.

Judge Patrick R. Joslyn entered pleas of innocent and scheduled a pretrial hearing on the charges Nov. 8. As of Tuesday, Dykes was still in the county jail, unable to post bond.

In cases Oct. 12 before Judge Joslyn: Donald L. May Jr., 26, formerly of Port Hope, was sentenced to one year in the county jail, with credit given for one day served, for violation of probation. His probation was revoked.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Oct. 4 of failing to report to his probation officer in July and to notify him of a change in address.

May was placed on 48 months' probation in March for uttering and publishing, for forging the name of his uncle, David R. May of Cass City, on a blank check stolen from his uncle.

Harold W. Simpson, 23, of 1054 N. Germania Road, Snover, was sentenced to eight months in the county jail, with credit given for eight days served, for no account - check.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Aug. 30, of writing a check for $29 to a Caro pharmacy July 11 for which he did not have an account in or credit with a bank.

Strip mining

During the final hours of the hectic budget session, the legislature put the finishing touches on legislation placing strict control on strip mining activities in Michigan.

The action follows the letting of leases by the Department of Natural Resources to mining companies on hundreds of thousands of acres of land in mid-Michigan.

The bill, presented to Gov. William G. Milliken for signature, would strengthen state laws which officials in the department called the weakest strip mining act in the country.

The state has an estimated 400 million tons of coal, located mainly in the southeastern half of the Lower Peninsula.

While there is no mining currently, several companies are interested in beginning in Michigan.

Under the measure, a mining company would have to get a permit before beginning work and the permit would have to include plans for reclaiming the area to be mined.

Land would not have to be reclaimed to its exact former state, but would have to be restored to a productive, compatible use. For example, pasture land could be restored to crop land.

The bill further gives state authorities the power to examine former mine sites for damage brought on by mining and they can acquire land damaged by mining in order to have it reclaimed.

An abandoned mine reclamation fund would be created, consisting of application fees, donations and specifically appropriated monies. The funds will be used for reclamation projects and the protection of public facilities, such as roads damaged by mining activities.

Under the bill, coal companies would have to pay up to 25 cents for each ton mined to the state to help administer the mining regulations and they would have to provide a bond to cover the costs of a reclamation project.

In other cases Monday: William H. Earegood, 20, of Saginaw, was placed on two years' probation for attempted resisting and obstructing a police officer.

He was also sentenced to 90 days in the county jail, of which 60 were deferred, with work release privileges granted, fined $200 and assessed $150 court costs.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Aug. 2, of interfering with a sheriff's deputy and a Reese police officer while they were trying to maintain peace and make an arrest July 16 in Reese.

Will R. Dowling, 22, of 6027 Fulton Street, Mayville, pleaded guilty to criminal sexual conduct (third degree), of having sexual relations with a girl age 13, 14 or 15 June 26 in Dayton Township.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Dec. 13. Bond was continued.

Richard W. Klatt, 17, of 4180 Beech Street, Akron, pleaded guilty to larceny in a building.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Jan. 10. Bond was continued.

He pleaded guilty to stealing cigarettes, food and cash Sept. 5 from a bar and restaurant in Akron.

D is dumb, B is bad

By Mike Eliasohn

Next week's Chronicle will include an article explaining the seven ballot proposals to be voted on Nov. 2. There will also be information about all the candidates.

Next week in this space, I may write about the candidates, if I can think of something worthwhile to write about, so this week, I thought I'd give my thoughts (prejudices, if you prefer) about the ballot proposals.

Proposal A would allow state legislators to reform their present constitutional exemption from civil arrest and civil process while the legislature is in session, and five days before and after, which is most of the year. They will remain immune unless voters approve the proposal. Vote "yes."

Proposal B - I hate to knock the state police, but the only reason this got on the ballot is the ones who circulated the petitions thought they - unlike other state employees - should be exempted from layoffs.

It mandates that the number of state troopers not fall below the number employed as of April 1, 1980, when 2,257 of them were on the payroll.

If Proposal B is approved, the state will have to hire 114 new troopers, at a cost of $3.5 million. Opponents include the AFL-CIO, Farm Bureau, Fraternal Order of Police, State Bar of Michigan - and State Police Director Col. Gerald L. Hough.

Proposal C deals with "due on sale" clauses in mortgages and land contracts. Hopefully by the time I write about it next week, I will understand it.

Everyone who watches television has heard about Proposal D. That's the dumb one.

The opponents - utilities, business and labor groups - are spending so much money to defeat it (possibly as much as $3.5 million). I hope overkill doesn't result in its passage. Remember the throwaway beverage container campaign? Proposal D sounds good, since it would forbid utilities from automatically increasing their rates whenever the cost they pay for fuel, such as for coal to generate electricity, goes up.

The problem is that the hearing process before the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) to get a rate increase can take 12-14 months. If the utilities' costs go up in the interim, and they can't increase their rates to compensate, they will have to borrow money and pay interest - and we all know who will end up paying the interest.

Most opponents of Proposal D support Proposal H, which would require the MPSC to conduct hearings before granting any rate increase, like Proposal D, but would allow the MPSC to consider more than one rate increase at a time, unlike D. That would allow the utilities to get necessary rate increases because of fuel cost increases much more quickly.

However, the Detroit Free Press and Lansing State Journal have both editorialized that a law recently passed by the legislature and signed by the governor would pretty much do what H proposes to do and also finance challenges to rate increases by the attorney general and consumer groups. Both newspapers advise voting "no" on D and H.

Proposal G would replace the present three-member MPSC, appointed by the governor, with an elected five-member body that would consider utility rate increase requests.

We already elect supreme court and appeal court justices and members of the state board of education and the governing boards of the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University whom we know nothing about.

I don't think electing five members of the MPSC whom we know nothing about is an improvement over the present system.

My general philosophy is that maybe our present system in setting utility rates isn't perfect and maybe in some states, people pay less for their electricity, gas and telephone bills (and in some states they pay more), but I would rather pay a little more and make sure the energy is there when I need it.

Remember several winters back when Michiganians were warm and in some other states factories and schools were closed because there wasn't enough natural gas available?

Proposal E would require state officials to convey to the president and other federal officials "the people's desire for a mutual nuclear weapons freeze with the Soviet Union."

I'm not opposed to a freeze on nuclear weapons or to banning them (not that I think that will ever happen), but I would feel better if the Russian people could also vote on Proposal E. I hate to see only the American people supporting a nuclear weapons freeze, especially since I don't trust the Russians. There is no Proposal F. Maybe the Russians stole it.

Zonta celebrates 25th birthday

The Cass City Zonta Club celebrated its 25th anniversary Saturday afternoon at a luncheon and program at Wildwood Farms Restaurant attended by 64 members and guests.

The club conducted its charter night banquet Sept. 16, 1957, at the high school. The Bay City Zonta Club was the sponsor of the new club, which began with 21 members.

The first officers were Elizabeth Walpole, president; Lucile Bauer, vice-president; Wilma Fry, secretary, and Marie Kreuger, treasurer.

Six charter members of the club still belong, of whom four were at Saturday's anniversary luncheon, Helen Agar, Edith Little, Helen Baker and Esther McCullough. Unable to attend were Gladys Fort and Irene Freeman.

Over the years, the club has donated to numerous civic projects, including $20,000 for construction of the Helen Stevens Memorial Pool in the village park.

It raised $6,317 for the purchase last January of hydraulically operated accident rescue equipment for the fire department.

It donates money each year to Rawson Memorial Library and Teen Ranch. Annual projects include giving Christmas gifts to Provincial House recipients and senior citizen patients at Hills and Dales General Hospital. Last year, members made 750 Christmas cookies for students at Highland Pines School near Caro.

Its major fund raising project each year is its style show and raffle held each November.

The club presently has 28 members. Officers are Florence Karr, president; Ruth Grassmann, secretary; Marie Roch, treasurer, and Betty Hurst, vice-president. Among the dignitaries present Saturday were Lee Loveday of Lake, past president of the Bay City Zonta, who was present at the charter night in 1957; Jane Rhodes, Lansing, Zonta area

II director; Audra Francis, Saginaw, past Zonta International president, and Barbara Geil, Detroit, Zonta district XV governor. At the time the Cass City Zonta was organized, it was the 365th club in the worldwide organization and the first in a town smaller than 25,000 in population.

Upper Thumb car-deer crashes total 1,062

About 10 percent of the estimated 200,000 Michigan deer which will be killed this year won't die from arrows or bullets - they'll be hit by cars, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Michigan motorists are entering the most dangerous period of the year for deer-car accidents.

Last year, 21,242 such accidents were reported, and most occurred from October through December. The accidents resulted in two deaths, 1,159 injuries and an estimated $20.8 million in property damage, or an average of $980 per accident.

In Huron County, there were 417 vehicle-deer accidents in 1981, resulting in injuries to 18 persons; Sanilac County, 312 accidents and 21 persons injured, and Tuscola County, 333 accidents and 20 injured.

Wildlife biologists say that nearly all deer involved in accidents with vehicles are killed, although many limp away from the accident scene to die in the woods or fields.

Several factors contribute to the higher number of accidents during late autumn. Fall is their "rutting," or mating season, which reaches its peak in November, and produces increased deer activity. Deer also tend to congregate in "yards," or low places with dense vegetation, once food supplies become sparse and the weather colder. Many major highways cross directly through deer yards.

Hunting also contributes to increased deer activity in late autumn.

The transportation department offers these tips to drivers:

--Stay alert, and be aware that a deer may leap out in front of your car at any time.

--Deer are most active in the early morning and evening hours. Be particularly wary at these times.

--Deer usually travel in small groups. If you spot one, chances are there will be more in the vicinity.

--When driving in the dark, look for a pair of bright, whitish eyes which appear to be well off the ground. If you spot them, slow down immediately.

--Wear your seat belt, and be sure your passengers do the same.

If you kill a deer while driving, you are allowed to keep it, but you must contact the nearest law enforcement office to have it fill out an accident report.

Three vandalism incidents in village

Cass City police Sunday investigated three reports of vandalism, all of which apparently occurred about the same time Saturday night.

None of the damage was discovered by the homeowners until Sunday.

Nellie Wallace of 6277 Virginia Drive told officers the driver's side window of her car had been broken. She had heard a noise outside between 9 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Celia House of 6320 Virginia Drive reported that BBs had been shot at the sliding glass door on the south side of her home. There were three holes in the screen and one in the glass. It could be seen where the other two BBs hit the glass.

She had heard noise between 9:15 and 9:30.

Around the corner, Kenneth Copeland of 4675 Hunt Street, told police he heard a noise between 9:15 and 9:30 Saturday night and found a hole Sunday in a storm window on the east side of his home, apparently made with a BB.

Jimmie D. Doerr of 7381 Germania Road, Uby, told Cass City police at 3:30 a.m. Friday that the Realistic AM-FM radio and cassette player was stolen from his car. The unit, valued at $130, was under the seat of his car and hadn't been hooked up.

He said he had parked his car at 11:30 p.m. Thursday at a home on Church Street and returned at 3:20 a.m. Friday to find the car parked in the alley behind the home and the radio gone. He had left the keys in the car.

Marek J. Kocan of 7220 Elmwood Road reported to village police Tuesday, Oct. 12, that an Audiovox AM-FM radio and cassette player was removed from the dash of his car that day while parked in the Cass City High School lot from 8:15 a.m.-3:20 p.m. It was valued at $100.

Mrs. Thomas Nicholson of 6619 Houghton Street told village police Monday morning that her daughter's bicycle was stolen within the past two weeks from the yard of her home. She thought it was in the basement.

The Huffly or Westpoint brand bike was pink with 20-inch wheels. It was valued at $90.

Terry Carmer of 6472 Main Street, Apt. 3, told village police Monday night that the magnetic mount citizens band radio antenna was taken from the roof of his car while the vehicle was parked at the Charmont from 8:15-11:55 p.m.

New books at the library

NO BAD DOGS THE WOODHOUSE WAY by Barbara Wood- house (non-fiction). Mrs. Woodhouse, whose (sometimes hilarious) television program on dog training now is syndicated showing in the U.S., deals with the full range of training related problems and with the common mistakes owners make during training. She also covers feeding difficulties and the minor phobias that can cause a dog to be afraid of water, of traffic, storms and other loud noises, and that can cause hatred of either men or women.

THE HERPES BOOK by Richard Hamilton (non-fiction). Because of the growth in the incidence of herpes in the last few years, and because the virus does not respond to any known therapy, this book answers an important need. The author seeks to inform herpes patients of the basic facts, to demystify the nature of the virus, and to sort out the truths from the myths surrounding it. From answering the most commonly asked questions in the first chapter, Hamilton progresses to the details of the disease, the ways it is contracted and prevented, the factors affecting its recurrence, and means of coping with it.

OUTRAGE by Henry Denker (fiction). A man takes the law into his own hands when his daughter is raped and murdered and the killer is freed by the judge in a taut courtroom drama that questions the nature of justice.

Accountant speaks to hairdressers

Thumb Hairdressers and Cosmetologists met at Helen's Beauty Salon in Cass City last week.

Cass City accountant Shari Schott told the hair- dressers about the various deductions they are entitled to, as well as the new rules in bookkeeping. She has prom- ised to come again to a spring meeting.

The next meeting will be Nov. 8. Dolly Ettenofer, a member of the Michigan Hairfashions Team, will talk about and demonstrate the latest techniques in permanents and hair shaping.

All licensed hair-dressers are welcome to join.

No need to baste a roasting chicken if you drape it with slices of bacon. It'll do the job itself in a very flavorful manner.

ASK DR. COE
By Dalton P. Coe, D.D.S.

One of the most frequent concerns which brings six and seven year-old children to our offices is the eruption of the permanent lower central incisors behind the lower front baby teeth. While this temporary appearance of "two" rows of teeth is startling, it is normal for children of this age. With the exception of the lower four incisors, almost all the other baby teeth are replaced by permanent teeth which erupt under them. The pressure of the erupting permanent teeth causes the roots of the baby teeth to dissolve. In the case of the lower incisors, the permanent teeth may almost be fully erupted without causing the roots of the primary incisors to be dissolved. However, the more the permanent incisors erupt, the more they are pressed forward by the tongue. This pressure ultimately results in the dissolution of the roots of the baby teeth, the loss of the baby teeth and finally, the positioning of the permanent incisor in the center of the dental ridge. Many times the permanent teeth are so much larger than the baby teeth, not enough room will be available for them. This condition is usually apparent and should always be checked so that when it is possible, treatment can be started which might prevent a more severe crowding problem in later years.

Your Neighbor says No jobs here, I'm moving to Florida

Economists may argue, as two did on a television program this past week end, whether the recession is ending or will continue, but Dawn Copeland and her mother, Leone Copeland, can't afford to wait.

Dawn's final year of high school. Once they get to Florida, she plans to apply for a job at Disney World, which recently opened EPCOT, its community of tomorrow. That's 60 miles from New Port Richey.

The only work she has had since graduating from Cass City High School in May is baby sitting.

"I'm just trying to get a job for now. I don't know what," Miss Copeland said. Ultimately, "I might end up going to college. I don't know right now."

Miss Copeland did make the rounds of various places to look for work, she said, but was generally referred to the Michigan Employment Commission office in Caro. "I wasn't looking for any job," she said. "I wanted a decent job... but there wasn't any (kind of jobs)."

As for the economy in general, she explained, before some persons said things weren't improving and some said they were, "I thought it was looking up a bit."

She and her mother, who is also looking for a job, do have a place to go to in Florida, a home Mrs. Copeland owns in New Port Richey, where Dawn's brother and his wife live, both of whom found work after moving there last November. They say there are some jobs available.

Mrs. Copeland and her daughter lived there for several months before returning to Cass City for

HEALTH TIPS Safety hints for trick-or-treaters

Hurley Medical Center in Flint is advising children and adults to follow safety precautions and avoid risks associated with Halloween activities.

masks do not reduce vision. Dress children in light-colored clothes, or add reflective tape to dark clothes so drivers can see them.

BURNS: Use a flashlight to light a jack-o-lantern. If candles are used, be sure an adult is present. Guard against costumes coming in contact with flame. Never leave a candle-light jack-o-lantern unattended.

Avoid transporting children in open truck beds unless an adult is with them to guard against their falling out. Send an adult or older child with walking youngsters who might forget safety rules when excited.

Be alert to cooking dangers by keeping pot handles turned in and hot substances out of the reach of children. Melted caramel, for example, can cause a bad burn.

ALLERGIES: Face make-up or certain foods can cause allergic reactions. Be especially careful if your child has an allergy.

Bonfires are another hazard. Never use gasoline to kindle a fire. CUTS: Avoid injury to small children by allowing them to draw the jack-o-lantern's face, but delegating the carving to someone older.

Children to collect for UNICEF
 Some of the children from the weekday school of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church will be soliciting donations in Cass City this week for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

TAMPERS - WITH - Treats: Check all treats and discard any that have been unwrapped or appear to be tampered with in any way. Accompany your child on trick-or-treat rounds if possible.

They will be collecting door-to-door from 4:45-5:15 p.m. Thursday and from 5-6 p.m. Sunday. Donations will help provide food and clothing for poor children in the United States and the rest of the world.

POISONS: Do not use dry ice (solidified carbon dioxide) to chill punch for party. It is poisonous if eaten. Remember that alcoholic beverages can be lethal to small children, so don't leave drinks lying around after an adult party. A few sips of alcohol can make a small child very ill.

Square dance Saturday in Cass City
 The Town and Country Square Dance Club will conduct a dance from 8-11 p.m. Saturday at Cass City High School. Chuck Becker will be the caller.

Don't panic; overeating -- or excitement -- can cause some children to vomit. But if you do suspect poisoning, call the Hurley Poison Control Center at 1-800-572-5369 toll free.

All square dancers and persons who would like to watch are invited.

CHOKING: Avoid peanuts, popcorn and other small items for toddlers' treats. Keep scarves or necklaces short enough not to catch in doors or other objects.

There are about 300 species of holly shrubs and trees throughout the world.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS: Make sure costumes and

Be careful when installing and using wood burning units

administrator, state law has required that permits be obtained from county building codes departments before wood burning units are installed. (Permits are also required for all other permanently installed heating devices.)

Once the unit is installed, a county inspector will check it to make sure it has been installed properly. Although insurance coverage depends on proper installation, according to the agents, there is no way they know if a policy holder has installed a wood burner unless he or she tells the agent or the agent happens to be in the person's home.

If a home owner who already has coverage installs a wood burner and because of improper installation, there is a fire, the company still has to pay the damage claim, the agents said.

Although improper installation, such as putting a wood stove on a bare floor or close to an unprotected wall or running a stove pipe through a wall without any shielding, can cause fires, the three agents agreed the major cause is lack of maintenance -- mainly not keeping the chimney clean.

FOLLOWING ARE SOME do's and don'ts:

-Follow manufacturer's installation instructions to the letter. County Cooperative Extension Service offices and some insurance agents have pamphlets available giving advice.

TO REDUCE CHANCES of creosote buildup in chimneys, which can result in fires:

-Maintain a moderate fire, hot enough to prevent a cool flue liner but not hot enough to ignite creosote already formed.

-Avoid smoldering fires. -Avoid burning trash or other highly flammable material that will produce a sudden, hot fire.

-Burn only dry, well seasoned wood.

-To melt small amounts of creosote in your flue lining or chimney, burn your stove hot once a day, for about 30 minutes, leaving the stove door and air vents open. Don't make this the first fire of the day or the sudden heat could crack the stove or ignite the creosote residue.

-Inspect the chimney each fall for creosote and also for cracks, holes, etc. Inspections should be as often as once a month if you have been burning green wood or suspect a creosote build-up.

-Chimney cleaning is best done from the top of the chimney by a professional.

-Chemicals for removing creosote build-up can be dangerous. Never use a chemical to clean a metal chimney.

SOME SAFETY TIPS:

-Keep clothing and anything else combustible at least three feet from the stove.

-Warn your children to keep a safe distance away from the stove. Designate as "off limits" area for small youngsters.

-Store ashes outside the home in a metal container with a tight lid.

-Burning wood consumes oxygen, so be sure to have adequate ventilation. Leaving a window open 1-2 inches while a fire is burning is a good idea, especially if the home is well insulated.

-Never start a fire with gasoline, kerosene, or other flammable liquid or use artificial logs. The gases generated could cause an explosion.

CHIMNEY FIRES:

-A thundering roar or a shaking red hot stove pipe are signs of a chimney fire.

-Call the fire department.

-Close all air inlets and dampers.

-Don't throw water on a hot stove. This can crack the stove and cause a second fire.

(Most suggestions from Aetna Life and Casualty pamphlet.)

Make sure portable heaters are tested and approved used. 2) The heaters are prohibited in schools, hospitals, nursing homes, homes for the aged, and adult foster care homes.

3) Never substitute the heater for a central heating system.

4) Only use the heater in a well-ventilated room to ensure an adequate oxygen supply. An inadequate oxygen supply may cause an accumulation of poisonous carbon monoxide gas.

5) The heater should be placed away from combustible materials (drapes, bedding, furniture). Care should be taken to prevent children or pets from coming in contact with the heater.

6) Never refuel the heater inside the home or while the heater is in operation or hot. Kerosene should be kept in approved containers and should be stored outside of the residence.

7) Never substitute fuel oils, diesel fuel, or gasoline in a heater designed for kerosene.

Most manufacturers specify use of 1-K clear kerosene. If and grade 2-K appear the same, but 2-K may have a significant amount of sulphur and other contaminants producing combustion by-products that could cause odor, increase maintenance needs, make the room dirty and be a health hazard.

8) Smoke detectors should be installed in the home.

SAFE HEAT is provided by the ceramic wood burning heater in the home of Bill and Connie Klinkman on Cemetery Road, Cass City. The base consists of four inches of concrete, a quarter inch of asbestos and then ceramic tile. Behind the unit is brick, then asbestos and four inches of air space to the dry wall. The chimney walls are 10 inches of concrete. Klinkman cleans the chimney three or four times a winter. The unit is the primary source of heat in the 1,625 square foot home and burns 14-15 face cords a winter. The 200 gallon fuel oil tank was recently refilled for the first time in three years.

Harmonica player entertains AARP

Luella Smith started playing a harmonica as a youngster and has never stopped.

She would rather play the piano, but playing the harmonica does have an advantage.

When she played last Thursday before American Association of Retired Persons chapter members at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, she carried her instrument in her purse.

Mrs. Smith, 70, of Decker-ville Road, Snover, started playing the harmonica when she was growing up after her brothers started. "I just picked it up."

She added, "This is just what I picked up by ear stuff. Nobody taught me."

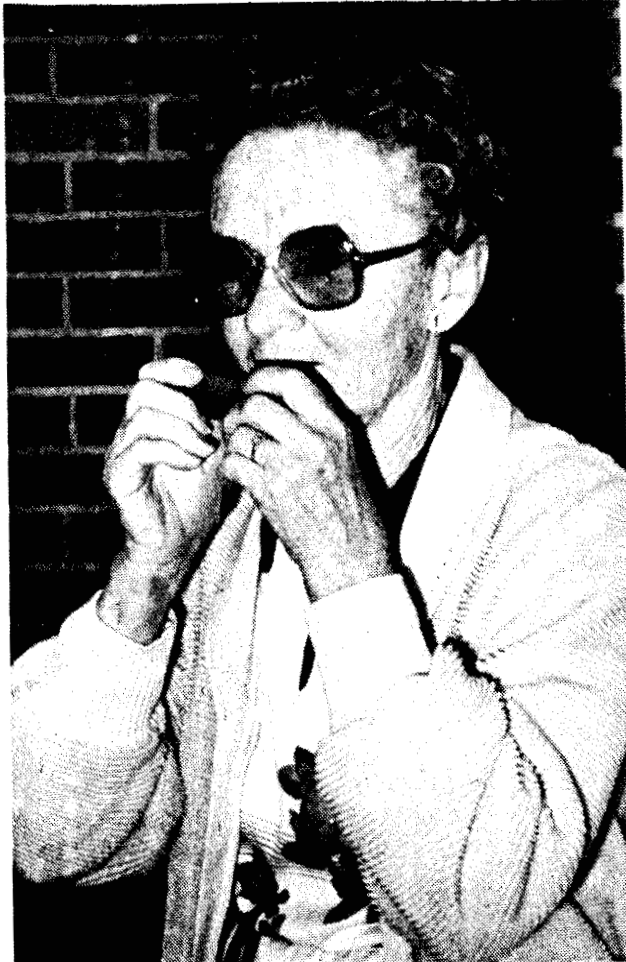

She can hear a song and then play it on the harmonica.

She plays a single reed, 10-hole harmonica. She has tried larger ones, but they require too much wind, she explained.

She mainly plays square dance tunes on the harmonica, such as "Red River Valley." "It just seems like the old songs . . . that goes the best."

She plays occasionally for neighborhood groups, but doesn't want to travel any distance to play.

As mentioned, Mrs. Smith, who does read music a little, prefers to play the piano, one reason being that she can play more tunes on it than the harmonica. "I have more of a love for the piano," she said.

READY TO PLAY a tune on her harmonica is Luella Smith of Snover, who played last Thursday at the American Association of Retired Persons meeting.

Hawks notch first grid win at Bad Axe

Fresh from its 24-14 upset win at Bad Axe, Cass City is preparing for another of this year's football powers, North Branch.

The Hawks surprised everyone with the possible exception of themselves with the win over the Hatchets and with the victory removed the possibility of being the first all losing team at the school since 1967.

To keep on the winning trail against the Broncos will be a major feat as North Branch has a big, tough experienced line and back that keeps pounding away with a three yards and a cloud of dust offense.

We'll have to keep them inside of their 50 because when they are past midfield they can use four downs and they can grind out yardage, Coach Don Schelke said.

Over the years since they entered the league, North Branch has been the toughest school for the Hawks to conquer. It was the Broncos that spoiled an otherwise perfect season for Schelke's Thumb B Association co-champs of 1979.

Regardless of what happens this Friday, Hawk fans have a week to bask in the glow of victory. The Hawks turned the tables on an opponent for a change. Instead of falling behind early and playing catch up, Cass City jumped out to an early lead and then held on to win in the second half.

The Hawks jumped in front with a big play and then went on to dominate the first two quarters. Big gun in the attack was Dave Osentoski who rammed his way for 267 yards on 37 carries including a 66-yard jaunt in the opening stanza that carried to the Hatchet 10. Ed Robinson picked up the TD on a six-yard carry with 6:17 left in the period.

Tore Tollersrud, the Norway import, maintained his perfect record by kicking the first of his two extra points to go along with a 21-yard field goal from the six-yard line.

That boot made it 17-0 and came after the best sustained drive of the night started with less than two minutes left in the half. The Hawks moved down the field on passes and runs to set up the field goal attempt.

Prior to that kick, Cass City scored its second touchdown on a pass from Bryan Beecher to the Hawks' top receiver, Barry Lapp. The play covered 16 yards.

Bad Axe came to life in the third quarter and scored for the first time in the game with 1:58 left. Terry Pangborn capped a 69-yard drive by plunging in from inside the three.

Cass City got that one back early in the final period as Robinson capped a drive by going over from the one.

That marker left the final score the only thing to be decided. A late touchdown on a pass from Pangborn to Bannick with 4:53 left in the game only made the final score closer.

Schelke said that the work of Kevin Shaw at center and Jeff Loomis and Todd Sweeney in the line were key factors in making the Hawk offense function.

Osentoski, 7 assists, 7 solo tackles; Loomis, 5 assists and 3 solos, and Tom Lefler, 4 assists and 5 solos, led the Cass City defense.

Aluminum car shown in 1926

Buffalo, New York, September 29, 1926. Alcoa's S.K. Colby, an engineer with a flair for showmanship, was about to unveil the world's first aluminum car. His revolutionary automobile was 85 percent aluminum and at least a thousand pounds lighter than conventional cars. After two years of continuous testing, its four-cylinder aluminum engine had turned an impressive 149,000 miles.

Of course, Colby's experimental car was only the beginning and a little ahead of its time.

These three offensive linemen helped Dave Osentoski to a great night by opening the holes that enabled the big fullback to ramble for 267 yards.

LAURA RICHARDS goes up for a short shot while Carrie Lautner, number 11, and Jill Hutchinson, 31, jockey for rebound position.

DEFENSE PLAYED a major role in Cass City's victory over Sandusky. Here Carrie Lautner and Jill Hutchinson close in on Devan Rich.

Girls win big over Sandusky

Cass City broke its season long losing streak Tuesday night with a 35-25 decision over the Sandusky Redskins at Cass City High School.

The Hawks used a tenacious pressing defense and some fine outside shooting by Carrie Lautner to build a 23-12 halftime lead and then hold on in the final two periods for the victory.

In the first quarter the Hawks set up buckets with steals and got the ball inside to Jill Hutchinson for key baskets to force the visitors out of their man-to-man defense. Hutchinson scored her only two buckets of the night in the opening canto. Chipping in with buckets in the surge that saw Cass City forge in front 10-4 with 3:37 left in the first quarter were Jamie Fox and Laura Richards.

When Sandusky switched to a zone in the second quarter it was Lautner who paced the offense. She hit four baskets from the side, about 15 feet out, that kept Cass City on course for its first victory.

After running up the early lead Cass City production fell off with just six points in each of the final two quarters.

However, the defense remained solid and the most that the Redskins could do was four points in the third period and 10 in the final 8 minutes after the outcome was virtually decided.

In addition to playing sparkling defense, Coach Lloyd Schinnerer's charges held their own on the boards, edging Sandusky in rebounds, 32-31. Michelle Fahrner with 9 and Richards with 6 led the Hawk rebounders.

Lautner led all scorers with 14 points. Carolyn Schell was high for Sandusky with 8 points.

dustry with 8 points.

The Hawk Junior Varsity, now reactivated, was edged by the Sandusky 27-24.

NORTH BRANCH GAME

A poor third quarter cost the Cass City Red Hawks a chance to break their season-long losing streak at North Branch Thursday. North Branch topped Cass City, 41-30, in the Thumb B Association tilt.

The Hawks fell behind in the opening canto and t. rallied to tie the score at 18-all at the intermission.

Chances for an upset died when Cass City was able to score just four points in the third period and the Broncos jumped out to an eight-point lead going into the final eight minutes.

Jill Hutchinson continued her fine offensive play by netting 15 points to top all scorers. Carrie Lautner added 9.

North Branch featured balanced scoring with only Roxanne Ropic with 12 points in double figures.

Michelle Fahrner scored only two points for Cass City but led the team in rebounds with 11. Hutchinson added 8 in the losing effort.

The Hawks entertain Marlette Thursday in another Thumb B Association game.

O-G tops A-F to stay in front in conference race

Owen-Gage, winner at Akron-Fairgrove last Friday, 13-0, hopes to keep its Friday string going this Friday when it hosts Peck for Dad's Night.

Coach Arnie Besonen describes the 1-5 overall Pirates as a "young and improving ball club. They are good open field tacklers and we'll have to grind it out and keep cool."

The coach of the now 6-0 squad, 5-0 in the North Central Thumb D League, was pleased with his players' performance at Akron-

Fairgrove. "We finally got our offense and defense to play together, which has plagued us all year."

Despite the Vikings' 2-2 league mark going into the game, Besonen said, "Many considered Akron-Fairgrove to be the best team in the league. I can see why. Except for some lack of experience, they are a good ball club."

All of the scoring took place in the second quarter. With 9:55 remaining, Stan Andrakowicz plunged over the goal line from one yard out, the 19 yard drive taking five plays. The conversion attempt failed.

With 2:43 left, Andrakowicz threw the ball 12 yards to Dan Glidden who took it in for the TD. Glidden then kicked the extra point. The Bulldogs advanced 59 yards in eight plays for the touchdown.

Owen-Gage gained 99 yards in 41 carries in the game. Andrakowicz added another 110 in the air on eight completions of 14 attempts, with one interception, for total offensive yardage of 209.

The Vikings were held to only 66 yards. On the ground, they advanced 68 yards in 45 carries, but their two quarterbacks threw the ball five times with no completions or interceptions and a loss of two yards.

The Bulldogs made nine first downs, fumbled and recovered the ball once, and were penalized six times for 75 yards.

Acron-Fairgrove collected seven first downs, fumbled the ball five times, recovering it three times, and were penalized four times for 20 yards.

Leading ground gainers for the victors were Nick Swiastyn with 28 yards in nine carries; Lee Gettel, 24 yards and 11 carries, and Andrakowicz, 20 yards in 10 carries.

Kurt Partlo gained most of the Vikings' yardage, 54 in 15 carries, but his effort and those of two other runners who gained a total of 39 yards, were offset by lots of negative yardage.

Glidden was top Bulldog receiver, catching four of Andrakowicz' passes for 55 yards. Reid Goslin caught two for 41 yards.

Glidden also led the defensive effort with 14 tackles. Gary Erickson brought down Viking ball carriers 10 times and Alan LeValley had nine tackles and one fumble recovery.

Partlo made 12 tackles and Todd Cramer and Ed Hernandez made seven each.

Cass City harriers second in Thumb B loop races

Cass City's cross country teams are the bridesmaids in both the boys' and girls' division of the Thumb B Association, following the first Thumb B league meet Tuesday, Oct. 12.

The boys trail Caro in the conference race with 24 points to the Tigers' 28 points. Among the girls the Hawks trail Sandusky by an identical score.

That score could change when the results of the second conference meet that was held Tuesday are compiled.

Scoring of each meet is worth 50 percent of the total towards winning the league title.

In the conference meet, all schools compete against each other in total team scores and Cass City boys lost only to Caro.

In the girls' competition only four schools fielded teams and league trophies will not be awarded unless a minimum of five teams participate in Tuesday's meet.

While the Hawks did not win the league title they do have the league, Thumb and possibly the state's best three-mile runner in Greg Bliss.

Bliss led the boys in the conference meet with a time of 16:10. Other finishes included: Randy Jackson, 7; Kevin Bliss, 12; Scott Long, 19; Dickey Green, 25; Tom Wallace, 29.

Renee Stimpfel led the girls with a second place finish and a time of 20:27.

Other finishes by Hawks were: Lori Hurley, 7; Chris Tuckey, 8; Merilee Leslie, 10; Lisa Wilson, 16; Tammy Roach, 25; Dana Zdrojewski, 26; Candy Campbell, 30.

The Hawks had 46 points while the second place teams, Bullock Creek and Breckenridge, tied with 86. There were seven teams in the competition.

Top individual effort for Cass City was turned in by Stimpfel who finished second.

Carrie Lautner, who joined the cross country team late, was sixth. Others finished in the following order: Chris Tuckey, 9; Hurley, 12; Leslie, 17; Wilson, 18; Zdrojewski, 28.

So far this year Coach Doug Grezeszak's charges won 5 trophies and 45 individual medals.

In the state rankings Cass City is seventh, just behind sixth place Harbor Beach and just ahead of eighth place Sandusky. Number one team in the state is Benzie Central.

Top fire safety posters judged

Judging of the top six entries in the Tuscola County Firemen's Association fire prevention safety poster contest took place last Thursday evening at the Elkland Township fire hall.

Judged was the top entry from six fire departments in the county, with each department having conducted its own contest. The contest was for fifth graders.

First place and a $50 savings bond was won by Stacy Henne, a student at St. Michael's Lutheran School in Richville. "Fire hurts everyone" was the theme of the poster.

Cindy Harju, a student at Cass City Intermediate School, won second place. Her poster's theme was, "What God hath made, let no man turn to cinder."

Billy Harcourt, a Unionville-Sebewaing student, won third place. He also used the theme of "fire hurts everyone."

The other students whose posters were judged were Erik DuRussel, Caro; Mark Kordyzon, Millington; and Wendy Leach, Vassar.

Judges were Cass City High School art teacher Karen Wallace, Bill Reimann of the Bad Axe Fire Department and Michigan State Firemen's Association, and Tuscola County Advertiser Editor Dick Allen.

Panel to ponder pay hike for elected officials

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

Members of the State Officers Compensation Commission recently began the process to determine salary and expense levels for the state's top elected officers.

They indicated salary levels are not likely to be increased much in the next two years because of the dim outlook on the national and state economy.

While the members said their remarks are only preliminary assessments, their expectations of what will be done to salaries range from a freeze to increases of no more than 5 percent a year.

The only formal action taken during the first public hearing, which will culminate in a final determination by mid-December, was to set future hearing dates and determine that hearing from some top economists would be beneficial in making a decision.

The commission, created by constitutional amendment, will determine salaries and expense levels for 1983 and 1984 for the governor, lieutenant governor, supreme court justices and members of the legislature.

In terms of direct salary, Michigan legislators are tops in the nation, while justices, lieutenant governor and governor rank fifth, sixth and seventh respectively.

Lansing businessman and former Michigan State University President Edgar Harden, who was elected chairman of the commission, said any increase in those pay levels "look pretty dim right now, because of the economic situation. Recovery is not just around the corner."

He added it does not bother him that salaries are high compared to other states "as long as we're getting our dollar value," but added a freeze is a good possibility.

Former state Senator Charles Zollar of Benton Harbor said, "The crux of what we determine depends on how confident we are of the future of our economy." He said he sees the possibility of small increases over the next two years.

Former state Rep. Russell Hellman of Dollar Bay, who was quoted earlier as saying legislators' salaries ought to be doubled, also pinned the decision to the economy and suggested a 4-5 percent increase might be approved.

"It's not reasonable, but it's probably as much as we can afford," Hallman said.

The commission informally adopted 13 criteria for setting the wage and expense scales, including the nature of the job, incentives for improving performance, ability to attract and retain quality people, comparison to other states including comparison with positions in the private sector, comparison with other officials in the state, public sentiment, the cost of living and national wage guidelines.

Department of Civil Service Staff, which serves as staff for the commission, surveyed eight large industrial states and found salaries paid to Michigan's officials were in all instances higher than the average of those states.

The $70,000 paid to the governor is 12.8 percent higher; the $50,000 paid to the lieutenant governor is 13.2 percent higher; the $69,000 paid to justices is 9.7 percent higher and the $31,000 paid to legislators is 25.3 percent higher.

Besides salaries, current expense allowances are $20,000 for the governor, $7,000 for the lieutenant governor, $5,000 for the chief justices, and $6,200 for legislators.

Legislators also get mileage allowances for one round trip per week to the capitol while the legislature is in session.

The commission in 1980 froze salaries for 1981 and granted an increase of 7-15 percent for 1982.

The determinations of the commission are final unless specifically overturned by a two-thirds majority of the legislature.

First school buses were red, white and blue

Martuses remember when busing started

Until this fall, parents of many youngsters in the Cass City schools weren't old enough to recall a time when there wasn't busing of students.

William and Stella Martus of 5159 Milligan Road do remember because before they started running two school buses in the fall of 1937, there almost wasn't any busing of students.

The honor of busing the first students to Cass City belonged to Evard Rawson, who drove students living in the Bird school district to Cass City in the fall of 1936.

Bird School was located on Bay City-Forestville Road, 1½ miles east of Cemetery Road.

The following year, the board of the Winton School on Bay City-Forestville, 1½ miles west of Cemetery, having suspended classes, asked for bids to bus their students to Cass City.

Martus, looking for a little extra revenue to help support his family, submitted a bid of just under $1,000 for the school year and was awarded the contract.

"That was about the time the little school districts were going into Cass City," he explained.

It wasn't until July, 1957, however, that state law required rural K-8 districts to either have their own teachers or merge with the district where their students were attending school.

In the interim, school boards, such as Winton and Bird, paid tuition to Cass City in order to have their students attend there, once they stopped hiring their own teachers.

THE SAME YEAR THE Martuses started busing students from the Winton district, they started another route, taking students from the Colwood area to high school in Cass City and back.

In those days, students who graduated from the rural kindergarten through eighth grade schools who wanted to go on to high school had to get there on their own. Some would live with families in town during the week.

School Supt. Willis Campbell and Martus came up with the idea of that route and then went door to door in the area to solicit customers. Parents paid 50 cents per week per child to have them transported to and from school.

Martus still has the ledger for the first year of the Colwood route. He also has the license plates for the first two buses they bought. They were purchased used, the first buses being a Fisher Standard, made in Detroit, and a Reo, made in Lansing. Martus recalled the Fisher cost him about $250-300. Each held 36 passengers.

The first school buses were red, white and blue, then the standard color. He doesn't remember for sure, but thinks it was in the 1950s that yellow became the standard color.

IT WAS STELLA MARTUS who started driving a bus in the fall of 1937, on the Winton route. She continued to drive the same basic route for 36 years, until retiring at the end of 1973-74 school year. Another driver was hired for the Colwood route in 1937.

Martus "pinch hit" when needed behind the wheel, but never drove regularly. He maintained the buses.

Now 80, he worked at what is now Geiger-Hunt Ford, starting in October, 1923, first in the service department and later in parts. He retired in 1970, and then worked part-time there for several years.

In addition to Mrs. Martus and their hired driver, Roy Wright, one other driver started a route in the fall of 1937, Ray Kilbourne of Deford, who contracted to bring students from the Quick school district, four miles south and a mile west, to Cass City.

Mr. and Mrs. Martus added a third route and another driver a couple of years later when they contracted with the Hall School, 2½ miles south of Cass City, to transport its children to Cass City.

In 1942, with World War II underway, gasoline and drivers were getting hard to get, so the couple sold two of their buses to the Cass City district.

THEY KEPT ONE BUS for the Winton route, which Mrs. Martus kept driving. She and her husband remained under contract with the district apparently until 1957 (they don't recall for sure), when it finally merged with the Cass City district, 20 years after it had stopped providing its own classes.

The Martuses then contracted with Cass City school district, with Mrs. Martus driving the same basic route in the bus she and her husband owned.

It was in 1967 that they sold their bus, by then a 60-passenger, to the Cass City district and Mrs. Martus became an employee. Kilbourne was also still driving his own bus and sold it to the school district that year.

Martus was a little upset when the school board decided to end the contracted routes, according to his wife, "but I was glad because he spent the whole summer working on those buses."

Mr. and Mrs. Martus, who live on the farm where he grew up, have three children, Bill, Richmond, Ind.; Robert, Flushing, and Mary Jean, Battle Creek -- the latter two are teachers -- and eight grandchildren.

While Mrs. Martus, now 73, was driving a bus, her family was bigger than that. In her 36 years of driving, she only had to put a student off the bus once for misbehavior.

"Those kids were all like family and that's the way I treated them."

BUS FLEET - The Martuses owned these buses when the photo was taken about 1941, when they had three routes. One bus was a spare. By make, from left, they are a Ford, Ford, Dodge and a Fisher.

Dairymen to vote on market program

Michigan dairy farmers will be voting shortly on a proposal which, if approved, will mean about $200,000 additional that can be spent for promoting consumption of dairy products and research.

Ballots for the proposed Michigan Dairymen's Marketing Program are scheduled to be mailed Oct. 29 to all Grade A dairy farmers in the state.

The money for the program would come from assessing all dairy farmers about 10.5 cents for each hundredweight (cwt.) of milk they sell.

For about 90 percent of the Michigan dairy farmers, approval won't mean a change in the amount they spend for dairy promotion and research now.

Those 90 percent, most of whom sell their milk through the Michigan Milk Producers Association (MMPA), are paid through what is called the superpool, which gives them a premium beyond the basic support price for milk.

Out of the superpool, about $4 million a year goes to the United Dairy Industry Association, American Dairy Association of Michigan and Dairy Council of Michigan for dairy promotion.

If the proposal is approved, that $4 million will instead be deducted, at the rate of about 10.5 cents per cwt., directly from the dairy farmers' milk checks for the marketing program.

The approximately 10 percent of the 8,500 Grade A dairy farmers in the state who aren't in the superpool will also have to pay the assessment, if the proposal is approved, which will mean an additional $200,000 per year.

The measure has the backing of the MMPA and the Michigan Farm Bureau.

"The proposed funding shift is necessary to preserve the effectiveness of established and respected dairy product promotion programs in Michigan," MMPA President Elwood Kirkpatrick of Kinde wrote in his organization's September "Michigan Milk Messenger" magazine.

"Important, too, is the fact that the shift would mean that these essential programs would be paid for by all Michigan dairy farmers -- instead of only by those who participate in the superpool."

IF THE PROPOSAL IS approved, spending of the $4.2 million annually will be determined by a 15-member committee, members of which will be nominated by the state's dairy cooperatives and appointed by the governor.

A cooperative will have to control at least 7 percent of the milk sold in the state in order to gain a seat. That means, according to Michigan Farm Bureau Vice-President Jack Laurie of Dodge Road, Cass City, an MMPA member, that the MMPA will have probably 10 seats on the board and the Grand Rapids Independents co-op will have two or three.

The dominance of the MMPA would have over the board is one objection that Sanilac County National Farmers Organization President William Jones of Pringle Road, Decker, has to the proposal. "It's going to give one co-op a monopoly, that's what it's going to do."

The NFO, through which he sells his milk, doesn't control 7 percent of milk in the state, so wouldn't be entitled to a seat on the committee, although it could combine with other small groups of producers in order to have a representative.

The alternate way to select board members, Laurie explained, would have been to divide the state into regions, with about the same number of dairy farmers in each, and one representative on the board from each region. That could have resulted in the MMPA having all the seats.

JONES HASN'T MADE up his mind yet how he will vote on the referendum. "I have to do a little more studying."

He also questions how much money would be spent for administration and the governor making the appointments.

He isn't opposed to more promotion, but questions how much of a difference an additional $200,000 would make, "which isn't a lot when you talk advertising."

Elwood (Butch) Morell, of Robinson Road, Cass City, who is an MMPA member, also has some reservations about the proposal.

"I'm hesitant," he said. "There might be some bureaucrats who will pad their pockets. I think we have to go at it (promotion) at different angles."

Kirkpatrick pointed out in the "Milk Messenger" that control of the marketing program by the committee of 15 dairy farmers "makes it absolutely clear that use of those promotion funds would remain, in dairy farmers' hands."

Milk output continues to increase

Michigan's dairy herds produced 1,350 million pounds of milk during the July-September quarter, up 3 percent from the comparable 1981 quarter, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service.

Cow numbers averaged 397,000 head, up nearly 1 percent from a year earlier. Milk output per cow, at 3,400 pounds, was up 85 pounds from the previous year.

Michigan milk producers received an average of $13.40 per hundredweight (cwt.) for their milk in September, down 30 cents from a year ago. Slaughter cow prices averaged $39.40 per cwt., down 4 percent from September, 1981.

Nationally, dairy herds produced 33.8 billion pounds of milk during the July-September quarter, up 2 percent from the same 1981 period.

Milk production per cow for the past quarter averaged 3,070 pounds, 42 pounds more than the third quarter last year. Total milk cows averaged 11.0 million head during the past quarter, up 1 percent from a year earlier.

For the U.S., the quantity of grain and concentrates fed to milk cows on Oct. 1, averaged 15.2 pounds, up slightly from a year ago. The value of this feed averaged $7.31 per cwt., down 43 cents from the previous year.

Feed values have been held down as a result of bumper grain harvests the past two years.

36 YEARS of driving a school bus and 20 years of owning them bring back memories for Bill and Stella Martus. He is looking over the ledger for students who paid to be bused from the Colwood area to Cass City High School in 1937-38. Mrs. Martus has a scrapbook in front of her. The couple has been married 48 years.

Survey compares farm income

What are the real differences now between farmers and non-farmers?

A recent survey by U.S. Department of Agriculture researcher Vera Banks says farm residents are older, more likely to be employed and have an income that is still well below that of non-farm families.

Farm population continues to drop. In 1920, 30 percent of Americans lived on farms. That figure now has dropped to 2.6 percent.

Here are some of her findings:

- The median age of the farm population is 36 years, compared to 30 years for non-farm residents.
- Farm men outnumber women. There are 107 men for every 100 women on farms. This compares to 88 men for every 100 women in

THE FAMILY OF Mrs. Evelyn MacKay wish to express their sincere appreciation to Dr. H.T. Donahue and the nursing staff at Hills and Dales Hospital for the concern displayed towards our mother during her many illnesses and subsequent stays in the hospital over the last two years. We truly appreciate the cards, flowers, visits and the kind words of prayers and encouragement that were provided by her many friends. A special word of thanks to Pastor Rodgers for his personal and pastoral support provided to Mother over these past few years. The constant concern for her physical and spiritual condition during these trying times and truly helped to pave the way and ease the pain, for this we are eternally thankful. Our sincere appreciation to all those friends who expressed support by the many acts of kindness during the recent and untimely loss of our mother. Those expressions of thoughtfulness will always be remembered and treasured. It's heartfelt times like these when your true friends provide strength and support during your weakest periods. 100 years for Ubyly church Members of the Ubyly United Methodist Church Sunday celebrated their church's 100th anniversary. Guest speaker at the Sunday morning service was Rev. Robert E. Horton, Port Huron District superintendent.

Other ministers also participated in the service, along with the church's pastor, Rev. Carl A. Renter. A carry-in dinner followed the service.

The church building has had only one major change during its 100 years. A basement was added in 1904 and the entrance was moved to its present location on Pine Street.

In conjunction with the centennial, new pew cushions and backs were installed.

The church has 35 active members.

ON COMMAND from trainer Judy Rocheleau, "Bear" can be a dog that no aggressor would want to tangle with. But if given the command "friends," as shown in the inset with owner Bob Rocheleau and Mike Forester, he can be as friendly as any house pet.

Coveted award won by dog owned by Bob Rocheleau

"Bob and Judy's Bear," a German shepherd owned by Bob Rocheleau of S. Elkton Road, Cass City, and trained by his wife, Judith, won a rare title recently.

At a Michigan State Schutzhund Club trial recently in Saginaw, conducted by German judge Jean-Claude Balu, "Bear" won his Schutzhund I title by being proficient in tracking, obedience and protection. No area is emphasized over any other. He won second place overall.

The three-year-old dog also won his VB title, meaning he is a traffic secure companion, and the watch dog title.

"Bear" is the first dog from the Thumb area and the German Shepherd Dog Club of Flint to acquire the coveted Schutzhund I title, according to Mrs. Rocheleau.

By Bill Myers

Taking stock

This simple country boy is downright baffled after he reads the newspaper some days.

On page one of the Charleston News and Courier recently there was a story about test scores of South Carolina students. (Incidentally, South Carolina is toward the bottom of the list of all states, but the state would have an explanation, we are sure.)

The results in Charleston County (800 is a perfect score):

Verbal	1981	1982
	361	363
Math	390	391

Kathryn Altman, the coordinator of guidance (funny how kids of our generation survived without such an expert) for the county claimed the rise was a good sign.

Now let's see — there's a percentage gain of .002564 in math and a gain of .0054 percent in verbal. Both are less than half a perfect score. Let the tocsins ring! Johnny has made it up to the fourth grade by the time he is a senior.

Fortunately there are no buttons on his graduation robe, so we won't have to solve that problem.

Ms. Altman said it was unfair to compare results of South Carolina students to those of northern states because of "socio-economic" differences. That's the educator's fancy word for being well-off or not.

Ms. Altman goes on to say that the Carolinians who took the test came from families with an average income of only $23,300 a year.

Up North, despite what you hear about hard times, Ms. Altman claims incomes are $10,000 higher. Now hear this:

"Parents who make more money tend to have high achievement levels, and they push achievement onto their children."

All well and good. So you make more money, you achieve more in the world. Exceptions here and there, but income is a pretty good yardstick of your capacity to produce.

Now we get over to another page in the same issue. The story is about Martin Feldstein, President Reagan's nominee for the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Mr. Feldstein is a noted professor of economics at Harvard. He was before a Senate committee, which took delight in harassing him. It was particularly pointed from senators who are up for reelection in November.

Among the hecklers was Senator Don Riegle of Michigan. Senator Riegle determined that Mr. Feldstein was close to being a millionaire, which the senator deplored.

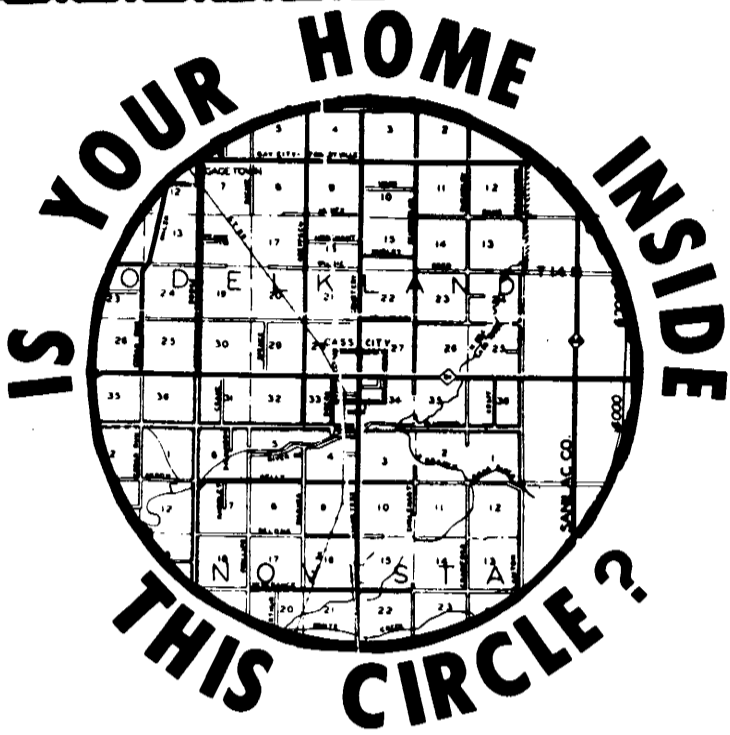

"This administration is top-heavy with millionaires, multi-millionaires and near-millionaires," he complained.

(Riegle, incidentally, found nothing wrong with millionaires when he took a sizable gift from the late C.S. Mott of Flint to finance his first campaign for Congress. He ran as a Republican, took gifts accordingly, got elected and later turned Democrat.)

Anyhow, we have the schools complaining the students can't achieve because the parents are poor. We have senators complaining that appointees to key government posts are too rich.

I wish some of you sophisticated city people would help me get this thing straightened out.

The first receivers of telephone calls cried out "Aho-yahoy" rather than the later greeting of "hello."
