No recall of Ubly board

VOLUME 76, NUMBER 33

There won't be an election in the Ubly School District to recall five school board members.

Petition drive organizer Hugh Roberts of Minden City said Monday evening he didn't have enough petition signatures to force a recall election.

Monday was the deadline for him to turn the signatures into the Huron County Clerk's office, had he had enough.

A minimum of 419 signatures were needed. He said he lacked from 17 to 34 signatures, depending on the board member, of the minimum needed.

Presumably, more than that would have been needed, since normally more than the minimum is collected for petition drives for insurance in case some signatures are disqualified. Signers needed to be regis-tered voters within the school district.

The recall petitions had named five of the seven board members, Bernard Puvalowski, who is the board president, Julia Heilig, Arthur Jahn, Allan Moses and Clarence Rutkowski.

The petitions had listed three reasons why the recall was sought: Refusal by the ward to answer questions at

Fifth festival planned

Bach fest draws praise from musicians and public

Better than ever. The fourth annual Village Bach Festival ended Sunday with high praise from those who performed in it, those beloed put it on and those who watched.

One of those with high praise for the event was Dr. Ward Woodbury, music director and conductor of the Bach festival in Winter Park. Fla., which will celebrate its 48th year in 1983.

"I think it is unique having 3 Bach festival in a small community like this, especially an excellent one," he said.

He had high compliments for Donald Jaeger, the conductor and music director of the Cass City festival, for his selection of the program and his conducting and for those who performed. "Everybody involved with this is a superb musician. That's what makes it good.'

Woodbury presented a slide program Saturday and Sunday afternoons showing the towns in Europe where Bach grew up and worked.

Jaeger has been the music director and conductor all four years of the festival. "I think it's better each

He praised festival chairman Holly Althaver and the many other persons who volunteered their time to put on the festival.

Mrs. Cook complained of trash left on the steps leading to the beauty shop and cleaners, public urinating, and a flower urn thrown down the stairs. There are also numerous cigarette burns on the carpeted stairs. The building is next to the game room.

The three mentioned a fight behind the game room Nov. 19, at which police were called. Sutter said he watched. The policeman was there five minutes, left, and "the party" resumed.

Sutter didn't put all the blame on the police - "I know they can only be so many places at one time." -or the operators of the Players. The latter, he said, are "doing the best they can Sutter had said most of the trouble appears to be made by children 12-14 years old.

Village officials promised to look into the police response to the Nov. 19 incident, check into whether gates can be put up at night at the ends of the two walkways in the vicinity between Main Street and the parking lot and see what else can be done.

Cass City July 4th festival to return

Cass City will have its fifth annual July 4th Festival next year.

There were fears that there might not be one, since last year's chairman, Tom Herron and Mike Weaver, who have been involved since the first one, didn't want to continue their leadership roles next year.

Chamber of Commerce President Curt Strickland said Monday there definitely will be a festival in 1983. Roland Pakonen, assistant high school principal, will be chairman and Strickland and David Lovejoy will as-

Kim Glaspie and Alan Klco, who were in charge of the parade this year, will continue next year.

The first organizational meeting will be conducted some time next week.

July 4th next year is on Monday, which will be the big day for festivities, Strickland said, although there may be some activities the evening before.

"We're really excited about it," he added.

Councilman James Ware expressed reservations. "As a Christian, it is not objectable to me at all," he said. He pointed out, however, that not everyone in the community is a Christian and they might therefore find such a cross on public property objectionable.

Uncollected village taxes were turned over to the county treasurer Nov. 16 for collection. Village treasurer Joyce LaRoche collected 95.2 percent of taxes due by then, versus 96.1 percent by the time she turned uncollected taxes over to the county last year.

Total village budget reaches $1 million

Cass City may have its first $1 million budget in

The village council Tuesday evening received its first look at the proposed budget for next year.

Total revenues for the general fund, major street, local street, federal revenue sharing, parking system, sewer fund and water fund budgets, plus a transfer of $80,500 from savings, adds up to $998,100, to be matched by the same amount in expenditures. During the meeting, the council tentatively decided to add $2,000 to either buy added or replacement Christmas decorations or start building up a fund for their eventual purchase. If that is added to the budget, it would put the total over $1 million.

A public hearing on the proposed 1983 spending plan will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the council's next regular meeting, Dec. 28. The big unknown was salaries for village employees. The council held an executive session at the end that. The preliminary budget, prepared by village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie and President Lambert Althaver, does project a small increase for employees and none for council members. The total of their salaries for one year is $2,650. THE PROPOSED $998,100 is $119,150 more than what the village will probably take in and spend this year.

However, $47,500 of the increase comes from transferring that much more from savings than this year (a total of $80.000 transferred in 1983) and $11,000 as the village's share of the new half-mill countywide levy for bridge and local street repair.

Most village functions are paid for out of the general fund, where revenue of $491,500 is projected for next vear and expenditure of $465,200. (That is part of the overall $1 million budget.)

The biggest single source of general fund revenue is property taxes, projected at of its meeting to discuss $291,700 in 1983, an increase of $11,165.

Various state revenues are predicted to total $139,000 next year, up from $122,440 this year. "If we're nervous about any of our revenues, it's in this area."

Althaver commented. The only significant new expenditure in the general fund budget is $10,800 for a in revenue and expenditures new police car. None was purchased this year.

> Rawson Memorial Library, whose recently approved new millage levy doesn't go on tax bills until a year from now, will receive $6,000 next year, $1,000 more than it received in 1982.

THE BIG REASON WHY a sharp increase in spending is anticipated in 1983 is because of some major street reconstruction proj-

The big projects in the local street fund are rebuilding of two blocks of Huron Street between West and Seeger, $41,000 estimated cost; West between Church and Huron, $20,000, and Wisdom teeth, also known as third molars, are a common source of discomfort for many people. It is the position of the third molars in the dental arch which gives rise to the majority of problems. In the upper and lower jaws, the third molar is usually the last tooth in the dental arch, that is farthest away from the front of the mouth. In the upper jaw, third molars have a tendency to come through the gums to the outside. This usually results in irritation of the skin of the cheek. The most frequent problem seen in our office however, is the inflammation and infection of the gums around the lower third molars. Lower third molars tend to come through the gums at the point where the jaw begins to turn up. Thus the crown of the tooth is almost always covered at least in part by gum tissue. Because it is hard to clean around these teeth, food lodges under the gum, usually resulting in painful swelling and infection. If the swelling is great enough, the teeth in the upper jaw will begin to hit the gums of the lower jaw which needless to say, is very uncomfortable.

third molars. Teeth which remain partially or completely under the gums may form cysts or chronically irritate tissue around them to the point where unfavorable tissue change or oral cancer may occur. Orthodontists often request removal of wisdom teeth to preserve the result of straightening teeth. Not all people have wisdom teeth. Some people have fewer than four. Some people have dental arches which are long enough to accommodate the third molars. If the wisdom teeth are sound; are in useful position or may be useful in a person's dental future, then you may elect to keep them. If a decision is made to remove them, it usually is best to accomplish this before the roots have finished forming. However, it is usually good to have them evaluated early (age 15-16) to help in this decision.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

It's a dilemma. Monday and Tuesday requests for funds from three organizations crossed my desk. All are worthwhile and praiseworthy.

The first was from Trout Unlimited for donations to support its "Living Brightwater" program designed to protect cold water fisheries. The second was from Channel 19 to help pay program costs. The third was from the Lutheran Church to help its program for the deaf.

Probably due to the economic conditions the trickle of these requests has developed into a flood. These requests are for extra funds as the programs are already supported here in a very limited fashion and we'll probably ignore Along with the pitch for Channel 19 came a breakdown of program costs. The MacNeil-Lehrer Report which we watch every chance we get will cost $20.28 million for 260 programs. Channel 19's share is $28,132.

There has to be intelligent life somewhere in the vast expanse of space, was the consensus of the pundits around the coffee table recently.

Must be, agreed Alden Asher, certainly none here.

There's a red Ford that has been parked on Oak Street, just south of the alley south of Main Street for a couple of months. It has a flat tire and hasn't been moved.

It's likely that there will be action now that the winter curfew on parking all night on public streets is in effect. Every time I've walked by in the last couple of weeks I couldn't help thinking about what that car would have looked like in similar circumstances if it were in an urban Cars in big towns are often stripped if left for a few hours. Which, of course, is one of the pluses to living in small town, USA.

It's impossible to measure the effect of programs like the July 4 Festival, but every once in a while something comes up that shows that at least a percentage are appreciative.

Once again let's get the straight dope on what's happening with all the answers to the questions you never asked.

QUESTION - How do you feel about the recall election of three Cass City School Board members?

ANSWER - Sad. It's a bummer on all counts. First, terms of two of the members, Geraldine Prieskorn and Dr. Ed Scollon, expire in June. The recall election won't be held until February. Mrs. Prieskorn will not be seeking reelection and voters can decide whether or not they want Scollon back in June without added ex-

QUESTION - Does that $15 ticket give you a jaundiced view of the Cass City Police?

ANSWER - No. All in all I've got to believe that the department is doing okay. There are more cops than ever on duty now and the expense is greater, but that's just a sign of the times. We had a quiet Halloween and I feel that's a sign of good relations with the teens and young adults.

"If It Fitz..."

Writers' justice

By Jim Fitzgerald

In Detroit, a former prizewinning newspaper reporter who quit to write a book but didn't write it was recently found guilty of shooting his live-in lover to death because she told him to live out. The judge gave him probation on the murder count and apologized for being forced to lock him up for a few months because of a state law requiring imprisonment for anyone convicted of using a gun while committing a felony.

The judge explained the lenient sentence by pointing out that the middle-aged exreporter had lived a worthwhile life preceding the murder and would most likely resume being worthwhile in the future if he didn't have to spend too much of it in jail.

I read newspaper accounts of the case out loud so my wife could hear me. I once won a prize for reporting and I constantly dream of quitting newspapering to write a book I wouldn't write. I would hang around home all day, giving my live-in lover added opportunity to irritate me. So I wanted her to know that if I kill her, she won't have the satisfaction of knowing I'll be punished by the law, because judges recognize that middle-aged, prize-winning ex-reporters are worthwhile citizens who most likely won't commit more than one murder per lifetime. It wouldn't be as though I were a worthless factory worker with a bad traffic record, or someone dangerous like that.

That's not all. Another newspaper report that I read aloud concerned the court case of Michael Morgenstern of New York who is slightly famous for writing a book called "How to Make Love to a Woman." He recently pleaded guilty to punching his girlfriend in the face. The judge fined in him only $40, another fine example of tempering justice with the realization that writers deserve soft handling.

I wanted my wife to realize that if she ever irritates me into punching her in the face, it won't give her much satisfaction to call the cops. Even a book writer who never writes books could borrow the $40 from the sentencing judge, who would be grateful to become a patron of the arts.

You may wonder what my wife or live-in lover could do to irritate me into shooting or punching her. She could put Triskets in my Ritz cracker box, that's what.

I like to nibble absentmindedly on Ritz crackers while reading books I didn't write. I don't like any type of cracker except Ritz. I especially don't like those healthstore crackers made out of old Easter baskets that my wife usually buys because she likes them and doesn't care about me.

The other evening, before I could stop myself. I ate an entire Trisket pulled blindly out of a Ritz box. That same day my son poured a dead spider out of a pop bottle. (I swear to God I don't make these things up.) Even though I drank from that bottle, I was a lot madder about the Trisket than I was about the spider.

It's a matter of deviousness. I used to work in a soft drink bottling plant so I know an honest effort is usually made to keep insects outside the bottles. On the other hand, my wife puts Triskets in the Ritz box on purpose. She hopes I will be so interested in a book I didn't write that I won't notice she forgot to buy Ritz crackers again. That's dis-

Naturally, it is terribly irritating to be married to a live-in lover who doesn't love me enough to buy the only kind of crackers I like. She has probably been stuffing the same old Ritz box for years. There may even have been days when I was so engrossed in reading that I didn't realize what I was eating, which would explain the Easter eggs in my hair.

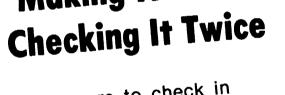

I'm not saying I would punch or shoot a woman for sneaking Triskets into my diet. That would be outrageous. But it is comforting to know that the writer of "How to Make Love to a Woman" punched his girlfriend for only $40, and an ex-reporter who didn't write a book got probation and an apology for murdering his live-in lover. Speaking of outrageous.

The booklets are printed in Japanese and a delegation from the county (in which Flint is located) will be going to Japan to meet with the industrial leaders.

The Private Industry Council of the Thumb Area Consortium is offering $17,730 in federal funds to governmental units and economic development corporations in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties for "innovative economic development and employment generating activities..." Each recipient can receive no more than $1,970. The council had a similar program during its last fiscal year and Cass City received $2,000. I would guess 99 percent of the Cass City brochures were filed in wastepaper baskets, along with promotional brochures from all the other towns that send them to the same industries.

It's sort of a darned if you do and darned if you don't situation. The promotional brochures are of limited value when sent on a scattershot basis, but does any community seeking new business dare not send them

Even when times were good, there were many more communities seeking new industries and jobs than there were industries and jobs available.

With, as I recall, onethird of our nation's industrial capacity sitting idle, it's going to be a long time before industry starts looking at building new factories, even if the economy does start improving soon.

I feel it would be desirable to do some industrial recruiting for the entire upper Thumb, rather than the individual efforts by many ·local communities.

Not everyone would go for that approach, but I would explored is encouraging entrepreneurs. The odds of attracting an industry from outside is slim, but maybe there is someone locally who has a good idea for a product, but needs some financial backing and guidance in how to produce it and promote it.

For instance, there was the fellow in the Upper Peninsula who invented a prism to attach to golf putters to aid golfers in lining up their shots. It's selling well to amateurs and even some professionals, who can't use it in competition, are using it in practice.

There was also the inventor of the safer ashtray which prevents unattended cigarettes from falling out and if properly placed in the V-notch, draws the heat away from the cigarette and snuffs it out. Manufactured in Michigan, sales of $1 million are expected this Another avenue for potential development is tourism. How many thousands of tourists drive past the Thumb on their way up north?

Obviously the lakeshore areas have more potential than does the landlocked Cass City area, but how about some new approaches. How many city persons have never been to a farm? Why not open some farm homes to guests? Come stay on a farm a few days, watch cows being milked, crops being cultivated and go for a

Home health care available in Sanilac

The Sanilac County Health Department announces that Nov. 28 through Dec. 4 is National Home Health

Home health care is provided to people in their homes following an illness or an injury which requires hospitalization. The care is provided by a nurse or other health care professional under orders from the patient's doctor. The health department provides home health care services. Call it at 648-4098 for more informa-

Many times the cost of these services is paid by Medicare or other health insurance coverage.

With home care services, many people are able to return home from the hospital several days earlier than usual. Some elderly people are able to stay at home who would otherwise have to go into a nursing

Film strip donated to Media Center

Don Richards director of the Regional Educational Media Center in Cass City, has announced the donation of automated filmstrips commemorating the 200th anniversary of the bald eagle as America's national symbol.

The filmstrip, entitled "We Care About Eagles," was produced by the National Wildlife Federation and was donated by Edmands Engineering, Inc., a Bay City civil engineering firm.

Starting with a historical perspective, the program traces the use of eagles as symbols of courage, power, and freedom from early civilization to the present. The physical adaptations and life cycles of the eagle are also highlighted. The film concludes with an examination of the behavior, habitat, and prey of five eagle species.

Teachers will have first priority, but interested individuals may rent the filmstrip for community groups. For further information regarding availability, contact the Media Center, which serves Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties.

R. Bowen manager at Arjay

Robert L. Bowen has been named general manager of Arjay Manufacturing Co. in Bad Axe, a subsidiary of the Walbro Corp.

Bowen comes to Arjay from Dougherty Brothers Co., where he spent nine years, most recently as plant manager for the Midwest Division located in Sullivan, Ind. He previously held a number of supervisory and engineering positions at Dougherty.

Bowen has studied engineering at VPI College, Blacksburg, Va., and Cumberland Community College, Vineland, N.J.

An Army veteran, Bowen, 34, is married and has one child. He plans to relocate with his family to Ubly.

Milk market referendum approved

The Michigan Dairynien's Marketing Program, voted on by dairy farmers in early November, was approved, Approval means that as of Hills and Dales Jan. 1, all Michigan dairy farmers will be assessed about 10.5 cents for each hundredweight of Grade A milk they sell. About 90 percent, most members of the Michigan Milk Producers Association, already pay that amount.

The money raised will be used for promoting consumption of milk products and research. The additional 10 percent of farmers who will be paying will mean about $200,000 more a year.

Your Neighbor says

I was thankful for still being here

Carl Lounsbury had something to be thankful for on Thanksgiving last Thursday.

"I'm here."

It was when he was serving in the Air Force in Vietnam in late 1967 or early '68 that he almost cashed in his chips.

He was assigned to a mobility team that was to fly on two airplanes to unload howitzer ammunition the planes were carrying once they reached their destina-

By the time Lounsbury and some others got their rifles, the plane they were supposed to fly on was taxiing to the runway, so they got on the other plane.

The weather was bad and the one they were supposed to be on crashed into a mountain "and all they found was a big hole in the ground."

He described it as "one of those little quirks.'

After he got out of the military, Lounsbury studied aircraft mechanics at the Spartan School of Aeronautics in Oklahoma. After graduating, he went to work there as an instructor in piston engine troubleshooting and overhaul.

A native of the Cass City area, he and his wife. Nadene, returned here 11/2 years ago when she was offered a job at Hills and Dales General Hospital. A registered nurse, she is the midnight shift supervisor.

Lounsbury hasn't had much luck jobwise since returning. He tried to start a small engine repair business but "everybody and his brother is doing it."

He is a licensed aircraft mechanic, but airlines aren't hiring because of the economy and many persons with private aircraft aren't flying for the same reason, plus it would be too expensive for him to purchase all the tools needed to work on his own as an aircraft mechanic.

He presently is working part-time for David Kitchen, a maker of old-fashioned furniture.

Lounsbury and his wife live at 5714 River Road.

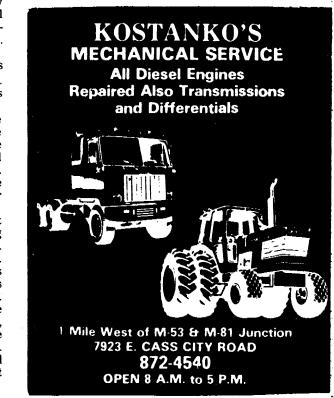

New books at the library

A BLOODSMOOR ROMANCE by Joyce Carol Oates (fiction). Narrated by an artful female whose naivete is not quite to be believed, the chronicle of the Zinn family of Bloodsmoor is steeped in the oddments of social history and in some blatant truths about the period not typically found in more coy romantic fiction. Despite an eccentric inventor father with a mysterious past and a rather liberally educated mother, the five Zinn girls were raised to be perfect specimens of 19th Century maidenhood. Yet they all rebel in some fashion...from becoming a transsexual, a seer, or an actress to escaping into unconventional relationships.

THE TIGRIS EXPEDITION by Thor Heyerdahl (non-fiction). The author describes his sailing voyage in a ship made of reed bundles down the Persian Gulf, through the Straits of Hormuz and the Gulf of Oman in the company of supertankers and cargo ships. He was tracing the trade routes of Sumerian sailors from southern Iraq; Basra to Bahrain, to Oman to the Indus Valley; across the Arabian-Sea to the island of Socatra off the Horn of Africa to Djibouti and end of the five-month voyage. On shore, Heyerdahl and his international crew explored prehistoric sites that confirmed his theories about the similarities of culture among ancient civilizations.

CONTESSA by Helene Mansfield (fiction). Spanning the period 1900 to 1944 and set in Paris, America, and Russia, this novel is about an exceptionally beautiful and strong woman, Contessa, and her heroic and romantic life at the heart of major 20th century events. Everywhere Contessa goes she dazzles, brings elegance and intelligence, and shapes events.

Biefer predicts a finish somewhere in the middle of the pack.

Some key performers will be missing from last season. Phil Harmer and Paul Brown both were state qualifiers and Chuck Erla and Jim Adkins both won plenty of points for Cass City in the upper weight divisions.

The Hawks have one state qualifier back. He's Jeff Papp, senior, who wrestles at 112 pounds. Scott Rockwell and Bob Walters should be much improved this season after a year's experience. Rockwell wrestles at 167 pounds and Walters at 185 pounds. Mark Rutkoski, injured last year, is expected to fill a vital spot on the team this season.

Hawks one of teams to beat in Thumb B

Cass City, always a challenger and often a champion under the direction of Coach Ron Nurnberger, will be in the thick of the battle for the Thumb B Association title in 1982-83

The Hawks finished second to Sandusky and Steve Weiler last season and have most of their key performers

In the eight seasons that Nurnberger has been coach, the Hawks have won four league championships, four district titles and a regional championship. The Hawks lost their two starting guards and Scott Hobart, starting forward. One of the guards, Ray Ferris, was a second team allconference performer and the team's top scorer. The other guard, Gary Robinson, was also a key performer.

Despite the losses, there are plenty of capable performers returning. John Meininger, 6-4 center, was er as a sophomore. He's start.

quick and possesses a fine jump shot.

Flanking him will be Rick Pobanz, senior, and a starter at guard or forward all year. He can play both spots. Barry Lapp, 6-1 forward, started about half the games last season and was first off the team's leading rebound- the bench when he didn't

Joe Langenburg, 5-8 guard, is one of the reasons for optimism for Cass City. He came up to the varsity late in the season when injuries decimated the squad and was one of the late season bright spots. He showed a fine jump shot and quickness on defense that Nurnberger covets in his pressing-type defense.

Another guard that has quickness and is a good ball handler is Bryan Beecher, 5-8 sophomore. He was a regular on the junior varsity as a freshman. He'll see plenty of action as the season progresses.

Nurnberger is also taking a long hard look at a couple of seniors that were on the varsity bench last season. One of them is 6-2 forward Rob Hartwick who has shown steady improvement. The other is Brian Wright, 6-3 center, who backed up

There are a host of players up from the junior varsity that are fighting for a spot in the starting line-up. Many of them will see action. At forward are two juniors, Todd Nurnberger and Greg Bliss. While the Hawks have to be regarded as one of the favorites for the title, Nurnberger sees Vassar, Caro, Bad Axe and North Branch as teams that could win it

The over-all strength of ers on the squad that weren't the league has probably years ago and there doesn't appear to be a dominant team anywhere.

That makes for exciting competition and it may well be that the race will go to the wire before a champion is determined

A quirk in the schedule has Cass City on the road for the first four games. Harbor Beach will be the opener Friday and the second game will be at Vassar, always a tough place for Cass City to

"It's the atmosphere where you are, time of day, lots of things contribute," she explained. "You can't help but react to the differences and I think it's advantageous that you do."

The three churches Rev. Larner served, her first assignment since graduating from Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, D.C., in 1981, were very small.

Average attendance Sunday for the three combined was only about 80.

Sutton-Sunshine averages 60-70 parishioners on Sundays and Bethel, about 20. Although their new minister is still feeling her way, so to speak, on the best way to serve her congregation, she would like to work on increasing membership.

A NATIVE OF CHESA-ning, between Flint and Saginaw, Rev. Larner, 27, wanted to be a minister since she was a youngster. "For me, there was never any question." Now that she is a minister, she has no

Women ministers are nothing new in the Methodist church, but are increasing in number, according to her. She is one of three in the upper Thumb. (The others are in Owendale and Gagetown -- one serving two churches -- and Caro.)

The minister is a 1977 graduate of the University of Michigan with a degree in sociology. She then attended Wesley seminary for four years, where she received a master of divinity degree and a master's of religious education

HER NEW ASSIGNMENT does work a bit of a hardship on her husband, Peter J. Sivia (she uses her maiden name), who is a computer programmer at Dow Chemical in Midland. From the parsonage next to the Sutton-Sunshine Church, it's a drive of 11/4 hours to work, 15 minutes longer than from their former home.

Rev. Larner likes being out in the country. "I like rural areas and in both situations, I asked for small town churches. Living in the country is advantageous for two activities she enjoys, bicycling and cross country skiing. When it gets warm next year, she may make some of her parish calls by bike. Rev. Larner replaced Rev. Wayne Thomas, who was at Sutton-Sunshine and tainty for Rev. David King,

the new pastor at the Cass

The Cass City Church of God used to be the Riverside Church of God located on Kelly Road. Parishioners in 1981 purchased the Assembly of God building at Sixth and Leach Streets after that congregation folded.

The Riverside Church of God was founded in 1970, but its building was an old one and the move to Cass City represented an opportunity to use a larger building in better condition.

Rev. King, 25, comes to Cass City from the West Flint Church of God, where he had been youth pastor for a year. Before that, he was youth pastor for a year at the Owosso Church of God.

Rev. Charles D. King, was the pastor. His father left during the year to become pastor of the Port Huron Church of God.

joins father in ministry

David King was a student at Lee College in Cleveland, Tenn., when he left for his father's church. The college is run by the Church of God, which has its worldwide headquarters in Cleveland. (The Cass City Church of God is affiliated with the Cleveland, Tenn., denomination. There are other denominations which also call themselves the Church of God.)

Rev. King left Lee College before graduating and is now completing his final six hours there via correspondence, which will give him a bachelor's degree in Biblical education.

He presently is an exhorted minister in his church. The next step is to become a licensed minister. which will require passing an examination concerning the doctrine of the church. The final step is to be

While attending Lee, he met his wife, Susan, from Salisbury, Md., who was studying psychology.

The couple is expecting their first child in late December. They are living in the parsonage, a mobile home next to the old church on Kelly Road. (The entire property there may be put up for sale, but that hasn't been decided yet.) AS INDICATED, REV.

King did not always want to follow in his father's foot-

Rev. Charles King didn't start his working career in the ministry. A career man in the Air Force, he retired from military service in 1975. Since 1966 or '67, while assigned to K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base in the Upper Peninsula, he was also pastor of the Church of God in Gladstone, where his son graduated from high school.

Although David King was "helping in the church just about all my life," he wasn't sure he wanted to make a career of that.

He attended Michigan Technological University in Houghton for a year, enrolled in the pre-dental pro-gram, but a profound experience at an evangelical meeting at a church camp the summer after his year at MTU convinced him to transfer to Lee College.

HE STILL WASN'T COMpletely convinced, however, about entering the ministry and for the fir 11/2 years at Lee, stud: Jusiness.

One or ais doubts, he admits, was financial. Ministers don't make a lot of money. Eventually, however, he decided the ministry was the right path to follow. "He's taking care of our needs," he said of what is his first pastorate. "We have a nice parsonage, nice people, real supportive." The Church of God averages attendance of about 55 on Sundays, including children, at the 10 a.m. Sunday school (for children and adults) and the 11 a.m. worship service.

There is also a Sunday evening service at 6 and family training hour starting at 7 Wednesdays.

Upcoming special events at the church include a chili dinner this Sunday and the appearance of Rev. Waymon Miller, the Church of God state youth in Christian education minister, who will speak at the 11 a.m. service Sunday, Dec. 12.

REV. KING, WHO WAS appointed minister here b the Church of God's state overseer, wants to expand the church's membership. He first wants to encourage former members who left to return and then work in the community to attract new members.

"It's going to take a while," he said of expanding the church's membership to take advantage of its 150 seating capacity. "I know it's not going to come overnight, but I do expect (to do so) with the Lord's help . . . "

The new pastor will no doubt receive a lot of encouragement from his father. 'He's real thrilled that I became a minister," Rev. King commented. "He's been an inspiration to me.

New telephone system okayed for county jail

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday, Nov. 23, dealt with three matters concerning the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Paul Berry was given permission to have a new telephone system installed in the jail which will enable inmates to make collect calls from their cells. Even local calls will be made collect.

Prisoners have the right to make telephone calls, but at present, a bailiff must let them out of their cells and escort them to and from the phone. The sheriff informed the board his department is scheduled to receive $62,225 in state secondary road pa--trol funds for the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30, 1983.

The board decided to advertise for bids for gasoline for the sheriff's department cars, something which hasn't been done in the past several years. Bids will be opened Dec. 14.

Prosecutor Artis Noel advised commissioners that in appointing members to staggered terms last spring on the new county Economic Development Corp., it hadn't appointed anyone to a five-year term.

The board thus changed the six-year term of Ervin Dean of Millington from a six-year to a five-year term.

Mrs. Althaver said she received a couple of calls Monday morning from persons in Ann Arbor and Detroit who were planning to attend Sunday but didn't due to the slippery roads. Understandably, she was delighted about the outcome of this year's festival. "It was probably the best festival musically we've had." THE QUALITY OF THE

She also expressed appreciation for those who contributed the "added dimension" to this year's festival of the Christmas display in the Cultural Center, the Christmas carol sing Friday evening and Saturday's chili luncheon and holiday art

The luncheon, put on by women of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church at the church, was a non-success. Reportedly, only about 30 persons came, so the gallons of leftover chili were served to the church's parishioners Sunday for a freewill offer-

Mrs. Althaver expressed hope that more Cass Cityans take advantage next year of the opportunity to attend a concert, even if they don't care for classical music. "I think if they tried, they would find it a really exciting experience."

Preparation for next year's festival begins in January, when she writes the grant application to the Michigan Council for the Arts, which provided $7,700 this year, and consults with Jaeger on next year's program.

PRACTICE, PRACTICE -- Donald Jaeger conducted the festival orchestra and solo performers in many hours of rehearsals before the concerts Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

high quality of the whole program, but then said something like this: "I expected to hear a fine performance, but I didn't expect to find the people in Cass City that are here."

Then she said something along the lines like: "It is absolutely amazing the kind of good people living here in

Memorial to say thanks

In the early spring of 1981, two men discussed an idea on how we might show our gratitude for the kind of community we are living in.

They felt that our forefathers had done a good job of planning and planting our community and that God had blessed their work, therefore, we ought to be thankful to our forefathers and to God for the kind of surroundings in which we

Their idea was that we might build some kind of 'thank you memorial'' with the hope of erecting it in our local park. They liked the location of the village park because so many of the people coming into Cass City find their way into that beautiful area of our com-

The ministers of the area churches were contacted and asked to recommend representatives from their churches who might be interested in serving on a committee to organize the thoughts around such a project. Many other individuals were also contacted. From these, a committee was formed. This committee met for the first time during the summer of 1981 and generally agreed upon a very large wooden cross as a symbol of thanks.

The committee met seveeral times during the past year to discuss and elaborate on their plans for the memorial. With the beautiful 55-foot cross in Frankenmuth in mind, the committee of Cass City residents went into action with enthusiasm and the excitement that their vision would soon become a reality.

A local artist was commissioned by the committee to draw the verbal thoughts of the committee.

After a choice of drawings were presented to the committee, a drawing of a 30-foot wooden cross and landscaping was unanimously accepted. Donations, memorials, and honorariums could be a means of financing the project.

The committee recommends that a simple plaque be placed at the cross site with the grateful words, "Thank You." Names of the persons to be honored and names in memory will be placed in a special "thanksgiving book"

I have written a number of Younglove people enclosing the Bach Now I wish to express my feelings about this wonderful program just concluded ful program just concluded. I am no musician in any sense of the word. But I do Saturday recognize excellence and William Lester Younglove, 74, a resident of the Bad Axe area for the past 69 years, died Wednesday, Nov. 24, at Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, after a long illness.

He was born William Leasure Sept. 5, 1908, in Youngstown, Ohio, and was the adopted son of William and Mary Younglove.

Younglove and Alice Rifenbark were married May 12, 1931, in Bad Axe.

He was an employee of the Brinker Lumber Co. for 35 years and a member of the Huron County Historical Society. He is survived by his wife; one son, William D. Younglove Jr., Cass City; three daughters, Mrs. Milton (Donna) Kinney, Caro, Mrs. Mike (Marilyn) Stec, Cass City, and Mrs. Casimer (Jo Ann) Michalski, Kinde; 16 grandchildren; 13 greatgrandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Edna Williams Gibbard, Bad Axe, and several nieces and nephews.

One daughter, Winifred, preceded him in death. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the MacAlpine Funeral Home, Bad Axe, Rev. Gary Butterfield of the Bad Axe Missionary Church officiating. Burial was in Colfax

Cemetery, near Bad Axe.

Taking stock

Dear Mr. Myers: I enjoy your articles about real estate and the futility of trying to buy now. I sold my home in Pennsvlvania recently, put the money in certificates of deposit and got enough income to rent a furnished apartment in Florida. Last week we looked at a time-sharing condominium.

How can anyone fall into such a trap? They wanted $10,000 for one week's use a At 12 percent interest, you could enjoy a nice vacation for $1,200 practically any-Would you write an article on these rip-offs? — Robert Fenstermaker.

> Dear Mr. Fenstermaker: We agree completely time-sharing deals are rip-

Several ancient motels in this area are converting to this new scheme. One in Delray Beach, for example, is selling one-bedroom apartments for $8,000 to $12,000 for one week's use depending on what season of the year you want. The place is in downtown Delray Beach.

One in Pompano Beach on the ocean gets up to $14,000 for its one-bedrooms for prime time, February and March.

There's one in North Carolina advertised extensively, where you get two weeks one in season and one in winter — for about $12,000. Our condominium expert of Pompano Beach, Dave

Rankine, says similar condos could be bought outright for $65,000. Say they sell time-sharing ones for 50 weeks at $10.000. That's $500,000 for a $65,000 apartment. Take $10,000 as an average sort of price. But why figure interest at 12 percent when mortgages still cost 17 percent and good bonds are available at 15 to 16 percent? Interest cost of your $10,000 at 15 percent is $1,500 a year. Then add $125 a year for maintenance cost for your 'week'' of occupancy. Add another $39 for "dues" for the exchange listing in case you want to swap with another. So you have $1,664 for seven days in a one-bedroom apartment. You also have an asset that is quite unsaleable. Our friend Dave says he's had his in North Carolina up for sale for two years with no offers. The fast-talking salesmen don't mention about the interest cost of your money.

All they talk about is how it's going to go up in value every year.

At only 14 percent interest your money will double every five years. Say you buy one of these Delray Beach or Pompano Beach deals now for $10,000 for a week's use. Do you really think in 10 years that it will be worth $40,000 — doubling twice, that is?

Friend Dave has had his for five years in the worst inflationary years since the Civil War. He can't sell it for what he paid for it, which was $8,000 for two weeks.

If his $8,000 had been put out at 14 percent these five years, it would have compounded to $16,000. Even the new places being built at this North Carolina development are going for only $12,000. And there just aren't any buyers for the old ones, for the developers are interested only in unloading their new inventory. I can only shake my head in wonderment over how salesmen can peddle such merchandise and then go to sleep at night with a clear

Criminal complaints total 687

The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department received 687 criminal complaints in October, a sharp increase from the 593 recorded in September.

The greatest number, 196, concerned traffic (reports of accidents, reckless driving, etc.), followed by larcenies, 93: vandalism, 75: domestic problems, 48, and burglaries, 41.

Deputies arrested 63 persons in October, of whom 27 were for traffic related offenses (mostly drunk driving) and six each for family offenses and obstruction of

A total of 342 persons were issued traffic tickets, of which 122 were for speeding and 67 for defective equipment.

There were 29 appearance (in district court) tickets issued, of which 11 were for purchase, possession or transporting of liquor by a minor. The county jail received 190 inmates during the month, of whom 26 were females, and released 178. Patrol cars were driven 43.029 miles and consumed 3,354.3 gallons of gasoline

(12.8 miles per gallon). Cass City police made one arrest in October, for a traffic offense. Gagetown police made two arrests for traffic offenses and one each for disorderly conduct and

Caro state police arrested

20 persons, including 13 for traffic offenses. The number of respective complaints received from and accidents in area townships and villages in October were: Columbia, 6 and 2; Elkland, 17 and 2; Cass City, 92 and accidents not recorded by sheriff's department; Ellington, 12 and 4; Elmwood, 12 and 3; Kingston Township, 22 and 3; Kingston village, 3 and 1, and Novesta, 34 and 3.
