Owen-Gage assessment scores near state level

State assessment test scores show Owendale-Cagetown students are close to the state average, with one possible exception.

Results of the tests, administered to students last October, were presented to the school board Monday evening.

Test results were as follows:

	Owen-Gage	State	Average
MATH
Fourth grade	76.7	77.8
Seventh	62.5	62.5
Tenth	31.3	61.0
READING
Fourth grade	73.3	75.6
Seventh	83.3	80.1
Tenth	84.4	77.9

The scores are based on students achieving three of four objectives. For instance, for seventh grade math, 62.5 percent of the Owen-Gage students, which was the same as the state average, achieved three of the four objectives.

The one glaring discrepancy was in 10th grade math, where supposedly only 31.3 percent of the Owen-Gage students achieved the desired attainment level, versus 61 percent statewide.

Supt. Ronald Erickson and high school Principal Wayne Wright questioned whether the state may have made a typographical error in reporting the result since the breakdown by individual skill areas or objectives showed much higher scores. Wright did see need for improvement in some areas, such as fractions and metric measurement.

He said he will be meeting with the high school math teachers to go over the results and evaluate where improvements are needed.

The principal also announced that he has formed a committee of four teachers and one school board member who will select a standardized test that high school students will take each year "not necessarily to evaluate our students, but to evaluate our programs."

He intends to recommend a test for the board to approve for use in 1983-84. Elementary students take a standardized test every year now.

Administering a test every year, Wright explained, will be more useful than the state tests, which a student takes only once every three years.

SCHOOL BUSES

It was announced that four of the district's eight buses failed the recent state police inspection.

Two have since been repaired and return of the other two from the repair garage is expected shortly. Owen-Gage has six routes, so for two days, buses had to make double runs.

Bus mechanic Ron Susalla told the board the most serious violations were two broken leaf springs.

He mentioned that he could more easily spot such things and keep the buses in repair if he had an indoor place to repair them, that he wasn't about to crawl under them in the snow to grease them anymore. Board members again expressed interest in buying the vacant repair garage across the street from the high school, provided the price is right. Up to now, it hasn't been.

NANCY FOLK

The Michigan Department of Labor Bureau of Employment Standards has ruled that Owen-Gage owes teacher Nancy Folk $1,292, plus penalty of 35.39 cents per day dating from Jan. 5 until it is paid, to reimburse her for withholding that amount from her salary as reimbursement to the district for unemployment compensation she received during the summer. The agency said the board's action was in violation of state law.

The ruling was made Feb. 1. Owen-Gage, which claims she wasn't entitled to the unemployment compensation, is appealing.

"What kind of a state do we have," board member Jack Brinkman responded when he heard the news. "That stinks... As far as I'm concerned, she should be fired right now."

Bus suspension challenge

Administrators flirt with joining union

The administrators of the Cass City schools are holding open an option of joining a union until they see what action is taken on contracts for the 1983-84 school year.

Representatives of the administration agreed with that assessment of the situation when it was outlined for the school board at its regular meeting Monday at the high school.

Monday the board adopted a suggestion by Supt. Donald Crouse to extend present contracts to no later than September in an effort to wait until the muddled financial condition of the school clears.

What makes the picture unclear is the amount of state aid that will be available. That could vary as much as $200,000, it was disclosed.

The board agreed to the proposal adding that if school finances become clearer earlier, then action would be taken earlier.

Administration salaries were frozen at 1981-82 rates when contracts were considered last year.

BUS PROBLEMS

Wendell Harmon appeared before the board to complain because his son was prohibited from riding the school bus for five days.

The suspension came after a group of boys riding in a private car just in front of the school bus made obscene hand gestures to Mrs. Donna Dorland, driver of the bus.

The Harmon boys and Mrs. Dorland had been in disputes previously. Harmon said that he had a petition signed by 26 persons asking that Mrs. Dorland be replaced.

The board had little sympathy with the complaint. Trustee Dick Albee expressed the feeling of the board when he said that the board's duty was to protect the safety of children riding the bus and distracting the attention of the driver would not be allowed and that the suspension would stand.

The question of whether drivers of school buses would be allowed to take buses for personal use even though it resulted in less mileage charged to the district was reviewed.

The present policy of no personal bus use will be retained. The door was thrown open for further consideration if enough drivers petitioned for it.

QUESTIONS

High School Principal Russ Richards reported on affairs of the high school. He said that he felt that the new attendance and discipline policy started last year was still working satisfactory.

He said that decisions about curriculum are facing the board. He wondered if the journalism course and the yearbook should be part of the regular school curriculum or after school. He said that a computer course will have to be arranged for the high school and materials bought to continue the program started in the intermediate school. He said that a decision about civics and health courses would have to be made, deciding whether they should remain separate courses or be part of other courses. Other areas needing attention, he said, were public speaking, English and science.

Another problem facing the board is the kindergarten admission age. Elementary teachers would like to give a special test to see if children are ready to enter and would like to have the tests to show parents why a child might be old enough to enter, but not ready to enter.

Principal Jackie Freiburger said that state law requires that the school admit any child that is 5 by Dec. 1.

That's the policy the school follows now, but the administration and teachers would like to have test results to indicate to parents the value of holding a child from school for a year even if he or she is five years old.

Survey: Finances a major concern

There are some tough decisions ahead for the Cass City School Board. Lou Horner, president of the citizens' advisory committee, told members of the board Monday night at the school.

Horner presented the results of a survey taken among the teachers, the students and members of the district.

Over 1,000 lengthy surveys have been tabulated into a synopsis on 8 1/2 x 11 sheets that is about a half inch thick.

Horner said that further study and decisions will be made at the next meeting of the committee. What makes the decision about the proper direction tough to determine, Horner explained, is that there is a sharp division in priorities among students, teachers and the general public.

The top concerns, in order of their importance as listed by the teachers were school financing, lack of interest and size of classes.

The top concerns of the students were drugs and alcohol followed by crime and vandalism and school financing.

Among the general public the top concern was lack of proper financing followed by a tie among lack of interest, discipline and communication.

Horner said that because of the size of the report, it would be impossible to have enough copies for everyone who might be interested.

Plans now are to have the report at easily reached places in the community including the Rawson Memorial Library and the superintendent's office at the high school.

Also of interest to the Committee is a proposed meeting Feb. 21 at Flint sponsored by the Michigan Department of Education. The meeting is designed to show school districts the best way to campaign for school millages.

Representing the committee will be Roger Root, Rochelle Peters, president of the school council, Don Schelke, Cass City Teachers Association president, and Ben Hobart, school board member, were also named as delegates.

Also examined Monday night were the results of the state achievement tests in comparison with state averages. As previously reported students in the fourth and seventh grades were well above the average while students in the 10th grade had fallen to just .9 of a point above state average in math and 1.7 percent below state average in reading. It is a trend that has been followed in the tests the last three years, the report indicated.

Rezoning given first okay

By a 6-0 vote Tuesday evening, the Cass City Planning Commission voted to recommend to the village council that it approve rezoning to allow most homes along Seeger Street to become two-family residential.

It is also recommending that the minimum allowed floor space for two-family dwellings be reduced from 720 square feet per unit to 50.

The council will consider the recommendations at its meeting Tuesday of next week.

The area proposed for rezoning consists of all the homes along Seeger that are presently zoned RA-2 one-family residential. It consists of all of Seeger south of Third Street, the west side of Seeger between Church Street and Huron Drive (one block) and the east side between the First Presbyterian Church and the intermediate school.

The public hearing prior to the commission's vote attracted nine persons, none of whom were totally in favor of the proposed changes. Some were outright opposed.

Share health problems

Doris Mester seeks to organize self-help group

Doris Mester's life literally depends on a mechanical marvel called an intermittent peritoneal dialysis machine.

She is not alone, however, and would like to communicate with other persons who share her problem.

Her problem is failed kidneys, the cause of which in her case is a hereditary disease.

The Shabbona Road, Deford, resident is attempting to organize a self-help group of persons who have kidney problems, which might meet on a regular basis or maybe just talk on the telephone, "whatever fits the need." Her phone number is 872-3076.

"I just know if I had had somebody I could talk to a lot of times, I would have been better off," she said of her experience.

Mrs. Mester, 52, has a polycystic kidney condition, which causes cysts or tumors to grow inside the kidneys.

The incurable disease was diagnosed 19 years ago. Her condition gradually deteriorated, until it reached the point that she was getting forgetful, nauseous and her heartbeat was irregular. She became so weak she couldn't walk out the door to her back yard.

Her mother had the same disorder and her one diseased kidney was removed. That was in the 1940s, and she lived until she was 75. The practice nowadays, said Mrs. Mester, who has two bad kidneys, is to leave them in unless there is some other reason to remove them, such as cancer.

In addition to her mother, Mrs. Mester's brother and sister both had kidney disease, which contributed to their deaths, though not the direct cause. An autopsy performed on her son who was killed in a traffic accident revealed that his kidneys were bad. Her brother's oldest daughter had a kidney transplant at age 33.

"Statistic wise, they tell me, if you have four children, one will have it," she said.

She and her husband, Alec, have four living children and nine grandchildren. "You get upset thinking your children might have it," she commented.

When she was told the polycystic condition can skip a generation, meaning her remaining children may not have it, but her grandchildren might, "That was very disheartening to me."

The function of the kidneys is to remove poisons and excess fluids from the blood.

MRS. MESTER HAS been using her dialysis machine since November. She uses it three nights a week, 10 hours at a time. She usually starts about 8:30 or 9 p.m., stays up for a while, then goes to bed. "It does the same thing while I'm sleeping."

A tube from the machine is connected during the 10 hours to a tube surgically implanted in her stomach, which leads to her peritoneal cavity. Solution from 10 3000cc bags (probably about a gallon each) flows into the cavity, stays there 20 minutes to absorb the poisons, then is drained out and replaced by new solution.

The intermittent dialysis machine has only been in use for about three years, Mrs. Mester said.

THE ALTERNATIVE, the hemodialysis machine, isn't as convenient to use. The flow of the solution through the user is continuous and must be monitored continuously while it is running by someone else and adjustments made.

In contrast, Mrs. Mester doesn't need anyone to help her operate her dialysis machine.

Although some hemodialysis patients have the machines at home, those with special problems have to have their blood purifying done in a hospital.

Mrs. Mester was afraid she might have been in the latter category, which would

The solution in the bags at the top of the dialysis machine flows into the cavity at 20 minute intervals over a 10-hour period and absorbs the poisons in her blood, then drains into bags on the floor. Once she is done, the bags and tubing are thrown out.

HEALTH TIPS

Vegetables protect against some cancers

When mother says, "Eat your vegetables; they're good for you," there might be some truth in it. The Cancer Information Service (CIS) of Michigan has reports on studies which have shown that what we eat does affect our chances of getting cancer.

Dark-green leafy vegetables and deep-yellow fruits and vegetables such as carrots, spinach and broccoli are the main sources of beta-carotene. Foods high in carotene are associated with a reduced risk of many cancers, including cancer of the lung, breast, bladder and skin.

Foods rich in Vitamin C, including citrus fruits, tomatoes and peppers, seem to lower the risk of cancers of the stomach and esophagus.

Although scientists are not certain what role eating habits play in reducing or increasing a person's chances of getting cancer, research so far suggests that Americans might have a lower rate of certain cancers if they ate less fatty foods and more high-fiber foods (such as bran, whole grains, and fibrous vegetables and fruits).

Other ways of reducing your chances of getting cancer are stop or cut down on smoking, don't overeat - control your weight and limit your drinking of alcoholic beverages.

These facts and more can be found by calling the Cancer Information Service, toll-free, at 1-800-482-4959. Trained information specialists will answer your individual questions, or ask for the free brochure, Cancer - What to Know, What to Do About It.

Other suggestions from the CIS include: Practicing breast self-examination is one of the best ways for women to protect themselves against breast cancer. Most breast lumps are found by women themselves, often through breast self-examination. For a free brochure on how to examine your breasts, call the CIS.

Most cancers take a long time to grow. The cancers many people have today were caused by things that happened long ago - sometimes as long as 20 or 30 years ago. A good way to avoid cancer in the future is to begin thinking about it now.

"If It Fitz..."

Under cover

By Jim Fitzgerald

It is because of creepy celebrities like John W. Hinckley Jr. that I've decided to keep my blue-and-yellow checkered boxer shorts. Which means I will continue to be the first person to tell my wife she is behind in her housework.

For a while, I thought I'd put the checkered shorts up for auction. They were a gift, and I don't like them. They are too noisy to wear next to my quiet skin. I realize there are jazzy men who wear red underwear. That's their business. Probably they have extroverted skin that enjoys the touch of wildly hued cloth. But my skin has always been sedate, even dull, and putting riotous underwear against it is as inappropriate as burying a corpse in a clown's suit.

In my drawers drawer, the lone pair of checkered shorts is forever banished to the bottom of the heap, hidden below a dozen pair of muted white shorts that don't clash with my calm skin. The only time I wear the checkered shorts is when there are no white ones available. And that's when I begin looking around to see if my wife has divorced me.

Women's Libbers may say that, rather than berating my wife for forcing me to wear Hugh Hefner's underwear, I should do my own laundry. I would, except my wife won't allow me in the laundry room. The other evening, while attempting to warm up last week's stew, I melted permanent wounds into her favorite plastic left-over container. And now I'm not allowed in the kitchen, either.

So, because my wife is afraid I'll put water and soap flakes in her favorite drier, I'm forced to depend on her to keep clean the supply of quiet shorts required to keep my skin from waking up. And, when there is nothing left except the checkered pair, I have no choice but to wear them to breakfast to remind her that I'm horribly neglected. I wear them on my head.

As for auctioning the checkered shorts, it was a possibility because charitable and political organizations often raise funds by auctioning "personal items" donated by supposedly well-known people. And my hometown has such a dearth of celebrities that sometimes even a columnist who passes unrecognized at his own family picnics is asked to donate an out-of-style necktie for a worthy cause.

I usually balk at contributing to these auctions because it's ridiculous to think anyone would pay two cents for a used anything simply because I owned it. Also, besides being so marvelously humble, I'm also loathe to suffer the embarrassment of learning no one bid on my old argyle socks because no one believed I washed my feet.

But I was weakening on the checkered shorts. I anticipated an extra large tax deduction for donating them because the shorts were more than clothing, they were also the barometer that unfaillingly signaled when it was time for my wife to start trying to remember the location of the laundry room.

However, I just read that a letter written by John Hinckley in his hospital cell was sold for $300 "plus 10 percent auctioneer's commission." Also, Hinckley has written a Penthouse magazine article chastising Americans for not reading the right kind of books. Isn't that grand?

I'm sorry poor-little-rich-boy Hinckley is mentally ill. But it bugs me that he is treated like a movie star for shooting President Reagan and three other men. How much would his writing be worth if Reagan had died?

And now, with the help of a publisher yearning to improve our minds, Hinckley is telling citizens what to read. It's too bad Lee Harvey Oswald was killed. He might have advised us on music appreciation.

The world too often rewards creeps for being creeps. The marketing of John Hinckley's literary efforts is only one small example. But it's enough to make me keep my checkered drawers off the auction block for fear they might get mixed up with "Sirhan Sirhan's Guide to a More Satisfying Career."

After all, what does it profit a man if he keeps his skin quiet but can't stop it from crawling?

MASON OF THE YEAR—Edward Golding holds the certificate he was presented Feb. 8 by Tyler Lodge No. 317, F&AM, naming him Mason of the year.

Water usage declines in '82

Water usage in Cass City in 1982 was the lowest since the late 1950s.

The annual report of Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie showed 89.55 million gallons were pumped from village wells, compared to 99.49 million the year before.

In 1955, village residents used 65.15 million gallons.

The next year listed on LaPonsie's report was 1960, when 110.22 million were used.

The peak year came in 1977, when 138.07 million gallons were consumed. The decline has been steady since.

LaPonsie attributed the decline last year "to be the result of water conservation on the part of our customers because of the 1982 sewer rate increase."

With less water being used, understandably, less wastewater was treated at the sewage plant. The average flow in 1982 through the plant was 303,000 gallons per day, down from 369,000 in 1981. The peak year was 1976, when 430,000 gallons were treated.

The new treatment plant, which started operation last year, can treat up to 1 million gallons of sewage-laden water per day. The old plant could treat a maximum of 432,000 gallons per day and could not treat it as efficiently as the new one.

Village crews spread 100 tons of salt on village streets in 1982, an average of 8.33 tons per lane mile, versus a 1981 average of 13.5 tons. They also used 51 tons of bituminous patching material on streets, compared to 34 tons in 1981 and 72 tons in 1980.

Twenty trees were removed last year by village workmen, five from the park and 15 elsewhere, and 28 were planted, nine in the park and 19 elsewhere.

Ed Golding Mason of the Year

Edward Golding was honored as Mason of the year by members of Tyler Lodge No. 317, Free and Accepted Masons, at a dinner Tuesday evening, Feb. 8, at the Masonic Temple in Cass City.

Golding has been a member of the lodge for 44 years and is the first recipient of what will be an annual award.

He remembers well the day he joined the lodge, in March, 1939, because that was also the day he and his family moved to the home on M-81 west of Cass City where he and his wife, Frances, still live.

Since joining, Golding, 80, had held every office in the lodge. He was master in 1944 and has been secretary the past eight years. He is also deputy instructor of District 23A of the F&AM.

In addition to holding office, he has been involved in numerous lodge activities, including helping build the present Masonic Temple at Maple and Garfield Streets.

The Masons bought the covered basement in 1968 from the Good Shepherd Church, which had been using it for services. The Masons built the rest of the structure themselves. "I never laid bricks before, but I laid a lot of them," Golding recalled. Prior to then, the Masonic Temple was located on the second floor of the Federated store building.

In addition to Tyler lodge, he is also a member of Cass City Council No. 90 and Caro Chapter No. 96, Royal Arch Masons.

Golding worked for the S.T. & H. Oil Co. in Cass City for 18 years, until 1946, then farmed until about 1970.

He was Elkland Township Supervisor from 1958-68, then a Tuscola County Commissioner from 1969-72.

He and his wife have two children, Ed Golding Jr., Alma, and Betty Russell, Cass City, and 10 grandchildren. His son-in-law, Royce Russell, is now the county commissioner from this area.

Tyler Lodge, founded in 1873, has 283 members.

The F&AM has 3 million members nationwide and another 3 million in other countries. In the United States, an average of $1 million a day is contributed by Masonic members to various charitable, health educational and civic projects.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Valentine ads are fun. What makes them fun is trying to figure out just who is sending messages of love to whom. What makes them fun is trying to see if there are double meanings in the messages presented.

What makes them fun are the clever ones. What makes them fun are the dumb ones. What makes them fun is the fantasy and the intrigue. You can't get more romantic than that.

I read every one last week.

Cass City's adult education department needs a computer to keep up with the demand for its computer class. Started out three days a week, a fourth class was added and now that's full and there's a waiting list.

All that after I finally girded up and decided that I would join.

There's big interest in computers everywhere. Owen-Gage offered a class and it was oversubscribed. Another class was offered and now there are 13 in the first and 14 in the second session.

Usually special committees lumber on and on talking a lot, doing a little. The pleasant exception is the Cass City High School Citizens' Advisory Committee, ramrodded by Louis Horner.

Horner's group has cataloged over 1,000 questionnaires into a small library of information that obviously took hours to compile.

Horner had loads of help. Among the most active, he says, were Ray and Dee Garety, Thresa Burnette, Terri Groombridge, Roger Root, Don and Joyce Loomis, Kris Deering, Dick Albee and Mrs. Horner.

Monday night the Cass City School Board gave him a round of applause for his efforts.

It isn't nice to fool mother nature, an almost forgotten now boob tube ad used to say over and over again. Well, how about mother nature fooling us?

These 40-plus temperature days make you feel that spring is just around the corner instead of a good six weeks away.

That's right, six weeks. Better believe it.

Right now there is no school play on the docket at Cass City High School. But there could be. Principal Russell Richards said that no teacher wanted to take over as director and no students have asked for the play so that plans for the traditional event were dropped.

However, one board member said that there is an experienced director who is not a teacher who would be willing to direct the play.

Now if the kids ask, they will receive, appears to be the sentiment of board members.

Crazy, said one. Crazy agreed his companion. They were watching a group of kids walking casually through the light snow wearing tennis shoes.

It brought an inward chuckle and I wondered if they could remember when they did it, too. Maybe not tennis shoes, but something just as weird that was in the thing of the era.

It brought me back to grade school days. Everyone that could afford it those days wore high top boots in the winter.

If you had the bucks you wore the neatest kind of all... one with the jackknife that fitted into its own holster at the top of the boot.

You worked those boots over with bear grease to make them waterproof and you proved it by walking into the nearest puddle.

Wild horses couldn't make you admit that your feet immediately became wet and that those leather boots were the coldest, most uncomfortable contraptions yet devised.

For everyone in the peer group those two pair of wool socks with the red stripes at the top were keeping your feet so warm that they were almost sweating.

Well, kids will be kids and adults will be adults. The difference is that one is older than the other. Otherwise we haven't changed much.

If anything we bow more to peer pressure as adults than we did as kids.

We run with the herd. Women raise and lower their hemlines at the whim of a designer or a favorite role model.

They change their hair style and add cosmetics with every bend in the fashion breeze.

Men do the same. We've gone from double breasted suits with vest to single breasted suits and no vests and now we're headed back again. Vests have been with us for 10 years now and fashion editors say double breasted suits are the upcoming fashion this spring.

Basic to all this is that we want to be at least accepted, if not admired, by people we associate with.

None of us wants to be singled out as strange or different.

It's unfortunate that at least at first we all are judged more or less by our appearance, not what we really are.

As long as this is true we'll be dancing to the tune of our peer group's master piper. No matter how crazy the jig may be.

Area accidents

Injuries reported in 3-car crash

A three-vehicle accident south of Caro at 12:15 a.m. Saturday resulted in possible injuries to two persons.

According to sheriff's deputies, Louise Ann Healey, 23, of 7949 Daus Road, Cass City, driver of one of the cars involved, suffered possible injuries. One of her two passengers, Alan R. McClorey, 26, of 7409 Daus Road, sought his own treatment for injuries.

Officers reported Charles J. Theaker, 25, of Caro, was turning left from northbound M-24 into a driveway when his car stalled. The southbound vehicle of Russell R. McElowney, 45, of Mayville, then collided with the Theaker auto, glanced off, crossed the centerline and struck the northbound Healey auto.

Geraldine D. Perry, 45, of 6552 Kelly Road, Cass City, was ticketed by Caro State police on a charge of failure to signal a turn after a 3:40 p.m. accident last Thursday. Troopers said she was headed northwest on M-81 and had stopped to turn left onto Deckerville Road. A car behind her, driven by Doris W. Carter, 56, of Royal Oak, started to pass and the two autos collided.

Mrs. Perry told troopers her car turn signal was on, but there was no turn signal on the trailer it was pulling. A car slammed into the front of the Family Arcade, 3498 State Street, Kingston, at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Linda F. Hodder, 32, of 5976 Curtis Street, Kingston, told deputies she was turning right into the business parking lot. She was coasting and then accidentally pushed down on the accelerator pedal instead of the brake pedal.

Her vehicle hit the front of the building, damaging the siding and interior walls, deputies said.

At 7:10 a.m. that day, deputies reported, Marcia J. Hoffman, 45, of Bach Road, Cass City, driver of a Cass City school bus, backed the bus into the car behind it.

Officers said she was westbound on State Street in Gageton, at the intersection with Lincoln Street, and started to back up because she was having engine trouble and wanted to get out of the way of an approaching car.

The bus backed into the car behind it, driven by Craig J. Downing, 26, of 4817 South Street, Gageton.

At 4 p.m. Saturday, Cass City police reported, a car driven by David A. Hutchinson of Cass City backed into the car of Howard Luana, which was parked on Houghton Street.

At 4:15 p.m. last Thursday, according to Huron County sheriff's deputies, Donna Schmitt of 3686 E. Atwater Road, Uby, backed out of a driveway on Union Street in Uby and backed into a car parked by the south curb.

Owner of the parked car was Michael Eliasohn, 38, of 6352 W. Main Street, Cass City.

CAR-DEER

At 4:09 a.m. Tuesday, deputies reported, John H. Stoldorf, 47, of Carsonville, was westbound on M-46, west of Plain Road, when his vehicle collided with a deer.

Norman Lee Coates of 6666 Elmwood Road, Cass City, was eastbound on M-46, west of Phillips Road, at 6:41 p.m. Monday, according to deputies, when his vehicle hit a deer.

A deer ran into the left rear of the car of Carolyn M. Burzyck, 30, of Elkton, at 7:30 a.m. Monday, deputies said, when she was southbound on Cemetery Road, north of Bay City-Forestville Road.

Onalee M. Hopper, 47, of 5795 Bruce Street, Deford, was eastbound on Deckerville Road, east of Phillips Road, at 8:20 p.m. last Thursday when her vehicle collided with a deer, deputies said.

Caro state police reported that at 10:15 a.m. last Wednesday, Gerald D. Watt, 43, of Madison Heights, was westbound on Bay City-Forestville Road, east of M-53, when a deer ran into the side of his vehicle.

Letter to the editor

Lauds staff at Hills and Dales

Dear editor, Cass City you have something to be proud of:

I must write and tell you what I think of the Hills and Dales General Hospital, especially the obstetrics department.

Our baby girl "Bobbie Lynn" was born Jan. 27 and I must say it was the most wonderful experience of my life.

I have two other children that were born in other hospitals so I'm talking from experience when I say Hills and Dales has to be the very best.

I have never seen so many people so full of care and concern, people that make you feel so welcome and safe.

If you asked me to define the word "professional," I would have to say Faith, Barb, Diane and all the other nurses, doctors and staff of Hills and Dales Hospital.

They truly are professionals. These people don't just punch a clock and wait for a paycheck.

All these people are so involved in their work, they have put their whole life into caring for others. Everyone is right there when you need them and always with a smile or a kind word. If I hadn't seen it for myself, I'd never believe it. I don't know how you can get so many wonderful people in one place.

Cass City, you do have something to really be proud of.

Sincerely,
Annette Seirs

Pedaling Around
Who, me?
Complain?

By Mike Eliasohn

Once each year, I write a column about how I hate winter. Unfortunately, I can't do that this year, since so far this winter, I haven't found anything to complain about. I still prefer 70 degrees out, as opposed to 20, but as far as winters go, this one hasn't been bad at all. Of course, I don't ski or snowmobile or fish through ice or own a heating fuel company, so what's good to me isn't good to others. Although I can't complain, I can gloat. We didn't get any snow last week, but the East Coast got socked with up to two feet of the white stuff. My sister, who moved from Michigan to New Jersey last year, probably celebrated her 41st birthday Saturday by shoveling out her driveway. Then there is a bicycling acquaintance of mine, who moved last year from the Detroit area to the Washington, D.C. area. He wrote me last September that he was "looking forward to the shorter winter down here," I assume, since he could do more cycling. Maybe the winters are shorter in the Washington, D.C., area, but at least this winter, they seem to be deeper. No winter is winter without at least one snow storm and I am confident we will still get one. I even know when we will get one. I can't tell you the exact date, but it will be on a Sunday. Currently, my father and stepmother are somewhere in Florida. They plan to return home to Holt, near Lansing, at the end of this month. I know it will snow heavily the first weekend I go see them, which should be in March. I know it won't snow on Saturday, because if it is snowing then, I'll stay here. But I'll get to Holt and when it's time to return Sunday, it will be snowing heavily. Usually, if I'm scheduled to go to Holt and the forecast on Saturday is that it is supposed to snow the next day, I won't go. It doesn't always work out that way. In March, 1979, for instance, I made two weekend trips when my father was still living in Lansing and both times had to contend with snow and ice on the way back. Then there was the trip in December of that year, with similar snow and ice, and my carburetor froze on the way to Cass City. That was in my old Gremlin (still running, by the way, for its present owners) and it took me six hours to get back. Sometimes, it works the opposite. There was the Saturday in January, 1979, when I drove through a snowstorm to Lansing to see my father, who was scheduled to leave the next day for Arizona. My father never made it to his plane that Sunday, but in driving back to Cass City, it was bare pavement all the way. Now that I have a front wheel drive car, winter driving doesn't bother me as much as it once did, though I still prefer bare pavement (though it does prematurely wear out my snow tires). The only trouble with my Escort, as I've mentioned before, is a propensity for dents. Twice I backed it into other vehicles, damaging the left rear corner both times, and my roof still carries a dent received at an Owen-Gage baseball game from a foul ball. It got a small dent once, from a hit and run driver. Last Thursday, it got more than a small dent, when someone backed into it. My car was parked, but I was still in it. I seem to have problems moving or standing still.

TORE TOLLERSRUD

Many ambulance bills are never paid

Persons who don't pay their ambulance bills make it more expensive for everyone even if they never use the service. About 20-25 percent of all the bills for service are never paid, according to Jack McDaniel, operator of the Cass City Ambulance Service, Inc. (CCAS). Compared to other ambulance services, he said, "We're average or a little better in what we collect." McDaniel operates the service under contract to Elkland, Novesta, Evergreen and Greenleaf Townships. He keeps 30 percent of what he collects. The difference between the remaining 70 percent of the fees collected and the operating cost is paid by the townships in the form of a subsidy. This year, it appears a subsidy won't be needed, McDaniel said. Last year, the subsidy was the equivalent to $1.55 per resident in each township. A subsidy will be needed next year because the CCAS will be buying a new ambulance. The fee for using the ambulance is $130 per person per loaded mile, plus $4 per mile, plus an additional charge if oxygen is needed. Residents of the four townships receive a 50 percent discount on their bills. Ambulance bills are normally sent to the individuals, McDaniel said, who are supposed to pay it themselves if they don't have insurance. Some persons who do have it throw the bill out instead of forwarding it to their insurance company and some persons' insurance doesn't pay for ambulance service. Some insurance companies, once they receive the bill, directly pay the CCAS, but others send the check to the individuals. Some of them cash the check and never pay the ambulance service. "We got people who don't make any effort to pay it," McDaniel commented. In contrast, some persons who don't have much money, but are conscientious, are paying as little as $1 a month on their bills. Some have been paying since 1979. Unlike other businesses, which can cut off service to customers who don't pay, ambulance services don't have that option.

Football was new for visiting exchange student

Michigan has held few surprises for Tore Tollersrud, Rotary Exchange student from Norway, who has been in Cass City since last August. "What surprised me most was Michigan was so flat," he said. "Norway is mountainous and hilly." And if the stereotype of a Norwegian is a person on cross country skis, that image is quite true. "Everybody cross country skis," he said then corrected himself, that most persons do, but not everyone. Despite being so mountainous, only within the last 15 years or so, has downhill skiing become popular, and more so with young people than older ones. Tollersrud is a good example, since he prefers coasting down hills to skiing cross country. Since coming to Cass City, he has twice gone downhill skiing at resorts in the Cadillac area. "It was nice," he said. Norwegians aren't ones to huddle indoors in winter. In addition to cross country and downhill skiing, ski jumping and speed skating are also popular. Overall, Tollersrud said, Norwegians are more outdoors minded than he has found Americans to be. Popular warm weather activities in his country include ocean swimming, soccer and "just being outside in summer." ONE SPORT THE 17-year-old had never seen until coming to this country was football. That didn't deter his trying out for the Red Hawk team. Tollersrud was the team's kicker. He did kickoffs plus kicked 10 extra points of 10 attempts and one field goal, which was his only attempt. This spring, he plans to try out for the track team as a runner, which is another sport he has never participated in. Tollersrud's best sport is volleyball, but here, it's only played by girls. He also plays soccer and did his football kicking soccer style with the side of his foot. His school in Norway only has three teams, soccer, volleyball and basketball, but when they play other schools, it's strictly for fun. "They take school sports more seriously here than we do," he commented. Persons in Norway who want to take part in serious sports competition belong to sports clubs. NORWEGIANS START school at age 7 and attend for nine years. After that, they decide if they want to continue. If they do continue, they have a choice of secondary schools specializing in such subject areas as sciences, economics, auto mechanics or carpentry. Tollersrud has completed the first year of secondary school, specializing in sciences. He doesn't receive credit for his year at Cass City High School. When he returns to Norway, he will have two more years of secondary school, then will probably serve his 12-15 month military obligation. After that, he plans to go to a university, though he has no idea yet what he wants to do for a career. THE EXCHANGE student lives in a suburb about 10 miles west of Oslo, the capital. There are a few stores there, for groceries, clothing, etc., plus gas stations ($3 a gallon), but major shopping is done in Oslo, which can be reached via car, train or bus. Tollersrud's father is a veterinarian. His mother teaches Norwegian language and customs to immigrants. He has two younger brothers and one older sister, all living at home. Norwegians study three languages in school, Norwegian, Old Norwegian and English. Norwegian is similar to Danish, dating back to when the Danes ruled Norway. New Norwegian, spoken in the western and northern parts of the country (Oslo is in the southeast) was derived from various Norwegian dialects. Although Norwegians start studying English in the fourth grade, Tollersrud started learning it in Kenya in east Africa, where the family lived from 1972-75, when his father was a professor at the University of Nairobi. (English is a major language in the country because it was once a British colony.) THE EXCHANGE STUDENT first lived with the Ken Jansens on Hospital Drive when he came to Cass City. Just after New Year's, he moved in with the Gary Jones family on Herron Drive. In April, he is scheduled to move to the Ben Hobart's near Gagetown. Since coming here, in travels with his host families and with others, he has seen most of Michigan, including the Upper Peninsula, and also, by taking the long way home, Duluth, Minn., and Chicago. He has been to Detroit several times. Before going home in July, Tollersrud hopes to be able to go on the bus trip to California for Rotary exchange students.

The chase leads him to Lloyds of London, through France, Dubai, the Arabian Gulf and back.

Big Brothers, Big Sisters appreciated

Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Tuscola County is celebrating National Big Brothers-Big Sisters Appreciation Week, this week.

The organization has about 50 matches in effect, slightly more than half of them Big-Little Sister matches, according to Connie Gamet, Tuscola BB-BS director.

There is a waiting list of about 55 youngsters from all over the county, of which about 95 percent are boys, she said. In addition, there is a holding list of youngsters eligible for a Big Brother or Sister, waiting to get on the waiting list.

This year, BB-BS Appreciation Week is especially significant, Mrs. Gamet said, as it marks the 80th anniversary of the national BB-BS movement.

The one-to-one service to children dates back to 1903, when a Cincinnati businessman, Irvin F. Westheimer, befriended a hungry boy who was foraging through garbage cans for food. Westheimer persuaded his friends to aid other boys in need and later founded Big Brothers of Cincinnati.

Today, 100,000 children are served nationally through 440 BB-BS agencies.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters are matched with their young friends on the basis of common interests and personalities, and make a commitment to spend a few hours a week together for at least a year.

"Many matches continue their friendship long after the Little Brother or Sister has grown up," according to Mrs. Gamet, "and most volunteers report that the rewards of the friendship more than equal their contribution to a child's happiness."

For more information on becoming a volunteer, call Tuscola County BB-BS Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Woodworking workshop in Sandusky

A 4-H woodworking workshop will be held in the Sanilac County conference room, 37 Austin Street, Sandusky, Saturday, Feb. 26, from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

The workshop is open to 4-H leaders and members and anyone else who thinks that he or she might benefit.

Included will be sessions on sanding and finishing, rocking chair design and construction, wood properties, uses and selection, and idea sharing. New and revised 4-H project bulletins will be available.

The workshop is free. Reservations can be made by calling the extension 4-H office at 648-2515.

Cass City is a friendly town

Moving from Fort Wayne, Ind., population 180,000, to Cass City is quite a change but Barbara Jackson likes her new community.

"I like living in a small town," she said. "I like it better."

Her husband, James, was laid off from International Harvester after working for it 20 years as a design engineer.

The family moved here last July after he got a job as an engineer with Walbro. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, sons Randy, 17, and Steve, 9, are living on Houghton Street.

The couple has three other children, all married, living in Fort Wayne, and a son, also married, who is in the Army and stationed in Georgia.

What does Mrs. Jackson like best about living in Cass City? "I guess the friendliness... Everybody makes me feel real welcome."

She hasn't had any trouble finding enough things to do. If there ever is something she wants or needs but can't find in Cass City, "You can always go to the big city."

There are some negatives, however. State taxes and local property taxes are noticeably higher here than in Indiana. The state income tax rate there, for instance, is 1.9 percent versus Michigan's 4.6 percent.

Mrs. Jackson regrets she hasn't been able to find a job since coming here, nor has her son, Randy, who had a part-time one in Fort Wayne since he was 14.

She was service coordinator for nine county and 35 employees for Upjohn Health Services, which operated a federally funded program to provide health and other services, primarily for senior citizens, in their homes.

The aim was to help them stay in their homes, so they wouldn't have to move into nursing homes.

If the economy isn't too good in Cass City, it isn't good in Fort Wayne either. International Harvester once employed 10,000 there. Now it has 2,000 employees and the number will decline further when the truck plant there closes, plus two other big firms have closed their plants there, Mrs. Jackson said.

Dairy farmers' meeting Feb. 26

The Deford local of Michigan Milk Producers Association (MMPA) will conduct its annual luncheon meeting starting at noon Saturday, Feb. 26, at the United Methodist Church in Shabbona.

Activities at the meeting will include election of officers for the coming year, election of delegates to the upcoming district meeting and consideration of other matters pertaining to the dairy farming industry.

Guest speaker will be MMPA President Elwood Kirkpatrick of Kinde.

Sixty-eight locals throughout the state form the grassroots nucleus of MMPA, the state's largest milk marketing cooperative. MMPA membership totals about 6,000 dairy farmers statewide.

REGIONAL WINNERS - Cass City High School students Brian Czekai, a junior, and Colleen Janssen, a senior, were winners in the Distributive Education Clubs of America regional competition in Lapeer last Thursday, thus qualifying for the state DECA competition in Dearborn in March. Brian finished in the top eight for food marketing at the master employee level. Colleen finished first in job application-job interview, second in mathematics and was third overall in her division. Both are distributive education students at the Tuscola Area Skill Center.

Progressive class elects officers

The progressive class of Salem United Methodist Church met last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson in Gageton with 18 in attendance.

Don Buehrly presided over the business meeting, at which time officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

president, Richard Gaffney; vice-president, Ted Morgan; secretary, Clara Gaffney, and treasurer, Shirley Geiger.

George Wilson showed slides of the Grand Canyon. Homemade ice cream and cake were served.

The next meeting will be March 10 at the Eldon Stoutenburg home.

Attacked

Woman accosted by unknown man in Cass City phone booth

A Cass City woman told village police last Wednesday that she was attacked while she was trying to make a phone call from the booth behind Old Wood Drug.

She said she was about to make the call when the man came up to her, called her a "tramp" and then grabbed her near the throat with both hands and began slamming her head against the sides of the booth. He then left.

The woman, who suffered no apparent injury, described the man as about 6-foot tall and 25-30 years old. The incident took place about 4:45 p.m.

Mike Flowers of 6444 Seventh Street told village police that two of his kitchen windows were damaged between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Feb. 7. There were holes in both of them and one stone was found.

Donald Theisen of 2811 E. Deckerville Road, Ellington Township, reported to deputies last Wednesday night that his mailbox had been damaged.

About 9 p.m., he heard a loud explosion. He found his mailbox in his driveway, across the road from where it had been. The top was almost flat, the door was blown off and there was a black residue that smelled like sulphur inside.

The previous evening, he said, the mailbox had been smashed.

Deputies believe the damage was done by the same person or persons who smashed mailboxes Tuesday night of last week along Orr, Gilford and (elsewhere on) Deckerville Roads.

Tax changes affect jobless

If you are one of the more than 11 million Americans who were unemployed during the last year, you may be affected by a recent change in tax law.

According to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, you should be aware of certain tax deductions for job-hunting costs, and other ways to ease the financial burden between jobs.

Depending upon your total annual income from all sources, you may be subject to a tax bite on part of any unemployment compensation you received in 1982.

If unemployment benefits push your total income above $12,000 on an individual tax return or $18,000 on a joint return, you will have to pay a tax on those benefits.

To determine how much compensation is taxable, add up the total amount of all unemployment compensation received, along with any wages, interest, dividends and other income for 1982. Then subtract from the total, $12,000 for an individual or $18,000 for a joint return.

If after subtracting, the result is zero, none of your unemployment compensation is taxable. If the result is above zero you are taxed on one-half of that amount, or on the total of unemployment compensation received, whichever is less.

Let's say you are a single taxpayer who earned wages of $11,000 in 1982, plus interest income of $200. You also received $2,000 in unemployment compensation. Your total income for the year was $13,200.

You subtract $12,000 from $13,200 and end up with a subtotal of $1,200. Half that amount, $600, is considered taxable income for the year. The other $1,400 of unemployment compensation is not taxed.

According to CPAs, if you were unemployed during 1982, but looked for another job, you can generally claim tax deductions for certain expenses you incurred in your job search. The cost of printing and mailing resumes is deductible, as is the cost of traveling to a job interview. And remember, these costs are deductible even if you do not get the job you tried for.

If you paid an employment agency fee or placed a classified ad in order to get a job, those costs are also deductible. An important qualification is job hunting expenses can only be deducted if you look for a job in your regular line of work.

If you are unemployed, and living on a reduced income, it is a good idea to keep a financial diary recording everything you spend. This will also help you keep track of job hunting and other tax-deductible expenses.

You may also want to set up a budget, based on income from unemployment compensation and any other sources. Include your spouse's income, along with any income your children can provide.

To save money, you may want to convert the group health and life insurance plans to individual coverage. This is often cheaper than buying all new policies.

It could also be cheaper to buy short-term health insurance policies that provide coverage for two to six months, or a one-year term life policy. You may be eligible for coverage under your spouse's health insurance plan, or perhaps through a group plan offered by a professional or fraternal organization.

A major expense that may be reduced while you are unemployed is regular mortgage payments, provided the mortgage holder is amenable. The financial institution holding your mortgage might allow you to pay only interest during the period that you are out of work. The principal portion might then be added to later payments when you are working again.

ASK DR. COE

Last time I talked to you about different pain experiences and what they could indicate. Now I would like to discuss pain you may experience during treatment.

But first a few words about us who provide dental care. Believe it or not, we are all sensitive, caring individuals. The worst part of our job comes when providing a necessary treatment and not being able to provide it comfortably. Certainly it is stressful lying in the chair being uncomfortable at times, but please believe that we too are aware of your discomfort and do all we can to eliminate it because we feel emotionally what you feel physically.

Our single most effective agent to control pain is local anesthesia (numbing, freezing) which requires an injection to get the drug to where it is effective. We try to do this as comfortably as possible by first using a topical anesthetic to numb the skin. There are times when the anesthetic doesn't work as well as we'd like, especially when there is infection present which changes the tissue somewhat making it more resistant to the drug. For some people the local anesthetics are not as effective as in most. Some people have such a low tolerance for pain. They will feel pain or think they feel pain even with profound anesthesia, while others are so on edge expecting pain that even the slightest vibration or noise will be perceived as pain. A useful adjunct for these hyper-aware patients is nitrous-oxide gas which can on most patients produce relaxation and decreased perception. If you think it might help you please ask about it.

Finally, we want your care to be as comfortable for you as you do. By working together and not as adversaries we will have the best opportunity to provide for you our goal of painless dentistry.

By Darrell M. Sheets, D.M.D.

Hawks title hopes on line in Caro clash

Cass City's realistic chances for at least a share of the Thumb B Association championship now rests with Friday's game with Caro.

Following Cass City's loss Tuesday to the Lakers, 56-47, the Lakers, Caro and Cass City are now in the chase for the title. Either Cass City or Caro will fade following Friday's key clash in Cass City.

It's almost sure that the Tigers will win if Cass City shoots like it did in the first quarter at Laker High.

The team hit just one of its first 16 shots including a half dozen from six feet out or closer. Fortunately for Hawk fans the Lakers didn't take advantage of the lapse and blow Cass City away.

Instead they matched the Hawks almost turnover for turnover in about as sloppy a first eight minutes of basketball as ever seen

LAKERS	FG	FTPTS
Cunningham	3	0-1 6
Brunet	5	2-2 12
Engelhardt	1	0-1 2
Buschlen	4	3-4 11
Rathje	3	3-4 9
McArdle	1	1-2 3
Rosenthal	6	1-2 13
	23	10-16 56

CASS CITY	FG	FTPTS
Langenburg	3	- 6
Bliss	-	1-2 1
Meininger	6	6-10 18
Pobanz	4	1-2 9
Lapp	1	2-2 4
Hartwick	1	1-3 3
Beecher	3	- 6
	18	11-17 47

between two contending clubs in the conference.

With one minute left in the opening quarter, the Lakers had jumped in front 11-4 as Cass City was held to a basket and two free throws by John Meininger.

Meanwhile, John Rathje was hitting from the low post to provide the Lakers with what offensive firepower it could muster.

Early in the second quarter the Green and White stretched that lead to 12 points and Cass City spent the rest of the night trying to catch up.

The Hawks never did, but they came close with a last half rally when some of the shots started falling in.

Just before the third quarter ended Rob Hartwick gobbled up a rebound scored a basket and was fouled. When he sunk the charity toss Cass City had moved to within three points, the closest it had been to the lead since the start of the game.

After that it was a see-saw affair, Cass City always challenging and the Lakers always holding off the challenge.

With 55 seconds left in the game Cass City trailed by just two points, 49-47, and had the ball. But steps were called and Cass City lost the ball without getting a shot. After that Cass City tried desperation fouls and the Lakers made six free throws in a row to make the game appear less close than it actually was.

Meininger was the top scorer for Cass City with 18 points. For the Lakers, Scott Rosenthal netted 13 and Matt Brunet, 12. Brunet's baskets came from outside and a pair were netted at a key time in the game to keep Cass City from tying the game.

Sandusky Game

It was supposed to be a breather before important games ahead but it turned out that Cass City was gasping for breath last Friday.

After all, the Redskins had only won one game in the Thumb B Association and had been easy prey for Thumb teams this year after winning the title the year before.

But the Redskins threw away the script and it took some last quarter heroics by Rick Pobanz to enable Cass City to come from behind and chalk up a 58-51 decision.

Pobanz saved his best for the last in a 31-point effort, the best of his varsity career. The senior forward sank two 25-foot baskets and three of four free throws to key a charge that nullified a great effort by the Redskins.

Coach John Guttowsky said that it was the best game his charges have played all season. It was surely a different team than the one that Cass City handled easily earlier in the season 65-49.

One reason why the Redskins were tough opponents, despite their record, was some good shooting from the field. Sandusky hit 23 of 41 shots for 56 percent while Cass City shot 21 of 42 for 50 percent.

As it has in several games this season, Cass City won the game on the free throw line with 16 of 21 to Sandusky's 5 of 8.

Sandusky jumped off to a 16-12 lead in the first period and held it throughout most of the game. The hosts were in front at the half, 28-27, and when Cass City posted a dismal third period it appeared that a giant upset was brewing.

Cass City scored just eight points, six of them by Pobanz, in the third quarter and trailed by six points going into the final eight minutes.

With just over six minutes left the Sandusky lead was eight points. Right here Cass City's pressing defense, ineffective all night, started to pay off and caused numerous Redskins turnovers.

That defense, coupled with Pobanz' shooting, was enough for the Hawks to squeeze out the win.

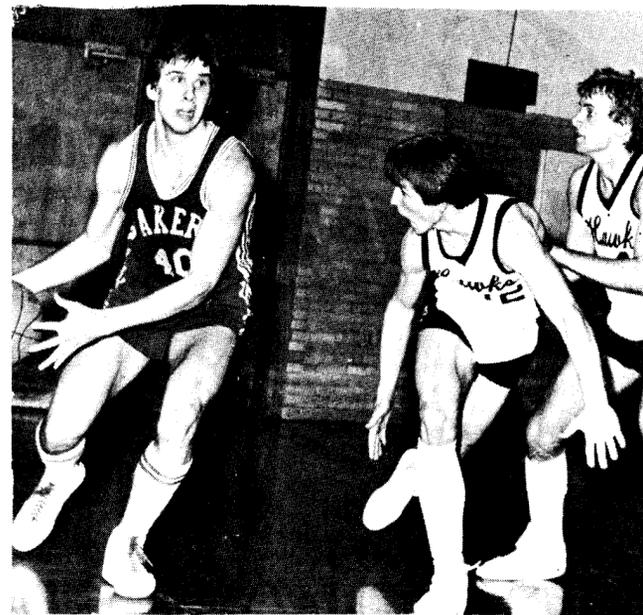

While Pobanz was the only Hawk in double figures, Sandusky had two top scorers, Jim DeLong, 18 points, and Tom Kreger, 17. JV LOSES

It was a good night for the Sandusky JV team, too. The Redskin JV, who lost by a point to Cass City earlier, turned the tables this time around and chalked up a 51-39 decision.

Shetler's clinch title tie with win over second place Colwood

Shetler's clinched a share of the title in the Cass City Recreation League last week and are odds-on favorites to win the undisputed title.

All the undefeated Plumbers need to do now is win one game in the final two remaining.

The key game that shut out the competition was played Monday, Feb. 7, when Shetler's defeated second place Colwood Bar, 58-54.

It will be interesting to see the outcome if the two teams meet again in the play-offs. Shetler's won, 58-54, but it was a donnybrook all the way, the same as the first game between the clubs.

At the end of the first 10 minutes, Shetler's was in front, 14-11. The lead was cut to 25-23 at the half.

Colwood then outscored Shetler's, 13-11, in the third quarter to knot the score. Shetler's 22-18 was enough for the champs to ease home the winner.

In double figures for the winners were Ross Voelker, 22, Paul Beachy, 15, and Tom Mattesen, 10. For the losers Mark Gainforth, 16, and Randy Adlam and Brent Mowry, 10 each, showed the way.

In the nightcap Charmont made an early first half lead stand up to edge McMahan's 67-66. At the end of the first period the Bowlers were in front 15-11 and at the half the margin was 35-26.

McMahan's started a rally in the third quarter and closed to 49-42 after three quarters. McMahan's made a full court press pay off with a 24-18 advantage in the final period but it wasn't enough for the win.

Todd Comment netted 26, Tim Sontag, 17, and Gary Robinson, 12, to pace Charmont.

Leon Kaniszweski was high for McMahan's with 16, followed by Dave Doerr and Curt Copeland, 12 each, and Jim Bruce, 10 points.

In the games last Wednesday, Tuff-Kote moved out of the cellar with its second victory of the season, 91-76. Charmont was the victim.

The Elkton five raced out to a 16-13 lead the first quarter and never trailed. The winners outscored Charmont in every period.

Tuff-Kote led at the half, 36-31, and the end of third quarter, 60-53.

Tuff-Kote used balanced scoring to post the win. Craig Thygeson, 23, Todd Wisenbaugh, 18, Eric Sump, 15, and Todd Dubey, 14, were the leaders.

For Charmont, Comment netted 28 and Sontag, 21. Robinson had 11 points.

In the final game of the week Erla's upset third place Walpole and Holmes, 87-74. The Foodmen used a height advantage to post the win.

The Lawyers started right with a 20-18 first period advantage. Erla's hit the glass to take a 42-38 lead and went ahead 66-56 after three periods. A 21-18 last period advantage added to the winning margin.

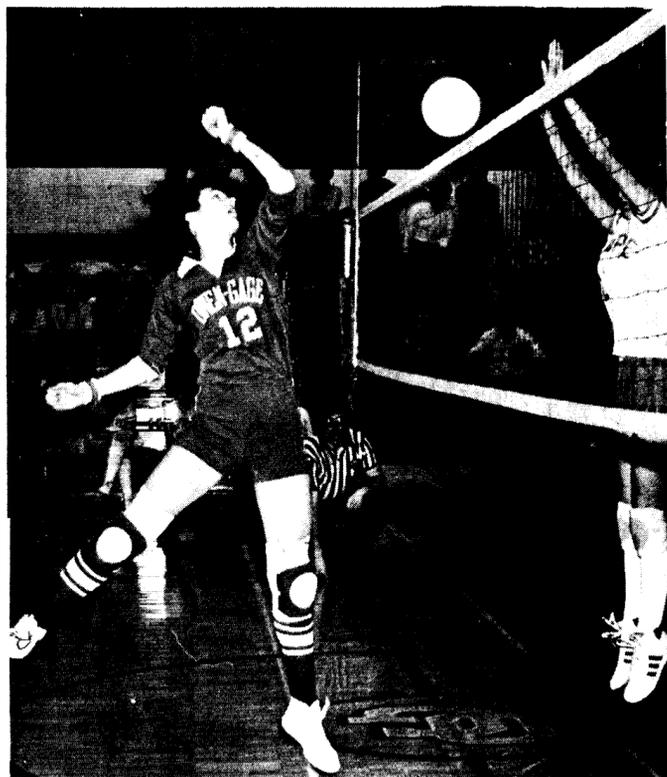

For Erla's Roy Calahan scored an impressive 37 points. Len Nowicki, 13, and Ken Pichla, 12, were in double figures. For the losers, Jeff Hartel, 18, Walt Harrison, 15, and Scott Hartel and Jerry Toner, 12 each, showed the way.

Class set for sisters, brothers

Hills and Dales General Hospital will present its first sibling class Thursday, Feb. 24, from 7-9 p.m. in the basement meeting room.

Purpose of the class is to prepare brothers and sisters for the new family addition, enhancing their ability to cope with the change in their lives as well as to prepare them for the hospital sibling visitation.

The class will include a film about "sharing" with discussion, a tour of the hospital, craft time where the children will make announcements to spread the news about their new brother or sister and refreshments. Children must be at least 3 years of age unless a baby sitter is attending to care for the younger child.

There will be a minimal fee to cover expenses, $3 for one child, $5 for two and $1 for each additional child in the family.

Pre-registration is required. For more information or to register, contact Faith Fahrner, R.N., at Hills and Dales, telephone 872-2121.

Tax change sought in PIK program

The U. S. Treasury Department has announced it will support legislation to allow participants in the Department of Agriculture payment-in-kind program to pay tax on the commodities when sold.

The legislation will avoid adverse tax consequences to farmers who participate in the PIK program.

The commodities received by the farmer will be excluded from gross income and will have a zero basis for income tax purposes. Thus the farmer will realize income only at the time he sells the commodities.

The proposed legislation will treat farmers who receive the commodities for diverting acreage from agriculture use under the PIK program as if they had grown the commodities themselves. It will give farmers the option of deferring taxes until the 1984 tax year.

For purposes of special farm estate tax valuation rules, the proposed plan would treat the farmer as if he had actually produced the commodities on diverted acres.

Congress will be asked to act quickly on the legislation so farmers are aware of the tax status before the sign-up deadline of March 14.

Annual battle of the books begins Monday

Such teams as the Rugged Readers, Challenging Chicks, the Bookies and, for sure, the Valley Girls, will compete in the third annual battle of the Books, which starts Monday at Rawson Memorial Library.

Fifteen teams are entered in the third and fourth grade division and 12 in the fifth and sixth grade division. The total is two less than last year.

First round eliminations are scheduled Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, starting at 3:30 p.m. The championship event between the top two teams in each division will be March 14.

One third-fourth grade and fifth-sixth grade team drew first round byes.

Each team has six members and had to read 25 books, from which questions will be asked. Each team decided whether each member would only read a certain number of books or whether everyone would read all 25.

Each battle will consist of 20 questions. The team asked each question first gets five points for the right answer, plus one point for the name of the author.

If the team is wrong or doesn't know the answer, the other team gets three points if it can answer the question, plus one point for the author.

Members of the four teams that make it to the finals will each receive ribbons.

New this year is that the two championship teams will compete March 31 against the winners of the Mayville library Battle of the Books.

The local competition is sponsored by the Rawson library and the Intermediate School and Campbell, Deford and Evergreen Elementary libraries.

Battles next week are scheduled at 3:30, 4 and 4:30 p.m., plus 7:15 and 7:45 Monday evening only.

Improvements set for phone service

Automatic number identification for long distance calls and a digital switching system for the Cass City exchange are part of a $3.6 million service and expansion program for the Thumb area announced last Thursday by General Telephone Co. Smaller projects were announced for the Kingston exchange. Installation of specialized equipment to provide automatic number identification when private-line customers place long distance calls was started in prior years and is scheduled for completion this year. It means an operator will no longer come on the line to request the telephone number of the customer, except during extremely busy periods. A message accounting system will automatically record billing data of the customer-dialed long-distance calls. Operators will still ask for the phone numbers of party-line users when they make long-distance calls. Work is scheduled to get underway this year, to be completed in 1984, on a digital transmission system for the Cass City exchange. The digital system, or multiplexer units, (MXU), multiplies the number of communication channels on a given line and allow more information or messages to be packed into a given space or time frame in those channels. The MXUs are designed to serve sparsely populated areas of an exchange in conjunction with a remote switching unit. They can also be used with present non-digital electronic switches. The final project for the Cass City area, begun in previous years and scheduled to be finished this year, is installation of local service cable to provide for exchange growth in the suburban area. It will replace 30 miles of open wire. The projects announced for the Kingston exchange, both to be done this year, are installation of local service cable to provide for growth throughout the exchange and replacement of battery and charger of the emergency power unit. General Telephone serves 23 communities and surrounding areas in Huron, Tuscola, Sanilac, Lapeer, St. Clair and Macomb Counties, where the $3.6 million in improvements and expansion will be done this year. That works out to more than $109 per customer, according to Les Moench northeastern division manager, who announced the program. "Feel the dignity of a child. Do not feel superior to him, for you are not." Robert Henri

Taking stock

Lee Hills, who has headed the Knight-Ridder newspaper empire, and I once compared our early days in the newspaper business.

Lee started out in Utah. He ran two papers 20 miles apart and lived half way between.

Besides other talents, Lee could run a Linotype machine - an infernal device that sets type if you operate it correctly. It takes a very smart and dextrous person. Linotype operators are hard to come by. When you get one he is likely as not to be an alcoholic. Lee was not.

For running each of these country weeklies, Lee got $12.50 a week, as I remember. It involved considerable shuttling.

As for myself, at age 20, the Gladwin County Record was turned over to me to run. My salary (in the broad use of the term) was $15 a week - 40 percent less than Lee's total pay, but 20 percent more than he got for each paper. I was not smart enough to run a Linotype, so I hired an operator, a jobless music teacher, for $3 a day.

There were enough other duties, however, to keep me busy:

1. Reporter (I wrote all the news, except personal items sent in by my country correspondents).

2. Editor (there's something to be said for editing your own stories, for everything meets your approval).

3. Circulation manager.

4. Advertising manager. In those Depression days, you made a personal call on a merchant, with an ad layout of a one column x 4-inch ad, for which you got $1, if you were a good collector.

5. Business manager. Economics were simple. You tried to collect enough accounts to meet the payroll and the coal and light bill.

6. Public relations. Chamber of Commerce stuff, service clubs, speeches.

For each of those six jobs, I got $2.50 a week. I was also supplied a room in the attic of the printing office, without plumbing or heat. At latitude 44 degrees north, this eliminated all but the fit.

The product was a 12-page newspaper published weekly and sold to 2,000 homes, which was about 90 percent coverage. The subscription rate I dropped to $1 a year to "get 'em coming."

All these reflections came tumbling back recently when I was reading a copy of FORTUNE magazine.

It's an elegant magazine, but it manages to come out only every other week. On a weekly basis, then, its 120 pages are only 60 every seven days. Since each page is a fourth the size of a newspaper page, that's only 15 newspaper pages.

The type is bigger, too, than newspaper type, so Fortune's 15 (adjusted) weekly pages are about the same as the Gladwin County Record's 12.

The first hour, I got no further than FORTUNE's masthead. I counted 66 names with "editor" as part of their title. There was an editor-in-chief, an editorial director, a managing editor, an associate managing editor, two executive editors, three assistant managing editors, an international editor, a picture editor, 23 on a "board of editors," and 32 associate editors.

As for the Indians, there were 28 reporters and 23 with assorted titles.

Why, there were more titles than Chase Manhattan has vice presidents. Besides the 117 listed above, there were such top dogs as president, chairman of the board, executive vice president, group vice president and vice chairman. I assume each of these had a Bigelow on the floor, a private toilet, and a covered parking space.

These 123 souls work hard, presumably, and give birth each week to the equivalent news content of a 12-page newspaper, which has about 36 columns of news and pictures.

On a five-day week that's 7.2 columns a day or 142 column inches. For Fortune's 123 journalists, it figures to 1.15 column inches a day per man.

If my own output was on that level, it would have taken me two weeks to write this article.

It would have taken me two years to write the news for the Gladwin Record for one weekly issue.

After the first week, when the paper came out with six column inches of news, I would have lost my job. It would have meant sleeping in the street instead of the attic.

Seek to restore PA116 staff

The proposed layoff by the Department of Natural Resources of the staff that administers the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act (Public Act 116) has drawn a quick response from the legislature.

A House appropriations subcommittee voted Monday to restore the funding needed, $90,000, which now must be acted on by the full committee.

"I really think the appropriation will stand, we're hopeful anyway," State Rep. Dick Allen (R-Fairgrove) said after the subcommittee vote. He expected the full committee will vote whether to restore the funds later in the week.

The DNR proposed cutting the $90,000 which would have eliminated the PA116 staff, as part of a $1.2 million budget cut being imposed on the agency for the current fiscal year.

News that the staff might be eliminated, broadcast Monday morning by the Caro radio station and perhaps elsewhere, drew a quick reaction from farmers. "My phone is ringing off the hook," Allen said.

PA116 reimburses farmers for property taxes they pay in excess of 7 percent of their household income, provided they enter into a contract with the state that they will continue to farm their land for at least 10 years.

Twelve thousand farmers are enrolled statewide, Allen said. In Huron County, 250,000 acres are in the program and in Tuscola, 200,000.

"I don't see how you could run a program without staffing," he commented, although that is what the state agency has proposed.

Eliminating the staff isn't practical, he continued, since the state has entered into the agreements with the land owners. "We have contracts to fulfill."

Although the DNR has proposed getting rid of the staff, Allen said he hasn't heard any mention of ending the actual PA116 program, which costs the state millions of dollars each year in reimbursements.

O-G gives option for apartments

The Tri-County Bargaining Association, which represents Owen-Gage teachers in contract bargaining, has filed an unfair labor practice charge against the school board.

It charges the withholding of a portion of Mrs. Folk's salary without her consent or the TCBA's was a violation of the contract between the board and teachers.

OTHER ITEMS

The board approved an option allowing Bavarian Builders of Frankenmuth to buy a 200-by-300 foot parcel, approximately two acres, along Bay City-Forestville Road. The school district will charge $3,000 for the property, on which Bavarian wants to build 14 apartment units.

Bavarian also is requesting "first refusal" rights for another 200-by-300 foot parcel to build more apartments if the first ones go well. It wants the property along Bay City-Forestville, but the school board voted to offer it to the firm behind the first parcel, not alongside it.

Several donations were acknowledged by the board. They were: $650 from the Band Boosters for a lettering machine; $285 from the inactive Parent-Teacher Association and $50 from the Owendale Women's Club for a loudspeaker for the high school cafeteria; and $250 from the Gageton Athletic Club.

Erickson announced the estimates he had received from Deering Electric for installation of 12 ceiling fans in the high school gymnasium and four in the cafeteria to blow warm air downward. The board asked him to get a second bid.

A LITTLE CHRONICLE WANT AD GETS Big Results

Pinned driver drowns

A Millington man drowned Saturday night after he was pinned beneath the bumper of his four-wheel-drive pickup truck, which had gone into a water-filled ditch.

Killed in the freak mishap was Richard Rasch, 29.

He was westbound on Barnes road, about five miles west of Millington, when the accident occurred.

According to detective Ron Phillips of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, the pickup first went off the north side of the road. Rasch was able to drive out, but steered too sharply and the vehicle went into the south side ditch.

The pickup was still in two-wheel-drive and it appears Rasch wanted to lock the front hubs into drive gear so he could attempt to drive out.

Phillips said he first made the adjustment on the left hub, then started walking around the front of the truck to do the same thing to the right hub.

It appears that when he was in front of the truck, it slipped and Rasch was pinned underneath, with the bumper holding his head under water. There was about 1 1/2 feet of water in the ditch.

It wasn't easily noticeable that Rasch was pinned underneath, according to Phillips. Some motorists stopped, didn't see anyone, so assumed the driver had gone to get help.

It wasn't until two sheriff's deputies stopped that one noticed Rasch's feet protruding from beneath the truck.

The accident was discovered about 9 p.m. It is believed the victim had been pinned underneath about a half hour.

Some fish, such as groupers and flatfish, are able to change color to match the background on which they are lying.

Board okays change in zoning despite protests

Garfield objected to the proposed rezoning taking in only a half-block on each side of Seeger. "I'm saying it should take a complete block, not a half block."

He felt the effect might be a depreciation in value of the homes on the half-block not rezoned.

BOB WALTERS OF 4191 Maple Street opposed reducing the allowable floor space, suggesting that it could result in one family with four children squeezed in 650 square feet in the upstairs and another such family downstairs.

When commission member B.A. Calka suggested that apartments that small were geared toward widows, widowers and young couples starting out, Walters responded, "Times are tough," that some families with children might live in apartments that small out of economic necessity.

"There is no control over it once we do it."

Planning Commission Chairman Lee Rabideau suggested a family of six would have as much problem in a 720 square foot apartment as a 650 square foot one. "You can't satisfy everybody 100 percent," he added.

The rationale behind reducing the floor space, he explained, was to allow occupants to save on energy costs.

ANOTHER ISSUE EXPLORED was whether allowing conversion of one-family dwellings into two-family might result in their deterioration or improvement.

When owners can't afford to maintain their home because of increasing costs, Rabideau commented, what usually gets neglected first is the outside. "We (the planning commission) felt if they had that added income (from renting an apartment) they could take care of the outside of the home."

EVEN IF THE VILLAGE council approves the zoning change, there might be some obstacles in the way of home owners converting part of their home into an apartment.

Larry Haas, who lives at the corner of Garfield and Seeger, said, "I'm sort of for it (the rezoning)," but suggested, "Lots of people with large homes can't afford to remodel," so won't add an apartment.

Will those who do, asked Mike Stec of 4184 Maple, end up paying more property taxes? "I think it is fair to conclude it would increase," responded commission member Bill Ewald. "You're going to have to put more money in it."

There are 46 lots, so presumably that many homes, within the area proposed for rezoning. No one who spoke at the hearing was the owner of a home within that area.

ball game on Monday the board granted permission for a practice on the Sunday preceding it.

The athletic department is $500 richer these days due to a donation from a supporter who wished to remain unknown.

Dick Albee was appointed to represent the board at the budget hearing Feb. 24 for the Tuscola Intermediate School District.

Tom Foos, a representative from Canteen, the firm that administers the school's hot lunch program, reported that the program is in the black.

There have been 5,000 fewer meals served this school year over the preceding one which Foos attributed to the economy and to the absenteeism caused by the recent flu outbreak.

Kidney patients sought

way an individual could pay for this themselves."

Another neighbor uses a non-mechanical system of purifying his blood, which involves draining the cleansing solution into his peritoneal cavity, then draining it and the poisons out. He must do it each day, four times a day.

IF TWO PERSONS WITHIN two miles are any indication, there are quite a few persons in the upper Thumb with kidney problems who might benefit from the self-help group Mrs. Mester is trying to form.

She appeared on a half-hour program on Caro radio station WKYO last week to talk about her group.

Mrs. Mester has been at University Hospital numerous times, which has an active program of patients and ex-patients talking to other patients and knows how beneficial it is to talk to "the people who have been there and had it."

She also feels that kidney patients who have a fear of dialysis might be willing to go on it sooner if they had someone to talk to. Many put it off longer than they should and by doing that, "you can do a lot of damage to yourself."

Not postponing it is especially important for persons like Mrs. Mester, who have hopes of having a kidney transplant some day. "You must be extremely healthy to have a transplant... other than your kidneys, of course," she explained.

Since she has no close relatives with healthy kidneys, she must wait for a donated kidney from a deceased person that provides a perfect match. When that happens, she will have to go to University Hospital immediately for the operation.

Until and if that happens, she will have to keep using her dialysis machine. "It's not the 100 percent answer to kidney failure, but it does get you by."
