Population gain pays off in Novesta Township

Novesta Township's gain in population between 1970 and 1980 paid off in 1982, citizens attending the annual meeting Saturday were told. The population increased about 500 during the decade to 1,492. That meant an increase in state shared revenue to the township for the first time last year. More money from that source was received than the township board planned, Treasurer Ralph Zinnecker reported, which was to the benefit of the township's coffers. A slight impact on Novesta's 1983-84 budget was made when electors approved $250 pay increases for Supervisor Bill O'Dell, who will now receive $3,750 annually, and Clerk Nursie

Kloc and Zinnecker, who will now each receive $2,250 annually. The three board of review members next year will receive $40 per day instead of the previous $35. This year, they met three days. Trustees will continue to receive $35 per meeting. The deputy clerk and deputy treasurer will still be paid $167 per year. The proposed new budget, which the 19 citizens in attendance voted to accept, lists estimated revenue at $83,654, which includes $25,000 left over at the end of the 1982-83 fiscal year. The new fiscal year starts Friday. Although the final accounting for the old fiscal year won't be available until the township board's next regular meeting April 4, Zinnecker said after the annual meeting that total revenue to the township in 1982-83 was about $66,000, which was about $22,000 more than it spent, due in a large part to the state shared revenue being more than was originally anticipated. Other estimated revenue for the new fiscal year includes $19,499 from property taxes and $35,000 from state shared revenue.

EXPENSES

The biggest projected expenditure in 1983-84 is $22,000 for road construction. O'Dell reported the estimates he has received for one potential road project this year.

For the one mile of Gilford Road between Englehart and Cemetery Roads, the Road Commission has estimated the cost at $8,750 to clean roadside ditches, fill the holes and place a layer of fine gravel on top. To build up the road so that it eventually could be paved would cost the township $39,000.

O'Dell commented that the township cannot afford to pave any more roads without some day levying a special millage, which would have to be approved by voters.

The board hasn't made a decision yet on what roads it will have work done this year. In addition to the money from the general fund for roads, $8,200 in federal revenue sharing funds, which includes $3,000 left over from the past fiscal year, will be spent for roads.

There is $700 allocated from the general fund for roadside mowing.

Other projected expenses include $6,300 for fire protection (paid to Elkland Township) and $5,557 to Cass City to allow township residents to use the village-owned landfill (located in Novesta). Both are the same as last year.

There is $4,000 budgeted for the Cass City Ambulance Service, but that will only be spent if it buys a new ambulance this year. If it doesn't, the cost should be less than $2,000.

Electors voted in favor of the township continuing to pay the Detroit Edison bill for the street lights in Bedford, budgeted at $1,650 this year.

LIBRARY

The township will pay $666 this year to Rawson Memorial Library, which represents 45 cents per resident. That is the same as last year.

What stirred some debate was the library's request for a subsidy in 1984 of the equivalent of .3 mill, minus penal fines, or $1 per capita, whichever is greater.

The library is asking more, O'Dell explained, because of increased expenses and less penal fines.

It was reported that 312 families from Novesta Township use the library.

Reaction from the audience to the request for more funding ranged from, "For the few who use it, I think it ($666) is enough," to, "I think that ($1 per capita or .3 mill) is a reasonable amount

Opposition certain

End may be sought to park booze ban

Should beer drinking be allowed in the Cass City Recreation Park on special occasions? Those interested in a change want consumption allowed at certain events, not on an every day basis. The General Cable employees' picnic, held elsewhere so beer can be consumed, was mentioned by Strickland as an example.

The person making the request, Chamber of Commerce President Curt Strickland, stressed he was doing so because he was asked (by some Chamber members and some non-Chamber members, he said later). Neither he nor the chamber is endorsing a change in the ordinance.

Village President Lambert Althaver gave a history behind the present ordinance.

It started in June, 1971, when the council approved an ordinance allowing consumption of alcoholic beverages in the park at special events, for which permission had to be obtained in advance. Strickland's question concerned a similar policy. Those interested in a change want consumption allowed at certain events, not on an every day basis. The General Cable employees' picnic, held elsewhere so beer can be consumed, was mentioned by Strickland as an example.

Not mentioned was the possibility of erecting the beer tent for the Fourth of July festival in the park if the ordinance was changed.

As a result of passage of the ordinance in 1971, many citizens, some by signing petitions, asked the council to schedule a public referendum on the question, which was conducted in March, 1972. The public voted 273-83 against allowing alcohol in the park.

The next month, in response to the vote, the council adopted the ordinance that still stands which bars consumption of alcoholic beverages in the park and other public places, such as on the streets.

Although the public voted more than 11 years ago, Althaver commented, "It seems to me the council has to pay some attention to the weight of that vote."

He explained, however, that the vote was only advisory, and the council has the legal authority to change the ordinance without a vote of the people.

As for what it will take to change the ordinance, such as another referendum, or petitions, an answer will be forthcoming in a few days, the village president said, since some legal research will be required.

If an effort is made to change the ordinance so that alcoholic beverages can be consumed in the park, there is sure to be opposition.

It was expressed to the council by Willard Dodson of 6742 Main Street, who described himself as "just the tip of the iceberg."

Most of his comments were in opposition to the beer tent at the Fourth of July festival, especially to putting it in the park.

He mentioned the July 4, 1981, traffic accident in Cass City in which seven persons were injured. A lawsuit filed stemming from the accident claims the drunk driver involved had been drinking at the beer tent.

Dodson said he would rather see Cass City as the "leader of the Thumb rather than the beer barrel of the Thumb."

He said he was "100 percent opposed" to having the beer tent in the park and also opposed having it anywhere else.

"I hope some way you gentlemen will see fit to stop that thing," Dodson told the council. "It's a safety hazard as well as a moral hazard."

Council applies for grant for south end sewer line

The Cass City Village Council Tuesday evening took the first step to attempt to alleviate a pollution problem in the southeast corner of the village.

Its crowded agenda also included establishing public hearings for curb and gutter assessments for streets scheduled for rebuilding this year and acceptance of an offer from the Lions Club to build a pavilion in the park.

The council authorized application for $42,000 in federal funds funneled through the Michigan Small Cities Program, to be matched by the same amount in federal funds. It will be known by May 23 if the application has been accepted.

The $84,000 is needed to install sewer lines and a lift station to pump sewage from Maple, Sherman and M Streets and Maple Court north to the main on Garfield Street.

Eighteen homes would be served, which presently utilize septic tanks. The problem is that the tile fields for the septic tanks are being saturated, so can no longer treat sewage adequately.

The extent of the problem varies, but for various legal reasons, once a septic system no longer functions, it cannot be replaced in that area.

The problem isn't new. Original plans for the new sewage treatment plant included running a sewer main from the area to the plant, but at an estimated cost of $300,000, the idea was dropped as too costly.

The worst situation is at the home of Amor Hewitt on Sherman Street, the council was told. She has to have her septic tank pumped out every two-three months, at a cost of at least $50 each time, because the drainage field can't accept any more sewage.

If the grant is received, the sewer extension will be ready for homes to be connected to it by the final three months of this year.

Once installed, it was said, homes along Elizabeth Street can be connected to the sewer, if their owners annex their property to the village, and empty land in that area can be developed.

ASSESSMENTS

A public hearing will be conducted starting at 7 p.m. at the April 26 meeting on curb and gutter assessments for the following streets scheduled for rebuilding this year:

Rose Street between Seeger and Oak; Huron between Seeger and West, and Leach and West between Church and Huron.

Affected property owners will receive a notice of the hearing and will be able to learn what the cost of installing curb and gutter in front of their house will be. They will have three years to pay the assessment.

PAVILION

The council accepted the offer of the Cass City Lions Club to build a 30-by-90-foot pavilion in the "island" surrounded by the road that runs past the softball diamonds at the east end of the park.

At one end will be an enclosed cement block structure containing restrooms.

Presenting the proposal were Club President Gary Jones and Dr. Robert Green. In accepting the offer, the council had to agree to pay the $1,850 discount price of the plumbing fixtures this year and will have to reimburse the club for the $2,000 cost for the cement block structure.

The rest of the wood pavilion, Green said after the presentation, will cost the club $15,000 for materials, which it is getting at discount prices from various local suppliers.

Once completed, the village will have to maintain the "Cass City Lions Club Pavilion," as it will be named, and pay for insurance and lighting.

Members will do much of the construction themselves. The pavilion will be done by July 4.

OTHER ITEMS

The council approved installation of four additional street lights at the east end of the Main Street business district, four at the west end of the district and one on Huron Street.

Detroit Edison pays the installation costs, but the added electricity used will cost the village $21.80 per month per light or a total of $2,354 annually.

Yeo and Yeo, Certified Public Accountants, which has an office in Marlette, has performed the annual village audit for the past several years.

Singers' debut rousing success

The first performance of the "Tom Thumb Singers" resulted in a rousing vote of appreciation from a capacity crowd Monday night at the Cass City High School Cafeteria.

The 43-member choir under the direction of Andrea Hofmeister presented a varied program of folk music and selections from popular musicals.

Soloists included Art Holmberg, Lena Waltz, Tom Wachterhauser and Fern McCreedy in "Music, Music," Roger Little in "Ol' Man River," with Patty Rayl and Hilda Koch singing descant.

Suzy Scollon presented a piano solo and also was an accompanist with Pam Doby and Carol Kersten.

Two of the highlights of the show followed the intermission. The women in the choir sang "One" from "A Chorus Line" using scarves as props.

The men presented "Sixteen Tons," complete in mining costumes and shovels.

The program was dedicated to Vic Guernsey. A reception followed the concert.

Cass City and O-G computer classes popular with adults

By Mike Eliasohn

The age of the personal computer has meant a return to the classroom for many adults, but this time, it's to learn something more BASIC than their A-B-Cs.

Indicative of the increasing popularity of the electronic marvels was the enrollment in computer classes offered at Owendale-Gagetown and Cass City.

The Cass City Community Education Department planned to offer three evening classes, according to Director David Lovejoy, but a fourth class quickly had to be added.

A total of 64 persons are enrolled in the four eight-week classes, which started Feb. 21. Each class meets two hours one night a week.

That was not enough to fill the demand, however, so another series of classes will start the week of April 25. Over 60 names were on the waiting list, but some are no longer interested, so at last count, there was room for about 10 students not already signed up. The second round of classes will run for seven weeks.

At Owendale-Gagetown High School, Owendale resident and computer enthusiast Wayne Sparks planned to teach one class on Sunday evenings, but so many signed up, he had to add a Monday evening class.

Twenty-seven enrolled, but many have dropped out so there were 14 enrolled at the end. The 10-week classes started Jan. 23 and 24 and ended this week.

Sparks said he may offer another series of classes in the fall, possibly one for beginners and one more advanced for those who took the first one, if there is enough interest.

"ONE OF THE REASONS for starting the class," he explained, "was to help people feel a little more comfortable around the machines."

Sparks, a Methodist minister on leave, got interested in personal computers a couple of years ago when he started reading a magazine devoted to the subject and then took a computer class.

He offers himself as an example that anyone can learn how to use them. "I think I've stressed to the class I'm a lay person when it comes to computers, so if I can learn, you can learn."

The computers used were purchased a year ago by the Owendale-Gagetown Boosters. Four of them were used for Sparks' classes, which were conducted in the high school business classroom.

The Boosters bought six computers, with two of them being used at the elementary school.

THE CLASS ATTRACTED farmers, housewives, government employees and others. It was originally supposed to be only for residents of the Owen-Gage district, but was later opened to others and attracted persons from Pigeon, Bad Axe, Elkton and Ubyly. The one from Ubyly was still attending at the end.

"Most of them felt computers were coming into their lives at various levels," Sparks explained, "and they wanted to know something about them."

The farmers, he continued, "all expect in the future to be utilizing computers in some fashion on their farm."

As for why so many dropped out, he felt the low class fee of only $5 enticed many, who by the third or fourth session started dropping out when the course started getting too detailed. "The course content went beyond their level of interest."

Their diets usually consist of easily prepared foods high in salt and simple carbohydrates. The resultant inadequate consumption of protein, iron, calcium, and certain vitamins aggravate the physiological changes accompanying aging.

Three advance in piano competition for area students

Ten piano students have scored in the honors category in the first American Music Scholarship Association (AMSA) regional evaluation held March 19 at Sts. Peter and Paul School in Ruth.

They were Kristine Abend, Minden City; Melissa Engel, Minden City; Betsy Herp, Uby; Rochelle Puvalewski, Uby; Lisa Ridley, Palms; John Swartzentruber, Uby; Kristi Friedland, Port Hope; Scott Glaza, Uby; Lisa Howard, Deckerville, and Brenda Tyrrell, Uby.

Three students scored high enough to go to the semi-finals competition in Cincinnati, Ohio, in June. They were Karen Stone, Deckerville; Sharon Swartzentruber, Uby, and Michael Fuhrman, Port Hope.

Advancement to the semi-finals gives students a chance to perform in front of some of the great pianists of the United States, with monetary prizes awarded to the winners, according to Janice Moore of Deckerville, organizer of the regional evaluation.

Judge for the competition was Charles Byron Asche, a piano instructor at Interlochen Arts Academy.

The evaluation center at Sts. Peter and Paul is only one of 19 in the United States that are part of the AMSA. The aim of the program, Mrs. Moore explained, is to identify, develop and expose young pianists age 5 and up to the influence of great pianists and to generate greater music appreciation through exposure to talented artists.

Piano students signed up for the competition last fall and then worked on selected works for the evaluation. A total of 14 took part.

Mrs. Moore would like to see more piano students and teachers become involved in the evaluation program. She can be called at 313) 376-3215.

There is a fee involved, she said, which includes the book of music pieces from which the students learn the numbers they play in the evaluation.

The new drunk driving law is now in effect. Lt. Leo T. Sieting, post commander of the Michigan State Police at Bad Axe, predicts that the courts will soon be overloaded with cases.

Speaking to Cass City Rotary Tuesday noon he pointed out that in California new, tougher drunk driving laws have crowded court dockets so that drinking cases are now backlogged up to five years.

But, Sieting says, there is no doubt that tougher enforcement decreases fatal accidents and serious injuries and he presented statistics to prove it.

He said that the new law will catch drinkers who were borderline cases previously. He also presented one statistic that should be valuable and easy to remember. Hold it to a drink an hour and you'll pass all the breath tests, he said. More than that and you could be taking a chance.

Whoops! Somebody goofed. Raymond and Grace Roberts captured a balloon in a tree on their property, 6½ miles north of Cass City on Elkton Road.

The balloon advertised the Blue Drummer Steak House. But it failed to tell where the restaurant is located. A lot of hot air gone to waste.

Kingston OK's superintendent

The Kingston Board of Education Monday evening voted to offer a contract to a new superintendent, to replace retiring Supt. Robert Cameron.

The individual has asked that his name not be released yet, Cameron said, since a few hurdles must be overcome before he accepts the job offer.

A contract has been mailed to the person, presently the superintendent of a larger district in the Flint-Saginaw area, who must accept it.

Provided he does so, the school board of his present district must agree to release him from its contract with him, which has a year to go.

Complicating matters, according to Cameron, is that the individual is now on vacation in Florida.

The candidate's school board meets April 12 or 13, so it won't be known until after that whether he can accept the job at Kingston.

The person tentatively hired was one of three finalists and one of about 50 who applied.

Most of the food given away Tuesday was paid for with donations given to county Emergency Services Coordinator Jim McCann. Donated food can be brought to the church weekdays from 8 a.m.-noon. Persons needing food can come to the church Tuesdays from 9 a.m.-noon. Use the entrance off the parking lot.

Two ticketed after accidents

Two drivers received tickets following area accidents within the past several days.

Cass City police ticketed Debra L. Harris, 26, of 6794 DeLong Road on a charge of improper passing after a 10 a.m. accident Saturday.

Officers reported her vehicle and one driven by William R. Klinkman, 33, of 3711 N. Cemetery Road, were southbound on Cemetery, north of Elmwood Road.

Klinkman told them he had activated his left turn signal and was just starting to turn left when Ms. Harris started to pass him and their vehicles collided.

She told police she didn't see the turn signal. Sheriff's deputies ticketed Leon H. Swartzentruber, 41, of 3221 Munford Road, Uby, on a charge of no proof of registration on person after a 1:55 p.m. accident Tuesday, March 22, southwest of Fairgrove.

They reported his vehicle and one driven by William L. Tallman II, 17, of 1540 N. Vassar Road, Fairgrove, were northbound on N. Vassar, north of Deckerville Road.

Tallman steered left of the centerline in order to make a wide right turn into his driveway. Swartzentruber started to pass on the right and their autos collided.

The Uby man told deputies he thought Tallman was going to turn left or pull up to the mailbox on the left side of the road.

Deputies reported that at 10:15 p.m. Sunday, Brian A.

Kratz, 24, of Caro, was northbound on Hurds Corner Road, north of Deckerville Road, when his car started weaving.

It finally went off the west side of the road into a ditch. Donald W. Mills, 31, of Caro, was southbound on M-53, south of Atwater Road in Huron County, according to Tuscola County deputies, when his car hit a deer. The mishap occurred at 1:30 a.m. Monday.

Community Good Friday service slated

Trinity United Methodist Church on Houghton Street will host the community Good Friday service, starting at 1 p.m.

Rev. A.E. McFarland of the Cass City Church of the Nazarene will be the speaker.

Most stores will be closed from noon-3 that day. There will not be a community Easter sunrise service this Sunday.

There has been such a service in past years and there will probably be one next year, according to Rev. P. Thomas Wachterhauser of the Trinity Church, but for various reasons, plans for one this Sunday fell through.

Most churches are conducting their own special services Easter Sunday.

Amsterdam police have a special branch whose only duty is to cope with motorists who drive into the canals.

"If It Fitz . . . Glop for guests

By Jim Fitzgerald

"Real boys don't throw orange peels on the roof." I said that at the breakfast table while watching my wife peel an orange. It was an ordinary weekday breakfast, so we were eating fruit. If it had been an ordinary Saturday breakfast, we'd have eaten scrambled eggs. If it had been an ordinary Sunday breakfast, we'd have been in a restaurant and I'd have eaten eggs sunny side up with runny yolks, like I can never get at home, and she'd have eaten eggs over easy.

But if it had been an extraordinary breakfast, any day, we would have had guests at home and everyone would have been required to eat eggs, bacon, sausage, cheese, bread, onions and green peppers all glopped together and baked in a glass dish from which two-thirds of the food couldn't be removed until after the guests left and the dish soaked in the sink for three days.

Sociologists haven't yet determined why my wife feels constrained to prepare a casserole from a magazine recipe whenever we have guests for breakfast. The guests are usually relatives who would rather take a cup of coffee and go back to bed. And she knows better than anyone that not once in 28 years of marriage have I even faintly indicated I might like baked glop for breakfast.

But still, whenever there is an extra mouth for breakfast, my wife serves something that must be eaten with a fork but should be eaten with a spoon. Perhaps she wants guests to think we eat that fancy stuff every morning. If so, maybe that's why she gets angry when I ask what in God's name that stuff is and then eat nothing but toast and peanut butter.

That's what I did on a recent morning when, instead of impressing guests with the usual bowl of glop, my wife used a platter of quiche. She said the quiche contained everything I like — eggs, bacon, cheese, mushrooms and crust — and she couldn't understand why I took one bite and gagged. For 28 years I've told her that just because I like both ginger ale and potatoes doesn't mean I want a baked potato floating in my Boston cooler. But she never listens.

She actually said the only reason I snubbed her quiche was I wanted the guests to think I was a real man. Nonsense. I read that book about real men not eating quiche and I flunked everything except quiche. Real men are brave hunters. I think "sportsmen" who hook a fish and then let it go should be arrested for double jeopardy. If I'm a real man, Tarzan wore a tutu.

Which is strange, because I was a real boy. At least, that's what my mother used to say whenever I did something bad and my father wanted to flatten me. "He's a real boy," she'd always say, and I figured she should know because she had four daughters and probably knew how to spot a phony son.

One of the bad things I did was eat oranges in bed and throw the peels out the window onto our porch roof. I did this in the winter, when the winter screens were stored in the basement, so my father didn't see several months' worth of peels on the roof until after the snow melted in the spring.

Which brings us back to that ordinary weekday breakfast when my wife, by peeling an orange, reminded me of what my father retorted so many years ago when my mother defended me against charges of making the porch roof look like a garbage dump. "Real boys don't throw orange peels on the roof," he said.

When I repeated that maxim to my wife, it was only a few days after rejecting her quiche, and she was still peevish. She said if there'd been a hot plate in my bedroom, there would have been egg shells on the roof, too.

And I said my eggs would have been sunny side up with the yolks runny enough to soak two pieces of toast — just like I get in restaurants but can never get at home, especially when there are guests.

Legal threat to O-G dies

The threat of possible legal action by state Superintendent of Public Instruction Phillip E. Runkel against the Owendale-Gagetown School District has apparently evaporated.

Runkel in a letter dated Feb. 28 threatened action against the district because of its supposed failure to submit a budget or a deficit elimination plan for the 1982-83 school year.

Owen-Gage's written response was that the budget had been submitted to the state Department of Education and that it has an appeal before the Michigan Supreme Court claiming it should have received property taxes from the Goslin territory for the years 1978-81. That was before the Supreme Court ruled the area was part of the Cass City district. With those taxes, it wouldn't have a deficit.

Owen-Gage Supt. Ronald Erickson said Runkel told him by phone Monday that the district no longer had a deficit. "It must be Chinese bookkeeping down there," the superintendent commented. "We didn't have any (deficit) to begin with."

Runkel is supposed to be sending a letter to Erickson explaining what transpired in Lansing.

Good spellers like good athletes are born, not made. That thought went fleeting by again last week as I read that Becky Smerdon, a seventh grader, won when she spelled proprietor correctly.

Imagine. A kid like that able to spell a word like that. Non-spellers will never understand it.

As a terrific non-speller I always green up when I read about the winners of spelling bees. Becky took the top award by spelling rationale correctly. You can't make a good speller out of a poor one, but you can make a poor one better.

You become better by learning the basic spelling rules and constant usage. That's the way I turned myself into an average speller from a poor one.

That's average for everyone. Not for persons in the newspaper business. In comparison to my peers I still rate poor.

Contrary to what you may think, a poor speller in the news business is not unusual. Some of the best writers in the business have been notoriously rotten spellers.

It's not the unusual words that stick the everyday lousy speller. I can rattle off faux pas everytime. For years I couldn't remember if until was spelled with one or two l's.

Really good spellers seem to have an innate sense about words. I've seen some of the class spellers in the office spell words correctly when they didn't know the meaning and had never seen them before.

They spell words without effort just like an outstanding basketball player will throw the ball through the hoop without knowing just how he did it.

Nothing to it. Another hazard that the lousy speller must endure is temporary word blackout. I've been ripping along on the typewriter more often than I care to count using a word that I laboriously learned how to spell only to suddenly come up blank, unable to spell that word again.

Poor spelling is a flaw for anyone in the news business, but it's not fatal, just inconvenient.

There's always the dictionary if worst comes to worst.

Sometimes it's impossible for spelling clucks to use the dictionary because they don't know the first two letters of the word in question.

When that happens there's only one solution. Be the boss and surround yourself with Becky Smerdons.

That always works. It's a system that I've used for years and it has never failed.

Pedaling Around

Buckle up!

By Mike Eliasohn

I always wear my seat belt when driving my car or riding in someone else's.

That puts me in a minority. Only about 14 percent of Americans choose to make use of the simple device that can save their lives.

According to the state police, only 11.1 percent of the 704,469 vehicle occupants involved in accidents in 1981 in Michigan were wearing seat belts.

Only 5.4 percent of the persons killed in traffic accidents that year were wearing occupants restraints. 85.8 percent weren't wearing them. It isn't known whether the remaining 8.8 percent were wearing them or not.

The stupidity of not wearing them was illustrated March 22 when a train hit a car near Mayville.

The mother and father, who were not wearing seat belts, were both ejected from the car. He was killed; his wife at last report was still in critical condition.

Their 1 1/2-year-old, who in accordance with state law, was strapped into a child safety seat, was not injured. I recall an accident a few years ago in Tuscola County in which the driver was thrown out and then his vehicle rolled over him. If he had been strapped in, he probably would have walked away. Instead, he was buried.

I'm not expecting this verbiage to change anything. I can't even talk my sister into fastening her seat belt and she has been in a couple of accidents — fortunately, not serious ones. I have mixed emotions about laws requiring persons to wear seat belts. Such a law has been proposed in Michigan and some other states, and some countries already have such laws.

On the one hand, I think if anybody is stupid enough to not wear seat belts, let them.

On the other hand, if more persons wore them, the cost of hospital care, insurance, ambulance service, police, etc., that we all pay in one way or the other could be reduced.

And a 1 1/2-year-old kid would have two parents.

An alternative to requiring persons to wear seat belts would be to have their usage affect insurance rates.

That's the suggestion of Autoweek Editorial Director Richard A. Hinson, who wrote in the March 28 issue:

"... how many do you think would buckle up if their insurance premium was affected significantly? If you pledged to wear a belt and the insurance company would reduce the liability and personal protection portion of your policy by, say, 20 or 25 percent? And if you had an accident and you weren't buckled up, your payoff would be negatively affected?"

"I think we'd get the public to buckle up and to not move a foot if passengers weren't strapped in."

Unfortunately, Hinson didn't suggest how the insurance companies are supposed to know whether those granted a premium reduction because they say they always wear their seat belts actually do so.

Most salaries unchanged at township meetings

Some, but not all officials in four area townships were granted pay raises at annual meetings Saturday afternoon.

Apparently the only item that resulted in much discussion at any of the meetings was the request of the Rawson Memorial Library board for an increased subsidy from Evergreen Township in 1984. (The same request has also been made in Greenleaf, Novesta and Elmwood Townships.)

The primary action at all the annual meetings was presentation of the annual budgets for the new fiscal year that starts Friday.

TUSCOLA COUNTY

ELMWOOD -- The 1983-84 budget lists income of $150,774, including a large carryover from the past fiscal year, and anticipated expenses of $87,425.

The major reason for the large carryover, according to Clerk Joanne Sattelberg, was that the township board budgeted $20,000 from the general fund for roads last year but only spent $2,790 because the county Road Commission didn't get everything done that the board had contracted for. The major project that wasn't done was rebuilding of two miles of Green Road between Cass City and Hoppe Roads.

For this year, the board has budgeted $33,000 for roads, which includes the money unspent for the purpose last year, plus $7,000 in federal revenue sharing funds. Any money not spent for the Green Road project will be used for road maintenance.

Expenditure of $1 per capita for Rawson Memorial Library was approved, which actually won't be until 1984. The library is billing the township 45 cents per resident this year, which is the same as it paid in 1982.

Elmwood will pay $3,397 to Cass City so township residents can use the village-owned landfill.

Salaries remain the same as last year: Supervisor, $1,500 plus $3,500 for assessing; clerk and treasurer, $2,500 each, and trustees, $30 per meeting, plus $150 a year.

The board has been meeting every other month, but from now on, will meet monthly from December through April and then in June, August and October. All meetings start at 7:30 p.m.

The millage for the fire department raised about $10,000, according to Mrs. Sattelberg. About $4,900 remained after the department's annual expenses were paid, so the surplus will go into a fund to eventually pay for a new fire truck.

ELLINGTON -- The township treasurer was the only official to receive a pay increase, to $3,576 annually, which is the same as the clerk receives. It had been $3,261.

Other salaries stay the same: Supervisor, $2,862 plus $2,396 for assessing and trustees, $800 each.

The 1983-84 budget totals $174,746, of which $56,586 is anticipated new revenue and $118,160 is the fund balance remaining from the old fiscal year.

The reason for so much money in the bank, Clerk Clayton Turner explained, is that money has been set aside a year or more for road projects which haven't been done yet by the Road Commission. The major projects the board has funded are on Dodge and Hurds Corner Roads.

A total of $167,925 has been budgeted for roads this year, of which $118,917 is from the general fund, $41,347 remaining from the now expired township road millage and $7,661 in federal revenue sharing.

Other budgeted expenses include $1,219 for libraries (three-fourths of it goes to the library in Caro, the remainder to Rawson Memorial Library) and $2,750 for the cemetery.

Fire protection is funded out of a separate three-quarters of a mill levy and is budgeted at $6,000.

The meeting attracted 14 persons plus board members.

KINGSTON -- The clerk was the only official to receive a pay raise, from $2,733 to $2,880.

Other salaries stay the same: Supervisor, $2,376, plus the same amount for assessing ($4,752 total); treasurer, $2,733, and trustees, $30 per meeting.

The board informed electors that starting with tax bills mailed at the end of this year, it will no longer collect the 1 percent collection fee. There will still be a late fee for taxes paid after Feb. 14, 1984.

At the request of some persons in attendance, the board will check into having roadside brush and grass cut this summer, which wasn't done last year.

A request was made at the 1982 annual meeting for the township to pay more for ditching, which it is now doing.

The 1983-84 budget consists of $58,558 in new revenue and carryover of $35,327 from savings for a total of $93,885.

Most of the discussion concerned roads, for which $45,000 is budgeted from the general fund for that purpose and bridges. Fire protection is budgeted at $5,000 and drains-at-large, $3,500.

Of federal revenue sharing funds of $6,000, $4,500 is budgeted for roads (not included in the $45,000) and $1,500 for repairs to the township hall.

The meeting attracted 11 persons, including board members.

SANILAC COUNTY

EVERGREEN -- Controversy over the requested 1984 library subsidy helped attract 27 persons to the meeting, according to Clerk Otis Dorland, in addition to the five board members.

Budgeted for 1983-84 to the library is 45 cents per township resident, which totals $469, the same as paid last year.

"They want the library," Dorland said of those attending. "They figure a lot of people use it."

The discussion concerned what Rawson Memorial Library has requested in 1984, $1 per capita or the equivalent of .3 mill, minus penal fines, whichever is greater.

The major objection, Dorland explained, was from farmers, who because they pay more taxes than village residents, didn't feel they should have to pay taxes on their crop land to support the library.

He pointed out that the entire township levies only 1 mill for operations and taxpayers rejected a 1-mill levy for roads last year so presumably would have similar feelings concerning .3 mill for the library, if they could vote on it.

The unanswered question was how much the township would actually pay once penal fines were deducted.

Some women attending the meeting volunteered to check into the amount of penal fines collected. They will report to the township board to help it make a decision.

The general fund is estimated at $65,700 for 1983-84, of which $30,000 is budgeted for roads.

About half that is set aside for paving the one mile of Germania Road between Deckerville and Downingtown Roads. The money is being carried over from year-to-year until the Road Commission finally has the paving done.

An additional $4,000 is budgeted for road brining.

Other budget items include drains-at-large, $8,815; fire protection, $5,000, and ambulance service, $2,600.

Projected federal revenue sharing funds will be spent as follows: $3,500 for fire protection (in addition to the $5,000), $250 for the library (part of the $469) and $250 for Cass City recreation program.

Salaries remain the same as last year: Supervisor, $2,500; clerk and treasurer, $1,300 each, and trustees, deputy clerk and deputy treasurer, $40 per meeting attended.

GREENLEAF -- The electors approved a pay increase of $400 for the supervisor, to $2,500 annually; $200 for the clerk, to $1,700 annually; $200 for the treasurer, to $2,000 annually, and for the trustees, from $25 per meeting up to $35.

The 1983-84 budget lists $58,725 in new revenue, including federal revenue sharing, plus carryover of $58,685.

Of the carryover, Clerk Clare Brown pointed out, $12,000-15,000 is owed the county Road Commission once it finishes work on the one mile of Spencer Road between Germania and Bad Axe Roads. The grading, graveling and ditching will be finished this year.

Budgeted for road work this year is $32,000, which includes the above set-aside amount.

Discussed at the meeting was having work done on Bad Axe, Cleland, Cumber and Gilbert Roads, but no decisions have been made yet by the township board.

Other budgeted amounts include $6,575 for fire protection, the same as last year; $1,300 for refuse disposal, up from $1,226; Rawson Memorial Library, $335, and Cass City recreation program, $100. The latter two amounts are also the same as last year.

Brown said the township board will meet with representatives of the library regarding the latter's request for a subsidy in 1984 of $1 per resident or the equivalent of .3 mill, minus penal fines, whichever is higher.

The township received $5,387 in federal revenue sharing during the past fiscal year and the same amount is expected this year. It is all spent on roads.

The meeting was attended by 22 persons, including board members.

HURON COUNTY

BROOKFIELD -- The general fund budget of $30,500 does not include any money for roads.

Whether any money is spent for the purpose, Supervisor Walton Brown said, depends on whether voters approve renewal of three mills for 10 years for the purpose. The special election will be Tuesday, April 19.

The levy, which if approved will raise about $85,000 a year, will replace a 10-year millage for the same amount which last appeared on last December's tax bills.

Although no general fund money will be spent for roads, the $12,000 in federal revenue sharing funds the township is anticipating is designated for that purpose.

Topics discussed at the meeting included roadside brush cutting and not obstructing vision at intersections and possible purchase of a new tanker for the fire department.

Salaries remain the same as last year: Supervisor, $5,000; clerk and treasurer, $2,500 each, and trustees, $30 per meeting.

Fifteen persons plus board members attended.

GRANT -- The 1983-84 budget projects revenue of $37,500, plus cash on-hand of $29,000, but with a lot of bills from the past fiscal year still to be paid, according to Supervisor Betty Powell. Anticipated expenses total $40,000.

There is $9,600 from the general fund, plus $2,182 in federal revenue sharing left over from last year and an anticipated $2,500 from that source this year, all budgeted for roads.

Other expenses include $5,200 for fire protection and $2,000 for drains-at-large.

Salaries were unchanged from last year: Supervisor, $3,640 annually; treasurer, $3,120; clerk, $2,600, and trustees, $25 per meeting. Fifteen persons, including board members, attended the meeting.

LAMOTTE -- The general fund budget totals $75,374, of which $17,000 is budgeted for roads, including repairs, brush cutting and brining, and $12,000 for the township's share for construction of the Germania Road bridge over the Cass River.

Electors approved $100 pay raises for the clerk and treasurer. Each will now receive $2,300 annually. Other salaries remain the same: Supervisor, $1,600 plus $3,150 for assessing; deputy clerk and treasurer, $450 each, and trustees, $475,

Library pay cut at Novesta

... It's very important to families with young children. That's probably the best investment we can make."

A motion was finally made that the township offer $1,000 to the library in 1984, plus penal fines, which was approved by a show of hands, 12-7.

One person expressed fear that if the library board rejects the offer of $1,000, township residents might not be allowed to use the Cass City library.

O'Dell assured her, "It's a matter of bargaining (with the library board). We won't lose (use of) the library. We just don't want to say, 'We go along with this.'"

TAVERN LICENSE

Mrs. Kloc announced that an individual has been given the forms to apply for a license to operate a tavern in Deford. He has not turned the forms in yet.

The Michigan Liquor Control Commission has the ultimate authority to approve such an application, but the township board must give its consent.

A couple of years ago, the board rejected a similar application from another person.

"It has been the general consensus that we do not need or desire a tavern in this township," said Deford resident and business owner Danny Allen. "We do not have adequate law enforcement in our township to enforce such an action." Those present agreed with him because they voted to advise the township board that they do not want a tavern in the township.

The award was presented by Sharon Diuble of the Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association during the Michigan Dairy Awards Luncheon that was part of Farmers' Week and Natural Resources Days, March 21-25, at Michigan State University.

Council applies for grant for south end sewer line

The council decided to solicit bids for the 1983 audit from that firm; Anderson, Nietzke & Co., CPA, two of whose accountants have Cass City addresses, and Ray Armistead Jr., CPA, of Cass City.

Attorney Clinton House presented to the council a proposed ordinance to incorporate the new state drunk driving laws which started this Wednesday into the village ordinances.

It was referred to the public safety committee and will also be reviewed by village police.

Until the council adopts the new ordinance, village police officers will enforce the old state drunk driving law which is incorporated into the present ordinance.

House is negotiating a new contract in behalf of the council with the Fraternal Order of Police, which represents the village's four patrolmen. He met in executive session with the council for a half-hour to discuss the status of negotiations. The old contract expires in late April.

Having failed to sell the house on the Orr property the council bought last year, it will try again. Bids for removal of the house from the property will be opened at the June 28 meeting. The house must be removed by Sept. 1.

In contrast to last time, when bidder was supposed to knock down the basement walls and fill in the hole, village workmen will do the job this time. The home is on

Sentence Daly 2-30 years for criminal sexual contact

Lionel D. Daly, 34, of 3300 Phillips Road, Kingston, was sentenced Friday to 2-30 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for two counts of criminal sexual contact (2nd degree).

A Tuscola County Circuit Court jury found him guilty of the charges Jan. 12, of having had sexual contact with a girl less than 13 years old twice on or about July 14, 1982.

Sentence was pronounced by Huron County Circuit Judge M. Richard Knoblock, Daly having requested he be sentenced by someone other than Tuscola Judge Patrick R. Joslyn, who had dealt with him previously when he (Joslyn) was prosecutor.

Daly received two concurrent 2-30 year sentences. He was credited with 78 days served.

The defendant did appear Monday before Joslyn on a motion for a new trial, which was denied.

In other cases Monday before Joslyn:

Randy M. Bliss, 21, of 7702 W. Deckerville Road, Fairgrove, was placed on three years' probation for attempted felonious assault with a club Feb. 2 on Ralph Bills in Akron.

Bliss, who pleaded guilty to the charge Feb. 22, was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail, with credit given for 55 days served. He was fined $300 and assessed $300 court costs.

Sentencing was delayed one year for Earl A. Sitterlet, 60, of Sand Lake, whom a jury found guilty Feb. 18 of fraud. He was assessed $300 court costs.

A building contractor, Sitterlet, was convicted of having used money paid to him by the Sunset Bay Marina, Unionville, for other than paying subcontractors, materials suppliers and others involved in constructing a building at the marina in July-September, 1980.

Timothy S. Piazza, 22, of Huron Avenue, Vassar, was sentenced to 10 months in the county jail for attempted breaking and entering an occupied dwelling. He was credited with 131 days served and four months of the sentence were suspended.

Piazza was also placed on 24 months probation, fined $300, assessed $300 court costs and is to pay $8 restitution.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Feb. 22, in connection with the theft of $8 from the Teen Haven in Vassar last Oct. 18.

Nick E. Wierowski, 18, of 292 W. Congress Street, Caro, pleaded guilty to larceny in a building, to stealing from the Caro Packing plant Sept. 15.

His plea was accepted and sentencing was scheduled July 11. Bond was continued.

Paul E. Tappert, 36, of 4311 Beech Street, Akron, pleaded guilty to criminal sexual conduct (4th offense), but Joslyn refused to accept his plea.

Tappert will be tried on the charge, of having had sexual contact with a boy under 13 years of age last Aug. 7 in Akron.

Ernest G. Turner, 23, of 750 Whiteland, Bad Axe, was sentenced to one year in the county jail, with credit given for one day served, for attempted larceny in a building.

He pleaded guilty to the charge March 14, in connection with theft of a leather coat Dec. 22 from the Crestwood Bar, Caro.

DISTRICT COURT

Philip Olsowy, 50, of 6339 Third Street, Cass City, was sentenced Monday by Judge Richard F. Kern to 30 days in the county jail for impaired driving. The sentence may instead be spent in a treatment center.

He was also placed on two years' probation, fined $222 and assessed $228 court costs.

Olsowy pleaded no contest to the charge March 1, for which he was arrested Jan. 7 in Cass City.

Rites for 3 fire victims held Friday

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon for the three children who died in a mobile home fire in Cass City Tuesday, March 29.

They were the children of Randall and Cindy Hallock. Michael Paul, 4, was born April 3, 1978, in Port Huron. Shannon Marie, 2, was born April 30, 1980, in Bad Axe. Jeremy Allen was born Dec. 3 of last year in Bad Axe.

The family had moved to the mobile home on Leach Street from Bad Axe in February of this year.

The children are survived by their parents; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hallock Jr., Owen Dale; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Tebedo, Bay City; paternal great-grandmother, Pearl Hallock, Sebawaing; maternal great-grandfather, Harold Katt, Bay City, and 14 aunts and uncles.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. John R. Wood of the First Baptist Church, Cass City, at Little's Funeral Home.

Burial was in the Grant Township Cemetery near Gageton.

CONTRARY TO WHAT was reported in last week's Chronicle, that two of the children playing with something flammable may have started the fire, the cause has been attributed to the furnace.

Detective Larry Walker of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, who probed the ruins with Jim Fahey of the Michigan State Police fire marshal's office, said the cause was traced to the natural gas fired furnace, though it isn't known specifically what went wrong. Much of the furnace had melted.

The fire traveled through the heating ducts, which may have led Mrs. Hallock to first believe the fire started in the living room, according to Walker, since she had to go past the furnace to get there.

Southeastern Michigan Gas Co. hired two fire investigators, who were at the scene Thursday. They tore apart the heating ducts and found burning patterns inside that might be attributable to flammable liquids inside the ducts.

Walker said Monday the investigators had informed him of their findings, but he didn't feel that changed the determination that the fire started with the furnace.

To make sure, he planned to return to the mobile home to examine what the gas company investigators had found.

SOME OTHER INFORMATION in last week's Chronicle later was found to be incorrect.

Randall Hallock told the Chronicle Thursday that his wife got to the kitchen where the two older children were, but was unable to get the kitchen door open. They had had trouble the previous day getting it open because of the snow and cold.

She then ran back to the other end of the trailer, past the furnace, to get her husband, but the fire spread so quickly, they were unable to go back past the furnace, which cut them off from the two children in the kitchen and their baby in his crib.

Hallock kicked the rear door open and he and his wife got out. He used a shovel to break a window close to the two older children, couldn't reach them because of the intense smoke and then didn't hear them anymore.

The smoke prevented Mrs. Hallock from trying to get back in to rescue her baby son.

HALLOCK THEN RAN to a neighbor's house. The neighbor, Alvin Hutchinson, was able to get inside through a third door.

Armed with a fire extinguisher, he started down the hallway and sprayed the furnace area. He called to the children, but they didn't respond and then the extinguisher ran out, so he got out.

Autopsies were performed on the three children at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw. The results, Walker said, showed they died of smoke inhalation.

Charge 3 for Zorn break-in Three men have been charged with breaking and entering in connection with an early Friday morning break-in at Zorn's IGA store on State Street in Kingston.

Being held on the charges in the county jail in lieu of bond as of Tuesday afternoon were Verne D. Wilcox, also known as Verne D. Nutt, 20, of 6300 Centerline Road, Kingston; Russell L. Spohn, 19, of 6100 1/2 Cooper Road, Marlette; and Geoffrey A. Moriarty, 19, of 6256 Church Street, Marlette.

Entry was gained to the store by throwing a cement block through the front door window, according to Kingston police officer Robert Lane.

The same method was used to gain entry to the store in the early morning hours of Feb. 21. No one has been charged yet in that break-in, in which a large number of lottery tickets, whiskey and possibly cigarettes were taken. It remains under investigation.

Nothing was taken in Friday's break-in, reported to the sheriff's department at 2:53 a.m. by a passing motorist, probably a truck driver, on his citizens band radio. He had spotted the broken front door glass. Lane quickly arrived, but the intruders had fled. Some bottles were stacked by the door inside, he said, but the burglars apparently got scared and ran.

Moments later, according to the officer, he saw two men get into a car and he followed it.

In his haste to get away, the driver lost control on a patch of ice on River Street and the car slid off the road into a yard, where it got stuck.

Lane took the driver into custody on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor.

The two passengers were released, but were later questioned by Detective Larry Walker of the sheriff's department and were then charged with the break-in, along with the driver, who indicated his involvement when first questioned at the jail, Lane said.

All three appeared in district court Monday.

Moriarty waived examination and was bound over to circuit court, where he will be arraigned April 11. Bond was set at $25,000 surety.

A pre-preliminary examination for Spohn was scheduled in district court Friday, with preliminary examination April 5. Bond was set at $15,000 surety.

Wilcox's pre-preliminary examination in district court was scheduled April 4, with preliminary examination April 15. Bond was set at $10,000 surety.

Prize winners revealed

Keith McConkey this week announced the winners in the drawings held in conjunction with the grand opening of his remodeled jewelry store.

They were: Pat Childs, Joyce Vargo, Fay Bullock, Genevieve Freiburger, Rachel Lamoureux and Connie Schwaderer.

Lawsuit filed in fatal crash

A fourth lawsuit has been filed in Tuscola County Circuit Court in connection with a March 22, 1981, traffic accident that claimed the life of Laurel C. Miller, then 36, of Unionville.

Plaintiffs in the newest suit are Florence McCollum, as guardian of two of Mrs. Miller's children, Scott and David, both minors, and Pamela S. Miller, 18, the victim's third child.

Defendants are Glenn McCollum, personal representative of Mrs. Miller's estate, and Edwin Yonke, doing business as Ed's Bar, address not given.

The suit, filed March 21, claims that Mrs. Miller owed a duty to the plaintiffs to drive her vehicle "in a careful, prudent and lawful manner" and that she was intoxicated at the time of the fatal accident.

Under count I, it seeks damages of more than $10,000, together with costs, interest and attorney fees, from the estate. The suit says that it "seeks to recover all damages available under the Michigan Dram Shop Act."

In count II, it claims that Mrs. Miller was sold alcoholic beverages in Ed's Bar the day of the accident "while she was in a visibly intoxicated state," which was a "proximate" cause of the accident.

Damages sought are the same as those in count I.

The fatal accident took place on Bay City-Forestville Road, east of Unionville, when Mrs. Miller started to pass a pickup truck driven by Richard K. Duke of Akron and the vehicles collided.

A circuit court jury Jan. 5 found Duke innocent of a charge of negligent homicide in connection with the accident.

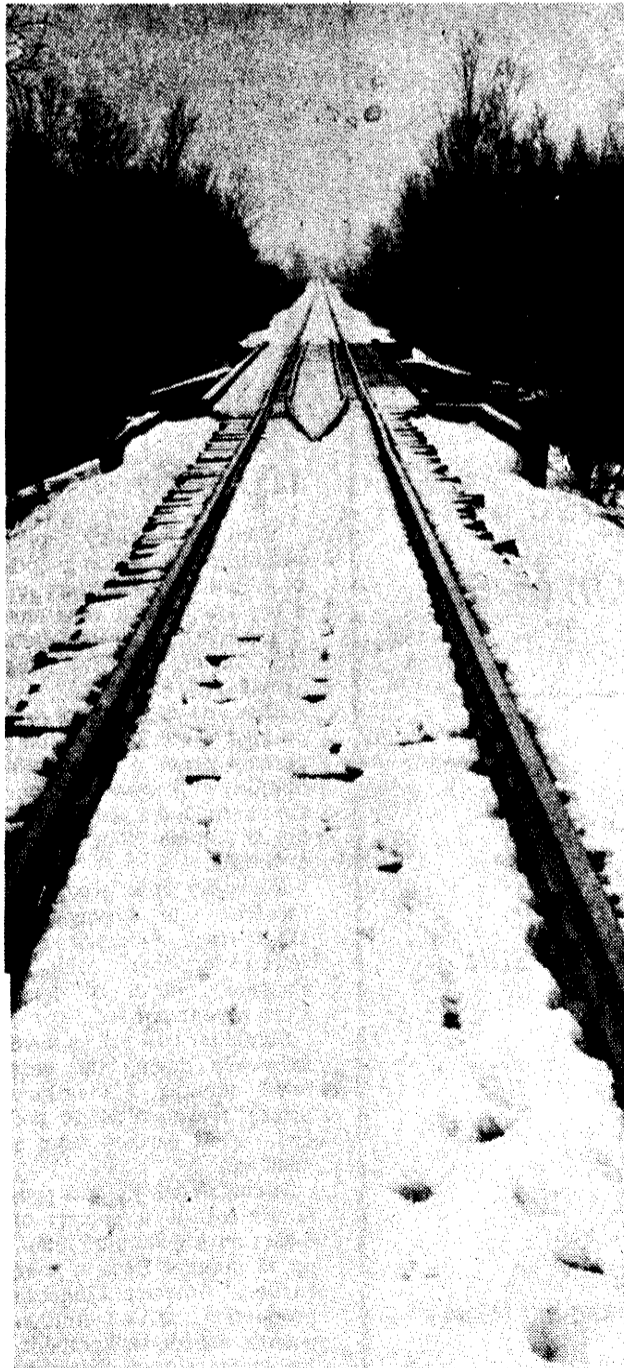

Feb. 8, a suit was filed in circuit court in behalf of Mrs. McCollum as guardian for the three Miller children with Duke as the defendant. (Pamela turned 18 after Ms. McCollum was named guardian.)

Damages sought in the suit are the same as the two counts in the newest suit.

In September, 1981, two suits were filed in circuit court by Barbara Jean Myers as guardian for her two children, Leisha Ann and Robert, who were passengers in the Miller auto at the time of the fatal crash.

The suits claim both children were injured in the accident. Duke is defendant in one of the suits and Glenn McCollum as representative of the Miller estate is defendant in the other.

The suits seek damages in excess of $10,000 from each defendant.

SOME WINTERS seem like they will never end. That wasn't true of the winter of 1982-83, but now that it has officially ended, when will spring weather come? These are the railroad tracks crossing the Cass River west of Cemetery Road. Photo was taken after a few inches of snow fell Sunday morning.

A SENSE OF WARNING by Barry Neil Kaufman (non-fiction). A memoir of the events which led Kaufman under the tutelage of the mysterious founder of the "Option Process" to reject logic and accept precognition, intuition, openness, love, and trust. At the outset Kaufman is a worldly success married to a "sensitive, caring" woman; but he feels empty, hollow. Then one day in Central Park he meets a short, fat stranger, with one blue and one brown eye, who says: "There are many ways to plant a flower" and "On a river, we either paddle with the current or against it." Entranced, Kaufman begins to study under "Luke," who quickly cures his migraines. Psyched up, he puts pressure on his wife to join Luke's psychic awareness class, too. This features intense discipleship, Zennish cracker mottoes, much hugging and kissing.

THE VEGAS LEGACY by Ovid Demaris (fiction). It is the first time in its history that the Republican Party has chosen Las Vegas for its Presidential convention and the city has been invaded by delegates, out-of-town prostitutes and in-town gamblers. The site of the convention was chosen not by President Truman Abbott, the Republican incumbent, but by Rufus Boutwell, the wealthiest and most powerful man in Nevada - who climbed to his power from the wild days of gold and silver mining in the state. Rufus wants a lot more than a convention in his state. He is out to pick the next vice-presidential nominee and is determined that, no matter what he has to do, that man will be Senator Randolph Godwin, Rufus's grandson. Because his plans for Randolph do not stop there, the president himself is against Godwin for the office. Randolph's own father knows how many and vicious are his son's weaknesses and Randolph's twin daughters are in conflict from the moment the campaign starts. To Randolph, Rufus is good, whatever he decrees, and he will play Rufus's game, whatever it implies.

Computer classes

The reasons why students are taking the class are varied. Geneva Richards of Cass City took it "because I hope some time, maybe I will start my own computer business."

She previously took a word processing class, which is computer related, at the Tuscola Area Skill Center, and has experience as a secretary. She is thinking of possibly some day providing computer services for business.

MRS. RICHARDS WAS taking turns working on the computer with June Kretzschmer of Bay Port. She and her husband Vernon own the Kretzschmer Home Center in Pigeon and also farm.

She wanted to learn how to use a computer so she can use one in her business and on the farm and also took the class so she will have sufficient knowledge when she goes to buy a computer, rather than depend entirely on the advice of a salesman who has a vested interest in what he sells.

Mrs. Kretzschmer is a resident of the Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port School District, which has computers in its schools, but no computer classes for adults.

Jeff Rutkoski of Cass City is a part-time farmer. "I just wanted to get a basic understanding (of computers) . . . and eventually see where it would work in on the farm," he responded when asked why he took the class.

Rutkoski found he had a handicap. He took a one-semester typing class in the eighth grade and hadn't had much use for typing since. Since the computers use a regular typewriter keyboard, not being able to type well "slows you down," he said.

THE CASS CITY COMPUTER classes are being coordinated by high school chemistry-physical teacher Doug Grezeszak. Two students in his independent computer studies class at the high school, Kevin Downing and Scott Geiger, are at the evening classes to give assistance to the adult students.

Downing, who was at the Thursday class, said it is his observation that younger kids pick up use of computers faster than adults because of their experience with computer games and other electronic gadgets.

The eight computers used, all kept in one room at the intermediate school, were purchased early this year with federal funds.

During the daytime, Principal Robert Stickle said, sixth graders are being taught "computer literacy," in preparation for next year, when the computers will be used in regular learning situations.

In addition to the classes for sixth graders, the computers are made available one day a week after school for all students who want to learn how to use them.

COMPUTER CLASS - Geneva Richards checks the workbook before proceeding with the next step in the Cass City Community Education class. The computer asks, shown on the screen, "How are you doing, baby?"

Kelley reverses opinion

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, in reversing an opinion issued last year, has ruled financial institutions may charge borrowers a premium for credit life insurance on auto loans even if they are already charging the highest legal interest rate on the loans.

Kelley said the most favored lender doctrine requires banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions to be given the same loan rights as are motor finance arms of the car companies.

Auto loan companies are not required to include credit insurance charges when computing loan interest rates.

The opinion directly adressed only car sales, but Kelley noted a federal district court in Missouri ruled the most favored lender doctrine encompasses credit transactions involving sellers of all retail goods.

He also noted a state court ruled lenders covered by the Retail Installment Sales Act and the Home Improvement Finance Act, as well as the car loan law, are not subject to the insurance code's limitations on computing credit insurance fees.

The insurance code was intended to prohibit a lender from using credit insurance as a means to circumvent the usury limitations applicable to particular loans.

Kelley's opinion reverse-

ed an earlier one (January, 1982) in which he said financial institutions could not collect credit insurance premiums if the premiums and the interest on a loan exceeded the maximum amount of interest which could be lawfully charged.

Several credit insurance companies filed suit in an effort to overturn that ruling.

In June, 1982, the Ingham County Circuit Court ruled similarly to the attorney general's opinion. But in addition, the court ruled that the insurance code prohibition to receiving premiums in excess of the maximum loan interest did not apply to retail sellers of motor vehicles who fall under the finance act.

No easy way to control bugs

They come with names like Pest-Guard, Schram TM, Pest-Prufe TM, Sonic-Scat TM and Pest-Elim 1500.

They promise to rid your home of mice, roaches, crickets, water bugs, fleas, rats, carpenter ants, silverfish, lice, locusts and many other pests.

The ads for these miraculous devices offer a quick and painless solution to pest control: "Just plug in the unit, set it and forget it. No more sprays, powders and traps required," one ad says.

"They" are ultrasonic pest control devices, and they're quite a deal -- for the manufacturer, not the buyer.

"These devices do not eliminate, repel or control insect pests," says Gary Dunn, entomology specialist at Michigan State University.

Most ultrasonic devices produce sound waves that cannot be heard by the human ear. Animals such as dogs, bats, rats, locusts and some moths, however, can hear them. Some devices operate at lower frequencies that people can hear. The sound is supposed to "eliminate" pests.

"THEY HAVE FOUND some success in controlling rodents," Dunn says, "but not insects. And I'd be very cautious about using them to get rid of mice, rats or bats."

The successes using ultrasound to control rodents have come from using ultrasonic devices as part of a management system.

Such rodent management systems included continual sanitation procedures, regular monitoring and adjustment of ultrasound devices, reducing harborage for mice, good building construction, and traps and baits.

"Which makes me wonder if it was the devices or the attention to keeping an area clean and baited that led to successful control," Dunn says.

These studies also discovered that ultrasound did not repel mice and rats from food sources. If food was available, the rodents would go into an ultrasound-protected area to get it.

IN RECENT YEARS, ultrasonic equipment salespeople have rebutted research on ultrasonic devices, charging that:

"Research was conducted in a laboratory setting, so the results are not valid."

"The truth is that some research was done in the lab and some in 'typical' environments," Dunn points out.

"Research was conducted on laboratory animals, which are biologically different from 'wild pests.'"

"Though some strains of laboratory animals are different, most of the research was conducted on 'wild' pests," Dunn says.

"State and federal researchers are 'in the pay' of the chemical companies."

"That's just ridiculous," Dunn says.

ULTRASOUND WAVES travel in straighter lines than sonic sound waves. They do not "bend" as well as sonic waves, so obstacles tend to throw sound "shadows." Therefore, ultrasonic devices are more effective indoors where they can reflect off walls, the ceiling and the floor. Outdoors, the ultrasound is absorbed by trees, grass and other nat-

Ducks Unlimited forming in county

The Tuscola County chapter of Ducks Unlimited is being organized.

Ducks Unlimited is a non-profit, national conservation organization which maintains and improves breeding habitat for North American waterfowl. The intent is to perpetuate and increase duck and goose populations.

The primary nesting area for waterfowl in North America is in Canada, so the bulk of DU's efforts are directed there.

Money is also spent to protect wintering grounds in Mexico.

Eighty cents of each dollar goes to improve habitat.

To get the organization started in Tuscola County, the organizing committee has announced a kick-off fund-raising banquet which will become an annual event. It will be held at the Caro Knights of Columbus hall on Ryan Road Wednesday, April 27, beginning at 6 p.m. The main feature of the evening will be an auction.

Tickets are available at Cass City Sports and from Roger Allen, 5443 Green Road, Gagetown, who can be called at 665-2635 for more

U.S. needs to be strong militarily

In a nationally televised speech last Wednesday, President Reagan supported higher defense spending, called arms reduction only a partial step toward removing the threat of war and announced a long-term effort to develop weapons capable of destroying attacking nuclear weapons.

Debra Eschtruth watched the President's speech. "A lot of the things he said made sense," she commented, "because I know even if you don't go into war... you have to be strong to prevent someone from taking advantage of you because I've seen over and over if someone can take advantage of you, they're going to do it."

The President is opposed to a nuclear arms freeze at this time because he feels we are behind the Russians.

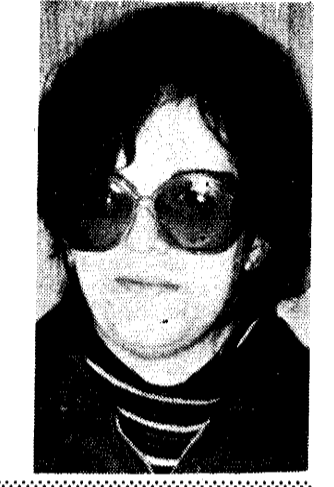

mation to say how much we've got and they've got." "I believe in preventative medicine," she added.

Mrs. Eschtruth doesn't feel the United States should reduce the amount it spends for defense, although she isn't sure we need to spend as much as President Reagan is advocating.

A substitute teacher, mainly in the Kingston schools this year, Mrs. Eschtruth and her husband, John, have three children, Anthony, 4, Michael, 3, and Timothy, 10 months. The family lives at 6734 Houghton Street.

Does Mrs. Eschtruth feel the Soviet Union's weapons are ahead of ours? "In some areas we're ahead and some we're behind," she responded.

She doesn't feel now is the time to halt improvement of our weapons systems since, "I don't have enough infor-

HEALTH TIPS
A toll-free number for cancer information

The Michigan Cancer Information Service has a new, easy-to-remember toll-free number: 1-800-4-CANCER.

The statewide service of the Comprehensive Cancer Center of Metropolitan Detroit (CCCMD) shares the number with 20 other Cancer Information Service offices across the country, allowing callers to pass it on to out-of-state friends and relatives who will automatically be connected to the Cancer Information Service office serving their area.

"We hope this new number will lead to more calls, allowing lay public and health professionals, who have a concern about cancer, to be served," said Dr. Michael Brennan, director of the CCCMD. "Cancer is a disease which affects two of every three families. People need accurate, useful and up-to-date information."

The Michigan office was established in 1982 and is housed at the Michigan Cancer Foundation. The goal is to enable people to have immediate access to the latest information on the subject of cancer. Since that time, almost 7,000 calls have been handled at the office by experienced, knowledgeable personnel who are equipped to answer a variety of questions pertaining to cancer.

The Cancer Information Service serves as a central source for referral to community services, and as a contact point for the latest information about cancer research.

In addition to providing assistance over the telephone, the Cancer Information Service office frequently mails free printed materials on a variety of cancer topics, such as specific types of cancer and treatments, or advice on how to talk with cancer patients.

The local office belongs to a nation-wide network of offices based at major cancer centers and funded

Bicycle stolen from visitor

Jeff Ware's visit to Cass City last week wasn't entirely pleasant.

The ex-village resident, now living in Shelbyville, Ind., with his parents, reported to Cass City police Saturday night that his bicycle had been stolen.

He had left it in the front yard of a home at 6721 Garfield Street while he was visiting inside from 8-9 that evening.

The red Powerlite motocross bike had red 20-inch tires and was valued at $150. A photo of Ware, 16, on the bike appeared on the front page of last week's Chronicle.

Vickie Guernsey of 4593 N.

Seeger Street told village officers last Thursday afternoon that the battery was stolen from her car while it was parked in her garage since 7 p.m. the day before. It was worth $60.

Richard Emmons of 5873 Bay City-Forestville Road, Gagetown, reported to Caro state police Sunday that a tool box was stolen from a cabinet in his garage some time since Monday, March 21.

The box was red and gray and contained open end wrenches, sockets and half-inch and three-eighth inch drives. The box and tools were worth $175.

Taking stock

Stan Goodman, friend, fellow columnist and a notable word merchant, takes some swipes at investment writers.

The jibes are well-deserved, and they've helped me be wary of using such jargon.

Stan picks out such gems from an investment letter of a major broker: "Option traders should increase to 100 percent puts on any short-term upside bounce."

Investors should hold that ration with the intent of raising the equity portion on any significant decline from current levels.

Picking such talk apart neatly, he took the comic aspects of short-term upside bounces and left for me such prosaic questions as, "How do you know when any 'bounce' is short-term? What's the definition of a 'significant' decline?"

Note how the fellow writing the broker advice protects himself. If you picked the wrong kind of bounce it was your fault. If you jumped in too quick and bought stocks, then you didn't wait long enough for the significant decline.

Some firms with an excellent research reputation grade their "buy" recommendation as Buy 1 and Buy 2. Why would anyone consider a Buy 2 stock when there are Buy 1's on the list? And what, pray tell, kind of advice is that which classifies a stance as "neutral"? Either you like a stock or you don't.

And we might nit-pick, too, on a recommendation to only "hold" a stock. I'd argue you either ought to buy more or sell it, instead of trying to weasel.

Incidentally, how often does your broker ever call you up and tell you to sell anything?

The late George "Doc" Dillman, who ran the Harriman Ripley office in Detroit for over 30 years, explained the reason. "Look, Bill," he told me. "When I start calling my list of customers I've got to have some reason. Say today I figure Travelers Insurance is a good buy. That means everybody on my list is a prospect. I go right down the sheet, touting it to one and all.

Get Quick Results With The Chronicle's Classified Ads

"But suppose Travelers has gotten so high I think it ought to be sold. Then I call only the people who own it. Maybe four people on my whole list have got it. I just don't have the prospects."

There's another angle that occurs to me. Suppose Travelers is in the pits, and the price has been going down, down, down. It's time to dump it and cut your losses. Who wants to call a customer and tell him to get out of a stock that six months ago you had been urging him to buy? Brokers are human, too.

Along the line of writing on the markets, it continues to bug me when such great papers as the Wall Street Journal seek to explain market ups and downs, the day after.

For example, on February 24 the Dow averages went up 13.79 points. Two days before it had dropped almost exactly as much.

Said the Wall Street Journal, "The upsurge was helped by falling interest rates."

Well, interest rates had been falling over the past week. Why the 13-point drop two days before?

Last June, the Dow averages topped 1,000 several times. The prime rate was around 20 percent. After eight months of lower interest rates "helping" stocks, we find the prime at 16 percent and the market at 826.

Three more years of such splendid assistance and the market will be at zero.

Point is, the pundits have no more idea of what makes the market move than does this simple country boy.

Early in my career, some wise teacher explained that for such explanations to be worth anything, they have to be made in advance.

In other words, if you really think falling interest rates will push up stocks, then you promise the next time interest rates go down stocks will go up. Anyone want to go on record and say that?

If you have said that some recent fall in the market was because of "growing Mid-east tensions," then you should also say that next time there's a flare-up stocks will go down. Will you make such a promise?

Or will you, like all the other big league writers, wait until after the latest flare-up in the Arab countries, note that the market went up instead of down this time, and write:

"Investors ignored the growing Mid-east tensions as the market went up 12 points yesterday."

Electors vote to eliminate 1% tax collection fee in Elkland Township

Electors attending the Elkland Township annual meeting Saturday voted to end the township's 1 percent collection fee on property taxes starting with tax bills mailed at the end of this year.

The meeting attracted only four of the five township board members and five members of the public.

The ending of collection fees will have a significant effect on township revenues, but not for a year.

The budget presented Saturday includes $14,000 in revenue from the fees that have been collected since last December, thus the loss of collection fees won't be felt until the 1984-85 fiscal year, Supervisor Jack Gallagher explained.

During the now-ended fiscal year, the township received $120,696 in general fund revenues, of which $58,176 came from property taxes, $14,092 in collection fees and $24,250 in state shared revenues. There was $8,686 left over at the end.

Revenue in 1983-84 is projected to increase to $125,602, with the only significant categorical increase being in state shared revenues, to an estimated $30,000.

Elkland spent $98,716 in 1982-83. The new general fund budget projects spending $125,602.

SIGNIFICANT INCREASES in spending are projected in only three categories, ambulance, roads and transfer to the cemetery fund.

During the past fiscal year, Gallagher explained, the township didn't have to spend anything for ambulance service because the ambulance was paid for and there was a carryover of funds from the four townships supporting it from the previous fiscal year. Fees collected from patients and insurance companies covered the rest of the costs.

By the end of this year, however, the Cass City Ambulance Service plans to buy a new ambulance and for that reason, Elkland has budgeted $7,000 for ambulance service in 1983-84.

THE TOWNSHIP SPENT a total of $42,062 for roads during the past fiscal year, most of it for road construction.

This year, the township board plans to spend $54,333 for roads. Tentatively, it plans to spend less on construction and more on maintenance, but it hasn't made any decisions yet on what roads and what kind of work it plans to have done.

Clerk Norma Wallace said the board plans to inspect township roads soon so that it can make a decision. The other major increase in expenses is a transfer of $11,393 to the cemetery fund this year, compared to $5,000 during the past fiscal year.

The increase is needed to offset a reduction in some other sources of cemetery revenue, mainly an expected decline in grave opening fees, and small increases in expenditures.

The sexton receives a pay hike from $13,770 last year to $14,100, and outside labor, which cost $3,086, is expected to cost $3,500 this year.

Salaries of elected township officials are unchanged from last year; Supervisor, $2,000 annually plus $4,500 for assessing; clerk and treasurer, $5,000 each, and the two trustees, $720 each.

Expenditures totaled $45,153 in 1982-83. They are projected at $38,625 in the new fiscal year. The reason for the decline is that the township had to pay for the water tank last year which was mounted on the chassis paid for the previous year. No major equipment purchases are anticipated this year. The part-time fire chief's salary is unchanged at $5,500 annually.

The township is anticipating federal revenue sharing funds in 1983-84 of $12,260, plus $2,068 left over from last year.

Of the total, $6,000 will go to Rawson Memorial Library, $5,000 to Cass City so township residents can use the village-owned landfill without additional charge, and $3,328 will be used for roads.

STONE SCHOOL — The year was probably 1901 when students at Stone School had their photo taken. Owner of the photo is Harriet (Hattie) Sackett of Caro, 87, who if she remembers the year right, would have been six years old when she was among those photographed. Her last name was Seeger then. Stone School, which had grades 1-8, was two miles north of what is now the M-81 - M-53 intersection, then a quarter mile east on Seeger Road.

Owners can cut taxes

Taxpayers who take certain steps to save energy in their homes can cut their tax bills up to $4,300, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

The law provides for a tax credit of up to $300 for energy saving items installed in the home, with a separate credit of as much as $4,000 for taxpayers who install renewable energy source items, such as solar or wind equipment.

The credit for energy saving items is figured at 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on such items as storm or thermal windows and doors, insulation, weatherstripping and caulking.

Also qualifying are expenditures for fuel efficient furnace replacement burners, flue-opening modifications, electrical or mechanical ignition systems to replace gas pilot lights, and clock thermostats.

Only items installed in homes that were substantially completed before April 20, 1977 are eligible for this energy credit.

The "renewable" energy source credit is 40 percent of the first $10,000 invested in qualifying solar, wind or geothermal equipment used to heat, cool, or provide hot water or electricity for use in the home, according to the IRS.

Both credits are available for items installed on a taxpayer's principal residence after April 19, 1977, and before Jan. 1, 1986.

The renewable energy credit is available for both existing and newly constructed homes. Renters as well as homeowners are eligible for the credit.

Taxpayers need not itemize deductions to claim the residential energy tax credit. They do, however, have to file Form 1040, attaching Form 5695, showing how the credit was computed. Form 5695, "Residential Energy Credit," is available by using the mail-order form in the tax package.

No credit is allowed on any return for any taxable year if the credit is less than $10. Any unused energy credits may be carried over to the extent the credit is more than the taxpayer's tax. The period for carrying over of unused credits extends through 1987.

For additional information on energy credits, taxpayers can order the free IRS Publication 903, "Energy Credits for Individuals," by using the order form in the tax package.

Thumb Electric expenses up 2.4% in '82, 625 members told

An estimated 625 persons attended the 46th annual meeting of Thumb Electric Cooperative (TEC) members Friday at Ubyly High School.

Reelected to the board of directors were Michael Lasceski, Huron County; Leon Smith, Sanilac, and Louis Wenzlaff, Tuscola. The only other person nominated was Tex Durand of Sanilac.

In action taken after the annual meeting, the board reelected Walter Cook, president; Allen Shaw, vice-president; Elmer Rayl, secretary, and Michael Lasceski, treasurer.

Three proposed by-law revisions were acted upon. The amendment to revise the allowable time limits for director nominations was approved, 185-54. An amendment to allow earlier patronage capital retirements was approved, 205-29.

The amendment to delete a section of the by-laws pertaining to patronage from other services was approved, 170-63.

Lasceski presented the 1982 financial statement which showed operating revenues of $6,313,212 and expenses of $5,982,536 resulting in an operating margin of $330,675.

In addition to the operating margin, the cooperative also earned over $138,000 in interest on short term investment. Total margin for 1982 including patronage dividends from other organizations was $472,713.

Total expenses including purchased power increased only 2.4 percent over 1981. Expense less purchased power decreased 1 percent compared to 1981.

GENERAL MANAGER Michael Krause reported: —Thumb Electric's cost of power, which is over 60 percent of its total expense did not increase over the 1981 level, primarily due to measures taken by the cooperative.

—Sales for 1982 were down due primarily to the economy and a relatively mild December.

—TEC members experienced a 4.2 percent increase in rates in 1982 compared to 1981. It has not had a general rate increase since July, 1981, and 1982 was the first full year of that increase.

—Detroit Edison, the cooperative's wholesale power supplier, increased its rate to the Cooperative by approximately 13 percent Dec. 1. This increased cost will first appear in the members' April bills. The major portion of this increase is due to high interest and inflation which occurred in 1981.

—In 1982, TEC completed an extensive power supply study to assure its members the lowest cost source of power now and in the future. The results indicated continuation of the present power supply system in addition to installing an additional 1,000 kw of diesel generation at the Caro plant to provide back-up for old equipment would provide the lowest cost to the members.

Power costs are expected to increase above the inflation rate until generating plants under construction by Detroit Edison are completed.

—The necessity for Thumb Electric Cooperative to earn margins is required by its two lenders, the Rural Electrification Administration and the Cooperative Finance Corporation. This provides a sound financial position for the cooperative and assures that its lenders will be available to borrow at the lowest possible interest rate.

PRESIDENT COOK reported the cooperative applied for a $1,936,000 loan in 1982 from REA and CFC to provide for construction additions and improvements.

He also commented on the proposed by-law changes, which were later approved.

The amendment to allow general retirement of patronage capital will allow the cooperative to obtain the lowest cost capital for its construction programs.

After the business meeting, a hot lunch was served. Following lunch, the "Blue Pigs," consisting of six crime prevention officers of the Detroit Police Department, provided entertainment.

ASK DR. COE

By Darrell M. Sheets DMD

I'd like to take a minute to discuss four little things that give most of us problems - wisdom teeth. These are the third set of molars that usually begin erupting about age 18. An occasional individual will be missing all or some of these, but most of us have all four and most don't have sufficient space for them to erupt.

There are several potential problems that these molars can cause when they do not fully erupt: 1) partially erupted teeth are very susceptible to a periodic infection called pericoronitis which usually is quite painful; 2) all teeth have a developmental sac around them which disappears when they erupt into the mouth. However, when they fail to erupt, this sac can enlarge over time as a cyst causing bone destruction; 3) if the wisdom tooth is angled into the second molar, the force it can exert can cause pressure resorption of the root of the second molar resulting in its loss; 4) the wisdom teeth can exert forces on the other molars shifting them forward slightly which can result in crowding of the front teeth.

These are major problems that wisdom teeth can cause when there is inadequate space for them. If the potential for problems is there, it usually can be seen in the late teens in which case we will recommend early removal because the younger the patient the more speedy and less complicated the recovery.

Milk 'tax' delayed for dairymen

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced he will delay implementing the second congressionally authorized 50-cent per hundredweight assessment on dairymen.

The move is being made, he said, in order to give Congress time to adopt more effective legislation.

At the same time, he announced the first assessment will be implemented April 16. That assessment was originally implemented Dec. 1, but has been barred since then by court action.

March of Dimes drive raises $778

The Tuscola County March of Dimes collected $778 in Cass City from its door-to-door "Mothers' March" and canisters placed in stores.

The amount collected was almost double what was collected last year, according to county chairman Faith Fahrner.

Some of the money will be used to purchase a baby scale for the birthing room at the Hills and Dales General Hospital, she said.

Some, along with money raised elsewhere in the county, will be used for scholarships for four or five county students majoring in one of the medical professions in college.

Sanilac GOP meeting set

The regular meeting of the Sanilac County Republican Committee will be Thursday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the county conference room, 37 Austin Street, Sandusky.
