

CORN SEED -- Cory Little, 8, doesn't have to worry that her father, David, grandfather, Keith, and uncle, Harold, will be caught holding the bag because farmers will be planting less corn this year. Most of the seed they stock for sale has already been ordered by farmers.

PIK to mean fewer acres of corn and wheat

By Mike Eliasohn

Farmers haven't traded in their tractor seats for easy chairs, but participation in the federal government's payment-in-kind (PIK) program indicates many of them will spend less time behind the tractor or combine steering wheel this season.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 36 percent of the nation's cropland normally devoted to wheat, corn and feed grains, cotton and rice will be taken out of production under provisions of the program.

Already, anticipation of reduced production this year has helped drive up prices on last year's crop.

In the three upper Thumb counties, a total of 156,026 acres of corn and 27,416 acres of wheat won't be grown this year because of PIK and the paid diversion program.

In exchange for not planting or harvesting those acres, upper Thumb farmers will receive about 7.9 million bushels of corn and 386,669 bushels of wheat, which they can sell or (for corn), use for feed.

In Michigan, 1.28 million acres that would normally be planted with corn will be idled (43 percent of the base acreage), as will 204,552 acres of wheat land (24 percent of the base).

If the PIK program results in continued higher prices, that's good news for farmers and ultimately, for others.

This year, however, fewer acres will mean less income for those who sell seed, fertilizer and farm chemicals and for elevators which store and sell the crops.

"OVER THE SHORT term, it's not going to be good for us," said Kale Bradley, manager of the Agri-Sales elevator in Gagetown.

"Obviously, for all elevators, it will cut fertilizer and chemical sales like that down tremendously."

"It's going to take some commodities away from us in handling and processing."

Accordingly, Bradley sees good and bad in PIK. "Over the long pull, we'll probably be in better shape."

Terry Nichols, Thumb Area Commodity Cooperative Inc. manager, had similar comments.

The only elevators who stand to gain some direct benefit from PIK, he said, are those that have some grain in storage owned by the government or in the reserve program. When the farmers receive the grain, the elevators stand a chance of marketing it.

In simple terms, if acreage is reduced 20 percent, explained Bob Wischmeyer, manager of the Cass City Pillsbury elevator, "it's going to affect your business 20 percent."

PIK will have a bigger effect on the sale of seed and fertilizer than it will on corn storage, he said, since there is still lots of corn in storage and farmers selling PIK corn will still have to deal with elevators.

Wischmeyer's opinion of PIK is that, "It's a program that had to be. It's a good program."

Kevin Doneth, Agrico Chemical Co. manager in Cass City, takes the long range approach, that when prices go up for the farmers, they will have more money to spend and that will be good for everybody.

But for this year, "It's going to reduce our business some." Agrico sells fertilizer, herbicides and pesticides. It's too early to tell, however, Doneth said, how much business will be down, suggesting that when the weather gets nice, then he will know how many acres aren't being planted.

ELMWOOD TOWNSHIP farmer Ron Cybulski can look at the PIK program from both sides of the fence, since he also sells seed. "I think sales are going to be down. There's going to be less corn acreage."

It's too early to tell, however, how much less. A big factor in this area will be how many acres farmers

State budget cuts to have local impact

The $225 million in state budget cuts announced last week by Gov. James Blanchard will be felt in various ways in the upper Thumb.

Schools will be affected, at least those that receive membership state aid, such as Cass City and Kingston, there could be severe repercussions for Hills and Dales General Hospital and local governmental units will receive less.

The Caro Regional Center will probably manage without layoffs.

The possible effect of budget cuts on state police posts in Caro and Sandusky is described elsewhere on this page.

School districts, as part of Blanchard's cutback, will lose $25 million.

The impact locally isn't known for sure yet, but based on what was proposed initially, the Cass City School District would lose $20,411 and Kingston, $7,917, according to Jerome P. Thienes, assistant superintendent for business and finance of the Tuscola Intermediate School District. The TISD would lose $1,473.

The figures, he said, were obtained from State Rep. Dick Allen from the Department of Education when the proposed $25.3 million cut was first announced in February.

The proposed cut was what is called a "base revenue deduct," which means the state would specify a certain amount of revenue for all districts.

Districts such as Owendale-Gagetown and Uby, which don't receive membership state aid because of high property tax revenue per student, if receiving more than the "base revenue," are supposed to have deductions made from their state aid payments for bus transportation and special and vocational education.

If after the deductions are made and they still have more than the "base revenue" per student, the state will ask them to give it money. Understandably, Thienes said, that proposal has created a lot of controversy.

DELAYED AID

In January, Gov. Blanchard postponed payment of $509.1 million in state aid to schools, colleges and local governmental units.

Among the delayed payments were about $111,000 due to the Cass City School District, $80,000 to Kingston and $472,981 to the TISD.

The only one to have received any state money since then is the TISD, $238,000 to cover the cost of providing special education for students from the Regional Center.

Last Thursday, Thienes said, he was asked by an education department representative to poll the nine local districts whether they can get through April without payless paydays.

All said they could. "As (property) tax money comes in, they can get by," Thienes said. Based on the question asked by the state, he is assuming no state aid will be forthcoming until May.

Although they can get by for a little while longer, he said, by having to spend property tax money as soon as it comes in to make up for the state aid they should have received but didn't, the school districts lose interest they could otherwise collect by investing it until needed.

HILLS & DALES

The biggest part of Blanchard's budget cut was $69.5 million to be taken from the Department of Social Services, most of which is to come through a negotiated lowering of Medicaid payments to providers of medical services for the poor, such as hospitals.

That will cause additional problems for Cass City's hospital, according to its director of finance, Keith Adelberg.

The hospital is already losing money from state-imposed Medicaid cuts last year. The state no longer pays the complete cost of out-patient services for Medicaid patients.

For in-patient care last year, the state paid 70 percent of the cost, with the promise it will eventually reimburse hospitals for the remaining 30 percent. "It could be two years before we get the money," Adelberg said.

For the new fiscal year, the state has been paying the full amount for in-patient care, but he is waiting word on how the new Medicaid cuts will be applied. "It takes a couple weeks before we get official notification."

He is also waiting completion of the annual audit, which will be done by late May, so he will know exactly how much the state owes Hills and Dales in Medicaid payments.

The cutbacks so far meant the hospital had to use up its financial reserves to get by. "If they kept it up, it could lead to major problems," Adelberg commented.

REGIONAL CENTER

The Department of Mental Health's budget was cut $17.9 million.

Dr. Marlin Roll, director of the Caro Regional Center, said he has expected a cut in his budget since January. For that reason, he didn't fill any staff vacancies, so that now that the cut is coming -- he doesn't know how much yet -- he expects he will be able to get by without layoffs.

"I think we'll be able to manage with attrition without laying any off." That means eventually there will be less staff.

There have been staff reductions in the past due to earlier budget cuts, but Roll said he has made a strong effort to maintain the proper ratio of staff to residents.

Where the cuts have been made is in support services, he said, and ultimately the institution suffers. There are only a couple of groundskeepers to maintain 700 acres of grounds. There used to be three painters; now there is one. There were three occupational therapists on the staff; now there is one.

The center has 579 employees and 431 residents (17 in the psychiatric unit. The rest are developmentally disabled, that is, mentally retarded).

At one time, it had 875 employees and a correspondingly larger number of residents.

Schwaderer to speak at Chamber meet

Dr. Thomas Schwaderer, MD, will be coming home to speak at the Cass City Chamber of Commerce annual banquet Saturday, April 16, at the Colony House on M-53.

A highlight of the evening will be recognition of the citizen and junior citizen of the year.

Village President Lambert Althaver will present his state of the village address and chamber President Curt Strickland will talk about the chamber.

Following the program, "Harmony" will play for dancing.

Schwaderer, a 1952 graduate of Cass City High School, graduated from Albion College and obtained his medical degree from Wayne State University. He served his residency at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

An orthopedic surgeon (bone specialist), he is in private group practice in Grand Rapids and is on the staff of Butterworth Hospital.

He was part of a surgical team at Butterworth that received much media attention a few months ago when it reattached a man's arm, severed eight inches above the elbow, when it was caught in a corn picker.

Schwaderer, 48, does a lot of work setting bones of accident victims and hip replacements, according to his sister, Nancy deBeaubien of Cass City.

He may be the only athlete in the history of Cass City High School to have earned 16 varsity letters, having competed four years in football, basketball, baseball and track.

He was senior class president, student council president and an honor student.

Schwaderer and his wife, Pamela, have two sons.

Dinner at the Colony House will start at 7. Tickets can be purchased from chamber board members and at the two drug stores, Ben Franklin, Albee's, Kritzman's, Fort's, Clothes Closet and Thumb National Bank.

9 troopers will remain

Caro police post future uncertain

The status of the state police post in Caro is uncertain.

"The only thing I know for sure is there will still be nine troopers working in this area," Lt. Lee McDowell, Caro post commander, said Tuesday.

Thursday, he will be meeting with the district commander in Saginaw to learn what his superiors have planned for the post, which has been in operation nine years.

Whatever changes take place are scheduled to take effect May 8.

Caro, and also Sandusky, are among 15 posts affected by the $225 million in budget cuts announced last week by Gov. James Blanchard, of which $5 million was imposed on the state police.

McDowell said he was told last week that he would be losing two supervisory personnel, that is, two sergeants, and that the Caro post would be put on team status.

Based on that and conversation with the district commander, it was assumed that would mean the remaining sergeant would man the dispatch desk from probably 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The rest of the time, the building would be closed to the public and dispatching would be done by the Bay City post, which would answer the Caro post's phone number.

Presently, the post is open and the dispatch desk manned from 7 a.m.-11 p.m., seven days a week, with the Bay City post handling the dispatching from 11 p.m.-7 a.m.

The Caro post has nine troopers and has at least one patrol on duty around the clock.

The Sandusky post, McDowell said, which presently dispatches around the clock, is scheduled to lose three of four sergeants. The Bad Axe post, which isn't affected by the changes, would handle the dispatching when the Sandusky post was closed.

That was the assumption last week.

Tuesday, it appeared that might not be the case, partially based on the information that the Caro and Sandusky posts are supposed to go to a team status.

Traditionally, McDowell said, team posts only have a sergeant in charge and a small number of troopers. The post is closed to the public and the dispatching is handled elsewhere.

If that happens with the Caro post, Bay City would do all the dispatching and Mc-Dowell and the post's detective sergeant might be reassigned.

That also calls into question the status of the present state police building, on the edge of downtown Caro, which is rented for $1,200 a month. The lease expires in about 10 months.

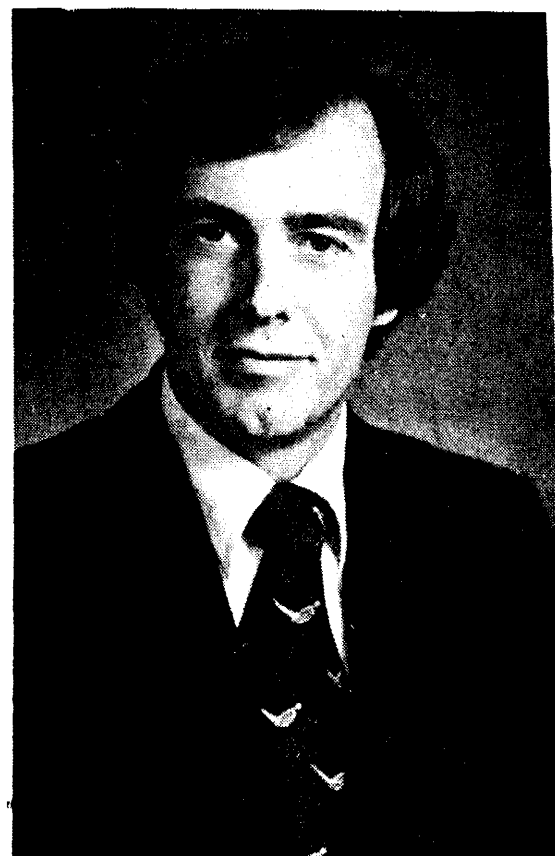

If only nine troopers and one sergeant are working in Tuscola County and the post isn't open to the public, possibly part of a state-owned building in the Caro area might be used instead of the present large structure.

The ultimate effect of the reduction in public and dispatching hours at the 15 posts statewide is the layoff of 77 troopers.

The sergeants, such as the two at Caro, who are losing their assignments, depending on their seniority and preference, will either become troopers again or bump sergeants elsewhere who have less seniority, who will become troopers.

The 77 troopers at the bottom of the seniority list will ultimately be bumped out of their jobs and into unemployment lines.

Nine state police civilian employees are also scheduled to lose their jobs.

Rabbit Tracks

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Given today's economic climate, a tip of the hat is due President Curt Strickland and the board of the Chamber of Commerce.

The membership roll swelled to 98 this year, up from the previous two years and the best since the organization was revitalized by Tom Herron and 101 members paid dues.

Incidentally, the Chamber has secured an interesting speaker for its annual banquet again this season. Last year, you'll recall, home-town Major Brewster Shaw, astronaut, was the speaker.

This year, home-town Dr. Tom Schwaderer, orthopedic surgeon, is the speaker. Dr. Schwaderer was one of the surgeons involved in attaching a patient's severed arm a few months ago.

Speakers with a local flavor who have made it in the big time always are the most interesting.

Usually the TV camera work by CBS is zilch compared to ABC when covering sporting events. That wasn't the case in the just concluded NCAA basketball finals.

The camera work scanning the losing players after the game as well as the slow motion action pictures were excellent.

Now if they only can make the Masters golf tournament this week end as interesting. But it's doubtful. CBS coverage of golf is usually better than a Somnifex tablet for putting me to sleep.

Why is it that the good TV programs always conflict? Monday there was a 2½-hour show featuring the New York Philharmonic Orchestra directed by Zubin Mehta. It starred Luciano Pavarotti, tenor, with the New York Choral Artists Men's Chorus and James Morris, bass.

It was presented live starting at 8 p.m. I watched until 9 p.m. then switched to the NCAA basketball finals under the theory that it was then or never for the cage contest while it's almost certain that the music will be presented in a rerun.

Probably the rerun will come during the World Series.

Wutzke treated for dog bite

John A. Wutzke, 22, of 4259 Ale Street, was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital Friday after being bitten by a dog.

Cass City police reported he was attempting to release a brown and white beagle caught in a swinging door at Eral's Food Center and the dog bit his left leg.

Owner of the dog was not immediately determined.

Joyce Haley of 6305 Houghton Street told village police Tuesday, March 29, that the driver's side outside rear view mirror was broken off her car while it was parked from 7-10 the previous evening at the Charmont.

Douglas J. Howell Jr., 16, of 4200 Little Road, Cass City, reported March 26 to sheriff's deputies that several car parts stored inside his car had been stolen.

They were taken between March 8 and 23 while it was parked behind the Tuscola Area Skill Center on Cleaver Road, Caro.

Taken were a bell housing with clutch arm, pressure plate, 12 volt battery, two exhaust header hookups, two 10-inch clutches, one of them new, two new mufflers with chrome pipes and an AM-FM portable radio. Total value of the stolen items was estimated at $109.

Novesta Twp. okays Gilford Road repairs

The Novesta Township Board Monday evening signed an agreement with the Tuscola County Road Commission for repair of one mile of Gilford Road between Cemetery and Englehart Roads.

For an estimated $8,750, the Road Commission will apply pit run gravel, fill in the holes, put down a top layer of fine gravel and clean out the ditches where needed. The work will be done some time this year.

The board discussed finishing paving of the one mile of DeLong Road between Cemetery and Warner Roads. The section was blacktopped a few years ago, Clerk Nurse Kloc explained, but the final layer or mat of asphalt was only laid for a quarter mile.

The Road Commission has estimated it will cost the township $13,500 to have the final layer applied on the remaining three-quarters of a mile.

The board asked Supervisor Bill O'Dell to ask the Road Commission if it could pay half this year and half next. He will also try to negotiate a lower price.

The concern of the board, Mrs. Kloc said, is that if it has to pay the entire amount for DeLong this year, plus the money for Gilford, it won't have any money left to do any other necessary road work.

In other action, the board approved payment of its $687 assessment for this year to Rawson Memorial Library.

Insurance agent Alan Kloc met with the board to discuss the township's insurance. It decided to increase the coverage for the township hall and cemetery building 10 percent.

The Haire Net

Like crocus in the spring the question of whether or not beer should be sold at the park has popped up again. It's something that happens every few years in Cass City, going back to the early home-coming days in the 1950's.

It has about as much chance of passing as crocuses do of popping up in January. Mark it down. We won't sell beer in the park this year.

It won't pass for a variety of reasons. One is the personnel on the village council. But that's secondary. I'd guess that if there were enough pressure for beer at the park from the community there would be enough votes on the council to allow it.

That pressure would have to be firm and relentless if a law allowing park booze would come out of committee. The truth is that it isn't. There is a group of community boosters that want it and it's growing. There are more in favor today than there were 10 years ago and there were more in favor the decade before that than there were previously.

There's a vocal minority that is against beer at the park or anywhere else.

Those in favor of park booze want it because it is a real money maker. You have to understand that all that entertainment of July 4 doesn't come free. That big parade costs money. Those prizes for the kids, that tractor pull, all those various events have to be paid for by the relatively few firms and individuals that present the show for all of our enjoyment.

Anyone meeting bills on a shoestring budget can see where pro-beer persons are coming from.

In this issue I like to feel that I represent the main stream of the community. If lightning strikes and suddenly beer were allowed, I wouldn't lose a wink of sleep.

Yet, if I were asked to vote, I'd say let's suffer along financially, make do with what we have and keep things the way they are.

If we have a beer tent at the Festival, wouldn't it be hard to say no when the softball teams come in for a long week-end tourney? The players quaff a few there now, but things are kept under control. The police have an easy enforcement problem because they can throw anyone out of the park for drinking. The players know it and that keeps the lid on. If beer is legal, that's a different story.

Most times day and night that park is overrun with kids (thank goodness). It's a good place not to be drinking.

Meanwhile, if you feel that I'm all wrong, I'm certainly willing to discuss it at any of our area taverns. Providing you buy the beer.

"If It Fitz..."

Shattered illusions

By Jim Fitzgerald

Because my mind is so full of worry about the future, it is extremely difficult to remember the past. So I am forced to blow the opportunity to impress library patrons with delightful reminiscences about which books, read during my childhood, most influenced me to become the intellectual giant I am today.

What am I worried about? Well, for example, the New York Court of Appeals recently ruled it is legal for a photographer to publish nude photos taken of Brooke Shields when she was 10 years old. And Kathryn Crosby, widow of Bing Crosby, wrote a book in which she admits she "never liked his singing."

The portent is as obvious as it is ominous. Someday Calvin Klein is going to write a book in which he admits he never liked the way Brooke Shields looked in his jeans.

I worry about living to see the day such an image-shattering revelation is made. I'm not sure the world will be able to handle it without screaming and stomping its feet.

I used to be a great admirer of Joan Crawford. I firmly believed this world would never have had Monday Night Football if she hadn't invented shoulder pads. But then her daughter wrote a book revealing Joan Crawford's unnatural relationship with coat hangers, for lord's sake. The world was shocked. I swore never again to get hung up on a shoulder fetish, especially in a closet.

Why do people write tattle-tale books like that? People would rather keep their illusions. When Gary Crosby, Bing's oldest son, wrote that the world's most popular crooner was a child beater, I refused to believe it. But now Bing's widow writes she loved him but didn't like the sound of him singing "I'm dreaming of a white Christmas." What kind of love is it when a wife won't buy her husband's records? We might as well face it: Bing probably hit Kathryn harder than he hit Gary.

But a person can face only so much. I have daughters and granddaughters who have to lie on their backs to zip up their pants. The world is full of tortured women who squeeze into pants three sizes too small so they will look like Brooke Shields in her Calvin Klein jeans. Because of Brooke, millions of dollars have been spent applying tourniquet trousers to women who can't walk in them without suffering unbelievable strain.

It is splendid that New York's court didn't have anything more important to do than approve the publication of nude photos disproving the widely held suspicion that Brooke Shields attained the look that made her a famous 16-year-old by putting on her Calvin Kleins when she was 10 and never ever taking them off. Many older women will be encouraged to learn it's possible to become as tightly bound as Brooke without growing up inside their pants.

But there will be nothing splendid about Calvin Klein someday writing a book saying he always thought Brooke Shields looked dumb in his jeans. Millions of women, and not a few men, will be dismayed to learn they suffered all that pain while walking in the barely separated footsteps of a false idol.

It's bad enough to be told Bing Crosby's wife didn't like him singing around the house, or that Joan Crawford put on her coat before taking it off the hanger. It's much worse to learn that for 30 years you cut off the circulation in half your body just so you would look like a girl who wore tight pants designed by a man who thought she looked like a fool in them.

That's the type of calamity I worry about happening in the future, causing me to forget the past. And that's why I had to pass when, for a National Library Week project, the Sterling Heights Public Library asked which books that I read as a child had the most influence on my life. I don't know because I can't remember what I read so long ago.

But I'll bet I didn't read that Goldilocks dyed her hair. When I was young, tattletales were scorned, not paid to blab.

Lots of work involved

Hide tanning just a hobby for area pair

Lynn and Marian Spencer and Eileen Konkell are earning their sheepskins the hard way. They are learning, but it has nothing to do with going to college. The Spencers and Mrs. Konkell are tanning hides, which they have found is a slow process. "It's a lot of work, let's face it," said Mrs. Spencer. "It's a project that takes time," Mrs. Konkell added. Since last fall, when they started, they have tanned or are in the process of tanning seven hides -- six lamb hides (lambs don't become sheep until they're a year old) and one goat hide. All the animals were raised by Mrs. Konkell and her husband, Larry, who live on Cleland Road, Uby. The Spencers live around the corner on Germania Road. The decision to tan hides started with a black lamb. "We got a beautiful curly black pelt off of one of Eileen's lambs and we couldn't bear to throw it away," Mrs. Spencer explained. They did have someone to turn to with experience, her husband, Lynn Spencer had tanned lamb skins for a few years, starting eight years ago. He still has a big pile of hides from back then, which he hasn't figured out what to do with yet. The lambs weren't sheared and the wool is long and matted. Now the lambs are sheared to the desired thickness before they go to the slaughter house. Lambs, of course, are slaughtered for their meat, not for their hides, which the two women found are of minimal value to the slaughter houses. With a better use for the pelts in mind, "We got tired of giving them away," Mrs. Spencer said. THE KONKELLS HAVE their animals slaughtered at Maurer Slaughter House, near Uby, which salts the hides before returning them, which helps prevent the wool from falling off. The hides are then soaked in a solution of sulfuric acid, (battery acid), rock salt and distilled water for a minimum of 2-3 weeks. When removed, they are washed in mild soap suds and Borax to neutralize the acid. They are allowed to partly dry, then tanning oil is worked into the hides from the skin side to soften it. Then comes the hard and tedious part, which is called fleshing. The fleshing sticking to the skin side of the hide must be removed and the only practical way to do it is by hand. "The best way to get at it is to get sore thumbs," Mrs. Spencer explained. SHE AND MRS. KONKELL could probably flesh one lamb hide in a day, if they chose to work at it all day. Since it would be too hard on the hands and fingers to do it that quickly, they take more than a day. The goat hide was easier to do. The time consuming fleshing best illustrates why there isn't much demand for lamb or sheep hides. Few persons want to invest the time needed to tan them. When Lynn Spencer was tanning hides previously, he did the fleshing before the hides went into the brine solution, which was so messy and smelly, Mrs. Spencer said, she let her husband do that part of the job alone. The present method isn't something that would be done on the dining room table, but is not nearly as messy. After the fleshing is done, the hides are clamped onto stretcher frames to dry, which takes about a week for a lamb skin, two days for a goat skin. Once dry, tanning oil is worked into the skins, they are run back and forth over a roller to stretch them and make them more flexible and any fleshing still there is removed. Last Thursday, Spencer and Mrs. Konkell were experimenting with using an electric drill and rotating sanding disk to removing the final fleshing, which seemed to be working.

possibilities. Mrs. Spencer said, "Everybody asks if we don't want to go into business." A Cass City maker of gun cases is interested in using the lamb skin, fleece side up, as lining. But for now and considering the number of hours involved, Mrs. Spencer commented, "This is fun and games, just among our other hobbies."

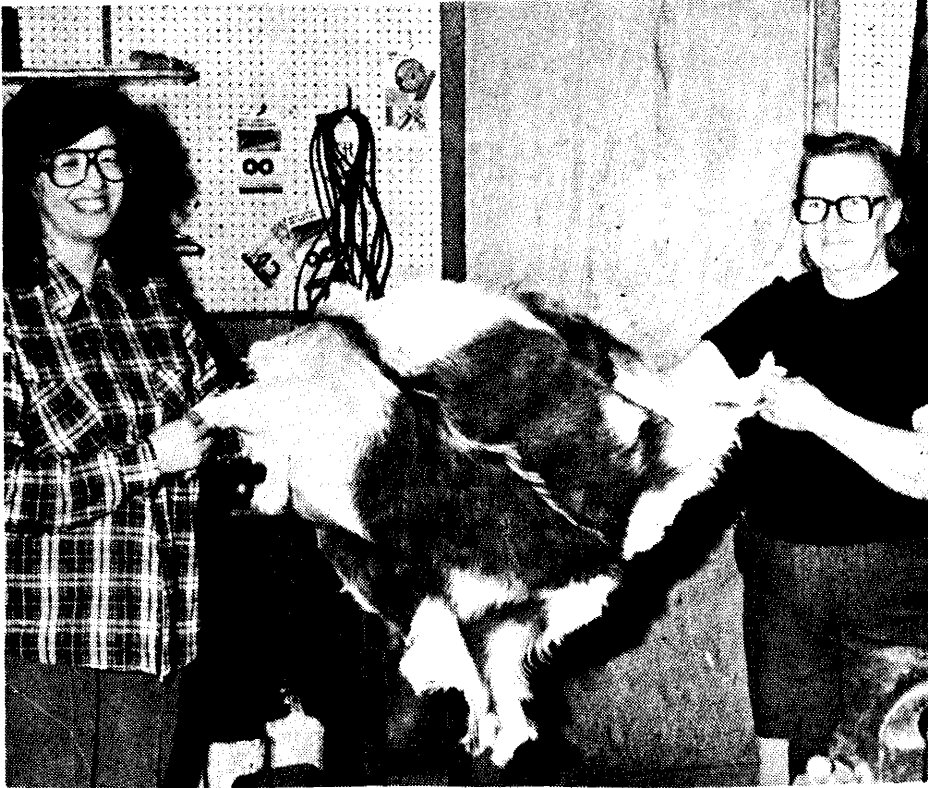

FLESHING -- Eileen Konkell (rear) and Marian Spencer do the hardest part of tanning a hide, removing what is known as fleshing from the skin side of the hide.

3 cars hit while parked

Cass City police reported three accidents last week involving parked vehicles. At 4:40 p.m. Thursday, they said, Wendell S. Honsinger, 53, of 4754 Hunt Street was pulling away from a parking place by the north curb on Main Street and ran into the right side of a pickup that was turning right from westbound Main into L & S Standard Service. Driver of the pickup was Kell A. Hoffman, 22, of 5049 E. Cass City Road. At noon Friday, police said, Michele A. Male, 24, of 6331 Hadley Road, was backing out of a parking place in the Mutual Savings and Loan lot and backed into the right side of a car entering the lot. Driver of the other car was Mary Lou King, 37, of Caro. Darryl Thane of 4124 S. Seeger Street reported to police at 9:30 a.m. last Wednesday that his car was damaged by a hit and run vehicle while it was parked that morning in the lot behind the Ben Franklin store. At 5:13 p.m. Friday, sheriff's deputies reported, Louise A. Brown, 17, of Caro, eastbound on Deckerville Road, stopped at M-81, then proceeded into the intersection where her car was struck in the right side by a car headed northeast. Ms. Brown said she didn't see the other car until just before the impact. The driver of the other car, Sandra Kay Nizzola, 27, of 4371 West Street, Cass City, told officers Ms. Brown started to cross the intersection at the last moment. At 9:15 p.m. Friday, according to deputies, Brent M. Mitchell, 21, of 6125 Wright Road, Cass City, was eastbound on Deckerville Road, east of Cemetery Road, and his car struck a deer. Deputies reported Monday morning, March 28, that Leroy L. Sherman, 21, of Unionville, northbound on Cemetery Road, was turning left onto Kelly Road. Due to the slushy snow covered surface, his car slid off the road into the ditch at the northwest corner of the intersection.

LYNN SPENCER holds up the knitted gloves, faced with lamb hide, the only use made so far of the hides that have been tanned.

ASK DR. COE

By Dalton P. Coe DDS

Among denture wearers of longstanding, the prevailing practice is to wear their dentures night and day. Dentists themselves, in many cases, issued instructions to their patients to wear their dentures at all times. The idea behind this, of course, was to help build and reinforce the determination/tolerance that it takes to wear full dentures. It remains today just as important to have or develop tolerance in order to wear dentures. However, clinical experience and scientific studies have indicated the need to rest the oral tissues by removing dentures at night.

Dentures trap food particles between themselves and the gums. In this moist, warm, food laden environment, bacteria multiplies rapidly. As part of their life processes, they excrete substances which can be very irritating to the skin of the mouth. The skin's defense against these toxic substances is to increase blood flow to the area and to thicken the skin in contact with the toxins. The increased blood flow to the skin tissues is one defense mechanism in which the body introduces more fluid and white blood cells to cleanse the area of the irritating substances. In this instance, the mouth appears red and swollen or puffy. The body's second defense is to actually thicken the skin to provide a greater barrier between itself and toxins excreted by the bacteria.

The object of discussing these two defense mechanisms is to point out the fact that they lead to long-term problems for the denture wearer.

First of all, the chronic swelling causes the underlying bone to dissolve more rapidly than normal. This shortens the useful life of a denture.

Second, the chronic irritation can lead to abnormal changes in the skin and may eventually lead to cancer.

It is imperative, therefore, to rest your mouth as frequently as possible by removing the denture. It is a good habit to remove dentures and clean them thoroughly after every meal. This also reduces odor. The denture should be left out all night and soaked in water or a recommended denture cleaning solution. While the denture is out your tongue and saliva will be acting together to mechanically cleanse, flush, and dilute bacteria, their waste products, and food from your gums. A daily brushing of the gums with a soft toothbrush is a great aid in promoting gum health.

The added bonus to maintaining healthy gums under a denture is that it will probably extend the useful life of a denture and thereby reduce the cost incurred by frequent replacement.

Pedaling Around

Haven't we met?

By Mike Eliasohn

Looking for a used refrigerator or a car? How about a mate?

Partner-wanted classified ads are the latest trend in the newspaper business.

"Tired of the singles bar scene? Sick of solitaire and too old for the sock hops?" the Detroit Free Press says in an ad promoting its new "Companion Corner."

Each buyer of an ad gets a box number at the Free Press, and then all replies to the box number are forwarded to them.

Some advertisers shouldn't look forward to "tuffed mailboxes."

There was, for instance, the "Successful executive, early 40's, looking for young, attractive pet for interesting no strings relationship."

How many women want to be a man's "pet"? Some might be willing to do it for pay, but not for free.

"Attractive" or a variation is a word that pops up frequently in the companion ads.

"Nice looking" white male, "attractive" black male, "handsome" white male, "pretty young woman," "attractive 64-year-old lady," "good looking 33-year-old white male," "handsome gentleman," "physically an 8" (from a 30-year-old white male.)

Often, they are looking for a companion who is at least as good looking. "Looking for nice looking white female," "must be attractive and intelligent," "looking for an attractive, slim woman," "seeking companionship without commitment with beautiful fun-loving young woman in late 20's" (sought by an "over 40" businessman), "would like to meet handsome professional male."

Some feel honesty is the best approach, for instance, the "29-year-old professional 5'4" woman, slightly on the plump side."

Some seem rather picky, which might be nice to know in advance: "Feminist seeks white 40ish philosopher who agrees with Thoreau, listens to NPR, watches PBS, reads Tolstoy, enjoys walks, eats vegetables, desires intimacy and doesn't smoke."

She's so fussy, she probably wouldn't even like Henry David Thoreau if she met him. That won't happen, of course, since he died in 1862. (For the curious, NPR is National Public Radio and PBS is Public Broadcasting Service.)

Sometimes one has to read between the lines. Don't like puns? Stay away from the man who wanted "someone equally at home at a dinner party or in a pair of jeans on horseback. If this fits you, please respond."

Don't like women who repeat themselves? Stay away from the woman looking for an "established, sophisticated gentleman for a mutually satisfying relationship based on mutual respect, mutual interests, mutual understanding, mutual sincerity, mutual practicality." I wonder if she invests in mutual bonds.

Age is sometimes minimized when one gets over 40. Youthful, petite 55-year-old widow... "Divorced white male, extremely young 41."

Some men never grow up. Maybe he's one of them.

There may be hyperbole in some of the ads, but it can't be any worse than hyperbole used in bars (sometimes known by two initials):

"Looking for some company?"

"You look lonely."

"Looking for a good time?"

"Haven't we met some place?"

BATTLE OF THE BOOKS -- The Sensational Six from Cass City confer on the answer to a question while the Red Hot Readers from Mayville in the rear wait their turn. The two-town "battle of the books" took place last Thursday.

Michael Nicol dies from crash injuries

Michael Edward Nicol, 27, died Tuesday at the Huron County Medical Care Facility, Bad Axe, of injuries suffered in a Feb. 14, 1982, motorcycle ice racing accident.

Nicol, of Robinson Road, Uby, suffered head injuries when he was struck by a motorcycle sidecar rig that went off course during a race at Skidway Lake, about 45 miles north of Midland. Nicol had competed in the previous race.

He was born June 13, 1955, in Cass City, the son of Stuart and Vera (Dobson) Nicol.

Nicol married Ann Balagh Sept. 6, 1980, in Cass City.

He was a member of Trinity United Methodist Church and the American Motorcycle Association.

Nicol is survived by his wife; his parents, of Cass City; two brothers, John Nicol and Jerry Nicol, both of Cass City; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Elta Dobson, Port Huron, and his paternal grandfather, Leiland Nicol of Cass City.

He will be taken from Little's Funeral Home at 11 a.m. Thursday to the Trinity church to lie in state until the 1 p.m. funeral service. The church's pastor, Rev. P. Thomas Wachterhauser, and Rev. Robert Von Oeyen of the Fraser and Uby United Presbyterian churches will officiate.

Burial will be in the Elkland Township Cemetery.

3 reappointed to Bean Commission

Two grower members and a shipper representative were reappointed to the Michigan Bean Commission last week by Gov. James Blanchard.

All appointments are for three year terms.

In District IV, representing Tuscola County, LeRoy Schluckebier, of Frankenthum, was reappointed as a grower representative. He has served since 1980.

Schluckebier farms 700 acres of dry beans, corn, oats, hay and wheat. He is a member of the Michigan Pork Producers, St. Michael's Lutheran Church, and is very active in various county and state Farm Bureau committees. He is currently serving as chairman of the commission.

Schluckebier and his wife, Ginny, have one son and three daughters.

In District V, John Tanton of Deckerville was reappointed as grower representative serving Sanilac, Genesee, Lapeer, St. Clair, and Macomb Counties. He has also served on the commission since 1980 and farms 800 acres of dry beans, sugar beets, and corn.

He has served as vice-president of the Sanilac County Farm Bureau, as a member of the Michigan Farm Bureau Policy Development Committee, and on the board of directors of the Sanilac County Dry Bean Growers Association. Tanton and his wife, Lynette, have one son and a daughter.

Lawrence Sprague of Durand was reappointed to one of the two shipper representative positions on the commission and currently serves as its treasurer.

He is a bean trader with Northern States Bean Co. in Lansing, and has been on the commission since 1978. Sprague and his wife, Janet, have two daughters and a son.

All three gubernatorial appointments are subject to consent by the Michigan Senate.

The commission is made up of 11 members -- six growers, two shippers, and one member of the canning or packaging industry. Ex-officio representatives serve from Michigan State University and the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Growers are assessed 5 cents per hundredweight on beans they sell, along with a shipper assessment of 1 cent per cwt., for commission operation. The shipper funds, and 1 cent from the grower assessments are used to pursue production research work on dry edible beans, while the balance of grower funds are used to fund promotional programs, both domestically and internationally.

Jill Magel wins award

Jill Ann Magel has been named a national award winner in leadership by the United States Achievement Academy.

She attends Gwinn High School and is the daughter of Leroy and Helen Magel. Her grandparents are Jack and Erma Dunlap of Decker and Jim and Kate Moore of Augres, formerly of Cass City.

Cass City sweeps 'battle of books'

Cass City's "battle of the books" winners are now double winners.

The recent winners of the competition at Rawson Memorial Library competed last Thursday against the "battle of the books" winners from the Mayville District Public Library.

The competition was held on the stage in the Cass City Intermediate School gymnasium.

The Rugged Readers defeated the Superstars from Mayville in the third-fourth grade division on a tie breaking question.

The Rugged Readers are Mike Van Allen, Troy Benitez, Ryan Pringle, Randy Peasley, Jodi Benitez and John Koepf, with Barbara Koepf as manager.

The Sensational Six from Cass City won the fifth-sixth title by one question over the Red Hot Readers.

The winners are Ken Micklash, Steven Bills, Mike Bills, Josh Constar, Randy Johnson, Dan Barriger and Jason Jezewski (alternate). Theresa Micklash is the manager.

Mutual Savings has good year

Mutual Savings and Loan Association President Bruce W. Cook outlined the position of the association at the end of 1982 at the association's annual meeting in Bay City March 29.

The association continued to grow during a year of economic decline in Michigan with total assets increasing almost $30 million to $482.9 million. Net loans and contracts increased 5.8 percent to $429.95 million.

Total savings reached a new high at $417.55 million, comprised of a record 95,900 accounts. Earnings on savings accounts total $44.52 million.

Mutual Savings has 27 offices, including one in Cass City.

PIK program to shift farm crops

choose to switch from dry beans, for which the price outlook is gloomy, to corn (provided they aren't in PIK), which looks promising.

Tuscola County Extension Director Bill Bortel predicts the biggest shift away from dry beans will be to soybeans, with some shifting to corn.

A requirement for farmers participating in PIK is that they plant a cover crop, such as clover, on their set-aside acres. There has been a "big increase (in sales) in that area," Cybulski said.

Sale of cover crop seeds will help offset some of the loss in sale of corn seed. "I think the PIK program will benefit everybody, not just farmers," Cybulski said. "I think it's the best program the government ever had for farmers."

The reason for his optimism is that, "It looks like farmers can make money off the deal."

With farmers making money, they can pay off loans and if they start buying equipment, the benefits will multiply. "I think it's going to be a kind of domino effect."

Taxpayers will also benefit, he pointed out, since it will reduce the hundreds of millions of dollars they pay for storing surplus commodities.

Keith Little of Kelly Road is another farmer who sells seed.

"I think it's probably a good program to cure the problem we had in a hurry," Little, his brother, Harold, and his (Keith's) son, David, feed beef cattle and hogs. He noted that with PIK driving up corn prices, "It will stop expansion in livestock."

If the price of corn gets high enough, it becomes more profitable for farmers to sell corn, rather than feed it to animals.

CORN HAS SEEN THE biggest price jump since the USDA's recent announcement about participation in PIK. Corn is up about 80 cents-$1 a bushel from its low point during harvest season last fall.

Wheat is also up in price, but not as much.

Extension Director Bortel attributed about 50 cents in the rise in the price of corn to the reaction to the news that less corn will be grown this year because of PIK. The rest reflects the normal price increases since harvest season.

With the current prices, Wischmeyer of Pillsbury said, "They can make a little money on corn... a good farmer will make money on wheat."

The better prices are stirring interest and some farmers who have been holding onto their crops are starting to sell.

Not all farmers have crops to sell. Little mentioned a farmer who told him he had sold his corn at harvest time last fall. At that point, before PIK was announced, it looked like corn prices would stay low, so the farmer couldn't see paying storage fees.

Some farmers needed to sell their crops right away to pay bills.

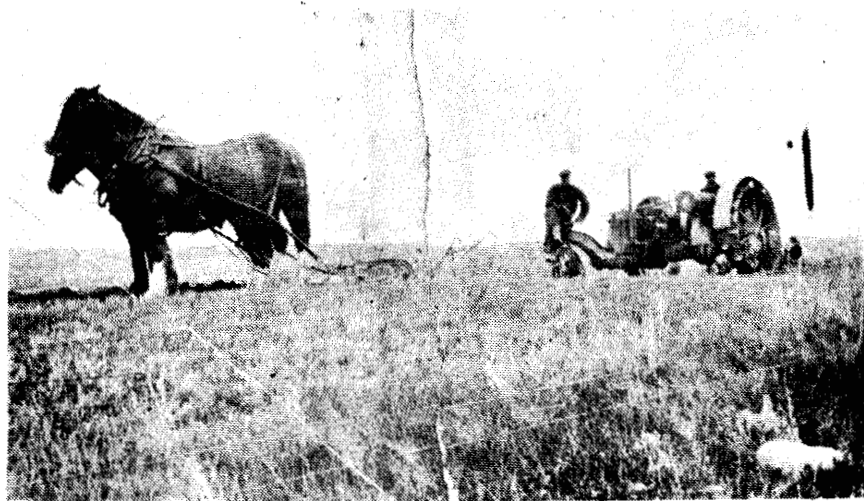

IT APPEARS MANY farmers are still waiting for crop prices to go higher, according to elevator managers Bradley and Nichols. Bradley feels only a few more farmers may be selling their stored grain now than there would be at this time any other year.

There is quite a bit of interest in forward contracting this fall's crop or the PIK grain for delivery at harvest time or later.

Farmers will be able to start selling wheat they receive under PIK Aug. 15 of this year and corn will be available to them starting Nov. 1.

Especially for corn, Nichols said, since there won't be any cost to the farmers to grow it, they can sell it under forward contracts and make a profit.

Bortel expressed cautious optimism that PIK will have the desired effect of reducing crop inventories and boosting prices paid to farmers. "I would hope we're turning things around... but don't look for big things to happen."

FIRST TRACTOR in Tuscola County belonged to Warren McCreedy, whose Elmwood Township farm was on Cass City Road between McGregory and Jacob Roads. The Titan Happy Farmer cost $1,000 and could pull a three-bottom plow at about the same speed as the two horses could pull a one-bottom plow. The year it was purchased is unknown, but it was destroyed in a barn fire in 1917. Photo is owned by Warren's son, Harvey McCreedy of Unionville, whose brother, Lewis, now runs the farm, which becomes a centennial farm this year.

Obituaries

One son, Edward, four brothers and two sisters preceded him in death.

A Knights of Columbus council service was held Friday evening at Little's Funeral Home, Cass City.

The funeral service was conducted Saturday morning at St. Agatha's with Rev. Joseph Morales officiating.

Burial was in the church cemetery.

Cass City policeman fined for loaded gun in car

A Tuscola County District Court jury last Thursday found Donald Miller Jr., 34, of 3470 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, guilty of transporting a loaded firearm in a vehicle.

Judge Richard F. Kern then fined him $30 and assessed $20 court costs, which have since been paid.

Miller was ticketed for the offense, for carrying a .30-06 rifle in his car, Nov. 15 in Novesta Township by a Department of Natural Resources conservation officer.

Miller is a Cass City police officer. Police Chief Gene Wilson said he has consulted with the village's attorney, Clinton House, and Village President Lambert Althaver concerning Miller's conviction and that the matter would be handled internally.

He declined comment as to what, if any, disciplinary action will be taken against the officer.

Miller was off-duty at the time of the offense, driving his own car. The gun was his.

CIRCUIT COURT

Judge Patrick R. Joslyn Tuesday, March 29, found Kin L. Geilhart, 27, of Quinn Street, Caro, innocent of a charge of delivery of PCE Aug. 13, 1980, in Indianfields township.

Feds offer to purchase grain

Heavier than anticipated sign-up has made it necessary for the Commodity Credit Corp. to acquire additional grain to meet payment-in-kind needs.

During a two-week period beginning April 4, county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office is offering to acquire corn and wheat from those who have regular or reserve loans.

The purchase price of the grain will be the amount required to liquidate the CCC loan. Producers with CCC loan grain have through April 15 to offer their grain under loan for a sales contract with the U.S. Department of Agriculture at the county ASCS office where the loan was obtained. All such offers will be accepted by USDA.

In addition, farmers who believe they need additional compensation may submit competitive bids on the amount of compensation they want. The bids will show the quantity of grain the producer offers to the CCC and the percent of that quantity to be paid as compensation.

Bids will be accepted between April 4 and April 15. They will be opened at the ASCS offices Saturday, April 16, at 9 a.m. The public is welcome to attend the openings. CCC may reject any bids.

Producers who have loans and are interested in how the program works can come to ASCS office for an explanation.

Edison's taxes total $101 million

Nearly 400 Michigan communities shared more than $101 million in property taxes paid by Detroit Edison in 1982, which made the utility the second largest property taxpayer in the state.

Taxes paid in Huron County totaled $841,040; Tuscola, $495,729, and Sanilac, $383,650.

General Motors is the state's largest taxpayer.

No action

The Gagetown Village Council Monday evening discussed various matters but took no special action, according to Clerk Elery Son-tag.

Bike-a-thon for Cystic Fibrosis

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation will sponsor a "Cyclin' for CF" bike-a-thon Sunday, April 24, from 2-5 p.m., according to event chairman Louise Buehrly.

The course will begin with registration at Salem United Methodist Church and will use a two-mile course within Cass City. A participant may complete the course as many times as he or she wishes. The event is open to all persons who obtain prior sponsorship of at least 10 cents per mile. Participants may get as many sponsors as they wish. All proceeds will go to benefit children stricken with Cystic Fibrosis.

An official CF sweatband set will be awarded to all those who bring in $25-$49, a summer jersey to those turning in $50-$99 and both the sweatband set and summer jersey to those turning in $100 or more. All participants will receive an iron-on transfer.

Cystic Fibrosis is a terminal, genetic disease which affects the lungs and digestive system of children. One in 20 persons (over 400,000 Michiganders) are carriers of the recessive CF gene. Research during the past 17 years has increased the life expectancy of CF children by more than 16 years.

Pledge forms are available at churches and schools or by calling Mrs. Buehrly at 872-2748 or Kim Buehrly at 872-2508.

Sex education class set

The Cass City Community Education Department announces the formation of a sex education class for junior high and senior high boys and girls.

The sessions will be in the evening and will be on a voluntary basis.

Instructor for the class is Bob Ponder, social worker from the Tuscola County Intermediate School District. His background includes having taught sex education classes for other districts.

Classes will begin Thursday, April 21, from 6:30-8 p.m.

The first class is for parents only. During this class input from both the parents and the instructor will be shared concerning upcoming sessions with the students.

The first night for students will be April 28. On this evening, Ponder will meet with junior high boys from 6:30-8 and senior high boys from 8-9:30 p.m.

May 5, he will meet with the junior high girls from 6:30-8 p.m. and senior high girls from 8-9:30 p.m.

The final session May 12 will include junior high boys and girls from 6:30-8 p.m. and senior high boys and girls from 8-9:30.

The sessions will cover a variety of topics including self-awareness, dating, the reality of decisions, and, effective communication.

Parents may attend the first session at no charge and may register their son or daughter at that time.

Phone registration for students will also be taken beginning April 11 by calling the Community Education Department at 872-4151.

The spoked wheel, historians estimate, was invented around 2000 B.C.

On the occasion of Irene Kuhne's birthday, her Canasta Club met for lunch and an afternoon of cards. Mrs. Kuhne is from Unionville and Lucille LaFave and Rose Patnaude attended from Gagetown.

Mrs. Richard (Evangeline) Marietta returned to her home last Monday after wintering in St. Petersburg, Fla.

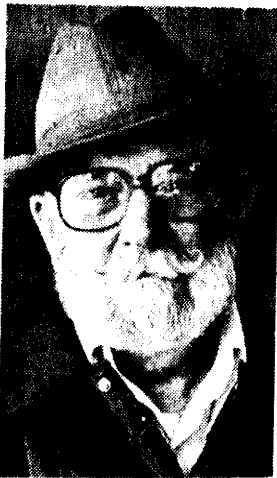

Monday evening, March 28, the "Tom Thumb Singers" community choir presentation in Cass City included several Gagetown residents, Patty and Bethany Rayl, Fern McCreedy, Linda Mikolon, Joan Sattleberg, Hilda Koch and choir director Andrea Hofmeister.

Friday afternoon callers at the Harry Kehoe home were Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Birch of Bay City.

Steven Schwartz died Wednesday, March 30, at Caro Community Hospital. He was 80 years old.

Easter Sunday guests of the Walds, Mary, Alma and George, were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Merz and family of Saginaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mosack and family of Flint spent Easter week end with Jim's mother, Mrs. Mildred Mosack.

Your neighbor says Taxes are much less in Florida

When it comes to paying taxes, Florida is a great place to live, according to Dewain Jones of Pringle Road, Snover.

He and his wife, Anne, returned home Saturday after having spent the winter with their daughter, who lives in Kissimmee, Fla.

They have three daughters living in Florida. The one who lives in Orlando, Jones said, pays annual taxes of about $65-68 a year on her home worth $40,000-50,000.

There is no state or city income taxes in Florida. The sales tax is 5 cents per dollar (1-cent more than in Michigan), but doesn't apply to food (like in Michigan) or gasoline (unlike Michigan).

In addition, most food is cheaper in Florida, "even beer and whiskey." Gasoline is also cheaper. He saw it selling for as low as 93 cents a gallon.

Despite the low taxes, "they have beautiful schools down there." Roads in Florida are "beautiful. Ours are broke to pieces," though he admitted Florida has the advantage of not having winter to break up the pavement.

How does that state get by with such low taxes? "Tourists mostly," Jones responded. "Almost everything is paid for by tourists."

There is even a tax on tickets to Disney World.

Why come back to Michigan when taxes are so low in Florida? "I got all my property here," Jones responded. He noted that when he bought his 80 acres in 1968, the yearly property taxes were $240 a year. Now they are more than $2,000.

Jones, 64, is a retired skilled tradesman from General Motors.

In addition to their three daughters in Florida, he and his wife have a daughter living in Grand Blanc, one in Omer, and a son, also named Dewain, living nearby on Pringle Road. They also have 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

1,000 in county due for benefits

Michigan Employment Security Commission offices Monday began taking claims for extended Federal Supplemental Compensation (FSC) unemployment benefits.

MESC Caro branch manager Charles Cramer expects about 1,000 Tuscola County residents who have exhausted their unemployment compensation will be signing up for the additional 10-14 weeks of benefits. Not all may ultimately qualify since the rules from the federal government haven't been released yet.

Because of the large number of persons eligible to sign up, MESC offices are accepting claims based on the last number of their Social Security number.

Those whose last number was 6 were to report this Thursday and 8 on Friday. The schedule for next week is: Last number 1, report Monday; 3, Tuesday; 5, Wednesday; 7, Thursday, and 9, Friday.

Cramer said those who missed their scheduled reporting date can come in any day.

The additional benefits were included in the Social Security bill passed by Congress and then signed by President Reagan March 30.

Under an amendment to the bill, FSC is extended to Sept. 30, and allows for up to either 10 or 14 weeks of additional benefits.

The MESC has projected that approximately 100,000 unemployed workers who have exhausted FSC benefits by April 1 will be eligible to collect up to 10 weeks of benefits.

Another 70,000 who are currently receiving FSC could collect up to 10 or 14 weeks of FSC benefits after April 1, depending on how many weeks of FSC they have already received.

Approximately 84,000 jobless workers are expected to exhaust their state and extended benefits after April 1. They could receive up to 14 weeks of FSC benefits until the federal law expires Sept. 30.

FSC was originally established last September as a federally-funded program providing up to 10 weeks of jobless benefits for those who had exhausted their regular state benefits and extended benefits. In January, the federal government added up to six weeks of benefits to the program.

Twenty-six weeks is the maximum amount of regular unemployment benefits. With the extensions, Cramer said, some jobless persons will qualify for a maximum of 65 weeks of unemployment compensation.

He added that the new extension means county Department of Social Services offices have to recompute welfare benefits for those who have previously exhausted their unemployment compensation then qualified for welfare.

In March, the number of jobless workers in Michigan increased 21,000 to a total of 720,000, for an unemployment rate of 17 percent, the same as it was in January. In February, it had declined to 16.5 percent.

Judge Kent addresses AAUW

New books at the library

The Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women met Tuesday, March 29, in the high school library with Sharon Dunn presiding.

Following a short business meeting, Tuscola County Probate Judge W. Wallace Kent Jr. was introduced as the speaker. His message was entitled, "Prepared For Today." His concern was for "latch key" children in Tuscola County. An attempt is being made to secure funds to institute a program in the elementary schools to educate children who may be responsible for themselves while adults are away from home.

The evening concluded with refreshments served by hostesses Linda Gray and Barb Kosal.

CHRISTINE by Stephen King (fiction). The scene is a middle-class suburb of Pittsburgh in 1978. The characters include Arnie Cunningham, a bookish and bullied high school senior; Dennis Guider, his friend and sometime protector; Leigh Cabot, the new girl in school, won by Arnie, but wanted by Dennis as well. Just another lovers' triangle, you say? Not quite. There's a fourth here, the second lady, the dark lady. "Cars are girls," Leigh Cabot says, and the dark force in Stephen King's new novel is a 1958 Plymouth named "Christine."

BLUEBIRD CANYON by Dan McCall (fiction). In the land of southern California, in a glorious mansion called Summer Snow, the threads of daily reality and the melodrama of soap opera intertwine. For Rex Hooker, star of America's favorite daytime television serial, reality and soap opera are one and the same. Rex has a bit of trouble separating the two. Funny yet touching, thoughtful yet entertaining, this story goes straight to the heart.

ESCAPE FROM SOBIBOR by Richard Rashke (non-fiction). It was the biggest prisoner escape of World War II, yet hardly anyone has heard of Sobibor, the Nazi death camp in eastern Poland where 600 Jews revolted and 300 made it to the woods. Because the Nazis destroyed the physical evidence and all but three documents about the camp, even Holocaust historians scarcely mention Sobibor. But they didn't destroy all the evidence. About 30 survivors of the camp are still alive, scattered throughout the world. Richard Rashke has found them, including the man who planned the escape. Their notes, diaries, a book in Portuguese, and above all their vivid memories have helped him recreate the escape from Sobibor.

Long hole

The longest golf hole in the world is the 17th hole at a course in North Carolina. It measures 745 yards, and is a par six.

Jimmy Strait and Buddy Gault of Smith's Downtown Pharmacy toast with a glass of aloe.

Mr. M.C. Percher of Rock Hill, S.C. said, "My wife and I are both taking AL-O-JEL. We have found that this has helped us more than most other products that we have been taking for arthritis. It helps the pain in my back and legs better than anything else."

Mr. Walter Oleson of Fort Mill, S.C. said, "I've had arthritis in my legs for 10 to 12 years and AL-O-JEL keeps the swelling down and relieves the pain. I can now get rest at night." Jame H. Mills of Rock Hill, S.C. said, "AL-O-JEL helps relieve pain, gas and soreness in my stomach."

Ball teams face problems in league races

New coach Fox expects team to be in contention

Coach Jim Fox in his first year as varsity softball coach at Cass City High School expects his team to be a solid contender for the Thumb B Association title and district and regional honors.

Although the Hawks were just 9-16 in 1982 the team has 10 lettermen returning. Included will be Jill Root, who is expected to anchor the pitching staff. She's been a mound fixture for four years for Cass City, but last year missed 80 percent of the season because of surgery. She returned to play well in the tournaments and Fox is looking for a great senior year from her.

Jill Hutchinson, pressed into duty when Root was on the shelf last year, steadily improved and will give the team mound depth. The Hawks lose a little when Hutchinson is on the mound as her coach calls her the premier defensive first baseman in the Thumb.

There's no problem at shortstop. Jamie Fox is a fixture there where she sweeps up everything hit her way and was all-conference, all-regional and honorable mention all-state in 1982.

Deanna Hempton will anchor the outfield. She was honorable mention all-league in 1982. She will be flanked by sophomore letterman Lisa Benitez and junior Sherri Horner who will share third base and the outfield positions. Benitez hit .900 as a freshman in tournament play-off games last season. Sophomore Coleen Irrer, up from the JV squad is being groomed to replace graduated Sherry Stee and Rhonda Fader, junior letterman, will hit or play somewhere. She was the designated hitter last season and earned all-conference honors.

Catching is up for grabs, Fox says. Senior Laura Richards and outstanding sophomore prospect Julie Smith are battling for the position. Joy Root, a good natural athlete and junior letterman, will see action in the outfield and at first base.

Lori Calka will see duty at any spot on the team except catching. Pam Sawdon's strong point is defense. Becky Severance is a sophomore prospect who led the JV team last season with a .595 average.

It may well be that one of the other members of the squad will win a starting spot before the season is over. They include Beth Adkins, Deanna Nichols, Jeanette Cross and Coni Tietjens.

Tax increase may solve fiscal woes

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

Michigan has joined other states with the enactment of an income tax increase to cover sagging state revenues.

The legislature hammered out agreement on Gov. James Blanchard's .38 percent income tax increase to solve an immediate $900 million budget deficit and prepare the state to provide for future services which have been subject to severe cuts during the past few years.

The new tax plan, which immediately increases the personal income tax rate from 4.6 percent to 6.35 percent (retroactive to Jan. 1), also recognizes an upturn in the economy and provides for reductions based on declining unemployment rates.

The tax also has specific roll-back dates for both the regular income tax and a .25 percent surcharge from which revenues are designated to be used to solve the state's immediate cash flow problems and bringing the state's bond rating back up.

FOLLOWING FINAL legislative action, Blanchard said the Legislature has taken the necessary first step. "Today, we began to stand up for ourselves," he said.

Blanchard added that with a little bit of luck, the package will put the state back into fiscal health, but that means by the third year at least, some economy recovery at the national level is necessary.

The income tax increase should produce some $675 million through the end of the current fiscal year - Sept. 30 - which is to be coupled with budget cuts ordered by Blanchard of $225 million to eliminate the projected deficit of $900 million.

THE REVISED PROPOSAL provides for a three-year automatic reduction to 5.35 percent (including the .25 percent accumulated deficit elimination surcharge) with unemployment rate reductions potentially further reducing the rate back to the current 4.6 percent or even to 3.9 percent should the state's unemployment rate reach 7 percent.

The tax rate goes up by 1.5 percentage points immediately through the end of the current calendar year. The hike will be reduced to 1.25 percent at the end of calendar 1984 and .5 percent after calendar 1985.

Besides the automatic reductions, unemployment rate reductions will work independently to further reduce the tax rate.

An adjusted scale would provide for a .1 percentage point reduction for every .5 percentage reduction in the unemployment rate, with the first reduction taking place when the rate drops to 14 percent.

The schedule would bring about a total elimination of the present increase should the unemployment rate reach 9 percent and the rate could go as low as 3.9 percent (the early 1970's rate) should unemployment ever return to 7 percent in Michigan.

A SPECIFIC EXPIRATION date of the .25 percent cash restoration surcharge was added to the final version of the bill.

The surcharge will automatically expire Sept. 30, 1986, even if the near $1 billion deficit in accumulated debt due to cash shortages and deviations from generally accepted accounting principles is not eliminated.

Legislative Republicans, who almost unanimously opposed the plan from the outset, continued to express concerns of the passage of the tax hike.

Republicans appeared willing to vote for a one-year tax proposal to help the state out of its immediate revenue problems, but charged taxes beyond a year would produce a revenue surplus, thus leading to additional state expenditures.

Pitching key for Hawk baseball team this year

Unless a host of juniors and sophomores come through with big seasons the Cass City Red Hawks could have trouble improving on last year's not so gaudy record.

In 1982 Cass City went 4-10 in the Thumb B Association and was 7-15 over-all. Back from this team are only five lettermen.

Gone are the two top performers. Jim Adkins, all-league first baseman and one of the two top pitchers on the team and Matt Lukshaitis, all conference designated hitter who transferred to Deckerville.

Gone too is the other ace of the mound staff in 1982 Willard Burdon. Other regulars lost include Ray Ferris, Darryl Hoag and Gary Robinson.

One of coach Don

Schelke's first priorities will be to form a pitching staff. Only Rick Pobanz, senior, has any mound experience among the varsity players. Despite this, Schelke feels that the young pitching staff has great potential and will improve steadily as it gains experience.

Schelke feels that junior Randy Nicholas and sophomores Bryan Beecher and Rich Randall will be quality pitchers as soon as they get enough varsity games under their belts.

Catching is another problem where Schelke is looking at Ed Robinson, a senior, and Bryan Adkins, the only freshman on the squad.

It's likely that Adkins will be used as a designated hitter if he handles the bat as well as expected.

If Pobanz isn't pitching you'll find him at shortstop. Terry Czekai is ticketed for second base and he'll play shortstop if Pobanz is on the mound.

Fred Zawilinski may be at third or first base. Senior Stewart Batts, back after a year in the west, is another first base prospect and Fred Hutchinson, a junior, will see duty at third base.

Senior Barry Lapp and junior Joe Langenburg are lettermen ticketed for outfield duty.

That's the early season plans for the club, but that all could change in a hurry once the squad gets outdoors and the players show what they can do on the field.

Weather permitting a non-league contest at Frankenmuth Thursday, April 14, will be the first test.

Four-month extension for taxes

The automatic extension to file the federal Form 1040 tax return has been increased from two to four months, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Taxpayers filing the Form 1040A or 1040-EZ, or those requesting the IRS to compute their tax, are not eligible for an automatic extension.

To obtain the 4-month extension beyond April 15, a taxpayer must complete Form 4868, "Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File U.S. Individual Income Tax Return," and forward it to the Service Center processing tax returns for his or her state. The form must be filed no later than April 15.

Taking stock

The stock market had a glorious year in 1982. At Christmas, when we were counting our blessings, we noted that the stock averages were 16.45 percent above the same date a year ago.

Now how did those stodgy old bonds do — those dull investments owned by reactionary old coots such as the writer?

The 20-year AA corporate bond that you bought at par 100 at year end 1981 climbed to 120.2 as 1982 bowed out. That's right — 20.2 percent up.

Ho hum.

In the meantime, your average bag of stocks included such horrors as International Harvester, Pan American, practically all the steels, A and P, and Woolworth.

No AA bond fell into such repute. You lost no sleep with your batch of bonds.

Let's look at your income during the year — dividends on stocks, interest on bonds:

Income on $1,000, 1982

Invested at year end, 1981

Stocks.....$63.70

Bonds.....$152.60

But you had capital gains, too, you argue. Yes, as noted at the start of this article:

Stocks....Up 16.45 percent

Bonds.....Up 20.2 percent

But stocks plowed back some of their earnings, goes the argument. The dividend you get is only part of the total earnings. OK — say if a stock earns $10 and you get only $5 in dividends, eventually you're going to get the other $5 in increased dividends or the stock itself will go up. Or both, maybe.

They call this figure of total earnings the "earning yield." It's the earnings of the stock (or averages, in these comparisons) divided by the price, and expressed as a percentage.

On Barron's 50-stock averages, the earnings for 1982 were 47.34. The averages a year ago were 44.2. That gives an earnings yield on the 1981 year-end price of 10.7 percent.

Compare:

$1,000 investment, 1982

Stocks earned...10.7 percent or $107

AA bonds earned...15.2 percent or $152

All the above figures compare taxable income, both bonds and stocks.

Tax-exempt bonds were even more spectacular. A $1,000 20-year municipal climbed from par to 135. A year ago the average yield was 13.94 percent. Now it's 9.84 percent.

Say your family income is around $35,000 and your highest tax rate or bracket is 35 percent.

On your dividends and interest on corporate bonds, you give back 35 percent in federal income tax. Here are after-tax returns if you pay 35 percent as your highest rate:

Net income on $1,000 investment, 1982

Stocks.....$41.40

Taxable bonds.....$99.19

Tax-exempt bonds...$139.40

The defense rests.

MUSICIANS from Owendale-Gagetown High School who performed in the March 26 state solo and ensemble festival in Flint, having qualified at the district festival, were, front row, Vicki Alexander (left), I rating, clarinet, and Dena McDonald, III, clarinet. Back row, from left, Brenda Schwartz, I, clarinet; Trina Peters, III, clarinet; Linda Retford, I, flute. Vicki and Brenda also received a I rating for their clarinet duet.

Superb job by Cass City choir

Dear Editor,

I would like to commend Andrea Hofmeister (choir director), Carol Kersten (accompanist), and the entire Tom Thumb Singers group.

They all did a superb job, and the entire community can be proud of them. What a great way to pull a community together!

History proves tornados threat to state's residents

If 1983 is a "typical" year, Michigan will be victimized by 19 tornados. One person will be killed and more than 30 injured. Property damage will add up to millions of dollars.

You can reduce the odds of becoming a twister statistic, however, according to an insurance industry spokesman.

"State residents can minimize risks by respecting the inherent danger and preparing for the worst," says Terry Buckles, president of Michigan Association of Insurance Companies. "There is little that can be done to prevent property damage, but tornados don't have to be killers."

In the past six years Michigan experienced 114 tornados, which resulted in seven deaths and almost 200 injuries.

One of the state's most devastating storms struck the Flint area in 1953. It claimed 116 lives and caused more than 800 injuries. More recently, a twister ripped through Kalamazoo in mid-May, 1980, killing five and injuring another 79 persons. That single tornado, with wind rotation speeds up to 206 mph, destroyed or damaged more than 1,200 buildings.

"Unfortunately, some people still don't take tornados seriously," Buckles said. "I suspect they rationalize that twisters always hit someone else's neighborhood."

THE MAIC SPOKESMAN says every household should establish a just-in-case procedure for tornados and practice it. "Everyone, especially children, should be fully aware of what to do when alerts are provided."

When a tornado watch is announced, MAIC advises gathering a first aid kit, flashlight, portable radio and extra batteries. Stay tuned to radio and television weather reports. A watch means conditions in your area are ripe for development of a tornado.

A tornado warning means a tornado has actually been sighted nearby and everyone in the area should take action.

A two-minute continuous blast of the fire siren signals a tornado warning.

Three short blasts of the siren signal an all-clear, that the possibility of a tornado has ended.

Go immediately to your basement, taking cover under something heavy, like a workbench. If you have no basement, move to the lowest floor possible, in a small room or closet. Again, stay low and if possible, under heavy furniture. Stay away from windows.

At work or school, if a basement is not available, move to an interior hallway on the lowest floor possible. Avoid rooms with a large, free span roof, like gymnasiums.

If caught in the open during a tornado warning, seek shelter in a ditch, ravine or other place below ground level and stay as low as possible.

TORNADOES ARE often accompanied by hail, high winds and thunderstorms. They usually move in a counter-clockwise, spiral motion with wind speeds that can reach 300 mph.

Air pressure inside a tornado is extremely low, creating a partial vacuum. That low pressure actually draws outside air into the tornado. Most destruction is caused by the vacuum, strong winds or flying debris.

Tornados normally move in a southwest to northeast direction, occurring with greater frequency when the temperature is between 70 and 75 degrees with high humidity. In Michigan, they can occur any time of the day or night.

Buckles also suggests that property owners review their insurance coverage to make sure it's adequate. "Many homeowners in Michigan don't have enough protection for a total loss," he said.

Even with partial losses, many homeowners could have financial difficulties if underinsured. Most policies require the insured to maintain coverage levels equal to at least 80 percent of replacement cost. If not, the company won't pay the full cost of repairing, replacing or rebuilding for such partial losses.

"Another thing we suggest is to maintain an up-to-date inventory of personal property," Buckles adds. "A tornado can destroy possessions or scatter them beyond recovery. The inventory will help speed up any insurance settlement."

Novesta church revival set

The Novesta Church of Christ will conduct its annual spring revival meetings April 10-15, starting each evening at 7:30.

The theme will be "All Things Become New," with Dave Altman, minister at the Ellettsville Christian Church, Ellettsville, Ind., as guest speaker. He and his wife, Becky, served the Novesta Church of Christ about 15 years ago.

The church is located on Cemetery Road, 3½ miles south of the stop light. The public is invited. A nursery will be provided each evening.

Thumb area sheep sale Saturday

Sheep breeders in the Thumb area have consigned 80 head of lambs to their spring club sale Saturday at the Sanilac County 4-H Fairgrounds in Sandusky.

The lambs will be on exhibit during the morning and the sale will start at 1 p.m.

The wether lambs will be suitable for 4-H and FFA members to feed out for county fairs. Several head of purebred ewe lambs and some yearling ewes are also consigned to the sale and will be suitable for improving the quality of local flocks.

Lunch will be available at the fairgrounds and a seminar on selection and feeding of sheep will be held at 12:30, prior to the sale. The event is sponsored by the Thumb Sheep Breeders Association.

BEN FRANKLIN

106th Anniversary Sale

Join us, along with more than 1700 Ben Franklin stores across the country, in celebrating our 106th birthday with values on quality products for your home and family. Stop in and share the savings we have in-store for you!

Item of the Week

1-Gallon Tapper Jars

2.97 each

The perfect way to mix and serve your favorite summer drinks! With no-drip, push-button spout, and free sample of Orange Cinnamon tea.

"IT IS Ben Franklin's policy to have all items in stock during the sale period. Because this circular is printed approximately 90 days prior to the sale date, there could be an unforeseen delay, or in some cases non-shipment of an item. We regret any inconvenience and will, to the best of our ability, offer a suitable substitute. We do reserve the right to limit the quantity on some items and special prices are in effect only during the sale period while quantities last."
