School board to spend $90,000 for repairs

The Cass City School District will spend an estimated $90,000 for building and site improvement in 1983-84 it was decided Monday night at a special meeting of the school board.

The meeting was called to determine priorities for capital spending. It was suggested by Supt. Don Crouse that roofs on the Intermediate gym and Campbell Elementary buildings be replaced or repaired. Also that the Intermediate School parking lots, the bus drive and area on the north side of Campbell between the bus drive and the building be repaired.

However, discussion indicated that the roofs of Campbell and Deford were in immediate need of attention.

The board agreed with Ben Hobart, trustee, who said the roofs that leak must be repaired. The priorities established were to fix all of the roofs.

Estimates of the cost for Evergreen was about $25,000 and for Deford $25 to $30,000. The present roof at Deford was built in 1953.

The Intermediate gym and band rooms will have a tar roof similar to the one it replaces. Estimated life of these roofs are 15 years or more.

The type of roof that will be placed at Campbell is in question. The board is investigating a new rubber-type roof. They are expected to last longer, but are more expensive. A decision on the type of roof will be made when costs are determined.

An estimated $16,000 will be spent to repair the drive that circles the parking lot in front of the high school.

Gravel for the newly created parking lot at the Intermediate School will cost about $700. A sprinkler system for the cafeteria is required by insurance and will cost $1,500.

NO AID

Crouse told the board that Federal entitlement money is not available for a developmental kindergarten room. The teacher must be paid by the district.

The superintendent estimates that the net cost to the district will be $3,500. That's with five students, he added. With six the cost will be less and the district will break even with seven in the class.

Mrs. Lana Nicholas appeared before the board to ask for donations to the bake and yard sale that was being held at her home by Evergreen School boosters.

Man killed near Fairgrove

Two die in Monday crash at Gagetown

A two-car accident west of Gagetown Monday killed two lives.

An accident Saturday killed a Fairgrove man.

Killed Monday were Isaac Gingrich, 92, of 8240 N. Van Dyke Road, Cass City, one of the drivers involved, and Victoria M. Orzel, 75, of Gwinn, a former Cass City and Gagetown resident, who was a passenger in the other vehicle.

Its driver, Mary Ploski, 71, of Center Line, and the other passenger, Mrs. Orzel's husband, Walter, 76, were both reported in serious condition Tuesday afternoon at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies reported Gingrich's auto was headed east on Bay City-Forestville Road in the westbound lane and collided head-on with the westbound Ploski auto. The accident took place at 11:50 a.m.

Gingrich was dead on arrival at Hills and Dales, according to the sheriff's department. Mrs. Orzel died there at 3:35 p.m.

An autopsy was performed on Gingrich at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw, but results were not immediately available.

Isaac Nelson Gingrich was born Sept. 5, 1890, in Akron Township, the son of Amos and Eva (Cober) Gingrich.

He married Luella Fetter Dec. 15, 1922, in Caro. They made their home in Caro, later moving to Detroit. He moved to Naches, Wash., before returning to Cass City in 1972. Mrs. Gingrich died Jan. 26, 1976.

He served with the U. S. Army during World War I.

He was a member of the National Rifle Association and attended the First Baptist Church of Cass City.

Gingrich is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Victor (Pauline) Rhodes of Caro; two sons, Veron Gingrich of Cass City and Orlin Gingrich of Bay City; 14 grandchildren, and 22 great-grandchildren. Two sisters and one brother preceded him in death.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Friday at Little's Funeral Home, Cass City, with Rev. John R. Wood of the First Baptist Church of Cass City officiating.

Burial arrangements were incomplete as of press time.

Victoria Marie Orzel was born July 28, 1907, in McKeesport, Pa., the daughter of Francis and Mary Solecki.

Miss Solecki married Walter N. Orzel Sept. 7, 1930, in Detroit. They first made their home in Detroit, later moving to Gagetown, Cass City and to Gwinn from Marquette.

She was a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Gwinn, and its Altar Society; the Altar Society of St. Agatha Catholic Church of Gagetown and the Altar Society of St. Pancratius Catholic Church of Cass City.

Mrs. Orzel is survived by her husband; two sons, Victor Orzel of Gwinn and Thomas Orzel of Unionville; one daughter, Mrs. David (Joan) Cowell of Gwinn; one sister, Mrs. Andrew Habina of Dunbar, Pa., and six grandchildren. Five brothers preceded her in death.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Thursday at St. Pancratius Catholic Church of Cass City with Rev. Joseph Morales officiating.

Burial will be in the Gwinn Cemetery.

SATURDAY FATALITY

Killed in a 10:30 a.m. accident was William A. Tonkin, 68. He was taken to Caro Community Hospital and then transferred to St. Mary's, where he died at 6:16 p.m. that day.

O-G reokays loan request; awaits transfer hearings

The Owendale-Gagetown School Board at a special meeting Monday evening approved a second resolution authorizing borrowing of $590,000.

The board approved the first such resolution at its regular meeting June 13, with the money to be repaid from next year's property tax collections.

Supt. Ronald Erickson said the first resolution wasn't "quite right," so the board approved a revised resolution authorizing Erickson to file the request to borrow with the Michigan Department of Treasury.

In other action, the board established Friday, July 8, starting at 8 p.m. at the high school as the first contract negotiating session with the Tri-County Bargaining Association.

It was one of the dates suggested by the TCBA, according to its chief negotiator, Bob Gengler.

Most of the hour meeting was devoted to discussing two hearings in Lansing this week and which board members would be able to attend them in addition to Erickson.

The State Tenure Commission had a hearing scheduled this Tuesday and Wednesday regarding teacher Nancy Folk. According to the superintendent, the Michigan Education Association is contending that when the district withheld part of her pay as reimbursement for the unemployment compensation she received, it was tantamount to a demotion and a violation of the master contract with teachers.

Wednesday, hearing officer Ray Godmer will conduct three supplemental property transfer hearings at the request of the State Board of Education.

The board tabled two of the property transfer requests in 1976 and one in 1979, pending a Supreme Court ruling in the Goslin transfer case. It now wants updated information.

Two of the hearings involve requested transfers

Village discovers little interest in Bauman home

The Cass City Village Council's white elephant came back to haunt it Tuesday.

The council received only one bid for the sale of the house located on the Bauman property it purchased last year.

The bid for $150 was from Richard Emmons of Bay City-Forestville Road, Gagetown.

Last September, he was also the only bidder, but the council rejected his offer of $100, feeling the house was worth more.

This time, it appears the council will accept Emmons' bid, but not yet. "It's quite obvious no one (else) wants it," trustee Dorothy Stahlbaum commented. "Maybe we should be happy..."

James Ware expressed fear, however, that Emmons might only remove the salvageable items from the home and leave the rest standing.

The council thus decided to have the public utilities committee consult with Emmons and then report back, after which it will decide whether to accept the bid. If accepted he will have until Sept. 1 to remove or tear down the house.

The council meeting lasted less than one hour. There was discussion about what can be done to stop drag racing on the road at the east end of the park to the swimming pool.

"Somebody is going to get killed and it's going to be a little kid," Elwyn Helwig commented.

After the meeting, council members inspected the new Lions Club pavilion. After the July 4th festival is over, when village workers have the time, they will block off the portion of the road between the pavilion and softball diamonds.

All traffic will then be routed around the left side of the "island" on which the pavilion is located, which will eliminate drivers racing around the "island" as they do now.

After the road is blocked off, there won't be any parking between the pavilion and softball diamonds.

The road around the far side of the "island" is supposed to be wide enough for parking plus two lanes of traffic.

TAXES

Summer tax bills were mailed June 28.

The millage rate is 12.7995 mills for operations, an increase of .0028, and a 2.5 mills for debt retirement, the same as last year.

(The Chronicle reported following the May council meeting that the operating millage rate in 1982 was 12.82 mills, which would mean a slight reduction in this year's levy, to 12.7995.

The actual 1982 figure was 12.7067. The new levy is a slight increase but won't result in more revenue to the village. For homeowners, the slight increase will mean a difference of $3.4 in their taxes, on the average, compared to a year ago.)

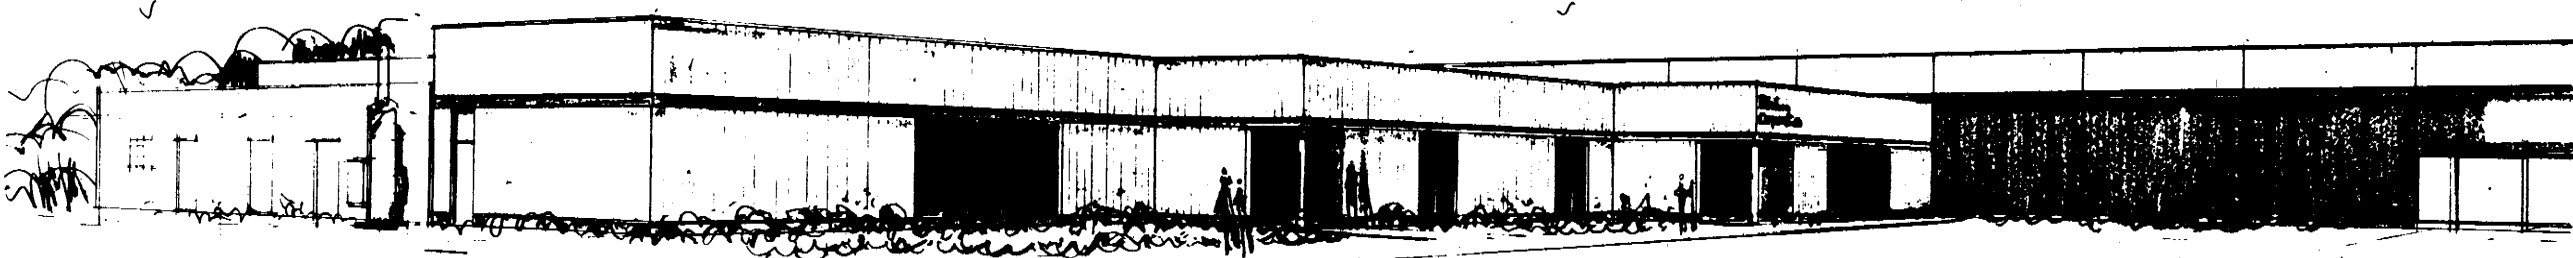

TOP TAXPAYERS

The top 10 individual taxpayers in Cass City, Treasurer Joyce LaRoche reported, are

G.K. Technologies (General Cable), total of $19,091 in real and personal property taxes; Walbro Corp., $17,152; Beverly Enterprises (Provincial House), $7,494; Detroit Edison, $4,720; Charmont, $3,647; Pillsbury Corp., $3,484; Northwood Heights Apartments, $3,438; Thomas Heron, $3,436; Marshall Distributing, $3,314, and Cass City State Bank, $2,671.

Architect's sketch of Walbro addition

Lambert Althaver, president and chief executive officer at Walbro Corporation, this week revealed plans for a 13,000-square-foot addition in Cass City.

The addition will be to the west side of the present engineering building. It will serve as the headquarters for the carburetor group.

The present headquarters building that currently serves both the carburetor group and corporate headquarters will be for corporate offices only.

The new building will be split with about half being used for engineering and the rest for new offices.

The building will have 10 individual offices, a general room for secretaries and other work and a conference room.

Plans were sent to contractors for bids Friday and construction will start as soon as the contracts are awarded.

Althaver said that he expects that to be sometime in the middle of July with completion by the end of the year.

The new building was needed, Althaver explained, because of the increased need for technical advances.

We have been adding staff for this purpose and will continue to do so, he explained.

Although not a part of the present expansion, provisions for future expansion have been made. When more manufacturing space is needed, a 40,000 square foot addition can be made that will connect the present manufacturing building and the new addition.

The company expects to produce throttle bodies for a major manufacturer starting in September.

It's great that the bridge on M-53 north of M-81 is to be replaced. That bridge is unsafe, but not as hazardous as the one on M-24, south of Mayville.

You come around a bend and there it is, just about wide enough for two cars to pass uncomfortably.

Fortunately, the M-24 bridge is scheduled to be replaced this summer.

The new Walbro office building is a shot in the economic arm for Cass City. Maybe it's just what we need to fill the store previously operated profitably by Bernard Ross before he retired.

We caught it from many of our Senior Citizen friends by objecting last week to special discounts due to age.

A cleverly written letter went across my desk this week asking me to "join the crowd." I can't print it for you because it wasn't signed.

That's too bad. I would have liked to let you read it.

The Ken Eisingers blew into town this week from Florida, complaining about the cool weather. (They should have been here Sunday.)

I suppose that even Sunday wouldn't have been all that hot for someone living the year-around in the sunshine state.

Personal preference: Tuesday's cool weather over Sunday's scorcher anytime.

Schumacher state bus driving champ

Ublly school bus driver Leonard Schumacher won the state school bus driving roadeo last Wednesday in Lansing.

Schumacher, a driver for the past nine years, is a four-time qualifier for the state school bus roadeo, in Lansing. He has finished third once and was the winner once before.

According to Schumacher, the state is divided into 13 regions and each sends three drivers to the state competition. This year one qualifier did not show up so the number of drivers was 38.

Drivers are scored on a written exam, a pre-trip inspection with a group of judges and a driving test.

"It was real good, clean competition," Schumacher said. "They all were nice people and it was a lot of fun."

For his efforts, he received a large award. "I got a 32-33-inch tall trophy, the biggest one I got yet," he noted.

To reach the state roadeo, Schumacher had to take part in the regional roadeo in Marine City where 35 bus drivers competed from four counties. He won and qualified for the trip to Lansing along with Dan Pollum, the Ublly School bus mechanic, who finished second. In the state competition, Pollum finished 14th.

Schumacher's next competition will be the nationals.

"At state, there were three winners who all qualified for the national roadeo in Cincinnati July 25-26," he said.

Five thefts reported to Cass City police

Five thefts were reported to Cass City police during the past several days.

Theft of 22 new and uninfated Mikasa basketballs, still in wrappers, was reported Friday.

The balls were taken by forcing open a locked wood storage locker in the coaching room at Cass City Intermediate School. They were worth $15 each, for a total of $330.

The theft was discovered by transportation director Jim Fox and took place some time since 5 p.m. Monday of last week.

Ronald Weippert of 6371 Houghton Street told police last Thursday morning that his Homelite XL chainsaw was stolen from his truck while it was parked in the driveway beside his house since 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Taken in addition to the chainsaw were the case it was in, two extra chains, file and power tip, worth a total of $250. The gas cap from the truck and about 10 gallons of gasoline from the tank were also missing.

Donald A. Teeple of Minden City reported to Cass City police Tuesday, June 21, that his Seiko watch worth $160 was stolen from the Intermediate School May 10.

Robert White of 6571 Houghton Street told police Monday that a 10-speed boy's bicycle, rusty red in color with 26-inch wheels, was stolen from his porch, probably Saturday night.

Dorothy M. Campbell of 5560 Bond Road, Deford, reported to sheriff's deputies Saturday morning that eight long guns and a microwave oven were stolen from her home and a bedroom was ransacked.

She also reported that a green vase was stolen from her father's home on Phillips Road, Kingston Township.

A 15-year-old boy has been questioned by deputies in connection with the thefts.

Theft of a chainsaw from a residence on Cemetery Road in Novesta Township was reported to deputies last Thursday, but details weren't available by Tuesday.

Because of recent trouble on a Detroit bus, it is expected that Michigan Gov. James Blanchard will reconsider plans to establish a state Office of Official Tattooing (OOT).

The purpose of OOT would be to provide the public with information concerning the Michigan Youth Corps which, at a cost of 40 million tax dollars, will pick up trash and otherwise improve the public ecology this summer.

It is the seasonal aspect of the corps that led to the possibility of tattooing a short message on the forehead of each of its 25,000 members.

At first, it was believed the message would receive wide enough circulation if it were simply printed on a decal attached to corps members' clothing. But then an alert Blanchard aide pointed out that people working outside in Michigan summers often get so hot they remove much of their clothing and roll it up into unreadable balls.

A forehead tattoo, done tastefully, seemed a reasonable solution to the heat problem.

Of course, there are some skeptics who insist there is no real need for the message, on clothing or on skin. They charge that Blanchard is simply advertising himself in an attempt to persuade voters that he knows how to do something besides raise taxes — he also knows how to employ young people as walking billboards.

The message is short: "Michigan Youth Corps — Governor James J. Blanchard." It will cost around 60,000 tax dollars to put it on corps caps, vests, hard hats and buttons. No estimate has been made of the cost of tattooing it on foreheads.

A youth corps staff member denied that the governor is ambitious to have his name become well-known for being on the seats of jeans. "We want the public to be aware of the jobs program and the valuable work being done. Also, we want feedback from the public about how the kids are doing," the staffer told the press.

But the skeptics say if the young workers must wear a signed label, it should be signed by the taxpayers paying their salaries, not by a politician who wants to impress voters with his really deep concern for unemployed youngsters, trashy freeways and gubernatorial election ballots.

Blanchard's critics were further alarmed by the rumor that the man he planned to appoint director of OOT is an auto executive in charge of persuading car buyers that license plates cannot be properly attached to cars unless inserted in plate holders upon which the name of the dealer who sold the car is prominently displayed.

Blanchard's supporters answered that even if the governor is advertising himself a little, it is nothing unusual. For instance, it says Coleman Young — Moving Detroit Forward" near the doors of most city buses. Naturally, the paramount reason for this message is to inform the public that the buses have no reverse gear. But there is no denying that inclusion of the mayor's name allows him to receive a little glory everytime a bus driver forgets to close the door on someone's head.

However, there was a shoot-out on a city bus the other day. One passenger was wounded and several others had to flee for their lives through windows. Such an unfortunate incident raises the question of whether some political advertising does more harm than good.

Mayor Young probably doesn't want to be identified with a bus whose passengers had to move forward to keep from getting shot. And Gov. Blanchard would probably be glad if a Youth Corps member, before falling asleep on a shovel, took off the vest with Blanchard's name on it.

So, after considerable thought, Blanchard will probably nix the Office of Official Tattooing. A hard hat can be removed, but a tattooed forehead is forever.

Unless all Youth Corps members who embarrass Blanchard could be forced to grow bangs.

The Haire Net

When the economy was souring, inflation was rampant and Michigan was suffering from a depression in the auto industry, the news media was blamed for making a bad situation worse.

The line heard by every publisher was that by printing the bad news the papers were making people lose confidence in the future and fueling the economic woes of all.

That's one of the hazards of this business. The other is blaming the paper for printing news that the person involved would probably just as soon not have published.

Most times the complainer attempts to shift the blame on the paper, as if printing that Johnny stole a car was the cause of all the trouble. Suggesting that if no one knew everything would be okay.

Certainly, there are exceptions. All papers withhold names of persons under 17 except in cases where the crime was so great that authorities agree to try the youth in circuit rather than probate court.

Some publishers these days are questioning whether withholding these names is in the best public interest. That huge drug ring, Young Boys, Inc., in Detroit that operates with under adult age youths is an example.

The youths' names are unpublished and kids are used because when caught and sentenced in probate court they are free again when they reach legal age.

Granted there are no rings like that operating in the Thumb, but who can question that there is more crime here today than there was five years ago?

But let's return to reporting the bad economic news. If printing only the "good" news were the answer, conditions should be ideal in Brazil and in the Soviet Union.

They only print what they are told to print there. The trouble is that when they do, no one believes it. Otherwise why would the countries be in woeful economic condition?

You can blame the media for not getting all the facts right at times. The Chicago Tribune had Thomas Dewey elected president, persons with long memories will recall.

But honest mistakes are quickly rectified. No one tells the United States press what to write.

So when economic news is good, most everybody doesn't even think about questioning its validity.

That faith is one the media works hard to preserve and does it by taking its lumps when forced to write what most of us just don't like to hear.

But, like castor oil, it's good for us.

Appoint 5 to board for job training

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday appointed five representatives to serve on the new Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) Private Industry Council.

They were Don Tonti and Gloria Ouyry, both of Cass City; Jim White and Forrest Walpole of Caro, and Jim Wheeler of Vassar.

They will serve on a 30-member council that will oversee operation of job training programs in Tuscola, Lapeer, Huron and Sanilac Counties under the new federally funded JTPA program which starts Oct. 1.

The commissioners endorsed an application by the Human Development Commission for $14,900 in federal funds for a minor home repair program for senior citizens.

If the grant is received, it will be enough to pay for repair of nine homes in Tuscola and eight each in Huron and Sanilac.

Commissioners appropriated $1,000 to the HDC to help it defray the cost of distributing government surplus cheese and butter to needy persons.

Advertising for bids for repair of the backup water well at the county Medical Care Facility was approved.

Pedaling Around

Class of 1963

By Mike Eliasohn

Probably no one was thinner, but some were definitely fatter.

A lot can change in 20 years.

Saturday evening was the 20-year reunion of my Lansing Eastern High School graduating class.

Twenty years seems like a long time, yet it doesn't seem like it was that long ago that the Class of '63 received their diplomas.

Having never been married and not having children, I think my life has changed less than some others. Maybe that's why 20 years doesn't seem that long.

In contrast, some of my fellow graduates who married young already have children who graduated from high school.

And some are still having children. One person wasn't there because his wife had given birth to a baby a few days before.

It would have been interesting to know how many graduates are still married to their first spouse, how many are since divorced and how many are on their second or third marriage. Or maybe their fourth.

One non-Eastern graduate, whose husband is a '63 Eastern graduate, told me that at her seven-year high school reunion, one of her fellow female alumni had been married four times. Assuming she got married the first time just after she graduated, that's an average of one year and nine months per marriage.

One fellow graduate I talked to who married her high school sweetheart and is still married to him said they were one of 20 couples

Cheese, butter distributed

According to Mary Vandemark, executive director at the Human Development Commission in Caro, 1,650 pounds of cheese and 608 pounds of butter were given away Friday at the cheese and butter distribution in the Evangelical Free Church parking lot in Cass City.

She added that 10,350 pounds of cheese and 3,840 pounds of butter were distributed throughout Tuscola County.

they knew of from the Class of '63 who married the person they dated in high school within a couple years of graduation. Of the 20, 17 are still married.

That's rather impressive, considering that about one of three marriages these days ends in divorce.

Thirty-eight isn't old -- at least I keep telling myself that -- but a couple of my fellow alumni were there with their husbands, who looked around 50. That to me seems old. (Of course, 10 years from now, it won't.)

In contrast, there were a couple male graduates whose wives didn't look more than 20. The wives were definitely worth looking at, but somehow, they seemed out of place.

(I assume they were their wives. I can't imagine any woman who would willingly go to her boyfriend's high school reunion.)

Age and aging is all a matter of perspective. Overall, I thought the men in the group looked better aged than did the women.

In contrast, my sister, who graduated from Eastern in 1960, said that at her 20-year reunion, she thought the women at her reunion looked better.

As I recall, there were 444 in my graduating class, so even the most gregarious -- and I was far from being gregarious -- didn't know everyone.

The reunion organizers made name tags with the picture of the graduate on it, photocopied from the yearbook.

As a result, there was a lot of, "gee, you look familiar, but I can't remember your name."

Unfortunately, the names under the pictures on the tags were typed and it was necessary, especially in the dim light, to bend over to read the name.

Rumor had it that one male grad almost got clobbered when he leaned over to read the name tag pinned to the top of a female graduate's strapless dress.

Corn will probably be doing well the way the weather has been to be knee high by the Fourth of July. Anyone who has corn that would make a good photo, please give me a call.

NO-TILL MEETING -- Discussing no-till soybeans last Thursday were, facing camera, from left, Gary Ross (kneeling); Bill Cohill, representative of a chemical company; John Posselius, Cooperative Extension Service; Ken Hofmeister, on whose farm the beans were planted, and Phil Dakin, Soil Conservation Service. Other than Hofmeister and Ross, who also has no-till soybeans, the meeting only attracted four farmers.

Soybeans planted without tillage look promising

Harvest time is still more than two months away, but a comparison of soybeans planted without prior tillage looks very promising, compared to those planted the conventional way.

Area farmers had an opportunity to see for themselves last Thursday at a meeting sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service (CES) and U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

The session was held at the Ken and Andrea Hofmeister farm on Hobart Road, southwest of Gagetown, where eight acres of no-till soybeans were planted next to 10 acres planted with conventional methods. All 18 acres were planted May 17.

Corn was grown there last year and in the no-till portion, the corn stubble is still on the surface.

On the conventional tillage acreage, Hofmeister explained, the field was sprayed once to kill quackgrass, then plowed, followed by two passes with secondary tillage equipment, then planted and finally sprayed. That's a total of six trips across the field.

On the no-till, the field was sprayed once to kill the quackgrass, planted and then sprayed to kill weeds -- a total of three trips. A Caro implement dealer donated use of a tractor and no-till planter.

The no-till will probably have to be sprayed once more to kill weeds. The conventional acreage will be cultivated once to kill weeds and then cultivated a second time or sprayed.

The soybeans were planted in 30-inch rows, eight seeds per foot, with the no-till planted at a one-inch depth.

IN ADDITION TO the time saved from making fewer trips across the fields, the no-till results in significant reduction in soil loss.

SCS District Conservationist Phil Dakin pointed out that with conventional tillage, there can be a loss of up to 7 tons per acre per year, whereas the test plot soil can only tolerate 5 tons loss without repercussions.

In contrast, because of the heavy corn residue remaining, the loss will be less than 1 ton per acre.

Although the no-till soil takes longer to warm up in the spring, CES Agricultural Agent John Posselius pointed out, once it does warm up, the soil won't get as warm in the daytime or as cool at night as does a field where conventional tillage is used.

Another advantage to no-till is moisture retention. One farmer scraped away the corn residue and a little soil with the toe of his boot to find moist earth, despite the extremely dry conditions of late.

He had to dig a little deeper to find moisture between the conventionally planted rows.

Hofmeister said the plant growth of the no-till soybeans was, at most, a day behind that of the conventionally planted ones, but without rain soon, the no-till ones will probably surpass the other ones.

A CES field agent, Posselius said, will be carefully monitoring the side-by-side fields this summer for insects, weeds and water stress and will make an accurate yield comparison check when the soybeans are harvested.

ALTHOUGH NO-TILL appears to have advantages in time saving, erosion control and moisture retention, Hofmeister, who grew some no-till corn the past three years, offered

Lightning results in 47-minute blackout

Lightning struck an electric pole early Monday causing 865 Detroit Edison power customers in part of Gagetown and the surrounding area to be without electricity for 47 minutes, according to George Andersen, general supervisor at Edison's Caro office.

Elkland Township firemen responded to a 5:15 a.m. report that a fire was burning at the top of the pole on Dodge Road, about one mile south of Gagetown.

The lightning struck a pole just south of a substation which locked out the customers served by the substation.

Elkland firefighters stayed until Detroit Edison workers arrived to fix the damaged pole.

GRASS FIRES

Elkland Township firemen were called to extinguish a grass fire at a home owned by Russ Schneeberger at 6095 Kelly Road Friday evening.

According to Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr., Steve Schneeberger, who rents the home, called at 7:17 to report flames were burning out of control in the yard.

Apparently flames had spread from a burning trash barrel to the dry grass.

By the time firefighters were able to quench the flames, about a half-acre of land had burned along with a pile of wood and rubbish.

Another grass fire was reported at 5:55 p.m. Saturday at 5276 Crawford Road, just south of Mushroom in Kingston Township.

J.A. Carl called Elkland Township firemen to his home after his lawn caught fire from papers being burned in a trash burner, Root said.

The flames scorched about 1½ acres of grass before firemen put it out.

Kingston Township firemen also responded to the call but got there after Elkland firefighters doused the flames.

NO-TILL SOYBEANS -- Leaves of the soybean plants can be seen protruding through the corn stubble. The planter cuts a slit in the soil, through the stubble, in which the seeds are planted.

Her duties as president carry a different responsibility since the senior president is often asked to represent the school at many community activities or to help participate in state functions.

CELERY IS NEW TREAT WHEN IT'S STIR-FRIED

The Chinese have contributed countless inventions and innovations to the world, but one of the most delightful things they've done is teach us to stir-fry vegetables—especially the fibrous ones like celery.

Celery, which has so many crunchy, savory, virtues as a raw vegetable, could make the top in popularity as a cooked vegetable if more kitchen artists tried stir-frying it. The result is pleasantly tender, yet properly crunchy, too, and the flavor is exquisite. Besides all that, it can be satisfyingly low calorie.

Right now is a good time to get acquainted with stir-fried celery, according to home economists at the IGA Kitchens in Chicago. "Supplies of celery are steady the year around," says Harry Lenda. "It's one vegetable that isn't seasonal. There's always a crop being shipped from some part of the United States—and of course many of our stores have access to local celery." The green Pascal-type holds its color especially well in this kind of cooking.

This recipe from the IGA Kitchens for Stir-Fried Celery, Beef and Scallions is easy on the calories but amply satisfying.

STIR-FRIED CELERY, BEEF AND SCALLIONS
1 stalk Florida celery 1 teaspoon salt
8 to 10 scallions or green onions 1 teaspoon sugar
1 pound flank steak 2 teaspoons soy sauce
¼ cup vegetable oil, divided 2 teaspoons dry sherry

Trim stem end from celery; remove leaves (use in soups, salads, stews, etc.). Separate stalk into ribs; thinly slice ribs on the diagonal (makes about 6 cups). Cut scallions in half lengthwise and then into 1½ inch pieces (makes about 2 cups). Slice flank steak on the diagonal across the grain into 1/8-inch slices. In a large wok or skillet heat 2 tablespoons of the oil. Add meat; stir-fry until browned, about 2 minutes; remove from wok. Add remaining 2 tablespoons oil; heat until hot. Add celery; stir-fry until barely crisp-tender, 4 to 6 minutes. Return beef to wok. Stir in scallions, salt, sugar, soy sauce and sherry. Stir-fry until vegetables are just crisp-tender and hot, about 1 minute.
YIELD: 4 to 6 portions.

Aerobatics show near Sandusky

Some of the best aerobatic pilots in the country will be competing Friday through Sunday at the Michigan Open Aerobatic Championships at Sandusky Airport.

There will be air shows starting at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and competition Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. until about 5 p.m.

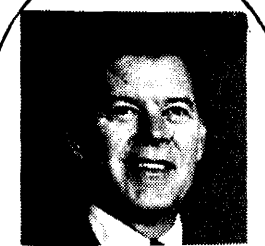

The airport is located two miles north of Sandusky on M-19. The only charge will be $1 for parking.

Chairman Don Larson of Harbor Beach said at least 30 planes will be competing, with pilots coming from as far as Texas and Arizona. Some will be coming from Canada. Among those competing will be Henry Haigh of Holland, Mich., rated number 2 in the world.

Judges on the ground score the pilots on the maneuvers they make in the air. The maneuvers must be flown within a "box" 1,000 meters long (3,280 feet), 1,000 meters wide and no more than 3,500 feet above the ground. Maneuvers include loops, rolls and spins.

Most of the planes used, Larson said, are Pitts Specials, factory or home built, which are biplanes weighing 800-900 pounds with 200 horsepower engines. Some have open cockpits.

In addition to the aerobatics, there will also be sky divers and flying of radio controlled model airplanes.

Your neighbor says Supreme Court ruling wrong on abortion

Last Wednesday, the U.S. Supreme Court "reaffirmed and refined" women's constitutional right to end their pregnancies.

In its most important decision on the subject, in a decade, the high court struck down a series of state and local regulations making abortions more difficult to obtain.

The court's new ruling voided rules which required: 1) doctors to tell abortion seekers about alternatives, 2) women to receive abortions only in a "full-service hospital" after the third month, and 3) doctors to wait 24 hours after a woman signs consent forms before performing an abortion.

Cathy Chard of Decker thinks the Supreme Court made a moral mistake just as it did 10 years ago.

"I don't approve of (the decision) at all," she said, "because it's a life. After just having a baby, there's no way I could."

She and her husband Tom are the proud parents of a two-week-old son named Kristopher. They also have a son, Kevin, 4.

In Michigan, the government pays for abortions for women on welfare who choose to terminate their pregnancies.

"They have a choice, they didn't have to get pregnant," Mrs. Chard said of women in such circumstances. "If they can live with themselves afterward (after an abortion), but I know I couldn't."

Cass City racer 8th in Ohio

Joe Frederick did well over the week end in his biggest race to date since he started racing Odyssey four-wheel all-terrain vehicles.

Racing in the ATV summer nationals in Ohio, the Cass Cityan started 25th in the finals because of qualifying problems. Despite starting so far back, he worked his way up to third with two laps to go in the 10-lap race when he spun out while trying to pass two already lapped cars. He recovered to finish eighth.

Frederick said he would have done better had he only been racing against modified entries like his, but the race also included more powerful super modifieds.

The half-mile dirt course included right and left turns and three jumps, with top speeds of 70 miles per hour.

Frederick's teammate on the Selective Engineering Racing Team, Andy Auten of Caseville, formerly of Cass City, also qualified for the finals, but because of mechanical problems, did not start.

The other two members of the team, Jim Benkelman and Bill Overman, both of Cass City, didn't compete in Ohio.

Mutual Savings buys five new branch offices in state

Mutual Savings and Loan Association, headquartered in Bay City, has reached agreement with U.S. Mutual Financial Group of Detroit for purchase of all branch offices of Michigan Savings and Loan Association of Ann Arbor. Mutual President Bruce W. Cook has announced.

Pending final regulatory approval, the acquisition will add five new branches to Mutual's statewide branch network of 27.

New branches will be in Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Muskegon, Royal Oak, and Canton Township in Wayne County. All of the branch locations except Ann Arbor are located inside Meijer Shopping Centers.

Mutual Savings, with 1982 year-end assets of over $482 million, ranks as Michigan's sixth largest savings and loan. Michigan Savings assets at year-end were $58,857,057.

"This acquisition represents a new challenge for our 95-year-old association, but with it comes great opportunity," Cook said.

"We are convinced that our expansion into these new markets combined with our industry leading service offerings will be successful and rewarding for the Association and our customers."

Charmont cops tourney at Ubyly Heights

The Charmont softball team prevailed as the top team in the Thumb Slow Pitch League tournament held this past week end at Ubyly Heights.

Charmont's first game in the 13-team double elimination tournament was a 17-2 victory over Elkton IGA Friday. Doug Powers was the winning pitcher. He hurled Charmont's next three games to finish with a 4-0 record.

Saturday, Charmont blanked Cumber 7-0 and Sunday the Cass Cityans clobbered Budweiser of Bad Axe 26-18 behind a hitting attack that featured 11 home runs.

Charmont then went on to defeat unbeaten Osen-toski's Realty in game 4 by a score of 26-23 and the championship game, 12-11.

Osentoski, which had won its way through the loser's bracket, proved to be a worthy foe but fell in the championship game to Pitcher Randy Adlam who picked up the win.

In the five games, the Cass Cityans clouted 24 home runs. Brett Bitzer led the team with seven round-trippers followed by Mark Lutz with six and Ron Englehardt who collected five home runs.

Rienstra uncovers unusual birdhouse

Early this spring, Peter Rienstra of 4543 Oak Street started to clean out his garage.

He decided it was finally time to explore the one dark, cluttered corner of the attic which had escaped his cleaning efforts for the 20 years he and his wife, Lorene, had lived in their house.

The retired insurance agent put up a lamp to shed light toward the dark back corner and then set about his task.

Among all the old boxes and junk, Rienstra came across an old birdhouse unlike any he had seen before. It was a model of a dwelling for people.

Just who's house it is copied from is a question he has not yet been able to answer.

"Someone told us it was a replica of an old farmhouse that the Brookers (the original inhabitants of the Rienstra home) owned before they built here, but we're not sure," Mrs. Rienstra said.

Another mystery is the birdhouse's age.

"We've been trying to get information on it but don't know where to look," he explained. "We think it must be an antique because we didn't find it for 20 years and my wife's folks, who lived here before us, never found it."

The only thing for certain is that a great deal of effort went into the construction of the sturdy, wooden model which, according to Rienstra, weighs about 30 pounds.

On the front of the house is an open-deck porch completely fenced in with side railings. Other added details are imitation front and back doors with a set of three steps leading up to each, a chimney and a garage door.

The roof is even covered with real roofing tiles.

Several windows serve as entrances to separate nesting areas. Apparently only one was ever used. None of the others appear to have the remains of nests and the floor is missing in all of the first level rooms.

Since finding it, Rienstra has shown it off to all that want to take a look at it.

"I've been setting it out in the yard for people to see as they go by," he commented. "A lot of people go by and stop and look and wonder what the heck it is."

Several of them, including representatives from the Rawson Memorial Library and the Cass City Area Historical Society, have contacted him about the future plans he has for the approximately 2-foot high by 3 1/2-foot long dwelling. Both would like to have it but Rienstra is not sure what fate the birdhouse will have.

"I don't know if I want to give it to someone or sell it," he said.

Until he makes up his mind about what to do with the old birdhouse, he'll continue to put it out in his yard for people to see and maybe even a tired bird to use for a rest.

Explorers finish 3rd in aquatics

Explorer Post No. 2594, sponsored by Walbro Corp., attended the Lake Huron Area Council's aquatics week end June 24-26 and received the third place participation award.

The Explorer post received points for competing in such events as greased watermelon, swimming obstacle course, canoe sink, Frisbee, football, advisor bury and water volleyball. The post also received points for week-end service projects.

Explorers attending were Mark Szidlik, Jeff Allen, Shawn Malloy, Brad Riggs and Barbara Young, all of Caro. The advisors for the post are Terry and Roberta Blanchard of Cass City.

In addition to participating in council activities, the Walbro Post explores various topics and careers in computers and engineering.

Anyone interested in these areas can contact the advisors for more information at 872-5056.

Jill Seurnyck off to South Africa

At this time next week, Jill Seurnyck will find herself in some rather unfamiliar surroundings almost 10,000 miles away on the other side of the equator.

Her destination is Johannesburg, South Africa, and she expects to arrive there a couple of days after leaving home.

The 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Seurnyck, 6257 Hurds Corner, Gagetown, is participating in the Lions Club International Youth Exchange Program.

According to local club chairman Allen Witherspoon, the program Jill is participating in was initiated in 1961 by the Lions International Board of Directors to further "good will and harmony throughout the world."

"Students get to determine where they want to go and we make every effort to get them there," he added. "Jill is the first in Michigan to go to South Africa."

Area ladies at Lutheran convention

More than 100 persons of the Thumb zone attended the biennial International Lutheran Women's Missionary League convention in Detroit June 20-23.

Zone officers who attended either the opening Communion service of the daily sessions or both were: Mrs. F.J. Sattelmeyer, president, Mrs. Wilbert Maschke, vice-president, Mrs. Howard Jagow, secretary, Mrs. Della Seltz, treasurer, Mrs. Gerald Mammel, Mrs. Donald Stoll and Mrs. Harold Rounds, Christian Growth Committee, Mrs. Theodore Rink, historian and Mrs. Arthur Nitz, district recording secretary.

Women from the Cass City area who made the trip were: Helen Avery, Lois Moslander, Ruth Balzer, Donna Schuette and Adeline Butler.

The group attended the opening services and returned home Tuesday night.

Marie Spencer also attended.

The Rev. Ralph Bohlman, president of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod was the speaker at the opening service which began with a procession of banners depicting the mission projects of the organization for the past 40 years. One hundred and twenty Michigan pastors administered communion to the worshippers. Special music was provided by a 300 voice choir composed of women from all over the United States and Canada.

One of the featured speakers was Kathryn Koob, one of the former hostesses in Iran.

A mission goal of $720,000 was set for the next biennium with intended recipients located all over the U.S. and the world.

nation until Aug. 14, living with different families in four cities (Johannesburg, Durban, Port Elizabeth, and Capetown).

"My sister participated (in this program) two years ago when she went to Japan and said it was one of the best experiences of her life," Jill noted explaining why she is taking part in the program. "I think it will be a great experience that will let me get away before college and my parents really encouraged it."

The Lions Clubs locate members in foreign countries to host the 3,000 American students annually taking part in the program. All expenses are the responsibility of the students and the bills quickly add up. Airfare alone is costing Jill $2,000.

Golden Rule class meets in park

Twenty-eight members of the Golden Rule class of Salem United Methodist Church and one guest attended the Thursday evening meeting, which began with a potluck supper in the village park. Maurice Joos led devotions.

Esther McCullough presided over the business meeting. A new project of the class is to finance the building of a deck at the parsonage.

Plans were made for a dinner in September for the church choir and for a bazaar to be held later.

A thank you card from Frankie Anker was read.

The class visited the funeral home in a group at the close of the meeting because of the passing of Albert Tropp.

The July meeting will be at the Damm cottage.

Jail term for driver in fatality

Brian K. Tedford was sentenced Monday to six months in the county jail for attempted negligent homicide in connection with the May 1 accident that took the life of Keith M. Cotter, 55, of Marlette.

Sentence was pronounced by District Judge Richard F. Kern, who fined Tedford $147 and assessed $153 court costs.

Tedford, 18, of Mayville, pleaded guilty to the charge June 13.

The accident took place on M-24 at the edge of Mayville when Tedford's pickup crossed the centerline and collided with the auto driven by Cotter, which was headed in the opposite direction.

Flag stealer hurts community

Dear Editor,

My United States flag and pole were stolen Sunday.

Not the first flag, but the second one we had taken this year.

The awful thing about it was it was taken in broad daylight. We were out of town on business between 1 and 5 p.m. when someone had the gall to take it.

You know it really upsets me because the other day I read a flyer about the Fourth of July Festival and on the back it said "how proud we were of this community." They thought it was good for the community to have this celebration because it gave others a chance to come and look the community over and to see how nice it was.

Lately when I read the paper, I see where this person or that person has had something stolen or had their house broken into. Now tell me how nice that makes the community seem.

So please you people that have nothing better to do besides wreck other people's property or take things that don't belong to you, try to realize what you are doing to your community.

I really like Cass City as a place to raise my children. I don't feel that we should have to lock everything up everytime we go away for five seconds.

Besides maybe if you, whoever took my flags really needed one, I would probably have given it to you if you asked first.

Thanks for letting me get rid of steam.

Saying good-bye to Cass City is difficult

To the editor,

One of the hardest things a family has to do when moving is saying good-bye to friends and loved ones, but how can you ever say good-bye to a community?

You accepted us 18 years ago and allowed us to raise and educate four children in your city. You made available many organizations and activities that a new family could become involved with.

All this was great, but the greatest part of your community is the warm and sincere people you have.

Yes, Cass City, in your community friendship is only a smile away.

Good-bye,
The Carl Vandivers

New area church affiliates with national organization

Members of Cass City's new church voted Sunday to affiliate with the Evangelical Free Church of America.

Special guest that day was Rev. Wesley Johnson of Deerfield, Ill., district superintendent for a five-state area, who preached at the morning service. After a potluck lunch, he spoke at a meeting of the congregation and they then voted to affiliate. They previously had tentatively decided to affiliate.

The Evangelical Free Church, which has its headquarters in Minneapolis,

Minn., has about 100,000 members nationwide, according to the local church's pastor, Rev. Eldred Kelley. "This district (the five states) alone has about 15 new churches a year, so it's really a growing denomination," he said. "You'll be hearing a lot about it."

The Cass City church is the first of the denomination in the upper Thumb. The next closest one is in Bay City.

The Evangelical Free Church of America was formed in 1955. Rev. Kelley explained, when two ethnic denominations, the Swedish Free Church and the Norwegian Free Church, merged.

In addition to the new name, it was decided at that time it would no longer be an ethnic church, in order to broaden and expand the membership. Including the Free Swedish and Free Norwegian churches, the Evangelical Free Church traces its origins back to 1884.

The "free" part of the name comes from the belief that all Christians should be free to have communion, the pastor explained. That contrasted with the state churches in Norway and Sweden, which believed communion was only for confirmed members and that it had to be given by specially ordained priests.

The difference in belief was apparently a factor in members of the "free" churches deciding to come to the United States.

The local church has no legal ties to the national Evangelical Free Church, and members are free to decide on their own organization. "The biggest thing is they allow us to be autonomous," Rev. Kelley said.

The national church does hold a national conference each year, has an overseas missionary program and its Free Church Press provides various materials for Sunday school, etc. There isn't a standard prayer book.

THE CASS CITY FREE Evangelical Church held its first service Feb. 27 with about 75 persons in attendance, after having held two prior organizational meetings.

Sunday attendance now is averaging 140-150, with slightly more than half being adults, according to Rev. Kelley. "We've been really pleased with the number of people," he said. Sunday school for all ages starts at 9:45 a.m. Sunday worship services are at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The church is renting the former Cass City Lanes on Weaver Street, but if the owner sells it, members may have only 30 days to move into another building. They could buy the building but it is too small and there isn't adequate parking, said Rev. Kelley, who is the former pastor of Salem United Methodist Church here.

A building committee has been organized, with John Smentek as chairman, to plan construction of a church building, which will be located in Cass City. No site has been selected yet and there is no timetable to have it constructed.

OFFICERS OF THE Evangelical Free Church are Jude Patnaude, chairman; Fred Fahrner, vice-chairman; Linda Smentek, secretary of congregation; Nancy Leino, financial secretary, and Jane Ryba, treasurer.

Elders are Steve Hammett, Dave Loomis, Clayton Turner, Jude Patnaude, Gary Martin, Chuck Peasley and Bob Parrott. Trustees are John Smentek, Bob Brinkman, John Ryba, Faith Fahrner, Ted Morgan, Dean Tuckey, LaDonna Bliss and Judy Hammett.

Chairmen are Robert Brinkman, parsonage committee; Warren Kelley, education; Lora Karr, Sunday school superintendent; Margaret Turner, missions; Mabel Wright, evangelism; Gary and Cindy Bader and Joni Umphenbach, youth directors; Ellen O'Hara, women's ministries; Carol Furness, camping; Gary Bader, worship and music; Kendall Jacobs, prayer and care; Ruth Kelley, social, and John and Debra Eschtruth, custodial.

New books at the library

TRADEOFFS by Jane Adams (fiction). Cassandra Campbell, vice-president of a major advertising agency, buys a Greenwich Village townhouse with her dear friend and one-time Smith College roommate, Paula Gabriel, an issues-oriented lawyer with a Park Avenue firm. Ellin Barnett, a California writer, takes the apartment on the third floor, and the women develop ties that are close but not binding. In and out of the house go their men - a high-powered corporate executive; a flamboyant publisher who launches, then loses, magazines on both coasts; a former 1960s radical; and a Vietnam veteran-bartender-novelist, among a host of thoroughly plausible characters. Liaisons are described in spicy detail and there are situations reminiscent of Mary Cunningham with William Agee, Teddy and Joan Kennedy and Clay Felker with New York and New West magazines.

BANKER by Dick Francis (fiction). The hero is 32-year-old merchant banker Tim Ekaterin, great-grandson of the founder of Paul Ekaterin, Ltd. The bank ventures into thoroughbred racing when it backs a loan for a champion stallion, Sandcastle, to go to stud. This seemingly tame transaction leads to horror - several of Sandcastle's offspring are born deformed. It also leads to two brutal murders. The book is full of fascinating characters: a horse healer, a banker with shattered nerves, a businessman who regularly risks everything at the track.

THE BROWNSTONE HOUSE OF NERO WOLFE by Ken Darby (fiction). Rex Stout wrote about 60 mysteries over a 40-year span beginning in 1934, featuring private detective Nero Wolfe and narrated by Archie Goodwin, Wolfe's assistant. Wolfe was fat and passionate about the English language, food, orchids and beer, maybe in that order. He was also arrogant, lazy and a genius. Most stories ended in Wolfe's office in his brownstone on West 35th Street in New York City. In the last or next-to-last chapter, he would assemble the principals there for a "charade" to reveal his deductive genius and the villain. Ken Darby has combed through Stout's books to give us a vividly detailed picture of the famed brownstone, complete with line drawings of all floor plans and a map of adjacent buildings and alleys.

HIGH RYE - Rye is normally about 5 feet high, but Gerald Auten's 26 acres is averaging 6 feet because of all the rain this spring. One stalk measured 7 ft., 10 in. Auten, whose head can barely be seen in the inset, originally planted the rye as a cover crop but now plans to sell the seed.

OTHER ITEMS

Hot weather has been good for business at the Helen Stevens Memorial Pool. The report submitted by director Nancy Tonti showed total attendance for open swimming of 2,680 as of June 21, an average of 234 per day. That is more than double last year's attendance.

There are 177 children registered in the arts and crafts program, an increase of 40 compared to last year. The first eight days, an average of 54 children attended each day.

Roger Reid, owner of The Station, told the council he wants to apply to the state Liquor Control Commission for an entertainment license so that he can conduct arm wrestling tournaments in his tavern.

The council apparently has a veto power over issuance of the license and over any activities that might be conducted.

Village President Lambert Althaver suggested to Reid that he start the license application procedure while the public safety committee and the village's attorney, Clinton House, will study the proposal.

No progress has been reported in negotiations between the village and the Fraternal Order of Police, which represents the village's four patrolmen. The union has filed a request for arbitration.

A check will be made with other villages concerning whether they do anything special, such as giving a gift, for retiring employees. Cass City never has. Councilman Mike Weaver, who was asked by a village employee, asked whether the village should do something.

Deputies said they were eastbound on M-81, east of Crawford Road, on their motorcycle when they started to pass a vehicle pulling a trailer stacked with trees 74 inches high.

Because of the trees, they were unable to see the brake lights or turn signals of the vehicle when it started to turn left into a driveway.

Robert Kitchen, in an effort to avoid a collision, locked his brakes, which caused him to lose control and the cycle went over on its side.

The driver of the vehicle pulling the trailer, Dana L. Truemaner of 6577 Huron Street, was ticketed on a charge of vision obstruction.

Mary Jane Ryba, 55, of 7152 Milligan Road, Cass City, was ticketed by Caro state police on a charge of failure to yield following a 4:15 p.m. accident last Thursday.

Troopers reported she was eastbound on Milligan and collided with a northbound car as she was turning right onto Greenland Road. She told officers she didn't see the approaching car because of tall weeds and small trees at the southwest corner of the intersection.

Driver of the other vehicle was Lester J. Auten, 48, of 7110 Greenland Road.

C. The construction of the said lines shall be in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Michigan Public Service Commission or its successor.

D. The said grantee, before entering upon any street, highway, alley or other public place for the purpose of erecting and constructing any poles, wires, pipes, mains, conduits, or other apparatus, shall notify the Township or its representatives of the proposed construction, and shall, if the Township so requires, file with them a sufficient plan and specification, showing the nature and extent of the proposed erection and construction.

E. No street, highway, alley or public place shall be allowed to remain open or encumbered by the construction work of the said grantee for a longer period than shall be necessary to execute the said work, and the grantee shall at all times conform to all ordinances of the Township, now or hereafter in force, relative to the fencing and lighting of obstructions and excavations.

F. The grantee shall save the Township harmless from any judgment that may be recovered against the Township by reason of the wrongdoing or negligence of the said grantee in the erection and maintenance of said poles, mains, wires and other apparatus or construction.

G. Said grantee shall make due provisions upon five (5) days notice in writing by raising its wires or otherwise, for the passage of any barn, building or other structure on or over any street, highway, or public place occupied by the poles, mains, wires, and other apparatus of said grantee.

SECTION 3 - In consideration of the granting of this franchise, grantee agrees that its rates and charges for electric service in the Township of Elmwood shall not exceed its rates and charges for like service elsewhere in its service area, as evidenced by its uniform rate schedules at the time on file with and approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission. It is understood that the grantee is subject to regulation by the Michigan Public Service Commission and that any order, rule, or regulation by that Commission, or its successor, will prevail over any regulation herein contained or provided for in case of conflict.

SECTION 4 - This grant shall take effect if said grantee shall, within fifteen (15) days from the date of the passage of this Ordinance, file with the Township Clerk, its written acceptance of the terms of the same, and upon the confirmation of this grant, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of said Township, voting thereon at a special election to be held on Tuesday, the 23rd day of August, 1983, as provided for by the Statutes and the State Constitution. If not confirmed by the electors voting on the franchise at said election, this Ordinance shall be null and void.

SECTION 5 - This Franchise and Ordinance shall be and remain in force for thirty years from and after the date of its confirmation by the electors of the Township of Elmwood, Tuscola County, Michigan.

SECTION 6 - Nothing in this grant shall be construed to alienate the title of the public place or to any street, highway, alley or public place or any portion thereof, neither shall anything herein be construed in any manner as a surrender by the Township of Elmwood of its legislative power with respect to the subject matter hereof, or with respect to any other matter whatsoever, nor in any manner limiting the right of the said Township of Elmwood to lawfully regulate the use of any street, avenue, highway or public place within its jurisdiction.

Hugo guilty of possessing stolen truck and car body

A Tuscola County Circuit Court jury last Wednesday found Charles F. Hugo, 25, of Standish, guilty of two charges of receiving and concealing stolen property over $100.

He was convicted of possession of a 1978 Corvette body and a 1978 Ford four-wheel-drive pickup truck last Dec. 3 in Arabela Township.

Hugo claimed he had purchased the truck and body and didn't know they were stolen.

Judge Patrick R. Joslyn, who presided over the two-day trial, ordered Hugo remanded to the county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

Hugo was originally to stand trial with Joseph S. Panko, 27, of Bay City, who was charged with the same offenses.

Monday in Circuit Court, Panko pleaded guilty to one of the two receiving and concealing charges, involving the stolen pickup truck.

Joslyn accepted his plea and a sentencing date will be set. Bond was continued.

Also Monday, Tony W. Welch, 21, of 2010 W. Caro Road, Caro, was sentenced to eight years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for larceny in a building and being an habitual offender.

He pleaded guilty to the two charges June 20 of the larceny charge involving theft of a speaker, tools and money from a restaurant and store on W. Caro Road last Oct. 30.

Julius Wilding Jr., 20, of 3654 Main Street, Akron, was sentenced to one year in the county jail for violating probation. He was credited with 103 days served.

Wilding was sentenced Nov. 22 of last year to 60 months' probation for larceny in a building.

DISTRICT COURT

Judge Richard F. Kern Monday sentenced Michael W. Groosbeck, 18, of 4308 Leach Street, Cass City, to five days in the county jail, beginning July 5, for driving with license suspended or revoked May 25 in Cass City.

He was also fined $60, assessed $65 court costs and placed on probation for one year.

Groosbeck pleaded guilty to the charge May 31.

Methodist church school ends

Vacation church school was held at Trinity United Methodist Church June 20-24 in conjunction with Salem United Methodist Church.

The children were taken back to Biblical times to learn how Ruth lived. They were involved in games, crafts, dances and songs.

A part of the program included participating in Hebrew customs, prayer and worship. In the marketplace, the children met a rabbi, a tax collector, beggar and disciples. Also making an appearance during the week were a sheep and a goat and her baby.

Marty Nicholson was children's education chairman. Assisting as coordinators were Iris Tuckey and Donna Wachterhauser.

In charge of music was Rev. Tom Wachterhauser. Other workers were Beulah Craig, the storyteller; Beverly Nieboer, in charge of demonstrations; and Vera Nicol, crafts.

In charge of the nursery class was Maggie Keating. Teachers were the EMAS (mother): Angela Nieboer, Esther Gunther, Ruth Baker, Muriel Addison and Marge Hall. Helpers were Colleen Auten and Clara Gaffney.

In charge of snacks, which included fruits and breads, were Laura Ball and Helen Bartle.

Retiring after 30 years, Erla still bullish about Cass City

Cass City is a great place to do business and has a great future.

That's the opinion of Dick Erla, who should know, after having been in business here 30 years.

Erla, 59, recently sold his interest in Erla Food Center and Packing, Inc., to other members of his family.

Although he and his wife, Chris, plan to do some traveling and he is enjoying having the time to wax his cars and mow his lawn, he said, "I don't intend sitting on my fanny...When you're used to getting up at 5:30 in the morning...It's hard to back away and do nothing."

One project that may occupy quite a bit of his time will take him all the way to Nigeria if it comes to fruition.

The project calls for him to be advisor for establishment of a meat packing plant in the west African nation.

The meat plant will be owned by a Nigerian, who is receiving a government subsidy to help him build it. Erla's role, which will require him to spend two weeks at a time in Nigeria two or three times a year, will be to obtain the machinery needed for the plant and to take someone there who can teach the employees all phases of operation.

As for how a Cass Cityan gets hired to work in Nigeria, the connection was the Flint architect who was hired to design the plant. He had done projects in Nigeria before.

Erla's understanding is that the architect's wife is from the Cass City area and when the man started looking for a meat packing operation similar in size to what is planned in Nigeria, was steered to Dick Erla.

Nothing much has been happening with the plant of late because the would-be owner is an oilman and with depressed oil prices (Nigeria is a major oil exporter) is short on capital.

Also, Erla noted, things move very slowly in Nigeria.

"...we're waiting for a little more knowledge, a little more funds and then we can work on it."

WITH HIS KNOWLEDGE of the meat business and business in general, Erla is also planning to sell his services as a consultant and has already heard from a few persons interested in making use of his expertise.

And if consulting, be it in Nigeria or this country, doesn't keep him busy enough, he has in mind some ideas for new businesses in Cass City which he feels would thrive.

"These empty stores in town; there's a gold mine to be made in Cass City...This town is so wide open for so many things.

All you have to get is somebody who wants to work."

Erla prefers not to divulge what he has in mind. It won't be a restaurant or party store, however, two businesses which he feels there are too many of in the area.

Erla has experience in the restaurant business, inidentally, having started the Big D Restaurant, though he didn't operate it too long before selling it.

HE CAME HERE IN 1953 when he and his mother and father, Genevieve and John Erla, bought the small locker plant on Church Street, which also sold a few groceries.

The family was originally from Detroit. John Erla, who never took a real active role in the business, was a retired policeman who was involved in real estate and owned some farms. The family also owned two or three groceries in Detroit until World War II.

After Erla got out of the Navy after serving in World War II -- he met his wife of 38 years while in the service, she was a WAVE -- the family bought and moved to two farms in the Imlay City area. They were there from 1946-53, during which time Erla first learned the cattle business.

Locker plants such as the one they bought here processed beef. Each customer had his own free locker to keep their meat in. The locker business died with the advent of home freezers.

Within six months of buying the business, the Erлас started a wholesale meat delivery route.

The firm, which started with about six employees, now wholesales meat all over the Upper Thumb and as far as Port Huron, Lapeer and the Bay City-Saginaw area. Most of its customers are retail stores, but there are also hospitals, nursing homes, stores and restaurants which buy their meat from Erla's.

Erla has five brothers and six sisters and all of his brothers and one sister are working in the business. With some of their children also working there, Erla figures at least 60 percent of the 58 employees are members of the family.

That includes his daughter, Yvonne LeValley, who works there part-time, whose husband Bruce is a full-time employee. Mr. and Mrs. Erla have one other child, Rick, who lives near San Francisco.

Erla has been president of the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club, commander of the American Legion post, chairman of the county draft board and has also been active in the Democratic Party.

Although Erla, who was president of the firm for 30 years, has sold his share in the business, his presence is still felt. He still owns a half-interest of the slaughterhouse south of town, the store's parking lot and the office building and barber shop building at the north side of the lot.

He also is half owner of the old Nestle's creamery building next door, which is rented by Walbro and General Cable.

THAT FACTORY ILLUSTRATES one reason why he is optimistic about the future of Cass City. About a month after the Erлас went into business here, the Nestle's plant -- the town's biggest employer -- was closed. "I thought to myself, what did we come into."

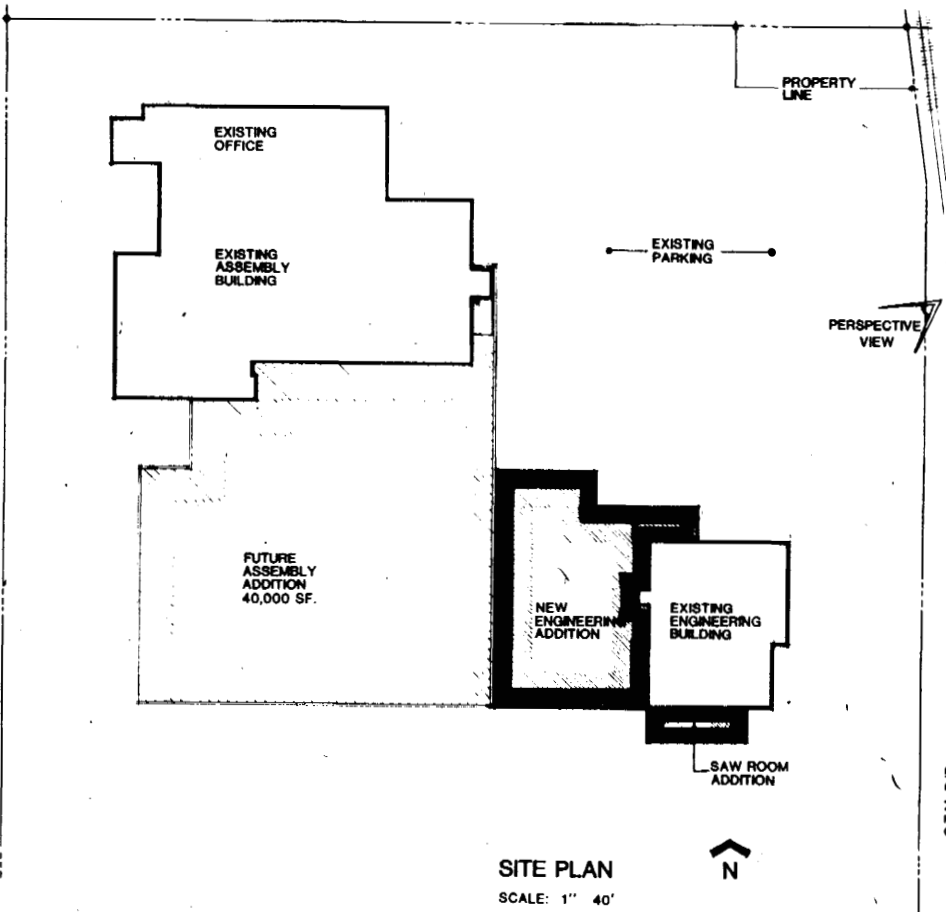

Since Nestle's moved out, the plant was used to manufacture car floor mats, fertilizer and United Parcel Service before its present occupants moved in.

Erla's philosophy of doing business is that if you treat the customers the way you would like to be treated, offer them a good product and don't try to pull the wool over their eyes, you can succeed.

He says it is necessary for the owner to be there. "You got to be there and run the thing. You take people who expect the help to run it and it won't work."

He suggested one path for Michigan and the area to pursue to create jobs is to develop agriculture related industries. Michigan is the bean capital of the world, he cited as an example, but no one ever sees any beans canned in Michigan.

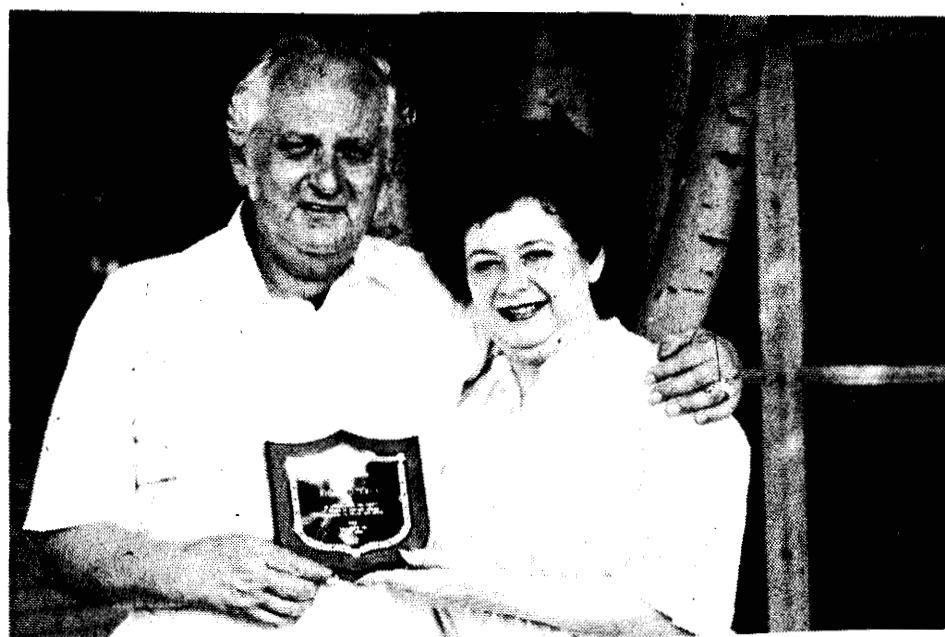

He feels Cass City's future is bright. "Definitely. It's about the nicest town to live in and I've been all over."

DICK AND CHRIS ERLA hold a plaque given to him by employees at a surprise party June 19 at their Huron Street home in honor of his retirement. About 100 employees, friends and relatives attended. The plaque was "in appreciation for 30 years of service and friendship to Erla's employees."

Allot money for program

The Human Development Commission, a community action agency which serves Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer Counties, has received additional funds.

The money comes from four sources and provides for the continuation of or increase in local services.

An increase of $213,959 for home weatherization resulted when the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Community Services received oil overcharge funds.

The increase will lead to an additional 139 local homes being weatherized by Sept. 30. The total number of homes weatherized by HDC from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30 is projected at 309. This service lowers fuel bills of those who receive it, often allowing the clients to then handle their fuel expenses without government assistance.

A renewal of funding for emergency services was received through two Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) fund sources, the Department of Social Services and the United Board (includes United Way, Red Cross, Salvation Army, etc.).

The DSS provided $25,132 for an emergency needs program. Presently, HDC's emergency services include food and shelter and are coordinated with local food counties throughout the four counties.

The monies from DSS will be combined with $92,131 from the United Board for continued emergency services. In Lapeer, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties, the United Board has given to HDC the responsibility of coordinating the use of FEMA funds for emergency services throughout those areas. FEMA funds from both sources are to be used for emergency services through Sept. 30.

The fourth funding increase is in the federal

Community Service Block Grant. An increase of $7,972 was received to assist in the operation of the agency.

About 2 percent of those funds go to support the administration of HDC's services.

HDC receives funds from a variety of funding sources because of the diversity of programs and services it offers, ranging from Foster Grandparents to housing and budgeting counseling to information and referral.

Library loans cameras

Along with books, records and magazines, Rawson Memorial Library now has for loan two instant cameras.

The cameras will be loaned for free for up to one week to persons 16 and older with a library card. Borrowers must provide their own film.

The cameras were given free to the library by the Polaroid Corp. as part of its "Check This Out" program, in which the cameras are being given to public libraries throughout the United States. The program is being conducted in conjunction with the American Library Association.

Up to 100 entries expected to compete in tractor pull

The 1983 Fourth of July Festival tractor and truck pull promises to be one of the best ever held in Cass City. The event features drivers pushing their powerful machines to the limit as they strain to pull the weight transfer machine farther than anyone else. The exciting action will begin Sunday afternoon at 1 in the park.

Chairman Kelly Smith is expecting the most participants ever.

"We're hoping for 100 entrants," he said. "In the past we've had as many as 80 but then we didn't have a two-wheel drive pickup class. This year we're going with six different tractor classes and two truck classes."

The eight different competition divisions are:

- 1,050-lb. open garden tractor
- 1,600-lb. mini-tractor
- 1,800-lb. mini-tractor
- 3,000-lb. stock four-wheel pickup truck
- 6,000-lb. farm tractor
- 6,000-lb. limited-modified tractor

Up to 100 entries are expected for the largest pull in the history of the event.

-7,000-lb. antique tractor

-Two-wheel stock pickup truck exhibition.

Last year we had about 1,500 fans and we are expecting a lot more," Smith added. "The tractor pullers have their own crowd who follows them and since there isn't a whole lot of other things going on that day, we're expecting quite a few people."

He also said that three nearby communities have tractor pulling contests on Monday which may help draw more contestants to Cass City's contest.

The competition is sanctioned by the Thumb Tractor Pulling Association and, according to Smith, is open to anyone who pays the entry fee.

Prize money will be awarded to the top three finishers in each class except for the two-wheel drive pickup exhibition, where the winner will receive a trophy.

In the open garden tractor class, first place wins $50, second, $30, and third, $20. The top three participants in the four-wheel drive pickup truck, the 6,000-lb. farm tractor and the 7,000-lb. antique tractor classes will win $75, $50 and $25 for first, second and third respectively. In the other three classes, first place is worth $100, second place, $75, and third, $50.

Smith noted that larger amounts of prize money is awarded in those classes where entrants have invested the most amount of money in their machines.

An admission fee of $2 for adults and $1 for children is required to watch the competition.

Weight-in for the tractors and trucks is scheduled from 10 a.m.-noon Sunday at the Pillsbury elevator scales.

Sing-a-long one concert feature

After last year's popular two-song performance with the First Marine Band, the Fourth of July Choir is ready to go solo.

The choir will stage a free concert at the south end of the park, beginning at 6:30 Monday evening.

The 40-member group will be accompanied by piano and directed by Andrea Hofmeister.

You don't have to be able to carry a note to be welcome to the Community Choir's concert and sing-a-long — Director Andrea Hofmeister.

She expects the show to last about a half-hour and everyone is welcome whether they can carry a note or not.

COMMUNITY CHOIR, directed by Andrea Hofmeister (at right) will be singing a variety of tunes starting at 6:30 p.m. Monday in front of the tennis courts. Photo was taken during a rehearsal.

Beer tent helps pay expenses

On the west side of town, far from most of the celebration's other activities, the beer tent will be providing entertainment for many thirsty visitors.

The beer tent, located behind Charnont, is one of the most important attractions for the simple reason it's the festival's biggest money maker.

According to festival organizers, the holiday celebration would not be feasible without the beer tent.

"Last year, this thing (festival) lost $3,000," festival co-chairman Curt Strickland said. That was with a beer tent which was open on three nights.

This year, the beer tent will only open Saturday and Sunday night from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. and the committee hopes to just meet ex-

ULTRALIGHT pilots who will be flying their lightweight single-seat airplanes Sunday will be Bob White (left) of Caro and Ed Bezemek of Argyle. Bezemek's plane is shown on the cover of this section.

COMING IN for a landing in the field behind the high school is Bob White of Caro. Weather permitting, the ultralight airplane demonstration will start at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Sunday at school

Take a look at ultralights

In the early days of aviation, when the Wright Brothers weren't a memory, it was said that pilots went aloft "on a wing and a prayer."

To the uninitiated, it may appear that pilots of ultralight airplanes, the latest wrinkle in aviation, are also flying on a wing and prayer.

Ultralights don't consist of much more than wings and a tail, an engine and a seat for the pilot, with everything held together with aluminum tubes and steel wires. The planes weigh about 250 pounds maximum, hence the name.

The public will have an opportunity to see the little airplanes Sunday as part of the Fourth of July Festival.

At least two ultralights, piloted by Ed Bezemek of Argyle and Bob White of Caro, will be landing in the field behind the high school about 7 p.m.

Spectators will then have an opportunity to view the planes close up before the pilots take off again, fly around and then leave for home.

There may be more than two planes there. Ultralight flyers from Marlette, Almont, Vassar and Milington have been invited to come and it's likely some will.

Ultralights can fly in winds of no more than 20 miles per hour, and flying them in such winds is very tricky, so in case of strong winds or rain, the demonstration will be cancelled.

If the weather is good, there should be a good crowd. When White made a test landing at the high school field the evening of June 15, only a few persons knew in advance he was coming. Despite that, about 15 persons came to the field to see the plane up close and to ask him questions.

Spectators shouldn't expect to see White and Bezemek fly "stunts." Although some ultralights are built strong enough to perform aerobatic maneuvers, theirs aren't.

There is one other thing they can't do -- fly over crowds. A Federal Aviation Administration rule, White explained, says that "anywhere where people assemble, we cannot go over them."

Also for safety reasons, spectators are being asked Sunday to stay behind the goal posts closest to the parking lot when the ultralights are taking off and landing.

Bezemek has been flying his plane since June of last year. White bought his plane in October.

His plane and Bezemek's have different engines, but each has 30 horsepower and cruising speed for both planes is about 42 miles per hour.

Each plane, which are different makes, cost their owners about $5,000. The two pilots are coming to Cass City for free.

Chairman of the ultralight demonstration is Mike Eliasohn.

Seeking bargain prices

Arts and crafts draws crowds

One of the festival's major drawing events, the annual arts and crafts displays, is once again expected to attract droves of people seeking well-made crafts at bargain prices.

According to chairman Sandy Nicholas, this year's exhibits will be displayed only on Monday rather than on two days as in previous years.

"It's just one day because there are not enough other events going on to draw people down on Sunday," Mrs. Nicholas explained.

Only five programs are scheduled for Sunday while 17 will take place Monday. The festival, planning committee felt not enough people attended the first day of last year's arts and crafts festival to warrant scheduling a second day.

The arts and crafts booths will be set up in and around the village's storage building next to the municipal building.

Craftsmen from throughout eastern Michigan will display their goods all day beginning at 9 a.m. There are 40 available 10-by-10-foot booths inside the building at a cost of $15. Outdoor booths are $12.50.

"We are expecting around 70 exhibitors," Mrs. Nicholas added.

Work for this display to take place started in April when she started contacting possible craftsmen.

"We have a list of 120 names of previous exhibitors whom we sent out forms to," the first-year chairman commented. "We assign spots to those who respond, and then we send out another letter in June with final details, maps and a schedule of events."

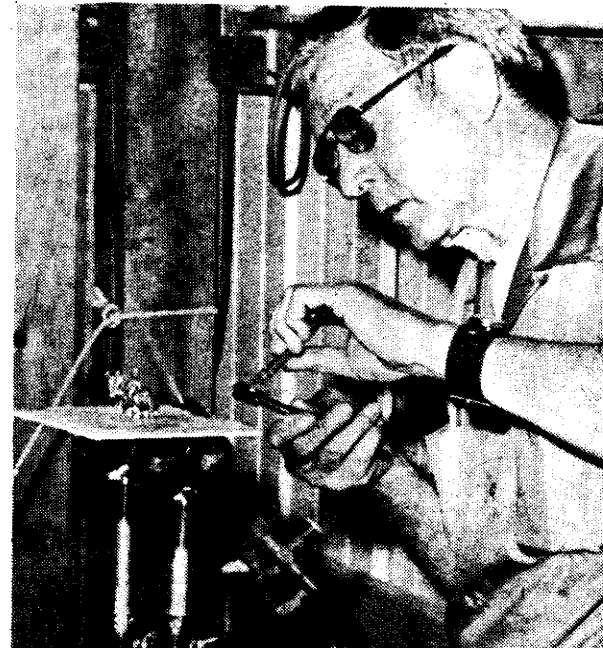

"I also have to go to art fairs in neighboring towns to distribute leaflets inviting exhibitors to come to our festival."

Most of their merchandise for sale will be homemade crafts such as ceramics, household aids, porcelain, jewelry and baked goods. Wooden wares will also be available. There will be wood signs and furniture as well as a craftsman who sells clocks made out of tree trunks. A few demonstrations will be given including an exhibitor who will entertain shoppers by building toys from blocks of wood. While not all the booths have yet been filled, Mrs. Nicholas believes they will by July 4. "Many people who want to set up stands outside the building show up without registering on the morning it starts."

In addition to the arts and crafts displays, there will be a flea market outside the storage building. Flea market booths will be separate from the other outdoor exhibits but are expected to generate a great deal of business. Everything from antiques to comic books will be available for people to browse through and purchase.

MAKERS of various handicrafts will show their wares all day Monday in the building next to the municipal building on Church Street. One of the exhibitors demonstrating his skill at last year's festival was Midland glass artist Stanley Mikols.

bert Althaver) plus three memorial awards, the Meredith Auten award, the Harry Crandell award and the Mrs. Belle Schwaderer award," Glaspie said. "These will be to honor people who were very active in the community."

"Rosettes will be given to the float winners."

The parade and the fireworks are the two main expenses for festival organizers, but Glaspie noted this year the parade will cost less than expected.

"We had budgeted $2,000 for the parade and easily could have reached it," he said, "but $1,500 will be the budget."

He added that many village merchants and organizations donated funds to help keep parade expenses down including the Lions Club and the Gavel Club who sponsored the Windsor Police Pipe Band and Flint Scottish Band respectively.

Bleachers will be set up at the Main-Seeger Streets intersection for parade dignitaries to view the happenings.

No parking will be allowed along the parade's course from Brooker to Ale Street. Village police will be out at 7 a.m. to ensure all vehicles are removed.

WINDSOR, ONT., POLICE PIPE BAND, shown here during 1981 festival parade, will be one of two bagpipe bands performing in this year's parade.

Festival parade, highlight of will return Monday bigger and

The main drawing card parade has grown in size of the Fourth of July celebration and prominence. This year's featured attraction will carry on the tradition of its predecessors. "We're just about spectators from all over."

In each of the past four years that the festival has been in existence, the parade chairman Kim Glaspie.

The festival parade is slated to begin at 11 a.m. Monday on the corner of Brookline and Main Street. It will proceed east on Main and end at the park.

Glaspie has been working on the event since February when he sent out letters to 109 various groups and organizations.

"I've got 53 entries so far, but I'm expecting more," he added. "It will be a two-hour parade and be about the same size as last year's which attracted approximately 80 participants."

He expects many entries will contact him at the last minute. A few may even show up unannounced.

Despite being so gigantic in proportion, the parade will still retain its Cass City Trials Association per-influence.

"I try to get local groups and clubs to enter first and then build around them. Then I go to the surrounding area," Glaspie explained. "We try and get something different each year which gets tough because there are more and more parades competing for the same units."

All that is required is that contestants come dressed in clown attire.

forming stunts like riding over cars.

Also new this year is the clown competition which is open to anyone.

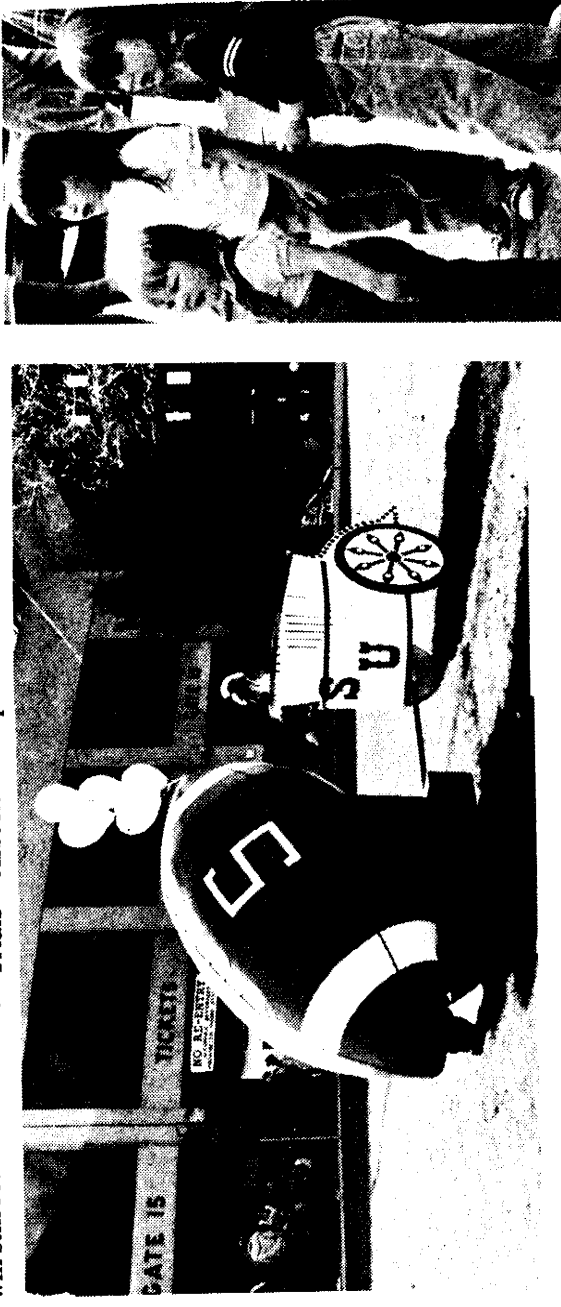

"Right before the parade starts, we will judge the clowns," Glaspie said. "Cash prizes will be given to the winners."

AS in last year's parade, four of the 13 floats will receive prestigious commemorative awards.

Eight musical groups will be in the parade, including the popular Windsor Police Pipe Band and the Flint Scottish Band, plus several queens, antique cars and drill teams.

AS in last year's parade, four of the 13 floats will receive prestigious commemorative awards.

The parade will have something for everyone. New entries have been signed and approximately 80 entries are expected — Kim Glaspie.

GO STATE! — Bringing the green and white to Cass City will be "Sparty," the MSU mascot. He and his chariot, pulled by a garden tractor housed under an emblemized football, will be a new attraction featured in the two-hour parade.

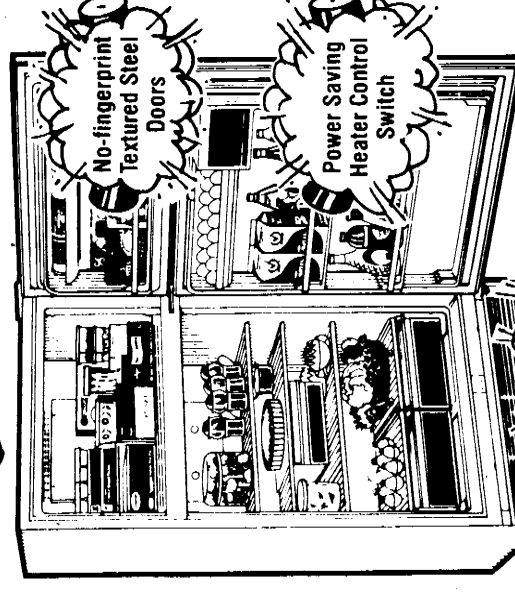

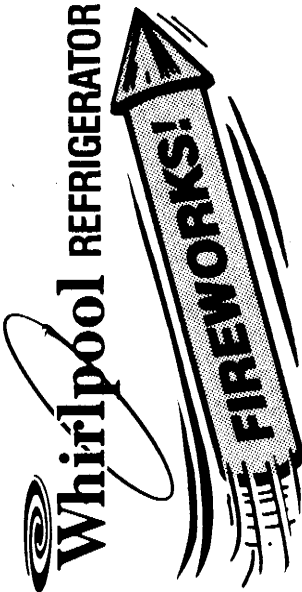

PARADE WATCHERS — The Fourth of July parade has attractions for everyone, both young and old.

Sign Womach for Monday concert

Popular gospel vocalist Merrill Womach will be a featured attraction of this year's festival thanks to the efforts of the Cass City Ministerial Alliance.

The renowned hymnist will perform his concert of gospel songs in the high school gymnasium beginning at 8 p.m. Monday. Tickets for the 1½-hour performance are $5 per person and can be bought in advance or at the door.

MERRILL WOMACH

Cass City advance ticket outlets are: Pizza Villa, Veronica's Restaurant, Cass City Sports, Cass City Floral and Cass City Eat Shop.

Womach's singing career was interrupted on Thanksgiving afternoon 22 years ago when the plane he was flying plunged to the ground in a fiery crash.

His body and face were severely burned and 52 major skin graft operations have been required to undo the accident's damage, though his face is badly scarred.

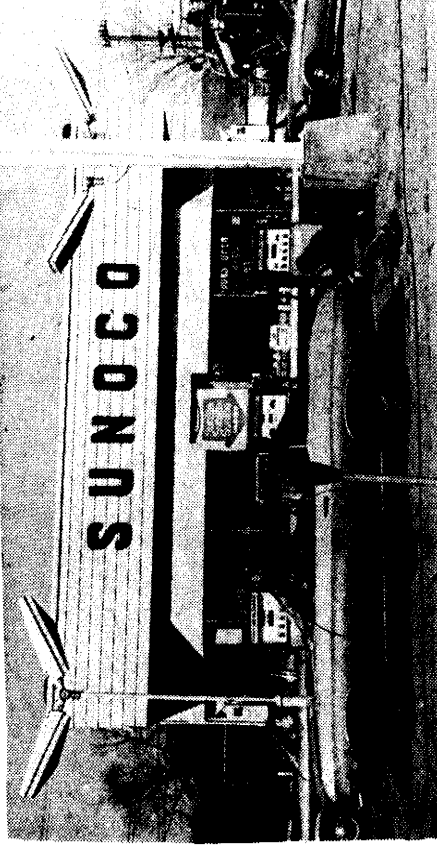

Since then, he has been

Womach has built quite a large following throughout the country especially in the southwestern states. Signing him for a concert appearance was no small feat, Rev. Taylor conceded, "especially for a small ministerial group like ours." He added, "We've had him booked for over a year."

an inspiration to many. He has recorded numerous albums and his motivational life story is told in a book he helped write, "Tested By Fire," and a film, "He Restoreth My Soul."

"This is the first time we have tried anything like this," said alliance president Rev. Robert Taylor of the Cass City Missionary Church. "Two or three years ago we (the alliance) thought we would try and put something on for the Christian community that would be spiritually uplifting for both the individual and the family."

JUDY ROCHELEAU, shown with two of her canines, is once again chairman of the festival's dog show scheduled for Monday afternoon at 2:30.

Young dog owners and their pets will get a chance to show their abilities at this year's festival on Monday afternoon at 2:30. The hours of instruction, rehearsal and grooming will come to an end for the two member teams when youngsters 16 and under converge at the tennis courts with their canines to enter the Thumb of Michigan Dog Fanciers pet show.

Chairman Judy Rocheleau believes many participants from throughout the Thumb area will be present for the free 10-category contest. Last year, 37 dogs were entered. "It always draws a pretty good crowd and everyone seems to enjoy it," she said. "We have really been pleased with it."

Handlers can enter their pets in the category for best behaved, biggest dog, smallest dog, funniest dog, best dog tricks, dog with the shortest tail, dog with the longest tail, best groomed dog and funniest dressed. The best dog overall will be chosen from among the winners in the nine other categories. According to Mrs. Rocheleau, owners can enter their dog in as many of the 10 categories as they wish.

The club will pass out free literature concerning proper pet care and each of the approximately 20 members will serve as judge in one or more of the categories, she added. "The dog show is put on for the kids to have fun and appreciate their animals more," Mrs. Rocheleau said. "It's just our way to help the community take better care of their pets."

Plaques will be given to winners of each category and everyone else who participates will receive a ribbon. Dog owners must have their pets on a leash. All dogs must have their shots and be registered before the show begins. Registration will be immediately preceding the competition from 1:2-30 p.m.

We hope the show will promote better pet care by the community.

Proctor attempts to stretch ad dollars for Festival promotion

KURT PROCTOR

Advertising chairman Kurt Proctor is really a chip off the old block as far as the Fourth of July celebration is concerned. He has taken over the task of publicizing the 1983 festival from last year's chairman, Tom Proctor. It appears that father knows best as far as effective advertising methods are concerned. Many of the measures taken by the elder Proctor will be continued.

Basically it's the same approach as last year," Kurt said. "I'm trying to chip off the old block as far as the Fourth of July celebration is concerned. He has taken over the task of publicizing the 1983 festival from last year's chairman, Tom Proctor. It appears that father knows best as far as effective advertising methods are concerned. Many of the measures taken by the elder Proctor will be continued.

For the past four years, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin "Pat" Burk have acted as chairmen of the Fourth of July's square dance in the park pavilion. This year they again are planning another one that promises to be a foot-stomping good time for all.

The music starts at 8 p.m. and doesn't end until 10. The caller is Ed Fraidenburg from Fraidenburg. According to Mrs. Burk, Fraidenburg is a "national caller" who annually travels to dancing festivals across the country.

"The square dance is something we've had for the past four years," she said. "It gets larger each time as people spread the word. We also send flyers around to clubs in the winter advertising our festival and dance."

The admission price, as usual has not been set in advance. "We wait until around 9 to see how many couples there are and then make a charge," Mrs. Burk explained. "All we want is enough to pay for the caller." She expects the fee to be between $3.50 per couple.

Spectators are welcome to watch the festivities for free. They may even get a chance to strut their stuff, warns Mrs. Burk. "We stop dancing for a little bit and have a man get a woman from the crowd and a woman get a man. Then we teach them the basic steps," she explained. Square dancers from Bad Axe, Caro and Marlette, as well as Cass City will be present.

"Caring for you, your health and your well-being" is this year's theme of the Hills and Dales General Hospital display at the festival.

Jane Mitchell, in-service director and registered nurse, said it is being held to illustrate all the medical facilities that the hospital staff has to offer the community.

"This is the fifth year we've had a hospital fair and our second time at the festival," Mrs. Mitchell noted.

Last year's presentation was a great success. "I know we had 600-700 people last year," she added. "It was just cramped so we have three tents this year."

The tents will be set up in the park from 1-7 p.m. Monday. Hospital curtain dividers will be used to form sections for the different department's displays.

"The whole hospital gets involved and sets up a presentation," Mrs. Mitchell said. "No tours will be given. People can just wander around the area and go to whatever area they wish."

One booth that promises to be quite popular with festival-goers uses advanced technology to present its program on nutrition. "We are getting a computer from Michigan State to do a nutrition assessment on people," she explained. "People will tell us what they have eaten recently and we then run it through the computer and it will tell whether it is an adequate diet or not." A dietician will also be present to go over people's food intake to explain ways of improving diets.

Another presentation will feature a 3-4-foot tall Raggedy Ann doll complete with colored organs. The doll will help personnel explain where various organs are and the functions they perform. It will also allow a clearer understanding of what exactly happens in different operations.

A MASH unit will be set up complete with un-informed nurses equipped with operating instruments and a cardiopulmonary machine.

Two children's puppet shows will be given. One deals with poison control. The second tells the story of a youngster being admitted to the hospital in order to have his tonsils removed and the stages he goes through.

An exhibit dealing with the birthing room will be presented by the obstetrics department, the cardiopulmonary department will stage a lung evaluation program and the lab will have a blood testing booth.

Dr. Robert Green, DDS, and his staff will conduct a dental hygiene presentation explaining how to brush teeth and take proper care of them.

Free blood pressure tests will be available and children will receive doctor's mirrors, nurse's hats and helium balloons.

The Cass City Ambulance Service will have its ambulance on display and explain the function of the vehicle's equipment.

"We are not going to hand out brochures or sell anything," Mrs. Mitchell added. "We're trying to have all hands-on type things. It is for kids and adults."

Personality: key for choosing queen to reign at Festival

The Cass City Fourth of July celebration's queen pageant is not a beauty contest, according to co-chairman Sally Doerr.

"The girls are never, ever judged on looks," Mrs. Doerr stressed. "It is not a beauty contest."

She said the pageant winner must have a pleasant overall personality, conduct herself well and be a good reflection of the community.

That doesn't mean the eleven girls who will compete for the honor of being picked as queen Saturday evening are not attractive. Beauty is one thing that won't be missing at the Saturday evening pageant.

The girls who will be competing to take over the reign of last year's queen, Ellen Palmer, are: Kim Bader, daughter of Dale and Sandy Bader; Sue Begeman, daughter of Tedd and Dot Begeman; Wendy Hempton, daughter of Walter and Dianne Hempton; Deb McIntosh, daughter of Bob and Shirley McIntosh; Sharon Papp, daughter of Steve and Lois Papp; Rochelle Peters, daughter of Dwayne and Helen Peters; Laura Richards, daughter of Russ and Harriet Richards; Barb Root, daughter of Roger and Kathy Root; Rachel Saldana, daughter of Blas and Lydia Saldana; Lynn Schmidt, daughter of John and Diana Schmidt, and Susie Sheldon, daughter of Lena Teller.

Mrs. Doerr believes each would make a capable representative of the festival. "I think they're all excellent," she said. "The judges will have a hard time choosing."

She and co-chairman Dorothy Stahlbaum, plus "pageant promoter" Val Francis, have logged many hours to ensure that the contest is again a success.

The girl who has the highest total score in four different categories will be proclaimed the overall winner.

During the afternoon, the girls will be interviewed by the panel of three judges who are all from outside the Cass City area.

Their scores in the interviews will be added to the scores for their performances in the three other categories during the actual pageant.

In the contest's opening competition, candidates will be judged on introductory speeches which they prepared in advance. The speeches must deal with the Fourth of July.

Next, the girls will participate in a "production number" choreographed by Mrs. Doerr, who is a dance instructor. Each contestant will be reviewed individually.

The pageant's final competition will be the evening gown modeling.

In addition to three girls being selected as queen and her court, one candidate will be voted Miss Congeniality.

"Miss Congeniality goes to the girl who has been the most supportive, friendliest and easiest to get along with," Mrs. Doerr said.

She added, the 11 girls choose who is to receive this award.

While the judges are tabulating the scores, dancers from Mrs. Doerr's dance studio in Caro will entertain the audience with routines to two songs, "Solid Gold" and "Chorus Line."

The new queen will receive $100 while first and second runners-up will be awarded $25 each.

The pageant begins at 8 p.m. in the high school cafeteria and a full house is expected. High school counselor Wayne Dillon will be master of ceremonies.

To help defray expenses, a $1 donation will be collected at the door.

To take part in the contest, girls must be between the ages of 15-18 and must reside within the Cass City School District.

CASS CITY . . .
Ready For Growth
Ready For The Future

An Annual Report to the Thumb Community

New disposal plant system previously costly waste into $13,500 -- That's how much the village paid for its new sludge spreader shown injecting treated sludge into land owned by Dick Donahue. The sludge flows through the hoses into trenches dug by the spreader's prongs and then is covered by the machinery's wheels.

One man's junk is another man's treasure now applies to sludge from the Cass City wastewater treatment plant, which instead of being dried and dumped in a landfill, is being used for fertilizer.

According to plant Superintendent Rick Mohr, 105,000 gallons of sludge were applied to 87 acres of farmland owned by Dick Donahue on Elmwood Road, 13.4 miles west of the treatment plant. Workers were able to work on the new system for only six days over a three-week period.

"The state has really been pushing for this," Mohr said of the farmland application. "Overall, I think it's a good project."

Corrections

The free festival brochure published by the Chamber of Commerce contains three errors in its listing of events.

The queen's pageant will be Saturday beginning at 8 p.m. instead of Sunday, the pet show is scheduled to be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday on the tennis courts and the Merrill Womach concert starts at 7:30 Monday evening rather than at 8 as listed in the brochure.

The government wants municipalities to look at organic sludge as a fertilizer and has put into effect regulations regarding toxic substances the sludge must meet for it to be used as fertilizer and the actual application.

Mohr said Cass City's sludge does not contain toxic substances such as copper and lead that some municipalities have.

In the old treatment plant, the sludge lay on drying beds for several weeks, then was deposited in a landfill.

He believes the new project will be cost saving to the village because the Dept. of Public Works no longer has to come to the plant, load the sludge and then haul it away.

New faces move in to spark Festival this year

A changing of the guard, so to speak, has taken place in the ranks of the festival committee. Four of the previous years, the same people had organized and conducted each festival.

Many of those familiar faces are gone after deciding to step down and let some other Cass Cityans try their hand at running the celebration.

In their place stand 13 new event chairmen and three festival chairmen. They answered the appeal of last year's co-chairman Tom Herron for "new ideas and new blood."

Taking over the helm from Herron and 1982 co-chairman Mike Weaver is the trio of Dave Lovejoy, Roland Pakonen and Curt Strickland.

According to Pakonen, their job is to "make sure all the parts fit together." They are responsible for overseeing the entire festival.

JUST BECAUSE SOME "new blood" has been injected into the festival committee doesn't mean there will be any radical changes.

Lovejoy feels the past festivals have done well and day. The beer tent is one of the only things on the festival grounds that draws in some money.

He added, "Our objective is not to make money, it's to show off Cass City. We ten the ball rolling break even." The festival will cost $14,000, according to Pakonen.

WHILE THE VILLAGE celebration officially starts on Friday, with the softball tournament, the big day is Monday when "there'll be 10,000 people here," Strickland said.

The events Monday start at 7 a.m., with the Rotary Club's pancake breakfast and extend well into the night when the fireworks and teen dance begin at 10.

"We elected to have most of the activities on the Fourth except for the beer tent," Lovejoy added. "We wanted to concentrate on the other activities then."

The three chairmen have been juggling the workload among themselves with each pulling his weight. "We all work together

Thumb Prints

To the average shutter-bug the name Kreonite probably means little, but to the professional film developer it is immediately recognized.

That's been because it is among the most advanced computerized color developers available. You'll find one of those machines in Cass City, tucked above Tim's Photos on Main Street. It is part of Thumb Prints, a new business owned and operated by Tim Downing, who also owns the photo shop.

Downing is using his considerable investment in the new lab to offer 24-hour color print service.

In addition, at selected spots in other Huron and Tuscola County communities, he has pick up stations for customer use.

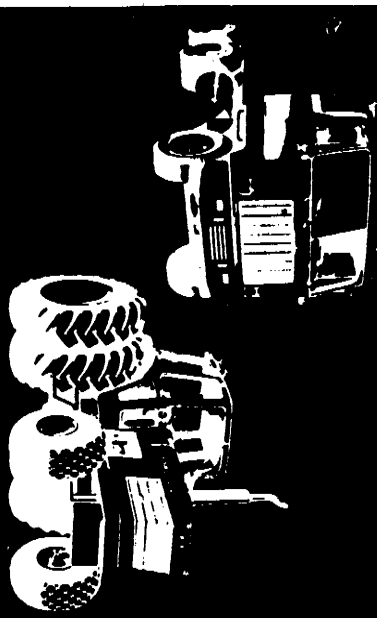

By the use of courier service, Downing is able to offer the same 24-hour service at these locations as he does in Cass City.

To operate the new machines, Downing used the expertise he acquired as a commercial photographer and added a crash course in running the new equipment. Downing said that he is building his business on high quality color work produced by his new machines. It's capable, he feels, of offering better color development than older, less sophisticated developers.

Motorcycle riders plan parade stunt and contest

Unlike Superman and Evel Knievel, who fly over obstacles, motorcycle trials riders ride over them and sometimes through them.

Logs, rocks, streams, even automobiles — all without putting their feet on the ground. At least that is the object.

Three or four members of the Michigan-Ontario Trials Association, including state champion Gary Wikerson of Marysville, will be demonstrating their highly specialized skills during the Fourth of July festival.

The exhibition will take place starting at 4 p.m. Monday east of the sledding hill. Spectators will be able to watch from the hill.

The riders will give a pre-view during the parade Monday morning. The plan, according to Dick Roth, who is coordinating their appearance, is to tow a car. At the spotlight, the car will be stopped and the trials riders will ride their motorcycles over it.

Roth, a Sebawaing area farmer, ex-Cass City school teacher and avid motorcycle rider, said the trials riders are appearing here in an effort to popularize their sport, which doesn't get much attention compared to the more popular motocross and other off-road motorcycle events.

The usual form of trials competition is on natural terrain, riding over rocks and logs, up and down hills and through streams and mudholes.

The object for the rider is to get through the course without putting his feet down or stopping. If he puts his feet down, stops or falls down, he is assessed penalty points. The rider with the fewest points wins.

A new part of the sport is called stadium trials, done in a stadium so that large numbers of spectators can watch.

In stadium trials the objects are manmade, and that is what will be demonstrated Monday. Roth plans to have such obstacles as 55 gallon drums, telephone poles and possibly large implement tires or spools used for electrical cable.

The motorcycles used in trials riding are specially built for the purpose, he said. They run at slow speeds, are quiet, use special tires and are obviously geared to climb over almost anything.

Drive-in aids Cass City Bank's growth

Although the Cass City State Bank is now 101 years old, it's a comparative infant in its new Main Street location.

The bank is now celebrating its fifth year in its new quarters after moving from the corner of Main and Seeger.

The move to the west has proved profitable to the bank and popular with customers. When the switch in buildings was completed, the bank's deposits were $9.65 million and today they are $17.13 million.

One of the reasons for the growth is the addition of the drive-in to the facility. The drive-in is busy everyday and especially busy on Friday afternoon.

At that time both of the drive-in windows are usually in use and there nearly always is a waiting line.

The bank has been serving Cass City since 1882. In that time there have been just six owners or presidents of the firm.

Founded by Curtis W. McPhail it became a State Bank in 1921. It has been owned or managed by the Auten family since 1895.

is turning fertilizer

Tests are regularly conducted to see whether the sludge and farmland are free of pollutants. "We test sludge twice a year and the fields once," he explained. "We have to take samples of the soil to Michigan State and they analyze the metal concentration to see if anything has accumulated."

The sludge is what is left after the wastewater is treated. (The water, with contaminants removed, goes into the Cass River.) In the new $6 million plant, the sludge accumulates until enough is collected that the storage tank must be emptied.

"We have 200,000 gallons of sludge to get rid of every six months," Mohr said.

The sludge is transported to the fields in a tractor-towed spreader with a 2,250-gallon tank which cost the village $13,500. It is injected, under pressure, through hoses into narrow 10-inch deep trenches which are dug by prongs. The spreader's wheels then cover the trenches.

The spreader has four prongs each connected to a hose.

It can spread adjustable amounts of sludge over a field depending on the nitrogen level per acre the farmer wishes.

Mohr said on the first day of spreading, his work force was able to inject 12 loads of sludge into Donahue's field within eight hours.

"Normally it would take us 10 days to two weeks to spread all the sludge, but things were dragging (due to the rainy weather) and he needed his tractor back, so we decided to stop," Mohr added. "Since we had the storage space (for sludge) it was no problem."

The new project will not interfere with the land's ability to produce regular crops each year. Donahue planted oats in the field immediately after the experimental spreading stopped.

The system is not a new concept, rather it is a refinement of an old one.

The village used to get rid of some sewage in a similar fashion. After letting the sludge dry for a few weeks on the drying beds, it would be loaded into a manure spreader and emptied onto the fields. Farmers were then required by the State Department of Natural Resources to disk the dried sludge under the surface within 48 hours.

"This current system does all this at once and saves time without making the farmer do a thing," Mohr said.

FILL 'ER UP - Cass City's new tractor-towed sludge spreader with its 2,250-gallon tank is being filled with treated sludge at the wastewater treatment plant before being deposited in nearby farm fields.

Zoning and planning help Cass City's orderly growth

By JOE BOWER

Cass City -- "The Pacesetter of the Thumb" -- prides itself on being a thriving community. Village industries and businesses are showing signs of improvement from the recession.

Housing in the village is also emerging from the lingering recession that has plagued the U.S. economy. "People weren't buying for a while," said Tom Herron, owner of Herron Builders, "but things are getting better."

He is currently working on the Northwoods Village and Estates subdivision in the northwest corner of the village.

"If things go like they did in the other two (subdivisions he built, Hillcrest and Countryview), this one should be done in 10 years," he said.

It will be the last one he plans to build.

"We just completed a one-mile stretch of water and sewer lines which were started about five years ago. It starts near Provincial House and was brought around to North Seeger. Hopefully we can put in the (street) pavement this year."

Herron's current 126-lot subdivision is the latest to provide homes for Cass City's growing population.

Subdivisions have been springing up in the village since 1868 when the first two subdivisions, Hugh Seed's Addition located on the east side of Seeger Street, and Jesse Fox's Addition on the opposite side of the street, were built.

Sketchy early zoning was the basis for today's excellent zoning codes.

THIS HAS BEEN accomplished thanks in part to a 113-page master plan written in 1959 which has

Census Year	Village of Cass City
1860	313
1890	813
1900	1,113
1910	1,126
1920	1,228
1930	1,261
1940	1,362
1950	1,762
1960	1,945
1970	1,974
1980	2,258

AS HERRON'S RECENT endeavors show, residential growth has continued in the period since the so-called "building boom" ended in 1960. Village officials can only hope growth continues in the future.

Obviously, subdivisions are not the only residential growth, but they do represent a great majority of the homes being built in Cass City.

The village prefers residentially-zoned land be purchased by subdividers, rather than wait for individuals to slowly buy the land.

"Subdividers have to provide sewer, water, curbs and roads," village good a future as any other superintendent Lou LaPon community."

All type antique cars on display

"You're going to see everything!" boasted Jim Perry about the cars scheduled to appear at the festival. "We always have about 50 antique and special interest cars in the parade." Entries include about 20 vehicles owned by members of the Thumb Area Antique Auto Club to which Perry belongs, the Detroit Corvair Club and many private individual's vehicles, both old and not so old. After the parade, most of the cars will be displayed in a roped-off section of the park by the municipal garage at the east end of the park. "We get quite a crowd for a couple or three hours."

Antique car buffs will have a ball, according to Jim Perry, organizer. That's because 50 cars are expected in the parade and later be available for viewing at the park.

Perry said, "They follow the parade to here, where they look around." Owners usually keep their cars at the show until 4 p.m. "It's not a club-wide project but we (local members) are putting it on," he Perry commented.

HANDSOME HAULER - Brothers Roy (above) and Irvin Kitchin of Van Dyke Road wanted something unique to drive to antique tractor and gas engine shows, so restored this 1937 Ford half-ton stakebed truck. The truck, which will be driven in the Fourth of July parade, took them two winters to restore. They got on the road for the first time this spring.

Pacesetter 5-mile run slated Saturday - tot run set Monday

Distance running has become one of America's most popular leisure time activities. Runners turn out in droves at races. Cass City's fourth annual Pacesetter 5-Mile Run will give runners from the area a chance to test their abilities while staying close to home.

The event, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, is slated to begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. There will also be a tot run Monday. Because of the large number of persons expected to compete Saturday, chairman Curt Strickland has divided the competition into nine classes: 14 and under, 15-19, 20-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49 and 50 and over. There will be a men's and women's division for each age group.

The $6 entry fee can be paid at the pre-race registration from 7:30-8:45 under the press box at the football field.

Strickland said the entry fee is expected to be used to purchase T-shirts, which will be given to the first 100 entering all over the Bay area.

The race will start in front of the grandstand and follow a course that goes north of town, past the golf course, and end on the road that runs from the elementary school to the high school.

The one-mile tot run for children 12 and under will start at 4:30 p.m. Monday

Manager feels

Service key to

Fuelgas success

It takes a lot of men and equipment to run Fuelgas through the sales and service at the store.

The trucks that service Tuscola and Samlac Counties are a major portion of the business that retail store customers don't come in contact with.

Carter said that he was pleased with that. People are welcome anytime, he added, to come out and get acquainted. The store features name brand appliances and heating equipment.

In Cass City that manager is Karl Carter. He took over the store Oct. 1, 1982. When long-time manager Ken Eisinger retired. Much of Carter's contact with local residents is through the sales and service at the store.

trans, trophies and medals. The number of medals given out will be "by percentage" which means the number of medal winners in each class will be determined by a percentage of the total runners in that age group.

"We broke the classes down so much that we have to award by the number of runners entering," Strickland explained. "If we only have two runners in a class, we're not going to give two medals. We'll give only one. But if we get 50 runners (in a class) we'll give out five medals."

The man and woman with the best times will be declared the respective overall winners and each will receive a desk clock trophy.

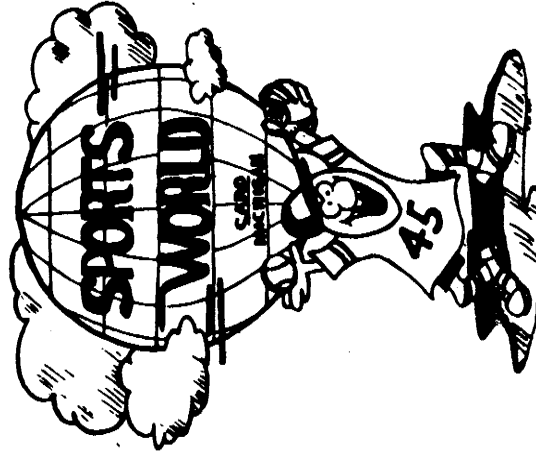

The 1982 race drew about 60 runners and Strickland is predicting more this year.

"There should be a good turnout," he predicted. "It has increased every year. I'm expecting greater participation than before because we've been advertising all over the Bay area."

Pound for pound ponies outpull horses, says coordinator Phillips

The dust festivalgoers may see Monday coming from the area at the foot of the sledding hill won't be raised by a cattle stampede. Rather, it's from teams of ponies competing in the pony pull.

According to coordinator Paul Phillips, many people have never seen a pony pulling contest, but he and the approximately 45-member Thumb Pony Pulling Association hope to change that.

"We try to get pulls anywhere we can," said Phillips who is founder of the 22-year-old association. "It is the same principle as horse pulls. But, horses must pull a stone boat 27½ feet while ponies have to pull 14 feet."

"Ponies are quicker and, by percentage, pull more weight than horses. Competition is divided into two classes, which are determined by the height of the pony's withers. Animals up to 46 inches are in one class and those up to 50 inches in the other.

The reason for the separate classes is simple. "The taller ponies are heavier and stronger," Phillips explained.

"We charge $200 to put on the pull," he added. "From that we pay seven places in each class. First place gets around $22. We also give trophies to the top three teams in each class."

Phillips has signed 20 entrants and is expecting a few more. Pullers from as far as Lansing will be in attendance.

The dust starts rising when the pulling begins at 2 p.m. Monday. The admission will be $1.

Chemical Bank remodels to add more office space

Since Pinney Bank merged into the Chemical Bank chain, the hammers and saws have been working almost without stop and will be doing so for another couple of weeks at least.

That's the word from authorities at the bank. After the opening of its new drive-in bank this spring, the company completed plans for adding to the office space.

To do so they reduced the size of the lobby and are adding three new offices. Reducing the lobby size has been a major project. The doors were moved to make the old and new blend well.

The lot to the west of the building will be hard surfaced for parking.

Chemical Bank also leases the parking lot on the corner of Oak and Pine. Plans call for the lot to be hardtopped.

PONY PULL chairman Paul Phillips holds "Sonny," one half of his pulling team scheduled to appear in the Monday event.

Village police anticipate little trouble with Festival visitors

The fourth of July week end in Cass City is a festive time when people can sit back and take in all the excitement. It's a relaxing three days for just about everyone — except the village police.

"It's our busiest time of the year," noted police Chief Gene Wilson.

Plans have been made to beef up the force of five full-time men and two part-time men by bringing in officers from the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department and the Michigan State Police.

"During the parade and at night time is when the police are needed most," he said.

In addition to three village policemen, one deputy and one state trooper will assist in crowd control at Monday morning's parade. According to Wilson, officers will be out as early as 6 or 7 a.m. keeping cars from parking along the parade's course on Main Street from West street to Ale Street.

He will also have officers at the tractor pull, teen dance and softball tournament.

Wilson warns that the village's ordinance prohibiting consumption of alcoholic beverages in the park will be strictly enforced.

"Like in the past years, I don't expect any problems," he said, "but the more officers we have, the less problems there will be. To under-enforce can cause problems."

According to Wilson, officers from outside enforcement agencies and those working overtime at night will not cost the village a cent. They will be paid from a special alcohol enforcement fund financed by a federal grant received by the Tuscola Sheriff's Department.

GENE WILSON

Kids' games popular

Some intense athletic competition will be taking place on the south side of the football field Monday where children up to 14 years old will be participating in games sponsored by the Cass City Jaycettes.

First-year event chairman Connie Klinkman, along with at least 10 other members of the organization, will oversee the games which are increasing in popularity every year.

"In the past, they've had a tremendous number show up," Mrs. Klinkman said. "I expect about 200 kids to come out."

A lollipop race and a crawl race will be staged for kids ages 2-4.

Older kids will get to compete in a sack race, water balloon contest, softball throw, wheelbarrow race and a bubblegum blowing contest.

Competition will be divided into five age groups, 2-4, 5-6, 7-8, 11-12, 13-14.

The event will begin at 3:30 and will take about 2½ hours to complete due to the large number of entries.

"Everyone will receive either a certificate or a sucker," Mrs. Klinkman added. "Individual winners will get a ribbon plus a prize depending on their place."

Prizes will include Frisbees, buttons and hats.

Tug-of-war sure to draw crowds

The ever-popular tug-of-war is a yearly festival event which gives many local and area people the opportunity to use their muscles while earning some prize money.

Chairman Wayne Dillon calls it "a real macho deal." By the contest's end, however, the strength of participants, "macho" or not, has been pretty well sapped. Boastful claims of even the strongest pullers are usually reduced to aching groans.

"If you pull for three minutes, believe me you're tired," Dillon said. "There is a five minute time limit per pull but we have never had to use it. Usually a good pull never lasts more than a minute."

The fifth-year chairman speaks with the voice of experience. He was on the winning team in the first tug-of-war in 1978.

"I haven't pulled since then," he laughed. "I've learned."

Teams are required to pay a $20 entry fee and must be present at the 4 p.m. weigh-in Monday at the Pillsbury elevator which will be conducted by Dillon and elevator manager Bob Wischmeyer.

The pulling begins at 5 on the track in front of the grandstand and a large crowd is certain to show up. Last year there were an estimated 900 people watching the contest.

Teams are limited to 10 members. Entrants in the men's division have a 2,000-pound weight limit and women's squads cannot weigh more than 1,500 pounds. Each team is not allowed to have more than two coaches. The competition will be double elimination.

A new system of awarding prizes will be used.

"We used to have a $100 first place prize for men and nothing for the women," Dillon said. "Now we are going to put all the money (entry fees) in a pot (one each for men and women) and divide it up. Winners will get 50 percent of the pot, second place gets 20 percent and third gets 10 percent. The other 20 percent of the money goes toward trophies."

Each of the three top teams will receive a trophy.

While most teams are taking part in the contest for the fun of it, according to Dillon the tug-of-war is all business for some entries.

"We get teams from all over like Sebawaing and Bad Axe. Some of them are very serious and tour around to four or five other fairs and festivals," he said.

Plan radio program

One new twist that will be implemented in the 1983 advertising campaign is a live radio broadcast from Cass City by WKYO (Caro).

"They're coming Saturday night and will be at the beer tent from 7-10 p.m.," Proctor said. "They will be continually plugging the festival and inviting people to come down (on Sunday and Monday)."

The live broadcast will cost festival planners $80 per hour but, they hope the venture will pay off by advertising the festival to a larger audience and prompting many people to attend.

Plan fireworks

What would the Fourth of July be without fireworks? They are as American as apple pie.

Thanks to some budget stretching by the festival committee, for the second year in a row, Monday night will be filled with the sounds and sights of exploding fireworks.

According to festival co-chairman Roland Pakonen, Theodore Vinlow of Belding will put on the show and the same Pennsylvania company as last year will provide the fireworks which are scheduled to be launched at dark on the softball field.

The show will last about 30 minutes and cost the committee approximately $1,800.

The grandstands at the football field will be open for spectators to sit and view the display.

The festival planners are seeking donations to help cover the expense of the fireworks display. Checks may be made out to Fourth of July Festival and can be sent to Bill Lovejoy.

Teen dance to aid cheerleaders

The Cass City High School varsity cheerleaders are sponsoring a teen dance Monday on the tennis courts from 10 p.m.-1 a.m.

According to cheerleading coach Sandy Nicholas, the dance is for students 13 years old and over. A $2 charge will be collected at the gate.

"The money is going to send the varsity cheerlead-

Festival spectators will have an opportunity to take a refreshing break Monday afternoon with a free dip in the Helen Stevens Memorial Pool.

The pool will be open for a "free swim" to everyone from 1-3.

Pool staff members will also be on duty and have the pool open during the whole week end beginning Saturday from 1-3 for .25.

Admission for Saturday and Monday from 3-5 will be .35. Saturday and Sunday evenings from 7-9 and Sunday from 2-5 will require swimmers to pay .50.

Showers will be available for campers and softball players to use Saturday-Monday morning for .50.
