

NEW APARTMENTS? -- The apartments proposed for Cass City by William and Thomas Breakey will be similar in appearance to the Kings View Apartments they opened last year. The Kingston apartments have 24 units. Three buildings and a total of 32 apartments are proposed in Cass City.

Few opportunities in Michigan

Many college grads have hard time finding jobs

BY JOE BOWER

Not long ago a college diploma almost guaranteed a job for its bearer.

With tougher economic times, things have changed.

Job offers for the college class of 1983 are down 34 percent from last year, according to a report published Aug. 1 by the College Placement Council.

The council also said the economic uncertainty has hurt the employment situation for this year's grads.

The study was based on statistics from 160 colleges and universities for the period beginning Sept. 1, 1982, and ending June 10, 1983.

These findings are similar to the results of the Chronicle's survey of 20 area college students who graduated this spring.

Only nine of the graduates have permanent jobs in fields they studied in. Five others occupy temporary positions while they continue searching for work which they are qualified for.

Cheri Martin, who completed her medical technologist training at the Lutheran Hospital of Fort Wayne, Ind., after four years at Saginaw Valley State College, is one of the fortunate nine. She began working at that hospital Aug. 8.

Despite preferring a job closer to home, the 1978 Cass City High School graduate said nothing was to be found.

"Michigan is really hurting in terms of job openings," Miss Martin reported. "The economy is hurting the availability of the jobs."

KEVIN BROWN OF 4150 Robinson Road has found the same to be true for him. Unfortunately he has not been able to find work.

Brown has a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Michigan State University. Until this past year, he said there was a demand for all engineering students. They held the highest placement rate of any students.

Suddenly the demand dropped off and many engineers found themselves facing the same problem as many other grads -- no work.

Even though it has been over two months since graduation June 10, he expected to be looking for work for some time.

"Our counselors (at MSU) told us to be prepared to look for as long as 10 months to a year," Brown said.

Since September of last year, he has had about 15 interviews. All were followed by rejection letters.

Due to his unsuccessful search, he has applied to the Navy's Engineering Officer Program to acquire experience and make some money.

If he likes it, he will reenlist after four years; if he doesn't, it will have given him a job with steady income until hopefully the economy improves.

BECAUSE OF THE faltering economy, many students have forsaken the opportunity to follow a career of particular interest and are settling for a field of study which they enjoy less but stand a greater chance of getting a job.

However, Chuck Auten of 4647 Seeger Street didn't let the recession stand in the way of pursuing his interest. He earned an associate degree in automotive marketing from Northwood Institute.

The economy was no factor in his career decision.

"I still think it (the auto industry) was a good thing to get into where you can be successful," he commented.

He has been working for Oury Chevrolet-Olds Inc. as a salesman this summer. In the fall, Auten plans to return to school and start working on his bachelor's degree of business administration.

Charles Brown, a MSU alumnus and Deanna Sawdon, who graduated from SVSC, were interested in banking and finance. Both are now employed in area banks.

Sherry Stec is another student who ignored the economy to pursue a career which interested her.

The graduate of the Southeastern Academy travel-tourism course in Orlando, Fla., now has a job as an airline reservationist with an airport in Marquette.

Miss Stec, a 1982 Cass City graduate, said, "It sounded like an interesting field to go into and I hadn't found anything else, so I enrolled."

Frances Kozan is one grad who studied in a field which she had a particular interest for but can't find work.

She was a film video major at the University of Michigan and has been trying to break into the film industry for three months. Despite many leads across the country, nothing has turned up.

EVEN THOUGH LESS than half of this area's 1983 college grads have found employment in the short time since graduation, several felt they chose the right path to pursue a career.

"I think it (college) was very much worth the time and effort," said L. David Skiles of 6556 DeLong Rd. "Education has become more technical today. I think it is where it's at as far as successfully finding a job. I still feel it opens some doors that high school

Builders clash in federal fund fight

24 units proposed or....

Two new apartment projects may be built in Cass City, but not at the same time.

Five days after the village Planning Commission was presented a proposal for a 32-unit complex, it was shown a second proposal, for 24 apartments exclusively for senior citizens.

The two firms involved will be competing for the same loan funds from the Farmers Home Administration.

The latest proposal, presented Tuesday evening, is that of Rural Housing Corp. of East Lansing. The firm's representative, James Hovey, told the commission the project will cost about $750,000. RHC would put up 7 percent of the cost, with FHA financing the rest through a low-interest loan.

There are several differences between the proposals, in addition to cost. The RHC one calls for 24 one-bedroom apartments in one building, exclusively for senior citizens.

The $1 million complex proposed by William and Thomas Breakey would have three buildings and a total of 32 apartments and would not be restricted to senior citizens.

Thomas Breakey said renters would be restricted to those with household incomes totaling no more than $23,000; Hovey said

"about $23,000."

RHC WANTS TO BUY three of the vacant nine acres the village owns in the southeast corner, south of Garfield Street. Entrance to the apartments, if they are built, would be via Woodland Avenue.

The property may be sold to the highest bidder, which was agreeable to Hovey.

In addition to having to buy the property, the firm will also have to get it rezoned for "multiple family residential." It presently is zoned for single family dwellings.

The Breakeys are one step ahead of the other firm, since they already have an option to buy the land behind the Charmont. It also will have to be rezoned.

ONLY ONE PROJECT is likely to be funded, at least at one time.

Hovey explained the FHA has a formula for deciding where its loan funds will be allocated. The formula includes per capita income and amount of sub-standard housing in the county in which the community is located and distance of the community from the nearest city of 50,000 or more population. (The farther the better to get funding.)

Out of 100 points, an additional five points is given if the project is exclusively for senior citizens.

In addition to the points formula, the FHA looks at a community's need for housing and examines the proposed construction site.

THE POINTS SYSTEM may explain the seemingly sudden interest in Cass City by two developers. "All I can say is, you're rapidly rising to the top of the list pointwise," said Hovey, whose firm keeps track of such things by computer. "We know what's going to be funded."

RHC, which builds, owns and manages its FHA funded projects, has 1,000 units in various locations in Michigan. Its newest project, with rentals just starting, is in Pigeon.

Odds appear good, Hovey told the Planning Commission, that the FHA will fund one of the projects, but not both. "What's happening is, the Breakeys will be in competition with us for this funding."

He added that although the federal agency doesn't like to fund two such projects in a community at one time, it may fund them a year or so apart, so Cass City may eventually get both apartment projects.

RENTALS IN THE PRO- posed senior citizens apartments would be on a sliding scale in accordance with FHA requirements. Hovey explained that persons at the top of the allowable income scale of $23,000 would pay about $500 a month. Those earning about $10,000 would pay the minimum of $240. (Rents mentioned for the Breakey complex are a little less.)

Hovey said there is a possibility some "low income" FHA funding may be obtained for the project. If that happens, senior citizens receiving less than about $10,000 would pay 30 percent of their income for rent.

Following Hovey's presentation, the Planning Commission approved a motion recommending to the Village Council that it favorably consider RHC's request, as outlined in a letter it will submit.

The letter asks for an option to purchase the three acres and a letter indicating village support for the project, to be submitted to the FHA. The "letter of support" should mention availability of sewer and water to the site, what the water and sewer fees will be and the current and required zoning.

After the meeting, Hovey told the Chronicle he expects that if the FHA acts on one of the competing loan requests quickly, the firm that gets the loan could have apartments ready for occupancy by next summer.

.... $1 million 32-unit apartment proposed

A three-building, 32-unit apartment complex costing approximately $1 million may be constructed in Cass City.

The apartments would be built and managed by William and Thomas Breakey, father and son respectively, of Lansing, operating as Management Resources Development.

The younger Breakey presented the proposal last Thursday to the village Planning Commission, the first step in the required rezoning if the apartments are to be constructed.

Having assurances that the property will be rezoned is one of the requirements for the Breakeys to get the low-interest Farmers Home Administration

(FHA) loan they need to finance the project.

The Breakeys have an option to purchase six acres south of the Charmont, owned by Charmont owner Clare Comment. The property is zoned "general business" and will have to be rezoned to "multiple family residential" before apartments can be constructed there.

Following the presentation and discussion, the commission voted to ask the council that it consider the rezoning, with the recommendation that it be rezoned.

Had the council chosen to immediately begin the rezoning procedure, and was favorable to it, it would have instructed the Planning Commission to conduct a public hearing. After the hearing, the commission must recommend to the council that it approve or deny the rezoning. The council then has the final say.

At a special meeting Monday of this week, the council instead chose to send a "letter of support" to the Breakeys. If they get the FHA loan, it will then consider the rezoning. (See council story below.)

The proposed complex consists of three two-story buildings, two with eight apartments and one with 16. There would be 16 one-bedroom apartments and 16 two-bedroom. The parking lot would have 64 spaces. The drawing Breakey presented to the planning commission showed entrance would be from Doerr Road.

There would be an on-site manager.

The meeting attracted several merchants and two village council members (one of them a merchant). No one spoke in opposition and the general feeling of those present was the apartments would be good economically for Cass City.

IT WAS MENTIONED at least twice that the only vacant land in the village presently zoned for multiple family is owned by builder-developer Tom Herron, who doesn't wish to sell it.

To that, Planning Commission member Tom Herron said, "Please turn to page 16."

SENIOR CITIZEN APARTMENTS -- This drawing shows the front view of the proposed senior citizen apartments that may be constructed in Cass City by Rural Housing Corp. of East Lansing. The T-shaped structure would have 24 one-bedroom apartments on one floor.

Owen-Gage first to start classes

Owendale-Gagetown is the first area school district to begin classes, with doors there opening Wednesday of next week for a full day of classes.

School begins in the Kingston and Uby districts Tuesday, Aug. 30. Students in the Cass City district have an additional week of vacation. Their first day in school is Tuesday, Sept. 6.

Classes at Owen-Gage run from 8:30-2:47. Bus routes will be similar to last year. Students are asked to be ready for their buses about 10 minutes earlier than usual until times are firmly established.

There will be three new teachers this year, plus

Sandra Parks, who was teaching home economics at the high school, is back at the elementary school. She will be teaching kindergarten, replacing Eva Rochefort, who retired.

New at the high school will be Brenda Parker, from Cedar, near Traverse City, who will teach home economics and Spanish; Margot Cooley of Bay Port, commercial classes, and a band teacher, still to be hired as of Monday. Mrs. Cooley will teach for the first semester only, replacing Peggy Randall, who is on child care leave.

Hot lunch will be served starting with the first day of school. Prices will be 55 cents at the elementary school, grades 1-6, and 85 cents at the high school. Prices are subject to change.

Applications for free or reduced prices will be sent home with students during the first week of school.

The school day ends at 2:47 p.m.

Parents of kindergarten students are reminded that their children must have immunization shots before entering school for the first time.

The school board and Tri-County Bargaining Association, which represents the teachers, are negotiating a new contract. Teachers will have a full-day session the day before classes start.

Council okays support letter for developer

The Cass City Village Council Monday evening approved a "letter of support" for the 32-unit three-building apartment complex that may be built behind the Charmont.

The developers, William and Thomas Breakey, need the letter in order to proceed with their application to the Farmers Home Administration for a low-interest loan to finance the approximately $1 million project.

Councilman James Ware, who presided in the absence of President Lambert Althaver, explained the council could either direct the Planning Commission to hold a hearing on the rezoning or send a letter to the Breakeys that if they get the FHA loan, they can officially ask for a change in zoning.

Their letter to the council asked for a letter of support stating, "Rezoning will be considered favorably."

The council voted to go with the latter approach, approving a letter to the developers drafted by Ware. Part of it read, "The zoning can be changed to multiple family dwelling without being considered spot zon-

"If It Fitz . . ."

JCPenney not the same

By Jim Fitzgerald

The first sentence of a letter recently received said: "On August 5th, you'll be celebrating something special—your 57th birthday."

How nice, I thought. It was three weeks until my birthday, and already a friend was sending me best wishes.

But then I read a succeeding sentence: "Mr. Fitzgerald, of course I don't know whether you're married or single or whether or not you have children."

Of course? The writer knew my age and birth date, but not whether I'm married or have children? What kind of a friend was that to be wishing me a happy birthday?

The signature said my birthday greeter was R. Michael Howard, president of the JCPenney Life Insurance Company. I noted that R. Michael Howard has a period after his first initial and a space between that initial and his middle name and also between his middle name and his last name.

And I wondered whatever happened to the periods and spaces that used to clearly distinguish JCPenney from a typographical mishmash.

James Cash Penney founded the J.C. Penney empire in 1902 and remained active in its operation almost until his death, at the age of 95, in 1971. He and I go back a long way together.

When I was a small boy, my father bought the family clothing from J. C. Penney. He bought life insurance from Harry Hickey who was best man at my parents' wedding. J. C. Penney wasn't even invited to the church, let alone the reception.

When I was a teenager, I swept floors at a J. C. Penney store. I remember they were creaky wooden floors and required oiling. Also, before each sweeping I had to spread kitty litter on the floor to keep the dust off the merchandise. This was done each morning without benefit of an environmental impact study.

Later, when I sold and wrote newspaper advertising, my best customer was a J.C. Penney store. And if I'd ever left the periods and spaces out of J.C. Penney's name, the store manager wouldn't have paid for the ad.

Back in any of those old days, I would have been thrilled to receive birthday greetings from James Cash Penney. I always admired him because he was a firm believer in newspaper advertising and never competed with Harry Hickey. It is not thrilling to have R. Michael Howard remember my birthday.

For one thing, he said if I don't buy $5,000 worth of JCPenney life insurance by Aug. 5, it will cost me more on Aug. 6 and forever after. I hate deadlines, and I especially hate a deadline that coincides with what is supposed to be a happy occasion. Thanks to R. Michael Howard, I could spend my birthday feeling dumb for blowing forever the chance to buy $5,000 worth of life insurance for $20.70 a month.

Speaking of dumb, the birthday card from R. Michael Howard said I would be allowed to "EXAMINE YOUR POLICY FOR 30 FULL DAYS AT NO RISK TO YOU." (The capital letters are R. Michael Howard's; he probably got them from the same place he's hiding JCPenney's periods and spaces.)

Now, I realize there's not much a doddering old fool of 57 can do to amuse himself in the twilight of his insurable years. But spend 30 full days reading one insurance policy? Is R. Michael Howard sure I can stand the excitement?

When asked, I usually answer that I don't want anything for my birthday. But this year I do. I want, please God, to be taken off the mailing list of every clothing firm that sells insurance, and every gasoline company that sells shoes. I want to never again receive a stupid letter from a friendly corporation that warmly inserts my name into the middle of each paragraph to show that it really knows all about me—except it doesn't know I died five years ago.

And I want each of you who receives birthday greetings from the JCPenney Insurance Company to use its postage-paid return envelope to send this column to the "attention of RMHoward." Add a note asking if he knows how to keep the dust off his insurance.

SWINGING SENIOR CITIZENS—Members of the Owen-Gage Senior Citizens tried out the swinging bridge at Crosswell during their bus trip to Port Huron last week.

Senior citizens go on bus tour

The Owen-Gage Senior Citizens enjoyed a bus tour to Port Huron Tuesday, Aug. 9.

Frank Doan, past president, was the tour guide for most of the trip. He directed the tour through Juhl and Applegate on the way to Crosswell where the group walked across the Swinging Bridge over the Black River. A sign there says "Be good to your mother-in-law."

The next point of interest was the Dorsey House on Wildcat Road, which was a stagecoach stop on the way to Bay City and Crosswell. It always had the same name, but several owners.

President Elma Miklovich guided the tour past the farm where she grew up, from which she walked five miles to high school.

The group ate their sack lunch at Pine Grove Park on the bank of the St. Clair River in Port Huron.

After exploring the river area, the bus continued through the downtown area, then back to a spot under the Blue Water Bridge to enjoy the view.

The bus then followed M-25 along the water to Lexington, where the group stopped for an ice cream treat.

The next stop was at Sanilac County Park No. 4 and another scenic turnout and then back to the pickup points in Cass City, Gagetown and Owendale.

Thirty-four members and guests went on the trip.

The Haire Net

"We were eyeball to eyeball and they blinked," a ringing declaration that now belongs in our folklore along with "Damn the torpedos, full speed ahead," "Nuts," and other famous quotes.

It's a good thing that they weren't said in 1983. The spokesman might have been sued for inflammatory language or at the very least be a subject for a recall.

In Michigan this year alone, there have been at least 15 recall attempts headed by the attempted removal of Gov. James Blanchard.

Most of them were initiated because of the 38 percent tax increase. Most, but not all. Rep. William Sederburg is the focus of a recall attempt for voting against the increase. Right on.

It wouldn't be surprising if a recall were attempted because a member of the legislature failed to vote on the issue. When you think about it, that may make more sense than a recall of solons voting on either side of the issue.

Along with this use of our courts for purposes that you have to believe that our forefathers wouldn't have imagined in their wildest dreams, is the penchant for clogging our courts with cases that defy reason. There are myriad examples. One comes immediately to mind.

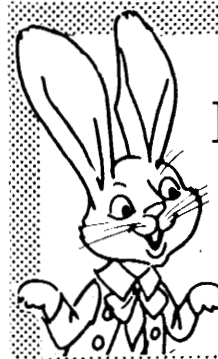

The details are hazy but one person made headlines when he went to court for damages following an automobile accident. He sued after he served a prison term for his part in the accident.

The chances of appearing in court these days are so great that members of public bodies, such as the Cass City School Board, have been forced to buy liability insurance.

As outlined here before the solution for elimination of frivolous damage suits is to make the loser and his attorney pay court costs.

It's a little harder to know what to do about recalls. Certainly they have a place in our system. It should be available for cases where the rights of the electorate are being trampled. It shouldn't be available just because a tax is passed to pay the bills. The governor isn't elected for life. The time to remove him from office, if that's your aim, is at election time. Fortunately it appears as if the Blanchard recall has no chance. Most of the others will also wither and die. It's a well deserved fate.

It's sure that every business will be served by a computer in the future. The progressive ones probably already are. It's hard to make changes, especially when it requires treading in unmarked (to us) fields.

We've made the switch in the composing room, but not the office. It's easy to rationalize putting it off by telling ourselves that it will be simpler and cheaper tomorrow.

Joe Bower, the Chronicle's summer intern, left to return to University of Michigan Friday. He was the first student from Michigan to work here.

There have been interns from Michigan State and Central Michigan at the Chronicle and they all have been productive.

One criterion we use in selecting an intern is that they work on the school paper. If they are good enough and interested enough to do that, chances are good that they will work out well.

There's always regret when the interns leave. They make it possible for the paper to do a little better job and take some of the pain out of vacation time for the staff.

It's easy to see the advantages of another full time man until you check costs against revenues.

That's when reality steps in and any idea of a staff addition steps out.

WCTU picks officers

The Women's Christian Temperance Union met Friday at the home of Elsie and Georgia Thompson.

The meeting was opened with pledges to the American, Christian and Temperance flags. Roll call was answered with a scripture verse. Devotions were led by Harriet Rayl using the national theme for devotions, followed by prayer. Dues for the coming year were collected.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Martha Putnam; vice-president, Beatrice Soldan, and secretary-treasurer and devotion leader, Harriet Rayl.

The next meeting will be Sept. 23 at the home of Mildred Trisch.

Zoning stupidity

By Mike Eliasohn

Contrary to what some of our village office holders believe, the Cass City zoning ordinance isn't written in stone, never to be altered.

It's printed on paper. Unfortunately, some of them think the town will go to seed if anything in its 113 pages is ever altered.

Unfortunately for Robert and Suzan Genoveses, instead of the variance they wanted, they got the shaft.

What they wanted was a variance so they could build a dining room and two-car garage onto the side of their Huron Street home. The problem was that in doing so, it would have put the structure within two feet of their property line, whereas the zoning ordinance says the minimum must be at least six feet.

There might be validity in such a provision if there were a house next door.

But where the couple wants to build their addition is next to a vacant lot, the owner of which has told the Board of Zoning Appeals (BZA) that he has no objection to its granting the variance. Furthermore, the Genoveses now have a written agreement with the owner that if he ever decides to sell the lot, they have first rights to buy it.

The first time the Genoveses sought the variance, the zoning board rejected it 3-2. The second time, the vote was 3-1 -- in favor. Unfortunately, the zoning ordinance requires for stupid reasons that variances have to be approved by four of the five members. In other words, the minority rules.

A 4-3 vote is good enough or the U.S. Supreme Court to render decisions that have a nationwide impact, but a one vote majority isn't enough to approve a variance to the zoning ordinance in Cass City.

It was mentioned at the last BZA hearing that the absent member opposed granting a variance, so if he had been there -- unless he would have changed his mind -- the vote would have been 3-2 in favor -- not enough.

The majority opinion the first time and the minority but prevailing opinion the second time was that if the Genoveses were granted a variance, it would open the doors to other persons who want variances.

The Genoveses' home was built before the present zoning ordinance went into effect and it isn't located centrally on the lot.

According to the ordinance, variances can be granted "where by reason of exceptional narrowness, shallowness, shape or area of a specific piece of property at the time of enactment of this ordinance...the strict application of the regulations enacted would result in peculiar or exceptional practical difficulties to...the owner of such property provided such relief may be granted without substantial detriment to the public good..."

The definition fits the Genoveses' situation perfectly, yet the minority ruled BZA chose to ignore it. The Genoveses are being punished because if they get a variance -- their legal right -- someone else might ask for one, which is also their legal right.

If the Board of Zoning Appeals is NEVER going to grant a variance, why have the board and why have variances defined in the zoning ordinance. Instead, the ordinance should say, "No variances are allowed and if you don't like it, move to some other town."

The situation with the Genoveses is not the only stupidity when it comes to zoning in Cass City.

When the downtown buildings were constructed, most had apartments on the upper floors.

I assume it was when the present zoning ordinance was adopted, our village fathers decided downtown apartments were undesirable, that the only ones that would be allowed were ones in existence prior to the ordinance's existence. After that, if they were vacant more than six months, as I recall, they couldn't be used again.

A few years ago the village council changed its mind and amended the zoning ordinance -- after more than a year of off and on deliberation and checking with the village's planning consultants, who don't work for free.

Before the change, the philosophy was that Cass City would go to seed if apartments were downtown. Now they're okay.

Then there was the rezoning in February of most of the homes along Seeger Street from one-family to two-family residential. The philosophy was that the change would allow the owners, some of them widows or widowers, of some larger homes to convert part of their space into an apartment. The added income would help them pay their utility bills and maintain their homes.

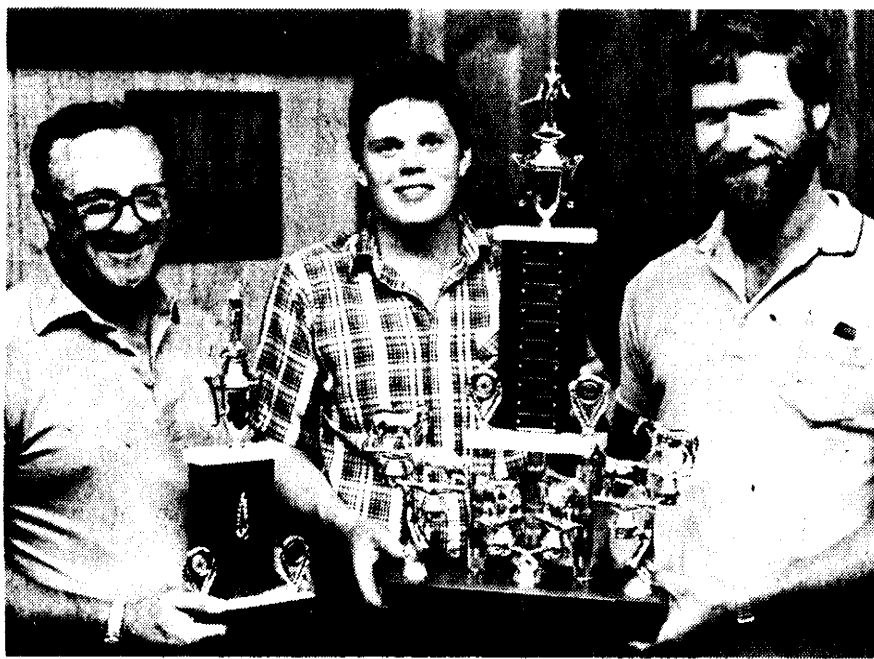

But if you have a big old home NOT on Seeger Street, tough luck. Allowing homes elsewhere to be converted into apartments is a no-no. If they were allowed, there goes the neighborhood.

Fairness doesn't obviously apply when it comes to zoning ordinances.

Diamond is made of carbon, and it burns just as coal will when it is heated enough.

GRAND CHAMPION STEER at last week's Huron Community Fair belonged to Lisa Hagen, daughter of Wallace and Sonia Hagen of E. Atwater Road, Uby. Shown here with trophy donor Lowell McDonald of Bad Axe. The Angus-Chianina weighed 1,360 pounds and was purchased for $1.18 a pound by the Production Credit Association of Bad Axe. Lisa is a member of the Roarin' Rustlers 4-H Club. SWEEPSTAKES SHOWMANSHIP winner at the Huron Community Fair was Tom Cook, son of Paul and Marjorie Cook of Bay City-Forestville Road, Uby. From left are fair manager Ray Errer, Cook and fair board member Robert Oeschger. The Roarin' Rustlers member had to show beef, sheep, swine, horse and dairy to win the contest.

Larceny results in 6-month jail term

A Millington man was sentenced Monday to six months in the county jail by Tuscola County Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn for larceny in a building.

Richard A. Sturgeon, 21, of 5347 W. Millington Road pleaded guilty to the charge July 25, of stealing a stereo, handgun and cash May 21 from a home in Vassar.

He was also placed on three years' probation by the judge, fined $300 and assessed $300 court costs. He was credited with three days served in jail.

Also Monday, Gary Butterfield, 31, of 1024 E. Huron Street, Vassar, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail for violating probation. Work release privileges were granted.

He was placed on 36 months' probation in February, 1982, for malicious destruction of property over $100.

Butterfield pleaded guilty July 25 to violating it by pleading guilty July 11 in district court to attempting resisting and obstructing a police officer and consuming alcoholic beverages June 20.

A motion for resentencing of William Enos, 27, was denied. The ex-Caro resident was sentenced Nov. 17, 1980, to 6-14 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for forgery, to which he pleaded guilty Oct. 20 of that year.

He petitioned the court for a new sentence on the grounds that the pre-sentencing report then Tuscola Circuit Judge Martin E. Clements used in determining his sentence contained inaccurate information.

DISTRICT COURT

Josephine Androsuk, 40, of 366 Froede Road, Deford, pleaded guilty July 12 to impaired driving May 10 in Kingston Township.

Monday, Judge Richard F. Kern placed her on probation for one year, fined her $160 and assessed $165 court costs. Her driver's license was suspended for three months except for driving to and from work, treatment and education. She is to attend the Alcohol Highway Safety Education program and mental health.

James Giddings, 19, of 6240 Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City, was fined $50 Monday and assessed $50 costs for aiding and abetting larceny under $100.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Sept. 14 of last year, in connection with theft of gasoline Aug. 19 from Cass City school buses parked behind the high school, after which sentencing was delayed.

Cheri Martin
technologist

Cheri Martin was one of seven students to graduate from the Lutheran Hospital School of Medical Technology July 29 in Fort Wayne, Ind.

She completed the one-year program after receiving a B.S. degree from Saginaw Valley State College last year.

The daughter of Ken and Carolyn Martin of 4180 Hurds Corner Road will take her national certification exams Aug. 19 and then will start serving as a certified medical technologist with the Lutheran Hospital. She is a 1978 graduate of Cass City High School.

RESERVE CHAMPION LAMB at the Huron Community Fair belonged to Lisa LeCureux, 14, who also had the reserve champion pen. The reserve champion, 135 pounds, was purchased by Kids' Kastle of Bad Axe for $3.10 a pound. Cubitt Realty of Bad Axe bought the other half of the pen, 130 pounds, for $2.10 a pound. Lisa is the daughter of Jim and Eileen LeCureux of S. Uby Road, Uby, and a member of the Roarin' Rustlers.

Repaving, bridge bids opened

A paving project in Sanilac County and replacement of several bridges in Tuscola County were among 52 projects for which bids were taken last Wednesday in Lansing by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Saginaw Asphalt Paving, Inc., was the low bidder at $1,279,342 for resurfacing of 18.1 miles of M-19 from M-46 north to the Sanilac-Huron County line in Moore, Argyle and Austin Townships.

The repaving project, scheduled for completion by June, 1984, includes construction of paved shoulders, and culvert and guardrail work.

Fisher Contracting Co. of Midland was the low bidder at $1,201,517 for the removal of bridges and construction of their replacements at the following locations: Dickerson Road over the State and Colling Drains, Bay City-Forestville Road over the State Drain; Bevans Road over White Creek; Dickerson Road over the Southgate Drain; Rossman Road over White Creek; Harmon Lake Road over Sucker Creek, and Vassar Road over Perry Creek.

Five of the replacements will be single-span, concrete box-beam, one will be single-span double-tee plank and the seventh will be a single-span, concrete "C" plank.

Construction of the new bridges is to be completed by November, 1984.

Elmwood election Tuesday

Residents of Elmwood Township will vote Tuesday on a two-mill levy for five years for road construction and maintenance and a 30-year renewal of the Detroit Edison franchise to operate in the township.

Voting will be at the village-township hall in Gageton from 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

The millage levy will raise approximately $40,000 a year. If it is approved, Supervisor Roy Messer said, the money will be used for paving some township roads and resurfacing of some already paved ones.

The township board hasn't decided yet specifically what roads will benefit. "We'll have to wait and see whether it passes or not," he said.

Although some of the millage levy could be used for maintenance, according to Messer, the intention is to continue to fund that out of the township general fund.

Messer said a similar millage levy for roads was on the ballot a few years ago and was defeated.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Construction of the long awaited addition to Hills and Dales General Hospital started Friday when Board Chairman Jim Bauer turned the first shovel of dirt. An estimated 100 persons who helped with the fund raising campaign were present.

A faulty extension cord connected to a clock-radio and-or lamp was blamed as the cause of a fire Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rienstra.

The 1978 McNaughton reunion was held Aug. 13 in the Cass City park. A total of 90 persons attended the annual event. New officers appointed are: President, Carl McIntosh; vice-president, Ron Parrott; secretary, Betty Bensinger; and treasurer, Judy Britt.

Six area students were among those completing their degree requirements at Ferris State College during the past year. They are Craig Downing, Sue Kulinski, David Romig, Beth Shagene, Dawn Stahlbaum and Hugh Walls.

TEN YEARS AGO

Thirty American Association of Retired Persons members enjoyed a potluck picnic at the recreation park Thursday. Avis Young, Gladys Fort and Coreene Creguer were elected for the nominating committee.

Pvt. Brian L. Galloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee R. Galloway of Decker, completed an eight-week medical corpsman course at the U.S. Army Medical Training Center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Twenty-two persons were present Thursday evening at the monthly meeting of the Progressive class of Salem United Methodist Church. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Wells at Caseville.

Youth from the Novesta Church of Christ attending camp this week at Rock Lake near Vestaburg are Lisa Ware, Suzanne Little, Beth Lebioda and Alan Pratt.

25 YEARS AGO

The Elkland Township Board Friday appointed Edward Golding Sr. to fill the unexpired term of the late Evard Rawson as supervisor from the township.

Behind the no-hit pitching of Nelson Willy, Baldy's won the championship of the City League Thursday night with a 6-0 decision over Walbro.

Village maintenance crews completed the repainting of Main Street early this week and the village officially shifted from angle to parallel parking.

The West Elkland 4-H Club met at the home of Linda Goodall Tuesday. The group discussed final plans for exhibits at the fair in Caro. The next meeting will be at the home of Heather and Allan Milligan.

35 YEARS AGO

The Elkland Township Fire Department was called to the Glen Guilds home on Sixth Street Tuesday afternoon, where they extinguished a blaze in the Guilds' garage. The fire started in a pile of dry hay in a chicken coop attached to the garage.

Twenty-one new books have been added to the village library, according to the librarian, Mrs. Roy Stafford.

Bill Zinnecker exhibited the grand champion steer and Don Loomis the reserve champion at the fourth annual 4-H Beef Cattle Show here Saturday afternoon.

Flu clinics scheduled in county

Tuscola County Health Department has scheduled flu vaccine clinics for the flu strains expected this fall and winter, A Brazil, A Philippines, and B Singapore.

All three strains are covered in one vaccine.

The center for Disease Control recommends that the following high risk persons receive the vaccine: Over age 65 and persons with heart disease; circulatory disease; pulmonary or respiratory diseases, such as bronchitis, heavy smoking, tuberculosis, asthma, cystic fibrosis; chronic renal disease; diabetes or other metabolic disease; anemia, or impaired immunity.

The clinics will be from 10 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. on the following dates: Sept. 16, Caro Church of the Nazarene fellowship hall, corner of Purdy and Dixon Roads; Sept. 20, Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, and Sept. 23, Vassar City Hall.

There will be a charge of $3 to cover the cost of vaccine.

Persons who use the clinics should be sure to have eaten breakfast or lunch before coming.

ion was held Sunday, Aug. 14, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wheeler. A cooperative dinner was served at 10 o'clock.

A short business meeting was held with Bob and Margorie acting as chairmen. Secretary this year was Mable Kyser.

The youngest member present was Lisa Wheeler; youngest couple present, Paul and Bonnie Wheeler; oldest couple, DeWayne and Mable Kyser. The one with longest name was Beatrice Wheeler. Carol Fleming guessed the most jelly beans in jar.

A cake, made by Mable Kyser, honored Emma Lou Wheeler for her graduation from Mt. Pleasant.

The next reunion will be at the same time and place with Roger and Mary King, hosts.

Emma Lou Wheeler will be the new secretary.

Jaycee drive nets $455

The Cass City Jaycees collected $405 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association Saturday, Aug. 6, at the intersection of Main and Seeger Streets.

In addition, according to fund drive chairman Chet Gaszczyński, Walbro employees donated $50, for a total of $455.

This was the third year the Jaycees have collected money to fight the disorder.

Red Cross elects new officers

New officers were elected by the board of directors of the Tuscola County chapter of the American Red Cross during the agency's recent annual reorganizational meeting.

Elected board president was Jim McLoskey of Caro, who takes over from Mary Hoerlein of Vassar, who was president the past two years.

The new vice-president is Stan Brant of Mayville, who also serves as first aid cardiopulmonary resuscitation chairman.

Elected board secretary was Jannette Stange of Millington. The new treasurer is John Riley of Caro. Those positions were held by Mary Lewis of Unionville and Dean Tomlinson of Caro respectively.

A number of Tuscola County residents were appointed to various positions. They were Jannette Stange, Millington, as blood and veterans hospital chairman; Ila Manwell, Mayville, chairman of service to military families and veterans; Lynn Werth, Caro, water safety chairman; Evelyn Sparling, Caro, home nursing program chairman, and Mary Alice Osgerby, Caro, board member at-large. The position of disaster chairman remains unfilled.

Bloodmobile coordinators around the county include Jane Mitchell in Cass City, Jan Barden for the Kingston area and the Rev. Gary Groth for the Unionville area.

Board members were also told that the county chapter has a new telephone number, 673-7279.

Cass City police issue 2 tickets following accidents

Two drivers were ticketed by Cass City police following recent accidents.

Edward L. Holik, 18, of 7600 Reed Road was cited on a charge of failure to stop in an assured clear distance ahead following a 4:30 p.m. accident last Thursday.

Officers said he was westbound on Main Street and ran into the rear of a car stopped on Main waiting for the car in front of it to turn left onto Leach Street. Driver of the car that was hit was Fredrick Joseph Leeson Jr., 16, of 4669 Hospital Drive.

John G. Churchill, 20, of 4131 Krapf Road was ticketed on a charge of reckless driving after a 3:10 a.m. accident Sunday.

Police said he was westbound on Main Street, west of Doerr Road, and made a rapid U-turn, during which the left rear wheel broke. His car skidded against the north curb. Caro state police ticketed Armond W. Childs, 47, of Mayville, on a charge of violation of the basic speed law after a 6:55 p.m. accident Friday.

Troopers said Justine L. Brace, 49, of Detroit, westbound on M-46, west of White Creek Road, was stopped behind another vehicle which was waiting for eastbound traffic to pass before turning left.

Childs, who was westbound, attempted to stop, then tried to go around the Brace vehicle on the right. Instead, he lost control and his car hit a trailer and then the Brace auto, which was towing the trailer.

Sheriff's deputies ticketed two persons following accidents Aug. 6.

They reported that at 6:30 p.m., Michael R. Miracle, 21, of 6825 Gifford Road, Detroit, turned left from E. Frank Street in Caro onto Ellington Street.

He was towing a car used in the previous evening's demolition derby at the Tuscola County Fair.

As he turned the corner, the tow bar came off and the car being towed coasted into a new Buick parked at the Howard Bell Pontiac-Buick-GMC dealership.

Miracle was ticketed on a charge of improper towing.

Gregory C. Hutchinson, 19, of 6454 Seventh Street, Cass City, was ticketed on a charge of careless driving after a 9 p.m. mishap in Detroit.

Deputies said he crossed the railroad tracks on Bruce Street (Decker Avenue Road) at too high a speed and lost control. His car hit a tree off the north side of the road, then went across a yard.

Huron County deputies reported James A. Wissner, 32, of Owendale sought his own treatment for injuries after a 12:30 a.m. Saturday mishap southwest of Elkton.

They said he was southbound on Farver Road at Geiger Road when he swerved to miss a deer and his car went into the east side ditch.

Letters to the editor

O'Dell protests new Bible policy

Dear Editor:

As an officer of the Cass River Camp of the Gideons, I have in my possession about 1,400 copies of the Youth Testaments to be distributed to the fifth graders in the coming school term.

Those beautiful booklets will be passed out both to the public and private schools of our county on a strictly voluntary basis. No child is compelled to receive a testament against his or his parents' wishes.

Those new testaments are made available mostly through contributions of our local churches to the Gideons, International.

It is a sad travesty on our local school that after nearly 40 years of this traditional presentation of scriptures to our fifth grade children, we as Gideons will not be able to make the presentation this year.

It is with sadness that we contemplate the recent action by our Cass City School District Board.

Zinnecker promoted

Robert W. Zinnecker has been named division manager of the New York division of Continental Telephone Co., which has its office in Johnstown, N.Y.

He was raised in Cass City and graduated from high school here in 1955. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Zinnecker of Fremont.

Reunion

The Wentworth clan gathered at the Cass City park Sunday, Aug. 14, with 88 people present, coming from Concord, Calif., Harrison, Oscoda, Tawas, Novi, Dryden, Lapeer, Edmore, Sanford, Bay City and Camp Barakel. The meeting was called to order by Vice-president Bob Hennessy. The family will meet the second Sunday in August, 1984, at the same place. Meeting was followed with a ball game, plus ice cream and cake.

Two couples surprised by church group

The Trinity United Methodist Church Couples Club Monday evening surprised two couples with gifts.

Jim Baker gave a farewell gift to Rev. Tom Wachterhauser and his wife, Donna, and a baby gift to Terry and Bobbie Blanchard. Poems were read to the honored guests.

A potluck dinner was held in the Lions Club pavilion in the park. Tom Proctor was master of ceremonies. The centerpiece was made by Shirley Wagg. Twenty-eight persons attended.

Suggest park gift tables

Dear Editor,

I am writing this to tell you of two very pleasant days we spent in Cass City's beautiful recreation park under the big trees.

We attended the McComb family reunion there in July, and the Clayton Crawford family reunion Aug. 7. Both days were beautiful but hot, but under the big maples the air seemed to be air conditioned as it flowed under the trees and through the shade—delightful.

My purpose in writing to you is to tell you that the majority of the picnic tables seem to have found their way to the pavilions. At the Crawford reunion, we voted to donate a picnic table to the park in appreciation for the privilege of using the park and the electricity for making our coffee.

I thought if all the families who have reunions there in one summer would donate a table, there should be enough for the pavilions and the picnic areas too.

The McComb family donated two tables several years ago and I am sure others have too.

Thanks for listening.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Harold (Mable) McComb

HEALTH TIPS

CPR class can be a life saver

What do the letters CPR mean to you? They stand for cardiopulmonary resuscitation, but to Ron M., they spell L-I-F-E.

CPR is the technique used to keep a person alive when his heart has stopped beating, and if it weren't for that technique, Ron wouldn't be here today.

"It couldn't have been more than about two weeks after we attended the Michigan Heart CPR class at the office that I had my attack," Ron said.

"You know, it's a funny thing. I heard about the class coming up and I was interested in learning CPR, but I just didn't want to take three hours out of my day for this class. It was a really busy time in our department."

"But it seemed like everybody else was going and you know, I got a little pressure from the other guys, like 'Why be the only one not to go?' So I said what the heck."

"Well, the class was really pretty fascinating. I can remember some very specific things from it. The instructor -- he was a Michigan Heart volunteer besides his regular job as a fireman -- told us that about 1 1/2 million people a year have heart attacks and that about 350,000 of those people die before they ever reach a hospital."

"Then he brought it a little closer to home. He said that if everyone knew CPR, maybe 6,000 lives a year could be saved right here in Michigan. And that's just heart attack victims -- CPR can also be used on someone who's been electrocuted, poisoned, drowned -- anything that makes the heart stop beating."

"Anyway, then we watched a slide show that explained CPR. They teach you the ABC's -- airway, breathing and circulation. Then we all practiced on this mannikin they have that they call Resusci-Annie. So you actually get to do the CPR and know what it would be like to do it on a human being."

"Course, we all went out of the class saying we hoped we never really would have to do it on somebody. But am I glad we all went that day?"

At this point, Ron hesitated a moment, drumming his fingers on the arm of his chair.

"The day I had my heart attack, we were having a meeting. I can remember it clear as a bell up to a point. We'd been going over the same stuff for an hour or more, when I suddenly started getting this heavy feeling in the center of my chest -- like some 300 pound guy was sitting on me -- just like they described the feeling in that CPR class."

"I started to sweat, and the pain got worse and worse, and I remember saying to the guy next to me I was really feeling rotten."

"I remember somebody saying maybe they'd better call the ambulance, and then everything is just a blur after that, till I woke up a couple of hours later in the hospital."

"They tell me that Jim and Linda did CPR on me. My heart had actually stopped beating. I tried to thank them later when they visited me in the hospital...but there's really no way you can say thanks to somebody for saving your life."

Ron got quiet again for a minute, looked down. "You know, I'm going to be 47 years old next week. And you know what my wife and I have lined up for that day? We're both going to a CPR class that afternoon then we're going out for a nice quiet dinner to celebrate."

(Written by the Michigan Heart Association. The Cass City Public Schools Community Education Department is offering a CPR class this fall. See article elsewhere in this issue.)

Provincial House to honor staff

Eight Provincial House workers will be honored as outstanding employees at a 6 p.m. chicken barbecue Tuesday for employees and residents.

The barbecue is being held in conjunction with National Nursing Home Employees' Week, Aug. 21-25.

The outstanding employees, who will be selected by residents, families and co-workers, will receive a certificate of recognition from Beverly Enterprises, owner of the Provincial House chain.

Judge seeks prosecutor by Sept. 6

Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn hopes to have a replacement for Tuscola County Prosecutor Artis Noel sworn in by the time the latter leaves office Sept. 6.

Noel announced last week he is resigning to accept a position with the U.S. Attorney's office in Detroit.

State law says the circuit judge for the county involved appoints the replacement.

Joslyn said Tuesday he is running an ad in the newsletter of the prosecuting attorneys' state association, requesting that applicants submit their resumes to him by Aug. 22 or 23.

He plans to conduct interviews Aug. 25 and 26 and hopes to have a new prosecutor appointed in time for him or her to be sworn in by Sept. 6.

ing. We cannot guarantee a zoning change without going through the legal process."

It added, "...if you would like us to proceed with the process to rezone, please let me know."

The three other points in the "letter of support," in response to specific requests from the Breakers, were:

1) Municipal water and sewer are available, but because of the elevation a sewage lift station will be required, "at the expense of the developer."

2) "The site is suitable for the building project."

3) "The desire for more housing in the village has been expressed by the Chamber of Commerce and others."

cial paving program to P.T.I. Construction Co. of Oakley, lowest of three bidders at $85,394.

The bid was approved subject to receipt of $100,000 the village is borrowing as part of the state's $135 million transportation bonding program.

The state has sold the bonds at 9.6 percent interest, but hasn't notified the village officially yet when it is getting the money.

Twenty blocks will be repaved, on S. Seeger and portions of Virginia, Hunt, Huron, Sixth, Seventh, Leach, West and Vulcan Streets.

The council previously awarded the bid for repaving on Pine, West, Huron and Rose Streets, a total of five blocks, to Saginaw Asphalt Paving Co. (second low bidder Monday) for $17,480.

That money was also supposed to come out of the $100,000 being borrowed, but it plus the $85,394 totals $102,874. Ware said the village has enough in reserve to cover the excess.

Association.

The winners in Class C and D will advance to the state finals Labor Day week end. The C state tournament will be in Muskegon; D in Coleman, near Mount Pleasant.

McMahan Auto Supply and Charmont, both of Cass City, start C action at 7:30 p.m. Friday, followed by Latavis Car Wash of Flint vs. Cooley of Waterford at 9.

Action resumes on the diamonds at the east end of the Recreation Park at 9 a.m. Saturday when Wendy's of Flint plays the McMahan-Charmont winner. At 10:30, Thumb National Bank of Pigeon and Cass City plays the Latavis-Cooley winner.

The Class C championship game should begin at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Class D action begins at 7:30 p.m. Friday with Sanilac Dairy Farms and Wolverine State Bank, both of Sandusky, playing each other. Marlette Area Softball Hitters plays Main Beverage of Owosso at 9.

The four D teams resume action at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, with the championship game scheduled at 3 or 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Jim Turner of Cass City is coordinator of the tournament.

New books at the library

MRS. POLLIFAX ON THE CHINA STATION by Dorothy Gilman (fiction). Mrs. Pollifax's assignment this time is to provide "cover" for an agent who is to disappear during a tour of the Orient. In the course of the exhilarating beauties and mysteries of China along the silk routes of the Middle Ages, a tragic "accident" befalls the agent. Mrs. Pollifax not only covers for the agent, she manages to do some rescuing of her own.

OVERDRIVE: A PERSONAL DOCUMENTARY by William F. Buckley Jr. (non-fiction). This is a nonstop, name-dropping account of seven frenetic and presumably typical days in the life of Buckley — author, columnist and National Review editor. With wit, candor and remarkable self-indulgence, Buckley lets us peek over his shoulder as he answers countless correspondents, writes columns, tapes his "Firing Line" TV show, lectures, responds to ceaseless demands (for advice, interviews, blurbs, endorsements, etc.) entertains (David Niven), all the while holding forth on controversies and trivia.

HOW TO WIN BACK THE ONE YOU LOVE by Eric Weber (non-fiction). This book contains much common-sense advice on how to keep a marriage together. The authors lament that our culture has not only made divorce easier than ever, but it has gone to the dangerous extreme of "glamorizing" it. Taking a preventive approach, Weber and Simring teach couples practical skills to use in sustaining their relationship through a variety of crises, constantly reminding them that most marriages are worth saving. Indeed, those determined not to divorce are often far saner and more visionary than those who would reluctantly but silently go along with it.

Laurie heads Farm Bureau policy process

Farmers from throughout the state gathered at Long's Convention Center in Lansing this Wednesday to kick off the Michigan Farm Bureau's grassroots policy development process.

The statewide conference marks the beginning of the organization's annual procedure of surfacing farmer concerns and developing policies to address those concerns.

According to dairy and cash crop farmer Jack Laurie of Dodge Road, Cass City, who chairs the Farm Bureau's state policy development committee, issues to be discussed at the meeting will include the dairy price support program, water rights, education spending, local government responsibilities, and Economic Development Corporation funding of agricultural operations, along with other national and international issues affecting agriculture.

"This will not be a policy-setting session," Laurie explained. "It's an opportunity for our farm leaders to review and discuss probable issues on which they may wish to propose policies to give their organization direction in the coming year."

"The actual policy development process begins in late summer and early fall at county Farm Bureau annual meetings. The policies adopted at these meetings dealing with state and national issues will be forwarded to our state policy development committee. This committee will correlate the proposed policies and present them to voting delegates at the Michigan Farm Bureau annual meeting, Nov. 29-Dec. 2, for their action," Laurie continued.

"The proposals which are adopted there which deal with state issues will become the policies of the Michigan Farm Bureau for 1984. We'll then go through the same process at the national level to determine our position on national and international issues."

Your neighbor says

Lions will win, USFL won't last

It hardly seems possible but it's that time of year again.

The National Football League's exhibition season is now half over and only two weeks remain until the league kicks off its 1983 season.

Tom Tuckey of 4533 Downing Street is starting to get caught up in the anticipation and renewed promises which the upcoming season holds for his favorite team.

"I am getting excited about this year," he said. "This year I think the (Detroit) Lions can do it. They got the same guys as last year (when they made it to the playoffs) and they have one more year maturity."

Not everyone else may be as enthused as Tuckey. Just four weeks ago, the United States Football League concluded its first season. Tuckey thinks many fans are "burned out" by the USFL's season, which started in March, and not ready for another five months of football.

"Right now I can tolerate two leagues to a point but, I'd rather just see one," noted the 17-year-old Cass City High School senior. However, he doesn't think everyone shares his opinion and expects attendance and TV viewing of the NFL games to be down for the first part of the season.

Tuckey believes the new league made an impressive showing in its infant season and that is going to have an impact on the NFL.

The Detroit entry in the USFL, the Michigan Panthers, finished as champion and drew more than 60,000 fans to at least one of its games in the Pontiac Silverdome.

"I'm hoping the Lions feel the pressure to win and get a better team," he added.

"Respect is up for the USFL as you can see by the turnouts and the backing of TV (ABC broadcasted games every week)," he said.

"I think overall it (the level of talent) is comparable to a good college game. The Panthers might be able to beat the Colts (the NFL's worst team last year)."

Nevertheless, Tuckey doesn't believe the USFL is here to stay. "Most people I talk to think the two leagues should merge," he noted. "They don't like seeing summer football. I think it will merge with the NFL too."

He added, "It'll decline to the point where only the top teams with big money and fans will survive (and be forced to merge) or die."

For the time being, however, Tuckey thinks the league will last a while longer and continue to be a thorn in the side of the NFL by luring away top players and decreasing or "burning out" fans' interest.

"I hate to see it detract from a good league like the NFL which has provided so many years of good entertainment," he concluded.

Enrichment

classes set for fall

The Cass City Public Schools Community Education Department will offer its fall "Pacesetter Program" of enrichment and recreation with most classes beginning the week of Sept. 26.

Monday mornings will begin with men's sports conditioning. The evening classes offered are: beginning bridge, minor in-home repairs, typing, refresher shorthand, accounting, soft-sculptured dolls, microwave 1, and beginning taxidermy.

Tuesday evening classes offered are: beginning cake decorating, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, calligraphy, and writer's workshop. For the outdoorsmen there are "The Hows of Bow Hunting" and wildlife sketching and drawing.

Wednesday evenings will be holiday candymaking, counted cross stitch and candlewicking, ethnic cooking, wooden toymaking, safety first aid, general math, advanced taxidermy and an investment class.

The Thursday schedule includes powder puff mechanics, advanced cake decorating, women's volleyball, reading improvement, beginning algebra, communication skills, fall landscaping and planting and stained glass classes.

The last day of registration will be Sept. 21. For further information or to register, call the Community Education Office at 872-4151.

Doris Hendrick's hand-crafted dolls win praise and prizes

Doris Hendrick of 5318 Pringle Road, Decker, is starting to acquire quite a reputation as an expert soft-sculptured doll maker. A friend was so impressed by her work that she persuaded Mrs. Hendrick to enter seven of her dolls on a float in the Cass City Fourth of July Festival parade. The float, appropriately named "Dolls by Doris," was well received, however, not many persons knew the identity of "Doris."

Later that month she entered one of her creations in a doll contest and walked away with first place in two of the categories.

"The Craft House in Caro had a beauty pageant and I won," Mrs. Hendrick said. "When I took my doll in I had no idea I'd win. They had so many cute dolls." In spite of her modesty, Doris Hendrick is no ordinary hobbyist who dabbles in soft-sculptured doll making.

"I love to sew and I love crafts," she commented. "I've sewn from when I was very young and I really enjoy it."

This affection for sewing and crafts was what got her started in doll making some years ago.

"First I started making Barbie doll clothes for my nieces and then I just started making dolls," Mrs. Hendrick added. "In the last 10 years I've made 41 dolls and stuffed animals." She perfected her talents on her own.

sculptured doll takes a great deal of care and effort. Even though they come in all different sizes, each soft-sculptured doll starts out the same.

They originate from a cut-out pattern of double-knit material which is sewn together and stuffed with polyester fiber. The eyes, nose, mouth and wigs are created by hand.

Mrs. Hendrick and her husband Earl have three sons, which may be the reasons she got hooked by the hobby. "I guess I love dolls so much because I have only boys," she chuckled.

Grandchildren, nieces, and many friends have been the happy recipients of her dolls.

Another certainty, as far as the Collettes are concerned, is that each will have fingers and toes complete with nails, knuckles, knees, an up-turned nose and a navel.

ONE OF THE FOUR Collette dolls she made was picked to be "Miss Collette" by judges in the Craft House's "beauty pageant."

It was also named "Miss Congeniality" after 450 people came into the Craft House and selected it as their favorite doll.

For being selected, the doll was adorned with a cape, flowers and a crown. Mrs. Hendrick received two $25 gift certificates.

She said she had invested $30 in her queen. That amount is a standard figure she pays for material, paint, stuffing and shoes.

Now the doll is enthroned on a stand in her living room.

It is the only doll which

Mrs. Hendrick has made which she would not part with. She doesn't make regular business out of the sale of dolls, but if asked she is more than happy to oblige.

"I'll sell them to anyone who asks me to make one," she said, "but I'm not going to make them and have them sit around."

Most of the dolls she has made, with a few exceptions, now have new homes. The prices she charges for the different dolls vary depending on the amount of work and material that goes into each.

Each one is guaranteed for quality. "When I make something for someone I want it to be just as good as if I made it for myself," she stated.

DOLL MAKER -- Doris Hendrick, of Decker, shows off the Collette doll which won two crowns at a recent doll pageant at the Craft House in Caro. Some of the other soft-sculptured dolls she has created are shown below.

IN THE PAST YEAR Mrs. Hendrick has started making a new kind of doll called Collette, after the person who designed the pattern.

With Collettes, there is a great deal of room for individual expression in making them.

Each doll's face can be sculptured differently from any other. By varying how tightly the string connecting the mouth to the eyes and nose is sewn, the room for stuffing is altered, thus changing the size of the cheeks, smile or shape of the face.

"You don't know what you're going to get when you start out," she explained. "You just have a pattern and no idea of what the expression is going to be until you're done."

One thing she is always certain of before completion -- all of her dolls will be outfitted in only the finest attire. Each wears its own unique clothing which she insists on making herself. Plus, the dolls have their own size 2 baby shoes and matching socks.

Feds refuse request for sewer funds

For the second time, Cass City's application for federal funds to pay part of the cost to install sewer lines and a sewage lift station has been rejected.

Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie was informed Wednesday morning that the state, which oversees the federal funds involved, had approved 29 of 112 applications for the Small Cities Community Block Grant funds. Cass City ranked 39th under the funding formula used.

The village had sought $37,800 from Washington, to be matched with $46,200 in village money.

The total of $84,000 would have been used to install sewer lines and a lift station to pump sewage from 18 homes on Maple, Sherman and M Streets and Maple Court to the sewer main on Garfield Street.

The homes there presently use septic tanks, but their tile fields are becoming saturated, which causes a pollution problem.

The lift station also would have served future development on the nine empty acres the village owns south of Garfield. A development firm wants to build a senior citizens apartment building there, but if necessary, can install its own lift station.

LaPonsie doesn't know yet if more federal funds will be available in the future, so the village can apply again.

Cass City's first application was rejected in May. At that time, the village was seeking $42,000 in federal funds, with an equal amount to be provided locally.

clubs, bag containing about 12 golf balls and golf caddy cart were stolen from his garage since 9:30 the previous evening. Value of the stolen items was $295.

Cass City police officer Phillip J. Klaus reported to a fellow officer for insurance purposes last Wednesday that two 9-foot fishing poles and two reels worth a total of $240 were stolen from his boat, apparently in Port Huron.

The poles were inside the boat, being carried on a trailer, and were apparently taken between 1 and 3 p.m. that day while he stopped at a restaurant, gas station or party store. He didn't discover they were missing until he got to Deckerville.

Natividad Benitez of 6905 Reagh Road, Gagetown, told Caro state police Monday that when he returned home that day, after having been gone since Friday, he found the home had been ransacked.

All that was found missing was an unspecified amount of money stored in various places. Entry was gained by forcing a door open.

John Donahue of 4764 N. Seeger Street told Cass City police last Wednesday morning that three 12-foot long logging chains and a grease gun were stolen from a work site on the south side of M-81, just west of the Cass River. They were worth a total of $60 and were taken between 5 p.m. Aug. 5 and 8 a.m. Aug. 8.

Jack E. Spencer of 6057 Severance Road, Deford, told sheriff's deputies Aug. 4 that while his pickup was parked at the Tuscola County Fair from 7-10:45 p.m. Aug. 3, someone kicked the left door and left front fender. Damage was estimated at $200.

In the mailbox: Brickbat from Stephan D. Phelan of Boca Raton, instructing me to mind my own grammar before chiding others. Mr. Phelan quotes Webster as approving "it's" as a contraction for "it has."

Well, it wasn't always thus. Purists were pure in the era of my dictionary.

He says it was alright for Dan Rather to refer to a reporter as "incredibly experienced." Definition, this one from the Oxford dictionary: "so extraordinary as to seem impossible."

I asked Dr. Charles Redfield, author of a textbook on communication, if this was a careless use of the word incredible.

Charlie, who doesn't like Dan Rather any better than I do, replied: "An incredible use of the language."

Herman Herst Jr. of Boca sent along several bloopers from local papers. The News among them:

"Boca West was chosen as the sight for the tournament..."

"Knowing the road well, the highway sped by quickly."

He remarks that these are not half as bad as "less calories," "those kind of things" and "neither this nor that."

From my old paper in Lapeer, comes an interesting spelling: "PRACTICE." Things haven't been the same there since my cousin Jean retired as proofreader.

In this paper, The News, and in a headline, mind you, "Dispute."

Also, in a batch forwarded to me in northern Michigan, a note to call Harry Melcher. Write me, Harry. Box 395, Beulah.

The Indians are riding high now in northern Michigan, and now asking the state to declare an area near Traverse City a reservation so they can have bingo games outside the state law. White men must not have games where prizes are over $2,000 a night, but for Indians, Heap Big Sky is the limit.

The Indians have also invoked a treaty of 1830 or thereabouts which gives them unrestricted rights of fishing. Now their lawyers interpret this as meaning gill nets are OK, although there wasn't such a thing when the treaty was written.

Anyhow, with gill nets and a skiff and an outboard the Indians can hit a likely spot and in an hour fill their pickup truck with more fish than others can get all summer with a hook and line.

It's hurting the fishing, of course, and driving the Department of Natural Resources absolutely wild.

This was not in the mailbox, but I am expecting a note any day from my old golf partner from Boynton Beach and Imlay City, Arnold Rogers, razzing me for telling him to sell his Chrysler stock when it was 5.

Now it is 35, and except for the embarrassment, I am indeed glad for Arnold, because he surely needs the money, the way his golf game has been lately.

My brother, Bob, writes in what is now his paper that he doused himself with Agent Orange some 30 years ago, when he painted his barn with the Dow Chemical product.

"Penta," used as a wood preservative, which he found also good for killing grass and weeds and ants.

Today he points to himself as broken down editor, whose beard has turned white, whose back is bad, and whose teeth are falling out, and who is half deaf.

To the rest of his kinfolk his condition is what we all expected, considering his personal habits. He needn't call on any of us for a witness when he sues Dow.

WET RELIEF -- For the first time this summer, a steady rain fell last Wednesday and Thursday, bringing relief to parched farm fields, such as this bean field along Cemetery Road, north of Cass City, and to lawns. The Cass City wastewater treatment plant measured slightly more than 3 inches of rain during the two days.

Planners mull $1 million project mission member Nat Tuttle responded, "Frankly, if we can't have it (the apartments) in one place, let's have it where we can have it."

Member Bill Ewald commented, prior to the vote, that although in general the commission opposes rezoning, it would look favorably on such a request when a certain place wasn't available.

Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie checked with the village's planning consultants, Vilcan-Leman of Southfield, prior to the meeting, and was told if the property is rezoned, the apartments would serve as a buffer or transition area between the businesses on the north and the homes to the south. It therefore wouldn't be considered "spot zoning," which is defined as a small area surrounded by a larger area with different zoning.

THE 32 APARTments would be built on three of the six acres the Breakays have optioned from Comment. The latter told the commission if the 32 units are quickly filled, the developers may build more on the other three acres.

The father-son team are owner-managers of nine other such apartment complexes in Michigan, including the 24-unit Kings View Apartments in Kingston, which opened in June, 1982. They will start construction of a complex in Unionville this fall.

Breakay said after the meeting that the FHA loan, if it is approved, limits renting apartments to occupants with household income of no more than $23,000 annually.

CASS CITY WAS selected for a potential site, he continued, after a marketing study was done. Indicative of the need for apartments here, he said, was that four renters in the Kings View Apartments used to live in Cass City, but moved because of lack of suitable housing here.

It usually takes about a year to process a loan through the FHA, according to Breakay, and there is no guarantee it will okay it. "With the federal government, you can't say whether they'll approve it or not."

If the FHA does okay it, it would be another 4-6 months before construction would begin, and then about four months for construction, thus it will be about two years from now, Breakay said, before the apartments are ready for occupancy -- if they are built.

It's surprising how quickly time changes things.

Just five months ago I was wondering whether I would be fortunate enough to find a summer job. My efforts to secure a newspaper internship had proved to be fruitless. Though I hadn't given up, things did not look promising.

Then one day, March 13, to be exact, I received an invitation to interview for such a position with the Cass City Chronicle. After reading the letter, I was ecstatic.

Editor Mike Eliasohn had learned of my predicament through a notice I had placed in the Michigan Press Association bulletin.

It was a good thing he had learned of me, because I had never heard of him, the Chronicle or Cass City.

As it has turned out, all three have made big contributions to my overall learning experience which has now drawn to an end.

On a brisk May 16 I started my internship and now, three months later, I can't believe it's over.

Where has the time gone? Quite simply, it has been a pleasure to spend the summer here. Residents of the Cass City area have proven to be the most friendly people I have met.

Through my job I have had the opportunity to make many new friends. Everyone's hospitality, patience and willingness to put up with my questions sure made it easier.

I won't soon forget that first day when I walked through the door of the Chronicle building and was immediately swept up in the race to meet our weekly deadline.

Right from the start I was given many responsibilities and expected to contribute.

I was fortunate to have an internship which provided me with almost every imaginable form of reporting -- police, court, sports, farming, interviewing, etc.

I have covered a variety of events ranging from a manslaughter trial to a track meet.

I have been counted on to photograph the most gruesome of car accidents as well as the festivities of a community celebration.

I was even editor for a week.

My internship wasn't always easy but it never failed to be rewarding. I wouldn't trade it for the world.

If it sounds like I'm tooting my own horn, well maybe I am but, that's only because I was proud to have worked here.

No book or college course could have provided the knowledge I have gained this summer.

Soon I'll be heading back to the University of Michigan for my final year. With me I take a better picture of what being a journalist is. That picture could only have been painted with the help of my fellow co-workers and the people of the area and for that I am grateful.

My brief stay has helped me grow into a better person and, hopefully, a better reporter.

It's ironic, just five short months ago, I never knew of Cass City or its newspaper. Now I'll never forget them.

It's surprising how quickly time changes things.

graduates couldn't get through."

The SVSC management grad has "a few irons in the fire," but no permanent work has come his way yet. Nevertheless, he believes it is only a matter of time before he finds employment for which he is trained.

"I'm not too upset (about not locating work)," he said. "I didn't expect something as soon as I got out of school. I'll give it a little while longer in this area before checking out of state."
