Villages' sewer projects okayed

Editor's note: Since the story below was written, Nov. 8 has been set as the date when construction bids will be opened in Jagetown and Nov. 9 in Owendale.

Terry Bartels of Edmands Engineering met with the Jagetown Village Council Monday evening to set the date and with the Owendale council Tuesday evening.

Construction bids will be awarded 7-10 days after the bids are opened, after the engineering firm has reviewed them.

***

The long wait in Jagetown and Owendale is over as the state Department of Natural Resources late last month finally approved permits for construction of sewer systems in both communities.

The next step will be advertising for construction bids.

As of Monday morning, when that will be hadn't been determined, according to Rick Knop of Edmands Engineering of Bay City, which is designing both systems.

He anticipated bids will be awarded by December or January, so construction will begin in the spring of next year. Hook-ups of homes and other buildings to the sewers could begin by the end of next year, "but more likely, spring of 1985."

There will be two separate bids for each project, one for construction of the two treatment lagoons for each community and the other for installation of the sewers that will pipe the sewage to the lagoons.

Although one contractor could be the low bidder for both parts, usually there are different contractors for each, Knop said.

The projects have been ready for bidding since about the beginning of this year, but have been waiting for the DNR to approve the construction permits. The delay can be attributed, Knop said, to numerous reviews by the agency, plus changes in administration and personnel.

Construction at one point was scheduled to get underway in both villages in the spring of this year.

Of special concern when the construction bids are finally opened is whether they are low enough to offset the loss of money the projects were supposed to get from the state.

The federal government is paying 75 percent of the cost and village residents, 20 percent plus some non-reimbursable costs. The state was supposed to pay the remaining 5 percent.

Lansing's share was supposed to come from the sale of bonds, but when voters approved the bonding proposal in 1968, the interest rate was limited to 5 percent. The Michigan Supreme Court has been asked to rule whether the legislature can authorize sale of the bonds at a higher interest rate or whether voter approval is required.

Michigan's share for the Jagetown project is supposed to be $78,520, and for Owendale, $66,000.

The 20 percent local share is being financed by the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

Protests to be considered

ICC to probe request to close Grand Trunk line

The Interstate Commerce Commission announced Friday it will investigate the Grand Trunk Western Railroad's petition to abandon its rail line that runs through Kingston, Cass City, Jagetown and Owendale.

Had the ICC chosen, it could have granted the railroad's petition immediately, which could have meant an end to service by the end of the year.

In contrast to the last time the Grand Trunk tried to end service, when the ICC conducted public hearings in 1977, the regulatory agency this time will conduct its investigation entirely through written documents.

The ICC must make a decision whether to allow the railroad to terminate service no later than Jan. 30, according to Roger Szemraj, legislative assistant to U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City.

If it grants Grand Trunk's request, service could end in July of next year.

The rail line runs 50.24 miles from Kings Mill, north of Imlay City, to Pigeon.

The Grand Trunk filed its abandonment petition Aug. 19. Those objecting then had 30 days to file protests.

Among those filing protests were the Pillsbury Co., which has elevators at Cass City and Owendale along the rail line; Agri-Sales Inc., which has elevators at Jagetown and North Branch; Cass City Chamber of Commerce; village of Cass City; Cass City Industrial Development Corp.; Traxler; State Rep. John Strand, whose district includes Lapeer County, through which the line runs; Pigeon Cooperative Elevator Co.; Farm Bureau Services, which has a fertilizer blend plant in Jagetown, and the Michigan Department of Transportation (DOT).

In addition, statements were received from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Railway Labor Executives' Association and about 60-70 printed postcards, mostly from persons in the North Branch and Clifford areas.

The Grand Trunk, in its response to the ICC concerning the protests, tried to have them all thrown out on technical grounds.

It wanted several of them rejected because they were "unverified." ICC rules, Szemraj explained, require such protests to be verified. That means the person submitting the protest is supposed to include a notarized statement verifying he is who he says he is and that the information he is submitting is accurate, to the best of his knowledge.

The railroad claimed the Pillsbury protest, which was verified, was submitted one day late. The ICC said it arrived in time.

The Grand Trunk wanted the rest rejected because it hadn't received copies.

In deciding to investigate the proposed abandonment, according to Szemraj, the ICC will consider the unverified protests. Those who didn't send copies to the Grand Trunk will have 10 days to do so, with proof of service to be submitted to the ICC.

That clears the way for the next step in the abandonment procedure, which is that the Grand Trunk has until Oct. 17 to file additional information to support its request for abandonment.

Opponents will then have until Nov. 9 to respond to the Grand Trunk's arguments and to support their claim why service should continue.

The railroad then has an opportunity to respond to the opponents' statements, which it must do by Nov. 25.

The opponents, Szemraj explained, must give such information as the costs of shipping their goods by other means if rail service is abandoned, their reason for protesting and why other alternatives aren't feasible. "This level of abandonment proceedings is when we get to the hard, cold facts," he said.

He cautioned that the ICC isn't interested in general letters of protest. "They have got to have more substance...rather than say, 'I don't want the abandonment to go through.'"

Those who didn't file protests before with the ICC will be able to do so, Szemraj said, if they file petitions requesting "leave to intervene."

O-G enrollment up; all others decline

Owendale-Jagetown is the only area school district with more students than it had last year.

Friday was the day all school districts in Michigan had to conduct their official count of students.

Cass City had 1,807, including 80 "full time equivalent" adult high school completion students, which is a total enrollment of 27 less than last year.

The Kingston schools have 738 students, 12 less, and Uby, 881, which is 35 fewer than 1982-83.

Owen-Gage gained 10 students, the new total being 397. The increase is being attributed partially to new families moving into the district.

Whether that district or Uby gains or loses students doesn't matter much, since neither qualifies for membership state aid because of their high average property valuations per student. Loss of students in Cass

City and Kingston, however, means loss of state aid under the state school aid formula.

Enrollment in other Tuscola County school districts is as follows, with 1982 figures in parentheses:

Caro, 2,413 (2,628); Mayville, 1,399 (1,444); Millington, 2,180 (2,282); Reese, 1,047 (1,051); Unionville-Sebewaing, 1,016 (1,036); Vassar, 1,963 (2,044); and Tuscola Intermediate (Highland Pines School and special education classrooms), 240 (252).

The Caro Friday count does not include adult high school completion students, which won't be available until later this month. The 1982 figure does, so the district didn't lose 215 students.

Enrollment at Akron-Fairgrove wasn't available as of Wednesday morning. The district had 774 students last year.

CASS CITY

The loss of 27 students in Cass City, Supt. Donald Crouse said, will mean a loss of about $50,000 from Lansing. "We anticipated the problem," Crouse said. "In fact, it's not going to be as severe as we anticipated."

The preliminary budget approved by the school board was based on a loss of 55 students, "so we're slightly better than that."

The board this coming Monday will approve a revised budget, based on the official enrollment count and other financial information it has now that it didn't have when it approved the preliminary budget.

Crouse pointed out the enrollment drop a year ago was 51 students, compared to the year before, 111 students.

Goal set at $15,000 as area United Way campaign begins

The 1983 Elkland-Novesta United Way fund drive got underway Tuesday evening with the traditional kickoff dinner for volunteers. It will continue to the end of the month.

The goal for this year's fund drive is $15,000.

Speakers at the banquet were Gary Vollmar and Linda Albee, members of the board of directors of Tuscola County Big Brothers-Big Sisters.

They emphasized the agency no longer receives any money from the state so is dependent on Tuscola County United Way and the Second Chance resale shops it operates in Cass City and Caro for most of its funding.

Special recognition was presented to Hills and Dales General Hospital and its employees and staff and Harry Pestrue, who runs the United Way campaign at the hospital, for being the largest single block of contributors to the fund drive each year.

About 30 persons attended the dinner, which is less than half the volunteers who will be working in the campaign. More are needed, however, according to United Way President Art Holmberg, to canvass in Novesta Township. Persons interested can call him at 872-2994.

Persons who aren't contacted during the month who would like to make a donation should make out their checks to Elkland-Novesta United Way and send them to its treasurer, Florence Karr, 5132 Penny Road, Cass City 48726.

Persons who work outside of Tuscola County who are asked to work to donate to United Way should ask for designation cards, so that their donations will go to the Tuscola County United Way, with credit given to Elkland-Novesta. If they don't ask for the cards, their money will go to the United Way of the county they work in.

IN ADDITION TO Holmberg and Mrs. Karr, other members of the local United Way board are Rev. Harry Capps, vice-president, and Ruth Grassmann, Elaine Crane, Florence Witherspoon, Iva Hartwick, Don Englehart, Dale Deering and Arlan Hartwick.

Hartwick is a new board member. Two more will be named, Holmberg said, preferably for the townships.

The Chemical Bank and Cass City State Bank paid the cost of the kickoff dinner at the Charmont.

The 1982 United Way drive raised $16,182, plus it had $598 in interest.

The money was donated to the following: Christmas baskets, $873; fire victim, $90; Girls' Little League, $600; Boy Scout Troop 594, $300; Girl Scouts, $600; Boys' Little League, $1,000; village park program, $1,500; American Association of University Women Reading is Fundamental program, $125; Rawson Memorial Library, $1,200; Babe Ruth League, $200; Pony League, $300; and Cub Scouts, $300.

Other expenses were supplies, $144; corporate dues, $10; postage, $8; advertising, $84, and certified public accountant, $105.

There was $8,665 turned over to the Tuscola County United Way.

THE COUNTY ORGANIZATION raised a total of $31,065 last year in allocations from the five local United Way organizations in the county, plus donations from persons not living in those areas. The local fund drives are in Elkland-Novesta, Caro, Reese, Vassar, and Akron-Fairgrove.

The county United Way allocated its funds as follows:

American Red Cross, $5,000; Association for Retarded Citizens, $1,500; Big Brothers-Big Sisters, $4,000; Catholic Family Services, $5,500; drug treatment center, $750; Genesee Valley Indian Center, $750; Human Development Commission, $1,000; Inter-Link, $1,000; Lake Huron Area Boy Scout Council, $1,200; Mitten Bay Girl Scout Council, $600; Special Olympics, $750; Tri-County Handicappers Coalition, $750; Tuscola Activities Center, $500, and Assault Crisis Center,

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

We waited patiently during the 5:30 newscast on TV-2 Wednesday night, Sept. 28. The attraction was seeing Dr. H.T. Donahue over the Detroit boob tube.

Wednesday was the night they told us that Dr. Donahue would be featured in a "Super Doc."

We waited and waited and waited. The program ended. No "super doc," no Dr. Donahue, no nothing.

*****

You didn't forget about it, of course you didn't. But just in case let me remind you that Monday, Oct. 10, is Columbus Day.

That doesn't amount to much unless you are sweating out a needed piece of mail or work for the Federal Government. It's a holiday for Federal employees.

Rev. Martin Luther King is a man worth remembering and there's respect here for his efforts and regret over his untimely death.

Regardless, here's a thumbs down on another holiday commemorating his efforts. All that does is establish another paid holiday at taxpayers' expense while the rest of us go about business as usual on the job.

Erla's employees reject joining union

Employees of Erla's Food Center and Packing Inc. voted 19-10 last Thursday against affiliating with a union.

There were four challenges, not enough to affect the outcome.

The union that petitioned for the vote was the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America Local 539, United Food and Commercial Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO-CLC, of Madison Heights.

The election was conducted by the National Labor Relations Board. An NLRB spokesman said in Detroit the deadline for filing objections to the vote is the end of the working day Friday. If none is filed, the NLRB will officially certify the vote Tuesday.

Auxiliary has annual meeting

The Hills and Dales General Hospital Auxiliary annual membership and installation luncheon was held Sept. 26 at the Charming.

President Virginia Hartwick reported there are 100 paid auxiliary members.

Two Red Cross blood bank drives were sponsored by the auxiliary during the past year. Ninety-six packs of blood were collected at the last drive, which was up 33 percent from the previous one at a time when most drives were down 15-20 percent.

There was $619 collected on Tag Day.

A microwave oven was bought for the dietary department.

There has been $5,000 paid so far on the pressure monitoring equipment the auxiliary is buying for the hospital, leaving a balance of $13,700 to be raised.

Cookbooks are still for sale in the hospital gift shop and in downtown stores.

Beverly Little installed the new officers, Judi Haas, secretary, and Florence Karr, treasurer.

Mrs. Hartwick will be serving her second year as president, as will Vice-president Jeannine Hobart. Fifty-three women attended the meeting.

Novesta board ponders TV satellite dishes

The Novesta Township Board Monday evening did a little bit of everything.

Zoning administrator Lucille DeLong asked for guidance concerning television satellite dishes, whether a zoning permit should be required.

There are one or two dishes in the township now.

Township Clerk Nurse Kloc said the township planning and zoning commission will have to discuss the matter at its next meeting in December and then make a recommendation to the township board.

The board discussed the six-month extension given to Cass City by the state Department of Natural Resources to close or upgrade its landfill. The new deadline is March 1, 1985. The landfill is located in Novesta Township.

Payment of $20,000 to the county Road Commission for contracted road work was approved. About $4,000 more is still owed, Mrs. Kloc said. The Road Commission has yet to finish graveling on Gilford Road.

The board worked on the wording for the Nov. 8 ballot proposal asking for a half-mill tax increase for fire protection.

The board gave its approval to a Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act (Public Act 116) agreement between the state and Earl Grigg for 160 acres he owns on Severance Road.

The Haire Net

Let's give the United States airlines a rousing welcome to the real world.

In the real world, the world of competition, there's no room for inefficient carriers with top-heavy wage scales, featherbedding contracts and equipment uneconomical to operate.

In the real world chauffeurs aren't paid $85,000 a year and more. In the real world you meet or beat the deal that the guy down the street offers or you quietly fold your tent and fade away.

Provided that the government doesn't buckle under and re-establish artificial rates, nothing but good can come from the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978.

Disregard the rubbish about safety. Pilots and flight attendants aren't about to fly an unsafe plane.

That has about as much validity as the dire prediction of the removal of service from rural areas.

If you've been listening, you've heard that song before. When trucking was deregulated, the established carriers pictured towns like Cass City sitting here with piles of freight rusting in the sun waiting to be picked up or delivered.

All of the trucks will be servicing the cities where the volume and the money are, spokesmen for the carriers pointed out time and again.

Any person sending or receiving freight will tell you what happened. Today service is faster and better than ever before.

The quantum leap in rates every year stopped. No longer does a truck driver back up to your door and do you a favor by surly tossing boxes at you.

They are helpful and courteous because shippers have a choice. Drivers know that if they don't please, the next load may be hauled by someone else.

I'll take my chances that the cry of work stoppages, safety problems and booking chaos will never happen.

I'll take my chances, too, that the critics are wrong when they say that the smaller airlines will be forced out or merged and that the surviving airlines will control the industry and its fares.

It may be a temporary loss in service as the unions go to bat to try to save plush jobs that have been won when the airlines were not under pressure to shave costs.

Now that there's no room to simply add the cost to the users' bill, that's got to change. It's already changed at Continental. Industry watchers say that Delta and Eastern will probably be in the same boat as Continental.

That's what competition is all about. The winners will be everyone who buys a ticket.

In the real world, competition always helps the consumer.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Changing priorities

By Jim Fitzgerald

Beginning in February, by decree of the Board of Education, Detroit school students will be required to do homework on a regular basis.

My god. The next thing you know, those poor kids will be required to leave their guns home and go to school unarmed.

When I was in school, I had homework every night, and if I didn't turn it in completed the next day, I had to stay after school until it was done. Also, there were no buses, and I had to walk to school, sometimes through hip-deep snow. And if the teacher rapped my knuckles once, my dad whopped my behind 20 times and....

Is there anything more boring than hearing someone recall how tough but ultimately rewarding it was to get an education when he was a boy? Is there anything more dismaying than to hear yourself mouthing those weary when-I-was-young clichés and to suddenly realize that sometime, overnight, you stopped being a young whippersnapper and became an old poop?

I was home alone the other evening when the phone rang and a soft feminine voice asked if it would be possible for her to talk to a young man. How young? Between 14 and 35. Oh.

What did she want to talk about? (She had a really nice voice.) She said she worked for Market Interiors of Detroit and was taking a soft-drink survey. I said I preferred hard drinks, but for her, I might take a hammer and pound a vodka and tonic until it was soft. That apparently didn't sound like a young joke to her. She asked again if it was possible to talk to a young man in my household, and I reluctantly admitted it was alarmingly impossible. Goodbye.

So I must accept the fact that I'm so old that surveytakers don't care what I drink. Another similar fact was accepted following Aunt Madeline's funeral. Dozens of mourners were entertained at a dinner party that overflowed a kind relative's home and extended into the front yard. The outside eating was picnic-style, but inside there were several white-clothed tables set with china, crystal and silver. Someone said the fancy settings were "for the old people," so I headed outdoors.

"That means you," a voice said, reminding me that, with Aunt Madeline gone, I'm now a member of my family's oldest surviving generation.

Later, around the piano, we sang Madeline's favorite song, "Alley Cat." I couldn't help crying a little, but I'm not sure whether I was crying for my aunt or myself.

The point of all this, I guess, is to acknowledge that, while I've been growing older, a lot of things haven't stayed the same as they were when Mother fed me in the kitchen whenever the good china was used in the dining room. One of the things that's changing is the process of education.

For instance, it was recently suggested that some college graduates should receive free job counseling from the University of Michigan Law School before being sent out into the wicked world to seek their fortunes. Students never got that much consideration when I was a young whippersnapper. Isn't it marvelous that our educational system has progressed to the point where it might furnish the legal advice all young people need before signing a contract to sell insurance or grease cars?

Of course, that suggestion was made by Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler, and he was referring only to those students who plan to play professional football after leaving school. Free tuition, room, board and advertising at a tax-supported university apparently aren't enough help to guarantee a football player's success in the job market. Taxpayers should hire him a lawyer, too.

As the hair grays, priorities change, values twist, and little boys who don't have to do homework should grow up to play for the Pittsburgh Steelers, or they may have trouble making a living. It's a shame. The old poop has spoken.

Order Christian Academy to vacate building

Huron county Circuit Judge M. Richard Knoblock gave the Thumb Christian Academy until Dec. 31 to vacate its premises in the basement of the Faith Gospel Tabernacle.

The church and school, which has 62 students in grades K-12, is located on Rescue Road, 12 miles northeast of Cass City.

The hearing was held after the state fire marshal's office charged the school is in violation of state fire safety standards. Seventeen violations were listed.

Knoblock noted the fire marshal asked the school to comply two years ago. Although some improvements were made, the structure can never meet all safety specifications.

"There is a danger there and the time has come for compliance with the code. The law is there to protect the children," he said.

As soon as possible, the school must get its fire alarm system working along with smoke detectors.

After Dec. 31, the school has three choices: Get its new building completed, which has been under construction for a few years, find another building to rent, or cease operation.

The church's pastor and the school's superintendent, Rev. James Willett, said it is possible for the school portion of the new building to be finished by the deadline.

A fund raising drive has begun to help pay for it.

"It's favorable, but has put us in a tight spot," Willett said of Knoblock's ruling.

Looking at tomorrow.

Rest assured. Just because Michigan Bell is separating from AT&T this January doesn't mean you'll be separated from good phone service... not for even a second. You can count on the same highly skilled people to watch over your service, as always. And when you pick up your phone on New Year's Day you'll hear the same reliable dial tone you've heard for years.

But we'll be bringing you a lot more than a dial tone. For one thing, we will continue to exercise our almost unlimited options for selecting and implementing the very latest technology from a wide variety of communications suppliers.

What that means to you, as we go down the line, is faster, more efficient and more flexible service with many interesting choices for you. One of the innovations we'll continue to adopt for the future is electronic switching service. This will give almost everyone in Michigan the chance to opt for Touch-Tone® Service, Custom Calling Services and other communication conveniences.

Lightwave cable is a recent transmission development that can carry as many as 96,000 simultaneous conversations. And soon it will send your voice and messages with the speed of light.

Before long, your telephone will be capable of performing surprising electronic tricks, such as ringing a certain way to let you know exactly who's calling. You'll have a new way to shop by phone in stores all over the country... to handle financial transactions by talking directly to your bank's computer. To receive electronic mail. To play bridge. And even to call your oven and tell it to start dinner.

These are just a sampling of the technological advancements you can expect to enjoy through Michigan Bell. The point is very simple: Next year we'll be bringing you the same good old dial tone, but we won't be the same old phone company. We'll be pulling out all the stops to bring you the last word in phone service. After all...

IT'S AT&T
WE'RE SEPARATING FROM...
NOT YOU.

Michigan Bell

Facts down the line. Because your telephone business office is busily engaged in normal, day-to-day telephone service matters, we are providing this toll-free number as a source for answers to the questions you may have about your changing telephone company. We also suggest that you watch for our informational messages in your newspapers and in your monthly telephone bills. 1 800 555-5000

Pedaling Around

New car mania

By Mike Eliasohn

September used to be a great month for car lovers.

That was when the auto companies introduced all their new models, and each year there were always some changes in all the cars.

Nowadays, whenever the auto builders have a new model ready, they ship it to the dealers' showrooms. If it's ready in March, it goes on sale in March. No more waiting until September.

I read somewhere the reason they do that is because it costs so much to develop new models now, Detroit can't afford to wait to introduce them. They need to start recouping their investment immediately, so no more waiting until September.

The high cost of developing new models, sometimes in the hundreds of millions of dollars, is also why cars stay the same for so long.

As a general rule, it used to be a certain basic body style would last three years, with changes being made each year in such things as taillights and grills. A new body design would be made every fourth year.

Nowadays, the same style lasts as long as the auto companies can get away with it.

The Ford Escort, one of which I own, was introduced in the fall of 1980. There have been only minor changes in exterior trim since and three years from now, no doubt the Escort will still look the same.

The Chevrolet Chevette, I would guess, is eight years old and how many changes have there been in that? The same goes for the Plymouth Horizon and Dodge Omni, which have been around about as long.

One nice thing when cars changed annually was that kids like me could tell them apart. I still know a 1955, 1956 or 1957 Ford or Chevrolet when I see one, but as I indicated, I couldn't tell a 1982 Ford Escort from an '83 or '84.

As I recall, my maternal grandfather before he retired bought a new Buick every year, or was it a Pontiac? Whatever it was, it wasn't uncommon for persons to buy a new car every year in the 1950s and 60s.

Nowadays, few persons can afford to buy one every year, and with the new models looking like last year's, which look the same as the year before, why bother?

I suspect another reason why people used to be able to afford a car every year when I was growing up was that the one-car family was the rule, rather than the exception.

Nowadays, two cars are the norm and three and four-car families aren't rare.

Although cars used to change in appearance every year, underneath they didn't. The only choices Detroit offered were a V-8 or straight six engine, stick shift or automatic.

If one wanted something different, he bought a Volkswagen Beetle or a British sports car.

Nowadays, Detroit offers lots of choices - V-8, V-6 (does any company have a straight six cylinder any more?), four cylinder, automatic or four or five-speed (are there any three-speeds left?) front wheel drive, rear wheel drive, or in the case of the new Pontiac Fiero two-seater, mid-engine and rear drive.

The Fiero is on the list of cars I wouldn't mind owning, if for no other reason than looks, if I weren't so practical. Others on my list are the turbocharged Ford Thunderbird, the Pontiac Firebird with the flush wheel covers, and the new Dodge Daytona and Chrysler Laser, which are basically the same car.

But being practical, I always tell myself all I need a car for is to get from Point A to Point B, and at legal speeds and slightly above, an Escort or something similar can get me there just as quickly as something exotic, and it costs less.

Dullness has its merits.

Theresa A. Coleman, 20, of 6372 Fourth Street, who was northbound, told officers she had to move to the left to go around some cars parked by the curb.

Terry Czekai told police the Coleman vehicle was on his side of the street and he was unable to avoid sideswiping her vehicle.

Ms. Coleman was ticketed on charges of driving left of center and no proof of insurance. Terry Czekai was ticketed on a charge of no motorcycle endorsement on his driver's license.

David W. Bork, 19, of 5675 E. Cass City Road, Cass City, sought his own treatment following a 3:30 p.m. accident Tuesday, Sept. 27.

Caro state police reported he was eastbound on Bay City-Forestville Road, west of Buchly Road, when his vehicle apparently blew a tire. He steered it off the north side of the road to avoid oncoming traffic and the vehicle struck a tree.

Eric A. Lambart, 32, of Bach Road, Sebawaing, sought his own treatment after a 3:45 p.m. accident last Wednesday.

They reported he was driving northeast on Bay City-Forestville Road, south of Dickerson Road, when his car hit a horse.

Cass City police reported that at 12:40 a.m. last Thursday, James F. Woods, 20, of 4788 Hospital Drive, Apt. 3, was southbound on Cemetery Road, north of DeLong Road, when his car hit a horse.

Rebate due to Edison customers

Detroit Edison Co. is returning to its customers a portion of fuel surcharges they paid between Oct. 1, 1976 and Sept. 29, 1977, and between Dec. 29, 1977 and Jan. 29, 1978.

A one-time credit will appear on eligible residential and commercial electric customer bills mailed this month. Checks will be sent to industrial customers and to residential and commercial customers who have moved within the last year.

The refund is the result of a seven-year court case involving deferred fuel costs.

The surcharge amount paid by each customer during the period covered by the refund order will be the basis for the October credit or refund check.

Company records will be used to identify eligible customers who have not moved since the original bills were paid and those for whom the company has a verifiable forwarding address.

Others are being asked to return the refund application which is enclosed with their bill this month. Their payments will be by check.

HEALTH TIPS

Lupus isn't rare; rugs can irritate

Is Lupus another new disease?

No, says the Michigan Lupus Foundation. It is neither new nor rare, but more than any other major disease, suffers from lack of awareness. Because of this, President Reagan and Congress have declared the week of Oct. 16 as National Lupus Awareness Week to bring more public attention to this serious illness.

Lupus Erythematosus is a chronic, inflammatory, immune disease whose cause and cure are unknown. It affects nearly one million Americans. This disease can involve the skin and many different organs of the body. It is a serious and life-threatening disease which can be difficult to diagnose.

The symptoms vary with every individual, depending on which part of the body is affected. Common symptoms are fever, extreme fatigue, weight loss, joint pain, and a butterfly rash over the bridge of the nose and cheeks, which is usually sun-sensitive, although only about 43 percent of Lupus patients will have the rash. These symptoms are chronic and usually last over a long period of time without the physician being able to determine their cause.

The prognosis today is much better than it was even 10 years ago. Increased awareness of Lupus and improvement in diagnostic tests makes early diagnosis possible, thus making possible the initiation of treatment before damage is done to a vital organ.

Awareness, however, is the key, as a physician must first think of Lupus in order to test for it.

SHAMPOO IRRITATION

Sneezing, coughing, dry throat, nasal congestion, breathing difficulty.

Sounds like a recitation of the symptoms that might accompany hay fever or a head cold, right? Wrong. It just might be your carpet.

Researchers have discovered, quite by accident, that the shampoo used to clean rugs can, if not properly used according to label directions, lead to the above symptoms of respiratory distress, according to the American Lung Association of Michigan.

It seems that improperly diluted carpet shampoo can leave little bits of residue which when breathed into the lungs can cause an outbreak of respiratory problems. Researchers identified the culprit as sodium dodecyl sulfate, a chemical widely used in laundry detergent, cosmetics, shampoo, toothpaste and food.

The situation first came to the attention of researchers when the problem cropped up in the Brighton, Colo., City Municipal Building after custodians cleaned the carpets throughout the building using a rug shampoo solution stronger than recommended.

The highest rate of irritation occurred in areas of the building where foot traffic was the greatest. Dried shampoo particles were loosened from the carpet by the constant trampling. Vacuuming didn't solve the problem, but steam cleaning helped considerably.

It is significant to note that industries in which employees are exposed to dusts from soaps, detergents and similar products have greater problems with respiratory distress of all sorts.

Laurie heads Farm Bureau AgriPac

Efforts to have "Friends of Agriculture" elected to state and national offices in 1984 have been launched by Michigan Farm Bureau's political action arm, AgriPac.

County Farm Bureaus throughout the state are in the process of appointing candidate evaluation committees to review the qualifications and voting records of incumbent members of Congress, the state Legislature and other statewide offices, who are seeking re-election. The county committees will also evaluate candidates who are challenging the incumbents.

Following a review of all county committee evaluations, AgriPac members will endorse "Friends of Agriculture" for the 1984 primary and general elections.

According to MFB Vice-president Jack Laurie of Dodge Road, Cass City, who chairs AgriPac, the criteria used by the political action committee to select "Friends of Agriculture" includes voting records on major issues affecting agriculture, degrees of special effort to introduce, support or oppose legislation in accordance with the position of agriculture, and overall support of Farm Bureau policy.

AgriPac was formed in 1978. Laurie said, when farmers found that political involvement, such as voter registration drives and political education activities, which Farm Bureau had done for many years, "simply were not enough to meet the economic challenges faced by farmers today. By taking a more aggressive political posture, we believe we can have an impact on the legislative actions that affect our farming operations."

In the 1982 elections, 60 of AgriPac's 77 endorsed "Friends of Agriculture" were elected.

Four U.S. State capitals are named after presidents: Jackson, Mississippi; Lincoln, Nebraska; Jefferson City, Missouri; Madison, Wisconsin.

New books at the library

FROM THIS DAY FORWARD by Nancy Rossi (non-fiction). After overcoming years of infertility, Nancy Rossi learned her husband John had a rare form of terminal cancer. At age 33, only a few months shy of his son's birth, John Rossi died of mesothelioma, a lung and abdominal cancer caused by his two-week exposure to asbestos on a summer job. Not only did John not live to see his son, but ironically, he died on the eve of being made a partner in his law firm. (His fateful summer job had helped him pay for his education.) Nancy tells the story of how she met and shared her life with her husband, and of how she bravely continues to make a new life for herself and her son, John Rossi III, while battling the industry that knowingly caused her husband's death.

POLAND by James Michener (fiction). This is the story of three families from very different stations in life: the counts, Lubonski; the petty nobles, Bukowski; and the peasants, Buk. From the 13th Century to the 20th, from horrendous battles and valiant wars through the glorious days of the Austrian Empire, when ladies danced to the music of Chopin and young men found romantic love, to the concentration camps of World War II, to today's struggle, this is a memorable epic of the hopes and dreams of a nation.

THE COP AND THE KID by William Fox (non-fiction). This is the story of William Fox, a New York City police officer with enough heart to care for a teenager he first encountered as a potential suicide on the roof of a Bowery flophouse. Fox, from a family of cops, had thoughts of joining the priesthood when he was young, but eventually became a member of the force. He soon distinguished himself as a brave, yet caring officer. Michael Buchanan, on the other hand, came from a background as chaotic as Fox's was ordered: from a broken home, he found himself in the care of his irresponsible father. He passed through a series of state institutions and foster homes, often running from state to state, and eventually went to New York, where he reached the end of his rope. Fortunately Fox committed himself to helping Michael, and worked with the boy to overcome most of his problems.

 EACH PIECE OF ETERNA 10 COOKWARE IS GUARANTEED AGAINST ANY DEFECTS FOR 10 YEARS FROM DATE OF PURCHASE.

THREE LAYER CONSTRUCTION - Solid stainless steel lines the inside and outside making it easy to clean and provides the gleaming polished finish. The middle layer is a special carbon steel core, extending along the bottom and all the way up the side of each pan. It helps conduct and hold heat, cooking food fast and evenly. This sturdy three layer construction insures a lifetime of quality cooking. Dishwasher safe, too.

VAPOR SEAL RIMS - Specially designed rims prevent the loss of vapor and nutrients. The moisture (steam) generated in cooking works together with the specially designed lid and rim and creates an air tight seal. This seal prevents the loss of valuable nutrients through evaporation.

AUTO-TEMP VAPOR CONTROLS - The auto-temp vapor control, with three (3) adjustable positions, regulates the vapor within the cookware allowing for more precise cooking. A locked, open vent lets the vapor release continually during a full boil, doing away with the need to leave the lid ajar and risk boilovers. The unlocked, closed vent moves freely releasing vapor as needed while foods simmer. The locked, closed vent helps create the seal which allows minimum water cooking. This keeps foods, juices, vitamins, nutrients and flavor from evaporating.

PHENOLIC HANDLE & TRIM - The handle and trim are crafted from a phenolic material which resists heat up to 375 degrees. Each handle has a sure-grip design to help prevent kitchen accidents. The handle is protected by a stainless steel flame guard that keeps the handle safe from burning.

SELF-STORING LIDS - Lids invert for easy stacking or hanging, makes storage a snap.

The Complete line of Eterna 10 Cookware includes:
SAUCEPANS - Four (4) sizes to accommodate everything from steaming rice to blanching vegetables. All sizes come complete with covers with the exception of the 1 quart saucepan, the cover is available separately.
COVERED SAUCEPOT - This pot is perfectly sized for large cooking jobs such as simmering stocks, boiling New England dinners, stewing meats and boiling vegetables.
OPEN SKILLETS - A choice of two (2), sized perfectly with taper sides to turn chicken, omelets or crepes quickly and easily.
WHISTLING TEA KETTLE - The kettle sounds its whistle when ready.

Dairymen can apply for refund

If dairy producers reduced their September commercial milk sales by 8.4 percent from their sales in September, 1981 and 1982, they can qualify for a refund of the second 50-cent assessment that was levied Sept. 1 of this year, according to Michigan Farm Bureau's dairy specialist, Michael Kovacic.

Producers must make application for the September refund at their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31.

"There are two separate refund periods a dairyman can apply for," Kovacic explained. "The base period for the first refund would be September, 1981 and September, 1982."

For the second refund, it would be fiscal years 1981 and 1982. To qualify for the 50-cent assessment refund, the producer would have to reduce, by a total of 8.4 percent, his commercial sales for those base periods.

Producers may establish their base marketings at their county ASCS office by presenting such documentation as payment receipts or statements from their milk handlers that show the amount sold monthly during the base period and the refund period.

"It's important that dairymen understand they do not have to qualify monthly or quarterly, but rather must show, for the length of the period, that they have lowered their total production by 8.4 percent," Kovacic said.

Gina Gaskill selected to raise horse

Gina Gaskill of Owendale has been selected to raise a Standardbred foal for one year as part of the Michigan 4-H Standardbred Horse Production Project.

She is one of 18 Michigan 4-H members selected to participate in the 1983-84 production project. Qualified 4-H'ers were chosen by the 4-H Standardbred Advisory Committee.

Next month, Miss Gaskill will receive a foal born last spring. She will raise the horse until August of 1984 and then will sell the horse at a Standardbred auction. Gaskill will receive one-third of the sale price after expenses, with the remainder going to the breeder who donated the foal.

"The project gives the kids an opportunity to learn the responsibility that comes with caring for a horse," said Robert Johnson, Huron County extension director. "A unique aspect of the Standardbred project is that it also gives young people a rare opportunity to learn about the economics and career possibilities in the harness racing industry."

Miss Gaskill will participate in a number of programs throughout the year through the cooperation of the Michigan Harness Horsemen's Association and Michigan Standardbred Breeders' Association.

She will attend meetings on horse care, visit breeding and training facilities, and participate in a workshop on preparing her yearling for sale.

Play at Kingston Friday

North Huron hands O-G rare 2nd straight loss

"It looked like Lebanon here Friday night, little brown missiles flying through the air," said Owen-Gage coach Arnie Besonen after seeing his team lose to North Huron, 26-21.

Having lost two straight, the Bulldogs hope to get back on the winning track at Kingston this Friday. "Mistakes and turnovers have cost us dearly the last two weeks," Besonen commented. "Also we have to start moving on offense."

"They're having problems, too," he said of Kingston, which is still looking for its first league win. "It should be an interesting game."

The score in the homecoming game at Owendale didn't indicate how dominant the North Huron offense was.

Warrior quarterback Dan Craig threw the ball 35 times and completed 18 passes for 201 yards. "We had them covered most of the time," Besonen said, but their superior height advantage overpowered our secondary, which averages 5-7 in height."

Craig's targets were 6-4 Todd Clancy, 6-5 Dan Kennedy and 6-3 Dave Whitenack.

The Bulldogs scored first on a one-yard run by Reid Goslin. John Shope kicked the extra point.

The second touchdown of the first quarter came on a 43-yard pass play from Craig to Clancy. The extra point attempt failed.

North Huron went ahead in the second quarter on a three-yard run by Brian Hoody. The extra point try was unsuccessful.

Alan LeValley put the home team back in front when he scored from one yard out. Shope split the up-rights to make the halftime score 14-12 Bulldogs.

The lone touchdown in the third period came on an 11-yard toss from Craig to Whitenack. Again, no extra point.

Prospects looked good for Owen-Gage when LeValley scored on a plunge with 4:53 left in the game to culminate a 69-yard, four-play drive. Shope kicked his third extra point.

With time growing short, North Huron started its final drive. It took 18 plays and 62 yards, with Whitenack scoring on an 11-yard pass from Craig with 41 seconds remaining. Craig threw the ball to Kennedy for two more points.

Owen-Gage's last chance ended when Goslin's pass was intercepted on the next to last play of the game.

It was one of two interceptions he threw Friday night. The junior signal caller completed three of 11 passes for 69 yards. Frank Abfalter grabbed one for 36 yards and Ron Susalla caught another for 24.

On the ground, the team managed only 28 yards in 28 carries, for total offensive yardage of 97. Bill Ricker was top rusher with 21 yards in nine carries.

The Bulldogs managed only five first downs. They were penalized six times for 55 yards. Neither team fumbled. North Huron was penalized six times for 48 yards.

In addition to Craig's 201 yards in the air, North Huron rushed for 104 yards in 32 carries. Ed Maren-tette carried the ball 19 times for 84 yards.

A bright spot for Owen-Gage was the defensive play of Gary Erickson. The 185-pound senior made 12 tackles, intercepted two passes and blocked a punt. Bill Ashmore made eight tackles and Shope, seven.

Dave Scoviac made seven tackles for North Huron and Whitenack had two interceptions.

Commission to investigate closing of Thumb rail line

MONEY LOSER

In its reply to the initial protests, the Grand Trunk outlined some of the reasons why it wants to end service.

Foremost is that it claims it lost $955,000 over the last three years — $24,000 in 1980, $266,000 in 1981 and $665,000 last year.

It claims shippers won't be left high and dry if it pulls out. "Rail service is in no way essential to any shipper on the line, for abundant alternate service exists and is used by these commenters."

The major users of the line, it continues, are at Pigeon (Pigeon Cooperative Elevator) and Clifford, and they will still receive service from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway.

Grand Trunk hauled 876 carloads on the line in 1982. Starting Sept. 3 of this year, it imposed an additional fee for shippers of $600 per car, which for grain works out to an additional 17 cents per bushel.

In its reply, the railroad claims, "It would take over 1,000 shipments each year paying the full surcharge for applicant (Grand Trunk) just to break even and none of these shippers is willing to make that contribution."

In July of this year, Federal Railroad Administration inspectors found 74 defects "which are required to be rehabilitated before this line can be operated at minimum speeds."

To restore the line to safe operating condition would cost $604,000, according to the Grand Trunk, and since the line is a money loser, "there can be no justification whatever for compelling applicant to spend this added $604,000 to restore this branch line."

STATE RESPONSE

The Michigan Department of Transportation's response to the proposed abandonment was written by Edgerton W. Bailey, administrator of its Modal Transportation Planning Division.

He points out that since the ICC abandonment hearings in 1977, traffic increased each year until 1981 and '82, which were both depressed years for agriculture and grain shipments.

He mentioned the intended three-phase rehabilitation program which when completed would have permitted "unrestricted operation of 65-unit grain trains from Pigeon southward at speeds up to 40 miles per hour."

State funding ran out, however, after only the first nine miles were completed between Imlay City and Kings Mill (not part of the abandonment request) at a cost of $1.5 million.

Late last year, the State Transportation Commission authorized a $3.2 million loan to the Grand Trunk at 5 percent interest, to be repaid over a period of up to 25 years by a joint shipper-carrier per car surcharge. That would have financed completion of the rehabilitation.

To further assist the railroad, neither the DOT or local communities contested the Grand Trunk's petition earlier this year to abandon the segment of the line from Caseville to Pigeon.

Traffic during the first five months of this year showed a 6 percent improvement over the same period in 1982, Bailey noted.

He finally questioned why, if the railroad was suffering increasing losses, it made no apparent effort to reduce its costs.

"...the subdivision has continuously operated with a five-man crew train although the average train in 1982...consisted of less than six cars."

He requested the ICC to "carefully analyze the impact of the railroad's recently instituted once per week train service north of Kings Mill." Service previously was provided three times a week.

He suggested that "under a restoration of normal rail traffic patterns on the subdivision, viability might be achieved."

4 area schools report enrollment

dents in 1981, 70 in 1980 and 20 in 1979, so "hopefully," the decline in enrollment has passed its peak.

The enrollment in each building this year is Campbell Elementary, 443 (433 in 1982); Deford Elementary, 105 (105); Evergreen Elementary, 101 (96); intermediate, 519 (533), and high school, 559 (596), for a total of 1,727 daytime students.

The 80 adult education students is eight more than in 1982.

KINGSTON

The loss of 12 students from 1982, Supt. Jerry Laycock said, will cost the district more than $21,000. "It hurts."

The enrollment drop was about what was anticipated.

Kingston has 370 students in grades K-6 and 368 in 7-12, compared to 380 and 370 respectively a year ago.

The drop in state aid comes at a bleak time, since the school board is going to have to make some budget cuts "immediately, if not sooner," according to the superintendent.

The problem is that spending in accordance with the present budget will leave the district with a fund equity of only $25,000 at the end of the school year.

The auditors of the district's 1982-83 finances are recommending Kingston

OWEN-GAGE

The school district has 215 students in grades K-6 (211 in 1982), 61 in 7-8 (55 a year ago) and 121 in 9-12, the same as last year.

The number of students counted Friday in each grade were: K, 34; 1st, 33; 2nd, 19; 3rd, 29; 4th, 29; 5th, 33; 6th, 38; 7th, 34; 8th, 27; 9th, 33; 10th, 24; 11th, 37, and 12th, 27.

UBLY

The Uby schools have 365 students in grades K-6 (386 counted a year ago); 152 in 7-8 (155), and 274 in 9-12 (380), for a total of 881, down from 916 a year ago. The numbers include special education students.

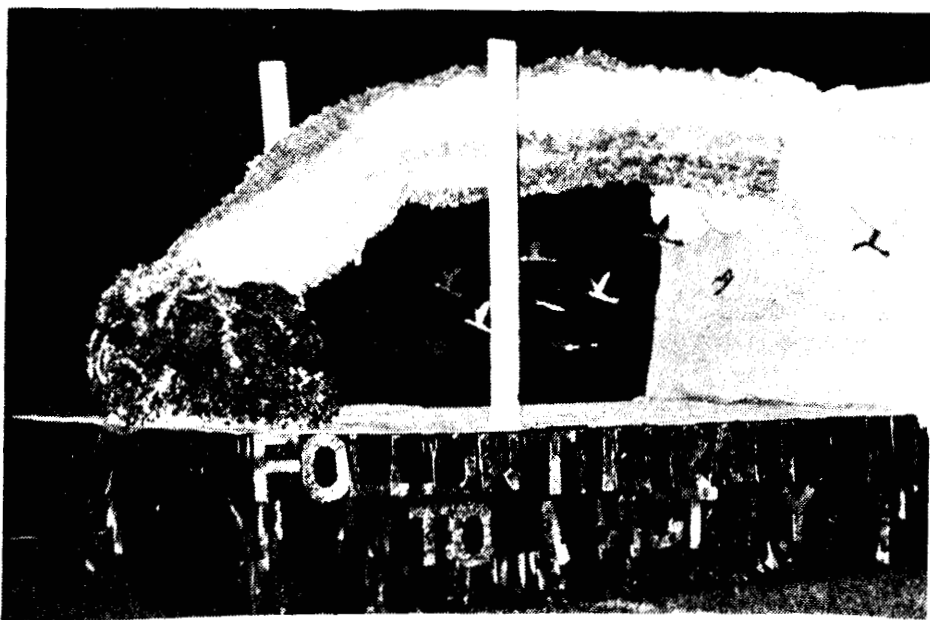

Business Manager Mark Tenbusch said projections are the district will lose more students the next two years, then there will be a slight increase.

By grade, the number is: K, 77; 1st, 48; 2nd, 51; 3rd, 49; 4th, 49; 5th, 43; 6th, 48; 7th, 68; 8th, 84; 9th, 95; 10th, 102; 11th, 86, and 12th, 81.

The 1982-83 senior class started the school year with 96 students and that was the first time in 15 years the 12th grade numbered fewer than 100 students, so this year's 81 is a big drop compared to last year.

KICKOFF RETURN — Brad Erickson of Owen-Gage returned North Huron's kickoff after its second touchdown to his team's 43 yard line before being brought down in the second quarter. Blocking at left is John Shope.

WINNING FLOAT at the Owen-Gage homecoming Friday night was constructed by the junior class. The theme was, "Follow the rainbow to a victory."

Gagetown to open sewer bids Nov. 8

Bids for the construction of the sanitary sewer system will be opened Nov. 8, the Gagetown Village Council decided Monday evening.

Terry Bartels of Edmands Engineering told the council advertising for bids will be done immediately.

After the bids are opened, he said, it will probably take the engineering firm 7-10 days to review them and then make a recommendation to the council, which will then award them.

In other action Monday, the council scheduled Halloween trick-or-treat hours from 6-7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 31.

The council will hold a special meeting this coming Monday, village President Bill Downing said, to interview candidates for police officer. Probably one will be hired.

Gagetown's last officer left in June and the council refrained from replacing him until it learned whether federal revenue sharing funds will be continued.

Downing said he recently received a letter from U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle informing him Congress has continued revenue sharing for three more years, which will mean a little more than $9,000 annually for Gagetown.

That won't pay all the cost of hiring a policeman, but will pay a substantial part.

The new policeman, Downing said, will probably work 30 hours a week during the winter months, 40 hours the rest of the year.

Separate fires damage vans

Lightning was the cause of a fire Tuesday morning that destroyed an old van used for storage.

Elkland Township firemen received the call at 7:10 a.m. The fire was on property on Kelly Road, 1½ miles west of Cemetery, owned by Burl Spencer. Occupant there is Gerald Spencer.

Firemen said the van did not have an engine in it and its value was negligible.

A van owned by David Kirby of Bach Road, Gagetown, was destroyed by fire Saturday evening.

Faulty wiring was the apparent cause of the fire, according to Owendale firemen, who were at the scene about an hour. The van was parked in front of the Kirby home.

No damage estimate was immediately available.

Buck Luck

Frederick Powell Jr. of Cass City shot a spikehorn buck Monday morning in the Greenleaf area. Bow season started Saturday.

Hawks fumble away chance for upset

The fumble bugaboo that plagued the Cass City Red Hawks in its first two games returned to haunt them again Friday at Vassar as the Vulcans whitewashed the Hawks, 19-0. The game was closer than the final score indicated. But after a couple of wasted scoring opportunities the momentum switched to the Vulcans and they overpowered Cass City in the last quarter and

The Hawks will have to be better than they were to stay in the game with the Lakers. The Green Machine rolled over previously undefeated North Branch, 35-18.

There will be no room for the misplays that took the Hawks out of the game against Vassar.

The Hawks missed a scoring opportunity in the first period. The Vulcans disdained the punt in the first quarter with short yardage and the Hawks took over on the Vassar 25.

A pass to Joe Viney gave the Hawks a first down on the five. After two running plays gained nothing, Brian Wright drove to the six inch line and it was fourth down.

That's when the first crucial fumble came. Brian Beecher lost the snap from center and Vassar took over on the six-yard line.

Vassar scored its first touchdown in the second period with a drive that covered 92 yards. Key plays in the march were a 15-yard pass to David Rod on third down and a 20-yard scamper by Ed Jewell to the Hawk 3. Dave Ruprecht scored the touchdown and a run for extra points missed.

That ended the scoring in the first half. The Hawks moved with the kick-off to the Vassar 26 before being stopped. The Hawks' second critical fumble resulted in the score that tucked away the game for the Vulcans. Beecher faded back to pass on his own 19, was hit and fumbled. Vassar recovered on the Cass City 8. From there the Vulcans took it in despite a 15-yard holding penalty that called an apparent touchdown back. That merely delayed things as Fred Hart got behind the Hawk secondary in the end zone to take the 15-yard payoff heave. The score came at 4:18 and Vassar was in front 12-0.

Forced to play catch up, Cass City went to the air deep in its own territory and another turnover on an interception led to the Vulcans' last touchdown of the game.

In a drive that started on the Hawk 30, Vassar scored in four plays. Dave Rod went 22 yards with a pass for the marker. The score came at 9:48 in the last period. The kick was good.

Joe Langenburg played an outstanding game on defense. He was credited with 12 tackles and two assists.

Hawks show strength in 2 meets

Cass City's cross country teams competed in two meets during the week and made a strong showing in both.

Tuesday, Sept. 27, a triple meet was held at Cass City. The boys finished first and the girls, second.

Paced by a first, third and fifth place finish by the Bliss brothers, Cass City scored 25 points. Second place USA scored 33 and Capac trailed with 65 points.

Greg Bliss won in 16:24. Dean Fuerst of USA was second. Kevin Bliss was third and Kurt Bliss, fifth. Others among the top ten for the Hawks were Randy Jackson, seventh, and Mike Middaugh, ninth.

Although Capac finished last among the boys, the Chiefs were first in the girls' competition with 31 points. Cass City was second, 37 points, and USA, third, 60 points.

The individual winner was Suzy Stansbury of Capac. Renae Stimpfel, Cass City was second. Other Cass City runners finishing in the top 10 were Chris Tuckey, fifth; Ann Leslie, ninth, and Dana Zdrojewski, 10th.

Saturday at Harbor Beach Invitational, Cass City finished third behind Sandusky, 68 points, and Capac 73 points. The Hawks with 79 points just edged Kingston with 80 points.

Stimpfel led Cass City with a second place finish behind Lisa Salyers of Sandusky. Tuckey was fifth and Lorie Hurley, 22nd.

Among the boys, Greg Bliss again topped the field. Kevin Bliss was fourth and Kurt Bliss, 11th.

Judge Joslyn hears guilty pleas in circuit court

Three persons pleaded guilty Monday when they appeared before Tuscola County Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Roger D. Shears, 18, of Flint, pleaded guilty to grand larceny in connection with the Oct. 30, 1982, theft of a tractor from Jensen Equipment Inc., Millington.

His plea was accepted and he was remanded to the county jail to await sentencing Dec. 19.

In a plea bargain with the prosecution, a second larceny charge in connection with the theft of a lawn tractor from Jensen Equipment will be dismissed.

'Vette damaged by hit and runner

Damage was estimated at $900 to a car struck by a hit and run vehicle early Sunday.

The owner of the car was Gary Lee Vollmar of 5222 Cedar Run Road. He told Cass City police his Corvette was parked on Doerr Road from 12:30-1:45 that morning, during which it was hit.

The right front and rear quarters and right front tire and wheel were damaged.

Cynthia Grubba of 6905 Stevens Road, Kingston, reported to sheriff's deputies Sept. 27 that while her car was parked on Ross Street in Kingston from 10:45-11:30 p.m. on the 26th, three tires were punctured with a knife, plus the left door was scratched. Loss was estimated at $200.

The hood and left side of the car of Lisa Comment, no address given, was scratched when it was parked at the Charmont Friday from 6-9 p.m., according to Cass City police.

Colleen McDonald of 6844 Clothier Road, Kingston, reported to Caro state police Friday evening that while her car was parked on Marlette Road, east of Clothier, the battery and a 10-speed bicycle were stolen.

The items were taken while the car was parked there from 7 a.m. Wednesday to 4 p.m. Thursday. Loss was estimated at $80.

Sheriff's deputies were summoned to P.J.'s Auto Salvage, 4100 Cemetery Road, about 5 p.m. last Thursday after owner Paul Hugo found two boys in the yard.

The boys were both about 10 years old. Cass City police turned them over to their parents.

Hugo told deputies that he has been having problems over the last 1½ years with vehicle windows being broken at his salvage yard, but he didn't believe the two boys have been involved.

Your neighbor says

Parents should be able to bar treatment

The recent decision by the Tennessee courts ordering treatment for Pamela Hamilton drew nationwide attention.

The 12-year-old suffers from a rare form of bone cancer and without treatment doctors gave her three months to live. They say she has a 25 percent or less chance of living.

Her parents didn't want treatment, arguing that only God can heal her cancer and that she has a First Amendment right to refuse treatment on religious grounds. Her father is a minister in the Christian fundamentalist Church of God of Union Assembly. "I agree it's up to the parents. It's their decision," Sue Gibson said of the controversy.

She feels it should be the parents' right, even if withholding treatment for their child results in death.

As for herself, if it came down to her beliefs or saving her child, Mrs. Gibson commented, "it would be my child."

But what if a child was abused by her parents, who claimed it was their religious right to do so.

She feels in such an instance, the courts have the right to take the child away. "A child wasn't put on earth to abuse."

There is a fine and undefinable line, however, between child abuse and having medical treatment withheld from a child, Mrs. Gibson admitted. "Technically, what they (Rev. and Mrs. Hamilton) are doing is abusing their child, but it's their beliefs..."

She and her husband, John, and family moved to Van Dyke Road, Cass City, from Utica about a month ago. They have three children, Brenda Sue, 13, Terri Lynn, 11, and John III, 9.

Persons who don't live in Elkland or Novesta Townships who would like to contribute to the county fund drive can send their donations to Tuscola County United Way, P.O. Box 44, Caro 48723.

"good for the musicians to do a small tour."

Only some of the musicians who will be performing here will be in Midland and they will be repeating selections from their Cass City concerts.

In addition to Brown, harpsichordist Doris OrNSTEIN of Cleveland will be back for the fifth year, as well as two musical families.

William and Doris Preucil and daughter Jeanne, 15, all violinists, will be coming from Iowa. Son William Jr., concertmaster of the Atlanta Symphony, and his wife, Gwen Starker, both violinists, will come from Georgia. Another son, Walter, and his wife, Stephanie, cellist and violinist respectively, are coming from Indiana. Daughter Ann Preucil, who plays harp and viola, will come from the college she attends in Ohio.

Norman and Catherine Paul, violinist and oboist respectively, from Madison, Wis., will again be performing. A daughter played here previously but is now in Germany.

A new performer this year will be tenor Gran Wilson from Alabama.

The musicians who perform here do so for little more than the cost of their transportation, plus free meals and housing.

In the past, according to Mrs. Althaver, who works on the festival almost year-round, about a third of the festival's cash budget came from ticket sales, one-third from the state-funded Michigan Council for the Arts, and one-third from the sale of patron tickets and donations.

This year, because of statewide cutbacks, the arts council has only granted the festival $6,700, which is $10,000 less than last year. Because of the state cutback, she said, "We're going to have to do some serious fund raising. Each year our costs go up...."

She added that the festival is going to have to begin paying its musicians more than a token amount, citing the example of a musician who performed here previously. His management firm wouldn't let him return without his receiving his normal fee, which was more than the Bach Festival could afford.

For purposes of applying for the state grant, the festival is budgeted at $53,600, however, only about half of that is in cash. The rest is in the form of donated food, lodging, transportation, etc.

Tickets aren't ready yet, but they can be reserved by calling Ouvry Chevrolet-Olds at 872-9844.

which is loaning $355,000 to Gagetown and giving it $345,000 and loaning Owendale $235,000 and giving it $400,000.

The loans have an interest rate of 11.375 percent, repayable over 40 years. Gagetown gets a smaller free grant because it has some industry to help pay for the sewer system, unlike Owendale.

If the construction bids are low enough, the FmHA won't have to loan the villages any more money. If they aren't, it has indicated it will loan them more money.

Knop is hopeful construction bids will be low enough to cover the loss of the state money. "It should be. There hasn't been that much of an increase in price (of similar construction projects)."

Total estimated cost of the Gagetown project is $1.956 million; Owendale, $1.6 million. The federal share is supposed to be $1.178 million and $960,000 respectively.

Property owners will be repaying the FmHA loans which finance the local share through $1,500 connection fees, plus monthly user or service charges.

They will be able to borrow money from the FmHA to pay the connection fee if they can't afford to pay cash. In addition, they will have to pay someone to install the pipe to connect their plumbing to the sewer main.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Mr. Haire,

Your column, entitled "The Haire Net" was forwarded to us by friends in Cass City.

It was great interest and a large dose of nostalgia to be remembered in such a way by you and your newspaper.

I would like to express my thanks to you for the accurate accounting of my husband's career and the complimentary remembrance of same.

By Bill Myers Taking stock

So the gold bug has bitten you.

No wonder. Nearly every financial advisor setting up an investment plan has a line in his outline: "As an inflation hedge, 10 percent in gold."

They're pretty cautious here, suggesting only 10 percent. My reaction is that with only 10 percent of your assets committed, whatever happens isn't going to make much difference, plus or minus.

As an anchor to windward or as a route to pie in the sky, it's a drop in the bucket. Like that triple-mix of metaphors?

Before setting forth some figures, keep in mind two things:

1) It's going to cost you 5 percent to buy gold. And it's going to cost you 5 percent to sell it. (We assume the 5 percent includes storage costs.)

2) The only income you have will be from the price going up -- capital gains, in other words.

Gold has also been known to go down in price. Three years ago it was $800. At this writing, it's $400. Last summer it was $300. This year it has dropped about 10 percent from an earlier peak.

Even the gnomes of Zurich finally admitted they couldn't understand the last drop.

O.K. So we're going to buy one ounce of gold. Market is $400. Commission is 5 percent, or $20. In three years, the price goes up to $600. We sell. The price has gone from $400 to $600. Have we made $200?

Our net profit after paying commissions and capital gains tax of 20 percent is $120 -- not $200:

Sale proceeds	$600
Less 5 percent comm.	570
Cost	400
Plus 5 percent comm., total	420
Gross profit	150
Less 20 percent tax, net	120

Original investment of $420 has climbed to $540 in three years.

Suppose instead of gold you bought a tax-free bond yielding 10 percent, and let it compound for three years.

$420 at 10 percent, for three years...$559. That's the net because there is no tax to pay.

Another example: Gold price soars back to its sky-high level of $800, six years from now:

Sale proceeds	$800
Less 5 percent comm., net	760
Cost, incl. comm.	420
Gross Profit	340
Less 20 percent tax, net	272

Original investment of $420 has climbed to $692 in six years. Not bad.

The same investment in a 10 percent tax-free bond would have compounded your assets to $744.

One more example. Gold price goes to $1,000 an ounce in eight years. Your profit after commissions and 20 percent capital gains tax would be $424. Add your original investment and you have $844 when you cash in.

The same investment in a 10 percent tax-free bond would compound to $900.

But you've had an inflation hedge, say the gold wizards. If you bought some at $800 in 1980, you then went into the worst years of inflation in U.S. history. Gold fell from $800 down to $300. Some hedge.

In case the figures above don't change your mind and you're set on buying the stuff, at least stay away from coin dealers. Your bank may be able to handle your order, and won't overcharge.

There are many old, established firms around. Their commissions, plus a small charge for storage, average about 5 percent. Certainly you don't want to mess with your own storage. Unless your gold is in coins you'll have to pay to have it assayed before selling. Costly, risky and cumbersome.

40 YEARS OF SERVICE AND STILL GOING STRONG

MRS. REVA LITTLE

When Mrs. Little started reporting the social activities of the day for the Chronicle a trip to the moon was fantasy, the atom bomb was unknown, air travel was in its infancy and much of the Chronicle was pieced together by hand, letter by letter. That's all changed now. What hasn't is the job Mrs. Little has done for the paper and the community week after week, year after year.

WOMEN! How do they do it all?

Chapter II

Chapter II, this special section devoted to the achievements of area women has much in common with the original section published one year ago.

You'll find stories in Chapter II devoted to a few of the activities of busy women in leadership roles in Cass City.

Without half trying we know that you could come up with the names of others equally suited for recognition in these pages.

There are more women in leadership roles this year than there were last and more in 1982 than there were in 1981. Because there are so many doing so much, women just doing the job are, not overlooked, but not singled out.

That's why you'll find many of them featured by owners and managers in their ads. They know the job these women do.

The Chronicle adds its tribute to theirs.

Without experience Dorothy Stahlbaum started store to fill void

Dorothy Stahlbaum didn't have any experience in retailing before starting her own business. She opened the Clothes Closet in Cass City in 1971 and another store with the same name in 1977 in Bad Axe.

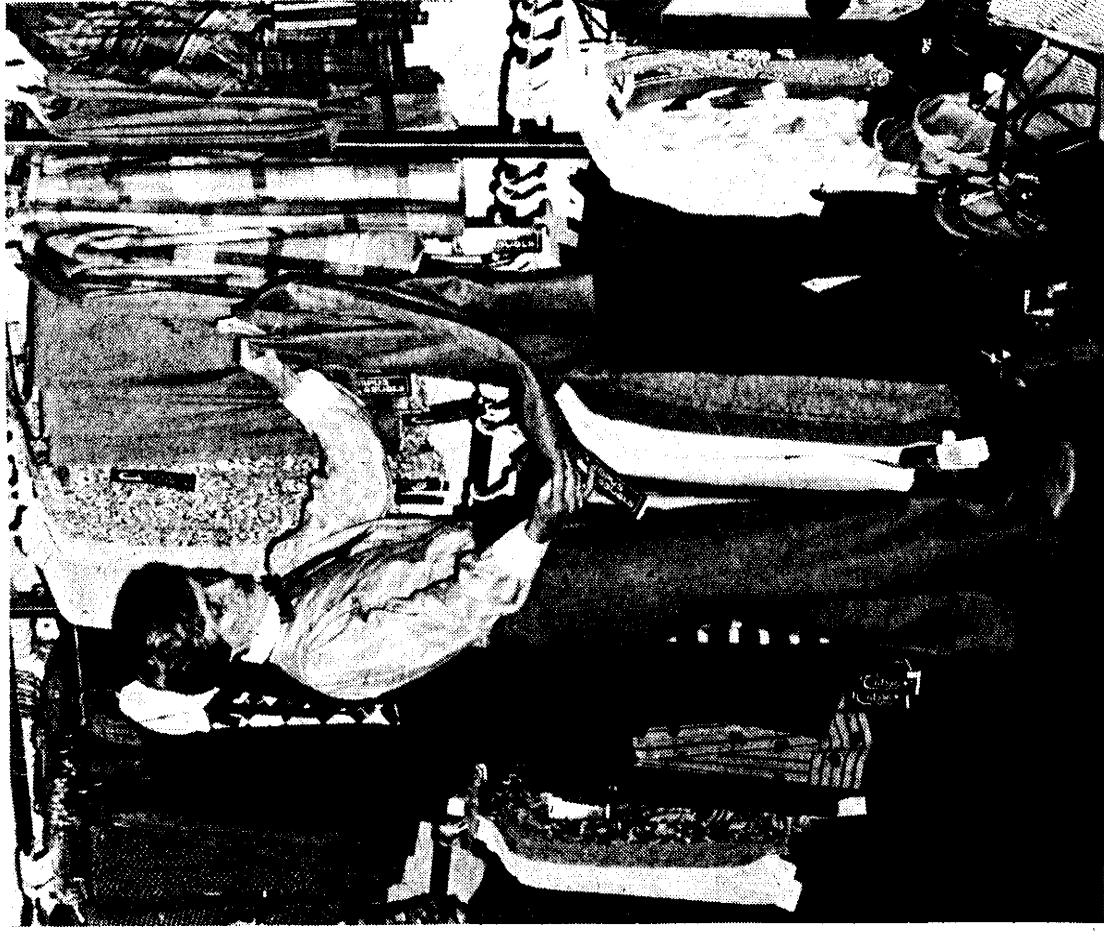

When she opened her first store, "I had at that time two young teenage daughters and every time you needed something, you had to go into the city to get it. I guess I was trying to fill a void."

There were other factors too. "I wanted something to do. I was ready to go back to work."

The Stahlbaums, who live at 6283 W. Main Street, have four children: Jeff and Todd, in high school; Mark, graduate, 45, worked for one year as a secretary in Saginaw before marrying Jack Stahlbaum 27 years ago.

After their first three children were born, she worked about a year at General Cable and 1½-2 years at Walbro, both assembly line jobs.

Councilwoman Stahlbaum sits on village council to present community opinion

Stahlbaum and Sons) and Dawn (Mrs. Jim McCarty) of Bay City. Another daughter, Lori, is deceased.

Although the clothing stores are her business, Mrs. Stahlbaum stresses, "I think you can understand the whole family can be involved, even if it doesn't say so on paper."

If a husband owns a business, she continued, he has to have the support of his wife and family "and the same goes for a woman."

The Clothes Closet has developed in three year cycles. It opened in what is now the Schneberger's computer store, next to the lot at the southeast corner of Main and Maple.

In 1974, it was moved to its present location on Main, to a building she bought.

Three years later, Mrs. Stahlbaum opened a store in Bad Axe. It was small, so in 1980, the store was moved to its present location, which occupies two floors downtown.

She has a total of seven employees for the two stores.

SHE FINDS HAVING stores almost essential. "It's very difficult to run one location in this day and age." She does her own book work and ordering, as well as keeping the books for her husband's business.

The businesswoman usually makes one trip a year to Chicago and several to Detroit and Southfield to buy merchandise, plus salesmen call on her at her stores.

It's just as easy to buy for two stores as one, and beneficial when manufacturers require minimum purchases. "You have to buy in volume. You have more buying power if...you have multiple locations."

She mentioned another advantage of having two stores, using purple sweaters as an example. If she has to buy a minimum of 12 and only had one store, "You'll see yourself coming and going." It's easier to sell six purple sweaters in Cass City and six in Bad Axe.

Originally, the Clothes Closet sold clothes for girls through high school age, but now sells for pre-teens to adults through size 16.

In the clothing business, knowing what to order is more involved than simply reordering when merchandise gets low.

Salesmen, of course, want her to buy whatever they are selling. "But I know my customers...You can bring in some of those things early and just bomb."

For instance, mini-skirts were a bomb last year.

Of her council service, she said, "I don't sit in that chair just to voice my opinion. I try to carry the opinion of the community back to the council."

"This year, I couldn't get enough of them."

BUSINESS HAS BEEN hurt by the recession the last few years, but Mrs. Stahlbaum sees signs of improvement. "I'm optimistic that the economy is turning around. We're noticing a marked change in the economy as far as sales are concerned and what people are buying."

Mrs. Stahlbaum discovered early in her business career that it isn't possible to stock or order every item that a customer might want, no matter how obscure. "When I first went into business, I went crazy trying to satisfy people."

She learned, "You can't be all things to all people. You find your niche and try to stick to it."

A PAST PRESIDENT of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce and actively involved in the Retail Committee, she is also a present member of the Bad Axe Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Leitch has 135 entries at fair

She has also judged at a style review and at this year's fair, was 4-H knitting and crocheting superintendent.

MRS. LEITCH GOT started as a foster parent 22 years ago when a friend's granddaughter stayed for a while at the Leitch home, then returned home to Dearborn and got into trouble. The girl persuaded her social worker to let her return to the Leitches. She then lived with the couple for two years.

As foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leitch usually provided a home for one child at a time from about age 14-15 until he or she graduated from high school.

Four years ago, the couple switched to the status of a shelter home, licensed for four beds. That means they provide a home for children usually for 3-6 weeks, until the child returns to his or her parents or is placed in a foster home. The children range in age from 0-17 and can come from any of several counties.

MR. AND MRS. LEITCH have had children living in their home of all races. Sometimes they were drug or alcohol abusers and sometimes they were the victims of abuse, and sometimes they were just troublesome.

What the children are usually lacking, Mrs. Leitch has found, is "A lot of love." As a result, "They don't like themselves."

One way to help them overcome that is, "I try to pick something they can accomplish."

She has found many children with reading disabilities, but were good in art, so, "I took that up (painting) to help them out."

4-H has been valuable in helping the children. "Showing animals is one of the best things to teach children they can accomplish something by competing with others." One thing they sometimes learn is "to take defeat."

Having raised her own and so many other children, Mrs. Leitch understandably has some advice on the subject, including:

-- "A child has to earn your trust and you have to trust them."

-- "If you don't want your kids to drink, you better not drink."

-- "If you lie to a child, they can pick that up right quick."

MANY OF THE Leitches' ex-foster children come for visits, write and/or call them on the telephone.

Showing a photograph of the newest "foster grandchild," (child of one of her ex-foster children), Mrs. Leitch said, "We've had a lot of successes."

Not all the children have been successes, however. "I've had kids try to kill me," she said, and sometimes, police have had to be called to the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Leitch have had a four-year-old girl living with them for two years who is a slow learner and attends the Huron Learning Center near Bad Axe.

Mrs. Leitch is now a volunteer at the center. She works there one day a month and helps put on parties for the students, takes them bowling and helps with the Special Olympics.

A member of the Fraser Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Leitch has taught Sunday School there and at the First Presbyterian Church in Bad Axe a total of 35 years. She presently teaches at the latter church.

She has also cooked dinners for many church functions over the years. Mrs. Leitch has lots of experience cooking for lots of people. She was a cook for the Bad Axe schools for 10 years, until 1972.

In addition to all that, she and her husband have also hosted a number of foreign students over the years, ones for about six weeks through a 4-H program and ones from the University of Michigan during holidays.

Linda Battel holds down 2 pressure packed jobs

EMERGENCY MEDICINE -- Sometimes it's necessary for emergency medical technician Linda Battel to treat accident victims inside the car before they can be safely removed. This accident took place Aug. 19 north of Cass City.

Linda Battel's life centers around the beeper she wears on her waist.

She is an emergency medical technician (EMT). When the beeper sounds, she and usually two other members of the Cass City Ambulance Service crew may be off to an accident, to aid a heart attack victim or for a routine transfer of a hospital or nursing home patient.

It isn't something Miss Battel has to do. She is in her fifth year of teaching at Cass City Intermediate School.

But instead of taking it easy last summer, she was on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

She has been an EMT more than two years.

It all started because of a broken leg -- hers. It happened when she was working as a lifeguard at a summer camp. The first aid treatment she received got her interested in learning more, but back in Cass City, there was no first aid class available.

There was, however, an EMT class at Hills and Dales General Hospital offered by Mid-Michigan Community College, so she enrolled.

She wasn't intending to go to work for the ambulance service, but those who were involved with it persuaded her otherwise. The course, three hours one night a week, lasted from September until May, and a few weeks before it ended, she signed on with the ambulance service as a trainee.

Once she completed the class and passed the state licensing examination, in June, 1981, she was an EMT for the ambulance service.

AN EMT isn't for the fainthearted or the indecisive or those who don't like unpredictability.

"With a heart attack, surprisingly, you go right by the book," Miss Battel said, "but at an accident, you never know what you're going to find or what's going to happen."

At an accident, she continued, "The hardest part is to organize in your mind what comes first." With persons screaming, bystanders and other commotion, "There's a lot of pressure all in just a few minutes."

EMTs are paid $8 for the first hour and $5.50 each additional hour, plus an additional $2 an hour on week ends.

Money isn't that important when it comes to being an EMT, according to Miss Battel. That may explain why she is willing to spend so many hours on standby, for which she isn't paid, never knowing when she will be called or for how long.

It feels good to have a family come back and say thanks for being there

As mentioned, she was on standby around the clock during the summer. During the school year, she is on standby from 6 p.m.-7 a.m. weekdays and 6 p.m. Friday-7 a.m. Monday, minus time off Sunday mornings to go to church.

The reason she is on standby so much is because the ambulance service doesn't have enough EMTs, only eight, of whom two are supposed to be on standby at any given time. State law requires a minimum of one EMT and one driver trained in advanced first aid to go on runs, but the Cass City service likes to send two EMTs, plus the driver.

BEING AN EMT, according to Miss Battel, "is challenging, really challenging. Sometimes it's scary because you have someone's life in your hands or have to make a decision that could affect the rest of their life."

There are rewards though. "It feels good to have a family come back and say, 'Thanks for being there when we needed you.'"

She points out there are advantages to taking the EMT class. "It's really not that hard of a class. You learn a lot and it's good for people to take it...because you can use it at home. If something went wrong, you know how to handle it."

In addition to being an EMT, Miss Battel has taught cardiopulmonary resuscitation classes, including one this semester for the community education program. That's on Tuesday nights.

On Monday nights, she is assisting at a first aid instructors class at Delta College near Bay City in order to receive her instructor's card. After that, she will teach advanced first aid to ambulance service drivers.

MISS BATTEL IS A native of Cass City, having graduated from high school here in 1975. She is the daughter of Les and Margaret Battel of Cass City Road.

In her first year of teaching after graduating from Central Michigan University in 1979, she taught sixth grade. She taught seventh grade science the next two years, seventh grade math last year and this year is again teaching sixth grade.

In addition to teaching, being an EMT, teaching CPR classes, etc., she managed to complete her 18 credit hours of graduate classes last spring necessary to get her continuing teaching certificate. She did it by taking classes on the CMU campus one summer and evening classes off campus the rest of the time.

She originally didn't plan to return to Cass City after college, but now can say, "I'm glad I came back to teach. I love it."

She likes teaching junior high youngsters. She finds them fun to work with, but also challenging. "It's a unique age group...I really like the kids."

She finds, by the way, that her EMT experience and training come in handy in her teaching.

If a student has an injury or a seizure, "at least I know what to do." She was able to use a lot of her knowledge as an EMT in her science classes. She taught her seventh grade students CPR and will be doing it again this year with her sixth graders.

Miss Battel has a goal in education. "I feel I'm a good teacher, but I want to be one of the best." She remembers teachers she had in school that influenced her, she explained, and hopes that her students after they have grown up will look back and say, "She was one of the best."

If enthusiasm counts, she is well on her way toward her goal. Asked what subject she likes to teach best, Miss Battel first said "science," then added, "math," and finally said, "I just like teaching, period."

LINDA BATTEL helps a student, Steve DeLong, with an assignment. She teaches sixth grade at Cass City Intermediate School and is in her fifth year of teaching.

The amount of work devoted to Farm Bureau varies but in September she was gone from home seven days.

care of her family and impeccably neat house, is organization. "I've been told sometimes I'm too organized."

It is also necessary sometimes to say "no" when asked to do something. "It took me a while to learn that word is in the English language," Mrs. Adam said.

Without saying "no" sometimes, she explained, "I found out there's no time left for Faye and I want to have a little time for that now and then."

THE FARM BUREAU Women's committees, which are organized on the county, district and state level, reflect the increased role of women in agriculture.

Mrs. Adam, 44, recalls that when she first got involved, the major project of the county committee was to run the bean soup kitchen at the county fair, not that she sees anything wrong with such an activity.

Nowadays, Farm Bureau Women are involved in such activities as promotion of Agriculture Day each March, shopping mall promotions and displays, speakers bureaus, presenting programs to school children about how the food they eat gets from the farm to the kitchen table ("It's surprising how many kids in classrooms really don't know those things."), health and safety projects and educational programs for farm husbands and wives.

One of the jobs of the state FB Women's Committee is to send a program of suggested projects to the county committees each year, and also to encourage local program ideas.

MRS. ADAM HAS served on the 15-member state committee six years and will serve two more. Her first four were as district representative and the last two at-large.

In addition, she was second vice-chairman one year and then was first vice-chairman four years before being elected chairman at the MFB state convention at the end of last November.

The state committee meets four or five times a year and the executive committee meets in between when needed.

Among its projects each year are sponsorship of a state leadership conference each September to develop male and female Farm Bureau leaders and the legislative seminar in Washington, D.C., at the end of each March or early April, which is for men and women Farm Bureau leaders. Mrs. Adam has participated in the Washington seminar four times, including this year.

AS CHAIRMAN OF the state committee, she is automatically a member of MFB Board of Directors, which, she said, can take as much time as the women's committee. Mrs. Adam is one of two women on the board.

The amount of time devoted to Farm Bureau activities varies from month to month, but in September, she was gone from home seven days.

She admits sometimes she is so busy with Farm Bureau activities, "Some months I feel like I meet myself coming backwards."

DESPITE HER BUSY schedule, Mrs. Adam works one day a week in the office of Dr. Thomas Jackson, DDS, in Marlette, as his orthodontic assistant, working with children. Until the rest of her schedule became too busy, she worked more than that.

She has been working in the same office for 28 years, starting after her junior year at Marlette High School. (Jackson is the second dentist she has worked for.)

After graduating from high school, she attended the University of Michigan with the aim of earning a bachelor's degree as a dental hygienist, but after a year in Ann Arbor, she preferred returning to work in the dental office.

Her family and agriculture come first, according to Mrs. Adam, but dentistry comes close behind.

"I don't do it for the income," she said of her dental job. "I do it because I enjoy the work and if I were ever in a position where I had to work full-time, I have that to fall back on."

Organization key to meeting busy for Faye Adam-housewife, mother

Faye Adam is chairman of the Michigan Farm Bureau State Women's Committee.

She is also a member of the MFB Board of Directors, chairman of the MFB Committee on Rural Health, a leader of the Lucky Stars 4-H Club, a member of the Sanilac County 4-H committees for personal appearance and livestock, a member of the state 4-H livestock committee, Lamotte Township deputy clerk, a dental assistant, farm wife and the mother of three children.

Mrs. Adam is involved in numerous activities for various reasons. One is, "I enjoy it or I wouldn't do it."

Referring to her husband of 25 years, Wayne, she said, "I guess we feel strongly you get out of something what you put in it."

Being farmers, they feel it is important to promote agriculture and its point of view, which is one reason for their involvement in Farm Bureau. "There's no way as farmers, as two voices, we could have an impact."

The Adams, who live at 4150 Snover Road, Snover, have three children: Dawn, 21, a recent graduate of Ferris State College, who is living at home and working as a dental hygienist for Drs. Paul Chappel and Timothy Straight at their new clinic in Bad Axe; Alan, 18, who is starting his freshman year at Michigan State University and plans to study some aspect of agriculture, and Linda, 16, a junior at Marlette High School. All have been or are very active in 4-H.

Their mother said she couldn't be involved in as many activities as she is without the support of her husband and children "or I wouldn't be doing it."

Wayne Adam, with help from his family, feeds beef and hogs and grows 320 acres of corn, alfalfa and wheat.

Mrs. Adam does the bookwork and helps during planting and harvesting seasons. She used to do more on the farm, but as her children grew and were able to help more, that gave her more time to devote to other things.

Her husband is Lamotte Township clerk. The township board appointed her deputy clerk. She takes care of the book work and handles the voter registrations.

Champion homemaker of year Letta Leitch cared for 100 foster children

Letta Leitch might be accused of doing things to excess.

She didn't have a few entries in this year's Huron Community Fair, she had 135.

In addition to four children of her own, she and her husband, Murdock, have cared for more than 100 foster children in their home over 22 years.

She has been a Sunday School teacher for 35 years and a 4-H leader for 27 years.

She was an open class superintendent at the county fair for about 20 years.

The Atwater Road, Uby, resident's 135 entries, which earned her 38 blue ribbons, 39 red and 22 white ones, plus her many community activities earned her the title of Champion Homemaker of the Year at the fair in August, plus the chance to compete for the same title at the Michigan State Fair.

Mrs. Leitch, 62, didn't win at the state fair, but "I had a good time."

She has a long time love affair with fairs, going back to when she was nine years old and sold blankets at the fair for the owner of the Ben Franklin store in Bad Axe with his daughter.

Mrs. Leitch grew up in Bad Axe and to her regret, "city kids" couldn't participate in 4-H back then. The booth where she sold the blankets was across from the 4-H exhibit.

SHE WAS 10 YEARS old when she made her first fair entry, a satin woven pillow which earned her a blue ribbon in the open class. "The next year, I advanced to baked goods."

Mrs. Leitch continued entering the fair until she became an open class assistant superintendent, a job she held for five or six years, followed by about 20 as a superintendent, 1980 being her last year. She didn't feel she should be a superintendent and compete, so didn't resume competition until 1981. She didn't enter last year.

Her entries this year included baked goods, produce from her garden, flowers and items she sewed. Asked how she could prepare so many entries, she responded, "When it gets close to fair time, I bake a lot." Some of the goods are then put in the freezer until the fair.

Some items are prepared well in advance. A daughter wore a jacket last winter that her mother sewed, which was a fair entry this year.

A WIDOW FROM HER first marriage, Mrs. Leitch had two children with her first husband, Kathleen Nichol, Saginaw, and a son who was killed in an accident.

She and Murdock, who is employed by Sheridan Supply in Bad Axe, a concrete supplier, have been married 27 years and have three children. Elizabeth and Kathleen Leitch are both employed at a children's home in Florida. Carol Leitch lives at home and works as a "herdsman" at a Harbor Beach dairy farm.

Mrs. Leitch, who also has three grandchildren, first got involved in 4-H because of her children.

She was a club leader for 27 years, until three years ago. She now works with one or two 4-H'ers at a time in horses, crafts or sewing. Please turn to page 14.

LETTA LEITCH shucks some corn from her garden, which will be shelled and then frozen. The tomatoes in the background were canned. Between what comes from the garden and the cattle slaughtered by her husband and daughter, the family buys few groceries. Enough is canned and frozen to eat year-round.

Diamonds are for every woman

"Diamonds," declares mer Cover Girl model, "make the difference." Candy Jones, well-known radio talk show host and for-

The "difference" Candy is referring to is our attitude toward ourselves and our interest in personal grooming. The Jewelry Industry Council points out.

Candy, who has made a career of beauty and good grooming, was one of the original Cover Girl models. She has written more than a dozen beauty books for young women and, for a number of years, ran her own career girl school in New York.

Among the young women she groomed and guided were Sandra Dee, Martha Hye, Leslie Parrish, Julie Meade, France Nuyen, Gloria Gra-hame and Joan Kennedy, who was a model before marrying Sen. Ted Kennedy.

As a model herself, Candy was one of the most photographed cover girls and, in one month, appeared on the covers of 13 different magazines.

"DIAMONDS ARE FOR EVERY WOMAN," says Candy Jones, reports the Jewelry Industrial Council. Candy says diamonds can be within reach in small post earrings, tiny pendants, or emphasizing a birthstone on a ring. "They are great ego builders. You can't feel down when you're wearing diamonds," she confides.

diamond stud earrings and rings are within reach. "One of my favorite pieces of jewelry is a small diamond heart on a gold chain that my mother gave me many years ago. It's my good luck charm."

"I wear it with pearls, colored stones or longer gold chains on special occasions. Otherwise, I wear it alone—even in the shower! It makes me feel special."

"There's one thing about wearing diamonds—if you have diamonds on your fingers, your manure is usually impeccable. And, who could ever think of having a stringy coiffure with diamond earrings?"

"Diamonds go everywhere today. One look I like is a tailored suit with a small diamond horseshoe or diamond bar pin on the lapel."

"Diamonds say, 'Hey! Look at me! I'm special!—And you'll find that wearing diamonds makes you want to look special too,' she says."

Candy has had three sons and managed to be a successful author, owner and operator of a personal improvement school, and tv-model agency, and today is recognized as one of night radio's top talk show hosts.

Her word to the wise is that the young woman who looks her best is usually the one who winds up with a gorgeous diamond on that third finger.

GOLD HEART FAVORITE—One of Candy's most treasured items of jewelry, the Jewelry Industry Council reports, is a tiny diamond and gold heart pendant given her by her mother. "It goes well with other necklaces—pearls or chains in different lengths," she says.

Mighty moms now do it all and are loving it

The disappearance of the proverbial "guilt trip" may be attributed to several factors, the study indicates. An overwhelming number of working mothers who require child care say it is readily available. Even mothers of children under six, both working and non-working, say they are satisfied with their child care arrangements (91 percent).

In addition, few mothers (17 percent) feel guilty serving their families convenience foods and 41 percent of mothers of older children feel confident their children can fix their own meals when they're not around. Only 16 percent of working moms feel household chores are their responsibility.

IN ADDITION TO analyzing the responses of the total sample, Franco-American performed a second analysis using responses of mothers only.

Mothers who answered groups of attitude statements alike were grouped together allowing a closer look at their personal characteristics and opinions. As a result of this analysis, six personality types emerged:

--Happy Homemakers: Married with children, the Happy Homemaker fits everyone's image of the traditional mom. She's confident her family gets the foods they need. In fact, she's satisfied with most every aspect of her life and gets a sense of achievement from staying at home with her family.

--Petticoat Prisoner: Stuck at home when she'd love to be working, the Petticoat Prisoner doesn't want more time with her family. She's under pressure and virtually no one is willing to help.

--Nouveau Mom: This young professional is taking time off from the fast track to start a family. She plans to go back to work but would love to make it part-time. For Nouveau Mom, motherhood has its rewards -- and its pressures.

--Mighty Mom: You've seen her in advertisements, you've read about her in magazines. Thanks to a few compromises, she's doing it all -- and loving it. She doesn't feel food from scratch is more nutritious than convenience foods. At work and at home, Mighty Mom is mighty satisfied.

--Sister Superstress: She's off in a million directions -- working, raising kids, keeping house -- and it's getting to be too much. Sister Superstress feels constantly torn and is vulnerable to guilty trips when she tries to compromise.

--Mother Maturity: Her kids are teenagers. If she's working, it's because her family needs the money. If she can afford it, she's staying at home. Her kids help out in the kitchen and she frequently relies on convenience foods. Mother Maturity is under a lot of pressure, but she gets by with a little help from her friends and family.

Survey shows

Women exploring new lifestyle options

Today's moms are satisfied with child care arrangements, don't feel guilty if they're working and have families and friends who support their chosen lifestyles.

But they're also under pressure and, if working, frequently feel they're trying to do too much.

These are among findings of a major national survey released by Franco-American, a product line of the Campbell Soup Co.

The study reveals attitudes and behaviors of over 700 wives and mothers nationwide who were interviewed by telephone in March, 1983. Among the issues addressed are family health and nutrition, child care, employment, and household chores.

Women are exploring new lifestyle options and continuing to embrace the traditions of the past, the study indicates. No longer does a woman's personal lifestyle choice — to work, to raise a family, to do both — necessarily imply disdain for the road not taken.

The study reveals that women who are combining family and career have a growing respect for the challenges faced by those who choose to stay at home — and vice versa.

Based on responses of women who said they "agree completely" with attitude statements, a great number of women believe it possible to do it all — be a good wife, mother and worker all at the same time.

Working mothers are the most likely to feel this way (70 percent) and the most likely to report they frequently feel they're trying to do too much (51 percent.)

BOTH WORKING AND non-working women feel they are under more pressure than five years ago. Contrary to popular belief, however, it's not work that creates most pressure — it's motherhood. Sixty-eight percent of mothers say they are under more pressure, compared to 44 percent of working and non-working married women without children.

Only 28 percent of all mothers surveyed believe mothers who stay at home are under less pressure than mothers who have to work.

Both working and non-working moms feel their family and friends support them in their chosen roles. Both also report that husbands are taking an active role in parenting. But there's bad news as well.

...Women who are combining family and career have a growing respect for the challenges of those who stay at home and vice versa.

As with any social change, attitudes appear to be changing more quickly than behavior. Despite a decade of consciousness-raising, new role models and diminishing emphasis on traditional male-female stereotypes, women overwhelmingly report they do most household chores themselves.

Here again, it's motherhood that seems to mean the difference between satisfaction and dissatisfaction. Only 37 percent of mothers, working and non-working, are satisfied with the way their household chores are divided. This contrasts sharply with the attitudes of 63 percent of non-mothers who are satisfied.

ALTHOUGH THEY MAY be doing things differently than their own mothers, today's working moms don't feel guilty about their lifestyles. Only 5 percent of mothers with children under six and 10 percent of mothers of older children said they feel guilty about not being as good a wife and mother as their mother.
