Motivation lacking

Results mixed on assessment tests

The Cass City School Board reviewed the results of the state assessment tests given to the fourth, seventh and 10th grades Monday night in its regular meeting at the high school.

The results were mixed when compared to the anticipated state averages. The tests are given throughout the state and the student passes or fails by answering correctly 75 percent of the questions.

For instance, a grade of 80 percent means that 8 out of 10 students answered three out of every four questions or more correctly.

Counselor Jerry Cleland told the board that lack of motivation was a key in the testing. Students know that the results will not affect their grades and tend to not try on the examinations. In schools that require passing the test for graduation scores have jumped 20 percent, he explained.

While the school looks only average in the state tests, students look better in the ACT tests. They scored above the national average in every category with a composite rating of 19.1 as compared to the national average of 18.3. About half of Cass City's students take the test, Cleland said.

NEW POLICIES

The board established a policy for honoring personnel for service at the school. There will be a luncheon for all employees leaving the system. Up to five years of service results in verbal recognition.

Five years or more earns a gift with a cash value of $25. Each year over five earns $5 more. Persons eligible to draw retirement benefits will receive a lifetime school activities pass.

The board also voted a change in the use of the buildings. Flat fees ranging from $3.00 to $10.00 will be charged for the use of facilities. Instead of a flat charge for labor that the board changes when labor rates change the new system is to charge time and a half of the salary of the employee for extra hours worked.

SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the board will be held Tuesday starting at 8 p.m. to go over details of a letter from DeLores Garety about conditions of the school.

The report was submitted as the final work of the citizens' advisory committee, but the work was completed by Mrs. Garety as interest in the committee waned.

The board called the special meeting to go over the points in detail and advise Mrs. Garety of its findings.

The board also heard an update from the principals of Campbell Elementary, Intermediate and High School on the progress of its curriculum study.

A letter was written to the school by supervisor John Ecken saying that there was no "hostile relationship" between the Department of Social Services and the school as alleged by Mrs. Garety in her report to the board.

TWO INJURED — Rescue workers move Donald Horne from his car, at right, to the ambulance. Cass City Ambulance Service personnel, Cass City police, Elkland Township firemen, Caro state police and sheriff's deputies were at the scene. Also injured was Ed Karr.

Early snow storm causes numerous area crashes

The premature snow which fell Friday resulted in icy roads which were a contributing factor to numerous accidents that day and Saturday.

The most serious took place at 8:40 Saturday morning a short distance west of the west Cass City village limits.

Injured were the two drivers involved, Donald D. Horne, 24, of 4118 S. Seeger Street, who was reported in serious condition Tuesday afternoon at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw, and Edwin S. Karr, 56, of 5488 Cass City Road, who was in fair condition at Saginaw General Hospital. Both were transferred from Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies reported Horne was westbound on M-81 when he lost control on the icy pavement and started to spin. Karr, who was eastbound, steered toward the south side ditch in an attempt to avoid the spinning car but was unsuccessful. A witness observed the crash.

Deputies have asked the prosecutor's office to issue a warrant charging Horne with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.

Martha S. Batts, 24, of 3375 Cass City Road, was treated and released from Hills and Dales after an 11:15 a.m. accident Friday.

Deputies reported she was eastbound on Cass City Road, east of Green Road, when she lost control of her car, which went off the north side of the road and struck a ditch bank.

At 10:40 Friday morning, according to deputies, Teresa G. Sanchez, 39, of Caro, lost control of her car as she was driving north-east on M-81, north of Dutcher Road.

She slowed and tried to steer onto the right shoulder, but the car behind her couldn't stop and ran into her vehicle. Driver of the other car was Edward L. Souden, 68, of 6736 Third Street, Cass City.

The Sanchez auto stayed on the road but the Souden car went into a 10-foot deep ditch.

Deputies reported that Sandra Lee Piaskowski, 18, of 4260 S. Seeger Street, was driving on M-81, east of Hurds Corner Road, at 5:15 p.m. Friday when she lost control of her car, which went off the north side of the road and struck a sign.

Two Tuscola County Road Commission plows Saturday struck cars that were abandoned on the roads after they became stuck in the snow.

The first mishap took place at 2:06 a.m. when Gary A. Swallow, 33, of 3444 Lamton Road, Decker, was plowing Bay City-Forestville Road, east of Green Road.

He tried to go around the car of Freida Kelly of Hobart Road, Gagetown, that was in the westbound lane, partly over the centerline, but the blade caught the side of her car.

She told officers she hadn't been able to get a wrecker yet to pull it out.

Teacher contract near?

Was unwritten agreement reached Friday on a tentative contract settlement with Cass City teachers?

Supt. Donald Crouse says there was. Donald Schelke, president of the Cass City Education Association, says there wasn't. Crouse met with Schelke and the three Cass City teachers who are on the Tri-County Bargaining Association negotiating team from 8:30 a.m. until past 3 p.m., with an hour off for lunch.

Crouse said Monday, "My understanding is we have a tentative agreement, that 'in concept,' agreement had been reached on a new pact. He wouldn't reveal any details.

The next step, he said, was to arrange another session with those who were at the Friday meeting, plus Al Luce, the school board's professional negotiator, and Fred Gerhardt, a Kingston teacher, who is the TCBA chief negotiator. The TCBA is representing the Cass City teachers in the talks.

The purpose of the next meeting, Crouse explained, would be to write the formal contract language. Once that was done, the contract would have to be approved by the TCBA board and then be presented to the teachers for their approval.

Schelke, who told the Chronicle Monday that the possible tentative agreement was for three years, said Tuesday, "There is nothing in writing, so there is no tentative agreement."

He added, "There's no agreement. It was all informal talk."

The school board went into executive session at the end of its meeting Monday evening to discuss negotiations.

That was also a topic of discussion when the CCEA held its monthly meeting after school Tuesday, Schelke said.

Gerhardt said Wednesday morning he will be contacting Luce to set up another negotiating session.

Owen-Gage board buys 8 computers, two buses

The Owendale-Gagetown Board of Education Monday evening took a further step into the computer age by approving purchase of eight Apple computers at a cost of $13,466.

It also authorized buying two 65-passenger school buses at a total cost of $51,964.

The 1984 model buses are being purchased through Osestoski Equipment of Pigeon from McFadden Corp. of Lansing. The standard transmission buses will have International chassis with Wayne bodies.

Owen-Gage presently has eight operating buses for six routes. The poorest running two buses will be kept for spare parts when the new buses arrive, which should be in 30-60 days, Supt. Ronald Erickson said.

The computer package will consist of eight Apple IIe computers at a cost of $1,436 per unit. At additional cost, three of the computers will have dual disk drives and two will have color display screens. Along with one printer and some accessories, the total package will cost $13,466. In addition, the school board will be buying about $3,000 worth of computer programs.

The package is being purchased from Computer Mart of Flint through the Regional Educational Media Center in Cass City, which gets a discount. Retail price for the computers is about $1,800 each.

The school board in early 1982 purchased six Commodore computers at a cost of $5,000, with the Band Boosters paying the entire amount. (School funds are paying for the new computers.)

Four of the Commodores are at the high school and two at the elementary school. The Apples will all be at the high school and the four Commodores there will go to the elementary building. That will mean most of the elementary students will have a computer in their classrooms full-time, instead of once every few weeks.

The tentative plan, said high school Principal Wayne Wright, who recommended the purchase, is that three of the computers will go in the business room, two in the library and one each in science, math and special education rooms. The two in the library will be on carts so they can be wheeled to any classes where they are needed.

The computers should arrive in December. "What it does," Supt. Ronald Erickson commented, "is give every student access to a computer every day if they want."

It was mentioned that Rev. Wayne Sparks, who taught a computer class for adults during the last school year, plans to teach one this school year using the Apples.

The board had set aside money in the 1983-84 budget for the purchase of the buses and computers.

Erickson was asked by the Chronicle after the meeting if any money was set aside for pay increases for teachers, since the board is negotiating a new contract.

"Not a dime," he responded. Asked what happens if the new contract includes a pay raise, he commented, "We're going to have to find some (money)."

The next negotiating session with the Tri-County Bargaining Association, which represents the teachers, is scheduled Monday evening of next week.

The board spent a half-hour in executive session discussing negotiations.

UNSEASONABLY EARLY snow which fell Friday made driving hazardous. Most motorists, like the one above on Kingston Road near Wildot, reached their destinations safely, but many cars slid off the road. The Cass City Boosters Club and the Cass City Schools Advisory Committee are inactive.

That's because school affairs are chugging along smoothly right now. But that may end and the troops be called back to the battle lines.

Monday night, Supt. Don Crouse said that the school is in danger of running in the red this school year.

Could that be because of the terms of the tentative settlement with the teachers at the school?

You could tell that there are no pressing issues at the hool right now because of the absence of visitors at the board meeting.

Owen-Gage buys eight computers, two school buses

When it returned, it approved a resolution stating it will not be bound by or submit to any provision of the now expired teacher contract. Part of the resolution read, "It (the old contract) has not been extended nor will it be extended."

TEACHERS

At the October meeting, the board accepted the resignation of Cindy Smigill as the high school special education teacher. Monday, the board approved the hiring of Cathy Kropewnicki, formerly of Flushing and now living in Caro, as her replacement.

It also accepted the resignation of Sonja Zook as the elementary special education teacher. A replacement is being sought. Miss Smigill accepted a job with the Sanilac Intermediate School District. Miss Zook will be the special education teacher at Sandusky Middle School. Elementary teacher Kay Nguyen was granted maternity leave until March 24.

OTHER ITEMS

There was discussion about the board's long standing policy of having all possible school activities, such as dances and plays, in the Gagetown gym.

The junior class at the last minute scheduled a dance Friday, Nov. 4, but couldn't hold it then because the elementary school gym was already promised that night to a church group. It couldn't hold it the next night because the Band Boosters use the gym for bingo. Wright, in accordance with the policy, wouldn't let the dance be held either night at the high school in Owendale.

The board decided under extenuating circumstances, Wright will be able to allow certain activities at the high school that would otherwise be in Gagetown.

With some board members receiving complaints about the restrooms in Gagetown being dirty and some of the plumbing fixtures not always working -- there have been similar complaints before -- they approved a resolution directing Principal Bill Britt to be responsible for their condition.

A resolution was approved that the school district will pay airfare, hotel and meals for board members who go to the National Association of School Boards' convention March 31-April 3 in Houston, Texas, or the American Association of School Administrators' convention in Las Vegas, Nev., in February.

Six trees have been planted at the high school and one at the elementary school, paid for by retired kindergarten teacher Eva Rochefort and donations in memory of the late Zora Ellis.

General Motors has donated a new V-8 truck engine for use by shop classes.

Owendale sewer bids opened

Bids were opened by the Owendale Village Council last Wednesday evening for construction of the sanitary sewer project.

Seventeen firms submitted bids, according to village President Walt Howard Jr., with only one submitting bids for both parts of the project. The rest submitted bids for either construction of the two treatment lagoons or installation of the sewer mains.

Edmands Engineering of Bay City must now review the bids and make sure the two firms ultimately awarded the construction contracts are capable of doing the job properly.

It appears, Howard said, that the cost of the project will be slightly more than the estimate of $1.6 million.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has indicated it will increase its grant to the village, he said, so that its share will remain 75 percent.

The Farmers Home Administration will either grant or loan Owendale more money to cover the 5 percent share it was supposed to receive from the state but won't because of its inability to sell bonds so it can help finance such projects.

The FHA closing is scheduled before Jan. 1, so construction bids will have to be awarded before then, according to Howard.

Owendale is getting a grant and a loan from the FHA to cover the local share of the project cost.

Bids were opened in Gagetown Tuesday of last week for its sewer project.

The Chronicle reported last week that Edmands Engineering would have its recommendations which firms should receive the construction contracts ready for the council's approval in 1-1/2 weeks.

Village President Bill Downing said Tuesday of this week that turns out to be the time needed for the engineering firm to review the bids.

It now must determine whether the five lowest bidders for each part of the project can reliably do the jobs and then make the recommendations to the council, which won't be for at least a month.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Living royally

By Jim Fitzgerald

How do you frost individual grapes with sugar? I'm asking you because I can't ask my wife. The frosted grapes will be given to her, and I want them to be a surprise.

Linda Evans, in Playgirl magazine, said about her former husband, John Derek: "John is an honorable man. He cares about beauty more than anyone I have ever known. It was the most wonderful life I can imagine any woman having. He would spend months handcrafting a vest or boots for me. Then he would wait for me to come home and have champagne and grapes, individually frosted with sugar, next to a fur bed he had laid by the fireplace. He would have made a great knight at the Round Table."

I assume you know that Linda Evans is an actress who stars in a TV show called "Dynasty." I watch it once in a while. Usually I never watch serial-type shows because there's no way I can see every episode, so I never know what's going on. It's the same as arriving in the middle of a movie, or joining a bowling league.

To make sure I'm never late for a movie, I start driving to the theater two hours before production of the movie begins in Hollywood. My wife claims to have knitted enough sweaters to warm the entire population of New Jersey while sitting in parking lots outside theaters that haven't been built yet.

Years ago I joined a bowling league because my father once bowled 300 and I wanted to show off my inheritance. The league convened two nights a month and I managed to show up once in six months. That was the night it was first revealed that my parents found me on their front porch.

My problem was that every time bowling night came around, I had to do something more important, such as check my muskrat traps for fur to be used in the handcrafting of my wife's bedding. It isn't generally known, because I usually hide my romantic nature under a round table, but I was the first person to percale a dead muskrat.

I have the same sort of trouble trying to see every episode of a TV soap opera. These days, whenever "Dallas" night comes around, I have something more important to do, such as interview a truck driver. During a recent talk-show appearance in Australia, Britain's Princess Anne said she'd really rather be a truck driver, so she could run her own life without constant media attention.

So I've assigned myself the impossible task of finding a female truck driver willing to exchange her plush seat on the road for the terrible discomfort of living royally off the taxpayers while having to be fairly civil to those horrid snoops from the newspapers.

I've discovered, however, it is possible to enjoy an occasional "Dynasty" without knowing what's going on. That's because all the characters, even those who've never met each other, live in the same house. If I'm watching the week that John Forsythe discovers he can't get in the bathroom because it's occupied by the son he never knew he had -- the son who would have been his daughter-in-law if it weren't for plastic surgery, the civil rights movement, a fallen horse, and a casting change -- well, if I'm watching that week, I don't really care what happened last week.

So that's how come I know who Linda Evans is. As for John Derek, I suspect he's the guy I used to see hanging around my muskrat traps. But when someone asks "Wouldn't that frost your grapes?" I can't give an informed answer because I have no idea how grapes are frosted.

I hope it isn't necessary to use the refrigerator. There won't be room for a grape in our refrigerator until after I eat the meat loaf left over from the party my wife gave to celebrate the discovery of penicillin in someone else's refrigerator.

I realized I was romantically inadequate when, the last time my wife came home and I greeted her with champagne and a percaled muskrat bed laid by the fire, she said something seemed to be missing. She must have been disturbed because there were no frosted grapes. It was either that or because there was no fireplace.

CASS CITY

PH. 872-3577

It's as easy as ABC to know that the American Broadcasting Company would take a lot of heat when the content of its movie about the atomic bomb was leaked to interested persons.

Right away it became the target of Jerry Falwell, the leader of the "moral majority," who threatens another boycott of sponsors who would sponsor a film that shows what a holocaust atomic warfare would be.

If nothing else that would make me in favor of it. In the past, investigation has shown that anything that Falwell favors I'm against.

High on the list is the assumption that by increasing our arsenal of bombs we decrease the chances of a nuclear holocaust.

Even higher is the assumption by President Reagan that it is possible to wage a limited nuclear war.

I don't plan to watch the ABC movie next Sunday night. I'm already convinced that there would be no surviving if the bombs are used by the super powers.

The real concern is that the arms race continues and Russia and the United States pile death dealing armament upon death dealing armament.

If history repeats, and concerning arms, it always has, increased arming by nations eventually leads to war.

But back to the movie.

ABC executives have pledged to run the show regardless of the pressure and even if no sponsor is willing to buy time.

In the past, Falwell's pressure has resulted in cancellation of advertising by timid corporations. But that was before the last election when the clout of the "moral majority" proved to be illusory.

The backing of candidates by Falwell and company had little if any effect on their election. Proving again that the real majority in this country are the thinking citizens who vote the way they think, not the way they are told.

It's not likely that the movie will have all that much effect anyway. The best that it could do for anti-nuke forces is to force the undecided to take a closer look at what the issue is all about.

The way that the citizens in Germany and other European countries are doing.

When you are on the firing line the issue assumes the importance that it deserves. Really, we're all on the firing line with today's technology, but it's easier to forget about it when it's across the sea. Throwing money down the drain for new weapons to make us "safe" from Russia might make a few believers feel better, but the only real answer is to stop the arms race now before it's too late.

Snover couple visit missionary family

Bolivia taxi ride costs just 10¢

Bolivia was a nice country for Ruth and Archie Dorman to visit.

Paul and Kaylene Schember and their four children live there.

Rev. Schember is Mrs. Dorman's son by her first marriage and has been a missionary for World Gospel Missions (WGM) in the South American country for two years.

Mrs. Dorman and her husband, Archie, of Main Street, Snover, spent more than a month there this past summer visiting her son and family, who live in Ascension.

Mrs. Dorman described it as "a village of perhaps 2,000 buildings, mostly mud huts, houses with thatched roofs and dirt floors. Some of the better homes are of mud bricks or cement with tin or tile roofs and cement floors."

Home for the Schember family "is a long, white cement building with three bedrooms and living room opening onto a long, screened porch... Their kitchen stove, refrigerator and hot water all run on bottled gas. A generator provides electricity, which pumps water up to barrels on a tower, so they have running water in the kitchen, bathroom and for washing clothes, as well as (electricity), for lighting."

The Schembers' children are Debbie, 11, Beckie, 8, Paul David, 5, and Phillip, 2½. The oldest two children attend a school in Santa Cruz, 185 miles away, for missionary children. Mrs.

Schember teaches Paul David at home.

Rev. Schember, who is ordained in the Missionary Church (WGM) is interdenominational) oversees seven established churches in small villages in the Ascension area which have Bolivian pastors, plus he ministers in several other villages where he is helping establish churches, which have no church buildings or pastors of their own yet.

Mrs. Schember helps her husband in various ways, including teaching women's classes, summer vacation Bible schools for children and children's programs.

The Schembers will probably return to the United States next summer for a year, raise money to finance their work, then return to Bolivia.

FLYING THE 185 miles from Santa Cruz, the nearest large city, to Ascension, Mrs. Dorman noted they flew over "a few cities, many villages, sugar cane fields, farms, oil fields, refineries and the sugar and furniture factories. Beyond the winding, sandy Grand River, we flew over the lush, green jungle."

She describes Bolivia as "very primitive."

The highway running past the Schembers' house to Santa Cruz, is dirt. Sidewalks are either built-up dirt, mud bricks or boards.

Ascension has hardware stores, clothing, grocery stores, etc. Groceries sell rice, flour, peanuts, macaroni, etc., by the pound out of the bags. Customers bring their own containers for lard, peanut butter, etc. "Some food is canned or boxed, but it costs three times what we pay here and doesn't sell quickly," according to Mrs. Dorman.

Each family has a large wood pot in which they pound the grain. They then pour grain from pan to pan so that the wind blows away the chaff. Chickens eat the grain that falls on the ground.

Baking is done in outside ovens made of dried mud. A hot fire is built inside then pulled out. Baking is done while it's still hot inside.

THE SEASONS BEING the opposite of here, the Dorman were in Bolivia during the coldest part of the year. Schember and Dorman hunted for wood for the fireplace plus wood was bought from one family.

"During the day, people kept returning from the country with their loads of produce — grains, rice, sugar cane, plantos (bananas to fry), pineapple, peanuts, yucas (a large root they cook in place of potatoes or rice) — on their heads or in baskets on their backs. Even the donkeys and oxen with carts would be loaded." Often they would call in at the window, hoping we would need what they had for sale."

As a mother, Mrs. Dorman was happy to learn that the WGM headquarters in Santa Cruz makes radio contact each morning with each of its missionaries scattered throughout Bolivia.

DURING THE DORMANS' stay, her son became ill with hepatitis, so they all flew to Santa Cruz, where he was hospitalized. He recovered, but later suffered a bad reaction from mosquito bites.

When Schember was in the hospital, the family stayed in the WGM guest house in Santa Cruz.

Almost half the vehicles in the city have stickers on the window designating them as taxis. Mrs. Dorman and her husband, who had a compass, would walk around the city, then hail a taxi back to the guest house. "We would ride for miles for 50 pesos, which is about 10 cents," Mrs. Dorman said.

"We went to their flea markets, where produce and items for sale lined the crowded streets," she continued. "I was fascinated by mothers carrying their babies or small children on their backs while working. We visited a modern mall. In the town square, a boy motioned for Archie to get his shoes shined for 50 pesos. He did a lovely job."

A nice experience for the Dorman was when they attended a Sunday Gideon service in Santa Cruz, since Archie is a Gideon.

He was introduced to the 300 or more persons present and when he started to greet the audience in English, Rev. Paul Steward, a WGM missionary who was sitting with the Dorman, went up to the platform and translated for him. "What a unique experience," Mrs. Dorman said. "We appreciated the warmth of the Bolivian Gideons."

WHEN THE SNOVER-ites arrived in Bolivia, the exchange rate, which fluctuates daily was 375 pesos for $1. When they left, it was 480 pesos for $1.

One day when they were at the WGM headquarters Dorman mentioned he was going to exchange some travelers checks for some "besos" from the bookkeeper, Marian Gregory, who is a retired woman from the U.S.

Debbie Schember laughed and told her mother to ask him what he was going to do, Mrs. Dorman recalled. He repeated, "I'm going over to get some besos from Marian."

There was more laughter, then Debbie explained, "You mean pesos, which is money. Besos is kisses."

After that, everyone laughed. "Perhaps we often misspoke the words, but we tried," Mrs. Dorman said. "We enjoyed it so much we'd like to return," she added.

RUTH AND ARCHIE DORMAN hold a small blanket or wall hanging made from llama wool. The hats were custom made for them in Bolivia for about $2 each. The wool shawl Mrs. Dorman is wearing is also from Bolivia.

A TYPICAL HOUSE in Bolivia has dried mud walls and a thatched roof. In front is a sugar cane press, powered by an ox, attached to the long wood pole, which walks in a circle. The cane is fed through the rollers, which squeeze out the juice.

Aphids are most prolific

Among the most prolific creatures on Earth is the aphid — an insect responsible for a third of all viral disease transmitted to plants, says National Wildlife magazine.

A French biologist once calculated, if all the young survived, the number of descendants resulting from a single aphid over the course of one summer would total nearly six billion.

Fortunately, millions of aphids are eaten by predators before they ever hatch.

Pedaling Around

Winners and losers

By Mike Eliasohn

The Detroit Free Press recently published three articles detailing what the high cost of workers' and unemployment compensation is doing to employment in Michigan.

The articles contrasted Michigan to Indiana, where benefits paid to workers injured on the job are low and for that and other reasons, what employers pay for workers' compensation is low. The same applies to unemployment compensation, where benefits and costs are much lower than in Michigan.

Michigan firms have supplied about 30 percent of the 155 new business commitments Indiana has attracted in the past 2½ years. Each commitment is expected to create 151 jobs, which means Michigan has lost 7,021 prospective jobs.

For instance, a company in Tekonsha, which is near the Indiana state line, moved its filter manufacturing facility south of the border, taking five of its six employees along. It since has added 15 employees and plans to hire 35 more by the end of the year. Its workers' compensation premiums in Indiana are one-tenth of what they would be in Michigan.

Sandusky -- and all of the upper Thumb -- was a big loser recently because of the high costs of doing business in Michigan.

Lectron Products, which has its headquarters in Rochester, was very interested in building its new $3 million auto parts plant in Sandusky or Harrison. It instead chose a site outside of Hamilton, Ind., which will employ 100-125 workers initially and an expected 500 within three years.

By building the plant in the Hoosier state, Lectron expects to save $465,000 annually, which works out to 25 cents savings per part -- $209,250 in unemployment compensation, $186,000 in health benefits, $13,950 for utilities, $27,900 in state and local taxes, and $27,900 for workers' compensation.

Although reforms have been made, which should eventually result in unemployment costs and benefits getting closer to those of other states, payments still are high. In June, the average compensation paid to an unemployed worker in Michigan was $152 a week, compared to a national average of $120. In Illinois, it was $153; Ohio, $143, and Indiana, $93.

The average unemployment tax rate paid by Indiana businesses is 2.7 percent levied against the first $7,000 of a worker's wages; in Illinois, 3.9 percent; Ohio, 3.6 percent, and in Michigan, 4.96 percent on the first $8,000 in wages.

Workers' compensation payments and costs are also interesting. A disabled worker receives weekly benefits of $456 in Illinois, $324 in Michigan, $320 in Ohio and $156 in Indiana.

An employee in Michigan who loses an arm on the job will receive a lump sum payment of $88,770. In Indiana, the payment is only $18,750. Loss of a thumb in Michigan will pay $21,450, in Indiana, $4,500.

Yet, for five common industrial job classifications, as an example, the average cost of workers' compensation premium per $100 of payroll is $11.01 in Michigan; $6.88 in Illinois, $4.39 in Ohio and $1.44 in Indiana.

In other words, Michigan employers are paying more, but permanently disabled workers, and also dependents of those killed at work, receive less.

Why? The Free Press cites four reasons:

--Cumulative injuries and occupational diseases are far easier to prove in Michigan in order to receive compensation. An example of a cumulative injury was the worker who was suspended for insubordination and retaliated by murdering two foremen and a co-worker. He received compensation for 16 months on the grounds plant conditions caused his mental breakdown.

--Attorneys are commonly involved in what is supposed to be a no-fault system. Because the insurance companies suspect claims filed by lawyers in behalf of clients, they contest 90 percent of them. In other states, insurers contest only half of such claims.

--Unemployment compensation is used as a means of supplementing workers' retirement or unemployment benefits, with such persons claiming they were injured while working. "Eleven percent of all claims in Michigan are filed after workers quit, lose their jobs or retire, a practice almost unknown elsewhere," according to the Free Press.

Insurance rates are being reduced, but there isn't as much effort being made to reduce benefits, particularly to those who don't really deserve them.

Some pet tortoisés are said to have excellent vision and strong loyalties, says International Wildlife magazine. Tortoisés can recognize their owners from a distance, while ignoring strangers.

IT WAS COLD enough Friday for the snow to fall, but it presumably will be some time before streams and rivers freeze over. This was White Creek, just south of the St. Michael's Catholic Church Cemetery at Wilnot.

Snowplows hit abandoned cars

Early snow storm causes numerous area crashes

thur Fisher, 46, of 7224 Daus Road, Cass City, was plowing eastbound on Cass City Road, west of Green, when his truck slid into the abandoned car of David Smerdon of Jacob Road, Cass City, which was in the westbound lane.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Cass City police reported that at 8 a.m. Monday, Isabel Wright, 54, of 7351 Greenland Road, was turning left from northbound Seeger onto Church and her car struck an auto that had been eastbound and had stopped at the intersection.

Driver of the other car was David C. Martin, 21, of 5615 E. Cass City Road. The accident report said he had stopped but was unclear as to whether he had started

EARTHQUAKE?

Chances are 50-50 that California will suffer a major earthquake within the next 10 years, reports National Wildlife magazine.

To learn how to better predict an impending quake, U.S. scientists are monitoring the behavior of caged rats, mice and cockroaches prior to some of the nearly 500,000 detectable earthquakes experienced around the globe each year.

moving when the collision took place.

Martin told police Mrs. Wright turned the corner too sharp. Mrs. Wright said the windows of Martin's car were frosted over and he couldn't see oncoming traffic.

Village police reported that at 3:15 that day, Thelma L. Romain of Caro was backing out of a parking place in the General Cable lot. As she was doing so, the car parked next to hers started to back up and the vehicles collided. The other driver involved was Reatha Hughes of 4300 West Street.

At 3:55 p.m. Saturday, according to village officers, David P. Westfall, 30, of 6234 Houghton Street, northbound on Oak Street, turned left into the alley behind Bigelow's Hardware and his car struck an auto parked along the north side of the alley. Owner of the parked car was Elmer Parrish Jr. of Gagetown.

Village police while patrolling on Sherman Street, south of Main, at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 8, noticed that a hit and run vehicle had struck the left rear of a car parked by the west curb. Its owner was Wendy Hockey of 6721 Garfield Street, who had parked it there at 11 a.m.

Also on the 8th, sheriff's deputies reported the car of Margaret Schwartz of Cass City was damaged while parked at the Club 24 on M-24, south of Caro, between 7 and 11:17 p.m. The right side of the bumper of the vehicle parked next to hers, when backing out, hooked into the left rear wheel opening of her car, tearing the metal. The driver of the vehicle, possibly a pickup truck, left without notifying anyone.

Deputies reported that at 9:30 p.m. Nov. 6, John N. Leiterman, 58, of Mikado, was northbound on Colling Road when he was passed by another vehicle which hit the right front corner of his car, then turned left onto Ackerman Road without stopping.

Al Zimmerman, 20, of Mill Street, Gagetown, reported to Caro state police last Thursday morning that Stephen L. Parks, 19, no address listed, pulled into his (Zimmerman's) driveway and hit his car.

CAR-DEER

At 5 a.m. last Wednesday, deputies said, Grady W. Newberry, 65, of Waterford, was westbound on Bay City-Forestville Road, west of Cemetery Road, when his car hit a deer.

A short while later, Edwin Browning, 37, of 2500 S. Phillips Road, Kingston, notified the sheriff's department his car struck a deer while he was eastbound on Stevens Road, east of Clothier Road.

At 11 p.m. that day, according to Caro state police, Sandra C. Favazza, 32, of 6159 Wilcox Road, Deford, was westbound on Wilcox, east of Kingston Road, when her auto collided with a deer.

Paul A. Phillips, 62, of 6427 Snover Road, Decker, was eastbound on Stevens, east of Ryan Road, at 1:45 p.m. Saturday when his car struck a deer, according to deputies.

UPDATE

Two 10-year-old girls who were injured Halloween night, Oct. 31, in Cass City when they walked into the path of a car were still hospitalized Tuesday.

Joy McNaughton of 4875 N. Seeger Street was reported in fair condition at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw. Dana Johnson of 4144 Cemetery Road was in fair condition at Hills and Dales.

Elkland Twp. board okays paying bills

The Elkland Township Board went over the bills Monday evening and paid them, according to Clerk Norma Wallace, but didn't do anything else of consequence.

United Way tops $13,000

More than $13,000 has been raised so far for the Elkland-Novesta United Way, whose annual fund drive ends Friday.

The goal is $15,000. The latest total, UW President Art Holmberg said, includes more than $3,000 contributed by employees and staff at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Still to come are the contributions from employees at General Cable which like the hospital has employee withholding of UW contributions, and some smaller contributions, plus some volunteers have yet to turn their collections in.

Truck fire damage $2,000

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to a four-wheel-drive pickup truck that burned Sunday morning.

Elkland Township firemen were called to Provincial House at 7:45 to extinguish the fire.

An employee there, Marie Horne of 1600 Van Dyke Road, Decker, was preparing to leave, according to Cass City police officer Donald Miller. When she started the truck, it backfired and started burning.

Firemen said there was damage in the engine compartment, the cab, and underneath, plus the windshield was broken but the truck was considered repairable.

Survey reveals divided opinion

Should girls play basketball with boys?

By Mike Eliasohn

The girls' high school basketball season is coming to the end, with the final regular season games having been played this week and the district tournaments getting underway.

If some persons have their way, the volleyball season will have ended about now and girl athletes would be starting basketball practice.

Advocates of the change feel girl round ballers are ignored when they play in the fall because too much attention is paid by the public and media to football.

Would a change be beneficial? Opinion varies among those who are or have been involved with the sport at Cass City High School and Owendale-Gagetown.

Michigan is one of only five states where high school girls play basketball in the fall. It has been that way since 1973, when the first state tournament was held. The Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) polled its members on when they wanted the tournament to be held. November was by far the top choice.

There have been surveys since then, said Cass City High School Principal Russell Richards, a member of the MHSAA Representative Council, its governing body, and the results have always been the same — keep basketball in the fall.

He favors the fall season because of facilities usage, which will be discussed in this article.

A CHANGE MAY come because of a complaint filed with the U.S. Office of Civil Rights (OCR) and the Michigan Department of Civil Rights by the Michigan Project on Equal Education Rights and a group of parents, students and school board members against the MHSAA and five school districts.

There are several issues in the complaint, including sports seasons, election of members to the MHSAA Representative Council (of the 20 members, only three are female and they are all appointed), membership on MHSAA committees, input to the association from its member schools and the grievance procedure.

The OCR was ready to issue its findings last August, one of which was that it would order the volleyball and basketball seasons to be switched, starting this fall.

The MHSAA, arguing among other things that there wasn't enough time to implement the change, challenged the OCR in federal district court, the issue being whether the OCR has jurisdiction over the association since it doesn't receive federal funds.

An injunction was obtained, which kept the present schedule of girls' sports seasons, but hearing formal arguments in the case apparently has yet to be held.

JUDY CAMPBELL, WHO coached girls' basketball at

Owen-Gage from 1975-82, during which they won three league titles, feels it should stay there. "I always liked basketball better in the fall."

One reason was, "You can have the gym as long as you want." That isn't the case in winter at Owen-Gage, when the volleyball team (which she still coaches) and boys' junior varsity and varsity basketball teams share, taking turns when each practices, "which gets to be a hassle after a while."

"It is kind of discriminatory to have girls' basketball out of season, but it has its advantages, too," said the present basketball coach at Owen-Gage, Brenda Parker.

She mentioned the advantage of gym time in the fall and citing some examples from the Traverse City area, where she is from, said some girls' teams do draw large crowds in the fall.

LLOYD SCHINNERER, in his seventh year of coaching at Cass City, during which his teams have won two league titles, doesn't feel the hassle over gym time would be any worse with the girls playing in winter. The Cass City High School gym now must be shared by the freshmen, junior varsity and varsity basketball teams, plus volleyball.

He likes the idea of the girls playing basketball in winter, with the girls' varsity game first, then the boys. "I think it definitely would help our program as far as attendance is concerned... We just don't draw many people with girls' basketball."

This season, there are only eight players on the junior varsity and on the varsity team, which works out to only about four per grade. More exposure might get more girls interested in playing, Schinnerer feels.

"Overall for our program, it (playing in winter) would have some positive effects," he concluded.

THE VETERAN COACH feels the obstacle of sharing locker rooms is surmountable.

On some Thursday nights now, the opposing girls' teams have to share the same locker room at home, when the junior varsity football team is also playing in Cass City.

When that happens, Schinnerer takes his team members to a classroom to talk to them at halftime.

Schinnerer serves as an example of the advantage of a split season. He coaches the girls in the fall and is boys' junior varsity coach in winter.

Miss Campbell doesn't feel girls' teams would attract bigger crowds if they were the preliminary to the boys' games. "If it was the same night, people would treat it like a (boys) JV game and come later. I don't think it would make any difference in the crowd."

Having once guided her team, in 1978, all the way to the state Class D semi-finals, she likes the idea of the girls' basketball tournaments being played in late November and early December. "We're the center of attention then."

If the girls played in the winter, their tournaments would be second fiddle to "March madness" for the boys.

FALL BASKETBALL IS an aid to college coaches, since they can do their scouting and recruiting of high school girls then, before they get too involved with their own teams.

Mary Lenhard, who graduated from Owen-Gage in 1978, played one year of basketball on a scholarship at Saginaw Valley State College and three at Grand Valley State College, and then was assistant coach there for a year. Fall was "when we did all our recruiting," she said. If the season high school girls play is winter, she feels, "The recruiting would go down quite a bit."

Schinnerer pointed out, however, that men's college coaches manage to do their scouting of high school players in winter.

TWICE ALL-CONFERENCE player Padgett Randall, who graduated from Cass City in 1981, likes playing the same time as the men, now that she can compare.

She played her first year of college ball on a scholarship at Jackson College, after which the program was ended.

She played her sophomore year at Fort Hays State University in Hays, Kansas, but didn't care for the program there, so has transferred to Saginaw Valley, where she won't be eligible to play until the second semester.

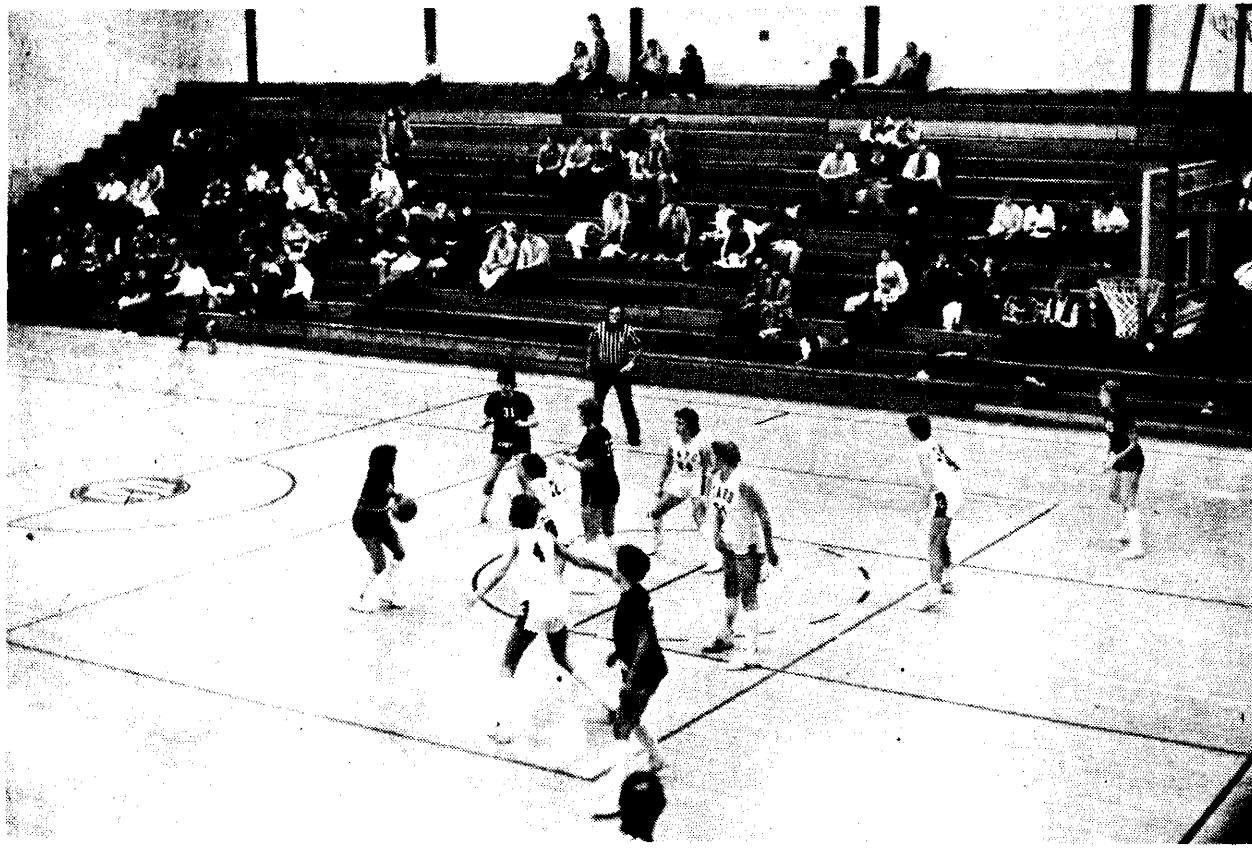

At Fort Hays, although the women's team had a losing season, the men's team was top rated, and drew crowds of 8,000-9,000 -- a full house -- to its games. By halftime of the women's game, the fieldhouse was packed and "it was pretty exciting," Miss Randall said.

Other advantages of playing the same nights as the men, she feels, include better media coverage and exposure to persons who otherwise wouldn't see a women's game. "A lot of people don't even know what women play like."

If high school girls played the same nights as the boys, she feels, "I think there would be more of a crowd than there would be just for the girls' games."

Miss Lenhard, however, feels the opposite. "Come wintertime, it's basketball time for the guys."

Fall is the girls' season. "To get mixed up in the same season as the guys, I think they wouldn't get more recognition."

BIGGER CROWDS? -- Attendance at most girls' basketball games is meager, as shown by the turnout at the Nov. 3 Caro at Cass City game. Crowds were a little better when the Red Hawks had championship seasons, according to coach Lloyd Schinnerer, but he feels a bigger boost would be to have the girls' varsity play before the boys' varsity games (Junior varsity boys and girls would play on another night.)

North Branch tops Hawks for title

North Branch showed why it is the champion of the Thumb B Association this season Saturday night as the Broncos clinched the title with an easy decision over Cass City, 44-20.

It was a contest for only the first eight minutes. The Hawks led 8-7, but the offense died in the second period and North Branch outscored Cass City, 10-1 to take control of the game.

The only offense that Cass City could muster was Jill Hutchinson. She scored 23 of Cass City's 29 points and was the leading rebounder with nine. The Hawks were able to hit just 25 percent of their shots. North Branch was only slightly better with 27 percent.

The host Broncos had two players in double figures, Roxanne Repic, 13 points, and M. Nellenbach, 11.

North Branch JV squad won, 36-21.

Nov. 8, 52-48. Coach Lloyd Schinnerer points to 28 turnovers as the reason for the loss.

Even with the sloppy ball handling, the Hawks were in the game all the way. After a virtually even first half when the Hatchets moved in front by two points, Bad Axe staged a rally to move ahead by 12 points.

Cass City charged back in the last period and trailed by four with 25 seconds. With 18 seconds left the margin was cut to a single bucket but Bad Axe then scored a pair to ice the game.

Cass City showed more scoring balance than it has in recent games. Hutchinson scored 12. Cathy Britt also netted 12 and Kim Wagg netted 10 points.

Britt led the Cass City rebounders with nine. Wagg and Barb Craig, with 8 boards each, helped Cass City post a 39-30 edge in rebounding.

Bad Axe JV won, 38-20.

Blanchard opposed to waste storage

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

Gov. James Blanchard recently declared his opposition to Michigan becoming a site for one of the U.S. Department of Energy's high-level waste storage projects.

Michigan is one of 17 states formally under consideration for a "crystalline rock" waste site to be opened early in the next century. The DOE has also reported renewed interest in a salt bed in Michigan similar to others in four of the six states being studied for a site to be opened by 1998.

In a letter to DOE Secretary Donald Hodel, Blanchard asked for more information regarding those studies and raised questions about agency procedures, but firmly stated, "I believe it is unlikely that a high-level repository can be located in Michigan that will adequately protect our water resources and the safety of our citizens."

"Our proximity to the Great Lakes and high water table make underground storage of radioactive waste in Michigan risky, at best. Yet we will be unable to defend our rights without adequate knowledge of federal activities," the governor said.

Congress has authorized allowing governors to veto locating a waste project in their states, subject to Congressional override.

Nuclear power plants in Michigan generate the kind of waste that would be deposited in the facility, but David Dempsey, the governor's assistant for environmental matters, said the Great Lakes and underground water supplies give that state particular reasons to be exempt. "We don't want to cooperate. We want to exercise our rights."

Dempsey said the governor was disturbed about reports the DOE is again studying salt formations near Alpena but despite requests for an updated status of that study, no information has been provided. He said the site's location near Lake Huron make it a particular problem.

Regarding the Alpena study, Blanchard in his letter said: "I strongly oppose this course. In general, I am disturbed about the vagueness and lack of public information associated with the high-level siting process. But I am particularly disturbed that I have learned of your department's interest in the Salina Salt deposits only through informal comments and news accounts."

Granite formations in the Upper Peninsula are also under consideration and the governor noted a public hearing in Marquette drew over 400 persons.

The hearing held by a task force on high-level radioactive waste raised several questions about procedures used by the department and the criteria it will use in selecting a site. Among those questions is to what extent population density will be a factor in determining a site.

New books at the library

CARETAKERS by Tabitha King (fiction). For 40 years, Joe Nevers has been the caretaker of the Christopher family's summer estate in Maine. Even more, he has become the caretaker of Torie Christopher, protecting her from the consequences of her stormy life, a life she would now just as soon end. Then, suddenly, a strange accident at the lonely house plays a chilling trick, and their roles are reversed. She must now save him; and their relationship, carved through years, rugged as the coast of Maine itself, is tested to the limits by pain, hardship, a terrifying revelation from the past, and love.

THE AUERBACH WILL by Stephen Birmingham (fiction). At the center of this story is Essie Auerbach, nee Litsky, a young woman from the Lower East Side who, against her father's wishes, marries into one of New York's prominent German-Jewish families. Spunky Essie loves Jake and knows that together they can be successful. They are, beyond their wildest dreams, though success and the untold wealth it brings take their toll as they shape the lives of the Auerbachs and their five children. Decades later, the disposition of Jake's fortune becomes a bone of contention with his heirs. As money and power accrue, Jake and Essie grow apart, are divided by unspoken secrets concerning money, passion, children and family.

A CROWNING MERCY by Susannah Kells (fiction). In 17th Century England, four intricate gold seals represent New Testament figures: Matthew, Mark, Luke, John. Symbols of a secret covenant made years ago, the seals are the key to the release of a great fortune. One is held by the puritan father of lovely Dorcas Slythe; the second by a powerful London lawyer; the third by elderly Mordecai Lopez; the fourth by once-dashing Kit Aretine. The death of Dorcas Slythe's father in 1643 saves her from an unsavory arranged marriage, but catapults her into a terrifying and dangerous search for the truth about her inheritance, the mysterious seal of Matthew.

Tips for buying fire extinguishers

Knowing your ABC's is important when buying a portable fire extinguisher, cautions the Michigan State Police Fire Marshal Division.

The letters indicate the type of fire the extinguisher can put out. "A" is for use on ordinary combustibles such as wood, paper, and cloth; "B" is for flammable liquid fires, and "C" is used on electrical equipment. An all-purpose extinguisher carries an ABC designation.

Check for the label of an approved testing laboratory such as Underwriters Laboratory or Factory Mutual with the letter use marked.

The minimum type and size of extinguishers recommended for general residential use is coded 2A10BC. Look for this code before buying.

If you are in doubt, ask your local fire department or Fire Marshal Division for advice.

Scuffle sends man to hospital

A Cass City man was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital following a scuffle late Monday night.

The two men involved were brothers-in-law, according to Police Chief Gene Wilson, who said it will be up to one of them to file a complaint against the other with the prosecutor's office. He doesn't expect that will happen and therefore asked that their names not be used.

From what police learned, the two men had an argument and then the one who ultimately went to the hospital followed the other for several blocks on foot and threatened him with a knife.

The other man then struck his brother-in-law three times with his fists. The man who was hit called police from his home.

Village police were called to Old Wood Drug at 3:45 p.m. last Thursday after a 10-year-old girl was caught shoplifting. She at first told persons in the store and police a false name and address.

She had asked the clerk for a bag to carry her books in, then walked around the store and dropped two packages of corn nuts and a bag of candy in the sack. She was turned over to her mother.

Malicious damage to a truck in Gagetown was reported to the sheriff's department Monday morning, but further information was not available by Tuesday.

The U.S. House of Representatives recently passed a domestic content bill that will require cars sold in this country to be built with up to 90 percent American-made parts.

Backers of the legislation say chances of passage in the Senate are slim. Should the Senate ever pass the bill, it is expected President Reagan will veto it.

Acid rain

The term "acid rain" was first coined more than 100 years ago by a British chemist, Robert Angus Smith, says the National Wildlife Federation.

In 1852, Smith observed that as skies over Manchester became increasingly dirty, the rain became increasingly acidic.

It wasn't until the mid-1960s however, that acid rain became a focus of scientific study around the world.

The recent column on that abomination known as the electric automatic dishwasher brought immediate results:

1. Brad Newsom, who reads these columns before they get into print, and occasionally afterwards, as the editor's secretary, went out and bought a dishwasher for her home.

2. My wife was intrigued with my boast that I could do the dishes in four minutes and came out and held a stopwatch on me. This was a low trick, for the watch made me nervous, and I ran 20 seconds over.

Another sly stunt of hers was giving me the broiler to wash and also a couple of pots. Since these do not go into a dishwasher, it made the competition unfair.

Now there's one thing that these automatic contraptions will do, so you won't think my views are all negative: They often ruin good crystal glasses.

I know because we had some that turned milky after being in the dishwasher.

I tried everything under the sun to clean them — muriatic acid, Drano, alcohol and some special cleaners whose names I've forgotten. I called General Electric in New York and the consumer division said there was no way to make the glasses clear again.

When I mentioned this to Brad Newsom, to dull her delight a bit with her new purchase, she smiled.

"But now they have a special setting: 'crystal and glassware.' You set the button for this and it washes these things perfectly."

All well and good. So you run through a whole cycle with just glasses. Noise, nuisance and expense. Obviously you can't put anything else in when the button says "crystal and glassware." It would be too hot or too cold for plates.

Another reader (making a total of three) wanted to know my credentials as a dishwasher.

"What makes you an expert?" she asked, as she wrinkled her nose.

"Madam," I said, "my reputation as The Fastest Dishwasher in the East was earned like Smith Barney's — I WORKED for it."

It was one of the two or three things I learned at Stanford. I was the official No. 1 dishwasher at L'Aiglon, a restaurant in Palo Alto. This little French eating place served 60 lunches and 60 dinners. There was soup, salad, entree, beverage and dessert, six or seven dishes per person, and four pieces of silverware.

Another fellow did the glasses and waited on table. The chef did the pots and pans.

So there were about 400 dishes and 240 pieces of silverware and I had an hour to do this and get to a one o'clock class. I usually made it, but it was close.

The chef, who also owned the place, was fussy, especially about the silverware. He hated water spots on the knives and often nailed me for that. Even then, I think my knives were less spotted than those from an automatic dishwasher.

Maybe once a week he approved of everything and gave me a few kind words, which I enjoyed, and a pinch on the fanny, which I ignored, and a silver dollar, which I didn't.

Now I'll bet ol' General Electric himself couldn't run 400 dishes through his fanciest dishwasher and get them out and stack them and go back to class in an hour. Oh, yes, the silverware — 240 pieces. I forgot that.

I recite all this so that none of you will be so foolhardy as to challenge me to compete with your dishwashing machine. I'm trying to spare you the humiliation of a defeat that will surely be publicized.

P.S.: My next crusade will be to do away with backyard barbecues. If you have any comments on these steak burners, drop me a line to help my case. No pros — just cons.

Provincial House combats scabies

For the third time in 1½ years, Provincial House and its employees and their families are going through a decontamination procedure to rid it and them of scabies.

The procedure will start Thursday and will take about 10 days to complete, according to Administrator Marti Hunter.

Scabies is caused by an itch mite, almost invisible to the naked eye, which burrows under the top layer of skin and deposits its eggs. It eventually causes intense itching, which can lead to secondary infections.

It is usually spread by close contact between persons, but can also be spread through clothing, towels, bed sheets or other articles that were used by an infected person.

The first step in the decontamination procedure will be for the 117 residents, and approximately 100 employees and all members of their families to be coated from head to toe with a lotion, which must stay on 24 hours before it can be washed off.

Everyone who definitely has scabies will have to repeat the process in seven days. Mrs. Hunter said about 5 percent of the patients have it and a higher percentage of employees. She isn't able yet to say exactly how many employees have scabies.

In addition to washing laundry, everything inside the building will be scrubbed or sprayed with a decontaminant.

In addition to the inconvenience, the procedure will "cost a lot of money," according to Mrs. Hunter, who declined to specify exactly how much.

THE LOCAL PROVINCIAL House first went through the decontamination procedure in June, 1982, and the second in September of that year.

The likely reason for its reintroduction, Mrs. Hunter explained, was contamination from a family member who wasn't treated previously. "It's really difficult to say exactly how this is transmitted."

The only way to break the chain of reinfection, she said, is for everyone to be treated at once, but there are no guarantees. "Once rid of it, we can't say we won't get it again."

Dr. Kalyani Misra, MD, MPH, medical director of the Tuscola County Health Department, who has been consulting with Provincial House on the matter, said the scabies can spread from employee to his or her child and then back to the employee, who was previously treated. She described it as being "like a Ping Pong phenomenon."

For that reason, she stressed, everyone in a family must be treated the same day. They must be treated even if they don't have any signs of scabies, since it can take a few weeks before the symptoms develop.

She stressed education is also important, citing as an example, itching will continue for a few days after the lotion is applied, so there shouldn't be concern that it didn't work.

"They're working very vigorously to control it," she said of personnel at Provincial House.

"VISITORS NEED NOT be worried," Dr. Misra added. There haven't been any cases of members of patients' families who visited them getting scabies.

Mrs. Hunter also said it is unlikely that visitors would ever contract scabies.

The mites thrive in warm creases of the skin and warm bedding or clothing. They won't live away from those conditions for more than 45 minutes, according to the administrator.

There is fear that the scabies could spread among school children, starting with Provincial House employees. So far that hasn't happened. "It's no big problem at school right now," said Cass City school nurse Janet Bryant.

There has only been one child found so far with scabies. Notes were sent home to all parents of children in the child's classroom at Campbell

Elementary notifying them and telling them what to watch for to determine whether their child has the infestation.

Neither Mrs. Bryant nor Principal Jacqueline Freiburger would say whether the infected child has a parent who works at Provincial House.

(More information about scabies, including what signs to look for, are contained in the "Health Tips" column elsewhere in this issue of the Chronicle.)

Board reviews test results

OTHER BUSINESS

The board accepted the low bid of Thumb National Bank of Pigeon and Cass City for loaning $300,000 in tax anticipation notes to the school. There were three bids. The total interest cost will be $6,532.50.

The board tabled a request for six new electric typewriters at a cost of $880 per machine. The purchase will be considered in the spring when the board decides capital expenditures for the next year. Mrs. Cheryl Kilbourn, instructor, said that vandalism of the keys of manual typewriters has occurred. That will not be possible with electric machines.

A special page will be used in the Chronicle at the end of the first semester to air concerns of the board and the school to the community.

Coach Ron Nurnberger was granted permission to hold basketball practices on Sundays, Dec. 4 and 11. The gym is in use the preceding Saturday and there are games on each of the following Tuesdays.

Coach Lloyd Schinnerer was granted permission to hold practice on Sunday preceding his Monday game in the district tournament.

The board voted to hold Thanksgiving vacation Thursday and Friday, Nov. 24 and 25.

The board appointed four members to the agricultural advisory committee to replace Dave Milligan, Dick Shaw, Bob Wischmeyer and Ron Cybulski, who have completed terms. The new four board members are Bob Biebel, Wayne Rabideau, Don Loomis and Richard Loeding.

Allan Luce, professional negotiator for the district, was hired for another year. His retainer is $5,000, up $200 from the previous year.

Students protest

Some students picketed in front of Kingston High School last Thursday to protest the possible layoff of a teacher because of budget cuts.

The teacher is Denise McFall, who teaches science and is a first-year probationary teacher.

Fred Gerhardt, president of the Kingston Education Association, said she has been told she may be laid off.

Kingston Supt. Jerry Laycock said the school board has not made a decision on budget cuts needed to balance the budget. "I'm not saying that would happen," he commented as to the possibility of Ms. McFall being laid off. "We'd love to keep her."

Tom Thumb Singers

Choir needs more members

Participants are needed for the Tom Thumb Singers, who will perform their second annual concert April 8 and 9 next year.

The 45-member group performed its first concert March 28 of this year before a capacity crowd in the Cass City High School cafeteria.

For next year's performances, director Andrea Hofmeister is hoping to recruit 60 singers.

As of Sunday, she had received only about a dozen applications. She isn't worried about last year's singers signing up again. "They had such a good time, they'll be back."

What she especially needs are male adult singers to balance the voices of the women and children, although anyone is invited to participate. Anyone eight years old and up can take part and prior singing experience isn't required.

They don't have to be from the Cass City area.

The deadline to sign up is Nov. 23, necessary so that Mrs. Hofmeister can order the music. Participants will have to pay $10 if they sang last year and $15 if they're new to cover the cost of music rental and a folder. They get to keep the latter, which will have their name printed on it.

Persons who would like to participate should send their name, address, phone number and vocal part, if known, plus check made out to the Cass City Schools, to Mrs. Hofmeister at 4481 Hobart Road, Gagetown 48735. If they have questions, they can call her at 665-2634.

Sheet music is the big expense for the Tom Thumb Singers. The music purchased each year is being kept as part of a permanent library which should eventually reduce the expense.

In addition to the singers having to pay a fee, contributions have been solicited, which are being handled by the Community Education Department of the Cass City Schools. More than $265 has been raised so far, Mrs. Hofmeister said.

Rehearsals tentatively start Jan. 2 and will take place each Monday evening from 7-9 in the high school band room until the concert, which will be on Sunday afternoon and Monday evening.

Planned by Mrs. Hofmeister are about a dozen songs, plus some musical skits.

Letters to the editor

Margaret Turner: many in MEA politicians first

Dear Sir,

My husband and I were in Veronica's Restaurant Saturday.

Being National Education Week, the placemats used had been furnished by the local chapter of the Michigan Education Association. They were attractive and designed to make the public aware of the importance to our country's future of good education programs for our children.

When my husband went up to pay the bill I was casually looking around and saw an open letter to patrons of the restaurant dated November, 1983, and written on a MEA letterhead. The letter was about a half page in length and in that half-page there were two misspelled words. The word "dining" was spelled "dinning" and "truly" was spelled "truely." I would think they were both about fifth grade spelling words.

I was reminded of a situation when I was a teacher in Flushing a few years ago. The teachers were negotiating for a new contract during the summer months. The president of our local MEA chapter thought he should keep the teachers informed concerning the progress of negotiations so he wrote a letter. It was full of misspelled words, misplaced modifiers and dangling participles. It looked like a letter an eighth grader who was failing English and spelling might write. But he was a dyed-in-the-wool MEA member.

My opinion then was that many of the most faithful MEA members are professional politicians first and professional teachers second. That letter I read today from the local MEA reinforced my original opinion.

I know there are good teachers in the Cass City schools. Some of them I know personally. But the efforts of the good teachers are lost to public opinion when their representatives are so irresponsible.

I consider myself a professional educator as well as a member of the "dinning" public to whom that letter was addressed.

I am "truely" amazed the MEA could consider picketing as they have been doing in view of the salary ranges of Cass City and the surrounding school districts that were published in the Chronicle a few weeks ago and especially in the light of the degree of professionalism exhibited by that letter.

Learns about law in prison

To the Editor,

"Man, glad he was sent to prison."

I know you people might think this is funny but I, Lionel D. Daly, am writing in regards to my "prison sentence."

I am glad I was sentenced to prison instead of being sent to jail for up to a year. I have learned a lot about the law here. In jail, I wouldn't have.

I have looked into a lot of laws about my case since I have been here and have found that things in my trial were done against the law. There were things pulled on me from the judicial system of the county of Tuscola. I don't think I have to say names. They know who they are and so do I, but if some day these people have a visitor come and investigate why they broke the law, I just want these people to know the laws were made for everyone, not just some people.

If the laws were broke against me to "impartial and prejudice" people against me in this county and others. How do you people of Tuscola County know it isn't being done on other cases, not just mine.

I would like to let you people of Tuscola County know if any of the judicial system of a county breaks a law against you, and you can prove it by law, there are places you can write or call to have an investigation done on the judicial system of the county that broke the law.

You can also turn in a lawyer if you can prove by law he isn't helping you the best he can. Here are some of the ones I have looked up. Maybe they will help.

Wrote by,
Mr. Lionel D. Daly

Editor's note: Daly listed the addresses for the attorney grievance committee, Michigan attorney general's office, Attorney General Frank Kelley and one of his deputies, a former state representative from Flint and the Michigan Supreme Court.

A jury found him guilty Jan. 12 of this year of two counts of criminal sexual contact (2nd degree). He was sentenced in March to 2-30 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson.

Daly used to live in the Kingston area.

Movie filmed in area debuts in Detroit

The film, "Going Back," most of which was filmed in the Cass City area, will make its debut Sunday evening at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The premier screening is a by-invitation-only event. The writer-producer-director-financier of the 83-minute film is Ron Teachworth of Rochester, who chose the Cass City locale because his parents, LaVerne and Helen Teachworth, live on Kelly Road, south of town.

Most of the filming took place in August, 1982, when the cast and crew spent nine days here. The crew and two of the four actors returned here for one day this past July to film an additional scene.

The rest of the film was shot in the Detroit area. "Going Back" tells the story of two boys (played by Bruce Campbell and Chris Howe) who decide to do some sightseeing before they begin college.

They befriend an old farmer (Perry Mallette), who picks them up while hitchhiking, and one of the boys has a summertime romance with a local girl (Susan Yamasaki).

Four years go by and when the boys near graduation from college, they decide to go back. They discover the girl has gotten married and the old man is ill and his farm is overgrown with weeds.

"The lesson they learn," Teachworth explained in August, 1982, "is you really can't go back."

Cass City is not identified as such in the film, since he wanted the film to reflect a rural area, not a specific locale.

According to LaVerne Teachworth, his son has an agent who is working on distribution of the film in theatres.

There may be a special showing of the film in Cass City for those who helped in various ways in the filming.

The project became more involved and expensive than Teachworth, an administrator and teacher in the Utica schools, anticipated, according to his father. "He said, 'Dad, if I knew two years ago what I know now, I don't know if I would have done this thing.'"

HEALTH TIPS

Scabies increasing in Tuscola County

"The past several months have produced an increase in the number of cases of scabies or 'the itch' in Tuscola County," according to Dr. Kalyani Misra, medical director of the county Health Department.

Scabies appears to have been increasing in many parts of the United States and elsewhere in the world since the early 1970s.

Scabies is caused by an itch mite, an animal so small it can hardly be seen. The mite usually first affects the skin at the base of the fingers. From there it may spread to the wrist, forearms, thighs, skin folds, and if left untreated, possibly to the entire body.

The mite burrows under the top layer of the skin and deposits its eggs. Sometimes the tunnels can be seen under the skin. If the person has never been infected with scabies before, a lapse of 2-6 weeks can occur before the person notices an itching problem. If the person is experiencing a reinfection, the time is usually much shorter because they are already sensitized.

Eventually, scabies causes intense itching which is generally worse at night or after physical exercise. Scratching may lead to secondary infections.

Usually the disease is spread by close skin-to-skin contact, but it can also be spread through clothing, towels, bedsheets, or almost any material handled by an infected person.

For this reason, if one member of the family has scabies, the doctor may prescribe treatment for all household contacts.

The scabies mite is no respecter of economic status, according to Dr. Misra. Everyone is susceptible. What's more, a person who is infected may be treated and then be reinfected from an untreated household member who is incubating the disease. A frustrating, miserable cycle can occur.

The key to success in the treatment of scabies is thoroughness and cleanliness. If you suspect that you or any member of your family has contracted scabies, you should see your local physician. A doctor can provide you with a painless medication which works quickly, if properly used.

Dr. Misra emphasizes that treatment does not stop at the doctor's office, however. "Thorough washing with soap and water of the person and all clothing and bed linens, before and following treatment is essential."

Also, all persons who the doctor feels need treatment should be treated at the same time. These precautions must be taken to be sure that all itch mites and their eggs are destroyed.

For further information or treatment, consult your family physician or call the Health Department in Caro at 673-8114.

Kretzschmer freshman of the year

Karla Jo Kretzschmer, a Central Michigan University sophomore from Owendale, was selected Freshman of the Year for her involvement in campus and community activities during the 1982-83 school year.

Miss Kretzschmer was active in the Student Government Association's election committee, Woldt Residence Hall Council, Superdance, Christ the King Lutheran Church council, intramurals and a fund raiser for the Michigan Heart Association. ## More cash for roads in 1982-83

Revenue from state highway user taxes rose 7.7 percent in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT), helping the state, counties and cities to improve their roads.

The Tuscola County Road Commission collected $2.16 million during the fiscal year, up from $2.03 million in 1981-82. The Sanilac County Road Commission received $1.99 million, up from $1.87 million, and the Huron County Road Commission, $1.87 million, an increase from $1.745 million.

Cass City received $58,218 for its streets during the 1982-83 fiscal year, an increase from $55,013 in the previous 12 months.

The amounts area villages received in 1982-83 (1981-82 amounts in parentheses) were: Gagetown, $17,090 ($16,218); Kingston, $11,328 ($10,728); Owendale, $12,462 ($11,817), and Ubyly, $21,090 ($19,968).

A major reason for the increase in revenue was the 2-cent per gallon increase in the state fuel tax that went into effect Jan. 1 of this year.

Gross receipts from state fuel motor taxes and license plate fees rose from $664.3 million in 1981-82 to $715.4 million in 1982-83, which is still less than the record $760.8 million collected in 1978-79.

The MDOT attributes the decline in revenue, despite the tax increase, to more higher-mileage, lighter-weight cars and a surge in the sale of gasoline, which is taxed at a lower rate than gasoline.

Because of a change in the law by the legislature, license plate fees for cars purchased since Oct. 1 of this year are being based on their value, not their weight.

The fee for cars purchased before then will increase with the growth of personal income in Michigan.

Michigan University, who is a member of the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kehoe were overnight guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Birch, Bay City, and they attended a concert of close harmony singing at Bay City Central Auditorium presented by Bay Valley Sweet Adelines and Saginaw-Bay Timberland Chordsmen.

The Elmwood Extension Group met Monday at the home of Mrs. Gladys Laurie, Cass City, and the Elmwood Sewing Club met Wednesday at the home of Alma and Mary Wald.

Mrs. Velma Helwig and Mrs. Harry Kehoe visited Mrs. Dorothy Rocheleau last Wednesday afternoon at Bay Medical Center, Bay City, where she has been a patient for the past few months.

Correction: Sunday dinner guest last week of the Bill Goodells was Francis Goodell, not Francis Goslin as stated and Ken Crowder, not Ken Crawford, was a guest of the Paul Langlois.

Mrs. Fred Sullivan, choir director, has begun work on holiday music at a practice last Thursday evening with the children's choir of St. Agatha. The adult choir also rehearsed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Taschner called on the Mike Follmans Sunday, for an evening of cards.

Laurie sees shift in farm concerns

Michigan Farm Bureau's 20-member policy development committee met in Lansing Nov. 8-10 to review 1,154 policy resolutions submitted by the organization's 69 county units and prepare a package of recommendations to submit to voting delegates at the state convention in Grand Rapids Nov. 29-Dec. 2.

Jack Laurie, of Dodge Road, Cass City, who chairs the policy development committee, said that the proposals submitted by the county Farm Bureaus reflect a shift in concerns of the agricultural community from economic survival to planning ahead.

"In the past two or three years, we saw resolutions which dealt mainly with concerns of survival of the agricultural community through a period of depressing times," he said.

"In reviewing the resolutions this year, I feel that farmers are beginning to say to themselves, 'Let's look ahead and see just what we can do in agriculture to make things better for us down the road.'"

Resolutions adopted by the delegates dealing with state issues will become the policies of the MFB during the year ahead. Those adopted dealing with national issues will be submitted to the American Farm Bureau Federation for consideration by the delegate body at the national annual meeting in Florida in early January.

Laurie is a dairy farmer and MFB vice-president.

Alice Finley wins prize

Alice Finley, a student at Kingston High School, received honorable mention and a $10 prize in the American Education Week theme placemat design contest sponsored by the Thumb Coordinating Council of the Michigan Education Association.

The contest was open to all students in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties.

First prize of $25 went to Renee Limbacher of Carsonville-Port Sanilac High School, whose entry best presented the 1983 American Education Week (Nov. 13-19) theme of, "A strong nation needs strong public schools." More than 15,000 placemats utilizing her design were given to restaurants in the three counties.

Miss Finley was one of three students receiving honorable mention.

Tuckey works in Europe

Tim Tuckey of Cass City is the newest staff member of the International Student Association, which has its headquarters in Paris, France.

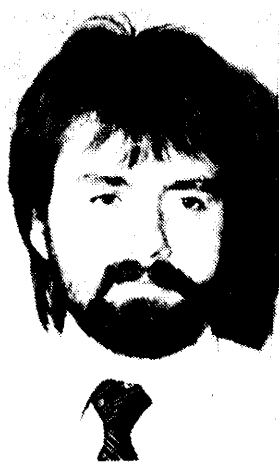

The June graduate of Spring Arbor College, near Jackson, is a former president of the American Student Association. He is the son of Mark Tuckey of 4353 Koepfen Road and Fonda Doyen of 6582 Pine Street and a 1978 graduate of Cass City High School.

Tuckey left for Europe in July, according to his mother, then toured the continent before going to work for the ISA in September. He is supposed to be working for the association for six months.

Tuckey, who received a BA degree in English at Spring Arbor, plans to enroll in law school in the fall of 1984.

The ISA was formed in 1981 to fulfill the need for an international association independent of influence by any state, alliance or political bloc.

"An organization with ISA's scope and aims is invaluable," Tuckey said. "In a shrinking world, problems must be put in global perspective to be solved."

TIM TUCKEY

"For that reason," he continued, "the founders wanted to create a democratic framework of cooperation for the defense and safeguarding of legitimate student interests rather than an authority-invested organization with predetermined political objectives."

The resulting structure is broad enough to encompass any representative national student union, regardless of its religious or political beliefs, "so long as that union is itself democratically constituted and independent of external control."

As an advocate of student rights and, in a more comprehensive sense, human rights, the ISA's mandate is broad. "We labor to guarantee the freedom of all peoples and the democratization of education," Tuckey pointed out. "The social, material, cultural and moral needs of students represent further concerns of the association."

The ISA not only represents student needs and opinions in various world forums, but also strives to raise student participation in contemporary world affairs. "In the next decade, today's students will inherit their societies," he stated. "For this reason, it is imperative for them to not only familiarize themselves, but to involve themselves."

ISA's own political involvement has taken various forms. It has organized aid programs and has publicized the plight of oppressed students and others within totalitarian states, such as Poland and East Germany.

It also claims successes including the release of political prisoners and providing assistance to needy human rights organizations.

"Lucky Tuckey," as his colleagues nicknamed him after surviving a near fatal auto accident in Portugal in September, which put him in the hospital, believes education, especially higher education, could and should be a vital part of the basis for world cooperation.

"In a rapidly changing world," he commented, "education and students are assuming more strategic roles in political as well as social and economic affairs. International policies of cooperation must begin at some level, and what better basis than in the welfare and education of the world's youth."

Sugar beet harvest almost done

The 1983 sugar beet harvest, for all practical purposes, is over.

Michigan Sugar Co. Vice-president Davis L. Sunderland said Friday that only 300 acres of the 72,000 acres contracted to the firm remained to be harvested, and he expected they would be harvested before this week is over.

This year's harvest has averaged 19.3 tons per acre, which he described as "pretty good," and is exactly the same as last year.

The sugar content has averaged 1.26 percent, which Sunderland said was reasonably good. "Not the best, not the worst."

Michigan Sugar, which has plants in Caro, Sebawing, Crosswell and Carrollton, will be sending its first installment checks to farmers Dec. 15.

Sunderland expects the total price they receive will be about the same as last year, which was $35.73 a ton. He described that as "quite good when you get 19 tons." Growers, he commented, "can live with that."

The total price farmers will receive depends on the price Michigan Sugar gets for the sugar, molasses and pulp that it sells and that won't be known until Oct. 20 of next year.

72 persons arrested in October

Tuscola County sheriff's deputies arrested 72 persons in October, two more than were arrested in September.

Thirty-eight of those were taken into custody for traffic related offenses, mostly drunk driving, seven were arrested for burglaries and seven for larcenies.

Officers issued 427 traffic tickets last month, 36 more than in September. Of those, 148 were for speeding, 70 for defective equipment and 40 for registration violations.

There were 31 appearance tickets issued, seven less than the month before, of which 21 were for transporting or possession of open intoxicants in a motor vehicle.

The sheriff's department received 634 telephone calls in October classified as "criminal," up from 586 the month before. They included 195 for traffic related offenses (accidents, reckless drivers, etc.), followed by larcenies, 86; vandalism, 77, and domestic problems, 42.

Patrol cars were driven 48,593 miles and consumed 3,992 gallons of gasoline (12.17 miles per gallon).

The county jail took in 155 inmates last month, of whom 19 were female, and released 156.

Cass City police arrested nine persons for traffic related offenses in October and one for fraud. State police from the Caro post arrested four persons for traffic related offenses and one each for a liquor law violation and forgery.

The number of respective complaints from and accidents in area townships and villages in October were:

Columbia, 10 and 2; Elkland, 17 and 6; Cass City, 54 and accidents not recorded by sheriff's department; Ellington, 21 and 4; Elmwood, 10 and 1; Kingston Township, 20 and 6; Kingston village, 1 and 1, and Novesta, 32 and 6.

Study Club has meeting

The Gagetown Women's Study Club met Nov. 7 at the home of Mrs. Jackie Goodell with seven members and one guest present.

They answered roll call to "helpful hints for hospital calling."

The program, "M.S. -- Two initials that say..." was presented by Janet Martin.

The December meeting will be a Christmas party, with each member bringing a gift for a man and woman to be presented to the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility in Caro. It is an annual project for the club.

The Oct. 3 meeting was hosted by Eleanor Messer with the nine members answering roll call with "When I was center stage."

Rev. Myra Sparks presented a drama seminar. All the women took part in a playlet by reading various parts, putting into practice what she had taught them.
