Council okays $85,000 N. Seeger rebuilding job

The Cass City Village Council Tuesday evening got a first look at the proposed 1984 village budget, which calls for big expenditures for various projects.

The biggest, at an estimated cost of $85,000, will be the rebuilding of the 1,300 feet of N. Seeger Street between the old and new village limits, which will include widening and curb and gutter. The section includes the intersections for the driveways at the high school and the entranceway to the Northwoods subdivisions.

The incentive for rebuilding the road, which is in poor condition, is that the State Department of Transportation has tentatively agreed to repave Seeger from Main Street north next year as part of the detour while the M-53 bridge over the Cass River, south of Bay City-Forestville Road, is replaced.

"It really would be a crime to pave that as it is," councilman Jim Ware commented.

The state will pay for repaving of the four-lane part of Seeger from curb-to-curb. On the rebuilt part, the state will pay for the equivalent of two lanes of paving, so the village will have to pay the rest, plus the rest of the costs, except for curb and gutter. That will be assessed against property owners, who will first be given an opportunity to protest at a public hearing.

The project, which the council authorized at the meeting, will be financed by borrowing $100,000 from the state transportation bond fund loan program, from which Cass City borrowed $100,000 this year for various paving projects.

With the Seeger Street project costing an estimated $85,000, the remainder will be used to repave the four blocks of alleys north and south of Main Street, east and west of Seeger.

The 1984 major street fund budget lists $18,100 in interest to be paid for the total $200,000 in loans at 9.6 percent interest. The payment will be higher in 1985 because it will include principle as well as interest. The loans will be repaid over 15 years.

In discussing the project, Village President Lambert Althaver commented that because of the payments, Cass City might not be able to undertake any major street construction projects for two or three years after 1984. Only routine maintenance could be done.

OTHER PROJECTS

Another major project authorized by the council will be refurbishing of the village's two water wells at an estimated cost of $26,000. The work will be done this winter by Layne-Northern Co. of Lansing.

The major part of the project will be removing the shafts that drive the impellers at the bottom of the wells which pump the water out. The work hasn't been done in at least 15 years and the impellers are starting to wear, which can result in reduced water pressure.

Not yet authorized but included in the water system budget is $20,000 for sandblasting and repainting the water tower.

The water system and wastewater treatment fund budgets of $125,000 and $260,600 respectively do not include any increases in user fees. It is anticipated more water (and thus sewage treatment) will be used next year, so revenue will increase.

Issue stalls Cass City teacher talks

Negotiators for the Cass City School Board and teachers adjourned their scheduled bargaining session Tuesday without having met face to face, and hung up on at least one issue.

Supt. Donald Crouse said the Tri-County Bargaining Association, which represents the teachers, presented a new demand, "which would be a concession the board cannot realistically make."

Fred Gerhardt, chief negotiator for the TCBA, responded to the Chronicle that the issue wasn't new. "It's been part of what we have been discussing,"

Crouse contends that verbal agreement was reached Nov. 11 on a new contract and all that remained at that time was to put everything in writing. "We worked out a final agreement verbally and we shook (hands) on it."

What was presented Tuesday, he said, was a new demand on top of what was previously agreed to.

Gerhardt responded that although the issue discussed Tuesday was "a difficult one," a "lot of issues are on the table yet," so there was no informal agreement previously.

Neither he nor Crouse would say what the issue was. The superintendent did say that if agreement isn't reached within the next two to three weeks, the school board will reveal what the issue was and what the tentative verbal agreement was, "the whole story."

The school board negotiators were present

Tuesday from 4:30-5:55 p.m. but the only talk between the two sides was between Gerhardt and Al Luce, the board's professional negotiator, which took place outside the room where the board team was.

Crouse said Luce will probably contact state mediator Bill Borushko to see if he can resolve the issues. Borushko was at a previous negotiating session.

Gerhardt said the teachers weren't opposed to having a mediator present.

He added that the TCBA negotiators left Tuesday's session with the understanding that they will put in writing what they feel is needed regarding the particular issue, and then contact the school board's negotiators when ready.

Candidates needed for village offices

All area villages will have elections early next year.

Petitions for persons interested in running for office are available from village clerks.

The timetable is the same in all communities. Petitions must be returned to the clerks no later than 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 20. Primary elections, if necessary, will be Feb. 20, and general elections will be March 12.

SANTA CLAUS came to Cass City Friday and among his first "customers" was Melanie Nizzola, 2, who presumably told him she wanted some new shoes for Christmas, so wanted to make sure he knew the size. Santa is scheduled to be in his booth at Main and Seeger Fridays from 6:30-8 p.m. and Saturdays from 12:30-2 through Dec. 23.

Tentative teacher pact in Kingston

Tentative agreement was reached last week on a new three-year contract with Kingston teachers.

Details won't be revealed until it has been ratified by them and the school board.

Bargaining began at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and didn't end until 2 a.m. Wednesday. It was the first negotiating session since the 36 members of the Kingston Education Association were on strike Oct. 6 and 7.

Since that time, there were informal talks between KEA President Fred Gerhardt and Supt. Jerry Laycock and board President Louis Wenzlaff. Topics included the amount of money the district had, goals and countywide salary averages, according to the superintendent.

Bob Gengler, chief negotiator for the Tri-County Bargaining Association (TCBA) feels the informal talks paved the way for the settlement, although there was "still some bending and twisting before agreement was reached."

Laycock also felt the informal talks were beneficial.

The next step, once typed copies of the agreement are available, will be for the TCBA delegates to okay the agreement. They will vote on it at their Dec. 14 meeting.

After that, the Kingston teachers will vote on it, at least five days after they receive copies, in accordance with the TCBA bylaws.

The school board will vote on it after the teachers vote, Laycock indicated. The board held its regular monthly meeting Monday and adjourned into executive session to discuss the tentative agreement. (Budget cuts were approved by the board Monday. See story elsewhere in this edition.)

'84 county budget tops $5.3 million

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Nov. 22 approved a 1984 county budget calling for $5.32 million in expenditures, the most ever and $845,442 more than is anticipated the county will spend by the end of this year.

Revenue is also estimated at $5.32 million. Most of the increase needed to cover the hike in spending will come from an estimated fund balance of $607,013 the county will have in its coffers at the end of this year.

Tuscola County will spend about $400,000 less than expected in the original 1983 budget. Reasons for the larger than expected surplus include receipt of state revenue sharing payments that weren't anticipated and spending less than anticipated in some categories.

There was $265,550 budgeted for probate court child care services. It is projected $200,000 will be spent by the end of the year. Spending for insurance and bonds, which includes workers' compensation, should be $30,000 less than budgeted; sheriff's department, $59,226 less, and Medical Care Facility, $25,000 less.

The new budget includes $99,500 for contingencies, that is, unplanned expenditures. Any fund balance at the end of 1983, according to Jackie Larson, the county board's confidential secretary, will likely come from unspent contingency funds, if any, or less money spent than budgeted for workers' compensation.

Federal revenue sharing payments are expected to total $330,621 in 1984, the same as the county received this year, and all of that will be spent.

Property taxes will bring the county $2.72 million, an increase of only about $59,000 from the present year.

Other large revenue sources are: District court, $219,087; sheriff's department, $106,125 (from contract with Arbel Township to provide police protection, fees for serving legal papers, etc.); register of deeds, $79,770; building codes department, $67,305; and county clerk, $52,550.

THE BIGGEST SINGLE county expense is the sheriff's department, which is budgeted at $1.04 million in 1984 the first time it has exceeded $1 million. The department will spend an anticipated $930,610 this year.

The $1.04 million Sheriff Paul Berry is getting, however, is $109,408 less than he requested.

The requests from all the department heads, including Berry, totaled $212,518 more than commissioners authorized. Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn had $25,245 trimmed from his request.

Still unresolved is Joslyn's order directing that court reporter Ken Gangler be paid $24,000 in 1984, instead of the $18,950 established by the board. In his order, Joslyn said the average salary for court reporters in comparable circuit courts in the state was $23,579 in 1983.

Commissioner Royce Russell said board members are scheduled to meet Thursday of this week with the attorney who advised them a few years ago when Probate Judge W. Wallace

Bach fest draws praise; overall attendance up

By Mike Eliasohn

From Milwaukee, Wis., to Cass City via Detroit is a long way to come, but for Stephen Kaniewski, it was worth it.

He wasn't planning to come to the Village Bach Festival when he went to Detroit for Thanksgiving week end, but he heard about it there from someone who had attended previously and decided to come to the Saturday evening concert.

"It was well worth the trip to come up here," said Kaniewski, who came with a friend, after the concert was over.

The Milwaukeean said he attends about 12-18 classical music concerts a year and thought the one in Cass City was as good as any he has heard in his home community. "High caliber," he said of the Bach Festival.

"I thought it was great. I expected it to be good and it met my standards."

In contrast to Kaniewski, Bob McLachlan, who lives northeast of Cass City, didn't have far to come to the Bach Festival and doesn't normally go to concerts. Saturday was the first time he has come to the Bach Festival. "I thought it was nice," he said. "I enjoyed it."

He was non-committal about returning in future years. "I might," Cass City native Sharon

Harris, who lives in Grand Rapids, presumably will return. "The intimacy of this setting is lovely. I think it lends itself beautifully to the music."

Mrs. Harris often attends the Grand Rapids Symphony. "This," she said, referring to the Bach Festival, "has the intimacy that the symphony doesn't have."

Although those who attended the concerts Tuesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday were pleased, there weren't as many of them as in past years.

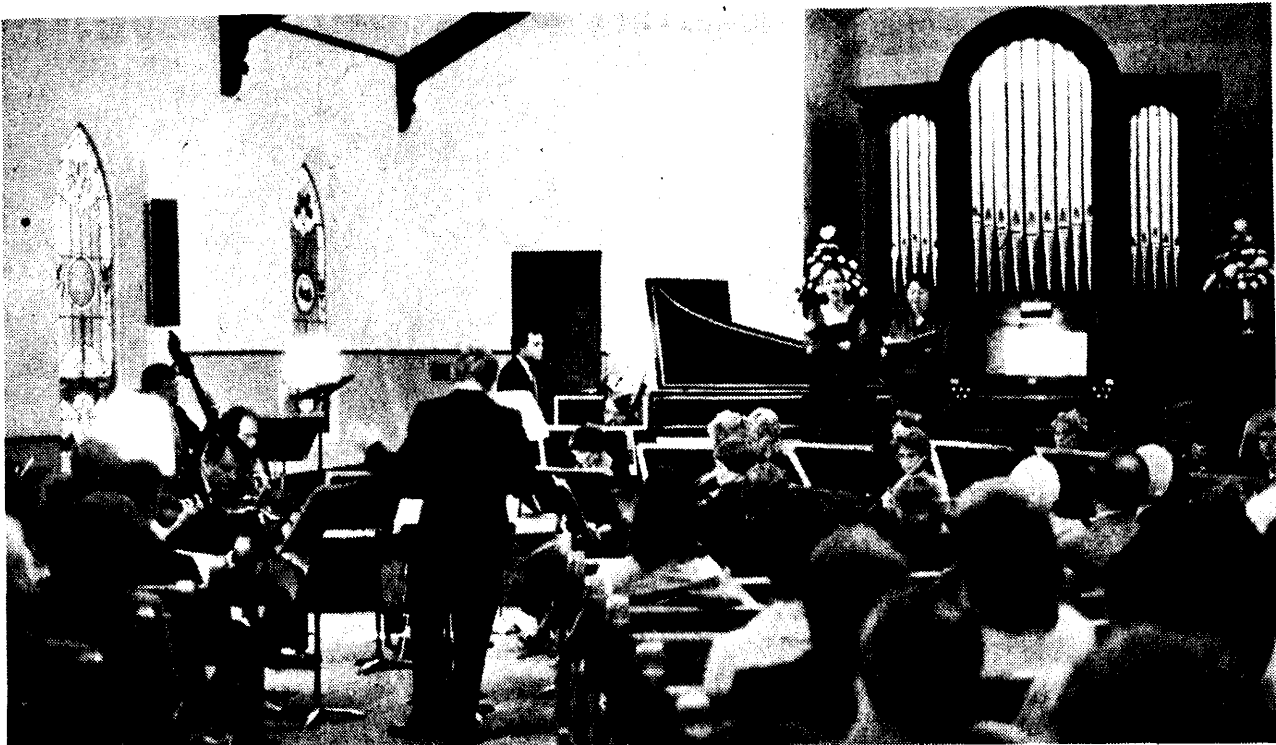

Although all the financial figures aren't in yet, the festival's business manager, Lambert Althaver, commented, "I don't think there is any question the crowds were down here. I think financially, we probably came out all right."

A "couple of hundred" persons attended the Monday evening concert in Midland, a first for the festival and considered experimental. He speculated some persons who went to that program might otherwise have come to Cass City, which might account for the attendance being less at the traditional Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts here.

Overall attendance was up, however, if one counts the three regular concerts

The big city news reporters were around in droves before the space launch. A representative from the Port Huron Times Herald was in and a Detroit Free Press reporter called.

Also calling were representatives from Channel 7 and Channel 2. Channel 7 was to have Cass City footage on the 5 'clock news but it never made it.

Channel 5 had a report and both major dailies used features about the community.

It's boys' basketball time again. Cass City may win the Thumb B title again, but winning at the state level is something else because of unfair competition.

Last year's Class C champion was Kalamazoo Christian. Back from that team are six-foot, five-inch and six-foot, four-inch forwards. Lost to graduation was the center. So, what happens? A 6-foot, 10-inch center transfers in to take up the slack.

No parochial school should be allowed to compete under the class B level. There's a lot of talk every year about changes, but none ever occurs. Not only is this recruiting unfair to other schools it's also unfair to the regular student body where average talent players can't compete.

Idle note: Again Monday I watched "Miracle on 34th Street," a 30-plus-year-old film, for at least the 10th time. What's more the re-run won out over Monday night football and a couple of first run movies on other channels. "Miracle" plays each Christmas and deservedly so. Even after 10 times it's top entertainment.

consisted of Gengler, who is a Cass City teacher; Gerhardt, and Dick Ross, a Millington teacher.

The school board's negotiators were Laycock, its professional negotiator, Tom Basil, elementary Principal Doug Kramer, board members Wenzlaff, John Borek and Gary Koehler. Not all were present the whole time.

The school board still must negotiate labor agreements with all its other employees, Laycock said. Custodial and maintenance workers are the only ones, in addition to teachers, who belong to a union, but meetings are also held with those employees who aren't unionized.

Joyce and Timothy Muz

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Sheffer of Dryden announce the marriage of their daughter Joyce Marie to Timothy Francis Muz.

Tim's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schell of Cass City and the late Michael Muz.

Rev. Marjorie West officiated at the Oct. 22 candlelight ceremony in the Dryden United Methodist Church.

Kim Thomas of Bloomfield Hills was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Diana Dombrowski, Howell; Sandra Sheffer, Dryden, sister-in-law of the bride, and Beth Howard, Cass City.

Best man was Jeff Maharg of Detroit. Groomsmen were Dave Bartnik, Cass City; Mark Ashton, Ortonville, and Guy Howard, Cass City.

Ushers were Paul Sheffer, brother of the bride, and Gerald Muz, brother of the groom.

Joyce is a graduate of Dryden High School, St. Clair County Community College and Michigan State University, and is working with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Owosso.

Tim graduated from Cass City High School and Michigan State University and has a position with the Farmers Home Administration in Owosso.

A reception was held at the American Legion hall in Imlay City. After a honeymoon in Toronto and Niagara Falls, the newlyweds are living in Owosso.

Complaint to be filed against O-G

The Tri-County Bargaining Association (TCBA) this week will file with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission an unfair labor practice charge against the Owendale-Gagetown School Board.

Lee Longfield of the Michigan Education Association's Cass City office said Monday the complaint will accuse the board of failure to bargain in good faith.

Owen-Gage Supt. Ron Erickson declined comment until he has seen a copy of the complaint.

Eventually the MERC will hold a hearing on the complaint, which is "unfortunately, a fairly lengthy process," according to Ms. Longfield, one that can take several months.

If the commission rules in favor of the TCBA, she said, it could order the school board to bargain in "good faith."

Meanwhile, negotiations may resume. The last bargaining session was held Nov. 21. The TCBA, which represents Owen-Gage teachers in the talks, has since sent a letter to the school board suggesting some new dates.

Erickson said Monday he has written back suggesting Dec. 5 or 19 for another meeting, neither of which is one of the dates suggested by the TCBA.

Square dance

There will be a Christmas party Saturday, Dec. 10, sponsored by the square dance clubs of Cass City, Caro, Marlette and Bad Axe.

It will be from 8-11 p.m. in the Cass City High School cafeteria. The caller will be George Edwards.

Dancers are asked to bring finger foods. Guests are welcome.

My wife bought an amazing hanging lamp from Sears for $40. I think I can sell it to the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) for at least $100,000.

At an art auction, the DIA recently paid $67,000 for a 1939, black and white photograph of locomotive wheels. I looked at that picture for a long time, in my most sophisticated art-gallery manner. I squinted and then opened my eyes wide; I held the photo close to my nose, and then looked at it from across the room. I asked myself what the photo said to me, and what I wanted to say back to it.

But I couldn't figure out why it's worth $67,000. It may be worth $63,452, but not $67,000.

A spokesman for the auction house that saw the DIA coming explained that the photo "epitomizes the Industrial Age." Oh.

But what that $67,000 photo said to me was: "Here are a couple of locomotive wheels that pulled many freight cars in 1939." And what I wanted to say back to it was: "You are a nice enough photo but the locomotive wheels appear to be working properly, which doesn't epitomize the Industrial Age to me, unless it took from 1939 until now to get the photograph developed because the drugstore mislaid the film."

My wife's lamp does a better job of epitomizing the Industrial Age because of the astonishing things it can do that a candle or kerosene lamp could never do. Locomotive wheels transport freight and people, but so did stage coaches and canal boats. The amazing lamp from Sears does more than merely improve upon the light provided by fire. It also mystifies, and spooks, and causes grown people to cry like babies.

This lamp hangs on a chain in my old poolroom that is now the family room. My wife bought it so as not to waste the hook in the ceiling from which my Budweiser pool-table lamp used to hang. She could have simply removed the hook, but that wouldn't have cost $40 and caused grown people to cry like babies, so naturally she didn't do it. She has a reputation to maintain.

The first thing I noticed about the lamp is it has no switch. There is no visible means of turning it on and off. It is the same as a candle with no match and no pursed lips to blow. How can that be?

"Just touch it on the base," my wife said smugly. Sure enough. First touch for dim, second for medium, third for bright, and fourth for back to darkness. Wow.

I have no idea how the touch system works, or why Sears substituted it for the ordinary on-off switch. Frankly, I've mistrusted Sears ever since it unexplainedly pushed Roebuck into such a subordinate role. What happened there, anyway? Was Roebuck too old-fashioned to go along with an Industrial Age catalog that tears out its own pages whenever the privy door is touched?

At first, the mystifying lamp was fun. I used it to demonstrate my magic powers to Emily, the two-year-old granddaughter. She laughed and acted suitably amazed, but not for long. Two days after Emily left the room, I was still playing with the magic lamp, and hollering out the window for people to come see what I had.

However, one night my wife and I were returning home and noticed a light in our window. We never leave any lights on. "It might be a burglar," she said.

"It could be worse," I said. "Our son could be back in town."

None of the above. The lamp has now taken on a life of its own. It turns itself on and off at will, no touch required. In fact, it no longer responds to touches or even squeezes. I think it's frigid.

The lamp most often turns itself off when I am reading by it, which causes me to sob, and turns itself on when no one is home, which causes me to suspect that Sears owns the Edison company.

That frustrating lamp epitomizes the Industrial Age. It should hang in the Detroit Institute of Arts, preferably over the $67,000 locomotive photo. I want $100,000, but I'll take $40.50.

The Haire Net

Not since the days when Cass City was known as Christmas Town and displays dotted every street has the village been the center of media attention as it was this week.

What's brought the television, radio and newspaper boys in from big town has been Brewster Shaw's achievement as co-pilot of the space shuttle.

With the exception of Russ Coleman, a Deford native, and now a cameraman for TV-2 in Detroit, these guys know as little about rural America as they did in the '50s when they visited to write about the displays.

It's almost as if they figured small-town anyplace is just like Peyton Place. I'd guess that there is something about Peyton Place in every small town. Certainly we have the cliques and the bigotry.

But it's a gross distortion to confuse the Peyton Place image with reality. The reality is that small-town America has one significant difference from big-city America.

In small-town the chances of knowing your local heroes is much greater than in big-town.

It's almost certain that in the small town you'll come in contact with the current celebrity one way or another.

Lives till touch through school, church, relatives or mutual friends. When someone you know takes off into space vicariously you are up there with him.

In the intense competition for the attention of the viewer or reader the mass media wants an angle.

The angle has always been looking for the small, rural, backwards community's reaction to the place in the sun.

Each representative that has contacted the Chronicle has a variation of the question of, will there be a parade or a mass meeting celebrating the launch?

Over the years it's been learned that it's impossible to get across that the difference between us is slight and growing narrower each year.

Small-town is suffering from the maladies of big-town. The other day I read where a woman was shot and raped in Pinconning, the smaller than Cass City community where I was reared.

In every town in the Thumb you'll find that police protection has been escalated while crime has increased.

Sure, living in the Thumb is still different from living in Wayne County. The difference is not in the people who live there, but merely in the opportunity to get to know the people who do.

We're losing that to a degree. If it ever disappears entirely, there won't be one iota of difference in living in Cass City or Detroit.

Blood drive at hospital Tuesday

Donors are needed for the Red Cross blood drive Tuesday at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Hours will be 1-7 p.m. The blood drive is being sponsored by the Cass City Zonta Club.

Blood has become even more valuable since the introduction of component therapy during the past 10 years. One unit of blood can now be used to treat as many as four patients.

In addition, each of the component parts -- red and white cells, platelets and plasma -- can be used to treat many diseases.

-- Red cells are the oxygen carriers which are used in surgery and in the treatment of anemia.

-- White cells defend the body against diseases by attacking bacteria.

-- Platelets are the cells that control bleeding by forming plugs in broken vessels. They are used in the treatment of cancer and leukemia to replace cells destroyed by chemotherapy.

-- Plasma, consisting of 92 percent water, is the fluid portion of the blood in which the cells are suspended. Several derivatives can be made from plasma and its proteins, and these are most commonly used in the treatment of shock.

FIRST WINNER in the weekly drawing for a free week end for two at Midland's Valley Plaza was Dorothy Puterbaugh of Snover. Her trip was sponsored by the Chronicle. There will be three other weekly winners plus 20 winners selected by drawings in sponsors' stores the Saturday before Christmas. Making the presentation is Mike Weaver, co-chairman of the program.

It's time to get reacquainted with your phone bill.

When you go to your mail box and find your next phone bill, you'll notice it's changed in some ways. For example, there'll be more pages because the billing information will be more extensive and listed differently. These initial changes are the result of Michigan Bell's upcoming separation from AT&T on January 1, 1984.

We'd like to explain these changes. Probably the first and most important thing to understand is that after January 1, 1984, your Michigan Bell bill may include charges from Michigan Bell and AT&T or other long distance service companies, but you'll continue to pay the total bill to Michigan Bell.

Your billing information will be in three general categories:

Basic Service.

In the future, Michigan Bell will continue to provide and bill your basic telephone service, as well as your local and zone usage. Included in your monthly service could be Custom Calling, Touch-Tone® Service, or optional calling plan charges. Michigan Bell will also bill you for any directory assistance charges you incur.

Long Distance.

Your long distance calls will be separated between those provided by Michigan Bell and those that after January 1, 1984, are provided by other long distance carriers but may be billed by Michigan Bell. They will appear on separate pages.

Telephone Equipment Charges.

In the past, your telephone equipment charge was added into your charge for basic service. Now it will be itemized on a separate page. Ownership of the equipment Michigan Bell now provides you for a monthly fee will soon be transferred from Michigan Bell to AT&T.

Phone numbers will be listed on your bill to call if you have questions about your billing or service. And when you receive your new bill in December, a bill insert will clarify the various pages of the bill in much greater detail.

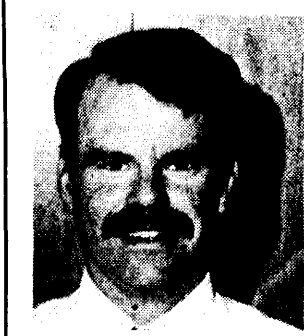

We want to do whatever we can to help you understand the changes that are taking place in your phone company. Please remember...

IT'S AT&T
WE'RE SEPARATING FROM...
NOT YOU.

Michigan Bell

Facts down the line. We suggest that you continue to watch your monthly telephone bills for any additional changes in the billing format, repair service or procedures for establishing or changing telephone service. Also, because your telephone business office is busily engaged in normal day-to-day telephone service matters, this toll-free number is a source for answers to your questions about your changing telephone company. 1 800 555-5000.

Pedaling Around

Hang up the phone

By Mike Ellasohn

With the Christmas shopping season underway, I guess we can be grateful many of the videogame companies are in financial trouble.

Hopefully as a result, there won't be as many television commercials for videogames. It seems like a year ago, every other commercial was for a videogame.

I'm inclined to think those companies are running out of ideas for new games. I think the limit was reached when one of them introduced a game that had something to do with a chef and making hamburgers. It seemed rather silly.

To me, the ultimate videogame would be to have an actual Indianapolis racing car, or at least the half in front of the engine, hooked up to a car racing videogame in one's living room.

Then one could steer the car and shift gears as the car went around curves shown on the screen and steer around cars. Miss a shift and you fall behind or your engine explodes and you're out of the race. Go too fast and you're off the course.

It would be the perfect videogame for Walter Mitty who dream of driving 200 miles per hour at Indianapolis, but never drive anything more exotic than an old Ford or Chevrolet.

A current TV commercial that has nothing to do with videogames or Christmas (at least directly) is the one for cordless telephones featuring golfer Jack Nicklaus.

He points out that as a golfer and a businessman, it's important to be close to a phone and he does that by carrying one of the advertiser's products in his golf bag.

I can see it now. It is the Master's Golf Tournament and if Nicklaus makes the putt, he wins first prize of $100,000.

He lines the putt up carefully, starts his swing and then, "RING!"

To add insult to injury, it would probably be a wrong number.

Not only does Nicklaus have a cordless phone, so do his wife and children.

For those who can afford it, the phones will probably replace yelling. Instead of opening the back door and yelling to her kids playing outside, "IT'S TIME FOR DINNER," mom can call them on the phone.

If you hurry, your kid can be the first one on the block who has a cordless telephone mounted on his or her tricycle.

Switching topics, I wrote an article for the Nov. 17 issue about the outbreak of scabies at Provincial House.

It was not a pleasant topic, but it isn't one that should be ignored.

Unfortunately, such articles undoubtedly create some unnecessary panic.

I didn't realize the significance of what I said in the lead paragraph until later when a Provincial House employee or family member called to complain that I implied everyone who had a connection with the place had scabies.

As was pointed out in the sixth paragraph, only a small percentage of patients and employees there had scabies, though it is was necessary for all patients, employees and their families to be treated.

Had I realized the significance of what I wrote in the lead paragraph in time, I would have rewritten it, since it did give a wrong impression.

I know the article created some "concern," for lack of a better term, because two of my fellow employees here asked whether I had to go to Provincial House to get the information for the story.

When I responded I got it by telephone, their response was, as I recall, "Thank goodness."

The reason I got the information by telephone was because it was easier. I and most reporters get a lot of their information by phone.

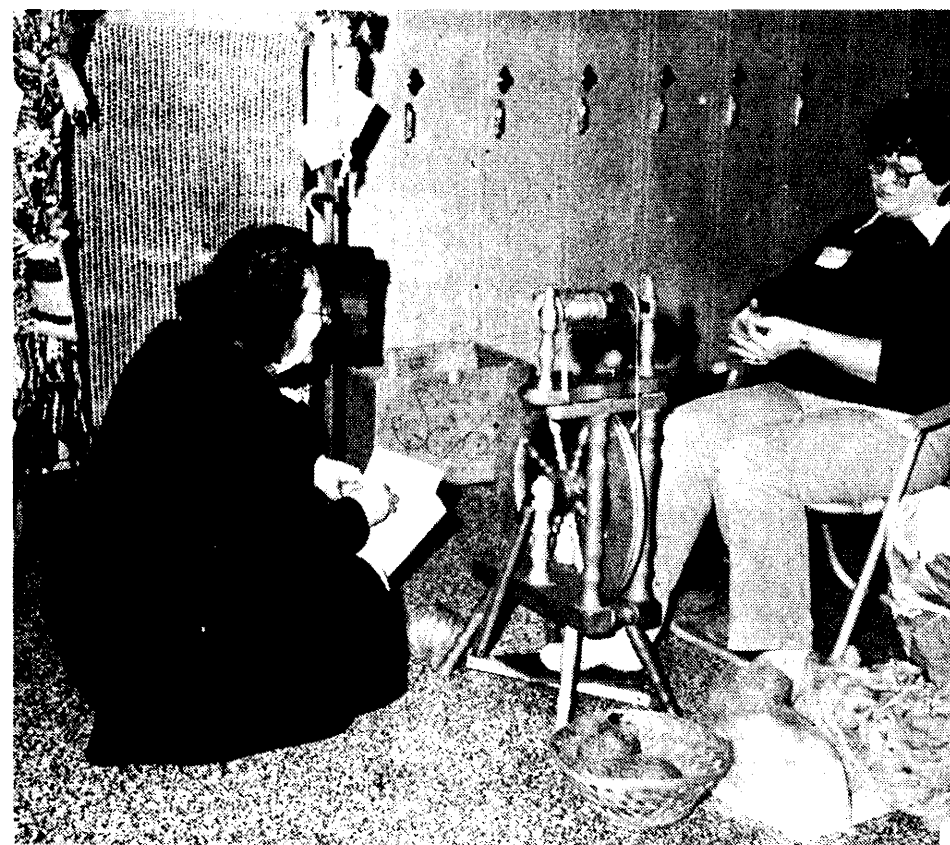

About a year and a half ago, when I did my first story on scabies at Provincial House, I went there to get the information, which at that time was the best way to get it.

Even before the treatment was undertaken there this time, I was told by two sources, visitors had no need to worry about going there.

Even if there were, I would much rather go to Provincial House to write about scabies than go to Lebanon to cover the war.

14 persons arrested for drugs

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department officers and state police from the Caro post, assisted by some local police departments, arrested 14 persons Tuesday night on a total of 22 violations of the state controlled substance act.

Two of the persons were also arrested on outstanding warrants for other offenses.

Most of the arrests were made in the Caro, Vassar and Millington area, the sheriff's department said, but some were made in the Kingston-Deford area.

All of the charges were for delivery of marijuana, cocaine and/or LSD.

All but one person, who posted bond, were still in the county jail Wednesday morning. They were to be arraigned in district court Wednesday.

The arrests were the result of a "months long" investigation by the sheriff's department.

A single flash of lightning has been estimated to carry a charge of 100 million volts.

Felonious assault

Marcella faces charges

Four criminal charges may be brought against an Ortonville man who ransacked a mobile home Monday evening in Huntsville Trailer Park, Cass City, and also, it is charged, threatened two 14-year-old boys with a knife.

Being held in the Tuscola County jail is Joseph G. Marcella, 27. Warrants were expected to be issued by the prosecutor's office Wednesday morning.

The renter of the trailer that was ransacked, Lisa Moon, reported to sheriff's deputies at 5:30 p.m. Monday that she had asked the man, a friend, to come to drive her to Caro.

He arrived at 3 p.m. intoxicated. He took her and her girlfriend to Gagetown, where they dropped the girlfriend off.

They returned to Huntsville, where she got out of his car and went to a friend's house.

When she went back to her mobile home, she found he had kicked the door in. She went next door to call police.

When she returned, she found the place ransacked. He had left. When he returned and tried to get in, she screamed and hit him and he left.

At that point, deputies estimated damage at $608. Broken were the front door, one window and the storm window, a black and white television and five drinking glasses.

Twenty minutes after the deputies left, the woman called the sheriff's department again to report the man was back. This time, he broke four more windows and kicked in the rear door, with damage estimated at $1,100.

He left and Cass City police found him inside his car, which had gone into a ditch alongside the nearby road leading to the Cass City sewage treatment plant.

At 8 p.m., the mother of one of the 14-year-old boys who became involved called the sheriff's deputies.

They told deputies they were walking when the man asked them to help him get his car out of the ditch.

He then told one of them to drink a half of the contents of a bottle he handed him and threatened him with a knife, then told the boy to go get help.

He told the other boy he would beat him if he didn't stay in the car and later poured an alcoholic beverage down his throat and waved a knife at him.

When the boy who went to get help returned, he and his friend ran away. That was at 6:30 p.m.

Marcella was initially arrested on charges of malicious destruction of property over $100 and breaking and entering. Deputies have asked the prosecutor's office to also charge him with two counts of felonious assault.

Owner of the mobile home is Marvin Hobart of 4534 Oak Street.

HEALTH TIPS

Mental health benefits of wearing seat belts

Expressing its deep concern over the catastrophic consequences to mental health of injuries or deaths caused by automobile accidents, the Michigan Psychiatric Society (MPS) has urged enactment of the pending mandatory seat belt law.

"The mental health benefits of seat belt use have been largely ignored in the debate on this bill," said Melvin Reinhart, M.D., president of the 900-member MPS.

"As physicians and citizens we support the legislation, especially when we look at the positive history of a similar law in neighboring Ontario.

"We are especially concerned about the emotional impact of preventable automobile tragedies on surviving accident victims, their families and the families of those who do not survive," Dr. Reinhart said.

Emphasizing that individual liberties must be kept in balance with social responsibilities, the psychiatrists insisted that basic concern and compassion dictate the use of seat belts by all occupants of every motor vehicle.

"We're not just talking about the civil liberties of the driver, but about the driver's responsibilities for his or her family and for everyone riding in the car," said Cassandra Klyman, M.D., of Bloomfield Hills.

Dr. Klyman, who has treated the survivors of auto mishaps in which seat belts were not in use, observed that drivers whose passengers were killed or disabled carry permanent emotional scars.

"I cannot tell you how much agony a paraplegic suffers for life because of a thoughtless moment. And those who could have insisted that everyone in the car use seat belts suffer deeply too," Dr. Klyman said.

"When there's a death or disabling injury from failure to wear seat belts, it can be a serious family problem," noted Joseph Fischhoff, M.D., Director of Psychiatric Services at Children's Hospital in Detroit.

"Parents never forgive themselves for not buckling up their young children. The children cannot forgive them either. If the accident involves teen-agers, parents blame both themselves and their parents. The regrets and the guilt are catastrophic," Dr. Fischhoff said.

In urging passage of HB 5203 in the Michigan Legislature, MPS also took note of the physical pain and suffering, some of it permanent, that results from failure to use seat belts.

Closed head injuries are among the most severe consequences of such accidents, according to a recent report from the American Automobile Association.

The report showed that about 500 Michiganders suffer closed head injuries in automobile mishaps each year, up to 90 percent of which could be prevented by seat belt use.

Average acute care and treatment expenses amount to $52,500, according to the AAA report. Inpatient rehabilitation can cost an average $50,000 per year, while out-patient costs, beyond those involved in equipment and home modification, average more than $10,000 annually.

"The staggering costs of treatment and rehabilitation are another element in the mental anguish resulting from the failure to use seat belts at all times," said Linda Logsdon, M.D., of Southfield.

"But even at that the economic difficulty is only part of the picture. Saving lives and preventing suffering are what we psychiatrists really are most concerned about," she said.

Evangelical women pick officers

Seventeen women attended the Monday evening meeting of the Evangelical Free Church Women's Ministries.

Election of officers for 1984 took place. They are Ellen O'Hara, president; Mabel Wright, vice-president; Judi Haas, secretary, and Barbara Jackson, treasurer; program chairmen are Margaret Turner and LuAnne Kelley.

The next meeting will be in January.

Smith listed in "Who's Who"

The dean of Huntington College, Dr. Gerald D. Smith, has been informed his biography has been selected to appear in the First Edition of "Who's Who in Frontier Science and Technology."

He is listed in his biography as a chemist, college dean and educator.

Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith of rural Caro.

Smith, who holds a Ph.D. in radiation physics from Purdue University, has completed his first year as dean of the college. He was honored by the Huntington College Alumni Association Oct. 15 and was named Alumnus of the Year for his outstanding service to Huntington College during the 1982-83 academic year.

The college is located in Huntington, Ind.

He began his faculty career there in 1967 as a chemistry instructor and in 1977 was advanced to a full professorship that was preceded by a series of promotions.

In 1980, Smith became chairman of Division III, Natural Sciences and Mathematics. He was named Northeastern Indiana Chemist of the Year by the American Chemical Society in May, 1982. That organization cited Dr. Smith as "reflecting credit on the profession of chemistry."

He is married to Nancy (Myers) Smith, a teacher at Central Elementary School in Huntington. They are the parents of a son, Michael.

Hawks lose in first journey tilt

Marlette ended the Cass City Red Hawk basketball season Monday, Nov. 28, by rolling over the Hawks, 54-23, in the district tournament.

Everything that could go bad did go bad for the Hawks in the tournament played at Sandusky.

Cass City's Jill Hutchinson, an all-conference performer, was held to just six points and that was high for the Hawks.

Cass City turned the ball over 38 times in the game, 22 times in the first half alone. The Hawks were out-rebounded, 48-21, and hit just 18 percent of their shots as the Red Raiders converted 33 percent.

With those statistics it was not surprising that the game was settled by the end of the first half. The Hawks scored four points in the first quarter, five points in the second while Marlette netted 11 in the first and 18 in the second. At the intermission Cass City trailed 29-9.

The Hawks' third quarter was more of the same when they were outscored 13-4. Sue Byrnes led Marlette with 12 points and Cheryl Miller added 10.

All day Saturday

Slate cheerleader pep rally

The Cass City High School gym will be the site of a day-long pep rally Saturday as the Cass City cheerleaders host a cheerleading competition.

About 20 schools and about 36 cheerleading squads are expected to compete, according to Sandy Nicholas, the advisor to the Cass City freshman, junior varsity and varsity cheerleading teams. All three local teams will compete.

Squads, with from 6-10 cheerleaders each, will be coming from as far as St. Louis and Memphis (both Michigan), Imlay City, Chesaning and Birch Run. Schools will be sending as many as five teams -- seventh, eighth, ninth, JV and varsity.

Competition will start at 9 a.m. with the junior high and freshman teams. Junior varsity competition will start about 10.

The Central Michigan University cheerleaders will give a clinic at 1 p.m., with judging of the varsity teams starting about 2, with Class D schools being judged first, then C and then B. Class C competition, in which the Red Hawks will take part, will start about 3.

The awards presentation in all divisions will be last. The event should be completed no later than 6 p.m.

Judges will be the CMU cheerleaders and Joe Bower, a (University of "Michigan Daily" sports writer and intern reporter at the Chronicle last summer.

All cheerleaders except the varsity squads will be judged on two cheers, Mrs. Nicholas explained. One must include a jump in unison and one must include a mount or stunt. Varsity teams will have to do those two cheers plus a third one, which can include anything they want.

First place teams in each class (B, C or D) and each level (varsity, JV, etc.) will receive a trophy. Each girl on a first, second or third place team will receive a ribbon, plus all girls will receive a ribbon for participating.

Trophies will also be presented to the best team overall and to the team with the most spirit and the one with the most congeniality. The latter two winners will be selected by their fellow participants.

Kingston High School hosted a cheerleading competition for several years, Mrs. Nicholas said, but didn't last year, so the Cass City cheerleaders decided to conduct one.

It will be a fund raising event, with each girl competing paying a $4.50 entry fee. Money left over after the trophies, ribbons and other expenses are paid will go to the local cheerleaders.

The Boys' Varsity Club will be running the refreshment stand, so will keep those proceeds, and the $1 admission fee for the public will go to the school.

Hawk wrestlers still rebuilding

It may well be that Cass City High School wrestlers will be in another rebuilding year as Coach Russ Biefer enters his 11th year at the helm.

The Hawks who seldom won last year because almost none of the squad had experience will be entering 1983-84 with another team of underclassmen. There was only one senior on last year's team.

There are four returning lettermen to pace the team and three of them are juniors and one is just a sophomore.

Mark Rutkoski, 112 pounds; Scott Rockwell, 190 pounds, and Bob Walters, 208 pounds, are the juniors bound to have improved with a year of competition under their belts. Brian Adkins is a sophomore and will be earning his second letter and will wrestle at 160 pounds.

There is one senior on the team with experience. He is Brian Stine, 145-pounder. Others with experience include Rodney Rockwell, 150 pounds; Gary Crickon, 167 pounds; Rob Wright, 150 pounds, and Ron Woodruff, 112 pounds.

In addition there are eight freshmen and sophomores trying out for the team this fall for the first time.

Biefer sees the team improving as the season progresses and hopes to make up for lack of experience by aggressive wrestling.

He labels Caro as the team to beat in the Thumb B Association.

Erickson sweeps

football honors

Owen-Gage's Gary Erickson has made a clean sweep so far of post-season football honors.

The 5-10, 185-pound senior was named to the North Central Thumb D League all-conference first team as a linebacker.

The Associated Press and United Press International placed him on their all-state Class D squads as a linebacker.

Erickson was a recipient of a Bay City Times golden helmet award and he is a member of the Saginaw News Class D first team as a guard.

Understandably, he was his team's most valuable player.

Gary is the son of Supt. and Mrs. Ronald Erickson of Owendale.

During his senior year, he had 147 first-hit tackles, 38 assists, blocked five punts and two extra-point kicks, made 11 quarterback sacks, four fumble recoveries and intercepted five passes, one of which he returned 46 yards for a touchdown.

Buck luck

Ed Phetteplace of Leslie Road, Decker, shot a 12-point buck Nov. 19 in the Shabbona area.

Donavon Vining of Snover shot an 8-point buck Nov. 16 in the Shabbona area.

Mrs. Roger McPhail of 4805 E. Hoppe Road, Cass City, shot a nine-point buck, her first, the morning of Nov. 19 near Elkton. It weighed about 180 pounds field dressed.

Elect Thumb D all-loop team

Linda Retford of Owen-Gage and Lori Smith of Kingston received honorable mention in the selection by coaches of the North Central Thumb D League all-conference girls' basketball team.

Named to the first team were Aileen Simet, Caseville; Debbie Dean, Carsonville-Port Sanilac; Kim Davis, Deckerville; Renee Yaroch, North Huron; Brenda Humble and Charlene Crowe, both of Peck, and Alisa Swan, Akron-Fairgrove.

On the second team are Dawn Regnier and Mary Lou Williamson, both of C-PS; Iris Gallagher and Sandra Gaffke, both of Port Hope, and Michelle Stahl, Caseville.

Hawks favored in Thumb B title chase

Shortly after Coach Ron Nurnberger arrived at Cass City High School in 1974 Cass City became the team to be reckoned with in basketball in the Thumb B Association and fans are promised more of the same this season.

For the Hawks, the defending league champions, are favored to add another trophy to the five that it has won in the last seven years.

That's because the Hawks have three starters back from last year's unit, two of which will be playing their third year on the varsity.

Start with John Meininger, the 6-4 center who can be as good as he wants to be. An all-conference performer and leading scorer and rebounder for the team last season, Meininger could rate with the best the school has produced if he sets his mind to it.

Meininger in the previous two seasons has shown flashes of his potential, but not the consistent performance that marks the great players.

The back court promises to be a tower of strength with Joe Langenburg, senior with three years' experience, and Bryan Beecher, a junior who started 22 games last season. Langenburg is the outside shooter and Beecher the point guard.

Also playing with this pair will be Rick Randall, a junior who worked his way to the varsity late in the season last year.

Randall, a fine shooter, can fill in at guard or play a forward post and he's certain to log lots of playing time this year.

There are a couple of holes to fill. Tops is the loss of Rick Pobanz. He was all-conference last season and he provided the leadership and defense that helped the club to the title. Barry Lapp was the regular at the other forward and he provided experience and rebounding for the club. Rob Hartwick was the back-up center and forward and saw plenty of action as the sixth man on the squad.

that probably will be gaining experience for their senior year.

The Hawks open the season Friday with Harbor Beach in a non-conference tilt. Tuesday Cass City plays at Marlette, one of the teams Nurnberger predicts to be among the leaders. Others are Vassar and Lakers.

There are replacements on the horizon and how they perform will key the season. One of the biggest question marks is Todd Nurnberger, a rugged six-foot rebounder.

Nurnberger's problem is injuries. He missed all of last season with leg injuries. The tallest player on the squad is Scott Hurford, 6-7 senior. If Hurford could improve as much this season as he did last, he'll be the answer to the Hawks' rebounding problems. He's sure to be one of the players the coach is watching in the early season. Tom Summers, 6-1 senior, has had little playing time and could be the player from a group that will nail down one of the open forward posts. There are several players up from the Junior Varsity

There are fifty thousand rooms, or cells, in the average honeybee hive.

Hutchinson top all-star

Jill Hutchinson, Cass City senior, was a unanimous choice for the Thumb B Association all-conference basketball team selected by league coaches.

Hutchinson was the leading scorer with 320 points despite defenses that double and triple teamed her. She was also Cass City's leading rebounder with 157.

She was named the Hawks' most valuable player by teammates and coaches. Cathy Britt was named the most improved player on the team.

Hutchinson joins a pair of players from Marlette and one each from North Branch and Bad Axe on the dream team first squad.

The Hawks had no players on the second team. Joy Root received honorable mention.

Co-coaches of the year honors went to Tim Zeeman of North Branch and Terry Reid of Marlette.

The all-conference selections:

FIRST TEAM

Jill Hutchinson	Cass City	5-8	Sr.
Roxanne Repic	North Branch	5-9	Sr.
Cheryl Miller	Marlette	5-6	Sr.
Sue Byrnes	Marlette	5-9	Sr.
Laurie Mazure	Bad Axe	5-9	Sr.

SECOND TEAM

Susan Kohr	EPBP Laker	5-8	Jr.
Julia Plevnia	Bad Axe	5-8	Sr.
Marcia DeLorenzo	Caro	6-0	Jr.
Janel Nellenbach	North Branch	5-6	Jr.
Kelly Marston	North Branch	5-10	Sr.

HONORABLE MENTION

Terry Bauer, Caro; Joy Root, Cass City; Shelly Ginter, EPBP Laker; Sheri Gilkerson, Marlette; Melissa Nellenbach, North Branch; Laura Lee, Vassar; Ann Barnett, Vassar.

Joan Mosack on Delta's cage squad

Joan Mosack, a 1983 Owendale-Gagetown High School graduate, is playing on the Delta College basketball team, which starts its season Wednesday of this week.

"Joan has a good, accurate outside shot," said her coach, Jan Jaskiewicz, "but she came from a Class D school. She's going to have to get her shots in quicker here."

Mosack, listed as 6 ft., 1 in., is a reserve forward whom the coach anticipates will be seeing some playing time.

The faster play is one of the many transitions that incoming freshmen have to make, according to Jaskiewicz.

The college game is different from the high school version because of changes in court size, defensive stance and rule changes, especially the 30-second clock. The college game is also more shooting oriented, more physical, more time-consuming and more demanding of the player.

The Bay City area community college team finished 5-11 last season, which was Jaskiewicz' first year at the helm. She feels the team, which has two sophomores and eight freshmen, can finish at .500 this year.

Mosack averaged 12.6 points and 16.3 rebounds per game during her senior year at Owen-Gage, when the Bulldogs finished 6-15 overall.

Name bowler of the week

The Thumb Area Women's Bowling Association bowler of the week is Rejo Walter, who rolled a 592 series, 213-180-199.

She bowls for "Signs by Craig" in the Tuesday Ladies Out League at Bad Axe Lanes.

Women who bowled a 550 series or better were Sue Arnott, 595, Geri Miller, 590, Wanda Sorrell, 582, and Bonnie Adams, 575, all of whom bowl in Kinde; Shirley Messing, 571, Harbor Beach; Judy Muntz, 571, Bad Axe; Helen Guster, 564, and Bea Harwood, 559, both Kinde; Phyllis McIntosh, 558, at the Charmont, and Nancy Gainer, 557, Kinde.

Arnott, Sorrell and Muntz are former bowlers of the week.

WINTER DRIVING TIP

During the winter, snow and ice often lead to a familiar highway sight—the hapless motorist and his car stuck in a snowdrift. More and more, wise drivers are turning to Tidy Cat 3 cat box filler to help them avoid such winter driving hazards.

If your car gets stuck because the tires won't hold, clay cat box filler can be just the thing to toss under the wheels to absorb moisture and provide better traction. First, clean away the excess snow around the rear tires. Sprinkle a generous amount of Tidy Cat 3 cat box filler under the tires in the direction you want to go, then drive your car away slowly. The cat box filler provides a rough, dry surface that makes driving easier.

With the added weight of one or two large bags in the trunk of your car, it will handle better on slick roads, and you'll always be prepared to go in snow!

RARE DOE -- Selma Schulz of 6242 River Road, Cass City, shot this doe, which has one horn, at 3:10 p.m. Friday, a mile west of Argyle. Last year, she shot a doe on a doe permit. This was her third year of deer hunting, so she has yet to get a buck.

Village Bach Festival draws praise, but per concert attendance down at the First Presbyterian Church, plus the Tuesday evening piano recital there by Thomas Brown and the Midland performance.

DON TH. JAEGER, seen here during a rehearsal, has been conductor and music director all five years of the Village Bach Festival.

Ticket sales chairman Gloria Oury said about 150 persons attended the Tuesday recital and there were about 200 spectators at each of the other concerts, including Midland.

The total of almost 1,000 tickets sold contrasts to about 800 last year for three concerts. The First Presbyterian Church seats about 300, so plenty of seats, mainly in the general admission area, were empty.

"I think we'll make ends meet," Althaver said. "I don't think we'll run a deficit."

The festival's cash budget was about $22,000, of which $6,700 came from the Michigan Council for the Arts and the rest from ticket sales, patron ticket sales and donations.

Festival Chairman Holly Althaver hopes more local residents will take advantage of the opportunity to see the concerts in the future and to help in other ways. "I think we need to encourage more of the community people to be involved," she commented.

"It is so special and people who come here have a sense of this being so special."

Many of the performers, she said, are early in their musical careers and some day will be so prominent, "we won't be able to afford them."

She offered as an example William Preucil Jr., concertmaster of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, who as featured performer in a selection by Antonio Vivaldi Saturday evening (not all the music played is by Bach), played a Stradivarius violin valued at $250,000.

Musicians coming here receive free food and housing with local families, are reimbursed for their travel and are paid less than what they usually receive for performing.

"The quality of the music was better than ever," Mrs. Althaver said. "It was the best we have had."

As for overall operation of the festival, the fifth annual, she said it went very smooth.

She is planning on a sixth, as is Don Th. Jaeger, the conductor and music director. The latter means he decides on the selections played and arranges for the musicians who perform.

"We always feel wonderful after, because it is always musically and personally rewarding," he commented after the Sunday afternoon concert.

He pointed out that the Bach Festival is unique in that the musicians rehearse about six hours Friday and Saturday and then perform those evenings (there is less time to rehearse Sunday), which is "almost unheard of" and in big cities with musicians' unions, not done.

"It's a tremendous amount to do considering the time we have," Jaeger commented. "It's amazing it all comes together as well as it does and it's only because of the commitment everyone makes."

Making the task easier, he said, is that many of the musicians have performed together at each of the festivals.

One who hasn't been here before was tenor Gran Wilson, who lives in New York City. "The level of performing is phenomenal," he said of his first Bach Festival. "It's just an honor to perform with colleagues of that level."

Wilson was recommended to Jaeger to perform by baritone Eugene Proctor, who sang here for the first time last year and returned this year. He and Wilson met when both performed last spring with the opera in Birmingham, Ala.

They found they had grown up about 35 miles away from each other in Alabama and had played football against each other in high school.

Wilson said when Proctor first called him to tell him about the Cass City festival, he talked for about 10 minutes "about how great it was."

Another first time performer was Drew Hinderer, who plays bassoon, and is a member of the music faculty at Saginaw Valley State College.

"It's a real pleasure to play with a group as capable as this one," he commented. "To play for an audience as appreciative as this one is a pleasure as well."

PRACTICE, PRACTICE—Rehearsing is serious business, as is evident by the expressions of Doris Orstein, playing the harpsichord, and William Preucil Jr., violin.

He was also sentenced to 160 days in the county jail, with credit given for 132 days served, fined $300 and assessed $300 court costs. Putnam pleaded guilty to the charge Oct. 17.

The two offenses took place Sept. 24 in Ellington Township. Peddie pleaded guilty Nov. 8.

Robert J. Putnam, 43, of 545 Plain Road, Defor was placed on probation for one year for impaired driving July 16 in Almer Township. He pleaded guilty Oct. 31.

Putnam was also fined $176, assessed $149 court costs, is to pay $50 restitution to mental health and is to attend the Alcohol Highway Safety Education program, a self-help group and receive counseling. His driver's license was suspended for three months.

Randall K. Hicks, 20, of Mount Clemens pleaded guilty Tuesday to no valid operator's license in his possession Sept. 21 in Cass City. His plea was accepted and he was fined $40.

'Army' of musicians well-fed by Rita Capps, Karen Fischer and crew

An army travels on its stomach and so do musicians.

Karen Fischer and Rita Capps know, because for three years they have been in charge of feeding the musicians and their families at the Village Bach Festival.

That works out to feeding about 50 persons at lunch

Friday and Saturday and after the afternoon concert Sunday.

In addition, the two volunteers were in charge of a reception after the Tuesday evening recital and the Saturday evening concert.

Although the main courses were prepared at the First Presbyterian Church, pies, cakes, cookies and Jello were made by volunteers at home and brought to the church.

In addition, three or four volunteers came in to help at each meal. Two dishwashers were paid.

On the menu Friday was beef vegetable soup and homemade bread and pie. Lunch Saturday consisted of chop suey, tossed salad, bread sticks and cake. Sunday featured ham sandwiches and baked beans.

Over the years, Mrs. Fischer and Ms. Capps have learned the musicians' likes and dislikes, since many come back each year. For instance, no spices or garlics and no heavy, like spaghetti or turkey.

Feeding the musicians isn't all the two women do. They also provide entertainment. Starting with last year, a big part of the Friday and Saturday lunches was a placemat contest.

For Friday's event this year, Ms. Capps' daughter, Stacey, 12, drew a face on each placemat and musicians had to write about the life of the character.

Saturday, the word

"music" was written in Chinese on each menu, and also, "Confucius say." The musicians had to write a proverb.

Some of the responses were:

"He who rehearses all day has sore Bach."

"Bach Festival follow Erben renewal." (The Presbyterian Church's Henry Erben tracker organ, built in 1865, was restored in 1978.)

"Duck who fly upside down has quack-up."

Each of the placemats, no matter how good or bad, won a prize, such as a pencil or gum.

Planning, preparing and serving the meals is a lot of work, the women admit, but, Mrs. Fischer said, "When you get hugs and kisses from people you see once a year, it's worth it."

Kingston board approves cuts

The Kingston School Board Monday evening approved various program cuts intended to save the school district $35,000 and help balance the budget.

None of the reductions involves teachers.

The reductions, according to Supt. Jerry Laycock, are as follows:

--Reduce the total number of hours worked by elementary teacher aides 15 hours per week.

--Eliminate one custodial position. The person being "laid off," Laycock said, will continue working for some time, subbing for custodians with more seniority who are off work due to illness.

--Reduce the total number of hours worked by high school cooks' helpers 12½ hours per week.

--Reduce the athletic budget by $1,400 and asking the Athletic Boosters to pay for junior high school coaching positions.

--Asking the Band Boosters to help pay transportation costs for the band.

--Reducing the amount of money spent for purchase of supplies, equipment, and textbooks by 20 percent.

--Reduce the number of weeks worked by the high school attendance secretary to 42 a year.

--Eliminate one bus run by adjusting routes run by the other buses.

--Eliminate the study hall proctor position.

--Reduce the number of hours worked by the Chapter I remedial reading program to five hours per day.

--Minor adjustments.

The various cuts take effect Dec. 5. Although they should save $35,000 from the 1983-84 budget, Laycock said, "That does not solve the problem."

For that reason, he explained, the board will continue to look at other cost cutting measures. The cuts made Monday will be the largest made for 1983-84.

In other action, the board approved a school calendar in accordance with the tentative agreement with the

Christmas vacation will start Dec. 21. Classes will resume Jan. 3.

There will be no school Friday, March 23. Spring vacation will consist of a four-day week end, Good Friday, April 20, through April 23.

The last day of school will be June 1.

The board met in executive session to discuss the tentative contract with teachers.

CHIEF COOKS—One reason musicians like to come to the Village Bach Festival is the food. Responsible for feeding them at the First Presbyterian Church are Rita Capps (left) and Karen Fischer, who rarely see any of the concerts.

MEDIA ATTRACTION—Television crews and newspaper reporters entering Campbell Elementary School Monday to talk to students and teachers about the space flight of Brewster Shaw Jr. were greeted with this sign.

Shaw's launch big in Cass City

Campbell Elementary School Principal Jacqueline Freiburger said it must have been the biggest news event in Cass City since it was known as "Christmas Town" in the 1950s.

Monday's launch of Cass City astronaut Brewster Shaw Jr. into space aboard the Columbia brought news media to town looking for a "local angle."

They found it at Campbell, and to a lesser extent at the high school and intermediate school and downtown.

At Campbell were television crews from Channel 7 in Southfield (Detroit), Channels 5 and 25 from Saginaw and Channel 12 from Flint and reporters from newspapers in Bay City, Port Huron, Saginaw and Bad Axe.

There may have been others that Mrs. Freiburger didn't know about. "It kept mushrooming," she said. "I just kept seeing more and more coming in here."

All the children got to see the 11 a.m. launch on television.

What made Campbell of special interest to the news media was the students' art work about the flight decorating the halls and related projects. The classroom of first grade teacher Sherryll Dillon, who has known Brewster Shaw since high school days, was decorated for the occasion, plus she decorated one hallway display case.

In addition, there was a large banner across the main entranceway to the school that read, "We salute the Columbia," along with the names of the six astronauts.

What was shown on Channel 5 was filmed at Campbell and downtown; Channel 12, at the intermediate school, and Channel 25, at the high school.

"It did put Cass City on the map," Mrs. Freiburger said of Shaw's space flight and the visits by the news media to his home town. "It's been an exciting day."

The Channel 12 crew had too much excitement. On their way to Cass City, on M-81, near Deckerville Road, a bullet hit a window of their van, presumably a stray fired by a deer hunter.

Your neighbor says

I'm not ready yet to quit smoking

The newest U.S. Surgeon General's report on smoking was recently released by C. Everett Koop, MD.

His report said heart disease caused by smoking will kill 170,000 Americans this year.

"Unless smoking habits of the American population change, perhaps 10 percent of all persons now alive may die prematurely of heart disease attributable to their smoking behavior," the report said.

The good news, according to Koop, is that new research has shown the increased risk of death from heart disease begins to recede almost immediately after a cigarette smoker quits.

Despite the surgeon general's warning, Sandi Wright isn't ready yet to quit smoking. "Not right now," she said. "If somebody said, 'You're going to die right now,' then I'd quit."

Mrs. Wright, 26, goes through a pack of cigarettes in three days, confining her smoking usually to after a meal or with a cup of coffee.

She started smoking when she was 16 and did quit for about five years, starting when she became pregnant, as she thought it would be unhealthy for her children-to-be. Her children are Heather, 8, and Jill, 6.

Why did Mrs. Wright resume smoking? "Boredom, I guess. . . Curbs your appetite too, I guess."

Another reason for smoking is, "You get a cup of coffee and you have to have a cigarette with that cup of coffee."

Asked whether the health warnings about cigarette smoking concern her, she responded, "Sometimes it does, but then I forget about it."

Mrs. Wright's husband, Steve, also smokes. She feels whether parents smoke can have an influence on whether their children smoke. "I know parents who don't smoke and their kids don't smoke."

However, that isn't always true, she pointed, since children can have a lot of influence on other children.

Mrs. Wright and her family live at 4276 Ale Street. She is employed at General Cable.

Lary Parker funeral Saturday

Lary Floyd Parker, 23, of Cass City died Monday, at his residence of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

He was born April 2, 1960, in Kingston Township, the son of Earl and Mildred Parker.

Parker, a 1978 graduate of Cass City High School, was employed by Erla's Food Center of Cass City. He was a member of the Cass City Bowling League.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mildred Parker, Decker; two sisters, Mrs. DeWayne (Ellen) Horne, and Karen Parker, both of Decker; two brothers, Randy Parker of Caro and Andrew Parker of Marlette; five nieces, and two nephews. One brother, Gary, and one niece, Kelda, preceded him in death.

The deceased will be taken from Little's Funeral Home, Cass City, at 9 a.m. Saturday to the Novesta Baptist Church to lie in state until the 11 a.m. funeral service. Rev. John Lang will officiate.

Burial will be in Ellington Township Cemetery.

Colon to be sentenced for negligent homicide

Baudilio Colon, 34, of Detroit, pleaded no contest to a charge of negligent homicide when he appeared Nov. 21 before Tuscola County Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Colon was charged in connection with a Sept. 1 traffic accident that took the life of Marion C. Ballman, 66, of Port Austin.

He was northbound on M-24, it was charged, failed to stop at the stop sign at M-46, and his van struck the car broadside in which Mrs. Ballman was riding.

Colon's plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be set. Bond was continued.

In exchange for Colon's plea, the prosecution reduced the charge from involuntary manslaughter.

In other cases Nov. 21: Richard C. Harley, 42, formerly of Mayville, was sentenced to 20-30 years in prison for supplemental information, with credit given for 872 days served. A jury found him guilty of the charge Sept. 20.

In November, 1981, a jury found him guilty of criminal sexual conduct (2nd degree), after which he pleaded guilty to supplemental information of being an habitual offender because of two prior felony convictions. That meant under state law he could be sentenced to twice the normal maximum, so Joslyn sentenced Harley to 30 years in prison, twice the regular sentence.

Harley then appealed his guilty plea to the supplemental information charge. The Michigan Court of Appeals ruled his plea was invalid because he was not properly advised of his rights and ordered a new trial.

The new sentence in essence confirms the original one.

Mark C. Catlin, 22, formerly of Caro, was sentenced to 5-10 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling. He was credited with 94 days served.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Nov. 8, of breaking into a combination restaurant and store in Fremont Township Jan. 5 of this year. Catlin is already serving a sentence at Jackson for another crime.

Richard T. Filkins Jr., 18, of 2051 Dixon Road, Caro, was sentenced to one year in the county jail for unlawful use of an auto Sept. 30 in Vassar Township. He pleaded guilty to the charge Oct. 17.

Filkins was credited with 53 days served and 30 days of the sentence was suspended.

Probation was reinstated for Gary J. Periso, 21, of 6206 Barrett Road, Kingston, who pleaded guilty Oct. 17 to violating probation by failing to report to his probation officer in July and August, 1982.

He was also sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, with credit given for time served and ordered to pay $96 attorney fees.

Periso was placed on 60 months' probation in November, 1981, for larceny in a building.

Sentencing was delayed one year for Lisa Gail Moon, also known as Lisa Gail Fox, 18, of 3253 Gilford Road, Caro, for larceny in a building.

She pleaded guilty to the charge Oct. 3, of stealing items from an Almer Township house Sept. 10.

J.T. Dickens, 42, of Clio, stood mute to three charges. Pleas of innocent were entered and a pretrial hearing scheduled Dec. 5. Bond was continued.

He is charged with attempted larceny in a building Sept. 30, larceny in a building Oct. 1, both involving Arbela Township groceries, and breaking and entering an occupied dwelling, an Arbela house, Oct. 4.

Council discusses big budget items

GENERAL FUND

The council spent 70 minutes in executive session discussing salaries for village employees in 1984.

"We discussed a lot of alternatives," Althaver said afterwards, but no decision was reached. The council will have to make a decision at its Dec. 27 meeting.

It scheduled a public hearing on the proposed budget at 7:30 p.m. at that meeting.

The general fund budget projects revenues of $603,500 and the same amount in expenditures.

Property tax revenue (included in the $603,500) is projected at $294,300, a 3½ percent increase from this year, all due to new construction, not higher assessments.

Federal revenue sharing payments are projected at $40,000, about the same as this year. The council decided all of it, as it always has, will be used for the police department.

Various state revenues are projected at $138,300, almost $10,000 more than this year.

There are no radical changes in general fund expenditures from this year. The only big purchase will be a new police car.

The proposed budget was prepared by Althaver and Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie.

OTHER ITEMS

The council authorized taking bids for the sewage lift station project in the southeast corner of the village. Bids will be due Dec. 22 and opened at the Dec.

27 meeting. Weather permitting, work can begin this winter.

The original estimated total cost was $57,200 but it has been learned the village will have to pay for installation of a new utility pole to serve the station, which will increase the cost.

The village's engineers, Hubbell, Roth and Clark, should have a recommendation at the December meeting on what should be done about the landfill, including whether Cass City can maybe get a variance to keep it in operation without costly changes.

The legislature has amended the state charter law governing villages. The new law, signed by the governor, gives village presidents "the right to vote upon any questions before the council."

Previously, village presidents only voted to break ties. Now they can vote on all issues.

In his monthly report to the council, LaPonsie reported residents on Third Street between Maple and Woodland were having a severe rust problem when hydrants were flushed, so the area was "isolated" and just that portion of the water system was flushed to solve the problem. It is believed the water line was low in the area, so rust was accumulating there from throughout the village.

Twenty-one trees have been planted in the park and 27 elsewhere in the community.

Treasurer Joyce LaRoche reported 95 percent of village property taxes had been collected when they were turned in to the county treasurer's office, compared to 95.2 percent a year ago. A total of $17,749 wasn't paid by the deadline, so will now be collected by the county treasurer.

Taking stock

Here's one for your collection — and mine — of memorable phrases of our television performers: (I refuse to call them newsmen.)

Bill Monroe on "Meet the Press" in a question to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. John Vessey Jr.: "Sir, will you give us the specifics in general on Cuban resistance in Grenada."

Speaking of Grenada and television, and many newspapers, especially the New York Times and the Washington Post, are backpedaling furiously after their snide references to the invasion.

Leslie Stahl, for example, the Sunday after the landings, sneeringly asked a panelist if it wasn't true that the weapons found on Grenada were guns 100 years old.

Well, it turned out there was anti-aircraft fire against our planes, there were Russian guns and North Korean guns, and there was a warehouse filled to the ceiling with 200 crates of ammunition and weapons.

A New York reporter couldn't let that go unchallenged. "They weren't stacked to the ceiling," said this fellow.

Sunday, Secretary of Defense Weinberger showed pictures on "Face the Nation" of the warehouse with weapons boxes stacked not only to the eaves but to the peak of the roof.

On "Meet the Press," the New York Times men questioned the fact that there was serious and determined resistance when our troops landed. Gen. Vessey told him he and his associates ought to talk with some of the men who parachuted in at the start of the fighting.

"Your people have been interviewing troops now on Grenada," said the general. "Scarcely any of them were there the first few days. You should go to the American bases where the Rangers have now returned to. Those are the men who know."

"As a matter of fact, there was more and stiffer resistance than we had counted on."

Secretary Weinberger also showed a picture of an armed personnel carrier — hardly a piece of machinery necessary to build an airport.

Richard McCormack, assistant secretary of state, who talked at the Palm Beach Round Table recently, reported that this so-called commercial airport the Cubans were supposedly there to build, had rifle racks installed in the toilets.

There were documents showing agreements for the Cubans, Russians and North Koreans, to supply some $19 million in arms to this tiny island of 110,000 people. There were other documents showing the organization and location of such peace-oriented things as "Mortar Battery" and "Anti-Aircraft Company."

All these findings have quieted the pooh-poohers a little. Some public polls have helped, too. The Boca Raton News got nearly a page of letters to the editor. Of 90 letters, 83 approved the invasion; seven were against.

CBS polled Grenadians on their views. Ninety percent were glad the Americans came. President Reagan's approval rating went up 10 points.

It seemed as though everyone except Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain and the usual anti-American bloc the UN approved. Mrs. Thatcher's criticism remains a puzzler.

First the press and the TV performers tried to equate Grenada with Afghanistan. This anti-Reagan crowd studiously ignored several facts:

1. Afghanistan was minding its own business and not threatening its neighbors.

2. No one asked Russia to come into Afghanistan as there was no internal slaughtering going on, as there was in Grenada. Six Caribbean nations did urgently ask the U.S. to restore order in an island already in a state of anarchy.

3. Does anyone think Russia will pull out of Afghanistan? Does anyone think America will stay in Grenada, or make it a puppet state?

4. Was there anything in Grenada resembling the Russian massacre of several hundred innocent civilian Afghans who took refuge in a tunnel?

Next the news hounds tried to get Secretary Weinberger and Gen. Vessey to say that Nicaragua will be our next invasion. Perhaps it will, but to conclude that as a certainty doesn't follow because we went into Grenada.

In the first place, we aren't being asked by Nicaragua's neighbors. There is no state of anarchy existing and no slaying of innocents, as in Grenada.

Meanwhile the press is trying to plant the idea that the U.S. is hell-bent on going to war.

Then we come to nit-picking. When the soldiers first went in, they estimated there were 1,000 Cubans opposing them. The count now is something like 775, and there are perhaps a few still hiding under beds. So a battlefield estimate was 29 percent high. So what?

The point was, there was serious and determined resistance.

Then the press and the boys and girls on the telly pooh-poohed claims that the students were in danger.

I listened to Robert Sweeney of Delray Beach tell an audience at the Palm Beach Round Table that he feared for his life that the students were threatened with death if they went on the streets, and there was no way of getting off the island, contrary to claims of the press.

"There had been no commercial flights for a week before the American troops came," he said. "I think the American soldiers saved me from being held hostage and probably killed."

Sweeney is a former Palm Beach county police officer. He spoke convincingly.

I thought, too, the newspaper and the TV people complained far too much over not being able to accompany the first troops. After all, it was a surprise action, and secrecy was very important. Beside, this, it was airborne. Did Walter Cronkite want to parachute in—at his age?

Frankly, the first reports that were given out by the Army and the White House were quite complete and accurate. I, for one, didn't really miss the private news coverage, and I had little sympathy for the belly-achers.

Commissioners approve '84 county budget

Kent Jr. tried to order higher salaries for some employees of his court.

Elected and appointed department heads are receiving a 5.75 percent pay increase in 1984. Court-house employees received a 7 percent pay hike as of July 1 this year and will get another 4 percent starting July 1 of next year. Wages for sheriff's department employees, which will be retroactive to last July 1, are still being negotiated.

THE BIGGEST SINGLE increase in the budget is capital improvements, from $22,000 this year to $283,000 in 1984. Proposed expenditures include a new radio system and well at the sheriff's department, computer system, new windows at the Medical Care Facility and a law library.

Another large increase, over which the county commissioners have little control, is drains-at-large, budgeted at $210,135, compared to $63,150 that will probably be spent this year.

Next year being an election year, $49,000 is budgeted for elections for the county clerk's office. This year, only $1,850 was spent for the purpose.

Another big increase is courthouse and grounds, up $44,158 to $242,554, with a big reason being intended rebuilding of the courthouse roof.

Other big increases include employee hospital insurance, up $26,560; insurance and bonds, up $30,000; retirement, up $23,506, and Social Security, up $20,000.

Budget items where spending decreased are few. The biggest decrease is due to the end of the program that employed an agronomist in the Cooperative Extension Service, from $31,989 this year to none in 1984.

The Board of Commissioners' budget is declining from $96,500 to $90,000.

In other action at last week's meeting, commissioners approved hiring Beth Howard of Cass City as the juvenile probation officer.

SMOKING: WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

Smoking is the Number 1 risk factor for heart disease. The risk of heart attack is doubled in heavy cigarette smokers.

Fortunately, if you stop smoking, the risk decreases almost to the same level as for people who have never smoked.

If you have any questions about heart disease, see your doctor.

Fire damage at Station set at $500

Cause of a fire that caused minimal damage in the upstairs of The Station tavern in Cass City early Sunday appears to have been arson.

The fire in the Main Street building could have been much worse.

It was discovered by owner Roger Reid and his employees when they spotted smoke outside as they were leaving. They and Cass City police officer Mike Stec used fire extinguishers to try to put out the fire, but without success.

The fire siren sounded about 3:05 a.m. Elkland Township firemen arrived a few minutes later and had the fire out in about 25 minutes.

The fire started in an empty upstairs room. Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. said it started in a corner and burned through the wall and floor.

Firemen used a rotary gasoline engine-driven saw to cut through the wall paneling to get to the fire.

Root was concerned that the fire might quickly spread in the old building, so asked the Caro Fire Department to send its overhead ladder truck. It was told to turn around before it got to Cass City.

Reid told firemen he checked the upstairs after closing, 30-45 minutes before the fire was discovered.

Because its origin appeared suspicious, Root asked Detective Larry Walker of the Tuscola

County Sheriff's Department to investigate.

Root said Walker feels the fire was started deliberately and sent samples of wood and carpet to the state police crime laboratory to test for presence of flammable liquids.

The fire chief estimated damage at $500.

Fire cause remains unknown

Cause of the Nov. 20 fire that destroyed the home of Chuck and Sara Watros southwest of Cass City will never be known.

Detective Larry Walker, fire investigator for the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, who went through the remains twice, said last Wednesday that no cause could be found.

The problem was that the fire, fanned by strong winds, was so intense it burned any evidence that might indicate a cause. That might not have happened with a less intense fire, he explained.

It wasn't possible to determine where the fire started.

Some causes were eliminated, Walker said, including the basement furnace—“About the only thing left was the floor (above it),” —and the wood burning stove, since it wasn't being used.

FIREMAN Don Finkbeiner sprays some water to make sure the early Sunday morning fire in a vacant second floor room at The Station was out. The fire is thought to have been deliberately set. Damage was estimated at $500.

'Muth museum collects Shaw items

Cass City native Brewster Shaw Jr. is orbiting in space, but some souvenirs of his past flying career are on the ground.

Lou Bozich, assistant director of Michigan's Own Military and Space Museum in Frankenmuth, said the astronaut has given the museum one of his dress uniforms, medals and decorations and a flight suit.

The museum also has uniforms and flight suits of four other Michigan natives who were astronauts, two of whom are on the museum's board of directors, according to Ms. Bozich. The four are Jack Lousma, the late Roger Chaffee, Alfred Worden and James McDivitt.

The museum also has other artifacts, including uniforms of five Michigan governors who served in the military.

It is located in the lower level of Schoolhouse Square on Main Street and is open from 10-5 Monday through Saturday and 12-5 Sunday.

For oil and gas

State to offer leases in area

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources in Lansing Monday will auction oil and gas leases on state-owned land in 35 counties, including Huron and Tuscola, one reason being to make money for the state.

There will be 235 acres on the auction block in Huron, in Grant, Brookfield and Sebawaing Counties.

In Tuscola, 4,440 acres are to be auctioned, in Elkland, Ellington, Elmwood, Kingston, Novesta, Columbia, Wells, Watertown, Vassar, Fremont, Denmark, Juniata, Indianfields, Almer and Akron Townships.

Not all the state land in those townships is being auctioned.

A total of 173,455 acres statewide will be auctioned, divided into 1,877 parcels that will be sold by oral bid, 25 by sealed bid and one on a royalty bid.

The first criterion in deciding what lands will be auctioned, explained David Freed, supervisor of the DNR's minerals lease management section, was that oil and gas companies and individuals asked that the lands be made available for drilling.

A field review was then conducted of the properties by DNR staff and certain lands were eliminated, for instance, park land that is considered “unique and sensitive.”

The DNR's Wildlife Division has a say in the process. Freed couldn't say for sure, but didn't think any game areas will be involved in the leasing.

The public was given an opportunity to comment on the lands proposed for leasing. The state Natural Resources Commission finally had to approve the list of lands that will be bid on Monday.

AS FURTHER PROTECTION for the land, it is divided into two categories.

On “non-developmental” land, which is considered unique for one reason or another, drilling won't be allowed from the surface. To get to the oil or gas that might be underneath, the drillers will have to slant drill from nearby land that is privately owned or from state land that is categorized as “Developmental.”

On developmental lands, drilling can only be done after receiving a permit from the DNR's Geological Survey Division.

The lease doesn't guarantee the buyer the right to drill, Freed explained. On the permit application, he must show where the intended drilling will take place and the environmental impact. The DNR can then require changes.

For instance, he offered as an example, on a 40-acre parcel, the DNR might request the driller to put his rig closer to the road than he proposed, so that less land will be disrupted between the drilling site and the road.

The DNR has the ultimate authority to refuse to allow drilling on land it leases, but that hasn't happened yet, according to Freed.

On some of the land available for lease, the state owns the mineral rights but doesn't own the surface. A lot of the land is state forest, with the state owning the surface and mineral rights, where no “intensive management,” such as timber harvesting, is taking place.

THE MINIMUM BID on the land is $10 per acre. Starting with the third year, there is a $2 per acre rental fee. The standard lease is for seven years. If the lease is renewed, there is an additional $1 per year rental fee.

If oil is found, the state receives one-sixth of the royalties.

Sometimes, the company or person who buys the leasing rights sells the lease to someone else, but the state must approve all such transactions.

Occasionally, Freed said, adjacent property owners will buy the leases and then sit on them, just to guarantee there won't be drilling next door to their property. Usually when someone tries to do that, he is outbid by someone interested in drilling.

Much of the state land, Freed said, is in a checkerboard pattern, with the state parcels alternating with privately owned ones.

Because the land is leased -- and on some, there may be no bidders -- doesn't mean drilling will take place. “Probably the majority of what we lease doesn't get drilled,” Freed said.

Sometimes, oil companies will lease land they don't want, as well as land they might drill on, just to confuse competitors.

Lately, according to other DNR officials, little drilling activity has been taking place.

New books at the library

HOLLYWOOD WIVES by Jackie Collins (fiction). The pampered and privileged denizens of the glittering microcosm that is Beverly Hills vie for money, power and sex. Among them: the wife of an over-the-hill star who fights to put her husband's career back on track; the most powerful woman in Hollywood, who can make or break a career with one phone call, and the renegade wife who finally realizes her dream of writing and directing a major movie.

ON CHILDREN AND DEATH by Elisabeth Kubler-Ross (non-fiction). Dr. Ross' book on children and death is made up largely of letters to and from parents, case histories, and children's notes and poems. Chapters deal with various causes of death, such as miscarriage and stillbirth, terminal illness, and sudden death, both accidental and violent. Kubler-Ross' sometimes-strident voice rarely becomes sentimental, and even those who reject her theories about children's foreknowledge of death and out-of-body experiences may find solace in the forthright, practical counsel for parents, relatives, and siblings of children who have died. The concluding chapter lists names and addresses of support groups for bereaved parents.

RICHARD SIMMONS' BETTER BODY BOOK (non-fiction). Here are all-new, fully illustrated exercises and full-scale fitness programs for everyone, from the reigning American monarch of fitness. Richard Simmons continues his campaign for universal fitness with chapters that focus on specific body parts and presents especially fashioned exercises for those parts - from head to toe. Complete exercise and fitness plans range from the basic to the advanced and include plans for people with back problems, the handicapped, seniors, pregnant women, and the overweight. More than 200 photographs illustrate a fitness book for every age and condition.

Votes needed for ASC committeemen

Jimmy LaVoie, county executive director of the Huron County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, reminds farm owners and operators to cast their votes by mail to elect community committeemen and return them to the ASCS office, 46 Westland Drive, Bad Axe, by Dec. 5.

If an eligible voter did not receive a ballot by mail, one may be obtained at the ASCS office.

The county committee will tabulate ballots Dec. 8. Elected committeemen and delegates to the county convention will be notified by mail after Dec. 8.

The county convention will be Dec. 15. Delegates will elect members of the county committee to replace those whose terms expired in 1983.

Old farm photos needed

"Michigan History," the state's official historical publication, is looking for old Michigan farm photos for the 1984 March-April issue on agriculture. Photos should be sent to Sandra Clark, editor; Michigan History, Department of State; Lansing, Mich. 48918. All photos will be returned after the issue is published.

Stephenson leaving as dairy agent

Mark Stephenson, Sanilac County Cooperative Extension Service dairy agent, will be leaving Jan. 1.

He has been accepted at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., into the Department of Agricultural Economics, where he will be working toward his PhD in the area of milk marketing and milk orders.

Stephenson and his wife Linda and family came to Sanilac County April 1, 1981, from a dairy farm near Elsie, where he was the manager. He has B.S. and M.S. degrees from Michigan State University in Dairy Science.

While the dairy agent in Sanilac County, Stephenson specialized in producing milk more economically by better herd management and scientific feeding principles using programable calculator and computer. He also developed in-depth training sessions for the total dairy family.

Home Care Week noted in Sanilac

The Sanilac County Health Department is celebrating National Home Care Week.

Nationwide, more than 2 million elderly, sick, disabled and dying receive health and social services they need in the comfort and privacy of their own homes.

The department provides home care services to more than 100 persons each year. These services include daily skilled nursing care; physical, speech, and occupational therapy; nutrition counseling; pain management; and non-medical services to keep the patients' environment safe and healthy.

Data from the National Association for Home Care in Washington, D.C., shows that the average annual cost per home care Medicare beneficiary in 1982 was $819, compared to $1,170 for nursing home care and $3,675 for hospital care.

Pvt. Kawecki finishes training

Pvt. Jeffrey L. Kawecki, son of Arlen I. and Leonard S. Kawecki of 6687 Leslie Road, Uby, has completed one station unit training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. Completion of this course qualifies the soldier as a light-weapon infantryman and as an indirect-fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.
