What happens next? Students learning to use computers

By Mike Eliasohn

The Cass City schools are moving cautiously into the computer age. Intermediate school students who finish eighth grade in 1985 will be the first ones to go on to high school with a full three years of computer training. Most of the training students at the intermediate school and a relatively few at the high school are receiving is how to use computers, as opposed to using computers to learn something else.

Using the computers as learning tools is proceeding at a slower pace, partially because students have to first learn how to use the computers and partially because teachers, who also have to learn how to use them, are only slowly becoming aware of how they can be used in their classrooms.

However, extensive use of computers as part of the regular curriculum is going to require purchase of more computer programs, so-called software, and eventually, especially at the high school, more computers.

There presently are nine computers at the intermediate school, all purchased with federal funds. The first two at the high school were bought by the student Computer Club. Three more were added this past fall, paid for with federal funds.

The intermediate school got its eight computers about a year ago and sixth graders were given an introductory course. The ninth was added this fall. All nine are in a third floor classroom.

The intermediate school will be getting a 10th computer soon, paid for with funds raised by the Student Council by selling Christmas tree ornaments. About $2,000 was raised, most of which will be used for the computer, but some will be used for other student programs. The computer will go in the library, for use by students, teachers and the librarian.

DURING THE CURRENT school year, all sixth graders are coming to the computer room once a week, usually for 50 minutes, although some teachers keep the students there longer.

Seventh graders work with the computers for six weeks only, one period a day each day.

Eighth graders, as part of their math class, started going to the computer room once a week about midway through the first semester and will continue to do so for the rest of the school year.

The students like working on the computers, according to math teacher Diana Williams, who teaches all the seventh grade computer classes, "because they love to put a program on and see what it can do. They just get really excited."

With nine computers, that works out to three or four students at each, unless some sit and do other things while waiting their turns. One or two students per computer is ideal, according to Miss Williams. With two, "they help each other."

Grand service in Cass City appears doomed

By Mike Eliasohn

The odds appear slim and none that Cass City will have rail service again, either from the Grand Trunk Western Railroad or another railroad.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is expected to rule by the end of this month on the Grand Trunk's petition to abandon its line that runs 50.24 miles from Kings Mill, north of Imlay City, through Kingston, Cass City, Gageton and Owendale to Pigeon.

No one contacted by the Chronicle who has used the railroad expects the ICC to deny the Grand Trunk's request.

If the railroad is given permission to end service, the only way it would be continued is if another carrier takes over the line. That appears very doubtful.

For all practical purposes, service ended Sept. 3. That is when the Grand Trunk imposed a $600 per car surcharge, which in theory would have sharply reduced its losses on the line provided it didn't lose any customers.

The added cost, however, made shipping by rail more costly than by truck and grain shipments stopped once it went into effect. Larry King, Pillsbury traffic specialist at Saginaw, referred to the surcharge as "something we cannot live with."

Rail shipping was the best way for Pillsbury to haul much of its grain from its elevator in Cass City, but, "You can't crawl up and die," so it now is all hauled by truck. The firm also has a small elevator at Owendale along the rail line.

Agri-Sales, Inc., which has elevators at Gageton and North Branch, which were served by Grand Trunk, so far has absorbed the additional cost of hauling all its grain by truck, in order to stay competitive with elevators elsewhere which still have rail service, according to its president, Donald Slachta. "At this point, we're eating it ourselves."

According to a Grand Trunk document submitted to the ICC Nov. 25, no cargo has been loaded along the line since Sept. 3.

There has been one carload of bricks unloaded at Pigeon and three tanker cars of resin base used for making plastic hauled to the General Cable plant at Cass City. (A General Cable official told the Chronicle when the resin can no longer be brought to the plant by rail, it can be shipped by truck.)

THE MOST LIKELY candidate to use the line appears to be the Tuscola and Saginaw Bay Railway, but its president, P.J. DeWolf, said Monday that a takeover "is probably not worthwhile, but we haven't made a final decision on it yet." A decision is expected by next week.

He has no doubts ICC will give the Grand Trunk permission to abandon the line. "Absolutely...there's no doubt in my mind they will."

The reason the T&SB probably won't buy the rail line, DeWolf explained, is that there aren't enough customers to justify providing service. The railroad has contacted past shippers and so far, "prospects are not exciting."

The "other part of the problem" is that money would have to be spent to rehabilitate the track. The state does have money available for such purposes, but no longer provides operating subsidies.

The railroad has only examined providing service from Cass City north to Pigeon. From Cass City south, there is even less potential for business.

The major "loose end" remaining before the T&SB makes a final decision, DeWolf said, is a final evaluation of a potential increase in business, that is, how many more shipments there might be if service were improved.

THE GRAND TRUNK'S biggest customer on the line has been the Pigeon Cooperative Elevator Co. Of the 876 shipments by Grand Trunk on the line in 1982, about 550 were for the co-op.

The co-op's siding connects with both Grand Trunk and Chessie System tracks. Since the Sept. 3 surcharge went into effect, all its rail shipments have been via the Chessie System, which runs to Saginaw, according to co-op Manager Ted Leipprandt.

He doubts if service were restored on the Grand Trunk line by the T&SB that the co-op would start using the line again.

DeWolf said if his railroad took over the line, shipments would have to go from Cass City to Pigeon, then travel over Chessie System tracks to Reese and then get back on the T&SB tracks to Saginaw.

Cass City board given curriculum and goal reports

Now, about 18 months after it was first proposed the Cass City School Board has received reports from the various school principals outlining curriculum and goals.

The reports were presented at the regular meeting of the board Monday at the high school. It was the highlight of a very prosaic meeting.

All the work outlining the courses and the goals has been completed. Typing remains to be done on the Intermediate School report, Principal Robert Stickle said. The deadline set by the board for the study was the start of the second semester.

The board also inched along with its plan for printing and distributing menus that list activities and honors students earned the previous semester.

President Dr. Ed Scollon and secretary Ben Hobart are working on the project which was given the green light by the board.

The cost to the district is expected to be minimal as sponsors for the projects among the various Cass

Kingston board oks teacher contract

The Kingston Board of Education Monday evening approved a three-year contract with its teachers.

It also granted a 3 percent pay increase for the current school year for bus drivers, mechanics, secretaries, teacher aides and cafeteria workers, all of whom are non-union.

The teachers, members of the Kingston Education Association, approved the contract Dec. 17. Tentative agreement between the board's negotiators and the Tri-County Bargaining Association, which represented the teachers, was reached Nov. 23.

Pay raises for the current school year vary from $100-200, according to Supt. Jerry Laycock. Pay for teachers with a bachelor's degree will range from $12,025 for new teachers to $21,700 at the top of the pay scale. In 1982-83, the range was $11,925-$21,600.

The pay range for those with a master's degree will be $12,625 starting to $22,300 for those at the top of the pay scale. Last year, the range was $12,425-$22,100.

In addition, teachers reaching the third year at the top of the pay scale will receive a one time payment equal to 5 percent of their salary, which for those with master's degrees will be $1,115. Those who have been at the top of the scale longer than that will also receive the longevity payment.

The one time payment for those starting their third year at the top of the pay scale will continue through the next two years of the contract.

The pay increase for teachers the first year of the contract, Laycock said, will cost the district about $17,000, plus about the same amount for incremental pay increases teachers receive each year until they reach the top of the pay scale.

In 1984-85, the pay range for teachers with a bachelor's degree will be $12,740-23,000; master's degree, $13,540-23,800.

In 1985-86, the bachelor's degree pay range will be $13,200-23,870; master's degree, $14,000-24,670.

Teachers received no improvements in fringe benefits in the new pact, however, the board did agree to pay any increases in costs of providing those benefits, such as increases in insurance premiums. Laycock termed that provision of the new contract "very expensive when fringes increase 15 percent a year."

The contract also establishes goals for class sizes, for instance, the goal for kindergarten will be no more than 28 pupils per class. Laycock said a lot of effort was spent in negotiations in reaching mutual agreement on class size goals for various grades and subjects.

Pay for the non-certified employees with the 3 percent increase is as follows: Mechanic, $5.07 per hour; mechanic's helper, $4.12 per hour; head cook, $9.305 annually; cook's helpers, $4.23 an hour; secretaries, minimum $4 an hour; bus drivers, $9.55 for each regular run, and teacher aides, minimum $3.79 an hour. The pay for bus drivers is part of a three-year agreement, with pay to be renegotiated each of the next two years.

The district has yet to settle with custodians.

Tempers flare at Owen-Gage over filing of teacher grievance

Accusations were flying and tempers flared at the Owendale Gageton School Board meeting Monday evening because of a grievance filed in behalf of a teacher.

The arguments were meaningless because Supt. Ronald Erickson, in announcing that it had been filed, commented, "We no longer have a contract, so we will consider this a communication."

Owen-Gage teachers are working without a contract. The superintendent announced that state mediator Bill Borushko has volunteered to come to a negotiating session, so one has now been scheduled Tuesday, Jan. 17.

The procedure outlined in the now-expired contract called for the superintendent to meet with the grievant or OGEA representative. If the superintendent's decision on settlement of the grievance is unsatisfactory, or he doesn't issue one, the grievant can appeal to the school board.

The grievance, signed by Owen-Gage Education Association President Manuel Thies, was submitted in behalf of third grade teacher Kay Nguyen, who is on unpaid child care leave.

The complaint concerns the district not having paid her health insurance premiums once she started her leave.

Erickson, supported by the board, contended that under the old contract, the premium would have been paid until Mrs. Nguyen exhausted her 8 1/2 days remaining of sick leave before starting her child care leave.

She declined to use the sick leave, however, since she is planning to return to the classroom for the last several weeks of school, so payment of the premium stopped once she started her child care leave.

Thies said the grievance was filed after it was discovered the district continued to pay the premiums for some teachers on child care leave even though they had not used all their sick leave.

Erickson had commented earlier that based on what Thies called "past practice," some teachers may owe the district money.

Mrs. Nguyen has paid two premiums of more than $200 each, according to Thies, so that her policy wouldn't lapse.

What got board members and Erickson upset, in addition to the filing of the grievance, was that the OGEA president wouldn't tell them the names of teachers whose premiums were paid while on maternity leave despite their sick leave not being used up.

Thies responded it was Erickson's job to find their names by researching school records. "What you're asking me to do is to make it easier for Erickson to penalize other teachers and I'm not going to do that."

The superintendent and board member Jack Brinkman expressed doubt that Mrs. Nguyen knew of the grievance being filed.

"Want to bet," Thies responded. He had explained earlier that she hadn't signed it because she had been in ill health in connection with the birth of her baby, but, "We started it together."

Thies said during the debate that the OGEA contract provision could be interpreted in two ways. "I'm not saying it couldn't be," he said of the board's position. "I'm just asking to clear it up."

When board member Leona LaFave suggested that some teachers may be misinterpreting the contract, Erickson, in a loud voice and referring to Thies responded, "Then they have some dummy interpreting it for them."

Board president Ronald

Good contended that Mrs. Nguyen shouldn't have been worried about the premium not being paid yet by the school district, since there was a 30-day grace period. "Does she know anything?"

Thies responded that she paid the premiums with the idea that the insurance would be dropped.

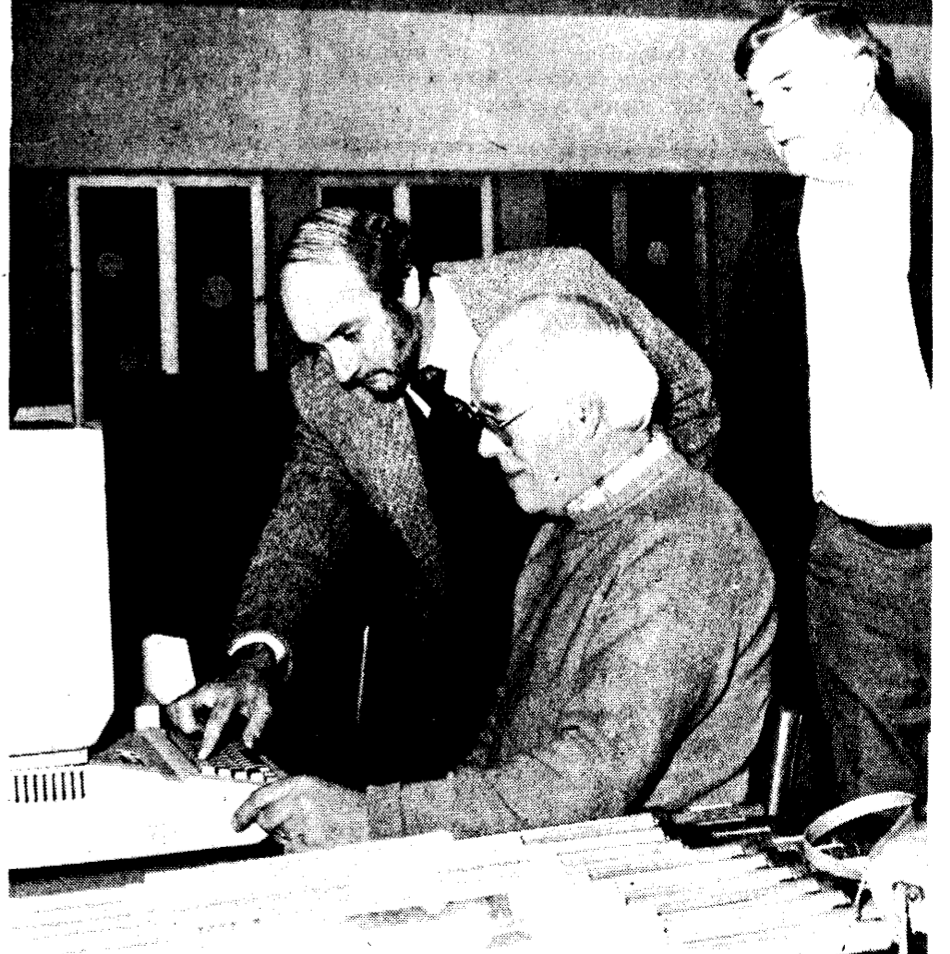

Good finally ended the debate by moving to another agenda item.

COMPUTERS

The board at its November meeting authorized purchase of eight Apple computers for $13,466, plus about $3,000 to buy programs.

High School Principal F. Wayne Wright reported Monday that because of a price reduction by the manufacturer and Owen-Gage ordering the computers at the same time some other

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

In a Sunday magazine section of the Detroit News, Cass City's Brewster Shaw was selected as one of a group of movers and shakers as Michiganders of the Year. His picture was printed in full color.

About as amazing as his exploits in space is the way he looks. No way can he be 38. If I were a bartender he'd have to show me identification to get a drink.

The long arm of coincidence. The metro dailies reported a double fatal shooting in Wyandotte over the week end.

Chances are you didn't know the name of the cop in charge. Why should you?

Anyway his name is Haire. One of the few I've found that spell it that way who are no relation.

What's more, one of the guys involved in the shooting was named Worthington. That was the name of my boss when I spent three years pounding the streets in Wyandotte.

Need I add that the Worthington in the story was no relation to my former boss?

Of course I don't. So I won't.

Persons with a long memory may recall when Ron Przystas spent the summer as an intern reporter at the Chronicle.

Ron toils at the Gladwin County Record now and last week he had a feature about the netting of turkeys by the Department of Natural Resources for release in other selected areas.

According to the story the birds will eventually be located across the state wherever cover and feed is adequate.

I'm no hunter and don't own a gun, but nevertheless feel it would be great if those birds were introduced and flourished in the Thumb.

We would like to extend our best wishes for a happy retirement to Walter and Carolyn Harmon.

Many people are unfamiliar with arranging a funeral, the options available and the costs involved. An uneasiness still exists in our society about death and dying and thus inhibits prudent planning. Unless pre-planned, funeral arrangements and decisions may be made under very stressful circumstances.

We offer many avenues for preplanning.

They can be very informal: discussing with families their own desires, options and prices.

Or more formal: actually making definite funeral arrangements including the selection of funeral merchandise and assisting in setting aside funds for funeral expenses.

We are always ready to assist in preplanning in any appropriate way.

Nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain;
For the former things are passed away.

SNOW GOING -- School was cancelled last Wednesday because of drifting snow. By later afternoon, roads had been plowed by the Tuscola County Road Commission and were passable, but in some places, only one car at a time. This was on Elmwood Road, east of Cedar Run Road.

Home razed in Kingston area fire

The Kingston Fire Department fought two fires in two days.

Loss was estimated at $30,000 to the home of Joan Taylor on Silvernail Road, near English Road, which burned Monday. The fire was reported about 1 p.m.

Fire Chief Robert Phillips said the home was a total loss and there wasn't enough left to determine a cause.

No one was home when the fire was discovered. Phillips believed four or five persons lived there.

The Caro Fire Department assisted with a tanker. Firemen were at the scene about four hours.

The Caro and Clifford departments assisted Kingston firemen in battling a barn fire reported about 11 a.m. Tuesday.

The barn belonging to David Seuryneck was on M-46, approximately three miles west of Kingston.

Phillips said the cows all got out safely, but it would be a while before Seuryneck could milk them in there again, since there was about a foot of water inside by the time the fire was out. Firemen were there about six hours.

Cause of the fire was electrical, according to the fire chief. Damage was estimated at $5,000-10,000. The barn is repairable.

ASSIST

The Elkland Township Fire Department was called at 7:10 a.m. this Wednesday to assist the Caro Fire Department in battling a house fire on Hurds Corner Road, about a mile south of Deckerville Road.

No further details were immediately available.

CHIMNEY FIRE

The Elkland Township Fire Department Tuesday evening extinguished a chimney fire in Deford.

Occupant of the home on Reed Street was Mary Redmond.

Firemen used an extinguishing fuse to put out the fire, caused by creosote in the chimney igniting.

The fire was reported at 6:20 p.m. Firemen were at the scene about an hour.

The Haire Net

Okay now, it's time to tell you how it is or how it should be around town and around and about. The real straight dope viewed from the corner of Main and Oak.

Shades of 1947. It was a year like this one when snow kept accumulating most of the season until March. Then a giant blast hit and paralyzed the entire state. For two full days traffic on main highways ceased and it was weeks before some secondary roads were cleared.

That couldn't happen with today's more modern equipment. Or could it?

What makes the losses of Cass City High School's basketball team so very hard to take is that pre-season it was rated as the best in the Thumb.

Could it be that we are due for another losing cycle that came our way in the 60s and early 70s?

Probably not, but the material for next year isn't all that great and it looks like a down year for the Hawks. After that things look brighter, but it's hard to predict what will happen two years down the road. Basketballs take some funny bounces.

You appreciate the job that the village crew does keeping the main stem free of snow for parking when you compare it with other

"If It Fitz . . ."

What's fashionable?

By Jim Fitzgerald

On New Year's Eve, in Little Harry's Restaurant, three women seated at three different tables wore the same dress. Either two of them, or one of them, had it on backward. Can you imagine?

I wasn't there myself; I spent the holidays at home showering in the dark and doing other kinky things. One of my darling spies spied the most popular dress in Little Harry's. She reported it was striped silk — green, black and white — with a V neck. Two of the women wore the V between their breasts, and the other woman wore it between her shoulder blades.

I don't know what I'd do if I went to a party in my navy blue blazer with the brass buttons in front and saw two men wearing the same blazer with the brass buttons in back. I'd probably die from worrying about whether I was dressed fashionably or they were.

Ever since I bought that blazer for my honeymoon, in 1955, my wife has complained that I spill cigar ashes on its lapels. I've always thought she meant I should quit smoking, but if I saw two men with their blazers buttoned in back, I'd surely think she meant I should quit wearing my lapels in front.

I've never had much confidence in my sense of style, garment-wise. When Mr. T wore a sleeveless red and white jacket and 23 pounds of diamond jewelry to play Santa Claus in the White House, I foolishly thought he was badly out of fashion, yule-wise. I said the only reason the always-fashionable Nancy Reagan sat on his lap and kissed him while cameras clicked was to win affection from fans of Mr. T's TV show.

In fact, I was so sure Mrs. Reagan violated her dress code for purely political reasons that, in a bipartisan effort, I even added that if she hadn't captured the nation's affection by publicly kissing Mr. T, the Rev. Jesse Jackson wouldn't have felt constrained to go to Syria to win freedom for Lt. Robert Goodman Jr.

But several of my better-dressed friends insisted I was much too cynical. They said it is stylish people like Mr. T who create clothing fashions, and next year Dancer and Blitzin will tie 23 pounds of diamonds to each antler, which will be a godsend for the jewelry industry. They said Mrs.

Reagan kissed Mr. T simply because she admired his Santa costume, and it was unfair to accuse her of playing politics.

I apologized and promised to never be so unfair again, unless I saw Nancy Reagan sitting on Lt. Goodman's lap.

But you're dying to know why I took a holiday shower in the dark. I didn't plan it that way. It is terribly disconcerting to be inside a shower stall in a windowless room, with the water pouring down, and suddenly have the lights go out. It was pitch black. Having a good memory, I could still find what I wanted to wash, but I couldn't find the soap, the faucets or the right shampoo.

The shampoo was most important. There are two bottles of shampoo in the shower rack. One is for golden, lustrous hair. That's my wife's. The other is for greasy, yucky hair. That's mine. I was afraid if I used the wrong shampoo in the dark, my hair would reject it and I'd be shocked into a coma. I had a fearful vision of my family carrying me to the nearest gas station, where I could be hoisted on a grease rack and lubricated back to consciousness.

The lights went out because Emily, my two-year-old granddaughter, was visiting. She has lately learned how to open doors, flip light switches and laugh down laugh while her grandfather screams for light. I spent New Year's Eve baby-sitting, with not even one lousy beer at midnight, which probably explains why the next day's newspapers reported the mysterious collapse of walls in 345 saloons.

Next year, I'm going to Little Harry's. If I see anyone with my blazer buttoned in back, I'll put my cigar in my nape.

No chance

Could insects ever evolve into those monstrous sizes you see in horror movies? Every living thing has its proper size. Biologists note that, because of their physical structure, insects couldn't breathe if they were the size of a dog, or an elephant, says National Wildlife magazine.

Exchange student Valencia reflects on life in Bogota and Cass City

MARTHA VALENCIA came prepared to promote her country's best known product, coffee. A neighbor in Bogota who works for the Colombian coffee federation gave her several posters.

Coming from a city of 5 million persons to a village of 2,250 was quite a change for Martha Valencia, made even greater because Spanish is spoken in one and English in the other.

Miss Valencia, 18, has been a Rotary exchange student in Cass City since last August and will return home in Bogota, Colombia, this coming July.

"Cass City, I guess, is like two neighborhoods," she said in comparing its population to that of Bogota, which is the capital of Colombia.

There are advantages to both. In Cass City, it's obviously easy to get anywhere, but in Bogota, getting any place means going by car or bus.

In the big city, there are more places to go and more persons to know, but crime is a problem. Miss Valencia, who was wearing a necklace and earrings during the Chronicle interview, said wise Bogota residents don't wear jewelry if going outside at night "if you don't want to get hurt," unless they are in a car.

Her father is a civil engineer. Her mother is a housewife. She has two brothers, both older, who still live at home.

Miss Valencia completed her high school (12th grade) in Colombia in December of last year and then entered a pre-university program.

Before coming here, she passed the very difficult examination necessary for her to attend a university in her country.

WHEN SHE RETURNS, she will study bacteriology for four years. After graduating, because not enough persons choose to do so voluntarily, she will have to work for the government for a year in a medical laboratory in a rural area.

(Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary defines bacteriology as "a science that deals with bacteria and their relations to medicine, industry and agriculture.")

After the one year, she will be free to seek employment elsewhere. One reason she wanted to learn English well was that it would help her get a better job and also in her studies, since some published works on bacteriology are only published in English.

She studied English in school and after graduating, attended a special center to learn more. When she arrived here, she could speak the language slowly, but it took about two months before she could speak and understand it fluently.

MISS VALENCIA FIRST lived with the Louis Horner family on S. Seeger Street. She moved in Dec. 17 with the Greg Brown family on Virginia Drive and will move again, probably in March, to the Dave Lovejoy household, also on Virginia. The first semester at Cass City High School, she studied advanced math, chemistry, English, government and U.S. history. She would like to take a computer science class the second semester.

One difference between schools here and in her country, she said, is that Americans have a big choice over the classes they take.

At the private, all-girls school she attended, students could take only one elective per semester, and the choice was limited to such things as home economics, singing, and school newspaper.

Compulsory subjects in 12th grade were math, chemistry, physics, philosophy and French. (English is required in earlier grades.)

There are government schools for children whose parents can't afford to send them to private schools, but they still have to buy books. No one comes looking if the children aren't in school.

The government schools aren't as good as the private ones, so children whose parents can't afford to send them to private schools are at a disadvantage.

THIS PAST FALL, Martha played basketball on the Red Hawk varsity squad.

She played the sport at her school in Bogota, and the team there played other schools, but there's quite a difference between the sport there and here. "It's not as important as here," she said. "Here you really want to win."

Not that the Colombian girls didn't want to win, but practice was only an hour after school there — "Yours (practice) is harder," — and her team didn't always have a coach.

"It was hard for me," she said of playing on the team in Cass City. She got to play for a few minutes in six games and to her regret, didn't score a point, but being only 5 feet tall, there is quite a distance between her and the basket.

The big sport at her school, which she didn't play, was volleyball. The big sport for boys and as a spectator sport nationally is soccer.

Since arriving here, Miss Valencia has visited Cedar Point amusement park in Ohio, Tahquamenon Falls in the Upper Peninsula, Stratford, Ont., and Niagara Falls, Detroit and Lansing.

She doesn't know yet whether she will be able to afford to go on the month-long bus trip next summer for Rotary exchange students.

Winter being a new experience for her — the coldest it ever gets in Bogota is about 32 degrees — she has enjoyed sledding and ice skating. She never saw snow before coming here.

Pedaling Around
More odds and ends

By Mike Eliasohn

More miscellaneous that I've been saving in the hopes of using it some day in this space:

Why are cars so expensive? One reason is the cost of health care.

A Chrysler Corp. Board of Directors committee on health care found that the company's health care bill for employees, dependents and retirees in 1983 was going to amount to more than $6,000 per active worker, the equivalent of almost four months' wages.

From the customer's viewpoint, that works out to about $600 per car. The fastest rising cost of doing business is employee health care benefits. Health care costs increased 12 percent in 1982, three times the inflation rate. Nationwide, the bill amounted to $1,400 for every man, woman and child.

Employers pay most of the cost for workers. The unemployed, poor and elderly depend on Medicare and Medicaid, which with other health care items is the fastest growing part of the federal budget.

Proposed domestic content legislation, which the United Auto Workers and others feel would be the salvation of the American auto industry, might help auto workers, but would hurt others—especially farmers.

The UAW argues as many as 1 million more jobs could be created by essentially requiring the Japanese car companies to build their cars in this country, using a few parts made in Japan, if they want to keep selling cars here.

Opponents argue that for every job created in the auto industry, another would be lost in businesses that rely on imports and exports. The Wharton Econometrics "think tank" figures 423,000 jobs would be lost if domestic content legislation becomes law.

Export of U.S. farm products totals about $6 billion a year and Japan is the biggest foreign purchaser, thus if we limit sales of Japanese autos, Japan is liable to go shopping elsewhere for farm products.

Kodak last week introduced its new videotape home camera system, which it hopes will be the salvation of the company, which has seen sales of its regular cameras slipping.

Where will this wondrous new product of American technology be produced? In Japan, of course.

The current strong value of the dollar overseas sounds good, but overall, it hurts us.

What it means is the American dollar is worth more in foreign currency. For Americans traveling overseas, it means they can buy more with their American dollars. It discourages foreigners from vacationing here, because it is more expensive.

More importantly, the strong dollar makes foreign-made products cheaper in this country, but makes American-made products more expensive elsewhere.

Among American products made more expensive are agricultural commodities, which encourages foreign countries to try to buy their needed grain, soybeans, etc., elsewhere.

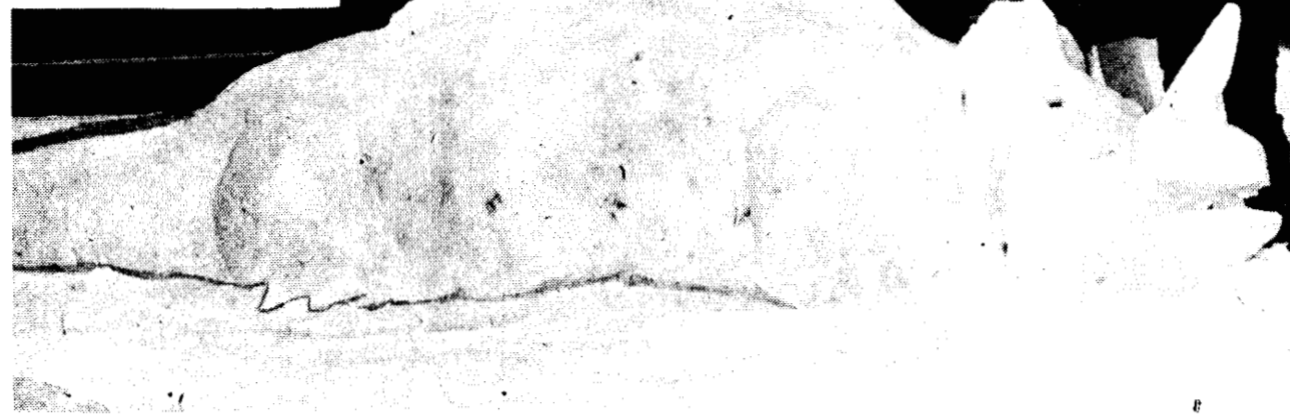

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago estimates the combination of increased imports and lost exports have cost 1.5 million American jobs.

One reason for the strong dollar is our $200 billion a year federal deficit.

Although the worst repercussions are apparently still to come—mainly the economy getting worse again, instead of better—according to the economists, what the high deficits do is drive up interest rates as the federal government needs to borrow more money.

High interest rates attract foreign investors. That results in a stronger dollar overseas. I don't understand why, but it obviously isn't good.

DINOSAUR — With classes cancelled last Wednesday because of too much snow, it was a perfect day for building a snow dinosaur. Constructing it were, from left, Joe Santos, Shayna Robles, Butch Robles, Keri Santos and Brian Santos. The sculpture was on River Road, where the Santoses and Robleses are next door neighbors.

Four drug 'bust' suspects appear in circuit court

The first four of 14 persons arrested Nov. 29 in a countywide drug "bust," which followed four months of undercover police investigation, appeared Jan. 3 in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

David J. Diener, 22, of 4150 Swaffer Road, Vassar, stood mute to two charges of delivery of LSD, July 20 in Vassar and the next day in Vassar Township, both to the same undercover police officer.

A plea of innocent was entered and pretrial hearing scheduled Feb. 6. Bond was continued.

Patrick C. Neuenschwander, 24, of 3866 Frankford Road, Caro, stood mute to a charge of delivery of marijuana June 24 in Wells Township.

A plea of innocent was entered and pretrial hearing scheduled Feb. 6. Bond was continued.

Doris I. Kollman, 25, of Saginaw, stood mute to a charge of delivery of marijuana July 22 in Vassar.

A plea of innocent was entered and pretrial hearing scheduled Feb. 6. Bond was set at $2,500.

Johnnie B. Randall, 27, of 4832 Brown Road, Vassar, stood mute to a charge of delivery of marijuana June 29 in Vassar Township.

A plea of innocent was entered and pretrial hearing scheduled Feb. 6. Bond was continued.

In other cases Jan. 3 before Judge Patrick R. Joslyn: Phillip A. Young, 21, of Flint, pleaded guilty to violating probation by failing to report to his probation officer in October and November and failing to seek and maintain employment or enroll in a training program.

Young was placed on three years' probation in April, 1983, for larceny in a building.

His plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be set. Bond was set at $5,000 cash or surety.

Eric Hubbard, 21, of Detroit, formerly of Kingston, stood mute to charges of possession of a firearm, unlawfully driving away an automobile and driving with license suspended Dec. 17 in Indianfields Township.

A plea of innocent was entered and pretrial hearing scheduled Jan. 17. Bond was continued.

J.T. Dickens, 42, of Clio, was sentenced to nine months in the county jail for larceny in a building, with credit given for 92 days served.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Dec. 12, of stealing a television Oct. 4 from a home in Arbelia Township.

DISTRICT COURT

Joel Schmidt, 22, of 3568 Sixth Street, Owendale, was sentenced Jan. 3 by Judge Richard F. Kern for impaired driving Oct. 8 in Cass City. He pleaded guilty to the charge Nov. 1.

Schmidt was fined $176, assessed $149 court costs and is to pay $50 restitution to the county mental health agency.

He was placed on probation one year, is to attend the Alcohol Highway Safety Education program and receive counseling. His license was suspended for three months except for driving to and from work and treatment programs.

Bud Melvin McGuire, 43, of 4140 Hoppe Road, Gagetown, was placed on one year probation Jan. 3 for driving under the influence of liquor and open intoxicants in a motor vehicle last May 11 in Gagetown. A jury found him guilty of the charges Oct. 19.

McGuire was fined a total of $235, assessed $200 court costs, is to pay $30 restitution to mental health and is to attend an alcohol self-help program.

His license was suspended for six months, during which he is to do no driving for the first 60 days and then only drive to and from work if he finds a suitable job and treatment.

HEROIC MINNOW

The heroism of the tiny minnow is especially noteworthy. While in the jaws of an enemy, minnows release a scent to alert other minnows to flee for their lives, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine.

Two persons were sentenced Monday by Tuscola County Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Raymond O. Dickens, 48, of Clio, was sentenced to six months in the county jail for attempted larceny in a building at an Arbelia Township grocery Sept. 30.

He was credited with 35 days served. Dickens pleaded guilty to the charge Dec. 5.

Ninety days in the county jail was added to the sentence of Philip A. Young, 21, of Flint, who pleaded guilty Jan. 3 to violating probation by failing to report to his probation officer for two months and to seek and maintain employment or enroll in an education program.

He was credited with days already served. Young was placed on three years probation in April, 1983, for larceny in a build-

Ex-Cass Cityan to appear on '20-20' show

Cass City native John Lounsbury, a ranger with the U.S. Park Service, will appear in a segment of the "20-20" television program scheduled for broadcast this Thursday.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Lounsbury of E. Cass City Road.

The program will be shown on WJRT-TV, Channel 12, starting at 10 p.m.

According to his sister, Barbara Hutchinson, who talked to her brother on the telephone, he served as a guide for "20-20" reporter Sylvia Chase as she traced the path of the Nez Perce Indians as they fled from Army cavalry units in 1877 through Yellowstone National Park.

Lounsbury and family members won't know how often he appears in the segment until they see it.

Lounsbury, and his wife, Lois, have been at Yellowstone about three years, according to his mother. He is a district ranger in charge of one of five districts in the park.

The ranger and his wife have to drive 100-125 miles to the nearest town to do any major shopping. They can buy some groceries during the summer months at the park stores.

Before snow closes the roads, they park their cars nearest the roads that are kept open. To get to their cars from their home means a trip of 40 miles one-way by snowmobile.

It snows a lot in Yellowstone. Mrs. Lounsbury said she and her husband last visited there in May, and it snowed every day. In fact, they have been to the park four times (twice before their son was there), and it has snowed every time.

Lounsbury, born in 1946, has worked for the Park Service since his first summer vacation from Michigan State University. He went to work for it full-time a few credits short of graduating, according to his mother, and finally got his degree from MSU a couple years ago after taking some correspondence courses.

Before being assigned to Yellowstone, Mrs. Hutchinson said, her brother was stationed at Everglades National Park, Fla.; Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Tenn.; Olympic National Park, Wash., and Lassen Volcanic National Park, Calif.

The Lounsburies don't have a television set, she said, being too far from a TV station, so are hoping to go some place to watch "20-20."

Methodist women see ornament making

Twenty-seven attended the monthly meeting of United Methodist Women Monday in Trinity Church.

The meeting began with a noon luncheon served by group 4 with Mrs. Walter Goodall and Mrs. Grover Hulbert as hostesses.

Elaine Proctor led the pledge service.

For the program, Cathy McCallum demonstrated the making of chrismos, a Christmas ornament. Women will work on them in future workshops and the ornaments will be used on the church Christmas tree in December.

Ice fishing items stolen

Terry Elenbaum of Robinson Road, Cass City, reported to Huron County sheriff's deputies Sunday that items worth $116 were stolen from his ice fishing shanty on Saginaw Bay.

Taken were four poles, ice spud, gas can, fuel, stove and stove pipe. In addition, damage estimated at $70 was done to the shanty.

The shanty was located near the access site at the end of Geiger Road between Sebawaing and Bay Port.

Daniel Papp of 6442 Garfield Street reported to Cass City police Monday morning that an estimated 10 gallons of gasoline were siphoned from his pickup truck since 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The truck was parked in his driveway behind his house.

He also said about 1½ months ago, two five-gallon gasoline cans were stolen from the truck.

Your neighbor says Economy should improve in 1984

The Reagan administration is projecting six years of "solid" economic growth for the nation, with moderate inflation and declining unemployment and interest rates.

The administration's proposed 1985 fiscal year budget, which will be presented to Congress shortly, is based on economic assumptions contained in the six-year projection.

For the projections to be realized, the chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, Martin Feldstein said, appropriate policies are needed, including a substantial reduction in the federal deficit in future years.

As for 1984, "I think it's going to improve somewhat over 1983," said Michael Wright. "I hope so, because I haven't got a job."

Wright, a 1979 Cass City High School graduate, graduated Dec. 2 from ITT in Fort Wayne, Ind., with a bachelor's degree in automated manufacturing technology.

What that means is robotics. Wright has been trained to maintain and program robots and computer controlled machines used on assembly lines.

He was one of 18 members of the first robotics class -- a three-year year-round program -- to graduate from ITT. About half have jobs.

So far, Wright has mailed resumes, had some interviews and toured a couple of factories. "I'm not worried, I feel there are jobs out there in my field," he said.

He enrolled in the robotics program because, "I feel it's a growing field."

As for the economy in general, Wright said, "The way things are looking, people are spending more money and unemployment is going down."

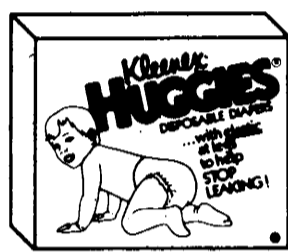

Until he finds a job, Wright is living with his mother, Linda Kritzman, on Robinson Road, Cass City.

Training program available

Marvin N. Pichla, executive director of the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium, reminds unemployed residents of Huron, Lapeer, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties that new training opportunities are now available.

The new training programs, which are administered by the consortium, are funded through the new Federal Job Training Partnership Act.

"Due to the variety of information involved in determining if someone is or is not eligible for the new program, it is best to call in and set up an interview," Pichla said. "I would hate to see someone who is unemployed and can't decide if he or she qualifies as low-income, miss out on a valuable training opportunity."

Appointments for completing application forms may be made by calling 673-8103 in Caro between the hours of 8:30-noon and 1-5 p.m. or the offices in Sandusky, Bad Axe or Lapeer.

Information on eligibility and specific training programs will be discussed during the interview with consortium staff.

What you should do and who you should call when your phone's in a fix.

It isn't very often that you need to deal with telephone repairs, but when you do, you want them taken care of as fast as possible. Now that Michigan Bell has separated from AT&T, there are some changes in the way repair problems are handled.

We have some suggestions for you on how to identify your phone repair problems so that you can get them handled as quickly as possible. But first it's important to know who will make specific telephone repairs. For example, effective January 1, 1984:

1. AT&T assumed ownership of the phones Michigan Bell had been providing you for a monthly fee. AT&T will continue to lease those phones to you and will offer repair services.

2. AT&T will also offer repair service for phones that you purchased from Michigan Bell prior to January 1, 1984.

3. Michigan Bell will continue to service and repair the lines that lead to your home or business.

Now let's talk about how you can tell if it's your phone that needs repairing or your phone lines.

Here's how:

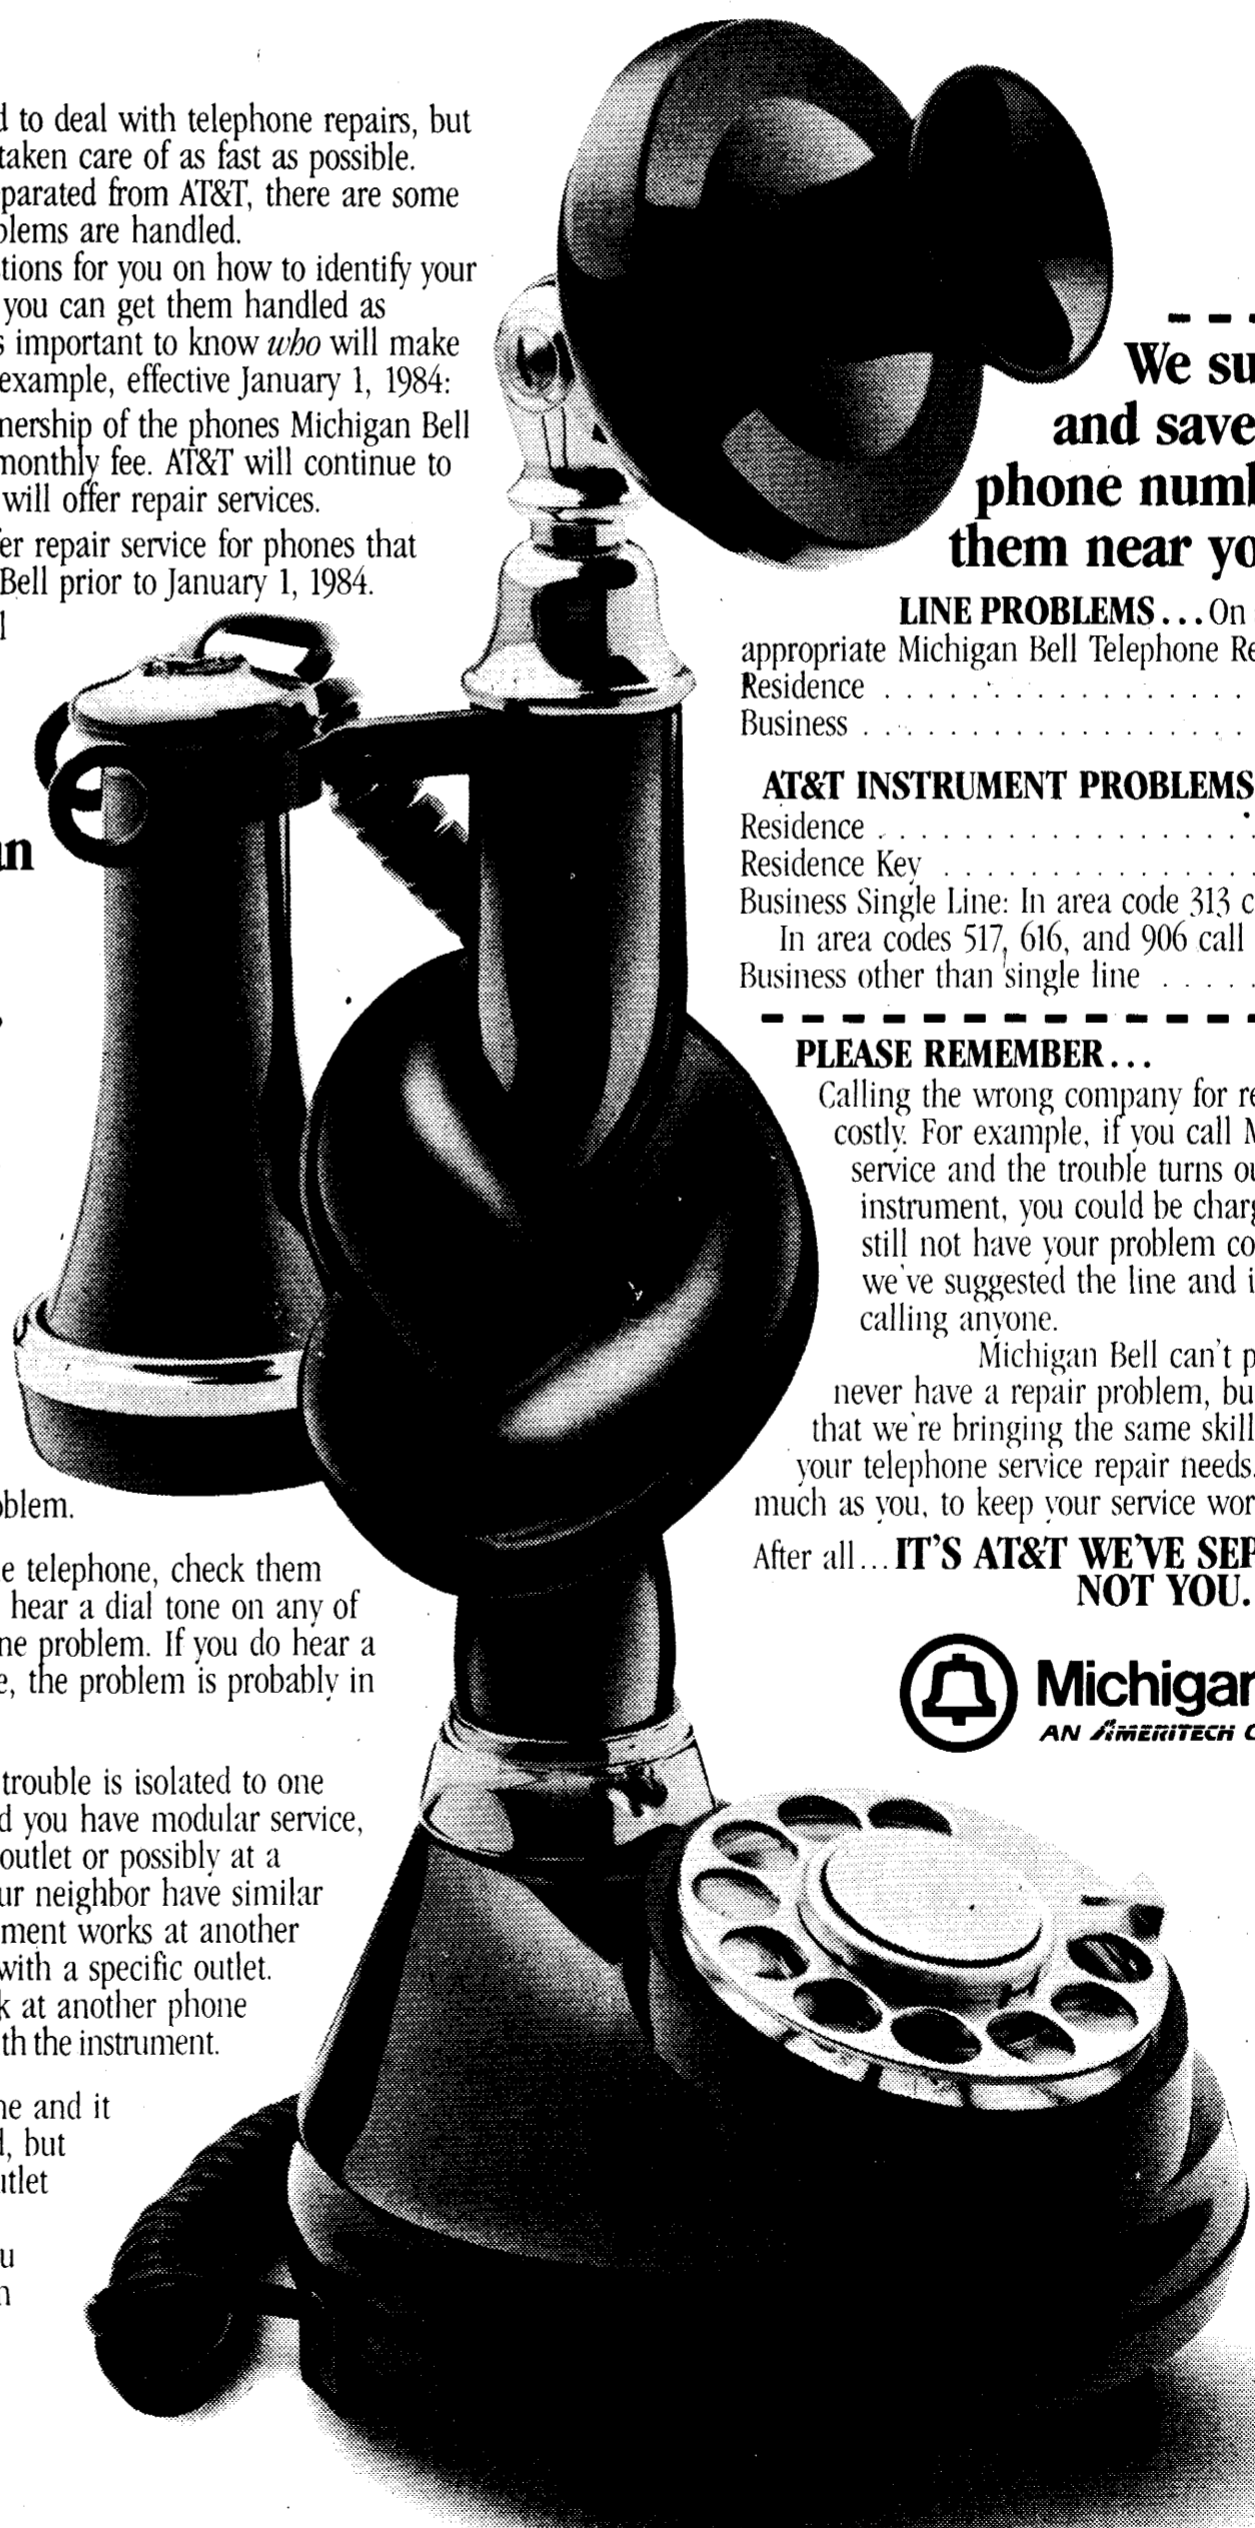

If you have plug-in or modular service, make sure all of your phones are properly plugged in.

Check all phones for physical damage or frayed cords. If you find damage, it's probably an instrument problem.

If you have more than one telephone, check them all for a dial tone. If you don't hear a dial tone on any of the phones, you may have a line problem. If you do hear a dial tone on at least one phone, the problem is probably in one of your other instruments.

If you determine that the trouble is isolated to one instrument at one location, and you have modular service, try that instrument at another outlet or possibly at a neighbor's (if both you and your neighbor have similar one-party service). If the instrument works at another location, the problem may be with a specific outlet. If the instrument does not work at another phone outlet, the problem is probably with the instrument.

If you have only one phone and it does not appear to be damaged, but cannot be moved to another outlet for testing, call Michigan Bell Repair Service. We will help you determine whether you have an equipment or line problem.

We suggest you clip and save the following phone numbers and keep them near your telephone.

LINE PROBLEMS... On all line problems, call the appropriate Michigan Bell Telephone Repair Service:

Residence 221-2121
Business 221-3131

AT&T INSTRUMENT PROBLEMS...

Residence 1 800 555-8111
Residence Key 1 800 526-2000
Business Single Line: In area code 313 call 1 800 992-2772
In area codes 517, 616, and 906 call 1 800 248-2772
Business other than single line 1 800 526-2000

PLEASE REMEMBER...

Calling the wrong company for repair service could be costly. For example, if you call Michigan Bell for repair service and the trouble turns out to be in a telephone instrument, you could be charged for a service call and still not have your problem corrected. That's why we've suggested the line and instrument checks before calling anyone.

Michigan Bell can't promise you that you'll never have a repair problem, but we can assure you that we're bringing the same skill and experience to your telephone service repair needs. We want, just as much as you, to keep your service working as it always has. After all... IT'S AT&T WE'VE SEPARATED FROM... NOT YOU.

Extension economist leaving

Dawn Harris, extension home economist for Tuscola and Sanilac Counties, is transferring to Clinton County, where she will hold the same position for the Cooperative Extension Service starting Feb. 1.

Miss Harris started her present job Aug. 17, 1981, after having graduated from Michigan State University in June of that year.

One reason she requested the transfer, she said, is so she can work on her master's degree in home economics at MSU. St. Johns, the county seat of Clinton County, is only about 20 miles from the MSU campus.

Her new assignment is also closer to her parents' home in Dansville, which is southeast of Lansing.

A replacement for Miss Harris in Caro and Sandusky hasn't been appointed yet.

Officers installed

Twelve women attended business meeting, in which the Monday evening meeting of the United Methodist Women at the Salem Church. The dinner served at 6:30 p.m. was prepared by Helen Bartle, Helen Jezewski and Iris Tuckey. Preceding the meal, officers to serve for the coming year were installed by Iris Tuckey, in which she compared each officer to an ingredient of stew which was served at the meal. Devotions were led by Elaine Jezewski. Shirley Geiger presided over the contributions were made to the children's home in Detroit and to a home missions project. The women contributed bingo prizes to be used at the Chelsea home and at Provincial House. For the program, Betty Kirn showed a film, "Shopping Bag Lady." The next meeting will be March 5 at the home of Mrs. Kirn, when the "prayer and self-denial" offering will be taken. HEALTH TIPS

Elderly face cold weather hazards

Again this winter, as outdoor temperatures plummet, many elderly Americans will be exposed to temperatures so low that they develop hypothermia, a condition in which the body's internal temperature drops to 95 degrees or lower.

If not detected and treated promptly, hypothermia can be fatal. Because older people are particularly sensitive to the cold, even mildly cold temperatures of 60 degrees to 65 degrees can be dangerous.

At highest risk of developing hypothermia are the relatively small number of aged persons who, for unknown reasons, can neither feel cold nor shiver and so cannot produce body heat when they need it.

Also vulnerable are those who have diseases that limit their activity or mental awareness, who have circulation problems or who are taking certain types of drugs, such as phenothiazines, that are used to treat anxiety, agitation and nausea.

Another threat to the elderly at this time of the year is influenza, which usually strikes during cold weather and strikes hardest at persons 65 and older and at individuals of any age who have certain chronic medical conditions, among them diabetes, diseases of the heart, lungs

Singles club dance Sat.

The YMCA Thumb Singles Club will conduct a dance from 8:30 p.m.-12:30 a.m. Saturday at Maple Valley Elementary School in Sandusky. Music will be provided by Denny Ewald. Refreshments will be available and guests are welcome.

and kidneys, severe anemia and illnesses (or medications) that lower the body's resistance to disease.

Since 1968, influenza epidemics have accounted for an estimated 200,000 deaths in this country.

Older people can act to prevent hypothermia by dressing warmly, eating properly and keeping active. Because hypothermia often starts during sleep, they should wear warm nightclothes and use enough blankets to keep warm.

Older people who are taking medicines should ask their doctors whether those medicines might affect their body temperature or their ability to feel cold.

It's a good idea for friends and relatives to look in on elderly persons frequently when the weather is cold. Signs of hypothermia are changes in appearances or behavior; slow, sometimes irregular heartbeat; slurred speech; shallow, very slow breathing; sluggishness and confusion.

Anyone who detects signs of hypothermia in an elderly person should send for emergency medical help at once, then keep the victim warm, by wrapping him or her in a blanket and perhaps providing small quantities of warm food and non-alcoholic drink, until help arrives.

Everyone with medical conditions likely to be complicated by influenza should be vaccinated annually before the cold-weather flu season begins.

Another step that people at high risk for flu can take to reduce their chances of becoming seriously ill is to stop smoking.

That's good advice for anyone, in any season, but of immediate concern is a recent report, published in the New England Journal of Medicine, that indicates a greater danger from influenza for cigarette smokers.

41 attend O-G Senior Citizens

The Owen-Gage Senior Citizens met at St. Agatha's parish hall in Gagetown Jan. 5 with 41 members present.

Twenty-one blood pressure readings were taken by Mary Lewis, LPN.

Elma Miklovich opened the meeting by having everyone repeat the Lord's Prayer and the pledge to the flag. After the secretary's and treasurer's reports were accepted, she gave fire emblems to members who had not received theirs.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Grace Clara, Myrtle Nelson, Stella Erner, Grace Roberts, Elizabeth Bartholemey, Millie Munroe, Aura Beaudon and Dennis Rocheleau.

Mike Pisarek played the piano for a short singalong. Door prizes went to Millie Mosack and Luther Durham.

There was discussion about having Social Security checks sent to the bank for direct deposit. After the meeting adjourned, bingo was played.

Coffee and cookies were served by the January committee.

Missionary group okays contributions

Seventeen women attended the Monday evening meeting of the Baptist Missionary Fellowship at the First Baptist Church.

Shirley Shaw presided over the business meeting, in which contributions to church groups were approved to the "Ladies Mite" and to the "Shepherds," which is a school for retarded children in Wisconsin.

Notes of thanks were read from various missionaries to whom gifts had been sent at Christmas time.

Devotions were led by Carol LaPonsie and prayer time for missionaries by Lillian Hanby.

Refreshments were served by Ella Cumper and Mrs. Hanby.

A motion was made by Trustee Hampshire and supported by Trustee McIntosh that the 1984 wage increase for Superintendent, Chief of Police, D.P.W. and W.W.T. workers be 5 percent and 50¢ per hour to the Secretary and Bookkeeper effective January 1, 1984. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

A motion was made by Trustee Hampshire and supported by Trustee Weaver to lay off the lowest seniority police officer effective January 1, 1984 as the activity and cost does not warrant a fourth patrolman. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

The 1984 Budget Hearing was opened as advertised. After hearing no objections a motion was made by Trustee Stahlbaum and supported by Trustee Ware that the 1984 Budget be approved as amended by the lay off of one officer and that the Public Hearing be closed. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

Tim and Joyce Zehnder of Bavarian Builders were present to request an option on the remainder of a parcel of land owned by the Village just south of Garfield which would contain approximately 6 acres of ground for construction of a Senior Citizens Housing Project. They made this request to the Planning Commission on December 20, 1983 and received a favorable recommendation. A motion was made by Trustee McIntosh and supported by Trustee Stahlbaum to adopt Ordinance No. 115 granting the option to Bavarian Builders. Roll Call Vote: 6 yeas, 0 nays, motion carried (Ordinance Attached).

The minutes of the regular November meeting and the special meeting of December 15, 1983 were approved as presented.

A letter was received from Walnut Trailer Park requesting water service. The matter will be looked into as the park is outside the Village limits and they would have to annex to receive such service.

A motion was made by Trustee Stahlbaum and supported by Trustee Ware to approve the regular bills for payment with the exception of a bill from Martin Electric in the amount of $6,409.92 until itemizing of the bill is received. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

Frustrating losses continue

It's now or never — Hawks at Lakers

If the Cass City Red Hawks are to remain in contention for the Thumb B Association crown a turn around is needed starting Friday at Laker High.

There's no room for any more losses and the two conference defeats may already be too many for Cass City to claim the title.

Cass City lost its fourth game in the last five starts Saturday when Sandusky spoiled the night for an alumni gathering with a last second rally and a 56-55 decision.

So what else is new? That's the way it has gone for Cass City this season. In every loss the Hawks have piled up an early lead only to fade in the last quarter and lose.

Cass City now has lost four games by a total of eight points.

The only bright spot in the dismal early season is that with a little bit of better luck or better performance the Cass City record could have been what most observers felt it would be before the season started.

The Hawks followed this year's script in the first quarter jumping off to an early lead and appeared to be comfortably in command.

At the end of the first 8 minutes the Hawks were in front 16-8. That was the glory quarter for Hawk fans. Sandusky kept trying to chip away at the lead for the remainder of the game.

It was all even in the second period and Cass City still led by eight points at the intermission. At the end of three quarters the lead was six points.

The Hawks stayed in front through most of the final period. It wasn't until the very end that the Redskins finally went in front.

With 35 seconds left in the game, the Hawks were in front 55-52 with a one and one foul shot coming up.

That shot missed and Jim DeLong closed the gap to a single point, 55-54, with a jumper with 18 seconds left. An errant pass was intercepted by the Redskins and the easy bucket put the visitors in front for the first time during the evening.

With 8 seconds left Cass City had another chance to win but a shot by John Meininger bounced off the rim and the Hawks had lost another heartbreaker.

Both teams showed balanced scoring. Cass City had four players in double figures, led by Meininger with 16. Sandusky had three players in double figures with DeLong's 12 points showing the way.

Meininger led the rebounders with 10 while Scott Hurford contributed six.

In the preliminary game,

Sandusky made it a clean sweep with a decision over the Hawk JV.

Besonen to coach East-West All-stars

Owen-Gage High School football coach Arnie Besonen has been named one of two head coaches of the East team in the fourth annual East-West All-Star football game sponsored by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association.

The game will be played Aug. 4 at Spartan Stadium on the Michigan State University campus.

Besonen, who will be starting his 16th season as head coach at Owen-Gage this fall, was selected by the 16 MHSFCA regional directors.

The other head coach will be Chuck Skinner of Birmingham Seaholm. One head coach will handle the defense and the other the offense. Who will coach what hasn't been decided yet.

ARNIE BESONEN

The two head coaches can each bring an assistant. Besonen is bringing John Osterland, who has been an assistant football coach at Owen-Gage 15 years.

There will be two assistant head coaches, Dominic Livedoti, West Bloomfield, and Chuck Hepner, Grosse Pointe South.

The East and West team coaches and MHSFCA will be meeting in Lansing Friday and Saturday to pick team members, all of whom played their senior year this past fall.

Practice for the game starts July 26.

"Once you coach, you can never coach again," said Besonen of his being selected to coach in the all-star game.

In his 15 seasons at Owen-Gage, the Bulldogs have won five league titles. He has a win-loss-tie record of 102-32-2.

Besonen is first vice president of the MHSFCA and will become its president for one year, starting Jan. 28 at its coaches clinic in Battle Creek.

Kingston rallies to win over O-G

Owen-Gage lost in basketball Tuesday night to visiting Bad Axe in a non-league contest, 76-57.

The Bulldogs, now 0-6 overall, are at Peck Friday and at Akron-Fairgrove next week Tuesday.

Owen-Gage kept pace with Kingston Friday night for three quarters before falling to the Cardinals, 65-54.

The host Bulldogs, still seeking their first win, started out in control, leading at the end of the first period, 14-10.

Kingston evened the score at 18-all midway through the second period. The halftime score was 28-27 in favor of the visitors.

At the three-quarter mark, Owen-Gage had tied the score 47-all, after the Cardinals had led by as much as five points in the third period.

At that point, Kingston coach Mike Schreiber switched his team from man-to-man defense to zone defense.

Owen-Gage hadn't had trouble penetrating the Cardinal man-to-man, he said later, but the zone defense kept the Bulldogs outside, where they lack a good shooter.

It told on the scoreboard, where the Bulldogs were outscored 18-7 for the final 11 point Kingston victory margin.

"I was impressed by the Owen-Gage hustle," said Schreiber, whose team is now 3-4 overall. He predicted the Bulldogs will beat some of the weaker teams in the North Central Thumb D League and some of the better ones "if they can catch you on a bad night."

In double figures for Kingston were Larry Smith with 25 points, Dave Green, 22, and Bryan Campbell, 10. The team sank 25 field goals and was 15 of 25 at the free throw line.

Scott Wright had a good night for Owen-Gage with 21 points, followed by Gary Erickson with 15. The team collected 18 field goals and was 18 of 29 at the charity line.

Owen-Gage won the junior varsity game, 38-37. Score by quarters:

$98,000 Hills and Dales grant to battle student drug abuse

Hills and Dales General Hospital has been selected to take part in a comprehensive project to help Michigan hospitals better serve the health promotion needs of local residents.

It has been awarded a $98,260 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek to serve as one of six demonstration sites for a three-year community health promotion program being spearheaded by the Hospital Research and Educational Reserve of Michigan, Inc. (HRER), of Lansing.

The hospital will match the grant on a dollar-for-dollar basis, but its contribution will be "in-kind" in terms of time spent by employees. The hospitals won't have to spend money of its own, according to Administrator Ken Jensen, who is serving as project director. Hills and Dales applied for the grant last June.

An earlier award of $776,100 was made to HRER, the research and educational arm of the Michigan Hospital Association (MHA), to serve as a catalyst and facilitator of community health promotion demonstrations.

As part of this project, a provision was made by the Kellogg Foundation to award a total of $500,000 in equal matching grants to up to six hospitals to pilot test such programs.

"In response to a national trend which focuses on good health, hospitals are answering with diverse health promotion programs tailored to fit community needs," explained Sherry Mirasola, MHA health education coordinator.

"The Michigan pilot sites will be addressing a variety of risk factors in their respective service areas. The implementation of these ambitious projects, combinced with other ongoing hospital programs, will greatly enhance the quality of life for Michigan residents."

UNDER THE DIRECTION of HRER, Hills and Dales plans to offer health promotion services to youths in the Cass City School System.

Specific goals of the project will include reducing the incidence of drug and alcohol abuse in the local school-age population, decreasing the percentage of overweight students, and increasing the performance levels of students on the standardized physical fitness test.

To accomplish these goals, the hospital plans to develop curriculum materials for use in the schools. In addition, it will conduct workshops to train teachers how to use the health promotion materials.

An important component of the program will be the provision of clinical assistance to students with problems.

The hospital also plans to conduct lectures dealing with the three areas of concern. Lecturers will include hospital personnel such as physicians, therapists, and medical technologists. Leaders of Weight Watchers and Diet Workshop will also be invited to speak to students.

The hospital will begin working with teachers this school year, Jensen said, but won't start serving students directly until the 1984-85 school year.

Principals complete study

City banks and a slight charge to the businesses using them are under study. The board would like to issue a menu at the end of each semester.

3 meetings to explain dairy act

The Cooperative Extension Service will conduct meetings in all three upper Thumb counties to explain the new Dairy Production Stabilization Act.

Jan. 31 is the last day for dairymen to sign up at their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office to participate in the voluntary part of the program.

Those who take part will receive $10 for each hundredweight less of milk they market, provided the total marketed is 5-30 percent less than that of 1982 or the average of 1981 and '82.

The Sanilac County meeting will take place Friday from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. in the county conference room, 37 Austin Street, Sandusky.

Speakers will be Dr. Glynn McBride, Michigan State University agricultural economist, and Joe Shaltry, Extension Service regional dairy specialist.

Farmers should bring their 1981 and 1982 marketing histories. They will spend time figuring whether participating in the program will be profitable for them.

The same format will be followed at the Huron County meeting, which will take place Thursday, Jan. 19, in the Farm Bureau building in Bad Axe from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

Speakers will be Shaltry; Jimmy LaVoie, Huron County ASCS executive director, and Andy Sommers, Huron County extension agricultural agent.

Those attending the meetings in those two counties can bring a sack lunch or eat at a restaurant.

The Tuscola County meetings will take place Monday of next week from 10 a.m.-noon at the Millington Township Hall and from 1-3 p.m. at the extension office in Caro, in the basement of the sheriff's department, behind the courthouse.

Shaltry will be the speaker. He will outline the options for farmers deciding to participate in order to reduce production and materials will be passed out to help them decide whether to take part.

Donna Rayl of Akron and Royce Russell of Cass City were unanimously elected chairman and vice-chairman respectively of the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday.

Paul Nagy of Vassar, who was chairman the past five years, was nominated for a sixth year, but turned it down. Nagy then nominated Mrs. Rayl, who has been vice-chairman the past few years.

Russell was nominated for vice-chairman by J. Benson Collon of Caro.

The new chairman made appointments to the board's various committees and commissions.

Russell was appointed chairman of the personnel committee and will be a member of the finance committee, with Ken Kennedy as chairman.

The Cass City commissioner will also serve on the Thumb Area Commission on Aging board and will be an alternate on the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium board.

Other committee chairmen are: Equalization, Robert Russell, Vassar; building and grounds and public works, Collon; departmental control, Nagy, and county affairs, Margaret Wentta, Fostoria.

In other action Tuesday, the board has been notified by U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City, that Tuscola County will receive $330,791 in federal revenue sharing payments this year and the same amount in 1985 and 1986.

Jackie Larson, county personnel director and the board's confidential secretary, and County Clerk Elsie Hicks were appointed to research computers other

Icy roads cause several accidents

Snow and ice covered roads were responsible for numerous area accidents during the past several days, none resulting in serious injuries.

Wade A. Caverly, 22, of 5495 Rossman Road, Kingston, was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital following a 5:30 p.m. accident last Thursday.

Sheriff's deputies reported he was riding a snowmobile westbound alongside a ditch parallel to Rossman between Phillips and Kingston Roads.

One of the snowmobile's skis got caught as he went over the banking for a driveway culvert and he was thrown off.

Athena and Eric Crumby, 11 and 8 respectively, were treated and released from Hills and Dales Wednesday, Jan. 4, for injuries suffered the day before when the car in which they were riding in was in an accident.

They were riding in a car driven by their mother, Freddie Ann Crumby, 34, of 6106 Centerline Road, Kingston, which was northbound on Kingston Road, south of Bevans Road, at 6:40 p.m.

Deputies said a car driven by Bryon E. Dawson, 17, of 5305 Rossman Road, Kingston, approached from the rear, couldn't slow down in time because of the slippery pavement, and struck the left rear of the Crumby auto, which was traveling slower.

Dawson was ticketed on a charge of violation of the basic speed law.

Deputies said Chester F. Gaszczyński, 31, of 5323 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, sought his own treatment after a 3 p.m. accident Sunday.

They reported he was eastbound on Bay City-Forestville Road when he lost control on the icy pavement. His car went into a deep ditch at the northeast corner of the intersection with Richie Road.

At 3:30 p.m. last Thursday, according to deputies, Debra Sue Fetting, 32, of 301 S. Crawford Road, Deford, was northbound on Froede Road, north of M-46, when she lost control of her car on the icy pavement.

The auto went off the west side of the road and struck a tree.

She was given a ticket charging her with driving with an expired driver's license.

Cass City police reported that at 2:30 p.m. that day, Louise D. Krohn, 79, of Elkton, westbound on Pine Street, was unable to stop in time at the stop sign at Seeger Street because of the icy pavement and slid into the path of a southbound auto.

Driver of the other car involved in the collision was Gary D. Perry, 17, of Kelly Road, Cass City.

At 4:40 p.m. last Wednesday, according to deputies, Ronald L. Kady, 37, of 5183 Notter Road, Gageton, was northbound on McEl-downey Road, north of Bay City-Forestville, when he lost control of his car on the snow and ice covered road.

The vehicle crossed the centerline into the path of a southbound auto driven by Ronald C. Seibel, 21, of 6803 N. Colwood Road, Gageton. He steered to the left to avoid a head-on collision and the right side of both vehicles slammed together.

At 1:30 a.m. Jan. 1, deputies reported, Sandra L. Piaskowski, 18, of 4260 S. Seeger Street, was driving northeast on M-81, south of Deckerville Road, when she lost control of her car on the icy roadway.

Her auto hit a snow bank along the left side of the road, ran over two bushes, hit and damaged the fence at the Almer Township Cemetery and then "dislodged" a tombstone.

She was later given a ticket charging her with failing to stop and identify at a property damage accident.

John Olszak of 5584 Walsh Road, Gageton, reported to the sheriff's department Saturday that when his car was parked along the west side of Fourth Street in Gageton Friday night, the left side was sideswiped by a gray hit-and-run vehicle.

Gageton hires CPA for audit

The Gageton Village Council Monday hired certified public accountant John Welch of Pigeon to audit the village's financial records for the fiscal year that will end March 31.

Nuclear war impact told

Nuclear war is the ultimate environmental disaster, says the National Wildlife Federation.

A major nuclear exchange would trigger firestorms that could plunge Earth into two to three months of darkness, causing temperatures to drop 36 degrees Fahrenheit, stopping photosynthesis, thereby destroying much vegetation, including the delicate ocean food chain that begins with phytoplankton.

The impact on the biosphere could lead to the ultimate extinction of the human species.

Tempers flare at Owen-Gage

Huron County schools did to take advantage of Apple's "buy five and get a sixth one free," more than $1,000 was saved over the cost slated in November. The money saved will be used to buy additional programs.

Six of the computers have arrived. Two will probably be in the library, three in the business education room, and one each in the special education, math and science rooms.

The four Commodore computers that were at the high school will go to the elementary school, which already has two.

EXPENDITURES

Erickson reported that two water softeners at about $600 each and 12 ceiling fans for about $150 each have been purchased at considerable savings from a dealer of manufacturer's discontinued and excess merchandise.

The fans will be installed in the high school gym. The softeners will be connected to the high school and elementary cafeteria water heaters, which don't have softeners now.

Among the bills paid was $1,966 to Trish Septic Tank Service for installation of the rerouting sewer pipe, that previously ran under the elementary gym floor. That was almost $200 more than the original bid because more pipe was needed, more work was involved than anticipated and the grease tank had to be pumped.

Elementary Principal William Britt said the swelling under the gym floor, caused when the old pipe leaked, has started to go down, but it will take a long time to settle.

For that reason, seventh-grade basketball games are being played in the high school gym, but practice will still be in Gagetown. The warped floor caused the ball to bounce erratically.

OTHER ITEMS

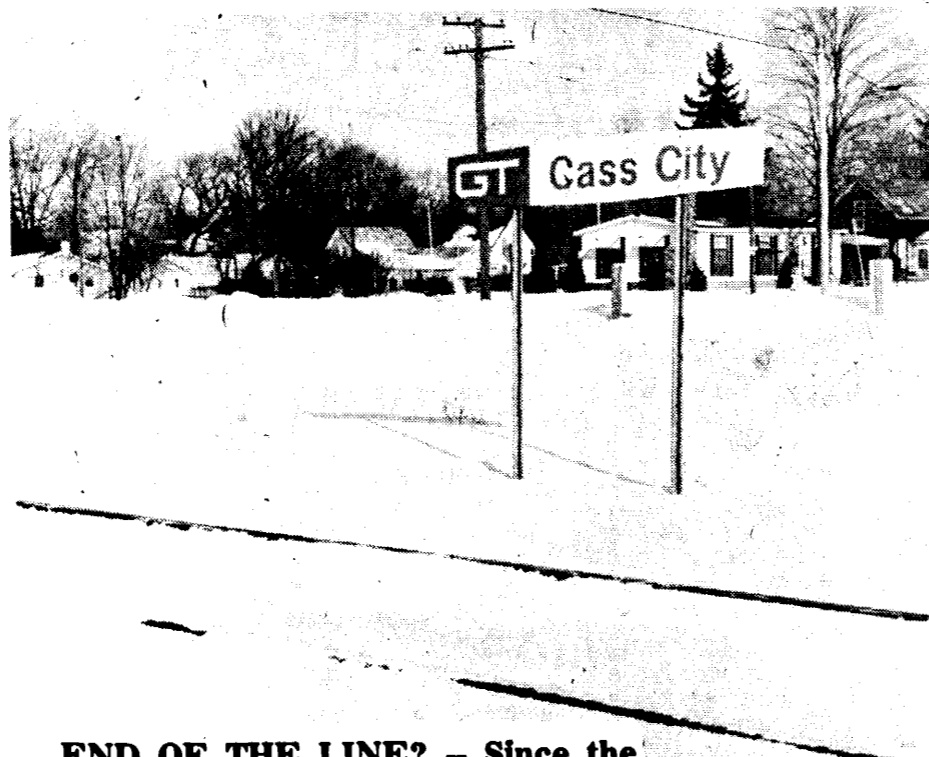

Britt reported permission slips were sent home with elementary students Monday, which must be signed by their parents if they want their children to be fingerprinted. Fingerprinting by the Huron County Sheriff's Department will take place Monday of next week.

The board approved granting "high school equivalency certificates" to former Owen-Gage students who didn't graduate, but who have now passed the General Educational Development test, which is equivalent to a diploma.

Those who qualify will have to ask for a certificate. To qualify, they tentatively will have to have completed five units or credits at Owen-Gage High School. (The maximum that can be earned in a school semester is three.)

The board voted to join the Michigan Coalition of Small Schools for $50. It is the seventh school district to join.

The state Board of Education will decide this Tuesday or Wednesday whether to grant the appeal of Harold Seibel to transfer his 10 acres from Owen-Gage to the Unionville-Sebewaing district.

END OF THE LINE? — Since the Grand Trunk put a surcharge in effect Sept. 3, its tracks have been used only four times and only once did the locomotive travel farther than Cass City.

End to Cass City rail service is predicted

Leipprandt considers it doubtful that the Chessie System would let the T&SB pick up grain at the Pigeon co-op, if the co-op wanted to use the T&SB, and then let it haul it over the Chessie System tracks to Reese, since the Chessie System now has all of the co-op's business.

AS FOR THE CHES-

sie System providing service between Cass City and Pigeon, its Michigan division manager, Walter VanderVeer, told the Chronicle, "We've looked at it, but we have no plans to take it over...We do not plan to take over any additional trackage."

The Grand Trunk, which lost $25 million in 1982 and expects to have lost $15 million last year, claims in its petition to the ICC that it lost $682,566 on its Kings Mill to Pigeon line during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1983, and $666,307 during the year before that.

If the ICC grants the abandonment, it has 15 days after making its decision to issue an abandonment certificate. Once issued, the availability of service by the Grand Trunk could end in 60 days.

Legislation to fight false medical claims

Legislation strengthening enforcement efforts against false medical insurance claims, which the sponsor estimates costs the state approximately $100 million a year in false Medicaid and Medicare claims alone, is being prepared for formal introduction.

Rep. Jeffrey Padden (D-Wyandotte) said the bills will strengthen enforcement by specifying that medical bills, including computer-printed bills, would be evidence of intent to commit fraud and permitting the attorney general's office to get subpoenas to acquire documents used by health care professionals.

Attorney General Frank Kelley and William Smith, director of corporate and financial investigations for Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Michigan, appeared with Padden to support the bills. Padden said his estimate of $100 million lost in Medicaid and Medicare funding was "conservative."

There are no actual statistics on the extent of medical insurance fraud, but the crimes cannot be considered victimless, he added.

ULTIMATELY EVERY insurance subscriber pays to recoup the difference in the form of higher premiums and every taxpayer helps recover the cost of unlawfully submitted Medicaid expenditures, Padden said.

Both Kelley and Smith said law enforcement officials need help in pursuing fraudulent claims which come from "the whole gamut of every kind of health care professional" including physicians, chiropractors, osteopaths, pharmacists and testing laboratories.

Kelley said in past cases, professionals have been able to protect themselves by claiming that fraudulent claims were filed without their knowledge by billing clerks or other personnel.

Smith said some prosecutions have been successful using federal laws, such as the mail fraud act, but stronger state measures are needed to pursue fraudulent claims.

The two measures set a maximum penalty for fraudulent claims of four years in prison and fines of $50,000.

The maximum penalty is already prescribed in current Medicaid law, but the private insurance company fraud bill creates a new act.

The private insurance company bill also sets penalties for conspiracy to commit fraud at 10 years in prison and fines of $50,000.

KELLEY SAID THE sections of the legislation permitting the state to use bills, including computer tapes and computer printed bills, as evidence of fraud will help show that "in fact, there was intent to defraud," and prevent defendants from claiming they had no part in fraudulent action.

Padden insisted the two bills were not designed as a "witch hunt" or to go after health care professionals who make close calls in ordering medical examinations or tests.

The bills are designed to go after professionals who endanger patients by subjecting them to constant tests, such as X-rays, without cause, bill the state or insurance companies for tests that are never performed, or who actually pay patients to come in for an alleged examination and then file claims though nothing may be wrong with the patient, Padden explained.

Students learning to use computers

Miss Williams, incidentally, is the first teacher at the intermediate school, to use one of the computers for figuring grade averages.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT year is still being decided, she said. One thing being debated is switching typing, now a mandatory eighth grade subject, to fifth grade, which would aid the students in learning how to use computers, since they use a regular typewriter keyboard with symbols added.

That's more difficult than it sounds, however, according to Principal Robert Stickle. Making the switch next year would mean sixth, seventh and eighth graders would never receive typing training.

Another change being looked at for next year is six or 12 weeks of one period per day training for eighth graders, so they would learn more about graphics and writing programs.

Other than the aforementioned students, fifth grade teacher Geraldine Tibbitts is having her slow math students use the computers for learning multiplication tables, etc., and her whole class will come to the computer room once a week the second semester.

Special education teacher Mary Cross' students are also using the computers, and Marion Binder will be using them with her remedial reading students.

What administrators and the school board have yet to decide is what happens to the computer trained intermediate school students when they go on to high school. "We're going to have to make some changes in our high school program when those kids get here," said Principal Russell Richards.

It still must be decided what is the right approach, Richards commented, for instance, whether all students should have a "smattering" of computer education. "I'm not sure people really know."

THE HIGH SCHOOL'S five computers are all in the classroom of science teacher Douglas Grezeszak.

For two periods a day, he has students studying either chemistry, physics or computer science. The students work basically on their own in all three subjects, but still, "It's chaos," Grezeszak said. He feels two subjects taught at the same time would be much easier and more productive, but hasn't been able to do that because of scheduling difficulties.

Students the first semester learn what is called BASIC computer language and then work on word processing. The second semester consists of basic programming and use of other software. Grezeszak also has three students enrolled in a second year of computer study in an independent study program.

He also has four or five students coming in at various periods to study word processing. There are no business classes at the high school teaching computer use or business word processing.

That may change, however. Application has been made for federal funds to pay half the cost to buy one computer for the business education room, two for the vocational agriculture room and one for home economics. If the grant is approved, the school board will have to pay the other half, which will be about $5,000.

Home economics students have already borrowed a computer from Grezeszak's room to study a unit on nutrition and diet. Art students used a computer to learn about perspective in painting.

All ninth graders second semester will be taking a social studies class taught by Donald Markel that includes a 4-6 week unit on computers, including how they are used, BASIC language and components. No time will be spent actually working on computers, however. The overall theme of the class is a study of society, including career development and economics.

IN ADDITION TO the specific training the intermediate teachers had who are using the computers regularly, Miss Williams and Stickle conducted a two-day after-school session in November for all teachers who wanted to come. About 40 attended.

To increase the amount of software available, and therefore make the computers more useful in more subject areas, the school district has joined a computer consortium through the Regional Educational Media Center. The membership allows the programs to be purchased at cost.

Knowing what programs to buy, however, isn't easy, since there are hundreds available. "I get catalogs daily on software," Stickle said. "You certainly can't preview all of it."

The principal sees potentially more uses of the computers. "Drill and practice is excellent on those things," such as for learning multiplication tables, and capitals of states, and for special education students.

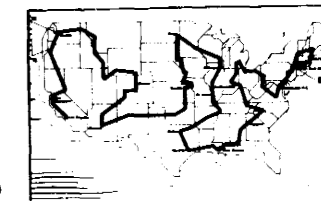

"The machine has infinite patience," Stickle comments. "That's something we can't get from people."

Edison franchise approval unanimous

It didn't take long to count the ballots cast in Cass City Tuesday.

The vote was 18-0 in favor of renewing a 30-year franchise with the Detroit Edison Co.

There are 790 registered voters in Cass City, according to Village Clerk Joyce LaRoche, which means 2.3 percent of them cast ballots.

NOW: The 1984 Olympic Torch Relay—the longest ever—will cover 20,000 kilometers and pass through all 50 states, and the District of Columbia.
