About 400 persons watched the various events. Bert Brinkman, representing the Evangelical Free Church, was overall champion, besting the other preliminary event winners by eating 28 cookies in two minutes.

Village finances healthy; landfill's future isn't

Cass City received a financial clean bill of health in 1983.

The village council, which accepted the favorable financial report Tuesday evening, delayed making a decision on the future of the village-owned landfill, though it looks more and more like it will be closed.

Trustees approved the request of the Junior Wranglers 4-H Club to erect a horse corral in the village park.

The audit, presented to the council by Gary A. Keller of the certified public accounting firm of Yeo and Yeo, showed the village had total revenue in 1983 of $1.42 million and expenditures of $1.41 million. Included in those totals are the general fund, street funds, sewer and water funds and some miscellaneous funds.

The general fund received $487,006 in revenue, including $288,345 from property taxes, and spent $497,184, with the $10,178 "deficit" being paid for out of savings. The general fund balance at the end of the year was $164,647, compared to $172,243 at the end of 1982.

"I think the village has done a real good job on (receiving) grants and other stuff," Keller concluded. "You're meeting all state and federal compliance guidelines."

Cass City ended the year with a cash balance of $204,653 in general village funds, $96,412 in its debt service fund and $28,813 in its capital project fund.

LANDFILL

The council was expected to make a decision Tuesday on the fate of the landfill, since a decision is due to the state Department of Natural Resources by March 1.

Jim Ware, chairman of the public utilities committee, predicted the council will have to close it, since it will be impossible to make the improvements needed at reasonable cost to comply with state regulations. The estimate to comply is $80,000.

Being considered is using the site for a collection and transfer station. Residents of the village and the four townships using their landfill could bring their trash there at certain hours. It would be placed in a large container, which would be hauled away to an approved landfill.

Use of the site for a transfer station must also be licensed by the DNR like the landfill, but the village hasn't been able to obtain all the information needed yet from the DNR or East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region, which is the reason for the delay in making a decision.

The landfill would probably remain open for deposit of demolished building materials, trees, brush, but not for any garbage.

In addition to having to meet requirements for the transfer station, Ware pointed out, there are also ones to meet for closing the landfill, if that is the decision made, including covering and seeding. The monitoring wells would have to remain in place to make sure no pollution was leaking from the landfill.

Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie pointed out the DNR is aware the wells show there are no pollution problems at present at the landfill.

Ware said he didn't know what the DNR could do if the council doesn't decide on time what it will do with the landfill. If the landfill is closed, Sept. 1 is supposed to be the deadline for doing so.

HORSE CORRAL

The council approved the request of the Junior Wranglers to erect a 150-by-300-foot oval corral in the village park east of the sledding hill and north of the ice skating rink.

Village crews will level the site, but club members and parents will erect the wood fence and maintain it. The club plans to use it for practice sessions Thursday evenings and Sunday afternoons each year until the county fair in August and for their annual horse show. The ring can be used by individuals at other times and for groups to conduct horse or livestock shows. Each group will be responsible for cleaning up afterwards.

Trustee Lynda McIntosh, chairman of the park committee, said the committee decided the village park "has a little bit of everything, so why not for horses?"

Still to be worked out between the club and committee is a fee schedule for use of the corral. It was suggested the Junior Wranglers might have to make a deposit with the village at the beginning of each season, which would be all or partially refunded at the end if the club kept the area maintained and clean. Other groups using it might have to pay a fee.

Liability will be covered under the village's present insurance policy.

OTHER ITEMS

Patrice Priestap of Brenda Drive expressed concern to the council that there is no sidewalk along the west side of Seeger Street south of Hillcrest Street. She is concerned when her children start going to school they would have to walk in the street.

There is no sidewalk going past two houses. Present village policy is that the cost of new sidewalks has to be paid entirely by the property owner.

Council members shared her concern and referred the matter to the street committee for a recommendation.

No representatives of taxing units attended the hearing for the request of Walbro Corp. for an industrial facilities exemption for its new addition to its engineering building on Garfield Street, which will house the headquarters for its Carburetor Group and

For village president

Armstead defeats Althaver in primary

Cass City will likely have a new village president starting April 1. Ray Armstead Jr. having defeated incumbent Lambert Althaver in the Republican primary election Monday by 22 votes, 189-167.

Armstead, 32, still must run in the March 12 general election, but unless challenged by a write-in candidate, it will be a formality, since no Democrat is running. If elected then, he will serve a two-year term.

Althaver, president and chief executive officer of Walbro Corp., has been village president since 1965 and served on the village council for two years before then. Armstead operates his own certified public accounting service.

There were 358 votes cast in the primary, which is 45 percent of the 794 registered voters in the village.

There were four candidates listed on the ballot for the three four-year terms on the village council, all Republicans. Nominated were Larry Davis, 273 votes; Lynda McIntosh, the lone incumbent, 269, and Joanne Hopper, 257.

The fourth candidate, Gregory Armstead, decided after filing his candidacy not to run. It was too late to withdraw his name from the ballot and he received 94 votes. He had asked voters to vote for the other candidates.

The others on the ballot, both Republican incumbents, were Joyce LaRoche, who received 321 votes for clerk and 314 for treasurer, and Daniel Erla, who received 303 votes for assessor.

Mrs. LaRoche estimated 20-40 would-be voters were turned away at the polls because they weren't registered to vote in the village. They had registered with the Elkland Township clerk, but to vote in village elections, it is necessary to register separately at the village office. The deadline is past to register to vote in the March 12 general election.

UBLY PRIMARY

There was no upset in Uby Monday, where incumbent Village President Earl Longuski won the Republican nomination over William Bailey, 133-98. Longuski has held the office eight years. Bailey has served on the village council eight years.

The March 12 general election won't be a formality, as Longuski will be opposed by Democrat Tony Olshove, who received three votes in the primary.

Of the 468 registered voters in Uby, 241 or 51 percent cast ballots, which Village Clerk Chris Tyll described as "real good for a primary." Seven of the ballots were spoiled.

The three Republicans running for the three seats on the village council were William Roberts, 136 votes; David Jaroch, 120, and Bruce Brown, 103. Roberts and Brown are incumbents.

Lana Gordon, a Democrat and present council member, received two votes. The village council and president will be the only races in the general election.

Running without opposition will be Tyll (R) for clerk, who received 154 primary votes; Florence Schrader, (R), treasurer, 149, and Cass Abraham (D), assessor, two votes.

Also March 12, two candidates will run for non-partisan terms on the library board.

Gagetown, Kingston and Owendale will also have general elections that day.

RAY ARMSTEAD JR.

Armstead 'surprised' by victory

"It was kind of a surprise," Ray Armstead Jr. said Tuesday morning of his 22-vote primary election victory Monday over Lambert Althaver, who has been village president since 1965.

Armstead won the Republican nomination, so still must run in the March 12 general election, but with no Democrat running, doesn't have to worry unless someone mounts a write-in campaign.

"I'm really happy I did win," the certified public accountant said, "but it still kind of shocked me it did go that way."

Armstead, who has only been a Cass City resident since 1981, said his motivation in running was to create some interest in

Apartments almost certain in village

Construction of a 24-unit apartment building for senior citizens is almost a certainty in Cass City.

Joe Greene, Farmers Home Administration district loan specialist in Caro, said the application of Rural Housing Corp. of East Lansing for a $713,500 loan to construct the apartment building was approved last week by his office.

It still must be approved by the FHA state office, but Greene said it usually approves loans okayed by district offices. He expects the state office to make a decision by the end of this week.

The FHA loan covers 95 percent of the cost, Greene said, with RHC having to put up the remainder, which puts the total cost of the project at $751,053. The site will be on three acres of village owned property on which the developer has an option to purchase for $24,000.

The site is at the foot of Woodland Avenue in the southeast corner of the village, south of Garfield Street.

Before construction can begin, however, it will have to be rezoned by the village council from the present single family residential to multiple family residential. When the proposal was first presented to the council last August, James Hovey of RHC said rents would be on a sliding scale. Those at the top of the allowable income scale under the FHA regulations of $23,000 annually would pay about $500 a month rent. Those earning about $10,000 or less would pay the minimum of about $240.

Hovey couldn't be reached for comment as to when construction will start or when the building will be ready for occupancy.

State to finally pay its share

Sewer construction closer in Gagetown, Owendale

Gagetown and Owendale are moving closer to the start of construction of their sanitary sewer systems.

A recent Michigan Supreme Court decision clearing the way for the state to sell $33 million in Clean Water Bonds will aid those projects and also the $6 million wastewater treatment plant in Cass City, which was completed last year.

GAGETOWN

The Gagetown Village Council accepted the low bids of Dan's Excavating of Utica Dec. 13 for both parts of the project. Its bid was $572,600 for construction of the two sewage lagoons and $748,615 for installation of sewer mains. The firm was low bidder for both.

Village President Bill

Downing said all that remains before the construction contracts can be signed is for the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to receive some required information from Dan's Excavating, "then we're ready to go."

The consulting engineers, Edmands Engineering, have told Downing the contract signing might take place in a couple of weeks.

After that, when construction starts depends on the weather. "As long as it stays nice, I don't see why we can't start next month," Downing commented.

Once construction begins, the contractor has 360 days to complete the project.

The village council Jan. 18 approved two lengthy ordinances necessary for the project, both of which were later published in the Chronicle.

One establishes the fees homeowners and building owners will have to pay for the new system.

Downing pointed out the fees ultimately may be less than those published but won't be more.

The published minimum charge to connect a dwelling to the sewer will be $2,000. For other than dwellings, depending on the size of the meter needed, from 1-inch to 8 inches, the charge will be $5,000 and up.

Proceeds from the so-called capital charge will be used to pay the local share of construction costs. In addition to paying it, property owners will also have to hire someone to install the pipe connecting their plumbing to the sewer main and to disconnect the septic tank. Hookup, won't start until 1985.

Those who cannot afford to pay the capital charge all at once can make annual payments to the village over a 39-year period at 12 percent interest on the unpaid balance. The entire unpaid balance can be paid at any time.

Those choosing to pay by installment must give written notice to the village no later than May 1, 1985.

The ordinance also spells out the proposed user charges that will go into effect once buildings are connected to the treatment system and it is in operation. The minimum charge is $18 every three months for 12,000 or fewer gallons and $1.50 per thousand in excess of that.

The other ordinance approved by the council deals with the sale of $355,000 in bonds to the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) to finance the local 20 percent share of construction cost, plus some non-reimbursable costs. The federal government pays 75 percent and the state, 5 percent.

The payments on the principal (not including interest) are to be $15,000 annually from 1987 through 1995, $10,000 annually from 1996-2010, and $5,000 annually from 2011-2024. The annual interest rate is 11 3/8 percent.

In addition to the FHA loan, it is giving Gagetown a grant of $345,000.

OWENDALE

The Owendale Village Council opened bids for its sewage project Nov. 9. Tuesday of last week it awarded the bid for excavation of the two lagoons to Angelo Ifrate Construction Co. of the Detroit area, which had the low bid of $547,000.

There has been a problem with the low bid submitted by a Clio firm for installation of the sewer lines, which is why it hasn't been awarded yet. Based on the firm's record and reputation on other projects, village President Walt Howard Jr. said, the firm isn't felt capable of doing the required work in Owendale. Its bid was $827,000.

The council decided to have the second low bidder, Wooten Construction Co., also of the Detroit area, submit information next week for review before it can be awarded the bid.

The council has until March 9 — 120 days from when the bids were opened — to award one for installation of the sewer lines.

Owendale residents won't have to pay most of the additional cost of the second high bidder, if Wooten is awarded the contract.

If the DNR and FHA agree that the village council had no choice but to award the contract to Wooten, the FHA will pick up most of the cost, said FHA district loan specialist Joe Greene.

Howard said the FHA will pay approximately $87,000 and village residents will have to pay $8,000. The local share will come out of the contingency allotted for increased costs. The FHA has awarded the village a combination loan and grant, like that for Gagetown, to finance the local share.

If all goes well, the village president commented, "then we can start digging this spring."

STATE BONDS

As mentioned, the state's share of sewer projects in Gagetown, Owendale, and Cass City is supposed to be 5 percent.

The state hasn't contributed its share, however, because the money was supposed to come from the sale of Clean Water Bonds, but the 1968 voter-approved proposal authorizing their sale limited the interest rate to be paid by the state to no more than 6 percent.

The Michigan Supreme Court has now cleared the way for the legislature to amend the law, thus allowing sale of $33 million in bonds at present day interest rates.

The money from the sale of the bonds, according to State Rep. Dick Allen,

"If It Fitz . . ."

Winners must bubble

By Jim Fitzgerald

Beneath my calm exterior boils a definite conflict of interests. I am extremely interested in winning thousands of dollars worth of valuable merchandise for my wife. But I'm not at all interested in being bubbly. In fact, just the thought of being bubbly makes my socks shrivel.

Some people like to call attention to themselves. That's why entertainer Michael Jackson wears only one glove, which is more eye-catching than only one earring but not nearly as effective as only one shoe.

I remember returning home from the third grade wearing only one shoe, leaving its mate stuck forever in a muddy field. This brought me a great deal of immediate attention from my parents. It is possible to overlook that a boy is wearing only one glove, but a joy wearing only one shoe tends to list, either to the right or left, and it is difficult for him to walk into view without being noticed. If I were a rock singer today, yearning to be more noticed than Michael Jackson, I would never wear more than one shoe at a time.

When I grew older and wiser, I realized I could have masked the list caused by my lost shoe simply by shortening the sideburn on the side of my head corresponding with the shoeless foot. And that is what I'll do if I ever lose another shoe. As an adult, I don't want to be noticed for listing anymore than, as a child, I wanted to be noticed for losing a shoe that cost my father $1.25. (He made me hop to school until the following winter).

I don't want to be noticed for bubbling, either. Which brings us back—finally—to my conflict of interests. There is a TV game show called "Wheel of Fortune" on every weeknight. I hate the show, but I love to play the game because I'm good at it.

This schizoid problem is neatly solved by the remote control device—the greatest invention since yelling—that enables me to control the TV set without leaving my chair. "Wheel of Fortune" is a 30-minute program containing 15 minutes of advertisements for sponsors and firms providing prizes, eight minutes of blathering between the host and contestants (speaking of shriveling socks), two minutes for two plastic persons to draw that day's winners in the state lottery, and only five minutes of actual game-playing. Everything except the game is tuned out by the almighty ruler of a remote kingdom.

The winner of the game is the contestant who requires the least letters of the alphabet to figure out what well-known phrase, title or name is being spelled out on a billboard. Because my head is full of useless information, I am often the first to shout out the correct answer. But I am never a contestant, and I never win any of the valuable merchandise prizes my wife covets.

"What good are you to me sitting there?" she always asks. And her aggression increased the other night when it was revealed that "Wheel of Fortune" is running out of contestants in the Hollywood area and is scouring the nation in search of fresh fortune-seekers: "There's your chance; go for it," she demanded.

I can't. The man on TV said the most important qualification for people auditioning to be "Wheel of Fortune" contestants is "they must be bubbly." That means they must jump, scream, clap hands and otherwise call attention to themselves in public. I am constitutionally unable to do that.

TV game shows discriminate against aspiring contestants who can't behave like idiots. The Federal Communications Commission should provide equal time for people who aren't Bozo the Clown. I want to play "Wheel of Fortune" through the mail and pick up my prizes at a post office box.

I will go this far: As long as I can keep both shoes on, I'll wear only one sock to the post office. I figure I won't list enough to be noticed because the sock will surely be shriveled.

FRED AUTEN, president of the Cass City State Bank, was on hand Wednesday, Feb. 15, when Sherryl Seeley cut a decorated cake that commemorated her 25th year at the bank. The cake featured a surprise party given by the employees. A pen and pencil set was presented.

Car parts, supplies stolen in Gagetown

Numerous auto parts and supplies were reported stolen Saturday afternoon from a building in Gagetown.

Kenneth Orton told sheriff's deputies the items were stored in the basement of the vacant Donna's Restaurant building on State Street.

Taken were 60 air filters, 30 shock absorbers, 10 cans of water pump lubricant, six cans of vinyl dressing, eight cans of plastic cleaner, one pail of grease, a dolly cart, and from upstairs, a lamp, ash trays and a case of coffee cup saucers. Total value of the stolen items was listed at $224. Most of the stolen items had the Texaco brand name.

Entry was gained by breaking a window. Orton also reported that a few weeks earlier, two windows in the building were broken by persons throwing stones.

Clarence (Bud) Schneeberger reported to Cass City police Friday morning that a hole had been shot in the front window of the Schneeberger's store on Main Street the night before and another hole was made a week earlier.

Replacement cost of each of the 6-by-6-foot windows is about $300.

Police Chief Gene Wilson accompanied intermediate school Principal Robert Stickle to a home on Doerr Road last Thursday morning, where Stickle recovered a music stand and cymbal which had been taken from the school.

A 15-year-old boy later admitted to school authorities that he took the items. Two other boys have been implicated as aiding in the theft.

Police are leaving it up to school authorities to decide whether the theft will be treated as a school problem or as a criminal matter.

Friday afternoon, Mrs. Ray Betzold, 4452 Doerr Road, reported to village police that the rearview mirrors were stolen from a motorcycle. The mirrors were later found, but the glass was broken out of them.

Rabbit Tracks

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

The phone bandits are at it again. One called Monday to tell me that I was one of four persons in Michigan to win my choice of one of four expensive prizes. A TV set, a computer and two other similar prizes were offered. What's more I would be eligible to compete for the grand national prize of a new Cadillac. "You'd like to have a new Cadillac, wouldn't you, John?"

It's an advertising stunt and just to keep it legal, went the pitchman, we have to sell you our pen. with advertising on it. As little as $1,000 for most winners, but for you our smaller package of $675, John. It's just a matter of showing good faith.

Okay, just send me all the details in writing together with a sample of the pen and I'll be happy to pay you and pick up my prize, I requested. Click went the phone.

Don Powers works as a Federal mediator in the Saginaw valley area. He had some good news and some bad news for Cass City Rotarians in a brief talk Tuesday noon.

The good news is that Cass City has a work ethic alive and strong in the labor force. You've kept your town and community alive and vibrant, he said, and it looks like the community will progress nicely.

The bad news is that he says there will be some stormy times ahead on the labor front between union and management.

We've gone through some rough times the last two years and it looks like more of the same in the year ahead, he concluded.

Received a check for a subscription renewal for Fred Jaus who now lives in Bad Axe with his daughter. Jaus, as most area folks know, is over 100 years old. The subscription renewal was for two years.

Car fire minor

Elkland Township firemen extinguished a car fire Thursday evening, with only minor damage reported.

Owner of the car was Ronald E. Rouse of Walnut Trailer Park, who was driving the 1973 model car on Main Street when an apa-rent electrical short under the hood started a fire near the firewall, Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. said. Rouse stopped the car west of Seeger, by the south curb.

Most of the damage consisted of burned wiring. The fire was reported at 6:20 p.m.

Sunday was no day to be skiing. In northern Michigan it was warm and raining. No it was warm and pouring, coming down in sheets.

It wasn't hard to decide to stay where it was warm and dry. That was easy. The harder part was deciding what to do with 8 lift tickets good only for Sunday. Could they be sold?

Remember now, that the only way conditions could have been worse would have been for Boyne Mountain to close down.

That wasn't about to happen. Despite the weather, there were lots of brave souls willing to take a drenching.

I suppose that if you came to Boyne from Illinois, Indiana or other distant points, by gum, you'd be going to get in some skiing too, even if it killed you. All this is a prelude to the topic for the day.

It's trust or the lack of it. So many of us have been exposed to scams and money fleecing schemes that perhaps we miss opportunities when they come our way.

Take those ski tickets. They retail at the box office for $20 each. Because of the weather Sunday, a decision was reached to sell our tickets for $10 each, half the regular retail.

The youngest of the Haire tribe volunteered to do the selling. The results of his sales effort in the parking lot reflected human nature.

One lady with two children wanted to save the $30. But she was afraid. Let me go to the ticket window, (about the length of two football fields away) and I'll come back, she said. First come, first served was the answer.

Another wanted to bargain the price even lower, provided he could check the tickets with someone first.

Another said that maybe the management was offering a better deal because of the weather. No sale. Cautious, every one of them.

That contrasts with the eight who purchased the tickets. A couple of them wondered why and bought when reassured they were genuine tickets at genuine savings.

Four of the purchasers never questioned the validity of the tickets for a moment. Their only question was, "do you have any tickets for tomorrow?"

All of this proves nothing, of course, except that it isn't always the wary and the cynical that come out ahead.

Sometimes it does pay to take a chance and have a little faith in fellow human beings.

Exchange student is small town girl

Jane Norgaard lives outside a small town, where it gets cold in winter and hot in summer.

That applies both to Denmark and the United States.

The exchange student is living with William and Ilene Soldan and family on Cass City Road, nine miles west of Cass City.

In Denmark, she lives four miles from Viby, a town so small, "People in Denmark don't even know it." The town is about 30 miles from Copenhagen, the capital.

Miss Norgaard's father is a chauffeur for government officials. Her mother is a secretary. She has one sister who is married and lives in Copenhagen.

The family has some horses and cows "for fun," but they don't do any farming.

Miss Norgaard, who is a participant in the Intercultural Student Exchange program, arrived last August and will return home in June. She is spending the whole year with the Soldans.

The 16-year-old graduated from school last year. After her year at Cass City High School, she will go to college in Denmark, which isn't like college in this country.

When students in Denmark finish school at 15 or 16, they have three choices. Some have finished their education, so then get a job. Others attend a trade or business school for one, two or three years to learn a career, such as secretary or auto mechanic.

The purpose of attending college, which is for three years, is to prepare students for a university, at which they would study for a career.

Miss Norgaard doubts at this point that she will continue her education past college. As for the future, "I have no idea what I want to be." She does like the idea, however, of some day owning a flower shop.

AT CASS CITY HIGH SCHOOL, Jane is studying history, government, English, literature, geometry and physical education. She is working for a teacher one period a day and has study hall one period.

There is quite a contrast between education here and in her country, she noted.

Teachers in Denmark don't give as many tests and the end-of-the-year examination is prepared by the government and is the same all over the country. Even the teachers don't see it until students start taking it.

Although American exchange students in Denmark she has talked to felt the Danish schools were more difficult than American ones, "I say here is harder."

Transportation to school, incidentally, is via bus in winter and by bicycle during the warmer months.

The school year runs from August to June. The school day runs from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. some days and 9-3 other days. Some class subjects are taught five days a week and some less.

For instance, a typical school week might include eight hours of Danish (classes one hour a day two days and two hours three days); math, five hours, and history, two hours.

ENGLISH IS STUDIED for five years and German for only two, despite the fact Denmark borders on Germany. English is used more in business than German, Miss Norgaard explained, hence is studied longer.

It took her about a week to adjust once she arrived. The English taught in Denmark is British English and some of the terms used are different than those in America (a truck, for instance, is called a lorry in Britain).

Television is also different in the two countries. Denmark has one channel, which starts broadcasting weekdays at 5 p.m. and ends at 11 p.m. "We don't have commercials," Miss Norgaard said. Instead, the Danes have to pay an annual fee to support each year.

After having seen American commercials, she can say, "I think it's better to pay than to have the commercials."

JANE DIDN'T EVEN get an opportunity to find out what Cass City was like before she got to see what a lot of country was like.

The Soldans and the new member of their family arrived home at midnight and left seven hours later on a 2½ week vacation to Georgia and Florida.

The travelers might be described as close-knit. Squeezed inside the car were Mr. and Mrs. Soldan, Miss Norgaard, and the four Soldan children, Vicky, 18, who has since moved to Florida, Ann, 16, Patty, 15, and Kathy 13.

"It was strange to drive so far," Jane said of the trip. In Denmark, the farthest one can drive without crossing the border with Germany or going into the sea is about 200 miles.

In November, she and other exchange students spent three days in Chicago. In April and May, she is scheduled to go on a trip with other exchange students to New York City and Washington, D.C.

more space for engineering and development.

Walbro and village President Lambert Althaver said school Supt. Donald Crouse has learned that because of the state aid formula, the exemption won't result in loss of revenue for the Cass City Schools.

He pointed out that for the village, county and township, the exemption won't mean a loss of present revenue but only a reduction in future revenue, since the exemption applies only to the new building.

Starting with December, 1984, tax bills, Walbro will pay only half the property taxes it would otherwise pay for 12 years. The building is valued at $972,485, Althaver said, and taxes are normally based on half the value, so Walbro will be paying on a quarter of the value. Althaver and Ware, who is Walbro treasurer, abstained from voting on the exemption, which still must be approved by the State Tax Commission and Department of Commerce.

The council approved the preliminary plat for the industrial park owned by the Cass City Industrial Development Corp. It now must be approved by the state and county, and then the council must give final approval. Three parcels have been sold in the park, so only one more could have been sold before it had to be platted or subdivided under state law.

The village has asked the state Department of Transportation to make "Home of astronaut Brewster Shaw" signs to be erected at the main entrances to the village.

local government and to give voters a choice. "It seems to have accomplished that."

Armstead's campaigning consisted of a Chronicle ad and a flyer placed under

Rabideau attends sales meet

Wayne Rabideau of Rabideau Motors was one of more than 800 J I Case agricultural equipment dealers who recently attended a major sales meeting and new product introduction at the Case proving grounds near Phoenix.

During the dealer meeting, Case dealers witnessed the unveiling of the new Case 94 Series four-wheel-drive agricultural tractor line. These four high horsepower tractors, Models 4494, 4694, 4894 and the all-new 4994, feature manufacturer's estimated gross engine horsepower of 213, 261, 300 and 400 respectively.

A major feature on all 94 Series tractors is a sophisticated electronic instrumentation cluster.

The advanced electronics allow an operator to precisely measure tractor performance -- even true ground speed and percentage of wheel slippage (using an optional true ground speed sensor) -- which will provide information to significantly increase field efficiency. The instrumentation cluster also features 13 indicators to monitor vital operating functions, providing visual and audible warnings in case of malfunction.

car windshield wipers and passed out at homes. He said he didn't do any personal door-to-door campaigning.

Asked why he thought he won, he responded, "I think basically, a lot of people thought it was time for a change, that 19 years (by Althaver as village president) is a long time."

As village president, which pays a maximum of $450 a year ($25 per meeting), he said he wants "to let all people be heard at the village level."

He feels some Cass City residents felt their opinions haven't always been heard and that might have contributed to his victory.

Althaver said to Chronicle he was surprised at the outcome, but didn't wish to comment further on the primary election.

Apartment loan given first ok pancy.

In getting the FHA loan, albeit tentative at this point, RHC has beat out two other developers seeking a similar loan to build apartments in Cass City.

Management Resources Development of Lansing wanted to build a three-building 32-unit apartment complex for families. It has an option to buy 10 privately owned acres southeast of the corner of Garfield and Woodland.

Bavarian Builders of Frankenmuth has an option to buy the rest of the village owned property, about 6 acres, where RHC plans to build. Bavarian wants to build a total of 31 units in two buildings for senior citizens.

Bavarian hasn't submitted its application yet, according to Greene.

The developers of all three projects have conceded that the FHA will probably fund only one project at a time, but might fund a second in the future.

Pedaling Around

No school activities

By Mike Eliasohn

The request of local ministers, presented at last week's Cass City School Board meeting, to abolish all school activities on Wednesday nights, is probably doomed.

The idea of having one "free" night during the week so that school children can take part in church or family activities isn't new.

I vaguely recall that the issue came up when I was covering the Centreville School Board for the Three Rivers Commercial around 1972. The decision there was there were too many extracurricular activities to not have any on one week night -- and that was before girls' sports.

I'm afraid students who want to take part in a church activity during the week are going to have to make a choice -- as they have been doing -- whether to take part in the school or church activity.

I wonder how often such conflicts take place, however. Other than evening athletic practices, necessary because there are too many teams that need the gym, so they can't all practice right after school, how many school activities are there on Wednesday nights? Not many.

If there were no school activities then, as the ministers want, more students might go to church, but the majority won't.

It might be nice if all those who didn't go to church, if there were nothing to do at school, would stay home and be with their families and do homework, but I'm not that naive.

Those who should be in church, at home or at a school activity -- if the last alternative isn't eliminated -- will still be roaming the streets.

The present policy requiring the school board to give permission for any school activities on Sundays, usually for a practice before a Monday game, seems reasonable to me as long as it is an infrequent occurrence.

The idea of Sundays being reserved for church and family activities isn't what it used to be.

Families may still be together on those days, but instead of quiet contemplation, they are more likely to gather around the TV set to watch a football game or go shopping.

"will not be available until late this year or early next, but it is nonetheless forthcoming."

Sale of the bonds should mean about $71,000 for Gagetown, $62,000 for Owendale and Cass City, $31,165. They had previously received $2,620, $3,340 and $280,490 respectively from the state.

Had Gagetown and Owendale not received the money, they would have had to negotiate with the FHA for a larger loan and/or grant, unless construction costs had been enough under the estimates to offset the missing state money.

Cass City was withholding the $31,165 from the contractor, H.C. Weber Construction Co. of Bay City, as a penalty for having completed the treatment plant several months behind schedule.

Once the village gets the money from the state, it will be forwarded to Weber. Had the state never paid its share, then the contractor would not have received the money, according to village Superintendent Lou LaPonzie.

However, at the village council meeting Tuesday, it was mentioned the state is having trouble finding a buyer for the bonds, so receipt of the money is again tentative.

Six musicians get top ratings

Six Cass City High School band students received first division ratings at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association District III solo and ensemble festival Saturday at Caro High School.

All soloists, they were Susie Scollon, piano; Annette Stachura, clarinet; Jeanne Marshall, clarinet; Yvette Hurd, clarinet; Scott Harding, percussion, and Craig Schuette, tuba.

By receiving the top division rating, they qualified to play at the state solo and ensemble festival March 31 at the University of Michigan - Flint.

Receiving second division ratings were Allen Burk, horn solo; Rick Guilds, alto saxophone solo; Deb Blue, flute solo; Aaron Lefler, baritone saxophone solo; Tammy Iseler and Lori Hartwick, alto saxophone duet, and Annette Stachura and Rob Wright, clarinet duet.

Chris Tuckey and Yvette Hurd received a third division rating for their flute-clarinet duet.

Police grievances up to arbitrator

Settlement of two grievances filed by the Fraternal Order of Police in behalf of the Cass City police officers it represents is awaiting confirmation by an arbitrator that he will accept the cases.

Officer Phil Klaus, who is the union steward for the four local patrolmen, said Tuesday the attorneys representing the FOP and the village have mutually agreed on appointment of an arbitrator.

If the person selected agrees to hear the grievances, he will then set a hearing date.

One of the grievances was filed in behalf of officer Robert Moore, who was laid off by the village council from his full-time job as of the beginning of this year and is now working part-time. He is seeking his full-time job back.

The other grievance, Klaus said, was the change from having two officers on duty Friday and Saturday nights to only one after Moore was laid off. Having two men on duty on those nights was standard procedure even before Moore was added to the force at the beginning of 1982, he said.

The arbitrator will conduct a hearing, after which he will make a ruling concerning both grievances. Klaus said under the grievance procedure, the arbitrator's decisions are binding.

Conservation tillage class set Feb. 28

Conservation tillage will be the topic of a meeting Tuesday, Feb. 28, from 9 a.m.-2:30 p.m., at the Brentwood Restaurant in Caro.

Topics to be covered will be helpful to farm producers in development and implementation of conservation tillage. No-till, minimum tillage and ridge tillage will be covered by specialists of the Soil Conservation Service and Cooperative Extension Service of Huron and Tuscola Counties.

A panel of area producers will talk about their experiences with various types of conservation tillage.

Research information learned from the multi-year soils project will provide valuable information to producers.

Soil conservation is becoming a high level priority in many areas due to soil losses, which have destroyed the soils usefulness, said Dennis Stein, Tuscola County extension agricultural agent. Others are searching for more efficient ways to grow crops and conservation tillage can provide lower time and machinery costs to the producer.

Total tax payments by Consumers in Columbia Township were $3,100; Elmwood Township, $1,800; village of Gagetown, $400; Ellington Township, $16, and Elkland Township, $7.

Arbela Township in the southeast corner of the township received the most, $51,300.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The loss was estimated at possibly $250,000 in the fire Sunday that destroyed the barn on the Shirley Doerr farm on Huron Line Road. Four fire departments battled the blaze with Elkland Township firemen being there the longest, close to 10 hours.

A 16-piece band made its first appearance at the Sunday evening service in the Novesta Church of Christ. It is under the direction of Mrs. Vern Lockard.

Nelson Willy has been recording the temperatures at the wastewater treatment plant for 23 years and the temperature Friday was the coldest he has ever seen, 40 degrees below. The previous record low was 32 below.

Lori Ann Gaeth, recipient of the Daughters of the American Revolution award recently at Owen-Gage High School, received word that she is among the 12 finalists in the Michigan DAR Good Citizen Contest.

Watson and daughter Wendy of East Lansing spent the week end at the Vern Watson home here.

35 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Ball and Mrs. Curtis Hunt went to Detroit Monday night to meet Curtis Hunt, who was returning home from California.

The meeting of the Presbyterian Guild Society, held Monday at the church, was well attended. After the meeting, Mrs. Zora Day, Mrs. Clinton Law and Mrs. Claud Karr served dessert.

Last Saturday night, the Cass City Junior High School basketball team won the Upper Thumb championship by defeating Vassar, 29-22. Mason Cook, Bob Wallace and Don Tuckey were the standout point getters for the Cass City team.

Joan Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, and Donna Ziehm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ziehm, have been named co-valedictorians for the class of 1949 of Owendale High School.

TEN YEARS AGO

Cowgirls barrel racing and goat tying are the events Jan Koepfgen of Cass City will be participating in at the fifth annual Intercollegiate Rodeo at Michigan State University. Miss Koepfgen is a senior at MSU majoring in animal husbandry.

Eric Esau, who has been employed as a secretary for the University of Michigan School of Library Science, has accepted a position as reference librarian at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

The Cass City freshman basketball team ended its season with a flourish by winning the last three games played. Selected as most valuable player was Rick Selby and as most improved, Bill Shagene.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Buehrly and children had as Friday supper guests, Mrs. Buehrly's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Senopole and son Chris of Decker.

25 YEARS AGO

Rev. Melvin R. Vender, assistant pastor at the First Presbyterian Church at Marietta, Ohio, since leaving Cass City a year ago, has resigned his position. Rev. and Mrs. Vender plan to return to Cass City in April.

Mike Yedinak told members of the Cass City Gavel Club of progress in arranging for the first annual Gavel Club Invitational track meet in April. Twenty schools have responded to Yedinak's invitation.

Vern Watson of Detroit, Nancy Watson of Royal Oak and Mr. and Mrs. Charles

Twenty-one members of the Cass City Retired Persons attended the regular monthly meeting Feb. 9 in the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church fellowship hall.

President Donna Wernette called the meeting to order. Mildred Herr gave the invocation.

Rose Worstelle led the pledge to the flag. "God Bless America" was sung by all. Mildred Herr read the secretary's report.

Bingo was played. The next meeting will be Thursday, March 8, in the Lutheran fellowship hall.

Margaret Beckett, Rose Worstelle, Donna and Don Wernette will be in charge of arrangements.

HEALTH TIPS New techniques for those with cataracts

Almost one out of three Americans over 65 has a cataract, a clouding of the lens. Early minimal cataracts do not need removal, but for those persons whose vision is blurred, new surgical techniques are available with success rates well over 90 percent.

No treatment except surgery is effective to cure cataracts. The most striking new development in cataract surgery is the use of intraocular lens implants (IOL) -- a tiny plastic lens that is inserted permanently into the eye to replace the surgically-removed natural lens.

Although IOLs may not be appropriate for everyone, more than half the patients having cataract surgery (approximately 250,000 persons) now receive an IOL. The IOL is convenient for some persons over 65 whose arthritis may make the insertion of contact lenses difficult. IOLs also cause little visual distortion. Of course, many post-operative cataract patients do very well with contact lenses or traditional eye glasses.

The development of IOLs began in the 1940s after British ophthalmologist Harold Ridley noticed that pieces of cockpit canopy plastic that lodged in combat-injured pilots' eyes were retained in the eye with little or no reaction.

Dr. Ridley found that the kind of plastic in cockpit covers didn't change with body chemistry as so many other substances do. Most this plastic was used to develop IOLs.

The National Eye Care HELPLINE offers medical eye help to anyone over 65 who is needy, has a medical eye problem, and does not have an ophthalmologist. Information on eye diseases will be sent to any senior who calls toll-free 1-800-222-EYES. This public service project is sponsored by the American Academy of Ophthalmology and the Michigan Ophthalmological Society.

Sibling class at hospital

A class for boys and girls from families expecting a new child will take place Wednesday evening, Feb. 29, from 7-9 p.m. in the basement of Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Purpose of the class is to prepare brothers and sisters for the new family addition, enhancing their ability to cope with this change in their lives as well as to prepare them for the hospital sibling visitation.

The class includes a film about "Sharing" with discussion, a tour of the hospital, craft time where the children will make announcements to spread the news about their new brother or sister and refreshments. Children must be at least three years old unless accompanied by a baby sitter.

There will be a fee to cover expenses: $3 for one child, $5 for two and $1 for each additional child.

Pre-registration is required. If you have questions or to register, contact Faith Fahrner, R.N., Hills and Dales, telephone 872-2121.

Entries sought for Michigan beef cook-off

If you have a beef dish that you are particularly proud of, now is the time to enter it in the Michigan Beef Cook-Off.

To enter, send a typed copy of your best beef recipe (using only round, chuck, rump, fresh brisket, plate, shank or ground beef) to Bev Poet, 1039 Burmeister, Manchester, Mich. 48158. Include your name, address, phone number and a brief statement about the origin of your recipe. Deadline for entry is April 30.

Fifteen finalists will compete at the Michigan Beef Cook-Off June 2 at Michigan State University. The first place winner will represent Michigan at the National Beef Cook-Off, Sept. 9-11, in Albuquerque. Prizes at the national level are: first place, $5,000; second, $2,500; third, $1,000; five honorable mentions, $300 each.

All recipes must contain a minimum of one pound of beef and not more than five, and each serving must contain at least three ounces of cooked beef. Meat used must be exclusively beef. Cooking time cannot exceed four hours. The recipe must be specific, with no use of brand names, and must state the number of servings and approximate preparation time. All entries become the property of the Michigan CattleWomen, Inc.

Contestants must be 18 years or older, with non-professional food status. Any person who has owned one or more head of beef or dairy cattle (or who lives in a household where any person has owned cattle) in the 12 months preceding October 1, 1984, is ineligible. Members of the sponsoring Michigan CattleWomen are also ineligible.

Michigan offers visitors 3,200 miles of beach touching four of the five Great Lakes.

Interest slight so far as farm program sign-up extended 3 weeks

Farmers who haven't decided yet whether to participate in the federal government's 1984 feed grain and wheat program have been given more time to make up their minds.

The deadline to sign up at county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices was originally this Friday, but last Saturday, U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block announced he was extending the deadline to Friday, March 16.

If the sign-up in Huron County is any indication, the program so far isn't proving very popular with farmers. As of last Friday, county ASCS Executive Director Jimmy LaVoie said, no more than 10 percent of farmers had signed up for the feed grain program for corn and 6 percent for the wheat program.

In contrast to the 1983 farm program, payment-in-kind is only being offered for wheat this year.

The new feed grains (corn, oats and barley) program requires participating farmers to reduce their acreage 10 percent of their base, with the 1984 base being the average of their 1982 and 1983 acreages.

There will be no advance deficiency payments, no diversion payments and no PIK. However, compliance does make the farmer eligible for loan and deficiency payments.

The program establishes a national target price of $3.03 per bushel for corn, $1.60 for oats and $2.60 for barley. National loan rates are: corn, $2.55; oats, $1.31, and barley, $2.08. Maximum deficiency payments are 48 cents for corn, 29 cents for oats and 52 cents for barley.

The oat and barley base can be considered one base for both crops. For example, with a combined base of 20 acres, no more than 18 acres of oats and/or barley may be planted with two acres used as set aside.

The loan rate varies from county to county, but is close to the national loan rate.

The target price means participating farmers are guaranteed a per-bushel return equal to the locally adjusted loan rate plus a possible deficiency payment if they cannot sell their crop for at least that much in the open market.

FOR FARMERS, WHETHER it pays to participate ultimately depends on the market price for this year's corn crop.

For example, a farmer with a 100-acre base and a five-year average yield of 100 bushels of corn per acre decides to participate. His cost to plant corn is $150 per acre. It will cost him $15 per acre to plant a cover crop on his idled 10 acres.

With the target price of $3.03 an acre, he would have to get at least $2.87 per bushel on the open market for him to be better off by not participating.

For the non-participant, 100 acres times 100 bushels times $2.87 equals $28,700. Minus planting costs of $15,000 (100 times $150 per acre) gives him a net of $13,700. At $2.86 per bushel, the net would be $13,600.

For the participant, 90 acres times 100 bushels per acre times the target price of $3.03 is $27,270, minus corn planting costs of $13,500 (90 times $150) and cover crop planting costs of $150 (10 times $15) means a net of $13,620.

"With corn price projections for next fall in the $2.40-2.60 range," Michigan State University agricultural economist Jim Hilker wrote recently in Michigan Farmer magazine, "participation should be seriously considered."

THE 1984 WHEAT PROGRAM has an acreage reduction requirement of 30 percent of the base, the base being the average of the planted and considered planted acres in 1982 and 1983. The target price is $4.45 per bushel and the national loan rate is $3.30.

There is no advance deficiency payment. The maximum possible deficiency payment is $1.15 per bushel.

Hilker predicts wheat prices are likely to be around $3.30 or less at harvest time this summer.

Farmers who want to participate in the PIK program for wheat will have to set aside an additional 10-20 percent of their base.

The set aside acreage must meet the following conditions: It must have been in row crops at least two of the last three years, unless it was used as set aside in last year; nothing can be harvested from the set aside acres, and the set aside must be protected from wind and water erosion.

Compensation for participating in PIK will be 75 percent of the ASCS established wheat yield rounded to the nearest bushel, with the wheat (PIK bushel) the farmer receives in payment coming from existing loans or loans taken out of the 1984 wheat crop.

Cass City winding up?

Hawks rally in last half to upset potent Patriots

As the season winds down is Cass City winding up? That's what fans are asking with two games left on the schedule, at Caro Friday and with North Branch March 1.

With all hopes for a .500 average season gone the Hawks were playing for nothing but pride Tuesday and they responded with a resounding come from behind victory over the USA Patriots, 65-63, at Cass City.

The Hawks trailed for most of the game and the USA lead stretched to 12 points twice, once during the early moments of the third quarter.

The game changed in the middle of the third period when Coach John Manninen ordered a slow down when four of his starters had picked up four fouls.

At the time, USA led by eight points and when the slowdown ended the Hawks had moved in front by a point. That came with 2 minutes left in the third quarter and set the stage for the exciting finish.

The lead changed hands twice and with 2:15 left to play, Cass City was in front 62-61. The Hawks went into a stall and held the ball until there were 39 seconds left. John Meininger was inten-

Rebounding hurts

Hawks just miss upsetting Lakers

Cass City Red Hawks spotted the visiting Lakers a 14-point lead Friday night and then came charging back to tie the score only to lose in the final seconds, 73-71, by virtue of a missed free throw.

Coach Ron Nurnberger said that the Green Machine won the game on the boards. Mark Maneti, Scott Rosenthal and Dave Voelker dominated the rebounding, posting a 31-17 edge.

Cass City's two top rebounders, Scott Hurford and John Meininger, were credited with four and five boards respectively. In the first half it looked as if the Lakers were going to blow the Hawks right out of the gym. The visitors jumped off to a 19-10 first period lead and left the floor at the intermission with a 40-30 advantage.

The 40 points in the half were the most that can be recalled scored against a Nurnberger coached team. Our defense was stinking in the first half and cost us the ball game, the coach said. We tightened up in the second half after falling 14 points behind in the third quarter, but it was too late, tionally fouled. He made one of two shots and USA took possession but missed a 15-footer. Bryan Beecher was fouled and made both tries Nurnberger explained. Cass City made a game of it in the last 12 minutes. By the end of the third quarter the Laker lead had been cut to four points, 58-54. All during the final period the Hawks challenged to take the lead but could never forge in front. The Hawks had a chance to send the game into overtime after the final whistle sounded. The action started when Scott Hurford whipped in a bucket to move the Hawks within a basket, 72-70.

After the Lakers missed a shot, Kurt Bliss made the front end of a one and one and the score was 72-71 with 13 seconds left.

John Rathje, who played point guard all night because Bill LePage was sidelined with an injury, made one of two charity tosses with 13 seconds left.

The Hawks did what they wanted to when they got the ball inside to John Meininger. Meininger's shot missed and Hurford was fouled gathering in the rebound just as the horn sounded.

He missed the first of a one and one and the Thumb B Association co-leaders escaped with the win.

Cass City had excellent scoring balance with four players in double figures. Meininger led with 18, Rich Randall netted 17, Bryan Beecher, 14, and Joe Langenburg, 11. For the Lakers Rosenthal scored 19, Rathje, 16, and Mark Maneti, 14.

and the Hawks were in front 65-61 with 13 seconds left. USA pulled to within a bucket on a lay-up and Meininger was fouled. He missed and USA had one more chance to send the game into overtime with seven seconds left.

Another open 15-footer hit the front of the rim as the whistle sounded and the Hawks had registered the biggest upset of the season.

In the first half it didn't look like an upset in the making. The Hawks played like losers, combining a lackluster defense with poor rebounding.

The visitors jumped off to an 11-4 lead in the first two minutes of the game and stretched it to 13 points almost before the fans settled comfortably in their seats.

That gap was closed to 19-12 by the end of the period.

The Hawks were kept from being blown out of the game in the second period by Joe Langenburg. The senior forward pumped in five shots from outside, added two free throws for 12 points in the eight minutes.

The only trouble for Hawk fans was that Mike Francomb was almost as potent in the second quarter as Langenburg. He scored 10 points in that period. He also scored 9 in the first quarter for 19 points at the intermission.

Cass City was able to rally in the last half when Francomb was on the bench with foul trouble in the third quarter.

While Langenburg carried the Hawks in the second quarter it was Meininger who carried the load in the final period.

He was handed the ball down deep in the paint by his teammates and responded with 8 points in the Hawks' winning surge.

Meininger finished the night with 21 points. Langenburg scored 14 and freshman Kurt Bliss hit double figures for the first time in his career with 10.

Francomb led all scorers with 23 points. Also in double figures for USA were Kevin Rieman, 10, and Eric Majeski and Jim VanSteenhouse, 12 each.

JV GAME

The Hawk JV fell way behind in the early going and the USA JV coasted in for a 72-58 decision.

Racing is topic Tuesday of bicycle club meeting

The Caro BMX (bicycle motocross) Club has scheduled a pancake supper Tuesday, Feb. 28, as a fund raiser and to provide an introduction to the sport.

The club is affiliated with the Caro Jaycees, which built the dirt BMX track at the Chippewa Landing park south of Caro last year. The first race was held there in August in conjunction with the Chippewa Landing Festival.

The track is now sanctioned by the National Bicycle League, according to club secretary Bonnie Johnson, whose two 13-year-old sons, Brent and Troy, are racing.

BMX racing has various classes for children from about five years old and up through adults.

Some changes have to be made in the track to comply with NBL specifications. Making the changes, plus landscaping, are among reasons funds are needed by the club.

The schedule for races this year hasn't been arranged yet, Mrs. Johnson said but races will likely be held in June, July and August.

In addition, the track will be open weekdays for practice and fun riding, with a charge for non-club members.

The pancake supper will take place from 5-7 p.m. at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church parish center at the corner of Hooper and Frank Streets.

Mitch Jekel of Birch Run, a 35-year-old father of two, who races as do his two sons, will display their bikes, uniforms and show slides.

A representative of the Waterford Oaks BMX Club near Pontiac will talk about BMX racing.

There will also be a videotape program shown, which gives an introduction to BMX.

Persons unable to attend the supper who would like more information can call Mrs. Johnson evenings at 673-6965.

VOLLEYBALL -- Two Laker defenders are ready to hit the ball back after Red Hawk spiker Julie Miller spiked the ball over the net. The Laker team won the first match 15-5, 15-3, and the second, 15-3, 15-5.

Bullock: probe school quality

To the Editor:

I was quite interested in the story told in the Jan. 19 issue of the Chronicle concerning the jail ministry of Rev. Dale Bird.

In this article he is quoted as saying, "What we're trying to do is rehabilitate men through the Lord, Jesus Christ." I have heard of numerous persons whose lives have been turned around by prison ministries, including Charles Colson of Watergate fame.

In 1983, the Cass City School Board voted to stop the Gideons from giving out Bibles on school property. Some time later I mentioned this to a man who is a Gideon. His response was, "They don't want us to give Bibles to students at the schools, but we are free to give them to prisoners in the jails." Aren't prisons public property?

The Good News version of the Bible says in II Timothy, Chapter three, verse 16, "For all Scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching the truth, rebuking error, correcting faults, and giving instruction for right living." What more could we ask for our children?

I was talking with a man from Vassar recently. He told me that he is a Catholic.

He also said his son is planning to send his grandson to a Baptist church school because "he believes the quality of instruction will be better." I know a Lutheran couple who is sending their children to a Catholic school for the same reason.

I wonder when our public school officials will begin to investigate why so many parents are willing to pay out of their own pockets to send their children to private schools when they still have to support the public schools.

3 sentenced after pleading guilty in circuit court

Three persons were sentenced Feb. 14 when they appeared before Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Probation was extended 12 months for Steven R. Kenward, 24, formerly of Crawford Road, Cass City, who pleaded guilty Jan. 23 to violating probation. In addition, he is to attend a substance abuse program and not consume alcoholic beverages.

Kenward was placed on three years' probation in March, 1981, for malicious destruction of police property.

He violated probation by pleading guilty in January in Macomb County District Court to assault and battery and escaping lawful custody and failing to pay court ordered obligations since April, 1983.

Robert R. Shamel Jr., 28, of 514 W. Frank Street, Caro, was sentenced to 78 days in the county jail, with credit given for 78 days served, for delivery of marijuana last Aug. 9 in Caro. He pleaded guilty to the charge Dec. 22.

David Lee Rose, 19, of Clio, was placed on three years' probation for larceny in a building Jan. 31, 1983, in Arbelia Township.

He was also sentenced to 90 days in the county jail, with credit given for 30 days served and serving of the remaining 60 days deferred. Rose was fined $350 and assessed $350 court costs.

Rose pleaded guilty to the charge Dec. 29.

Also Feb. 14, a charge of negligent homicide against Ralph Legue, 20, of 5289 Hanes Road, Vassar, was dismissed.

Legue pleaded guilty Jan. 21, 1983, to the charge in connection with the Aug. 28, 1981, traffic death of Larry Lee Fabbro. The accident took place south of Vassar when Legue's pickup truck collided with Fabbro's motorcycle. The prosecution motion for dismissal of the charge cited Legue's having paid his monetary obligations in connection with the charge and the recommendation of the probation department.

William B. Pelton, 22, formerly of Oakley Road, Akron, pleaded guilty to a violating probation by failing to report to his probation officer last May and no longer living with his parents.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled May 7. Bond was continued.

Pelton was placed on four years' probation in February, 1981, for delivery of PCPV.

David J. Diener, 22, of 4150 Swaffler Road, Vassar, pleaded guilty to delivery of LSD July 21 in Vassar township. His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled April 9. Bond was continued.

In a plea bargain with the prosecution, a second charge of delivery of LSD, July 20, in Vassar Township, will be dismissed.

Friday, Ronald L. Sebort, 24, of 4520 Hanes Road, Vassar, pleaded guilty to delivery of marijuana last June 6 in Vassar Township. His plea was accepted and a sentencing date will be scheduled. Bond was continued.

Teenager wins New York trip

Kelly Jo Erlenbeck, 17, is the grand prize winner of the "Teen" magazine "Caress Before You Dress" contest.

She is the daughter of Lyle and Ann Erlenbeck of Saginaw and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval C. Hutchinson of 3806 N. Crawford Road, Cass City. Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hutchinson, also of Cass City, are her aunt and uncle.

For her prize, Kelly Jo and her mother will depart from Tri-City Airport Sunday for New York City, where they will be met at the airport by chauffeured limousine and taken to the Grand Hyatt Hotel. Dinner that night will be at the Windows on the World restaurant.

Kelly Jo Erlenbeck

Monday, she will choose a spring wardrobe paid for by Sorrel Fashions, receive a professional makeover and then take part in a photo session, the results of which will appear in the June issue of "Teen" magazine. During the day, she will be working with the magazine's beauty and fashion editors.

After the photo session will be dinner and then seeing the Broadway musical, "Dreamgirls."

Tuesday, Kelly and her mother will go sightseeing and have lunch at the South Street Seaport before departing for home on a 5:15 p.m. flight, arriving back at Tri-City at 9:10 p.m.

Fall from pickup injures youth

Paul L. Hutchinson, 17, of 4654 Spence Road, Cass City, was reported in fair to serious condition Tuesday afternoon at Hills and Dales General Hospital where he was taken following a 7:30 p.m. mishap Friday.

Cass City police reported he was riding in the back of a pickup driven by David Mackowiak, 17, of 5426 Shabbona Road, Decker. The pickup was southbound on Huron Street and when it rounded the turn, just west of West Street, Hutchinson fell out.

At 9:20 a.m. last Thursday, according to village police, Anna MacCallum, 61, of 5360 Grassmere Road, was westbound on Huron Street, failed to yield the right of way at Oak Street and collided with the southbound auto of Robert K. Kitchen, 23, of 4661 Oak.

At 8 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 15, police said, Wayne A. Heckman, 23, of 6305 Denhoff Road, Kingston, eastbound on Garfield Street, turned right into the Walbro lot. He turned too wide, however, and his car hit an auto waiting to exit onto Garfield. Driver of the other car was Mrs. David Decker, no address listed.

At 12:30 p.m. that day, Sharron M. Scruggs, 41, of Caro, backed out of a parking place in front of the Erla's Food Center store, and proceeded westbound. A car driven by John D. Palmer, 75, of 6724 Main Street, then backed out of another parking place into the side of Ms. Scruggs' car.

At 8:05 a.m. Feb. 14, Cass City police said, Anita Kay Hartwick, 17, of 1670 N. Cemetery Road, Deford, turned left from eastbound Main onto Ale Street and collided with a car pulling away from the east curb.

Driver of the other car was Cheryl LaBean, 33, of Caro.

Five minutes earlier in Kingston, sheriff's deputies reported, Kathleen M. Szostak, 17, of 5600 Bevens Road, Kingston, was southbound on Washington Street, north of Noble Street, when her car went off the west edge of the blacktop when, she said, she swerved to miss an oncoming car that was over the centerline.

She lost control when she tried to steer back onto the pavement, which was icy. The vehicle spun off the east side of the road and came to a halt against a traffic sign.

At 3 p.m. last Thursday, deputies said, John R. Snider, 80, of Union Lake, was driving in a funeral procession northbound on Kirk Road. Kirk V. Byron, 63, of 3725 Ross Street, Kingston, westbound on M-46, started driving through the procession and the bumper of the Snider auto came into contact with the left side of Byron's car.

At 6:27 p.m. Friday, deputies reported, Robert J. Gabler, 22, of 5243 S. Cemetery Road, Deford, was westbound on M-46, west of English Road, when his car struck a deer while he was passing a car.

Students receive free books

Wednesday, Feb. 15, the Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women conducted its first Reading is Fundamental (RIF) book distribution this school year.

All second grade students at Campbell Elementary School and all second and third grade students at Deford and Evergreen Elementary Schools received a RIF book.

AAUW members Ann Craig and Doty Scollon were in charge of the distribution.

At Campbell, the second graders had a sing-along together before they chose their books.

At Deford and Evergreen, the Cookie Monster paid the students a visit.

Your neighbor says

Volunteers make America great

"One of the things that makes America strong and great is that people are willing to step out and do things because they care," is the opinion of Dean Brown.

"They'll freely give of their time and energy to benefit other people." Brown knows about persons volunteering their efforts to help others. He is a volunteer and as Thumb district executive for the Boy Scouts of America, part of his job is to recruit volunteers for the Scouts. The Boy Scouts aren't unique in needing more volunteers, he said. His church needs more helpers and so do the Girl Scouts and Big Brothers-Big Sisters, he offered as examples.

He had praise for those who do offer their time. "What makes us strong is that people are willing to do it. For us to continue to be strong, we need to do more and pick up more of the slack from government programs that have been dropped.

"What saddens me," Brown added, "is people who want to sit back and absorb the efforts of others."

Brown and his wife, Ann, live on Grassmere Road, Cass City. They have a daughter, Lisa, 3.

Brown's own volunteer activities consist of being a Cubmaster of a group of handicapped youngsters in Huron County, being active in his church, Our Savior Lutheran in Bad Axe, and a member of the Cass City Rotary Club and the Tom Thumb Singers, the Cass City community choir.

Taking stock

Now that Secretary of the Interior James Watt has left the scene, perhaps some of the issues in his department can be considered a little more dispassionately.

It had gotten so that Mr. Watt couldn't have endorsed mothers' milk without a delegation from the Sierra Club descending on Washington to object.

Maybe the new secretary can persuade Californians not to feel so precious about some offshore oil leasing.

States around the Gulf of Mexico — Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida — have been able to live with oil drilling in coastal waters. Why is California such a prima donna?

Indeed, the oil drilling platforms are a grand attraction for fish. A while ago when a company wanted to remove one of its rigs in the Gulf because the well had run out, fishermen from far and near demanded it be left there because it attracted so many fish.

Another problem for the new secretary is that of the national parks. Watt had proposed fixing up the present parks before spending money on additional land. He was right, but he got no place with the idea.

Speaking as one who is pretty familiar with many of the parks, having spent two years of his life in them as a ranger, the places need a freshening up. In fact, an impartial review of the whole system is in order.

From the very start, the accommodations in the parks have been rotten. So sub-standard, in fact, that the last AAA ratings I saw, not one could make even the listings in the guide books of Triple A — and AAA is not too fussy about the ones it lets in.

The Park Service has jammed campers into unattractive campgrounds, rather than let the people spread out a bit and have some privacy. Those who stay in hotels or motels in the parks are allotted scrubby locations where the scenic views of the parks are hidden from them.

I speak of the Grand Canyon, Yellowstone and Yosemite (with the exception of the little Ahwahnee hotel in Yosemite, with its few dozen rooms). Mt. McKinley National Park in Alaska has no hotel at all.

You can travel 5,000 miles from eastern United States to McKinley Park, and they'll let you ride a bus through the park and then turn you around and bring you back the same day.

Since the grandeur of Mt. McKinley and the Alaska range is visible maybe two days a week, chances are you'll see nothing but tundra and some lower mountains beneath the clouds.

In response to my query several years ago, why they didn't make it possible for people to stay and enjoy Mt. McKinley park, the park officials said they had to "be sure they picked the proper location, and such thing couldn't be hurried."

Baloney. It's all part of a system that is slanted toward back-packers, and the rest of the public be damned. Maybe the successor to Secretary Watt can change this, but it will be over the dead bodies of Sierra Club members.

Always refreshing is a financial report that has a touch of lightness about it. Management generally is stuffy.

In Illinois there is a branch banking system starting up called Midwest Financial Group, which has moved aggressively to take advantage of an easing of laws in that state about chain banking systems.

At a press conference, a reporter asked the question of the bank leaders, "Will MFG's actions spell trouble for other state banks?" "We certainly hope so," answered the MFG president.

From Edwin Hall of Boca Raton comes a clipping from another column in the News, by Charley Reese, who ordinarily doesn't write this way:

"King Hussein never opens his mouth but that he does not refer to Israel as the enemy."

Mr. Hall asks if it is correct grammar and what does it mean? Perhaps some reader can help out.

Charley must have been listening to Monday night football when he wrote that.

A couple of gems, which could have come only from Howard Cossell.

"That opened the coach's eyebrows."

"A defense like that enables a quarterback to make an incompletion."

"Oh, and more Cossellogram, this from a World Series: 'If my surmises are correct...'"
