It appears that Cass City School's finances have improved enough so that cuts in curriculum two years ago will be restored in the next school year.

That was the best guesstimate of Supt. Don Crouse at the regular meeting of the board Monday night at Evergreen School.

There's no way of really knowing just what the state will do with finances, he continued, but it looks now like the money will be avail-

Two years ago, elementary music and physical education were cut. Although program cuts will probably be restored, Crouse said, teachers now feel that an elementary counsellor would be more beneficial than physical education.

What sparked the discussion at this time was the request of Roland Pakonen, athletic director, for the restoration of freshman foot-

Girls' volleyball and several basketball tournaments were cited. He was told that the board policy was to make every effort to schedule around Wednesday evenings, but if it becomes impossible, scheduling for Wednesday evenings is permissible.

POLICY CHANGES

Two suggested policy changes were presented for review this month and possible vote in the May meet-first involves changes in the athletic eligibility standards and code. Now students must pass three of six grades to be eligible. That's the state guideline. One suggestion was that students be required to maintain a C-average (1.7 average). Principal Russell Richards is in favor of requiring a passing grade in all subjects to be eligible. Other suggestions for changes in the code add that students with six points in the discipline system or suspended from school not be eligible for sports.

Another clarifies the minimum and maximum penalties for violations of the code. First offense is exclusion from 20 to 40 percent of the days of competition in the sports. Succeeding violations call for a minimum of 40 percent to permanent exclusion from

The board voted to pay increments for longevity to Cass City teachers at the end of the current school year. Increments have not been paid because the teachers are working without a contract.

A hall clock and a plaque in the Campbell Elementary School are planned as a Willis Campbell memorial, Principal Jacqueline Freiburger announced.

Hot lunch bids were ap proved. Canteen was the low bidder and their fees increased about $1,000. The 12.8 percent jump is the first change in the price structure in three years, Crouse reports.

Two die in crash Sunday

Criminal charges may be filed against the driver of a pickup truck involved in an early Sunday accident east of Mayville in which two persons were killed.

Dead at the scene were Randall J. Irwin, 21, of Silverwood, and Rodney R. Sarles, 23, of Mayville.

They were passengers in a pickup driven by Mark A. Stout, 18, of Treasurer Road, Mayville, who was treated and released from Caro Community Hospital after the accident.

Two other passengers crowded into the pickup cab were released from the hospital Monday. They were Kelly Liestman, 18, and Scott Liestman, 13, both of the same address in Silverwood.

Tuscola County deputies reported the pickup was eastbound on Mayville Road, west of Hurds Corner Road, when it went off the south side of the road into a ditch, slammed into a tree, bounced off and flipped over, landing on its roof.

It was the right side of the cab that struck the tree. Irwin and Sarles were sitting on the right side and

At first I thought I was seeing things: perhaps some sort of a mirage. There couldn't really be an 8-by-10 photograph on the seiling of the bathroom adjacent to my bedroom, could there? Yes.

not noticing. When she asks how I like the new wallpaper and I absentmindedly say I didn't notice, I'm in deep waste. She wants to know what is the sense of her breaking her back to give me a nice home to live in if I don't even notice when she redecorates an entire room? The answer, of course, is it's a nice home for her to live in, too. But that's another thing I don't like to talk about because she always talks back and, as she's had much more experience, she is a far better talker than I

So I didn't want to be found guilty of not noticing a photograph that might have been on the ceiling for seven years. It wouldn't be enough to plead that I don't bathe, I shower, so I never have the opportunity to lie back in the tub and gaze pensively at the ceiling. The ceiling is plain white, with no pattern or other deviation to break the monotony, so a good husband interested in his home surely would have noticed a picture overhead before then. (I'm not sure why I finally looked up that morning, but I think it had something to do with talking to God about President Reagan's attitude toward prayer near plumbing.)

Also, there was the kink factor. I'd heard of kinky people with pictures on the ceiling over their beds. Was there some strange, Sistine reason my wife put a photo over the tub? Was it any-thing I wanted to talk about? I got my glasses.

It was the face of a dog in the photo on the ceiling; probably a collie. My curiosity overcame my reluctance to once more be exposed as a husband with no interest in his home. I asked, and my wife explained why she'd put the photo up — just a few days earlier fortunately for me.

It used to be when she washed the hair of our twoyear-old granddaughter, Emily, in the tub, and said, "Put your head way back," so she could rinse away the without getting soap in Emily's precious little eves. Emily didn't follow orders. So now my wife says, "Look at the pretty doggy." Emily does, and giggles, and never gets soap in her eyes. Honest, I don't make this stuff up, folks. I've named the doggy Michelangelo, of course, and now I look up at him every morning while asking God to please make me more aware of new drapes.

5 area elementary schools honored

Certificates of achievement have been sent to 1,511 public schools throughout Michigan honoring them for the performance of their students on the state Board of Education's annual read-ing and math assessment

Included were Campbell, Evergreen, Kingston, Gagetown and Ubly Elementary Schools.

The certificates were signed by Gov. James J. Blanchard, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Phillip E. Runkel and Dr. Gumecindo Salas, president of the state Board of Education.

To be eligible for a certificate, at least 75 percent of the fourth graders had to pass both the reading and math tests administered and senior high schools in annually in September or Michigan. October.

Eighty-one percent of the 84 fourth graders at Campbell passed the math test (at least three-fourths of the questions answered correctly) and 76.8 percent passed in reading.

At Evergreen, 93 percent of the 15 fourth graders achieved the minimum in math and 80 percent in reading. At Kingston, all of the 53 fourth graders achieved the minimum in math, 79.2 percent in reading. At Gagetown, 78.6 percent passed in math and 78.6 percent in reading.

The 1,511 schools that certificates earned achievement represent nearly half of the 3,241 elementary, middle, junior

In a letter to all superintendents receiving certificates for schools in their district, Runkel said, "Please present the certifi-cate to the students and staff and extend the congratulations of the State Board of Education to the students, the staff, the families and the residents of the community. "It is always welcome news to hear of schools such as these where students and teachers are working to attain high achievement."

The Cass City School district is cooperating in the presidential academic fitness award program. Students must attain a B-plus average through high school until the end of the first semester as a senior.

They also must be at or above the 80th percentile in any nationally recognized standardized achievement tests such as SAT or ACT. They also must have 12 credits in the new "basics" including English, math, science, social studies, foreign language and computer science.

The good news, according to Principal Russell Richards, is that Cass City has 15 or 16 students that qualify for the Here's another chapter in the continuing saga of action around the village coffee table. Monday I lost in the numbers game and was stuck for 10 coffees.

Okay, that's not newsworthy. But how about this? Many of us match Tom Sutter double or nothing when we get stuck and I'm one that does. So when it came time to pay Shelly LaPeer for the coffee I piped up, 10 coffees doubled makes 20 cups I owe for. She looked at me like I was nuts...and why not? The thing is, I never did match for the 10 cups I lost in the game. How could I? The Sutters have been vacationing in Europe for over two weeks.

Tell them you read it here first.

At the regular meeting of the Cass City School Board, free cookies are dished out to persons attending. Usually they are chocolate chip.

Trustee Dick Wallace complained that the cookies were always chocolate chip and said that he'd like a change.

Since joining the board, Wallace has been consistently first in line for the cookie plate and the question that immediately pops to mind is, how many would he eat if he really liked them?

Every season since Kirk Gibson has been a member of the Detroit Tigers he has cost me money. This year I'm getting even. The bet is that he'll hit .260 or better this season. He will, he will, he will.

Place your bets and clean up with me.

Pedaling Around

Fading away

By Mike Eliasohn

It was reported over the week end that Boy George and the other three members of Culture Club, the English rock group, are now worth more than $1 million each, which isn't bad, considering the group has been in existence less than three years and had its first hit about 16 months ago.

How long it will be in existence is questionable, but the boys apparently have their heads together. They I heard, only $220 a week. rock-and-roll The rest of their earnings are going into the corporation they formed.

financial advisors who in- rock-and-rollers. vest their money wisely, the foursome should be able to live comfortably the rest of their lives, even if the to sound black. group folds within a year or

That could happen, of course. After all, whatever happened to the disco group, "Village People"?

For that matter, whatever happened to disco? I think the only survivor was Donna Summer.

I always find it interesting when the members of a disbanded musical group decide to get together again. Examples that come to mind who have done it are the Righteous Brothers, (who aren't brothers), the Everly Brothers (who are), the Hollies, Simon and Garfunkel, the Animals and Peter, Paul and Mary. The reason such groups usually split up is because after years of being together on the road and in the recording studio, they come to the point they can't stand each other.

The reason they usually reunite is because they need the money.

Bobby Hatfield, one of the Righteous Brothers (correct me, someone, if I'm wrong), may not be much are paying themselves a salary of, if I recall correctly from the radio report "ectly from the radio report" "extraction as a solo act, but reunited with "extraction the radio report" "extraction as a solo act, but reunited with "extraction as a solo act, but reunited with "extraction act, but r nostalgia freaks will pay money to go see them.

Actually, the Righteous If Culture Club has good Brothers weren't really rock-and-rollers. They sang "blue eyed soul," which was another name for white singers who tried

Not that blue eyed soul is necessarily bad. If Koerner, Glover and Ray decide to make a comeback, I'll pay money to go see them. (If anyone reading this remembers the first names and nicknames of Koerner, Glover and Ray, I will buy them a one year subscription to the Chronicle. Hint: It helps to have gone to college about 1963-65. First person with the right answer wins.)

Some groups and individuals don't go out of existence. They just fade away.

For instance, Black Oak Arkansas recently appeared at a tavern in Cass ity. As I recall from when I saw them on "The Midnight Special" on TV, the lead singer had shoulder length blonde hair (at least looked blonde in black and white), wore skintight pants and never wore a shirt. (Am I thinking of the right group?)

I'm not knocking the tavern that had them appear here, but let's face it. For a group that once appeared on national TV, playing in a small town tavern has to be a letdown.

I didn't see Black Oak Arkansas when they were here -- the group wasn't my cup of tea even when I could see them free on TV -- but I wonder if the lead singer, if he is still with the group, is now bald with a potbelly hanging over the waist of his skintight pants.

Another group that was real big in, I would guess the late 1960s, was Paul Revere and the Raiders. I was surprised when I found out a few years ago they were still around, playing mainly in Las Vegas lounges.

I read not too long ago that one of the early British groups from the 1960s, I think it was Gerry and the Pacemakers, was still in existence, playing in clubs in northern England. I wonder if Culture Club will be around 20 years from now. If they are, Boy George will probably be wearing support hose and a girdle.

In Elizabethan England the spoon was such a prized rarity that people carried own spoons to banquets.

HEALTH TIPS Indoors can be harmful to health

Indoor air pollutants can be potentially harmful to health, according to the American Lung Association of Michigan.

The principal pollutants include carbon monoxide (CO), nitrogen dioxide (NO2), and hydrocarbons from stoves and fuel-burning appliances; formaldehyde from paneling and insulation products; radon from uranium-bearing rock and soil; asbestos, principally from construction materials, and toxins from a wide range of household products. Even certain office machines emit pollut-

The level of these pollutants has increased as a reheating fuel use in homes and offices. Glazed winfull insulation, caulked seams and other energy conservation measures have reduced outdoor ventilation. This allows gases to accumulate.

The pollutants are difficult to monitor, develop average exposures and standards for, and regulate. While many of these pollutants have been found to be harmful, it still isn't known how much exposure it takes to cause disease.

Several studies have found, however, that CO and NO2 levels in some homes exceed the Clean Air Act's limit for outdoor exposure.

Rising fuel prices have kindled many a home interest kerosene and wood stoves. Both are primary sources of residential hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide.

Other potential health hazards occur in homes paneled and insulated with formaldehyde-bearing products, which emit irritants to the lungs and sensitizers. Harmful levels of radon, naturally occurring radioactive gas emitted by some masonry building products and by soils under basements, are found in some poorly ventilated

Asbestos presents a danger in homes whose owners may be unaware of the great variety of materials that sometimes carry the fibrous substance, including steampipe insulation, ceiling and floor tile, linoleum, plaster, spackling compound, and other building materials.

Many homes also contain aerosols, solvents, pesticides and other products with harmful chemical ingredients. Home artists and hobbyists, in particular, are at risk.

Few of these pollutants are regulated for emissions in homes since most en vironmental laws were written before the problem had been clearly defined. Some regulations, like the Consumer Product Safety Act, provide some basis for limited action.

Several studies are underway to examine "all aspects of indoor air quality," however there is little likelihood that Congress or the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will soon undertake any comprehensive initiative at reducing or regulating indoor pollutants.

Homeowners can take their own precautions by ensuring that their homes are properly ventilated, choosing safe alternatives to potentially harmful products, and refitting stoves and other appliances with available improvements that reduce their emis-

Seek the advice of professionals if necessary because indoor pollutants can require technical expertise and equipment to control.

A public hearing will be held by the Gagetown Planning Commission on May 7, 1984 at 7:00 p.m. at the village office.

The purpose of the hearing is to consider a request to rezone a parcel of land located on South Street near Third, commonly known as the former Catholic School Building, from R-2 residential to R-3 residential, to permit development of housing for the elderly.

Picture Lady Program

Volunteers spur art interest for students

What is an impressionistic painting? Do you know the difference between realistic and abstract?

For six years, the Cass City Picture Lady Program has been helping elementary students at Campbell and the intermediate school learn the answer to such questions, introduce them to the language and concepts of art and "to enrich and inspire students' lives through art," according to Linda Albee, who has coordinated the volunteer program since its inception.

Purposes of the program, she said, are to:

1) Develop in children an appreciation of art by helping them to learn how to "look" at various kinds of

3) Develop persona creativity in the children. personal

The program was initiated in the Thumb area by the Thumb Council for the Arts (Bad Axe) in 1975, under the leadership of Jeannette Herrington and Eileen Patterson.

The council continues to coordinate the program for all Thumb area schools.

Cass City, which became involved in 1978, has benefitted from the advice and experience of the Thumb Council, plus it provides the art reproductions used in the program. The Thumb Council maintains an enormous library of prints that are used by all the Thumb area schools. The reproductions range from classical Greek art to 20th Century modern art.

The many volunteers over the years, Mrs. Albee said, did not need any spe-cial background in art, only an interest in learning and

The volunteers visit classrooms one morning or afternoon per month, spending approximately 20 minutes in each of four classrooms and discussing four prints usually by different artists with each class. The volunteer uses the same four prints all year and visits different classrooms each month.

Volunteers this year have been Lucy Auten, Evelyn MacRae, Carol LaPonsie, Geneva Richards, Vicki Guernsey, Ellen Toner, Margy Shaft, Jeanne Ellinger, Dorothy Tomczak, Leola Retherford, Suzan Genovese and Pat Sher-

Hutchinson victimized

Hawks bow to USA as 2 pitchers toss no-hitters

Before the softball season got underway this spring, Coach Jim Fox said that the team's main difficulty will be generating sufficient offense.

How right he was. In the first double header of the season Monday, USA shut out the Hawks 5-0 and 2-0.

In the pre-season analysis Fox also said the Hawks boasted the outstanding pitcher in the Thumb B Association in Jill Hutchinson, a senior.

How right he was. In her first start Hutchinson tossed a no hitter, but still got beat. That's because Kelly Adams of the Patriots also tossed a no-hitter and when Hutchinson walked a couple of batters in the first and third innings it cost her the ball game.

Hutchinson also pitched 4 1/3 of the second game and gave up one hit and five walks. Yvette Hurd finished up as USA chalked up the 5-0 decision.

Fox is also high on Lisa Benitez as one of the best pure hitters in the area. She's a junior. Benitez was one of many Hawks who failed to get a hit in the opening double header.

That should change as the hitters catch up with the pitchers later in the season. Fox believes that he should have a solid team this season with nine returning letter winners back. Defense should be the team's strength, he says. One reason for the defensive strength is Colleen Irrer, slick fielding second baseman who hit over .300 last season as a junior. Rhonda Fader was all conference designated hitter. Sherri Horner has a strong arm and is a defensive stalwart at shortstop. Pam Sawdon, a fleet, strong-armed senior is expected to anchor the outfield in there are good graduated that Fox will have to replace. Jamie Fox and hit .421 while leading

Two other premier players gone are Jill Root, all conference first baseman who hit .408, and Dee Hempton who crushed the ball for a .413 average while playing Fox believes that Cass City will be the team to beat when the Thumb B Association action gets underway despite the disappointing opening double header loss. He is banking on Hutchinson to dominate the games on the mound. Other teams in order as rated by Fox are Vassar, Bad Axe, Lakers, North Branch, Caro and Marlette.

The Hawks were to have entertained Deckerville Wednesday, April 11, at 3:30 p.m. and travel to Frankenmuth Monday to meet the Eagles at 4 p.m. Both are non-conference

Hawks split opener with ŪSA nine

The Cass City Red Hawks In the nightcap the game opened the season at Cass was decided early. USA City Monday by splitting a double header with USA at the second inning, touching Cass City Recreational

The Hawks won the Gary Crickon finished up opener, 9-5, behind out and allowed just one hit and standing relief pitching by no runs the rest of the way Joe Langenburg and lost but by then it was far to. the nightcap as Jamie late. Ewald pitched the Patriots to an 8-2 decision.

In the opener Cass City jumped off to a 4-1 lead in the first two innings only to have the Patriots rally for four runs in the third including a home run by Chris Gross to forge in front 5-4.
Langenburg took over for Randy Nicholas and pitched shutout ball the rest of the way.

Glidden: Few bright spots on O-G track teams

There are only a few pete in the shot put and disbright spots in what looks like a gloomy season for Owen-Gage track, according to coach Dick Glidden. His only sure point getter is Frank Abfalter, who finished fourth in the 1600 meters in the state Class D meet last June with a time of 4:29.7.

In addition to running in that event or mile, the 6-2 senior will probably also be in the 880 yard distance (half mile).

Other than Abfalter, Glidden hopes that Gary Erickson, John Shope in the shot put and possibly Joe Lopez in the discus can gather points for the Bulldogs.

Erickson is the only runner back from last year's 400 and 800 meter relay teams that qualified for the state championships, but didn't compete because one member graduating left early for California.

In addition to running in those events (440 and 880 yards), Erickson may also run in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Other members of the 440 and 880 relay teams will be Reid Goslin, Ron Susalla, who may also run the 440 solo event, and possibly freshman Steve Root. Goslin will also run the hurdles.

Glidden expects Owen-Gage will do best in the short relays, middle distance and field events, and do poorest in the sprints.

The coach has six letter winners back from last year: Abfalter, Shope, Susalla, Erickson, Goslin, and Scott Wright, who was a high jumper last year, but is switching to the long jump this season.

Predicting how a team will do after only a week of indoor practice is chancy

The only sure thing for Judy Campbell, starting her eighth season as Owen-Gage softball coach, is that she hopes this year's squad does better than last year.

The 1983 Bulldogs, hurt by injuries to some key players, had a 3-13 win-loss record in the North Central Thumb D League and were 3-14 overall.

Returning to the mound from that team will be Sheila Engelhardt, who started all but the first game last season and finished most of them.

Backup pitcher should be Gunsell, a sophomore. junior Jenny Hellebuyck, who didn't play last year. Catcher will probably be Trina Peters.

The infield may be composed of Linda Retford, LaNette Mickelson, Kathy Johnston and Shelly Ellicott.

Likely occupants of the outfield will be Marcy Enderle, Deb Engelhardt, Kim Olszak, if she recovers from a broken nose suffered the first day of practice, or Marsha Lopez. Three new players who show promise, according to the coach, are Barb Hellebuyck and Dawn Harris, both freshmen, and Doreen team is going to have to work hard to do better than last year's squad and that team had a less than memorable season.

As the start of the new season nears, coach Phil Gray knows he can count on his infield, but pitching and hitting are two question marks.

infield includes The junior Reid Goslin at shortstop and senior Joe Lopez at third, whom Gray feels are the best at their positions in the North Central Thumb D League.

Rounding out the infield will be senior Scott Wright at first in his first season playing baseball, junior Kellin Kretzschmer at second and senior Gary Erickson as catcher.

catcher Stan Andrakowicz, second baseman Paul Lopez and outfielder Mike Powell. "It's going to be hard to replace those four guys," said Gray, who is starting his ninth season as baseball coach, the most of any in the league.

Hardest to replace will be Glidden on the mound. Gray hopes senior Alan LeValley, a 6-1, 200-pounder, will be the mainstay on the mound, but after pitching in ninth grade, he wasn't able to throw the last two seasons because of a sore arm. LeValley started one game last year and his arm lasted only about three innings. So far in practice, his arm has been okay.

Other pitchers will likely be Goslin, who pitched in relief last year. and Wright, with possibly Lopez and sophomore Ron Susalla as relievers, "who-

The Owen-Gage baseball outfielder Dan Glidden, LeValley, when he's not pitching, senior Earl Harris, Susalla and Gray expects freshman Stu Stirrett to break into the outfield lineup, based on what he has shown in practice.

If Owen-Gage has any hopes of bettering its 1983 record, hitting is going to have to vastly improve. The team's batting average slumped to only .206 last year, after having been .321 the year before that.

The power hitters are LeValley, who hit about 284 last season; Erickson, who hit .273; Wright and Lopez. Gray expects Goslin will also contribute at the plate. 'Just because he's an athlete, he'll get singles when you need them."

Players with potential, according to the coach, are Mike Mandich, infield, Dave Peters, catcher, and Paul Thompson, outfield. All are 10th graders.

A proposal calling on Consumers Power Co. to abandon construction of its controversial Midland nuclear electric generating facility has been criticized by the utility as a "blueprint" for electric shortage in the future.

A board of determination sioner Stuart Armstead, calls for cleaning, relocating, widening, deepening, straightening and extending, which doesn't necessarily mean all that will be done if the project is approved

Because the drain is in two counties, the board of determination will consist of Armstead, Tuscola County Drain Commissioner Stanley Henry and Harry Mikan, Michigan Department of Agriculture deputy director in charge of drains, or his assistant, Michael Gregg.

The drainage district consists of sections 19, 29, 30, and 32 in Evergreen Township, which are on the east or west side of M-53, south of Severance Road, and section 24 in Novesta Township, which is bounded by Crawford, Severance, Lamton and Shabbona Roads.

The proposed project involves Branch No. 1 of Clark Drain and Branch A of No. 1, a total of 2.75 miles. Most of it is in Evergreen which is where Branch A empties into No. 1. In turn, No. 1 empties into the Clark Drain about a quarter-mile west of Lamton Road in Novesta Township.

Armstead said the drain probably hasn't been cleaned in 40 years and when it was dug, it was designed to only handle surface runoff water, not that plus water from underground drainage tiles.

The result sometimes is flooding at the upper end of the drains because of inability lower down to handle all the water flowing through them.

that reason, Armstead expects the proiect will include deepening. The board of determination, he said, will probably make a decision at the end of the May 3 hearing whether the project is prac-

If it decides it is, it next hires an engineer to survey the drain to determine what work would have to be done. The board then holds a second hearing to determine if the work is necessary.

If it does, then bids are taken from a contractor to have the work done and costs are apportioned among the property owners in the drainage district, the two townships and counties at large and other beneficiaries. If the project is given the go-ahead, Armstead said the work will start late this fall at the earliest. The contractors will probably be given four months to finish

According to Michigan Farm Bureau Vice-president Jack Laurie of Dodge Road, Cass City, the elected officials "paid attention" to what the agricultural leaders had to say.

The 1985 farm bill was one of the top priority issues discussed with the congressmen.

"The new farm program will be on the minds of farmers and non-farmers during the next year," Laurie said. "It's important to farmers because it will be a major part of their decision-making process. It's important to non-farmers who are asking -- what is the cost of federal farm

Kaczynski: Thumb free-lance artist

Ray Kaczynski is a freelance commercial artist, but it's not by choice.

His working career the past 15 years or so has closely paralleled the for-tunes of the mobile home and recreation vehicle industry in the Thumb area, which the last few years has been downhill.

The Sadler Road, Hemans, resident moved to this area about 1969 to work for Marlette Homes, starting as a draftsman and working up to the position of illustrator.

He previously worked two years for Burroughs Corp. in Detroit, designing offices for customers, and before then worked five years as a draftsman for the Army Corps of Engineers in Detroit.

At Marlette Homes, Kaczynski designed interiors and exteriors of mobile homes. He explained an executive might tell him, "We're coming out with a new unit. Can you give us an idea for the exterior?" Often the executive would have an idea in mind.

Kaczynski would make the design and the research and development department would "turn it into a finished product."

Designing something capable of being manufacexplained, is something the designer must always keep in mind. "You have to have an engineering knowledge of what could be built and what couldn't.'

He worked at Marlette Homes for nine years. When Champion Home Builders in Dryden offered him a job as design director at much better pay, he accepted. The firm manufactured recreation vehicles, mobile homes and double-

FOR CHAMPION, HE traveled to a lot of mobile home shows, in such states as Kentucky, Oregon, California, Texas and Tennessee, setting up and de-corating the firm's dis-

At the big annual show in Louisville, he recalls, the firm had 20 mobile homes on display and his work included such details as or-dering fresh flowers each

His job lasted about two years. Champion's fortunes took a downturn after the owner was killed in a plane crash and Kaczynski was let go in 1979 or '80. He doesn't recall exactly

He does remember when he lost his next job, "right before Christmas" in 1981. That was with Active Homes, south of Marlette, where he did design work and customer relations.

His job included designing customer option exteriors on mobile homes and decorating the prefabricated apartments Active manufactured.

The mobile home and manufactured home business was damaged greatly by the recession, which led to the end of Kaczynski's job. "They (Active) kept us on as long as they could. There wasn't any business, so they had to let us go."

SINCE THEN, KACZynski has taken on any and all artistic jobs to support him and his family. He and his wife, Patricia, have two children at home, Renee, 19, and Melanie, 11. A son, also named Ray is a professional drummer, living in Wisconsin.

His son's profession ledto his father getting what is probably his biggest and most interesting job. The junior Ray knew the owner of Northern Star Recording Studio at Mecosta, west of Mount Pleasant.

That first led to Kacdesigning jacket covers of albums recorded

So far, the studio has recorded only little known performers, but the owner and investors plan to change that by adding living quarters, swimming pool, jacuzzi and other recreational facilities. The idea is that big name per-formers can come to the studio and live there for a few weeks while recording in a relaxed atmosphere.

So far, $1.5 million has been spent on the project,. according to Kaczynski, who designed the living facilities (including a pool and jacuzzi), added studios and an outdoor stage. (Concerts are also held there.)

HE ALSO DE-signed a Lutheran church in Juhl, northeast of Marlette, but by the time the architect and builder were done, the building didn't look much like his design. Kaczynski said that happens a lot to designers, that the finished product doesn't look like what was designed.

There are also other limitations. "When you're a designer, you're limited in what you can do."

The primary limitation is that he has to do what the bosses want. Put a stripe on a recreation vehicle, for instance, and the boss might say, "I don't like stripes."

When he was at Marlette Homes, Kaczynski found by talking to young persons that many didn't care for the firm's designs, that they felt they appealed more to older persons.

He then proposed a "young American home" design, but his bosses nixed the idea.

The management of the now defunct firm (another manufacturer bought it and closed the Marlette plant, but still uses the name) were conservative in their design philosophy. They didn't like to introduce a recreation new design until another far has been unsuccessful him. manufacturer proved it successful. "After a while, you had the tendency to start doing (designing) the same thing (as other manufacturers). The Marlette manage ment also didn't like English, Gothic, early American and Mediterranean designs. Active management

Another factor in mobile home design is, "You have to design for what area you're living in." Lighter colors are more popular in warm weather states, warmer (darker) colors in the north.

Mediterranean designs sell well in cities, but not in country. Western motifs were big in Oregon.

OTHER FREE-LANCE work done by Kaczynski has included designing store fronts, making signs, designing van interiors as well as painting designs on the outsides of vans and motorcycles, doing ar-chitectural drawings and building models of houses, wood carvings and various drawings. A Buick execu-tive in Flint who loves old airplanes has commissioned him to do a series of drawings of mostly old airplanes, which will hang in the man's home. Kaczynski would gladly trade his free-lance jobs, however, for a full-time job, is willing to move, but so in finding one. He feels his age, 52, may be against "Free-lancing is fine when you're busy," he said, free-lancing (on the side)." you had a steady job with RAY KACZYNSKI at work at his drawing board in his Hemans home. He works in pen and ink, water colors and acrylics.

RIDE 'EM -- Kaczynski made this illustration of a rodeo cowboy for a customer, which required him to first study the subject matter. "If you don't have the knowledge, you have to do a lot of research."

HEAVY LIFTING -- Kaczynski drew an Air Force C-5A cargo plane being loaded for a customer, a Buick executive in Flint, who likes drawings of airplanes.

THE HAJ by Leon Uris (fiction). His wives feared him and his children rebelled against him. His leaders cheated him and his brother betrayed him. But he had traveled to Mecca and earned the ultimate title, "HAJ." He had taken control of his village and become the "Muktar of Tabah." He was Ibrahim, a man who was ready to die for the truth and willing to kill for his honor. He was an Arab, and among all his enemies he could find only one friend - a Jew. This is a novel of courage, heroism and survival that only Leon Uris could write.

ON LEAVING CHARLESTON by Alexandra Ripley (fiction). Sweeping from a wedding day murder on a Carolina plantation at the turn of the century to the high life on the French Riviera, this story follows beautiful and tragic Garden Tradd Harris, Charleston's most stunning debutante. Garden married a handsome, loving, rich man who quickly takes her to Europe and makes her the darling of the international set. But his mother has ties back to the wedding day blood feud and will now try to destroy Garden.

SARA AND GERALD: VILLA AMERICA AND AFTER by Honoria Murphy Connelly and Richard Billings (nonfiction). The Murphys' daugher offers a new and affectionate slant on her parents and their glamorous milieu. The Murphys, who lived their lives within a circle of writers and artists that included Picasso, Hemingway, and Cole Porter, served as the protagonists of Fitzgerald's "Tender is the Night." But these legends, however potent, were not the sole content of the Murphys' existence, as Donnelly makes clear in her account of the disasters and triumphs that they experienced. Using the extensive correspondence between the Murphys and their friends, Donnelly reconstructs her parents' careers from a balanced perspective and also champions her father's underestimated talent as an artist.

10 students at author's workshop

Ten Cass City Intermediate School students will attend the Youth Author's Conference Saturday at Kingston High School.

They Justin are McNaughton and Teresa Mathewson, both seventh graders, and Angela Herron, Kris Marshall, Jeff Sontag, Matt Tuckey, Stacey Horetski, Christa Nurnberger, Tammy Hurd and Kathy Leino, all eighth graders.

Those wanting to go to the event had to write a book, short story, poetry or essay, with the writers of best ones being selected.

The featured author Saturday will be Jean Pitrone, instructor for the Writer's Digest School and Wayne County Community College, who has written numerous short stories, articles and now biographies.

There will be three workshops. At one, Ms. Pitrone will work with the participants on their writing. One will be devoted to journalism and at the third, the participants will share with each other what they have written.

Each workshop will be conducted starting at 9, 10 and 11'a.m., so all students attending from the three or four schools will be able to attend each one.

After the last workshop will be lunch and presentation of awards.

The conference is sponsored by the Thumb Area Reading Council.

erosion control

Government cost-sharing is available to any farmer who has an erosion problem.

Practices for which funds are available include strip cropping, reduced tillage, ridge tilling, farmstead and field windbreaks, reforestation and proper management of woodlots. This Friday is the deadline to sign up for cost-sharing for conservation practices at the Huron County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Bad Axe if planning to start a practice prior to July 31.

After July 31, the county ASC committee will act on requests filed between April 14 and July 31, which covers fall practices.

Farmers must have approval of the county committee before starting practice to be eligible for costsharing. As the program year is divided into four sign-up periods, it is important to sign up long before completing the practice
