Barns fall, power out as winds pound area

By Mike Eliasohn

The wind storm that struck the upper Thumb Monday, as well as most of Michigan, wreaked havoc on barns and other buildings and caused numerous power outages.

The gauge at Huron County Memorial Airport in Bad Axe recorded wind speeds as high as 69 miles per hour.

As many as 12,000 customers were without electricity in the five counties serviced by Detroit Edison's Thumb division, according to George Andersen, general supervisor of the Caro office. The district consists of Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac, St. Clair and Lapeer Counties.

As of 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, 4,100 were still without electricity, mostly in the Snover-Marlette and Quincasssee areas.

Andersen said cleanup from the storm, such as removal of branches resting on wires, would take about a week.

Both Gagetown and Owendale were without electricity for extensive periods, which resulted in cancellation of classes in the Owen-Gage schools Tuesday.

Power was out in Gagetown from about 1-4 and 7-10:30 p.m. Monday. Owendale was without electricity from about 1-3:30 p.m. and from 9 p.m. until 1 p.m. Tuesday.

At the peak, about 1,800 Thumb Electric Cooperative members in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties were without power, according to Manager Michael Krause. Of those, about 1,200 were served by a transmission line in the Kinde-Harbor Beach area that was knocked out.

By 4 a.m. Tuesday, Krause said, all but a few customers who reported their outages late, had their electricity back on. The first outages were reported about 10-10:30 a.m. Monday.

Huron County had the most broken utility poles (a total of 10 in the three counties) and Sanilac had the least damage, except for the Lamotte Township (Tecker) area.

THERE WAS EXTENSIVE damage in the area west and southwest of Gagetown.

Raymond Koch, who lives with his parents at Hobart and Green Roads, said he counted five damaged or destroyed buildings within three miles of his house and many trees down.

One of them was the large barn belonging to his parents, Harold and Hilda Koch, which came down at 3:50 p.m.

"It just exploded," Mrs. Koch said. "It's a mess now."

In anticipation that the more than 100-year-old barn would blow down, tractors and a combine were removed, but a planter, wagon and some equipment were still inside when the barn fell. The Kochs were waiting for the insurance adjuster to arrive before determining how badly the equipment inside was damaged.

Emery Kady lost his 40-by-60-foot barn on Huron Line Road, near Green Road, about noon. Inside were a picker-sheller and elevator, both of which were damaged, and a wagon and hay. "It just crumbled," said Kady.

On the other side of Green Road, Larry and Ginny Ziehm lost the roof and one end of a shed.

Mrs. Ziehm looped a half-inch steel cable around a post and pillar in an effort to keep everything in place, but the cable snapped, and away went the roof and one end wall.

"It must have been one heck of a wind to do that," Ziehm commented. Equipment inside the shed suffered some dents, but no serious damage.

A LARGE TREE fell on the roof of the home of Thomas and Constance Seurnyck on Bay City-Forestville Road between Green and Hurds Corner Roads between 3:30 and 4 p.m.

There was damage to the roof on the outside, a window and screen, Mrs. Seurnyck said, but the home was still liveable.

In Gagetown, a sheet of plywood blew off the Agra Land fertilizer plant tower and into the large office window. No one inside was injured by the flying glass.

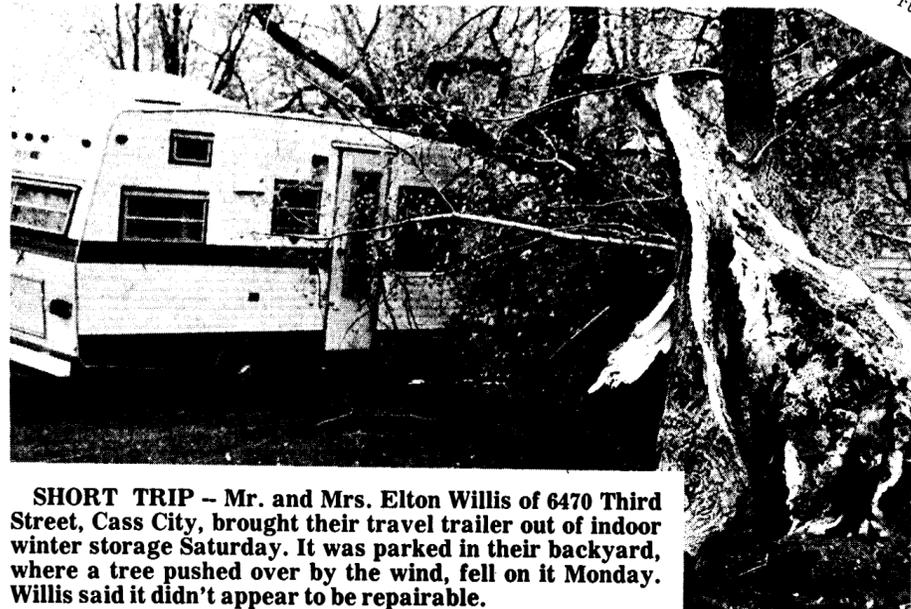

On Elmwood Road, between Cedar Run and Dodge Roads, southwest of Cass City, the barn of Kenneth and Donna Nye blew down about 9 a.m. (See photo.) They had been planning to tear it down this summer.

At 3 p.m., the 30-by-60-foot barn of Fritz Pomeroy, a quarter-mile east of the Nyes, became rubble.

Inside were a tractor, pickup camper, boat and ice fishing shanty. Pomeroy didn't know the extent of the damage when he talked to the Chronicle Monday evening.

IN CASS CITY, damage included branches down, blown over trees, at least two downtown store signs, a store window, part of the tar paper roofing on the United Parcel Service building on Main Street (see photo, page 20) and some corrugated sheet

SHORT TRIP - Mr. and Mrs. Elton Willis of 6470 Third Street, Cass City, brought their travel trailer out of indoor winter storage Saturday. It was parked in their backyard, where a tree pushed over by the wind, fell on it Monday. Willis said it didn't appear to be repairable.

DOWN IT WENT - The barn of Kenneth and Donna Nye on Elmwood Road between Dodge and Cedar Run was blown down about 9 a.m. Monday, killing their dog, which had walked inside. Only some tools and miscellaneous items, nothing major, were inside. The Nyes were planning to tear it down this summer.

INSIDE OUT - Dennis Bradley of Seeger Street, Cass City, was planning to sell this mobile home he owned on Phillips Road, near DeLong Road, but the wind ended that idea Monday afternoon, blowing it about 20 yards off its foundation. No one lived there and it was empty except for heater, refrigerator and stove.

Tuscola property values up 4.61%

The equalized valuation of property in Tuscola County is 4.61 percent more than it was in 1983, according to the equalization report approved Monday by the county Board of Commissioners.

The 1984 equalized valuation - half of the true cash value of all property in the county - is $676.87 million, compared to $647.06 million a year ago. The percentage increase compares to a 2.63 hike from 1982 to 1983.

Although there were some complaints, as there are every year, such as how assessments on homes can increase when so many are on the market, Commissioner Royce Russell said, the report was approved 6-1. The "no" vote was that of Margaret Wenta of Fostoria. The report, on which property tax bills mailed at the end of this year will be based, now must be approved by the State Tax Commission.

Of Cass City area townships, the only one to have a factor (percentage increase) imposed was Elkland. The factor was 1.0228 on residential property, multiplied times the assessed valuation as determined by the supervisor in order to bring it up to the 50 percent of true cash value as determined by the county equalization department in its studies.

The total equalized valuation in area townships (1983 figures in parentheses) are: Elkland, $44 million ($42.65 million); El- lington, $13.39 million ($12.9 million); Elmwood, $24.55 million; ($23.72 million); Kingston, $15.98 million ($15.89 million), and Novesta, $13.72 million ($13.25 million).

The equalized valuation of Elkland Township is 6.5 percent of the total valuation of Tuscola County; El- lington, 1.98 percent; Elmwood, 3.63 percent; Kingston, 2.36 percent, and Novesta, 2.03 percent.

Indianfields Township, which includes Caro, is the "richest," with 8.27 percent of the total. Wells has the least of any township, 1.75 percent.

WANTED - Doctors to move to Cass City and surrounding area. Three family practitioners, one internist and ophthalmologist needed.

The departure of Dr. Robert A. Genovese, a specialist in internal medicine, focuses attention on the problems of attracting and keeping doctors in Cass City.

Genovese, 31, opened his practice in Cass City in July, 1982. His last day will be May 18.

A native of the Detroit area, he came here after finishing his residency at a Seattle, Wash., hospital.

"I never lived in a small town," he said in explaining one reason why he is leaving. "I always wanted to live in a small town, but after living here two years, I would rather live in a city."

He and his wife, Suzan, will be moving to southern Florida, where he will be working for a corporation that owns several acute care medical centers.

"One of the nice things about Cass City is it's safe. The people are very friendly and you know most of the people," Genovese said.

"IT ISN'T ANY ONE reason," Genovese said of his departure. "From a personal standpoint, I would rather live in an urban setting (because of the recreational opportunities) and I'd rather live in a warmer climate."

There were also professional reasons.

In his new job, he will be working at a "free standing minor emergency care clinic" that provides treatment for minor medical emergencies and illnesses, such as respiratory illness ses or fixing cats.

The clinics - Genovese might fill in at several, rather than be assigned to one - don't provide continuing care. The most a doctor might see a patient is twice.

What they do is provide much of the treatment that hospital emergency rooms provide for which hospital treatment isn't really necessary, at about a third of what a hospital charges.

The attractions for physicians working there, Genovese said, are regular hours, steady pay and not having to handle any paperwork. There is a business staff for that.

Many young doctors today, he continued, view their profession as a job, not as a calling, and don't like to work the 60-70-80 hours a week that doctors in the past - and some doctors still do - considered routine. That can be a problem in attracting physicians to a town like Cass City, Genovese feels.

GENOVESE WON'T BE practicing internal medicine at the clinics, but admits he doesn't plan to stay there permanently, that he will go on to something else.

Though it may seem like a contradiction, one thing he didn't like about his practice here is that he didn't have enough patients to practice internal medicine exclusively, that he also had to maintain a general practice. (Internists deal with non-surgical treatment of diseases of the organs, such as heart disease, diabetes, ulcers, infections and lung problems.)

Having come from a large hospital, it bothered Genovese that Hills and Dales' General Hospital didn't have all the equipment desirable for diagnosis and treatment.

No small town hospital does - it's too expensive - but for the local physician, it means he must sometimes compromise. Does he provide all the treatment locally, the best he can, or refer the patient to a doctor in a large city who has access to the latest equipment?

Some doctors might not like to come to Cass City for that reason, Genovese said. The last doctor to leave Cass City, in June, 1983, Dr. David D. Lah, was also a specialist, in pediatrics (children's medicine), but also had to maintain a general practice for adults as well.

Hills and Dales Administrator Ken Jensen admits that, "The volume aspect of a specialty (attracting enough patients) is a problem."

Ideally, he would like to attract to Cass City an internist to replace Genovese, three doctors trained in family practice, one of whom could also specialize in pediatrics, and an ophthalmologist (eye specialist).

CASS CITY OFFERS three incentives for doctors to come here, all of which were factors in Genovese's decision to come here.

They are first year's free rent in the Hills and Dales Medical Clinic across from the hospital, not being on call week ends for emergencies at the hospital (Hills and Dales contracts with a private firm which provides doctors there week ends) and a guaranteed minimum income of $50,000 the first year. The hospital has had to pay the difference between the doctor's earnings and the guaranteed minimum three times in 23 years, all since 1982.

Hills and Dales also helps the new doctors establish credit with local banks.

Cass City isn't unique in offering such incentives. "Any rural area is doing essentially the same thing," Jensen said.

Until two years ago, Jensen could say to doctors that the Cass City schools had never had a millage defeated. The quality of schools is very important to doctors with families. "If everything else is equal, it's the school system that brings them to Cass City."

Jensen works with the Michigan Health Council and American Medical Association placement service in trying to recruit doctors to come here. In the last three months, he said, the hospital has mailed about four dozen letters to prospective physicians.

Easy to find, Jensen said, are doctors who have lost their permanent licenses, had drug problems, etc., whom he termed "just junk....Those guys would

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

The building didn't blow over and the roof remained intact, but the Chronicle suffered from Monday's windstorm just the same.

The wind caused the electricity to flutter momentarily every half hour or so and every time it did, programs on the typesetter computer were wiped out.

We solved the problem by turning off the new machine and going back to older machines that aren't so finicky about conditions.

Speaking of electric current, we drove by Consumers nuclear plant in Midland Sunday. What a mass of concrete, pipes and buildings it is.

It's hard for me to see how money is to be saved by cancelling this project that is 90-plus percent completed.

It just doesn't make sense to let it wither away, never producing anything, anything at all.

How easy it is to look and not see. Here's the result of a very special survey. I asked the first four persons I came across that go by the sign frequently if they have seen it. Half did, half didn't.

The sign is attached to the village of Cass City sign on M-81 at the west end of the village. It reads: "Home of Astronaut Brewster Shaw."

The sign was erected by the Michigan Department of Transportation at the request of the village.

How about you? Have you noticed that sign?

When there's a language barrier sometimes even sign language won't fill the bill. That's what the Tom Sutters found out in Belgium recently.

The Sutters were in a French only speaking restaurant. Everything was in French including the menu. After scanning it the only item thought to be "safe" to order was "Steak American."

What that turned out to be was well seasoned uncooked hamburger. The Sutters tried everything to get a little sizzle in their steak including taking a cigarette lighter out and placing it under the meat for the benefit of the waitress who watched in dismay the antics of the goofy Americans.

The message never did get through to the waitress, the hamburger remained uncooked and Tom refused to say whether or not it remained uneaten as well.

HIGH FLYERS? — Colleen Whittaker taught second and third graders how to build kites from plastic bags and dowels, such as the one being shown by someone behind her, in an after school Cass City Community Education class April 3 and 10. Two of the 11 students were Betsy Gengler (standing) and Eric Hoard. The students were supposed to fly their kites April 17, but due to the weather, that was postponed to Tuesday of this week.

Crash sends two to Caro hospital

A 3:46 p.m. accident Friday south of Caro sent the two drivers involved to Caro Community Hospital. Judith F. Swoish, 31, of 1263 Kingston Road, Deford, was admitted but has since been discharged. Alice M. Thomas, 72, of Gilford Road, Caro, was treated and released.

Sheriff's deputies reported Ms. Thomas was northbound on M-24, stopped at M-46, and then pulled into the intersection, where her car was struck by the eastbound Swoish auto. Ms. Thomas was ticketed on a charge of failure to yield right of way.

Barbara L. Tuckey, 42, of 4738 Schwegler Road, Cass City, sought her own treatment after a 4:15 p.m. accident last Wednesday.

Cass City police reported she had stopped on Ale Street, just north of Main, to let some passengers out. Norman J. Peters, 18, of 4533 Pringle Road, Decker, turned right from westbound Main onto Ale, swerved in an attempt to miss the Tuckey auto, but hit the left rear corner of her car.

At 12:24 p.m. Friday, deputies reported, Jeffrey T. MacShara, 19, of 3195 E. Dutcher Road, Caro, was backing out of a driveway at 3196 E. Dutcher, east of Jacob Road, and backed into the path of a westbound vehicle, which then struck his car.

Driver of the other vehicle was Terry G. Harris, 40, of Millington.

Deputies reported MacShara suffered possible injuries.

Cass City police reported that at 4:05 p.m. Friday, Ronald L. Kappen, 33, of 3240 E. Cass City Road, entered the Rabideau Motors Farm Division lot and his vehicle ran into the parked motorcycle of Kenneth Thomas of 7100 Rescue Road. Kappen said his vehicle's brakes failed.

Scott Hurford of 4215 Maple Street reported to Cass City police last Wednesday that he hit a deer April 1 while driving eastbound on M-81.

The Halre Net

There's a tendency among all of us to view the good ol' days through rose colored glasses. The don't make 'em like they used to syndrome is alive and well. Besides that, if you are a column writer, it makes good copy. There's a sneaking suspicion that Jim Sherman, publisher of numerous papers including the Oxford Leader and an entrepreneur I admire, may have been doing a little of that last week.

Sherman was talking about a 1930 Model A Ford that he owned. He says that he can "sit on the fender of the Model A without fear of it collapsing. A person can still jump on the running board and not have it fall, the engine starts after just a couple of turns, and the mileage is as good as the (his 1984) Olds."

My dad had one of those Model A type cars. His was a Studebaker. That's back when the Studebaker was one of the more expensive cars around.

It was a coupe and in the corner of the back was a big covered box. It was used as an emergency seat but its prime purpose was to hold the tools that every car carried at the time.

Everybody knew that you had to be ready because one never knew when a car was going to break down.

Even our 1936 Terraplane (we called it the terrible pain) was better than that, even though it stopped anytime there was an extra heavy dew on the ground. It was pushed across Woodward Avenue and rutted farm lanes. It would decide to quit anytime.

But the Terraplane was an improvement over the Studebaker. You didn't have to push it up hills. We did with the Studebaker.

Elmira Hill was the steepest, longest grade between Pinconning and Boyne City. It still is, although it has been cut down since the time in question.

Anyway, the test of a car was whether it could make the hill. Once it didn't and the whole family got out of the car and Dad backed up for a running start. When he reached the stopping point we all pushed, just enough to make the top of the hill.

"If It Fitz..."

Semi-leisurely retirement

By Jim Fitzgerald

On his left hand, Shridhar Chillal of New Delhi used to have the five longest fingernails in the world — about two feet each. After waiting 31 years, he finally cut his nails last year because, according to news reports, "they cramped his social life and cost him his job as a photographer."

Of course. A man shouldn't accept the stern challenge of creative indolence until he has retired and is no longer required to circulate among people who might be offended by a sharp fingernail in the eye. That is what I plan to do.

And that is why I am depressed by Don Jensen's "Retirement Diary," which appears in the Free Press every Tuesday. I always read Jensen's column because it's well written and interesting. But I wish he would quit writing about how hard he has been working since he retired.

"I'm too busy to remember I'm retired," he wrote recently. He works so much — teaching, consulting and writing — he barely finds time to play golf once a week. What kind of retirement is that? Jensen should write a "Work Diary."

According to Jensen, the happiest retirees aren't really retired. I have always believed that to retire at age 65 or thereabouts meant to withdraw completely from daily labor to live in endless leisure. But Jensen and other apparent authorities on retirement keep bragging about "retirees" who work harder now than they did before they became eligible for Social Security.

Some people, after leaving their lifetime employment, work at some other job because they need the money to survive. But they usually don't say they're retired. They might claim to be semi-retired, which is as good as semileisured. They don't bother me; I may well be one of them someday.

I am bothered by the people who can afford full retirement but reject it because they can't stand full leisure. They even work for free, just to keep busy and feel worthwhile. One reason I don't like hearing about these terminally energetic people is I'm afraid that, once retired, I might feel the same way. I have yearned and practiced for retirement since I began working, and it would be a devastating blow to learn I didn't really like to sit down and never get up again.

Another bothersome thing about "retirees" who work voluntarily is they often look down upon true retirees who know enough to enjoy full leisure. In a recent column, Don Jensen quoted a fellow hardworking "retiree" who is bugged by retirees who don't work. He said most of them suffer from "a post-65 disease called dilatory indolence. Some seem to have contracted this long before 65, and it infected their minds."

What's wrong with dilatory indolence? Jensen's friend makes it sound like something ugly that should be erased with a depilatory cream. Phooey. To be dilatory is to delay, procrastinate and miss deadlines. To be indolent is to avoid exertion. Be still, my beating heart. Dilatory indolence is exactly what I dream of achieving when I retire, and I don't like to hear anyone disparage my dream. If some people enjoy working all their lives, that's their business. But they should call themselves something besides retirees. How about dummies?

I enjoy looking forward to full retirement. I don't want to hear I'm not going to like it. That's depressing. Based on my vacation experiences, I can't imagine what's not to like. Don Jensen should quit scaring me.

Fifty years of honest work will make me feel worthwhile enough. When I retire, I want to sit down and read all the books I never had time to read, looking up only occasionally to gaze fondly upon my children and grandchildren as they take care of my great-grandchildren. That's it.

As for the unholy need to keep busy, I plan to accomplish that by challenging Shridhar Chillal's fingernail record. I will do it on my left hand, leaving my right hand free to turn pages.

Snake venom valuable

Never overlook the value of snake venom, says National Wildlife magazine. One ounce of freeze-dried king cobra venom, used by doctors and medical researchers, goes for about $3,000 — more than nine times the per ounce price of gold.

A 3:46 p.m. accident Friday south of Caro sent the two drivers involved to Caro Community Hospital. Judith F. Swoish, 31, of 1263 Kingston Road, Deford, was admitted but has since been discharged. Alice M. Thomas, 72, of Gilford Road, Caro, was treated and released.

Sheriff's deputies reported Ms. Thomas was northbound on M-24, stopped at M-46, and then pulled into the intersection, where her car was struck by the eastbound Swoish auto. Ms. Thomas was ticketed on a charge of failure to yield right of way.

There's a tendency among all of us to view the good ol' days through rose colored glasses. The don't make 'em like they used to syndrome is alive and well. Besides that, if you are a column writer, it makes good copy. There's a sneaking suspicion that Jim Sherman, publisher of numerous papers including the Oxford Leader and an entrepreneur I admire, may have been doing a little of that last week.

Sherman was talking about a 1930 Model A Ford that he owned. He says that he can "sit on the fender of the Model A without fear of it collapsing. ## Charge unfair labor practice

An unfair labor practice hearing brought by the Tri-County Bargaining Association against the Owendale-Gagetown School Board will continue Tuesday, May 8.

The first day of testimony before a Michigan Employment Relations Commission judge took place Tuesday of this week in Detroit from 10 a.m. to shortly after 5 p.m., with an hour off for lunch.

The TCBA, which represents Owen-Gage teachers in contract bargaining, is charging the board with failure to bargain in good faith.

Owen-Gage Education Association President Manuel Thies said he and fellow teacher and negotiator Nancy Folk were on the witness stand all day and were questioned by the two attorneys hired by the Michigan Education Association and Owen-Gage's attorney.

He was doubtful that the hearing will conclude next Tuesday.

"We spent more money and accomplished nothing," commented Supt. Ronald Erickson Wednesday morning. After the MEA attorneys have finished with their testimony, Owen-Gage's attorney will call his witnesses to the stand.

Teachers and sheep

By Mike Eliasohn

Time to clean my desk again:

The average teacher salary in Michigan, an estimated $28,877, according to the National Education Association, is the second highest in the nation.

Only Alaska pays more, $36,564. The state with the lowest pay is Mississippi, an average of only $15,895. In contrast to salaries, Michigan ranks 15th in estimated annual expenditure per pupil, $3,498 in 1983-84. Alaska is again first at $7,026 and Mississippi is last at $1,962.

Michigan is ahead of the national average in both categories. America's teachers make an average of $22,019 annually. The average expenditure per pupil is $3,173.

Upper Thumb teachers, it should be noted, lag considerably below the state average. The highest salary in a K-12 district in the three counties is in Mayville, which pays a teacher with a master's degree and 11 or more years of experience, $25,984. A teacher with that and 30 additional credit hours makes $28,570, but few anywhere ever reach that level.

One of the pleasant memories of my reporting career occurred when I was working for the Monroe Evening News and photographed sheep shearing in an old barn.

Probably 100 sheep lost their coats that day under the speedy and skilled hands of, as I recall, two or three brothers from Ann Arbor, who went from farm to farm shearing sheep. So much for nostalgia. Australian researchers have developed a robot that shears sheep. A human being is four or five times faster, but the robot will work around the clock, never gets a backache and rarely nicks the sheep.

The richest entertainer and one of the richest men in the world is ex-Beatle Paul McCartney.

"People" magazine from various sources figured his net worth to be between $400 million and almost $600 million and his annual income to be from $40 million-60 million.

Besides making lots of money from selling records and royalties whenever one of his songs is performed or played by someone else, McCartney has invested his money wisely and not wasted it.

He has been unsuccessful in trying to buy the copyrights to the Beatles' songs, but his company owns the copyrights of thousands of other songs, including the songs of Buddy Holly, some Broadway musicals, golden oldies like "Stormy Weather" and "Sentimental Journey" and college songs, including "Rambling Wreck from Georgia Tech." What that means is every time the Georgia Tech marching band plays its theme song, McCartney's company gets paid and he gets richer.

Does anyone other than the media care that much about the Kennedys?

David Kennedy's death last week at the age of 28 was unfortunate, but he's not the first person who had drug problems who died at an early age.

But because he was a Kennedy, his death -- and life -- was reported in detail on the television network news programs and on the front page of newspapers.

I wonder how many persons were that interested.

IT'S OFFICIAL -- The bond and contracts were signed last Thursday in Owendale for the $1.935 million sanitary sewer project to begin this week. Present for the signing were, seated, from left, Marie Susalla, village clerk; Lois Blondell, treasurer; Walter Howard Jr., village president, who exchanges the bond for a check from Joe Greene, Farmers Home Administration. The check was the first installment of a $500,000 FHA grant and $235,000 loan. In the rear, from left, are Richard Knop, Edmands Engineering; Dennis Schwartz, aide to U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler, and Pat Donahue, Edmands.

Construction of sewer starting in Owendale

The revenue bond and construction contracts were signed in Owendale last week, which will enable construction of the village's $1.935 million sanitary sewer project to begin this week.

The contractor for installation of sewer lines, Wooten Contracting Co. of St. Charles, was expected to begin digging this week.

Angelo Iafraate Construction Co. of Warren, contractor for digging of the two sewage lagoons, more than a mile north of the village, will start in June.

Both contractors have until April 25 of next year to complete their work, which should mean connection of buildings to the sewer lines can start in May, according to Village President Walter Howard Jr. All property owners next year will receive a written notice telling them when hookups can begin and how long they have to have them completed.

State law says any buildings within 200 feet of a sewer line must be connected.

Of the project cost, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is providing 75 percent, $1,125,000, and the state $75,000, or 5 percent.

Owendale residents have to pay the remaining 20 percent, plus some non-reimbursable costs, or a total of $735,000, which is being financed by the Farmers Home Administration, which is loaning the village $235,000 by buying its revenue bond, repayable over 39 years, plus giving it a grant of $500,000.

The bonds and contracts with Wooten and Iafraate were signed at the community building.

Last 2 fires for Kingston fire chief

Kingston firemen Sunday afternoon extinguished a shed fire on Crawford Road, about a mile south of Mushroom Road.

Fire Chief Robert Phillips said the property was being vacated by Cathy Burk and horses had been removed from the shed less than two hours earlier.

Cause was undetermined, but could have been a dropped cigarette, Phillips said. The shed was built of rough lumber.

Phillips was hoping his last night as chief Monday would be a quiet one, but at 10:05 p.m., a fire was reported in a pile of lumber behind a house on Rossman Road, north of White Creek Road.

Cause was undetermined, but chimney sparks were a possibility. The fire was confined to the lumber. Name of the owner was not available.

Phillips stepped down as chief after "six, seven or eight years." A veteran of 35 years with the department, he will remain a fireman with the rank of captain.

The new chief is Robert Miller, who was assistant chief.

HEALTH TIPS

Keep your heart healthy longer

"There's much you can do to keep your heart healthy," according to Dr. Lawrence Zgliniec of the Michigan Heart Association.

"In fact, cardiovascular disease (disease of the heart and blood vessels) is one of the most avoidable of the diseases that kill prematurely."

Dr. Zgliniec, a Pontiac cardiologist, lists several things anyone can do to maintain the heart in a healthy state and increase your chances of living longer.

-EAT FOODS LOW IN cholesterol and saturated fats, and include more carbohydrates, such as cereals and breads, fruits and vegetables in your diet.

You won't miss the meats and other fatty foods so much if you increase the carbohydrates because they can be very filling and ounce for ounce have only about half the calories of protein foods such as meat and whole dairy products.

Watch your salt intake, since high salt intake may contribute to high blood pressure, a major cause of heart attack and stroke. It's been estimated that the average American eats 10 times the amount of salt needed each day.

-KEEP AN EYE ON your blood pressure. High blood pressure (more than 140 over 90) greatly increases your chance of having a heart attack or stroke. Healthy blood pressure levels may be easier to maintain with the next suggestion:

-GET REGULAR EXERCISE - at least three times a week. "We suggest that people check with their doctors first," Dr. Zgliniec said, "rather than throwing themselves headlong into a full-fledged exercise program. It's also good if the exercise is something recreational, something you'll enjoy enough to keep doing."

"Some people get very bored with jogging or calisthenics, but there are all sorts of things like swimming, bicycling, aerobic dancing and so on that may be enjoyable for years. And exercise can help modify weight and reduce stress."

-AVOID CIGARETTE smoking. Smokers have a considerably higher death rate from heart attacks than non-smokers. For those who have given up the habit, the death rate eventually declines almost to that of someone who never smoked.

-REDUCE EMOTIONAL stress. Most doctors agree that reduction of emotional stress will benefit the health of the average person, so learn what causes you stress, and either eliminate it from your life, or learn to change your reaction to it.

-IF YOU ARE DIABETIC, follow your doctor's advice on eating habits, weight control, exercise and drugs to keep the diabetes in check, since diabetes can sharply increase a person's chances of heart attack.

When one adds up the number of letters in the names of the playing cards - from ace with three letters all the way to king with four letters - the total comes to 52, the precise number of cards in the deck.

Telephone long distance rates change

General Telephone of Michigan customers making long distance calls to points within Michigan will be affected by the rate increase awarded last Thursday to Michigan Bell by the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC), according to Max Preston, vice-president-general manager for the company.

The new rates, which went into effect Saturday, include decreases and increases depending upon the point being called. The cost of calls to points 31 miles or further will decrease while those covering less than 31 miles will increase.

Since General Telephone concurs with Michigan Bell's new long distance rates, they apply to its customers as well.

Under the new rates, the cost of some calls will decrease as much as 18 cents while others will increase as much as 11 cents for the first minute.

A call to a point over 200 miles away, for example, will cost 43 cents for the first minute. It now costs 61 cents. At the other extreme, a call to a point 16 to 20 miles distant will cost 26 cents for the first minute. It now costs 15 cents.

There are corresponding decreases and increases in the cost of each additional minute of a call.

The MPSC also authorized a reduction of 13 cents per call for the use of Calling Cards. In approving the decrease, it said increased use of Calling Cards should reduce the need for expensive operator assistance.

Money sought by homemaker program

The Displaced Homemakers Program operated by the Human Development Commission is now accepting donations to aid participants.

New books at the library

CATARACTS: THE COMPLETE GUIDE by Julius Shulman (non-fiction). More than 500,000 cataract operations are performed yearly in the U.S. Dr. Shulman provides reliable, reassuring advice to anyone who must undergo such surgery. He describes how cataracts form, how to find a competent ophthalmologist, the latest techniques in cataract surgery, and the new implants that are rapidly replacing glasses and contact lenses. Current medical technology has greatly changed the outlook for cataract sufferers.

BROTHERS by Bernice Rubens (fiction). This is a sweeping saga chronicling the triumphs and tragedies of five generations of one Jewish family. It is the story of survival and fraternal rivalry that traces the odyssey of the Bindel family from Czarist Russia to Wales, from prewar Germany to the horrors of the Holocaust, and from the Soviet Union to Israel. In each generation, two brothers - one a traditionalist, one a rebel - overcome bitter political and religious conflict through the bonds of family love.

KILL AND TELL by William X. Kienzle (mystery). Wealthy automobile executive Frank Hoffman has a bad habit of antagonizing people. He has sabotaged a competitor's career, he cheats on his wife, he treats his mistress badly, and everyone sees how much he hates his brother-in-law. Were he to be murdered, it wouldn't surprise - or much disturb - anyone. But when someone else is murdered at a party both Hoffman and Father Koessler are attending, no one can figure out why. Was Hoffman really the intended victim, or is it possible that he is the murderer? Father Koessler has a theory, but how can he prove it? And how can he unmask the killer? A mysterious clue in the confessional provides a thoroughly unexpected ending to this engrossing case.

LUNCH TIME -- Sue Penrod (left) and Mary McKellar as they prepared the meal for the Owen-Gage Senior Citizens April 19 in the Gagetown Elementary School cafeteria.

2 Gagetown cooks finishing careers

At the end of the school year, Gagetown Elementary School will be losing 27½ years of experience in its kitchen.

Retiring will be head cook Mary McKellar, who has been there 17½ years, and her sister, Sue Penrod, who has been assistant cook 10 years.

During spring vacation in the Owendale-Gagetown School District, they gave up a day of their vacation, April 19, to cook lunch for 66 members of the Owen-Gage Senior Citizens, something they have done once or twice a year for the past three or four years. (The group usually meets in the nearby St. Agatha Catholic Church parish hall for a pot-luck lunch).

Both women are old enough to join the senior citizens group. Mrs. Penrod is 75 and Mrs. McKellar is 71.

When Mrs. McKellar started cooking at the school, it was supposed to be temporary. The then head cook, Maude Simmons Hagar, asked her to help for two weeks. "A couple weeks ended up 17½ years," Mrs. McKellar said.

Her sister joined her in the kitchen after retiring and moving from Detroit. Both widows, they live next door to each other on Bach Road, Gagetown.

Neither had commercial cooking experience when they started at the school. Mrs. Penrod had worked in a cafeteria in Detroit, but as a supervisor of students.

They are the only cooks at the school and start work each morning between 7:30 and 8. They finish between 2 and 2:30 p.m. Delores Bencheck works each day from 11-1:30 to help with the serving and to wash the dishes.

Mrs. McKellar has been planning to retire for several years, but each fall was back at work. "I do it I guess because I love to do it. I love the children."

Now that she and her sister have definitely decided to retire, they might do some traveling, but that isn't definite. "I've never made any plans," Mrs. McKellar said. "I take it day by day...I'm going to enjoy the little things you can't do when you're working."

"I always was a great one to stay home," said Mrs. Penrod.

Mrs. McKellar has two sons, Gary and Kerry, both of Gagetown—the latter is getting married to Gloria Nimitz May 26—and three grandchildren. Mrs. Penrod has two daughters, Patricia Buffa, Sterling Heights, and Diane Malapolski of Roseville, and two grandchildren.

They have one sister, Alma Binge, also a widow, who lives in Detroit.

They have relatives in Florida and Colorado, so if they do some traveling, might go to those places.

One change noted over the 17 years is there is a lot more paperwork—records, inventories, reports of what was served each day, invoices, etc.—than when Mrs. McKellar started. Another is there are more federal surplus commodities available now, even granola bars.

There is one part of her job she definitely won't miss after she and Mrs. Penrod prepare their last meal June 1. "The job I disliked the most in the 17½ years is making out the menus."

She had high praise for Gagetown Elementary Principal Bill Britt, the teachers and the children.

"I know one thing, I'm going to be missing the children."

Silos to be built at Owendale

Construction of two silos with a total capacity of 116,000 bushels may begin this week at the Pillsbury elevator in Owendale.

Cost of the project, which will include a new 100-ton platform truck scale and a sampling station with a hydraulic sampling probe to speed deliveries, won't be made available until at least next week, according to James R. Suchodolski, vice-president-operations, Pillsbury Edible Protein Division, Saginaw.

Two 30-by-100 foot silos poured in a non-stop operation will be constructed between the present wood and metal elevator, which has a capacity of 75,000 bushels, and the railroad tracks. Contractor will be Stout Construction of Sylvania, Ohio.

Completion is scheduled by the end of August or first of September, in time for bean harvesting, Suchodolski said.

In addition to beans, in future years the new silos will be used for wheat and possibly for corn.

Pillsbury has asked the Owendale Village Council to establish an industrial development district, which would cut its property taxes on the new facilities in half for 12 years.

The elevator has two full-time employees year-round. Suchodolski said that won't change, but more employees will be added during the harvest season.

The new facilities will have a receiving capacity of 5,000 bushels per hour.

A groundbreaking ceremony will be held, but as of the beginning of this week, hadn't been scheduled yet.

4 plead guilty to charges in Tuscola County Circuit Court

Four persons pleaded guilty Monday when they appeared before Tuscola County Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Minor theft reported in Cass City

Parkway store owner Richard Turner reported to Cass City police at noon Monday that two overhead doors, a seven-foot wide one on the north side of the store, and a 15-foot wide one on a storage building, had been damaged.

The door tracks were also damaged. The damage was apparently done by a vehicle that ran into the doors.

Raymond Grider of 6467 Main Street told village police April 24 that about a quarter of a tank of gas was siphoned from the tank of his car while it was parked overnight in the alley behind his apartment.

Cass City police took Blain A. Peyerk, 21, of 5040 McKinley Road, Elkton, into custody on charges of driving with license suspended and improper license plates after stopping the car he was driving at 2:25 a.m. Friday.

The car was stopped on Leach Street after police observed the license plate had expired.

District court information was not available by Tuesday.

to one of two charges of breaking and entering, of breaking into a store April 5 at 318 N. State Street, Caro.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Oct. 15. DuRussell was released from custody on $10,000 personal recognizance bond.

A charge of breaking into a store at 160 N. State, also on April 5, will be dismissed.

Frederick G. Alderman, 26, of Curry Road, Caro, pleaded guilty to delivery of marijuana Aug. 4, 1983, in Wells Township. His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled June 11. Bond was continued.

In a plea bargain with the prosecution, a second charge of delivery of marijuana, June 24, 1983, in Caro, will be dismissed.

Gordon J. Roy, 21, of 2777 Cass City Road, Unionville, pleaded guilty to attempted forgery of a state treasurer's warrant for $116 Oct. 30 in Caro.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled July 24. Bond was continued.

James A. Randall, 20, of 909 W. Burnside Street, Caro, pleaded guilty to violating probation. His plea was accepted and he was ordered held in jail without bond until sentencing. A sentencing date will be set.

Randall was placed on four years' probation in December, 1980, for larceny in a building. He violated probation by his guilty pleas in district court April 3 to assault and battery and illegal entry.

Also Monday, Richard L. Reil, 19, of 5200 Waterman Road, Vassar, was placed on probation for three years for attempted uttering and publishing of a check for $150 Aug. 9 in Indianfields Township.

He was also sentenced to 100 days in the county jail, with credit given for days served, and work release privileges granted. Reil was fined $300 and ordered to pay restitution.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Nov. 21.

Scott B. Miller, 18, of 4711 S. Unionville Road, Unionville, was placed on probation for one year for attempted forgery of a check for $25 May 15, 1983, in Unionville.

A jail sentence was held in abeyance. Joslyn ordered Miller to write him a letter each week reporting on his progress in school. He was also fined $150 and is to pay his court appointed attorney.

Miller pleaded guilty to the charge Oct. 3, after which sentencing was delayed six months.

CHARGED

Dean M. Keyser, 21, of 4091 Crane Road, Cass City, has been charged with joy riding and no operator's license in possession.

He was arraigned Monday before Tuscola County District Judge Richard F. Kern, who set bond at $2,500, the required 10 percent of which was posted late that afternoon and Keyser was released from custody. Pre-preliminary examination was scheduled May 7 and preliminary examination May 18.

Keyser was arrested by Cass City police about 4:20 a.m. Sunday after the car he was driving was stopped on Woodland Avenue, north of Houghton Street.

Selma Schulz of 6242 River Road had reported to the sheriff's department about an hour earlier that the car, which belonged to her, was missing.

A warrant was issued by the Huron County prosecutor's office last week charging David H. Moore, 18, of 6359 Robinson Road, Cass City, with breaking and entering an occupied dwelling.

He is charged with breaking into the Vernon Schulz residence, 4494 Rescue Road, Grant Township, Feb. 14.

As of Monday, arraignment in district court hadn't been scheduled. Moore is presently lodged in the Sanilac County jail, in lieu of bond, awaiting trial on two charges of breaking and entering and one of larceny.

Center B drain costs less than expected for Cass Cityans

Cass City homeowners will have to pay considerably less than early "guesstimates" as their share for cleaning of the Center B Drain.

Last Thursday was the day Tuscola County Drain Commissioner Stanley Henry had to have ready the amounts beneficiaries will have to pay for cleaning the Center B and its branches.

Most Cass City property owners will be assessed because all the storm sewers except those in the southeast corner of the village empty into the Center B.

Assessments are based on the size of the property and benefits received. For Cass City homeowners with a half-acre lot, Henry said, the assessment will be $1.65 a year for three years, a total of $4.95.

The assessments will first appear on December property tax bills.

Before figuring out the cost shares, Henry had guessed that Cass Cityans would have to pay no more than $60.

The Center B runs from southwest of the intersection of Dodge and Bay City-Forestville Roads south to the Cass River. Cost of cleaning the 5.5 miles will be $55,000, including engineering and interest on the money borrowed to pay for it.

Property owners will pay 49.1134 percent of the cost (mostly paid by farmland owners); Tuscola County-at-large, 24.0875 percent; Elkland Township-at-large, 20.577 percent; Cass City village-at-large, 2.7389 percent; Elmwood Township-at-large, 1.6834 percent; Michigan Department of Transportation, .9125 percent, and Grand Trunk Western Railroad, .8866 percent.

Cleaning of the Reid Branch of the Center B and its branch, total of 3.8 miles, will cost $19,200, including engineering and interest. The cost split will be property owners, 50 percent; county-at-large, 24.1577 percent; Elkland Township-at-large, 18.6179 percent; Elmwood township-at-large, 6.3821 percent, and Department of Transportation, .8423 percent.

Cleaning of Branch No. 1 of the Reid Drain and its branch, total of 1.7 miles, and erosion structures, will be $19,900, including engineering and interest. The cost share will be property owners, 50 percent; Elkland Township-at-large, 25 percent; county-at-large, 24.1751 percent, and Department of Transportation, .8429 percent.

Property owners wanting to appeal their assessments to Tuscola County Probate Court have 10 days from last Thursday to do so.

The contractors awarded the drain cleaning jobs will start by June, Henry said. They must have the jobs completed by August.

Kingston hosts young authors

The Thumb Area Reading Council hosted its fourth annual Youth Author's Conference Saturday, April 14, at Kingston High School from 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m.

The conference focused on creative writing for secondary students from grades 7-12, with some sixth graders attending.

Three areas were covered: Working with an author, who was Jean Pitrone from Trenton, a writer for the Reader's Digest School and also an instructor at Wayne County Community College; working with the newspaper, and sharing their stories with other students.

Schools sending students to the conference were Peck, Akron-Fairgrove, Vassar, Cass City, Kingston, and Port Hope.

Sack lunches were brought by the students, with donuts, milk, apples, and snacks being furnished by the Reading Council. In addition, several of the students were able to take home a free poster or book as the result of a raffle drawing.

The students who went from Cass City, all seventh and eighth graders, were Angela Herron, Justin McNaughton, Teresa Mathewson and Tammy Hurd.

Five other seventh and eighth graders were selected to attend, but were unable to go. They were Christa Nurnberger, Kathy Leino, Kris Marshall, Matt Tuckey and Jeff Sontag.

To be selected, students had to submit something they had written. The authors of what were judged to be the best entries could attend.

Hospital plans tour for pupils

The theme for National Hospital Week, May 6-12, is, "We're the Caring Kind."

Hills and Dales General Hospital employees are involved in outside community activities, such as, March of Dimes, Village Bach Festival, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, Scouts, Cancer Society, American Heart Association, Red Cross, church activities, service clubs and the health fair at the Fourth of July Festival.

The hospital takes free blood pressure readings on a drop-in basis, and participates in colorectal cancer and diabetes screening.

Hills and Dales is celebrating Hospital Week by inviting all first grade students from Campbell, DeFord and Evergreen Elementary Schools to visit the hospital. The students will receive a tour of the emergency room and a treat.

The hospital is also sponsoring a "Caring Kind" poster contest.

R. Jewell commended by commander

Navy Fireman Robert J. Jewell has received a letter of appreciation from his commanding officer on the USS Ajax for "devotion to duty" and a "job well done."

He is the son of Robert R. and Christine Jewell of 4970 State Street, Gagetown.

Jewell helped in the loading of 1 million gallons of fuel oil and 10,000 gallons of lubricating oil, which, according to the letter from Capt. Ronald W. Kerslake, meant persevering "through many long hours, surrendering liberty, often foregoing sleep and meals to get the job done right."

The Ajax's home port is San Diego, Calif. Jewell has been in the Navy more than three years.

Lounsbury sells article to magazine

Tom Lounsbury of Dodge Road, Cass City, has sold an article he wrote to the Michigan United Conservation Clubs' magazine, "Michigan Out of Doors."

The how-to article, entitled "Tracking Farmland Whitetails," is scheduled to appear in the magazine's November issue, which will be devoted to deer hunting.

In it, Lounsbury details his experience in tracking and shooting deer. He has killed about a dozen of the animals over the years, he said, using shotgun, muzzle loader and bow, including one every year (and two one year) since 1978.

Lounsbury, a weights and measures inspector for the Michigan Department of Agriculture, has already received payment for the article, the first he has written and submitted to a magazine.

He is now writing two more articles, he said, both concerning the outdoors.

No foul play in Robert Still death

Robert L. Still, 35, of Saginaw, whose body was found April 24 in an abandoned bait shop at Quanicassie, died from foul play, according to Caro state police.

An autopsy to determine cause of death was performed at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw. Still, who was unemployed, lived with his mother, who reported him missing to Saginaw police March 22. She said he had left two days earlier to visit friends in Bay City.

Preliminary autopsy results did not reveal how long Still had been dead.

Girls top Ubly, lose to Marlette

Cass City's softball team split a pair of double headers during the week, taking a non-league double header from Ubly Thursday and losing a Thumb B Association twin bill to Marlette Friday.

Coach Jim Fox said his charges played well in the wins against Ubly and poorly in the losses to Marlette.

The Hawks wouldn't have had to improve a great deal to win at Marlette. The Red Raiders won both games by a single run.

In the opener Jill Hutchinson got some hitting support for a change, but didn't have her best stuff on the ground and lost in the extra inning game, 7-6.

Marlette touched Hutch for seven hits, the most she has yielded all year. For awhile it looked like no contest as Marlette raced off to a four-run lead in the first inning on two doubles, a walk and an error.

But Cass City came back with a run in the second and three in the third off Long and then forged in front with two runs in the sixth.

But Marlette came back to tie it and then win in the seventh on a single and an error. Colleen Irler led the Hawks at the plate with three for four while Rhonda Fader picked up two hits in three tries.

Hutchinson also went the distance in the second game and pitched a three-hitter, only to see the Raiders break a 3-all tie in the sixth on a hit by Cheryl Miller and a throwing error. Miller picked up all three hits garnered by Marlette.

Cass City picked up only three hits, but had numerous scoring opportunities go to waste as the Raiders issued seven walks.

Cass City was unable to do anything offensively until the last inning when a three-run rally tied it up and set the stage for Mar-lette's game winning run in its half of the inning.

UBLY GAMES

If Ubly could find some pitching, it could be a strong softball team, Fox believes. Paced by Kim and S. Gibbard, sisters, the Bearcats have a good hitting team. But the pitching gives up more runs than the offense can muster. In the first game the Hawks settled the issue with four runs in the first inning on their way to a 13-3 decision. Hutchinson pitched the distance and gave up five hits. Lisa Benitez and Hutchinson led the attack with two hits each.

In the nightcap Ivette Hurd picked up the win for the Hawks. Her job was made easy as her teammates pounded out nine hits and 18 walks to win, 18-7. Hurd allowed nine hits, but walked just one.

Freshman Shannon McIntosh led the attack with two hits. Benitez smacked a double with the bases loaded.

Outstanding for Ubly was Julie Ruthko, who slipped out two hits and walked in three tries and played an excellent game behind the plate for the losers.

Bees have own undertakers

Humans aren't the only ones with undertakers -- bees have them too, reports International Wildlife magazine. Less than an hour after a honeybee dies, another bee carries the body as far as 400 feet from the hive before dropping it. Scientists believe this undertaking is due to a chemical emission from the dead bees.

Hawk 9 wins, loses twin bills

The Cass City Red Hawk baseball team took a double-header from the Ubly Bearcats Thursday and then lost a pair of games at Marlette Friday.

The losses were Thumb B Association games, while the wins were non-league affairs.

The first game with Marlette was a tight, well played game. Joe Langenburg was bested by Forbes as the Red Raiders notched a 4-1 decision. Langenburg was touched for six hits while Forbes allowed just four hits, three of them coming in the third when Cass City scored its only run. The marker came on singles by Pete Wallace, Tom Wallace and Langenburg.

Marlette scored a pair of runs in the second on two hits and added insurance markers in the fourth and fifth innings.

The less said about the nightcap the better for Cass City fans. Marlette touched Randy Nicholas for 10 hits and his teammates committed seven errors as Marlette racked up an easy 13-1 decision. The game was called at the end of five innings. Steve Fox picked up two hits in two tries for the Hawks.

UBLY GAMES

Cass City broke open a tight game in the seventh inning to win the first game against Ubly, 10-8. Going into the first half of the last inning the teams were tied at 8-all. Doubles by Langenburg and Fox were key blows in the rally. Eric LaJoie was the winning pitcher.

In the nightcap, two big innings made it easy for the Hawks to register an 11-5 decision. Cass City scored four times in the third to erase a 4-1 Ubly lead and then added four more in the fifth to ice the contest. Creason was the winning pitcher and allowed just four hits.

Why do drs. come and go in Cass City?

stay forever and you don't need them."

Finding good doctors is much harder.

Also difficult to find are doctors to serve in such towns as Unionville (the one there now, in the clinic owned by Hills and Dales, is on contract and may not stay), Kingston (Marlette Community Hospital is also trying to recruit a doctor for there) and Owendale.

Doctors don't like to be in towns where there is no hospital and where they would be the only physician.

ALTHOUGH DOCTORS in urban areas can make more money than rural ones, Genovese said, that is not why he is leaving, though that may be a disincentive for others to come here. "...I can't gripe about my income. That's not why I'm leaving."

Though true about city doctors making more, Jensen said, that is changing. The reason is there is getting to be a saturation of doctors in urban areas, which makes it easier to recruit them to rural areas, such as Cass City.

Genovese suggested that recruitment of doctors should be a community effort and not just left up to Jensen.

Although Cass City once had a committee that did that, Jensen doesn't feel the lack of one is a handicap.

When an interested doctor comes here for a visit, he or she is asked what they want and an effort is made to accommodate their wishes.

KEN JENSEN

One wanted to be left at Seeger and Main and picked up two hours later, so that he could talk to townspeople and wander around the community. What he found may not have been the reason, but he didn't establish a practice here.

Another asked that his wife be shown the two supermarkets. Jensen wouldn't say who it was, but the doctor stayed.

Bats are smart

Few people realize that bats are gentle, intelligent, meticulously clean, and frequently beneficial animals to man, says International Wildlife magazine. They eat pest insects, are nature's most important seed dispersing mammal, and pollinate many valuable crops of fruit and nuts.

Wind damage extensive in Cass City area

metal siding on the Hunt Construction building on West Street.

The Elkland Township Fire Department responded to two minor fires Monday caused by the wind storm.

The first was at 2:42 p.m., when a drop line to a house at 6276 Pine Street, west of Brooker, came down. The grass burned around where the wire touched the ground, but burned itself out.

The second was at 7:30 p.m. when power lines that fell into trees started at least three trees burning along Elkton Road, about a mile north of Huron Line Road.

The most unusual incident in Tuscola County may have occurred outside of Richville, where the roof was blown off the Weber Steel building and landed on M-46, blocking traffic. That was reported at 12:47 p.m.

Strangers can be harmful, say police

As the weather warms with the advent of spring, Tuscola County Sheriff Paul Berry warns county residents and their children to be on the alert for the presence of strangers in the neighborhood.

Some individuals strike out at the world through rape, child molestation or assault, he said, and spring seems to heighten those urges. Year after year, we see more incidents of such violence occurring during this season.

Berry offers the following suggestions:

--Warn your children about strangers, to never accept candy or presents and to stay away from strange cars.

--Always know where your children are. If possible, make sure they are being supervised by an adult.

--Get to know the people who jog through your neighborhood -- who they are, where they live.

--Keep windows and doors locked at night.

--Keep porch lights on when planning to return home after dark. Always have keys ready to place in the lock.

--Always drive with car doors locked, especially if driving alone.

--Avoid parking or walking alone in unlighted areas.

--If working late, do not hesitate to have someone escort you to your car.

--If you are afraid, call your sheriff's department or other law enforcement agency for help. Do not fear embarrassment if you are mistaken.

Teacher Harriet Warner retiring

Mother knows best.

Harriet Warner is glad she took her mother, Effie's, advice 39 years ago. It turned into a career.

But after 38 years in the classroom, the kindergarten and first grade teacher at Deford Elementary School has decided this year will be her last, that it's time to retire.

Miss Warner graduated from Cass City High School in 1945. "I didn't know what I was going to do and my mother said, 'Go to County Normal and if you don't like it, you can try something else.'"

She attended Tuscola County Normal School in Caro for a year --all that was required to start teaching in those days -- and, "I sure enjoyed it."

Her first teaching job was at Crawford School, three miles east of Deford on Deckerville Road. She taught two years there, then went to Moshier School, north of Hemans, where she spent five years. Both were K-8 schools.

Miss Warner then went to the Deford School, from which she had graduated before attending high school. She was one of four teachers and taught second and third grade. (Jacqueline Freiburger, now Campbell Elementary principal, taught kindergarten and first grade then.)

After school, Miss Warner took classes in Caro conducted by Central Michigan University. She spent summers on the CMU campus (except for two summers at Eastern Michigan University) and in 1958, received her bachelor's degree from CMU.

THAT FALL, SHE started teaching at Campbell Elementary (then Cass City Elementary School). She made the switch because the then Deford Community School District (all of Novesta Township) didn't pay teachers any more if they had a bachelor's degree (Cass City did) "and I wanted a change."

During her first eight years at Deford, the present school was constructed. The old one, which had two stories, was located closer to the corner of Deckerville and Kingston Roads.

At Campbell, Miss Warner taught combined second and third grade, then first and second combined and finally first grade.

During her time there, the Deford district merged with the Cass City district.

Miss Warner returned to Deford to stay in the fall of 1967. "I'm not that fond of driving, so when Mr. (Supt. Don) Crouse told me there was a vacancy, I came back."

Deford Elementary is three blocks from where she lives on Main Street with her mother, age 86, across the street from where Miss Warner was born. Her father died when she was a child.

She has two brothers, Duane, who lives in Deford, and Glen, who lives west of Wilmot. "My mother always said (jokingly) we could never afford to leave Deford."

Since returning to Deford Elementary, Miss Warner,

57, taught first grade until the last two years, when she had kindergarten and first. This year, she has 10 kindergartners in the morning and nine in the afternoon, plus 17 first graders all day.

ONE CHANGE THE teacher has noted over the years is, "I think a lot more is expected of first graders (to learn) than when I started."

Partly for that reason, she doesn't like having to teach the two grades. "It still is hard to keep first graders busy when I'm working with the kindergarten." It is hardest in the fall, she said, when school is a new experience for the kindergartners.

Having to teach two grades was an influence on her decision to retire, Miss Warner said. More importantly, "I guess 38 years is enough."

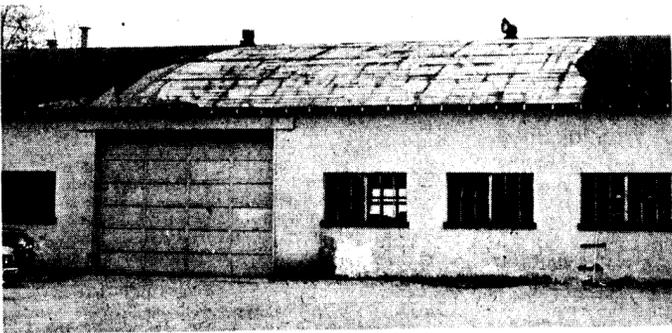

Although she doesn't plan to substitute teaching once she has retired, she does plan to do some volunteer work, including working with individual children in school "if they want me."

She wants to do some traveling. She has visited a friend in California in summer, but never in winter, and has never been to Florida.

With only about a month of school left, Miss Warner knows what she will miss and not miss once it's over.

After working with children for so long, "I'm sure I'm going to miss them."

As for what she won't miss, "No more papers to check. No more report cards. That's going to be nice."

THE TAR PAPER covering on part of the United Parcel Service building roof was peeled off by the wind Monday. It was also missing on the other side. A new covering was installed Tuesday.
