Business rearing

Users say computers save time, make work easier

FIRST OF TWO PARTS

By H.V. Wood

Cass Cityans who have put computers to work in their businesses or occupations agree that one of the best things about the machines is they save time. Individuals ranged from those who had no computer experience to those who took data processing classes in college.

Betty Stilson, co-owner of Bigelow's Hardware on Main Street, received a computer for Christmas from her husband Gerald. The machine is used for the store's accounts receivable (bills owed). "I just do it (account updating) every 10 days. Our business is so busy. We just bought this business 1½ years ago. When we first started it was nothing," Mrs. Stilson recalled. "We built it up and it's three times as much work to do."

The computer calculates how much money Bigelow's 90 accounts owe and how much they have paid. Mrs. Stilson used to do the updates on an adding machine, which took more time.

She enters in the name of the vendor, amount owed or paid, and the sales tax. This is done with each invoice.

She learned to use the computer by reading the instruction manual, taking a couple courses through Community Education and working with her daughter, Mary King, who works with computers at Schneeberger's.

"I'm always interested in learning new things. I had a microwave oven before anyone even heard of it," Mrs. Stilson said.

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT Ray Armstead Jr., uses his computers for everything in his office, which he has operated for three years.

"They're good for a lot of repetitive work. They're definitely a timesaver," Armstead said.

One machine does all the reports, financial statements, and legal proceedings. The other is for word processing.

Armstead took data processing courses at Michigan State University as part of his accounting curriculum, where he worked with a "mainframe," or very large computer.

"Working with micros is basically self-taught. It was just an extension of my mainframe experience," he said.

His computers reduced the number of papers around the office. One 4-inch computer disk can hold the equivalent of 100 typewritten pages. The disk also is more organized than the paperwork.

His computer makes lightning-fast calculations. Projections on the interest a loan earns by month and year would probably take a person hours to figure, but the computer finishes it in five seconds.

RINDA SMITH of the regional Michigan Education Association office said the computer there makes maintenance of teacher and other school personnel contracts easier.

The storage disks hold contracts for teachers in 26 upper Thumb school districts and six contracts for members of the Michigan Educational Support Personnel Association, a union for clerical and custodial workers. Some of the contracts are up to 60 typewritten pages long.

If any contract needs to be changed, it is simply called up on the disk and the necessary changes made. When contracts were hand-typed, they had to be totally retyped, Mrs. Smith said.

"The editing ability of this is so much easier than regular typing because you can delete or reform (sentences with simple commands). It's a time-saver and fun to use," she explained.

"When you start working with a 60-page contract, those commands, 'Go to the top of the page or go to the bottom of the page,' make it easier than taking it out and making the corrections with Liquid Paper or whatever."

The computer eliminated "tons of paperwork" and saved a lot of the MEA office's storage space. Mrs. Smith said storage on disks eliminated the need for at least two legal-size filing cabinets.

Another job the computer does is print address labels on a letter-quality printer, which makes copies identical to typewritten papers. The computer prints about 60 labels in two minutes, while a person on a typewriter might take 10 minutes if uninterrupted.

Mrs. Smith learned how to use the computers by taking an introductory data processing class. She later served as an instructor in the MEA's training program for other staff members.

As an instructor, she noticed younger persons generally were enthusiastic about the machines, but older ones were a little more reluctant, not knowing what to expect from the computers.

ADDRESS LABELS ARE only one of the functions of the computer at Schneeberger's, according to employee Keith Clark.

"We use it for accounts payable and our vendors we owe, plus inventory control. We also use it for our mailing list. We have about 6,000 on our mailing list and it just prints them out," Clark said.

The computer is also used for inventory of about 700 videotape and videodisc titles and 500 appliances in stock, listed by model number. None of the furniture is on the computer because there are "thousands" of pieces, he said.

There was never a list of appliances before the computer was used. "Before we'd go back and look and see if it was in a box," Clark said.

Schneeberger's plans to upgrade its system and started using hard disks, which hold more information. Warranties will go on disks soon, which will make servicing appliances, a large part of the business, a little easier, he commented.

Clark got his training through the manufacturers who make the computers, which are sold at $4,200 stolen in Charmont break-in

Investigation is continuing into the theft of about $4,200 in cash and payroll checks, plus $250 in lottery tickets.

The break-in was reported to Cass City police 1:35 a.m. Friday, it having been discovered by an employee who noticed video game machines had been broken open and the west side door forced open.

The door was opened, police said, by using a crowbar to break away the wood around the door, which was locked with a deadbolt lock.

Most of the money was removed from the safe in the basement office, the thieves having drilled holes through the door where the lock pins come together.

Other money was taken from three cash register drawers inside a locked liquor storage room in the basement.

In addition to about $4,200 in cash and a few cashed payroll checks, $250 in lottery tickets was taken.

No money was taken from the four video game machines, which had a second lock on them. Only the first locks were broken.

Police said the drill used in opening the safe belonged to the Charmont.

Sheriff's Department Detective Ronald Phillips aided in the investigation.

OTHER ITEMS

Village officers while on patrol at 2:07 a.m. Sunday noticed the glass front door at Old Wood Drug was broken with a rock. They found no evidence the store had been entered. Value of the door was listed at $200.

Phillip Zawilinski of 4355 Leach Street told Cass City police last Wednesday morning that about 100 cassette tapes and the case they were in were stolen from his car while parked at his home overnight. He valued the tapes at $7 each.

Cass City police arrested Sheila M. Freyaldenhoven, 26, of 3157 Decker Road, Decker, on a charge of disorderly person after an incident in front of the tavern at the corner of Main and Leach Streets. She was arrested at 12:25 a.m. Friday.

She was released from the county jail later that day after posting $50 bond. Arraignment in district court was scheduled July 16.

Daniel Williams of 6703 Main Street reported to village police Friday morning that a hole was shot in his 3-by-4 foot window with a BB.

Two nine-year-old boys later confessed to being involved. One owned the gun and the other fired it at the window. Restitution was being arranged with their parents. The window was valued at $50.

Staff layoffs, millage vote set in Kingston

The Kingston School Board Monday made official what it tentatively decided to do a week earlier, ask for a tax increase of four mills in a special election Aug. 20.

Even if the increase is approved, it will mean layoff of school personnel and other cuts.

The two proposals on the ballot will be renewal of 16 mills for three years and an additional four mills for one year.

The additional four mills will be earmarked for transportation, energy conservation and maintenance.

If the extra millage is defeated, Supt. Jerry Laycock said, the board will have no choice except to end busing.

The special election was necessitated by defeat June 11 of three millage proposals, a combined 16 mill renewal and increase of five mills for three years, 310-172; increase of one mill for three years for building repair and maintenance, 263-222, and allowing levying of the full 9 allocated mills by waiving tax rollback requirements, 289-188.

The difference between the added six mills and the added four mills, according to Laycock, is $95,000-100,000. Defeat of the rollback meant a loss of almost $10,000 in revenue.

To cope with that "loss," the board tentatively decided June 25 that the equivalent of four teachers will be laid off. That's in addition to two already pink slipped. The reduction of six teaching positions include that of a high school teacher, Lynn Lehman, granted a one-year leave of absence, so five will actually lose their jobs.

Other budget cuts include reductions in secretarial and extra-duty staff, including some aides; less money for purchase of textbooks, supplies and equipment; a cut of 20% in the athletic budget, plus elimination of the athletic director's job, and cutting the new energy conservation program in half.

The athletic program will not be eliminated, Laycock said. The changes mean he will be handling the athletic director's duties, instead of a teacher. To reduce the cost of the program, the board will be looking at possibly charging athletes a small fee to participate, more help from the athletic boosters and/or eliminating a sport.

The cuts add up to more than $100,000, but Laycock pointed out that savings from layoffs are partially offset by the cost of unemployment compensation. The actual projected savings will be $98,500.

The board met Monday of this week to officially authorize the election and further define the cuts.

The specific staff changes will be elimination of one K-6 teacher, 1½ secondary teachers, elementary special instructors for art, vocal music and physical education (equivalent to slightly more than one full-time position), one secretary, kindergarten aide, extra duty pay for elementary librarian, administrative staff specialist who handled attendance and lunchroom duties, etc. and the athletic director.

The elementary special instructors, administrative staff specialists and athletic director are all regular teachers, which means some of them will be working fewer hours next year and therefore paid less.

The staff reductions will

3 Cass Cityans injured in accident

Six persons, including three Cass City residents, were injured in a two-car collision last Wednesday east of Vassar.

Stanley Frankowski, 55, and his wife, Audrey, 57, of Sherman Street, were released Saturday from St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw. Their son, John Frankowski, 30, also of Sherman Street, was treated and released from there the day of the accident.

John Frankowski was driving eastbound on M-41, and the second driver, Karen Weber, 26, of Vassar, was westbound. Denmark Township police reported Mrs. Weber's car went into Frankowski's lane as she tried to turn left onto Bradford Road.

Mrs. Weber was reported in good condition Monday afternoon at Saginaw General Hospital, where her daughter, Jessica, 1, was treated and released the day of the accident. Her son, Matthew, 8, was released Saturday from St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

At 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 26, Cass City police reported, Roxanne M. Karwoski, 18, of 2273 Elmwood Road, was pulling away from the south curb on Main Street to turn right onto Leach Street.

As she was doing so, Adrian L. Hutchinson, 50, of 6360 Houghton Street, eastbound on Main, also started to turn right onto Leach. Miss Karwoski's car then ran into the right side of his car.

At 4:25 p.m. last Thursday, according to sheriff's deputies, Kelley Marie Dillon, 19, of 6172 Lakeside Drive, Huntsville, Trailer Park, was backing out of a driveway onto Lakeside and backed into the right side of a car parked on the opposite side of the road.

Owner of the parked car was Shirley Bader of 5218 Pringle Road, Decker.

A mishap was reported to the sheriff's department at 2:37 p.m. June 20. The truck of David P. Sisco, 18, of Freeland, eastbound on M-46, bounced when it hit the railroad tracks in Kingston, causing a 4-by-5 foot steel rack to fall off onto the hood of a westbound auto. Driver of the car was Wendell J. Jackson, 32, of 3045 Plain Road, Kingston.

Tom Wallace, our Bay City Times paper boy, has quit his job to work at Eria's. He's been at the job seven years which is years longer than the average.

He was way above average in faithful delivery service. All the credit doesn't go to Tom. His mother often filled in. When it was time for basketball practice, baseball games or any of the myriad other activities that claim an active teen, Norma Wallace filled in.

Once in a while I can recall, dad, Dick Wallace, was on the job, too. But not as often.

One day last week the wire that furnished the power to our home snapped because it was rubbing against a tree.

A call to Detroit Edison received prompt service at around 8 p.m. I told the friendly lineman that I was surprised that they could get to our home so soon because of the strike in progress.

Oh, the man said, that's another local. Our local already has accepted the terms that the company is asking the striking local to accept.

It's hard to do, but we looked around at all the jobs being lost and decided that we would stay on the job.

Let's give ourselves a pat on the back. Did you notice that all the flower plots on the main stem are now filled with flowers?

Just in time for the July 4 Festival when we want to put our best foot forward for visitors.

HOUSE FIRE — Elkland Township firemen hose down the remains of the house on Shabbona Road that burned early Saturday. Arson is suspected. The home was unoccupied.

Arson suspected in house fire

Arson is believed to be the cause of a fire that destroyed a vacant home on Shabbona Road, south of Cass City, early Saturday. The fire, about a half-mile west of Cemetery Road, was reported to the Elkland Township Fire Department at 3:20 a.m. Firemen were there until about 6 a.m. The Caro Fire Department assisted with a tanker truck.

The owner of the home, Tom Briggs of Royal Oak, valued it at $3,000, according to Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. Electricity to it was disconnected 6-8 months ago, Briggs told Root. There was a "for sale" sign in front of the house.

Detective Larry Walker of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department said traces of a flammable liquid were found on the ground floor, which indicated the fire was deliberately started.

The fire remains under investigation.

Light bulb follies

By Jim Fitzgerald

After all these years of darkness, I'm convinced the light will never go on again when our refrigerator door is opened.

I don't remember exactly when the light quit working; probably 1978 or '79. I do remember that at the time I told my wife there was no way the light could be fixed because the repairman couldn't get near it unless she first removed all the food from inside the refrigerator, and she couldn't do that because there wasn't room in our apartment for that much food.

That was my sly way of calling her the covered-plastic-dish queen of the world. She took considerable umbrage — left over from a boiled umbrage dinner cooked in 1958 — and declared we would there-with begin living off the refrigerator and no new groceries would be purchased until it was vacant enough to accommodate rolled rib roast of repairman.

About three years later, there was enough open space inside the refrigerator to determine that the trouble wasn't in the light bulb, it was in the complicated mechanism that turns on the light when the door is opened. If the darkness had been caused by a simple burned-out bulb, I could have handled the repair myself.

Unless it was a General Electric bulb. The real reason I'm writing about our dark refrigerator today is because last night I tried to replace a burned-out bulb in the bathroom and became so angry I vowed to find some way to write something nasty about GE.

I couldn't simply write that most GE bulbs are rotten at the first screwing, because I pride myself in writing a relevant column that relates to currently big news, and my unfortunate experience with GE bulbs hardly qualifies. I needed an important news hook to hang GE bulbs on. I considered hanging them on Ronald Reagan — he used to work for GE — but the president is so often the victim of negative reporting by the liberal press that one more ho-hum swat at him falls short of being big news.

(Gov. George Deukmejian of California recently described how several White House reporters watched Reagan walk on water, all the way across the Potomac River, and the headline in the next day's Washington Post said: "Reagan Can't Swim.")

So the really big news is that a modern, middle-class, North American family may never again see light when their refrigerator door opens.

Why? Because the refrigerator works too well. When the refrigerator was empty enough to be repaired, and I couldn't do it, I decided it wouldn't be cost-efficient to hire someone to repair a dinky little light. I told my wife to wait until something bigger went wrong with the refrigerator. That always works with my car. I never get a broken dashboard light fixed until the motor falls out on the freeway. And I never have to wait more than a few days before I can say: "We might as well have that sun visor adjusted while the car is in the garage for two months having its chassis rebuilt."

But we have two grandchildren old enough to go to school who've never once seen the light on inside their maternal grandparents' refrigerator. Apparently it will never have anything worse than a busted light mechanism. Historically, refrigerator owners have always wondered if the light really goes out when the door is shut. We are certainly the only family who wonders if the refrigerator light really stays out when the door is shut. That is truly big, tree-wets-dog news.

Incidentally, speaking of light, I took four new GE bulbs out of their crisp cartons when changing the bathroom bulb. Only ONE of them worked. My wife can't remember where she bought them, so we can't take them back. We are effectively screwed, indicating we weren't manufactured by GE.

But GE did manufacture the refrigerator that, just to spite me, won't get anything worse than darkness wrong with it. Please pass the umbrage.

Between Lexington and Crosswell the Lakeview Golf Course nestles in the hills of southeast Michigan. It probably lacks enough length to be termed a championship course by pro circuit standards, but it is maintained in championship fashion.

I'm told that the owner has mega bucks and if that's true he probably doesn't look at the financial statement with a critical eye on the bottom line.

Over the last few years he has planted some 10,000 trees over the 18-hole layout. This year he is installing a new tee and green. Everything is first class.

In a tournament last week, our group was paired with four golfers from the area, one of whom is a member at Lakeview.

They said that the course gets relatively little play despite its excellence and relatively inexpensive green fees.

All of this is a rather lengthy introduction to the topic for today: Why doesn't the eastern Lake Huron shore get the tourists that western Michigan does along Lake Michigan or the eastern northern shores of Lake Huron benefit from?

Granted, the swimming is not as great as it is in Caseville or the northern Huron shores. But I can take you to mud lakes in northern Michigan that are surrounded by homes and in great demand.

There have been predictions for years that the shore line under discussion would be the next boom area.

Which reminds old time residents of the predictions made 25 years or so ago by a team of Detroit Edison experts.

They predicted that the Thumb would be a massive growth area and the population would be so great that the area all the way to Marlette would almost be a megalopolis.

A lot of folks have gambled that the predictions would come true and moved in to be on the ground floor.

They are still waiting. The Thumb has grown but there has been no population explosion.

We edge upwards a little most years, it seems, even though school populations have gone down in every Thumb area school.

There are two ways of looking at this lack of growth. If you happen to be one of the gamblers looking toward the future, it's disastrous.

If you happen to have a decent job or business and like small town living, everything that failed to happen as predicted in the last 25 years is all to the good.

Shore line residents have the same thing going for them. If a tourist boom occurred they would lose what they now take for granted...easy country-like living.

There's something to be said for not having enough people to have a McDonald's move in on every corner.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Little sayings to brighten

our lives

To the Chronicle,
I think we should all remember a few things in life—these little sayings:

- 1) What do we live for if it's not to make life less difficult for each other.
- 2) People are lonely because they build walls instead of bridges.
- 3) The future belongs to those who prepare for it.
- 4) Time is the most valuable thing a man can spend.
- 5) My life is my message.

Thank you,

Corrections

The wife of Chuck Wright is Judy, not Barbara, as was stated in last week's Chronicle.

With memories of having eaten elderberry pies and jelly, reader Ethel McGaffin questioned whether elderberries should have been listed as a poisonous plant in an article last week about a Cooperative Extension Service guide to poisonous plants. The Ypsilanti resident said the are also elderberry wines.

Pedaling Around

My sister's wedding

By Mike Eliasohn

The most exotic car I saw that week end was a Maserati Indy, a rare Italian sports car.

I'm not positive it was an Indy. I spotted it as I was driving past, wondered "what's that?" then saw the front license plate that said "Indy" and put two and two together. I've seen photos of the car before, but never one "in the flesh," nor will I probably ever see one again.

Most of the exotic cars, both racing cars and street cars, were in Detroit that week end for the Grand Prix.

I was in Lansing for my sister's wedding.

Even if there hadn't been a conflict, I'm not sure I would have gone to the Grand Prix.

I went the first year, in 1982, but didn't go last year. Instead I invited myself to the Haire's house and watched the race on their color TV. Watching the Grand Prix on television is like watching any sporting event on the tube -- you miss some of the color and excitement one gets from being there -- but you see the action (and replays) close-up on TV.

It is obviously to the advantage of the Detroit Grand Prix's organizers that the race be televised, since it means favorable publicity for the city and money from the network to defray expenses of putting on the event.

The unfortunate thing is that CBS obviously decides when the race will be.

There were three races Sunday, June 24, one in the morning for a new class, small sports racing cars all powered by Renault engines. Next came the Grand Prix, then a race for small sedans.

Logic says the preliminary races should come first. Who's going to stick around to watch the little sedans race after they've seen the big boys? After all, in boxing, the championship match is last on the card, not in-between some preliminary matches.

But CBS obviously decided they wanted the race to start at 1:15, because the golf tournament that followed was more important. If the Grand Prix started at 3 p.m., then it couldn't show the finals of the golf tournament.

As for me, I heard the first lap of the Grand Prix broadcast on my car radio when I was driving to the reception for my sister's wedding. When I left to come back to Cass City, I heard the last of the credits and, "Once again, the winner was..."

Besides my conventional present to my sister and brother-in-law, my "gift" during the week end was to wash her car. It wouldn't be right for the newlyweds to drive off in a dirty car, I figured.

I didn't tackle the inside, that was beyond hope, and after I did the outside, I discovered that was almost as hopeless.

My sister needs either a new car or a paint job on her present one. The outside doesn't look much different whether it's dirty or clean.

But considering she and the car are now in New Jersey, where her husband works, maybe it doesn't matter.

An American Motors Spirit or Gremlin, whatever it was called the year it was built, with a worn out paint job, is probably at the top of the list of cars least likely to be stolen.

DOUBLE DECKER -- Cause of a fire that started the top two cars burning on a trailer load of flattened junk cars at Bartnick Service Station was undetermined. The fire on Cass City Road near M-53 was reported to the Elkland Township Fire Department at 10:08 p.m. last Thursday. On top are Jack Hartwick, Bob Becker and Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. Firemen were there about an hour.

Michigan Youth Corps jobs start in Thumb area

The Michigan Youth Corps (MYC) summer employment program got underway Monday, despite the legislature not having authorized the program to begin.

Marvin Pichla, executive director of the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium, said Gov. James Blanchard authorized the program to start.

According to State Rep. Dick Allen's office, the legislature last week appropriated $17.9 million for the program, which will eventually fund 15,000 jobs. Thirteen hundred of those jobs were to start Monday.

Although the House of Representatives approved legislation last Thursday authorizing the MYC, the Senate wasn't expected to approve it until Monday of this week at the earliest. The governor ordered the program to begin in anticipation the Senate would act, since funds for it had already been appropriated.

The consortium is to receive $131,000, which will provide a total of 125 jobs in Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer Counties.

The jobs will pay $3.35 an hour, which is the minimum wage. To be eligible, participants have to be 18-21 years old and unemployed.

Work sites include schools, villages and townships, hospitals, fairgrounds, etc.

In addition to the positions filled by the consortium, MYC funds are also being allocated to the state departments of agriculture, transportation, education and natural resources.

Sign-up for the program is at Michigan Employment Security Commission offices. Applying has been extended to this Friday. After that, names of applicants will be put in a replacement file for any openings that should become available should someone already working quit or be fired.

Anne Ferkowicz, who is in charge of the program at the Caro MESC office, didn't know as of Friday how many MYC jobs will be available in Tuscola County. A total of 170 had applied so far.

Of those, 39 had been referred to employers, some of them to jobs arranged by the consortium. She said the employers would be informed directly by the Michigan Department of Labor when the persons could be put to work.

Those referred first to jobs, Ms. Ferkowicz said, are those age 21 who are self-supporting, receiving welfare or children of the unemployed. Next come 20 year-olds in that category, then those 19 and 18.

If any jobs are left, the next category would be 21-year-olds who are unemployed, but supported by their parents.

She said of the first 39 referred, there were some 20 year olds, but since then, more 21-year-olds in the top priority have registered, so they will be placed in jobs next.

She feels that there will be more applicants than jobs available. The jobs should last from 6-12 weeks.

The consortium, in addition to running part of the MYC program in the upper Thumb, is also running the federally funded Job Training Partnership Act program, Summer Youth Employment Program, for which it has received a total of $850,000 for the four counties.

By the end of this week, there should be 500 young adults at work, in jobs similar to those funded by the MYC.

Participants in the JTPA program must be 16-21 and from unemployed or low-income families. The pay is $3.35 an hour. The jobs will last through the end of September or until the participants return to school.

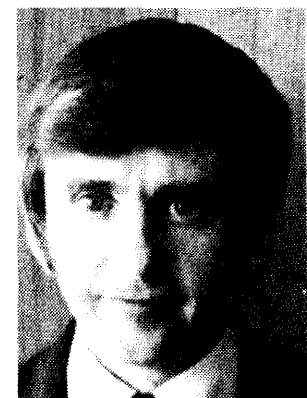

More persons applied for jobs than jobs were available, Pichla said, so some of them were placed in MYC jobs when they became available.

Some applicants will still be disappointed, he indicated. "I'm sure of that. There's only so much money to go around."

Corn acres up sharply in Michigan

Michigan's 1984 corn acreage has returned to a near normal level following last year's federal payment-in-kind (PIK) program.

Corn growers planted 3 million acres this spring, compared to 2.2 million acres last year. Acreage intended for harvest as grain is expected to total 2.6 million acres, an increase of 44 percent from a year ago, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service.

Acreage planted to soybeans is estimated at 1,150,000 acres, an increase of 9 percent from last year and equal to the record acreage planted in 1982. Acreage planted to dry beans at 400,000 acres increased 11 percent from last season. Sugarbeet plantings at 109,000 acres is up 3 percent.

For small grains, winter wheat seedings at 900,000 acres increased 8 percent. Wheat intended for harvest at 800,000 acres is expected to increase 10 percent from a year ago.

Planted acreage for oats is estimated at 320,000 acres. Despite the 29 percent decline in planted acreage, harvested acreage should remain at last year's level. For the 1983 crop year, a significant portion of the oats crop was planted as a cover crop on PIK acreage. Rye acreage intended for harvest is expected to be equal to a year ago. Planted acreage for barley is also unchanged.

Acreage cut for hay at 1.7 million acres will be up 21 percent. Alfalfa hay acreage will be up 27 percent while all other hay will be unchanged. The increase in hay acreage is attributed to alfalfa being seeded last summer on PIK acreage withdrawn from crop production.

Nationally, corn planted for all purposes is estimated at 79.9 million acres, up 33 percent from last year but 2 percent below 1982 acreage. Corn acreage planted in 1983 was the lowest on record.

Soybean plantings are estimated at 68.0 million acres, up 8 percent from a year earlier but 4 percent less than 1982. Dry bean acreage is estimated at 1.4 million acres, 24 percent above last year but 20 percent less than 1982 acreage.

HEALTH TIPS

Special care for premature infants

Improved care of the baby born "too small, too soon" is the goal of a unique computerized research program that takes a good, hard look at "tender loving care."

Dr. Peter A. Gorski, a behavioral pediatrician at Mount Sinai Hospital in San Francisco, believes "what is good and constructive care at one time may be harmful to the baby at another."

Funded by a grant from the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, he studies environmental effects on sick, premature newborns—the tiny babies in intensive care nurseries.

He is particularly concerned with the association between the actions of people giving care and the baby's physical and behavioral responses.

"We can't assume the same responses to care by a full-term baby and by a very sick premature baby whose only experience outside the womb is the world of the intensive care nursery," said Dr. Gorski.

Tinier babies often have difficulty letting caregivers know some action is beyond the capacity of their immature nervous systems to tolerate.

"So care that seems appropriate may actually cause too much stress for the baby, with potentially dangerous physiological responses," he explained.

"They might start breathing irregularly, or stop breathing, or their skin color might change, or their bodies may stop digesting food," he said. "Some early symptoms of distress are subtle and may occur long before monitor alarms alert nurses to more severe symptoms."

To document infants' responses to various kinds of care, Dr. Gorski's research makes use of the computer.

Usually one baby at a time is followed during its nursery stay, which may run from one to two months or more. Monitoring systems to keep doctors and nurses aware of the baby's vital signs are hooked into the computer terminal during observation periods.

Dr. Gorski or a trained observer records every caregiver action and the status of the baby.

Sleep/wake state, skin tone, activity level, medical care procedures, social care, feeding, grooming, persons in attendance, environmental stimuli, infant responses and expressions—all are recorded.

"Holding or fondling a baby at one time may be just what it needs," he explains, "but the same attention at another time may be more than it can handle."

The enormous computerized data file "lets us ask many questions about what influences recovery and development of hospitalized newborns," said Dr. Gorski.

Eventually, he hopes the project will move from research to clinical application. In a few cases already, stress observations were recorded that strongly suggested a change in care. These were implemented immediately to the benefit of the babies involved.

Seeley wins musical competition

Chris Seeley, son of Charles Seeley of Ubyly and Carole Fick of Clifford, returned home Saturday after a trip to Seattle, Wash., where he attended the 1984 National Talents for Christ Contest.

He placed second in the brass section competition with selections on his trombone.

He was awarded a trophy and a half-year's tuition in a General Association of Regular Baptist Churches-approved college.

The first-place winner was a boy from New York, whose trumpet selections won him a trophy and one year's tuition.

All contestants were required to play a church hymn and a classical number.

Chris and his accompanist, Tim Atkins of North Branch, made the all-expense-paid trip by plane to Seattle.

Chris is a May graduate of North Branch High School and was awarded a $100 scholarship given by the John Church fund.

He participated in the state Teen Bible Conference at Grand Rapids Baptist College. There he received a first place trophy and $400 scholarship for his trombone solo.

Prior to graduation, he, along with more than 100 students and chaperones of the North Branch High School band, went by bus to Toronto and from there by plane to England and the Netherlands for a 12-day trip.

UM Golden Rule meets

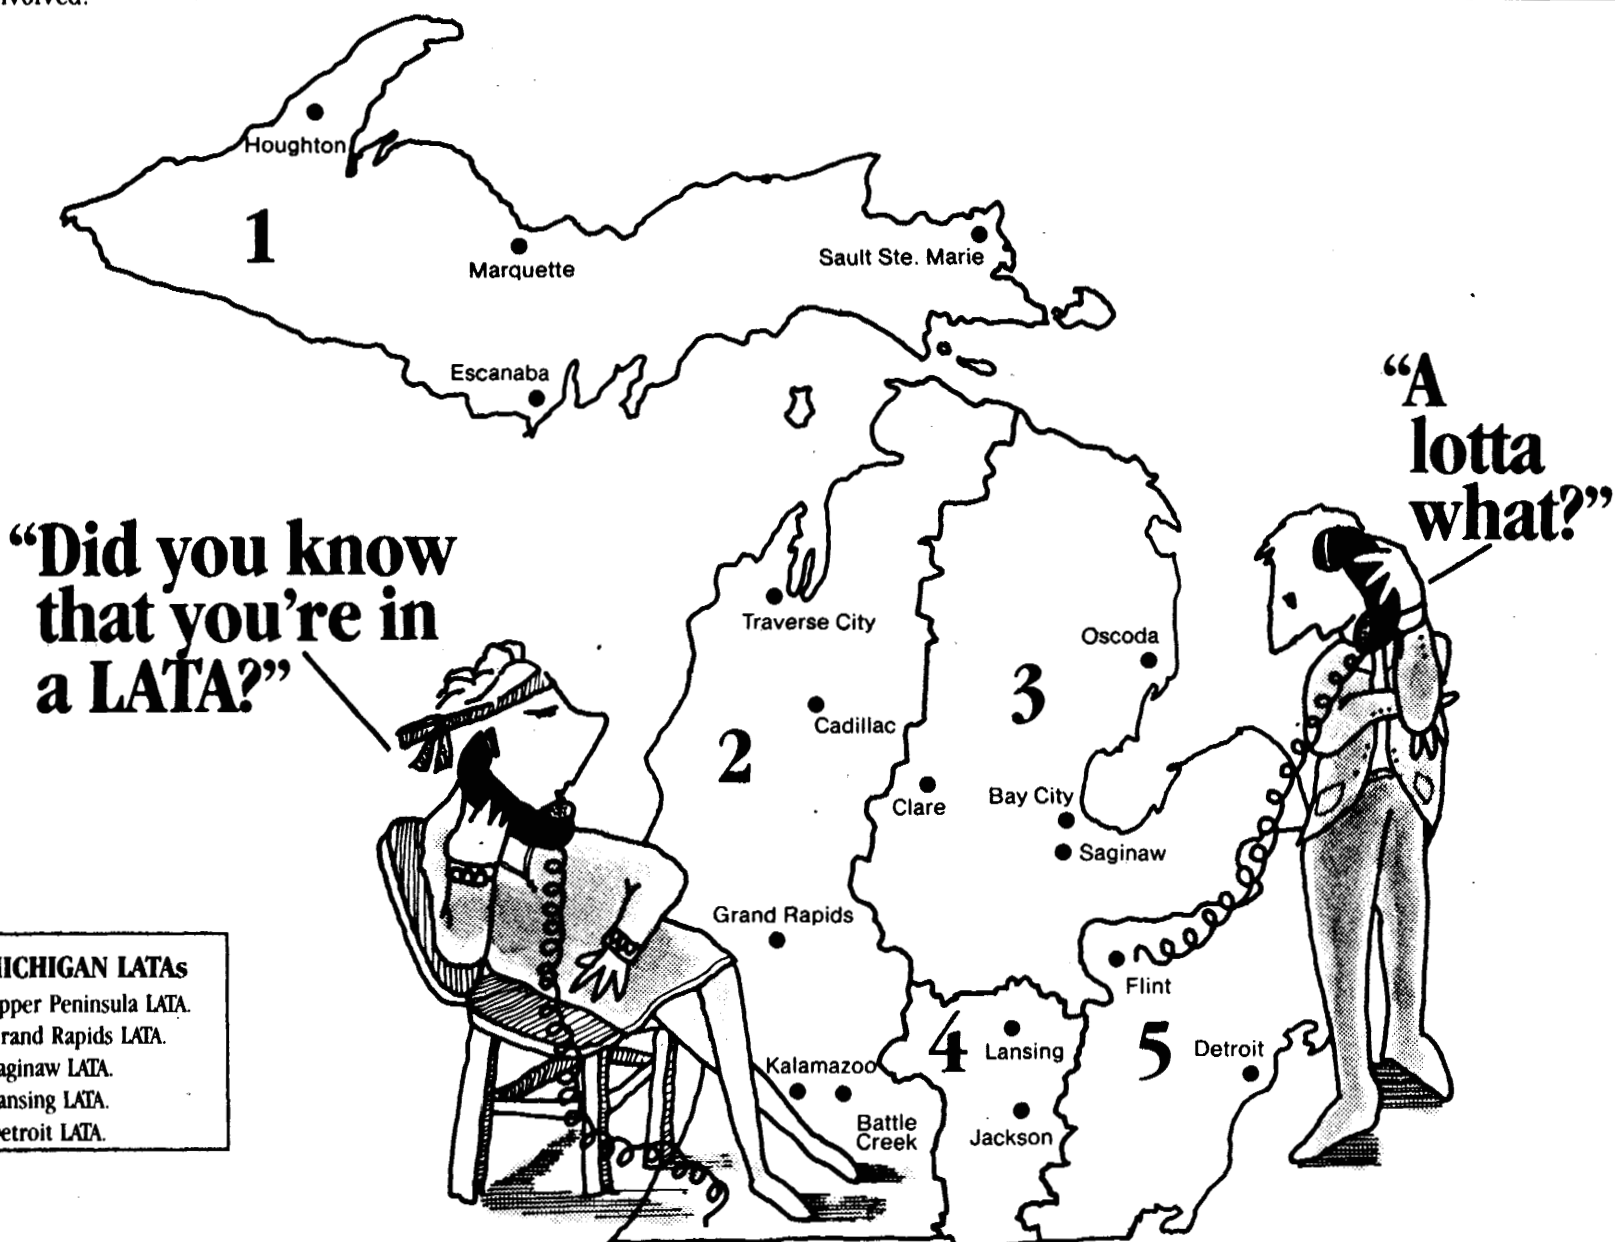

Twenty-three members of the Golden Rule class of Salem United Methodist Church and two guests attended the monthly meeting of the class last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earney Seeley.

The meeting began with a cooperative meal. Iva Mae Hildinger led the devotions and Esther McCullough presided over the business meeting. Games were under the direction of Laura Ball. Accordian music by Earney Seeley provided entertainment.

The July meeting will be at the Leonard Damm cottage at Sand Point.

Elephant ills

The African elephant's second most serious problem, after being poached for their ivory tusks, is its appetite, says International Wildlife magazine. An elephant may eat 500 pounds of forage a day, requiring about one square mile of average savanna per animal over the course of a year. That's a lot of land for some African countries, like Kenya, which has only 225,000 square miles and some 60,000 elephants to feed.

All about LATAs, long distance calling, and Michigan Bell discounts.

LATA is a telephone term that's new to all of us.

Explaining that LATA stands for Local Access Transport Area doesn't help much, but LATAs are really very simple. They're telephone service areas. There are five LATAs in which Michigan Bell provides telephone service.

LATAs and long distance calling.

If you look at the map, you will see the five Michigan LATAs, including the LATA you are in. Now here's how LATAs work: When you place a long distance call from one LATA to another telephone number within the same LATA, Michigan Bell can carry the call for you over its own network. When you place a call from one LATA to another LATA, either in Michigan or another state, it will be handled by the long distance company that provides that service to you (not Michigan Bell).

For example, if you call from Detroit to Flint (two cities within the same LATA), Michigan Bell will still be able to handle the call as in the past. But if you call from Detroit to Traverse City (from a city in one LATA to a city in a different LATA), a long distance company other than Michigan Bell will carry the call. As you may know, there are now a number of different companies you may choose from to provide your long distance service.

Your long distance bill(s).

When you receive your Michigan Bell telephone bill, you'll find a page that lists your long distance calls handled by Michigan Bell. You may also find another page that lists long distance calls handled by other companies. This is because Michigan Bell may provide billing services for other long distance companies. Or you may receive a separate long distance bill directly from the company you've selected to handle your long distance calls.

Long distance discount periods.

Michigan Bell continues to offer discounts on direct-dialed long distance calls within each of the five LATAs. We suggest you save the chart below as a reminder of the times when you save 30% to 50% off the Day Full Rate.

NOTE: When you begin a call during one rate period, your call will be charged at that rate; however, should that call pass into a different rate period, your charges will change to the rate of the new period. For example, a weekday call that begins 10 minutes before 5 p.m. and ends 10 minutes after 5 p.m. will be billed at the full rate for the first 10 minutes and will be billed at the 30% discount rate for the last 10 minutes.

Save up to 50% on direct-dialed long distance calls. Schedule for direct-dialed long distance calls within Michigan LATAs.

During the Night and Weekend Discount Periods, you pay 50% less than the Day Full Rate Charge for direct-dialed calls within each of the Michigan LATAs.

CLIP AND SAVE

More long distance discounts.

If you make a lot of direct-dialed long distance calls within 30 miles of your calling center and within your LATA, you may be interested in Circle Calling Service. By subscribing to this service, you get additional discount calling periods during which you can save 30% over the long distance rates in effect at the time of your call. The discount applies even when regular long distance discounts are in effect. No installer visit is necessary for Circle Calling.

We suggest you take a close look at the various Michigan Bell services available to you. At Michigan Bell, we're always ready to help in the selection of the service that's right for you.

Facts down the line. We suggest that you watch for further informational messages in your newspapers and in your monthly telephone bills. Because your telephone business office is busily engaged in normal day-to-day telephone service matters, we are providing this toll-free number as a source for answers to the questions you may have about your changing telephone company.

Interested persons should call BB-BS at 673-6996 in Caro and ask for Linda.

The Cass City women's softball team defeated Sandusky Dairy Queen 6-3 Monday, July 1. Winning pitcher Char Fahrner held DQ in check, giving up single runs in the third, fourth and sixth innings. The team's record now stands at 2-5.

Robbie Albee, Dan Dickinson and Michelle Jones from Trinity United Methodist Church are attending church camp this week in Sebewaing.

Dick McCollum copped the runner-up trophy last week at the Michigan State Trap Shooting grounds at Mason. He now goes to the world tournament in Ohio.

25 YEARS AGO

Lila Phipps, a teacher at Cass City Elementary School, attended the 97th annual convention of the National Elementary Association at St. Louis, Mo.

Judy Perry, who recently completed a two-year course at Michigan State University, spent the week end at her home here and had as week-end guests in

New books at the library

DEEP SIX by Clive Cussler (fiction). This novel concerns a Soviet plan to control the White House and to dominate the president's thoughts via a mind-control laboratory. It tells of the attempted drowning of the "good" vice-president so that the "evil" Speaker of the House might become president, a stock brokerage firm that launders the latter's money, a group of Oriental bad guys, and much more.

STRIKE TWO by Ron Luciano and David Fisher (non-fiction). Luciano is an ex-umpire, ex-pro footballer, ex-network sports announcer, and ex-store owner. Luciano's most endearing quality is his adamant refusal to take himself seriously. He has so much fun at his own expense, it is impossible to find fault when he skewers others. Strike Two incorporates tales heard from players, managers, and other umpires. The book is a series of anecdotes about umpiring, arguing with players, life on the road, arguing with managers, running a sporting goods store, and arguing with fans. Someday Luciano may run out of funny stories, but so far his supply seems inexhaustible.

CAVEAT: REALISM, REAGAN, AND FOREIGN POLICY by Alexander M. Haig (non-fiction). Haig's view of his 18 months as secretary of state is unflattering from two angles: First, as conscious criticism of the Reagan administration's—as opposed to Haig's—floundering foreign policy; second, and unintentionally, as a portrait of the author's personality and prickly ego. These are memoirs intended to settle old scores, as the author licks his own wounds and undercuts his enemies, many of whom happen to be President Reagan's most trusted advisers. Haig hones his self-defensive irritation into a high art and assesses other people's judgements with less than diplomatic charity.

Children's movies to be shown Thursday, July 5, are: "Dr. Seuss on the Loose," "Call it Courage," and "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

Your neighbor says

Our tax system is unequal and unfair

The current system of collecting taxes is unequal and unfair, according to Al Milligan of Cass City.

"Our system of deductions, allowances and exemptions I feel are unequal. I would be for a flat rate system--no deductions."

"I don't believe our tax system works the way our founding fathers intended it to."

For federal and state taxes, he advocates a system in which everyone, regardless of income level, would pay a fixed percentage of his or her earnings.

"If a man makes a million dollars and pays 10 percent, and I'm making a hundred dollars and I'm paying 10 percent, then we're paying equally (by percentage)."

"(Under the current system) the man making a million can pay for lawyers, accountants and shelters, but the man making a hundred can't," Milligan commented.

The middle class of the country is carrying more of the tax burden than it should be, Milligan feels, and "they should have a say about how their money is used. Everyone should pay their fair share. The low-income should pay just like the upper and middle incomes," which they would under the flat-rate system.

The loss to everyone under this system would be equal in terms of percentage. If a person made $5,000 and paid 10 percent or $500, and another $20,000, paying $2,000, both lose 10 percent of their income to the government, Milligan said.

Property taxes should be eliminated, he also feels.

"Say you have a farmer with $100,000 in property and maybe he'd make $30,000 a year."

"Now you take a man who has the same amount in municipal bonds, and he makes maybe three times as much and doesn't have to pay (property) taxes. But both still get to vote in the (millage) elections."

If property taxes are to continue, Milligan said he favors letting only property owners vote in millage elections.

Milligan, 38, works at Schneberger's. He and his wife Kathleen have three children.

Catholics split games in league

In Cass City Church Softball League action last week Tuesday, Trinity United Methodist defeated the Catholics, with Mike Stec the winning pitcher. Gary Robinson took the loss.

The Deford Blue team downed Colwood, with Dave Smith picking up the win.

Last Thursday, Rick Hollis was the winning pitcher as the Catholics defeated Shabbona.

Lamotte defeated Novesta. Vern Jacobs was the winning pitcher.

Kings fourth in tourney at Petoskey

Croft-Clara defeated Wendy's 9-2 and Nestor's Club 7-0 last Thursday night in the Flint Fastpitch League.

Jerry Toner hit the first pitch over the left field fence to set the tone for the night. Jeff Williamson and Doug Elbers also homered in the contest. Craig Helwig picked up the win with 12 strike outs and only two hits.

Ken Martin hit Nestor's to three hits in the 7-0 shut-out. Dean Elbers and Mike Rea each had two hits.

The Kings finished fourth in Petoskey last week end. Auburn Fertilizer put the team in the loser's bracket by defeating them 2-1 in the first game. The Kings came back and won three games in a row, defeating Jock Shop of Cadillac 7-0, Irish Pub 2-1 and Carey's Trucking of Bronson 7-3. In the Carey's win, the Kings scored six runs in the top of the seventh inning with two outs for an exciting finish. Novak's of Midland then put the Kings out of the tourney, 2-1.

The Kings were to have played a doubleheader exhibition against Mitchell Corp. of Corunna Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. in Cass City, as part of the 4th of July Festival.

Track removal waits on pact

A train could still come down the Grand Trunk tracks that run through Cass City, or maybe a bicycle or horse, but don't count on any of them.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's decision allowing the railroad to abandon service on the 50.24 miles of track between Kings Mill, north of Imlay City, and Pigeon, took effect Feb. 26. According to Michael H. Wiseman, the railroad's assistant director -- financial planning, abandonment hasn't officially taken place yet, so legally it could still provide service.

The next step after the ICC approved abandonment was for the Grand Trunk to ask the state if it wanted to buy the right-of-way. The Michigan Department of Transportation waived its right March 20 to purchase the right-of-way.

The holdup since then, according to Wiseman, has been negotiations between the MDOT and Grand Trunk over a $1.5 million grant the state gave the railroad in 1980, which was used to rehabilitate the nine miles between Imlay City and Kings Mill (not scheduled for abandonment). It was supposed to be part of a three-phase program to rehabilitate the entire line, but the state ran out of money after the first nine miles.

As a condition of the grant, the Grand Trunk had to agree to maintain service for at least five years, which was violated by the abandonment. The last train on the tracks ran Feb. 9 from Cass City to Pigeon.

Wiseman said Monday his understanding is a compromise has been orally agreed to between his employer and the state concerning the grant, the state claiming the Grand Trunk owed it money because of the premature abandonment.

Once the agreement is on paper and signed, the railroad must notify the tariff publishers of the abandonment -- that is, have the stations along the line removed from railroad schedules -- and the abandonment becomes official.

The railroad then hires a contractor to remove the rails and ties and pave the crossings. "It (the contractor) might get it (the tracks) up this fall, but I'm not sure," Wiseman said. The contractor handles disposal of the rails and ties.

The railroad then can offer the right-of-way to landowners along the line.

However, there is conceivably another use for the property. Lydia Wielenga, Tuscola County Economic Development Corp. director, said she and her counterparts in Lapeer and Huron Counties have thought the right-of-way might make a good recreational trail for bicyclists, horse riders, etc. It runs through the three counties.

They are just beginning to look into whether it is possible to purchase it.

American all-stars post easy win

The Cass City Boys' Minor League American League all-stars, last Wednesday beat the National League all-stars 15-2.

The American League all-stars consisted of players selected from the Tigers, Orioles and Yankees.

The National League all-stars consisted of players selected from the Giants, Pirates and Cubs.

Collecting hits for the American League were Ben Schott, Billy McPhail, and Delbert Mathewson.

Players with hits for the National League were Rusty Hrycko, Billy Sattler, Jeff Schember, Mark Kubacki and Alan Proowski.

The list of all-stars submitted to the Chronicle, published in the June 20 issue, contained some errors. The correct names are Greg Woodruff of the Orioles and Matt Spencer of the Yankees, plus Billy McPhail of the Tigers, who wasn't listed previously.

Walbro finishes work on parts operation

Walbro Corporation's Carburetor Group is putting the finishing touches on the first phase of its expanded and reorganized aftermarket parts operation, located in Cass City.

Beginning with the establishment of an Aftermarket Sales Department in its own 9,600 square foot facility, the reorganization involves the development of several new marketing and communications programs, the addition of personnel and the improvement of the distribution network for Walbro carburetors and parts in the small engine aftermarket.

"The expansion of our aftermarket parts activities represents more tangible evidence of Walbro's commitment to all aspects of the small engine industry," says Louis E. Horner, Vice-president, Carburetor Group, North America.

"The restructuring of our aftermarket activities is part of a well researched plan to provide better service to those who are part of our distribution chain, and, ultimately, to all users of equipment with Walbro carburetors," he adds.

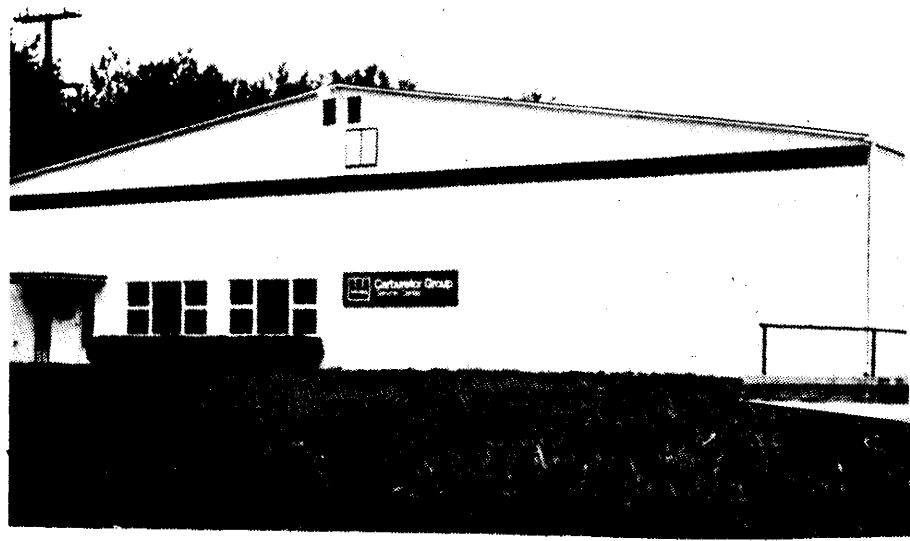

Heading up the Aftermarket activities is W. Frederick Bretzloff II, Sales Manager. Aftermarket. Bretzloff joined Walbro in May 1983. His first task was to evaluate existing repair kits, catalogs, literature and distribution methods.

"In our initial research, we identified several areas where we felt we could improve the system," Bretzloff says. "Based on that research, we have initiated programs to develop the tools needed to help those involved in the distribution of Walbro aftermarket products to maximize their effectiveness and profitability. We look on the people in our distribution chain as our partners, and we're trying to help them in as many ways as we can."

One of the early programs, begun in 1983, was to redesign and unify Walbro packaging and related materials in order to build better recognition of the Walbro name in the field. All-new packaging designs, catalogs, dealer communications literature, service bulletins and point-of-purchase materials were developed.

The changes have resulted in an increase in the department's employment from 15 to 22 persons.

Ridge going on world quality control tour

George D. Ridge, quality assurance manager for Walbro Corporation's Carburetor Group, has been selected as one of a dozen quality control experts embarking on a world-wide lecture tour in mid-June.

The month-long "International Quality Exchange Tour" is sponsored by the American Society for Quality Control. The purpose is to highlight the need for improved product quality throughout the world.

The first stop on the tour is England, to allow members of the delegation to attend the World Quality Congress held in the city of Brighton every three years. The delegation's itinerary also includes stops in Germany, Switzerland, Italy, India, Singapore, China and Japan.

At each location, members of the tour will make technical presentations on quality control topics, visit manufacturing facilities in the area and participate in technical meetings to exchange quality control information and techniques.

Ridge will present technical papers on "total quality control" and "quality cost basics and application."

Ridge is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He is a certified quality engineer and is active in the American Society of Quality Control.

Prior to joining Walbro, Ridge served as division director-quality assurance for the Prestolite Division of Allied Corp. He has also held a number of quality control management positions with General Electric Co.

Ridge and his wife Phyllis live on Milligan Road, Cass City.

Busy birds

During the spring, bluebirds are busy creatures, says National Wildlife magazine. They lay two or three broods a year, laying three to eight eggs per clutch. Once they hatch, usually on the same day, it's almost a continuous hunt for food, as their hungry youngsters require feeding about once every 20 minutes.

GEORGE RIDGE

But a heavily partisan debate broke out in the House chambers and the first amendment, allocating $8.5 million for the clean-up of contaminated wells, was defeated along party lines.

The second amendment, allocating $2 million for the removal of the tainted silos, was approved by the House.

However, following the adoption of the supplemental appropriations bill containing the cost of the clean-up, Speaker Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti) moved to send the bill back to the House Appropriations Committee until September.

A party line vote followed with Democrats agreeing to wait until fall to consider the $2 million clean-up proposal, Allen said. Nineteen contaminated silos have been identified in Huron County and one in Tuscola.

"Without these funds in place now, as promised by Governor Blanchard, we might lose our ability to match federal 'Superfund' dollars for all our environmental clean-up problems," Allen stated. "This three-month delay will prove costly to the state and its environment and to its residents."

Democrats, who control the Michigan House, voted down the $8.5 million, citing the Republicans' unwillingness last year to support a 38 percent income tax increase, according to the state representative.

14 to be in Huron Fair 'Agri-Land'

Last year at the Huron Community Fair a new exhibit was presented called "Agri-Land." Agri-Land consisted of a cooperative exhibit sponsored by 12 agriculture commodity organizations from the county.

Each commodity group had an exhibit and major promotion during the week.

This year, the exhibit will be expanded to include 14 groups. The groups represented will be Michigan Beet Growers, Thumb Sheep Breeders, Huron County Dairy Diplomats, Huron County Corn Growers, Thumb Cattlemen, Huron County Pork Producers, Huron County Bean Growers, Huron County Soil Conservation District, Huron County Extension Homemakers, Thumb Certified Seed Growers, Huron County 4-H, Huron County Strawberry Farms, Huron County Poultry Producers and Bay Port Fish Industry.

Each day two of the groups will be highlighted with major promotions. Door prizes, food samples, recipes and other information will be available.

In addition, demonstrations on wool spinning and weaving, butter and ice cream making and new uses of products will be held.

Movies and slides explaining the production and scope of Huron County agriculture will also be available.

Demonstrations on the proper farrowing techniques of sows will be presented by the Laker Future Farmers of America chapter.

There will be games and quizzes to test knowledge of Huron County commodities.

In addition, a petting zoo will be added. The Huron County Pork Producers will have a sow and litter on display. Fairgoers can guess the weight of the sow and her litter.

All these activities will take place in the new Livestock Arena and meeting room located in the southeast corner of the fairgrounds.

Huron County is the number-one agriculture county in Michigan with over 409,000 tillable acres.

Same candidates file for primary

No new candidates have filed in the 77th and 78th districts in the wake of a state Supreme Court ruling against the 1983 legislative redistricting program.

In the 77th, covering all of Huron and most of Tuscola Counties, Democrat Duane Harder of Sebewaing is challenging incumbent Dick Allen, R-Fair-grove.

State Rep. Keith Muxlow, R-Brown City, is running unopposed in the 78th, comprising all of Sanilac and part of St. Clair County.

The court ruled June 19 that the legislative reapportionment plan is unconstitutional. This means that nine Sanilac townships that had been in the 77th district are back in the 78th, where they were in the 1982 elections.

The nine townships are Greenleaf, Argyle, Austin, Minden, Wheatland, Delaware, Marion, Forester and Evergreen.

The original filing deadline for the Aug. 7 primary was June 5, but was changed to last Wednesday after the ruling.

SANITARY SEWER projects in Gagetown and Owendale are well underway. The digging shown above is on South Street in Gagetown; at right, in the alley behind Main Street in Owendale. If all goes well, installation of the sewer lines and excavation of the sewage lagoons should be done by late fall, with connection of buildings to the sewer lines to begin next spring. The Gagetown project is costing $1.8 million; Owendale, $1.935 million.

take place regardless of whether the millage passes.

It will be a couple of weeks before it is known which teachers will get pink slipped, the superintendent said, because that depends on which subjects are eliminated, who is certified to teach what and seniority.

Should the additional four mills be defeated, another $180,000-190,000 could have to be cut from the budget. To do that, Laycock said, would require elimination of busing and the energy conservation program, plus layoff of maintenance and custodial personnel.

Taking stock

Dear Boss:

After leaving Paris, at the request of the credit department of the Hotel Maurice, we headed for Cairo and took a jaunt around the Mediterranean on the good ship Lindblad Explorer, visiting some 10 countries, finally getting to Lisbon.

There I received word from your hatchet-man and tyrant of the newsroom, Managing Editor John Barry, that my expense allowance of $10 a week had been cut in half due to hard times in America.

That is another way of saying I had been recalled. He suggested the new allowance might go further in the woods of northern Michigan.

"Git up there and live off'n the country," he growled at me on the overseas phone.

Ol' Barry didn't know how nice he was in banishing me to Beulah. If you don't have a map in the place, which is quite likely, hold up your left hand, palm away from you. This is what Michigan looks like. Where your little finger tip is, is where Beulah is, and that's where I am.

We are sitting pretty, on the shores of lovely, and aptly named, Crystal Lake — 9,711 acres of sparkling turquoise water.

In front, on a boat hoist, is a dandy day-sailer, a 5.2 meter Harpoon class. There's always a breeze.

Surrounding the lake are three golf courses. One of them, Crystal Downs, has been called the prettiest in Michigan. My own favorite is the venerable links of the Frankfort Golf Club, nestled in lush hardwood forests with a road nor smokestack nor even a dwelling in sight on the whole course. Tuck and Becky Tate have run the place for years. Come October they head for their winter quarters at Sarasota.

If you or readers of the News should perchance get to northeast Michigan, please check out these courses and see for yourself why I am so ecstatic.

Up the road 20 minutes is the famed National Music Camp at Interlochen.

Among musical greats there this season have been Warsaw Philharmonic; Andre-Michel Strub, pianist; Benny Goodman; Fred Waring, and Rostropovich, cellist.

Here in a lovely setting of forest and lakes we listen to the concerts in downtown comfort, thanks to Michigan philanthropists who donated the auditorium.

Ol' what's-his-name thought he was sending me to Siberia. Hah! We arrived here at the height of the strawberry season and man, there ain't hardly nothin' better'n Michigan berries.

What this state lacks in winter climate it makes up for, come berry harvest time.

As strawberries phased out, in came the famous dark sweet cherries of northwest Michigan. They're as big as strawberries; the fellow who says they're not luscious will have to fight me. The crop is huge this year and the price is only 69 cents a quart.

In a few days, red raspberries will be along. Local farmers bring them in, so they're picked ripe and arrive unquashed.

Blueberries, too, compete for the titillation on your taste buds. I tell you it's like heaven.

Before long, peaches will be ripe. (Elbertas were named after a neighboring town.) The apples and pears and plums. And sweet cider, that glorious by-product that puts the shame to champagne.

My cousin, Dr. Dick Graham of Traverse City, has his own byproduct from Damson plums. He puts together a quart of sugar and a quart of vodka, and lets the mixture sit for a few months in a jar. He then decants a beautiful plum-colored liquor to welcome in the New Year.

If all this intrigues you, and you might want to visit the area, write the Benzie County Chamber of Commerce at Benzonia, Mich. 49616. (Benzonia and Beulah are neighbors. Brude Catton in his book, "Waiting for the Morning Train," extolled the charms of this childhood home of his.

Census shows fewer farms

Michigan farms declined in numbers and increased in size between 1978 and 1982, according to the U.S. Bureau of Census.

Preliminary reports for the 1982 Census of Agriculture show 58,664 farms, compared with 60,426 in 1978. Land in farms totaled 10.9 million acres, an average per farm of 187 acres, compared with 183 in 1978. Total sales of agricultural products amounted to $2.6 billion in 1982.

The average value of land and buildings per farm was $228,227, with a per acre value of $1,223.

Land from which crops were harvested increased to 7.3 million acres, a change of 7 percent, with acres irrigated reported at 285,997.

The Census Bureau defines a farm as any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were, or normally would have been, sold in the census year.

The preliminary data indicate expenditures by Michigan farmers in 1982 for livestock and poultry feed were $255.0 million; total costs for farm energy, $228.6 million; for fertilizer, $242.1 million and hired labor, $186.3 million.

Sales of livestock, poultry, and their products were $1.2 billion, 47% of total agricultural sales. Dairy products amounting to $612.8 million were sold from 7,588 farms. The number of milk cows was up from 377,999 in the previous census to 398,061 in 1982.

The total cattle and calves inventory of 1.3 million head on 25,657 farms was up from 1.2 million in 1978.

An inventory of 1.1 million hogs and pigs was reported on 7,433 farms.

Some 2,402 farms reported 115,776 head of sheep and lambs. Sales of poultry and their products were $101.4 million. Some 5,786 farms reported an inventory of 7.6 million chickens three months old or older.

The sale of crops amounted to $1.4 billion. By harvested acreage, among the leading crops were corn, with 256.5 million bushels from 2.6 million acres; soybeans, 34.3 million bushels from 1.1 million acres; and wheat, 20.8 million bushels from 513,279 acres. Other field crops were dry edible beans, 502,275 acres; oats, 398,448 acres, and corn for silage or green chop, 391,129 acres.

Agriculture census data for Michigan also revealed: -- Of the total farms in the state, 6,623 had gross sales of $100,000 or more; 30,208 reported sales of less than $10,000.

-- The average age of farm operators was 49.5 years; 9,504 were under 35 and 22,457 were 55 or older.

-- Women operated 2,467 farms.

-- Fifty-one percent of the operators reported farming as their principal occupation. Forty-nine percent of all operators worked 100 days or more off the farm.

-- Eighty-nine percent of the farms were operated by individuals or families as sole proprietorships; 5,495 by partnerships, and 947 by corporations, of which 90 percent were family held.

-- Ninety-four percent of the farmers owned all or part of the farms they operated. 35,493 were fully owned, 19,522 partly owned, and 3,649 were operated by tenants.

Mercury is the only metal that is liquid at room temperature.

Shaft's exposure to computers started with his electronic technician training in the Navy and six years as a maintenance and repairman for Sperry Univac, the computer division of Sperry Rand Corp.

He chose his microcomputer because Brookside was using the same model, and he saw it as versatile and expandable to other uses.

He also uses his computer for the accounting end of his consulting business.

Next week: A look at use of computers in homes.

Computer use spreads in area

Schneeberger's.

ROY SHAFT OF 4553 Leach Street has combined computers with agriculture for three years in his work dealing with feed nutrition.

Shaft, 42, takes feed samples from dairy farmers and sends them to Brookside Laboratories in New Knoxville, Ohio, for a nutrition analysis.

"I have to determine how the feed has to be fed," he says, "maybe 20 pounds of hay-age, 20 pounds of corn silage, 10 pounds of shell corn and five pounds of hay," he explained.

"The ratios are going to be different on each farm because you have your high-producing cows and your low-producing cows. The benefit of a balanced ration is so you don't overfeed one group of cows or underfeed another group of cows."

Shaft gets an itemized list of the 15 vitamins and nutrients required by the cows, and then uses his computer to add the figures up.

The result is compared to standardized numbers of vitamins and nutrients established by Brookside and the National Research Council, which has done research in animal nutrition.

If a farmer's feed is deficient, Shaft can order a custom-blended supplement.

He said that when he calculated the nutrient levels by hand, it took three hours, but the computer does it in a half hour.

Shaft also has done soil testing. "Testing the soil for all nutrients important to the plant -- calcium, manganese, potassium and sodium and trace minerals. If it isn't the soil, the way we look at it, that's one limiting factor in the way of a high yield," he explained.

SINCE MID-FEBRUARY, Shaft has taught courses at the Small Workshop Introduction to Microcomputers (SWIM) in Saginaw, a program sponsored by General Motors and Local 668 of the United Auto Workers. That and the feed consulting caused him to stop doing soil testing.

SWIM is for both laid-off and employed auto workers, offering retraining courses in microcomputers, and starting soon, robotics.

"There's a lot of unemployed people that should be aware of micros because they're not going to go away. Microcomputers are in every aspect of your life and it's important to know (about them)," Shaft stressed.

Another thing Shaft emphasizes to his students is if they're going to buy a micro, computer efficiency is important.

"That's the way it should be," he said. "Any business should know what their
