$20,000 combine lost in fire

Fire destroyed a combine Monday afternoon in Elklinton Township.

Owner Jack W. Kappen of 2546 Keillitz Road, Cass City, estimated the 11-year-old combine might have been worth $20,000.

The fire started in the engine compartment, but the cause was undetermined.

The combine was being driven by Kappen's son, Warren, 19, who was harvesting a wheat field along Dodge Road, 4½ miles south of M-81, owned by George Cooklin. With him in the cab was Cooklin's son, Steve, 15.

Warren told the Chronicle the engine temperature gauge showed the engine was getting hot. When the needle reached the red zone, he checked the engine and discovered it was on fire.

He emptied a fire extinguisher on it but the flames

Choices are many in Sanilac primary election Tuesday

Sanilac County voters, provided they vote in the Republican primary, will have lots of choices to make when they go to the polls Tuesday.

Six candidates are running for sheriff, two for prosecutor, two for register of deeds and two for drain commissioner. The only countywide office holders without opposition are Clerk Delene Schultheiss and Treasurer Ken Rhead.

Everyone running is a Republican, so the primary winners will coast through the Nov. 6 general election.

Sheriff Ross Dundas, who has held the office since 1965, was considering retirement, which was an incentive for five others to run. After they announced their candidacy, Dundas decided to try for another term.

A World War II Navy veteran, he began his law enforcement career in 1947 as undersheriff. A year later he was appointed as Crosswell police chief.

In 1954 he returned to the undersheriff post and served there until his election as sheriff. Dundas is a member of the National and the Michigan Sheriffs' Associations and is a past president of the state group.

The other sheriff candidates are:

Patrick Patten, 57, Sandusky, a sheriff's deputy. Patten has 31 years of police experience, serving as the Deckerville police chief and a member of the Crosswell police department. He became a Sanilac deputy in 1975.

Patten graduated from the Oakland Police Academy. He has attended the FBI School and Michigan State University law enforcement seminars and has more than 400 hours of law enforcement courses.

Jim Merriman, 35, Deckerville, 73rd District Court probation officer, until resigning in May, held the job seven years and worked closely with all Sanilac law enforcement agencies. He originated the Work Alternative Program, which uses jail inmates for labor and saves the county money.

Merriman has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from MSU.

John G. Osborn, Sandusky, a deputy, has been working for the sheriff's department for nine years and received two meritorious service citations.

Osborn has an associate degree in law enforcement from St. Clair County Community College (SCCC) and is working on a bachelor's degree in criminal law at Saginaw Valley State College. He is president of the Sanilac County Law Enforcement Association and vice-president of the Deputy Sheriffs' Association of Michigan.

Sgt. David L. Hall, Crosswell. He has been with the sheriff's department since 1975 and a sergeant for more than four years.

Nix McCreedy property transfer

By a 9-0 vote Monday evening, the boards of education of the Huron and Tuscola Intermediate School Districts (ISD) denied a requested property transfer from the Owendale-Gagetown to the Cass City School district.

Requesting the transfer of 9.911 acres were James and Diane McCreedy of 3655 Dale Road, Gagetown. Valuation of the property for 1983 was $17,600. They have two children, a 5-year-old who will be starting kindergarten in the fall, and a 3-year-old.

Dale Road, which is in Elmwood Township, is the dividing line between the two districts. Both districts' school buses go down the road.

McCreedy told the two boards he graduated from Cass City High School, he wanted his children to go there and most of the children in the neighborhood go there.

The McCreedys also said when they bought the property several years ago, the real estate agent told them it was in the Cass City district.

Owen-Gage School Board President Ronald Good commented that property owners wanting to transfer out of his district often used the excuse they didn't know it was in Owen-Gage when they bought it. "It seems like they should know where they're buying and what they're buying before they purchase."

Owen-Gage High School Principal Wayne Wright also spoke in opposition.

No representative of the Cass City district attended the joint meeting of the two boards of education, held in the Regional Educational Media Center in Cass City.

The two boards had to vote on the transfer request because Owen-Gage is in the Huron ISD and Cass City is in the Tuscola ISD.

The reasons for denying the transfer, as stated in the motion, were lack of an immediate reason for it and the McCreedy's property is closer to the elementary school in Gagetown than it is to the one in Cass City.

The McCreedys have 10 days to appeal the denial to the state Board of Education. Asked by the Chronicle after the vote whether they will do so, McCreedy said he and his wife had yet to decide, but an appeal was "quite likely."

Just before then, he had said to Good and Wright, "If we have to move to Cass City, we will."

Rails to trails?

Where railroad trains once rumbled, bicycles and horses may some day travel.

The possibility of converting the abandoned Grand Trunk right-of-way between Imlay City and Caseville, which runs through Kingston, Cass City, Gagetown and Owendale, into a recreation trail was discussed at a meeting at a Caro restaurant Friday attended by representatives of Lapeer, Tuscola and Huron Counties.

Other than a few phone calls and some rudimentary research, it isn't known yet whether the right-of-way will be available for purchase or whether funds will be available.

The aim of the meeting, organized by the economic development directors of the three counties, was to determine if there is interest in pursuing the idea.

Such a trail would be about 60 miles long. The aim, in addition to providing recreation, would be to attract tourists to the area. "It would be one more component in our incoming dollar," commented Ralph Iden, Huron County Economic Development Corp. director.

Much of the talk was about how farmers would react to having bicyclists and possibly horse riders travel on such a trail past or through their property.

JOHN COIL, Planner for the Genesee-Lapeer-Shiawassee Planning and Development Region, said evidence gathered so far concerning such bicycle trails in Wisconsin suggests that fears about trash, rowdiness, etc., by trail users is unfounded. "So far, everything is positive."

He is gathering more such information. He pre-

Alley stays open

Burning leaves puts council in dilemma

Cass City Village Council members are edging their way toward a policy on future trash disposal in the village, which presumably will include a closing of the landfill.

Tuesday, they heard from a citizen who objected to a talked-about ban on burning, especially if it includes leaves.

Public services committee members Elwyn Helwig and Larry Davis updated council members on what has taken place since the last council session concerning closing of the landfill and preparation of an ordinance regarding trash disposal.

They didn't think a proposed ordinance will be ready for presentation at the Aug. 28 council meeting. With the landfill facing a deadline of Sept. 1 from the state Department of Natural Resources for closing or upgrading, Helwig said, "I think what we're going to ask for is to go to the end of the year (to keep the landfill open)."

It was mentioned at the council's June meeting that the ordinance will probably include a ban on burning, which was of concern to Mike Kosal of 6764 Main Street.

He first suggested that instead of charging a flat rate for garbage pickup, special garbage bags be sold at a high enough cost to pay for pickup.

That would be the fairest system, he suggested, since those with more trash would pay more.

He then turned his attention to leaves, stating he has a lot of trees, plus a lot of leaves from neighbors' trees end up on his lawn. "I end up with 2½ tons of leaves each fall," he said. "To bag that quantity of leaves is unconceivable."

Davis said villages which have banned burning are being contacted to determine how they handle leaves each fall.

Kosal then said he favored allowing continued use of burning barrels.

He was told, however, that state law, though not enforced in residential areas, bans such burning. Helwig commented that Cass City is the only village in the area that still allows it. He added that given a choice between burning and having trash sitting around waiting for pickup, he would rather burn it.

Council member Mike Weaver summarized the situation: "We're all between a rock and a hard place."

ALLEY

A public hearing was conducted on proposed abandonment of the alley running east from Ale Street behind the Parkway store. Max A. Connell voiced his objections and he and two other property owners, William Sattelberg and Robert MacArthur, had signed a letter in opposition.

Abandonment was proposed, village President Ray Armstead said, because the village hasn't maintained the alley for years and it doesn't serve the public, since it is a dead end alley.

The property owners said they use the alley. At the end of the hearing, Parkway owner Richard Turner said he didn't care one way or the other if the alley was abandoned.

With no one in favor, the council voted to keep the alley open.

CULTURAL CENTER

Weaver reported on results of a recent inspection with several other persons of the Cultural Center. With the second floor sagging, it likely will be closed to the public.

The basic structure is considered sound, but the back wall is deteriorating and the second floor fire escape is in poor condition.

A state fire marshal will inspect the building for structural soundness and safety.

Elkland Township owns the building and the village is responsible for maintaining it.

WALBRO

No representatives of taxing units appeared that would be affected by a property tax break given to Walbro Corp. on its new Caribretor Group building at the scheduled hearing.

The council then approved the 50 percent tax break for 12 years. Without it, Walbro would be paying $5,100 additional taxes on the addition to what had been its engineering building.

The benefit will save it $2,550 annually. The village will still receive $2,550 more in taxes, it was pointed out, than if Walbro hadn't built the building.

State law permits such benefits to spur development and new jobs.

OTHER ITEMS

A contract was approved with the state Department of Transportation, which will pay $36,000 to resurface the four lane portion of N. Seeger Street, to be used as a detour next year when the M-53 bridge over the north branch of the Cass River is rebuilt.

The DOT will also pay for paving of two lanes of the section of N. Seeger now being reconstructed from two to four lanes, but that isn't in writing yet.

The rebuilt portion is supposed to be done by Aug. 15. Repaving of the present four lanes, being done by a different contractor, will be done some time this year.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census, which had sought to reduce Cass City's population from the 1980 figure of 2,257, has granted the village's appeal — sort of. Based on water bills and other information, the village claimed Cass City now has 2,276 residents. The Census bureau's official figure will be 2,266.

Andrew Barnes Jr. Construction was granted a one month extension on the Sherman Street lift station and sewer extension project because of the delay in receipt of the electrical control panel.

Council members were favorable to a proposal suggested by Gerald and Geraldine Prieskorn to convert the vacant land along Main Street between Sherman and Ale Streets into a park with flowers, shrubs and benches, but no picnic tables.

The owner, Chemical Bank, would lease the property to the village. The village would maintain it, but the bank would still pay taxes on it. The lease would be voided if the bank sells the property.

$10,000 in lottery

Lucky dime reveals big winner

Jackie Heronemus has a dime that she's going to keep an eye on, because that 10 cents helped her hit the jackpot.

Mrs. Heronemus, of 6950 Pringle Road, won $10,000 July 21 in the "7-11-21" game of the Michigan State Lottery. She bought the ticket at the Quaker Maid Store on Main Street, where she had gone to buy soft drinks.

"The funny part of it is, I never usually buy the tickets. I've maybe bought 10 tickets during the whole time there's been a lottery," she said.

She saw lottery tickets on the counter and "bought it on a whim." She gave the ticket and a coin to her son Mike, 11.

"He scraped it with a Canadian dime which I (now) consider a lucky dime," she recalled.

Mike recalled his mother and his sister Kimberly, 23, started screaming when the money amount appeared. "I couldn't see how much money they had. They kept pulling it back and forth (to look at it)."

The object of the lottery game is to get three numbers that add up to seven, 11 or 21. The game player then scrapes away another section on the card to see if he or she won any money.

Last Thursday Mrs. Heronemus gave the dime to her daughter. "I brought my daughter up and I told her to kiss the lucky dime and scrape the ticket (she bought), and she won $100. So, every time I have a whim I'm buying a ticket," she said.

This is the second time Lady Luck visited the General Cable employee when she was laid off. While she wasn't working in May, Mrs. Heronemus won $473 in the employees' pool that had been running for six months. She was laid off at the time her lottery ticket won.

The prize money will come in about a month, after the Lansing lottery office verifies the ticket. Mrs. Heronemus said she does not know what she will do with the money and is considering investing it.

Now back at work, Mrs. Heronemus stressed that she will be playing the lottery more often. "I told my husband, 'I bet you $1 of this (prize) money will go to buy another ticket.'"

BIG WINNER — Jackie Heronemus, winner of $10,000 in the state lottery, with her son Mike, 11, who scraped the winning ticket with a "lucky" Canadian dime (left).

"If It Fitz . . ."

Is a VCR really a must?

By Jim Fitzgerald

The pressure is building. I feel it more and more as each day passes. Maybe someday I will cave in. But I plan to continue resisting as long as I have the support of the woman I love.

To give you an idea of the intense pressure: Just during the last 10 days, in three separate incidents, an entertainer, a film producer and a TV newsman turned the screws. They made me feel like a covered wagon on an eight-lane freeway. The entertainer wanted me to see his new act, so he handed me a videocassette to take home. The producer asked me to review his latest film, and offered to mail me a videocassette. And the TV newsman said if I missed one of his shows live on Channel 4, he'd give me a videocassette of it so I could watch it anytime at home.

But there is no way for me to play videocassettes in my home. I don't own a videocassette recorder. I don't want to watch movies at home anymore than I want to read books in a theater. VCRs are the most insidious invention since soft couches and take-out-in-a-pail beer.

People keep telling me the big attraction of the VCR is not that you can watch rented, purchased or borrowed movies on it in your very own living room. The really marvelous thing, they say, is that the VCR allows you to never miss a TV program you really want to see. You can tape a TV show while you're asleep, or at work, or even while you're watching another TV show, and then watch the tape later, at your leisure, over and over and over again.

My problem is I can't think of a TV program I would mind missing. Not one. The TV set is often on in my home, and I regularly look up from my newspaper to watch a Vic Tanny commercial or the replay of a base hit. But there is nothing on television that, once gone from my view, I would pay one cent to bring back.

I don't mean to be critical of anyone who is disappointed to miss an episode of "The A-Team" or "The Dukes of Hazzard." To each his own. It only proves that some people are capable of feeling disappointment when their dentist can't find a reason to drill.

A few years ago, I felt deprived whenever I couldn't watch CBS-TV at 7 p.m. Sunday. But now even "60 Minutes" has become so predictable I can't tell the fresh segments from reruns of segments I've seen before. Most of today's TV programming is more irritating than entertaining. Using a VCR to capture it for later viewing is similar to taping an itch for later scratching.

As for movies made for theaters, it isn't just that I want to see them on the big screen. I realize home TV screens are getting bigger just as fast as the multiple screens in shopping mall theaters are getting smaller. But I want to take my date out to a movie and then to dinner and a piano bar. I want to get out of the house and see real live people.

So, when people offer me videocassettes to watch at home, I must admit I don't own a VCR. It's embarrassing. They look at me as if I'd admitted there is no refrigerator in my home, and to keep food cold my underprivileged neglected wife must store it outside on the windowsill.

But I don't care. I enjoy my stuffed leather chair, but I also enjoy taking my favorite date out for a good time. She likes it, too. I hope I don't own a VCR until she decides she's rather stay home and watch tapes of Vic Tanny commercials.

A Nov. 10 wedding is planned.

Bees and other insects seem to prefer blue and violet flowers to red ones, says International Wildlife magazine, probably because the insects do not see the color red as well.

Sharry Jones, Bad Axe, and Thomas Nesbit, Sandusky, were married in an afternoon, double-ring ceremony July 7 at the First United Methodist Church, Sandusky, by Rev. Fred Timm.

The bride is the daughter of William and Nancy Jones, Decker. The groom is the son of Mary Ellen Nesbit, Sandusky, and the late William Nesbit.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a colonial-style gown of Chantilly lace and cotton blends, sequenced with lace and pearls and trimmed at the waist with a satin sash. The floor-length veil was scalloped with lace and trimmed in pearls.

She carried a bouquet of white roses, daisies, pastel forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Carolann Overbeck, Scotts, friend of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a white lace-trimmed blouse with pearls and a formal-length, pale yellow skirt, trimmed at the waist and neck with yellow satin ribbons. She carried a colonial style bouquet of white mums, daisies, yellow roses and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Beverly Cheek, Sandusky, and Susan Nesbit, Charleston, S.C., both sisters of the groom.

The bridesmaids' gowns and bouquets were identical to the matron of honor's, but in pale green and blue. The flower girl was Sara Wagner, Bad Axe, friend of the bride. She wore a pink dress trimmed at the neck, sleeves and bodice with white lace. She carried a basket of pink roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Ken Jennings, Crosswell, friend of the groom, was best man.

Groomsmen were Roger Nesbit, Sandusky, brother of the groom, and Mike Jones, Decker, brother of the bride.

The ring bearer was Aaron Overbeck, Scotts, friend of the bride.

The ushers were Steve Steeley, Decker, friend of the bride, and Dave Jansen, Sandusky, cousin of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a formal-length dress of candy pink and a corsage of pale pink roses. The groom's mother wore a formal-length dress of orchid and a corsage of orchid roses.

The wedding programs were handed out by Lois Nesbit, Sandusky, sister of the groom, and Sharon Kay Jones, Decker, sister of the bride. Hostess for the ceremony was Lyn Elliot, Bad Axe, friend of the couple.

Music selections included "Sunrise, Sunset," "This is the Day," and "The Wedding Song." Guitarist and soloist was Michael Rines, Mount Pleasant. Organist was Janet Severance, Decker.

A reception was conducted for 250 guests at St. Joseph's Hall in Argyle. Guests attended from Canada, Arizona, South Carolina, Ohio and surrounding parts of Michigan.

After a honeymoon trip to the Upper Peninsula and Canada, the couple is living in Bad Axe.

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Wheat harvesting sometimes doesn't take long these days. Especially if you have cooperative neighbors. Al Merchant got a little behind this season but caught up in a hurry one day last week.

That's when five giant combines went to work on 200 acres and finished them off in one day. The machines were cutting a 96-foot swath going around the field.

Oh, hum, just another hole in one. That's what veteran observers at Rolling Hills Golf Course are saying these days. And why not?

After all there were three, count 'em, three, holes in one registered on the fifth hole last week.

One was by Michelle Zdrojewski, the second woman to score on the course. My spies tell me that Michelle hit the ball short of the sand trap and it bounced over onto the green and . . . plopp!

One was registered by George Diem, senior citizen from Minden City, and the other by Lynn Bryfin of Rochester.

Automation has taken over at General Telephone in Cass City, but they have not yet succeeded in eliminating the human element.

That was revealed the other day when ringing a long distance number. Surprise! A man came on the phone (that's unusual, too) and asked for my number.

Hub? What's your number, he repeated, just like in the old days before automation.

After dutifully giving the required information the call was placed through.

A little bit of sleuthing around revealed that operators ask for numbers when the new machinery goes temporarily kaput.

When the Croft-Clara Kings softball team travels to Allentown, Pa., next week end for a possible 10-day stay in an effort to capture the International Softball Congress national championship it promises to be expensive.

Costs are estimated to run as high as $3,000 and the team is receiving donations to defray expenses.

The response has been good so far, says Manager Jack Hillaker.

Anyone wanting to help out can send a check to Hillaker at 4454 Maple Street.

All the talk about taking the nationalism out of the Olympic games is just that. Talk.

Nationalism is the very guts of the Olympics. You can see it on the faces of the gold medal winners when the national anthems are played.

You can't take the nationalism out of the Olympics but you can make it fair for all the competitors.

Witness the men's bicycle races. It was won by an American with the help of the partisan crowd.

As Alexi Grewal was pedaling down the home stretch, supporters on the sidelines were dousing him with water to keep him fresh. His Canadian competitor received no such help.

The ABC commentator called it "the home court advantage." That's hogwash. It's really an UN-FAIR home court advantage.

The Olympics are supposed to be competition between the finest athletes in the world.

It may well be that Grewal would have won the race without any outside help. We'll never know.

It may well be that the refreshing water baths from the spectators were the difference between winning and losing.

After racing just short of 120 miles the winner was decided by less than a length of a bicycle. Americans aren't the only ones guilty of letting national pride get in the way of creating fair competition.

The American basketball team's only Olympic gold medal loss was the result of a shafting by the officials with the time clock.

There's plenty of unfairness in all the subjective judging by officials. Eastern countries traditionally favor their representatives and western bloc countries do the same.

That doesn't imply that the judges are crooked. It's a matter of personal prejudices coloring decisions. There's no getting around that and I suppose it evens out with judges with prejudices cancelling each other.

That's different than the help Grewal received. Stuff like that should be stopped. It detracts from his nerve wrenching win and leaves the United States open to justified criticism.

Let these superb athletes go head to head with the best man or woman taking home the gold.

Americans will do all right without any unfair advantages and the games will be better for it.

Wow! Kings capture state crown

Croft-Clara team prep for once in lifetime trip

It's on to Allentown, Pa., for the state champion Croft-Clara Kings as 14 young men from Cass City and the Thumb prepare for a once in a lifetime experience.

to all teams without restrictions. In other words the Kings faced the best there is and came away the undefeated tournament champions.

Only once before in Cass City's long history of softball excellence has a team won state honors. That was the fine Erla team that won honors in Class C.

It takes a couple of things to win a championship like this one. Jeff Hartel, the Kings' catcher, said before the tournament started that his team was capable of beating any of the squads in the competition or could lose to many of them.

This year's championship squad more than equalled that fine Erla's team record. It competes in Class AA which is open all of them and been beaten by some of them.

The stronger teams in the double elimination tournament we faced previously, Hartel added. We've beaten

Last week end it was the Kings' time to be the winner. The odds against team repeating are long and that's why the trip to the International Softball Congress at Allentown figures to be a once in a lifetime affair and that's why every man on the team has made arrangements to go to Pennsylvania and stay as long as they survive in the competition.

The tournament starts Aug. 10 and runs through Aug. 18. It will be mostly a home town team that faces teams from as many as 40 states with a total enrollment of perhaps 45 teams.

Seven of the players are from Cass City and most have played together for several years. The Cass City representatives are Manager Jack Hillaker, Hartel, Craig Helwig, Mike Murphy, Jerry Toner, Ker Martin and Wally Hempton.

The Kings have the option of picking up as many players as they want from other teams. However, it's likely that the players that got them to Allentown will be the ones that will play, with the possible exception of adding a pitcher. Another pitcher may be needed because of the many games played.

THE GAMES

An early 1-0 lead turned out to be all that was needed in the championship game for the Croft-Clara Kings against Planners of Benton Harbor in the International Softball Congress state tournament Sunday in Saginaw.

And early it was as Mike Martin hit the first pitch of the game over the right field fence. Martin later doubled and came home on a single by Al Poellet to extend the lead to 2-0. Planners threatened in the bottom of the seventh with runners on first and third with two outs, but Craig Helwig got the last out on a called third strike for the 2-0 win.

Helwig was brilliant throughout the tournament, pitching all five games, giving up only two runs in 36 innings with 34 strikeouts. The victory was a great team effort as each player had a part either with a solid defensive play or with a hit when it was needed.

Auburn Fertilizer went down 2-0 Friday night. Al Poellet homered in the first inning and Doug Elbers scored in the sixth on a RBI single by Ken Martin.

It took eight innings against Planners Saturday morning, but the Kings broke through the scoreline when Dave Elbers and Mike Murphy singled and Jeff Hartel laid down a perfect bunt which the Benton Harbor team didn't even make a play on. With the infield pulled in, Mike Martin hit a sharp grounder to second which got under the second baseman's glove and into right center scoring Dave Elbers from third for the 1-0 win.

E.T.V. of Grand Rapids was then defeated 1-0 when Mike Rea received a base on balls and Wally Hempton sent a liner to the fence in left center, scoring Rea from first.

Sunday morning in the meeting of the undefeated teams, Saginaw's Terry's Mex-Tex jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Craig Helwig hit two batters, gave up a single and threw a wild pitch. The Kings got out of the inning with just a 2-0 deficit and came back to tie it in the fourth on a triple by Poellet, who scored when the throw to the bag got by the third baseman. Doug Elbers then followed with a homer. In the seventh, Dave Elbers walked and then scored on a double by Mike Martin. Martin later scored for the 4-2 victory and the undefeated spot in the championship game.

The Kings split their league doubleheader last Thursday night. AUL was defeated 5-2 and Nite Cap defeated the Kings 3-2 in nine innings. This Thursday will finish league play with games against American Collision and Snitko.

Charmont drops overtime game in San-Cass League

Last Wednesday in Sandusky, Charmont lost to McGraw Edison, 2-1, in eight innings. Charmont had one run on four hits and three errors while McGraw had two runs on three hits and no errors. Jack Groombridge was the losing pitcher and M. Navarro picked up the win. The Cass City team's hits were collected by Dave Doerr, Darryl Hoag, Jim Spencer and Larry Summers.

Monday, Charmont met McMahan Auto Supply of Cass City and defeated them 4-3.

McMahan scored one run in the first, third and fifth innings. Charmont scored one run in the first and was held off until the bottom of the seventh, when it scored three runs to win. Doug Powers was the winning pitcher in relief and Mike King the losing pitcher.

McMahan's hitters were Ed Stoutenburg, Todd Alexander and Tim Babich. Charmont's hits were collected by Darryl Hoag, Tom Kelly and Jack Groombridge.

Charmont and McMahan both have two losses in the second half of the San-Cass League season and will play off Monday at 7:30 in Cass City. Thumb National Bank-Little Caesars will also be tied for the second half if they defeat McGraw Edison this Wednesday.

Charmont is 11-3 for the year, 3-2 in the second half.

Karr second in national race

Caro BMX Club member Brian Karr finished second of about 32 competitors in the 11-year-old novice class at the "War of the Stars" National Bicycle League national race last week end at Waterford Oaks Park near Pontiac.

The many classes attracted approximately 1,300 competitors from all over the United States.

Brian is in his first year of race. He is the son of Ray and Barbara Karr of Caro.

The BMX Club will host a state qualifying race starting at noon Saturday at the track south of Caro. One of four qualifying races, those qualifying will race in the state championships later this summer.

Set workshop for bowlers

The Michigan Women's Bowling Association (MWBA) will conduct a meeting and workshop starting at 7 p.m. Monday at the Franklin Inn, Bad Axe.

The workshop, sponsored by the Thumb Area Women's Bowling Association, will instruct bowlers on rules and regulations and will feature Joyce Bird, field representative for the Women's International Bowling Congress (WIBC).

Also present will be Joyce Huntley, MWBA president; Beatrice Lane, secretary, and Phyllis Smith, director. Ms. Bird, a bowler for more than 20 years, is the WIBC representative for the north central United States and Ontario and Quebec, Canada.

Pedaling Around

It ain't perfect

By Mike Eliasohn

It's time once again for "superfluous wordage," or "What's the matter? Can't you write good?"

No doubt I make a few mistakes in my writing in terms of unnecessary words, but since I never read my stuff after it gets into print, it's easier to find mistakes made by other writers or announcers.

For instance, there was the announcer on a Channel 25 broadcast - I didn't get her name - who reported July 25, "There's apparently a scam brewing in Saginaw targeted at local merchants in the area."

It would have been correct to say, "There's a scam brewing in Saginaw targeted at merchants."

On Channel 5 July 1, Joe Palchek announced that voters (men only) in the tiny European country of Lichtenstein had approved giving women the right to vote. He then said -- this is a paraphrase -- "Almost all the men turned out to vote, with most of them reportedly voting in favor."

Mark Tanner of the same station broadcast May 8 that students attending a confirmation service given by the Saginaw Catholic Diocese "came from 33 different parishes."

Newspaper persons love to pick on television and radio people, but those of us in print journalism aren't perfect.

From a United Press International story last Dec. 5, talking about Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt, who uses a wheelchair: "Flynt, a paraplegic, was arrested by FBI agents Saturday night at O'Hare International Airport as he stepped off an American Airlines plane."

From another UPI story about the trial of a Dearborn teacher, ultimately found innocent, who was accused of fondling boy students:

"Young (a parent) denied setting up Korte (the teacher) or threatening to destroy him during the trial." It should have read, "Young denied during the trial setting up..."

From the April 25 Huron Daily Tribune about promotion of a WLEW newsmen to the position of news director: "In February, he began working the early morning news, following the resignation of former News Director Ralph

I den." I den didn't become "former" until after he quit.

From an advertisement in the same newspaper: "The Bad Axe Public Library is building a new addition." Would it build an old one?

From a Caro Chamber of Commerce ad in the Tuscola County Advertiser: "Today, the Advertiser is owned by its current publisher, Rudy Petzold..." Obviously it wouldn't be owned by its former publisher.

From a photo caption in the April 7 Michigan Farmer magazine about a ground breaking ceremony: "The ground inside the tent had to be pre-thawed so officials could do their symbolic digging..." Presumably the officials' hot air was enough to thaw the ground the rest of the way.

From an article by Michigan Press Association Executive Director Warren Hoyt: "Water in Japan is completely safe to drink," which is better than partially safe.

A journalistic no-no from the April 4 Sanilac County News: "Mrs. Sarah Shaver and the late Cecil Shaver are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter..." One way such situations can be handled is to have the couple announce their engagement and then say that the bride-to-be is the daughter of "Sally Smith and the late Roger Smith."

I hate use of "whether or not" when the "or not" isn't needed. For instance, from a UPI story: "The dispute over Bible classes in the Tri-County Public Schools may come down to a legal decision regarding whether or not lunch hour is considered a part of the school day..."

From the July 7 Michigan Farmer: "The board of directors of USDA's Federal Crop Insurance agency was due to decide, a few days ago, whether or not Michigan apple growers will be able to buy crop insurance."

Lastly, from a Michigan State University July 21 news release: "If you're between 13 and 15 years old, you still have time to sign up from the 4-H Great Lakes Resources Camp..." Only 14-year-olds need apply.

GLOBAL HONOR - After a total of more than 40 years on the Rawson Memorial Library Board, recently retired Esther McCullough (left) and Evelyn MacRae were guests of honor at an open house Sunday afternoon at the library, attended by more than 80 persons. In their honor, the board purchased a lighted globe that will remain in the library.

One increase, one renewal

Building, senior citizen millages on Tuscola ballot

Tuscola County voters are being asked Tuesday to approve two millage proposals, a tax increase of 0.25 mills for five years for building an addition to the courthouse annex in Caro and a renewal of 0.2 mill for four years for services to senior citizens.

ANNEX ADDITION

If the millage is approved, it will be used to construct a two-story addition at the rear of the present annex totaling 9,200 square feet.

Estimated cost is $660,000. A quarter mill based on Tuscola County's present state equalized valuation will raise $168,750 annually, or a total of $675,000, enough to pay the total cost.

The cost to the taxpayer will be 25 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation. For a homeowner with property with a valuation of $25,000 (half of the true cash value), the millage would mean additional taxes of $6.25 a year.

The addition, according to the County Building Advisory Committee, will probably house the Cooperative Extension Service and a meeting room for the county Board of Commissioners.

Commissioners presently meet in the second floor of the courthouse. The move, according to the advisory committee, would provide "barrier free access for the public, as required by law."

The extension office, which has agricultural advisory and educational programs, 4-H for youth and family living programs, is housed in the basement of the county jail in what is generally conceded to be cramped quarters.

Vacating that space, according to the committee

Ervin Schmandt of 9839 Weaver Road, Frankenth, pleaded guilty Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court to operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor and to being an habitual offender because of two prior felony convictions.

information sheet, "will improve jail security and citizen safety as well as provide space for county law enforcement needs in the county jail."

The addition and vacated commissioners' meeting room in the courthouse, the committee says, will provide sufficient room "to resolve present and future space needs for the county's circuit and district courts."

It is proposed that present furniture and equipment will be moved into the addition - if the levy is approved. It is forecast that future county revenues will be adequate to handle the added costs because of the additional space.

Commissioners this year have purchased two homes near the courthouse complex, which when removed will provide added parking. Only a few spaces will be lost if the addition is constructed.

Two hurt in crash

Two persons were taken to Caro Community Hospital following a 3:40 p.m. accident last Thursday in Ellicident Township. The driver, Burton J. Campbell, 16, of Hickory Lane, Caro, was apparently treated and released. His brother, Thomas, 12, was discharged from the hospital Saturday.

Their car was southbound on Jacob Road, north of Jerou, when the accident took place. The driver told Caro state police he was going about 50 miles per hour when the car started to slide. He tried to correct it, but the car rolled over, landing on its wheels on the pavement.

Sheriff's deputies reported that at 1:15 a.m. last Wednesday in Kingston, Gordon R. Wright, 61, of 5757 Denhoff Road, Kingston, was backing out of a gas station driveway on Washington Street, near Kingsbury, and backed into a car. The driver of the auto, David J. Heacock of 3257 Washington Street, told officers he was waiting to pull out of the driveway when Wright's vehicle backed into the levy of 0.2 mill equals 20 cents per $1,000 of state equalized valuation. Based on services being provided during TACA's present fiscal year, according to Executive Director Robert Brown, it should provide the following services during the next year, and the remaining three years if the millage is approved.

TACA services are funded by the millage, state and federal funds and donations from senior citizens benefiting from the services.

A total of 57,290 lunches served at seven meal sites, including 5,631 in Cass City and 4,893 in Kingston.

-Glaucoma screening program will screen 167 senior citizens for detection and prevention of the blinding disease.

-Transportation program will provide 2,868 rides to those with no other means of transportation. Volunteer drivers will drive over 25,000 miles to take senior citizens to doctors, hospitals, food shopping, drug stores and to other important appointments.

-An additional 160 senior citizens will receive identification-discount cards which will enable them to receive discounts offered by many area merchants.

3 cheers for our champion softballers

Dear Editor, Something special happened Sunday. I just have to tell more people about it!

The Cass City Croft-Clara fast pitch softball team won the ISC Championship at Veterans Stadium in Saginaw. This means that the team will represent Michigan in the International Softball Congress tournament in Allentown, Pa., Aug. 10-19.

Croft-Clara allowed only two runs in five games. Top teams from Benton Harbor, Ann Arbor, Midland, Flint, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, and Auburn participated.

As the game ended Sunday afternoon, the boys went wild and I have never felt such excitement, such thrills, and such pride in our "good guys."

We always hear about the trouble makers, the rowdy! Here is a group of fellows that represent Cass City in a most admirable way.

This is not a team of beer guzzlers, smokers, or cussers. This is a group of fine younger men; farmers,

I know about now that many hometown folks are wondering if I'm talking about the same team who played at the 4th of July Festival. I sure am!

There are many theories about why they play so poorly here at home. Some of us believe they get uptight, wanting so badly to do well, then they try too hard and bad leads to worse.

Cass City tells why cop cut

A decision concerning two grievances filed against Cass City by the Fraternal Order of Police on behalf of village police officers is at least 4-6 weeks away.

Village officials and FOP members and their attorneys met last Thursday at the municipal building for four hours with William Daniels, an independent referee.

The first grievance discussed concerned police officer Robert Moore, who claimed he was laid off from his full-time job last December because he issued a traffic ticket to the village's attorney, Clinton House.

Moore has been working part-time since the layoff. He wants to be reinstated as a full-time police officer.

The second grievance protests the change from having two officers on duty Friday and Saturday nights to only one after Moore was laid off, contrary to previous procedure, even before a fourth full-time officer (Moore) was added to the force, the union claimed.

Testimony for the village was heard from Police Chief Gene Wilson, village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie, former village President Lambert Althaver, former council member Richard Hampshire and attorney House. Police officers Philip Klaus, who is the FOP local president, Ken Schott and Moore testified for the FOP.

"There won't be a result for a while," said Saginaw attorney Morton Weldy, who represented the village at the hearing. "The village basically presented its side of the case. The layoff was for economic reasons and (because) criminal activity was down in the area."

Klaus and FOP attorney Jerome Sabbota of Birmingham had no comment.

The FOP represents police officers in Cass City. House as village attorney has negotiated the FOP contract with the village.

Daniels, a Flint attorney, works full-time as an arbitrator in grievance cases. Weldy said Daniels was chosen by both sides.

In Tuscola County

2 seek Register of Deeds office

ANN SATTELBERG

VELNA RICHTER

Two candidates are vying for Tuscola County register of deeds in the primary election Tuesday.

All other countywide officers are unopposed in the primary and general elections.

With Register of Deeds John Marshall retiring, Republicans Ann L. Sattelberg of Caro and Velna Richter of Kingston are seeking to replace him. The primary winner gets the job, since no Democrat is running.

Mrs. Sattelberg, 45, has worked in the register of deeds office for 23 years, the first 15 as a clerk-typist and the last eight as deputy register of deeds.

She has been active in the Republican Party for 22 years and has served as county vice-chairman and secretary. She has also worked on fundraising and advertising for the party. She and her husband have two children.

Mrs. Richter, 58, worked in the register of deeds office from 1950-52. She held other office jobs at General Motors and the Caro Regional Center before marrying.

She is active in the Republican Party, having twice been a delegate to the state Republican convention and serving on the reception committee at last year's convention for U.S. Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole.

Scott Stermer, appointed prosecuting attorney last September, seeking his first full term.

District 2 County Commissioner Royce Russell, a Republican, has no primary opposition. He faces Democrat Lawrence Wright in the Nov. 6 general election. Both live in Cass City. Russell has held the office since 1978.

The district consists of Elkland, Elmwood, Novesta and Kingston Townships.

In District 5, which consists of Wells, Koylton, Fremont, Dayton and Watertown Townships, incumbent Commissioner Margaret Wenta of Fostoria, a Democrat, will face Republican Robert Green in November.

In District 1, which consists of Columbia, Ellington, Wisner, Akron and Almer Townships, Republican incumbent Donna Rayl of Akron has no opposition.

There will be three new commissioners on the county board next year. In District 3, Republican Paul Nagy of Vassar is retiring and four Republicans are running in the primary.

District 4 Republican Commissioner J. Benson Collon of Caro is stepping down and four Republicans and one Democrat are vying for his job.

ington, a Democrat, is the other retiree. One Democrat and one Republican are seeking to replace him in District 7.

Running without opposition in District 6 is Democrat Robert Russell of Vassar.

Tuscola County District Judge Richard F. Kern has no opposition for another term.

Judging and sales

Top honors and good prices for area 4-H clubs at the Fair

Area 4-H'ers won several of the top honors in livestock judging at last week's Tuscola County Fair.

Livestock went on the auction block at the annual 4-H and Future Farmers of America sale Thursday afternoon.

Cass City Livestock Club members won all but the grand champion individual honor in market lambs.

Steve Cooklin, 15, son of George and Coiene Cooklin of Dodge Road, Cass City, had the grand champion pen. Erla's Packing of Cass City bought the 130-pound Suffolk for $1.60 a pound. Bernthal Packing of Frankenmuth bought the 125-pounder for $1.25 a pound.

Steve also won trophies for the lighter animal for grand champion home grown and senior showmanship.

The individual grand champion, owned by Jeremy Glowicki of the Silverwood Road Runners, was purchased by Weber Lumber of Richville for $2.50 for each of its 124 pounds. Last year's grand champion sold for $1.50 a pound.

Scott Hutchinson, 17, son of Dean and Nancy Hutchinson of Spence Road, Cass City, had the reserve champion individual for the second year in a row. The 141-pound Suffolk was purchased by Caro Building Supply for $1.40 a pound.

Kevin Milligan's Suffolks were judged reserve champion pen. The 16-year-old is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Milligan of Plain Road, Kingston. The Cass City Livestock Club member's animals were both purchased by former State Rep. Loren Armbruster of Caro, the 109-pounder for $1 a pound and the 128-pounder for 95 cents a pound.

The market price the day of the sale was 58 cents a pound. Thirty-five lambs were sold, six fewer than last year.

MARKET BEEF

Becky Johnson never entered an animal in livestock judging until this year.

She entered the right one. Her 1,405 pound Simmental was judged the grand champion individual. It was purchased for $1.30 a pound, 5 cents more than last year's winner, by the Federal Land Bank Association and Production Credit Association of Caro.

Becky, 17, is the daughter of Norm and Barb Johnson of 3039 Kingston Road, Kingston, and a member of the May-King 4-H Club.

Kevin Hecht of the Richville Livestock Club had the reserve champion, weighing 1,270 pounds. It was purchased by the Pillsbury elevator in Fairgrove for $1.25 a pound.

Carolyn Tuckey of the Cass City Livestock Club had the champion lightweight steer, a 995 pound Hereford, bought by Erla's Packing for $1 a pound. She is the 14-year-old daughter of Roy and Kathy Tuckey of 7677 E. Cass City Road.

Thirty-one steers went on the auction block, six fewer than last year. The market price was 67 cents a pound.

SWINE

Steve Tuckey, 11, of the Cass City Livestock Club had the reserve champion in his third year of showing hogs. The 233 pound Hampshire-Yorkshire mixed breed was purchased by Erla's Packing for $2.30 a pound. Steve, who was also the junior showmanship winner, is the son of Robert and Barbara Tuckey of 4738 Schwegler Road.

Mike Palmreuter of the Richville Livestock Club had the grand champion individual and grand champion home grown, purchased for $3.60 a pound by Central Shop Rite of Caro. It weighed 248 pounds. The 1983 top hog sold for $3.10 a pound.

The market price was 48-52 cents a pound. There were 129 hogs sold last Thursday, compared to 145 in 1983.

SMALL ANIMALS

The third annual 4-H and FFA small animal sale took place Thursday morning.

Brenda Battel's pen of three grand champion ducks were purchased by Modern Electric of Caro for $5.50 a pound. The ducks weighed a total of 22.75 pounds.

Brenda is the daughter of Mark and Diane Battel of Ritter Road, Cass City.

Stacey Brown of the May-King 4-H Club had the grand champion goose, an 11 pounder, purchased by Beagio's Pizza of Kingston for $7.50 a pound.

STEVE TUCKEY'S reserve champion hog at the Tuscola fair was purchased by Dan Erla of Erla's Packing, Cass City, for $2.30 a pound. It weighed 233 pounds. Steve, 11, is the son of Bob and Barb Tuckey, Schwegler Road, Cass City.

4-H'ers do well, too

Tractor pull canceled, but fair does well anyway

A broken weight transfer machine used in tractor pulling put a damper on last week's Tuscola County Fair.

Because the tractors had nothing to pull Tuesday evening, the fair had to refund all the spectators' money, which Fair Manager Walt Jackson estimated meant a loss of $4,000-5,000.

If it hadn't been for that, all financial categories for the fair would have been an improvement over last year.

With admission ticket prices the same as last year, revenue from sale of general admission tickets increased from $22,926 last year to $23,356 this year. That works out to 287 more fairgoers than in 1983.

Grandstand ticket sales, because of the refunds, totaled $18,186, down from $19,590 in 1983. Jackson said the most popular grandstand programs were the Royal Lipizzan Stallions Wednesday and Friday evenings and the demolition derby Friday.

The tractor pulling scheduled Tuesday had to be combined with the tractor pulling scheduled Friday afternoon.

Crown Amusement Co. of Ada provided the rides this year for the first time and Jackson said he heard a lot of comments about their being the "best we ever had." There were more rides than in the past and the fair's share of the revenue from them increased $3,000 over a year ago.

The fair was a week earlier than usual because Crown was unable to provide the rides during the normal week for the fair, which is the last week in July.

Two new attractions that proved popular, Jackson said, were kiddie rides in the fairground's park and a petting zoo provided by 4-H clubs.

Overall financially, the fair manager said, the 103rd annual event "broke even or a little better (than breaking even), but nothing big."

8 townships have races

GRAND CHAMPIONPEN of market lambs at the Tuscola fair belonged to Steve Cooklin. This animal was bought by Dan Erla of Erla's Packing, Cass City, for $1.60 a pound. Bernthal Packing of Frankmuth bought the other for $1.25. Steve, 15, is the son of George and Coiene Cooklin, Dodge Road, Cass City.

Several area townships have contests in the Republican primary Tuesday for township offices, and with no Democrats running, whoever wins the primary will have the job.

Elkland and Greenleaf Townships both have contests for supervisor.

ELKLAND -- The only contest is for Supervisor, the person presently holding the position, Jack Gallagher, having decided not to seek reelection.

The candidates are Clara Gaffney, 52, of 6567 Elizabeth Street, and David Milligan, 32, of 6197 City-Forestville Road.

Mrs. Gaffney does income tax and bookkeeping work in her home. She was employed as a bookkeeper by businesses for numerous years, while also maintaining her home income tax and bookkeeping service.

She is a member of the Cass City Business and Professional Women's Club and was its president two years. She was secretary-treasurer of the now defunct Thumb Photography Club. A member of Salem Methodist Church and its United Methodist Women, she is treasurer of the latter.

She and her husband, Richard, have two grown children.

Milligan, who is single, is a cash crop farmer. He is president of the Tuscola County Bean Growers, chairman of the agricultural advisory committee to the Cass City School Board and is a member of Farm Bureau and serves on some FB committees.

Milligan is also a member of the Cass City Rotary Club and an elder in the First Presbyterian Church.

Milligan stressed his farm background should help him in assessing. "I am quite familiar with the farmland in Elkland Township." He added that he knows township roads "quite well, too."

Mrs. Gaffney said she enjoys doing financial bookwork and challenges "...and it (the supervisor's job) is something different, so it will be a challenge."

GREENLEAF -- Gerald Bock, 57, supervisor for 12 years, is being challenged in the Republican primary by Gary Wills, 32, of 7676 Gilbert Road.

Bock, of 5675 E. Cass City Road, is a cash crop farmer. He served on the township board as a trustee before becoming supervisor. As supervisor, he serves on the Cass City Ambulance Board.

Wills, a dairy farmer, who has lived in the township 26 years, is running for the first time for township office. He said he is running to give Greenleaf a year-round supervisor because Bock spends his winters in Florida.

Bock responded that his spending winters there hasn't hindered his duties as supervisor, he returns for the board of review meetings and because the township board meets only once every three months, he seldom misses a meeting. He has lived in Greenleaf 22 years.

Other townships having primary election races are:

TUSCOLA COUNTY

ELLINGTON -- Four Republicans are running for the two trustee spots, incumbents Robert A. Wood, 3675 E. Caro Road, and Frederick H. Janks, 3015 E. Akron Road; and challengers George Cooklin, 2061 Dodge Road, and D.J. (Dolphus Joseph) Svacha, 3910 Little Road.

Cooklin is a member of the township Board of Review and was a justice of the peace in Novesta Township for a short while before they were eliminated. A farmer, he is a member of the Michigan Pork Producers, Michigan Swine Breeders and the Tuscola County Fair Association Board of Directors.

Janks has been a trustee since 1962. A retired dairy farmer, he was secretary of the Vassar local of the Michigan Milk Producers Association and belongs to Farm Bureau.

Svacha is a dental lab supplier to area dentists and is running for the first time.

Wood has been a trustee 10 or 12 years (he didn't remember), farms and works for Michigan Sugar Co. in Caro, where he is president of the Grain Millers union local. He is also a member of the Masons.

NOVESTA -- Timothy Knoblet, 5291 Kelly Road, and Frank Spencer, 3880 Cemetery Road, are on the ballot for trustee. Running as a write-in candidate is Donna Monroe, 3560 Phillips Road.

The two nominated, since no Democrats are running, will take over from Fred Knoblet and Arleon C. Retherford, who are retiring.

Knoblet is a cash crop and beef farmer and a member of the Novesta Church of Christ. He is the son of Fred Knoblet.

Spencer is the owner of Frank's Service Station, just south of Cass City, was deputy township treasurer for two years in the early 1970s and was sexton of the Novesta cemetery for a couple of years. He is a member of the Cass City Veterans of Foreign Wars post.

Mrs. Monroe taught school for three years before her three children were born, is part-time secretary at Salem United Methodist Church and is administrative co-leader of the Cass City 4-H Livestock Club.

SANILAC COUNTY

ARGYLE -- Incumbent Treasurer Kathy O'Connor is being challenged for the Republican nomination by Sally Herre.

LAMOTTE -- The two incumbent trustees, Charles Roggenbuck and Ronald Shaw, are being challenged by Jack Gillig, who decided not to seek reelection as supervisor.

Michael Redman is unopposed in seeking Gillig's present job.

MOORE -- Challenger Gary L. Best is running against incumbent Clerk David Jansen for the Republican nomination.

HURON COUNTY

BINGHAM -- Incumbent Treasurer Elmer O'Berski is opposed for the nomination by Lynn Tyll.

The two incumbent trustees, James C. Osentoski and Albert M. Kubacki are being challenged by John M. Rutkowski.

In the Nov. 6 general election, Republican Supervisor Aaron J. Weltin will be opposed by Democrat Donald Wright.

Sanilac residents to vote on library, seniors millages

Sanilac County residents will vote on two millages Tuesday, renewal of 0.2 mill for senior citizen programs and a first time 0.2 mill levy for libraries.

A levy of 0.2 mill will raise about $105,820 annually, based on the county's present state equalized valuation. It means taxes of 20 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation. For property with a valuation of $30,000 (half of the true cash value), that means taxes of $6 a year.

Both proposed levies are for four years, 1984-87.

The senior citizen levy that expired ran for four years. If the new one is approved, the money will continue to go to the Sanilac County Council on Aging, which allocates it, with the approval of the county Board of Commissioners.

Most of it in the past has gone to the Thumb Area Commission on Aging, which provides programs in Sanilac, supplemented by state and federal funds, plus donations.

Based on the number of senior citizens being served in Sanilac during the present year, according to TACA Executive Director Robert Brown, the agency should be able to provide the following services each year, if the millage is approved.

The meal site program will serve 34,938 meals, including 1,741 at the site in Argyle.

23,000 meals will be delivered to home-bound senior citizens.

The case management program will help 753 senior citizens solve problems that threaten their independence or well-being.

Glaucoma screening program will screen 168 persons for detection and prevention of the blinding disease.

Transportation program will provide 2,868 rides to persons having no other means of transportation.

Blood pressure screening will take the blood pressures of 3,048 senior citizens.

Identification-discount cards will be issued to 160 additional senior citizens, enabling them to take advantage of discounts offered by many area merchants.

Monthly newsletter, of which 3,500 copies are mailed each month to senior citizens in Sanilac, Tuscola and Huron Counties.

Support of the Sanilac County Health Department's personal care and homemaking programs, which provide personal care and light housekeeping, to help senior citizens to continue to live in their homes. This is the only program funded directly by the Council on Aging, Brown said. All other services are provided by TACA.

LIBRARY MILLAGE

The aim of the 0.2 library millage, according to Alfred J. Philp, president of the Sanilac County Library Board, is to provide a stable source of funding for libraries serving county residents.

Penal fines which form a large chunk of present financing for libraries presently is equivalent to almost 0.1 mill, but varies from year to year.

The 0.2 mill levy was decided upon, he explained, because libraries need a total of 0.3 mill in local revenue (penal fines plus local taxes) to be eligible to receive state aid.

Libraries' other source of revenue has been appropriations from local governmental units, but that, like penal fines, is an unreliable source, according to Philp. "As it is now, you try to get appropriations from them...then some years they have to build a bridge or something and they're short of money and libraries seem the logical place to cut."

If the millage is approved, the money raised from it will be distributed to libraries based on the state equalized valuation of the area they serve.

Rawson Memorial Library in Cass City contracts with Evergreen and Greenleaf Townships in Sanilac to provide their residents with library service. Approval of the levy will mean an estimated $4,483 annually to Rawson, based on the SEV of those two townships.

This year, the township boards in Evergreen and Greenleaf appropriated the equivalent of $1 per resident to Rawson, which for Evergreen was $1,042 and for Greenleaf, $746.

Approval of the millage, according to Rawson head librarian Barbara Hutchinson, makes it unlikely it will ever need an appropriation from those townships' general funds again, however, 0.2 mill equals more than twice what they are giving now to the library.

Sleeper Public Library in Ubyly will also benefit from the millage -- an estimated $2,916 annually -- from the portion of Sanilac it serves.

There are also nine public libraries within Sanilac that will benefit from passage of the millage.

Passage of the millage, Philp said, will mean elimination of the annual card fee most of the libraries charge persons using their services who don't live in their contracted areas.

Six vying for Sanilac sheriff

ment for one year and transferred to the Lexington force, where he worked until joining the sheriff's department.

He received a Policeman of the Year award in 1983.

James L. Anderson, 40, is Lexington police chief. His law enforcement experience began with two years as a part-time officer for the Lexington department.

He then was hired by the sheriff's department where he rose to sergeant in the crime prevention division. He also served in the marine division as a diver. He headed the first Sanilac County Selective Enforcement Project, which worked to reduce traffic fatalities.

Anderson has an associate degree in law enforcement from SCCC. He has been Lexington chief for seven years.

OTHER OFFICES

Prosecuting Attorney Robert Barnes decided not to seek reelection. James V. Young and Philip Lomason are running for the position.

Young, chief assistant prosecutor since 1980 and assistant prosecutor since 1979, graduated from Carsonville High School. He has a bachelor of science degree from Northern Michigan University and a law degree from Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing.

The Carsonville resident is president of the Sanilac County Bar Association, vice-president of the county Child Abuse and Neglect Council and involved in the county Task Force on Drug and Alcohol Abuse.

Lomason was chief assistant prosecutor in 1977-78. He operates his own law office in Crosswell.

He graduated from Crosswell-Lexington High School, MSU and the Detroit College of Law.

He has been the corporate counsel for Crosswell since 1981 and is a past president of the 24th Judicial Court Bar Association. He has practiced law for 16 years.

Tim Hutchinson, 43, is running against incumbent Register of Deeds Maurice Turnbull, 56.

Hutchinson, of Sandusky, ran a restaurant in Sandusky for seven years. He has also managed a radio station, auto dealerships and a publishing company.

He is a licensed real estate agent.

Turnbull has been register of deeds since 1967, was president of the Michigan Association of Registers of Deeds and is a member of the Michigan United County Officers Association. He lives in Decker-ville.

Stuart Armstead, county drain commissioner for 30 years, is being challenged by Wayne Laursen, 48, of Marlette.

Armstead, of Snover, has been president of the Michigan Association of County Drain Commissioners and is a member of the county Department of Public Works, Sanilac County Economic Development Corp., and the Parks Commission.

Laursen, an Elmer Township farmer, was township clerk for six years and trustee for two. He has been a member of the county Planning Commission, secretary and treasurer of the county Economic Development Corp. and the Farm Bureau.

COMMISSIONER

District 5 County Commissioner Donald R. Decker is being challenged by publisher Lloyd F. Buhl. Decker is in his sixth year on the county board. He was board chairman in 1981.

Decker, a retired farmer, is chairman of the board's community services committee and vice-chairman of the county Parks Commission.

He is also a member of the Area Agency on Aging board, county Community Mental Health Services Board, Michigan Association of Counties Workers' Compensation Fund Board of Trustees, county GROWTH Committee board and Human Development Commission board.

Buhl, publisher of the Decker-ville Recorder, is a former assessor, councilman and village president of Decker-ville.

He is former 8th District Republican Party chairman, is chairman for the second time of the Sanilac County Republican Party and is chairman of the state party's issues committee.

Buhl is a former Marion Township official and former chairman and member of the county Community Mental Health Services Board.

District 5 covers Evergreen, Greenleaf, Argyle, Austin, Lamotte, Minden, Delaware and Marion Townships, plus part of Forester.

Sandusky attorney James A. Marcus will challenge incumbent 73rd District Judge Richard P. Riordan, and Circuit Court Judge Allen Keyes is unopposed. Their names will not appear on the ballot until the Nov. 6 general election.

Bicycle path is considered

sented some figures that indicate such trails have a beneficial economic impact on the areas they go through.

Coil, who is affiliated with two bicycling groups, wasn't able by the time of the meeting to obtain information from the Grand Trunk whether the right-of-way can be purchased.

If he finds buying it is still possible, the next step will be to investigate obtaining a federal grant to pay for planning the trail, economic impact, funding to buy the right-of-way and develop it, etc.

PIGEON AREA FARMER Virgil Bouck, former Tuscola County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service executive director, told the group that farmers in his area and the Pigeon Cooperative Elevator Co. are working to obtain the right-of-way between Pigeon and Caseville for a water pipeline for irrigation. The elevator wants to keep the southern mile of that section and the tracks as a siding for grain hopper cars.

Although the pipeline would be buried, he said farmers have expressed opposition to the pathway also being used for recreation.

However, a possible source of funding to buy the right-of-way is the state Kammer trust fund for purchase of recreation property. If money from that source could be obtained, it would allow use of the Pigeon-to-Caseville right-of-way for the water line and recreation. If so, Iden commented, "I think those guys will sit up and take notice."

"We want the farmers on our side," rather than against us," he added.

BEFORE THE MEETING, Iden visited the stone quarry at Bay Port, where he learned the trail could be paved with crushed limestone that hardens when it gets wet. That would be much cheaper than asphalt.

Among those attending the meeting were Cass City Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie, store owners Gerald and Geraldine Prieskorn and Richard Peter of Kingston.

Another meeting will be held after Coil finds out from Grand Trunk if the railroad right-of-way is available for purchase.

Your neighbor says "Penthouse" should have waited until after the contest

Last week, Vanessa Williams became the first Miss America to give up her crown, because of the photos of her in Penthouse magazine. Lori Hartsell said publisher Bob Guccione and his magazine should have waited because "then it wouldn't have been such a big deal, because she would have been an ex-Miss America. And I don't think that was right of Penthouse to do that." Mrs. Hartsell felt that Miss Williams should have stood her ground and tried to keep the crown. "In this age, anything goes."

The pageant is probably out of date, with its ideas of purity and innocence, she feels. The Miss America pageant directors should realize that something like this could happen because "these girls are only trying to get somewhere." The photographs probably will not hurt Miss Williams' career, Mrs. Hartsell said, because such celebrities as Joan Collins have posed nude and their careers are soaring. Tom Chiapel, the photographer, sold the pictures to Penthouse to cash in on Miss Williams' fame, and the magazine published the pictures to make a profit as well. The moment seemed right to Penthouse. "She (Miss Williams) was nobody when those photos were taken. She was an assistant (to Chiapel). If it were someone else, it wouldn't have mattered. But since she became Miss America, it was a big deal," Mrs. Hartsell said. Mrs. Hartsell, 23, works evenings at Fort's store. She and her husband Jeff have one son, Jeffrey, 3. They live on N. Seeger Street.

7 area townships seek extra millage Tuesday

Seven area townships have millage proposals on the ballot Tuesday, most of them for roads and some of them renewals.

Two townships, including one which also has a millage, have Detroit Edison franchise renewals to be voted on.

ARGYLE — There are two proposals on the ballot, both new, 1 mill for three years for the fire department and 3 mills for three years for maintaining roads.

One mill raises about $11,000 annually in the township.

If approved, revenue from the fire department levy, according to Supervisor Jerry Hillaker, will be used for purchase and maintenance of equipment. There are no plans to buy a fire truck.

The hope is that no money will be needed from the general fund for the fire department if the levy passes, Hillaker said.

The township had a millage previously for roads, which expired several years ago.

If the new one passes, according to the supervisor, the approximately $33,000 annually will be used for road building and maintenance and new bridges. Some money will still come from the general fund.

There are about six railing type bridges that need replacing. If they aren't, Hillaker said, in a couple of years they will deteriorate so much school buses may not be able to go over them.

All money now for roads comes out of the general fund, which isn't enough to do all that needs to be done, he commented. "We just can't keep going that way without this extra millage."

AUSTIN — Renewal of 2 1/2 mills for the years 1985-89 will be voted on. The levy raises about $21,000-22,000 a year, according to Clerk John Osentoski.

The township also spends money from its general fund for roads.

The road levy millage has been in effect for several years, with the present levy expiring with tax bills to be mailed at the end of this year.

BINGHAM — Two mills for six years for roads will be voted on, which will raise about $46,000 a year, according to Supervisor Aaron Weltin.

Bingham had a road millage that ran 10 years, but renewal was defeated in 1982, "so we thought we would try again."

The township spends about $25,000-30,000 a year now out of its general fund for roads, enough to gravel four miles, whereas eight miles should be graveled each year, Weltin said, since a new layer of gravel should be applied every six years. Graveling costs about $6,000 a mile.

The millage levy can be used for any road purpose, including paving, but since that now probably costs $90,000-100,000 a mile, more paving isn't as likely as it was under the old levy, he indicated.

ELLINGTON — The half-mill on the ballot for fire protection to be levied from 1985-88 is a reduction from the .75 mill levy that appears for the last time on this year's tax bills.

The reduction is possible, Supervisor Jack Kappen explained, because of a buildup of money in the fire fund. "There's no sense asking for more than we need."

A half-mill will raise about $6,000 a year.

Ellington contracts with the Elkland and Caro fire departments to provide fire protection for its residents.

GRANT — If at first you don't succeed...The 1 mill levy for roads for three years on the ballot will be the seventh time since 1976 that the township board has asked voters to approve a tax hike for roads. Each time they have said "no." The last vote was in July, 1983.

The difference this time, Supervisor Betty Powell said, is the board is only asking for 1 mill, instead of the 3 mills requested in the past. One mill will raise about $15,000 a year. The board now spends about $8,000-9,000 a year from the general fund, which is enough for fixing one mile of road and filling holes elsewhere.

If the millage is approved, Mrs. Powell said, money will be available for some major rebuilding, applying crushed stone, graveling and cutting brush.

GREENLEAF — To be voted on is renewal of 1 mill for 1985-88 for road maintenance, which raises about $9,000 a year, according to Supervisor Gerald Bock.

The township spends about $60,000 a year on roads, including the revenue from the millage.

The 1 mill for roads has been in effect several years, Bock said, and has been renewed at least twice.

LAMOTTE — Renewal of the franchise with Detroit Edison for 30 years is on the ballot, "for the purpose of the erection, construction, and maintenance of towers, poles, mains, wires, pipes, conduits, apparatus, etc., requisite for the transmission, transforming and distribution of electricity for public and private use."

MOORE — There are two proposals on the ballot, one of them being a Detroit Edison franchise renewal.

The other is a tax increase of 2 mills for five years to build a new fire hall in Snover, to replace the present one, which is too small, Supervisor John Dorman said. The township hall will remain east of Snover. Two mills will raise about $34,000 a year, so over the five years there will be enough to construct and furnish the building, plus related expenses, such as sinking a large well for quick refilling of fire truck water tanks.

The fire hall would be constructed next to the present one. The township already owns the land for it. If the levy is approved, Dorman said the fire hall will probably be constructed before all five years of the millage has been levied. The method of financing, with a loan being repaid from the millage, hasn't been decided yet by the board.

SHERIDAN — To be voted on is 2 mills for two years, which will raise about $32,000 a year, according to Supervisor Robert Becking.

The township's last millage levy for roads expired two years ago. Its renewal resulted in a tie vote in the August, 1982, primary, and lost by seven votes that November.

$32,000, Becking said, "won't even build a mile, according to the Huron County Road Commission. "It takes $45,000-50,000."

He pointed out that the Road Commission no longer pays for some services it once did, such as roadside brush spraying, so the township has to pick up that cost.

The township will spend about $40,000 from the general fund this year for roads, including graveling, brining and brush spraying. If the millage is approved, Becking said, probably maintenance will still be funded out of the general fund, while road building is paid for from the road levy.

HEALTH TIPS
Earphone radios can harm hearing

Americans, particularly young ones, are playing havoc with their hearing through excessive exposure to loud music. Rock concerts, blaring stereos, evenings at discos, all are taking their toll.

Among the worst culprits are portable stereophonic radio-cassette players with earphones which enjoy huge popularity throughout the world.

In a study in the New England Journal of Medicine, researchers reported on measuring the loudness, in decibels, at which earphones were capable of playing at volume settings of from one to ten.

At a volume setting as low as four, the three brands studied had a loudness level of 93-108 decibels. At a volume setting of eight, the loudness topped 115 decibels.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the U.S. Department of Labor defines continuous noise at 85 decibels or above for an extended period of time as hazardous. This is a level comparable to the volume of noise on a busy city street at rush hour.

The study showed that even at relatively low settings the instruments were hazardous.

While this study looked at how high portable stereos could be played, Dr. Jane Reger Madell, director of the New York League for the Hard of Hearing, looked at how consumers were using the stereos.

Equipped with a precisely calibrated sound-level meter, she went out on a New York street, stopped at random people who were wearing stereos, and measured the loudness level at which they were playing them. Virtually all were found to be at volumes above 100 decibels, and some were close to 120 decibels, the sound level of unmuffled jackhammers heard from across a street.

"People who listen to 105 decibels for one hour a day will, over a period of time, develop a permanent hearing loss," Dr. Madell says.

"Since people seem to be using these earphones at such levels for considerably longer than one hour a day, I think they must be warned of the risk involved."

"We are beginning to see hearing charts of 19- and 20-year-olds that look like those of much older people," says Dr. Madell, who also is on the faculty of New York University, and on the staff of Lenox Hill Hospital.

What makes the situation more tragic, is that this type of unavoidable hearing loss comes on imperceptibly and always is irreversible.

New books at the library

POWER PLAY: WHAT REALLY HAPPENED AT BENDIX by Mary Cunningham (non-fiction). The public scrutiny of her presumed love affair and Cunningham's coincidental rise up the executive ranks turned her from a golden girl into a scarlet woman who was accused of sleeping her way to the top. Cunningham now responds with a refutation of those lies and with a firsthand look at the rigors and spoils of success in the corporate world. She comes across as bright and ambitious. It was these qualities, she insists, that made Agee more of a mentor and less of a lover for her, at least until the scandal broke. Since Agee and Cunningham are now married but pursuing separate careers, the degree of their personal involvement seems moot.

THE SUNFLOWER FOREST by Torey Hayden (fiction). Just 18, Lesley has her first boyfriend, her little sister Megan to plague her, and a mother whose emotional problems prevent Lesley from attaining many of the freedoms of womanhood. Descended from Hungarian gentry, Lesley's mother had a son taken away by the same Nazis who raped her in a camp. She insists a neighbor boy is that son, ignoring both reality and her two living daughters. Lesley spends a summer on a small North Wales farm where her parents once lived, only to learn that much of her mother's recollections are a lie.

BLOOD SONG by Hank Searls (fiction). This is the story of a retired admiral's attempt to relive the historic journey his great-grandfather made along the Emigrant Trail in 1849. Using his ancestor's letters and diaries as guideposts, Admiral Stretch Washburn, age 61, and his 12-year-old granddaughter, Bunnie, set out from Manhattan in their Winnebago and head toward Nevada City, California, hoping to recapture the pioneer spirit that Stretch's great-granddad Morgan embodied in his trailblazing days more than a century before. Stretch and Morgan's respective travelogues appear side by side in alternating chapters, eerily paralleling one another in content and mood. But time abruptly merges when two fugitives from the Nevada State Penitentiary waylay the adventurers along a lonely span of desert, jeopardizing the Washburns' lives and dreams just as Morgan's own hopes similarly were clouded by roadside dangers at that precise location 130 years earlier.

By Bill Myers Taking stock

It gave me great pleasure to give some advice to a golf pro the other day.

Always I have been the sniveling, embarrassed duffer seeking help to correct my slice or my shanking or whatever the current horrible fault was.

A golf pro we'll call Pete is from upstate New York. He's around 40 and plans to work another 25 years before retirement.

A retirement fund the club has set up for him has $25,000 in it which he can switch to another sort of investment within 90 days without paying tax on it until he takes it out to spend it.

Pete wanted to lock in the $25,000 for 25 years, and meanwhile live on his current earnings.

I suggest these zero-coupon government bonds, sold by all the brokerage houses. Merrill Lynch calls them TIGRS. Salomon sells them as CATS, and there are other designations.

What they amount to is an investment in a government bond that doesn't pay any interest in the meantime, but is sold at a discount now so that your interest comes in to you when the bond matures. They're like U.S. Savings bonds, except the yield is much better.

Today, you buy a 25-year bond of this sort for 6.2 cents on the dollar. Twenty-five years from now (in Pete's case, when he retires, and will play golf all the time instead of just half of each day as he does now), he will collect $1 for each 6.2 cents he sets aside now.

His $25,000 will become $403,000. That's a pretty good retirement, even if he doesn't save another dime between now and the year 2008. The yield is 10.35 percent compounded semi-annually.

Meanwhile, Pete has no reinvestment problems at all. His money is in U.S. government bonds, safest in the world.

What a slick deal. I traded this advice for Pete's suggestions on what to do about my nasty habit of shanking a golf ball. (For non-golfers, it's similar to shooting yourself in the foot at target practice.)

"You're probably rolling your right hand under," said Pete. "Keep the back of your hand facing the sky."

I tried this, and by golly, it worked. Of course, I developed another fault, hitting the ground back of the ball. Next time Pete calls I'll swap another retirement suggestion for his cure for that dumb stunt.

Speaking of golf, here's an example of how the zero-coupon government bonds could be used by a club to pay off a mortgage whose final payment is 10 years out, and is a big sum of money. To use some stray figures for illustration:

Final payment on mortgage due 1994...$400,000.

Money now on hand, invested in short-term securities yielding about 8.5 percent...$300,000.

Current funds are not used to pay off the mortgage now, because it is a 6 percent mortgage.

Suggestion: Buy some 10-year, zero-coupon governments. Cost is 36 cents on the dollar. For maturing value of $400,000, the amount of the final mortgage payment, the club could now buy this amount for $144,000.

It could let the investment sit until 1994, when it matures the same time as the mortgage is due.

No reinvestment problems, none of the nuisance of short-term bonds and CDs coming due, with interest rates lower at reinvestment time.

No fuss, no muss, no tire-some committee meetings to decide how to reinvest. More time for everybody to get out on the golf course.

I checked out the thing with John Grant, a canny bond expert of Detroit and former country club president.

"A great idea," he said.

Huron voters to nominate GOP sheriff, treasurer

Races for sheriff and treasurer will take place in Huron County in the primary election Tuesday.

All other countywide offices are unopposed.

Warren J. Krohn and Robert C. Witherspoon are challenging incumbent treasurer Roberta Moetteli for the Republican nomination.

Miss Moetteli has worked in the treasurer's office since 1973 and has served as deputy treasurer and chief deputy treasurer.

She was appointed treasurer in March after Arnold Schweitzer retired. Before joining the treasurer's office she worked at Community Bank, Elkon branch, and Huron Financial Services Trust, Bad Axe, a total of 19 years.

Witherspoon, of Port Hope, is a dairy farmer who has served as Huron Township clerk and supervisor.

He has also been a member of the Huron Dairy Improvement Association, Dairy Promotion Commission, Michigan Milk Producer's Association, East Huron Ambulance Service and the local affairs committee of the Farm Bureau.

Witherspoon is also a member and treasurer of St. John's Lutheran Church council, Port Hope.

Krohn, of Elkton, is a former dairy farmer. He has served as Meade Township supervisor and is now township assessor.

He served one term on the county board of commissioners and ran for county clerk. Krohn is the treasurer of the county Republican Party and has served as chairman.

He has also served on the Elkon-Pigeon-Bay Port School Board and on the Huron County Sheltered Workshop board.

John E. Stickney (D) and Herbert Williams (R) are challenging Republican Sheriff Richard V. Stokan. He has been sheriff since 1973.

Stokan, 44, has been president of the Michigan Sheriffs' Association, secretary of the Huron County Law Enforcement Training Council and is a member of the Huron County Police Chiefs' Association.

Williams, 40, of Bad Axe, works for a trucking firm in that city. He is a former Bad Axe police officer and has 12 years of law enforcement experience, including working for the Air Force air police.

Stickney, who will challenge the Republican primary winner in the Nov. 6 general election, was Harbor Beach police chief for 15 years before retiring April 30.

Other county office incumbents are unopposed in the primary and general election. They are Prosecutor Karl E. Kraus, Clerk Helen Lemanski and Register of Deeds Frances L. Holdwick.

Also unopposed are Circuit Judge M. Richard Knoblock and District Judge John Schubel.

In District 4 of the county Board of Commissioners, Maurice (Ike) Des Jardin is challenging incumbent Jean Talaski. Both are Republicans.

Mrs. Talaski, of Harbor Beach, is chairman of the equalization committee and social services, senior citizens and health committee and vice-chairman of the finance committee and personnel and policies committee.

Des Jardin, 55, of Bad Axe, has held no other political offices, but said he would like to reduce paperwork and staffing in county departments.

He owns the Green Mill Bar in Bad Axe. He is a Marine Corps veteran who served in World War II and Korea. After the wars, he was a brakeman for the Grand Trunk Railroad for 26 years.

District 4 is made up of Bingham, Bloomfield, Lincoln, Paris, Sherman and Sigel Townships.

In Districts 1 and 2 the Republican incumbents are unopposed. In District 2, Republican Commissioner Calvin Reibling represents Chandler, Oliver, Winsor, Grant and Sheridan Townships.

District 1 Commissioner Bruce W. Kuhl's area covers Fair Haven, Sebawing, Brookfield and McKinley Townships.
