Kingston. makes 2nd try for millage

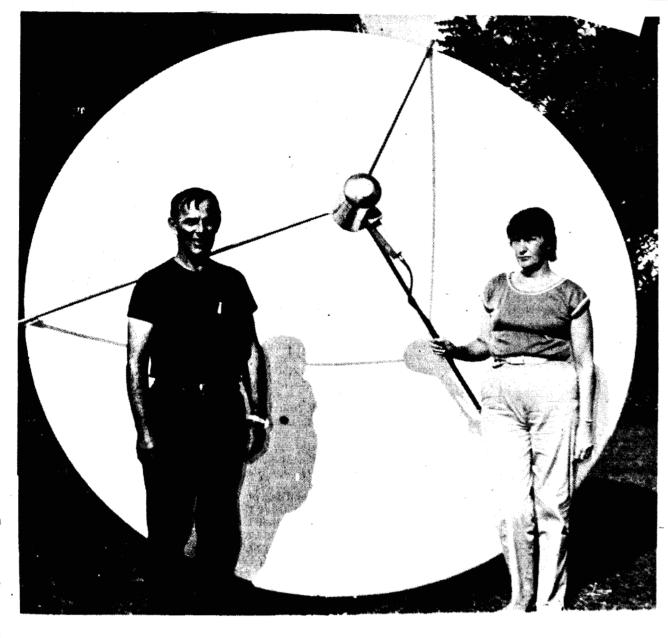

Aug. 20, voters of the Kingston School District will again return to the voting booth. This time they will be casting their votes to decide whether or not the school busses will be on the road during the upcoming school year.

According to Jerry Laycock, superintendent of Kingston Schools, the school board will be asking voters to approve a 16-mill renewal lasting three years, and a 4-mill increase that will run for one year. Laycock said that the 4-mill increase will be designated for transportation, building maintenance and energy saving measures at the high school and elementary school buildings. Laycock said that this week, residents of the school district will receive information on the budget cuts, and a sample ballot in the School Bell, the district newsletter.

Laycock said that if the millage fails, there will not be enough money for the busses to run, and there will be further reductions in the maintenance and custodian budgets. Laycock added that they have already made several reductions in the teaching and administrative staff.

Because capital improvements at Cass City Schools cost considerably less than estimates, the Cass City School Board authorized an additional project costing an estimated $11,200 and will still have money left in the repair budget.

The approval was given at a special board meeting Monday called to consider an addition to the curriculum as well as the additional president. tional project.

The new project is asphalting of the road south of the high school used as a bus drive and a portion of the bus drive at the Intermediate School mediate School.

the ballot for this year's tax

Erickson said the loss of revenue from a 3-mill levy that expired this year will hurt the school district financially.

On June 11, 1984 voters in the district approved the re-newal of 8 mills, giving the district a total of 23.75 mills.

Erickson said that increased costs from new sewer projects in both Owendale and Gagetown will result in estimated cost increase to the school district of about 1 mill. Erickson told the board that 1 mill generates the school district about $45,000. Erickson said that with expected increases the school will need between $50,000 to $60,000 additional revenues to maintain present programs.

'We've got to make the decision so we can get started," Erickson said, adding that it is important to get the two-year, 134-mill increase on this year's tax

Board member Joseph Warack told the board that he was concerned about informing the public about a millage increase without having a final report from the auditor and without having a total on the sewer costs.

Erickson told the board members that he would explain it to the residents of the district in a school newsletter that would be mailed later this week.

Erickson said that with the increased costs of the sewer projects along with district had to have increased revenues. "We've got to have a little bit of it back," Erickson said.

High school principal Wayne Wright presented to the board members a 1984-85 class schedule and explained to the board that he had one minor problem with the scheduling of classes for three students in the health education program. Wright told the board that these students had a schedule conflict because they attend the health careers program at Laker High School in the morning, and they are unable to take the required government and sociology class because of conflicts with the advanced biology class offered in the afternoon.

Wright told the board that he had catalogs of high correspondence courses offered at the University of Nebraska and Indiana University. He said that the cost of the courses would be about $60 to $70 per class for each student, but that it would allow the student to take the Health Career classes in the morning and the advanced biology class in the afternoon. Wright added that he would personally monitor the examinations.

Board Member Donna Salcido said that high school teacher Arnie Besonen had indicated to her that he would give the students the class as an independent study, and correct the homework for the stu-

"Why put the students through that expense if they can do that right here if the teacher is willing to do it," Salcido said.

Wright said that the teachers already have a full class load of six hours per day, and that they didn't have the free time to do the independent study during the day.

Wright told the board that Please turn to page 18.

Satellite dish sales increase as rural residents seek better television

One of the hot new products in television in the Thumb is the installation of dishes to widen reception and receive pay programning free. The dish sales are mostly to rural areas where cable television is unavailable. The new receivers are also causing legal problems as pay-TV concerns fight to keep programs exclusive to subscribers. So far they have been ineffective.

Stuart Merchant, owner of Sommers' Bakery and Restaurant, 6538 Main Street, purchased a satellite dish last October. He and his wife Joan have discovered many channels providing the shows they

"We watch more good movies by accident. We stumbled across them more than just picking them from the schedule, Merchant said. The program guide itself is almost an inch thick.

Another reason I like the satellite is the Tigers are having such a good year and I can get PASS (Pro-Am Sports System chan-nel). And I do share it with Joan," he said with a laugh.

Merchant added that the satellite dish programming provides more of a choice than the three commercial networks. He and his wife have watched movies, specials, concerts, Walt Disney movies, and he especially likes the 24-hour weather channel.

Two of the unique shows he saw were astronaut Brewster Shaw, formerly of Cass City, blasting off into space on the NASA Contract Channel, and a Mexican bullfight on the Spanish International Network (SIN). Mrs. Merchant said she likes fairy tales, and enjoys "Faerie Tale Theatre" on Showtime. "'It (satellite

Monroe wins GOP nod Donna Monroe has won a split the ticket in primary position on the ballot as a Republican candidate for Novesta Township trustee after approval by the Tus-cola County board of can-vassers last Wednesday.

Mrs. Monroe, of 3560 Phillips Road, Cass City, ran as a Republican write-in candidate for township trustee and received 37 votes. Although most of the votes were Republican, seven were Democratic.

The reason Mrs. Monroe received Democratic votes is because voters cannot elections. They can vote for candidates of one party, but not both, according to Tus-cola County Clerk Elsie Hicks. The board of canvassers examined the tabulation by Novesta Township Clerk Nursie Kloc and declared Mrs. Monroe the winner, verifying she had 30 Republican votes. The other two trustee candidates were Tim Knoblet, 28 votes, and Frank Spencer, 17. Both men are Republicans. Two trustees will be elected.

Firemen quell 3 area blazes

The Elkland Township Fire Department was called to extinguish three fires during the week.

Friday an electric wire broke leading to the trailer home of Marion Agresta on Crawford Road, a mile east of M-81. Jody Fay, a resident, discovered the fire and notified the firemen.

The wire sparked as it lay on the ground and firemen watched to see that it did not ignite the woods or ouildings nearby by until a representative from Detroit Edison arrived to re-

There was no damage.

Monday afternoon a 1975 Plymouth caught fire in the engine area as it was parked with the motor running at Provincial House, 4782 Hospital Drive.

The driver of the car, Mary Ann Adams of Gagetown, told Cass City patrolman Donald Miller Jr., that she turned off the ignition and went inside to visit, but the engine continued to run.

While inside she was informed that her car was on fire. Maintenance workers at Provincial House attempted to put the fire out but were unable to extinguish it.

The car was extensively damaged by the flames.

On Monday at about 6:30 p.m. the Elkland Township Fire Department was called to the William Jones residence, 6575 Pringle Rd., Decker, to extinguish a fire on a 1981 Bobcat loader tractor.

Jones told the fire department that he tried to start the tractor and the motor burst into flames. Jones was not injured, but the tractor, valued at $12,000 was a total loss.

100 attend open house Saturday

An estimated 100 persons attended each day of the two-day 100th anniversary celebration of the Argyle United Methodist Church Saturday and Sunday.

Featured speaker Sunday was Rev. Elizabeth D. K. Isaacs, a former pastor at Trinity United Methodist Church, Cass City, and currently district superinten-dent of the Port Huron Dis-

The open house was held Saturday and attracted visitors from the surrounding area, various locations in Michigan and from other states and Canada.

Wendy Doerr vows spoken in Ubly home

Wendy Doerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Doerr, Germania Road, Ubly, became the bride of Steve Rickett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ricket of Redford, June 30 at the home of her weds Kim Hill parents.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by C.J. Cleland Jr., who was assisted by Eugene Cleland, both uncles of the bride. The ceremony was attended by the immediate family.

Amy Haas of Toledo, Ohio, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Carey Brewisz, Redford, cousin of the groom, was best man.

The bride wore a streetlength polyester dress with a filmy chiffon overlay, featuring spaghetti straps and trimmed in lace. It had a sleeveless lace jacket. She wore a wreath of daisies in her hair.

The bride and matron of both carried bouquets of daisies and baby's breath. All flower arrangements were done by Barbara Anthony, friend of the bride.

An open house reception was held with approximately 175 attending.

The couple honeymooned in northern Michigan and will reside in Detroit, where the groom is employed at Center Tire, Inc., and the bride at White Hall, Inc.

Now that Mike Eliasohn is gone, one thing that will be missed will be our almost daily arguments.

Maybe argue is too strong

Whatever. The last friendly go-around that we had was election coverage. We cover three counties and seven area townships. It's a Herculean task for one person and I pointed out that sometimes I wondered if it was worth it.

There's little doubt that readership won't compare with other stories in the paper.

The argument for the coverage is that the material is presented to the reader to peruse or reject.

Sure, many readers probably take in the headlines and then read the segments of the overall coverage that are of special interest. That leaves a good deal left un-

If you judge it by the number of persons who vote you can make a case that proves over 60 percent aren't interested at all. After all they didn't vote. That's the registered voters. Add in the hordes of residents not eligible to vote and a startling percentage appear not to be at all interested in election re-

That's a fairly strong argument for not using all the blood, sweat and tears that election coverage requires on a small weekly.

Having said that, I confess that Mike had the stronger case. He says that it's a newspaper's duty to present to its readers preelection information and post-election returns.

If the readers reject it, at least the paper has lived up to its responsibility of serving the community.

That's enough reason to cover the election even if election stories never sell a newspaper. When you think about it, there are few stories that appeal to all readers. The sensational murder, natural disaster and similar events probably qualify. That's all.

Not everyone is interested in a major local sports story, for instance. The difference between a good sports story and good election story is that the persons interested in the sports story are many times intensely interested and will buy the paper to read it. That's not often the case when you talk about the latest election.

The kicker is that who won the football game is really not going to affect the way you live one way or another. The candidate you elect to office just might.

That's the reason Mike was right and that's the reason we'll continue that exercise in apparent futility and give you all the local election information we

Donors having group O blood are always needed to maintain the proper supply of blood for patients in the Flint Red Cross Regio Many people believe the myth that group O does not become short in supply because it is so common. "'You don't need me, I'm only type O' is a belief often stated despite our explana-tion that all types are needed," said Dr. Willy F. Mueller, Medical Director of the American Red Cro Blood Services, Flint Region. "At times, O is most precious because so many need it."

There are several reasons for the constant need for O donors. "Since O is about the most common type, it is required by nearly half of patients needing transfusion," said Dr. Mueller. "but in addition. group O is often require for special reasons in otherthan O recipients. These cells can be substituted safely for any other blood group that is in short supply. None of the other three groups can be substituted in this manner."

All healthy people over the age of 17 are urged to give blood, especially they are type O positive of O negative. In Michigan, 17year-olds may now donate without parental permission; persons 66 and over need a statement of health from their physicians.

A Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Cass City at Hills and Dales General Hospital Aug. 21. Hours are 1:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. The Blood Bank is sponsored by the Hill and Dales Hospital Auxiliary. No appointment is necessary and there is rarely a waiting line. It takes about an hour to donate blood. If you have any questions contact Jane Mitchell, R.N.

Hearing determines work on DuColon drain practical

At a public hearing Friday at the Owendale Community Building it was decided that it would be prac-tical to have the Douglas and DuColon Drain surveyed to determine what needs to be done to correct drainage problems.

According to Vernon Rounds, Huron County Deputy Drain Commissioner, the CHM&P Engineering Firm of Flint has been hired to survey the drain and determine what work will be needed to clean out, widen, deepen straighten the drain.

About 15 property owners, who would benefit from the drain cleaning, had petitioned for the public hearing, said Huron County Deputy Drain Commissioner Robert M. Tufts.

The drain is 5.4 miles long, starting in section 16 of Elmwood, west of Hurds Corner Road and south of Hobart Road. It empties into the Columbia Drain near the corner of Bay Port and McAlpin Roads. Because it is an intercounty drain, the board that conducted the hearing consisted of representatives from Tuscola County Drain Commission, Huron County Drain Commission and the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

After the flood, God said to Noah, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made He (Genesis 9:6) and thus was born what we know today as "capital punishment".....the highest function of human government, the right to take another man's life.

There are those today who argue against capital punishment, maintaining it is barbaric and sadistic and that our society is too cultured and humane to stoop to such a mentality. That is tantamount to saying God is barbaric and sadistic since He instituted the sys-

Others maintain capital punishment is unnecessary since it has been proven statistically that killing murderers does not deter crime; that murders are as common in states that have capital punishment as in those that do not. That is an interesting assumption because God Himself ordered the execution of manslayers after the terribly violent conditions of the pre-flood days; I presume because He felt it would be deterrent to violent

Representing Sanilac County at the event will be Julie Vanneste, Brown City, Hollie Jones, Croswell, Tammi Taylor, Forester, Michelle Wedge, Jeddo, Ann Simmons, Deckerville, Audra Levitte, Croswell, Jodi Sheldon and Kim Sheldon, both of Jeddo, and Deann Pierson, Minden

The day-long event will consist of 248 classes with 11 show rings operating at the same time, ranging from Western and English riding and dressage to gymkhana and reining contests.

'The purpose of the event is to give 4-H horse project members a chance to evaluate their horsemanship skills by competing against other youths from across the state," says Diane Wood, Sanilac County 4-H Program Assis-

The show begins at 9:00 a.m. near the MSU commuter lot at Farm Lane and Mt. Hope Road. The event is free and open to the pub-

New books at the library

..AND LADIES OF THE CLUB." by Helen Hooven Santmyer (fiction). The setting is a smallish Ohio community from the end of the Civil War through the Great Depression. The title phrase refers to the Waynesboro Women's Club, founded in 1868 as a literary and intellectual association. The club members and their families are the novel's central characters, among them Anne Alexander Gordon, who marries a young doctor haunted by memories of Vicksburg and Shiloh, and Sally Cochron Rausch, who becomes the wife of a German-born entrepreneur. This perceptive saga is steeped not just in the changing political, religious, and social mores of the period covered, but also in the personal joys, sorrows, and scandals that beat the cadence of life in a midwestern town.

NIGHTSHADES by Bill Pronzini (fiction). An insurance company sends our nameless hero-narrator to northern California to investigate the accidental death, in a fire, of a real estate developer. The developer and his two partners had been trying to rebuild a mining ghost town against the fervid opposition of the town's tiny (16 people) population. Investigating a second suspicious fire, Nameless has solved the case, he's uncovered multiple adulteries, an embezzlement and, of course, murder. He is saved from further peril by some crucial help he gets from his lover, Kerry, not a bad detective herself.

COLOR YOUR HAIR by Peter Waters (non-fiction). Backed by his 20 years of experience as a hairdresser and color technician, Waters has put together an introductory guide to hair-coloring techniques. He begins with the fundamentals of color before providing illustrated explanations and instructions for dyeing the hair using henna, bleach, and other temporary, semipermanent, and permanent colors. Waters is conservative in his views regarding drastic color changes and never hesitates to recommend professional salons for more-involved jobs. The full-page color and black-and-white photographs coupled with clear drawings depicting step-by-step procedures make an informative manual.

Barrow show scheduled

The 1984 Thumb Area Barrow Show will be held Saturday, Sept. 8, at the Cass City Michigan Livestock Exchange. This event is open to all Thumb area swine producers.

The program is designed to allow producers an opportunity to enter some of their hogs in an evaluation show which covers both live and carcass evaluation. The hogs are evaluated live to determine the highest quality market hogs. Then later the hogs are sent to a processing plant where the carcasses are evaluated for muscle percent and health information is obtained. For the producer, this type of information can be very valuable in determining selection of breeding stock to provide the type of hogs that the market requires and will have the highest market value. The health data can aid a producer in determination of the condition of their hogs and aid them in taking action in correcting any unseen problems that could be reducing hog performance and lowering the profitability of the hog enterprise.

Even if you do not enter hogs in the Barrow Show of Feeder Pig Derby, all area producers and ribusinessmen will find this a very worthwhile day. Any interested producers who have not yet enrolled and are interested in taking part in the Barrow Show, registration deadline is Sept. 1. For more information and entry forms contact Dennis Stein of the Tuscola Cooperative Extension Service at 673-5999.

Interested persons may register for the Red Cross CPR class by calling 683-2210 prior to Aug. 23.

HEALTH TIPS First aid training is important

Knowing how to give first aid for an illness or injury is an important aspect of home safety.

Keep a first aid guide handy so that you will know how to use home medical supplies safely and effectively. The American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care is a good resource.

If possible, arrange for first aid training for the adults and older children in your family. The American Red Cross offers classes in or to insect stings. many communities; check your local chapter. A family medical chart

Rotary exchange student

Albee finds Brazilians open, warm

Scott Albee talks with just a trace of a foreign accent in his voice as he remembers 10 months in Brazil as a Rotary Club exchange student.

Scott, who will be 17 July 29, attended the Fundação Educacional de Jahu (Basic Educational School of Jahu), a private school for kindergarten-12th grade.

He is the son of Lynn and Mary Albee of Spruce Street, and will be a senior at Cass City High School this fall.

Jahu is a city of 100,000 in mid-Brazil in Sao Paulo, one of Brazil's 24 states. Brazil is the largest country in South America.

Brazil was at the top of Scott's list when he applied to be an exchange student. "I had a Brazilian living in my house last year, and another Brazilian two years ago through the Brazilian exchange program. I knew about Brazil and how beautiful it was and knew a lot about the (Jahu) school," he recal-

The trip cost him and his parents $1,200 for a roundtrip plane ticket and $1,500 for personal expenses. The Jahu Rotary Club paid his tuition at the private school. He left last August.

CURRICULUM was much like an American school -- chemistry, physics, history, English and government -- but much harder. The classes were taught in Portuguese, the official language of Brazil.

"I think for me it was very hard to learn to speak. I studied a lot, I studied hard. After about a month I could understand everything they were saying. After two months my speech was improving excellently," Scott said.

While learning the language, he kept a Portuguese-English dictionary to look up words the teacher said that stumped him.
Albee attended the last semester of the school's junior year and the first semester of the senior year. The grades in Brazil are similar to American schools, but the classes in the sophomore year, for example, are equivalent to those in the American about their hours, which would like to put his know- but you don't see it. Brazisenior year.

The first couple weeks in Brazil were the hardest, 'getting over the culture shock and food and everything." He said he stopped missing the United States after the first two weeks.

The houses were cement blocks covered with plaster and whitewashed. The weather is hot year-round and the rooms are built to allow plenty of air circula-

Albee stayed with three different families in Jahu, which helped him meet more people.

Few families had back-yards, but many had fruit and vegetable gardens and fruit trees. One family Albee stayed with had four types of bananas, three kinds of oranges, mangos, tangerines, grapes and all manner of vegetables.

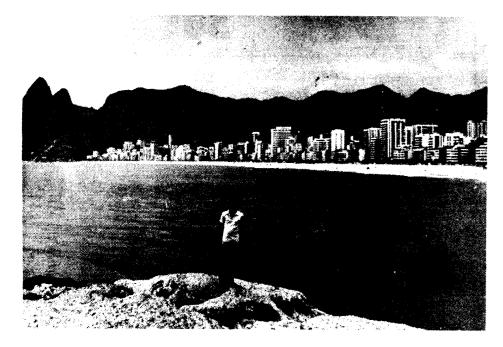

"Everything you could think of and everything you wanted they had. We didn't have to buy any fruit. You'd go behind the house if you wanted any oranges, (and) you picked the oranges," he recalled.

The rest of the food was different from American food. "The food is all different. The food is all natural. You can imagine the open market and they buy it there. The food is really extremely nutritious, tasteful. The food is really good," Scott said.

THE PEOPLE Brazil are different from Americans, emphasizing on affection and family. He found Brazilians to be more open and warm than Americans and had no problem making friends at the private school.

"They (did) have the cliques. Only when they're at school everyone talks to each other and is friendly. They go out and one is one group, one is the other, but they don't shut each other out. One group (will) go out with the other," Scott explained, adding American teenage cliques often exclude people.

Brazilians are liberal

Not alarmed by tornado threat

For Estella Cooklin, the tornado alert last week was not that alarming at her rural home, about two and a half miles outside of Cass she could not tell the difference between the all clear and the alert.

"No," she said, "I didn't know about it until it was all over with. I thought it was a fire.

She said that she thought that the people in town could tell the difference between the different sirens, but out in the country the different sounds are not distinguishable.

She added that the alarm did wake her and her husband Henry up, but they took no special precautions. She felt it would be a good idea to have a different siren sound for the tornado

The highlight of the evening was Ruth Schenck Esau's class history. Thirteen began kindergarten together in the old school building in the '20's. She recalled the influx of ninth graders from surrounding rural schools and the transfer of eleventh graders from ten grade schools such as Deford and Gagetown.

From her diary, Mrs. Esau shared some of the tragedies and many of the funny things that happened during those four years.

There also were the births of Liz Taylor, Sophia Loren, Bridgett Bardott, Van Cliburn, Ted Kennedy, Charlie McCarthy and Donald Duck.

Sutter finds Brazilians enjoy good time

For 11 months Jeanine Sutter was immersed in Brazilian culture and the Portuguese language as a Rotary exchange student.
Miss Sutter, 17, daughter of Tom and Virginia Sutter of Cass City, returned home July 18.

She lived with three different families in Luz, a city of 20,000 located in Minas Gerais state. She attended the Escola Estadual Zico Tobias (Zico Tobias Public School). When she got there, Brazilian students were in the middle of their school year.

Brazilians attend school February November. They get time off in December and January, when it is summer there, and a week in March to attend the nationwide, festive "Carnaval."

"I did not know any Porsaid. "You play charades for the first two months, but by about three months you can get by," she said.

She studied third-year chemistry until the school year ended in November. Miss Sutter took general education classes during the next school year.

She did not receive letter grades because of her status as an exchange student, but was given credit for attendance.

The entire town of Luz closed down for Carnaval, and people dressed up in costumes. Residents sold food and drink on the street to revelers and bands played music in the streets.

MISS SUTTER SAID Brazilian people are warm. When she arrived in Luz she didn't know anyone, but soon she was going to dances and invited to many homes for dinner. "I was invited to everything."

The family homes greatly resembled American homes and had stone and tile floors. Nearly everyone had a maid.

"When you think of maids here (in the U.S.) you think of 'real rich.' But there there's so much a lower class that they (maids) will work for cheap. Every house I stayed in had maids.

'They were real nice. There were two maids in my family. One watched the kids during the daywhen mom and dad were away and the other cooked and cleaned."

Brazil's social classes are also different from the United States'. The middle and upper classes are very small, and the majority of

See less dry bean production

Dry bean production in Michigan during 1984 is expected to total 4.3 million hundred-weight (cwt.), a decline of 6% from last year. This year's crop is expected to be the smallest crop since 1957, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service. Development of this year's crop is nearly two weeks behind normal due to extensive replanting in late June. Dry weather during July has stressed the crop and yields are expected to average 1,100 pounds per acre. This year's yield will be 200 pounds below last year and the lowest since 1976.

Planted acreage of dry beans is placed at 400,000 acres, 11 percent above last season. The current estimate is unchanged from planted acreage published June 28. The August acreage estimate is based on a special survey of about 2,000 growers conducted in mid-July after planting was completed. Acreage expected for harvest this fall should total 390,000 acres, 11 percent above last year.

Acreage planted to Navy beans is estimated at 360,000 acres compared to 300,000 acres in 1983. Planted acreage for all other classes (colored) of dry beans is placed at 40,000 acres compared to 60,000 acres a year ago.

Nationally, dry bean production is forecast at 19.3 million cwt., 24 percent above last season. Production in North Dakota is expected to increase 27 percent to 2.1 million cwt. Production in Minnesota is placed at 672,000 cwt., an increase of 49 percent from a year ago.

Hopes up for eagles

Hope is beginning to soar about the bald eagle's long term prospects. Much of that hopefulness is due to research done at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Patuxent Wildlife Research Center near Laurel, Maryland. The center has the world's largest captive hald eagle colony and can return as many as 20 eagles annually to states where the bald eagle is an endangered species. Over the last two years, the center has received $100,000 from the Du Pont Company to support the eagle propagation pro-

Friday night a Wisconsin team posted a 4-1 decision and Monday a Minnesota nine shoved the Kings to the sidelines, 7-2.

Many of the teams in the tournament had been in the competition before and this experience helped them, King players feel.

Although the elimination was quick, the players enjoyed the trip and the experience. Many of them visited at Niagara Falls on the trip home.

Solutions to settle the controversy over satellite dishes include charging dish users to receive signals and to scramble signals with sophisticated equipment so there's no way people can watch them.

Some station owners like dish users to pick up their station broadcasts, because this boosts viewership and commercial time rates. Ted Turner, owner of Cable News Network and "superstation" WTBS, Atlanta, likes the bigger audience for the advertiser-supported WTBS.

'The ultimate solution may be a form of pay-TVRO (satellite TV)," the Popular Science article said. "Through it, the nearest cable firm or satellite-TV-equipment dealer might rent a low-cost, fully addressable recorder to an earth-station viewer for a reasonable monthly fee.

Big band finale at Ggetown

The Summer Jazz Season closes out this weekend at Sherwood on the Hill in Gagetown.

The Sherwood Jam-IV will be held on Sunday, Aug. 19, starting at 2:00 p.m. Over 30 musicians from all over Michigan will play the music made popular by Benny Goodman, Louis Armstrong, and many more who were famous during the 20's, 30's, and 40's. At 5:00 p.m., the jam will temporarily stop for the return of the 18-piece Sherwood All-Star Big Band. Filled with some of the top jazz musicians in the state, the band will play tributes to such big band leaders as Woody Herman, Stan Kenton, Count Basie, Duke Ellington, and Glen Miller.

"It's a terrible mess," Laycock said. "We have done a lot of cutting here. He said that they have cut the budget by $100,000 this year, adding to the $30,000 they cut last year.

On June 11, voters defeated a three-year 16-mill renewal that was jointed with a 5-mill increase by a vote of 310 to 172. At that election voters also defeated a 1-mill increase that was earmarked for building maintenance and custodian budgets. That increase was defeated by a vote of Laycock said that the Board Fund Equity is now depleted because the board elected to use the money in the fund rather than increase taxes. In 1980 the fund equity had a balance of $352,000.

Vandals damage church

Two Cass City youngsters are suspected to have been responsible for damages to the Cass City First Baptist Church and a vehicle owned by the church.

According to Patrolman Donald Miller of the Cass City Police Department, two windows and a glass door on the south side of the church located at 6420 Houghton Street were damaged. Also broken was the windshield of a 1983 Dodge van owned by the church.

Police said that a BB gun had been used to inflict the damage estimated at $600.

You have $10,000 to invest. You want current income. You have no need to cash in the bonds for a long time. You are in a low inment bonds due, in this example, in 9 years, or you can buy some due in 29 years. Either one will yield you 12.8 percent. (I figured this before rates went up

You will get as much yield, then, from the bonds due in nine years (1993) as you will from the ones due 20 years later, in 2013. Will you buy long ones, or the medium-short ones?

You rush to reply, "The short ones, of course. I get as much income, and there is less risk. I don't have to wait so long to cash them

Bond due

8-15-93

8-15-13

Rate 11.87

Now jump ahead to Jan. 1, 1985. Assume the C. J. Lawrence hit this one on the button, and both bonds sell to yield 11 percent to maturity. The prices then: The short bond, due Aug.

15, 1993 has gone from 95 to The long bond, due Aug. 15, 2013 has gone from 93.5

Percentage gains in eight months (annualized):

Short bonds..Up 15.3%. Long bonds..Up 24.1%.

Of course, if interest rates go still higher, prices will go down more for the long bonds than for the short ones. If it is hard to see why prices change so much more when interest rates change for long bonds over short bonds, take this example: Suppose you had a 12 per-cent bond and it was selling at 100 today, and it was due in one year. By some freak market change, tomorrow rates are such that a new one-year bond pays only 11

It's not that easy an answer. Look at these arguments for the long bonds, due 2013:

The interest rates are locked in. If the present high rates are down . maturity time in 1993, you will have to reinvest in bonds paying these lower rates if you have had the short bonds.

In the Wall Street Journal recently, prestigious analysts at the Cyrus J. Lawrence brokerage firm in New York predicted interest rates would be down from 12.8 percent to 11 p cent by year-end on the bonds we're talking about.

So if they're down to 11 percent, doesn't that mean the 1993 bonds will go up in price, same as the 2013

Not at all. Here are the Yield 5-1-84 Price now 93.5

percent. A buyer, then, could pay you 101 for your bond and still get a yield of 11-12 percent from the coupon minus 1 premium he paid you.

But if your bond wasn't due for two years, he'd pay roughly 102 to duplicate the market price of 11 pecent on new 2-year bonds 1 percent extra for each year, since he'd be getting 12 percent on your higher coupons. Some people are just more comfortable with shorter bonds. But your capital gains that come when interest rates drop is half again as much for the long bonds. (In the case in this article 57 perce more). When you're talking about government bonds there is little difference in marketability. The long ones sell as easily as the short ones. If you want comfort, it has a price tag.

he would rather waive the requirements for these students than have a teacher instruct the students on his own time because they don't have any free time during the school day.

"I would encourage you to either pay the tuition and allow them (the three students) to take the correspondence classes, or waive the requirements for these students," Wright told the board.

Following Wright's request, the board agreed to pay for the correspondence classes, and agreed that upon board approval, any required course that can not be taken by a senior because of scheduling confli will be paid for by the
