County mulls more taxes

At a public hearing Tuesday morning the Tuscola County Commissioners discussed increasing the property taxes that the county presently levies by

At the meeting Chairperson Donna Rayl told commissioners that the county needs the one half-mill increase to continue to fund .ion-mandated county funded programs. She added that without the one half-mill increase the commissioners may be forced to cut non-mandated programs and may be forced to reduce the staffing in state mandated departments. Rayl said that some of the areas that funding may be cut if the proposed one half-mill increase is not approved by the commissioners or is not approved by the voters include the county cooperative extension service, the veterans administration, the building codes office, primary and secondary sheriff's de-partment road patrols, the Medical Care Facility, the road commission and the county library. She said hat money for the road commission and the library comes from federal revenue sharing funds.

"I would be uncomfortable living in this county without a Sheriff's Department road patrol," Rayl said. She added that it is required that the county fund the county jail and other sheriff's department activities, but road patrols are not state mandated.

Rayl added that the commissioners could also look into making personnel cuts in mandated areas such as the county clerk's office and the register of deeds office. She said that the county is not required to have a set number of people working in the office. She added that the amount of personnel working in the office will help speed up transactions so that people will not have a long wait. "There are some counties where you have to take a number," Rayl said about the time spent in offices in Cass City Jaycees and bership Jaycettes want no part of a mixed male and female club despite the recent court ruling saying that an all male club is illegal.

When a court rules on a when a court rules on a case, generally one of the two parties involved will be pleased with the ruling, the other will be forced to accept the decision. But when the U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled that the all male Jaycee Clubs can no longer restrict their membership to men only, both the Cass City Jaycees and their female counterparts, the Jaycettes, were unhappy with the high court ruling.

Both presidents of the local clubs stated that they would have preferred to retain their separate identities. But under the national charter rules, the Jaycettes can no longer retain their separate mem-all male club. Zilwaukee Jaycee President Jack B. Tany said that the Jaycees has traditionally been a "men's night out" and that he didn't want women to join the club. Tany's decision was not based on his opinion alone. At an Aug. 8 meeting members voted 17 to 3 not to allow women to join. This was against the national organization's rules.

Both Howard and Russell agreed that the club meetngs are looked upon as a "men's or women's night out" with members of their own gender. Tany said that he felt the Zilwaukee Jaycees and the Jaycettes were two fine organizations, but that he preferred that they remain separate.

Tany said that at a joint board meeting the Jaycettes made it clear that they would rather join the men than be disbanded. He said that under the national charter rules, there can no longer be a separate Jaycee and Jaycettes club. He said that he asked the Jaycettes if they would be interested in organizing a young women's organization instead of wanting to join the men. They told Tany that they wanted to stay in the organization so that they could continue getting the leadership training that comes with being a Jaycee

Russell said that the Jaycettes have their own community projects that they enjoy doing, such as their plant a tree project where they get small trees and present them to the pre-school and elementary school students. Russell said that the Jaycees have been very helpful to the Jaycettes and that in the past they have worked together on several projects. "We get along good if we just help each other," she said.

One alternative that Russell said is available to them is to start a second Jaycee chapter in Cass City. She said that this way they could retain their own membership.

To burn or not to burn—village appears divided on (hot) issue

MARC WALLACE reads the instructions on his EpiPen, an automatic injecting syringe containing medication that will help him if he gets stung by a bee.

"To burn or not to burn?" That is the question. The question that the Chronicle posed to a strictly unscientific sampling of Cass City residents this week to find out whether the proposed banning of burning in the village meets with the approval of community property owners. Judging by the answers, it's almost sure that a burning ban will delight about half of the town and dismay the other 50 percent.

Most of the persons were against the rich, pungent aroma burning leaves, and many were concerned about environmental pollution from the burning.

The cost of removal with-out burning, and the work required for bagging were cited as primary reasons for continuing to burn.

"I think it (ordinance banning burning) would be a very good thing," Hazel Seeley, 4344 Oak St., said. She added that a lot of people burn trash and that they can smell the fire all night long. She said that as a way of getting rid of the leaves, some people use them for garden mulch.

Thelma Gaydos, 4209 S. Seeger, said that she does not burn her leaves, but as long as there is no danger in the way they burn leaves, such as burning them in driveways, she sees no problem with it. She said that she rakes and bags her leaves for people to use as mulch.

"It gets rather smoky around here," said Sandy Brown, 6328 Pine St. "Sometimes I can't even hang my laundry out." She added that she was brought up in the country and the smoke from burning leaves wasn't a problem, but since she came to the city it has become an annoyance.

Brown said that she would prefer that burning not be allowed, adding that sometimes her house smells like smoke.

"I have lived here many years and I don't think that it is a problem," said Cliff Ryan, 4282 West St. He added that the Department of Natural Resources probably would not agree with

"I don't know how you are going to get rid of all the leaves...there are tons of leaves," Ryan said.

He felt that because most people have their garbage picked up, there isn't a problem with the few people who do burn their garbage. Willard Dobbs, 4234

Maple St., said that trash burning should be prohibited because of possible explosions from some of the cans that may be thrown in

"I am in favor of specific dates and times when people could burn leaves," he said, adding that the weather conditions would have to be right so the fire could be controlled.

"I don't think that people ould burn," Pete should Rienstra, 4543 Oak St., said. He said that the city should get something to take care of the leaves. Rienstra said that he used to burn leaves and other trash, but he re-cently stopped. He said that he takes all his leaves and yard clippings to the land-

Nancy Walters, 4191

Maple St., said that she would be in favor of having the burning banned in Cass City. "It makes me mad," she said about the smoke that gets on her clothes when she hangs them on the clothesline. She said that she felt that it isn't good for the air quality either.

Gladys Agar, 6279 Church St., said that the burning of trash and leaves can be dangerous because some people are not careful about the fire. She added that if it is going to cost a lot of money and cause hardships to people to have everything hauled away, then she would not be in favor of the burning ban.
"I don't know what I would do if I couldn't burn them," Lena Patch, 4150 S. Seeger St., said, adding that it is a lot of work to pick up and bag the leaves. She said that there is no problem with people in her area burning leaves because everyone is very careful.

Hundreds of high-rise windows look down on Lafayette Park. I live at the south end of the park, right next to the swings, slide and monkey bars. Emily thinks I own the park, which isn't surprising. When we play there, we're usually the only people around.

Readers who aren't bored by other people's grandchildren will recall that Emily is almost three years old and that I have solved the problem of making her behave when we are alone together by allowing her to do whatever she wants. That's why I kept hoping no one was watching what I did in the park.

Readers who are bored by other people's grandchildren have my sym-

And on occasion, such as today, I must answer such requests as the one from a Highland Park woman who ordered me to put Emily's photo in the newspaper so the people who have to read about her would at least know what she looks like. Also, today is a good time to answer the request from the Royal Oak woman who asked, "Who draws the great pictures of Emily that appear in your

I explained that the city can't afford to clean its parks very often because public money is short and must be spent on more important things — such as promoting prizefights instead of buying an electric chair to use on sloppy jerks who don't use trash cans.

Anyway, letting Emily do whatever she wants to do means letting her boss me around unmercifully. On this morning, she told me to sit beside her on the end of the slide, with our legs hung over the side. The scenario was that we would about converse weather, politics and other mundane subjects until she suddenly yelled, "LOOK OUT, HERE SHE COMES!" and we jumped clear so her little sister could come down the slide. We did this at least three dozen times. Emily doesn't have a little sister.

Also, at Emily's request, pushed two swings at once. Emily was on one of them and Bert was on the other. This didn't make me feel too dumb, because there really is a Bert. He is a rag doll from Sesame Street, where residents aren't taught to hold on tight while being swung. And every time he fell, Emily gave me hell.

I guess the most embarrassing moment, if people were peeking out their windows, came when Emily, from a hiding place behind a tree, ordered me to push her little sister on the

Every cloud has a silver lining. That old bromide came to mind this week end when it rained all day Saturday and Sunday and much of Monday in the tourist land of the north. It was zilch, zilch, zilch for tourists trying to make the most of the final vacation days.

For the business owners it rained dollars. That's because visitors had nothing much to do except shop and spend. Most owners were weeping all the way to the bank, says

Ron Crandell of Cass City, who, with his brother, Chuck, operates gift shops in Mackinaw City and Harbor Springs.

Rep. Dick Allen is big with bikers. Because of his support in the legislature scores of bikers wore big signs on their bikes proclaiming that this was the "Dick Allen Lansing to Mackinaw" event. Riders appeared in many northern Michigan communities Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Not all the riders were politically aware. The first rider asked about the sign said in effect, Dick who?

This We Believe

How bad is your heart?

Man is a proud creature! Psychologists sociologists maintain we are basically egocentric;

i.e. proud and self-centered. We hate to be wrong and we hate even worse to admit it. This attitude of self-righteousness has been carried over into liberal Christian theology to the extent that many theologians in Christian circles maintain man is actually not a very bad creature, but retains a goodly amount of God-likeness carried over from creation...a so-called "spark of divinity"...that needs only a little fanning of the spark through culture, refinement and education to blossom forth into mature godliness. That sounds good, but it is not true! The Bible is a terribly · honest book; so honest in fact we are often hurt by it. Nowhere in all the Word of God does God ever say anything good about mankind! Not because God is unkind or unsympathetic; but because God can't compliment a totally depraved creature. A few verses should suffice to prove our point:

"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way, and the Lord hath laid on Him (i.e. Christ) the iniquity of us all." Isaiah 53:6.

'The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked..." Jeremiah

Sold

"For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Romans 3:23.

Scores and scores of other texts could be quoted, but they all teach the same thing: man is totally depraved, lost, and spiritually separated from God.

Total depravity does not mean that every person necessarily behaves as wickedly as he is capable of behaving. On the contrary, many people (perhaps yourself included) may exhibit lovely characteristics of kindness, generosity and sacrifice. But because mankind suffers from a bad relationship with God, the Almighty is not impressed with our "good works" and has taken the pains to tell us so. "But we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags..." (Isaiah 64:6.) Also: "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us..." (Titus 3:5) And again, "For by grace are ye saved thru faith, and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast." (Ephesians 2:8, 9).

Man is by nature so totally lost, God, in salvation provides the repentant and believing sinner an entirely new nature by means of the new birth. Peter tells his readers in II Peter 1:4 that they were "partakers of the nature.' Nicodemus, a very religious man and a notable

was told by Jesus, "Ye must be born again." The religion, education, culture and refinement Nicodemus had could not get him to heaven!

One of our leading news magazines carried an interesting article about a year ago from the gifted pen of Isaac Bashevis Singer, an author of many novels and a Nobel Prize winner for literature in 1978 and the recipient of two National Book Awards. Singer says that, "...modern man remains the wildest animal." He says, "I lived in a kind of fear and despair all the time. I read the newspaper every day and see what people are doing to one another, how they kill or provoke others to kill." "People will drink one another's blood," he said. True, but you reply, "I'm not as bad as that!" Oh yes we are! The same depraved nature that indwells a terrorist, a serial murderer, or a maniac dictator like Hitler indwells us, and that is why we need a new nature, and that comes about only by accepting the Lord Christ as one's Jesus Savior. "But to as many as received Him, to them give He power to become the sons of God; even to them that believe on His name.' John 1:12.

If we can help you to reach that big decision, please contact our church. Pastor John R. Wood First Baptist Church, Cass City Adv.

New books at the library

DAU: A NOVEL OF VIETNAM by Ed Dodge (nonfiction). Dau (pain in Vietnamese) is about a young American's struggle to retain, and then to recover, his sanity. Airman Morgan Preston is part of a "Mobility team" that hauls supplies and people around the combat zones. The horrible scenes he witnesses and the injustice of the war itself, combined with the loss of his Vietnamese lover, his sergeant and his best friend, finally unhinge him. Returning to Michigan as a civilian, he enters the psychiatric ward in a VA hospital and suffers a breakdown that includes eating cigarettes by the handful and pacing in a compulsive frenzy for miles in the hallways. Later, in Los Angeles, he finds a job with the parks department, falls in love, gets married. The efforts of his wife and a psychologist to help him bid farewell to Miss Tam, Sergeant Easy and Private Bruckner are movingly related.

THE OUTSIDER by Howard Fast (fiction). Fast chronicles the apparent transformation of Rabbi David Hartman from a youthful, dedicated U.S. Army chaplain, awarded a medal for bravery during World War II, to an outspoken pacifist who puzzles some members of his congregation who support and work toward the escalation of the Vietnam War. Yet Hartman is really the same compassionate person throughout his lengthy tenure as a rabbi to a small Connecticut congregation, which he helped form with 14 families in the late 1940's. It is the world about him, even his family life, that changes remarkably. A witness to 30 years of social and political evolution, Hartman becomes involved when he feels compelled to, during a McCarthy-era witch-hunt, for example, or during the civil rights voter-registration drives.

STEPKIDS: A SURVIVAL GUIDE FOR TEENAGERS by Ann Getzoff (non-fiction). Directing their advice specifically to young adults, two therapists who are themselves members of stepfamilies tackle some of the most common problems associated with second-family relationships, stressing that bonding in new families takes time, effort, and communication. They lend insight into some growing pains new families may experience, explain a few of the problems parents have dealing with instant children, and suggest practical ways teenagers can cope with the situation at hand. They also consider problems kids may have getting along with stepsiblings and fitting in with the family of the parent with whom they do not live.

Detroit site picked for new Mich. prison

By Warren M. Hoyt Mich. Press Assoc.

State and local officials have reached agreement on a site in Detroit for the first of 10 planned prisons at the same time preparations are being made to release prisoners early from the overcrowded system for an eighth time.

A Department of Corrections request for $20,000 to appraise the private property occupying half of the 16-acre site on Detroit's east side was postponed when the Joint Capital Outlay Committee was unable to meet for lack of a

Spitza wins 1st place at State Fair with grapevine wreath

Janice Spitza, Jackson Road, Cass City, won first place honors at the Michigan State Fair for creating a grapevine wreath. Actually, Miss Spitza said, it is a family blue ribbon, as the wreath itself was woven last winter from grapevine by her dad.

It only took four or five hours to finish it off using dried grass and wild carrot, Miss Spitza explained.

The prize winner wasn't the only family entry. A second place was won with a scarecrow, and a basket of vegetables was also displayed.

It took awhile to win a top prize at the fair. The Spitzas have been entering projects for five years.

Unions have good and bad points

Do you think that the United Auto Workers Union is responsible for the increased costs of American built automobiles as compared to the foreign built said.

"I think that it is good (the union) for the work-ers," said Elton Willis. He added that he thought that the cost of a new car is too high, but the cost isn't going to go down as long as they keep labor prices up so high.

Willis said that he belonged to a construction union in the 1940s and he felt that in areas such as pro-tecting the employees from having their job taken away for no reason, the union does a lot of good.

He added that the United States didn't need the imported cars that took over a big part of the car market in the past few years. "Make them over here and give our people some

Second attempt for millage fails at Ubly Schools

For the second time in less than three months voters in the Ubly School District have rejected a two-year, 1-mill increase that was designated for repairs to the school buildings.

At the election Tuesday, 760 voters, less than one third of the registered voters in the district, went to the polls to vote down the proposed increase. The increase was rejected by a 386 to 369 vote. Five ballots were spoiled. At the June 11 election, 763 voters cast their ballots, 325 for the in-crease, 431 against the 1-mill increase.

District business manager Mark Tenbusch said that he was hoping for a large voter turnout because he felt that increased voter activity would be favorable to the millage increase. He said that a large voter turn-out at an election two years ago approved a 2-mill increase that restored bussing to the district.

'They just didn't get stirred up too much," Ten-busch said. "They just didn't get too interested." He said that money from the 1-mill increase was to be used to repair the roofs on the elementary building, the gymnasium and the bus maintenance building.

"We just won't be doing any repairs," Tenbusch said. He added that the repairs on the buildings will have to be done later, when the money is available.

Tenbusch said that at a July 23 school district board meeting the board members indicated that if the millage didn't pass they would not bring it before the voters again.

Tenbusch said that the district currently levies 21.75 mills. One mill generates the district about "It is a lot of work (preparing for an election) and you just hate to have this happen," Tenbusch said.

Quilt histories display at MSU museum

A wealth of thoughts, quilts and the quilters. feelings and history are sewn into the old family leagues Yvonne Lockwood

To recapture and preserve these unique creations, the Folk Arts Division of the Michigan State seeking information about University Museum has launched a major project to gather information about Michigan quilts and quil-

As part of the state's ses-quicentennial celebration, plans call for a major exhibition on campus at the Kresge Art Museum and the MSU Museum, for a book on Michigan quilts and quilters and for the creation of a special Michigan quilt research collection at the research collection at the MSU Museum.

"The goals of the project," says project director Marsha MacDowell, curator of Folk Arts, "are to inventory existing quilts, particularly those made in Michigan, in public and private collections.

"We also plan to collect life histories about past and life histories about past and quiltmakers and to locate and collect, where possible, historical quilt-related materials. These include quilters' diaries, quilting columns in newspapers and magazines, county and state fair records of quilt exhibits and photographs of quilters and quilts."

Quilting, MacDowell says, was the most universal of all of the viewal out.

sal of all of the visual art forms practiced by 19th century women.

"It's been said that women's thoughts, feelings, their very lives were inextricably bound into the design just as surely as the cloth layers were bound with thread," she adds.

Today, quilts continue to be made and the "Back-to-Earth" movement of the 1960s in addition to interest in pioneer crafts and the "country look" has set the stage for the ever-growing interest in quilting, quilters and quilt history. The interest has also led to the formation of the American Quilt Study Group, two national quilt journals, films on quilters, statewide exhibits of quilts, and a play entitled "The Quilters."

The art of quiltmaking also opens up information on family history and serves as a visual reminder of family members and for telling stories about the

ADC RECIPIENTS TOLD TO REGISTER FOR JOB TRAINING

More than one-third of the state's recipients of aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) have been ordered to register for employment and training programs under a new state law which requires parents with children older than six months to apply for the training, the Department of Social Services has

The law took effect July 1 and notices informing recipients they had to apply for training programs were sent to approximately 87,000 AFDC clients.

The total is more than one-third of the total 238,000 families now receiving the grants and officials said most of the state's adult welfare recipients are now required to participate in the Michigan Opportunity and Skills Training (MOST) program to help them become more qualified for jobs. Recipients who are not exempt from participating in the MOST program for other reasons, such as being older than 50 or younger than 16, handicapped, caring for a disabled person or a full-time stu-dent, face being cut off from benefits for three months if they do not comply with the registration requirements.

HEALTH TIPS Warning signals of drug use

from the SURGEON GENERAL C. Everett Koop, M.D.

Drug use by young people in our society is a serious problem. According to government surveys, roughly two-thirds of all young Americans try an illicit drug before they finish high school. At least one in every 18 high school seniors smokes marijuana daily. Even though there have been declines in the use of some drugs, American youngsters still have a higher level of drug use than teenagers in any other industrialized nation.

Experts cite a number of reasons for the decline in the use of some illicit drugs by young people. They point, for instance, to the health risks that accompany drug abuse. Young people are beginning to understand those risks and to reject drug use and users within their peer groups.

Another positive factor is the growing and significant level of parental awareness and intervention. Parents have begun to realize how important a role they can play in preventing drug use among their children. They are asking questions. They want to know, "How can I tell if my child is abusing drugs or alcohol?" They ask, "What can we do?" Parents have to be aware of the early, possible signs of drug abuse, while realizing that some signs may only reflect a normal teenager's efforts to grow up. With that caution in mind, some warning signals of drug use are:

actions and possessions. A new group of friends, especially drug users.

It's rarely easy to tell if your son or daughter is becoming involved with drugs or alcohol, but you can get a pretty good idea by observing your child for a period of time, by getting to know who their other friends are and by talking to your child about the problems that he or she may be having.

Parents who believe that their children are abusing drugs should be straightforward in their approach to the problem. They should tell their children that they are concerned, and they should tell them why. They should point out, in no uncertain terms, that taking drugs is dumb and dangerous, that it can be very harmful to the child's physical, mental and social wellbeing.

If you learn that your child is using drugs, I recommend that you tell him or her that you are opposed to drug use and that you intend to enforce that posi-

To help your child avoid drugs, you need to know something about drugs, yourself. That doesn't mean you have to become a drug expert, but it does mean you should have enough facts to support your views. As early as the fourth grade, your children may have some knowledge of the so-called drug scene. Much of what they learn will be inaccurate, and most of it will tend to glamorize drugs. That's why it's important that you be prepared to set the re-cord straight.

Most of all, parents need to give their children sup-port and help them find ways to say "no" to drug use. Strong family support and relationships with children that are based on trust, mutual respect and caring heip children develop the personal values and self-confidence they need to resist peer pressure to use drugs. Parents should recognize, too, that they set models for their children with their own use of alcohol, cigarettes and prescription drugs.

One of the most proven and potent ways a parent can help is by forming a parent-peer group with the parents of their children's friends. Parents working together can help each other. They can set rules for their children's behavior, make the rules clearly known and be consistent in enforcing them. One of the main reasons kids take drugs is pressure from peers. When parents join together and take a united stand against drug abuse, they are much more effective than they are when they act separately. Around the country, parents are discovering the effectiveness of united action. They are learning that if they work together, and if they make the necessary commitment of time and energy, they can have a tremendous impact on drug

Don't wait until your children are involved in drugs to sit down and talk with them about this most important issue. Do it now and do it in concert with other parents.

A Tax-Saving Breakthrough!

Can husband and wife both have an IRA?

Yes... There's no such thing as a one-per-family IRA limit. IRAs are individual accounts, therefore both husbands and wives can have their own. When a husband and wife each earn separate amounts of personal earned income, both qualify to contribute up to $2,000 yearly in their separate IRAs.

Where do tax benefits come from?

Those who have IRA accounts should always remember that their tax benefits come from two separate sources: (1) the annual tax savings attributable to tax deductible contributions, and (2) the interest earned on amounts invested which remains tax exempt until removed. Postpone taxes on both the money you Federal regulations require subdeposit and interest you earn.

Auctioneers talk at 500 words per minute

An auctioneer, chanting at a lightning 400 to 500 words a minute, can sell a batch of tobacco every four to six seconds, or about 600 piles per hour.

At that rate of speech, the tobacco auctioneer could race through the historic Gettysburg Address in a mere 40 seconds. He could recite the approximately 796,000 words of the standard King James Bible in slightly more than one day. At 500 words a minute, he also could breeze through the U.S. Declaration of Independence in about three minutes and the Bill of Rights in-another 80 seconds.

That's the speed Walter Wilkerson, 50, of Kenbridge, Va., showed taking top honors at the 1983 World Tobacco Auctioneering Championship in Danville, Va.

team had better be in good condition when Tawas comes to town to lift the curtain on the 1984 season Fri-

That's because there are a host of players that will be forced to play two ways, at least early in the year.

We may be able to change some of that later when some of the players gain experience as the season progresses, Schelke said, but for the opener eight players are scheduled to see double duty.

Bryan Beecher will play quarterback and cornerback on defense. Tracy will be a halfback and play

Bill Sontag has been switched to fullback this year, but he'll also be called to fill one of the tough linebacking positions. Todd Sweeney will be a guard on offense and a linebacker on defense. Mike Stevenson will be on the line on defense and play guard on offense.

Scott Rockwell is ticketed at offensive center and on the defensive line. Steve Fox is also set to go both ways.

The team is looking to reverse last year's 27-0 loss to Tawas. The opening game

Coach Don Schelke's Lapp will play cornerback last year was marred by Cass City Red Hawk grid and halfback. Joe Viney Hawk fumbles, a malady Hawk fumbles, a malady that plagued the team much of the season.

It's not likely that Tawas will be as strong as it was last year when the team won its league title and qualified for the state play-

Schelke said 14 of the players that saw action in the opener last season will not be suited against the Hawks this year.

However, he said, Tawas has a strong football prog-ram and fields superior teams nearly every year. They'll be tough, the coach feels, and provide Hawk fans with a key to the strength of this year's Cass City team.

More farm employees this July

During the week of July 8-14, 122,000 people were working on farms in Michigan, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service. This is up about 2 percent (2,000) from the corresponding week a year ago. This total includes operators, ramily members and hired employees working on Michigan farms. Self-employed operators and unpaid family members remained stable at 79,000 workers, the same as last year. Hired farm workers rose almost 5 percent to 43,000 workers. The majority of the hired farm workers (74 percent), were considered less than full time, working fewer than 149

Wage rates for hired farm workers in Michigan continued to rise during 1984. The wage rate for workers paid on an hourly basis rose 7 cents, to $3.97, above the 1983 level. Other wage rates followed suit, as wage rates for field ($3.96) similar increases.

days per year.

Nationally, about 42 per-cent of the hired workers received perquisites such as meals, housing or motor vehicles in addition to the cash wages in July 1984. In July 1983, only 41 percent of the farm workers received some type of perquisite. Data from the 1983 Farm Production Expenditure survey showed that the value of perquisites represented 15 percent of the total national farm and ranch labor expenditures.

The school has been very cooperative, Karen said, adding that one time when they found a bee's nest on the playground, Marc was kept inside until the nest was removed Marc is in the process of going through a desensitization program at the Val-Allergy Clinic in Saginaw, where they have tested him to find out what types of bee stings he is allergic to. At the clinic Marc received 35 injections into his forearm to determine which of the five types of stinging bees he will react to. Marc tested positive to the vellow jacket and the honey bee, the two most common bees in Michigan.

Dr. Jack Goodwin of the Valley Allergy Clinic said that he has treated patients who told him that they have been stung as many as 20 times before, and have never had a problem from it. But suddenly they get stung and develop a reaction to the bee sting. He added that they determine a reaction to be if the individual develops related symptoms elsewhere in the body.

Goodwin said that they have not found any proof that reactions are heredit-

Soon Marc will undergo the desensitization part of the treatment where he will receive a series of 15 injections of bee venom to build up his immunity system so that he can reduce his chances of another severe reaction. Karen said that she was informed that if Marc gets a bee sting he has a 60 percent chance of a severe reaction, but after he has completed the desensitization program his chances of a severe reaction will be about five per-

"I hated the first part where they pricked me so much," Marc said. "It felt just like when I got stung.'

Karen said that she feels that most people don't realize how many people are allergic to bee stings. According to pamphlets that she has, between one to two million people react to a bee sting, and about 40 cases per year prove to be Karen said that her husband found a honey bee nest in an area where Marc plays. "You just can't protect him from everything,' she said.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Second of two articles

In an earlier column we wrote about what a rotten investment a farm is.

We used figures from working farmers, who are trying their best to break even. These men are capable, experienced, with good credit ratings, and they work hard.

They all said you'd have to have 500 acres under cultivation. Smaller farms couldn't support the expensive machinery needed today.

To make the figures easier to handle, we'll put down the costs per acre.

Expenses each year will Income per acre tied up capital: (Again, per Land Machinery

Raw materials (Seed, fertilizer, chemicals)

TOTAL INVESTED $975

On this basis he has made 2 percent on his $975.

Even this 2 percent is not all it appears. First, it is taxable, so compare it with a taxable return of 14 percent which the farmer could get if he invested in some AA Bell Telephone bonds.

Farm investment, per acre, $975 at 2 percent = $19.50. Alternative Bell Tel.

The owner ought to be worth that much himself, surely. Say he sees the light, sells the farm, an works for the new owner at $36 an acre. Add this to the income from his Bell Tel. bonds of $136.50 an acre.

other than himself. The picture is alarming. Already farm land prices are going down. Crop prices are not going up. Labor costs are going up, and s are property taxes, and everything the farmer buys, except fuel. It's bad news for banks with farm mortgages. It's bad news for farmers with their own capital tied up. It's bad news for land speculators. Local governments and rural schools that depend on property taxes had better look ahead. They fac some tough times unless new taxes are devised, and unless they trim their own Beyond that, the political upheaval that comes from bankruptcies and foreclosures could shake the country. The Grapes of Wrath could again be a bumper

All sorts of trouble lies ahead. If you own far, land, sell it, while prices are still pretty good. Let somebody else hold the bag.

Rayl said that the Medi-cal Care Facility, 1285 Cleaver Rd., Caro, is in need of new windows, a new boiler and water heater. Also on the commissioners' list of needed improvements are the roofs on the court house and the annex building, finishing roof repairs on the county jail building and new recording equipment in court room B.

"There is nothing wrong here that a lot of money wouldn't take care of," said commissioner Paul Nagy.

Rayl said that the commissioners need to do a good job of promoting the proposed increase to the public.

A committee is to review the request for the one halfmill increase and report to the commissioners at their regularly scheduled meeting Sept. 11.

All agree, no women in Jaycees

Jaycees it would probably cause some of the men to drop out of the club. He added that they are more than just a social club. He said that they have money raising projects that help out members of the community such as their Christmas food baskets for the poor and contributions to the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation.

"We do have fun, but we do a lot of things to help the community," Howard said. Howard added that if the women want to join they have the right to do so.

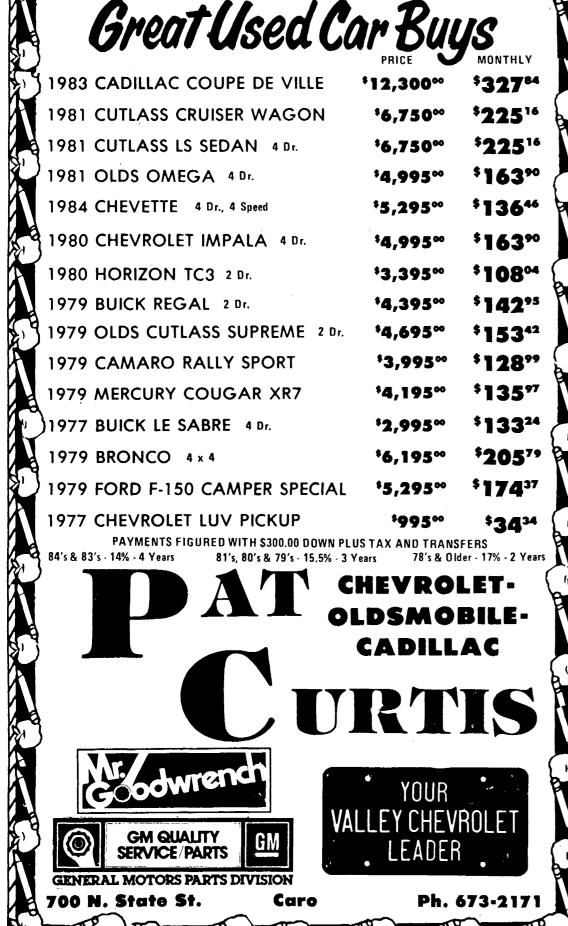

"No women have asked to join. Hopefully they won't " Howard said
