Village updates park plan

The Village of Cass City will hold a public hearing Tuesday, Feb. 26, at 7:00 p.m., to update their recreational facilities plan for the next five years.

According to Village Superintendent Lou S. LaPonsie, to qualify for state grant money through the Land and Water Conservation Fund, the village must hold a public hearing every five years to update the plan.

The last time the plan was updated was Feb. 27, 1979.

LaPonsie explained that one of the improvements that the village is planning on making is to install a new lighting system for the softball field.

The lighting system that is presently being used was donated by Cass City High School. The lights were originally used at the football field. The lights and poles were donated in 1975. LaPonsie explained that of the 12 poles that were offered to the village, nine were used. A test of the poles indicated that they would be solid for about 10 years. He added the village wanted to install new lights last year, but funding was not available.

The entire cost of putting new poles and lights on the softball field is expected to be between $40,000 and $45,000. If the village qualifies for the grant money, one-half would be paid for by the village. The other half would come from the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

The village spent about $20,000 to have the present lighting system installed and hooked up.

LaPonsie said that the lighting system, available from Musco Corp., Muscatine, Iowa, is a much better system than what they presently have. Instead of nine poles, the new system would require only seven.

"If you are going to put in new poles, you might as well put in a new lighting system," LaPonsie said. He added that the new lights would provide a more even light, and would be cheaper to operate. The present system does not have lenses over the bulbs. Bulbs have popped when rain has struck the hot bulb.

LaPonsie explained that when the village last updated their recreational facilities plan, they listed that they wanted to improve the tennis facilities, construct new restrooms, improve the sledding and toboggan hill, and develop a park exercising-jogging trail. All of the objectives have been accomplished.

"I hope that that will speak well for the village when we apply for the grant," LaPonsie said.

Copies of the recreation plan will be available for public viewing at the village hall and at Rawson Memorial Library during the week of Feb. 18.

Courthouse will not open Friday

At a special meeting Wednesday, union employees of the Tuscola County Courthouse agreed to a one-year wage freeze that may lead to the opening of the courthouse doors on Fridays.

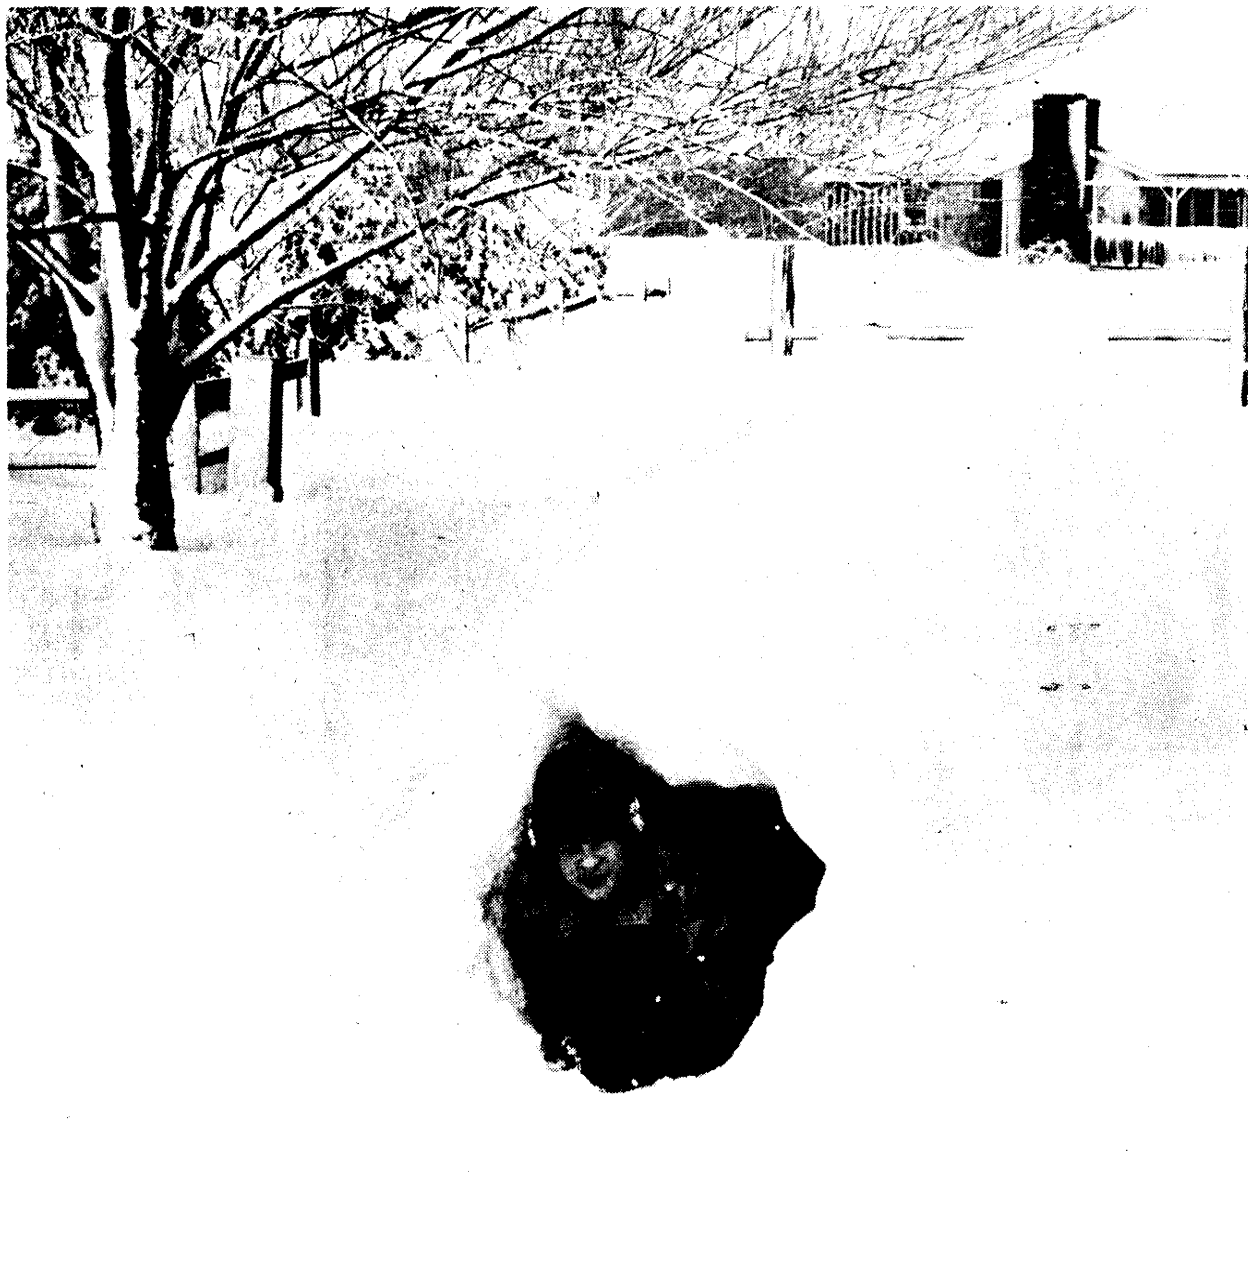

The meeting was called after Karen Nitz, employees' union representative, was asked by county commission attorney Tom Abbey, if the workers would consider extending their present contract for an additional year to get workers back to a five-day work week. The present contract was to expire June 30.

Royce Russell said that he and John Goodchild, the two commissioners on the personnel committee, had requested that Abbey talk to the union representatives to see if they would consider taking a wage freeze.

Russell explained that he and Goodchild were not satisfied with how things have been going since the courthouse has been closed Fridays.

"We as a committee of two asked Abbey to find out if they (the union) would consider a wage freeze. We

Director Don Richards reports

REMC studying 2-way TV system

With school districts throughout the area finding it difficult or impossible to fund special curriculum courses at the local level, a two-way communications program that is being studied may be an alternative that will allow the schools to offer additional courses, and keep the student in the classroom.

Don Richards, director of the Regional Educational Media Center in Cass City, said that with the two-way communications system, a teacher in a Huron County school district could teach courses at other school districts in Huron County, or in Sanilac and Tuscola Counties.

With the system, both the teacher and the student would be able to talk and see each other on a television set. For areas that are serviced by cable television, the broadcasts could be sent and received through the cable. For other areas, service would be provided by a satellite receiving dish. The program would be broadcast by an antenna.

"We have outstanding teachers in our area who are limited with their particular skills to their school system," Richards said. "They should be sharing those skills with other school districts."

Other REMCs in the nation are presently using the two-way communications system. In rural areas, the system has provided additional course offerings to the students, while allowing the schools to keep their own individuality.

"We are not talking about something that might be Buck Rogers in the future. This exists in some places," Richards said.

One system that has been studied, based in Wapello, Iowa, uses the county intermediate school district as a base for handling the broadcasts.

"The ISD is supposed to be the hub of what is happening in their county (school districts)," Richards said. "But there is no reason why they can't go with sub hubs."

Richards explained that by using a sub hub, school districts could communicate directly with each other, sharing courses and other information.

Richards said that by tying into the REMC, professional development to all of the area teachers could be arranged by having college instructors broadcast from their colleges to REMC, and then

Defense rests in murder trial of Melvin Garza

It took more than seven years before any charges were levied for the murder of Robin D. Adams, a 17-year-old Caro girl who disappeared Aug. 22, 1976.

Now, less than two weeks after jury selection began, the first degree murder trial of Melvin E. Garza, 25, Caro, is almost concluded. The trial has been held in Huron County Circuit Court. Judge M. Richard Knoblock is presiding.

Jury selection for the trial began Feb. 5. Opening statements by the defense and the prosecuting attorneys were made Feb. 7.

Monday, Assistant Attorney General Mark Blumer, prosecuting the case, called the last of the prosecution's 27 witnesses to the stand, placing the fate of Melvin Garza in the hands of the jurors.

Tuesday, defense attorney Michael Callahan called Augustine Garza, Melvin Garza's older brother, to the witness stand. He testified that Melvin was with him the night that Adams disappeared.

Closing arguments are expected to be given Thursday. Judge Knoblock will then instruct the jury on how to arrive at a verdict.

Thursday, a "surprise" witness for the prosecution testified that Garza said the police investigating the case were "small town cops, they would never break him - they would never catch him."

Callahan said that the witness, Shawn Zimmerman, a former girlfriend of Garza's, came to the witness stand as a "total surprise" to him.

Zimmerman, a former Caro resident, now of Oklahoma City, OK, began dating Garza about four months after the disappearance of Robin Adams. She dated Garza "off and on" for about six years. She has a two-year-old daughter, fathered by Garza.

During the early part of Zimmerman's testimony, Blumer asked Zimmerman if Garza had shown signs of having a violent temper. Callahan objected. At this request, the jury was excused while Zimmerman testified.

With the jury out, Zimmerman said that during her six-year relationship with Garza, he had choked her about two dozen times. She stated that these attacks had cut off her ability to breathe.

Zimmerman added that when she stopped seeing Garza, he burned all of the photos that she had of him. She explained that Garza did not want other people to have his photograph, and since they were no longer going together, she didn't need the photos.

Blumer explained to Judge Knoblock that Zimmerman's testimony should be heard by the jury because it shows a pattern or a "signature" of Garza's type of violence. He added that Garza's burning of the photographs explains why photographs were missing from Robin Adams' purse after she disappeared.

Other witnesses would later testify that Adams carried her purse everywhere that she went. Her purse was found at the home where she was babysitting when she disappeared. Missing from the purse were the photographs that she carried.

Callahan argued that since there is no evidence of how Adams died, Zimmerman's testimony would not establish a pattern. Judge Knoblock agreed. Knoblock did allow jurors to hear the testimony about Garza burning the photos of himself.

During a cross-examination of Zimmerman, Callahan asked her why her testimony disagreed with a statement given to law enforcement officers several years ago. During that testimony, she said that she didn't feel that Garza had anything to do with Robin Adams' disappearance.

Zimmerman explained that she had just started going with Garza, and that she hadn't known him very long. She added that newspaper articles had improved her memory.

Also to testify Thursday was Vera Adams, mother of Robin Adams.

Vera Adams said she had received a telephone call from her daughter Aug. 6, 1976, asking her to come over. She explained that she was unable to visit Robin because she was babysitting. The following day, Aug. 7, she went to Caro to see Robin. She told the jurors that she was shocked to see the condition of her 17-year-old daughter. She said that Robin's face and hands were black and blue from bruises.

Assault and battery charges were filed by Robin Adams.

Broecker benefit soars over goal

The campaign to send Robert Broecker to Disney World has been an unqualified success, Dorland Kuntz, coordinator of the drive, reported Monday.

The lion's share of the money was raised at a spaghetti supper and bake sale Saturday night at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

In addition, substantial gifts swelled the total raised and made it possible to surpass the money raised a year ago.

This year, Kuntz figures the net receipts will be about $2,700 as compared to $2,600 in 1984.

One substantial donation was received from the Sandusky area. A travel agency called me and said that they have been told to arrange air fare and four nights' lodging for Robert and his parents.

Another person from the Sandusky area said that it's no use going to Disney World without tickets to get in and pledged to buy them, which Kuntz figures will cost about $50.

Another $30 was received from a grocery store in Bad Axe and the Chronicle passed on $60 from interested persons who left their donations at the paper.

Helping Kuntz coordinate the drive was Lana Nichols, who also helped in the first drive.

"If It Fitz...."

Pro choice, for now

By Jim Fitzgerald

In a letter to the editor, Dawn Bellah of Flint responded to my latest anti-blob-sport column like this:

"We can count on Jim Fitzgerald to draw public attention to such atrocities (snagging fish), while at the same time upholding the right of a woman to destroy her unborn baby for any reason, at any time, and by any of several grisly methods. Fishes and furry beasts have feelings, but a fetus is just a blob...even in the face of increasing evidence that these tiny human beings do indeed feel pain."

"As a faithful reader of Mr. Fitzgerald's column, I realize that he is a kind, witty and sensitive person...but I can't understand people who sympathize with an animal in pain, and close their minds to the suffering of the unborn child."

Lately I've been getting a lot of mail like that. It's been at least two years since I wrote one word about abortion, but the pro-life people have long memories, or perhaps a long list, chiseled in stone of every person in the history of the world who ever dared suggest that no law should dictate what a woman must do with her own body.

Many years ago I wrote that some anti-abortionists were so extreme they made a guy feel guilty of murder for breaking a date. Continuing in the same facetious vein, I noted an old saying — "I knew you when you were only a glint in your father's eye" — and proposed pro-glint legislation proclaiming that life begins at perception rather than conception.

Today, I'm sorry I wrote that frivolous stuff, not only because militant pro-lifers never forget or laugh at themselves, but because medical technology keeps shrinking the room for argument. There may well come a time when science will persuade me there is no time when an embryo is less than an infant capable of feeling pain and loss. Until then, I'll continue to be pro-choice in the first weeks of pregnancy.

But what about the soul? That's the question often asked by people who believe human beings have a spiritual existence born at conception, and if there is no physical birth, there will be one more unbaptized soul consigned forever to Limbo, somewhere on the border of Heaven or Hell.

That is a religious belief, of course, and we're all entitled to it. But we're not entitled to insist that the government cram our religion down the gullets of non-believers. And organized religions that denounce abortions should concede there'd be a lot fewer abortions to denounce if they would encourage birth control instead of forbid it, as Pope John Paul II did again last month in Venezuela.

Sophisticated Catholics have no trouble ignoring the pope on artificial contraception, but nations such as Venezuela are full of less urbane people who blindly obey church laws — and keep having babies they can't afford. That's not a crime, as abortion once was, but it should be.

To get back to Dawn Bellah's letter, do I worry more about the pain suffered by a shot rabbit than by an aborted fetus? Of course not. Whenever there is an unborn child that will feel pain or loss, I'm against the abortion. As for the rabbit, when it must be killed to sustain human life, I understand. What I don't understand is people who cause animals pain just for the fun of it.

An unwanted pregnancy may be the result of fun, but no woman has an abortion just for the fun of it. She deserves a lot more sympathy and understanding than she gets from people who bomb abortion clinics or try to make their religion a federal law. She deserves a choice.

That is a religious belief, of course, and we're all entitled to it. But we're not entitled to insist that the government cram our religion down the gullets of non-believers. And organized religions that denounce abortions should concede there'd be a lot fewer abortions to denounce if they would encourage birth control instead of forbid it, as Pope John Paul II did again last month in Venezuela.

The Haire Net

It's not surprising that good people from the three-county upper Thumb area contributed more than expected to help Robert Broecker, the 10-year-old suffering from cancer, realize his dream of visiting Disney World in Florida.

It's not surprising, either, that most of the folks that helped wanted to remain anonymous. They want no publicity for what they do. They don't need to be recognized to have the great personal satisfaction of being able to give a lift to someone in need.

Helping out is the rule, not the exception, around here. There isn't anyone that's been around for awhile that can't recall when spontaneous campaigns sprouted to help out in times of disaster.

Hardly a year passes that a family wiped out by fire isn't helped by concerned neighbors and others.

In time of need good guys come out of the woodwork. Not only for local needs. There's no telling how many dollars have been raised to help the starving in Africa.

That's the good news. The bad news is that the same good folks who come to the front to help the starving Africans may be the same ones who turn away from blacks (or poor whites) in Detroit.

The reason is the perception that the Africans can't help themselves and the poor in Detroit can.

Reinforcing this view are the cheats and the poor who just refuse to try and work. There are too many like this around. But there are also plenty of others who would jump at a chance to work, but just can't find any.

It's human nature to believe that if you have a job, everybody can get one. To believe that you made your own way without help and, by golly, they could too if they tried.

It's too bad that all the needy are tarred by the same brush.

There are plenty of families that need a helping hand. Need it because there is nothing they can do to change things around.

We should look at each of these cases individually, just like we do a neighbor that has fallen on hard times.

And help out as much as we can.

McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

When I first came to the Chronicle about six months ago, one of the most noticeable differences that I saw was that I would be working in the front window. At the newspapers I was always stuck in the back of the office, hidden from the public's view.

My first day I kept thinking "Here I am, in front of God and everyone." Now, six months later my thoughts are, "Here I am, in front of God and everyone."

Paranoia lasts a long time. Each day when I arrive at my perch overlooking Main Street, grab a cup of coffee and jam another sheet of paper in the typewriter, I feel a little less noticeable.

I guess it is like being at a public meeting and half-way through the orator's speech you realize you have to go to the bathroom. When I stood up, I used to feel that everyone was watching me.

One day I finally realized that if someone else gets up and leaves halfway through, I don't stare at them. After a few trips to the can, the thought of getting up doesn't bother you. Now at church I can always pick up my son and carry him out with me. Everyone thinks that I had to leave to meet one of his needs. It's a great ploy.

During the day I don't mind being in the front window. I have even thought about contacting a men's clothing store to see if I could model one of their suits during the day. I figure that as long as I am on display, I might as well pick up a few extra bucks working mannequin. I do watch myself to make sure that I am not doing any of those disgusting little habits that a person does when he doesn't think that anyone is watching. Several times I have looked up to see a face gazing through the window. Instantly I begin to think about what I have been doing for the past few seconds, wondering if I have been scratching myself someplace where I wouldn't want other people to know I itch.

At night time it is a different story. I feel like I must look like a sore thumb, sitting in the window of the only store front on Main Street with its lights on. It is quite a thrill to be working away, then look up to see a kid's face pressed against the glass.

I hope mooning doesn't become popular in Cass City.

"It is always the impossible that happens." French Proverb

ENERGY SAVINGS - Old windows at the Owen-Gage High School were covered up, and two new windows were installed on the south side of the high school to help cut down on heating costs. School officials said that on cold, windy days, the two rooms were difficult to keep at 60 degrees before the energy saving measures were completed.

10-year-old Gagetown girl struck by vehicle

A 10-year-old Gagetown girl was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital Friday, after she ran into the path of a vehicle at 7:25 p.m. Another child was also struck by the vehicle, but was not treated at the hospital.

According to the report, filed by Cass City Police Officer Donald Miller Jr., Michelle H. Schmidt, 18, 7051 Hadley Rd., Cass City, was northbound on Seeger Street, approaching the intersection of Main Street. The light was green. Witnesses said that the two children, Debora L. Powers, 10, 7559 Bach Rd., Gagetown, and Ryan J. Brinkman, 4, Lampton Rd., Cass City, ran into the crosswalk. The don't walk light indicated that they were not to cross.

The vehicle driven by Schmidt struck both children. According to witnesses, the children were with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Roemer, 8045 Bach Rd., Gagetown. The two children had run ahead of them. Powers was taken to the hospital by the Cass City Ambulance Service. Officer Kenneth Schott reported that James C. Vernier, 17, 4788 Hospital Dr., Apt. 7, Cass City, was treated and released from Hills and Dales Hospital after he struck a snowbank Sunday at 11:20 p.m.

According to the report, Vernier was westbound on Chestnut Blvd., attempting to turn onto Hemlock Lane. He was unable to make the curve on the snow covered street and struck the snowbank. Vernier took himself to the hospital.

Police Chief Gene Wilson reported that there were no injuries Monday in a two-car accident near the intersection of Seeger and Third Streets.

According to the report, Judy A. Gardner, 26, 2249 Hartsell Rd., Elkton, was attempting to turn north onto Seeger Street from Third Street, when she lost control of the vehicle on the snow covered road surface. She crossed the center line of Seeger Street, and struck a southbound vehicle driven by Cynthia L. Bader, 27, 4717 Hospital Dr., Cass City. The accident happened at 2:50 p.m. Both vehicles were driven away.

Officer Miller reported that Tamara A. Maschke, 24,

1723 S. Van Dyke Rd., Bad Axe, backed into a vehicle owned by William R. Klinkman, 34, 3711 Cemetery Rd., Cass City, as she was attempting to free her vehicle from a pile of snow. According to the report, Maschke was exiting a parking area next to the Parkway store, 6703 Main St., Cass City, when her vehicle became stuck in the snow. She backed up, striking the Klinkman vehicle. There were no injuries reported in the Feb. 8, 10:15 p.m. accident.

Ubly schools seek millage increase

At an Ubly School Board meeting Monday night, the board agreed to hold a special millage election March 26, to request two additional mills.

According to Business Manager Mark Tenbush the two-mill request, to be levied for four years, will be used to purchase at least five new buses, and for major repairs to the school buildings. A one-mill request was voted down by the voters at a millage election in September 1984. The district levies 22.9 mills.

The board also agreed to extend the school year from June 5 to June 11 to make up for school cancellations because of weather conditions. The school year may be extended even more if additional school closings are required.

Former Agriculture Agents Missionaries share Zairean experiences

Four years ago Mike and Mary Score's agricultural concerns were how to help Huron and Tuscola County farmers cope with crop problems common to Michigan's Thumb area. At that time Mike was a cooperative extension agriculture agent for Tuscola County. Mary worked as an agriculture agent for Huron County.

Three years ago their agriculture concerns changed from area crop problems to adapting to agriculture methods in Zaire, Africa. They had decided to become missionaries and work with agriculture agents in the central African country.

Mike said that he and Mary felt that they could best serve God by helping others overseas. They were accepted by the Mennonite Central Committee to serve as missionaries in Africa. The Mennonite Central Committee receives funds from several church denominations.

Mike explained that because they didn't have a background in tropical agriculture methods, they worked with the local agriculture agents, offering encouragement and moral support, and helping them coordinate team efforts with the local villagers.

They also kept busy helping local ministers teach the Christian gospel.

Mike added that unlike Ethiopia or South Africa, Zaire is not a country faced with mass starvation or political turmoil. The area that they worked in was served by a small hospital and a public health service. He said that malnutrition was not a problem for the children of Nyanga, the village where they stayed.

"We felt that the people in Zaire could be just as happy as the people of North America," Mike explained. He added that the people receive a great deal of joy from their relationship with other people.

The Scores had to learn to speak French, the official language of the country, and Kipende, one of the 250 tribal languages spoken in Zaire.

In the area where Mike and Mary lived, all of the farm work was done by hand without tractors or other mechanized equipment. Mary explained that women did about 90 percent of the field work. The men cared for the livestock and hunted. Farm property is not purchased.

When new farm land is needed, the forest is hacked back, the soil tilled and planted. Mike added that a large farm in the area would be five acres. The people grow the food for their own personal needs.

The mainstay of the Zairean diet is the manioc, a root crop similar to a potato. After harvesting the manioc, it is soaked in the river for three days, dried and pounded into a mash. The manioc is then mixed with ground up millet, which Mary described as being similar to bird seed, and cooked. Mike explained that this is served as a filler dish, similar to how Americans serve potatoes. Chicken and beef are the common meats served.

Other farming techniques that the Scores had to get accustomed to were growing of pineapples and bananas. The local tribesmen also dug fish ponds from which they harvested fish to eat.

Mike explained that Zaire has four seasons each year, two dry and two wet. During the dry season, when no crops could be grown, the people turned to a different food source, caterpillars.

Mike said that caterpillars were "like manna from heaven." They came when the people needed another food source. Mary said that the women picked the caterpillars from the jungle trees, popped the head off and squished the inside out. The caterpillars were then boiled in palm tree oil and eaten.

Mike added that when he first arrived, he would not eat the caterpillars, but he eventually grew to like them. He said that they tasted similar to a type of sausage.

The Scores became interested in local customs, traditions and crafts, which pleased the local people. Mike grew his own garden, wove baskets and produced charcoal. Mary learned to adapt to cooking traditional meals on a wood cook stove and over an outdoor fire. Their drinking water, which came from a river near the village, had to be boiled for 20 minutes before they could drink it. He said that failure to boil the water before drinking it resulted in illness to the couple.

They did not have a television or electric lights. The couple did have a shortwave radio that they occasionally listened to, but news of the outside world had little impact on the area. They received Time and Newsweek magazines. Delivery of the magazines took at least one month, and issues were often five months late in arriving.

"One thing that I grew to prefer was the simpler life style of the village," Mike said. He added that the larger cities of the country were developed, international cities.

The Scores will be returning to Zaire in 1986 for another five-year stay.

Agriculture and Natural Resources Week planned for March 18 at MSU

Farmers' Week and Natural Resources Days at Michigan State University, March 18-23, has been renamed Agriculture and Natural Resources Week. The change better reflects the increasing diversity of the educational programs being offered during what has become one of MSU's major winter outreaches to state residents. "This move is in keeping with the evolution of the 70-year-old event, which began as a series of institutes that trained farm leaders in seminars held in 67 counties," states Tom Thorburn, ANR Week coordinator.

The seminars mirrored earlier efforts in 1875 to extend research results to farmers. The popularity of this effort and subsequent program expansion moved the series to campus in 1914, where it was structured under the name of Farmers' Week, Thorburn says.

Just over three decades later, the addition and enhancement of programs related to Michigan's natural resources warranted a name change for the event, which is now the nation's longest running land-grant university event of its kind.

Under its new name, Farmers' Week and Natural Resources Days, the event attracted additional participants from Michigan business and industry who were eager to learn about Michigan's potential in such areas as forestry, Great Lakes water management, oil and gas exploration and biotechnology.

"ANR Week will allow us to continue to provide the kind of educational programs that will most benefit the state's agriculture and natural resource base," Thorburn says. "This year, for example, a sizable portion of ANR Week will focus on the beneficial relationship of recreation, tourism and agriculture -- part of the effort to diversify Michigan's economic base," Thorburn says.

This program expansion is not coming at the expense of the more traditional agricultural programs. "Like those who participated in the seminars held in counties during the 1800s, farmers can still learn about new livestock and crop production practices," Thorburn says. "That's the policy of ANR Week -- it maintains its roots while reaching new audiences in the best of the land-grant tradition."

Details of the more than 200 sessions offered during ANR Week are in a free guidebook available from your county MSU Cooperative Extension Service office in Caro, states Bill Bortel, county Extension Director.

Young Dairy Couples to compete in MMPA contest

The excitement of annual Outstanding Young Dairy Couple competition sponsored by Michigan Milk Producers Association (MMPA), focused on the Detroit area Feb. 5-6 as 11 young couples from MMPA districts throughout the state vied for that honor.

The couples earned the right to compete in the statewide contest by being selected by fellow dairy farmers in each of 11 MMPA's geographic districts.

Selected from the area were Edward and Lillian Sergeant of Vassar from district nine and Terry and Grace Hassler of Sandusky, district eight.

MMPA annually sponsors the Outstanding Young Dairy Couple contest to develop future leadership for the association and to identify for other MMPA members where the leadership potential lies.

MMPA is a milk marketing cooperative owned by some 5,700 dairy farmers statewide.

HEALTH TIPS Is your home making you sick?

Making homes airtight for winter has become increasingly popular since the continuing escalation of fuel costs. So the American Lung Association of Michigan asks: Is your home making you sick?

Most people are unaware that sealing their homes "keeps out" the cold but also "keeps in" the pollutants. Researchers have found that air pollution can be greater inside than outside the home.

Whether a dwelling is an apartment or a house, indoor air pollution from such sources as microwave ovens, charcoal stoves, gas ranges, insulating material and aerosol cans can emit toxins that cause potentially dangerous health hazards. Tips for controlling air pollution in your home are:

See that your gas range is fitted with a hood fan that vents pollutants to the outside. If that's not possible, keep a window open and use an exhaust fan while cooking.

Don't use your gas oven to heat your home.

If the tip of your gas range burner flame is yellow or orange instead of blue, have the range adjusted.

Have your gas or oil company regularly inspect your furnace, gas water heater, and gas clothes dryer.

If possible, convert your gas appliances from pilot light to spark ignition.

Make sure stoves and heaters are vented to the outside and are crack-free.

Never cook with charcoal inside your home.

Open the fireplace damper before lighting a fire and keep it open until the ashes are cool.

If you use a kerosene heater, burn a low-sulfur fuel, fill the heater outside, and keep it clean and properly adjusted.

Never use a kerosene heater in a closed room or overnight or where there are susceptible people.

Reduce formaldehyde by increasing ventilation, by using an appropriate air cleaner or heat exchanger, or by covering sources of the gas with appropriate coatings and sealers.

Check with your state or local health or environmental protection department or with the geology department of a nearby university to determine if there are sources of high radon levels in your area. If there are, call in an environmental professional to test radon levels in your home.

Kick the cigarette habit. Refuse to allow smoking in your home. At the very least, reduce cigarette smoking by using an air cleaner or by opening a window and using an exhaust fan. Note however that many of the inexpensive "desk top" cleaners are relatively ineffective in removing gases and small particles.

If you have any questions about how you can make your home a safe place for breathing, call the American Lung Association of Michigan toll free at 1-800-292-5979 or write to ALAM, 403 Seymour Avenue, Lansing, Mich. 48914.

Fire Chief Jack Hartwick estimated the loss at $1,000 to the chimney and another $1,000 in smoke damage.

There won't be any crash building program in the Owen-Gage School District until the Board of Education is certain the existing sanitary sewer system can be used with a new high school building. Board President Ronald Good told the dozen citizens who attended the meeting that he would not favor taking any action until he saw written assurances from state officials.

Rawson Memorial Library will be having a children's Valentine story hour Saturday. Mrs. Edward Scollon will be doing a puppet show and stories and games are being planned by library assistants Doris

Bad Axe game rescheduled

Vassar stays in Thumb B race with 64-45 win over Hawks

Maybe it was a good thing that Tuesday's scheduled game with Bad Axe was postponed because of the weather. The Hawks appear to be in a mid-season slump and a day off may give the team a chance to get back on track. The game will be played in Cass City Tuesday, Feb. 26.

The sorry week for Hawk fans started Friday when the Hawks entertained Vassar which has lost only to the Lakers in Thumb B Association competition.

The first time the teams met, Kurt Bliss was on fire and the two teams traded baskets to the wire before the Vulcans edged Cass City, 52-47. Friday it wasn't nearly that close as the Vulcans jumped off to an early lead and were ahead all the way to post a 64-45 decision.

The Vulcans scored the decisive victory by taking a page from Cass City's playbook. In most games the Hawks post a healthy margin on the free throw line, getting more shots and making a higher percentage than their opponents.

Cass City got to the free throw line for just 13 shots and made 9. Vassar paraded to the foul circle for 31 shots, making 24.

The first quarter set the stage for the game. Using balanced scoring the Vulcans netted 10 points. Cass City scored just two field goals, one by Bryan Beecher and the other by Dave Miller.

The Vulcans used outstanding free throw shooting to take a commanding lead by intermission time.

Vassar converted seven of eight tries from the charity stripe. Paul Walz hit two of them and added three field goals for eight points in the 8 minutes. The best that the Hawks could do was to pick up four free throws by Dave Miller and two buckets each by Beecher and Kurt Bliss.

At the half, the visitors were in command, 27-16. Cass City managed to chop a point from the total in the third period and trailed, 39-29, going into the final quarter.

Trying to play catch-up in the final period, Cass City fouled repeatedly and Vassar repeatedly made the most of the free throw opportunities.

Walz converted 8 in a row and was a perfect 10 for 10 for the night.

The Vulcans had three players in double figures. Walz scored 22. Jeff Tyson, big burly center, netted 18, and Aaron Fletcher scored 12.

For Cass City Miller scored 16 and Beecher, 10.

The Vulcans also took the junior varsity game, 54-48.

Eagles fly by Bulldogs, 77-56

The Owen-Gage-Decker-ville game Friday night was not a repeat of their Dec. 28 contest when Owen-Gage won 87-79 in overtime. Friday, the Bulldogs went down to defeat at the hands of the Eagles, 77-56.

"I think our confidence is gone," said Coach Dean Roller. The Bulldogs jumped off to a game winning performance in the first quarter, leading 19-13. The Bulldog lead disappeared in the second period when the Eagles outscored them 19-10.

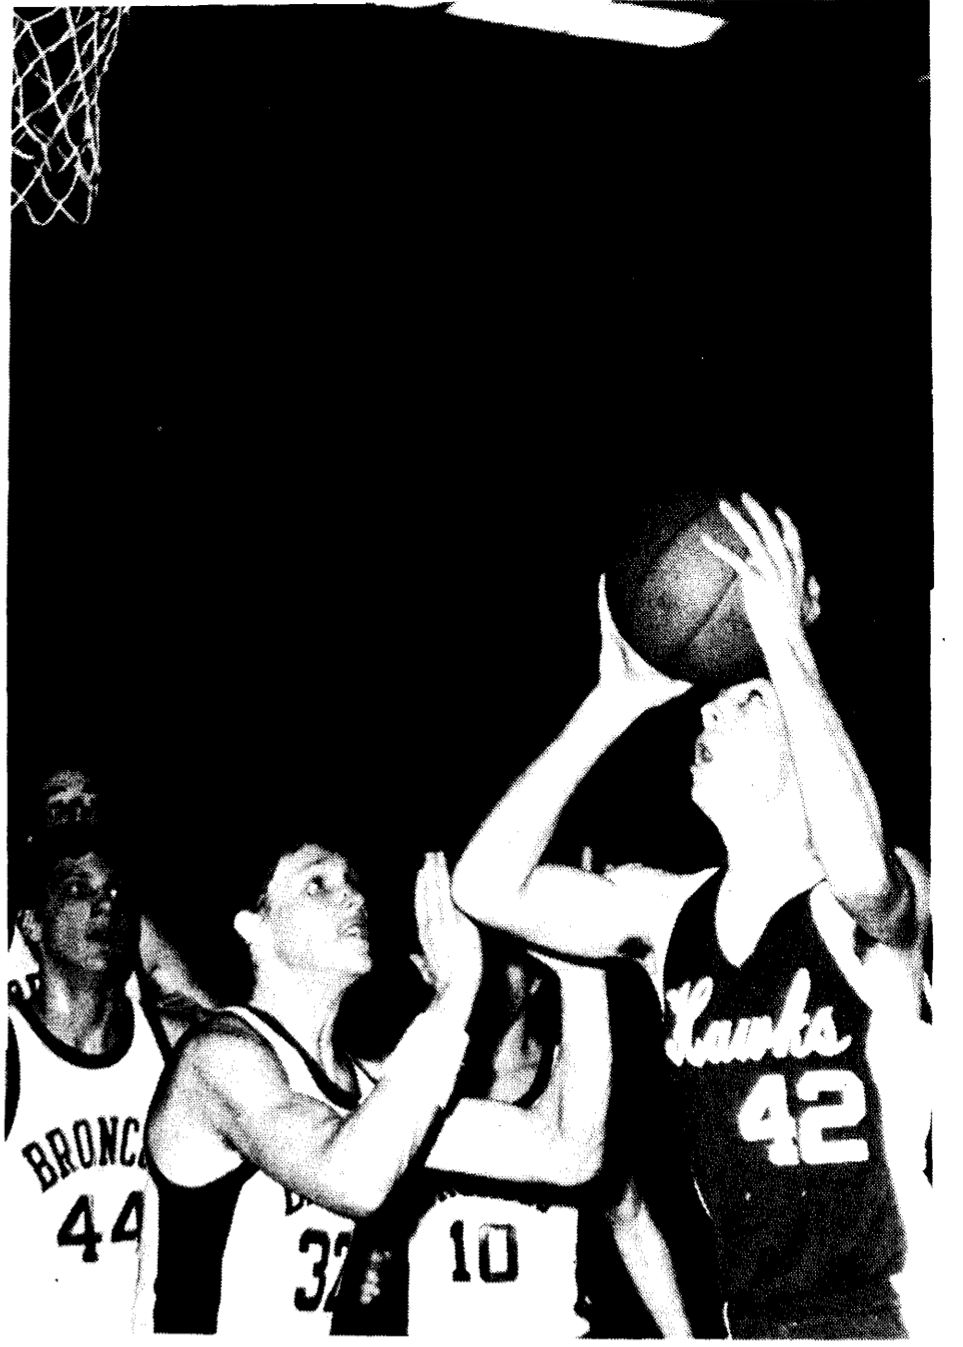

Roller explained that in the first quarter they were able to get inside and score a lot of their points on short shots. The Eagle defense shut them out of the key area in the second period, and Owen-Gage was unable to hit from the outside. In the third quarter the Bulldogs were able to score only two field goals. The Bulldogs hit on 21 of 62 shots from the floor and sank 14 of 24 free throws.

John Shope led the Bulldogs with 17 points. Reid Goslin scored 10 points.

The Eagles were led by Duane Geiger with 30 points.

The Bulldogs will play at Akron-Fairgrove Friday. Saturday they will host North Huron. Tuesday they will play Harbor Beach at home.

DAN WARE is intent on stuffing in this rebound against North Branch Saturday. The Broncos' Willie Deshetsy, 44, and Jim Shelton watch the action.

Hawks grounded by Bronco defense

The North Branch Broncos avenged an earlier defeat by the Cass City Red Hawks Saturday posting a 59-50 decision over the Hawks in a Thumb B Association game played at Cass City.

It wasn't a game to write home about for either school. Turnovers were frequent and neither team was shooting especially well.

Neither team was able to put together a smooth working offense in the first quarter.

Cass City was bothered by a half court trapping defense that the Broncos used to counter Cass City's patient offense.

North Branch used its defense to jump off to a 14-6 lead in the first five minutes of the game. The Hawks finally solved it for some easy baskets and ended the quarter tied, 14-14.

The Broncos streaked for six unanswered points to start the second quarter only to have the Hawks come charging back with a six-point rally of their own to knot the score at 20-20 with 4:45 left in the half.

That was the last time that Cass City was even. North Branch ran off eight unanswered points and walked off the floor at the intermission with a 32-25 lead.

The Broncos added to the lead in the third period and then held on for the win in the final quarter. Dave Miller did his best to get the Hawks back in the game in the final eight minutes, scoring eight points with six of six from the charity stripe and one field goal.

The Broncos had three players in double figures. Willy Deshetsy, 15, Jim Shelton, 14, and Ed Ruhlman, 11, were the top scorers.

For Cass City, Miller scored 15 and Beecher added 12.

The Junior Varsity game was much more exciting for Hawk fans. Cass City topped the Broncos, 46-45, in overtime.

Hawks 6th in Thumb B meet

Cass City finished sixth in the Thumb B Association meet held Saturday as the Caro Tigers dominated the action, winning comfortably over second place Bad Axe.

The results were: Caro, 218½; Bad Axe, 169½; Marlette, 111; Lakers, 92½; Imlay City, 71; Cass City, 53½; Vassar, 35.

Winning points for Cass City were: Anthony Moran, third in 98-pound class; Mark Kappen, third in 126-pound class; John Lebioda, third in 138-pound class, and Bob Walters, second in 198-pound class.

In a meet held at Bad Axe Wednesday, Feb. 6, the Hatchets overpowered the Hawks, 60-15.

Taking points for Cass City were Anthony Moran, a pin; Mark Kappen, a decision, and Bob Walters, a pin.

Walters and Kappen were also two of only three winners as Millington topped Cass City, 54-12. Walters scored a pin and Kappen a decision. Mike Miko also won a decision.

Insulate water heaters

Adding a fiberglass insulation blanket around an inadequately insulated hot water heater can be a significant saver of energy and money, too. A fiberglass insulation blanket prevents heat loss and could cut your annual electric bill by about 400 kilowatt hours, saving you an average of $30 per year. If you have a gas hot water heater, the insulation blanket could save about 36 therms of gas annually and reduce your gas bill by an average of $25 per year.

Cardinals win two games to get back on winning track

The Kingston Cardinals bounced back from their first loss of the season to Mayville last week, by beating Akron-Fairgrove Friday night, and Caseville Saturday.

The two wins give the Cardinals an 11-0 league record and a 13-1 overall record.

Friday night against Akron-Fairgrove, the Vikings slowed down the pace of the game during the first quarter, waiting for the best possible shot. The score was tied at six points each for almost three minutes before the Cardinals finally broke loose for eight quick points.

"They did what they had to do to make it a good game," Coach Mike Schreiber said about the slow first period. The final score of the game was Kingston 64, Akron-Fairgrove 46.

During the second and third periods the Cardinals opened the game up and outscored the Vikings in the two periods 40-21. In the fourth quarter, against Kingston substitutes, the Vikings scored 16 points to the Cardinals 10.

Larry Smith led the Cardinal attack with 19 points. Dave Green scored 18 points. Brad Widger sank 12 points.

The Junior Varsity won 58-40.

CASEVILLE GAME
Saturday night against

Caseville, the Cardinals had an easy victory, winning 76-53.

Again Kingston had a slow start during the first quarter. The period ended with the score tied at 16 points each. During the second period the Cardinals pulled ahead, outscoring the Eagles 16-10.

Coach Schreiber said that Green and Smith both had a good night. Together they accounted for 47 Cardinal points.

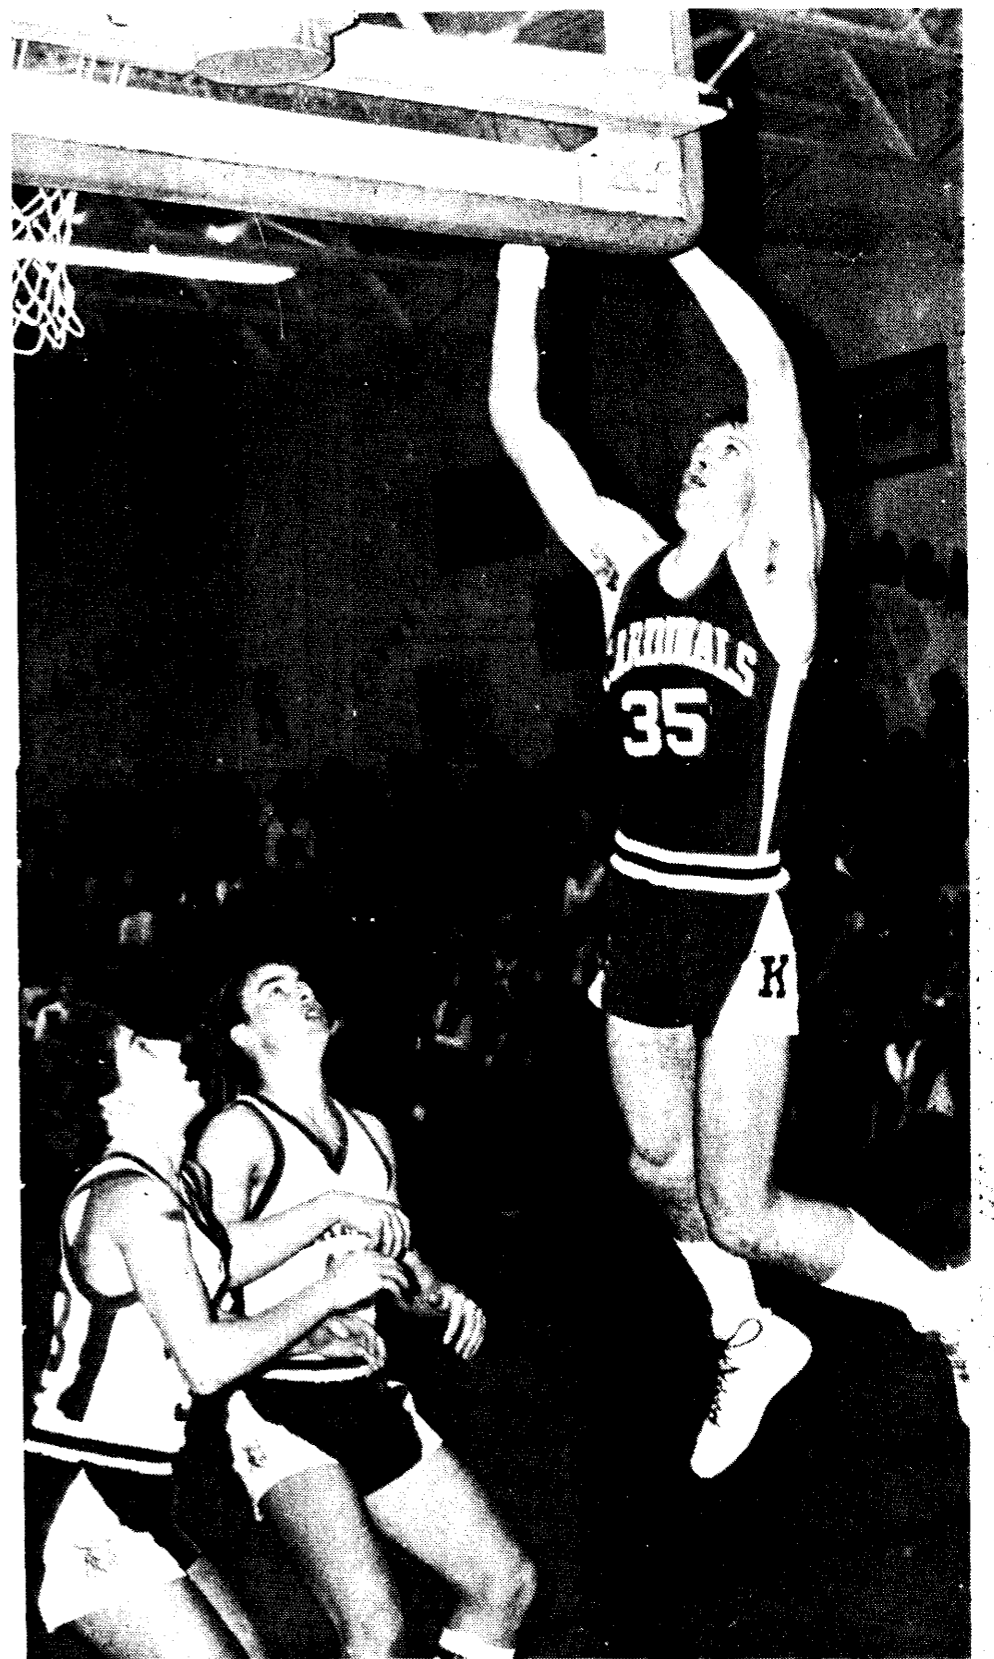

Schreiber added that during the early part of the season he played the pair on the same side of the key on offense. He has since switched them to opposite sides of the key to make it more difficult to double-team the high scoring pair.

Smith scored 24 points. Green hit for 23 points. Mark Reehl was the only other Cardinal to finish in double numbers. He scored 10 points.

Kingston shot 42 percent from the floor, and sank 14 of 24 free throws.

The junior varsity won 70-52.

Kingston will play Port Hope Friday at home. Tuesday they will travel to Kinde to take on the second place North Huron Warriors.

THE THUMB D League's leading scorer, Larry Smith, Kingston, shows why he, and his team, are in first place. Smith scored 19 points against Akron-Fairgrove Friday night.

Valentine's Day had bad start

Valentine's Day may be our most romantic holiday, but, say experts, it didn't start out that way.

Then, scholars say the original St. Valentine was one of three Christian martyrs, all named Valentine, beheaded in the Third Century A.D. One fell in love with a jailer's daughter, to whom he sent a love letter signed, "From Your Valentine." Another theory suggests Valentine's Day became associated with lovers because people in the Middle Ages believed birds began to mate on February 14. By 1773, English settlers brought the holiday's customs to America, along with special Valentine's "writers"—booklets containing poems and messages, to be copied onto decorative sheets and sent to friends and lovers.

DNR tips on ice safety

This is the time of year when anyone who ventures out on the ice should be thinking about ice safety, stresses Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Law Enforcement personnel.

Early winter freezes and thaws render ice unsafe for any type of traffic, particularly in December and January, and as temperatures rise, in March and April. "In 1983 alone," says Frank Opolka, Chief of DNR's Law Enforcement Division, "12 Michigan residents lost their lives in ice accidents; in 1984, DNR reports show six fatal ice accidents occurred in Michigan."

What constitutes a safe depth of ice is difficult to state. While three inches of ice on a farm pond may hold a person with little danger, that same three inches on a moving stream or a lake with springs, stumps and currents, could be very dangerous. On the great lakes, one step from three foot thick ice may lead the next step to nothing more than skim ice.

The following measures are suggested to reduce the risk of ice accidents:

- 1) Do not drive on ice.
- 2) Test the ice continually with an ice spud or similarly heavy bar or staff, especially for ice skating and ice fishing.
- 3) Stay away from stream mouths and lake inlets and outlets.
- 4) Be suspicious of gray or dark spots in the ice. These may be soft areas. Note: ice deteriorates along shoreline and around pilings and docks first.
- 5) Rescue gear should be available. A ladder is a good tool and at least 50 feet of good line, a tree limb or even an article of clothing can save.
- 6) If you work on ice, two large spikes carried on the body can be used as a hand hold in the ice when crawling from a hole.

Those who can avoid ice travel, should do so, says Opolka, particularly snowmobilers, cross country skiers and snowshoers who can enjoy these sports on solid ground. In 1982, four snowmobilers traveling on a lake and unfamiliar with the conditions, crashed through the ice and drowned.

If travel over ice is unavoidable, as in ice fishing or is work-related, some of the factors that should be weighed are: type of ice, recent weather, a person's own knowledge of conditions and area, and the body of water you are crossing.

What do you do when you go through the ice? Opolka offers these suggestions:

- 1) Turn on your back and kick to work your way out of the hole; your clothes will offer some flotation.
- 2) Get out of the ice in the direction you walked on.
- 3) Do not stand, rather, roll away from the hole until you feel you can safely stand.
- 4) Work fast, you have just minutes before the cold water will affect your reasoning.
- 5) Your clothes will soon freeze; walk to safety quickly. If you are going to your car, remove your keys before they freeze in your pocket.

What do you do when assisting someone who has fallen through the ice? Stay on solid ground; avoid getting on the ice if possible. If a person must assist from the ice, they should lie flat and spread their weight as much as possible. Rescue gear (ladder, rope, tied around victim, etc.) should be utilized.

A person removed from cold water may appear to be beyond help, but still may be successfully resuscitated. Start cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and transport immediately to a hospital.

Ice sports are very much a part of Michigan's winter recreational scene, says Opolka, and stresses not to be afraid of the ice, but instead, respect it by taking the proper precautions for a safer, more enjoyable winter.

Your neighbor says Subdued beer ads would be better

Should beer and wine advertisements be shown on television?
Roger Hurley said that the advertisements would be all right if they were more subdued. He explained that with all of the athletes advertising for the beer companies, young children may get the idea that drinking helps a person become someone.
"If they want to advertise, don't do it with the impression that it is going to make a person someone that he isn't," Hurley said. "As far as I am concerned, drinking won't motivate someone's life. You should have total control of your senses. If you're drinking, you don't."
Hurley thought that a good way for the companies to advertise would be to say that this program is brought to you by, and then give the name of the company.

Hurley feels that with subdued ads, the kids would realize that the product is there, but it would not glorify people drinking. "You are always going to have someone drinking," he said.
Hurley and his wife Janet have four children. They live at 6530 Main Street, Cass City.

Garza's fate soon to be with jurors

Adams against Garza. Illegal entry charges were also filed against Garza by Robin Adams Aug. 19, 1976.

After filing charges against Garza, Robin and her mother went to the Tuscola County fair.

Garza was also at the fair. Vera Adams told jurors that Garza was following her and Robin around. Robin Adams told Garza she had filed assault and battery charges against him. "She was adamant about prosecuting Melvin," Vera Adams said.

The next day Vera Adams received a telephone call from Garza. She explained that part of her job as a live-in babysitter was to answer the telephone for a salesman. She was to tape record all conversations with clients. A tape recorder was hooked to the telephone.

She taped the conversation with Garza.

Despite Callahan's objections, the tape recording, about 25 minutes long, was played to the jury.

During the conversation with Adams, Garza explained that he was upset with Robin's drinking, smoking and leaving the house for three or four days at a time. Garza said that he "beat Robin for her own good."

"That's no reason to beat up my daughter," Adams said. Adams, and other witnesses that testified later, said that they had never seen Robin intoxicated, nor was there ever any evidence of wild parties at the house. On the tape, Garza stated that he had seen wine bottles strewn throughout the house. He added that he had seen Robin drink six bottles of wine during an afternoon.

During the conversation, Garza told Adams that he was going to leave Robin alone. He added that Robin should move back home. "She is gonna get into trouble now, there are no boundaries," Garza said about the freedom that Robin had. "Something is going to happen to her," Garza said. "Someone's going to hurt her."

Adams described her daughter as a "happy go lucky" teenager before the beating she received from Garza. After the beating she was upset whenever she had to be alone.

At this point Blumer introduced a letter from Garza to Robin Adams stating that he was leaving for Canada. The letter was dated Aug. 20, 1976.

Adams said that after receiving the letter her daughter was not as frightened to be alone. Robin Adams disappeared Aug. 22, 1976.

MR. AND MRS. Keith Little were selected as the King and Queen of the Sweetheart banquet sponsored by the Novesta Church of Christ. (See story on page two, section one).

REMC studies new communications system for Thumb

send the broadcast to the individual schools.

Another advantage would be that teachers, by using the communications system, could reserve video cassette programs offered by REMC.

Richards said that by having all of the programs listed on the computer at the REMC, teachers could review all of the cassettes available, and reserve the one that they want. This would eliminate the cost of producing catalogues.

Because there is not a community college based in the three-county area, college courses could be broadcast to the local districts where residents could attend classes. Richards feels that this would be a benefit to local industries who are interested in having employees take management courses and other educational programs.

The cost to purchase a complete setup for an individual school, including a transmitter, receiver, camera and a recorder would be about $30,000. The equipment could also be leased.

If existing cable lines are accessible, the cost would be less.

"When you consider what this is opening up to the students, this is not a lot of money," Richards added. "The end result is it will be a service to the student."

The cost of equipping all of the 28 locations in the three-county area would be about $4 million. This would be for a complete system, with two-way communications between the schools.

Richards feels that $4 million, as compared to the budgets of all of the school districts in the three counties, is not that much.

"If we can get communications going in the form of education, we are really going to have an impact on this area," Richards said.

He added that it will take a lot of cooperation between the school districts. That will require breaking down some of the barriers that they have put up.

Courthouse offices to remain closed on Fridays not sure when they would discuss the wage freeze.

"I know one thing, they are not going back to work (this) Friday," Russell said.

Abbey explained that he was representing the personnel committee of the commissioners. The request to extend the contract has not been before the board of commissioners.

Nitz, an employee of the prosecutor's office, said that she and Rick Kloor, area representative for the courthouse employees, met with the personnel committee in December. At this meeting they presented two alternatives that they felt would return the workers to a five-day work week.

One alternative was for all county employees, including elected officials, department heads and sheriff's department employees, to take a three percent wage cut. The second alternative was to open contract talks early to negotiate a new contract.

The commissioners rejected both alternatives.

In a letter to the union representatives following the December meeting, they were informed that the commissioners would wait until the end of the first quarter of 1985 before deciding on what course of action they would take.

Since the first of the year, several of the county offices have been closed Fridays. Workers in these offices have been placed on a four-day work week. There was a layoff of one full-time employee and one half-time employee. The reduction in manpower was to cut down operating expenses.

"We were surprised to hear from them," Nitz said about the commissioners' request for a wage freeze. "Apparently they reevaluated their position."

"We are just extending it (the contract) for one year to get the people back to work right away," Nitz said. Usually union contracts with the county run for two years.

Nitz said that when the one-year wage freeze was put to a vote of the membership, it was passed by a "close vote." To be ratified, the proposal had to have at least a 51 percent majority vote. Nitz added that the agreement with the commissioners does not have an agreement that there will not be a layoff. The previous contract also did not have a no-layoff agreement.

With Tuscola County already in the midst of a budget crisis, the county commissioners can now expect an additional loss of revenues. This time the loss will come from fees generated by the District Court.

Effective Feb. 1, District Court Judge Richard Kern adjusted the formula for the distribution of funds from the fees assessed by the court. Last year, 40 percent of all the fees assessed were returned to the county to pay for District Court expenses. From this 40 percent, about $20,000 extra was generated above court required expenses.

The remaining 60 percent went to the county library fund.

This year, after Kern adjusted the formula, 65 percent of the fees assessed by the court will be distributed to the county libraries. The remaining 35 percent will go to the county to pay for District Court expenses.

"I will assess enough to pay for the court," Kern said. He added that it is his duty to adjust the formula, and he has always generated enough revenue to pay for court expenses.

At a November County Commission meeting, Kern informed the board that he would adjust the formula, if his salary request is not considered.

"I won't deny that the board and I are at a dispute over my salary," Kern said. During previous interviews Kern has stated that he is the lowest paid District Court Judge in the State. He receives $48,025 per year. Circuit Court Judge Patrick Joslyn receives $61,285. Probate Court Judge Wallace Kent receives the same salary as Kern, but Kent receives about $2,000 for per diem work in Circuit and District Court each year.

"I work just as hard as he (Kent) does, if not more," Kern said.

Kern added that his wages are paid totally by the state. The county contributes more than $11,000 of his wages, which are reimbursed by the state.

Kern explained that a few years ago the county paid $6,000 of his wages. Since then, the state changed the formula for paying District Court Judge salaries where they reimburse the county more than $11,000 per year. Kern explained that instead of adding the additional wages to his salary, the county kept the $6,000.

Taking stock

Synopsis: Fred and Sally, the Georgia couple we met a few months ago, have a fierce desire to have truly golden years when they retire some 25 to 30 years hence and were about to supplement their IRA accounts with other investments.

Late last summer they started a plan to ensure they'd have $100,000 a year in cash income at age 60. It would mean salting away $10,000 a year for the next five years -- but five years only.

We'll call the update...

across some tax-exempt zero-coupon bonds issued by a Macon, Georgia, housing authority. The project was one of FHA-insured mortgages and had an A rating. And the coupon, or rate of interest, was a fat 11.5 percent.

They bought $6,000 worth of the bonds. When they come due in 2009, they'll pay $100,000. That's right -- over 16 times the original investment, and this in 25 years, when Fred and Sally will be 60. Meanwhile, there are no interest payments. While the bonds are earning, interest at 11.5 percent, it accumulates and compounds until the final payoff.

By putting aside such delights as a new car and maybe a bigger condo in this year of 1985, they will reap $100,000 in pure, tax-free cash 25 years from now. The lovely things that $100,000 will buy for them, when they're 60, this far-seeing couple is now buying for six cents on the dollar.

As time goes by, we'll follow the fortunes of Fred and Sally in this column. Don't go away.

Chapter III

First, they paid off the mortgage on their condominium, so they no longer have any payments to make each month. The mortgage was down to $17,900. They offered the man who held the mortgage $15,000. A compromise was made at $16,000. Net saving was $1,900. Cash talked.

Their IRA accounts, started some time ago, were invested partly in funds of common stocks. Naturally, they were bought as "Growth Funds." Trouble was, last year or so, they stopped growing. Dividends reinvested were only 4 percent.

Assume the assortment of stocks stayed level and dividends were compounded at the four percent level. In 30 years, the $4,000 in that IRA fund would become $13,000.

They plan to switch that into some zero-coupon CATS or TIGRS, which are government bonds. Now their yield is 11.5 percent and is guaranteed to stay at that level.

Their $4,000 in these government zeros will become $104,786 in 30 years. Compare that with the "Growth Fund" figure of $13,000 if it grows no faster than it did this last 15 months.

The next move they made was one that Fred just had to phone me about, he was so happy about it, he and Sally had come

Last summer we told of a dumb tax law which, said that regardless of the interest rate when you bought a piece of property from someone, the IRS would assume a rate equal to 110 percent of government bonds.

Since many states have laws that a land-contract type of sale has a ceiling of 10 or 11 percent on such deals, you'd be breaking either a state or a federal law whichever way you went.

Senator Robert Dole writes me (and a number of others) that this has been corrected for deals up to $2 million. If the transaction states 9 percent interest, that will be accepted. If no interest rate is stated, then the IRS will impute a 10 percent rate.

That's more like it.

Court refuses to order prisoner release

The state Court of Appeals has refused to order Governor James Blanchard to invoke the Emergency Prison Overcrowding Act's provisions for early inmate release, however, the attorney seeking the order said he may file for an order by the Supreme Court.

A three-judge appeals court panel dismissed the suit for lack of jurisdiction, but offers no discussion. The cited cases date back to 1874 which ruled the judiciary does not have the authority to interfere with the determinations of a coordinate branch of government.

Douglas Mullkoff of the National Lawyers Guild, who filed suit on behalf of an inmate in the Huron Valley Women's facility, said the Governor's refusal to declare an overcrowding emergency, despite a finding in December by the state Corrections Commission that prison populations exceed capacity, was putting prisoners in jeopardy.

Attorney General Frank Kelley, who had ruled the Governor was not required to authorize prisoner releases, said the appellate ruling was "clearly a victory for all law abiding citizens. The Governor is taking swift action to increase prison capacity, clearly there is no reason to release any of these dangerous felons out onto the streets."

In refusing to sign an emergency order, which would have reduced minimum prisoner sentences by 90 days, Blanchard told the commission it had the administrative ability to deal with the problem.

No immediate relief is in sight for the women's 477-bed system, which as of Jan. 9 contained 531 inmates.

But the Department of Corrections plans to begin moving about 20 prisoners a week, beginning about April 1, to a 240-bed facility created by converting three vacant buildings at the Department of Mental Health's Coldwater Regional Center for Developmental Disabilities.

The men's 12,453-bed system, which includes 140 beds added earlier this year at Camp Tuscola, now contains 12,570 prisoners, but department spokesperson Gail Light said that number will be reduced in early to mid-February when the state will begin placing some in the Detroit House of Corrections.

The city plans to have removed its prisoners -- about 800 -- by the end of February while it and the state negotiate a purchase agreement.

House by Representative William Bryant (R-Grosse Pointe Farms).

Bryant said the amendment allows citizens to petition for a referendum on any changes to taxes, including closing loopholes, changing rates or creating new taxes.

A referendum would either have to be held within 75 days, or as part of a general election, if one is scheduled within 60 to 90 days after petitions were certified.

The amendment would also stipulate that the change to the tax would remain in effect during the time prior to the referendum, unlike the current constitutional provision which prohibits legislation from taking effect until the referendum.

The amendment would not affect appropriations.

For the amendment to go on the 1986 ballot it would have to be approved by three-fourths of both houses.

Bryant, however, said he would begin a simultaneous petition drive to help assure that the proposal goes on the ballot. For the petition drive to succeed, it would require 304,000 signatures from registered voters.

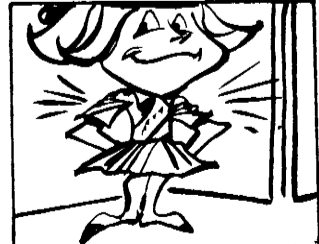

Pigeon youth injured

A three-year-old Pigeon boy was injured when a car in which he was riding with his father struck a United Parcel truck, Feb. 7 at 1:55 p.m.

According to the Michigan State Police, Bad Axe post, the boy, Jonathan L. Fritz, and his father, Rodney L. Fritz, 27, 6256 Richardson Rd., Pigeon, were eastbound on Richardson Road at the Gaggetown Road intersection when a UPS vehicle driven by Sally J. Nicholas, 30, 2138 N. Cemetery Rd., Deford, pulled out in front of the Fritz vehicle. Fritz was unable to stop in time on the snow or ice covered road surface.

Jonathan Fritz was the only person injured in the accident. He was admitted to Scheurer Hospital, Pigeon, and released the next day. He was not wearing a seat belt.

Officers issued Nicholas a ticket for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Joslyn sentences Caro woman on drug charge

Monday, Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick Joslyn sentenced a Caro woman to one year in the county jail after a jury found her guilty on a charge of delivery of LSD.

Janice M. Donovan, 25, 401 Weeden Rd., Caro, was also sentenced to a three-year probation term, and ordered to pay a $1,000 fine and $500 court costs. Judge Joslyn agreed to a work release program for Donovan where she will be released to go to work Sunday thru Friday from 10:40 p.m. until 7:50 a.m.

The charges stem from the sale of LSD to a Tuscola County Sheriff's Department undercover officer Aug. 5, 1983, at her Caro residence.

Also Monday, Judge Joslyn sentenced Burton Coleman, 31, 4850 Center St., Millington, to three years' probation, and ordered him to perform 174 hours of community service.

Coleman had pleaded guilty to a charge of possession with intent to deliver marijuana. He was originally charged with a July 26 possession of a short barreled shotgun, and possession of marijuana.

Joslyn stipulated that if Coleman does not complete his community service requirement, he will be sentenced to 180 days in the county jail, with credit given for 13 days already served.

He was also ordered to pay $500 court costs and a $600 fine.

Judge Joslyn also sentenced Alan L. Wisenbach, 25, 2322 Remington Rd., Caro, to 90 days in the county jail, with credit given for 34 days already served. Joslyn stipulated that the rest of the jail sentence is to be spent in a residential treatment program.

Wisenbach had pleaded guilty to a probation violation charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol Sept. 9, 1984. He was originally placed on probation Jan. 7, 1982, on felonious driving charges.

Judge Joslyn accepted a guilty plea from Brian K. Bables, 18, 145 Andy St., Vassar, on charges of breaking and entering of a store.

Bables was originally charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny and resisting and obstructing a police officer.

The charges stem from the Dec. 6 breaking and entering of Ted's Market, Vassar. Bables was arrested after police followed his footprints through the fresh snow to his Andy Street address.

Sentencing has been set for March 18 at 1:30 p.m. A $15,000 bond continues.

Monday, District Court Judge Richard Kern ordered James K. Watros, 2900 Phillips Rd., Cass City, to pay a $208 fine and $117 court costs after a jury found him guilty of operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Watros was arrested by Michigan State Police Trooper Oren Johnson March 14, 1984, at 2:45 a.m.

Watros was also ordered to pay $60 restitution to mental health screening. His driver's license has been suspended for six months.

Curriculum night at Intermediate School

Thursday, Feb. 21, from 6:30-8:00 p.m. the Cass City Intermediate School will host an "Investigating the Curriculum" night. This is a special event for parents and community members interested in information on how the four basic subject areas of math, science, language arts and social studies are being taught in grades 5-8.

Parents and others attending "Investigating the Curriculum" are asked to register first from 6:30-7:00 p.m. at the south door of the Intermediate School. At this time they will be assigned to groups, according to their child's grade level and classroom teacher (in the case of fifth and sixth graders). At 7:00 p.m., participants will begin hearing 15 minute presentations by different subject area teachers. "Investigating the Curriculum" will conclude at 8:00 p.m.

In addition to subject area presentations, parents and community members are also invited to three other activities that will be taking place from 6:30-7:00 p.m., in different rooms at the Intermediate School. The final round of The Lawrence Institute of Technology Spelling Contest will be held in the Cafeteria. The winner will be representing Cass City Schools at the Regional Spelling Contest. The annual Title I Book Fair will also be held during this time in Room 2, and the Library will have computers and displays for those interested in trying their hand at programming, sampling software and viewing students' computer projects.

Parents and community members with questions regarding "Exploring the Curriculum" should call the Intermediate School at 872-2147.

Two area DNR officers receive awards

Michigan Department of Natural Resources Conservation officers, Timothy Burke, Caro, and Juris Didrichson, Sebewaing, were two of seven officers in the state to receive the distinguished DNR Employee Recognition Award for exceptional performance and service to the department.

The two officers received the award for their acts of heroism and courage while being fired upon in a high speed pursuit of poachers. During the Oct. 20 pursuit of poachers in rural Juniata Township, Officer Burke was struck in the mouth by a bullet fired by someone in the poachers' vehicle. The officers' description of the vehicle led to the arrest of Steven Simon on charges of aiding in an attempted murder, and aiding in a felonious firearm charge.

Burke was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw. He was released three days later.

At a Feb. 7 award presentation, Didrichson and Burke were commended on their alertness and calm reactions during the pursuit. From their detailed description of the incident, an apprehension of Simon resulted.

Sooner or later, the serious runner goes through a very personal experience that is unknown to most people. Some call it euphoria, others say it's a flash of joy or a sense of floating as you run. While the experience is unique for each individual, it is a milestone because when it happens, you break through a barrier that separates you from casual runners. From that point on, there is no finish line. You run for you life!

The chiropractors at the Sebewaing Chiropractic Life Center understand that feeling. The demand for our services has been so great that we have had to run to keep up with it.

For us there is no finish line either. We will never stop trying to deliver the best chiropractic health care to you so that your health and life expression improve every year.

Beating the competition is relatively easy

But being better today than you were yesterday is a never-ending commitment. The doctors at the (Sebewaing Chiropractic Life Center) appreciate the trust so many of you have placed in us. We are committed to constantly upgrading our level of service to the community. Thank you for your trust.

Our Policy:
How It Can Help Your Family

When we urge you to try Chiropractic FIRST, it is because we know that we can help you regain and maintain good health.

We have a highly skilled professional staff and a competent, caring office staff.

We understand that finances can be a problem, and will work with our patients toward affordable care.

We offer a family plan available for those not covered under any re-insurable insurance policies. There is no limit to the number of family members. However, all members must come in the same day, not necessarily at the same time.

We perform a thorough, comprehensive examination, utilizing the most up-to-date diagnostic equipment to locate the exact cause of your health problems.

We communicate with our patients: we explain your X-rays and diagnosis, and discuss your course of treatment with you, openly and understandably. Often, we design exercise and diet programs for the individual patient.

We are committed to the principle of care for the total family, from infancy through old age.

So what are you waiting for? Call today for an appointment, and turn your life around!

How to learn more about chiropractic

Sebewaing Clinic offering free spinal screening exam

When Drs. Vincent and Patricia Scelfo opened their practice in Sebewaing in February 1983, their goal was to enable the largest possible number of patients to enjoy the benefits of Chiropractic care.

Shortly after opening, they began a series of Wednesday evening Life and Health Talks to inform the public about Chiropractic and how it could help their health problems. Because of the large turnouts and increasing interest about Chiropractic, Drs. Vinnie and Patricia started giving their talk on Wednesday afternoon also. They now hold their Life and Health Talk every Wednesday at noon and 6 p.m.

These Health Talks answer basic questions that every person wants to know about their health problems. It discusses the importance of the spine and nervous system in relationship to health and disease, and also includes a question-answer period.

Recently, Drs. Vinnie and Pat decided that it's not enough to just explain Chiropractic. They are now instituting a program that can demonstrate whether or not a person has spinal distortions which may be producing nerve interference regardless of whether they feel good or not. Immediately following every Life and Health Talk, the Sebewaing Chiropractic Life Center will be offering Spinal Screening Tests. The screening exam is not an x-ray, but a series of tests designed to detect the presence of vertebral subluxations and nerve interference.

“If you have ever wondered whether Chiropractic could help you, here's your chance to find out, without any cost.”

No appointment is necessary. Just attend either Life and Health Talk, held every Wednesday at noon and 6 p.m., and the Spinal Screening Exam will be performed immediately following.

At the conclusion of the tests, we will discuss the results with you as to whether or not more extensive tests and x-rays should be done or whether you should be referred to another health care profession.

“This is a chance for everyone to find out about Chiropractic-how it works and what it can do. Many people wonder what Chiropractic is like. It's not a mystery-it's a simple, natural, painless means of helping the body to heal itself.”

*(Spinal Screening Exams are offered following Wednesday Health Talk only)

What happens when you have a vertebral subluxation

A vertebral subluxation occurs when one or more segments of the spine are misaligned from their normal positions, decrease the size of the openings where the nerves emit, thus interfere with the transmission of nerve impulses from the brain to the body. This interference prevents the organs and systems of the body from functioning as they should.

Pain and other symptoms will tell you that certain systems are not performing properly and are a good indication that you have a vertebral subluxation. However, even though symptoms will give you a clue as to a possible malfunction in the body, the actual changes associated with vertebral subluxations can occur without your even being aware.

LOW BACK VERTEBRA

Normal Disc
Normal Nerve

The way your back should look.

The bone structures you see here in the side view of a normal low back (lumbar) are "vertebrae." Separating each vertebra is a thick, cushiony pad called a disc. The purpose of the disc is to absorb shock. This normal alignment allows best mobility, shock absorption and nerve transmission.

STAGE I OF A VERTEBRAL SUBLUXATION

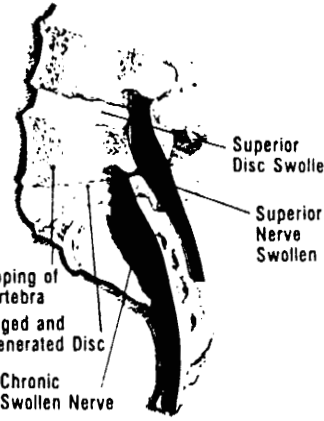

Swollen Disc
Inflamed and Swollen Nerve

The first changes associated with a subluxation are fixation, edema, and inflammation and usually occur immediately after a fall or other accident. However, pains in this stage can vary from extreme to none at all.

1. Fixation shows up as a reduction or loss of mobility in one or more joints of the spinal vertebrae.
2. Edema. Notice how the disc has become swollen. This occurs when fluid fills into the damaged joint area causing swelling, similar to what happens when you twist an ankle.
3. Inflammation. The nerve also becomes inflamed and swollen. However, since there is no degeneration and the pathological changes are of minor nature from which the nerve rapidly recovers, there is a very good chance of complete recovery.

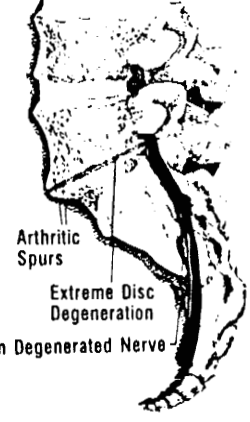

STAGE II

Superior Disc Swollen
Superior Nerve Swollen
Tipping of Vertebra
Wedged and Degenerated Disc
Chronic Swollen Nerve

During this stage, the body attempts to help support the subluxated vertebra, but actually starts to deform it in the process. The disc becomes narrow and dehydrated. Muscles become more rigid. Yet pain may still be nonexistent, so that you aren't even aware of the degeneration taking place. At this stage, you still have a chance for recovery, but it takes place more slowly than after a first degree injury because of additional time taken for the restoration of axonal continuity with the periphery.

STAGE III

Arthritic Spurs
Extreme Disc Degeneration
Thin Degenerated Nerve

By now the disc has completely degenerated. The entire joint area, including the muscles, is becoming calcified and more rigid. The vertebra will actually begin to soften. Pain could be excruciating, or you might notice none at all. There is little chance for recovery because regeneration of the nerve is both incomplete and imperfect. However, we can probably make life more comfortable.

STAGE IV

Thinning of Disc
Arthritic Fusion
Ribbon-Like Atrophied Nerve

At this stage, the entire area has completely fused together. The absorbing disc has disappeared. The surrounding muscles are very rigid. And unfortunately, because the nerve is ruptured and disorganized by the injury, no useful recovery is to be expected.

What had begun as a minor problem, has resulted in total destruction of the spinal joint, irreparable nerve damage and an obvious decline of health.

Falls, stresses, strains, sprains, jolts, jars, tension, poor posture, twisting, turning, sudden impacts, lifting, athletic injuries, exertion, stumbling, etc. can cause vertebral subluxations without producing pain and other symptoms. This is why we are so concerned about correcting any subluxations you might have.

Chiropractic Results in Better Health

I had much discomfort in the skull and neck area. I was involved in a minor automobile accident 2 1/2 years ago. I was hospitalized and placed in traction. During this time, I had increased hypertension and required much pain medication and other drugs.

These problems were interfering with my daily routine. I was more fatigued, my arms were weak and I had several problems with medical prescriptions. My daughter first heard about chiropractic many years ago. I received good results for an injured disc propping Chiropractic and my wife recommended the Sebawaing Chiropractic Life Center because they experienced good results there.

Within about 2 1/2 weeks, I noticed improvement in my arms. I also noticed that my blood pressure was lowering and it's still improving.

Since I've been receiving regular adjustments I have less tension while working or resting. I'm more alert and able to concentrate on doing things instead of always feeling down and out. I have less ear noises, sharper vision and my shoulders and arms feel equally strong and balanced instead of weak on one side. My breathing has also improved.

I would definitely recommend chiropractic care to anyone who requires frequent office calls, many tests or much medication when doctoring with an MD. Do not overlook chiropractic care. The results can be better health. I know, my wife and I continue with regular check-ups and use chiropractic care. Even minor problems don't go away by themselves. Instead they cause much needless discomfort.

Prior to coming to the Sebawaing Clinic, I was taking an average of 8 pills a day. I was recommended to take 14 pills a day and more if necessary, 3 types of medication for hypertension alone. I now take 1 hypertension medication once a day and I have not been to another MD's office since having chiropractic care.

RESULTS

Why cover up the problem, when eliminating the cause will result in true relief? In Chiropractic health care we believe that the secret to good health lies within your body, not your medicine cabinet. Drugs only temporarily cover-up the symptoms of disease. Chiropractors concentrate on your spine, which protects the nerves which link the control centers in the brain and all other parts of the body. If you are suffering from a spine-related problem, there's not a drug in the world that will make you better. Isn't it time you gave chiropractic a try?

Back Pain Relieved

When I had severe back pain my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reich told me about chiropractic. I went to a chiropractor in Owosso in 1968. After four treatments I felt relief. In 1973 and 1975, when I again put my back out of place by lifting wrong, I also went for chiropractic care. My doctor died shortly after that. I was referred then by another friend, Joan Hofmeister, to a doctor in Saginaw. Again I had relief but with the distance to travel and the cost I didn't go as I should have. In November of 1983 my arthritis doctor recommended me to see a neurologist because of the pain in my groin and back. The X-rays of my total hip replacement gave no indication of trouble there. The neurologist diagnosed my problem as a herniated disc or shrink the disc that causes the pressure on the nerve and suffered from the chemodiscolysis to chemically dissolve years of life. I got no relief from prescription pain relievers. I had more pain than before the injection and it radiated down into my knee and leg. The neurologist acknowledged the fact that the injection didn't work and was ready to do surgery. I wasn't convinced that surgery was the answer. After much prayer and deliberation I was recommended by Karen Weisenbach to the chiropractic care of Dr. Pat Seclio at The Sebawaing Chiropractic Center. She explained why I was having so much pain and was very sympathetic. She was confident that I would get relief with treatment. She adjustment. As time went on, less adjustments after each four times that first week and felt improvement after each completely gone. I can do most all of the work I did before and can go up steps without the help of a railing. I can also do some lifting. I am most grateful to God for the relief I have received through Dr. Pat and her chiropractic care. I wouldn't say chiropractic is a cure for all ailments, but this is the truth of my own experience.

Listen To Your Body

Painful Joints

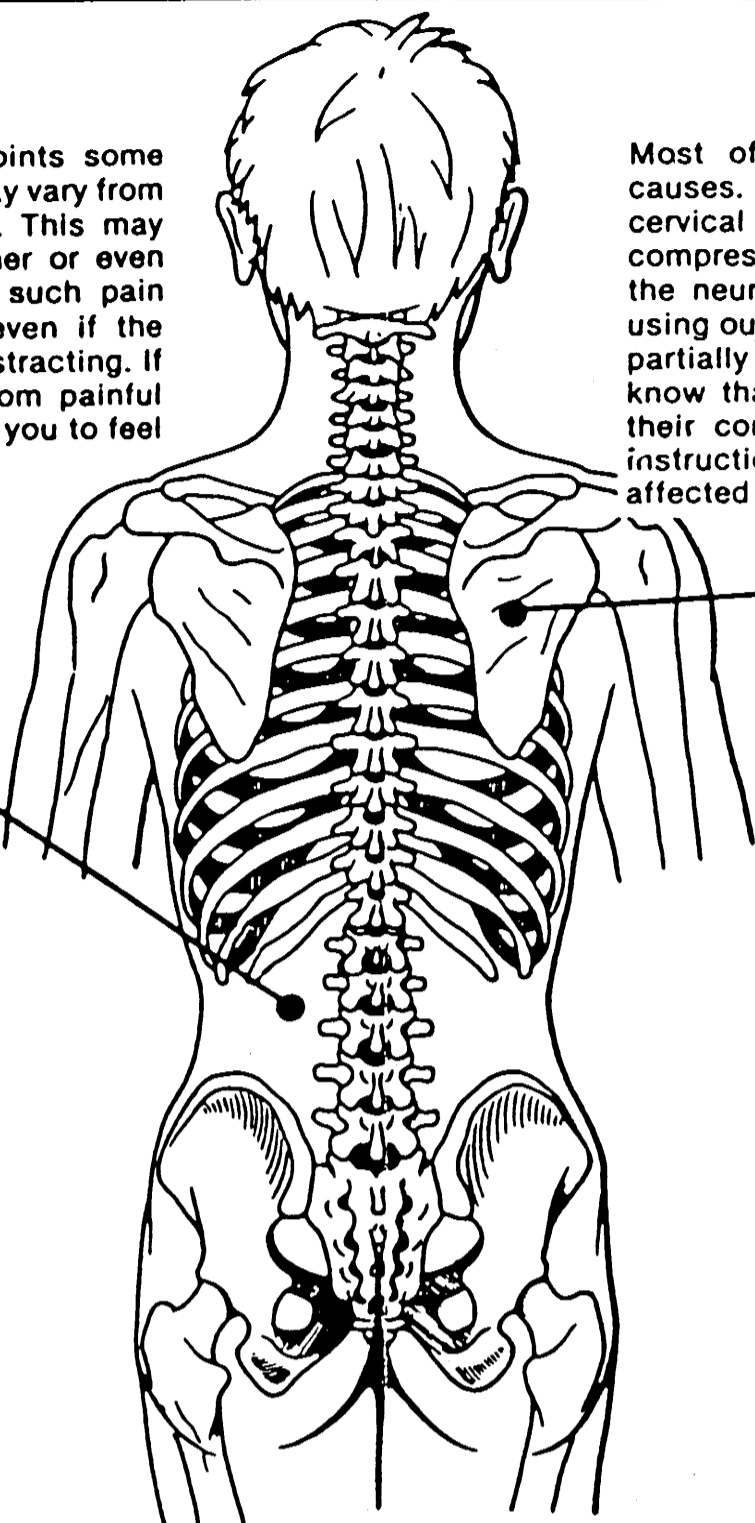

Often because of the constant use of joints some people develop pain and soreness which may vary from a sharp pain to a deep aching soreness. This may occur at the onset of a change in weather or even normal everyday movement. Many times such pain may indicate a serious condition, but even if the problem is not serious, the pain can be distracting. If you or someone you know is suffering from painful joints the best time to act is now. We want you to feel in tip-top shape.

Backaches

There are many reasons for backaches. Some of the common ones are: compressed spinal nerves, poor muscular development, sprains and strains of the supporting structure of the spine and muscle spasms due to overuse and tension. We examine your total health picture with the use of x-ray, clinical examinations and special chiropractic spine and nerve tests to determine if you can be helped with chiropractic.

Numbness in Hands/Feet

As nerves become compressed because of misaligned vertebrae the transmission of neurological messages from the brain to the body parts are reduced or even eliminated. Some nerves that are pinched may not be noticeable in a physical symptom while others may be quite evident. When you lose the feeling in your hands or feet this is a strong indication that you have a subluxation in your spinal column compressing nerves. If this is happening to you please call our office today.

Headaches

Most often headaches that occur have traceable causes. One common reason is the vertebrae in the cervical (neck) area may be out of alignment and compressing nerves, causing pressure. If this happens the neurological messages that flow from the brain using our nerves as pathways to parts of the body, are partially or completely cut off. As chiropractors we know that by gently adjusting the vertebrae back to their correct position nerve pressure is eliminated, instructional flow from the brain is renewed and the affected bodily parts can begin functioning correctly.

Pain Between Shoulders

Pain between the shoulders is usually caused by a misalignment in the thoracic area (mid back) of the spine. Between these vertebrae flow the nerves to the heart, lungs and other vital organs making this area extremely critical to your health. If you have pain between your shoulders please visit our office for a spinal examination. We cannot only help you with your pain, but also enhance your body's recuperative powers to aid your general body health.

Pain in Legs

The largest nerve which controls movement as well as sensory functions of the hips and legs is the sciatic nerve. The condition Sciatica, associated with pain in the hips and legs, is due to compression of the sciatic nerve in the lower back. Through adjusting the affected vertebrae the nerve is allowed to function normally. Since our hips and legs are involved in a great deal of physical activity we cannot afford to lose them to debilitating pain.

Health Care... Naturally

Our approach assures professional care in chiropractic health care, we use a proven procedural approach to detect and correct your health problem.

CONSULTATION. Our consultation is designed to determine whether your condition falls within the realm of our care. Based upon the results, the doctor will make appropriate recommendations regarding X-rays, examination, treatment or referral to another doctor.

EXAMINATION. We utilize an array of neurologic, orthopedic and chiropractic diagnostic procedures to localize the specific cause of the symptoms present.

X-RAYS. Not all patients need to be X-rayed, but many do. Our X-ray facility is on location using the latest in X-ray technology and incorporating a 2½ minute developing process that allows X-ray analysis and study immediately.

REPORT OF FINDINGS. After the doctor has correlated his finding based upon your X-rays and examination, you will receive a complete report outlining specific recommendations.

PREVENTATIVE HEALTH CARE. After you have regained your precious health, chiropractic spinal checkups at regular intervals can give assurance that harmful disease producing nerve interferences have not returned to your body. Live the chiropractic way, for you Life, Health, Harmony and Happiness depends on the normal functioning of your nervous system.

If you have the cans...we have the can opener.

Give your children a healthy start with regular chiropractic health care.

Ask any doctor of chiropractic and he will tell you that children are among his favorite patients, and there are good reasons for this. First of all the children are delighted when they discover that adjustments do not hurt and there are no long needles or bitter medicines to take. Usually after their first visit they are eager to jump up on the table for their 'justment.' Secondly, the children's response to chiropractic is often amazing. It is commonplace in a chiropractor's office to see a child feeling and acting much better, minutes after his first adjustment, usually to the amazement of his happy parents. In fact, chiropractic doctors themselves are often very surprised when seeing a child feeling and acting much better, so fast. This is true with minor illnesses such as colds, flu, constipation, mumps, measles, rashes as well as the more serious conditions such as arthritis, polio, asthma, heart disease, allergies etc.

Children love chiropractic and chiropractors love children patients. The chiropractor works with the power of life and health that is in each of us. This life power flows over the nerves much as electricity flows over wires. When the power of life is blocked off in the spine there is a lack of life in some part of the body. This causes disharmony and the result is disease. The chiropractor's sole job is to find the blocked nerves in the spine and correct the blockage so that this life power can restore health.

Quite often several adjustments are needed in adults before the life power can do enough work to give the patient results. Children, on the other hand, are so "full of life", their bodies young and simple, their minds free from depressing worries and fears that they usually respond much more quickly and easily to chiropractic care.

Very often chiropractors see chronic illness and disease in adults that originated as some minor complaint in childhood. Many such conditions could be prevented if the parents would take advantage of early chiropractic care. Join the many modern mothers and fathers who are insuring their child's future health through chiropractic. The youngsters love chiropractic. The future of the world lies in the heads, hands, hearts, and health of today's children.
